Ian Fleming dies; 007's creator was 56

CANTERBURY, England (AP) — Ian Lancaster Fleming, creator of the fictional secret agent James Bond, died today from a heart attack. He was 56. A newspaper man who turned author, Fleming was one of the world's biggest money-making writers. In addition to his numerous books, he also collected large sums from two movies, Dr. No, and From Russia With Love. A third film, Goldfinger has just been completed.

Fleming died at the Kent and Canterbury Hospital. Fleming's books sold millions of copies around the world. Bond fans included many famous persons, the late president Kennedy among them. Allen Dulles, former director of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, also listed himself as an avid follower of Fleming's fictional agent.

Like his hero, Fleming was a lean, upper-class Englishman with considerable charm and a flair for food, cars and travel. MARRIAGE DISSOLVED In 1952, Fleming married Anne Geraldine, the former Lady Rothermere. As Lady Rothermere, her marriage to the British newspaper owner, Lord Rothermere, was dissolved in 1952.

Fleming's brother Peter Fleming also is an author. Ian Fleming attended Eton College, Sandhurst and the Universities of Munich and Geneva. During the Second World War he was personal assistant to the director of British Naval Intelligence.

His first job in journalism was with Reuters news agency. He also was foreign manager for the Kemsley Newspapers, now the Thomson Newspapers. He once gave his recreations as collecting first editions of books, skin diving and spear fishing, cards and golf.

Hit back at Barry on arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and the Pentagon have fired back at Senator Barry Goldwater's charge that the Democratic administration is depleting the "arsenal for the defence of freedom."

The defence department described as "totally false" Goldwater's statement that the U.S. capacity to deliver nuclear weapons may be reduced by 90 per cent in the next decade.

President Johnson, addressing the same audience that heard Goldwater's charge, said: "Our resources are committed, our sacrifices are made, our vigil is maintained so that there shall be no win for aggression in our times."

In his speech Monday before the National Association of Counties Goldwater, the Republican presidential nominee, said the United States faces the prospect of going into the 1970s without a single new manned bomber.

Tito links fights

BELGRADE (CP-AP) — President Tito said today it appeared that Turkish air attacks on Cyprus last weekend may have been encouraged by retaliatory U.S. air strikes against North Vietnam.

He told the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug in an interview "the world has been surprised and stupefied by the very dangerous events that have taken place in Viet Nam and are under way in Cyprus."

Plan strong stand

SAIGON (Reuters) — U.S. Ambassador Gen. Maxwell Taylor today indicated stronger measures were under consideration to hamper Communist Viet Cong guerrillas from being reinforced from the outside.

Lumpa leader surrenders

LUSAKA (Reuters) — Alice Lenshina, leader of the outlawed Lumpa church sect which has been involved in outbreaks of bloodshed in Northern Rhodesia, has surrendered to the government, Prime Minister Kenneth Kaunda told parliament today.

Que. labor out

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec district labor council, setting solidarity aside, has decided not to march with the Confederation of National Trade Unions in the Labor Day parade Sept. 7.

The council is made up of members of the Canadian Labor Congress and the affiliated Quebec Federation of Labor.

"This is not time to fraternize with the CNTU," said Paul-Henri Paquet, representative of the CLC, at a meeting Tuesday night.

"The international unions have had to raise dues two cents because of recent raids by the CNTU."

Mass helicopter attack moves against Viet Cong in the jungle

SA BA HOA, South Viet Nam (AP) — One of the largest helicopter assaults of the war was hurled today against a reported concentration of 2,000 to 3,000 Viet Cong in a jungle area.

Ninety-six helicopters carried nearly 1,000 South Vietnamese troops into the attack.

Minutes after the assault began, a young U.S. Army lieutenant slumped dead at his controls. A 50-calibre armor-piercing machine-gun bullet had passed through the windshield as the helicopter was making a strafing pass and pierced his heart.

Fear Chinese are ready for own attack

PEKING (Reuters) — China's main Communist newspaper, The People's Daily, today denied tension in Southeast Asia has eased following last week's American bombing of North Vietnamese naval bases.

It accused Washington of laying a "smokescreen to mislead people so that under its cover they may take a second step in extending the war in Indochina."

The continuing American military buildup and alleged flights over North Viet Nam meant that the security of North Viet Nam was "still gravely threatened by U.S. imperialism," the paper said.

Meanwhile, newspapers front-paged reports that Chinese soldiers have been holding nationwide meetings to show "readiness to counter-attack U.S. imperialist war provocations at all times."

Diplomatic observers said China seemed determined to keep the crisis atmosphere at full pitch and that the likelihood of new Chinese action in support of North Viet Nam was increasing daily.

The North Vietnamese government sent an urgent message to the International Control Commission in Viet Nam accusing the United States of "continuing to provoke and sabotage North Viet Nam."

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

FALSE-CARDING CAN BE DANGEROUS

By OSWALD JACOBY

The pathological liar feels that it is silly to tell the truth when a lie will do just as well. The pathological false-carder feels that it is silly to make a normal play when there is a chance to false-card.

North and South might well have tried for game in no-trump, and there would have been no way to keep whichever partner played the hand from making 10 tricks, but there is no way to play no-trump unless one partner or the other bids no-trump somewhere along the way. Thus, South found himself in four hearts.

West opened the king of spades, and after East played the three, South lost no time dropping the 10.

West paused for a brief moment to note that the deuce had not appeared and continued with the ace. He knew that East had started with the doubleton trey-deuce or a singleton so that there was no chance that South would be able to ruff in. When East showed out, it was routine for the defense to take two more tricks.

South should have dropped the deuce of spades. West might have continued the suit anyway, but on the other hand, he might

Bridge tenders awarded

Two contracts, totalling $1,088,798.38 have been awarded for the construction of a bridge across the St. Francis River at Melbourne and another across the Alder River at Sutton, Quebec's Minister of Public Works, Rene Saint Pierre, has announced.

The contract for the construction of the Melbourne Bridge was awarded to Quebec Engineering Ltd., of Montreal, for $1,019,879.

Les Entreprises Menard Ltee of Granby was awarded the Brome County contract at a bid of $68,919.36.

The contracts were two of eight announced by Mr. Saint Pierre, awarded for bridge construction and amounting to over $2,000,000.

Richmond's new bridge is to be constructed across the St. Francis from Richmond to Melbourne on route No. 42. The floor will be of reinforced concrete. It will have seven spans with a total length of 1,060 feet.

Seven construction firms submitted tenders for the Richmond bridge. The highest was $1,191,324.

Sutton's new bridge will be 40 feet long with a reinforced concrete floor. Menard Ltd., of Granby, the lowest of two tenders received, was awarded the contract. The other tender was $73,284.

Visitor to Russia says:

Seven years bring change to life in Soviet Union

A geography professor and three-time visitor to Russia described vast changes in the Soviet Union in the last seven years, before the Sherbrooke Rotary Club yesterday.

Trevor Lloyd, director of McGill University's summer geography school in Stanstead, said that the change there between his first visit in 1957 and his third in 1964 was quite remarkable.

Consumer goods are more plentiful, people are better dressed, and they speak with far greater freedom to foreigners, he said.

Mr. Lloyd said that on his visits he was mainly in contact with scientific people. They talk more easily and correspond widely, he said. Yet still, he said, they are very careful when speaking in a group on political or social questions.

He spoke on the exchange of geographical information about the Canadian and Russian Arctic and predicted a great deal more cooperation in the future.

However, there is an enormous long way to go in this, he said. Bureaucracy slows things down a great deal in Russia.

Mr. Lloyd showed a series of slides taken in Russia, spiced with comments on the Russian way of life.

The Russians are very tough people, he said. One wonders how the police could control them so well in the past. He mentioned seeing men take swings at police on two occasions. Passers-by, he said, would ignore the situation rather than helping the policeman.

He mentioned Russian scientists showing surprise that a poster of a mounted policeman was hung up on the wall in Canada. The Russians would not put a policeman's picture on the wall, they said.

The stores were jammed with low-quality consumer goods, he said. This means two things: one, that there is a surplus of such goods; and two, the Russian people are getting more choosy and refuse to buy the low-quality goods.

There is a tremendous economic difference between the urban and rural life in Russia. The urban workers are fairly prosperous, said Mr. Lloyd, but rural areas are astonishingly backward.

The Soviet agricultural policy has failed, he said. It will be interesting to see what the Soviet government does to reform it.

Advertising is now becoming quite popular in the Soviet Union, he said. He showed a slide of two ads: one exhorting viewers to visit Moscow, and the other telling them to buy a certain newspaper.

The people walk like Americans now, he suggested. Their jaws are set as if they are meaning to go somewhere. This is entirely different from their tired and bedraggled look of seven years ago.

They are a frightfully bureaucratic people, he said. He mentioned spending three hours in a travel bureau trying to get a ticket. A lot of the time of a tour of Russia is spent rearranging things one thought one had arranged before one entered the country.

There are lots of new buildings as well as old buildings in the Soviet Union, he said. He showed a slide of a large football stadium of very modern design.

Building leaves something to be desired in quality, he said. People have been paid by the quantity they produce, so that there is a lot of very shoddy work done.

The country is faced with the problem of increasing the quality as well as the quantity of production, he said.

Mr. Lloyd touched on the city of Leningrad. It is built on a terrible location—the delta of a river, he said. When the river level is high there is flooding and the sewers back up. Thick fog often rolls in over the city from the sea.

But it is a magnificent city, he said. Beside it Moscow is something of a Siberian village. Leningrad residents will remind you, he said, that the Russian Revolution did not start in Moscow. It started in Leningrad.

Mr. Fертman had come to a stop at the traffic lights when he suddenly noticed smoke billowing from his car hood and flames began to shoot out. The couple quickly alighted from the vehicle and removed their belongings.

Service station attendants directed to their aid with foam extinguishers and the local fire department was also called in. They used three extinguishers but a fog nozzle had to be put to use in order to quell the flames.

Firemen under direction of Fire Chief Leslie Rattray and Lt. Ernest Dancause directed operations here and quickly subdued the flames. The auto suffered extensive damage as a result of the fire.

Traffic was held up on the corner for about a half hour before police could clear the road.

Armyworm march comes to halt

Judge's warning

'Playing' with guns blasted

In sentencing a 19-year-old Waterville youth to four months in prison yesterday Judge Redmond Hayes said that he hoped this would serve as an example to other wild youths and aspiring criminals who play around with guns.

"Whether the gun is loaded or not, makes no difference to the person who is at the other end of the barrel and is being threatened," said Judge Hayes.

Andre Brochu had pleaded guilty Monday to illegal possession of a .32 calibre revolver and of threatening his uncle and a cousin with the weapon during a family fight last Saturday.

Brochu had claimed Monday that he had never been sentenced to a jail term before.

A check into court records showed that he had once been sentenced to six months in prison for robbery and violence. This is why the judge sentenced the offender to one month in jail on the first charge and three months on the second.

ILLEGAL USE

"There are too many youths of your calibre and temperament in the province in possession of revolvers destined for an illegal end. They constitute a danger to the public at large. Only police officers and those persons with a special permit have a right to the use of a revolver," said Judge Hayes.

"For those others, we presume that the possession of a revolver is not for the protection of the public or one's money, but for illegal use. We can definitely presume they are not for shooting ducks," he said.

Two other brothers, Henri and Real, pleaded not guilty Monday to a charge of disturbing the peace arising from the same family fight. They are to appear for trial tomorrow.

Seeks Junior Red Cross council after attending NS convention

A Sherbrooke High girl is looking for a few changes in the Red Cross setup at her school after spending nine days in Nova Scotia as a Junior Red Cross convention delegate last month.

Deborah Dougal, going into grade 10 this fall, would like to try to form a Junior Red Cross council at the school. A representative would be picked from each class to make up the council, says Miss Dougal. There would also be one or two staff advisors.

The committee would hold money-raising projects and generally support the work of the senior Red Cross, she explains.

Most high schools in the Eastern Townships have such councils, she says.

"Some schools have a volunteer service in which high school students help at the local hospital from 4 to 6 p.m."

The Junior Red Cross at Lennoxville High has been helping the Dixville home for retarded children, she says.

It is hoped that in future all school Red Cross units in the Eastern Townships may have one aim — to help the Dixville home, she says. Miss Dougal has been elected president of the ET Inter-High School Red Cross Council for the coming year. She is also president of the Sherbrooke High School Junior Red Cross Society.

She was one of 98 delegates, and 130 to 140 Red Cross Society officials attending the Junior Red Cross conference at Acadia University in Wolfville, Nova Scotia.

The time was spent mostly in study and discussion periods, she says. There was swimming and water safety periods and other forms of recreation.

The delegates were informed about Red Cross programs nationally and internationally, she says.

The convention was for Junior Red Cross members from Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, says Miss Dougal.

This is the tenth year the conference has been held, she says, but the first "bilingual" conference, since eight French-speaking delegates attended. Some 28 delegates from Quebec attended.

The armyworm, villain in widespread outbreak which developed last month in grain fields in four Eastern Township counties, has either gone into a dormant stage or has practically ceased to exist, E. T. agronomes aren't sure which.

Agronomes in both Stanstead and Compton Counties told The Record this morning that while they had received no new reports of outbreaks, a close check will be kept for a renewed attack by the caterpillar which destroys small grain crops.

More hot summer weather could bring on a new attack by the caterpillars which have yet to go into the pupal, then moth stages. These have been forced under ground to lie dormant by days of unseasonable cold weather in the Townships, says G. H. Bruneau, Stanstead County agronomer.

MOTH STAGE

Some of the swarms that attacked Stanstead oats and some corn and grass crops have already gone into the moth stage said Mr. Bruneau. They can cause no harm as such, he said.

"The epidemic is over," said Mr. Bruneau, "but we will keep a close check."

In Stanstead, some farmers have already cut their grain and those who haven't have not observed any new damage, said Mr. Bruneau.

The extent of the outbreak or the amount of damage caused in Stanstead has not yet been assessed.

"We are still waiting. No report will be made until the grain is cut," Mr. Bruneau said. He suspects damage in Stanstead County is small as the armyworm was detected early and the invasion was checked in time, he said.

Cookshire agronomer Don MacMillan, overseeing the hardest hit county-Compton, waits, too.

"It is fairly well controlled, now," he said. "They have either gone underground because of the cold weather or practically ceased to exist."

Mr. MacMillan said checks of recent reports of the armyworm in grain fields seem to indicate that the armyworm is "not eating," probably because of the cold weather, he said.

The outbreaks, reported in grain fields over a wide area of Eastern Canada, is about the eighth outbreak of armyworms in North America in the past 100 years.

Hope seen in reform group for SIU

The Seafarers' International Union of Canada hasn't really changed very much since boss Hal Banks was toppled from the presidency and the union was put under a government trusteeship. Despite brave words by the government that the trusteeship would "clean up" the union, it is still in the hands of the same executive that worked under Banks. Some of these men were mentioned by the Norris commission report almost in the same breath as Hal Banks was, and in the same manner. It was the commission's opinion that they were as unfit to hold union leadership posts as Banks is. Yet, no moves have been made by the trusteeship to remedy matters. Perhaps the trustees are putting their hopes in a move by a group of SIU members to wrest control away from the old Banks gang in democratic elections. A slate of eight men, headed by Stan Devine, Halifax-based SIU port agent for the Atlantic provinces has announced that it will campaign for SIU leadership positions in union elections this fall. The group says it wants to unite the SIU with other Canadian labor groups, and make the SIU attractive to all seamen. The group claims that it has large membership support for its bid to take over at the helm of the SIU. If the group is as sincerely dedicated to operating a decent union as it says it is, and if it can elect its slate in the fall, then the trustees will be able to relax, and perhaps to disband. Obviously, election through due processes of a group to reform the union from within is a far better solution to the SIU problem than any imposed by outside authority. What must be guaranteed now is a fair and honest election. If the trustees can oversee this kind of a development, it may well be the last duty they need perform.

The more friends you have the more remedies there are for your ailments.

Muscovites envy foreign clothing

More important than official government statistics designed to impress the world with the important advances made by Russian industry in the field of consumer goods are those brief despatches telling of developments within the country. A recent news story from Moscow told of the disbanding of the Soviet national water polo team because ten of its eleven members, after a trip out of the country, brought home clothing which they had purchased abroad. The accusation against the polo team members was that they intended to "flog" the clothes in the black market. As a result, an entirely new team will be formed for the Tokyo Olympics. There is nothing unusual in Russian athletes bringing home wearing apparel from foreign countries. Not so many years ago a Soviet woman athlete was convicted in England of shoplifting hats. Nor is it news to any foreigner who has visited Moscow that foreign, especially American, clothing and shoes are in great demand there and that a thriving black market exists. What is unusual about the latest incident is that the polo team had not been to the United States, Great Britain or France, or to any other Western country for that matter. It had been no further than Romania and Yugoslavia, both of which are Communist countries. Whether the players intended to wear the clothing, give it away as they claimed, or sell it is beside the point. The point to be pondered is that they considered it worthwhile to bring back to Russia clothing from other Communist nations.

Maybe it isn't human to be perfect but why let that stop you from trying?

Other papers say:

Scandinavia offers world example

From time to time citizens of this or that nation berate the United Nations for not doing what they think it ought to do, and for not developing the capabilities it ought to have. This does not enable the UN to perform the tasks it faces. But there are ways to help it to do this. The Scandinavian states have offered an example. Denmark, Norway, and Sweden are setting up separate national military forces to be kept in readiness for UN service. Years ago many peoples hoped that the UN would have military forces of its own, but Soviet desires to

Christian Science Monitor keep the UN weak thwarted such hopes long ago. The foreign ministers of the Nordic countries discussed the question of an international UN peace force in 1958. The late Dag Hammarskjold, who was then Secretary-General of the UN, in his notable report to the 13th General Assembly, pointed out why it was politically unfeasible at that time to develop such forces. But soon afterward he did sound out the Scandinavian states and suggested that in their military planning they should provide for UN needs. By 1963 they had developed this idea sufficiently for it to be officially welcomed. The Scandinavian forces are to be made available to the UN under carefully worked out conditions which will not infringe on any UN prerogatives or those of member nations, nor on national sovereignty over the forces themselves. In the long run, says the Danish Foreign Minister, Per Haekkerup, in the current issue of the quarterly, Foreign Affairs, the UN should be given a real international peace force. But the more countries that make clear their willingness to set up stand-by forces in the meantime, the nearer the UN will be to the ultimate goal.

Near London

High living cost hits Bromley

BROMLEY, England (CP) — The cost-of-living serpent is poisoning contentment in this London suburban area — Britain's No. 1 dormitory paradise. Up, up, up go the prices and down, down, down goes the morale of such people as civil servants and salaried commuters in bountiful Bromley, constituency of former Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. A Conservative national newspaper carried the cry of despair of a local Liberal parliamentary candidate. He gave up the fight for the fall general election because he couldn't afford to live in Bromley and campaign. The Labor candidate, a stockbroker, lives in a neighboring town. Macmillan, 70, retiring from politics, doesn't live in middle-class Bromley either but that's because the millionaire publisher has long established homes elsewhere. "It's a little different in my case," John Mumby, 29-year-old school teacher and the former Liberal candidate, told a Canadian reporter. Britain's election has been expected off and on for two years and it was partly the long wait that eliminated Mumby. Political chores kept him away from extra work that would help him support his wife and two children. "I hoped I could hold out, but I cannot," said Mumby, illustrating his dilemma by discussing housing. "As teachers' salaries go, I am pretty well off at £1,260 ($3,780) a year. But the building societies will lend only a maximum of three times annual salary for purchase of a house. "Semi-detached houses run to about £4,500 or £5,000 — the new ones £6,000 or more. So I'm unable to buy a house. Instead I rent a house for about one-third my net income, but the building societies advise one shouldn't pay more than one-fourth of income in rent." Mumby feels this problem is chronic in the congested London suburban areas as new workers continue to arrive from other parts of Britain. Young couples and salaried folk find it particularly tough and "the business executives with expense accounts are the only ones able to take the strain." "Young people who have lived here all their lives are having to move away as soon as they marry," said Town Councillor Brian Taylor. "They just cannot afford to buy a house here." The weekly train fare of $4.45 cuts into the spending money of the affluent Briton who lives in Bromley and commutes to London. As The Sunday Telegraph puts it: "Keeping up with the Joneses is a national disease of commuter territory, but... it is the Joneses who can no longer keep up with Bromley."

World's fastest expansion

World boycott on South Africa fails and economy still grows

UNITED NATIONS (TNS) — Until this year it was fashionable to predict chaos and utter disaster for the white government of South Africa.

There was talk about a world-wide boycott which would strangle the Verwoerd regime into submission. Rumours abounded about possible military intervention on the part of black African states. And of course, it was taken as an inevitable truth that the black masses of South Africa would throw off their white oppressors.

As can be seen from the situation in South Africa today, these dire predictions were so much malarkey — at least for the time being.

The South African economy is the fastest growing in the world (ten per cent last year). Exports are at an all-time high, and never have white and black South Africans been better off — economically speaking. There is a new-found cohesion between the Afrikaans-speaking and the English-speaking South Africans. Black nationalists organizations have been ruthlessly suppressed and their leaders jailed.

It is possible that the foes of apartheid would have failed had their big gun—a world-wide boycott against South Africa—actually been fired. However, the boycott drive has fallen flat on its face after what many considered a promising start. There are several reasons for the failure to achieve a boycott, not the least being the death of President Kennedy.

It was Kennedy who ordered the arms boycott against South Africa (which Canada followed suit in imposing), and it looked as though JFK might go all the way in imposing economic sanctions. But the tide turned when Johnson came to power. President Johnson, eager to assuage American businessmen who have a one billion dollar investment in South Africa, has demonstrated that there is no chance of a boycott at the present time. Also entering the picture is that the possibility of a Communist takeover in Zanzibar this year made the U.S. realize that white South Africa is the only reliable ally of the West on the entire African continent. (The Americans were particularly impressed that their space-tracking station on Zanzibar had to be dismantled while a similar station in South Africa continues to operate smoothly.)

The African states have proven too weak to stage any military adventures against South Africa (the East Africans and the Congolese have not been able to police their own countries effectively, never mind embarking upon a foreign intervention).

In addition, many Afro-Asian countries are still trading with South Africa in spite of their solemn pledges in the U-N General Assembly. For instance, Iran voted for an oil boycott against South Africa in 1962, but today Iran is still South Africa's biggest supplier of oil. (Red China is even trading with South Africa.)

Canada, under Diefenbaker and then Pearson, has continued to make pious attacks against apartheid. Mr. Diefenbaker gained much publicity in helping South Africa out of the Commonwealth (thus solidifying the unity of the Afrikaans and the English-speaking South Africans who found themselves in the same lonely boat for the first time).

Mr. Pearson and Paul Martin have carried on the Diefenbaker tradition of ranting against apartheid while doing very little about it. In fact, Canada presently is out to boost trade with South Africa because Ottawa — like Washington and London — hates apartheid but likes the profits derived from apartheid.

This western reluctance to pick up the anti-apartheid ball has given the Communists a golden opportunity. Although some Communist states are still trading with South Africa (East Germany, Albania, Czechoslovakia), Russia is leading the anti-apartheid crusade with Red China trying to take over the leadership. This situation of course has given the Reds a tremendous propaganda advantage over the West while allowing them to infiltrate the anti-apartheid forces.

This infiltration was apparent at the Afro-Asian Conference on sanctions which was held in London in April. The Communists took over key committees of the conference, and other countries were made the whipping boys.

The conference call for immediate sanction was taken up by a U-N experts group which was also in London during April. The U-N expert group had been established by the U-N Security Council to find ways to end apartheid in South Africa. But when the U-N experts merely echoed the decision of the Communist-infiltrated London Conference, the Western powers on the Security Council turned thumbs down on the experts report which urged a boycott.

Western intransigence on the boycott question led to an embarrassing stalemate in the Council from which only the Communists benefited. The entire Afro-Asian bloc of 57 nations had demanded that the council meet, and now that nothing was forthcoming, the Afro-Asians were in danger of losing face.

It was a curious sight to see the Afro-Asian and Western countries enter into a deal to conceal the fact that the Western-dominated Security Council would not take action against apartheid. About the only thing the West and the Afro-Asians could come up with was a face-saving scheme to replace the original experts committee with a new committee. (The communists voted against the scheme.)

The new committee is now bogged down — the U.S. and British will not consider any tough action and France has refused to participate in the committee meetings.

This skulduggery at the U-N is obviously amusing. But there is an ugly side to it also.

It is noteworthy that practically every Western country, including Canada still says there will be a bloodbath in South Africa because of apartheid. But the West refuses to act at the present time. However, the Western countries, including Canada, do not rule out an economic boycott in the event of a bloodbath does take place in the future.

It seems strange that the world must have a black-white bloodbath before action can be taken to halt the bloodbath which the West says is made inevitable by apartheid.

HEMOPHILIA RATIO In Britain, one in every 25,000 persons suffers from the condition known as hemophilia—excessive bleeding.

Bygone days

TWENTY YEARS AGO

(From the Record of Saturday, August 12, 1944) Prime Minister Mackenzie King promised that he would resolve the problem of Canada's national flag and national anthem immediately "after the war". He said he would propose to the House of Commons that "O Canada" and an unidentified "distinctive Canadian flag" be adopted. A flag design featuring three maple leaves, which was used overseas by the Canadian Supreme Commander since the first Canadian troops left in 1939, was mentioned as the likely bunting.

Members of Knowlton United Church staged their annual garden party, on the grounds of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Call.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

(From the Record of Friday, August 12, 1949) The American Military Administration in West Germany attacked what it described as "the pronounced nationalism of the country's politicians". The West German people, claimed the Americans, were being "forgetful" of "the positive work of the Western Allies".

First entries for the Ayer's Cliff Fair were received. First entry in the cattle class was Delmar Huff of Dixville; in the horse class, Frank Woodward of North Hatley; and in the fancy work class, Mrs. George Hatch of Rock Island.

TEN YEARS AGO

(From the Record of Thursday, August 12, 1954) All 161 member churches of the World Council of Churches approved the admitting of church leaders from Communist lands to the world assembly of churches in Illinois. However, a Republican Congressman and a number of branches of the American Legion saw fit to denounce the Marxist Christians as "collaborationists". The Bishopton Ladies Aid announced plans for a food sale, Mrs. Ralph Gilbert and Mrs. William Bentley in charge.

Barry's GOP muzzles staff

By TOM NOLAN

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The new Goldwater leadership of the Republican National Committee has cautioned employees at headquarters here not to talk to the press. The order took the form of a brief "memo to all staffers," dated Aug. 1, 1964, which read:

"In every campaign rumors are always problems. Let us all resolve to minimize the rumor problem as much as possible by not talking to members of the press, either on or off the record, about the actions or appointments of the National Committee. All announcements will be made by the Chairman through the Public Relations Division.

"Your co-operation is most important for the winning effort we must and will conduct."

The order originated in the office of John Grenier, deputy to the new National Chairman, Dean Burch.

Both men held key positions in Sen. Barry Goldwater's drive to the Republican presidential nomination. Burch was deputy campaign director and Grenier the senator's top agent in the South, which yielded Goldwater 271 out of 279 delegate votes.

The memo followed closely the naming of Goldwater aide Lee Edwards to succeed William Strague as public relations director of the National Committee.

In the past, reporters enjoyed relative freedom in dealing with the Committee staff. Many by-passed Strague's office completely, simply phoning individuals directly for interviews. Some political opinions say the "don't talk to reporters" policy is closely akin to Goldwater's personal philosophy. In recent weeks the senator has drastically curtailed his dealings with reporters. Since the Oregon primary May 15, the senator has held only a handful of press conferences. In Balboa, Calif., recently, reporters seeking the senator's views were asked to submit written questions through secretaries to the senator. A dozen queries were turned down; Goldwater answered six. In the fall campaign, there have been apparently reliable reports that the GOP nominee will bank heavily on taped television film. There will be more fund-raising dinner speeches, less large rallies.

For Bedford High

French-speaking teacher is hired

BEDFORD — (Staff) — This community's English Protestant High School's problem of finding a French-speaking teacher in La Belle Province has been solved — a Roman Catholic teacher has come to the rescue.

A Canadienne from St. Jovite was chosen by Principal James Dawson from among half a hundred applicants two weeks ago to resolve the unusual dilemma.

The large number of applications was received following a prolonged advertising campaign in the province's new media, largely in the French language.

Almost all the applications, said Bedford School Board secretary-treasurer Otis Blair, were from Roman Catholic pedagogues.

Earlier, Mr. Dawson, who is himself a French specialist, expressed anxiety over the small and insufficient response his advertising had provoked.

He was trying to obtain a

Roman Catholic French-speaking Canadian for the post because of previously successful experiences with such teachers elsewhere.

Whitton fed up and tired

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton is "fed up and tired" of promoting the Parliament buildings.

She made her feelings known Tuesday night at a tourist and convention committee meeting where she suggested a model of City Hall instead of the Peace Tower on the city's parade float.

"We're not advertising the Parliament buildings," she said. "I'm just fed up and tired that everything put out has to have the Parliament buildings on it."

The city float in question is used annually for the opening day parade of the Central Canada Exhibition. Later it may go to the Grey Cup parade.

Mayor Whitton wasn't in favor of sending it to Toronto for this year's Grey Cup parade. She said the $200 entrance fee was "a racket." Besides, "it's not worth the couple of minutes on television."

Guild to sponsor sale at Knowlton

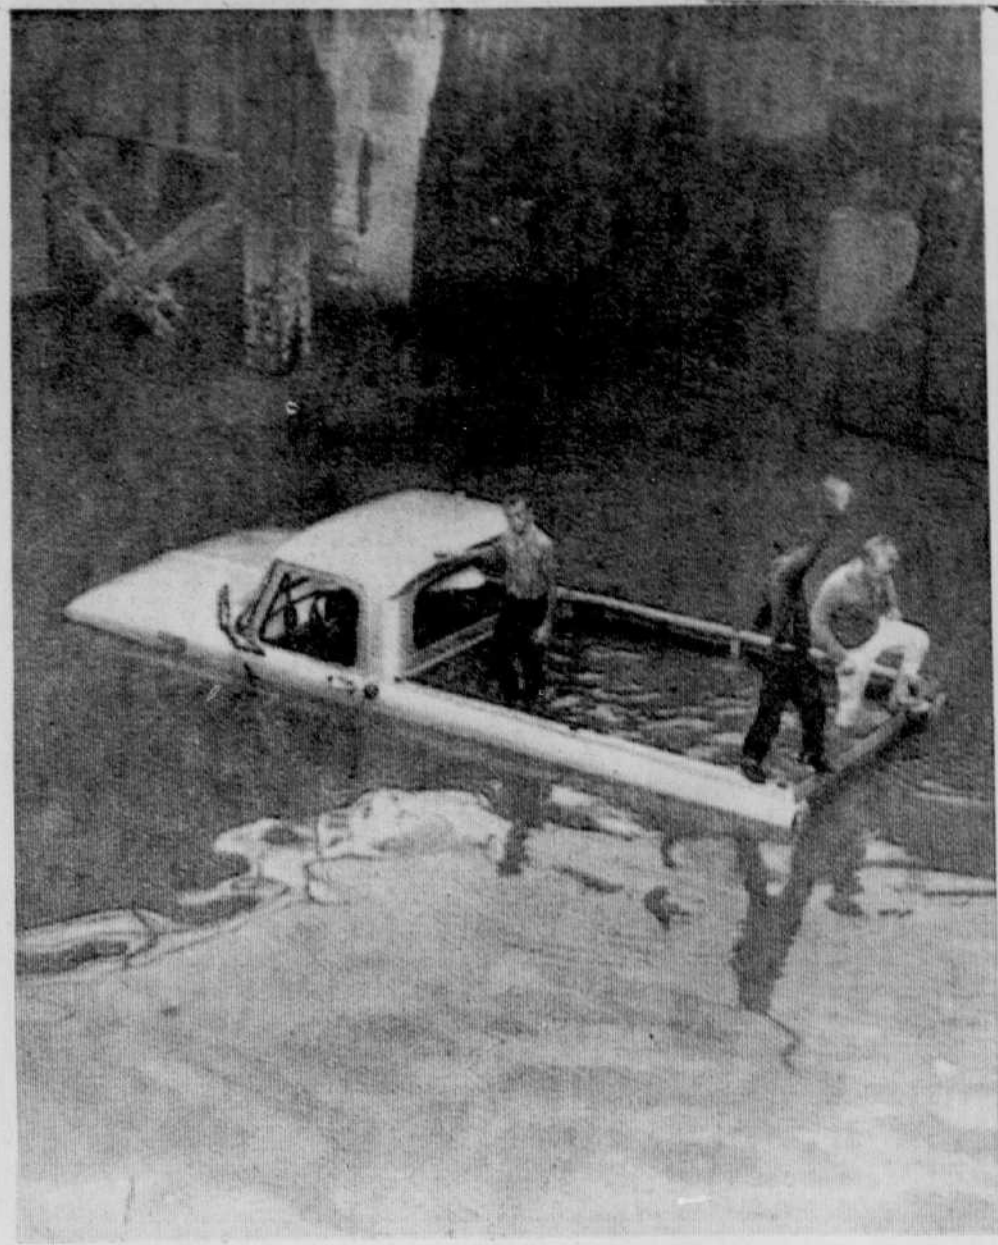

SUTTON JUNCTION — (Special) — St. Aidan's Guild are sponsoring a food and fancy work sale on Aug. 15, at 10:00 a.m. to be held in Knowlton, on the lawn opposite the post office.

In case of rain, it will be held at the Southern Canada Power, across the street from this site.

There will be good assortments of home baking, as well as fancy work.

OVERFLOWING UNDERPASS — This is one truck that didn't get away during a 16-hour storm that hit Windsor, Ontario Tuesday. The vehicle stalled while trying to navigate a water-filled underpass and had to be towed to safety after the storm abated. The driver, shown keeping his feet dry sitting in the back window of the truck wasn't enjoying the situation as much as the playful youngsters. (CP Wirephoto)

Passamaquoddy-Saint John power complex

US seeking major changes on international river project

WASHINGTON (CP) — Two major changes are proposed in another United States report on the Passamaquoddy-Saint John River power complex.

One would pare the initial cost to an estimated $896,000,000 compared with the 1,041,000,000 figure listed in the report of July, 1963. This would be caused by omitting a second powerhouse until demand made it necessary.

The second main feature would be the installation of tidal-powered generators in the Passamaquoddy part of the project which could be used also as reversible pumps to offset tides. This feature would increase the firm power production capacity of the Passamaquoddy project, to be tied in with hydro development of the Upper Saint John River in Maine.

Construction would take about 10 years instead of 15 and some units would be able to generate power even earlier.

The changes are suggested in a report by the Passamaquoddy-Saint John River study committee, before the Senate subcommittee on river and harbors today.

MUCH WORK REQUIRED

But while Interior Secretary Stewart Udall and the New England States are united in desiring to press ahead with the project, a lot of work has to be done yet in the United States before actual negotiation can begin with Canada. The U.S. would pay for most if not all the plan.

Canadian agreement is essential because the tidal project, under study since 1922 in the Bay of Fundy on the New Brunswick-Maine border area, would be in Canadian waters and producing a small bit of power.

Possible impact on fisheries has been one reason for less enthusiasm in Canada than in the United States, although this latest report quotes a Canadian-U.S. working group as recommending that little impact is indicated for the vital Bay of Fundy sardine industry or on other species of fish. It says the group found previous assumptions of little damage to fish life "generally valid."

Dr. J. L. Hart of the fisheries department headed Canadian representation on the group formed last December.

COLUMBIA COMES FIRST

One other reason for Canada's go-slow attitude, it is understood, is that it wants to have the Columbia River power project fully set in motion before it starts negotiations on the Passamaquoddy. The Columbia deadline for tying up loose ends is Oct. 1.

A Canada - U.S. negotiation group met in Ottawa last December but little more has been done.

The process here now involves first the circulation of the latest power project report to the New England governors and to federal and state agencies directly concerned. Canada will be kept informed but no comment will be requested.

Only after this process has been completed will Secretary Udall endorse the report, adding any changes he feels necessary, and submit it to the president and to Congress.

Officials are reluctant to sketch any timetable for all this but the U.S. election alone in November is a major reason to expect delays.

The report before the committee today is the last in a three-year economic and engineering appraisal set up by the late president Kennedy.

"We are firmly convinced that construction... as a federal development will benefit Maine, New England, the Maritime provinces, Canada and the U.S.A.," says the report.

PUMPS INCREASE OUTPUT

As now envisaged, the two-pool tidal power generation at Passamaquoddy is unchanged—capturing water at the peak of the Bay of Fundy's high tides and then using that water to turn generators when the tide recedes. The addition of reversible pumps to beef up the water supply at times of low tide would enable peak power output lasting two hours daily rather than the one hour forecast last year.

The tidal project would cost $582,000,000 and have an initial capacity of 500,000 kilowatts which could be doubled later. Tied in with this to provide a firm base of 24-hour power output would be a dam at Dickey, Me., costing $210,400,000 and with capacity of 760,000 kilowatts.

A so-called re-regulating dam would be installed at Lincoln School, Me., on the Upper Saint John River, costing $16,600,000 and producing a small bit of power.

Third place for Waterloo St. John A.

MIAMI (AP) — A Waterloo team placed third in the St. John Ambulance heavy duty rescue competition held here during the weekend.

Canadian teams placed first in the international first aid competition and second and fourth in the heavy duty rescue competition.

The first aid division was won by Oakville St. John Ambulance. Toronto was second and won the women's championship. Pointe Claire was second in the heavy duty and Waterloo was third.

A SMALL CRISIS OF HIS OWN — Harold Wilson, leader of Britain's opposition party, sports a blackened and scratched eye in London. Facial area was grazed in a fall in the Scilly Islands, where he was vacationing. He interrupted his holiday to attend consultations on the Cyprus situation. He returned by overnight train to resume the vacation after the talks. (AP Wirephoto via cable from London)

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Roy Rogers and Dale Evans were industriously rehearsing their parts in one of Andy Williams's forthcoming variety shows recently. As part of a country-style production number, Roy rode the NBC sound stage in a motor scooter with Dale perilously poised, side-saddle, on the pillion seat. After a couple of swings around the stage and some dancing with the chorus boys, Dale climbed lithely to a special elevated set and launched into a song without a suggestion of breathlessness. But, if a spectator in the audience had taken his eyes off the stage and its activity, he would have noticed that during the song, members of the orchestra at the side of the stage were reading newspapers and dozing. This fakery is a bit of routine filmland magic, a technique of lip synchronization or "lip sync," which permits a crowd-voiced movie star to warble like a nightingale, courtesy of some unseen, unsung soprano's vocal chords; gives the impression that agile boy and girl dancers also can sing and, most important, frees a performer from a microphone to frolic all over a stage. The process involves delicate technical skill. Singers (and non-singers) must learn to mouth the words to give a convincing pantomime while the recording is being played.

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Political rally, Hollywood style— "You are cordially invited to join us at a barbecue honoring Miss Luci Baines Johnson and United States Senator Birch Bayh . . . no solicitation of funds. . . ." The telegram was signed: Young Citizens for Johnson Committee — co-chairmen: Natalie Wood, Steve McQueen; entertainment chairman, Vic Damone. The scene was a sportswear maker's estate in Beverly Hills, an area unaccustomed to the compact and small sports cars that lined the streets. Arriving at the same time were Warren Beatty and Leslie Caron, who were startled to find photographers snapping them. They turned around and left. In the big backyard, tables were placed around the Roman pool, in the middle of which was a fern-covered float with LBJ spelled out in daisies.

Friends 'shower' Aug. bride-elect at Ulverton

ULVERTON — A surprise miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Urban Massey and Mrs. Vera Lowen, in honor of Miss Clemence Pettit, of Waterloo, whose marriage to Elton Massey takes place Aug. 29. The bride-elect was welcomed by Mrs. U. Massey, who escorted her to a seat of honor to the strains of the Bridal Chorus, played by Mrs. Elwin Coote. Miss Pettit was seated beside her mother, Mrs. Pettit, and her future mother-in-law, Mrs. Harvey Massey, who were also presented with corsages. The rooms were attractively decorated with summer flowers, the bride's table being centered with a two tier shower cake, made and decorated by the prospective groom's aunt, Mrs. Vera Lowen. White candles in silver holders completed the table arrangement. The many gaily wrapped gifts were presented by little cousins of the prospective groom, Alrna Coote and Linda Booth. A tin foil plate, which was decorated with bows from the parcels, was worn by Miss Pettit for the balance of the evening. The hostesses were assisted in serving by Mrs. Leslie Booth, Mrs. Elwin Coote, the Misses Susan Lowen, Sandra Massey, Sheila and Debbie Booth. Guests were present from Montreal, Waterloo, Danville, Richmond, Melbourne and South Durham.

Luci obliged them by meeting the guests at each table. Perky in a white dress, her dark hair shielding one eye in what was once known as Veronica Lake style, she netted a blistered palm for her trouble. McQueen said he was strong for President Johnson but wouldn't campaign much "because I'm representing our country in the European road races." Miss Wood said she was proud to be on the steering committee of the Young Democrats for Johnson and in show biz style was counting the house. They hoped for 400 for the barbecue, had to turn away many after the 1,100 capacity was reached. Cost for the young Demos: $5 a head.

SPEARHEAD DRIVE
At 36, Senator Bayh of Indiana fitted into the young assemblage with no difficulty. He said that the rally was one of 17 across the country "to get the teens, 20s and 30s onto the Johnson team." He is helping to spearhead the drive, but he added that his duties do not include leading the Watusi.

Luci displayed her Watusi style in a duet with McQueen. She performs with the proper loose-jointed, lip-biting intensity. McQueen gave her able support, being a Watusi expert. Secret service men, also looking intense, stood by.

Club meets at Waterville home
WATERVILLE — The friendly Christmas Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Gerald Knutson, on Aug. 5. Three tables of 500 were played, the prize winners being Mrs. Rudy Nelson, Mrs. Eddie Ball and Mrs. Percy Kezar. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by the Misses Judy and Joan Swallow, of Lennoxville, at the close of the evening.

The September meeting will be entertained by Mrs. P. Ingham, at her home on Main Street.

He laments well-meaning Christian ministers who have a tendency to introduce him to audiences by saying, in effect: "Rabbi Feinberg is a man of so much peace and goodwill that one might even take him for a Christian."

He recalls the intelligent college student who once asked him if Jews get cancer. Orthodox Jewish dietary laws have "sincerity without logic," he writes, and he speaks of "the strict Orthodox dogmatism that takes, and gives, refuge in a ritualistic strait-jacket."

The book's style ranges from farce in Rabbi Feinberg's description of his teen-age experience with women to tragic poetry in the chapter describing the death of his youngest sister.

His final lesson seems to be that help for the world's future must come from the present and the past: "I cannot be entirely without nostalgia for the days when a personal God laid down the law from heaven and a father laid down the law in the home."

Rabbi, radio singer, poet and rebel tweaks the nerves of Jew and Gentile

By ALAN WALKER
TORONTO (CP) — A radio singer who gave Canada's best-known rabbi a distillation of his life and thought in a new book that promises to tweak sensitive nerves in Jews and Gentiles alike.

When Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg retired in 1961 as head of Toronto's Holy Blossom Temple, this country's largest Reform Jewish congregation, he said his work was just beginning.

In the last three years Rabbi Feinberg, now 64, has continued his battle against bigotry, discrimination and general injustice by lecturing and preaching widely; by writing for magazines and newspapers; and by codifying his views on a number of significant human problems in "Storm the Gates of Jericho," a blend of nostalgic autobiography, warm humor and keen polemic.

Rabbi Feinberg's parents emigrated to the United States from Grinkishok, Lithuania. His father repaired umbrellas for a living in Bellaire, Ohio. Rabbi Feinberg remains an American citizen.

"I am neither—and I strongly resent the conspiracy of the poles, and ad hoc alliance of extremes, which would have me kissing communism to fight fascism," he writes.

Although Rabbi Feinberg stresses the universality of his book, much of it is stamped with the impress of his Jewishness; his insistence on the equality of Jewish and Christian belief; and his dissatisfaction with the practices of Orthodox Judaism which he sees as old-fashioned.

He laments well-meaning Christian ministers who have a tendency to introduce him to audiences by saying, in effect: "Rabbi Feinberg is a man of so much peace and goodwill that one might even take him for a Christian."

Ex-jazz musician now ordained but radical minister

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Rt. Rev. Chandler W. Sterling, a former professional jazz musician, still has some far-out themes to keep the Episcopal Church jumping in Montana.

Bishop of the Montana diocese, the spiritual leader of 12,000, he has a reputation for independent thinking and frank speech.

"I'm trying to take the church out of the stained glass jungle," the 53-year-old bishop said in an interview. His office is on Helena's main street, Last Chance Gulch. He is proud of his western background and wears a tooled cowboy belt and large silver buckle with his clerical clothing.

Here are some of the things that have made him controversial:

—He says the apostles didn't understand Christ.

—He refuses to consider Sunday sacred.

—He uses a breezy, modern language in an informal way that surprises conservative churchmen.

Bishop Sterling refers to the apostles as businessmen, interested in their own advancement and possible political advantage. He said Christ is probably as misunderstood today as he was nearly 2,000 years ago.

He opens his guest speaking engagements by sitting at the organ and playing revival tunes and Negro spirituals. He asks the audience to clap hands and relax.

THE MESSAGE

"We need a modernization of church language," he said. "I am referring to all churches. I don't think we are getting our message over. I am convinced the New Testament is not intelligible to most people."

He brought the first Negro clergyman into Montana and has him working in Missoula, mainly with university students.

When one woman complained, he told her priests come in several different colors and she should have specified a choice.

When his oldest daughter was married in the Roman Catholic Church, he gave the bride away in traditional style. He later said Christians will all be united one day anyway.

"The churches are moving too slowly," Bishop Sterling said.

"They have emerged from the horse and buggy into the model T age, but that's about as far as they have gone."

Bishop Sterling wants more adult instruction classes, but not necessarily on Sunday.

"With an increasing number of our people spending the weekends, especially Sundays, in justifiable recreational pursuits the year around, how much longer do we really think that the old-fashioned Sunday school is going to hold together? The future is here already."

They like tourists but resent image of 'pig in the parlor' stage Irish

DUBLIN (CP)—It may be that the only people left in Ireland with faith in leprechauns are the officials of the state tourist board. At any rate they have just brought out a guide advising visitors where they can find the "little people" and identifying the elusive elves disposed to be friendly to humans. It's all harmless fun, but many Irish people will tell you they are getting tired of what they call "shamrockery"—the whimsical, blarney-and-begorrah aura the Emerald Isle wears overseas.

An American film director once said the entire population of Ireland consists of actors playing out their own legend, but Dubliners are scornful enough of stage-Irish capers like the St. Patrick's Day parade in New York. "March 17 is the dullest day of the year over here," said a Dubliner, shattering a minor myth. Shamrockery, however, is one thing. Squalor is another. An aspect of Ireland's image abroad which concerns everyone here—including the Irish Tourist Board—is the one the Irish call the "pig-in-the-parlor" angle, presenting their island as a land of picturesque poverty.

RESENT IMAGE
This can cause deep resentment. A Dublin woman just back from visiting Canadian relatives told a reporter about a St. Patrick's Day television program put out by a U.S. company which showed "all the worst stereotyped ideas of Irish life." She cited shots of dirty pubs with boozey customers; ragged, shawled women outside crumbling tenements. "I think they went all over Dublin to find the poorest people and I call that cheating." Last year, before President Kennedy's visit, it was widely rumored that some press photographers had tried to persuade villagers to pose with a pig in the parlor. True or false, the story did not amuse the Irish one bit. Bord Fáilte Éireann, as the tourist board is called in Gaelic—a title causing one American wit to point out it is pronounced Bored Faulty Erin—is campaigning to get rid of this unsavory image by making country folk clean up their communities and awaken to the importance of tourism—"our biggest invisible export." The board recently became an "umbrella" organization covering eight regional districts, all of which are competing against targets in the government's new six-year economic plan. Last year tourists poured nearly £57,000,000 into the national coffers, a 60-per cent increase in five years.

SNOB APPEAL
Trippers from Britain form the bulk of the tourist traffic, but the industry's net is being cast as far afield as North America and continental Europe. "Personally, I would like to see vacations in Ireland take on something of a snob appeal," said one tourist board official. "After all, people in other countries are often prepared to pay heavily for two things we have for the taking—tranquillity and space." The farther west you go in Ireland, the more of each you get, until you stand on a headland in Kerry or Connemara gazing out over the tossing Atlantic and realize the truth of the Irish saying, "our next parish is America." Despite her industrialization plans and new economic vigor, Ireland remains a peaceful, pastoral isle, her lakes and seas crammed with fish, her beaches almost deserted in spring and fall. The undulating roads, lined with wild fuchsia hedges, are empty as the sky, and the countryside, though choked with Celtic antiquities, has yet to be invaded by camera-clicking hordes. The food is still a revelation. Few Britons lucky enough to escape to Ireland in the post-war austerity years will forget the first fine careless rapture of steaks thick as a man's fist, rivers of butter and cream, trout, game and countless other vanished luxuries.

SPORTSMEN'S LURE
The island is predominantly a sportsman's paradise, especially for golfers and fishermen. A five-year scheme is under way to develop the midland lakes for coarse fishing. Another area due for development is the Shannon, whose airport is proudly described here as "the aerial crossroads of the world." At present its main

New name, new paper for Sun Club

MONTREAL (CP) — The Clark Street Sun Club, formed to combat juvenile delinquency in the central Montreal area, has celebrated its 10th anniversary by changing its name and revamping its newspaper.

During the last 10 years, the club has grown far beyond its beginnings and boundaries. With members drawn from a much wider area at present, the old name was no longer accurate, and the club will be known as the Sun Club in future.

The paper, the Clark Street Sun, was the club's first project. It will become a full-size tabloid called The Sun and will appear every two months.

Projects sponsored by the club have increased in size and scope since its beginnings. The 400 members now participate in athletic events, through four basketball and two hockey teams sponsored by the club, as well as recreation centres in three Montreal schools.

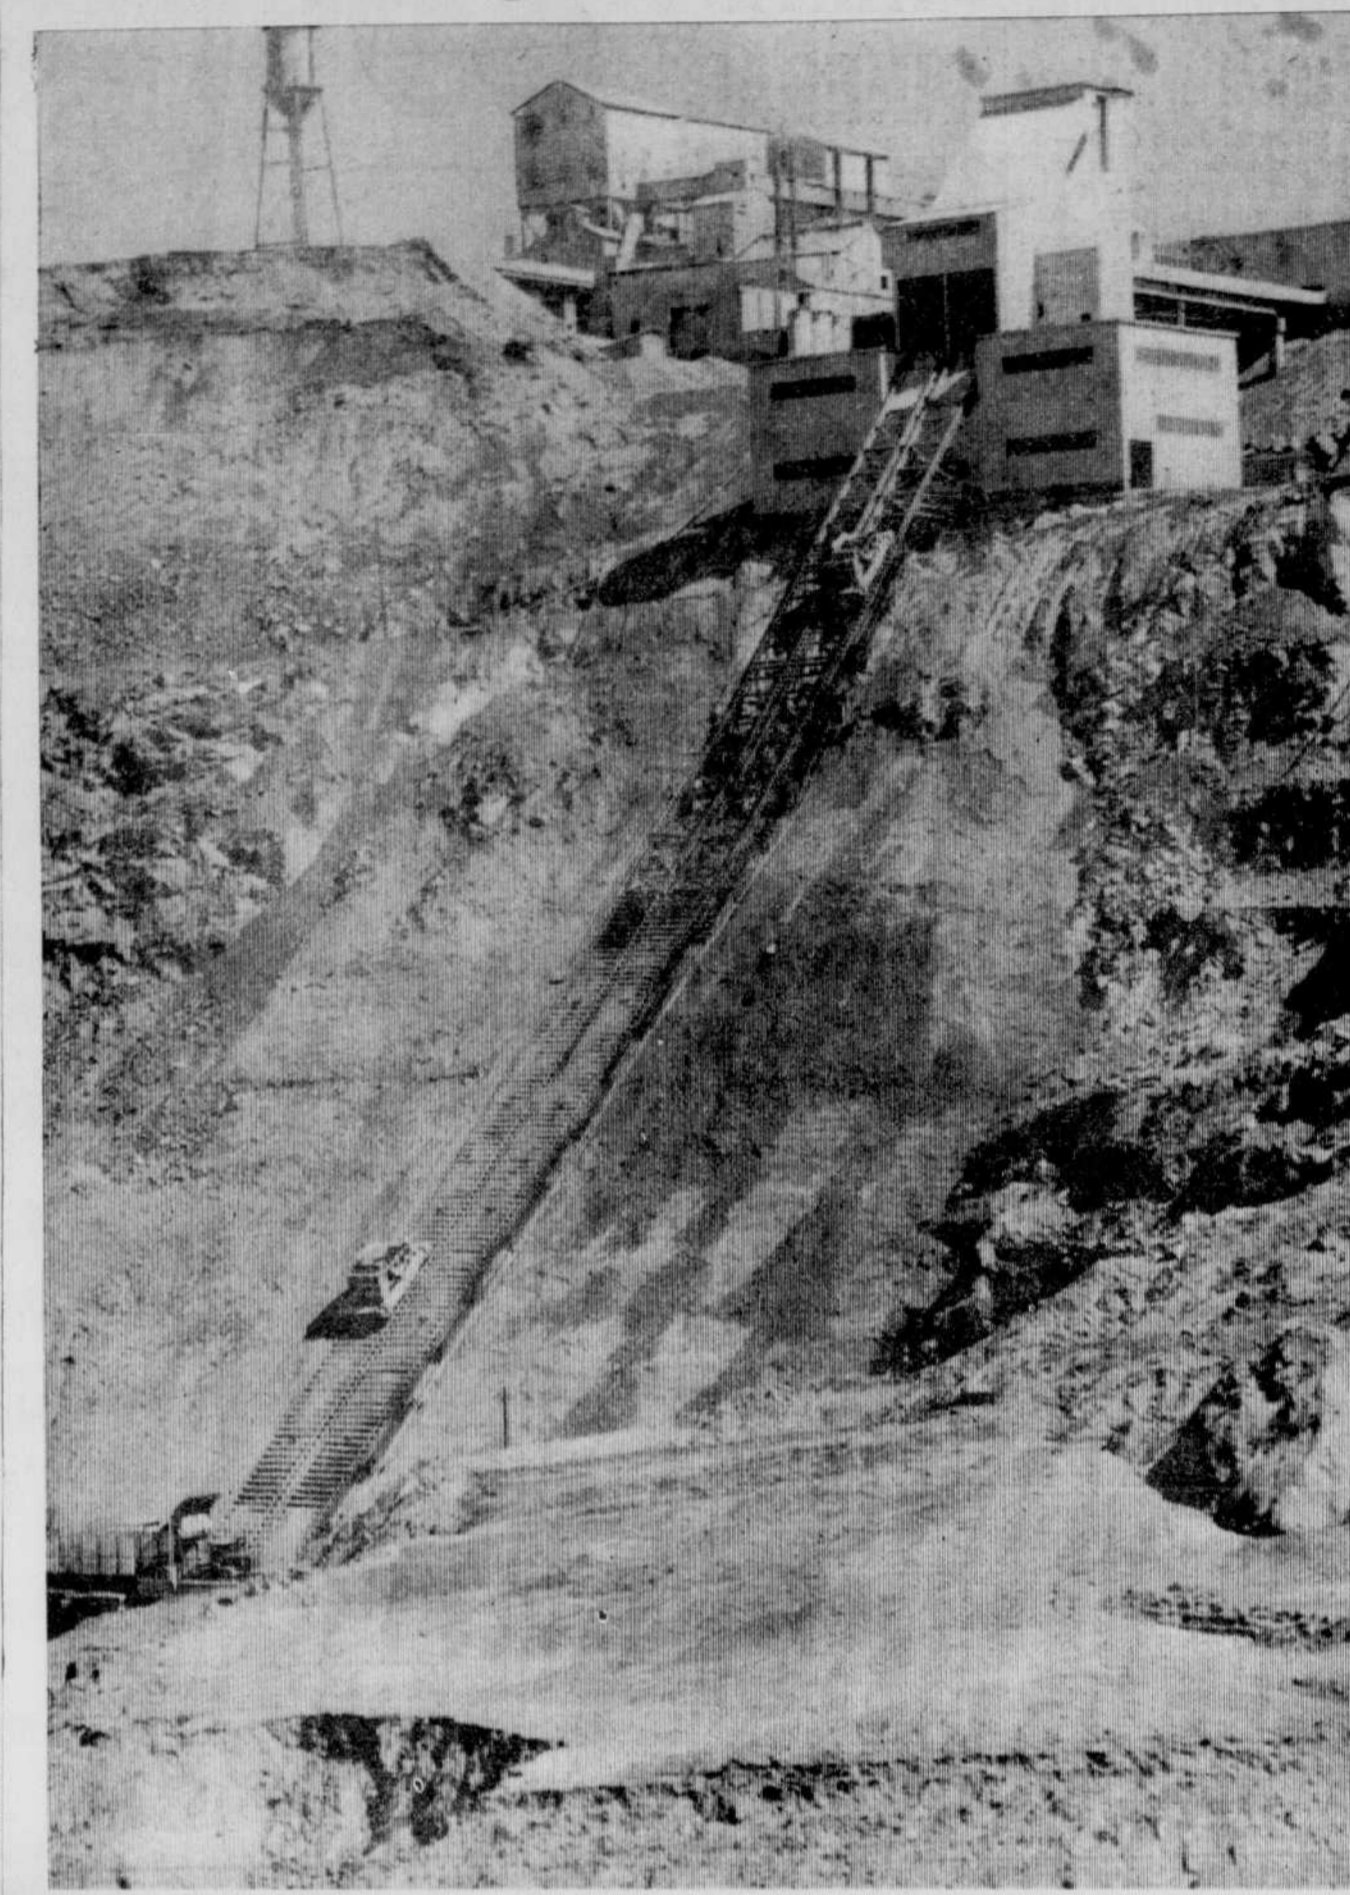

Members range from seven to 19 years of age. Their adult leaders are unpaid volunteers, and another valuable source of assistance and equipment is the Montreal police department.

The club receives help from the city as well as a $500 annual grant from the provincial government.

ANNUAL INCREASE

Mineral finds reported in Townships as early as 1847

DITCHING IN HEAVY GROUND — Allan Royal, operating instructor and John Gallup operate a 1 1/4 yard Back Hoe at the Jeffrey open pit mine at Asbestos. The Back hoe is ditching in difficult ground at this open pit mine of Canadian Johns-Manville Co., Limited.

There are in the Eastern Townships, among other metallic mineral resources, copper, zinc, lead, alluvial gold and chromite.

The first copper veins to be explored in this region were found near the town of Ascot in the county of Sherbrooke. Four mines were started at various times but all are now closed—the first in 1929, the second in 1939, the third in 1936 and the last in 1960.

There are other veins of copper left in the Eastern Townships, as well as small deposits of zinc, lead and gold. These are found near and in the county of Wolfe.

Alluvial gold has been found in the water of the E.T., principally in the Linier River, Samson River in Frontenac and the Moe's River (Stanstead). These deposits were exploited between 1847 to 1912 producing somewhere between two to three million dollars worth of gold. Since that time however, there has been no production of gold in those districts.

The veins of chromite in the Eastern Townships were exploited between 1894 and 1909. There was also a small production of it during the two world wars, but it was found that there wasn't enough quantity or good enough quality to warrant wholesale production of the mineral.

There is also in the Townships substantial non metallic deposits the value of which is not so important. The discovery of these veins was first made in the region of Bolton-Potton, at the west end of Lake Memphremagog. These veins were mentioned in the Geological Commission report of Canada for the years 1847-1848.

Crysolite fibers, found in this area, were shown at the London Exhibition of 1862.

They proved to be of a better quality than the vein on the Chaudiere River at the NE end of the Broughton, Beauce. The vein was discovered in 1860 on the Plantes River, which runs between Saint-Odilon de Cranbourne, county of Dorchester, and the Chaudiere River at St. Joseph de Beauce.

Finally, there is in the Eastern Townships various building materials—granite, brick and other clay products. The most important granite quarries are found near Stanstead, Wolfe, Frontenac, Richmond and Compton.

Relieve independence

Future of Ont. mining camps may be tied up with tourists

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP)—An important part of the future of Northern Ontario's established mining camps may be tied up with tourists and acting as service centres for large surrounding areas.

Those are two programs seen as ways to relieve the camps of their dependence on mines, which sooner or later must die for their living.

Other projects range from setting up Canada's 11th province—complete with flag—to mining gold coins for Canada's centenary and growing blueberries on a commercial scale. Detailed studies have been started this summer to find out how many tourists visit Northern Ontario, where they go, how much they spend and—most important—how to attract more of them.

Many officials feel the mining communities have a good chance to increase sharply their tourist earnings by smarter promotion—something that has been lacking until recent years.

CAN TOUR MINE

"We'll have at least three times as many tourists this year as a few years ago" predicts Jim Wyatt, president of the Timmins Chamber of Commerce.

F. A. Davidson, president of the Kirkland Lake Chamber, says tourism, if properly developed, "can mean as much as a mine payroll each year to the community."

Good highways, camping sites, natural beauty, hunting, fishing and winter games all are being promoted to win tourists' favors.

Kirkland Lake recently opened an abandoned gold mine, offering visitors a chance to go underground and see at first hand the actual workings of a mine.

In gift shops, chunks of gold-bearing rock are big sellers.

Elliot Lake, the once-thriving uranium centre that fell into a serious depression when the uranium market went into a spin, is going all out to attract tourists.

What is billed as "Canada's first nuclear museum" has been established—in the men's beverage room of a now-empty hotel—and hundreds of camping sites are being set up at nearby lakes to woo the outdoors fans.

WANTS COCKTAIL LICENCE

The town also has been feuding with the Ontario government over what it considers an unnecessary delay in getting a licence for cocktail lounges, regarded as essential for pleasing tourists.

Services that established centres such as Timmins and Kirkland Lake can offer outlying areas range from schools and hospitals to homes, shopping and a base for travelling salesmen.

J. W. Spooner, Ontario's municipal affairs minister, says no new communities will be allowed to develop at sites of mineral finds if a town already exists within a reasonable distance.

As a result, many municipal officials are confident their towns' service will be used by areas stretching 75 or more miles away.

Several new warehouses have been built recently near Timmins and Kirkland Lake, chiefly to store mining equipment in recognition of their growing roles as headquarters for the greatly stepped-up mineral exploration going on, but also for such goods as food, furniture and even soft drinks.

SHORT OF HOUSING

The increasing use of these towns as regional headquarters has created a minor boom in housing. Both Timmins and Kirkland Lake are short of modern, well-equipped medium-priced homes and the building

Sher-Lenn Little League playoffs, continue tonight at Parade Grounds, Tigers, Senators face elimination

The second tilts of the other spot in the finals. They had no trouble with the Sena-Lenn Little League playoffs held the Senators to four hits at the Parade Grounds commencing at 6 p.m.

The Senators, however, having one game to make up, will throw their best at the Indians in their efforts to contest the finals.

Coach Bob Zeller has Mario Palardy, the Senators star hurler, picked for the top position on the mound, in tonight's game. Palardy is well-known to all batters as he has no difficulties in eliminating them from further play.

Indians, after using Mario Simard for the full six innings Monday, will rely on the services of Daniel Champagne and Luc Grogreire. Their pitching staff is rather limited at this point and will have to pull through with what they have.

Should both series go to three games, the third tilts will be played at the Parade Grounds Friday night with the finals beginning next week.

Red Kelley to represent Canada at Olympics
OTTAWA (CP)—Red Kelly, 37-year-old professional hockey player and Liberal MP for the Toronto — area riding of York West, will represent the Canadian government at the summer Olympics in Tokyo, it was announced Tuesday night in the Commons.

The announcement was made by John Munro, parliamentary secretary to Health Minister LaMarsh, during an adjournment debate.

Optimists, Carey meet in finals of softball loop
Lennoxville Optimists will meet Philip Carey in the finals of the Lennoxville Softball League playoffs this week.

Carey pulled a 127 upset over the Firemen last evening at the Optimist Community Park to gain a berth in the finals. The semi-finals were three-out-of-five series in which Carey had to go all out to take their section, while Optimists finished the Truckers earlier in four games.

The finals will get underway this week at the Lennoxville Optimist Park with the series being a five-out-of-seven set.

White Sox sweeps two from Yanks, Orioles win

SPARKS A SIGNAL VICTORY — Chicago White Sox manager Al Lopez watches and makes hand signals as his team achieves its first victor of the season over the New York Yankees in Yankee Stadium yesterday. The White Sox, winning the day game, 6-4, broke the losing streak with the Yankees which began last Aug. 25, a span of 10 games. The White Sox won the night game too, 8-2. (AP Wirephoto)

Manager Yogi Berra isn't reaching for the panic button yet.

But he's to be forgiven if he's wondering where is the similarity between his club, which lost a day-night doubleheader to Chicago White Sox 6-4 and 8-2 Tuesday, and former New York Yankee teams.

August is usually the month the Yankees pull away from the rest of the American League. This year, they appear to be packing war pistols instead of heavy artillery.

The White Sox, who had lost 10 straight to New York, aren't about to extend that string as Montreal-born Pete Ward stroked three hits including his 17th home run and drove in four runs in the afternoon.

They were even more convincing in the nightcap as Ward had three more hits and Juan Pizarro fired a five-hitter to win his 15th game. Pizarro added to lust to injury in the sixth inning with his third homer of the year, a three-run shot.

The double victory pulled the White Sox to within a game of league-leading Baltimore Orioles who edged Boston Red Sox 8-7. Elsewhere, Washington Senators whipped Kansas City Athletics 5-2, Minnesota Twins downed Detroit Tigers 5-3 and Cleveland Indians shut out Los Angeles Angels 3-0.

The losses dropped the third-place Yankees 3½ games off the pace and gave them five defeats in six games against Baltimore and Chicago in the last week.

Baltimore got three two-run homers, the last one Boog Powell's 30th of the season, to whip the Red Sox. Brooks Robinson and Sam Bovens also connected for the Orioles who beat relief ace Dick Radatz.

Jim King and Don Lock homered to back up Claude Osteen's pitching for the Senators' victory. Nelson Mathews homered for the Athletics in the ninth.

Earl Battey drove in three runs and Tony Oliva slammed his 26th homer as the Twins snapped a seven-game Tiger winning streak. Detroit built an early 3-0 lead around Don Demeter's 15th homer but Hank Aguirre couldn't hold it.

Rookie Luis Tiant won his fifth game, a four-hitter, and Max Alvis belted a three-run homer in the ninth inning for the runs as the Indians blanked the Angels.

Ontario beats Quebec in Junior team tourney

TORONTO—Ontario's 10-member team defeated the Quebec challengers 27-18 Tuesday in win the Ontario-Quebec junior golf team championship for the seventh consecutive time.

The Quebec team managed a slim one-point lead in the morning's two-ball foursome competition but won only three of the 10 singles matches during the afternoon round.

Duke Doucet of Sherbrooke scored a 3-0 win for the visitors over Rick Paton of Pembroke. The other two singles wins by Quebec were posted by Jerry Chapdelaine of St. Hyacinthe and Stephen Smith of Valleyfield. They defeated Fin Melville of St. Thomas 2½-1 and Gary Carpenter of Port Colborne 2-1 respectively.

Quebec's Chapdelaine and Bert Moreland defeated Ontario's Carpenter and Martin Mason 2-1 in the 18-year-old class.

Doucet and Jim McLean of Montreal posted the other Quebec victory, defeating Paton and Gross 3-0 in the 17-year-old section.

Money is only bait for Moore, says Richard

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Maurice (Rocket) Richard says it will be a matter of money if the Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs are to entice ex-Montreal Canadian Dickie Moore out of retirement and into their training camp which opens here Sept. 4.

"The money is the big difference," said Richard, who, as a one-time member of the Canadiens, rewrote the National Hockey League record books. "You never know. . . . If he gets a good contract, he will probably report. If he doesn't get a good one then he will stay home."

Richard said in an interview Tuesday that Moore, who missed last season with the Canadiens because of his bad knees, had told him he wouldn't report.

Andy Occhinero hurls four-hitter as Als' playoff chances lessened, Drummondville visits Als Thursday

Andy Occhinero proved to be the downfall of the Sherbrooke Alouettes last night as the Als dropped a 4-3 decision to Drummondville Royals. Meanwhile, in Coaticook, the hosting club dealt Acton Vale a 7-6 loss to take a ½ game lead in the league standing.

The result of last night's tilt sent the Alouettes down to fifth position, trailing the Granby Knights by one-half game. Occhinero allowed only four hits past him in last night's game to give the Royals their win.

The next game scheduled for the Alouettes will be tomorrow evening at the local stadium, commencing at 8:30 p.m. At this time the management of the Als will present a display of fireworks and stage a dance after the game.

Len Cote, general manager and coach, feels that this is one way in which the club can thank its many fans for giving their support throughout the season.

THORNE REPLACES PRUD'HOMME
Carlos Thorne replaced Claude Prud'Homme on the mound for the Alouettes last evening in the second inning. Prud'Homme apparently didn't live up to Coach Cote's expectations and was then given a rest on the bench.

Thorne held the Royals to two other runs, scored in the third, thus giving the Als a chance to make amends with an offensive attack.

Sherbrooke couldn't break the wall that prevented them from getting the important hits. The sixth inning saw two Pierre.

Hitters for the Als were Carlos Thorne, with his homer, Jacques Monette with a double and Claude St. Vincent, connecting for the remaining hits, both singles.

Royals power was stored in live up to Coach Cote's expectations and was then given a major share of the damage against Sherbrooke. Sawyer blasted his sixth season homer while Morocco connected for three singles.

Jim Trimble adds beef to roster for encounter with Toronto Argos, three prospects arrive in camp

MONTREAL—Though their taste buds retain the sweet savor of a 33-5 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Montreal Alouettes were displaying a continuing appetite for heavy beef.

Two hefty cast-offs from the National Football League entered practice sessions at the Eastern Football Conference club's camp Tuesday and coach Jim Trimble has five days under Canadian Football League rules to size up their merits.

The burly newcomers are Chuck Harris, a 260-pound two-way tackle dropped Monday by Pittsburgh Steelers, and Cody Blinkley, a 251-pound linebacker and centre, let loose by New York Giants.

Meantime, Rene Riopelle, who was cut by Hamilton last week, was signed by the Montreal club after just one workout and will likely play against Toronto Argonauts in the Ontario city Saturday night.

Riopelle is a rock-hard native of North Bay, Ont., who can play flanker and safety and return kicks as well.

Another new arrival at the camp is John Quinn, a two-way Canadian halfback who played with end Al Irwin at McMaster University.

Trimble wants all the beef he can get for the Alouettes' regular-season home opener Aug. 20 against the Argonauts. And at least two developments since the Saturday night victory over Hamilton serve to sharpen his appetite.

These are the trouble Jim Andreotti continues to have with a charleyhorse he suffered in the game and an unidentified illness that hit Bob Minihane the day after and sent him to hospital.

There is nothing seriously wrong with Minihane, doctors say, but he must stay in hospital until late in the week for further study.

Andreotti, an all-Canadian linebacker, played to the end of the Hamilton game despite his injury but he may still have trouble getting around in the weekend.

All-star Ed Nickla or rookie end Larry Tomlinson, who sat out the Saturday night encounter, might get a chance to play if Andreotti or Minihane is sidelined.

Al Balding predicts record score for CPGA championship at Ashburn, pro golfers begin play Thursday

HALIFAX (CP)—Lanky Al Balding, on hand to defend his "if it rains and there is no wind, then 196," he said. "But if the course dries out—and it has been drying out—there's no telling how high the scores will be. The roll of the ball could get you into plenty of trouble."

FIGURES 195 WILL WIN
Kelly Burnett, Ashburn pro who was formerly at Valleyfield, Que., went Balding one year at Edmonton's Mayfair Club will take a sound beating if Tuesday's clear weather holds, Burnett didn't figure the course will be particularly dry.

In one respect at least there seemed to be consensus. Because of narrow fairways and a par five from four for the tournament.

The title play, for a total of $10,000 in prize money, starts Thursday. Most of the field of 125 have already got in practice rounds and taken another crack at the course today in a pro-amateur tournament preceded by special play for pros in the pro-am competition.

Although Balding had a practice round 65, he still hedged a bit on his forecast.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, CPGA winner eight times, would make no specific predictions but declared flatly, "there's going to be a record, that's sure."

American Stan Horne of Montreal Islesmere said he believes the comparative shortness of the course will open up the competition immensely.

Sherbrooke Auto Club to stage 'Rally des Lacs' Sunday, Aug. 23, buffet supper to be served after Sherbrooke Auto Club officials have announced tentative plans for the next auto rally to be held Sunday, August 23.

This "Rally des Lacs" is scheduled to get underway at the Shopping Centre with the contestants being held in complete ignorance as to the course which they will follow.

One fact is, though, that all entries have been notified that they must carry a bathing suit with them at this time as it is definitely will be needed.

The rally, organized for the club members as a special event, will accept non-members and will charge a fee of $3.00 for each non-member plus $1.50/Club.

for each additional person. Sherbrooke Auto Club members may pay an entry fee of $2.00 plus one dollar for each additional companion.

The course to be followed has a combination of paved and gravel roads, sixty per cent paved and thirty per cent gravel. The SAC officials refuse to state what the remaining ten per cent will consist of.

Further details will be published next week when plans have been completed. The need for the bathing costumes has been stressed due to the fact that the course will follow a lakeside and terminate at Lake of the Auto Club to participate in a buffet lunch which will be served by the Auto Club.

Theftford Mines to be scene of Canadian Ski Championships in 1965, club making preparations

THEFTFORD — It may seem strange in mid summer, but the skiing world is already in action, getting organized for next winter. This is particularly true about Mount Adcock, near Theftford Mines, Que., where the 1965 Canadian Senior Ski Championships will be held.

The Theftford Mines Ski Club, after making a real big success of the Canadian Junior Championships in 1960, is doing everything to achieve even better this season. Right now, a new trail is being opened for the slalom and giant slalom, and the racers are not going to complain about the flat parts of it, because there are none.

Bulldozers, compressors, drills and dynamite are in action, and in the club house at the bottom of the mountain, the paperbox is under way. Almost all the committee members have been appointed. Contacts have been made with Radio-Canada for coverage of the event. The Provincial Government has been asked to improve the road. A new snowcat has been ordered to keep the trails in perfect condition.

Lionel "Tom" Bourgault, president of the club, told us in a recent interview "With our experience four years ago, we will have no difficulty in keeping up with our schedule. The time chosen for the event, at the end of February, is perfect for us after the Adams Memorial and before the Quebec Kandahar. Our snow conditions are always perfect at that time, and we hope European top racers can join our best Canadians for the occasion."

Aaron, Callison swing heavy bats, Giants win

It was a bad night for New York Yankees all around. Even Joe DiMaggio was knocked down a peg.

While Chicago White Sox whipped the Yankees in a doubleheader, Hank Aaron of Milwaukee whipped past the Yankee Clipper into 14th place on the all time home run list, hammering his 19th and 20th of the season as the Braves walloped Houston Colts 9-6 Tuesday night.

The homers lifted Aaron's career total to 362, one more than DiMaggio.

While Aaron continued his heavy hitting for Milwaukee, Johnny Callison did the same for league-leading Philadelphia, slugging the first grand slam of the season by the Phillies and adding two doubles in a 13-5 walloping of Chicago Cubs.

The victory kept the Phillies three games in front of San Francisco Giants, but may have cost them the services of outfielders Cookie Rojas and Tony Gonzalez.

Rojas jammed both wrists when he ran into the centre field wall chasing a fly ball and Gonzalez, his replacement, was hit on his protective helmet by a Dick Ellsworth pitch. Both players were taken to the hospital, but the injuries were not considered serious.

Armstrong returns to his old stamping grounds with a rookie-laden club whose inexperience glared through in a 32-15 season-opening loss to Calgary Stampede last Friday.

"They're green but they're going to Winnipeg with the idea they'll win," he said.

CHANGE ATTITUDE
Armstrong said his major problem was to "try to get the winning attitude back" for Eskimos, who finished last in 1963, with just two victories in 16 games.

"We will improve in each game but right now we have to keep morale up, keep calm and suffer a little bit."

Armstrong, with 15 rookies on a 33-man roster, intends to go with an all-Canadian defensive backfield.

Printers ask reopening of negotiations

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Newspaper Guild Tuesday night called on publishers of the city's three daily newspapers to reopen negotiations with their striking printers and to take a flexible stand on settlement terms.

A meeting of about 360 of the guild's 1,800 members voted for a resolution expressing the union's "deep concern" at "actions which appear to be directed at the destruction of another union."

But the guild members, who comprise reporters, editors and office workers, rejected a clause presented by their executive calling upon the publishers to withdraw demands tabled after the July 9 walkout of 680 members of the International Typographical Union (I.T.U.).

These demands brought about the collapse of government-supervised talks between printers and publishers Aug. 4.

Since then the newspapers, which have continued to publish with non-union and supervisory personnel in the composing rooms, have invited the strikers to return to work individually. Two days ago they obtained indefinite renewal of an injunction forbidding the I.T.U. to call the dispute a lockout and limiting numbers of pickets outside newspaper plants.

Tuesday night's guild meeting, closed to the working press, contrasted with a stormy session last month when guild members criticized the I.T.U. and their own executive.

URGENT FLEXIBILITY

The main resolution, passed by a vote of 128 to 95, said that the guild, "whose members have worked throughout this dispute, despite the strain this has placed on them, and on T.N.G.'s relations with other unions, calls on the publishers to reopen negotiations and the publishers be strongly urged to treat as flexible all propositions put on the bargaining table since July 9."

The guild members endorsed an executive decision to pay benefits to the 14 employees of the evening Telegram who, as guild members, have refused to cross picket lines. The guild contrast with the Telegram enables them to do so without losing their jobs. Contracts with the Globe and Mail, a morning paper, and the evening Star require guild members to remain on their jobs.

Originally the main issue between printers and the newspapers was the question of jurisdiction over computers doing composing room work. The computer issue was settled in negotiations after the strike started but the I.T.U. balked at new proposals introduced by the publishers.

The new proposals included publisher demands for removal of composing room foremen and assistants from the union bargaining unit, elimination of work practices the publishers call featherbedding and the right of the newspapers to introduce new production methods. In return the publishers have offered a lifetime guarantee to prevent staff against layoffs due to automation.

Releasing text of JFK assassination study is problem of Warren commissioners now

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Warren commission, meeting in secret to consider how it will release the text of its Kennedy assassination report, considered a plan whereby contracts would be signed between the government and some information media.

These media would be supplied the text of the report somewhat in advance of other media on condition they "observe security"—not publish the report before the specified release date and then publish it in full.

The commission's chief counsel, J. Lee Rankin, briefed newspaper men Tuesday. The commission, headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren of the United States Supreme Court, is nearing the end of its investigation into the assassination last Nov. 22 of president John F. Kennedy.

There have been reports that certain paperback book firms have had negotiations with the commission.

A reporter asked: "How can a government commission, engaged on such a project of grave national import, engage in contractual negotiations with private concerns?"

Said Rankin: "You will have to take this up with Mr. George Reedy at the White House."

Reedy is the White House press secretary.

GIVE SAME RESPONSE

Rankin's response was the same when asked if the report shouldn't be released to everyone simultaneously, perhaps three or four days in advance, so everyone would get a chance to read the document before writing about it.

At the White House, Reedy told a reporter: "As far as the White House is concerned, no plans have been made for the release of the report. We will give consideration to this matter at an appropriate time."

In Rochester, N.Y., Paul Miller, president of The Associated Press and president of the Gannett Newspapers, said when asked for comment: "The Associated Press is opposed and will continue to be opposed to anything other than simultaneous release of the report to all."

A similar stand was taken by Miles H. Wolff, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and executive editor of The Record-News at Greensboro, N.C. He said he could only speak as an individual, but asserted: "If the government plans to release this report in advance to one group it is shocking. It is perfectly ridiculous to try to do this with a report paid for by all the taxpayers."

News flashes from around the world

LONDON — A 32-year-old convict serving a 30-year-term for his part in Britain's great train robbery escaped before dawn today from Birmingham prison.

Scotland Yard posted men on all major roads surrounding London on the hunt that the escapee, Charles Frederick Wilson, would head for the capital. Most of the $7,600,000 loot in the robbery just a year ago has not been recovered.

MONTREAL — Mrs. Peter Wells of Wolverhampton, England, is plaintiff in a $102,200 damage action in Superior Court against Canadian Pacific Air Lines Limited for the deaths of her husband and son in a Honolulu air crash in 1962.

The plaintiff and her daughter were among the 13 survivors of the disaster in which 25 persons died when a Bristol Britannia aircraft crashed shortly after take-off en route to Auckland, New Zealand July 22, 1962.

Mr. Wells was an education officer for the United Nations Economic, Social and Cultural Organization in Paris for several years and was on leave bound with his family for their home in New Zealand when he was killed.

WARSAW (AP) — Veteran Communist Edward Ochab today was unanimously elected to succeed the late Aleksander Zawadzki as Poland's chief of state.

The Polish Parliament awarded the largely ceremonial post of state council president to the 58-year-old Ochab within minutes after First Secretary Wladyslaw Gomulka announced that he was the choice of the ruling Communist party.

Ochab (pronounced oh-haab, with the first syllable accented), was born in Krabow, southern Poland.

NEW ORLEANS — The U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals Tuesday upheld a federal court order dismissing the $2,000,000 libel suit filed in Mississippi by former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker against The Associated Press.

The court affirmed the decision of the District Court for the Northern District of Mississippi, quashing the service of process and dismissing the complaint alleging libel on the ground that the AP is a non-resident corporation that does not do business in Mississippi.

Walker had alleged he was libeled by dispatches filed during the riots that erupted when Negro James Meredith enrolled in the University of Mississippi at Oxford two years ago.

AND TURKS STILL

that they stop it.

Premier George Papandreu's Athens government warned Turkey that any further violations of Greek air space "would compel Greece to act accordingly."

Though bidding for co-operation of Greece in negotiations to settle the Cyprus crisis, Turkey is gearing up for further military action if the Greek-Cypriot press on, as they threaten, in an offensive against Turkish Cypriot holdings in the Kokkina coastal area that was halted Monday by a UN-sponsored cease-fire.

A dispatch from Iskenderun, a Turkish port 100 miles north-east of Cyprus, said more than 30,000 troops stood ready at barracks there for embarkation and armored units, including tanks and artillery, were already aboard naval vessels.

SOUND AIR ALARM
Police in Morphou, 25 miles west of Nicosia, sounded the air raid alarm. A loud explosion was heard from the direction of Xeros Port, six miles further west. There was no immediate indication as to what caused it.

United Nations headquarters in Nicosia confirmed the reappearance of Turkish planes but a spokesman said first information only told of one Turkish jet fighter flying low over the Turkish-held village of Kokkina.

Turkish Sabre jet fighters carried out daily attacks on Greek-Cypriot villages in northwest Cyprus from last Friday until Monday. Tuesday, Turkish planes confined their flights to reconnaissance over the Kokkina region where Greek and Turkish-Cypriot forces are observing a cease-fire after heavy fighting last week.

President Makarios said his Greek-Cypriots would fight "alone or with others" to preserve their rule of Cyprus. His broadcast speech Tuesday night underscored a rift with Greece.

Bishop's hosts summer session for teachers

From August 16 to 21, Bishop's University again plays host to the summer workshop of the Quebec Association of Protestant School Administrators. This is the seventh session of the group to meet at Bishop's.

Topic for the session held under the direction of Arthur MacArthur, Principal, Rosemere High School, is the effects of current administrative practices on the children.

Guest speakers at the Workshop will include Ann Silver A.I.E.E., Executive Director YWCA, Dr. David Kirk, head of the Sociology Department, Waterloo University, Dr. F. R. Wake, Adolescent Psychology, Carleton University, and Dr. Baneroff, Educational Sociologist of Forest Hills Collegiate, Toronto.

Dr. J. D. Jefferis, Chairman of the Education Department of Bishop's University, will continue to be a key figure in the discussions.

WARSAW (AP) — Veteran Communist Edward Ochab today was unanimously elected to succeed the late Aleksander Zawadzki as Poland's chief of state.

The Polish Parliament awarded the largely ceremonial post of state council president to the 58-year-old Ochab within minutes after First Secretary Wladyslaw Gomulka announced that he was the choice of the ruling Communist party.

Ochab (pronounced oh-haab, with the first syllable accented), was born in Krabow, southern Poland.

Legion Ladies to present bursary at Boundary tea

STANSTEAD — The Women's Auxiliary of Stanstead Frontier Branch, No. 5, Canadian Legion, at their monthly meeting held on Aug. 4, in the Legion Memorial Home, agreed to give a $50 bursary to a boy or girl finishing High School and going on to higher education. The presentation will be made at the tea in the Memorial Home on Sept. 19.

The applicant must show proof of acceptance at a higher school of education, he or she may be a son or a daughter of any Veteran from the Boundary district or of an auxiliary member whether or not the son or daughter of a Legionnaire. The application must be accompanied by a recommendation from the school principal and must be in the hands of the committee not later than Sept. 5. All applications should be sent to Mrs. George Hatch, Box 83, Rock Island.

A committee of three, Mrs. Hatch, Mrs. Gladys Chartier, the auxiliary president, and Mrs. Lucy Galloway, will decide to whom the bursary will be presented.

A dressed doll, being sold by tickets was on display, is now on exhibition in Cowens' store window. This will be drawn for at the September tea.

Plans for the tea, proceeds of which will go into a special bursary fund, will be made at the next meeting on Sept. 1. Hostesses to be Mrs. Frances Emslie, Mrs. Maud Probert, Mrs. Gladys Chartier and Mrs. Tillie Bowden.

Following the meeting refreshments were served in the downstairs hall by Mrs. Ann Reed, Mrs. Mavis Chamberlain, Mrs. Dorothy Pope and Mrs. Lucy Galloway.

Kiddies love that Popcorn Man at North Hatley Dreamland Park

By SANDRA PICKFORD
(Record staff reporter)

NORTH HATLEY — Dreamland Park here has its own Pied Piper.

He neither plays the flute nor beckons mice and rats.

He's North Hatley's popcorn man and his hand-pushed white cart attracts children like the magic music of the piper.

He's known to the children of the village here simply as The Popcorn Man, "for many of them don't know my name", says Simon Kezar.

Every Sunday, for the past 35 years Simon Kezar has set up his stand at the park, turned on his burner, popped and salted popcorn and poured on sweet-smelling butter.

The 67-year-old gent with a smile as big as the helping of popcorn he'll serve you has attracted three generations of town children around his white, hand-pushed cart.

"A lady came up to me last weekend and was surprised to see me still at it," Mr. Kezar said. "She said, 'My goodness, my son used to buy your popcorn and he's a grown man now'."

A love for children keeps Mr. Kezar at his stand.

It's well-known among the little ones that Mr. Kezar often gives out bags of popcorn for little odd jobs done around his stand — opening the brown paper bags and picking up discarded ones from the park lawns.

"I'm always surrounded by children," he says. "If I don't go to the park they surround me at home." Mr. Kezar lives on the Capelton Road.

If Mr. Kezar will only hint that romances have started over the sharing of one of his bags of popcorn, he can account for a least one marriage taking place because of the little popcorn stand.

It was his daughter's marriage.

Mr. Kezar loaned the stand to his daughter and prospective son-in-law to run for a summer in order to make enough money to get married with.

The popcorn stand is over 45 years old. Mr. Kezar built the wagon for Fred Guild. Mr. Guild operated the stand for a few years and turned it over to one of his five sons. His youngest boy Jack, is the present owner of the Hob Nob Restaurant.

Mr. Kezar took the stand over about 35 years ago.

Thirty-five years ago, when North Hatley residents entered the park to enjoy evening concerts, they purchased the hot popcorn for five cents.

"The band concerns stopped, I kept going," chuckled Mr. Kezar.

The hot popcorn is just as good, the butter is as sweet-tasting, but the price is now

10 cents . . ." the price of butter has gone up," says Mr. Kezar.

Mr. Kezar only opens the stand on Sundays from two to 4 p.m.

During the week the former town's policeman is employed at R. L. Reed's.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY — Your hints have been a source of endless help (and sometimes amusement) for a long time so now I would like to contribute. If you put your cake racks on a clean newspaper it is simple to dispose of the cake crumbs which must always be brushed from a cooled cake before it is frosted.

• Also keep an old (or new, if you are finicky) toothbrush on your sink. It has almost limitless uses. I use it to clean egg yolk from fork tines, to polish the fittings of hard-to-get-at places on the sink, to clean around the knobs and pushbuttons on the stove and in many, many other ways.—MRS. C. F. D.

DEAR POLLY — We have hard water and sediment collects on the shower door. I cannot remove it so it builds up and looks terrible. Can someone help me solve this problem.—EVELYN

GIRLS: How about it? — POLLY
 DEAR POLLY — Use fingernail polish to mark ruler lines on one blade of a pair of scissors. This makes a handy "ruler" to use when sewing.—IANET

DEAR POLLY — When buying a new hat I make sure it is a basic style that will lend itself to rejuvenation after a number of wearings. A beautiful effect can be created by wrapping layers of fine white net around the crown and slipping small artificial flowers under the veiling and entwining or tacking them in. The flowers can be changed frequently to match accessories or ensembles and make it look like an entirely different hat.—MRS. J. K.

GIRLS — Mrs. J. K. certainly has a good idea for getting the most mileage possible out of one hat but I would go easy on using too many flowers. Ribbon or velvet bands in different colors would also be easy to slip on and off a hat that was to be worn with many costumes.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Save ironing on drip dry and cotton blouse slips by replacing the cotton straps with nylon ones. The garment is then truly

Welcome birthdays

No senior citizen should dread the approach of another birthday. Rather, he should look forward to it as toward a new year during which to take stock of what he has accomplished and make plans for the future.

But how can we fight the "ranny of birthdays"? How can we keep from letting birthdays get us down?

There are several sound ways. The first is to live for today and tomorrow, and look longingly to the past.

The second is to replace grown interests with new ones. This should be a conscious and calculated effort. If you've had to give up tennis, then take up golf. If you've had to let go of what about gardening?

Don't ever let an interest without replacing it with another.

The same is true of friends. Nothing is more pitiful than the left, because through the years he never bothered to replace the friends who moved away, grew indifferent, or died.

There's no reason why an older person can't have as many friends as a young person. But friends have to be replaced as you go along. You can't wait until you are old and suddenly make a new circle of friends.

And you should keep busy all the time. If some jobs grow too hard, look for easier ways of doing them, or look for new jobs. If you can't work for profit, you can at least work for the joy of accomplishment.

Old age need not be a time of stagnation and self-pity. It can be a period of discovery of new interests and new friends.

Today's recipe

Tomatoes from local or nearby truck gardens are coming to market in abundance now. Because they are picked ripe or nearly ripe, they are richer in flavor than those shipped long distances at other times of the year.

BROILED TOMATOES NAPOLI

(Makes 4 servings)

- 4 large firm ripe tomatoes,
- 1 cup fresh bread crumbs,
- 1/4 cup melted butter,
- 2 tablespoons Parmesan cheese,
- 1/2 teaspoon Italian herb seasoning

Wash tomatoes well; remove stems. Cut into halves and place on large broiler pan, cut side up. Toss crumbs lightly with butter, Parmesan cheese and Italian herb seasoning until blended. Spoon crumb mixture onto tomatoes. Place under the broiler 10 inches from the source of heat 4 to 5 minutes, until tomatoes are heated through and crumbs well-browned.

Serve at once.

Personal shower held in Sherbrooke

Miss Gloria Barter of Bury was pleasantly surprised on August 5, by receiving a personal shower given by Mrs. Chester McComb and assisted by Mrs. Shirley Gilbert, of Sherbrooke.

After receiving a corsage, the bride-elect was escorted into a decorated room where many gifts awaited her.

As soon as Miss Barter expressed her delight with the numerous gifts, a lunch followed including a beautifully decorated shower cake.

FASHIONED FOR THE FALL AND WINTER — Straight-lined overcoat, left, is creation of Fontana Sisters fashion house of Rome. It is of Havana brown checked wool, with three buttons and lapels in the style of men's coats. Hat is of hand-knitted grey and white wool. Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 4

Another baby on the way? If you plan to have cherub #1 spend your hospital time at grandmother's, it's a good idea to let him (or her) try a couple of overnight visits during the last part of your waiting period. Comes the day of your departure, he will have become accustomed to the idea and will probably accept it more readily.

Bedtime story. If your youngest child is still using the crib, you'll want to transfer him to a regular bed well before the arrival of the newcomer. (If you have to give a reason for the move, try the bit about being more "grown-up" now.) By giving your child time to get used to the new bed, he'll be less likely to resent the newcomer taking over the crib.

Early words. As you know, one of the early additions to a new baby's diet is cereal. Gerber offers 5 specially prepared packaged baby cereals which provide several of the nutrients your baby needs almost from the start. Now, Gerber also offers 4 cereal-fruit combinations in jars. Rice Cereal, Oatmeal, Mixed Cereal and Protein Cereal—all with Applesauce and Bananas. Cereal is cooked right with the fruit for marvellous flavour and a wonderfully smooth, moist texture.

Tactful tactics. You can often diminish resistance to the new baby by suggesting that big brother or sister share in the care of the "intruder." Jealousy can also be held in abeyance by saving billing and cooing over the new baby for times when junior's out of sight.

Special information dept. When baby is ready for strained foods, it should be reassuring to know that when you give him Gerber, you give him quality. All Gerber Baby Foods are "custom-cooked" according to their own requirements. This simply means that different foods require different cooking methods to insure tasteful, nourishing products. But whatever method is used, cooking time and temperatures are controlled to protect flavours and colours and precious food values. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Kitchener contractor works long but makes millions across Canada

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—At 34, Eugene (Gene) George is one of Canada's youngest millionaires.

"I don't really fancy the term," the soft-spoken contractor says, "but the boys often kid me about it."

Twelve years ago, he carried bricks in a hod working alone as a masonry contractor. Today, as head of George and Asmusen Ltd., he employs 700 workers from British Columbia to the Maritimes in Canada's biggest masonry contracting business.

He also employs another 100 in a wide range of ventures, but the building business takes up most of his time.

And most of his time means a big percentage of a day that often stretches to 18 hours of work. He spends several hours at his desk every Sunday and hasn't taken a vacation in 12 years.

Lebanese descent.

His contracting company ranges throughout the country doing everything from bricking up windows to building the Seagram Tower at Niagara Falls. It did more than $7,000,000 worth of business last year.

"We've tackled everything," says Mr. George.

To keep his finger on the pulse of all jobs running, he flits around the country with his own pilot in one of his two private planes.

He has looked at faraway fields, too.

Mr. George flew to Nassau to view possibilities for expansion there and feels he is ready to bid on big jobs in the Bahamas. He would also consider jobs in Britain.

LEFT SCHOOL

Because he was from a family of 12—six boys and six girls—he was forced to leave school after completing Grade 10. Leaning on summer job experience, he began taking contracting jobs with the help of a half-ton pickup truck and a lot of muscle.

When he was advised by local apprenticeship officials that he was contravening building codes by taking jobs when only an apprentice, he formed a partnership with the more experienced Robert Asmusen. The partnership was dissolved two years later, but Mr. George retained the Asmusen name for the company.

From doing local masonry work the firm expanded throughout the province and eventually the country.

To stay fit for his rugged schedule, Mr. George plays hockey in a "house" league of local builders throughout the winter, gets in a bit of golf in the summer, and is an avid 5BX fan.

SKIPS MEALS

Mr. George gobbles a sandwich at his desk at noon and often skips dinner when important job closings require precise bids. He averages 3.3 job closings a week.

Why does he push himself this way?

"Because I love the work," says the short, stocky builder of

Vale Perkins

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ethier and Suzanne motored to Laprairie, where they visited Mr. and Mrs. R. Clark, Miss Suzanne remaining to spend a few days with them. Mr. and Mrs. Ethier were accompanied home by the Misses Janet and Brenda Jewett, who had spent two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Clark and family.

Mrs. Earl Buchanan, of Sarasota, Fla., the former Lucille Goodwin, was a visitor of Mrs. Martha Challes and Lyle Jones, while in Newport visiting relatives.

Rogers Pass has building boom, flood of tourists

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—British Columbia's Okanagan Valley, long dependent on its fruit-growing industry, is in the midst of a building boom sparked by a flood of tourists. It's all the result of the opening of the Rogers Pass highway through the Rockies.

Albertans were previously accustomed to driving across the United States border to the lakes of Idaho and Montana for their summer vacation. But with the highway and the premium on the U.S. dollar, many are coming to B.C. The pass tends to funnel them into the valley.

A government survey showed that 1,600,000 people used the pass in 1963 and that 38 per cent of all cars entering B.C. had come across the Rockies through Banff. This was nine per cent more than at Blaine, 30 miles south of Vancouver, formerly the main gateway to B.C.

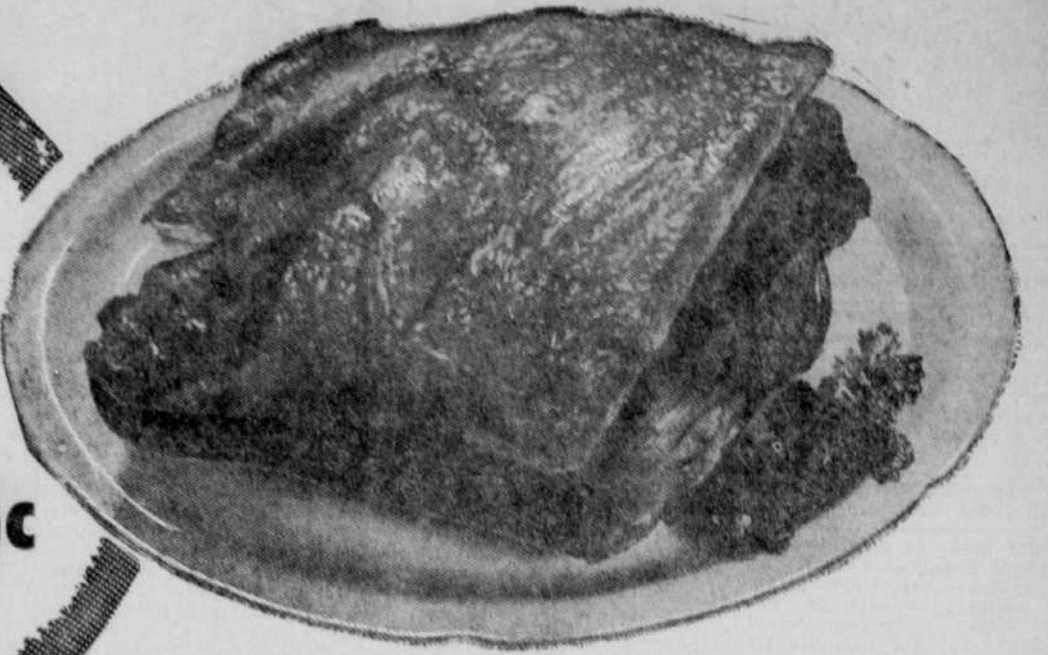

Last summer, however, the Pentiction Chamber of Commerce was flooded with tourists who couldn't find a place to stay. Many had to be put up in private homes.

That's what caused the construction boom. Building in the city has been running at the $2,500,000 level for the last few years but is expected to hit $6,000,000 this year.

And Pentiction, with a population of 15,000, figures to be able to put up 6,000 to 7,000 visitors a night.

JAMES A. MCMORINE
MOOSE JAW, SASK.,
Formerly of Flodden.
MOOSE JAW — The death occurred on July 23, 1964, in the Providence Hospital, Moose Jaw, of James Alexander McMorine. Born on April 20, 1881, at Flodden, Que., the deceased was the son of the late Alexander McMorine, originally of Annan, Dumfriesshire, Scotland.

Mr. McMorine, who came to Moose Jaw in 1906 from Quebec, worked in a lumber yard for nearly two years and in 1908 took up a homestead a few miles from the present town of Assiniboia, Sask. where he farmed for the next 40 years. Retiring to Moose Jaw in 1948, where he lived until his recent death. He was a lifelong adherent of the Presbyterian Church and was widely known throughout south-central Saskatchewan.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Jessie Isabella Stalker of Kingsbury, Que., a son James Gordon Stalker McMorine, of Regina, Sask., two brothers, Arnold and George McMorine, of Kingsbury, a sister, Annie, Mrs. W. D. Stalker, of Plaistow, N.H.; and one grandson.

The funeral was held July 25, the service being conducted by Rev. R. Thompson, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Moose Jaw. Interment was in Rosedale Cemetery, Moose Jaw.

MRS. LILLIAN E. H. MERRILL OF GREENFIELD, MASS.

GREENFIELD — The death occurred on July 29, 1964, of Lillian Edith Heath Merrill, of 53 Birch Street, Greenfield, Mass., at the age of 75 years, following a long illness at the Franklin Public Hospital.

Mrs. Merrill was born Oct. 28, 1889, in Hatley, Que., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jason Heath. She was a member of the First Baptist Church.

She is survived by her husband, O. L. Merrill, and a son Charles L., at home; a sister, Mrs. Hattie Galvis, of Melbourne, Que., and one niece.

Funeral services were held from Smith Funeral Home on July 31, Rev. Ralph Rood, pastor of the First Baptist Church officiating.

Interment took place in Federal Street Cemetery.

MISS KATHLEEN E. BURNSIDE
OF RICHMOND

RICHMOND — The death occurred at the Youville Hospital, Sherbrooke, on July 14, 1964, after a lingering illness, of Kathleen Evelyn Burnside, at the age of 74 years.

Miss Burnside was born in Richmond, daughter of the late John Burnside and his wife, Mary Elizabeth Kennedy. She received her early education at St. Patrick's Convent here. After the death of her parents she left to reside at Springfield, Mass., returning to Richmond in 1918, where she made her home with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Austin

Hall, who predeceased her several years ago.

She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Helen Barry, Miss Florence Burnside, of Springfield, Mass., and Mrs. Gertrude Connelly, of Richmond. Two brothers predeceased her, William, of Richmond and John, of Springfield, Mass.

The funeral was held from the J. H. Fleury Funeral Home, Adam Street, on July 17, to St. Bibiane Church, where the requiem high mass was sung by Rev. Armand Gauthier, parish priest, assisted by Rev. Roland Bacon, sub-deacon and Mark Bernier, deacon. The funeral was largely attended by many friends and neighbors. The music was rendered by the men's choir, under the direction of Mrs. Fernand Menard, organist. A solo Nearer My God to Thee, was rendered by Paul Tremblay.

The bearers were Joachim Dunlavy, Maurice Barrie, George Denery, James Barrie, Ross Alexander and Alphonse Jalbert.

Interment took place in the family plot in St. Bibiane Cemetery, with committal prayers by Rev. Father R. Bacon.

Oldest E.T. exhibition, the Bedford Fair, opens gate for 3 days of fun

BEDFORD — Eastern Townships' oldest fair opens this year August 14 and carries through for two more days in fun-filled, activity-packed programs.

Highlighted this year is something different — a western horse show, Friday, Saturday and Sunday night.

Horse racing, popular area sport, will be held Saturday and Sunday afternoon. Cat-be held Saturday night in the arena and Sunday afternoon in front of the grandstand.

The carnival spirit prevails with Midway All Canadian Shows in attendance all three days. Watch for old favourites — Pete and Bob and the Youngs.

Bands and pretty majorettes, midway concessions, tugs-of-war, rides, and judging will add to the hustle and bustle of this once a year fair.

The following is the three-day program at a glance.

Friday August 14, Judging of horses start at 2 p.m.; cooking, canning, farm produce, fancy work start at 2 p.m.

Saturday, August 15, Cattle Judging starts at 9 a.m.

Saturday afternoon
Races start at 1.30 with band and majorettes grand stand attractions.

Saturday night—in the Arena
Horse show, prize animals parade, two tugs of war special attractions.

Sunday Afternoon
Races start at 1.30 with band and majorettes Final tug of war and other attractions. Prize animal parade. Special invitation Race.

Sunday night
Band and majorettes. Twist dances and other attractions. All Canadian Shows with side shows in attendance all three days.

General admission 50 cents; children under 12 years free admission to grounds. Grand stand and arena, admission 50 cents each.

 A message from the president

The Agricultural Society of the County of Missisquoi wishes to thank all those who have contributed so generously to the funds of this Society, or to the special prize list. This move gives us the advantage of presenting a better prize list, addition of new classes, higher and special prizes.

As president of this Society, I wish to extend to the general public our thanks for its encouragement. Furthermore, I wish to especially thank the directors who have so generously subscribed after having given so much of their time for the betterment of our Society.

Affable oaf of the London stage makes a fortune losing his pants

LONDON (CP) — There's an affable oaf on the London stage who has made a personal fortune mainly by losing his trousers eight times a week for the last 14 years.

The man is 40-year-old Brian Rix, a former Yorkshire miner who now heads the Whitehall Theatre Company and is sometimes known as the Maitre D of Farce.

Since Rix arrived with Reluctant Heroes in 1950, the Whitehall has staged only five plays. Two ran for three years each, two for four years and the fifth just opened. Meanwhile the company has developed into an institution that seems as solid and enduring as Nelson's Column which rises a few yards from the stage door.

The Whitehall's blend of slap, tickle and giggle has proved so successful financially that other West End theatre managements are beginning to wonder whether the gales of laughter created by Rix farces are the solution to the current dramatic doldrums.

Plans are afoot for several new farce productions in other theatres and, as might be expected, Brian Rix has his finger in most of the custard pies.

Like its predecessors, the current Whitehall offering failed to amuse most of London's intellectually-minded critics. The Daily Mail's Bernard Levin announced that the Whitehall "has had the same play for the last 14 years."

"Every three or four years they give it a new name, repaint the scenery and the cast changes parts in a kind of parlor game."

This is a charge that Rix would cheerfully accept. The latest play, called Chase Me, Comrade, started off as a tale about an escaped convict. It now concerns a Russian ballet dancer who defects to the West and looks very much like Rudolph Nureyev.

"However strange it may seem, most of the scenes are exactly the same," says playwright Ray Cooney. "Flexibility is what the Whitehall author must possess."

FAMILY FARE

Rix can afford to ignore the snide asides from highbrows. Nearly all his patrons come from the provinces, rolling up to London in organized coachloads to catch a glimpse of Rix in his underpants and enjoy earthy, unsophisticated comedy. Rix caters to his family audiences by keeping straight sex to a minimum. There are plenty of coy references to bottoms and busts, as well as the inevitable detourment, but no bedroom scenes in the French tradition of farce.

Rix defines farce as natural people in unnatural situations. The characters are constantly donning disguises, inventing convincing lies or blurring out improbable truths. "But we can't stretch the limits of probability too far or the audience won't accept it," says Rix. "Any element of fantasy or any situation that hasn't got an explanation, however bizarre, fails in farce."

Rix himself normally plays the nimble-footed but none-too-bright hero with a face that runs the gamut of expressions from amazement through bewilderment to embarrassment.

Off stage he wears glasses and looks like a charming but shrewd businessman—which he is. Fully expecting Chase Me, Comrade to be still packing the Whitehall in 1967, Rix is branching out.

Next September he will co-produce a second farce in the West End with a plot a little less pure than the provinces appreciate. He is also sinking his money into a new farcical musical called Don't Ask Me, Ask Dad.

Meanwhile other farces are popping up all over the place. A revival of the 1945 hit See How They Run, which at one point has five parsons prancing about on stage, is once again doing good business in London despite its 20-year-old jokes.

And even the hallowed Royal Shakespeare Company at the Aldwych Theatre has plans to revive some of the classic Ben Travers farces that made the Aldwych famous in the 1920s.
