Much equipment removed

Pictures show Cuban bases are being torn down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Preliminary analysis of photographs made Thursday shows clear indications that dismantling of missile bases in Cuba is proceeding, Defence Secretary McNamara said today.

A defence department spokesman told reporters that the pictures show that missile launchers have been removed from the sites.

Much of the associated launch equipment has been removed.

Castro gives address

Rejects inspection; wants US withdrawal

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro Thursday night rejected outright foreign supervision of the dismantling of Soviet missile bases in Cuba and again called for the United States to give up its naval bases at Guantanamo.

Letter to newspaper is studied

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons committee on privileges may begin an unprecedented study next week of a letter, attributed to an MP, which questions the impartiality of Speaker Marcel Lambert.

The letter was published by the Montreal newspaper Le Devoir over the name of Bernard Dumont (SC—Bellechasse) and suggests that in making certain rulings Speaker Lambert was "anti-Social Credit."

The government's intentions with regard to the letter were questioned in the Commons Thursday by Lionel Chevrier (L—Montreal Laurier). Veterans Minister Churchill, government House leader, proposed that it be referred to the 29-member committee on privileges and elections.

Never before in Canadian parliamentary history has the committee been asked to examine a published letter attributed to an MP which refers to the motives or actions of another MP.

Fluoridation aid to bones?

CHICAGO (AP) — A dental research group said Thursday that preliminary findings in a year-long study indicate that fluoridated water may not only help strengthen teeth but help bone formation as well.

The study, conducted in the Aurora-Rockford, Ill., region by Dr. Harold R. Englander, Dr. Rudolph dePalma and Dr. Robert G. Kesel is reported in the November issue of the journal of the American Dental Association.

The survey team chose Aurora, which has naturally fluoridated water, and Rockford, where the fluoride content is slight.

The study was made among 18- and 19-year-olds living in the towns most of their lives. Its results showed five times as much tooth loss and three times as many decayed and filled teeth among the Rockford youngsters as among the Aurorians.

Plan science fair

OTTAWA (CP) — Young students with a scientific bent will once again receive national recognition at the second Canada-wide science fair, to be held in Toronto next May 3 and 4. Last May, 45 high school students competed in the first national science fair here and the Canadian Science Fairs Council was formed to continue the work.

The Cuban prime minister said "strategic arms," presumably the missiles, were being removed by the Russians from Cuba, "but the rest of the weapons stay in our country."

Castro addressed a radio-television audience as Anastas I. Mikoyan, the Soviet Union's first deputy premier, discussed the Cuban crisis with U.S. and United Nations officials in New York prior to flying here late today.

His mission apparently was to try to remove the roadblock Castro threw up after being excluded from U.S. - Soviet arrangements for removal of the missiles under UN supervision.

Castro acknowledged that "we have some motive for discontent" with the Soviet Union for its decision to withdraw the missile bases. But he reminded his people of all the Russians had done for them and asserted, "We are friends of the Soviet Union."

Castro said UN inspection of Cuban soil would be "one more attempt to humiliate our country" and would violate Cuban sovereignty.

TO BE COMPLETED TODAY Sources at UN headquarters in New York felt that Castro either would soften his stand or would announce the Soviet Union had completed dismantling its bases and UN inspection therefore no longer was necessary.

Low flying reconnaissance planes — coming in swiftly by low radar — are considered less vulnerable than the U-2s which go into a slow glide when they are taking pictures.

Officials are virtually certain that the U-2 piloted by air force Maj. Rudolph Anderson Jr., Greenville, S.C., was knocked down by a Russian anti-aircraft rocket.

These government sources stressed there has been no scaling down in the degree of aerial surveillance.

The U-2 missions over Cuba were scrubbed after one of the U-2s and its pilot were lost last weekend, according to informants.

Mr. Chevrier, co-chairman of the Liberal campaign committee and MP for Montreal Laurier, assailed Social Credit leaders for "deceiving" Quebec voters last June with promises of a cure-all.

"They have a nihilist philosophy. They are against everything. They are against labor unions, nationalization, planning, crown corporations, Jews, democracy and the established order."

"But they are in favor of Social Credit."

Mr. Caouette, deputy Social Credit leader, said his group holds the balance of power in Parliament and is using it to good advantage. This brought thunderous boos from the students.

Mr. Johnson, continuing a three-day tour of Abitibi was scheduled to tour Amos during the day and speak at night in Val d'Or.

In Thetford Mines, Mr. Lesage attacked the Union Nationale's promise of a $1-an-hour minimum wage law "as a myth and a deception" which Mr. Johnson "knows cannot be applied."

"It would not be able to compete," Mr. Lesage said. "It could be terrible from the point of view of unemployment."

Mr. Lesage said Mr. Johnson had promised that companies would get government compensation to meet the increased payroll costs.

Contradictory meeting

PQ Liberal, Socred leaders swap charges

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec federal leaders of the Liberal and Social Credit parties traded angry charges from the same platform Thursday night, with 400 university students jeering and cheering like a football crowd.

Bringing about 20 Quebec MPs with them, Lionel Chevrier and Real Caouette clashed in a gloves - off "assemblee contradictoire" (contradictory meeting) sponsored by the University of Ottawa. Such debates were common in old-time Quebec politics.

Mr. Chevrier, co-chairman of the Liberal campaign committee and MP for Montreal Laurier, assailed Social Credit leaders for "deceiving" Quebec voters last June with promises of a cure-all.

Mr. Lesage said Mr. Johnson had promised that companies would get government compensation to meet the increased payroll costs.

The government would need bureaucrats to go over company books, he said. The money would go to friends.

"They are trying by all means to come back to the sad system of patronage which the people of Quebec rejected in June, 1960," Mr. Lesage said.

Touring in Temiscamingue Thursday, Mr. Johnson charged that the riding is "one of the first to go" under what he described as the Liberal government's plan to "eliminate" 20 rural ridings in a redistribution of the provincial legislature's 95 seats.

He charged Mr. Lesage with less than 29,000 population. "Democracy is more than a question of numbers," he said. Mr. Johnson said the government's expropriation plans would not stop at electricity.

Levesque on nationalization

Threatens to abolish legislative council if block attempted

By CUTHBERT JONES (Record Staff Writer)

Addressing an audience which jammed St. Jeanne d'Arc hall in the West Ward, Resources Minister Rene Levesque last night threatened that the Liberal Government would abolish the Legislative Council, Quebec's Upper House, if the appointed Councillors attempted to block the program of nationalizing the private power companies of the province.

Mr. Levesque was speaking in support of Carrier Fortin, Liberal candidate in Sherbrooke in the Nov. 14 provincial general elections.

The Resources Minister's outburst came during the question and answer period which followed his two-hour defence of the nationalization program.

Asked what would happen if the Legislative Councillors rejected legislation authorizing the takeover of the power companies, Mr. Levesque declared:

"If the Nov. 14 vote supports the Government, there will be no reason to maintain a Legislative Council which has announced itself opposed to the project. They should be thrown out the window and we will take the necessary steps to do this, using the power given by the people. These men have no mandate but sit through favoritism and as a reward for services rendered."

In reply to another questioner who asked what the next step in the economic emancipation of Quebec would be following the nationalization of the electricity companies declared that at the present time studies are being made as to the feasibility of establishing a steel-producing complex in Quebec.

"The surveys required before a decision was reached to nationalize the power companies required more than two years," he said, North American and European experts have been turning to reports that nationalization of the forestry and mining industries was on the agenda. Mr. Levesque declared that there was no such intention at the present time but, he said, "no government can make a pledge that it will never follow any particular course of action. The future is always uncertain and changing conditions may require changes in policy."

The Resources Minister also denied that the nationalization of the power companies was the first step towards socialism in this province.

Johnson charges Premier Lesage was 'blackmailed' by Levesque

QUEBEC (CP) — Union Nationale Leader Daniel Johnson Thursday night charged that Premier Lesage is "a spineless man" who was "blackmailed" by Resources Minister Rene Levesque into calling the Nov. 14 provincial election.

"If by mischance the Liberals stay in power," he said, "it will no longer be the spineless Mr. Lesage who is the leader, but this power - hungry Rene Levesque..."

Mr. Johnson spoke in Rouyn, the home town of Real Caouette, the deputy leader of the Social Credit party, whom he described as "a man with a heart" on whom he could count for collaboration in implementing the Union Nationale's economic program.

Meanwhile, in Armagh, near Quebec City, Mr. Lesage said Mr. Johnson should resign from public life because the Union Nationale leader refused to say whether he is for or against the government's plan to expropriate 11 private electric power companies.

"It is the duty of a man in public life to give his opinion on important matters," Mr. Lesage said. "If he is unwilling, he should resign."

Today, Mr. Lesage is scheduled to tour Roberval and Lake St John ridings and speak at a night meeting in Roberval.

It provides for a one-third increase — to $400,000,000 from $300,000,000 — in the lending ability of the Farm Credit Corporation.

Mr. Hamilton told the House that the bill will allow greater flexibility in the purposes for which farmers may borrow from the corporation, and help expedite agricultural readjustment.

NEHRU

Says India will not waver

CP from Reuters AP NEW DELHI—Prime Minister Nehru has vowed India will not compromise its honor in the search for a solution to the undeclared border war with Communist China.

He told visiting Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios Thursday night India would try to find the way to peace, but added "a peace whose price is the giving away of our honor is not a peace."

Meanwhile, the Indian defence ministry reported that the Chinese Communists had fired on an Indian patrol in the Jang area east of Tawang in the Northeast Frontier Agency area. The Indians suffered no casualties, he added.

The communique reported no change on the western front in Ladakh, Kashmir. A spokesman reported some snow in the last two days in the Leh area of Ladakh and slight snowfalls in the Tawang area.

The communique reported 11 Indian soldiers had been killed and 10 wounded in fighting at Demchok, southern Ladakh, which was captured by the Chinese earlier this week. Chinese casualties were described as considerably higher.

SET UP AIRLIFT

(A U.S. army airlift was set up in West Germany today to fly needed weapons to the hard-pressed Indian Himalayan army. U.S. Air Force C-130 jet transport planes loaded mountain artillery, communications and transportation equipment, assembled from U.S. stocks in Europe.)

Nehru chided thousands of university students whose anti-Chinese demonstrations Thursday he called "the acts of a weak people."

"This is not the time for these manifestations," he said, urging his countrymen "to keep your heads cool and not be carried away by anger or emotion."

Sanctions are endorsed

Hammer South Africa

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — South Africa took its worst hammering in the United Nations Thursday night when the special political committee endorsed by a wide margin a measure for sanctions against the land of apartheid racial separation.

The 110-member committee voted 60 to 16 with 21 abstentions—and 13 absentees—for a 33-country resolution which also asks the security council to consider, if necessary, expulsion of South Africa unless it changes its racial policies. The measure now goes to the General Assembly.

Triumphant African nations led the committee to its strong-armed action in 17 years in dealing with the South African question.

Canada, the United States and Britain were among countries which denounced apartheid in debate but voted against the draft because they opposed sanctions as ineffective and expulsion as dangerous for the UN.

On Ghana's motion, the committee decided by a ballot of 46 to 38, with Canada in the negative, that the whole resolution would be voted on, rather than separate paragraph votes, as in the past. Countries thus were deprived of the opportunity of taking a formal stand on various aspects of the measure and some abstained rather than vote against apartheid denunciation.

Heath MacQuarrie, parliamentary assistant to External Affairs Minister Howard Green, announced before the vote that Canada planned to support a clause calling for a special committee on South Africa.

The committee, to be appointed by assembly president Muhammad Zafrulla Khan, would keep South Africa's racial policies under review and help bring the "full pressure of world public opinion" on that country," MacQuarrie said.

Test ban compromise attempted

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada was in the middle as the 110-member senior political committee prepared to vote late today on a multiplying series of proposals for a ban on nuclear bomb tests.

A proposal submitted by Canada was seen by many delegates as an attempt to "marry" — or at least to find some common ground — between two rival resolutions before the committee and it became the chief topic of debate Thursday.

Ghana on the one hand and Mauritania and Madagascar on the other moved on separate paths Thursday night in an attempt to broaden the Canadian plan where underground tests are concerned.

The already-complicated situation became heavy with confusion and delegates were almost visibly relieved when Canada's Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns joined with the Soviet Union in proposing an adjournment until this afternoon to allow consultations among delegations and groups of delegations. The vote had been scheduled for Thursday night.

In the farm credit debate H. W. Herridge, NDP House leader, suggested that consideration be given to extending benefits of the credit act to such groups as tree farmers and fur farmers.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson praised the government bill and chided the Liberals' farm critic, Hazen Argue of Assiniboia, for not "facing up" to its merits. However, he agreed with Mr. Argue that small loans should not be subject to the $50 appraisal charge.

Marcel Lambert, was referred to the committee on privileges and elections for possible action. Mr. Dumont, member for Quebec's Bellechasse constituency, was expelled for part of a day earlier this session for refusing to abide by a ruling of the speaker.

2. A bill sponsored by Art Smith (PC — Calgary South) calling for a national lottery was warmly supported by members of the Conservative, New Democratic and Social Credit parties but failed to come to a vote. The lottery would be operated for charitable purposes.

Show Business

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Italy's most popular film actor, Marcello Mastroianni, was here this week, but only briefly.

Hollywood is a nice place to visit, he indicated, but he wouldn't want to work here. The Italian came to help promote his new film Divorce — Italian Style. His first impression of Los Angeles was from the airplane: "It is too big. I will get lost."

After a day or two on the ground, he found the town less frightening. His translated comment: "You have many beautiful villas here."

All of his words were filtered through a helpful interpreter, since Mastroianni has scant knowledge of English. Therein lies the reason he would probably never do a film in Hollywood.

A dedicated Roman, he cited a proverb that translated something like, "do what comes naturally and you will be happy."

"I don't think I would ever act in English," he said. "Unless you have known a second language for a long time or had a mother who spoke it, I don't think you can give more than a mechanical performance in it."

He was reminded that Oscar winners, Sophia Loren and Maximilian Schell, have done all right in English-language films. "Yes, but Sophia is young," said the 38-year-old actor. "That makes a difference. Also the fact that she is a woman; women can adapt themselves to new languages faster."

"And Schell is German; that makes a difference, too. The Germans are great doers."

Let us face it: My biggest problem in learning English is that I'm lazy."

That has been a problem with Mastroianni's adjustment to America. He likes to sleep until noon. The hustle-bustle here has him up at 7 a.m.

His introduction to America was a week's whirl in New York. Despite the pace, he was wild for the big city — the words "magnificent" and "marvelous" come through without need of translation.

"I would like to go back for a month next year and just study the city as a private citizen."

BACKACHE May be Warning

Backache is often caused by lazy kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest or that tired-out and heavy-headed feeling may soon follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better — sleep better — work better. Get Dodd's Kidney Pills now.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

STRENGTH SHOWN ON EARLY BID

Bobby Nail, of Houston, will be the only member of the 1962 American team competing in the Phoenix trials. He and his partner, James Jacoby of Dallas, will be the only Texans in the trials. I would be rooting for them even if Jim weren't my son.

In their bidding they like to show strength early unlike many other experts who keep partners as well as opponents in the dark.

Thus, Jim's two spade response to the opening diamond would not be made by many guard against such things as ruffs.

Bobby's rebid to three diamonds was intended to see what type hand Jim had for his jump bid. After Jim rebid spades Bobby was ready to take control.

The four and five no-trump bids disclosed that Jim held two aces and one king. The king would have to be in spades. Jim would not have bid two spades with only two aces and a suit headed by ace-jack.

Bobby was also sure that Jim would hold either a seven card spade suit or strength in diamonds. In either case, Bobby counted 13 tricks and set the grand slam in no-trump to

REV. LORNE ROSS

Rev. L. Elias inducted as new parish pastor

A service of institution and induction of the Rev. Louis Elias recently moved from St. Paul's Church, Charlottetown, was conducted on October 23rd by the Right Reverend W. W. Davis, Bishop Coadjutor of Nova Scotia.

Archdeacon Matthews preached the sermon.

Among those present were representatives of the federal government, of the civic administration and other Christian faiths. At a reception following the ceremony the prime minister and the lieutenant-governor addressed words of welcome to the new rector.

Bishop Davis, in his remarks, drew attention to the fact that in addition to himself and Archdeacon Matthews, the Rev. Louis Elias was also a past member of St. Stephen's congregation, Coaticook.

Chimney fire at Richmond

RICHMOND — (Special) — Richmond firemen were called out at noon Thursday to the Morin Apartments on Gouin Avenue to quench a chimney fire.

Damage by the blaze was estimated at $300 to $400 by Assistant Fire Chief Leslie Rattray and Lt. Ernest Dancaux.

The fire kept Assistant Chief Rattray, Lt. Dancaux and 12 volunteer firemen busy for two hours. It got out of control for a time when it spread from the chimney of the building to the top floor apartments.

Police hold Hallowe'en pranksters

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) — Cold and wet weather did nothing to dampen the spirits of Hallowe'en vandals here Wednesday night.

Vandals here Wednesday night caused an estimated $800 damage to the Continental Store at the corner of Main and South Streets, when they broke two plate glass windows with B-B guns.

The two windows broken faced the South Street side of the establishment.

Another incident occurred about 8:10 p.m. Wednesday when someone called up the Cowansville fire department to report a fire burning out of control at the Pacific Robert house on the Dunham Road.

Fifteen volunteer firemen answered the call.

Within three minutes, police and firemen were at the Robert house, and soon found out that there was no fire. The whole affair was a Hallowe'en gag.

Cowansville volunteer firemen are paid $1.75 per hour. Fifteen men answered the call.

Cowansville provincial police head, Jean Staniulis, reported Thursday that a group of Bedford youngsters are being detained for questioning in connection with an act of vandalism Hallowe'en night at the Stanbridge East English School. Nine windows were broken at the school Wednesday night. After breaking the windows, the vandals entered into the school's hall but no damage was reported inside the building.

Corporal Staniulis said that he had received no other reports of vandalism in either Brome or Missisquoi County.

Park traffic up

OTTAWA (CP) — Record visitor traffic to the 17 national parks this season was reported Thursday by Northern Affairs Minister Dinsdale. A total of 6,412,849 persons visited the parks between April 1 and Sept. 30, up 29 per cent from last year. Banff led the list, topping the 1,000,000 mark for the first time in a summer season. Prince Edward Island National Park was next with 969,207 visitors to its gulf shore beaches.

Election campaign

Long rallies are regaining in popularity

By CUTHBERT JONES
(Record staff writer)

Political meetings, which appeared on their way out as candidates made increasing use of other media to present their policies to the electors, appear to have made a comeback in the present provincial election campaign.

Candidates and their supporters, who had become accustomed to speaking before a mere handful of electors during the past few years, are finding themselves facing packed halls in the current fight.

And last night's Liberal rally in support of Carrier Fortin, party candidate in Sherbrooke, held in Ste. Jeanne d'Arc parish hall on Galt Street West proved no exception to the custom.

A crowd of more than 1,000 packed the spacious hall to hear the candidate and Resources Minister Rene Levesque present their case for the return of the Lesage Government.

Whether the speakers have been inspiring the crowds or the crowds have been inspiring the speakers is debatable. But one thing is certain. The oratory has become more impassioned and the speeches much longer.

The headline speakers have been engaging in two-hour marathon addresses while the introductory addresses run for nearly an hour.

Four hours appear to be the agreed time for a properly conducted political rally this year and last night the Liberal rally held within this format. Introductory speakers started off at about 8:10 and it was a few minutes short of midnight when the resources minister withdrew from the rostrum.

Singularly the crowds seem to welcome the long orations and with very few exceptions remained from beginning to end of the speechmaking. This despite the fact that more than two-thirds of the audience had to stand.

And the women are as determined as the men to get the full value of the discourses.

Last night, Mr. Fortin presented his case for election by quoting extensive figures indicating just what the Liberal Government had done for Sherbrooke during the past two years.

Since 1960, he said, Sherbrooke County had received $48,000,000 in payments of one sort or another from the province. This included $16,000,000 in grants to hospitals and hospitalization insurance payments, $10,000,000 for the University of Sherbrooke, $1,650,000 for the local seminary, $6,735,000 for the school commissions, $4,000,000 for the normal school, $280,000 in bursaries for 1,245 students, $8,000,000 in social welfare, $135,000 in farm loans, $1,400,000 for Foyer St. Joseph and $300,000 to assist the City of Sherbrooke to widen King Street East.

Turning to future projects, Mr. Fortin said the Government planned to spend $4,000,000 on construction of an institute of technology and would aid financially in the construction of a new bridge across the St. Francis River. It also planned assistance for the Montcalm school-park project that would permit the city to save $500,000.

Attacking the record of the Union Nationale, Mr. Fortin declared:

"In 1960, the Union Nationale was judged by the people. Here is the same party and the same team with new promises and a request for pardon. Are you willing to entrust these men with the administration of a budget totalling one billion dollars?"

He announced that the provincial government was ready to co-operate with the city in the construction of a public building that would provide accommodation for both municipal and provincial services.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES — The sign painters who produced the indicators above had trouble with their spelling as well as their sense of direction. Left, "strictly" is not spelled strictly according to the dictionary as motorists using the CNR parking lot at Richmond have noted. In Asestos, drivers are having difficulty with the sign at the corner of Manville and Champlain Streets. It should be reversed.

Silence at Cowansville this year

Bell-ringer gives up ghost

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) — After 25 years of uninterrupted spooking, the Hallowe'en ghost of Cowansville has adopted a touch and go attitude.

On Hallowe'en night 1960, the bell in the Trinity Anglican Church tower which had mysteriously rung for 25 years, suddenly fell silent.

Hallowe'en night 1961, the ghost returned, but changed the location of his appearance. About 2:30 a.m. last year, Cowansville municipal police, but a few feet away from the Emmanuel United Church on Main Street, heard the bell tolling.

Wednesday night however, the ghost deserted Cowansville Church bellfries.

Everything was silent. In past years, the bell would ring periodically during the night, sometimes even as late as 5 a.m. Usually police would arrive on the scene, search the belfry and the nearby grounds and find nothing.

Last year, police Chief Ernest Deschamps was close to the United Church when the tolling began and appeared on the scene some 30 seconds after the noise began. But, as in past years, no one was there.

But this year, no bell. Perhaps the mysterious bell-ringer gave up the ghost.

Bank hold up

Brothers face charges of armed robbery here

Two Sherbrooke brothers will appear in Sherbrooke Court of Sessions before Judge Evender Veilleux for preliminary hearing today to face armed robbery charges resulting from last Friday night's bank holdup.

The brothers, Jacques, 23, and Raymond Talon, 25, were arrested shortly after a bank holdup at the Banque Canadienne Nationale at 578 King Street East during which an estimated $4,300 was taken.

Since the holdup, masks, hoods, revolvers and a shot gun have been recovered.

Tuesday a sawed-off 303 rifle was recovered in a field near the Hotel Dieu Hospital near the same place that two other firearms believed used in the holdup were found by citizens.

Sherbrooke police are still looking for a third man who is believed to have fled with the cash following the hold-up.

Maj. Millsom was not married.

Magog River

To drop city action

City Attorney Albert Rivard told The Record Friday he will ask city council to withdraw legal actions taken against Napoleon Poulin for extending a section of the Magog River bank.

Mr. Rivard said he plans to ask council to withdraw the action because Mr. Poulin only filled in a swamp on his property.

Early this summer council decided to take action against Poulin who has a summer cottage in Rock Forest near the banks of the Magog river, after Alderman Gerard Berard told them too many people were filling in the river and using it as an extension of their property.

Mr. Rivard claimed that the filling in of the swamp didn't affect the Magog River and said no charges could be laid against Poulin.

Straight party fight, issues confused

For the first time in more than a quarter of a century, Quebec voters face a straight choice between the Government and official Opposition parties in the Nov. 14 provincial general elections. In more than two-thirds of the ridings only two candidates are seeking the endorsement of the electors and the only third party activity is limited to a handful of entries by the rather unstable Provincial Action Party which is contesting less than a dozen seats.

The return to a virtual two-party battle across the province should simplify the problem of the electors in choosing between the ins and the outs.

But, unfortunately, the leaders of the two parties appear intent upon doing their best to confuse the voters and make their selection difficult.

Government speakers have done their best to concentrate public interest on the question of state ownership of the electricity producing companies, while the Opposition spokesmen for the most part are seeking to make the administrative record of the government the key point of the campaign.

As a result persons closely following meetings of both parties might well wonder if they were listening to the same campaign. At one set of rallies nationalization is stressed as the only issue with other factors being written off as of minor import. The other party sidesteps nationalization and bases its drive on other aspects of current politics.

So the elector is faced with the task of making a double decision. First he must determine which set of issues is deserving of major attention. And then he must decide between the records and promises of the two parties on the issue he selects as of prime interest.

There's a long, long trail a winding when your car runs out of gas between service stations.

Hallowe'en disturbances not a joke

Perhaps Hallowe'en should be abolished.

The suggestion has often been made by people who tend to get dismissed as "cranks" and "stick-in-the-muds." But after this week's performance, we're beginning to wonder if they might have something.

It wasn't the children in costume, out collecting treats and pennies for UNICEF who caused the trouble. It was hordes of their elders, using a children's celebration as an excuse for acting like irresponsible delinquents and criminals.

There were riots against the police in Kingston and Kamloops, B.C. Homes were destroyed by fires blamed on Hallowe'en firecrackers in several Canadian centres. In New Haven, PEI, a blockade of burning tires was set up on the Trans-Canada highway.

The Eastern Townships region had its share of senseless disturbances, too. The worst incidents were in North Hatley, where gangs of teenagers tore down street signs, grabbed collections from youngsters and made general nuisances of themselves. In Richmond, over $150 in damages was done by hooligans who pulled out stop and parking signs and lid sewer covers. In Sherbrooke, the usual soaping of windows grew to giant proportions along the main business street.

All of this represents a great deal more than simply youthful Hallowe'en pranks.

No one minds a few harmless practical jokes on Hallowe'en, or at any other time. But destruction of private and public property is not a joke. Nor is active resistance to duly constituted authority. Nor is the mentality displayed by those who indulged in these things this week.

Nor will mild cluckings of reproach or absent minded "tut-tuts" remedy the situation. We need to think deeply about the symptoms shown by our young people during Wednesday night's wildness. We need to question our own attitudes towards them.

Women are taken at their face value, says a writer. Not when they're in bathing suits.

Horse couldn't make out the signals

As most male drivers have suspected all along, the first automobile accident in Canada involved a woman.

It occurred 60 years ago in Toronto, according to researchers for an automobile company, when there were perhaps 15 cars in the country. Men were involved in the mishap but they were at a disadvantage. They were driving a horse and buggy.

But for fuller details, here is a newspaper account of the collision:

"The horse was improperly hitched (by two men) and on descending a small hill just south of Upper Canada College, the rig ran into the animal's hindquarters. The horse commenced to run. The driver was being pulled over the dashboard in his endeavor to stop the runaway, when his companion grabbed him and pulled him back, holding him upon his lap to prevent him being dragged under the horse's feet. Just at this moment, Mrs. P. W. Ellis came along Avenue Road cityward in an automobile accompanied by a little girl.

"Then a single rig containing a man, wife and child were coming in the opposite direction. The three vehicles met on the top of a steep hill opposite Mr. William McKenzie's residence. In a three-way crash, one of the occupants of the runaway was thrown out. In his fall, his feet were caught in the spokes and he was twisted about the wheel three times.

"Eyewitnesses ran forward to release him expecting to find a corpse, but before they reached him, his feet had been freed from the spokes and he was up and after the horse. The animal, meanwhile, had run into a rig containing a farmer and his wife from Weston. The radiator of the automobile boiled over with an explosive shudder. The other young man in the runaway was found unconscious but soon revived."

The unidentified researcher adds laconically that no charges were laid by the police. It was undoubtedly the horse's fault anyway. It probably couldn't figure out which way the woman driver was going to turn.

Other papers say:

Odd fate for historic Ellis Island

A place that for half a century housed the dreams, fears, hopes, joyful reunions, and desperate partings of millions of people drawn from many parts of the world

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Nov. 2, 1962...
Lord Tweedsmuir was sworn in as Governor-General of Canada 27 years ago today—in 1935—and held the post until his death in Montreal in 1940. The "literary vicerey" had been well-known previously as author John Buchan, writer of best-selling novels such as The Thirty-Nine Steps and numerous other works.
1950—Author and playwright Bernard Shaw died at age 94.

should find a willing tenant when it is offered to let. Or so one might think. In fact Ellis Island, the disembarkation point (later the detention point) in New York Harbour for immigrants to the United States, has gone begging ever since the Government closed it down eight years ago. There have been offers but always lower than the Government thought the island was worth. Now a Senate subcommittee is saying that it must be put to some sort of profitable use.

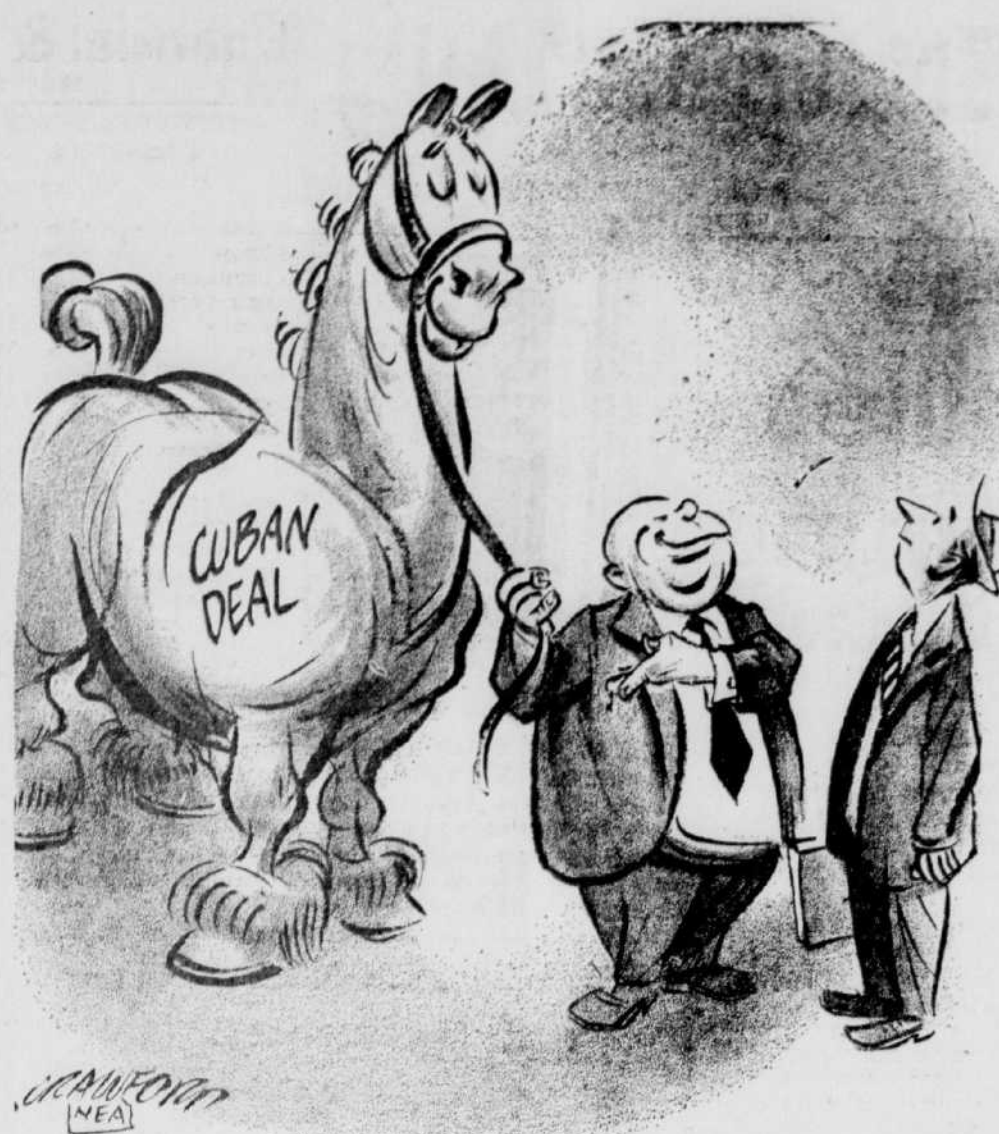

This is an odd fate for an island which not only has a magnificent outlook on the pinnacles of New York but whose history runs from the arrival of the Goldwyns, Capone, and Saroyans to the clamour of Italian operatic contraltos caught a dozen years ago by the workings of the McCarran Act. Suggestions that have been put forward for its use include a university, a housing estate for old people, and a school for mentally retarded children. The first two would surely be too cloistered there, the third might be apt in practice though perhaps ambiguous as a commentary on the island's past. What is surely needed is an effort by the Old World to see that, just as it provided America with the Statue of Liberty, so it shall commemorate the place where liberty's guests waited, sometimes in vain. What about an international consortium to rent Ellis Island and hand it to the United Nations? The Security Council might do worse than move its half-moon table there.

Historians have been able to trace the origins of the bag-pipe to Greece in 100 AD and believe they may have been known in ancient Persia.

LET'S TAKE A CLOSE LOOK AT THIS DEAL

Figures prove:

It was the post-election panic that wrecked our dollar reserves

Who's right about the dollar crisis?
Was it a summer squall that blew up suddenly—or was it a well-signalled cyclone?
That's been a live issue ever since the June election campaign.

Opposition spokesmen have argued that the Government knew there was a crisis all along. Liberal leader Lester Pearson has even accused the Government of concealing the crisis from the voters—calling it a "major political fraud."

Government spokesmen have countered this. They admit there was pressure on the dollar ("that's why it had to be pegged.") But there was no real crisis until within a few days of the June 18 election date, they argue.

AFTER ELECTION
It was only after the decisive election result, they claim, that pressure reached panic proportions. And it was then that Prime Minister Diefenbaker stepped in and announced the Government's austerity program on June 24.

What happened to the Canadian dollar in that fateful three-month period between April and June now is on the record. In an unprecedented move, Finance Minister Nowlan last week tabled a blow-by-blow record of changes in the gold and dollar reserves, at the request of Liberal MP John Turner.

The record covers spot sales in the period between former Finance Minister Fleming's budget speech (April 9) and the Friday preceding Prime Minister Diefenbaker's austerity program announcement (June 22).
At the beginning of the period, Canada's official holdings of gold and U.S. dollars stood at $1,677 million. At the end, they were down to $1,215 million. The controversial part is, what happened in the interval.

SPECULATION
Through most of the period, there was speculation against the dollar.

Some foreign investors were selling their Canadian stocks and converting into cash (influenced in part also by events on Wall Street).
Others were afraid the Canadian dollar exchange rate would drop below the 95 cent mark. Their aim was to protect themselves against such a drop by transferring funds to the U.S.—or holding export earnings in the U.S.

The result: demand for Canadian dollars sagged far below the available supply, with no inflow of foreign capital to cover the deficit.

In turn, this meant that the Exchange Stabilization Fund was forced to sell U.S. dollars out of its holdings, to maintain the exchange rate on the Canadian dollar.

Here's what happened:
During the month of April, the Exchange Stabilization Fund was a steady seller of U.S. dollars to meet demand. The reserves dropped by $115 million to $1,595 million at the month end—still not much indication of crisis. But in the first two days of May, the pressure mounted. And it was at this point that the Government decided support of the dollar at the 95 cent (U.S.) level was a forlorn hope.

(Toronto Telegram News Service)

In a dramatic midnight announcement May 2, Mr. Fleming revealed that the dollar had been pegged (with the approval of the International Monetary Fund) at 92½ cents.

By deciding to peg its exchange rate, Canada thus was in a position to ask the backing of the IMF should a crisis take place at any time. The net effect was to stop speculation and end the drain on the reserves.

To all intents and purposes, the outflow dried up for a while after the first week of May. The exchange reserves at the end of the month were $1,493 million, only $63 million below the end of April. But then renewed uneasiness about the dollar started to mount. In the middle of the election campaign, with considerable controversy and criticism of the devaluation policy, speculators started nibbling away at the reserves again.

Between June 1 and June 11, it was only a nibble. On June 12, the nibble became a bite.

BIGGER BITES
In the week of the election, the bites became bigger. Heaviest loss of any single day was June 19—following expressions of business concern over the stalemate in the election result and the possibility that Social Credit might hold the balance of power in the Commons.

Here's one way of judging how quickly the dollar outflow stepped up:

- Between June 1 and June 11, the Exchange Stabilization Fund sold just over $58 million in U.S. dollars.
- Between June 12 and June 15, the outflow rose to just under $100 million. (This was after Agriculture Minister Hamilton's indiscreet remark that half the Cabinet had wanted a 95-cent dollar and the other half a 90-cent—so they'd split the difference at 92½ cents.)
- Between June 18 and June 22, the outflow climbed to a stupendous $240 million.

A drain continuing at that rate would have meant complete exhaustion of Canada's foreign exchange reserves by the end of July.

Instead, Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced the Government's austerity program on June 24. It took only a few days for the program to rebuild confidence in the dollar.

With the help of credits from the International Monetary Fund, the Export-Import Bank and the Bank of England, Canada's gold and dollar reserves at the end of September stood at $2,444,600,000. And they're expected to show another gain this month.

New confidence in the Canadian dollar is also shown by the $250 million loan floated by the Government in New York last month.

That's why leading businessmen and others now are saying that the crisis is over—and that while some problems remain, they are not insurmountable (A. T. Lambert, president, Toronto-Dominion Bank).

Could the crisis have been averted?
That's still an open question. Traditionally the external value of a currency reflects confidence in it, on top of everything else. And swings in confidence can take place with alarming speed.

IMPOSSIBLE
Thus when Mr. Fleming in June, 1961, announced his original policy of securing a "significant" discount on the dollar (it was then trading at around $1.01 U.S.) there were many who felt it would be impossible to hold the dollar exchange rate at a discount.

In October, 1961, when speculation was that the Canadian dollar would finally settle around par with the U.S. dollar, many Ottawa observers felt the devaluation policy would be a flop.

Commented one Ottawa observer at the time: "The Canadian Government had such difficulty maintaining its dollar at a discount in October that the devaluation policy inaugurated in June is in serious jeopardy."

A few months later, the pressure was the other way—and people were doubtful whether the 95 cent rate (and later even the 92½-cent rate) could be maintained.

This is why foreign observers, like Zdenek Cernohous of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, have pointed out that it was only after the inconclusive election result of June that "the flight from the Canadian dollar attained suddenly panic proportions."

In other words, the crisis was a sudden and violent squall. (TNS).

Educational experiment

Teaching machines generate debate

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Schools in a handful of communities across Canada have embarked on an educational experiment that is generating lively debate.

In simple terms, it's the teaching machine experiment. Educationists prefer to discuss it in its broad context-programmed learning with mechanical help.

The idea of a student sitting down before an electronic device to learn mathematics or French intrigues many educationists and laymen. Others dismiss it as just another fad.

One thing that most seem to agree on, however, is that the machine will never replace the teacher. One informed estimate is that at most it will take over no more than one-third of classroom work.

Just what impact teaching machines will make on Canadian education depends on many things, not the least of which is the cost of the machines themselves and the programs that are to be fed into them.

Most important will be whether results of experiments convince authorities that machines can do a better job, at least in some subjects, than human teachers.

Experts emphasize that the program is the key. A machine, they say, is useless without a carefully prepared program of instruction. And, some contend, children can be taught just as well without a machine as long as the program is a good one.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that this fall about 20 communities are experimenting with teaching machines and programmed learning.

The machines range from exotic push-button electronic marvels that steer a student through a course of instruction at his own rate of learning to a simple hand-operated device that exposes blocks of subject material through a plastic window.

The teacher's role is discussed by H. R. Matthews, supervisor of the course of study for Montreal's Protestant school board.

"Machines can't replace the teacher or compete with her," he says. "It must be teacher and machine. Lots of the drill work and rote learning can perhaps be better and more efficiently done by machine, leaving the teacher free to carry out the more significant aspects of education."

"One disadvantage is that when a child is taught by machine, no personal relationship, no affectionate bond can develop. Also, machines ignore completely the value of group discussions as an educational method."

"As for advantages, it certainly individualizes instruction. It is like a personal coach. When the student stops, the machine stops too."

"We can find no proof that teaching machines are worth the money being charged for them. But it's not entirely a question of cost. I made a trip across Canada last year and found that several school districts which have used them have reached the conclusion that students learn as well but no better with machines than they did with teachers."

Mr. MacKenzie, however, concedes that teachers may benefit. It's too early to say definitely but Graic 10 experiments seem to indicate that programmed learning relieves the teacher of considerable exam marking and other routine work, he says.

"It leaves the teacher with more time to devote to individual students which is almost impossible when he is forced to take every student in a large class through every stage of a course."

The big advantage seems to be that students can move at their own pace, Mr. MacKenzie says. Bright ones aren't forced to move so slowly that they lose interest. Below-average students aren't required to move too quickly and can thus cover the work thoroughly.

While programmed instruction is still in its infancy, cost has already arisen as an important question.

One elaborate affair employs a sort of television screen which exposes a full page of information with three or more statements at the bottom. The student reads the page, then indicates by pushing one of a number of buttons which statement he thinks is correct.

If he gets the right button he is told he has answered correctly. The screen then switches to a new page of material. If he's wrong he's told where he made his mistake. Now the only button that will work is the one that returns him to the previous frame to try again.

One adverse reaction to the machines comes from Robert Warren, superintendent of Calgary public school board.

"The companies have gone hog-wild making complicated and expensive equipment. We realize programmed learning could help a lot of students—both slow and fast students. But at this stage they are too expensive. If the prices came down and the machines were a little simpler to operate we'd start using them on an experimental basis, perhaps in one school to start with."

fifty years ago when the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission was established he said and read articles from financial papers of 1911 and 1912 which predicted the expropriation of the power companies would end industrial investment in that province.

"But today, thanks to cheap power, more than half the industry in Canada is concentrated in Ontario."

"Quebec is 40 years behind Ontario and many years behind the other provinces of Canada and many countries in Europe in assuring cheap power for its industry."

"Nationalization of the power companies is not socialism but is hard business commonsense," he said.

His voice weakened by the intensive campaign he had been conducting in favor of nationalization, Mr. Levesque made use of a lengthy sound film which presented the standby arguments of the Liberal party in favor of its power policy.

OBITUARIES

MRS OLIVER BARTER, OF BURY
BURY — The death of one of Bury's oldest and much loved residents, Mrs. Florinda Barter, occurred on Tuesday, Oct. 2, 1962.

Mrs. Barter was born in Island Brook on May 7, 1870, one of the 10 children of the late Samuel and Mary Kerr, of whom only two sisters survive.

Her marriage on May 10, 1892 to Oliver Barter, was the first wedding in the Island Brook Anglican Church. After Mr. Barter had worked on the railroad for some years, they spent many years farming before moving to town to reside with Mr. Barter's younger brother, Clarence, and his wife.

Mrs. Barter suffered a broken leg some months ago but had managed to get around with the aid of a walker.

The couple celebrated their seventieth anniversary of their wedding last spring. In 1960, friends and neighbors had held a celebration in their honor, when they were recipients of telegrams of congratulations from Her Majesty, the Queen, Prime Minister Diefenbaker and many other government officials, also flowers, gifts and cards.

Left to mourn her loss are her husband; son, Howard, of Cookshire; two sisters, Mrs. Martha Ryan, of Montreal, and Mrs. Ida Holbrook, Sherbrooke; six grand children, 12 great-grandchildren and many other relatives.

Funeral services were held Friday, Oct. 5, in St. Paul's Church, Rev. W. E. Walker officiating. An augmented choir from two churches sang favorite hymns, Pass Me Not O Gentle Savior and Abide With Me.

The hearers were four nephews, Howard Kerr, of North Hatley, Harry Carr, Lennoxville, Ivan Barter and Elmore Barter, both of Bury. Interment was in the Bury Cemetery.

Out of town friends and relatives attending the service were from St. Therese, Lisgar, South Durham, Melbourne, Waterville, Hemmingford, Montreal, Riverview, North Hatley, Sherbrooke, Lennoxville, Cookshire, Sawyerfield, Island Brook and Canterbury.

COATICOOK — The death of Mrs. Myrtle Olive (Sprague) Pyne, of Coaticook, took place on Sept. 12, 1962, at Coaticook, after a brief illness.

Mrs. Pyne was born at Barnston, on Oct. 18, 1891. She was married on Sept. 3, 1913 to Mr. Pyne, who was born in Manchester, England, and came to Canada in 1908, settling at Barnston. In 1915, they came to Coaticook, where for several years, Mr. Pyne was employed in a supervisory position in the Norton Company. He died on Dec. 4, 1931.

They had five children, two of them dying in childhood. James Kendrick, who died at the age of fifteen months in 1918; Major Rupert James Kendrick, of Comox, B.C.; Geoffrey Olin Minton, of Stanstead; Alfreda Violet Laura, who died at the age of twelve and a half years in 1926; and Phoebe Theodora, Mrs. Owen, of East Hereford; they also had twelve grandchildren.

The funeral took place on Sept. 14, 1962, at St. Stephen's Anglican Church, Coaticook, with Rev. Grover Kendrick officiating. Interment was in Mount Forest Cemetery. The bearers were Murray Woodman, Murray Grady, Ken Walker and Waldo Owen.

Mrs. Pyne leaves to mourn her loss, besides her children, a sister, Gladys, Mrs. Guy Howe, of East Hereford.

BEEBE — Mr. Homer Worthen is a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital, where he underwent surgery.

The Record's Farm Report

Hamilton Adds Personal Effort In Quebec

Agriculture minister Hamilton has recently been making week-end visits to different farming centres in Quebec to discuss their problems and possible solutions. So far, his visits have been particularly well received.

The minister emphasized soon after the June election that his next step would be to deal with farm problems in eastern Canada. These Quebec trips illustrate his efforts in this direction and also the difficulties involved in solving the farm problems.

These difficulties are perhaps greatest in Quebec where farms are generally small, often stony and with relatively poor or shallow soils. Possibilities for shifting to larger-scale farming are few. So a great many farmers depend on cream production for grocery cash. If the government is forced to reduce its butterfat support price, these people need an alternative to turn to. Such alternatives are not easy to develop in Quebec. They will take the close personal efforts that Mr. Hamilton is now giving in spite of not having fully recovered his health.

It is notable that House members from Quebec have been pressing more for several farm action in the province than in the past. Few of them have a clear idea of what needs doing but they seem confident Mr. Hamilton can do it.

Ottawa Drafts Feed Plan For East

Plans for setting up a feed grain agency to serve feeders in eastern Canada have now been drafted. Prospects are that the new body will be designed specifically to meet the feed grain problems of eastern Canada but will have a loose association with the Wheat Board for administrative co-ordination. But it may take several weeks yet before the plan gets through its final appraisal including approval by Agriculture minister Hamilton and the Cabinet.

Chagnon Contribution Recognized

Assistant agriculture deputy S. J. Chagnon is to be made associate deputy minister. Mr. Chagnon has done an excellent job of representing French-Canada in the administration of the Agriculture department and this advancement is a recognition of his distinguished service before his retirement, due next year.

Cabinet Acts On Prairie Grain Handling

Cabinet last week initiated action for a co-ordinated attack on the pressing problems in handling and transporting Prairie grain. A formal Cabinet directive has authorized Agriculture minister Hamilton and Transport minister Balcer to invite CNR president Gordon and CPR president Crump to join them in discussions of these problems.

These first discussions would be designed to lead to subsequent meetings which would also include the western elevator companies and farm organizations. It is expected that these meetings will lay foundations for a joint effort to work out plans for the necessary reorganization of grain hauling and handling in the West.

FCC Lifts Ban On Small and Non-crop Farms

Far-reaching amendments to the regulations of the farm credit act were announced early last week by Agriculture minister Hamilton. They are effective immediately.

The most significant changes concern loan qualifications of farming enterprises. First, loans will not depend on acreage alone as in the past and second, income from sources other than farming operations will be considered in assessing loan applications. Overall the farmer's enterprise must still meet the fundamental test that it can produce, after the loan, adequate income to meet operating and maintenance costs, provide a livelihood for the farm family and repay loan.

But the amendments now make it possible for the farm credit corporation to make adequate loans to farmers on intensive, specialized enterprises which require only small acreages but a heavy investment in buildings (e.g. poultry farms, greenhouses etc.). Loans can now also be made to farmers whose farm income alone would not be sufficient to meet the basic test but who have regular income from off-farm and non-farm work or from pensions, annuities and the like, which would bring their total income to the necessary level.

The minister emphasized in the House that the amendments to the act and regulations were aimed at assisting the "small" farmer. There was no intention of making loans to build huge factory-type specialized operations. Poultry flocks of 2-3000 birds could provide a family with a living if operated efficiently. Yet he warned that to make a loan to an applicant who did not have the means to repay would be "criminal injustice" leaving the borrower in a worse position than before.

Enthusiasm for the minister's action was general in the House debate, especially among eastern and B.C. members, who have felt that previous regulations were discriminatory.

Hog Outlook Shows $29 To Yearend

Hog gradings two weeks ago were 132.9 thousand, up from the previous short week but down 10 thousand from the same week a year ago. But prices showed little tendency to strengthen in spite of the fact that light runs and other indicators point to strong prices toward the end of this year and the first of next.

Lighter deliveries and the threat of further withholding action by U.S. farmers are expected to hold U.S. prices at $16 (Omaha) or above until the year end. In Canada supplies are short and prices strong for beef and broilers.

Two things could happen. Current high retail prices may start some consumer resistance and hold prices down. On the other side, if the current risk of war is prolonged it could start a build up in supplies and push prices higher. Without these developments it looks like $29 hogs (Toronto) for the balance of the year.

Fed Beef Build Up To Hit Spring Market

The price outlook for fed cattle remains strong to the end of the year. Although cattle marketings reached their highest point for the year last week the proportion of choice and good grade beef was estimated at under 40 percent. Prices for top grades remained steady but lower grades of slaughter cattle weakened under the heavier supplies.

The U.S. expects less fed beef and steady prices on eastern markets to the end of the year. But higher numbers of cattle are on feed both in Canada and U.S. When these start coming to market after January prices are likely to weaken. As the flow increases toward spring prices could drop $4 from present levels by June, 1963.

Ontario Shifts From Dairy To Beef

Ontario is now well advanced in its program to push forward rapidly on the shift from dairy to beef production. With pressure mounting from Ottawa and extensive federal assistance offered for such shifts under the ARDA program, Ontario expects to make early progress. The new farm credit provisions announced this week will provide the special credit necessary and also postpone repayments for an 18-month transition period.

Meanwhile, the dairy outlook showed some slight improvement. September butter production in Canada was up only 1.8 per cent above last year against 3.8 per cent for January to September. More cheese accounts for much of this. Cheese production, below last year until September, jumped 5.6 per cent in September above that month in 1961. So far in October, cheese output has increased even more than this.

Recent evidence shows possibilities for further expansion of cheese production. Answers in the House recently reported 5.4 million pounds of cheese imported into Canada from January to May 21 this year at a value of almost $3 million. In 1961, Canada imported 14.7 million pounds (value $7.5 million) and exported 19.5 million pounds (value $6.3 million). Possibilities for cheese manufacturers in central Canada to meet more of this big consumer demand for special cheeses are open.

Fluid milk sales have continued slightly above 1961. August was up one per cent but January to August sales were two per cent above 1961.

Senate To Study Farm Taxes

Special study will be given this year to rural taxation, particularly as it applies to taxation on woodlots, to land near large cities, and to the effects of taxation on farmers net income.

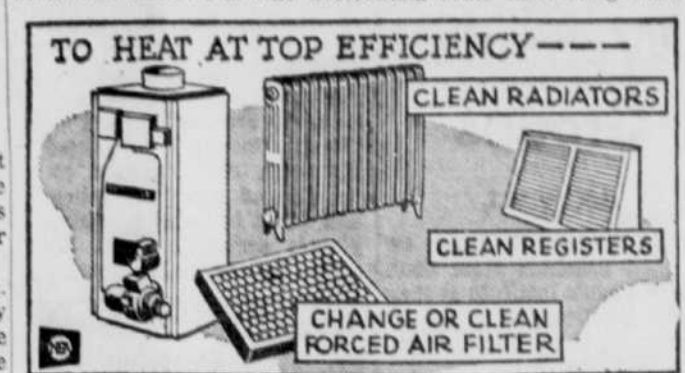

The Senate land use committee will take up its study of land problems again this session with the possibility that it may become a continuing committee in future sessions.

Winter killing peril to mums

By MARGARET DOVE

Garden chrysanthemums have been exceptionally fine this year. Coming in different flower types with a variety of size, form and color, they are providing excellent displays in the fall garden.

These versatile plants are so easily grown that no garden should be without at least a few varieties for fall beauty. The newer and better varieties being introduced begin blooming in September and continue their display until hard frost arrives.

Although these chrysanthemums are referred to as hardy garden plants not all varieties can be depended upon to winter safely in the open garden. How to care for these garden beauties is often a problem for the amateur gardener.

will find invaluable information in publication 39, "Hardy Chrysanthemums," issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Here, Mr. R. A. Fleming, Horticultural Experiment Station, Vineland, Ontario, has listed the location and soil requirements, planting, growing and pinching, diseases and insects as well as some of the newer varieties and their winter care.

From this bulletin we quote the following: "It is seldom, if ever, that one can be sure of overwintering every plant or every variety in the open ground. Some protection should be given in the form of loose straw mulch or evergreen boughs, or inverted bushel hampers where only a few plants are to be protected."

DRAINAGE PROBLEM

"Any of these methods will usually prove satisfactory in the southern part of the province, provided the soil drainage is very good to excellent. If the soil drainage is poor there will be a distinct chance of the plants failing to overwinter."

"The safest and most satisfactory method is to dig the plants in late fall after the leaves and flowers have been killed by frost. The plants, each with a shallow ball of soil, can then be placed in a shallow box or flat and stored in an unheated garage, tool room or cool basement (temperature no higher than 40 deg. F.) for the winter."

CUTTINGS

"An occasional watering will be necessary to keep them in good condition. Growth will start with warm spring weather, at which time the roots may be divided and replanted in the garden."

"For additional increase cuttings can be taken from the new green shoots of the overwintered plants, footed in damp, coarse and ultimately planted out in the garden."

"The latter method produces the best plants for the garden. Rooted cuttings may be potted in small clay or peat pots and grown for a few weeks in a cool room or cold frame before setting in the garden."

Farm Forum Activities

THIRD RANGE

The first meeting of the farm forum here met at Mr. and Mrs. Richie Harrison's October 29 with eleven present. Since the broadcast starts at 9:00 p.m. this year the questions on Property Taxation began at 8:30 p.m. and finished after the broadcast.

Question No. 1 discussed was: Should land be assessed on the basis of its ability to produce income from agricultural production or on its potential value for other purposes?

It was felt here that land should be assessed on the basis of its ability to produce income from agricultural production as long as it is only used for farming. Question No. 2: What changes would you like to see in the use of property tax? Answer: In this district the land was all revealed last fall and our taxes seem to be quite reasonable now compared to other districts. Mrs. Milton Brown read the Greenleaf.

Our executive was all re-elected for another year. They are, president, Mr. Lemuel Clark; secretary, Mrs. Milton Brown; treasurer, Mr. Herbert Winget; publicity convener, Mrs. Richie Harrison.

Following the discussion period cards were played at three tables after which the hostess served lunch.

Gaile Dugas on fashion

For after dark: these feathered charmers

Once again this country was ahead of Paris in the matter of fashion. For the pretty plumed hat spread from New York to Paris this fall and now is back in this country as a top evening favorite. Wispy, floaty and airy, these after-dark charmers are romantic and infinitely flattering. Egret feathers or ostrich plumes sometimes form the whole hat or again, provide delicate trim for satin or velvet.

Soft maribou is used for wig hats that cover the hair entirely. (The perfect solution when rain or fog flattens out a hairdo and there's no time for a set).

These hats are meant for cocktails, dining, dancing, parties, banquets and art exhibits. But remember, for the theater, choose a small size out of consideration for those seated near you.

Provide a background for the hat by choosing a dress with spare, clean lines. Leave the clutter in the way of much jewelry at home. The drama lies in the hats themselves and you want to make the most of this.

These very special hats are not meant for daytime wear. Pick any of autumn's dashing hat styles for daytime but reserve these feathered beauties for the time when the sky deepens to a dark blue and the lights wink on.

These soft and elegant plumed hats for after-dark provide infinite flattery. Toque of dark brown chiffon (above) is circled by wispy black egret feathers. Wig of beige ostrich feathers (left) has a lovely, floaty look. Maribou feathers and delicate feather daisies are used to create (upper left) this white pill-box. Emerald green Scottish cap (upper right) is trimmed with swirl of green feathers. Completely covered-up look (right) is this black ostrich feather wig with jewel of amber and rhinestones.

U. C. W. meet for first rally in Beebe

The first rally of the Sherbrooke-Stanstead region of Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbyterian United Church Women met in Wesley United Church, Beebe, on October 24th, 1962 with a registration of just over one hundred. Fifteen of the eighteen churches in this area were represented.

Mrs. Foster Ross, president of the Presbyterial, chaired both morning and afternoon sessions. Four members from Stanstead South Church, Rock Island, Mrs. Geo. Carruthers, Mrs. Allan Greer, Mrs. Harry Smith and Mrs. A. S. Judd, Sr., led the morning worship with Miss Evelyn Purcell of Beebe the organist. Mrs. A. McKinley Rose of Centenary Church, Stanstead, reported enthusiastically on the Church Summer School held at Macdonald College in August last and urged members to plan to attend this school in future.

Mrs. Volney Hurley, Presbyterial Program Chairman, outlined program materials and methods, using the flip charts to illustrate. This was followed by the Bible Study session, based on the resource book "The Word and the Way", and conducted by Rev. Carl Gustafson of Stanstead South Church. Many factual and helpful suggestions for interesting and meaningful study were presented by Mr. Gustafson.

Miss Ada Sandell of Magog, a nurse-missionary of the Church for almost thirty-six years, now retired, dressed in her Korean costume, addressed the afternoon assembly giving a vivid picture of life in South Korea, particularly as to the Church situation there, stating at one point that four thousand people attend one Church every Sunday. She appealed to United Church Women to be in earnest prayer for Korea; that North and South Korea might be united again and that members of families now lost to one another during the refugee trek may be together again. Miss Sandell showed many beautiful Korean articles, among them a hand braided rug made from discarded nylon stockings from Canada.

Mrs. Gordon Labaree of Beebe was the soloist following Miss Sandell's address.

Mrs. Gladys Taylor, Presbyterial Literature Secretary, displayed a library of books and pamphlets for good reading and study and interestingly reviewed several of the books. Members bought and ordered material from her stock.

The closing session was given over to questions and answers pertaining to different areas of work within the life of the Church.

During the lunch hour served by the Beebe ladies, Rev. A. B. Lovelace brought greetings from the Presbyterial and some highlights from General Council.

Mrs. Cassidy, the bride's mother wore a dress of aviation blue, with black beaver hat, black suede accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Vachon, mother of the groom wore a brown dress with matching brown pill box hat, beige accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Today's recipe

The French have a way with many foods, not the least of which is fish. For example, when they have cooked fish rapidly so that it is moist and flaky, they place it on a platter with fried cucumber, drible with browned butter and parsley, et voilà!... Fillets Doria. The recipe for this classic dish has been supplied by the Consumer Branch of the Department of Fisheries of Canada.

FILLETS DORIA

1 pound perch or sole fillets, 3 medium cucumbers, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons butter, melted, 1 egg, beaten, 2 tablespoons milk, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 cup flour, 1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs, 3 tablespoons vegetable oil, 1 clove garlic (optional), 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley.

Thaw fillets, if necessary, and separate. Peel cucumbers, cut into 2-inch lengths, then divide in quarters. Season with salt and pepper. Cook slowly, uncovered, in 2 tablespoons butter until easily pierced with a fork, turning occasionally. When cooked, remove to a heated platter and set in a 200 degrees F. oven to keep warm. Meanwhile prepare fillets.

Combine beaten egg and milk. Season fillets with salt. Coat with flour, dip in egg mixture, then coat with bread crumbs. If desired, heat garlic in cooking oil until brown then remove from pan. Have cooking oil very hot but not smoking. Add fillets. Fry quickly until brown on one side. Turn and brown on other side. Drain. Place on top of cucumber. Clean frying pan. Add 2 tablespoons of butter. Heat until butter foams and turns a pale brown. Pour over fish. Sprinkle with minced parsley. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

We the women by Ruth Millette

Women and bootstraps

One reason why men don't understand women is that women are forever changing. That's what a woman psychologist told a group of men attending a national convention. By way of explaining what she meant she added: "A woman may be dull and uninspired one day... but she'll come up with something the next."

In other words, men, just give her time and wait and see what she comes up with. This is especially important for husbands to remember. A woman may be down in the dumps at breakfast—but happy as a lark by dinner time. What she came up with in the meantime may have been a new hat, a new hairdo, a closet-cleaning session or lunch with a friend. What does it matter, so long as she managed to pull herself out of the doldrums?

A woman may fret for days because she has cabin fever. General Council. She'll cure herself by planning a party, cooking up a weekend out of town, or just announcing that she has hired a baby sitter for the evening and wants to be taken out to dinner.

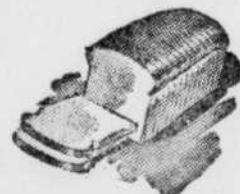

A woman may worry out loud because she feels she is mentally stagnating while she spends her days running after little children, making beds, cooking meals and washing and ironing clothes. But don't think she'll stay in that unhappy mood for long. First thing you know she'll happily announce that she has enrolled for a night school course, taken up painting, joined a woman's discussion group, or set herself to read a long list of the world's great books.

Sure, women are often dissatisfied, frustrated, and worried over problems. But usually not for long, because they really love to have a problem to cope with when it is one they can handle with a simple common sense solution like shifting the living room furniture around when they can't afford new and can't stand the room any longer "as is."

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Teasdale of Sherbrooke, wish to announce the engagement of their second eldest daughter, Judy Beatrice, to Mr. Carl Neil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Howard Neil, also of Sherbrooke. The marriage has been arranged to take place on November 10, at 2:00 p.m. in St. Paul's Church, McManamy Boulevard, Sherbrooke.

Officers elected by Horticultural Society, Thetford

THETFORD MINES — The annual meeting of the Horticultural Society was held on Oct. 23, at St. Patrick's School Hall, with an attendance of over 150.

Highlight of the meeting was the election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, Leopold Pomerleau; first vice-president, Henri Gagnon; second vice-president, J. Luc Savoie; technical adviser, L. P. Gignas.

Directors are Marcel Laliberte, Mrs. Rita Fradette, Raoul Vallee, Ronald Ainsley, Roger Cote, Alphonse Gravel, Marcel Ouellette, Bernard Dubois, Antonio Houle, Placide Couture, and Dominique Lefebvre.

Mrs. Irene Simard, who has been the society's secretary-treasurer since its founding some five years ago, resigned. The vacancy has not as yet been filled.

The guest speaker, Charles Legendre, was introduced by the retiring president, Marcel Laliberte, who thanked him at the conclusion of his talk. Mr. Legendre, a graduate landscape gardener, of the Provincial Government, dwelt upon the cutting down of trees in the fall, preparing of shrubs and borders for the winter, as well as the planting of tulip, daffodil and other bulbs for early blooming in the spring. The beautiful colored slides which accompanied his talk, were enjoyed by everyone.

Door prizes were then drawn with Fernand Cloutier winning a plant donated by a florist, and Gerard Therrien and Mrs. Gil Langlois, gifts provided by

Tom Gayford of Toronto sets new record at National Horse Show clearing barrier at 7 ft. one inch

NEW YORK (AP)—Tom Gayford of Toronto and his high-speeding mount, Blue Beau, set a National Horse Show record by clearing a barrier of seven feet, one inch Thursday night and won the international pousse class before a crowd of 9,000 in Madison Square Garden.

This was Canada's first victory in the international events and it held the gathering spell-bound while, one by one, the other hopefuls fell by the wayside as the fences were raised.

Finally only Gayford, David Barker of Britain on Mister Soffee and Frank Chapot of the United States on San Lucas remained after four rounds. On the fourth round they cleared a jump of six feet, 11 inches.

Up to seven feet, one inch went the simulated brick wall, at which two riders—Gail Ross of Edmonton and Lieut. E. V. Campion of Ireland—had been thrown without injury in the third round.

Barker was first out. He made the spread ahead of the wall but clipped the top of the wall. Then came Gayford. He cleared the spread easily. Blue Beau took aim and rushed right at the fence. Over he went with a fraction of an inch to spare.

That left it up to Chapot. San Lucas cleared the spread with no trouble and thundered down toward the wall. But his hind legs clipped the top and that was it.

The pousse competition is strictly high jumping. Time is ignored.

This is the third straight year

Gayford and Blue Beau have won the pousse class and as a result they have retired the Wagstaff Challenge Trophy, which goes to the winner.

"I don't know whether he twisted, corkscrewed, slipped under or what," said the happy Gayford, a stock broker. "All I know is that he got past the jump."

"I never worked harder to keep a trophy in my life. But after three of these, and especially this one, I've come to the conclusion that Blue Beau is strictly a pousse horse."

So after winning the first three international events the U.S. riders lost the next two. They still lead the team race with 53 points. Canada is second with 36 and England follows with 12. Gayford and Chapot are tied for first place in the individual race with 16 points apiece.

Investigation into brawl is ordered by prexy

SEATTLE (AP)—President Al Leander of the Western Hockey League ordered an investigation Thursday into a brawl at Spokane which brought a premature end to the Spokane San Francisco match Wednesday night.

Spokane shut out the Seals 4-0, but referee Loyd Gilmour had to call the game in the third period with more than a minute remaining to be played.

Muddy field predicted for showdown battle

The Eastern Football Conference schedule grinds to its whacky end this weekend with all eyes focused on the final to the backward battle between Toronto Argonauts and Montreal Alouettes.

The Argos and Alts meet in a showdown at Montreal Saturday which will decide which team earns the right to take part in the playoffs.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who have already clinched first place, and Ottawa Rough Riders, assured of second, play the season's final game at Hamilton Sunday. It won't affect the standings.

Toronto and Montreal haven't been building up to this game, but rather, slipping into it. Both teams have had chances to move ahead of one another at various times during the schedule—but both blew them.

Argos, with a thrilling win over Ottawa in the final 10 seconds of a game at Toronto last Sunday, managed to get within striking distance even though they lost their first five starts this season.

Interest is high in both cities and Toronto fans will take the first special football train in several years to back up their Argos.

The interest in Montreal is centered more on the condition of Molson Stadium than on the condition of the Alouettes.

The field was turned into a quagmire by two days of snow and rain this week. Helicopters, huge electric heaters and peat moss have been used in an attempt to improve its condition. The field was still covered Thursday by two inches of water.

Argo coach Nobby Wirkowski will take all 15 United States imports to Montreal but won't decide until Saturday which 13 he will play.

Wirkowski feels the field, if still wet, will help a passer more than it will a runner. This should aid Argos and quarterback Tobin Rote, even though Montreal quarterback Sandy Stephens is rated a good passer. The Alts have counted heavily on the rushing of George Dixon this season and will have Don Clark, another power runner, in their backfield Saturday.

Clark, who suffered a serious kidney injury early this season, was the Alts' leading rusher last year and made his return after a 10-week absence against Hamilton last week.

The second- and third-place teams clash in a sudden-death semi-final playoff Saturday, Nov. 10, then meet the Ticats in a two-game, total-points final Saturday, Nov. 17, and Saturday, Nov. 24. The eastern champion goes against the West in the Grey Cup in Toronto Saturday, Dec. 1.

Harrisburg sale closes on new record high

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Five prize yearlings bred by Hanover Farms of Hanover, Pa., were sold for between $40,000 and $55,000 Thursday as the four-day annual standardbred horse sale closed on a record note.

A record was set for the final day's trading when 161 yearling trotters and pacers were sold for $1,238,350, an average of $7,691, surpassing last year's previous high of $6,544.

For four days of selling the average for 722 horses was $3,869, topping the record set in 1960 of $3,851. Total sales for four days were $2,793,250.

Two Hanover yearling fillies brought $40,000 each, equalling record prices for their sex. Kismet Hanover was bought by Allwood Stables, Far Hills, N.J., and Beauty Hanover was purchased by John Simpson, Orlando, Fla.

Cleo Young of Timmonsville, S.C., paid top price of the day, $55,000 for Baron Hanover.

Eleven minor ball leagues show increase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Eleven of 20 minor baseball leagues, and 74 of 134 clubs, showed an attendance increase this year over 1961 President George M. Trautman said today.

The minor league chief credited "intensified promotional efforts, better quality of play and a comparative improvement in weather in most sections" for the boost.

Trautman said total paid attendance was 10,047,568 for 20 leagues this season, against 10,100,986 for 22 last year.

"That represents a token decline of 33,418 which actually is not a loss considering that three leagues which did not operate this year had a total attendance of 1,129,472 a year ago."

The International League led the way with a paid gate of 1,597,471, up 178,811 over 1961. The Mexican League was second with 1,543,248, up 156,390, and the Pacific Coast League third with 1,067,243, a drop of 288,448 from the 1961 figure.

Second place and batch of honors at stake in WFC weekend games with Riders and Stamps gunning for spot

The Western Football Conference regular schedule winds up Saturday with second place and a batch of individual titles and records at stake.

Saskatchewan Roughriders meet British Columbia Lions in Vancouver in a bid to overhaul Calgary Stampeders in second place.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers, with first place tucked away, play host to their old and honored rival of a decade, Edmonton Eskimos.

Last-place Edmonton and the Lions are out of the playoffs. Calgary, Saskatchewan and Winnipeg are in.

But rushing, passing, punting and scoring titles or records hang on the outcome of the two games.

B.C. quarterback Joe Kapp needs 275 more yards passing to surpass the single-season record of 3,274 yards set by Frank Tripucka with Saskatchewan.

Two of Kapp's team-mates, fullback Nub Beamer and halfback Willie Fleming, are vying for the rushing title. Beamer leads 1,113 to 934.

MAY LOSE CHANCE Kapp may not get a full-fledged opportunity to break Tripucka's mark because Mel Melin from Washington State, is scheduled to alternate at quarter.

Fog, which has blanketed the Vancouver area for five days, may complicate things if it stays around. A Vancouver game Oct. 25, 1954, was postponed when the fog rolled in.

Two of Kapp's team-mates, fullback Nub Beamer and halfback Willie Fleming, are vying for the rushing title. Beamer leads 1,113 to 934.

The Riders want the win because a second-place finish would give them the right to select the site of the first game of the two-game, total-point semi-final against Calgary. Winnipeg has a bye into the final.

A Saskatchewan victory would tie the Riders in points with Calgary at 19, but they would get second by virtue of a superior record against the Stampeders. In three meetings, Saskatchewan won two. The other was tied.

GRANT RESTS FULLBACK Winnipeg coach Bud Grant says he plans to shuffle his lineup for his rubber match with Edmonton. The clubs have each won one game in two meetings this year.

Joe Williams, an import from Iowa, will replace regular fullback Charlie Shepard, who will sit this one out.

"Unless Williams goes wild, Shepard will be the starting fullback in the playoffs," Grant said. Other shifts are along the line and in linebacker positions.

The game pits Edmonton and Tommy-Joe Coffey against Gerry James of Winnipeg to decide the conference scoring title.

Coffey has 118 points and James 110. Coffey is also out to break the single-season pass reception record of 68 jointly held by Grant and Winnipeg end Ernie Pitts. Coffey has 63 receptions to date.

Miami-Tim Ford, 149, Jacksonville, Fla., outpointed Rocky Randall, 147, Houston, 8.

Coach Dube plans few changes for Sunday's home opener with Granby, tilt slated to commence at 3 p.m.

Sherbrooke Beavers will make their home debut Sunday after noon at the Arena when they will play hosts to the Granby Vics. Mayor Armand Nadeau will drop the puck to officially get the season underway.

The faceoff will take place at 3:00 p.m. instead of 2:30 p.m. previously announced.

The Beavers held a two-hour workout last night in preparation for their Sunday tilt. Roger Picard and Claude Genereux were the only absentees. They were retained at home owing to work but they will be on hand for the big game Sunday.

Coach Dube made a trip to Montreal this week to look over a few new prospects and was impressed with their showing. Pierre Gendron was on hand for the workout and the young defenseman gave a good account of himself.

A few changes were made by the local pilot in effort to build up more aggressiveness. Andre Black was moved to left wing, a position he had played before. He joined Fern Genuis and Rene Pepin and worked fine for his first time this year in an unfamiliar position.

Coach Dube stated it was impossible to judge a team on one appearance but Sunday's match against the Vics will prove a

Leon Michelin comes up with two third period goals to settle issue in hard-hitting tilt last night

Two fast goals in the third period was all the Drummondville Rockets required to emerge with a 4-2 victory over the Granby Vics last night in Drummondville. The win gives the Lou Poliquin squad sole possession of first place in the Eastern Provincial Hockey League.

The tilt was a hard-hitting battle in which a total of eleven penalties were dished out including majors to Johnny Mentis and Racette for fighting. Granby's first goal was tallied when the Rockets had a man in the cooler in the opening period while the others were registered with both teams at full strength.

Claude Groulx was by far the outstanding man on the ice. Time after time he came up with the big saves to keep his team in the running. Andy Payette handled two shots more than Groulx, 35, but a lot of them came when the Rockets had the upper hand and were important ones for his club.

The Vics opened the scoring in the first period as six players were thumbed off for infractions during the first seven minutes of play. Both clubs opened with a bang and kept it up all evening. Joncas came up with the tying marker when he tallied the only goal of the second period when he caught the Vics forcing the play with the man advantage.

The Vics came back with a bang when young Michel Saurerte got in the clear but Groulx came up with the big save to ease the pressure. The third period saw the teams open an even keel for the first ten minutes of the frame.

Two quick goals within a minute of each other settled the issue when Michelin and Racette tallied the goals. In the closing minute of play Michelin got his second tally of the tilt after John Mentis had put the Vics within halting distance.

Lack of Olympic standard indoor pools hurting Canada, says Healy coach of BEG swimming squad

VICTORIA (CP)—Ed Healy of Montreal, coach of Canada's 1962 British Empire Games swimming team, says Canada desperately needs Olympic standard indoor pools in order to compete with other countries on an even basis.

"Canada should get into the international field," Healy said here Thursday. "If the facilities can be provided, the athletes will provide themselves."

"It's lack of coaches and lack of proper indoor facilities that are hurting our international chances."

The 42-year-old Healy has been putting eight of the BEG team's 16 swimmers through practice sessions at the Crystal Garden pool here since Oct. 26. The group travels to Vancouver tonight for the Vancouver Dolphin Club's annual meet and returns here Saturday to continue training.

The team departs Nov. 9 for the Games at Perth, Australia. "The team has progressed very nicely," Healy said Thursday, "and we'll be in even better shape by the time we leave for Perth."

STRONGEST TEAM YET
Assistant coach of Canada's 1959 Pan-American Games team, Healy says the team he is currently handling is the strongest Canada has ever assembled for international competition. "But the other countries have improved too so it's hard to say how we'll do at Perth," he said. "One thing we know is that we've got a real job on our hands."

Returning to Canada's accommodation problem, Healy said: "What we need now are the facilities to bring out the best in our swimmers."

"You'd see a tremendous improvement in the calibre of our swimmers if the Canada Sports Council were to spend part of its budget to build the proper pools and hire the right men to coach in them."

Members of the BEG team training here are Allison Glenndinning, 16, of Hudson Heights, Que., Richard Pound, 20, Steve Rabouin, 20, and Madeleine Savigny, 19, of Montreal; Patty Thompson, 16, of Hamilton; Jack Kelso, 23, and Sandy Gilchrist, 15, of Ocean Falls, B.C. and Allys Meinhardt, 18, of Vancouver.

Due to join the team in Vancouver tonight are Mary Stewart, 16, of Vancouver; Sara Barber, 21, of Brantford, Ont., and divers Tom Dinsley of Vancouver and Ernie Meissner of Kitchener, Ont.

Curlers get new two-piece broom, suitable to all and easy to pack

TORONTO—Hard-to-pack curling brooms are a thing of the past. Spiel-King Co., a new Scarborough, Ont., firm, has produced a two-piece, uniquely balanced curling broom, suitable to either male or female curler, which is just now appearing in curling clubs across the country.

The new broom, balanced with an adjustable weight in the upper portion of the broom handle, "makes the job of sweeping less of a chore than ever before," according to Roy MacLaren and Ernie Benton, both developers of the new broom and officers of Spiel-King.

Handles of Royalite, a synthetic, sturdy material that warms immediately to the touch, screw onto the wooden projection of the broom head and form a joint that is "just about unbreakable," says MacLaren. At the top of the handle, a clear cap covers the owner's identification seal which in turn, covers the adjustable screw that changes the handle weight. "It is this weight" say the Spiel-King officers, "that counter balances the weight of the broom at the other end and decidedly assists the sweeper."

Entirely made in Canada, the broom was somewhat late getting to the market for the 1963 curling season because of the insistence of MacLaren and Benton that it be wholly Canadian. Already, a U.S. group has been in touch with Spiel-King seeking American manufacturing rights.

LHS and SHS Seniors battle to scoreless tie, Cookshire Juniors down Bury, 5-1, two games left Lennoxville and Sherbrooke Junior soccer squads fought to a 0-0 deadlock Thursday afternoon in a well-played match that was contested on a rather wet field.

In other soccer action in the area Cookshire Junior boys trounced Bury 5-1 in the final game of the season, the loss being Bury's only one of the year.

In the first half of the Sherbrooke - Lennoxville struggle, play was fairly well evenly matched with neither team coming up with a goal.

However, in the second half, LHS had the edge in play and came near to scoring several times only to be stopped by goalie MacLeod of Sherbrooke.

A close break came when Sherbrooke in the match when the SHS crew were awarded a penalty shot. However, Bonduant, who took the kick for Sherbrooke attempted his shot, he missed narrowly.

Two Matches Remaining

Two matches are left to be played in the season's regular schedule, a doubleheader between Drummondville and St. Pat's Junior and Senior squads November 10 at the SHS field.

Capt. d'Inzeo to compete in Winter Show

TORONTO (CP) — Capt. Pierre d'Inzeo, a gold medalist in the 1960 Olympics in Rome and captain of the Italian equestrian team, will represent his country in the horse jumping competition at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair Nov. 9-17.

The announcement was made Thursday by Charles (Bud) Baker, chairman of the horse show who also said Britain would be represented by Anthony Barker, who won the European jumping title at White City Stadium last summer. Barker has been challenging the U.S.'s top riders at Washington, D.C., and New York this season on his splendid mount, Mr. Coffee.

The U.S., with its outstanding team of Billy Steinkraus, Frank Chapot, Ben O'Meara and Kathy Kusner, have dominated the fall riding circuit this season. Canada, with its makeshift team, Ireland and Mexico have trailed the American equestrians in almost every competition.

Baker feels that Canada's team should be at its best for the Royal Tom Gayford of Toronto, who joined the team in New York after missing Harrisburg, Pa., and Washington, will join Olympic teammate Jimmy Elder and Doug Cudney, both of Toronto, and Gail Ross of Edmonton.

Terry Sawchuk, Detroit's masked goalie who stopped 25 shots Thursday night to blank New York Rangers 4-0 for his third shutout of the season.

Bill (Red) Hay of Chicago, who registered a goal and an assist in the Black Hawks' 4-2 win over Boston.

Outplay Canucks in last two periods to post first win in Montreal since Feb. 23, 1961, Sawchuk is standout

Terrance Gordon Sawchuk, known as Terry to the public and 'Uke' to his team-mates, proved again Thursday night he's the hottest player on the National Hockey League's hottest team.

Sawchuk recorded his third shutout in eight games as Detroit Red Wings remained unbeaten this season with a 4-0 blanking of New York Rangers.

The 32-year-old Sawchuk, a Winnipeg native of Ukrainian descent, has allowed only nine goals this year for a 1.13 goals-against average. His shutout gives him 91 in his NHL career, only three short of the regular-season record held by George Hainsworth. He has registered 10 more in Stanley Cup playoffs for an over-all total of 101.

The Wings, picked by the preseason pundits as a top contender for last place, now have a record of six wins and two ties for 14 points.

Only one point behind are Chicago Black Hawks, who took a 4-2 win over Boston Bruins Thursday night on third-period goals by rookie Chico Maki and sparkplug Stan Mikita.

MIKITA SPARKS HAWKS

Hawks have played 11 games—three more than Detroit—but they have run up an unbeaten string of five since Mikita began playing after an early-season injury.

In Montreal, Toronto Maple Leafs revenge a home-ice loss to Canadiens Wednesday night by dumping the NHL champions 3-1.

By drubbing the Montrealers, the Leafs took their first win in Montreal since Feb. 23, 1961.

The win snapped a three-game losing streak for the fourth-place Leafs, who have nine points, one less than third-place Montreal and four more than New York and Boston, who remain tied in the league cellar.

In Detroit, Norm Ulman gave Wings a 1-0 lead by the end of the first period, scoring while Detroit was short-handed.

Wings got a second-period goal by rookie Larry Jeffrey and Bruce MacGregor and hardrock defence man Howie Young scored in the third.

Sawchuk made 25 saves in the Detroit nets, while Lorne (Gump) Worsley stopped 29 shots for New York.

RANGER ROOKIE HURT

Ranger rookie Rod Gilbert required 10 stitches to close a gash in the back of his head after being checked by Detroit defenceman Pete Goegan. Doctors said he had a concussion, but his skull wasn't fractured.

Detroit's astounding success is credited to the top conditioning of the Wings and Sawchuk's continuing brilliance.

This year the 12-year-veteran began wearing a face mask—similar to the one worn by Montreal's Jacques Plante, and it doesn't seem to have hurt his goaling a bit.

Chicago was outshot 34-30 in its game in Boston but a sharp performance by Chicago netminder Glenn Hall and Maki's breakthrough goal made the difference.

Maki, a 23-year-old right winger, was in 16 games with the Hawks last season, playing the rest of the time with Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League.

BIG LINE SHUFFLED

He was shuffled by coach Rudy Pilous onto a line with centre Red Hay and utility man Reg Fleming. Hay usually plays on the slumping "million-dollar line" between Bobby Hull and Murray Balfour.

Boston scored the first goal just a minute after the game opened on a short blast by Johnny Bucyk. Chicago's Ron Murphy and Boston's Wayne Hicks also scored in the first period.

Chicago tied the score in the second when Hay banged in his fifth goal of the season.

Maki picked the lower left-hand corner against rookie goalie Ed Johnston on his third-period breakthrough with less than seven minutes left. Hay set up Mikita for the insurance goal three minutes later.

In Toronto's win at Montreal, the first period was fairly even. The Leafs' playing member of Parliament, Red Kelly, opened scoring and Gilles Tremblay of Canadiens scored his sixth goal of the season—the highest total in the league—to tie the score.

LEAFS PULL AWAY

But Leafs held it all over Canadiens in the last two periods and only sparkling saves by rookie goaltender Cesare Maniago kept them from piling up a more lopsided score.

Dave Keon and Eddie Shack provided the margin of victory with second-period goals.

Toronto coach Punch Imlach said after the game his players had started to work together for the first time in the last four games.

Montreal coach Toe Blake admitted his players had been out-hustled, but said several of them — he mentioned Boom Geoffrion and Henri Richard—had given all-out efforts in Toronto Wednesday night and were tired as a result.

"They didn't have much left by the time the third period came around," he said.

Montreal centre Jean Beliveau received a gash over the

NHL BIG SEVEN

Big Bill (Red) Hay, pivot man on the Chicago Black Hawks' "million-dollar line," picked up a goal and an assist in Thursday night's game against Boston to move within a single point of the National Hockey League scoring leader.

Hay's two-point gain moved him into a three-way tie for second place in the scoring race with teammate Ab McDonald and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion of Montreal. All have 11 points.

Henri Richard of Montreal, the league's top marksman so far with 12 points, was held scoreless in Thursday's game against Toronto.

Also scoreless Thursday were Alex Delvecchio of Detroit and Cliff Pennington of Boston, tied for fifth spot with 10.

Stan Mikita of Chicago popped in a goal to join Montreal's Claude Provost and Boston's Murray Oliver with nine points.

Sawchuk, defense reason for wins-Abel

Detroit (AP)—Detroit Red Wings, off to an amazing start in the National Hockey League race, keep on winning—without much scoring help from the great Gordie Howe.

Howe, who has carried the Red Wings for years, went through another scoreless game Thursday night. But the unbeaten Red Wings won again, 4-0 over New York Rangers.

It was the sixth victory for the Wings, who also have two ties in their first eight games of the 1962-63 campaign.

The win enabled the Wings to retain a one-point hold on first place over Chicago Black Hawks.

"Terry Sawchuk and our defence—those are the reasons for our winning," said coach Sid Abel, who once played on the same line with Howe.

Howe, dominant figure in the Red Wings' long championship reign in the 1950s, has scored only three goals this season. He has assisted on only three others and is far from his accustomed spot among the NHL's scoring leaders.

"Sure, this is a slow start for me," said the 34-year-old veteran. "But I've always been pretty much of a slow starter." Abel insists Howe is not slowing down.

"His line's been playing well much. But that's because I'm resting him much more than I ever did before. He used to play much more than half of every game. No more. I want to save his legs for later in the season. Don't worry, he'll score plenty."

WAY IS FOUND TO REDUCE BODY CHOLESTEROL LEVEL

Since science found a possible relationship between the level of cholesterol in the blood and hardening of the arteries, there has been a feverish race to find ways of reducing this level. This task is complicated by the fact that cholesterol is a natural, indeed a necessary, element of the blood. A diet that is low in cholesterol accomplishes little, if anything, because the body synthesizes its own cholesterol.

The fact remains, however, that some persons do have a higher cholesterol level than others. For these persons a safe means or reducing this level would be a blessing. The best method so far discovered is the use of large doses of niacin which is a part of the vitamin B complex.

Dr. W. B. Parsons, an energetic young doctor in Madison, Wis., writing in the "Archives of Internal Medicine," states that he used this preparation on a series of 50 subjects who had blood cholesterol levels above normal.

No dietary restrictions were imposed. The treatment was continued for a prolonged period. In the first 12 weeks there was a general reduction of the cholesterol level of 20 percent. This brought the level nearly down to the upper limit of normal.

Other fatty elements in the blood also were reduced. Further treatment with even larger doses further reduced the cholesterol level to within the normal range.

A switch to nicotinamide, a related compound, or giving an inert substance allowed a return of the cholesterol level to that observed before treatment with niacin was started. Two subjects who had cholesterol deposits in their skin found that these deposits were greatly reduced in size while they were on the treatment.

There is some evidence that reducing a high cholesterol level will retard hardening of arteries in rabbits but as yet there is no proof that it has a beneficial effect in man. For this reason the person taking niacin for this purpose and his doctor must understand that they are taking part in an experiment.

In Dr. Parsons' group some mild, undesirable symptoms accompanied the use of niacin. These side effects did not prevent the continued use of the drug. Even after two years of treatment, tests of blood, urine and liver function showed no harmful effects of the drug. In some patients in the third year of treatment early signs of liver damage began to appear.

This study also shows how important it is to keep the constant check on the effect of even an apparently safe drug, if it is to be given over several years as must be done when, like insulin for diabetes, the drug controls the condition for which it is given but does not cure.
