Pontiac Lions Club Building Home For Widow And Three Children

The Pontiac Lions Club are building a new home for the widow of the late Max Sanftenberg and his three young children who were living in an old blacksmith shop in Campbell's Bay.

This project was decided on by the Club after a report of the Health and Welfare Committee under the chairmanship of Lion Arthur Dunnigan.

A drive in Campbell's Bay and Bryson resulted in the following donations to the Sanftenberg House Fund:

Chenier's Furniture and Grocery Store; roofing to cover roof; all the nails required for the building and bricks for the chimney; Smith's Groceries; Paint and Kemtone for interior decorating; 5 to $1.00 store; 5 bags of cement; Mr. Jack St. Paul; $5.00; McConnery's Hotel; $10.00; Smith's Lumber Co.; 2,000 ft. lumber; Smith's Garage; Foundation timber; Len Frazer; Hauling of the gravel; Vibert & Hickson; 5 bags of cement; Lionel Martin; 500 board feet of 2x4; Lloyd Kensley; Excavation; Ringrose Bros.; $5.00; Royal Cafe; $2.00; Pontiac Bus Lines; $5.00 and trucking; Mousseau's Dry Goods; $2.00; Jack Derouin; 500 ft. lumber; Thomas J. Moorhead; 2x8 600 board ft.; Charles Bolam; 2,000 feet lumber; Fred Martin; Installation of water in house, including piping, shut-off and tap; Fred Pare; $3.00; Irvin's Service Station; $3.00; Lawn Bros.; $5.00; H. R. Lunan and son; $5.00; Northland Lumber Co.; 1,000 ft.

Boys Equal Girls At Pontiac Hospital

Twenty births during September are reported at the Pontiac Community Hospital. Also reported were:

Admissions	Major

The Early Days In Clarendon

By Leonard Coyne

In the Christmas number of the Pontiac Advance, 1892, published then in Portage du Fort, by James Thomas Pattison, we find a very interesting item given the Editor by James Hodgins, whose advertisement appears in that number and is well worthy of mention also. The story related to Mr. Pattison, however, concerns Thorne Township and is as follows:

It was when James Hodgins was a lad of 16, in 1842, that his father and four or five of the neighbors, taking him with them, proceeded to explore the Township of Thorne. They had heard through an old American hunter, by the name of Meechem, of a fine tract of hardwood land desirable for settlement.

The late Matthew Daley had just commenced clearing land in the rear of Clarendon bordering on Thorne. Between Shawville (then known as Clarendon Centre) and Mat Daley's place there was only one settler. A wide path through the woods was the only road to Daley's house. Arriving there, the little party of land hunters rested and refreshed themselves from the supplies they carried in packs upon their backs.

Preceding from Daley's they followed the bank of the Quyon river, until they reached the point where they had to leave the stream and take a short westerly trail through the bush. The trail consisted of broken twigs along the route sufficiently close for the travellers to see from one to the other. This was Meechem's "road" and one he travelled himself when going from home to the settlement at the "front".

Before sundown the travellers reached Meechem's place. They found him in the hut, three sides of which were made of round logs, the other side being the perpendicular side of a huge rock, that raised its scraggy head towards the sky. It was in close proximity to the eastern end of what is known as Johnson's lake.

The party of travellers remained over night and receiving very full instructions from Meechem, started west the following morning with an ordinary pocket compass for a guide. They arrived after some hours travelling on the north side of Sparling's Lake, proceeded over the country now occupied by Thomas Rooney, Sam Dale, John Sparling, William Flood and George Crawford. This part excited the admiration of the land hunters. The most beautiful hardwood bush they ever saw was here, with freedom from undergrowth sufficient to drive a wagon with ease.

The judgment of the party, however, was that the area of this good land was too small to make a large settlement. Striking South, they travelled over the land now owned by William Rooney, the late Robert Rooney, John and Robert Smith, until they once more entered Clarendon passing along where at a later period schoolmaster Stevens located himself at the edge of a little lake and continuing south until they struck Green Lake, near where the late Thomas Hodgins lived. Going around the east end of the lake they continued through the bush until Clarendon Centre was once more reached. They had a rough journey of it as every one knows who is acquainted with the route described. They climbed rocks, waded swamps and creeks and were a very much exhausted party of footsore travellers when they got back to their own little clearing around the Centre. Not one of the party returned to Thorne with a view of taking up land in it.

"Not so," concluded Mr. Hodgins "is it with the prairie country of Manitoba I travelled through last summer (1892). For out there are millions of acres of the finest land the sun ever shone on" and he concluded with the hope that some day some one with the liberty ability and the time at his disposal and before all the pioneers of Clarendon had given up the battle of life would write a chronicle of the early days of the settlement of Clarendon.

The funeral took place in Winnipeg Man., on Wednesday afternoon, of Elizabeth Little, beloved wife of John Little, who passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Gage, on Sunday September 23, in her 77th year.

The funeral service was held at Bardals Funeral Home being conducted by the minister, Rev. W. J. Dixon, assisted by Rev. J.L. Patterson, a former pastor of Epworth United Church, of which (Continued on Page 8)

With The Pets. Two Quebec residents, Louis and Daddies, who tip the scales at more than 300 pounds each, arrived at C.N.R. express offices in Montreal last week on their way to the bright lights of Broadway. Louis and Daddies are three-year-old black bears purchased by a New York couple from an Indian near Lake Kempt. Now quite tame but too large for pets they will make their future home in Prospect Park Zoo in New York City.

Like The Dodo. Wedge shape pieces of cheddar cheese may soon be extinct. For 100 years or more Canadian cheddar has been made in large round cakes of approximately 90 pounds each. Fifty-five or more cheese factories in Eastern Ontario and Quebec are now making Cheddar cheese in 40 pound square blocks. They are packed in dry veneer boxes.

To tell the age of any horse inspect the lower jaw, of course; The six front teeth the tale will tell And every doubt and fear dispel.

More Than 100 Gather At Stark's To Mark Couple's 50th Anniversary

Nineteen grandchildren and eight great grandchildren were among the 105 persons who gathered in Stark's Corner's United Church hall last week to honor Mr. and Mrs. John A. Dean on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Dean are life long residents of this district. Mrs. Dean, before her marriage Elizabeth Jane Smiley, was born at Charteris and moved to Stark's Corners after the wedding in Bryson United Church performed by Rev. Mr. Lackie.

A son of James Dean, Mr. Dean was born at Stark's Corners. They have seven children, Lennis, Rev. Leslie, Ernest, Clarence, Ronald, Mrs. Cecil Sly (Gladys) and Mrs. Gus Draper (Lyla) all of whom were on hand for last week's anniversary celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean lived at Stark's until 1938 when they moved to Shawville. A carpenter by trade Mr. Dean was appointed secretary-treasurer of Shawville and Clarendon Councils and Clarendon School Board and held these positions until his retirement in 1949.

Following a dinner served to 48 members of the immediate family, members of the community presented the happy couple with a table lamp and a sum of money and the family gave them two aluminum featherweight lawn chairs.

The presentations were made in a hall decorated with golden mums. The cake was cased by Mrs. Dean and decorated by her daughter, Mrs. Sly. Dr. A. F. Fokes proposed the toast to the bride with Mr. Dean making the reply. The toast to the family was proposed by James Forgie and replied to by the five sons.

An address on behalf of the community was read by Mrs. Clive Smart and the presentation made by Mrs. Harvey Wilson.

Supper was served by members of the Women's Association of Stark's Corners while the children were looked after on the stage by Mrs. Bud Elliott and Mrs. Earl Fulford. Seventeen of the children were under 12, including six in high chairs.

Tea was served by Mrs. Cecil Sly, Mrs. Gus Draper, Mrs. Leslie Dean, Mrs. Ernie Dean, Mrs. Lennis Dean and Mrs. Clarence Dean.

WANTED: A SOLOMON!

It had been our intention to publish The Hospital Story in full in this issue. This was in line with our announcement after the first hospital meeting that as soon as both sides had been heard we would give space to the story and let the readers decide for themselves.

This was our intention right up until Thursday noon, by which time we had already set 9 columns of type which, in The Equity, means a full page and a half and we still had an equal distance to go when we called a halt to the operation, threw the 9 columns of type into the melting pot and started all over again. It is for that reason The Equity is late this week.

Our decision to scrap what had taken so many valuable hours to produce was made, we know now, right after Wednesday night's meeting, but did not crystallize until Thursday morning when we fully realized what we were planning to present to our readers.

The Hospital Story does not make good reading, in our opinion. Nothing was added to it by Wednesday night's meeting and for The Equity to publish any or all of a story which is full of charges and counter charges and name calling and presents the spectacle of professional and business men losing their dignity—and their tempers—will add nothing to the solution of a problem which, unless it is solved soon, will have a serious effect on the future well being of a very fine institution—The Pontiac Community Hospital.

In our opinion we would be doing the hospital, the community and the people involved in the dispute a disservice by broadcasting a fight which has largely degenerated to a battle of personalities.

Whether we were right or wrong in deciding not to publish the story at this time we don't know. We feel, however, that we are right when we suggest that what is needed at this time is a Solomon, defined in the dictionary as "An extraordinarily wise man"

We cannot, at the time of writing, see any mere mortal getting the two sides in the dispute together and coming up with a solution which will go some of the way toward healing friendships which may remain broken for many years to come.

Memorial Bell Victim Of Progress Suggests Cairn Be Erected

The Editor:

A school house was destroyed by fire last Friday evening. This caused no alarm and little concern in the immediate community. Most residents knew that this building (which belonged to the "little school house era") had to be destroyed to make way for the new highway at present under construction.

I must admit that I felt no cause for alarm. A new highway is more important than an uninhabited schoolhouse. Concern? Well yes, I was afraid that the bell (which had informed the surrounding countryside for the past two decades that school was in session) had met wanton destruction.

This bell was installed by the Clarendon Women's Institute in remembrance of Duncan B. Draper, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Truman Draper who lost his life in World War 1 in the battle of Vimy Ridge. Granted the history of the bell is not old but as a memorial to a fallen soldier it should be preserved.

Why not go further still and preserve the memory of the school? Our modern and progressive methods of rural education necessarily demand consolidation but not the forcing of these absolute educational landmarks into oblivion.

The Clarendon Women's Institute were thoughtful indeed to preserve a name by such a memorial. Surely we should have the foresight to perpetuate the memory of a soldier and a school. Historical monuments or even landmarks in this district are practically nil.

The following, of course, is only a suggestion. A column of stone and mortar or better still brick from the old building, with the bell upon the top could be erected on the old school site. A plaque placed upon the front of the column facing the new highway where everyone passing by could see an inscription that perhaps would read:

Gaze upon this bell in reverent silence stranger. For it commemorates the name of a soldier, Duncan B. Draper, who gave his life for his country in World War 1. This monument was erected in 1951 on the original site of Clarendon No. 4 school. Built in 1909—Destroyed by Progress, 1951.

BOY SCOUTS

The first paper collection has been completed and like most other "Firsts" there were mistakes. First we want to thank the Shawville Citizens for saving their paper for us and after the dust had settled, it would seem we have about 3/4 of a ton. Second, we want to apologise for unknowingly having kept a good friend of ours from using his garage, for his car. The Rovers and the Scouts sure worked like sturgeons to do the job. In order to help us, it would be very much appreciated if each person who has paper for us would be good enough to tie it up in bundles with HEAVY twine as this all had to be done by the boys before it can be shipped to Ottawa. Thanks very much Shawville! The boys will be back again for another call on Friday, October 26 so please have your bundles ready.

The Commissioner has declared Saturday October 20 for Boy Scout Apple Day. The Cubs, Scouts and Rovers will be out with their apples and tags on that day, and everyone wears a tag on that day. Buyers, please put your donations in the box yourself, get your tag and wear it and enjoy your apple.

The Scout Troop went for a weiner roast on Thursday to a place they had never been before. It was a fair hike and all would have been well if someone were aiming at. Anyway, brush had not moved the shack they had grown up and they missed their way. However, they arrived at a suitable spot, collected wood for their fire, but it was a bit damp, they had to use their Scout ingenuity to get it going. They then erected their tripod and suspended their pot over the flames on a piece of rusty wire and soon the water was boiling. In went the weiners—but alas that wire was too old and down went the works. Not to be outdone they quickly cut sticks and after wiping the weiners off, roasted them over the fire. I am told they tasted better that way anyway. Lee would like to borrow a compass.

Orienteering—A Great Sport

As many as 5,000 persons have been known to take part in one single sporting event in Sweden. That event is Orienteering, which has become a national past-time there. Certainly, there aren't likely to be any larger entry lists on record anywhere.

Orienteering is cross-country running with a new twist. It is ideal for track men doing fall conditioning work, for Boy Scouts and for other clubs and organizations seeking interesting and healthful activities.

The requirements of this sport are simple—a map, a compass, and a little knowledge of map reading. It can be extremely exciting and keenly competitive when well organized.

Centour maps of the area over which an Orienteering competition is to be held should be obtained by organizers. They should go over the course beforehand to mark "Control Stations" with paint or strips of cloth. These should stand out, and it is best to locate them on prominent places such as the crest of a hill, in a clearing or beside a fork in the road. The starting and finishing station are at the same place.

Working as individuals, or as teams it is a team race, competitors start at two minute intervals. They are allowed to study a map for 10 minutes before starting, and on it are marked the locations of the various control stations. At the end of this time, the maps are taken away.

During this study period, competitors plot their course between each station. Smart athletes will note the easiest course (not necessarily the shortest) which avoids steep hills, swamps, etc. Compasses are carried during the race to calculate direction. Consequently, those who learn to use their compasses and maps effectively will have a strong advantage.

The Silva Compass, developed in Sweden especially for Orienteering, is also available in Canada.

At Control Station number one, an official checks off the competitors as they arrive, and shows them a map on which is marked the location of the second Control Station. This continues throughout the race. The winner is the man or team which covers the course in the shortest time.

For beginners, the Orienteering course should be simple, with perhaps four or five control stations about one half mile apart. As the competitors gain experience, however, the course can be made longer and more difficult.

Further information on this fast-growing and exciting sport is available from Sports College. The Silva Co. Ltd., 77 York St., Toronto, has published a book entitled, "The Sport of Orienteering," which contains information on many different types of Orienteering competition.

Nice dish to serve in place of a salad uses sliced cucumbers which are then salted and mixed with soured cream to which some cottage cheese has been added.

When you're serving leftover roast or fowl cold or for sandwiches, use this dressing: to one cup of mayonnaise add 1 chopped, hard-cooked egg, 1/4 cup chili sauce and 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper.

An elegant luncheon for the ladies: broiled sweetbreads on sautéed eggplant covered with a thin slice of ham.

Gingerbread waffles make an excellent dessert, and you may serve them with ice cream or whipped cream and bananas

Banquet Frankfurters

(Serves 6)

12 frankfurters
1/4 cup prepared mustard
2 cups seasoned mashed potatoes
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
1/4 cup chopped parsley
Slit frankfurters lengthwise and spread with mustard. Combine all remaining ingredients and spread on cut surface of 6 frankfurters. Place remaining frankfurters on top, cut side down. Bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for 220 minutes.

when you want to get fancy about it. The waffles are quick and easy made from packaged mix.

If you have a roast, there's bound to be meat left for hash. But don't let it be served as hash all the time. Stuff peppers with it, or cabbage leaves, and don't forget it's delicious put right into parboiled onions and then baked to heat through.

French dressing with lettuce makes an easy salad, and it's just different enough when you add chopped, hard-cooked egg to it, to be something special.

Celery usually isn't used much as a cooked vegetable, but you'll reconsider when you serve it fried. Dip the pieces into a light batter and plunge them into deep fat until crisp and golden. Drain.

Hints On Home Storage Of Apples

Many farmers and home owners have satisfactory air-cooled storage rooms for fruits and vegetables, but lack precise information on storing particular products. Here are some recommendations by horticultural officials at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Apples.—For best results apples should be placed in a storage at the proper maturity. This varies with varieties but as a general guide most varieties are at the right stage when the ground colour shows the first signs of turning from green to yellow. Blushed apples should be at least moderately well coloured.

As a general precaution against superficial scald, all apples should be wrapped in oiled wrappers (odourless mineral oil 12-15 per cent oil by weight). If these are not available, ordinary tissue wraps help protect the fruit from bruising. In selecting containers, well ventilated boxes are usually best.

Most varieties are best stored at 32 degrees F. and 90 per cent relative humidity if harvested and handled under ideal conditions. This means plenty of moisture and cooling has to be employed. The critical factor to watch in these varieties is freezing—most types are safe from frost injury at 29 degrees F. or above.

Hazel May Peck Weds Floren Dorzek

A pretty wedding was solemnized in the parsonage of the Shawville United Church on Saturday afternoon when the vows of matrimony were taken before Dr. A.F. Fokes, by Floren James Dorzek, son of Mrs. William Dorzek and the late Mr. Dorzek, of Otter Lake and Hazel May Peck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Peck, of Cawood.

For the ceremony the bride wore a full length gown of light blue net with short sleeves and full skirt and she carried a bouquet of pink and white roses. The bridesmaid, Annie Peck was a sister of the bride and wore a street length dress of blue rayon faille, with black accessories. The best man was Leo Schroeder, of Otter Lake.

After a reception at the home of the bride's parents and a short wedding trip, the young couple are to reside in Otter Lake.

Lunch Boxes—Make Them Prize Packages

Whether you pack lunches for your king man or for school youngsters, you're really preparing surprise packages for them. And, lunch every day should be a happy surprise, the kind they'll enjoy.

Three menu "must's" for a lunch box are these: Something hot. Something hearty. Something fresh and crisp. Include those items and you're sure of grin-winning lunches.

For the something hot, soup is the perfect satisfying dish. You have a wide assortment to choose from in the condensed soups—tomato, asparagus, cream of mushroom, vegetable, chicken noodle. Just add the required amount of liquid and heat the soup. If you use a lip pan, you can pour direct from the pan to the thermos. The lunch may eat or drink the soup from his thermos cup. Be sure to send a spoon.

The hearty part of lunch is often a sandwich. Try new combinations of fillings and a variety of breads to keep up appetite appeal. Now and then, send a cup of salad instead of a sandwich. Potato salad with slices of frankfurters or a cottage cheese salad can be mighty tasty. Deviled eggs too are perfect lunch-box fare.

To round out the repast, fix crisp vegetable relishes and send some fresh fruit almost every day. Apples, pears, grapes, oranges—any one is refreshing. Just try to make it something different each time.

lunches if you plan them a week ahead. Here are some menu ideas to start with.

Special Treat

Cream of Chicken Soup
Doubleduck Bunwich (One layer cheese, one ham on round bun)
Orange Segments and Grapes
Oatmeal Cookies
Surprise Package (Hard Candy and Peanuts)

Box Picnic

Bean with bacon soup (prepared with milk)
Deviled Eggs
Fresh Tomato Wedges
Bread and Butter Sandwiches
Banana Chocolate Cookies

SOUP SCOOPS

Cheese Vegetable Soup
Next time you serve condensed vegetable soup, give it brand new appeal this way. Stir some shredded Canadian cheese into it just before you pour the soup into bowls. About 2 tablespoons of cheese is the right amount for 1 can of condensed soup.

Corn-and-Beef Skillet Supper
Brown ½ pound of ground beef with some chopped onion and green pepper in a big skillet. Then stir in 1 20-ounce can of drained whole kernel corn and 1 can of condensed tomato soup. Simmer for 5 minutes. That's dinner all ready to go to the table with green salad and buttered French bread.

Mrs. Margaret Somerville

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Somerville widow of the late Albert E. Somerville, who passed away at her home in Sudbury last Tuesday, was held from the Ringrose Funeral home to St. John the Evangelist's Church Campbell's Bay. Rev. J. L. Enright celebrated Requiem Mass.

Born in Clarendon Que., she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Martin Ringrose who were among the first settlers of the district. She was in her 82nd year, and for the past five years had been living in Sudbury.

Surviving are one son, Percy, of Sudbury, four daughters, Mrs. J. Quinn, Windsor, Mrs. H. Durrell, London, Mrs. P. Wall and Mrs. T. V. Hearty, of Sudbury, and fourteen grandchildren.

Floral offerings were: Pillow, the family; wreaths, shop worker's Froud Open Pit, Carpenters Union No. 2748; Sprays, The Grandchildren, Mr. and Mrs. A. Durrell, Miss Gurtha Durrell, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Rennie, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Johnston, Jack Quinn and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. Randall, Ringrose Family; Baskets, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Herbie Brown, Mrs. Loretta Ringrose.

Many spiritual offerings were also received.

Pallbearers were: Clarence Ringrose, Arthur Durrell, Clarence Wall, Thomas Hearty, T. J. Moorhead and Ernie Hearty, close friends of the family.

Interment was in the R. C. cemetery at Bryson, Que.

A statue honoring Mme. Marie Harel, a peasant woman of Normandy, for her introduction of Camembert Cheese, was erected in the market place of her native village for which the cheese was named.

A special type of cheese was once served to Napoleon at a Normandy Inn. The general was so impressed with its soft texture and flavour that he named it after the village in which it was made, Camembert.

The Bible makes several references to cheese. The boy, David carried ten cheeses to his captain as the most delectable of fine foods.

Miss Annie Gamble, of Ottawa, spent the weekend with her mother, Mrs. David Gamble.

Mr. and Mrs. James Prior, recently visited their son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Walton Prior, in Timmins.

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Young, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Young and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred McCrea, all of Ottawa, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Young.

Miss Erma Murray, of Ottawa, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Murray.

Miss Eileen Craig and Miss Madelin Craig spent Thanksgiving weekend in New York.

Miss Lois Sparling and Miss Mary Jay attended the teacher's convention at Macdonald College, during the weekend.

We are pleased to learn that Mrs. Dave Hodgins is making a satisfactory recovery from the accident in which she broke her foot.

Mr. Fred Henderson has returned to his home still recuperating from an operation in the Civic Hospital during the summer months.

Thanksgiving in the Churches
Campbell's Bay United Church was filled for the Thanksgiving service Sunday morning. The minister spoke on Paul's text to the Corinthians, "Being enriched in bounties we have cause to thank God."

The choir contributed two appropriate selections, "Praise Him" and "Thy word is like a garden, Lord." The church was decorated with flowers, vegetation and fruits.

Bryson Rededication

An impressive and beautiful service was held in Bryson United Church, for Thanksgiving and rededication.

The church, having recently been painted outside, was dignified for worship. Adding to the general appearance were fruits, flowers and autumn twigs which lent an extra touch of beauty.

The church was filled for this special occasion. The Campbell's Bay choir joined with Bryson and sang two special numbers. Rev. and Mrs. L. Emard assisted the minister, Rev. J. Renshaw in the service. The Quartet sang, "The Lord is my Shepherd," inspired by the new text inscribed on the interior walls of the church.

A special prayer of rededication was given by the minister as the church and people were rededicated to God.

The minister's theme was, "Self Preservation as nature's first law. Text—'He that saveth his life shall lose it but he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it.'"

The Women's Association, under the presidency of Mrs. Clarence Wall, have spent $7.50 on the Church which merits the appreciation of the congregation thus enabling us to worship the Lord in the beauty of Holiness.

Miss Estelle O'Brien, of Montreal, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Brien.

Miss Martina and Miss Mildred Griffin, of Montreal, spent the weekend with their mother, Mrs. Clara Griffin.

Horner—Sparling

St. Andrew's United Church, Campbell's Bay, was the scene of the wedding of Jean Sparling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Heman Sparling, and Donald Horner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Horner, of Shawville.

The church was prettily arranged with flowers of the season, Asters and Marigolds. The candlelight added to the scene as the marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Renshaw.

The bride entered the church led by her father, who gave her in marriage. Her wedding gown was of white Angel satin with sweetheart neckline, floor-length long sleeves, with gloves to match. Her finger tip veil of tulle decorated with satin embroidered wedding bells which draped from her silver crown shaped halo with pearls and gem setting, made a charming bride. She was adorned with a three-strand necklace of pearls. Her bouquet was of red roses and baby breath with silver streamers of lovers' knots. She wore silver slippers.

The bride's attendant was her sister, Miss Phyllis Sparling, who was gown in a floor length dress of blue nylon taffeta off the shoulder style. Her coronet shoulder length veil set with sweetheart roses was of blue nylon embroidered with mittens to match. She wore a necklace of Rhinestones and silver slippers. Her corsage was of pink carnations and blue streamers.

The groom was attended by Davis Hodgins, of Shawville.

During the signing of the register the soloist sang "Because", accompanied by the organist Mrs. Margaret Henderson. The ushers were Sherwood Sparling and Stanley Horner.

After the marriage ceremony the wedding party left for the bride's home, where a wedding dinner was served to the friends of the immediate families. The bride's mother received, wearing a dress of blue nylon crepe with a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother wore a grey dress with a corsage of red roses.

In the evening a reception was held in the hall, attended by a large number of friends and relatives. The young couple received many gifts as a token of esteem. The following day the couple left on a honeymoon to Niagara and the U. S. A. the bride travelling in a navy blue suit with matching accessories. On their return they will reside in Shawville.

Gun "Hygiene"

If you want top performance from your shotshells this and every fall, keep your shotgun in good condition. That's the advice of gun experts in C-I-L's ammunition division.

Important points to consider, they say are cleaning and storing. A dirty shotgun will kick your aim off centre and interfere with the true flight of the pellets. Improper storage of your shotgun during the off season may lead to corrosion of the barrel, and make the gun much harder to keep clean during the shooting season.

Before the hunting season opens, shotguns should be thoroughly cleaned with gun oil, using a cleaning rod or pull-through inside the barrel. This should be repeated after duck hunting in the marshes to guard against the effect of any moisture that may have been picked up.

Occasionally a gun will "lead up" in use, with gray streaks of lead being visible at the forcing cone just ahead of the chamber, and at the choke where the barrel is constricted. This lead can be removed with ordinary mercuric ointment which should be applied to the affected parts and allowed to stand for 24 hours. After the ointment has been removed, the gun should be thoroughly cleaned again with gun oil.

In preparation for storage during the off-season, the gun should be cleaned, then liberally greased with petroleum jelly. During this cleaning and greasing, plenty of rags should be used and care taken that the fingers do not touch the metal, as body acids can start corrosion which will carry on under the grease.

Guns should always be stored in a clean, cool, dry place. They should not be stored in leather cases as these tend to attract moisture, and should never be stored with their barrels plugged. Air should be allowed to circulate freely.

Lack Of Minerals Affecting Animals

While most mineral elements are required only in minute quantities, their absence in the diet of livestock can result in such harmful effects such as the development of rickets, loss of appetite, loss of weight, a drop in milk or egg production, the production of weak offspring, goitre, anaemia and other disorders.

Ordinary feeds such as grains and forages supply certain essential minerals but mineral supplements are necessary to supply calcium, phosphorus, salt, iodine, iron, copper, manganese and cobalt, according to scientists of C-I-L's agricultural chemicals department. All but the first three of these minerals are required in very small quantities.

Cattle, sheep and horses require a mineral supplement with a high proportion of phosphorus to calcium—Sol-Min for example—since they are forage consumers and forages contain more calcium than phosphorus. Hogs on sumers and require a mineral the other hand are grain consumers and require a mineral supplement such as Pig-Min which is high in calcium to compensate for the low-calcium content of grains.

The importance of mineral elements in livestock rations is being stressed more and more by authorities on animal nutrition and progressive farmers and all farmers should be on the lookout for signs of profit stealing mineral deficiencies, C-I-L's agriculturalists advise.

A new outlet for artistic talents is being developed on this continent—that of painting murals on the exterior of barn walls. One farmer-artist in Wisconsin paints everything from super highways and bridges to magnificent Rocky Mountain scenes, according to C-I-L Agricultural News. His paintings range from 40 feet in length to 100 feet. Or-development is taking place—brought on by a fur buyer named Clarence Birdseye. During a trip to Labrador some years ago he noticed that meat and fish tasted as well after being frozen as they did when fresh.

This casual observation was the start of a new industry which spread rapidly throughout the continent—the frozen foods industry.

Across Canada are numerous locker plants containing anything from frozen caribou to T-bone steaks, and strawberries to corn on the cob. Householders are finding home-freezers indispensable for storing in-season fruits and vegetables from their own gardens or purchased cheaply at the local market.

Birdseye had an important ally when he launched his "cold war" against food spoilage—the chemist. To obtain the low temperatures necessary to freeze foods solid, refrigerants other than ice were necessary. Chemicals like

by Richard Hill Wilkinson

People of the North country hated Corp. Steve Brandt. They hated him because he was hard and cruel and severe, because he abided by the law to the letter, because he was relentless and ruthless and blind to all else but the accomplishment of his duty. And none was more aware of this hatred than Corp. Brandt himself.

He thought of it now as he swung his dog team down the embankment and onto the frozen bed of the river. The river stretched ahead of him for endless miles, a broad and crazily winding highway penetrating the bleak and frozen fastnesses of the Northland. Somewhere in that remote and desolate wilderness a man was fleeing from the law. And the fact that Corp. Brandt was the cause of the man's being there was the one great regret of his life; the fact that he was now in search of him was joyful compensation. Strange? Yes, but there are odd circumstances surrounding this situation. A man had been killed at MacDougall's post, and one Enoch Vaughn was accused of the crime. Steve Brandt had come upon Vaughn bending over the corpse and holding a bloody knife in his hand. The policeman had accused him, and Vaughn, frightened, had fled. It was now two hours later that the note had been found.

signed by the murdered man, which stated he had taken his own life.

The people at MacDougall's had cursed Brandt for his hasty reasoning. And Brandt had set out after the fleeing Vaughn. Not because he was afraid of the people's wrath, but because he felt it his duty. Never had he failed in his duty, and now that he had committed the first gross error of his career, he was still conscientious about fulfilling this new assignment.

Driving his dogs over the river's frozen surface at top speed, the officer knew a certain curious feeling of exultation. For the first time in his life he was on an errand of mercy. Strangely, it was uplifting. The bitterness that had lain for long in his soul as a result of the hatred of the people he served was suddenly banished. This, he told himself, would right the wrong, would establish him once and for all in their good graces; win their amity.

There was a certain desperation in Corporal Brandt's eyes as he lashed out at the dogs, a disturbing fear in his heart, for if he failed to overtake the fugitive the wrong he had done would ever burden his conscience.

Ten miles farther north, Brandt left the river bed and began a zig-zag course across country. An hour later he picked up the single snowshoe tracks of a man. A great sense of relief stole over him. There was no doubt that the imprints had been made by Vaughn. The owner of them was travelling light and fast, heading as an arrow for the wild, broken country north of Bascom's ledge. Vaughn's brother had a cabin somewhere up there.

Brandt whipped his dogs into a fast pace, yet, despite the speed with which they covered the ground, darkness settled down and the fugitive was still far ahead. Reluctantly Brandt made camp. It would be impossible to follow the tracks in the darkness, and he knew that Vaughn would keep going all night.

He was up at the crack of dawn and on the trail. Before noon he found evidence that the fleeing man had stopped to rest, and the snowshoe prints showed that he was tiring, that his pace was slower.

The policeman pushed on. By mid-afternoon the light of anticipation glowed in his eyes. Vaughn could not be more than a mile ahead now. It occurred to the officer as being strange that the fugitive had slowed his pace so great a degree. But the thought only flashed into his mind and was instantly gone.

His advance became more cautious now, for he remembered that Vaughn thought himself to be a hunted man, and was therefore desperate. Instead of following the snowshoe imprints, he cut off to the right, swung north again and went ahead on a parallel course. The dogs were close to exhaustion but Brandt drove them ahead without mercy.

An hour before darkness, he cut back to the left, slowed his pace and presently came again upon the tracks of the fugitive. Ten feet away he saw signs that told how Vaughn had fallen and lay for some time without rising. Brandt puckered his brow, spoke softly to the dogs. They went ahead and the policeman followed at some distance, senses attuned to catch the first unnatural sight or sound.

Abruptly the dogs stopped. Brandt stepped quickly behind a tree and waited. After a moment he appeared around its base, and what he saw sent him out into the open without fear or caution.

A dozen feet ahead of the panting dogs a figure lay huddled and crumpled in the snow. Brandt stooped over it, lifted its head and looked down into its face. And then a terrible fear clutched at his heart. The figure was that of Enoch Vaughn. But Enoch Vaughn was dead.

Brandt stood like a stone image. He understood now why the fugitive had slowed his pace so noticeably. His escape from MacDougall's had necessitated speed. There had been no time to equip himself with food or extra clothing. He had fled in a panic of fear. And the cruel northern climate had claimed him for its victim. Without food he had weakened fast. Not daring to stop and kindle a fire and rest he had pushed ahead in the bare hope of reaching his brother's cabin.

Corp. Brandt, turned away. This was the result of his one deed of mercy, the one opportunity to break down the barrier of hatred that had embittered his heart. In his mind's eye he could see the people at MacDougall's, hear their voices. This, for him, was also the end.

Vernon Schock

Vernon Schock, of Ottawa security officer at the National Research Council since 1941, died suddenly last Monday at his home aged 46.

Born at Ladysmith, the son of Mrs. Ella Schock and the late Ernest Schock, he was married in 1926 at Ste. Rose de Lima to the former Ella Tully. A resident of Ottawa for the past two years, he previously lived in East Tempeston.

He is survived by his wife; his mother, Mrs. Ella Schock, of Terrace Bay, Ont.; three sons, Lloyd, Bernard and Donald and one daughter, Verna, all of Ottawa; two brothers, Ernest, of Terrace Bay, and Austin, of Hamilton; and one sister, Mrs. Norman Lacasse, of Kapuskasing.

The funeral was held Thursday morning from the Sylvio Blais Funeral Home, Gatinou, for requiem high mass at 10 o'clock in Ste. Rose de Lima Church. Burial was in the parish cemetery.

Paint jobs done at home sometimes prove disappointing. Assuming the surface had been properly prepared and was not damp, the reason is generally because the paint was not thoroughly mixed. Paint should be thoroughly mixed before the job is started, and should be stirred from time to time while the job is being done.

"Beats the old team
any day, Dad"

AWHILE back, he figured out just what a new tractor would do for his farm. He didn't have enough cash in the bank to handle the deal. So he talked things over with his bank manager, fair and square.

He got his bank loan — and the tractor. From now on, he expects to work more acreage, increase his farm income. Soon the bank will be repaid.

He looks to his chartered bank for market information, too, and any other banking service he may need.

That's what he wants. That's what he gets. Sound business all round!

to master a new skill, received his wings at Chiddiack airport recently and everyone agreed he has a youthful approach to life.

Two teen age girls from near-by Cap de la Madeleine, Que., on a cycling trip, were caught with their shorts on at Shawinigan Falls and hailed before a Court Recorder for a breach of a city bylaw which permits only girls under seven years to wear the scanty attire; an alert constable nabbed them. Little Robert Moyer found a mushroom near Shaunavon, Sask., taking a yard and 14 inches to surround it lengthwise, measuring 37 inches around the middle. A real community newspaper is that at Oxbow, Sask., when Editor Jack Stutters was on his holidays, the Herald reports, "four staunch and sturdy citizens of the town came forth to lend a hand"; assisting were the bank manager, assistant town clerk, preacher, a Scotch patriot all required to "do the editor's job". The Banff Crag and Canyon tells that Cecil Philpot, in the 24 years since leaving home has written his mother 2,500 letters and she has replied to each one.

*Lindsay Ont. Watchman-Ward: A visit to magistrate's court could be an eye-opener for many who are inclined to believe the old saying that married life is all sweet and fair and as delectable as a bowl of cherries. The unfortunate thing is too many young people marry in haste and repent at leisure.

*Grenfell (Sask.) Sun: It's a grand old custom, naming farms. Just imagine that fine old song "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" if it had to be "Rebecca of Section 8, Township 5, Range 6, West of the Second Meridian." Nothing sentimental about that.

*Latest failure of price control is in Sweden, it is pointed. Prices rose 16% since 1950, with further increases expected to cause total rise of 20-26% by end of this year. "Swedish Office of Price Control attributes rise to high import and export prices, high taxes, wage increases. Significance of this price control failure is that it takes place in one of the world's most stable economies; long worshipped by Leftists as model of "planning."

*The Stettler (Alta.) Independent takes the lowly dandelion as editorial material. "It is the perennial favorite of the children as they have the inborn instinct which is linked with innocence and beauty. They do not value something that is lovely because it is bountiful and common."

*The government is riding along the crest of inflation because the inflationary tax structure, contends the Yarmouth, N. S. Light, adding, "For proof, look at the inflated surplus last reported at $409,000,000, or on an average of $100 million a month."

*This is excellent news for Russia, comments a contemporary, saying: "When social welfare costs of provinces and municipalities are taken into account, there is no question that Canada is spending far more on social welfare than on defence."

*When the premier and provincial treasurer of Saskatchewan were revealed to have loaned money for a drive-in theatre venture at Regina, the Estevan Mercury took off with an editorial partly saying, "But it seems not so long ago that both of these gentlemen were preaching that 'people should come before profits' and that profits should belong to governments. Even if they didn't specifically use those words they endorsed socialism which as a theory of governments demands those sort of things. How is that they have forsaken their theory in practice and moved over into the capitalistic realm in order to secure profit including interest charges?"

*Fresh evidence from Minneapolis that forced retirement at 65 is absurd, wasteful. Northwestern Life Insurance Co. checked, 300 male policyholders, found that only 24% wanted to retire at 65; remainder wanted to keep on working. Interesting finding was that majority of men who said they wanted to quit work at 65 were under 40.

*Cranbrook Courier: At best, a town without a newspaper is at a standstill. It may know where it has been; but it cannot tell where it is going because it cannot see the way ahead.

Central Library In New School

Mrs. Grace McCabe, Assistant Supervisor, Department of Education visited Pontiac County Central Board schools during the past week. The purpose of Mrs. McCabe's visit was to outline to teachers changes in the English course.

Mrs. McCabe has taught in Montreal and other Quebec centres and was formerly a Helping Teacher with the Department of Education. She is one of the editors of "The Teachers' Magazine", a publication of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers. She is presently doing research in library books for children, indexing them according to vocabulary suitable for that grade level. Her task is thus to find books of a high interest level yet with easier words or low vocabulary content, so that the less gifted will learn to appreciate reading.

The English Supervisor was very interested in the possibilities of a central library in the new High School at Shawville and offered to help in its organization. She commended highly the Central and Onslow Boards for the excellent building at Quyon. Mrs. McCabe was accompanied by Inspector William M. Munroe and had consultations with John A. Tolhurst, principal of the Shawville High School and J. L. MacKeen, County Supervisor.

Frank Strutt

Formerly of Shawville, Frank Strutt died Monday in Regina, Sask. He was 65.

Mr. Strutt went to Saskatchewan to farm in 1912, returning to live at Inkerman, Ont., in 1937 and journeying once more to Saskatchewan in 1948.

A former member of the Orange Order and the Odd Fellows, he is survived by his widow, the former Annie Belsher, and four sons, Stewart, of Ottawa; Archie, of Bridgeport, Conn.; Harold, of Sudbury, and Glenn, Garson, Ont.; and two daughters, Mrs. Leslie Prestage, of Garson, and Mrs. Walter Mariner, South Mountain, Ont.

Also surviving are two brothers, Alex, Jarvie, Alta., and Manson, Brock, Sask.; and six sisters, Mrs. R. J. Lucas, Mrs. Arthur Horner, Mrs. Hilliard Palmer, Mrs. Garner Richardson, all of Shawville; Mrs. Thomas Hobbs, Brock, and Mrs. Corrigan, Noranda, Que.

The body will arrive in Ottawa Friday and funeral service will be conducted in the chapel at Hulse and Playfair's Saturday afternoon at two o'clock with Rev. Lloyd McCorriston, of Newington, Ont., officiating. Interment will follow in Maple Ridge cemetery.

Time Will Tell. Tim Armstrong knows the exact moment the fire of more than a week ago reached his kitchen. Out of the ruins he recovered his pocket watch which stopped at 5.40 p.m. The fire also tested the stamina of some old coins he had collected. Some of them were just a molten lump while other emerged with nothing worse than discoloration.

Look Maw, No Brakes. A local truck driver on his way to McCredie's garage to get his brakes fixed proved effectively Wednesday that something needed fixing. Unable to stop he went right through the big sliding door at the west end of the garage and came to an abrupt stop with the door folded around the cab of the truck.

Resources Minister Commends Program

"Making the youth of Canada conscious of the values of wildlife and the great outdoors" was an ideal lauded this week by the Hon. Robert H. Winters, Minister of Resources and Development, in an official message welcoming the "Mark Trail" radio program back for its second season on the air.

"The person of Mark Trail—based upon Mr. Dodd's conception of a clean, upstanding, thoughtful conservationist—could well serve as a model for the young people of Canada," he said. Ed. Dodd, cartoonist and authority on conservation, is the creator of "Mark Trail".

The Minister stated further: "I wish to commend (the program) as a fine, exciting and educational program for your radio listening."

"The protection of Canada's fishery, forests and wildlife resources are among the responsibilities with which we, in the Department of Resources and Dev-

Men Of Leitchfield Prepare Parking Lot

Through efforts of the men of Leitchfield United Church the congregation now have the use of a parking lot 50' x 30'.

The lot, across from the church was donated to the church four years ago and a work bee organized last Thursday night saw seven men clearing away the brush, cutting the trees into stove lengths, digging post holes and putting up a wire fence around the lot, which is now ready for use as parking space.

While the men were at work, the ladies undertook to give the interior of the church a general cleanup.

with this latest addition to the growing number of junior branches in the province.

A total enrolment of sixteen is assured and arrangements are already made for projects in sewing and leather work. The girls are also interested in dramatics and hope to present two short plays later in the season.

Permission has been granted the group to use a suitable room in the Rawdon Consolidated School for the meetings and the counsellor, Mrs. E. Purcell, secretary Rawdon Senior W. I., through whose initiative the branch was formed, is looking forward to an active and satisfying season with this newest member of the Q. W. I.
