"A politically-inspired ploy..."

Critics blast Grit budget

OTTAWA (CP) — The government announced an April budget Monday but opposition critics said the timing is a politically-inspired pre-election ploy.

Finance Minister Jean Chretien told the Commons a date for the budget will be set Thursday at the cabinet's regular weekly meeting. The budget—setting out measures to improve the economy—will come this month "and soon," Chretien added.

But Opposition Leader Joe

Clark said political expediency, rather than economic reality, was the determining factor behind the budget decision. Opposition MPs have been clamoring for a budget for months.

Speculation has been widespread that Prime Minister Trudeau will call a federal general election, likely in June, and some opposition spokesmen said the budget announcement was part of Liberal election strategy.

The economy is regarded as the government's weak point by many observers and Sinclair Stevens, Conservative finance critic, said Monday the budget probably will contain goodies to persuade the electorate that the government can still run the country.

DOLLAR DIPS AGAIN

Chretien's announcement, made in response to opposition questions, came as the dollar closed at a new 45-year low of 87.97 cents U.S. on New York money markets Monday.

Later, the Bank of Canada announced an increase in its bank rate—to 8.5 from eight percent—in an effort to support the weak dollar.

The country had a record 1,007,000 unemployed in February, an 8.7-per-cent inflation rate after more than two years of mandatory wage-and-price controls, faces a record $11-billion federal spending deficit this year and had a relatively poor real growth rate in 1977.

Chretien said outside the Commons Monday that he has not yet approved any budgetary measures. Finance department spokesmen said "bits and pieces" were being assembled for a budget package.

CLC unity stance endorsed by QFL

QUEBEC (CP) — After months of agonizing, the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) has decided that Quebec residents should have the right to determine their own political destiny. Since the election of the Parti Quebecois government 19 months ago, the labor movement has been locked in an emotional debate on the future of Confederation.

A carefully-worded policy document, adopted at the CLC national convention Monday, stressed that the labor movement must remain united whatever the outcome of the planned referendum on Quebec independence.

"We, the working people of Canada, share an economic, political and constitutional system which today is creaking under the strain of near chaos," the congress said.

The statement said union members, with other Canadians, must "seek a new political and constitutional relationship," but hastily added that "we cannot yet determine what that relationship will be."

During the debate, a number of speakers, both French- and English-speaking, attacked the reference to a new relationship as an endorsement of a united Canada. Critics of the policy statement said it was an unwarranted attempt to influence Quebecers.

BACKS RESOLUTION

But the resolution had the backing of Louis Laberge, president of the 250,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor, which had campaigned for a plank which would give Quebec the right to self-determination without telling union members how to vote on the question of independence.

When the vote was taken, only about 200 of the 2,500 delegates rose to express their disapproval.

Sorel boss played both sides

SOREL, Que. (CP) — Marcel Salvail, Sorel's alleged crime boss, was also a police informer when it suited him, the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime was told Monday.

Documents deposited with the inquiry indicated that in one case information provided by Salvail led to the recovery of more than 600 cases of liquor stolen from the Quebec Liquor Corp. in 1969.

Salvail, a prominent businessman, has been described during the hearings as Sorel's "strong man" and has been the object of an extensive study by inquiry officials who say his case illustrates the working of organized crime outside Montreal.

"I always considered Marcel Salvail to be a police informer and used him when possible," the former head of the Quebec provincial police force in Sorel was quoted as saying in testimony deposited with the inquiry.

The start of Monday's hearing saw testimony by two witnesses whose identities were ordered withheld for reasons of safety. The first, a former convict, said Salvail was known to be well connected in Sorel.

Federal referendum bill tabled

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government moved Monday to arm itself against any fuzzy or unfair Quebec referendum on separation, introducing legislation that would allow it to hold its own opinion-sampling votes on constitutional questions.

Moments later, Marc Lalonde, minister of federal-provincial relations, made clear that the bill is designed primarily as a political weapon against the separatist Parti Quebecois government.

At a news conference, he challenged Premier Rene Levesque's Quebec government to adapt its own legislation on referendums in light of the federal model. The provincial bill, Lalonde said, "unduly restricts freedom of association and freedom of speech."

The legislation was immediately denounced by Levesque as "a pre-election ploy." Speaking to reporters in Montreal, Levesque said Trudeau wanted to wear "the mantle of the savior of Quebec."

At the news conference, Lalonde said the government may never use the legislation.

The federal bill was introduced as a tool to make sure the Quebec vote on separation was fair.

Levesque - nothing to apologize for...

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque praised his government's performance in economic matters before a predominantly English-speaking audience Monday, saying he had nothing to apologize for in the Parti Quebecois government's 16 months in power.

Citing in particular the PQ's new automobile insurance plan, as well as its proposal to take over part of the Quebec asbestos industry, Levesque told about 700 businessmen at a Canadian Club luncheon that "we're not far out radicals out to destroy initiatives."

"But... we are social democrats, to use the expression which is coined about us, which means very simply doing our best to be and to remain socially progressive."

Speaking in English, he said his party is conscious of the mistakes that have been made but that he was proud of the last 16 months.

THETFORD DEAL OKAYED

THETFORD MINES — A strike by 1500 Asbestos Society employees was averted when union and company representatives initiated an agreement in principle to a new collective agreement last night.

The agreement in principle, reached after more than 30 hours of uninterrupted negotiations, was initiated before special conciliator Jean-Robert Gauthier.

Union president, Olivia Lemay refused to divulge the terms of the agreement, but said the union negotiating committee was satisfied and would be recommending an approval from its members at a meeting to be held April 9.

The asbestos workers had voted 92 per cent in favor of strike action in a vote taken over the weekend.

Bernice and Raymond Bean are planning to spend part of their Loto winnings on a trip to Niagara Falls. Bernice has wanted to pay the Falls a visit since her wedding day, 42 years ago.

By JANET COTTON
of The Record

ROCK ISLAND — Bernice and Raymond Bean are the type of people that never had much, and never really wanted anything more. He's got his favorite old rocker, and she hangs plastic bread bags out on the clothesline to dry and use again tomorrow.

Even after winning $100,000 in Sunday night's Loto-Canada draw, he was still rocking, and she was out at the clothesline.

Bernice, 65 and Raymond, 79, say they don't really care too much about the money as long as it gets them to Niagara Falls and back. After 42 years of marriage, they're finally going to get a first honeymoon and that's enough for them.

The couple are co-owners of a one-tenth share in a winning million dollar ticket held by ten residents of this small border town.

Both retired and living off old age and spouse's pensions, they say the money isn't going to change their lives one bit.

"It's not that we don't want it. Believe me, we've got enough children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren to spread it around," said Bernice. "We're finally going to get to Niagara Falls. I've never been, and it's something I've wanted to do since my wedding day. Now, it's going to happen and that's what excites me."

They're not moving from the small ground floor apartment where they now live, because it may not be much, but it's home.

Before Sunday's draw, the biggest thing the Beans had ever won was a box of groceries in a Legion raffle.

"We never even thought about winning," said Raymond. "The main reason we went in on the ticket was to support young Canadian athletes, and we're going to keep on buying them."

Israel begins gradual withdrawal

Israel announced Monday it has started a gradual troop withdrawal from southern Lebanon that was occupied last month in an attack against Palestinian guerrillas. A UN source said Israel is pulling back about 10 kilometres, to within five kilometres of its border.

The Israeli military command said its soldiers are being replaced by UN peacekeeping troops.

A communique from the command said: "The (withdrawal) plan will be made public only after the subject has been finalized with the UN authorities."

But the UN source in Jerusalem said: "The Israelis told us they are pulling back about 10 kilometers from their forward positions along the Litani (River). That will leave them with a five-kilometre-wide strip of south Lebanon along the Israeli border."

Israel said a "significant thinning-out of forces" has been going on for a week. A military spokesman said the flow of Israeli troops across the frontier is a changing of the guard and the removal of non-essential units.

In New York City, UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said about 1,800

UN troops have been deployed so far in southern Lebanon with the total force to number 4,000. He reported 3,000 will be in place by next week. Israel had said earlier it will withdraw when the UN force is fully deployed.

Waldheim's report said 672 French troops, 195 Iranians, 224 Swedes and 690 Norwegians now are in place between the Israelis and Palestinians.

Norwegian troops are arriving in Tel Aviv and gradually moving north from an Israeli army base to take up positions with Swedish UN troops at the inland Khardali Bridge across the Litani. The river is the northern limit of the Israeli operation that began March 15, occupied 1,300 square kilometres of southern Lebanon and officially ended March 21.

Morris urges CLC role in economic plans

QUEBEC (CP) — Joe Morris, retiring president of the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC), is sticking to his contention that the labor movement should play a powerful role in economic planning with business and government.

Although some major unions in the 2.3-million-member congress have taken a hard stand against labor involvement in joint economic planning, Morris urged delegates to the CLC policy convention which opened yesterday to "continue the process of change to make the movement a greater influence upon the lives of Canadian workers."

"I have done what I believed needed to be done to make the CLC a real power in Canada," Morris said in his opening speech to the five-day policy convention. "Four years was not long enough, but a good start has been made."

In the leadership elections Thursday, delegates are expected to pick 55-year-old Dennis McDermott, the colorful Canadian director of the United Auto Workers, to succeed Morris.

McDermott, who does not face a serious challenge in his bid for the top job, said in an interview Sunday it is premature to predict how the congress will change under his leadership.

MUST EARN SPURS
"I don't have a blueprint, but I can't do it alone," he said. "I have to earn my spurs with my colleagues."

Morris, whose union activity dates back to 1937 when he was a British Columbia logger, urged the labor movement to increase its power "to confront all governments on each and every issue that affects working men and women."

Unions should resist all attempts to divide workers along linguistic lines and along public and private sector lines.

"The solidarity we have shown in the past must continue into the future."

The words echoed Morris's statement on the eve of the convention Sunday, when he told reporters the labor movement should place its emphasis on union solidarity, whatever the outcome of the planned

Quebec referendum on independence.

"To us, the over-riding consideration in any discussion must be the solidarity... of the workers of this country, whether it continues as one entity in the future or as two entities."

Morris noted today that the past two years "have been extremely turbulent ones for the labor movement in Canada."

MORE POLITICAL
"The imposition of wage controls and the fight by the Canadian Labor Congress to defeat them has made the labor movement and all of its institutions more political than at any previous time in the congress's short history."

Morris, 64, will continue as chairman of the governing body of the Geneva-based International Labor Organization until June and will serve on the Brandt commission which is studying the impact of industrial countries on developing countries. Chairman of the commission is Willy Brandt, former West German chancellor.

The CLC president said the Canadian labor movement should change its approach to meet changing times.

Placement centre for handicapped serves over 300

MONTREAL (CP) — For five years, Michel de Cesare, a cerebral palsy victim, recorded lectures and transcribed his tapes at home to earn a BA in computer sciences from Concordia University.

But after watching most of his classmates find jobs soon after graduating, the 28-year-old Montrealeur received no reply from the 60 employers he wrote to.

Realizing his physical handicap was the reason he wasn't being considered for the jobs, de Cesare got mad.

"I got so angry I decided something had to be done to change that situation," de Cesare said in a recent interview. "I knew I wasn't the only handicapped person facing discrimination from employers."

Two years ago, de Cesare set up a placement centre for handicapped persons in the Montreal area as part of a Local Initiatives Project funded by the federal government.

"The response was incredible," he said. "We placed 15 people in the first few weeks."

APPROVES PROJECT
A year later, De Cesare's project was approved by the department of manpower and immigration's Outreach program—started in 1972 for people whose special needs were not being met by Canada Manpower Centres.

Working with an $80,000 annual grant from Outreach, De Cesare now is the chief co-ordinator of L'Etape (The Step), a placement centre which serves more than 300 physically handicapped persons, most of them French-speaking, in the Montreal-area.

Run by de Cesare and four other people—two of whom are blind—the centre's main goal is not to find jobs for its clients, but to help them decide what kind of jobs would be best suited for them.

"We try to give the people who come here some tools they'll need to begin integrating into the labor force," said de Cesare.

Morning group discussions help familiarize participants with a working routine.

"Many of the people who come here have never worked before and have no idea what they want to do, so we talk about it together."

"Once they've decided what type of work they'd like to do, we try to teach them how to sell themselves to the employer."

THAT'S A LOT OF GOLD...

BRAMPTON (CP) — With little apparent effort, Johnson Matthey and Mallory Ltd. can display a stack of gold bullion worth about $6 million.

The leading processor of precious metals in Canada, Johnson has increased its production of gold 10 times—from 100,000 ounces annually to one million—in its new, modern Brampton plant.

When it moved part of its operations here from Toronto, the company doubled its staff to 70.

"This represents a 500 per cent increase in employee efficiency when we compare former and present production," said Tony Hart, the division general manager.

Johnson's chief activity, however, is recycling 250 tons a year of electronics scrap, nearly 20 per cent of the total of such scrap in North America.

WORTHY GOAL
The recycling recovers microthin gold plating applied to printed circuitry. With the price of gold in the $170-per-ounce category, the process ranks as essential.

The company also handles large quantities of spent platinum catalysts and silver photographic wastes. Silver production has risen to five million ounces annually from two million.

About 90 per cent of the company's gold production is shipped as bullion, mainly to metal markets in New York, Chicago and Winnipeg.

From these sources, 65 per cent of the world's gold recycling is used in the jewellery trade. Much of it goes into dentistry and industrial plating.

Business waging "a strike of capital"

QUEBEC (CP) — Big business in Canada is waging a "strike of capital" against working people to deprive them of hard-fought gains in collective bargaining, says Gerry Docquier, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America.

Docquier told a conference organized by the Canadian Labor Congress Sunday that companies are using "the unemployed in this country as an army to cut working standards now enjoyed by organized workers."

The "game plan" is to use layoffs or to contract out work in order to get around provisions of collective agreements, he said.

This suggests that "there is a strike of capital being conducted by the corporations in this country. It is a strike against equitable taxation, it is a strike against full employment practices, and it is a strike against the health and safety of workers."

POINT TO TAX BREAKS

Meanwhile, governments give multinational companies like Inco huge tax breaks to develop foreign holdings, Docquier said, and then do nothing when such companies cut Canadian jobs because their foreign operations are more profitable.

That was obvious in the case of the Inco layoffs in Sudbury which took effect in February, noted Docquier.

"They (Inco) felt free to do so because they know it is easier to handle our prime minister and his cabinet, and the premier and government of Ontario, than it is to face down a couple of second-rate dictators in Guatemala and Indonesia."

"In other words, our governments could be counted on to roll over and play dead when it came time to defend our jobs from being exported... by a bunch of international pirates in pursuit of the almighty dollar."

GOODYEAR EAGLE

A new standard of excellence in radial tire performance!

Now there is a very special Radial Tire available from Goodyear... The Goodyear Eagle with Flexten cord belts and it soon will become the standard by which other radials are judged.

What makes the Eagle Radial so special?

In one word it's "FLEXTEN".

Flexten is a Goodyear exclusive tire cord. It's made from Aramid, a man made fibre that is, pound for pound, stronger than steel.

Flexten belts help deliver extra long mileage. Goodyear's experience with this amazing tire cord in other radial tires such as The Ice Radial, Customgard GT Radial and the Police Special Radial indicates that the Eagle Radial will deliver exceptionally long mileage and outstanding performance.

Highway tests on the American Eagle Radial, forerunner to our Eagle, produced outstanding results. After 45,000 actual miles the tires still had nearly half their tread remaining. These were controlled tests run on ordinary highways at legal speed limits with non-professional drivers.

Tire pressure, alignment and balance were carefully maintained and the tires were rotated regularly. The mileage you can expect from Eagle Radials depends on your driving habits and the care you give your car and tires.

Flexten is more flexible than steel and this flexibility contributes to a smooth ride.

We know you'll like the feel of Eagle Radials on your car... the handling, the braking, the smooth quiet ride and you'll like the long mileage they deliver.

Ask your Goodyear Service Store or Dealer to install a set today and start enjoying a new standard of radial tire performance tomorrow.

Producer unity urged

Unity among producer groups is urgent in order to prevent a recurring milk problem stated La terre de chez nous in its monthly newsletter.

"Institutions cannot go on indefinitely being at daggers drawn with each other," the editorial said. "Moreover, to act in such a way is to compromise their survival and to play a dangerous game."

La terre cited the temporary suspension of subsidy cheques by the Canadian Dairy Commission following the division of the provincial quota allotment between the producer bodies as an example of internal conflict.

Such a disciplinary measure, the newsletter stated, could not continue because it "deprived producers who had complied with quota regulations a part of their income."

Calling for togetherness, especially at the level of the producer federations, syndicate, and board administering marketing plans, La terre expressed confidence that producer groups will be able to reach a decision by themselves.

Bedford school board meets

French immersion program gets underway

By TERRY SCOTT
Of The Record

The proposed implementation of an optional French immersion program within the District of Bedford Regional School Board continued to arouse discussion during the March 28th, general meeting of the board.

While the school board passed a motion calling for the application of the French immersion program, as reviewed with the Education Policies Committee, the support was not unanimous.

Two board directors opposed the motion, stating they were unconvinced about the success of such a venture.

"I can't see myself approving something that is doomed to failure," remarked one member.

The second dissenter felt that the program contained "too many loopholes for chatting and fooling around instead of academic study."

Director General Doug Bradford said the next stage in the program will be to meet with the parents and explain all the implications of the French immersion course.

"We hope to get a further commitment from them subsequent to that meeting," he added. "If the commitment is not there the program will be dropped."

Many parents had previously expressed interest in an optional French immersion program, which adds an extra academic year for the student, but some were not fully aware of all the details.

There was no opposition to a motion seeking to adopt a document consisting of the Board's philosophy of education, as well as the board's goal and the principle of general goals.

The philosophy of education evolved during the early days of Massey-Vanier Regional but was never made an official approach of the school board.

Following the motion passed last week the goal of DBRSB "shall be to serve the community through its policies and resources, so that each individual shall have the opportunity to develop his or her potential to the maximum."

Board chairman Bonar Lindsay probably produced the quip of the night when the subject of a French Protestant demand for their own school in the district resurfaced.

He told the board members that the French Protestants had about 78 children on their list, 22 of which were between kindergarten age and sixth grade.

Mr. Lindsay added that about 22-30 were said to be within school age range, though he was somewhat skeptical of the statistic. "I think a lot of them are still in their mother's womb or still in the imagination of their father," he remarked.

Speaking of kindergarten, parents of youngsters attending Heroes' Memorial will note a new design in report cards. More space is now provided for two-way communication rather than the cramped report which used to arrive at home.

The board is attempting to make the reports more uniform and feels they will be close to standard throughout the district next year.

Keith Lampman, DBRSB representative to the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards reported that the latter board is still working on its initial challenge of Bill 22. It will be granted 15 minutes before the Court of Appeals in which to present its case.

Chairman Lindsay told the meeting that there was good reason to challenge Bill 22 because it sets a judicial precedent.

Mr. Lampman stated that the QAPSB has asked school boards to hike its contribution to $3.24 per student, from the previous $3.00 they turned over to the QAPSB.

He said he had studied the QAPSB budget and found its reasons for an increase acceptable.

Assistant Director-General Kaye Vaughan said that the Parkview window project, calling for the repair of windows and back wall at the Granby school has been approved by the Department in Quebec, as well as the regional bureau. It will cost $117,250.

Two leases due to expire on property used by the board in Mansonville were renewed. One property is $870 per year while the other is $750.

The school board also extended its lease of a barn in Sweetsburg, used for the storage of old equipment, for another six months.

DBRSB is currently entering into negotiations with a QAPSB lawyer to consider the translation of the local collective agreement. The costs are to be shared by the employer and the syndicate.

A slide presentation on Massey-Vanier's Ecole de Neige project was postponed until the April meeting due to the absence of principal Bob Douglas.

Quebec-Canada rally...

LENNOXVILLE — Federalists in Quebec must group together and work together if they hope to defeat the Parti Quebecois' independence referendum, Pierre Brodeur, Director-General of the Quebec-Canada Association said last night.

Participation and volunteer work is the key, Mr. Brodeur told an audience of close to 200 members and friends of the Association's Lennoxville Chapter.

"We will need at least 18,000 people working at the polls, and a total of 50,000 volunteer workers on referendum day," he said. "We have to be there at every poll, in every riding, in every region of this province. We must be close to the people."

Quebecers should not think the government "will try and pull a fast one" on referendum day, he said, "because they will have to live with it."

"We have to give the government the benefit of the doubt that the referendum will be straight and honest," he said.

The Quebec-Canada Pre-Referendum Committee is already busy at work preparing to defeat the referendum, Brodeur said, "but we can't do it alone."

"The Committee was not formed to direct the people but to organize an efficient machine that will cover all angles from legal concerns to rides to the polls on voting day."

"There won't be a demand we won't meet," he said. "We'll play the game the way the Parti Quebecois wants to play it. We'll do it the right way, the legal way so there won't be anything to question."

PIERRE BRODEUR... Quebecers must group together to defeat the referendum.

A memorial service will be held for Bruce Taylor, who drowned in a swimming accident in the Bahamas, on Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. at Richmond Regional High School.

CN suspension extended

In accordance with the Railway Transport Committee's order No. R-26513 of March 18, 1978, suspension of operation of Canadian National's passenger train service between Richmond, Lyster and Quebec, provided by trains Nos. 122, 126, 127, 128 and 129 is extended until October 15, 1978.

As previously stated in the Committee's order of March 12, 1977, passenger train service was to be suspended for a period of one year.

By reason of an agreement between the Ministry of Transport and the Quebec Department of Transport, the Railway Transport Committee has now determined to further extend the term of suspension, pending final results of studies undertaken to, consequently, reopen the file.

Cowansville shelves street issue

By JOHN McCAGHEY
Of The Record

COWANSVILLE — The municipal council, at the urging of mayor Rosaire Raymond, shelved a resolution concerning the reopening of Main Street, at the regular meeting held here last night.

The resolution will be brought forth at the next regular session on May 1.

Alderman Pierre Beaudry said it was time council informed the public whether or not they were willing to hear plans to reopen the street or to close it forever.

His suggestion was the beginning of a lively one hour debate with some language not usually attributed to council meetings. Jean-Paul Sirois said he'd be 'damned' if he'd be pressured by one merchant, then said he bore no personal malice to a Mr. McDermott, who is pushing for the reopening of the street.

Alderman Anthony Barker said it was a waste of time to study proposals until such time that the council knew if they were going to support or condemn the move.

"It's a waste of time to study proposals if we aren't going to approve the opening," Mr. Barker said. "This should be settled as a matter of principle. If we approve its reopening we should establish a definite date to settle the issue once and for all."

"We must know if the majority of Cowansville approves of the matter," Mr.

Beaudry said. "If it is in the affirmative we should set up a committee to establish the ways and means and I don't mean spending a million dollars."

"We have to set a target date," alderman Claude Breton said. "I won't vote on the issue tonight but we must get the project going one way or the other."

"I agree we must have a decision of principle but I feel tonight is premature," mayor Raymond said.

"If the project appears too costly, why attempt to complete it," Mr. Barker said. "If it is to remain closed, why consider proposals?"

"There's no reason why we have to decide tonight," Mr. Sirois said.

We are what we think

Does history survive in the Townships?

Dr. Robin Burns, a Canadian History professor at Concordia, feels that the risk of the English culture dying out in the Townships is less than in other parts of the province because of the area's unique character.

We'd like to agree. But our view of history and culture and how the two interact is that there must be a vigorous community with a future in an area to guarantee the continuance of that community's culture. Furthermore, history isn't a static entity. History isn't a book of dates and names and places and facts. History is the ongoing story of how a culture coped with the problems caused by its own development, and once that culture ceases to exist, the historian dealing with it is like the biologist studying an extinct species.

History is being made right now. The fight over the decentralization of the federal civil service will be history. Quebec's current economic malaise will be history. The nationalization of Asbestos Corp. will be history, as will be the result of the government's independence referendum.

This brings us to something else. Dr. Burns, like many other enlightened Quebec Anglophones, says he once felt the weight of guilt because of English repression of the Quebecois, but that his guilt has been exiated by the recent activities of the Quebec government.

We hear too many English Quebecers admitting to this guilt. Almost daily, we hear people around us talking about how they've begun to learn French after a lifetime in Quebec — because of these pangs.

So what are we going to do — put our silly necks on the chopping block because somebody should pay for the sins of our forefathers? No damned way. That was the way it was; those factors, as Dr. Burns very correctly points out, were in many ways responsible for the current healthy state of Quebec nationalism.

In other words, history has survived very well in Quebec, even if the rest of this nation is hell-bent on building itself into a megapolis without a past. Indeed, history and culture in Quebec seem to have thrived on the very adversity Dr. Burns is referring to.

So let's forget about all this collective guilt and get about the business of giving next century's historians something to write about.

There should be no lack of material; the Townships have become one of the key battlegrounds in the federal-provincial war for control. As an instrument of written history, our editorial columns should be full of comment, reaction and debate; we look at the letters columns of the French papers and they're jammed with daily manifestations of a vigorous, active culture.

We're Quebecers, too. We may be assimilated; that's for the future to decide. We may survive as a culture; that depends on how badly we want to and how many of us there are. Like the Cree and the Inuit, we stand to go the way of the vanished Hurons if we don't take active steps to keep our own cultural development alive.

In Toronto, there is an Italian community which thrives without any government help whatsoever, with its own newspapers, radio programs, even community television. In many Canadian cities, French-speaking Quebecers have social clubs and regular get-togethers which depend entirely on the efforts of those involved. Their only secret is that they consider themselves communities in their own right, and until Townshippers are ready to consider themselves that way, there's little future for anything that could be considered an ongoing, vital Townships culture.

...so let's forget about blaming the Quebec government for the exodus of our best-trained people. It's not their fault that English-speaking Quebecers never bothered to learn French. Instead, let's think Townships — culture and history.

Radio-Quebec: A mouthpiece for the PQ?

MONTREAL (CP) — Radio-Quebec, the province's educational television network, says it intends to get involved in the Quebec independence debate but does not want to become a mouthpiece for the Parti

Quebecois. Network president Yves Labonte says it is possible that the pro-independence government led by Premier Rene Levesque could apply pressure to have the network promote independence although this has not happened yet. "But it's up to us to stand up to them," Labonte said in a recent interview. "We are dedicated to resisting pressures of this type."

Knowing Rene Levesque, a former journalist who realizes the importance of freedom for the information media, it would be very surprising if he tried to use us to promote independence," he said. The question becomes more timely as the referendum on Quebec's future draws nearer and as the Levesque government examines the potential influence of a television network whose bills it pays.

Radio-Quebec operates stations in Montreal, Quebec City and Hull and is planning a fourth in Rouyn to serve northwestern Quebec. The network, which is estimated to have a potential audience of about four million—two-thirds of the province's population—sells no commercials and depends on the provincial government for its current budget of $22.6 million.

IMPACT NOT LOST

The political impact of television is not lost on Levesque, who first made his mark as the deft host of a popular public affairs show from 1956 to 1958 on Radio-Canada, the CBC's French-language television network.

Even now that he is premier, Levesque appears on television regularly on his own monthly half-hour show paid for by the Parti Quebecois on the private Tele-Metropole network.

However, the problem of government interference with Radio-Quebec programming appears to have been a greater problem with the former Liberal government.

Labonte recounted with relish an incident in which Denis Hardy, Liberal communications minister before the Parti Quebecois took power in 1976, once told him that the network's shows were biased.

Hardy had complained that a political organizer had seen a Radio-Quebec show which contained an interview with veteran Quebec nationalist Pierre Bourgault. "I told Hardy that I would listen to him if he watched Radio-Quebec's shows for a month and could talk about 10 or 12 shows," Labonte said with a smile of satisfaction.

"WOULD LOSE" Network support for Quebec independence "would be the best way for us to lose all credibility," Labonte said.

Programs concerning the referendum will be aimed at "informing people of the situation, of what is at stake so that when they vote they will know what it means," he said.

Of course, Labonte said, it is possible that partisan comments can be slipped into the occasional show, depending on the producer or the host. "This is part of the game," he added with a smile.

"Some people say they are afraid of government interference, but you can reassure them that as long as I'm here—along with the board of directors we have—this will not happen."

But for now, Radio-Quebec's stations are transmitting only a test pattern. The network suspended operations March 20 as a result of a labor dispute with one of the unions representing Radio-Quebec employees.

Another key Radio-Quebec official, program director Claude Sylvestre, confirmed that the Parti Quebecois government has shown no signs of moving to control the network.

"I understand why the public would ask such a question," said Sylvestre, who was a producer for 20 years at Radio-Canada. "But we are not in an Eastern-bloc country."

"We don't want to serve anybody's politics."

Approaching marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Dezan of Lennoxville, are happy to announce the approaching marriage of their eldest daughter, Elaine to Mr. Barry Sutor, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sutor of Milby. Marriage is to take place April 29, 1978, at the Lennoxville United Church.

World Development

LENNOXVILLE — On Tuesday evening March 14, a meeting was held in the United Church's Gertrude Scott Hall, Lennoxville, on the theme "Whose Land? Whose Food?" This was one of a series of meetings on "Ten Days of World Development", ecumenically sponsored by the churches of the area.

Representatives attended from the United Church, the Presbyterian Church and the Anglican Church. On invitation of Mrs. Zen Judson, the Rev. Canon Mervyn Awcock, rector of St. George's Church, Lennoxville, opened the meeting with an explanation of the purpose of the meeting, followed by prayer and a hymn.

Canon Awcock explained that the meeting was called to bring to the attention of the people of this area, the plight of hungry people of the third world countries. It is hoped that more and more people will become interested and learn what can be done to help them.

Mrs. Winnie Jellicoe spoke on the film "Bottle Babies". The film depicts the plight of African babies who are dying as a result of unsanitary mixing of dried milk products with unboiled water which is often bacteria infested, in dirty utensils and poured into dirty bottles. Often the formula is mostly water and the babies are dying of malnutrition and dysentery.

African mothers have been brain washed by clever advertising to give up breast feeding and put their babies on a dried milk product. After a court battle, the judge said that one company must change its advertising policy. Another company has also been charged with bad marketing practices. Can big multinational companies be forced to use the same ethics abroad as at home? 'Milk nurses' are hired by the companies and go around in uniform to promote sales and because they are in uniform the mothers believe them.

It was quite evident that everyone at the meeting was deeply touched by this film and felt that pressure should be put on the companies to put people before profits.

Prof. and Mrs. T.A. Judson then introduced a film strip "Land, the Threatened Resource", regarding land use in Canada, only a small portion of which is prime land.

It was felt that we must try to save what prime land we have left, for farming and use the poor land for building purposes. We must take an interest in our own area, get statistics and have another meeting. We must replan our whole society, go back to the Bible and have the land Community owned. Maybe the Government should buy up prime land from retiring farmers who have to sell, keeping it out of the hands of speculators and reserve it for farming.

Mr. R.C. Tracy acted as projectionist and Mr. Dave Donachie was in charge of publicity. Posters on the theme were made by the Girl Guides and were very well done. Free literature was available for interested people. Light refreshments in tune with the theme, were served by Mrs. Edith Warner.

This was an extremely interesting meeting. Another is planned for the fall and it is hoped that many people will attend, to learn or to teach us all how to make this a better world, where no one will go hungry, the meeting ended with Mrs. Judson reading an Ojibwa prayer, a prayer which tied in very well with the theme.

Mrs. Morin offered to look after the raffle tickets and Mrs. Juanita Norris will look after the supper tickets. Supper tickets and raffle books will also be on sale at the Bar at the Legion Home. Help for ethnic handicapped TORONTO (CP) — Daily for the last 15 years, Grace Molisse has washed, dressed, diapered and fed her handicapped daughter Rosaria.

Thalidomide was prescribed for Mrs. Molisse while she was pregnant with Rosaria, before its effects were known. Rosaria was born retarded.

The love and strain of caring for Rosaria show in Mrs. Molisse's face. Yet now she says "I have tranquility."

That tranquility comes from anticipation of a new weekend relief service financed by the Ontario government for Italian-speaking parents of mentally handicapped children.

Two weekend days a month from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. parents like Mrs. Molisse will be able to take their retarded children to Villa Colombo, a community centre where trained staff who speak Italian and English will care for the children and help them to reach their maximum potential.

Rosaria "does not speak," her mother says, but she understands both languages. She is one of about 70 surviving thalidomide-deformed children born to Canadian parents before Canada banned the drug in March of 1962.

BORN ARMLESS
The 15-year-old has no arms and a foreshortened leg. She has made limited progress, says Mrs. Molisse, at a special school for the handicapped.

The Ethnic Association for the Mentally Handicapped was formed a year ago by concerned Italian parents with the guidance of Bruno Scorsone, a social worker with the Family Service Association of Metropolitan Toronto.

Scorsone, multilingual in Italian, English, Spanish and French, is developing outreach programs dealing with mental retardation among several ethnic groups.

About 5,000 children and young adults in Metro Italian homes suffer from moderate to severe forms of retardation, Scorsone said.

"We realize the ethnic association can't help everybody," he says.

"For the first year and a half we are hoping to serve Italian families. Then the association hopes to involve other groups to show them how to set up self-help groups in their respective languages."

AIDED BY HOSPITAL

The provincial operating grant of $25,000 is supplemented by a grant of $28,000 from the Hospital for Sick Children to "help the ethnic association reach out to ethnic families with handicapped children in Metro," Scorsone says.

Most of us really look forward to a big juicy ham with all the trimmings. But what about the ham that remains after the big dinner? Leftovers don't have to be destined solely for those everlasting ham and cheese sandwiches.

Hearty Ham Bake is a fascinating main dish which can be baked and served in an old-fashioned cast iron skillet for a bit of country charm. Or your favorite casserole dish will work equally well. Either way you'll serve a meal as welcome as spring.

A savory ham filling is topped with a popover-like batter, which puffs slightly when baked. The colorful and nutritious filling is quickly made from a package of frozen peas and carrots, chunks of ham, and a smooth flavorful chicken gravy.

The gravy is made the easy way with an envelope of chicken gravy mix. Then mayonnaise is stirred in for an extra creamy sauce.

A crisp green salad, milk or coffee, and a piece of spice cake will complete a hot and hearty early spring supper when served with either main dish recipe.

Senior Citizens entertained

DERBY LINE (IH) — The evening of Wednesday, March 29, on the calendar, the pages of time was rolled back for a half hour of entertainment on St. Patrick's Day, March 17, when a group from the American Legion Auxiliary, Newport, Unit 21 came to the Michaud Manor in Derby Line.

The entertainers were wearing Paddy green and white stripe vests embroidered with shamrocks and green high hats, depicting the color of the Emerald Isle.

The program was planned by Miss Gertrude Asselin, who, despite her 84 years, has nimble fingers as she played to perfection, on the piano, as the girls sang Irish songs, did a few dance steps and invited the listeners to join in singing some of the old songs.

Mrs. Olive Prue, wearing a gown of green with an old fashioned cap over her hair, her gown covered with a white bibbed apron was escorted to a chair by her daughters, Mrs. Marion Lyons and Mrs. Madelyn Collins, who sang Mother Machree.

Other songs sung included Irish Lullaby, Peggy O'Neil, My Wild Irish Rose and such. The music director was Mrs. Ann Berrio who also sang a solo. What ever will be.

The appreciation of the Manor residents was expressed by applause and later chatting one with the other.

The singers were Mrs. Ann Barrio, Orleans, Mrs. Millie Carron, Mrs. Madelyn Collins, Mrs. Martha Choquette, Mrs. Frances Whipple, Mrs. Helen Gelbar, Mrs. Betty Rhodes, Mrs. Marion Lyons and Mrs. Olive Prue, all from Newport.

Ann Landers says...

Talk to the passenger

Dear Ann: May a school bus driver say a word through your column to the parents of the kids we drive? Thank you.

Dear Parents: If I didn't love kids I wouldn't have taken this job, but a little help from you would mean a lot.

First: I don't mind cleaning up after children when they get sick and throw up. They can't help it. But I shouldn't have to pick wads of gum off the floor and scrape suckers from between the seats. The apple cores, orange peels, grapes and pieces of cake are other items I can do without. Please be patient with me if I am late. Sometimes the roads are bad or the traffic is heavy, or it could be mechanical trouble.

I have no right to touch your kids if they misbehave - and they know it. So please instruct them to be courteous and obedient. If a child throws things, gets in a fight on the bus and distracts me, it could cause an accident. I would never forgive myself if something happened and my kids were hurt - even though it wasn't my fault. So please have a little talk with your bus passenger tonight at supper, folks and make my life easier.

Thanks a lot - Your Child's Bus Driver

Dear Driver: I'm sure every school bus driver in the world appreciates your message. I thank you in their behalf.

CONFIDENTIAL to Nuts to You: Please take your business elsewhere. I haven't time for any more of your 25-page letters filled with profanity and obscenities. It sounds to me like the operation was a success but the patient died.

Dear Ann: A woman in this office is famous for her off-color jokes. Every day she has a new one. Some of them are just plain filthy. I find her stories extremely offensive. When the group gathers to listen I "get busy" and stay away.

One of the older woman (very nice) told me I ought to join the others - that by absenting myself, I give the impression I think I am better than the rest of them. Is she right? — Blue Nose(?)

Dear (?): No. It's always a mistake to lower your standards to "fit in with the crowd." So long as you don't try to reform anybody or make them feel that you consider yourself above them, you are on solid ground. Just keep busy during joke-telling time. This will convey the message that you aren't interested and there's nothing wrong with that.

Tables have water marks

By Polly Cramer

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — Please tell me how to remove water marks from maple or birch tables. — FAYE
DEAR FAYE — If your tables had been waxed, removing it with liquid wax may turn the trick. Wipe the liquid wax off while it is still wet. If spots leave with the old wax, re-wax the tables. With other finishes, try rubbing lightly with a soft cloth dampened in water containing a few drops of ammonia. Or, there is this column's old standby — rub with cold cigarette ashes mixed with butter (rub with the grain of the wood), and then wipe off completely with a clean soft cloth. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Hanging plant lovers can use a metal shower curtain ring to hang a plant from the curtain rod at a window. — MARY LOU

DEAR READERS — This is a great idea IF you are sure your curtain rod is strong enough and fastened to the frame securely enough to stand the weight of a hanging plant. If it does not break it might sag. So, be sure. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is that I wish people would smile more. Any place you go you see so few smiles — just grim faces. — PATRICIA

DEAR POLLY — When baking berry pies, do not fret about the juice running over. Put plastic drinking straws through the top crust and the pie juice will run up the straws and go down when it cools. The straws can be cut a bit shorter than they come.

When making French horn pastry and you do not have metal horns, make your own out of heavy duty foil. They work just as well and are not as expensive. — CONNIE

DEAR POLLY — I keep frost off the lower glass of my windows by tacking strips of plain white plastic to cover the glass. I have been doing this for some time and it has really worked for me. — MARY K.

DEAR POLLY — I get the last little bit of toothpaste, hair care products, etc. out of plastic tubes by cutting off the bottom edge of the tube and then squeezing it out of the bottom. — MRS. D.M.

DEAR POLLY — I have a 78-year-old treadle sewing machine that was not sewing the way it should. I discovered the trouble was that I had cotton thread on the bobbin and polyester on the top. I changed the bobbin to polyester thread and it started to sew just perfectly again. It sounds like a different machine. I am sure it would be the same with later models. — MRS. L.K.

Misleading labels

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am on a low cholesterol diet and am constantly looking for foods I can use. I bought a coffee creamer which said it contained no cholesterol, but the label says it contains coconut oil. I was under the impression that this oil was high in cholesterol. I am enclosing the label with the ingredients.

Also I was under the impression that shell fish — shrimps, clams, lobster and oysters — were high in cholesterol and should be avoided. However I heard recently that these foods were no longer in

'The winners are average working people'

Seventeen-year-old Heather Simpson, a grade ten high school student, said she has no idea what she will do with the $50,000 she won in the draw.

Heather and her parents, Edward and Ruby Simpson, who will each claim $25,000 say they'll believe it when "the cheque is in our hands."

Edward, a retired Butterfield employee, and Ruby, a worker at Spencer Supports, are planning a trip to England as their major spending spree.

"It doesn't even register that we've won," said Ruby. "It's nice to know that the money is there, but I'm going to keep on working, and life around here is going to go on as normal."

Heather, who must wait until her eighteenth birthday to claim her share of the money, said it'll be going straight into the bank.

"I don't need anything right now, so I might as well put it away until I do," said Heather.

"Besides," said her mother, "her boyfriend doesn't like the idea too much right now. He would rather be buying things for her than have it the other way around."

Ticket pool organizer and one of the ten $100,000 winners, Raymond Beaudin said he'll gladly join pools, but won't be organizing another one again.

"My nerves. I couldn't sleep, and the phone and doorbell haven't stopped ringing," he said. "I wanted to go out for a beer, but I was too scared to leave the ticket at the house, and even more frightened of taking it out and losing it. I have been babysitting that ticket."

Mr. Beaudin, an unemployed granite worker, and his wife Marie-Lou will be spending some of the money on fixing the porch and driveway, and will take their children on a train trip across Canada this summer.

"What's really good to see is that all of the people who were in on the winning ticket could use the money, and use it wisely. They're just average working people," said Marie-Lou.

Other winners of $100,000 are: Clifford Rediker, Pierrette Dubois, Lucie Roy, Luc Brazeau, Elane Wilson, Gladys Ellis and Ruth Munroe.

Edward and Ruby Simpson and their daughter, Heather, won $100,000 between them. Heather's leaving her share in the bank for now and Mr. and Mrs. Simpson are planning a trip to England.

Raymond Beaudin organized the winning pool and says he's been "babysitting the ticket" since he heard the good news.

Obituary

HOMER SMITH of Stanstead

Homer Smith entered into peaceful rest at the age of 67 at the C.H.U. Hospital on Wednesday, March 15, 1978.

The funeral service was held at Cass Funeral Home, Stanstead on Saturday, March 18, at 11 a.m. with Rev. O. Merriman of Christ Church, Stanstead, officiating.

The bearers were Donald Webb, Roland Roy, Tommy Bachelder, Johnny Wilson, Dennis Distefano and Ted Middleton.

Spring interment will take place in Crystal Lake Cemetery.

Mr. Smith was born May 7, 1910, in Barnston, son of Minnie (Lane) and Oral Smith. Homer attended Fairfax School and Brothers' School in Stanstead for his education. He was employed at George A. Channell, Butterfield's and the Town of Stanstead.

On October 5, 1935, he married Beatrice Major in Beebe with Rev. Tyson officiating. This union was blessed with three children (a girl and two boys), Shirley, Larry and Wayne. They first settled in Stanstead where they bought their home, which was originally his mother Minnie's. He lived in the same house for 42 years.

Homer was active in the Fish and Game Club and was on the Fire Department of Stanstead for many years.

Left to mourn are his wife Beatrice, his three children Shirley, Larry and Wayne, 8 grandchildren, Mary Ann, Richard, David, Debbie, Steven, Jimmy, Anglia and Valerie, and brother Harold.

Those attending the funeral from a distance were from Montreal, Newport, Coaticook, Ontario and many from the Three Villages.

With Conservative assistance, the government voted down five NDP amendments.

PC's only need five — Clark

MONTREAL (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Joe Clark says his party could win the next general election if it takes only five seats in Quebec, but he might then have to use his powers of appointment to maintain a balance between French- and English-speaking members in cabinet.

MANILA (AP) — Flames tore through the Philippines capital's waterfront slums Monday, destroying 20 square blocks of shacks and apartments and leaving about 21,000 persons homeless.

There were no reports of deaths, but one hospital said it treated 16 injuries. Many residents saved only what they could carry.

In the harbor area, crews of small inter-island ships soaked their vessels with firehoses to keep embers from igniting them.

Kidnap victim returned

MONTREAL (CP) — A 21-year-old man abducted on the weekend and held for more than 30 hours was returned home safely Monday, as police thwarted a kidnap-extortion plot.

Police said the kidnap victim, Bordgen Sever, was released about 7 p.m. EST Monday, the day after he was kidnapped by three men near his home in Montreal's west-end Cote des Neiges district.

A $3,000 ransom was recovered and three suspects arrested minutes after the money was dropped off at a shopping centre near his home. The three men arrested were to be charged today with kidnapping and extortion.

Indian not in on unity force

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The Dene Nation—until last week known as the Indian Brotherhood of the Northwest Territories—said Monday it will not participate in the Task Force on Canadian Unity.

"To participate in a commission where we have no guarantee that our point of view will be listened to, and no opportunity for dialogue or negotiation, can only weaken our position," Dene Nation president Georges Erasmus said in a prepared statement.

John Wayne recovering

BOSTON (AP) — John Wayne, who had a 25-cent-sized circle snipped from his heart and replaced with a valve from a pig, has a 90-per-cent chance to recover from open-heart surgery and return to the adventure films he's made for 50 years, his doctors say.

Surgeons at Massachusetts General Hospital said Monday's "uneventful," three-hour operation was necessary because Wayne's mitral valve had ruptured, allowing blood to seep from his heart into his lung. Doctors said this had made him tired and short of breath.

One physician, Dr. Roman DeSanctis, said he was impressed by Wayne's rugged good health.

"We've seen him in plenty of movies, but I don't think many of us appreciated just how big and strong he is," Dr. DeSanctis said.

"He had been losing his zip," he said. "In the past few months, he has had symptoms of fatigue and shortness of breath and wasn't able to do the things he wanted to."

MP calls for "porno" control

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal MP called Monday for parliamentary control over the Canada Council to stop it from subsidizing what he called pornography.

Hugh Anderson (Comox-Alberni) said some books published by Blue Ointment Press and financed by Canada Council grants amounted to "degradation of the printed word."

In the latest of recent complaints from both sides of the House about the Vancouver publisher, he said it was ironic to find a government agency financing pornography at a time when a Commons committee is urging new laws to control it.

Rescued after 73 days

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Two Italian adventurers were rescued from a raft in the South Atlantic 73 days after their 35-foot yacht Surprise struck a whale and sank, the Argentine Merchant Marine reported Monday.

The Greek freighter Master Stefanos picked up yachtsman Ambrogio Fogar and journalist Mauro Mancini on Sunday and is taking them to Cape Town, South Africa.

An Italian embassy spokesman said they are in good condition.

Strangler suspect released

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP) — Peter Mark Jones, the Beverly Hills handyman who was booked for investigation of two Hillside Strangler murders, was released Monday for lack of evidence, Police Chief Daryl Gates said.

Gates had called Jones' arrest last Thursday a major break in the baffling series of 13 killings since last September.

Jones, 37, was silent as he left police headquarters. His lawyer Albert Johnson of Boston said: "My client is relieved to be free."

Carter returns home

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter returned home Monday from his precedent-setting Third World tour during which he warned South Africa that failure to accept reasonable proposals to end white rule in black Namibia (South-West Africa) might lead to serious trouble with the U.S.

Davis firing mysterious

VICTORIA (CP) — Mystery surrounds the firing Monday of Jack Davis as minister of energy, transport and communications in the British Columbia cabinet.

Premier Bill Bennett told the legislature he had asked for and obtained Davis' resignation after being advised during the weekend of an investigation affecting the minister.

The premier refused to disclose any details, saying it might compromise the investigation or its eventual outcome.

Manitoba studies recommendations

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Premier Sterling Lyon says his government will make "an immediate and careful scrutiny" of the recommendations of the task force on government organization and economy tabled in the legislature Monday.

The study group's report recommends that the existing departmental system in the Manitoba government be completely revamped.

The two-volume, 276-page study tabled in the house by Sidney Spivak, minister without portfolio, urges adoption of a six-member treasury committee which in effect would be an inner cabinet.

Ontario denied council spot

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario was denied a much-hoped-for spot on the federal-provincial northern pipeline council Monday, in a series of votes that sent the government's gas pipeline legislation into final reading today.

A Progressive Conservative amendment to the bill, which would have expanded the pipeline's consultative council to include Ontario and Quebec, was defeated by a 13-vote margin in the Commons.

The Conservatives, New Democrats and Social Credit all supported the amendment, but were unable to match the Liberal 73-vote showing.

Five other amendments to the pipeline bill, all introduced by the NDP, received only the votes of the nine NDP members in the House.

Canadian dollar hits low

MONTREAL (CP) — Renewed pressure on the Canadian dollar pushed the battered currency below 88 U.S. cents for the first time in 45 years on New York money markets Monday.

At the end of an active trading session in the interbank wholesale market, the dollar was changing hands at 87.97 U.S. cents, down from Friday's close of 88.19 U.S. cents.

The dollar last closed below 88 U.S. cents in May, 1933, when it hit a low of 86.77 U.S. cents. In June, 1933, the dollar rebounded to 88.50 U.S. cents.

At one point in hectic early afternoon trading, the dollar dropped as low as 87.72 U.S. cents.

The dollar has fallen 1½ U.S. cents since last month. On March 1, it was trading at 89.49 U.S. cents.

Dealers said pressure on the dollar had eased Friday when it was rumoured the Bank of Canada would raise the bank rate during the weekend.

Oscar celebrates 50th year

Academy Awards night comes to life again

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — At 50, Oscar has come alive again. The 50th Academy Awards show was a lively birthday party for the little guy, complete with political controversy and some of the "best" Oscars going to a man who was too nervous to show up at the affair.

Woody Allen's bittersweet remembrance of his life's love, Annie Hall, won four of the most important Oscars, including Best Picture, and 1977's runaway boxoffice favorite, Star Wars, won six, most of them in technical categories, and a special award for sound effects.

Diane Keaton, a first-time nominee and Allen's former real life sweetheart, was named Best Actress for her close-to-life portrayal of the flighty Annie Hall. Richard Dreyfuss, also a first-time nominee, won a best actor Oscar for his portrayal of a frustrated actor sharing a New York apartment with an unwilling Marsha Mason in The Goodbye Girl.

Julia, a tale of underground efforts in Nazi Germany, based on a section of Lillian Hellman's Pentimento, won three Oscars, but another favorite, The Turning Point, was shut out.

NFB WINS TWO
The National Film Board of Canada won two Oscars for its best night ever at the awards. Sand Castle, directed by Co Hoedeman, won the best animated award and I'll Find a Way, directed by Beverly Shaffer, won the award for best live short.

won the award for best live short.

Unlike last year's rather dull show, when Oscar producer William Friedkin spurned the ostentatious trappings of show biz, Monday night's producer Howard Koch, the academy's president, gloried in the movies' glamor and tradition.

Appreciating the affair's traditional standing as the world's foremost star-gazing opportunity, Koch brought back the noisy arrival of the stars and did an interesting montage mixing clips of old arrival scenes with real arrivals.

There was controversy, courtesy of the best supporting actress winner, Vanessa Redgrave, for Julia. Miss Redgrave, whose nomination prompted protests from some quarters because of a pro-Palestinian documentary she financed, accepted her Oscar with the usual thanks and then told the academy:

"I think you should be very proud that in the last few weeks you've stood firm and you've refused to be intimidated by the threats of a small bunch of Zionist hoodlums whose behavior (here she was interrupted by a collective audience gasp) is an insult to the stature of Jews all over the world."

Her comments later were attacked by playwright Paddy Chayefsky, who told the audience he was "sick and tired of people exploiting the occasion of the Academy Awards for the propagation of their own political propaganda."

He suggested to Miss Redgrave that "a simple thank you would have sufficed."

Allen's impressive score for Annie Hall also caused some buzzing: best director, best original screenplay, best actress and best picture.

When Annie Hall producer Charles Joffe telephoned Allen in New York to tell him how his picture fared, Allen replied: "Don't bother me, I'll talk to you in the morning."

"He was asleep," Joffe said.

NFB brings home two Oscars

HOLLYWOOD (CP) — The National Film Board of Canada had its best night ever at the Academy Awards on Monday, winning two Oscars.

The NFB won Oscars for best animated short and the best live short. Sand Castle, directed by Co Hoedeman, won the best animated award, while I'll Find a Way, directed by Beverly Shaffer, won the second Oscar.

NFB entries have been nominated for Oscars 45 times during the years, but they have won only twice before, the most recent winner being Norman McLaren's Neighbors in 1952.

Hoedeman, a 37-year-old Dutch-born Montrealer, said he made Sand Castle with the hope viewers would understand more about the battle of mankind and nature. The 13-minute film shows creatures emerging out of a wind-blown dune. He said the creatures he created are those he thinks a child would like to see emerging from a sand womb.

"Animation is a condensation of reality," he said prior to the awards. "That's why animated films are never that long."

"You have to find a way to stylize an idea. It's like visual poetry. You can create a whole new fantasy world for yourself. Yet it can therefore be very close to reality for something for the audience to identify with."

I'll Find a Way is a touching half-hour documentary about a handicapped Toronto girl. It was broadcast recently by CBC television as part of its Children of Canada series.

Two other NFB films were nominated for Oscars this year. The Bead Game by Isha Patel was also nominated in the animated short category and High Grass Circus, a film about Canada's only surviving tent circus, directed by Torben Schioler and Tony Ianzelo, was nominated for best feature documentary.

Richard Dreyfuss took home the Oscar for best actor last night for his role in "The Goodbye Girl".

Social afternoon enjoyed

DANVILLE (JE) — A most enjoyable afternoon was spent at the St. Augustine's Church Hall, March 18, when Mr. and Mrs. Alden Boreham, with the help of their grandchildren and Kathleen Fulker, entertained some fifty friends at "500", followed by a delicious supper, consisting of ham, beans, salads and a variety of pies. The tables were attractively set in St. Patrick's Day theme.

"500" was played at eight tables and the winners were: Ladies 1st, Mrs. Alice Olney; 2nd, Mrs. Ann Bourner; Gent's 1st, Mr. Frank Bourner; 2nd, Mr. Albert Comeau.

Low score was won by Miss Ruth Coakley. Mr.

Comeau was the lucky winner of the first door prize, a Kentucky Fried Chicken voucher donated by Mr. Harold Willey, the second door prize was claimed by Mr. Allan Sutherland.

The Boreham family had spent a great deal of time and effort selling tickets on an Easter ham. The response to this effort was very gratifying and several other prizes were drawn for, as well as the ham.

Mr. William Seymour of the Wales Home was the winner of the ham, or the equivalent in money. Mr. Eric Harding was the winner of a lovely Esmond blanket, a pen and pencil set was won by Mrs. Kay Brock, as well as a Kentucky Fried Chicken voucher went to Mrs. L. Coakley. Two vouchers for gas which had been donated by Bob's Gas Bar were won by Mrs. Pearl Goodenough and Mr. George Goodenough.

Mrs. Boreham, to show her appreciation to the girls who had assisted her, had gifts for each of them and these were presented.

Mr. and Mrs. Boreham planned the afternoon and are donating the proceeds which were very favourable to Golden Rule No. 13 Oddfellows' Lodge of which Mr. Boreham is a member.

The members of Golden Rule would like to express their appreciation to the Boreham family for their generosity and thoughtfulness.

Mr. Stephen Morson was visiting Mr. James Walsh at Bedford recently and reports him as well and in fine spirits. He did admit to missing old local friends.

Mr. Redvers McKenzie, passed away in Montreal on Friday, March 17. Sympathy is extended to his wife, Mrs. Mildred McKenzie who resides on Manson Crescent and their three sons, Redvers Jr., Donald and Douglas and the grandchildren.

Miss Lyn Mathews left Saturday, March 11 by plane for Greece with six students from Bishop's College School in Lennoxville for two weeks. She was expected home about March 29.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Duboyce and son Timmy left for their home in Ottawa on Easter Day after being guests of Arthur's father, Mr. Ray Duboyce since their return from Washington, D.C. the previous Thursday. They were all dinner guests on Easter Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Marsh of West Bolton.

The Food Sale put on by the Sunday School of the United Church after the morning service on Easter Day was a complete sell-out in record time. It was a fund raising effort to raise money for the Sunday School and also for summer camp. Congratulations.

Residents were shocked at the news of the fire shortly after midnight at Easter. The house, once the property of Mr. James McKeown on Lakeside Road was left just a shell and it resulted in the death of three young people, part of a skiing party from Montreal. This was the first instance that there had been loss of life in the town's history, with a number of serious and large fires over the years. The firemen were on duty for over 8 hours, with their chaplain David Stanway - with four church services to conduct on Easter Day, carrying on into the late afternoon without sleep.

Our fire chief Jean Grenier may also have found it a long day. In addition to several duties relating to the fire itself, he certainly would be attending the performance in Waterloo of the Waterloo Artistic Skating Club in which his daughter Sophie and Chantal Dagenais were performing.

Flowers on the altar at St. Paul's Church on Easter Day were in loving memory of Dr. and Mrs. A.S. Douglass; Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Turner, Mr. C.N. Turner, Mr. Anthony Awde, Mrs. Mildred Bailey, Mr. Stuart McLeod.

Mrs. Brian Perry of West Brome was calling, with her husband's mother, on her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Taylor in the afternoon of Easter Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Graham George of St. Bruno and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Trewin of Frankford, Ont., were calling on Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ladd on Easter weekend.

FISHING'78

AN OUTLINE:

The new policy of wildlife management is intended to give all Quebecers access to the wild-life and leisure resources of the forest.

When the season opens on April 28, 1978, fishermen will be the first to benefit by the abolition of exclusive fishing and hunting rights.

WHAT CHANGES DOES THIS IMPLY? • Private clubs will no longer have exclusive hunting and fishing rights.

• Québec citizens will no longer require fishing permits (except for salmon). • Creation of CEZs — Controlled Exploitation Zones: these areas will be assigned to non-profit associations recognized by the Ministry. In order to have access to the wildlife resources in a CEZs, a citizen must be a card-carrying member of such an association (cost — about $15 per year per family). • For public lands which are not maintained as parks, reserves, CEZs or territories leased to outfitters: accessible to all without formalities. • Wildlife protection: increased control and surveillance by a larger staff of biologists, technicians and conservation officers (fishing and game-wardens, etc.).

WHAT HAS NOT CHANGED • The regulations respecting hunting and fishing (limited seasons, catch limits, type of arms, zones, etc.) will remain in force and applied by wildlife conservation officers. • Parks and reserves: open to all. As in the past, phone reservations will be required for a day's fishing or an extended stay. • Rights of purveyance: the possibility of hunting and fishing trips under contract. Those interested should contact an outfitter, as in the past.

• Private property: the owner of any property, a club on private property, lake-front lots, land serviced by private road, etc., may allow, or refuse, access to that property, as has always been the case.

Traded pitchers impress in debut

Dennis Eckersley and Rick Wise, two of the six players in last week's big trade between Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians, made impressive spring debuts with their new clubs Monday.

Eckersley, a 23-year-old right-hander, allowed three hits—all doubles—in five innings as the Red Sox blanked New York Mets 6-0. Bill Campbell and Dick Drago completed the shut-out.

Meanwhile, Wise, a veteran right-hander, held Chicago scoreless for six innings but needed relief in the seventh as the Indians edged the Cubs 4-3. Wise allowed four hits and retired 12 consecutive batters over one stretch.

Later, the Indians dropped

Pat Dobson, another veteran pitcher, who has won 122 games in 12 major league seasons but was only 3-12 last year.

Moose Haas became the first Milwaukee pitcher to go nine innings, scattering seven hits as the Brewers routed Minnesota Twins 9-2. Ben Oglivie had a homer and three RBIs for the winners.

Two other pitchers didn't do so well, however.

Houston Astros bombed Texas's Doc Medich for 14 hits and seven runs in six innings, including a home run by Cesar Cedeno, and defeated the Rangers 8-3.

HITS GRAND SLAM

And Bob Beall, an Atlanta non-roster first baseman, tagged St. Louis's Eric

Rasmussen for a grand-slam home run in the first inning and the Braves went on to beat the Cardinals 9-4.

Phil Niekro, the scheduled starter when the Braves open the season Friday night, was hit on the wrist by a line drive in the fifth inning. The Braves said x-rays indicated nothing was broken and the veteran knuckleballer is expected to pitch as scheduled.

Kansas City's Tom Poquette raised his spring batting average to .447 with a triple, two singles and four RBIs, while Al Cowens had four singles and a pair of RBIs in Kansas City Royals' 11-4 drubbing of Chicago White Sox.

Don Baylor belted a three-run homer and Lyman Bostock added a two-run shot to power California Angels over San Diego Padres 14-6. Frank Tanana, who will pitch the Angels' opener Friday night against Oakland, blanked the Padres on two hits over the first four innings.

Wayne Garrett's sixth-inning home run off Philadelphia's Larry Christenson helped Montreal Expos edge the Phillies 5-4 and winning pitcher Jerry Reuss delivered a run with a suicide squeeze bunt as Pittsburgh Pirates nipped Toronto Blue Jays 6-5.

Race to the wire in NHL play

MONTREAL (CP) — With one week remaining in the National Hockey League's 1977-78 regular-season schedule, there are still positions to be decided including the all-important Patrick Division race between New York Islanders and Philadelphia Flyers.

The Patrick Division race is important because the winner will also emerge as the Clarence Campbell Conference champion.

The Islanders have 106 points after 77 games compared with 101 for Philadelphia after 76 games, figures released by the NHL.

Chicago Black Hawks, winners of the Smythe Division and also eligible for the Campbell Conference title, were well behind the pace of the Islanders with 80 points.

The team which wins the Patrick Division and the Campbell Conference will earn $5,000 per man as each title is worth $2,500 per player.

Montreal Canadiens won the Norris Division and the Prince of Wales Conference title some time ago and Boston Bruins captured the Adams Division ahead of Buffalo Sabres last week.

In the race for the final wildcard playoff spot, New York Rangers need only one point in their final four games to qualify. The Rangers have 71 points while Pittsburgh Penguins had 64 points and four games remaining prior to their meeting Monday night with Toronto Maple Leafs.

In the event of a complete Ranger collapse, a single loss by the Penguins would give the Rangers the wildcard berth.

Colorado Rockies and Vancouver Canucks are battling for the other playoff spot which goes to the second-place finisher from the Smythe Division.

Each team has three games to play and the Rockies have a two-point lead over the Canucks. If both teams finish with the same number of points, the tie would first be broken by the team with the most victories, followed by fewest losses.

Vancouver has 19 victories compared with 18 for Colorado, but the Canucks also lead in losses with 42 compared with 39 for the Rockies.

On an individual level, Mike Bossy of the Islanders became the first rookie and the second-youngest player in NHL history to record 50 goals when he hit the mark for his 50th and 51st of the season against Washington Capitals on Saturday.

Bossy celebrated his 21st birthday on Jan. 22. Pierre Larouche of Montreal scored 53 goals five months after his 20th birthday when he was with Pittsburgh during the 1975-76 season.

And Guy Lafleur of Montreal appears headed for his third straight scoring title with 129 points for a 10-point lead over Bryan Trottier of the Islanders.

Quebec posts curling wins

REGINA (CP) — Thomas Hunter of Hudson, Que., and Mac Scales of Winnipeg each picked up two wins on the opening day of play in the Canadian Legion senior curling championship Monday.

Hunter opened with a 5-3 win over William Waller of Kamloops, B.C., and followed with a 12-7 decision over James McRae of Yarmouth, N.S.

Scales battered Paul Jones of Moncton, N.B., 14-3 and edged Art Ballem of Charlottetown 6-4 in an extra end. Alberta finished the day in third spot with a 1-0 record, followed by P.E.I., Saskatchewan and British Columbia at 1-1.

New Brunswick and Nova Scotia had 0-2 records and Ontario was 0-1.

In other opening-round matches Monday morning, P.E.I. downed George Holborn of Sutton, Ont., 7-6 in an extra end and Stu Weaver of Indian Head, Sask., beat Nova Scotia 14-10. On the afternoon draw, Jim Walker of Beaver Lodge, Alta., crushed New Brunswick 12-1 and B.C. topped Saskatchewan 8-4.

Play continues until Friday.

McKenzie 'Hat' paces Whalers

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Johnny McKenzie, a 40-year-old right winger who began his major-league hockey career 20 years ago, says he still has nights when he feels young again.

Monday night was one of those nights and McKenzie scored three goals to lead New England Whalers to an 8-6 win over Houston Aeros in the only scheduled World Hockey Association game.

"Our line's getting good, and I feel young again," said McKenzie who ran his season total to 27 goals. Centre Dave Keon set up two McKenzie goals and left winger Mark Howe set up the other and scored twice to run his own goal total to 26.

The win put New England six points ahead of Houston in the battle for second place in the WHA. The Whalers, with four games to play, can wrap up second place Wednesday night in Edmonton.

"Second place is not gone; it's up to New England to give it up," said Aeros coach Bill Dineen.

Whalers coach Harry Neale said New England turned things around when they stopped taking "stupid" penalties.

His team drew eight minors over the first two periods and only one in the final.

MADE QUICK START

New England broke on top, 3-0, as McKenzie scored two of his goals and George Lyle accounted for a third before the game was eight minutes old.

A wild shootout ensued, as the Aeros rallied to a 5-5 tie at 1:58 of the final period.

But New England regrouped, scoring three in quick succession, to wrap up their third straight victory.

In Houston, meanwhile, the Aeros' office announced Monday a news conference will be held today and there was speculation clubs of officials will discuss their expected bid for a National Hockey League franchise.

Kenneth Schnitzer, chairman of the board, also is expected to ask Houston fans to purchase a record number of season tickets for next year to show support for his attempts to get the team into the NHL.

Aeros home attendance is down this year from last year when 4,800 season tickets were sold. The team sold 3,250 season tickets this year and has drawn 283,840 in 39 games compared to 350,380 for the same number of games last season.

There has been little word on the Aeros dealings with the NHL since the WHA board of trustees meeting in late February in New York.

Get your rear in gear. Take a walk.

Korab cools his heels

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenceman Jerry Korab of Buffalo Sabres was suspended Monday for three games without pay by the National Hockey League for physically abusing linesman Bob Hodges in the second period of Buffalo's 3-2 loss to the Maple Leafs in Toronto

Saturday night.

The suspension was announced after a hearing in Toronto conducted by Brian O'Neill, executive vice-president of the NHL. O'Neill reviewed videotapes of the incident as well as reports from the game officials at a hearing Monday in Toronto at the office of referee-in-chief Scotty Morrison.

Morrison, referee Andy van Hellemond, Hodges, Punch Imlach, the Sabres' general manager, and Korab were at the meeting along with O'Neill.

Korab, who will miss the Sabres' last three regular-season contests, was ejected after he shoved linesman Hodges three times in the game. The incident took place after an altercation involving Korab and Toronto's Dave Williams at 13:31 of the middle session.

Korab knocked Hodges to the ice during the altercation, and after Hodges assessed him a misconduct penalty he shoved the linesman a second time. Hodges then called a game misconduct penalty and Korab shoved Hodges a third time before being restrained by teammate Jim Schoenfeld.

O'Neill said there was no justification of any attack on an official and warned that any players involved in abuse of the officiating staff in the future will be dealt with more severely.

Ringuette tourney planned

La Federation Sportive de Ringuette will hold a provincial tournament for its ladies' category (22 years and older) for the first time in its history.

The tournament will be held at St-Andre Avelin, a municipality near Hull, and will oppose the Vaudreuil and St-Andre Avelin teams.

Several ringuette teams already exist in the province and the FSRQ is hoping that interest generated from such a tournament will create expansion of the fast-growing sport.

Coach named

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jerry Thompson, defensive coordinator with Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Canadian Football League, was named special teams coach Monday by St. Louis Cardinals, nearly completing the National Football League's revamped staff.

Argos sign three

TORONTO (CP) — Wide receiver Bob Farnham, who led major colleges in the United States in pass receiving in 1975 while a senior at Brown University, was one of three imports signed this week by Toronto Argonauts for the 1978 Canadian Football League season. The Argos also announced the signings of David Almeida, a defensive back from Boston College, and offensive guard Frank De Stefano from Duke University.

Restrict entry

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has restricted the entry of thoroughbreds from Kentucky in an effort to protect Canadian horses from a highly contagious venereal disease. Anyone importing breeding mares and stallions from Kentucky must certify the horses have not been on any premises infected with contagious equine melitis (CEM) since Jan. 1, the agriculture department said Monday in a news release.

Riders sign Griffin

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Canadian Football League announced today the signing of defensive line coach Bob Griffin to a seven-month contract beginning May 1.

The former National Football League player with Detroit Lions, Los Angeles Rams and St. Louis Cardinals had several coaching jobs over 14 years, including a stint with Montreal Alouettes.

He also had coaching assignments with the NFL's Denver Broncos and Atlanta Falcons and Tulane University.

Sports' unions merge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sports unions in six professional leagues, including the Canadian Football League, have formally banded together to form Professional Athletes International, it was announced Monday.

Representatives of the six unions, representing some 2,800 athletes, adopted a constitution during a six-hour meeting Sunday. They named Ed Garvey, executive-director of the National Football League Players' Association, as the group's staff director and Doug Strong of the CFL Players' Association as secretary-treasurer.

In addition to the NFLPA and the CFLPA, other affiliated associations are from the World Hockey Association, North American Soccer League, Association of Tennis Professionals and Professional Riders, representing motorcycle racers.

The players' unions of the National Hockey League and National Basketball Association are not interested in joining, but the Ladies Professional Golf Association and Women's Tennis Association have expressed support for the new umbrella organization, said Garvey.

Garvey also said the Major League Baseball player representatives may consider membership when they meet July 11 during the all-star break.

Initially, the PAI will be financed by an initiation fee of $10 a member. Each organization will have one vote, regardless of size, on the PAI executive council. Each union will be represented on the council by two members.

Asked to name the kind of services PAI will be able to provide, Garvey said, as an example, the new organization can negotiate with insurance companies on behalf of some 3,000 persons rather than on an individual basis or for just one union.

Canada cagers suffer loss

BAHIA BLANCA, Argentina (AP) — Argentina defeated Canada 64-50 Monday night in a Pan-American basketball tournament.

Argentina led 32-16 at halftime. The loss was Canada's first in the Cristobal Colon Cup tournament after weekend victories over the Dominican Republic and Mexico.

The two A Group teams now advance to the final round which opens Wednesday in Buenos Aires. The Dominican Republic and Mexico will play in the consolation round.

The Canadians lost high-scoring centre Jim Zoet early in Monday's game when he was kicked or punched in the back of his left leg. Coach Jack Donohue said it was not known whether Zoet, from Port Perry, Ont., will be able to play Wednesday.

Of the game, Donohue said: "It was a team effort. Everyone stunk. We also played a pretty good team."

"They caught us in a situation I have been worried about since we came down here. They took away some of the things we wanted to do and we are not a mature enough group to make adjustments when our basic offence was taken away from us."

"Still, I'm glad it happened tonight and not before. We have already achieved our goal which was to qualify for next year's Intercontinental Cup, and we've made the final."

Canada's leading scorer Monday night was guard Peter Ryan of Montreal with 12 points.

Most of the time it pays to take a trick as soon as you can. But on some occasions it may pay to wait and take it later.

South considered ducking the first spade. But because he feared a shift to a red suit, he had to win right away.

He led the nine of clubs and let it ride. East won and led a second spade. Now, South could afford to duck and did. East led a third spade, but South was in full control. He had time to knock out the ace of clubs and wind up with four clubs plus two tricks in each other's suit.

There was no reason for East to hurry with the queen of clubs. East could see that his two club tricks were going to keep and he should have let South hold that first club. After that sensible play there would have been no way for South to bring the club suit home. He could have established it but would have had to use dummy's ace of hearts to set up the suit, leaving him without any further entry to dummy to run it.

We respond one diamond, as do most experts. It is a matter of style and partnership understanding, but we would not criticize a one-spade response.
