Grenier seeks UN leadership, seat

By CAROLE TREISER

SHERBROOKE — Fernand Grenier, the former Union Nationale MNA for Megantic-Compton, will run in both his party's leadership race and the Megantic-Compton byelection.

But should Montreal mayor Jean Drapeau challenge him for the UN leadership, Grenier would step aside "for the good of the party", the former deputy said at a press conference yesterday.

"Should Jean Drapeau become our leader, he would fast become premier of this province as well. There is no doubt that I would give Drapeau full support in order to see our party form the next government," said the former MNA, who gave up his seat to run for the Progressive Conservatives in last February's federal election.

Grenier says he has already demonstrated his support for Drapeau by suggesting his party postpone its leadership convention from October to next January in order to give Drapeau more time to make "the right decision". The party, eager to hitch Drapeau to its helm, has postponed the convention.

Should Drapeau not run, Grenier says he would win the leadership hands down against the other candidate — interim leader Michel Lemoignan, who took over after Rodrigue Biron resigned during the referendum campaign.

Grenier says he would mold the party into the "party of the '80s — the alternative to voting for a party dedicated to separatism when you're not willing to vote in a federal lackey like Claude Ryan".

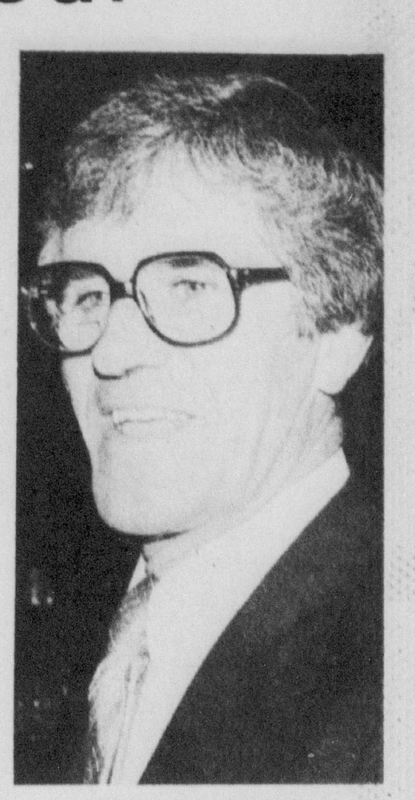

Asked why he calls Ryan a federal lackey when he was willing to trade his provincial seat for a promised federal cabinet position, Grenier said, "My only reason for running in the federal election was to bring more power to our party in the province. It would have been a way of rebuilding the Union Nationale with the strength of the federal government."

"My interests have always been Quebec and only Quebec."

Grenier will run for both the leadership and the Megantic seat on a platform of "more power for Quebec" coupled with conservation economic policies. He says Quebecers are tired of the Parti Quebecois "social-democratic reforms" and want government cooperation to build a strong private sector.

In other provincial politicking, 20-year incumbent Georges Vaillancourt was yesterday voted the Liberal candidate to run in Orford riding.

Vaillancourt, who has held the seat since Maurice Duplessis' death, was so certain to win his party's support that Liberal leader Claude Ryan wrote a congratulatory letter to him a day in advance.

Political war looms as cabinet meets

OTTAWA (CP) — The legal and political faliout the Trudeau government can expect from trying to knock off several constitutional birds with one stone topped the agenda for today's cabinet meeting.

With the solid support of a hawkish Liberal caucus meeting Wednesday still ringing in their ears, the cabinet faced two basic decisions: whether to ask Britain to send the constitution to Canada and what amendments the British should be asked to make to it before shipping it over.

On asking the British to send over the 1867 British North America Act, cabinet ministers indicated Wednesday the government is determined to push ahead.

And in spite of strong opposition from most provincial premiers, Prime Minister Trudeau got solid support from MPs and Senators at the Liberal caucus meeting.

"I think they are ready to go to war," said Jacques Guilbault, Montreal MP and caucus chairman, as he left the meeting. "The caucus is bullish."

Liberals at the meeting said that on the issue of how much more to include in the package there was a wide range of views.

Trudeau said before last week's unsuccessful constitutional talks that as well as bringing home the constitution, he wanted to add an amending formula and to entrench basic human rights — including French and English language guarantees — that would bind the federal government and every provincial government.

Industry Minister Herb Gray and Employment Minister Lloyd Axworthy both said they favored making rights guarantees part of the constitution and making them binding on the provinces.

Saudis up oil price

VIENNA (Reuter) — Saudi Arabia will raise the price of its oil by $2 a barrel under an agreement thrashed out Wednesday night that requires other OPEC members to freeze their prices until December.

The Saudis, the world's biggest oil exporters, have also agreed to maintain their current output of 9.5 million barrels a day until the end of the year, Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani said.

The price increase of Saudi oil, to $30 a barrel, is the third this year by Riyadh, which has consistently lagged behind other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The agreement means that the average price of OPEC oil will go up about 70 cents a barrel to $32.20.

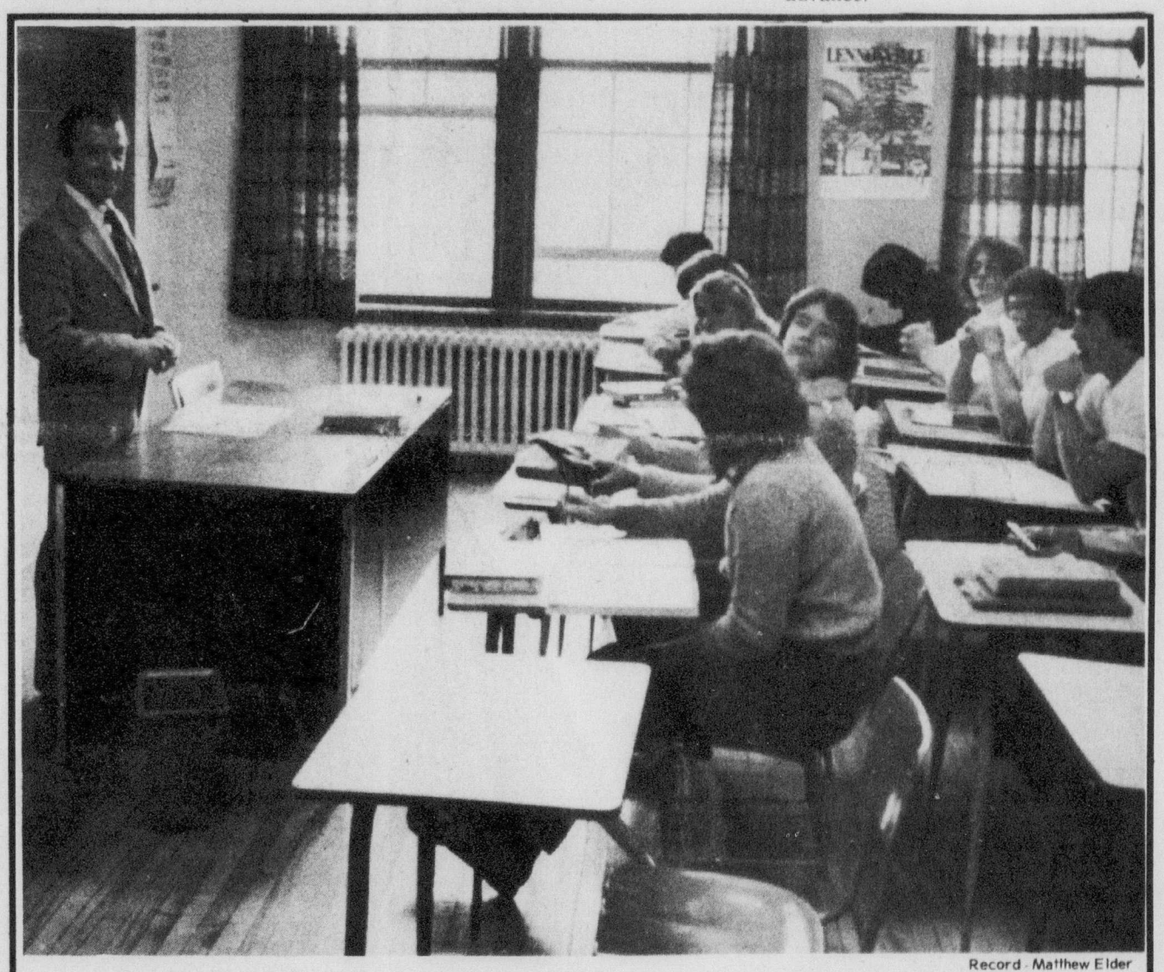

In Ottawa, Energy Minister Marc Lalonde said Wednesday he may hold further talks with Alberta Energy Minister Merv Leitch before a federal energy strategy is unveiled in next month's budget.

He told reporters that Ottawa's plans for increasing its share of higher oil and natural gas revenues would not be completed until the budget is announced and changes could come right up to the last minute.

"I may have further talks with Mr. Leitch," Lalonde said following a cabinet strategy session. "Until (finance minister) MacEachen stands up to read the budget, nothing is finalized."

Further talks with Leitch could result in changes to federal plans, Lalone said.

He did not deny that Ottawa would block any move by Alberta to unilaterally raise oil prices Oct. 1, repeating the government would honor its election campaign pledge to keep increases this year to less than $4 a barrel.

Headmaster Gallant has taught at the school for 15 years and still takes classes.

Stanstead College's Barry Gallant

New head looks ahead

By MATTHEW ELDER

STANSTEAD — Barry Gallant notices little things.

The tuck shop door had been installed, all right. But without a lock. "Isn't that a stupid thing..." Gallant, Stanstead College's new headmaster, remarked on his way through the deserted recreation hall the other day. The school year was barely a week old and a few summer improvements hadn't been polished off. A leaky water pipe brought a similar reaction.

The 108-year-old boarding school — its roots go back 163 years — named Gallant headmaster last summer after Jeremy Riley left to study in Massachusetts. Gallant has been a teacher at the school for 15 years and assistant head for the past eight. Stanstead has always emphasized an education which centres around commitment, effort and consideration for others and Gallant will continue to keep the school on that course.

Gallant wants to be an active headmaster, thoroughly involved in the school. Surprised by Riley's departure and even more so by the job offer, he says he sat back and thought about it for a long time.

"When I finally decided to accept, I knew I'd made the right decision. Now we have to get on with it, push ourselves and realize this school's tremendous potential," Gallant says.

"We stress the idea of commitment, the idea of respect for people and their opinions, and that everybody is expected to do as well as he or she can," Gallant says.

Last year, the College gave in to an inevitable trend — co-education. There were under 20 girls enrolled the first year but that figure has increased to 49 this September. Stanstead has gone through numerous changes under successive headmasters the past decade but co-education is by far the most radical.

"We're now a truly a co-ed school," Gallant says. Because nearly one-third of the 174 students are now female, girls feel more at home. The transition was smooth, Gallant says, and can be considered 100 per cent successful. "The girls were prepared for anything (last year)," he says. "The boys had to make a real adjustment and now the atmosphere is different."

It's all fine and wonderful for Grade 12 student Michele Gregoire. She arrived at Stanstead last Christmas and just loves the place. "Everybody's close — they all care," she says. "If you see a sad face, everybody asks what's wrong." But Michele admits "the rules are hard and I had to get used to it." She says her friends back in Sept Iles envy her and she wouldn't go back there to live. It's a contract with the bigger, outside world and a fine door to the future, she adds.

The girls live in separate residences but all classes, meals, athletics and social athletics are co-educational. Their arrival has sparked an enrolment increase after several lean years of empty residence rooms while co-educational rivals Bishop's College School, prospered.

Competition is fierce among prep schools these days. With many anglophone families leaving Quebec or sending their children to private schools outside the province, new students are hard to come by. But

Welfare job aid unveiled

QUEBEC (CP) — A $23-million program, the last of three designed by the Quebec government to put able-bodied welfare recipients back to work, was unveiled Wednesday by two Parti Quebecois cabinet ministers.

With PRET (Programme de Retour au Travail), total spending by the Quebec government for back-to-work programs this year comes to $63 million.

Under the program the government aims to get people on welfare — particularly those over 30 — back in the job market. The government hopes to create 4,600 new jobs through PRET.

Interested employers will receive subsidies to cover 50 per cent of the wages paid over a 12-month period, up to a maximum of $6,500.

Social Affairs Minister Denis Lazure, accompanied by Labor Minister Pierre Marc Johnson, said about 500,000 of Quebec's 6.3 million people live on welfare, 300,000 of them adults.

He added that 150,000 of them are judged able to work.

The social affairs department, working with Quebec government manpower centres, will offer jobs to welfare recipients, Lazure said, adding that medical certificates will be used to determine whether they are able to handle the prospective task.

Their ability to do the job will be determined "on the basis of the medical certificate, not on their own evaluation."

Penalties announced in August will be applied if the person refuses the job offered. For the first refusal $50 will be deducted from the monthly welfare cheque.

Olympic overrun attracts charges

QUEBEC (CP) — Charges will be laid, possibly by this Friday or possibly early next week, in connection with the massive cost overruns at the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal, Jean-Robert Nadeau, an aide to Quebec Justice Minister Marc-Andre Bedard, said Wednesday.

Nadeau declined to specify what charges would be laid and would not say against whom they would be laid.

He said a special team of prosecutors is almost finished on the wording of the charges and, as soon as the job is done, the Crown will go before a sessions court judge in Montreal.

Jean-Pierre Bonin, chief Crown prosecutor in Montreal, confirmed that charges were under study, but would not elaborate. "To say what charges might be laid and against whom, before it's done, would be indecent," said Bonin.

A provincial government inquiry, led by Mr. Justice Albert Malouf, recommended in its report last June that the justice department study the possibility of laying charges in several of the overruns at the Games, which cost $1.6 billion and left a $1.2 billion deficit.

DOUBT DROPS BUCK

MONTREAL (CP) — Concern over Canada's political climate in the wake of the failure of last week's constitutional conference has pushed the Canadian dollar to its lowest level in four months on New York money markets.

The dollar, which has been steadily losing ground all week, was changing hands at 85.47 cents (U.S.) at the end of trading Wednesday, down 3-25 from the previous day's close of 85.59 cents.

The currency, which was worth 86.05 cents last Friday, hasn't traded below the 85½cent level since mid-May.

Terrorist squad assassinates Somoza

ASUNCION (AP) — Paraguayan authorities searched today for the terrorist squad that assassinated ousted Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza in hail of machine-gun and bazooka fire so devastating his mistress could identify the body only by his wristwatch.

Somoza's financial adviser and chauffeur also died in the Wednesday morning attack in the Paraguayan capital.

Police closed the Asuncion airport and sealed the country's borders with Argentina and Brazil in an effort to keep the attackers from leaving. Paraguayan authorities say they think six people took part in the attack that left Somoza, 54, riddled with two dozen bullets and his limousine demolished.

The say Somoza's bodyguards, who returned fire from a car trailing the limousine, wounded one of the assailants.

The right-wing government of Paraguayan President Alfredo Stroessner, the friend who granted Somoza asylum after he was ousted by Nicaragua's Sanidnista guerrillas in 1979, distributed photographs of a man and a woman believed to have taken part in the ambush.

In Washington, the Carter administration, accused by Somoza of contributing to his downfall by failing to provide support, reacted with caution.

"Naturally we deplore any assassination no matter where it occurs or who is affected," said spokesman John Trattner.

Sailor rescued after 25 cold hours

WINNIPEG (CP) — Gary Thomson, who spent 25 hours in the bone-chilling waters of Lake Winnipeg, says he was left clinging to an overturned catamaran as his friend swam for help when their hopes for an early rescue faded.

"He honestly thought he could make it," said Thomson, who was rescued by RCMP a few hours after his friend Phillip Hoch started out for help. "He thought he could strap on the two jackets and it would be a breeze.

Hoch, 28, has not been seen since.

"I don't know why we thought that," Thomson said Tuesday as he recounted the ordeal that started late Saturday afternoon when their 5.5-metre-long catamaran sprang a leak and capsized.

At first they thought rescue would come before nightfall, he said. Even as darkness settled in and winds began to whip up two-metre breakers, they retained hope.

"We knew if we panicked it would have been the end," said Thomson, who sails only occasionally.

WEARING WET SUITS

The friends were wearing wet suits, which helped protect them from the cold.

"We shivered a bit. It was mostly the wind," Thomson said. "We didn't sleep. We talked about the things we had been through and we sang a lot, actually we had a great time. We told stories, you know — 'Remember that, wasn't that funny'."

However, by morning their mood changed as search planes passed over the tiny wreck pasted against the murky waters of the lake.

"We were scared. We were thinking if we don't do something we'll have to spend another night. We couldn't have done that, we couldn't have survived another night."

Hoch said that since he was the better swimmer, he would strike out for shore. He strapped on two lifejackets and started stroking for the town of Gimli, the destination the men had failed to reach.

WOULD 'TAKE IT EASY'

He promised to "take it nice and easy," and drift, supported by the life jackets, if he tired.

"I kept my eye on him until I couldn't see him. He was heading straight for shore," said Thomson.

Thomson said that after his friend left, the most difficult part was the waiting.

"About 10 minutes before the plane spotted me, I was about to swim."

An RCMP spokesman said the men weren't reported missing until 11 p.m. Saturday night.

Although four aircraft scoured the lake Sunday morning, shifting winds on the treacherous lake made finding the wrecked ship a tricky proposition, the spokesman said.

The lake, which has an average depth of only 10 metres, is one of the most dangerous in Canada, he added.

News in brief

U.S. commission to probe charges

In a new move aimed at freeing the 52 American hostages, the U.S. government has proposed a commission to examine Iranian grievances about past U.S. actions in Iran.

Meanwhile, Iran's border war with Iraq intensified Wednesday and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein announced he was abrogating a 1975 border accord with Iran because of "continuing violation of the agreement by the Iranian rulers."

Half Canada's farmers part-time

CALGARY (CP) — More than half of Canada's farmers have become part-timers in recent years, says Murray Hawkins, professor of rural economy at University of Alberta.

Hawkins says 52 per cent of total farm income in Canada is generated by off-farm activities, including wives' incomes.

Gang of Four on trial

PEKING (AP) — China's infamous Gang of Four will go on trial Friday at a closed session of the Supreme Court, Western diplomatic sources reported Wednesday.

The four, who are accused of trying to overthrow the state, include Jiang Qing, widow of late Party Chairman Mao Tsetung. The others are former Politburo members Zhang Chungqiao, Yao Aenyuan and Wang Hongwen.

Two sought in Somoza assassination

ASUNCION (AP) — Paraguayan authorities searched today for the terrorist squad that assassinated ousted Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza in hail of machine-gun and bazooka fire so devastating his mistress could identify the body only by his wristwatch.

Somoza's financial adviser and chauffeur also died.

Begin challenges pension-plan lack

TORONTO (CP) — Because less than half of workers belong to a company-sponsored pension plan, many people have a life of poverty to look forward to in their old age and it's time the private sector showed it can do something about it, Welfare Minister Monique Begin said Wednesday.

"This is probably the single most important factor accounting for the unacceptable extent of poverty among our elderly today," she said in a text prepared for members of the Association of Canadian Pension Management.

UN warns of African famine

ROME (AP) — United Nations officials say more than 150 million Africans face famine worse than that suffered in the 1973-74 drought unless wealthy countries send massive emergency shipments of cereal by the end of the year.

In an attempt to ease the starvation gripping 25 African countries, the UN Food and Agriculture Organization will convene a special meeting Friday to launch an urgent drive aimed at securing enough wheat, rice and maize to feed them.

Soviets have arms superiority

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union and its allies have seized a commanding lead over NATO in both nuclear and conventional weapons, the International Institute for Strategic Studies said Wednesday.

The institute, which has been consulted by leading governmental figures throughout the West, said it will take years to whittle away the lead of the Warsaw pact countries.

Belmoral mine had no lease

VAL D'OR, Que. (CP) — The Belmoral gold mine where eight miners died last spring was operating without a lease from the Quebec government, the mine's consulting engineer testified Wednesday.

Georges Dumont, 69, told a provincial government inquiry that the lease, required for any Quebec mine extracting more than 300 tonnes of mineral, was not granted because of a conflict with the environment department.

N.B. conflict law raises storm

FREDERICTON (CP) — A judge's objectivity and the provincial government's integrity have been drawn into a political crossfire over a law once given bipartisan praise as a political reform.

And, Justice Minister Rodman Logan said Wednesday he may lodge a formal complaint against Mr. Justice J.Paul Barry of the New Brunswick Court of Queen's Bench.

Lamontagne: Forces remain unified

OTTAWA (CP) — The armed forces will remain unified and all three services will continue to wear the same green uniform but there will be some changes, including a bigger voice for the top service commanders, says Defence Minister Gilles Lamontagne.

Lamontagne said Wednesday "too many benefits — real benefits — have resulted from unification for us to tamper with this basic concept."

Tories mum on constitution

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative MPs wrapped up two days of planning Wednesday for the next session of Parliament but refused to divulge their strategy.

Party leaders said the caucus worked out general positions on the three topics expected to dominate the fall sitting of the House — patriation of the constitution, a new budget and energy policy.

Feds powerless in Trustco takeover

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal authorities have little power to review the proposed takeover of the country's largest trust company, despite an inquiry announced Wednesday to study possible irregularities in share trading during the recent offer.

Federal officials hope to complete their inquiry — carried on in conjunction with the Ontario Securities Commission — by Friday when Campeau Corp.'s $413-million offer expires for Royal Trustco Ltd., a holding company. The two companies are based in Ottawa.

The focus of the federal inquiry is on a large number of shares traded after Campeau, a major real estate developer, announced its offer in late August.

Demeter attends poolside party

OTTAWA (CP) — Peter Demeter, a Toronto developer whose sensational trial for arranging the murder of his wife drew world attention five years ago, was allowed to leave Warkworth penitentiary near Peterborough, Ont., last Friday with a woman prison clerk to attend a poolside cocktail party.

Demeter and a second prisoner at the party, given by a prison employee in Cobourg, Ont., spent Friday night in Warkworth's solitary confinement cells because they had consumed liquor in violation of the conditions of their temporaryabsence pass.

Violence claims 16,000 in '79

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Medical Association says violence has become the leading cause of death among Canadians under age 45 and last year 16,000 Canadians died violently in traffic, recreational and industrial accidents, murders and suicides.

Dr. Bill Ghent, professor of surgery at Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., said Wednesday that another 500,000 people were injured as a result of that violence.

Kaplan predicts prison violence

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The federal prison system will become more effective — but more violent — as non-dangerous offenders are given alternate sentences to prison, says federal Solicitor-General Robert Kaplan.

Fines, community work and restitution to victims will give non-violent offenders a better chance at rehabilitation, but the change will also fill Canadian prisons with violent, hard-core criminals, Kaplan told members of the London Canadian Club on Wednesday.

Carter rips into Reagan

President Carter used the signing of new accords with China to deliver a thinly-veiled jab at Ronald Reagan on Wednesday.

Carter clearly had in mind the Republican presidential nominee's recent problems with China when he told Chinese Vice-Premier Bo Yibo he is "committed to the proposition that our relationship will not be undermined but strengthened."

Bus owner launches suit

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — The owner of a bus which plunged into a lake near Eastman, Que., in 1978, killing 40 people, has launched a $25,000 libel suit against a satirical magazine and a cartoonist for publication of a caricature of the accident.

In the suit filed Tuesday, Gilles Bolduc, who was acquitted earlier this year on a charge of criminal negligence, said the cartoon published last month in the magazine Croc was injurious not only to himself but also to survivors of the accident and to relatives of those who died.

The 40, most of them physically or mentally handicapped, drowned after a bus returning them to their homes in nearby Asbestos from a theatre outing at Eastman lost its brakes, sped down a hill and drove into Lac d'Argent.

Seven people, including the driver and several non-handicapped escorts of the group, survived.

In his suit, Bolduc alleges the cartoon insinuates he was negligent and irresponsible in regard to the accident. He is seeking $25,000, plus interest, as compensation for damage to his reputation.

The cartoon was drawn by well-known Quebec cartoonist Roland Berthiaume, who uses the pen name Berthio.

'We're now a truly co-ed school'

Stanstead's reputation is widespread and enquiries have been received from every continent except Australia. Attracting students from the United States has been difficult, Gallant says, because neighboring New England is inundated with boarding schools. "We're trying to fish in a crowded pond," he allows. But it's an area Gallant wants to cultivate and the school will actively recruit south of the border.

Stanstead College refused the provincial government grants several years ago and has since relied on endowments. The Alumni Association raised nearly $2 million in a campaign-opening blitz and now "brings in a steady trickle," Gallant says.

"The grants are no longer an issue," he confirms. "Bill 101 ended them but we have no gripe whatsoever with the departments of education or immigration. In fact, they've been very co-operative." Students write the provincial examinations and the curriculum's base parallels that of the public schools. French classes are compulsory for all students.

Refusing the grants have "tremendously reduced the paperwork," Gallant quips.

The College now employs a full-time guidance counsellor, who handles everything from university applications to sex education. Off-campus trips are an important activity. Overnight camping, hikes, theatre trips and even an Expos-Pirates baseball game are among the many outings.

"It's important we spend time getting out," Gallant says. "There's not a great deal here in town, so we go farther to Lennoxville, Sherbrooke and Montreal."

The College has a proud history, both academically and athletically. Confronted by inhospitable legislation and rapidly rising costs, the school is very much a survivor. "We want to re-emphasize the values Stanstead College has always stood for," Gallant says, as he grows used to his new office.

Men still get more — report

OTTAWA (CP) — A Statistics Canada comparison of male and female college and university graduates says the men are winding up with higher-paying jobs, are more likely to get a job and are choosing from a wider field.

The report, released today, says the men are typically earning between $1,000 and $2,00 more annually than the women. It bluntly states: "A college diploma or university degree is no guarantee that a woman will achieve equality in the labor force."

The report contains no charges of sexual discrimination even though it cites fields in which men are getting more money than women for virtually the same job, qualifications and experience.

Instead, the report emphasizes most women are clinging to traditionally female fields at school, such as nursing and teaching, and are choosing inferior work even when they get a traditionally male education. The male business graduate heads for a managerial job, while the female becomes a clerk.

BASED ON STUDY

The report, prepared by the women's bureau of the labor department, is based on a study by Statistics Canada on what happened to 29,609 students across the country since their graduation in 1976.

The report says society is still steering girls toward a kind of safe, sheltered work world in which "women need not compete in the male syndrome of profit, independence, power and leadership."

Further, women discover that the inferior jobs are the only ones that can be conveniently combined with responsiblities as wives and mothers.

While the young man is establishing his career, the young woman is taking a year or two out of the labor force to have a baby. When she returns, the man has the promotion and she's lost track of the changes in her field.

Authors Mary Sue Devereaux and Edith Rechnitzer suggest it's only recently that women have realized their second-class status in the work force. They say more women than in previous studies are dissatisfied with their lower salaries and are regretting their choice of education.

PLAN EARLY

They urge women to plan their careers early, concluding: "Graduation is the wrong time to discover that one's education affords preparation for little more than a clerical occupation."

Senior Citizens meet

BURY (DA) — The Jolly Seniors of Bury held their first meeting of the fall on Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 9 at 2 p.m. in the Lounge at the Town Hall.

The President, Mr. Wm. Batley, opened the meeting with a few words of greeting to all present and hoped everyone would enjoy the afternoons together and social events at the close of the meetings. There were 24 present.

Due to the absence of the Secretary, Mrs. Alma Phelmann, no minutes were read.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Lena Dougherty, showing a satisfactory amount on hand for the present, although a considerable sum was spent during the summer on our trip to Floralies.

A motion was made to have Mrs. Real Loiselle serve our lunches for the amount decided on.

Cards were enjoyed following the business meeting and a delicous lunch served by Mrs. Loiselle after the games.

Tour on Sept. 27

ROCK ISLAND (IH) — The annual autumn tour for the Stanstead Historical Society is planned for Saturday, September 27.

The bus will leave Sunnyside school in Rock Island at 9:00 a.m., travel a scenic route to Coaticook and there visit the former Norton residence, now Beaulne Museum and the Coaticook Gorge, then continue to Stanbridge East to visit museum buildings and historic Anglican Church.

There are still a few seats available and tickets may be purchased from President M.W. MacDonald, Viola Moranville or Donald Prangley.

Activities at the Library

AYER'S CLIFF — Free performance of Flutists "The Escaudours" will be held at the Municipal Library in the Elementary School on School Street, Friday, Sept. 19 at 7:30 p.m. Refreshments served.

\+ + +

The final drawing of the reproductions of paintings by Quebec artists was held at the Library on Sept. 13. Winners were Hazel Buzzell, Francine Brulotte, Joel Richardson, Pierre Gingras, Cyr Fraucois, Angela Maye, Mrs. Carl Mayhew and Nathalie Peloquin.

Birth

NUTBROWN — Leslie and Linda Susan (nee MacDonald) are pleased to announce the birth of their son Aaron Thomas at the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, Sherbrooke, on September 13, 1980. An 8 lb. brother for Angela and Jason. Proud grandparents are Mr. & Mrs. Jack MacDonald, Sherbrooke and Mr. & Mrs. Stuart Nutbrown, North Hatley, seventh great-grandchild for Mrs. Mary Ella Hartwell, North Hatley.

Red Cross group meet

SAWYERVILLE — The Red Cross Group met on Sept. 10, for the first meeting this fall, when 17 enjoyed a delicious home-baked ham dinner with all the trimmings.

After dinner, the President Elsie Harbinson presented Mrs. Edith Bellam and Mrs. Eleanor Blair with gifts of a Royal Albert plate, cup and saucer for their birthday month, as a token of appreciation for all their help. These ladies have made a large amount of quilt tops for us and we appreciate this very much. Both ladies expressed their thanks and said they enjoy doing it.

Two quilts were sold, several tops turned in, also material and some finished work brought in. One quilt was tied during the afternoon.

Several small bills were paid, and plans were made to have a table at the Flea Market in the Legion Hall on Sat. Sept. 27, when there will be quilts, home-cooking, vegetables and other items for sale.

The next meeting will be held on October 1st.

Cousineau pushes small business

By JUDITH KELLOCK-HEWARD

SHERBROOKE — An industrial park or an airport alone will not solve the region's problems, says Alain Cousineau, Liberal candidate for Sherbrooke riding and dean of the administration faculty at University of Sherbrooke.

Falling average wage, falling productivity, and exodus of business and industry to Montreal and the U.S. have caused the area to lag behind. Cousineau aims to supply a quick and thorough cure through a carefully concerted effort on the part of local people to establish medium and small business.

A theoretical model, soon to be a real entity, called La Maison de l'Industrie has been designed by Cousineau. After unsuccessful efforts to obtain government financing, private and individual efforts have taken over. Operating at the advisory level for two years, the maison has given six industries a start in the space of six months.

Cousineau finds PQ policies toward markets and small and medium business restrictive. He believes the Sherbrooke region can generate large numbers of local projects which will in turn attract other enterprise. He sees a market beyond the southern border and, on the personal level, he feels too limited by what he calls the frontier mentality prevailing in Quebec government thinking.

"I don't need the protection of a barrier," he says proudly. "I need a big challenge, which means a Canadian challenge."

ALAIN COUSINEAU ...PQ market policies restrictive

According to Cousineau's plan, economic regeneration will ensure social and cultural renewal. The machinery he intends to use is the Maison de l'Industrie which will group all regional business interests under one roof. The maison will act as a clearing house for businessmen, supplying information on products and producers. It will identify and select projects for financial backing, and provide interface with government at all levels. Contacts for those wanting to invest will be arranged here, and expert technical aid will be furnished.

For some years now, students from the administration faculty have been supplying marketing strategy and financial planning advice for regional businesses. Under the maison roof they will continue to do this work. Cousineau is firm in stipulating that clients will define actions of the maison. He is equally convinced the organization will be a "comptoir unique": the only door on which businessmen need knock.

"Simplify the programs," says Cousineau. "Simplify the cumbersome procedures needed to qualify for such and such government help; reduce the number of complicated forms and too-busy officials.

"We must make a concerted effort to achieve the dynamism the region has lost. Now that we are in the midst of an economic revolution, we must coordinate the action."

Once a climate of confidence is established, claims Cousineau, business from outside will filter in naturally. A little help from fiscal breaks and incentives, and modifications to Bill 101 should attract executives from outside Quebec to come to the region, and to keep company head offices within the province.

With the theme of economic regeneration strong, Cousineau will continue to say with optimism: "You can do anything with the right attitude."

And with regional unemployment running at 10 per cent, an expectancy of an active population of 128,000 by 1985, local initiatives face the challenge of a job creation program for some 25,000 jobs.

Gleanings

By GEORGE MacLAREN

Emperor Pierre and 10 potentates

Last week I was invited to a promotional event which was both informative and interesting. The occurrence is rare enough to invite comment.

Air Canada is organizing visits to Quebec by distinguished foreign guests. The purpose is to permit them to meet with small groups of businessmen, academics and journalists.

All this appears to be the brainchild of Jean Pierre Ranger, a public relations officer for our national airline. Mr. Ranger was responsible for convincing thousands of Quebecers that the best way for a family to spend an afternoon was to drive to the veldt of Hemmingford, P.Q., and gawk at transplanted lions and tigers from the safety of an automobile. Mr. Ranger is also the man who hopes to bring Quebec its first international balloon competition, to be called Air Canada's "ballon d'or" (remember, you read it here first) and televised live by Radio-Canada.

I am one of those who feel that Mr. Ranger is better occupied introducing us to foreign statesmen and foreign balloonists than foreign carnivores. While I cannot see how meetings with a few foreigners, however distinguished, serve to promote Air Canada's immediate commercial interests, I was delighted at the opportunity.

Last week's guest was Mr. Hilmar Baunsgaard, former prime minister of Denmark and now chairman of the board of Scandinavia's largest daily newspaper, "Politiken". Mr. Baunsgaard was the prime minister who brought Denmark into the Common Market.

I gleaned a few remarks from him that I thought might be of interest to readers:

Finland's quasi-neutrality or special neutrality is tempered by the fact that it must co-exist with its large neighbor, the U.S.S.R. — Some of Finland's actions can only be explained by its fear of offending Russia.

Sweden remains neutral because it feels that only in this way will Finland be permitted to develop independently and keep its special neutral status vis a vis the U.S.S.R.

—That the members of the Nordic Council -- Denmark, Finland, Ireland, Norway and Sweden -- fear any change in the status quo in either world economic or world security arrangements. They are worried that any moves to protectionism in trade on one hand or military adventures on the other, would put their way of life at risk.

Mr. Baunsgaard feels the west's first concern should be to solve its economic problems; otherwise the Western way of life is doomed.

Mr. Baunsgaard, who described himself as a social liberal, said that in his opinion that way of life was based on three freedoms:

—Freedom of speech;
—Freedom of free enterprise;
—The social welfare system.

In reply to a question, the former prime minister stated that significant if not alarming numbers of highly-trained Danish professionals and businessmen were emigrating because of the high level of taxation in that country. He said that most of them returned after a few years because they were too Danish to live happily elsewhere. He went on to make the interesting comment that although he resented the fact that the Danish state had paid for their education and training, he, as a social liberal, would continue to defend their right to leave. I must conclude that the question of prohibiting their departure had become a matter of debate in at least some circles.

Finally Mr. Baunsgaard informed us that there was only one radio and television network in Denmark which was state-owned. He is of the opinion that although a clear majority of the inhabitants of the country wished to obtain at least one other network, the government had no intention of giving them one. Another case of father knows best, I presume.

Last week in Ottawa, Emperor Pierre and the 10 little potentates held a conference in an attempt to change Canada's constitution. In this context Sandra Gwyn wrote an entertaining piece in the September Saturday Night on the actual drafting of the B.N.A. Act. She quoted from Frank Scott's preface to his Essays on the Constitution. I think the quote is worth repeating:

"Changing a constitution confronts a society with the most important choices, for in the constitution will be found the philosophical principles and rules which largely determine the relations of the individual and of cultural groups to one another and to the state. If human rights and harmonious relations between cultures are forms of the beautiful, then the state is a work of art that is never finished."

I am not of the opinion that the political leadership in this country is capable of producing such a constitution. Perhaps it is time that the people of Canada demand direct input in the process.

In a lighter vein Gwyn's article pointed out that the B.N.A. Act was unlikely to be patriated.

"One hundred and thirteen years later, the BNA Act remains in the Lords, in the records room in Westminster's Victoria Tower, jealously guarded by one F.S. Cobb, the deputy clerk of House of Lords records. Never mind all that hyperbole about bringing the Act back in a diplomatic briefcase and setting it up in a plexiglass tepee on Parliament Hill. Cobb, if he has his way, won't let it out of Westminster. "If we start distributing our acts to everyone who gets independence, we will have our acts all over the world," he told a Canadian reporter recently. "It is contrary to all archival principles."

Erosion and sediment pose a new threat to Lake Memphremagog.

Lake erosion worries MCI

GEORGEVILLE — Memphremagog-Conservation officials see a new and worrying threat to the lake — erosion and sediments carried by the 15 principal streams supplying the lake.

The streams have suffered massive intervention during the past three or four years from back fill, dredging, damming and clear cutting of the stream banks, MCI claims.

In addition to the erosion, environmentalists working on the lake report large amounts of agricultural drainage in the stream flow. Such drainage means an extra burden of nutrition to the lake waters.

All forms of interference raise water temperature, endangering fish species. Nutrients such as phosphates, eroding soil and sediments nourish algae growth and the growth of other aquatic plants.

MCI believes the rate of eutrophication — the gradual aging and dying of the lake — will be hopelessly accelerated and the work of 14 years wiped out.

Proper sewage installations in Plage Southiere, Georgeville and Fitch Bay are already completed with Vale Perkins and Cherry River soon to follow at a total cost of $30 million.

Progress on the U.S. end follows a steady course in river cleanups and sewage treatment for Newport. Conservationists fear these efforts may be in vain if immediate action is not taken to help the streams.

MCI is holding a public meeting about the streams on Saturday, September 20 at the Catholic School in Fitch Bay at 4 p.m. and at Murray Memorial Hall in Georgeville at 8 p.m.

All those interested in the health of Lake Memphremagog are welcome.

ET plowing matches kick off this weekend

By CLAUDIA BOWERS

The season of plowing competitions kicks off this weekend with the first plowing match in the Townships circuit on the Walter Hodgman farm, Hodgman Road, Saturday, September 20. The program for Compton County is much the same as last year and the match grounds are easily accessible by way of the Cookshire highway.

Richmond County Plowing Match, organized by the St. Francis Valley Plowmen's Association is scheduled for September 27 and will take place on the John Boersen farm situated in Melbourne. The route will be well marked and the grounds may be reached either by the Waterloo highway or the Melbourne Golf Course road.

Thanksgiving weekend promises to be a busy one as two matches are scheduled. Stanstead County Match which features a special class for members of the press will be held on the Wilhelm Brand farm, located on the Stanstead highway, approximately 10 to 12 miles from Lennoxville.

Sherbrooke County Plowmen's Association have a special team class planned for their competition which takes place Monday, October 13 at Ives Hill. Teams of three competitors are invited from other counties and municipalities and may represent such groups as Quebec Farmers' Association and 4H'ers.

Hostage crisis becomes campaign issue

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Iranian hostage crisis that both Republicans and Democrats agreed previously should not become a partisan political issue has suddenly become a hot topic in U.S. presidential campaigning.

President Carter, on the campaign trail in Texas, said Monday that recent statements from Iran "may very well lead to a resolution" of the 10-month-old crisis.

Republican Ronald Reagan, urging acceptance of Iran's latest terms for releasing the hostages last weekend, also obsrved "the continuing suffering of our hostages in Iran for a nearly a year bears stark testimony to the decline of American prestige."

The U.S. political interest was fanned by Ayatollah Ruholla Khomeini's statement of terms last Friday during which he avoided calling for a U.S. apology for its "crimes" in Iran, and also left out mention of spy trials for the hostages. These were the conditions that always stuck in Americans' throats in the past, and Carter and Reagan were quick off the mark to seek political gains from the apparently softened Iranian position.

MAKES PROMISE

Reagan struck first, calling a Saturday evening news conference to urge that the U.S. government accept three of the four Iranian conditions outright, and leave it to the courts to decide whether or not the late shah of Iran's wealth could be returned as Iran demanded.

"If elected," Reagan added, "I will observe the terms of an agreement."

Behind Reagan's fast move was concern that the glimmer of hope over Iran might offer Carter the "October surprise" that Republicans have been worrying about for weeks — some Carter administration initiative to rally Americans behind their president just in time for the Nov. 4 election.

Carter came back Monday, outlining for a Houston, Tex., rally his optimism about the Iranian situation but offering no elaboration. The president said: "The last thing any candidate should do, including an incumbent president, is to get into a negotiation with Iranian authorities through public statements or the news media."

The American hostages in Iran have been a theme underlying the entire 1980 U.S. election season but this is the first time the leading presidential candidates have seized upon it as a key issue.

The Republicans, now apparently fearful the Carter administration plans some dramatic ploy over Iran, have switched to a harder line. Reagan warned last weekend that he is ready to support the U.S. government in meeting Iran's economic demands but the Iranian government won't get a better deal if he becomes president.

"Nobody is saying, 'aha, our October surprise is three weeks early," Newsweek magazine quoted a Carter political aide as saying.

Rights wrongs

Sooner or later, God had to do justice, said the widow of the prominent Nicaraguan journalist whose death sparked the final uprising which toppled dictator Anastasio Somoza. Yesterday, justice came in the form of a guerrilla assassination cadre which gunned down the easy-living retired strongman in Paraguay, where he had been given asylum.

Somoza richly deserved to die. He was a monster with the blood of thousands on his hands, a dictator so greedy and ruthless that even the U.S. government preferred to see him out of the way. The U.S. state department comments deploring his assassination are, in that context, inane, but then so has been U.S. treatment of Somoza right from the beginning. His death highlights the American government's real dilemma concerning South and Central America. On one hand, the U.S. espouses human-rights issues and risks the future of detente to embarrass the Soviet Union with its rights violations. But at the same time, the U.S. State Department has taken an active role in supporting tyrants like Somoza and the man who gave him shelter, Alfredo Stroessner. The U.S. paranoia about Latin-American Communism, realized in Cuba, apparently has blinded them to their own duplicity, which continues.

Confronted time and again with this dilemma, the Carter administration bows to the pressures of the Red-haters and the international business community, preserving men like Somoza in power long after their time has come.

That's how men like Somoza survive for so long. It's in the interests of the superpowers to allow them to continue to do so. Only when the dollars-and-cents equation tips the scales the other way is the situation allowed to destabilize, to use the State Department's own coinage.

So much for human rights and the beleaguered Helsinki accord, up for review this week. The rights issue has become as much a weapon of the cold war as nuclear missiles.

Dixville Foundation says thanks

Editor:

Your August 25th issue carried an interesting account of the bazaar sponsored by Mrs. Dorothy Foster and helpers for the benefit of the Dixville Home.

While attending the annual information meeting, held at the Dixville Home, last Saturday I was presented with a cheque for $1,073, representing the net proceeds from the abovementioned event.

Through the medium of your paper I would like to express the appreciation of the Dixville Home Foundation to Mrs. Foster, her helpers and to all those who contributed to the success of the bazaar. The proceeds will be devoted to providing benefits for the Dixville residents that are not covered by the operating funds from the Quebec government.

I note that the organizers of the bazaar hope to provide further assistance for the home next year and mention was made of the possible construction of a year-round swimming pool. Such a pool would, of course, require heating facilities and maintenance personnel but to date agreement to such an arrangement has not been obtainable from the provincial authorities. However, we have many other useful projects for the residents such as the Provincial and World Olympics for the Handicapped at which some of our people have excelled as well as camping and various trips or outings; consequently there is a continuing need for supplementary funds.

We feel that the Dixville Home provides a unique programme for care and the development of its residents and the continued interest and support from the public at large is greatly appreciated.

Reading like returning to school

Editor:

I feel that a lot of your readers of The Record are old folks like myself, some older than 80, some younger, but all must have something to do in order to not go raving mad. I joined a library. After reading one book I return it and then borrow another. Am at the same time improving my education, a Webster's dictionary is necessary.

Have just now completed reading War and Peace by Tolstoy. I'd say this novel is one of the best ever written. It's about Russia during 1812 when Napoleon invaded this great nation and like Hitler, received a crushing defeat.

This novel cannot be read in one sitting or two or three or eight, so a bookmarker is a must. Read it, dear friends, from page one to 1372 and you will be amazed!

Some readers have read it three times, it is so very interesting and, so far removed intellectually from TV watching. Besides, and best of all it is a true account of what can happen to a nation that has no middle class people just the very rich and the very poor.

I am writing this letter to get old folks to join libraries and read good books.

A good writer like newspaper people must have excellent thinking power. So by reading good books you can't help improve your own vocabulary.

Most places today own a library; if they don't own one there is one available not far from where you live. Best of luck and good reading. Reading is like returning to school. Grey matter knows no age limit.

Ottawa anarchist conference is dismal failure

Commentary
BY MERRITT CLIFTON

OTTAWA — The plainclothes policeman assigned to watch last weekend's anarchist conference, misleadingly billed Canada's biggest in 50 years, couldn't find anything worth keeping an eye on.

So he spent Saturday morning talking baseball with his uniformed radio contact, stationed a block away. Neither even tried to stay inconspicuous. By mid-afternoon they sought permission to leave, following many frustrated would-be participants.

Dominated by two pacifist communes from Toronto and a large neo-Marxist commune from Syracuse, none of them generally recognized among the anarchist movement, the conference didn't establish an agenda until over half the allotted 48 hours had been expended. All others had by that time withdrawn, either in protest or sheer disgust. "I'm the only practicing anarchist here," snorted one Ottawa Valley alternative energy expert. "Anarchy isn't chaos, but you couldn't prove it by that bunch."

Attendance was disappointingly low to begin with, and the withdrawals left only about a dozen formally registered participants. Of the three states and three provinces originally represented, only one state and one province remained to the end.

Recognized anarcho-libertarian leaders and thinkers, though expected, were conspicuously missing. The one anarchist publisher who attended withdrew in protest midway through the second day, after the communard block pushed to replace open debate with round-robin 'egalitarian' consensusing. "This is not consonant with ideals of freedom," he said, "and will prevent the very competition of thought we most need."

Most anarchist artists and writers attending had already withdrawn during the first evening, to participate instead in the Ottawa Harvest Festival taking place two blocks away.

Conference organizer Gary Moffatt, editor of the Ottawa underground newspaper Spectrum, admitted he had considered calling the whole thing off. "We decided not to," he stated, "because we felt that even with a small group we could still get a few things done." But Moffatt's proposed anarchist manifesto was rejected in the only show of hands taken.

"The moral is," a cooperative housing organizer summed up after dropping out, "that any time people try to act as a group instead of individually, they're going to be just as bad as Parliament or the provincial premiers. Pass the beer."

American public trust traded for Abscam payoffs

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- The sleaziest side of the Abscam mess is the spectacle of public officials betraying their trust for money.

The man who unwittingly acted as "talent scout" for the FBI in its search for corrupt members of Congress was a Philadelphia lawyer named Howard Criden. Of the five congressmen he recruited, four have been indicted. One of them, Rep. Michael Myers, D-Pa., has already been convicted, along with Criden.

The corrupt congressmen thought they were taking money from the bagmen for a favor-seeking Arab sheik. The helpful Criden picked up the cash-stuffed briefcases for congressmen too squeamish to handle the bribes themselves.

He usually hung on to the briefcases long enough to cheat his partners in crime, skimming off huge chunks of the bribe money for himself and then lying to his crooked colleagues about the sizes of the payoffs.

The obsequious, foul-mouthed Criden was photographed by hidden FBI cameras at various meetings with the politicians whom he had lured into the Abscam net. Some of the incriminating videotapes were played at the trial of Myers and Criden last month. Others, still under court seal until the trial of Reps. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., and John Murphy, D-N.Y., have been reviewed by my associate Gary Cohn. They show Criden at his worst.

On Jan. 10, 1980, Criden brought Murphy to the FBI undercover agents' Georgetown house. The conversation turned to world affairs, and Criden offered the observation that "the Japanese are great." Then, in a revealing monologue, Criden explained why he thought so highly of the Japanese.

"I was stationed there as an intelligence man," he said. "I saw them guys operate. Boy, are they fantastic. They can beat the (expletive deleted) out of you and you won't show a sign.

"I had a guy once I wanted to -- I was trying to get some information out of, and a Japanese intelligence officer came in and he said, 'You having a problem?'

"I said, 'Jeez, I can't, a Japanese kid ...' He said, 'Give him to me for 15 minutes.' I said ... 'I can't have any marks on him. I can't.'

" 'Well, don't worry, don't worry about it. What do you want to know?' I told him. (He) took him. Ten minutes later he brought him back. He told me everything I wanted to know. They hit him with a bamboo stick on his shins, OK? They stretched him out on a table, took a bamboo stick and hit him on the shins, right in the kneecaps, OK?

"Showed absolutely no scars. Hit him twice and that was the end of that. The guy told him anything and everything he wanted to know. There wasn't a scar on him."

The FBI didn't need bamboo sticks to get Criden to talk. They played on his greed and his ego instead. On Feb. 2, 1980, Criden met with the Abscam operatives in the Hilton Inn at Kennedy Airport.

The G-men knew the story was going to break in a matter of hours, and wanted to get damaging statements from Criden on videotape. FBI agent Anthony Amoroso, who used a pseudonym during the investigation, explained that the "sheik" wanted to meet Criden, and suggested they go over what Criden would say. Criden obligingly listed all the politicians he had recruited for the fictitious Arab. Then, as he waited for the sheik to show up, Criden asked: "How do you address him?"

"Sheik," said Amoroso. Then he paused, pulled out his badge and showed it to the astonished Criden. "Howie, my name is Tony Amoroso. I'm an FBI agent."

MUSHROOMING SUPPORT: If the voters of Maine decide to shut down the Maine Yankee nuclear plant in the state referendum next Tuesday, it could have a domino effect on nuclear power in other states. Or so the nuclear industry seems to fear.

Nearly 40 out-of-state utility companies have contributed to the Save Maine Yankee Committee's $750,000 campaign fund. They include Con Ed of New York ($5,000), Philadelphia Electric Co. ($5,000), Baltimore Gas & Electric Co. ($9,000) and Northern States Power Co. of Minneapolis (a whopping $15,000).

Also rushing to the rescue are banks and investment firms, most of which were instrumental in floating bond issues for Maine Yankee and other New England nuclear plants. And Westinghouse, the biggest producer of reactors, kicked in $50,000, while General Electric, No. 2 in the field, contributed $30,000.

Finally, L.L. Bean, the nature lovers' mail-order clothier, donated $5,000. The company also threatened to withhold funding from a Maine environmental coalition if it supported the anti-nuclear referendum.

MUM'S THE WORD: The Senate judiciary subcommittee looking into Billy Carter's tangled deals with the Libyans has established super-strict rules to guard against leaks to the press. Any media call to a subcommittee staffer is referred to one of the special press secretaries, who will then -- presumably -- get the answers for the inquiring reporter.

But subcommittee paranoia has reached such a pitch that one press secretary confessed that he himself was having trouble getting anything out of the staff. "They don't even trust me with the information," he moaned.

Floralies side-effects short

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite the Floralies' 1.7 million visitors and vast publicity, North America's first international flower show hasn't had the desired effect on Quebec's fledgling horticulture industry, says a government specialist.

Before opening last June, Agriculture Minister Jean Garon predicted the massive indoor and outdoor shows would be a springboard for local growers, who produce only 15 per cent of the $500 million worth of greenery Quebecers buy each year.

Record - Perry Beaton

The City of Sherbrooke' display at the Floralies was well received by visitors to Montreal.

But agriculture department official Claude Langevin said in an interview that nothing has happened to help local nurseries.

"The Floralies may help a little in the long term by creating some consumer demand but there's nothing that will help our producers in the next three to four years," said Langevin, who works exclusively in ornamental horticulture for the Quebec agriculture department.

"We missed the boat."

He said most Quebec producers were not involved in planning or creating the Floralies, and few attended a special series of symposiums by world-renowned specialists intended for them.

SALES HEALTHY

Ornamental horticulture is everything you buy at the garden centre, such as fruit trees, plants, shrubs, flowers and sod as well as Christmas trees. Sales are growing 20 per cent a year, a healthy sign for any industry.

But what worries Langevin is that 85 per cent of the volume is imported from Ontario, British Columbia, the United States and Europe, in that order.

Most of the plants could be grown here but 80 per cent of Quebec's 200 nurseries are small family operations which cannot expand to meet the rising demand.

The answer, believes Langevin, is expansion and specialization.

So far bankers — even from the province's farm credit program — refuse loans to the industry which has no economic data.

Langevin, one of three horticulture specialists in the department, has begun making economic reports to fill that gap.

The independent-minded growers have an association, but it only has one employee — hardly enough to bring pressure on the government to recognize the industry's potential and help out as it does in other agricultural sectors.

MOST LOCALLY-GROWN

The biggest sellers are house plants and cut flowers, worth $100 million a year but Quebec production constitutes only 10 per cent of this total. Gardeners buy $85 million in outside plants each year, of which $7 million is locally-grown.

These are followed by annual flowers, sod, and Christmas trees, mainly from Quebec.

The next step is educating eager green thumbs, both backyard and municipal, how to landscape.

Langevin says a jury named by the Floralies to find the best landscaped city in Quebec "was appalled at how ugly our cities outside of Montreal are getting."

Most of the 1.7 million visitors at the show during July and August — four million were expected — were "older people or schoolkids; these aren't consumers."

The Floralies didn't succeed in encouraging more flower and plant production in Quebec, organizers say.

Handicapped travel made accessible

MONTREAL (CP) — Armed with tape measures and notebooks, two Montreal travel agents have mapped out a charter vacation in the sun for handicapped travellers.

After months of planning, Jeannie Albert and Marilyn Braunstein will be ready Nov. 1 to accompany 15 tourists in wheelchairs or on crutches and their travelling companions to the beaches of Florida as well as Disney World and Sea World.

Organizing the one-week trip has not been easy because information on hotels that could accommodate such a group was hard to come by.

No Canadian agency has organized a charter tour for handicapped travellers before, the agents say, although many companies will help disabled individuals with travel plans.

Last May, the two women drove the coast of Florida from Miami to Clearwater with their measuring tapes and notebooks, trying to find ones that had doorways and other access routes wide enough for wheelchairs.

CHECKS FACILITIES

"We checked if there was a ramp on the outside, if the elevators were large enough, and if there were steps from the rooms to the balconies," says Ms. Albert.

"The bathroom sink had to jut out so a wheelchair could slide under," Ms. Braunstein says. "We asked the lifeguards how they felt about helping handicapped people into the pool."

They settled on a hotel in Orlando where they discovered 10 rooms outfitted for wheelchairs.

The excursion, including airfare, ground transport, hotel and sidetrips, costs about as much as other charters of its kind.

The agents will be along but not as nurses. Each disabled traveller will be required to bring a friend.

Depending on the response, the agents say they may expand the program to include California, Hawaii and Israel.

Ann Landers

Parents vow to sue children

Dear Ann Landers: I thought I had heard everything, but that letter in your column about the kid in Denver who is filing suit against his parents because they did a lousy job of raising him did it.

Now I think I'll sue my kids because they didn't turn out the way my husband and I hoped they would. We gave them a lot of love and spent thousands of dollars on their education. Not one turned out to be a doctor, a layer, a scientist, an engineer or president of the United States. We are disappointed and think they owe us something for letting us down. Sign this -- Sauce For The Goose In Ashland, Wisc.

Dear Ash: Your letter is a hoot, but I hope you don't start a trend. It could jam the courts permanently.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 26 years old, own my own business, am neat and clean, and have been told I'm very good-looking. I have a pleasant personality and a good sense of humor, but for the last three years not one female relationship has worked out.

I'm not crazy about hanging out in bars, or joining organizations. I devote a lot of time to my business. Here's my record: No. 1 dumped me because "I was too nice a guy." Nos. 2 and 3 said they couldn't get over their previous boyfriends. No. 4 was sure I wasn't normal because I was in no great rush to get her into bed. No. 5 left for Las Vegas to go back to her ex-husband. No. 6 was disappointed because I wouldn't change to meet her specifications. No. 7 was interested only in sex. Conversation bored her.

A month ago I met a terrific 18-year-old who works in the same building. She seems sensible, kind, respectable and interested. I've learned to ignore the "robbing-the-cradle" jokes, and I don't feel that chronological age is all that important.

Ann, I honestly care for her. Lately, I've noticed our relationship is slipping. Maybe I'm just paranoid but I don't want to lose her. Any suggestions? — Second Sting.

Dear Second: If this last romance falls apart, I suggest that you get some counseling and find out why you repeatedly make selections that don't pan out. That's the principal problem -- it's not the women. Check the phone book under "Mental Health" and go to work and learn about yourself.

Dear Ann Landers: I nearly killed a man today and am still shaking. I now know that 24 years without an accident has made me a smug, overconfident, dangerous driver. As usual, I was in a hurry. I thought the intersection was clear, and the little car approaching me had its turn signal on. I charged full speed ahead. The other driver swerved. I slammed on my brakes and missed the car by inches.

I am ashamed of my carelessness and disgusted that I made the too-rapid decision to enter that intersection on the basis of a glimpse. I'm thankful I didn't bash the side of that little auto and harm its driver. Here's one fool who is going to come to a full stop and start looking both ways. To the other driver who must be still trembling, I'm sorry! — A Damn Fool From Windsor, Ont.

Dear Windsor: At least 1,000 people who read your letter today had a similar experience within the last 24 hours. Fewer people will have it tomorrow -- because you wrote. Thanks for all the accidents you helped to prevent this week.

Polly's pointers

BY POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — I fill old clean roll-on deodorant bottles with liquid detergent for "rolling" on collars and cuffs before putting them in the laundry. I give these to friends, as they are a neat and thrifty way to "spot" laundry.

Someone marked a red leather or good quality vinyl chair with an indelible felt tip pen. Can you suggest a way to remove these marks? — ROSALIE

DEAR ROSALIE — Indelible ink is made to last, so you have a real problem on that score. You don't know whether your chair is vinyl or leather either.

Anything you try is risky. The effect of the product on the chair should be tested first in an inconspicuous spot. Ballpoint ink can be removed from vinyl with hair spray. Petroleum jelly could be rubbed on and then wiped off, hopefully taking the ink with it. Many inks have a glycerine base, so that could be tried. Leave it on 15-20 minutes and then wash off with liquid detergent. Do not look for miracles. — POLLY

DEAR READERS — Our thanks to every one of you — and it was a tremendous number — who sent in recipes for making crackers. The following recipe is quick, easy and made with things found in any kitchen. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — and Vivian — I can remember my father and sister making crackers by the following recipe in the 1930s on a kerosene stove over a kerosene oven. To make salted crackers, use one cup flour, one level teaspoon baking powder, two level tablespoons shortening (I use vegetable shortening), one-eighth teaspoon salt and one-half cup water.

Sift dry ingredients together and work shortening in with the fingertips. Add enough water to make a mixture like pie dough. Turn out on slightly-floured board and roll with rolling pin until very thin. Cut into squares and prick each several times with a fork. Sprinkle with salt. Put in pan and bake on bottom rack of oven set at 400 degrees for 10 minutes. Then remove and place on top rack, and increase heat to brown them. Makes about two dozen. — DOROTHY

Social notes

Hollett-Templeton

Holy Trinity Church at Denison's Mills, Que., was the setting on August 16 of a beautiful summer wedding.

Deborah Mary Hollett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald G. Hollet of Aurora, Ont., became the bride of Ralph Wallace Templeton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Templeton of Howick, Que. The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Muriel S. Hill of Richmond and of the late Stanley C. Hill.

The skirl of bagpipes filled the air as the bride, on the arm of her father, arrived at the little hilltop church, which stands on land first cleared and settled by her Denison ancestors in the early 1700s. The bride looked lovely in a floor-length gown of white lace and chiffon over cashmere crepe. She wore a finger tip veil and carried a cascading bouquet of pink and white flowers.

Margaret Hollett, of Aurora, served as honour attendant for her sister. Bridesmaids included Anne Bernier of Ste. Foy and Marlene Stuckey of Chateauguay. The bride's attendants were beautifully attired in turquoise floor-length gowns of antique satin. Sheer elbow length flowered capes fell from their shoulders. They carried baskets of daisies in shades of pink and white. Two pretty little flowergirls also attended the bride. Aimee Wood, niece of the brode, from Rochester, Michigan, and Nancy Cameron, niece of the groom from Ormstown, Que., dressed in dainty floor-length turquoise gowns, carried bouquet of pink and white daisies.

The groom was attended, as best man, by his cousin Bruce McFarlane of Howick. Ushers included Roy Templeton, brother of the groom, and David Hollett, brother of the bride. Wedgewood blue tuxedos were worn by the groom and groomsmen.

Rev. John Anderson of Howick performed the double-ring ceremony. Andrew Paterson, of Agincourt, Ont., welcomed guests with bagpipes as they entered the church lane. Audrey Millar of Richmond was at the organ.

Barbara and Richard Ball, sister and brother-in-law of the bride from Brownsburg, Indiana, sang "The Wedding Song". The bride's brother-in-law, R. Bradley Wood from Rochester, Michigan, sang "Longer".

Following the ceremony, one hundred and thirty relatives and friends were welcomed to a reception at Melbourne's Belle View Golf Club by Helen Gazdik and Scott Pyne, who looked after the guest book. Upon leaving the church the newly-weds were surprised to find a beautifully restored 1946 Mercury waiting to carry them to the reception. The groom's cousins, Brian and Glenn Tannahill, had secretly transported the car from Ormstown to Denison's Mills; they also served as footmen in wigs and top hats. The wedding cake was made by the bride's mother and beautifully decorated by her sister, Mrs. Barbara Ball. Kathleen Hill and Fiona Paterson poured punch. Peter Stuckey served as wedding photographer.

Following a delicious turkey dinner and an evening of dancing, the couple left for a honeymoon in Maine. For travelling the bride wore a dress of white linen with cranberry accessories. Over her shoulders was a silk shawl which had belonged to her great-great-great-grandmother, Mrs. Simeon Minor Denison, one of the area's early settlers.

The bride and groom have taken up residence in NDG, Montreal. The bride, a recent McGill graduate in nursing, is employed at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital. The groom, a 1978 graduate of McGill, has resumed teaching in St. Leonard.

Engagement

Mrs. Richard H. Wiesen of Markdale, Ont., is happy to announce the engagement of her daughter, Gabriele Mary to Alfred Ian Aleksa, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Aleksa of Lennoxville, Que. The wedding will take place Oct. 10, 1980 in Markdale United Church.

90th birthday

On Saturday afternoon, Sept. 6, Mrs. Louise Pierce, formerly of Ayer's Cliff, who is now a resident of the Wales Home in Richmond, was pleasantly surprised when her family gathered to honour her 90th birthday.

All her family and several grandchildren and great-grandchildren, assembled in the party hall on the fourth floor of the home. When escorted to the room she was presented with a corsage by her daughter Carol of St. Lambert. This corsage was made by Heather Kinkaid of Massawippi from carnations grown in May MacDonald's garden.

She made the first cut in a very pretty birthday cake which was decorated by Jan Dezan of Massawippi.

Several pictures were taken including a four generation one of Grandma Pierce, her daughter, Carol Bessette, granddaughter Diane Carriere and her two children Francois and Daniel.

Relatives were present from St. Lambert, Chambly, Rock Island, Stanstead Highway, North Hatley, Massawippi and Ayer's Cliff.

Gribble-Bergeron

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Victoria, B.C., on February 8, 1980, at 4 p.m. when Tana Louise, daughter of Mrs. Hilda Bergeron and the late Capt. Bernard Bergeron, of North Hatley, Que., became the bride of Ronald Raymond Gribble, son of Mrs. Lydia Gribble of Victoria, B.C. and Mr. Harold Gribble of Vancouver, B.C., in a double-ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Bruce Molloy. The traditional wedding march was played during the service.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Paul, was lovely in a white floor-length gown of flowing satin with a long train. The long sleeves, bodice and scooped neckline were appliqued with Venise lace flowers and lace. Her two-tier lace-edged shoulder length veil of silk illusion tulle, misted from a pretty capulet of silk Venise flowers and scattered pearl trim. She carried a trailing arrangement of 24 red roses woven with baby's breath and lilies of the valley. Surrounding the bouquet were leaves of prayer plant. Small gold earrings and a delicate gold necklace completed her attire.

The groom was in a brown tuxedo trimmed in dark brown velvet and a white frilled shirt.

Carole Bergeron, as maid of honor, wore a floor-length mint green chiffon gown with shoestring straps and matching sheer cape. She carried a trailing bouquet of white carnations, the tips tinted mint green, surrounded by leaves in the prayer plant.

The bridesmaids were Noreen Willford of Victoria, B.C. and Aila Jarvinen of Prince George, B.C. who were gowned in the same style and colour as the maid of honor.

The best man was Richard Lacoursiere of Victoria, B.C. and the ushers were Bradley Willford of Victoria, B.C. and Sam Knox of Winnipeg, Man. They wore toxedos of beige jackets, trimmed in brown velvet and brown trousers with frilled white shirts.

Mrs. Bergeron, mother of the bride, chose a floor-length gown in brown crepe with shoestring straps and matching bolero with short ruffled sleeves. A yellow corsage, small pearl pendant and beige accessories completed her outfit.

Mrs. Gribble, mother of the groom, was attired in a floor-length flowered gown under a full length blue cape and matching hat. She wore a corsage of white carnations.

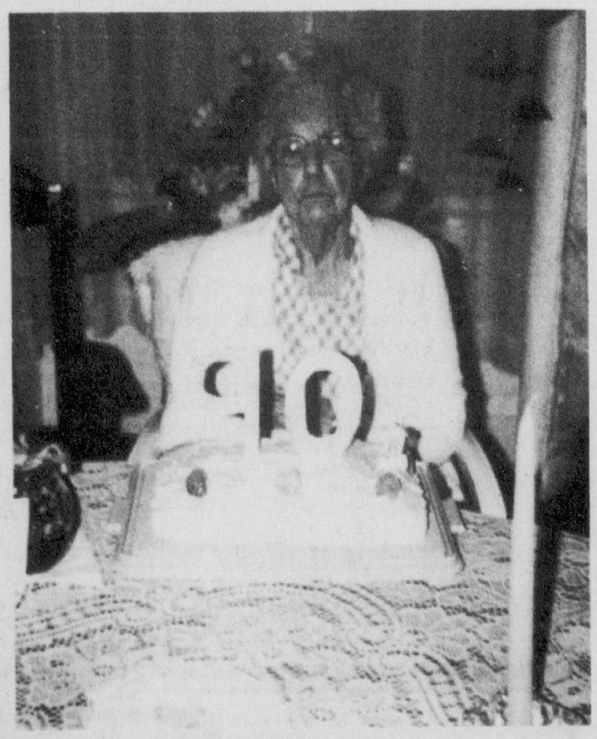

Mrs. Gladys Prewer, maternal grandmother, chose a lovely fitting sea green floor-length gown trimmed in beige with long sleeves. Her corsage was green tinted white carnations, and her accessories were gold.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Gaetane Jarvinen was in aqua blue velvet and her corsage was white carnations with blue ribbon. Her accessories were brown.

Following the ceremony, a reception took place at Dominion Hall. The decorations were carried out in the same colour scheme of white and green. The entrance was framed with flowers, and streamers flowed from each side of the room, meeting in the center where two huge wedding bells were hung. Behind the head table, the wall was decorated with the names, Tana and Ron, surrounded by flowers in the form of hearts.

Richard Lacoursiere, the best man, spoke the blessing, then a delicious smorgasbord was served. Soft music was played during dinner.

The head table was centered with a three tiered square wedding cake, two tiers being on posts, iced in white, having minute white roses, tips tinted in mint green, sprays of lilies of the valley and fluting, topped by a satin wedding bell surrounded by pearls, and tulle decorated the rest of the cake.

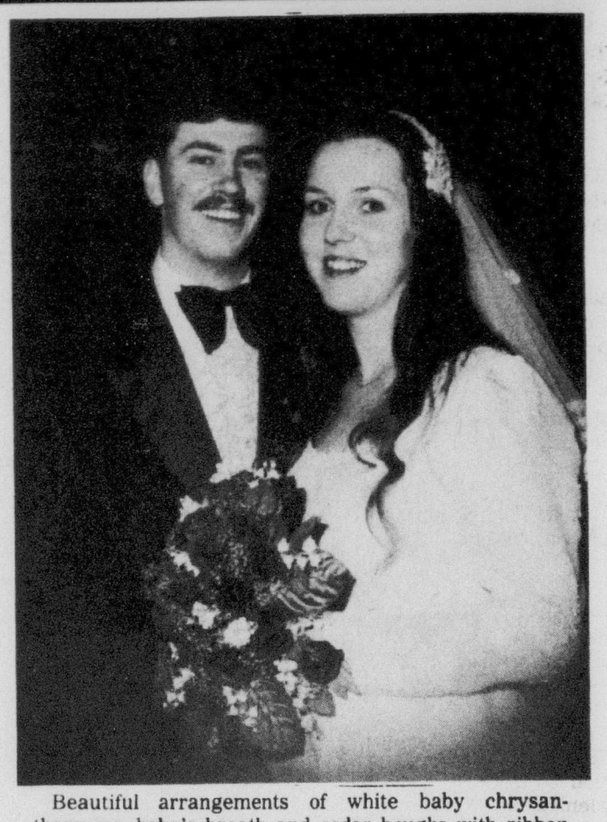

90th birthday

On Sunday, August 31, Mrs. James Cook, formerly of Bury, was the guest of honor at Mrs. Wilkin's home in Lennoxville, on the occasion of her 90th birthday on August 29.

The dining room table, covered with a lace tablecloth, was centred with a lovely decorated birthday cake with a large 90 on top, flanked by pink candles in crystal candleholders.

Mrs. Cook received several gifts including a rose bowl with a red rose, and a bouquet of red roses, a gift from her son Jim Cook of California, who was unable to be present.

Guests present for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Swallow (Lily) of Mechanic Falls, Maine, Jeff and Cheryl Hooper of Turner, Maine, Wayne, Margaret, Wendy and Brent Cook of St. Bruno, Que., Dennis Maguire of Sherbrooke, Ronald and Rose Cook and Austin and Wanda Cook of Lennoxville, Bill and Lillian Cook of Bury and Mrs. Sarah Wilkin.

Beautiful arrangements of white baby chrysanthemums, baby's breath and cedar boughs with ribbon completed the head table.

The bride and groom cut the cake with a pearl handled knife decorated with a white satin bow and centered with a miniature yellow rose bud.

The toast to the bride was given by the best man and a beautiful response paying tribute to his sister was given by her brother Paul. The groom then responded to the toast to his bride.

The bride and groom drank from exquisite silver wine goblets engraved with their names. These were gifts from their close friends.

As a token of love, roses were presented to the bride individually by her nephew, Timothy Jarvinen, her brother Paul, the best man and the two ushers.

After dinner, the bride and groom danced the first dance to Just the Way You Are and then dancing was enjoyed by all.

They passed around their wedding cake in individual boxes marked Tana and Ron in a unique rattan basket.

Then the bride threw her wedding bouquet and the groom threw the blue garter.

As they left the reception, they passed under an arch formed by the guests. They left for southern California, the bride travelled in a burgundy velvet two-piece outfit with beige accessories and a corsage of creme roses with burgundy ribbon.

The groom wore a tan suit and a white boutonniere.

On returning from their trip they took up residence in Victoria and then spent the month of May in Europe.

Guests attending from out of town were the bride's family from North Hatley, Que., the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Gladys Prewer from Lancaster, Ont., the bride's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Jarvinen and children, Aileen and Timothy of Upper Fraser, B.C. Other guests were from Winnipeg, Vancouver, Vancouver Island and Prince George.

40th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Orlay Olsson of Sawyerville, honored at a dinner by their relatives at the Northland in Canaan, Vt., on August 23, returned to their home for a party in honour of their 40th wedding anniversary.

Due to distance their oldest daughter Patsy Stickles and her sons Michael and Terry were unable to attend, but phoned their best wishes to the bride and groom of 40 years. Orlay and Arlene (nee Winslow) were married August 24, 1940. The late Stanford Winslow was best man and Mrs. Zeta Winslow, maid of honour. Corsages of pink tea roses and yellow miniature carnations and a white carnation boutonniere were worn by the couple and their attendant, these being presented by their family.

A lovely lunch was served later in the evening with a beautiful three-tier anniversary cake centering the table, given as a gift and made by a friend, Mrs. Doris Brown, and decorated by Mrs. Clinton Rand in white with white rosebuds and green leaves, centered on top were three white bells. The bride cut and passed the cake around to all.

The house was decorated with arrangements of pink and red roses, white baby's breath, pink carnations, white shasta daisies and gladiolas. At midnight, a lovely birthday cake, decorated in white with red rosebuds, candles and a small vase of colored sweet peas in the center, was presented to Mrs. Billy Provis, as a surprise.

Mrs. Provis thanked her sister and the cake was cut and passed around. The bride and groom thanked their family, relatives and friends for such an enjoyable evening which will long be remembered. Guests were present from Ontario, Sherbrooke, Capelton, Lennoxville and Eaton.

Your Birthday

September 19, 1980
Contacts made socially this coming year will prove very helpful to you in other areas. Mingle with people who have good reputations in their particular fields.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An unexpected invitation or a chance meeting today could develop into an exceptionally fortunate experience. Look for something promising to come of it. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Follow your instincts regarding a material opportunity that may suddenly fall in your lap. The rewards are quite large when you develop things your way.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't be hesitant to tackle big ideas today, especially if they include dealing with older or vastly experienced persons. Things should work out great.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you will be compensated more handsomely than usual for well-directed efforts. Focus on projects that can mean the most to you financially or materially.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Mediocrity is something no one can accuse you of today. You're seething with ambition and big plans, and you're lucky with things large in scope.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're very adroit today at being able to pull rabbits out of the hat. Through resourcefulness you'll extricate yourself from sticky situations.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You function best today as a team player, rather than through individual effort. Pick the proper cohort to meet your particular needs.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Advancement or special benefits are within your reach today, so direct your efforts accordingly. Work and career areas are especially favored.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The impression you make today is excellent and will have a long-lasting effect. Get out and mingle in the right circles or places.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A shared interest you're involved in looks exceptionally promising today because of the basic sincerity and good will of the parties concerned.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Any arrangements or agreements that you make today, either in verbal or written form, should stand the test of time. Lock things up now.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Work or service done well today will benefit you for a long time to come. Those who could do you good will be so pleased they won't easily forget.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Seymon Deutsch of Laredo, Tex., played a lot of bridge some 25 years ago. He started again recently. Here he is in action in the open pairs at the recent Texas Regionals in Austin.

At every table East opened with some sort of diamond preempt. South was not going to be shut out and bid his clubs, whereupon the bidding continued with East and West eventually playing six or seven diamonds doubled. They were down three if pushed to seven; only down two if allowed to play at six.

The bidding when Seymon sat South and World Champion Bobby Goldman North is shown in the box.

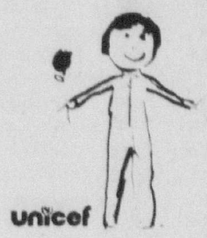

It wasn't any strain for Seymon to bid four clubs at his first turn. West raised to four diamonds and Bobby bid five diamonds as one of those general cue bids.

At this stage of the proceedings East made one of those silly doubles. It gave Seymon a chance to pass and see what Bobby was going to do.

Bobby passed the buck back to his partner by redoubling.

This gave Seymon a chance to use some real imagination. He knew that a five-heart bid could do no harm. Bobby would know that his partner would have bid it one round earlier with a decent heart suit. Bobby raised five hearts to six. East bid seven diamonds and Seymon made his second brilliant bid. He passed to tell Bobby that he could take the first diamond trick.

Bobby went on to the cinch seven for a real top score since no one else had found that heart fit.

GASOLINE: YOU HAVE WHAT IT TAKES TO CONSERVE IT

The need to use oil carefully has become a fact of life.

Since one of our major uses of oil is for the production of gasoline, one of the best ways we can conserve oil is with our automobiles.

Have you kicked all your bad driving habits?

If you're like most Canadians, you can boost your car's fuel economy by an average of 12-15%, just by the way you drive. For instance:

1. Speed is your biggest gas guzzler. At 110/km/h you use 20% more fuel than at 90/km/h.
2. Accelerate slowly and avoid jackrabbit starts and sudden braking.
3. Never use your brake pedal as a foot rest. It's costly and dangerous.
4. Turn off the engine when you're waiting. Cut warm up idling time to 30 seconds.
5. Avoid rush hours and traffic jams. Bunch up your errands into one smooth trip.
6. Set gas savings targets for yourself. Keep track of your progress.
7. Drive to minimize braking.

Can your car pass the fitness test?

Putting your car in top shape will not only make it last longer, but could stretch your gasoline dollars up to 10% too. A few tips:

1. Check your tire pressure regularly, and keep them at the highest recommended level.
2. Radial tires last longer and give better fuel efficiency.
3. Ensure wheels are properly aligned.
4. Have brakes checked regularly. Dragging or pulling brakes wastes gas.

And watch the little things like carrying extra weight in your trunk – that hurts too. Most importantly, find a good serviceman and treat him well. A complete tune-up twice a year is the best way to keep your car in good shape.

With new cars, "less is more".

If you're currently buying a car, you're in an ideal situation to control your driving costs.

Remember then, that smaller cars typically get better fuel economy. That a light car with well-matched transmission and engine is the most economical. That extras such as air conditioning, power brakes and steering will hit you in gasoline dollars. Buy according to your needs, but try to keep your car as compact, light and simple as possible.

Whatever your car, the real trick is to use it only when necessary. Alternatives such as public transit, ride-sharing, vanpools, trains, pedals and yes, feet, really do work.

Besides, once you've tried life with less gasoline, you might even start to enjoy the "less is more" habit.

When you help yourself, you help all of us.

Individual conservation of gasoline adds up to more than just "more gas". It also means we stretch our resources, reduce the likelihood of future shortages, and cut down our dependence on unreliable foreign oil supplies.

Energy security for Canada is a goal we can all share. And, using gasoline wisely is one of the ways each of us can contribute to making it happen.

This ad is one of a series sponsored by Energy, Mines and Resources Canada to make you aware of Canada's energy situation. New editions of "The Car Book" and "The Fuel Consumption Guide" will be available soon.

Amedee Roy Stadium

Too late for one team, too soon for another

Amedee Roy Stadium was beginning to crumble by the time the Pittsburgh Pirates put an Eastern League farm team here in the early seventies. It was built after the Provincial League franchise pulled out in the fifties because there was nowhere to play.

By MERRITT CLIFTON

SHERBROOKE — Soon to be demolished, Amedee Roy Stadium was built 28 years ago to insure Sherbrooke's future in professional baseball. But, ironically, the 2,800-seat stadium drove good teams out of town twice — 20 years apart — and virtually killed minor league baseball in Quebec.

Blame can't lie with the stadium itself. "When Amedee Roy was built," Sherbrooke councillor Antonio Pinard recalls, "it was the most glorious stadium in all the province. Montreal's Jarry Park," home of the Expos for eight years, "couldn't compare to it."

But the stadium came too late for the Sherbrooke entry in the long-gone Provincial League, too soon for the Pittsburgh Pirates, who fielded an Eastern League team here during 1972 and 1973. Amedee Roy's construction left Sherbrooke without a ballpark for 1952, forcing one of the all-time great Provincial League teams to sit out the season. At the same time, to keep the league balanced at an even number of entries, Farnham was dropped completely, and has never again owned a professional franchise.

Both Sherbrooke and Farnham had been founding members of the Provincial League, together with Granby, Acton Vale, Drummondville, St. Hyacinthe, and St. Jean. Without Sherbrooke and Farnham – Acton Vale merged into Drummondville circa 1946 – the league lost several crowd-pleasing rivalries, contributing to a drastic drop in attendance. Originally an outlaw league, the Provincial League had received Class C status in Organized Baseball beginning with 1950, but lost it again after 1954 and finally collapsed altogether circa 1960.

Total league attendance for 1954 was less than Sherbrooke's own total for any random three years between the end of World War II and the beginning of the Amedee Roy fiasco. Worse, Amedee Roy in 1953 and 1954 combined attracted fewer fans than Sherbrooke's old park had drawn in the single years of 1950 and 1951.

That lost 1952 season perhaps wasn't the only reason the Provincial League failed. Minor league baseball suffered all over the continent with the introduction of televised major league games, and when major league farm systems took over the local franchises, replacing local players with young strangers, attendance dropped still more. But Amedee Roy was almost the exclusive reason why the Pirates dropped their franchise here eight years ago, and why the Eastern League pulled out of Quebec City and Thetford Mines a few years later.

As soon as the Pirates arrived, club officials began complaining about Amedee Roy's by-then dilapidated condition. The park hadn't been refurbished since the Provincial League folded. Some sections of seats were cordoned off as unsafe and outfielders and batters called the lighting dangerous. When repairs weren't adequate two years later, with attendance also poor, the Pirates moved on without a backward look. This left the Double-A Eastern League imbalanced, with only two teams in Quebec and the rest several hundred miles south in Massachusetts, eastern New York, and Connecticut.

Until 1976, the Expos insisted upon keeping their Double-A farm team at Quebec City, to get players used to a francophone environment and the Canadian climate. The Cincinnati Reds therefore kept another team at Trois Rivieres, where high attendance balanced out travel costs required to play the rest of the league.

But when Amedee Roy still wasn't repaired to any other club's satisfaction, and when Bill 101 irked Expo owner Charles Bronfman into pulling his AA team out of Quebec City, the league abandoned Quebec perhaps forever.

"We can't afford to stay in Quebec without a full three-team division," Eastern League president Pat McKernan explained at the time. "To have that, we need teams in Three Rivers, Quebec City, and Sherbrooke or somewhere else — and Sherbrooke just doesn't have the ballpark."

Sherbrooke fans today root for the big-league Expos, via TV and radio. The Expos are battling for a pennant with the Pirates, whose roster is ironically studded with Sherbrooke graduates and players obtained in trades for others. Superstar relief pitcher Kent Tekulve made 31 appearances here during 1972, posting a 2.63 earned run average and earning a mid-season promotion to the AAA Charleston Charlies.

Two years later, he joined the Pirates. It was in Sherbrooke that the 25-year-old Tekulve finally perfected his unique semi-submarine pitching motion, after five years of mediocrity in the lower reaches of the Pirate system.

The only other '72 Sherbrooker to make the major leagues was 23-year-old third-year professional Fernando Gonzalez, who joined the Pirates the day the Eastern League season ended. Gonzalez had played every infield position, appearing in all 140 Sherbrooke games, leading the league in hits with 172, doubles with 42, and batting, averaging .333. He also led third basemen in putouts. He never hit well in the major leagues, however, and was released last spring by San Diego Padres.

1973 brought a bumper-crop of future Pirates, however, led by catcher Steve Nicosia. Nicosia hit only .111 in just three games with Sherbrooke, but has starred in the majors and been particularly tough against Expo pitching. Pirate second baseman Phil Garner arrived in a trade for former Sherbrooke outfielder Tony Armas, who hit .301 here with good power despite a bad mid-season injury. Armas is wrapping up a superb season with Oakland Athletics, setting new personal highs in home runs, runs batted in, and stolen bases.

Infielder Mario Mendoza brought the Pirates their other superstar relief pitcher, Enrique Romo, a Mexican League legend for years before reaching the National League. Mendoza gave Sherbrooke his best professional season, hitting .268 with 22 doubles. He blamed his league-leading 35 errors at shortstop on the rough Amedee Roy infield, and as a player best known for good defense, he's to be believed.

Pitchers Jim Minshall, 6-11, and Jim Sadowski, 11-5, anchored the 1973 Sherbrooke starting rotation. Both made it to the Pirates eventually, but concluded their careers back in the minor leagues. Sadowski was the fifth member of his family to appear in the majors.

The old Sherbrooke Provincial League team sent only one man to the big leauges, catcher Dick Brown, whose career ended prematurely when he died of a brain tumor in 1965. Brown hit .349 for Sherbrooke in 52 games during 1954, to unofficially lead the league.

Though the first Sherbrooke team to occupy Amedee Roy won the pennant in 1953, most of the players were minor league veterans who would advance little farther. Outfielder John Waters hit .348 to lead the league in hits and batting. Clell Hobson, father of Red Sox third baseman Butch Hobson, hit .310.

Other early Amedee Roy stars included Bob Stephens, who lost the official 1954 batting title by one tenth of a percentage point to Quebec City's Michael Fandozzi, at .3307, and slugging base thief Bill Williamson, whose 1954 totals included 27 homers, 32 steals, 118 RBI, and a .307 average.

But the best and most popular Sherbrooke club disbanded in 1952, never getting to Amedee Roy. Led by veteran third baseman and manager Roland Gladu, Sherbrooke won both pennant and playoffs in 1948, finished a close second in 1950, and swept both pennant and playoffs again in 1951, as the funds for Amedee Roy were first apportioned. Gladu, who'd hit .241 at age 31 in 21 games for the 1944 Braves, averaged .340 and .330 in his last two seasons, the best two seasons he ever enjoyed. Cuban slugger Silvio Garcia won batting and RBI titles in 1950 with a 21-116-.365 year, then hit .346 for an encore. Other local stars included .300-hitters Normand Dussault, Paul Martin, and Claro Duany.

These were the boys of summer whose example led city fathers into thinking that maybe, with an expensive new stadium and a link to the Cleveland Indian farm system begun in 1953, they could top success with success. Perhaps the ghost of their lost 1952 has haunted Amedee Roy ever since.

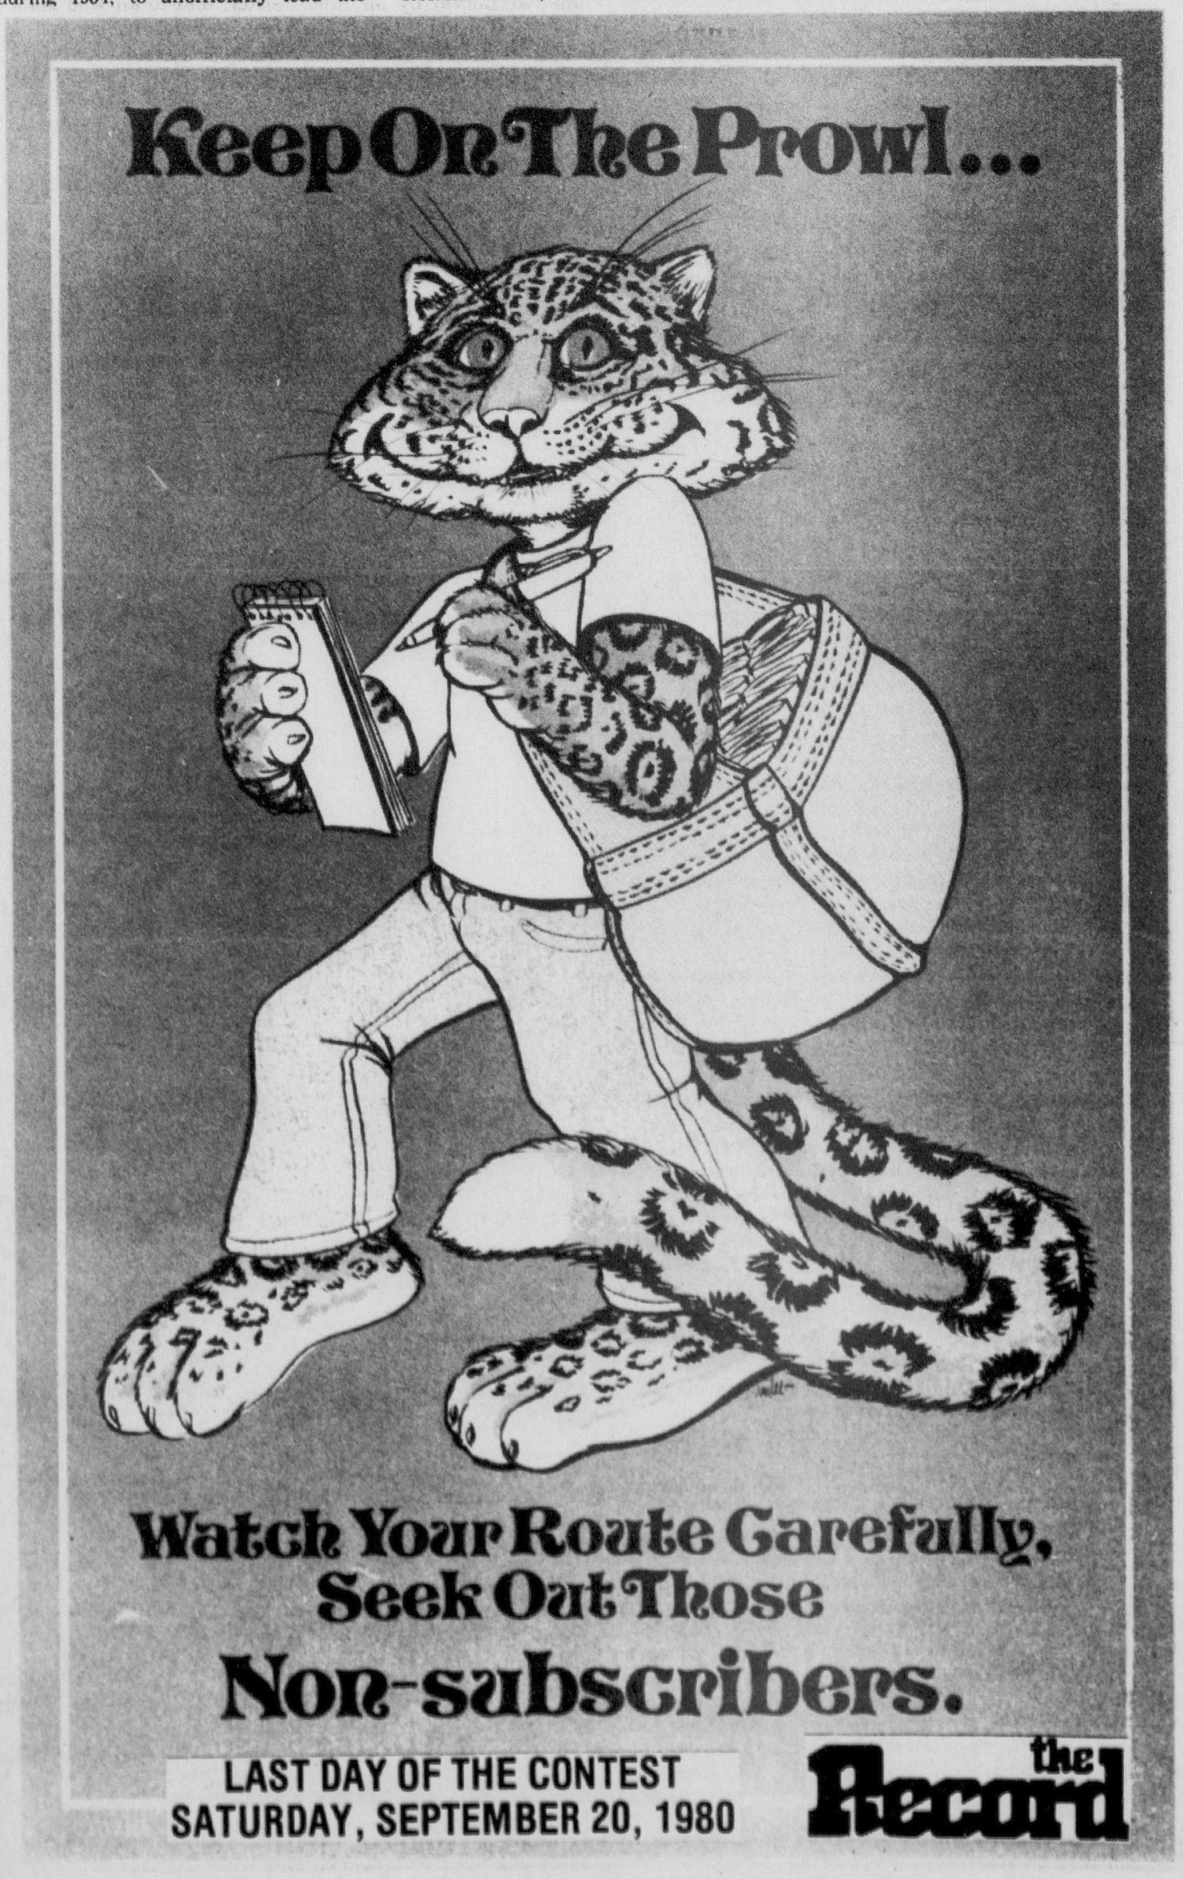

Record - Perry Beaton

Pittsburgh Pirates' ace reliever Kent Tekulve cultivated his unique pitching technique as a minor leaguer in Sherbrooke.

Now home of the minor league A's, the stadium has deteriorated so much the city is tearing it down after the baseball season ends.

SARAH C.M. DE PENCIER
of Beebe

Sarah Craig Mackie de Pencier passed away suddenly at her home in Beebe, Que., August 6, in her 77th year, wife of the late Eric de Pencier, who predeceased her in 1972.

Sarah was born in Manchester, England, in 1903, daughter of the late George Craig Mackie and his wife Mary Jane McWilliam. She came to Canada with the family in 1906 and settled in Beebe, Que. She attended Beebe Model School, Stanstead College, and Bugbee Business College.

After graduation she accepted a position with Southam Press Co., Montreal, where she was employed for several years. She resided in Montreal until after the death of her late husband.

In 1975 she came to reside in Beebe to be near her sister Janie Somerville.

She leaves to mourn her loss, a sister, Janie Somerville, a niece Mary Jane McKellar and sons David and Steven, two nephews, George Mackie and family and James Mackie and family.

The funeral service was held August 8 in the Cass Funeral Home, the Rev. Ralph Rogers officiated.

Interment took place in the family lot in Beebe Plain Cemetery.

MRS. R. DALEY, R.N.
of Sherbrooke
(Formerly of Sawyerville)

The family and scores of friends were shocked and saddened at news of the fatal accident of Joanne Daley on the morning of August 22, 1980.

Joanne was born April 14, 1956, the second child of Gordon and Audrey Bowker of Sawyerville, Que. She attended Sawyerville Elementary School and graduated from Alexander Galt Regional High School in 1973. From there she went to New York where she took her nursing course, spending two years at The King's College and graduating from Columbia University in 1977. After graduation she worked one year in Boston and then came back to Canada and to Grace Christian Home where she worked until her death.

On July 26, less than one month before her acciden', she was married to Robert Daley of Sherbrooke in a very beautiful and meaningful ceremony in the Sawyerville Baptist Church. She was a much loved wife, a wonderful daughter and sister, and to all who knew her, a loyal friend and a radiant Christian.

The funeral service was held at the Sawyerville Baptist Church and attended by a host of friends and family from near and far. Pastor Bruce Kaiser conducted the service and Rev. David Mitchell brought a challenging message, basing his thoughts on the portion of Scripture found in Philippians 1: 21 "For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain". He stressed the fact that though we who are left, mourn her loss, Joanne is with the Lord. He also reminded all present that it is not how long, but how well we live, which counts. All who knew her agree that Joanne had accomplished more in her 24 short years than most do in much longer periods of time.

Wendy Hughes was organist and Les Picard sang three numbers; Praise the Name of Jesus, Psalm 23 and It is Well With My Soul.

Bearers were John DeGrace, Lyn Taylor, Dr. W.J. Klinck, Malcolm Burns, Peter Daley and Steven Bowker.

Burial took place in the Eaton Cemetery to await the Resurrection. Those taking part in the graveside service, besides Pastor Mitchell, were John DeGrace, Cedric Potter and Robert Daley.

Besides her husband Rob, Joanne had endeared herself to her mother-in-law, Mrs. Joy Daley and the rest of the Daley family. As well as these and her parents, she leaves to mourn her passing, three brothers, a sister and sister-in-law; Douglas and Sandy, Steven, Nancy and Jeff.; also her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Bowker of Sawyerville and Mr. and Mrs. James Aldous of Oshawa, Ont., and many aunts, uncles and cousins.

"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints".

Psalm 116: 15

HERBERT A. CRAWFORD
of Hamilton, Ont.
(formerly of Kinnear's Mills)

The death of Herbert Andrew Crawford occurred on August 15, 1980, at the Henderson General Hospital, Hamilton, Ont.

Herbert, son of the late James Crawford and his late wife Edna Rickaby was 59 years old, the youngest of a family of eleven.

On October 23, 1946, he married Janie MacRae at St. James Anglican Church, Leeds Village, Que., and to this union two children were born, Gary and Deborah (Mrs. Robert Dolby), both of Hamilton, Ont.

In October, 1947, he and Janie moved to Hamilton, Ont., where he was an employee of Dofasco for 30 years.

He is survived by his wife Janie, son Gary, daughter Debbie, sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Jordon (Stella), Manchester, N.H., Mrs. Dora Glines, Wilton, N.H., Mrs. Clara Giguere, Lennoxville, Que., Mrs. Eva Boucher, Manchester, N.H., brothers, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Crawford, Lennoxville, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Crawford, Campbellford, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Earl Crawford, Island Brook, Que., Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Crawford, Thetford Mines, Que., Mr. and Mrs. David MacRae, Leeds Village, Que., father-in-law and mother-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Eric MacRae, Leeds Village, brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law, also many nieces and nephews.

Herbert was predeceased by his father in March 1956, his mother in December 1962, a brother Wendell in October 1962, and a sister Edith (Mrs. Philip Draper) in August 1969.

The funeral service was held on August 18, at 2:00 p.m. at the Dermody-Markey Funeral Home, Hamilton, Ont., by the Rev. J.E. McCrea of Pioneer Memorial Church, where the deceased was a member. He was also a member of the Doric Lodge 382 for over 25 years.

The bearers were Lynn MacRae, Donald Crawford, Arthur Mandigo (nephews), Arthur King, Ken Wright and Wendell Marshall.

Burial was in the Chapel Hill Memorial Gardens.

Friends of Mr. W.J. Adamson are pleased to hear he has returned from the Sherbrooke Hospital, after a stay of eight weeks, following surgery.

MRS. BERTHA ROWE
of Bury
(formerly of East Angus)

Bertha Mildred Davis passed away at St. Paul's Rest Home, Bury, Que., on Saturday, August 30, 1980, in her 80th year.

Born in Beebe, Vt., in 1901, daughter of William Davis and Harriet Doyen. The family lived for a short time in Stanstead, moving to East Angus where she had her schooling and worked for the Brompton Pulp and Paper Co.

On Sept. 27, 1921, she married Alf James, and of this marriage four children were born. Marguerite (Mrs. George Heath) East Angus; Mae (Mrs. Mae Eyles) California; Basil James, Hamilton, Ont., and Caroline (Mrs. Bruce Rowe) East Angus.

On Jan. 12, 1943, she was united in marriage to Robert Rowe, residing on the farm in Westbury until his passing in 1955.

She was an active member of the Women's Institute; Ladies Auxiliary, Legion Branch No. 25 and a past member of the Eastern Star, a dear friend to all.

She is survived by her four children, two sons-in-law, a daughter-in-law, thirteen grandchildren, thirteen great-grandchildren; three brothers and five sisters; Alfred of London, Ont., Milton of Bishopton, Que., Norman of East Angus, Que., Barbara (Mrs. Rev. Cole) Pineallas Park, Florida, Victoria of Bishopton, Dorothy, (Mrs. Douglas McCabe) Red Rock, Ont., Georganna, of Bishopton and Warren of Montreal.

On the eve of the funeral, prayer service was held at the Paquin Funeral Home by the Ladies Auxiliary, Branch No. 25, East Angus, led by Mrs. Ethel Stickles.

Flag bearer (Mrs. Clarice Grenier) of the Ladies Auxiliary Branch No. 25 and two comrades, Mrs. Ethel Stickles and President Mrs. Pauline Fortin led the funeral procession, walking from the Paquin Funeral Home to where the service was held at Christ Church, East Angus, on Tuesday, Sept. 2, at 2:30 p.m.

Flanked on each side of the hearse, walking, were the bearers, grandsons Brian Heath, Steven Rowe, Philip James and nephews Bruce Keating, George Davis and Grant Webster.

Entering the church, the organist, Mrs. Albert James played a favorite hymn of the deceased, "Amazing Grace", followed by "What a friend we have in Jesus" and "Stand up, Stand up for Jesus."

Prayers and words of comfort were offered by the Rev. L. Westman in the church and at graveside, followed by a short prayer read by Auxiliary member Mrs. Ethel Stickles, as each member and relative of the deceased dropped a poppy onto the casket, as the Flag bearer stood by.

The flowers and donations to her favorite charities were tributes from her many friends.

Interment was in Westbury Cemetery.

Relatives and friends from far and near gathered at the Legion Hall in East Angus where refreshments were served by the kindness of the Ladies Auxiliary, Branch No. 25.

Among those attending were from: St. Hubert, Montreal, St. Bruno, Cowansville, Bishopton, Marbleton, Beebe, Lennoxville, Bury, Hamilton, Ont., Orangeville, Ont., St. Elie, Fleurimont, Florida and East Angus.

Eaton Township 125th Anniversary Celebrations

Sent by MYRTLE MURRAY
(Record Correspondent)

Despite a brisk wind and a chilling rainfall, a most successful parade from Bulwer to Birchton started off the 125th Aniversary festivities of the Township of Eaton. The parade, beginning in Bulwer was led by three horses carrying flag-bearing riders dressed in costumes of many years ago. The various floats gave testimony to many long hours of work and a varied range of ideas.

There was an old fashioned bedroom scene, a school room complete with bell-ringing school marm, the Eaton Town Council, a sugar making float with trees dripping sap, an old blacksmith shop, a float featuring the Tartan Twirlers, another, the Canadian Rainbows, the Hatley Calf Club, a very large float complete with kitchen and living room featuring costumed ladies spinning wool, knitting and quilting, another float played foot-stomping music by the Prescott Orchestra. A clown with balloons, a hitchhiker dressed in an old-fashioned bathing costume and a large dog being pushed on a small cart added much merriment for the many who lined the parade route.

The E.T. Vintage Auto Club was well represented with a fine display of antique cars, keeping in tune with the theme of the weekend. There were many different styles -- from the oldest car there -- a Model T Ford "touring" to a 1934 Rolls Royce, a '38 DeSoto Deluxe, a Ford Model A Roadster, as well as Chev and Buick Convertibles and '51 and '52 Pontiacs.

After the parade's final destination at Jardin Prevert, everyone gathered at the Birchton Hall where an old-fashioned Ice Cream Social was well in progress. Several men of the community were busy cranking old time ice cream freezers, while inside, the ladies, complete in yesteryear dress were dishing out ice cream with strawberries and cake for an old-fashioned price of fifty cents. Before the afternoon was over, an estimated five hundred people had sampled the fare, pronounced it delicious and then headed for home.

That evening, another very large crowd continued the celebrations at Les Cedrier with a dance featuring "The Canadian Rainbows", as well as a reunion of the "Prescott Orchestra", some of whom hadn't played together for several years. Dancing and general merry-making went on into the wee hours of the morning.

Sunday dawned bright and beautiful and a bilingual church service was held at the Bulwer United Church with clergy from the surrounding area and a congregation from Birchton, Bulwer, Johnville, and Sand Hill, etc. The church was filled with flowers and the full choir helped make it a service that will long be remembered.

At lunch time, a picnic took place outside the Community Center in Bulwer and long tables laden with food of all sorts attested to the many fine cooks around. After much talking and renewing of old friendships, many went into the Community Center to view a fascinating display of old photographs, catalogues and post cards. Many an old relative or friend could be found somewhere on those walls.

During the course of the afternoon two hundred and fifty ice cream cones were thoroughly enjoyed at a very old-fashioned price of ten cents each, while inside the Community Center, coffee and doughnuts were distributed freely for those seeking respite from the warm afternoon sun.

Rounding out the day and bringing the weekend to a close, Michel Couture, President of the Eaton Township 125th Celebrations, presented the prizes for the following categories: Best Costumes - Sadie Lowd, Pearl Beaudoin and Escort, Russell and Bev Nutbrown.

Best Floats - Family Bedroom on Wheels, The Good Old Days, The Blacksmith Shop.

Best Decorated Houses - Elsie and Michael Harbinson, Alain and Karen Verlinden, Stuart and Alice Merrill.

Before closing, Mr. Couture urged people to attend the continuing festivities in Eaton Corner and Johnville, and the final banquet at Salle Veilleux Hall on the Clifton Road, where special honors will be given to families farming the same land for several generations.

A special thanks must be given to the Bulwer-Birchton organizing committee who did a wonderful job in planning this long-to-be-remembered weekend.

WI meeting

INVERNESS — The regular meeting of the Inverness Women's Institute was held on September 5 at the home of Mrs. Yvette Purdon with the president, Mrs. A. Muir, presiding, and opening in the usual way, followed by the reading of the minutes.

The treasurer gave her report and said she had sent out eleven cards since the July meeting.

Mrs. Muir read a letter from the Provincial President, Mrs. W. Kilgour, who said not to save bread tags or cigarette sleeves any more, as there is nowhere to send them.

The Garage Sale was held in the I.O.O.F. hall on September 13 from 2 to 6 p.m. Plans were made for this event and for the lunch which was sold.

It was decided to assist in the purchase of a new pump for the Oddfellows' Hall, as the old one no longer works.

This branch has been asked to cater for the Oddfellows' supper on October 25. All agreed to cater and more plans will be made at the next meeting.

The winner of the surprise parcel was Mrs. W. Graham.

The convenor of Agriculture gave members a contest on Animal Squares. The winning couple was Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Purden.

All were pleased to have as a guest, Mrs. Evelyn Lennon. We are sorry that she will be leaving for Florida in a few days, but wish her plenty of sunshine for the coming winter.

At the close of the meeting, delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Dempsey and Mrs. Muir.

VILLE DE SHERBROOKE PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE is hereby given:
That a public consultation meeting will be held at the office of the Commission des Ecoles Catholiques de Sherbrooke, 895 Bowen Street South, Sherbrooke, on October 6th, 1980, at 18:30 hours. Persons and organizations who so desire will then be given the opportunity to take cognizance of a project of zoning by-law and to be heard by the City Council;
That the object of the projected by-law is the modification of the zoning in zones B-13 and C-60 of the City so as to widen zone B-13 by reducing zone C-60 and to restrict to single family and two family houses the type of constructions permitted in zone B-13. Zones B-13 and C-60 are bounded as it appears on the plan reproduced in the present notice;
That said project of by-law is available for consultation at the City Clerk's Office, at the City Hall, 145 Wellington Street North, Sherbrooke.

GIVEN AT SHERBROOKE, this 18th day of September, 1980.

ANAF Ladies Auxiliary meets

LENNOXVILLE — A meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary, Unit 318 was held in the Wagon Room at the Hut on Sept. 10.

President, June Westman opened the meeting with 21 members present, Sgt. of Arms, Frances Chaplin was at the door. June then welcomed everyone back after our summer break, she also thanked all those who had worked during the summer.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Sec. Mavis Robertson, also the correspondence which included various thank-you notes and a letter discussing the A.N.A.F. Ladies Provincial Dart Tournament to be held in Magog on Sept. 20.

The financial report was read by Treasurer, Barb Leonard.

The benevolent report was read by Ruby Martin in place of Mayotta Taylor. A basket of fruit had been sent to Mrs. Theresa Cook, one of our members who is now in the Wilkin Nursing Home.

The sports report was read by Frances Chaplin, in place of Cathy Garfat, who was unable to attend. During the summer the women had a team in the Tug of War at the Tombola, also on Aug. 23, we held a Putting tournament at the Lennoxville Golf Course. This was won by Pat Winslow. On Sunday, Sept. 7, the first annual Horseshoe tournament was held. The large trophy, donated by John Way, was won by Thelma Wright and Phoebe Bailey. The runners-up were Emily Smerdon and Alberta Scott. We also have six teams who will be playing in the ladies dart tournament.

Cloakroom convenor, Helen Anderson reported that the cloakroom would be opening on October 4. Everyone was given a list so they would know when it was their turn.

Raffle convenor, Jean Paige said she hoped everyone was busy selling ticket on our quilt which will be raffled at the end of November. Everyone is asked to bring in what they have sold at the next meeting. Also a ceramic Christmas Tree was generously donated by Marilyn Beattie to be raffled at Christmas time.

We served supper to the members of the Black Watch group on Saturday, Sept. 13.

On Saturday, Oct. 25, we will be holding a Flea Market. Anyone wishing to have a table should contact Barb Leonard at 569-4958.

Tentative dates were set to hold a Tupperware and a Jewellery demonstration for our members.

This year the Thanksgiving Supper will be held on October 11, with the menu consisting of turkey, squash, potatoes, cole slaw and home-made pies. All members and their guests are welcome.

We will also have the Armistice supper in November. For this we will be serving roast beef, turnip, cole slaw, potatoes and home-made pies.

We will be holding our Rummage Sale on Sept. 25, from 4 - 6 p.m. Anyone wishing to donate food for the sales table is welcome to do so. Also rummage can be brought to the Hut on the evening of September 24.

This year the Car Rally is being held on Sept. 28. This is a chance for everyone to get out and enjoy the fall scenery. The ladies Auxiliary will be donating coffee, donuts, and Kool-aid for the children.

Everyone was in agreement that we give a donation to the men of our Unit.

Sylvia Coates brought in quilt pieces which some members have taken home to work on.

Theresa Murphy and Emily Smerdon will be at the Hut on Friday, Sept. 19, in the afternoon, working on ideas for our Christmas Bazaar to be held on November 27. Anyone wishing to bring in their own ideas and help is welcome.

UCW Meeting

COOKSHIRE — Sixteen ladies attended the September U.C.W. meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Jean Stevenson, with Mrs. Barbara Vogell as joint hostess.

Mrs. Gloria Bellam presided over the meeting, and welcomed all to the first meeting after the summer holidays.

Miss Aleta Mackey was in charge of the worship period. She read Psalm 118, and gave a meditation on the theme, "This Time Tomorrow". She stated that anticipation is half the pleasure of a trip, but that often one becomes frustrated when it cannot be taken as planned. Life is full of disappointments, but one must realize they should take things in their stride, they should take some time out for pleasure, give a day's work for a day's pay, and should not become so busy that they completely forget God and prayer. Life should be lived now, and we should be grateful for past benefits, and not forget to give thanks in our prayers to God for his many past benefits. She gave a short prayer, which was followed by the repetition of the Lord's prayer in unison.

Mrs. Nellie Parker read the minutes, which were approved as read, a number of cards of thanks were received for favors received. The ladies were reminded of the U.C.W. Fall Rally held in East Angus on Sept. 10. Mrs. Barbara Vogell gave the treasurer's report, and presented a bill, which was ordered to be paid.

Mrs. Diane Learned gave some instructions on ordering cards, etc., from the catalogue, and suggested that all orders be in by the next meeting.

The cheer committee reported having sent a sunshine basket to Mrs. Charles Cruickshank. The ladies were sorry to learn that she is now a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital.

A suggestion was made that we sell some pens in order to make some money, but the matter was tabled until the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Diane Learned, with Mrs. Pauline Thorneloe as joint hostess.

It was decided to have a sale and tea on Sat., Nov. 29, in the Church Hall. The Birchton ladies will hold their sale on Oct. 25.

The ladies were asked to bring in their labels and coupons to the next meeting.

It was decided to send a gift to our foster child in Central America, for Christmas, the same amount as last year.

Mrs. Mary E. Heatherington gave a resume of the last joint Official Board meeting, which had been held in Sawyerville on July 7.

Mrs. Roberta Macmillan and Mrs. Pauline Thorneloe exhibited samples of articles which they had made up for the Fall sale, and gave out material to be made up also. There will be a get-together in the Church Hall on Thursday, Oct. 2nd, at 7:30 p.m., when the ladies will all work on articles for the sale.

Following adjournment, the hostesses served refreshments.

UCW Meeting

WATERVILLE — The Waterville U.C.W. met on the afternoon of Sept. 10 at the home of Mrs. Irene Ingham.

The meeting opened with the U.C.W. Purpose, after which Mrs. K. Spafford led the devotional period, taking as her theme "Faith, the Basis of the Christian Life." The hymn "Faith of Our Fathers" was sung, and verses of scripture pertaining to faith were read. Mrs. Spafford went on to say that faith involves the supernatural. Many things cannot be understood by the human mind - for instance, the Trinity, which is above reason, but not beyond reason. Therefore faith consists of accepting testimony. We must accept Jesus, true God, true Man, and follow Him, step by step. God can't deceive or be deceived. God gives us the free gift of His grace through our faith in His Word. The great obstacles to this acceptance are pride and a spirit of independence, but a complete surrender to Him is required, and this is only possible through a deep and unshakable faith. Devotions closed with a poem and a prayer, and the offering was received.

The minutes of the last meeting were accepted as read. The treasurer's report was very satisfactory, showing all commitments met.

The secretary read a letter of thanks from Mrs. K. Spafford for a card received while in hospital, and Mrs. E. McGovern expressed appreciation for a birthday card.

Arrangements were made for our contribution towards the refreshments to be served following our minister's induction service in Hatley United Church on Sept. 14.

Mrs. Burton read a letter from Louise Orr, Community Animator for Adult Education Services, informing us that a program in basic reading and writing skills for adults has been set up as a community service by the Eastern Townships Regional School Board. Anyone interested in further information on this program may call Louise at 569-9468, ext. 52.

The secretary also read a letter from Jo Desfosses, animator with the same group, telling us that a general meeting to define the needs of our local senior and handicapped citizens will be held Sept. 23, at 7:30 p.m. in Lennoxville Elementary School cafeteria. We are asked to be interested in working in such a program. The number to call for further information is 569-9468, ext. 53.

Miss M. Swanson reminded members of the upcoming rummage sale Sept. 25 and 26, and asked that donations be brought in on Monday, Sept. 15. She also welcomed Mrs. Lemon, who was attending her first Waterville U.C.W. meeting, and several other guests.

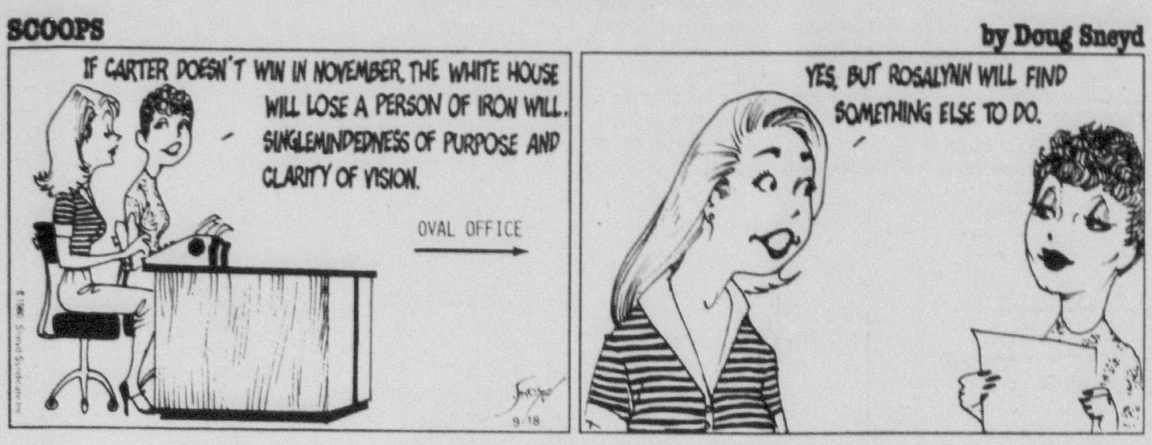

Mrs. Burton expressed the need of a new organ lamp, and it was moved by Mrs. D. Gale, seconded by Mrs. C. Smith and carried that she be authorized to purchase whatever she deemed suitable.

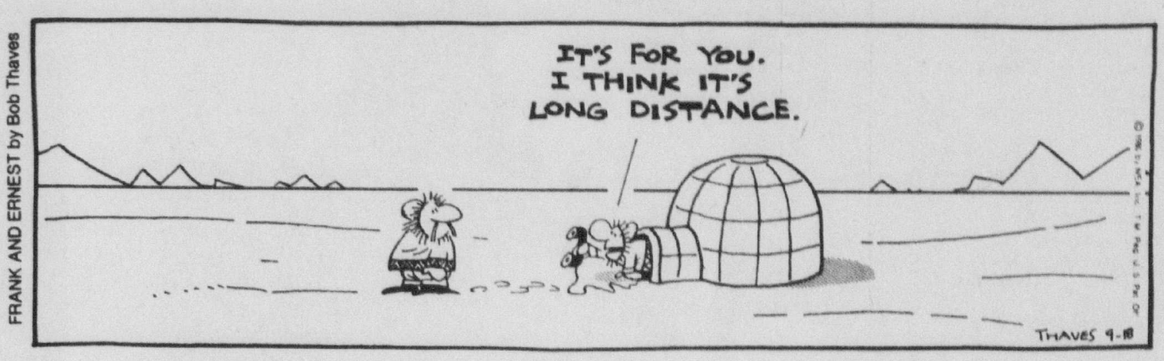

Business concluded, the president, Mrs. E. Ball, closed the meeting with a prayer.

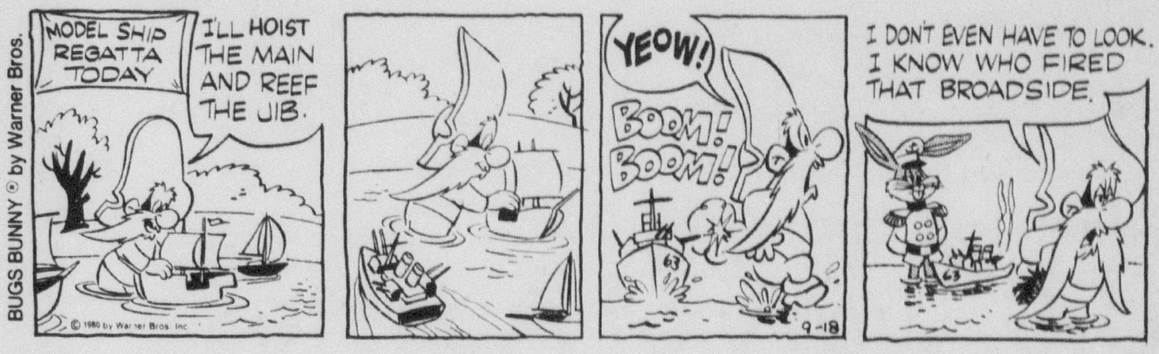

Tea was served by the hostess, with Mrs. C. Smith and Mrs. R. Kinghorn presiding at the tea table.

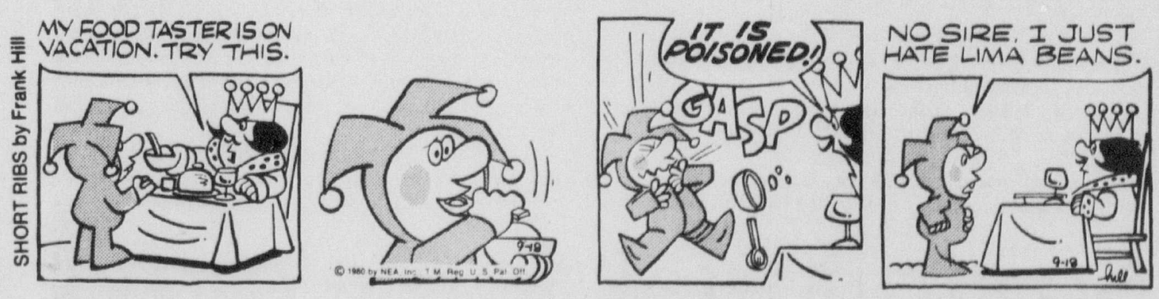

the Record

Mets' 5-2 victory erodes Expo lead

NEW YORK (AP) — September is a time for watching scoreboards, especially when you're in first place and the two teams chasing you are playing each other.

But Montreal manager Dick Williams couldn't decide what he wanted from the PittsburghPhiladelphia game Wednesday night.

"To tell you the truth," said Williams, "I was undecided.

"I was more concerned with what we did."

What Montreal did was drop a 5-2 decision to New York Mets as Lee Mazzilli drove in four runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly. The loss trimmed the Expos' lead in baseball's National League East to 1½ games over the Phillies, who edged Pittsburgh 5-4 in 11 innings. Pittsburgh remained five games behind.

Of Montreal's remaining 16 games, six will be played against the Phillies and two against Pittsburgh. The Expos must play their next 10 games on the road, where they are a sub-.500 team. They finish the season with six at home — the last three against the Phillies.

The Expos jumped ahead with four straight singles, building a two-run third inning. But the Mets bounced from behind against loser Scott Sanderson, 15-9, in the fifth.

Winner Dyar Miller, 1-1, and Pete Falcone shut the Expos out on two hits over the final six innings.

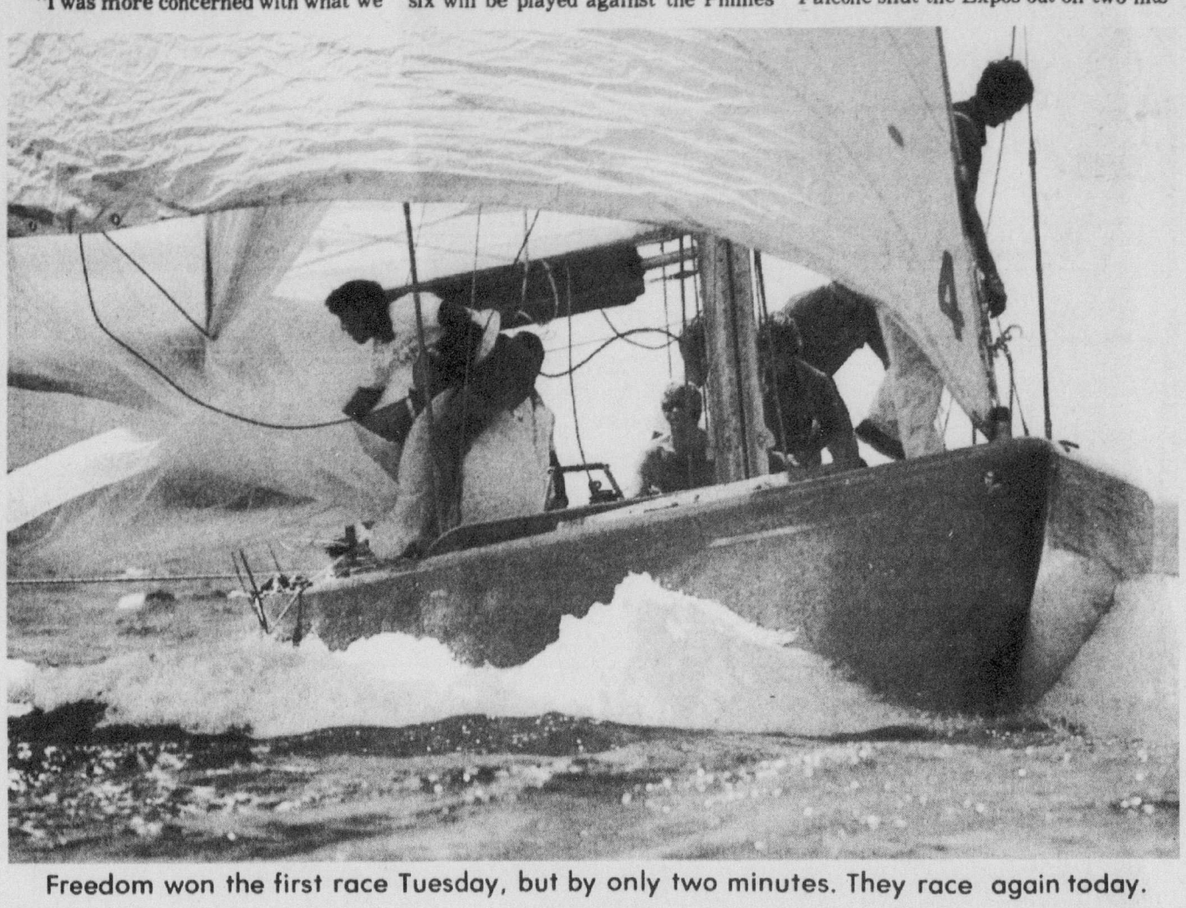

In Pittsburgh, Garry Maddox stole two bases and scored on a pinch-hit single by former Expo Del Unser to snap an 11th-inning tie and lift the Phillies to a 5-4 win over the Pirates. The victim was Pittsburgh reliever Kent Tekulve, whose record fell to 8-10 with his fifth loss in his last five decisions. Tug McGraw, 2-4, earned the victory and Sparky Lyle pitched the bottom of the 11th to earn his first NL save.

"You can't sell Pittsburgh short," said Phillies manager Dallas Green of the Pirates', who are five games back. "They have the capability of coming back. But it's tough when you're chasing two teams."

"We'll be rooting for whoever is playing Montreal," said McGraw. "But we have six games with the Expos and that's going to do a lot of deciding who wins."

Freedom won the first race Tuesday, but by only two minutes. They race again today.

America's Cup: Race Two

U.S. wary of Aussies

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The U.S. 12-metre yacht Freedom and challenger Australia resumed competition for the America's Cup today with Freedom leading the best-of-seven series 1-0 and holding, if nothing else, a psychological advantage over her rival.

"We know now that the Australians have a good boat," said Freedom's navigator, Halsey Herreshoff. "They have a fast boat, so we know we have to do everything right to beat them.

"We are not overconfident."

Freedom overcame some mechanical problems with her rudder over the final two legs of the six-leg course on Tuesday to win by one minute and 52 seconds.

"The race was a little more than three hours, so, what's that, 200 minutes? And we beat Australia by less than two minutes. That's less than one per cent."

Freedom actually led Australia by as much as 2:17 at the fifth mark after a run with the wind at her stern. That run was the beginning of Freedom's rudder troubles.

The story of Freedom's rudderless victory did not come out until the morning.

"The rudder cable broke just before the second weather mark, so we sailed the fifth leg almost entirely without the rudder."

Herreshoff said skipper Dennis Conner used the spinnaker sail and trim tab, a rudder-like flap attached to the keel, to round the fifth mark.

"We started the final leg on a long port tack. It was lucky we were able to do that because we got a jury rig working during that tack. The rest of the way, Dennis steered with the trim tab, and Tom Whidden worked the rudder."

CREW IMPROVISED

Whidden, the port tailer, became the helmsman on the final leg after a member of the crew attached a line to the rudder assembly below decks, ran it through a pulley block and wound it around the winch Whidden was working, Herreshoff said.

"It made the race kind of exciting, and a little risky."

The Australians were working to correct mechanical troubles on Wednesday. Immediately after Tuesday's race, her crew removed Australia's revolutionary mast to adjust some fittings.

The mast has a flexible fiberglass tip to allow the spar to bend and give the mainsail more surface area. The curvature of the mast is really not all that complex once you get the hang of it," said Australia's tactician, Ben Lexcen. "We were doing a lot of things with it yesterday we didn't have to do.

"We haven't used it before. Yesterday was the first time we've raced with it, and we got six months' worth of experience just from that."

Royals want Yankees after winning AL West

New York Yankees have picked up some supporters in their bid to win the American League East baseball title — Kansas City Royals.

That was the general feeling expressed by the Royals late Wednesday after they clinched the AL West championship with a 5-0 victory over California in the first game of a doubleheader — they'd like to settle an old score with the Yankees in the AL pennant playoffs.

The Royals lost to the Yankees in three previous playoff meetings, in 1976, 1977 and 1978.

The clinching of their fourth West title in five years was the earliest in Royals' history. And the crowd of 25,908 at Royals Stadium was on its collective feet cheering when Dennis Leonard struck out Jason Thompson to end the game.

The Angels went on to win the inconsequential second game, 7-4.

ORIOLES WIN

In other AL action, Baltimore Orioles defeated Detroit Tigers 9-3, Cleveland Indians edged Boston Red Sox 6-5 in 11 innings, Oakland A's trimmed Texas Rangers 6-4, Milwaukee Brewers swept a doubleheader from Minnesota Twins 3-2 and 6-1 and Seattle Mariners blanked Chicago White Sox 4-0. The game between Toronto Blue Jays and New York was suspended by rain in the top of the 10th inning with the Blue Jays leading 5-3.

Willie Wilson singled and scored in the first inning when Kansas City took a 1-0 lead against Ralph Botting. Then Wilson drove in two runs with a second-inning single for all the runs that Leonard needed.

The Angels, last year's West champions, won the second game behind a five-RBI performance by Brian Downing. Brett, the major league's leading hitter, returned to the Kansas City lineup for the first time since injuring his hand on Sept. 6 and collected two singles in five at-bats to keep his average at .396.

Orioles 9 Tigers 3

Dan Graham, Terry Crowley and Rich Dauer combined to drive in seven runs as Baltimore defeated Detroit.

Indians 6 Red Sox 5

Gary Alexander drove in pinch-runner Jerry Dybzinski with a two-out pinch-single in the 11th inning to lead Cleveland over Boston.

Blue Jays 5 Yankees 2

Ernie Whitt's single allowed two runs to score in the 10th inning and gave Toronto a 5-3 lead over New York before rain suspended the game one out later.

Mariners 4 White Sox 0

Floyd Bannister and Mike Parrott combined on a six-hitter.

OWNERS APPROVE A'S SALE

CHICAGO (AP) — American League baseball owners have unanimously approved the sale for $12.7 million of Oakland A's by Charles O. Finley.

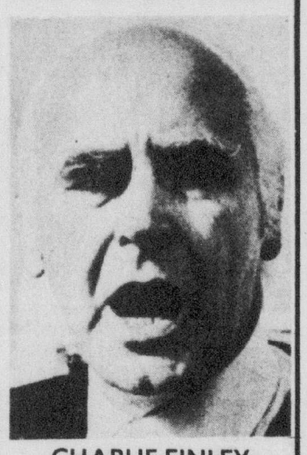

League president Lee MacPhail said after the vote Wednesday the transfer of the baseball team to two executives of Levi Strauss and Co. and a former executive of the firm will be formalized Nov. 6.

The new owners are Walter A. Haas Jr., chairman of Levi Strauss; Walter J. Haas, grants manager for the firm's community affairs department; and Roy Eisenhardt, a San Francisco lawyer. Eisenhardt will be president of the club and Walter A. Haas Jr. vice-president.

Meanwhile, Edward J. DeBartolo Sr., 71, a multimillionaire from Youngstown, Ohio, made an informal presentation in his continued bid to buy Chicago White Sox.

OFFER ACCEPTED

The Sox board of directors has accepted the $20-million offer of DeBartolo, who owns several horse racetracks and other sports enterprises, to buy the club and all facilities with the understanding the franchise will remain in Chicago.

Boxing task force moves on

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal task force on boxing concluded two days of hearings Wednesday and chairman Clarence L. Gosse hopes the commission's visits to five other Canadian cities are as enlightening.

"We've certainly gotten a lot out of our hearings here, and the briefs submitted to us will help us I'm sure," said Gosse, a urologist and former Nova Scotia lieutenant-governor.

The eight-man task force, having already held hearings in Halifax, now moves to Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver before concluding Sept. 26.

On Wednesday, the commission heard from a host of boxing organization representatives and individuals.

Guy Jutras, referee of the fight in May between Canadian lightweight champion Gaetan Hart and Ralph Racine, told the commission he was lying awake several nights after the fight when the idea for a new head protector came to him.

BATTERED INTO COMA

Racine of Niagara Falls, Ont., was battered into a coma by Hart and is still undergoing therapy.

Jutras said the helmet would include air bags for cushioning blows and have a protruding bar to protect the chin.

The veteran referee said he would not advocate use of the headgear in professional bouts, but only for training purposes.

The task force was commissioned by federal Sport Minister Gerald Regan after the Racine fight and the ill-fated Cleveland Denny-Gaetan Hart bout June 20.

The task force, investigating all aspects of amateur and professional boxing in Canada, is to submit its report and recommendations to the federal government early next year.

Grid attendance suffers

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Football League is suffering from the World Series blues.

At least that's what CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur blames for a drop in attendance at Montreal's Olympic Stadium to watch the Alouettes during the first half of the 1980 schedule.

Gaudaur denied suggestions the CFL was losing ground as a television attraction, especially in areas where the league is in head-to-head TV competition with the National Football League.

In fact, when CFL and NFL games are televised at the same time, "we virtually eliminate them as competition."

Gaudaur said for the last 12 years, only in 1979 was there a signficant drop in attendance — one per cent. A reversal in 1973 was negligible.

With Montreal attendance down 69,602 after the Labor Day holiday split, over-all league figures show a drop of 65,647 against the same time last year.

Youngsters vie for Habs' positions

By TERRY SCOTT

MONTREAL (CP) — "Listen to this," yelled Montreal Canadiens defenceman Larry Robinson as he fumbled with the controls of a tape recorder.

Suddenly the whinny of a horse filled the air and his team-mates, gathered for a luncheon to mark the official start of the club's National Hockey League training camp Wednesday, howled with laughter.

On this first day of intrasquad workouts, however, laughter was not often heard.

For the first time in five years the Canadiens are entering an NHL season minus the Stanley Cup, and about 60 players sweated through two sessions on the rink.

"We're not happy about the fact we lost the Stanley Cup," said Ron Caron, director of player development for the Canadiens.

"Maybe that's why we've made an effort to bring as much young talent to training camp as we possibly could."

NAMES TOP PROSPECTS

Caron named four leading candidates for employment with the club that slipped to third place in the over-all standings and was eliminated in the quarter-final series by Minnesota North Stars in 1979-80. They are:

—Doug Wickenheiser, the former star of Regina Pats in the Western Junior Hockey League who was the first choice in the NHL draft last June;

—Guy Carbonneau, 20, from the Quebec Major Junior League;

—Defenceman Bill Baker, who last season joined Nova Scotia Voyageurs, the Canadiens American Hockey League farm club, after playing with the United States Olympic team; and —Yvan Joly, the former Ottawa 67s junior who can play either left or right wing.

"I like his speed," Caron said of Joly. "It's not just because his name is Yvan, but really he reminds me of Yvan Cournoyer."

Cournoyer, a diminutive right winger, is fourth on the Canadiens all-time scoring list with 863 points, including 428 goals.
