News in brief

Policemen hurt

Two Sherbrooke municipal policemen were slightly injured last night when they attempted to arrest two car thieves in the downtown Sherbrooke area. About five cars of police were dispatched to the scene. The action began at about 10:30 p.m., police said. Constable Emilien Champagne 42, is a patient in the Hotel Dieu Hospital. He suffered an eye injury. His condition is not considered serious, hospital authorities reported this morning. Sergeant Roger Dion 49, was taken to the same hospital but was released following and examination.

Indians object

MONTREAL (CP)—Five Quebec Inuit chiefs are protesting what they call a move to transfer Indian affairs from federal to provincial jurisdiction, saying they don't want to be left "to the tender mercies of our ancient, traditional enemy, the French Canadians." The chiefs made their protests in a letter mailed to Sir Henry Lintott, British high commissioner to Canada, in Ottawa. Copies of the letter were distributed to Montreal newspapers Friday.

Campaign closes

President Johnson and Barry Goldwater headed into the final weekend of a hectic, searing campaign today with polls showing Johnson ahead, but Goldwater predicting victory. Both picked the final weekend to make last appeals to their areas of strength—Johnson to the northeast, Goldwater to the south.

Civilians rule

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP)—Communists have emerged as the most powerful single force in the Sudanese civilian government which took office today, closing the books on six years of military rule. Ahead lies the task of restoring order swept aside during 10 days of rioting in which mobs were cut down by waves of machine gun fire from armored cars and scattered by volleys of tear gas bombs.

Wagner named

MONTREAL (CP)—Claude Wagner, speaking scant hours after his appointment as Quebec's attorney-general, said Friday night separatist sympathizers must respect the law or be punished. "In the democratic regime under which we live no one has the right to prevent his neighbor from putting forth his views, disagreeable as they may be to him."

Debate supply

OTTAWA (CP)—The Conservatives withdrew their assault from the CBC Friday and aimed their guns at the federal-provincial issue as they hammered the government through the sixth day of the stretched-out interim supply debate.

With another possible flag debate lurking menacingly in the wings, there was a toughening of tones Friday as opposition members zeroed in on the government's handling of federal-provincial relations and responsibilities.

Considers meet

PARIS (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle has expressed interest in Communist China's proposal for a world summit conference to abolish nuclear weapons.

NEW ATTORNEY-GENERAL — Claude Wagner, left, resigned yesterday as Quebec's solicitor-general to take over the attorney-general's job. Mr. Wagner, 39, is a former judge who has declared war on criminal activity ranging from sophisticated racketeering to political extremism. He succeeds Rene Hamel, 54, who resigned. At right is Education Minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie. (CP Wirephoto)

BRavery COMMENDED — Sgt. Ldr. John L. Frazer of Vancouver is congratulated by Group. Capt. Alan F. Avant, commander of the RCAF base at Marville, France, on his return to the base after bailing out safely from his CF-104 fighter which lost power over the town of Troyes earlier this week. Sgt. Ldr. Frazer stayed with his crippled plane until it was only 1,000 feet off the ground so he could guide it to an uninhabited area. He landed safely in an apple tree. (CP Wirephoto)

Republican dropout problem

Goldwater 'allies' vanish

WASHINGTON — (TNS) — There is a dropout problem in the Goldwater campaign. Like white rabbits the local Republican candidates vanish down holes. For one reason or another they are not up there on the bunting-strewn platform when their national leader Barry Goldwater meanders into their states. Compare this with the way local Democrats rush to touch the hem of LBJ's garment as he scythes his way through the cornfields.

For the Johnson touch means victory of landslide proportions and the kiss of Goldwater is death to local hopefuls.

The defeat of Goldwaterism now seems assured — and by an appalling margin. It is up to the other Republicans to save their skins. And this they are striving to do.

Take California, where ex-dancer George Murphy is hoofing strongly against ex-Kennedy press agent Pierre Salinger for the role of U.S. Senator. Murphy, 62, had been rated a conservative almost to the right of Goldwater but, sniffing the Pacific breeze he moved to the middle of the road.

When Goldwater strode into California, Murphy hid from sight all day. He attended a Goldwater rally in the evening but crouched in the fourth row back and did not rise when introduced. In Illinois there is Charles Percy, the 45-year-old Bell and Howell Camera Company, who is making a fine showing against the incumbent Democratic Governor, Otto Kerner. In Ohio Rep. Robert Taft Jr. carries the name and tradition of the late Senator Robert Taft, the great Republican Conservative. He challenges aging democratic Senator Stephen Young but he smirks reluctantly on Goldwater platforms because a Goldwater is not a Taft and does him no good even in the centre of traditional conservatism. In New York we have the most interesting Senate race of all, Robert Kennedy, leader of the clan and heir to the glory has invaded the state from Massachusetts trying to grab the Senate seat from a respected Republican liberal Sen. Kenneth Keating. Keating stands up bravely against the coming tidal wave of Johnson votes. With a strong national leader he could probably crush Kennedy, the young carpetbagger.

TWO K's SEEK NEW YORK

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The United States' most important U.S. Senate race, pitting Robert F. Kennedy against Republican Sen. Kenneth B. Keating in New York, may puzzle the experts right up to polling time—not withstanding polls that have shown the late president's brother in the lead.

Says a knowledgeable New York observer: "No matter what the polls show, I find this one almost impossible to call. And everyone whose judgment I respect in this field is in the same position."

Seldom in history has a Senate fight meant so much to the candidates and their parties. Few races ever offered so many tangled skeins.

Among the things at stake are the immediate future of John Kennedy's most influential brother, the outlook for the much-talked-of "Kennedy magic" as a broad political force, the prospects for unity in New York's faction-ridden Democratic party, and the future of a well-regarded Republican moderate (Keating) who runs on a track far removed from conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Canada faces total national fragmentation

Canada's 10 Provincial Governments have suddenly emerged in a position of strength never before matched in history — at a crucial time when the nation is wrapped in uncertainty under the rule of a weak, minority government.

But already there are signs that this critical threat to national unity could become the number one issue in the next federal election campaign. Those Canadians who are worried and alarmed over the trend toward decentralization of power, fear it may well result in that which separatist bombs and threats have failed to accomplish: Complete Fragmentation of the Canadian Nation. The shift of power from Ottawa into the hands of the provinces has not occurred overnight — and is indeed far from complete. Yet it is now a fact that today, to all intents and purposes, Canada's destiny rests not in the hands of a central government but rather in the hands of 11 different governments who hold widely divergent policies and beliefs. And there are those who say it's impossible for Canada to remain a united nation under such circumstances. One of these is Hugh M. Horner, the Conservative MP for Jasper-Edson, who says: "I believe that if we are to have a strong country we need a strong central government. This is not to say the provinces should not have and maintain the rights which are theirs under the British North America Act."

But many of the things that seemed of little importance 100 years ago — education, municipal government and highways for example — are now among Canada's most pressing problems. And as the provinces' needs for revenues to finance these programs became more and more acute, stronger and stronger grew the provincial demands on Ottawa.

Tremblay, is he without flaw?

"The law is the true embodiment of everything that's excellent. If has no kind of fault or flaw, And I, my lords, embody the Law."

By ALAN ANDERSON
ANOTHER HEADLINE
ANOTHER DECISION

In every one of the two dozen cases Mr. Tremblay has been questioned about in the House of Commons since May, the Special Inquiry Officer concerned was Clifford W. Desormeau, of Toronto.

And this time, at last, Mr. Tremblay acted very quickly indeed. He shelved the deportation order against George Hite the very day the headlines broke. And within a week it was confirmed that Clifford Desormeau had been reprimanded and moved to "less sensitive duties."

Part of the reason for the emerging dominance of the provinces lies with The Canadian Constitution which rigidly defines the powers of Ottawa and the powers of the provinces.

Legally nothing has changed to give the provinces additional powers.

George Hite came up — another deportation order out of Toronto, another headline, another case involving a decision made by Clifford Desormeau. And this time, at last, Mr. Tremblay acted very quickly indeed. He shelved the deportation order against George Hite the very day the headlines broke. And within a week it was confirmed that Clifford Desormeau had been reprimanded and moved to "less sensitive duties."

The Queen, in Labor's view

Are there too many Tories in the palace?

LONDON — (NEA) — Britain's new Labor government is expected to rock Buckingham Palace as violently as it will the country at large.

Harold Wilson, the new Labor prime minister, is known to be displeased by the way the Queen has surrounded herself with Conservative party advisers. One of his first demands on the Queen most probably will be that she rid herself of some of these Tories, according to those close to Wilson.

Wilson, his cronies say, would like to see the "Palace old guard," as he calls the Tory courtiers, replaced immediately by men and women acceptable to Labor. That the Laborites are not adverse to hobnobbing with royalty was demonstrated by the anarchy with which Clement Attlee, the former Labor premier, accepted his earldom. More recently there has been no difficulty in finding Labor politicians to fill vacancies in the House of Lords. Most of them jump at the chance to become life peers, despite their professed working-class leanings.

Wilson, according to those who know him well, would like to see Buckingham Palace dinner parties graced by scientists and professors of pro-Labor sympathies. He would even like trade unionists and their wives to be invited in keeping with the spirit of change.

The Court is supposed to be neutral as far as politics are concerned. But the truth is that at election time, it had not a single link with the new Labor government.

The Queen came to the throne in 1933 with a Conservative government in power; so she has had no experience either in dealing with Labor leaders on a government level, or in mixing with them socially.

Her father, George VI, quickly accommodated himself to the winds of change when the Attlee Labor government was swept to power in 1945. He appointed several Labor peers, including Lord Longford, as members of the royal household.

In the 11 years of unbroken Conservative rule since she came to the throne Queen Elizabeth has, unwisely in the opinion of many, allowed the Tories to entrench themselves at Court.

Her Majesty's eleven ladies-in-waiting are headed by the Dowager Duchess of Devonshire, who is the mother of a minister in the outgoing Conservative government. They include Miss Mary Morrison, whose father is chairman of the all-powerful 1922 Committee of Conservative backbenchers in Parliament. Among them are also the daughter of a Tory Member of Parliament.

The Queen's entourage includes the chairman of a Conservative party association, an ex-Tory Member of Parliament, and the private secretary to a Tory foreign secretary.

The Queen Mother's household includes Miss Caroline Douglas-Home, daughter of the outgoing Conservative premier, Sir Alec Douglas-Home. In the Queen Mother's retinue are also two mothers, the wife and the sister of ex-Tory Members of Parliament.

Princess Margaret's staff includes the sister of a Conservative minister. In the present political impasse at Buckingham Palace observers are recalling an interesting precedent in 1839 known as the "Bedchamber Crisis." At that time Queen Victoria was 20 years old, unmarried, and had been on the throne only two years.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

DECEPTIVE PLAY
MADE BY EXPERT
By OSWALD JACOBY

Newspaper Enterprise Assn. North's two-club response was a four-card major suit if he had one. South was delighted to oblige and after North raised to three spades, South continued to game. He did have 17 very good points for his no-trump opening.

The play at four spades illustrates the use of deceptive technique by an expert. South won the first club lead. He had to lose one trump trick, one heart trick and one or two club tricks. These were the club losers at the start, but he had a chance to discard one of them on dummy's fourth diamond.

Thus he started proceedings by cashing the ace and king of trumps. This left the queen of trumps outstanding somewhere. Then South started on the diamond suit.

The ordinary good player would lead the ace of diamonds followed by the queen and a small diamond. East would trump the third diamond and lead a club, whereupon the defense would cash two club tricks then and a heart trick later.

South would complain about tough luck, but an expert South probably would bring home the bacon. He would cash his ace of diamonds and lead the deuce of diamonds to dummy's king. His next play would be the jack of diamonds.

of diamonds from dummy and the odds are that East would not ruff. This would put South in his hand with the queen of diamonds. He would continue by leading a heart to dummy's ace and playing the diamond ten. East could ruff or not, but South would have his club discard.

By DORIS KLEIN
 HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Only Dick Crenna knows how Dick Crenna will vote on election day next Tuesday. But it's been tough keeping it a secret.

"It's one of the hazards of playing a legislator on television during a political campaign," says Crenna.

Dick, whose square-jawed, earnest good looks would make him a likely candidate for either party, plays Slattery, a legislator in a mythical state, on Slattery's People.

"You name it, and I've been asked it," says Dick, "who do I like for president, what I think about extremism, what's my position on civil rights."

"I've learned to talk just like a politician and give a politician's answer."

The Crenna all-purpose, all-politician's answer (launched in pontifical drawl):

"Well, now I've studied the matter and I see your point of view and I know that in such a serious situation there are always two sides to the problem and I'm going to give it further consideration before I come to a final conclusion."

CRITICISM ON TV
 The answer almost always works—except with the television critic.

"We've had only two critics who don't like the show," says Dick. "And one of them has been knocking us almost weekly. But he doesn't criticize the acting, he takes shots at our political stands."

For years, Crenna was a squeaky-voiced teen-ager Walter Denton on Our Miss Gertie. Then he switched to hillbilly Luke McCoy on The Real McCoys.

Whichever way Slattery goes, Crenna's career is bound to continue on the upswing. He plays the title role in the comedy movie John Goldfarb, Please Come Home which will open during the Christmas holidays.

Despite the political tightrope, Crenna is pleased with Slattery. "I've been acting for 27 years, since I was 11 years old and on

Carol Burnett, its top star, is in hospital with a spine injury "probably the result of five years of pratfalls because I'm not a professional tumbler."

Imogene Coca, in her guest-star appearance last night, was immobilized on a swivel chair—the result of breaking an ankle bone two weeks ago.

Now Gwen Verdon, the dancer, scheduled to appear on Nov. 6, has fractured a small bone in a foot. She may be able to play in a sketch, but tacute will be no dancing.

TV EXPOSURE
 Meanwhile, Miss Burnett, while having her vertebrae stretched, has been exposed to real danger: Day-time television.

"I watch the re-runs of old movies, re-runs of My Little Margie, re-runs of I Love Lucy, and of course Password and You Don't Say."

"But the real excitement is the soap operas — As the World Turns and Guiding Light and the rest. In fact, the other day I got practically hysterical when they wanted to take me down to therapy at one o'clock."

"I told them to forget it for a half hour—I had to find out what was happening to my family. It's wild."

DITCHFIELD

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Derick and family of Sherbrooke, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Sutor and children, Bruce, Jimmie and Nancy, and Mr. Leslie Sutor, all of Huntingville, who were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. David Rider, also visited other relatives.

Prizes are being offered for the five students copping the top bag.

On Saturday, October 24, some of the high school boys played a game of touch football against some of the school alumni. The "Old Boys" thought they would get an easy win, but such was not the case. Mike Butler led the high school boys to an overwhelming victory beating the "old boys" 86 to 0.

Around the campus at Bishop's

By DOUGLAS WHATLEY

The fourth annual Bishop's Inter-University Debating Tournament is being conducted this weekend on the Lennoxville campus.

Arguing over the question of whether the affluent society is a decadent society are teams from 10 colleges in Quebec and Ontario, all members of the Inter-University Debating League.

Quarrelling over this issue began (in public, at least) last night, with the final orations scheduled for this afternoon.

The defending champion eristics from Carleton University are returning, as are teams from McGill, Loyola, Marianopolis, Ottawa, St. Pat's (Ottawa), Queen's, R.M.C., Sir George Williams, and Bishop's.

James Mason of Richmond is one of the Bishop's debaters. He may, or may not, be helped by the fact that the judges will be from the Bishop's faculty.

Sunday, Bishop's will host a conference of the I.U.D.L. presided over by its president, Alex Henderson of Bishop's.

PLAYS

Tonight is the last opportunity to view the program of minor plays presented by Bishop's thespians at the university gymnasium. Curtain will rise at 8:30 on the three one-acters.

All three are said by their presenters to be thought-provoking.

In Night of Pity, say its staggers, the audience is invited to join the actors in looking for the ultimate meaning of existence, if there is such a thing, and to separate reality from illusion in the quest for such meaning, if such a separation is possible.

In Count Albany the spectators are challenged to ferret out the deeper note of tragedy and disillusionment among the superficial comedy and melodrama of the events involving the naive idealism of the hero and the naive lack of understanding of his supporters.

The third offering, The Collection, which is a very modern (or perhaps modernist) play, one is invited to notice that language and its many "politenesses" can be a forced and unnatural (to the point, perhaps, of being unhealthy) means of suppressing natural emotions which should perhaps not be so suppressed.

Playgoers interested in thought as well as entertainment, or those interested in the entertainment of thought, are cordially invited to the final performances tonight.

Scouting and Cubbing

By KEN BARTLETT

In two separate competitions in marksmanship the Bulwer-Birchton Scout Troop has established itself the best in Province of Quebec and the second in the Dominion. The two junior teams placed first and second in the Lyons Trophy Shoot held on Oct. 4th at L'Acadie, Que. This competition was for the provincial championship of marksmanship in Scouting. The first team was composed of four Scouts: Donald Rodney, Donald Pickett, Bill Lackie and Brian Labere. The second one consisted of Patrol Leader Robert Richardson, Eric Little, Tom Hall and Leigh Grapes. In individual scores Donald Pickett and Donald Rodney placed first and second. Scout Donald Rodney also won the Province of Quebec Rifle Association championship for the best shot in the Scouting section. For this, he received the Cullen Trophy.

The results of Dominion 22 Bore team competition also have been made known. The Bulwer-Birchton Troop placed second to a Saskatoon service Troop. In this shoot, held last summer, Donald Pickett was only two points behind the leader in individual honors. Those on this

Time to think of pictures for Christmas gifts, cards

With November only hours away one should start thinking about taking pictures for those Christmas cards or gifts. It may appear early for thoughts of Christmas but between now and then it's only days. Also we are thinking of photos of children and it could easily take till Christmas Eve to get something you like.

A few suggestions along this line could make the job much easier. The first and one of the most important things to plan is where you are going to take your portraits. This is simple: Find a plain wall.

Color is of little interest as most colors found in homes are pastel and usually harmonize with other color combinations.

When the background has been found the next item is a seat without a back for your subject. I find a coffee table excellent for the very young for it gives them more room for wiggling before crashing to the floor.

To light the scene there are three types of lighting one could use: photo floods, bounce and direct flash of available light.

The advantage of photo flood is that one can see how the light is moulding the subject. One should study the shadows and highlights. However, shutter speed will be reduced. Furthermore floods could be distracting because of their brightness. A number one and a number two photo-flood in reflectors or reflector type floods at a distance of four to five feet the

Whether you use flash or flood, great care must be taken so the subject does not cast a shadow on the background. Try and have them face the brightest light, never looking away from it as this is your key light. See that the shadow under the nose does not cross the lip.

Now the Box is corrupter of youth

When an investigating U.S. Senate subcommittee contended that televised crime was a contributing factor, although not the sole or even most significant one, in antisocial behavior and attitudes among juvenile viewers, we wonder whether the good senators remembered similar statements in the past regarding the "penny dreadfuls" and comic books?

Furthermore, what would they propose, the elimination of all crime programming?

This might be the solution, but, what if a link could be found between, say, the Beverly Hillbillies and carelessness in personal cleanliness, or between Yogi Berra and violations of the litter act?

How would the multi-mile gallops of the westerns agree with laws against cruelty to animals?

Does not the prestige of the medical profession suffer from the agonies and assignments of the TV hospital corridor?

Eliminate all these and we are left with whatever is currently being waged on the sports front and the excitement of chamber music, CBC style.

If, as is apparent from the U.S. Senate investigation, there are weak minds capable of being affected by the absurdities of the TV crime shows, then education and instruction in basic values is in order, not the negative rejection of simple, if insipid, entertainment.

Kids who don't study are back in school in more ways than one.

Hayden S. Pearson's COUNTRY FLAVOR

Had 410 more pounds in a summer

More than two centuries ago, Lady Mary Montague wrote from the Continent to her sister in England concerning porcelain stoves. "They lengthen their summers as long as they please. This reflection leads me to consider our obstinacy in shaking with cold five months in the year, rather than make use of stoves, which are certainly one of the great conveniences of life. Besides, they are as far from spoiling the form of a room that they add very much to the magnificence of it."

The Acme Premier base burner definitely added to the magnificence of the farm living room. The catalog described it well. "Guaranteed the most beautiful, most richly nickel-trimmed, most showy and massive. By far the most elaborate extra large wood or coal burning direct draft heating stove ever built. The top ornamental urn is splendidly finished with a beautiful polish. The new full swing top has a highly nickel plated and polished dome. Front cover ornaments extra large. Rich roccoco nickel plated base. All knobs, handle ornaments and trimmings are handsomely swelled. Covers blackened and beautifully polished, ready to use. Shipping weight 410 lbs. Price $25.38."

Mother was proud of the Acme Premier. Each fall it was pushed in on rollers from its summer resting place in the shed; each spring it was rolled out. Putting up and taking down the angled stove pipe was a bit tricky, but from September until May, the "summer lengthener" served well. A farm boy wondered occasionally at the amount of knotty chunks needed to keep the fire going, but on a zeroish morning as he dressed beside its warmth, he was glad that the stove took sufficiently sizable chunks to keep an overnight fire. Many a lad doing his home work in the evening or reading Horatio Alger behind a big geography book has looked through the mica glass of the stove door, and dreamed of life's high adventure while watching the flame pictures from the oak and maple that he helped cut, store and bring to the woodbox by the parlor stove.

Other papers say:

Economic separatism real problem

The aggressiveness of Quebec just now in cultural matters presents the rest of Canada with a problem that is manageable. But where this aggressiveness manifests itself in areas of economic separatism the issue becomes less manageable and more dangerous.

Hon. Walter Gordon, minister of finance, alluded to this situation in a recent Montreal speech. He noted that there has been a lot of talk in Canada lately about "two nations," and pointed out that this expression might have different meanings in different languages. This certainly is the case if, by two nations, the French Canadians mean only two different cultural groups integrated under one government, while the English-speaking Canadians interpret the term as two cultural groups under two separate, national governments linked only by a common geographical border.

It has been difficult up to now for English-speaking Canadians to know exactly what the terms of reference are in the dialogue which is supposed to be going on between the two main branches of the Canadian population. The onus would appear to lie on the French-speaking branch to define its terms, since it has taken the initiative in bringing the matter up for discussion.

Mr. Gordon observed that there is a great deal of sympathy in other parts of Canada with the desire of French-speaking Quebecers to share more effectively in the direction of their own, and of national, affairs. There should be widespread acceptance and support of the wish of French Canadians to gain recognition of the importance of the French language and culture in the building of the Canadian nation.

"If, however, the term two nations is intended to mean not only two languages but in addition, two separate and distinct economic entities," Mr. Gordon stated, "then most Canadians, including I expect, a very considerable majority of the people of Quebec, would feel that this would be going much too far."

There is, in fact, a growing suspicion that some important Quebec leaders are looking toward the day when their province will become more or less of a separate economic entity within Confederation. More and more is being heard of fiscal, which is to say money-management, policies being shared with Ottawa by the provincial government in Quebec. Indeed, British Columbia is talking up the same sort of thing. Once Ottawa yielded control of fiscal management across the country, of course, nothing would be left of the nation but fragments in search of new, inglorious destinies. We hope that the hints dropped by Mr. Gordon in his Montreal speech will not go unheeded.

LEPERS HELPED

LONDON (AP) — A $300,000 pilot project for caring and treating sufferers from leprosy will be established in the African state of Malawi. Sir George Seel, chairman of the British Leprosy Relief Association, said in making the announcement that there were 15 to 20 million cases of leprosy in the world.

THE WAYWARD BUS

Adventures with God

As Naomi told the eager widow, 'Sit still... until thou know'

I dropped into the old rocker to rest and meditate after a crisis-filled week and I fell to thinking of Naomi's advice to Ruth:

"Sit still, my daughter, until thou know how the matter will fall." Ruth 3:18.

It takes more self-discipline than many of us can muster to sit still and wait while the world rocks about us and yet the quiet slow approach is the divine method of solving all difficulties and for resolving what appears to us to be crises periods.

Ruth the widow of Naomi's son, had set her eyes on Boaz and the romance was moving too slowly to please her.

GOOD ADVICE

But her mother-in-law, who was better informed on the details of such matters, proffered her wise advice: "Sit still... until thou know how the matter will fall; for the man will not be at rest until he has finished the thing THIS DAY."

How often we chomp and fret and rush into situations which can only frustrate us and others by our frantic efforts to bring events to a head.

Later we regret the outcome that could have been avoided if only we had listened to the still small voice that warned us to "sit still" and give God and our fellows a chance to work out the details of a wiser plan than the one of our own conceiving.

One can picture Ruth pacing the floor impatiently as she thought on Boaz.

She was a young widow in a strange country, dependent upon the charity of others. The prospects of a happy marriage were very tempting.

But her mother-in-law, Naomi, the widow Ruth loved and left all to follow, was more cautious and, I believe, more trusting in the direction of God and better informed on the ways of men.

SHE WAS RIGHT

She recognized at once that the gestures of Boaz who was honorable and serious in intent but who might be discouraged in the quest if rushed into making a hasty decision.

Subsequent events proved Naomi was right when she advised Ruth to sit still.

At the very moment when the floor her man was sitting with the elders of the city working out the legal details which had to be completed before he could make a proposal of marriage.

The story is told in the Book of Ruth chapter 4. It points up an incident of false crisis in Ruth's life.

She was mentally conjuring a situation of failure which was not at all real. An how like Ruth some of us are!

The week of crises ended on a note of triumph and I was forced to admit as I sat in the old rocker in the quietness of the evening that, while I frowned and sighed God's plans were moving forward.

Charles, the train robber

Britain's other Wilson infamous

LONDON (CP)—Spring the outside the prison, apparently using a master key, slugged a guard and took the gangster Charles the train robber, not Harold the prime minister.

Harold, the new premier, has brought fame and glory to the Wilson name and made it a household word. But Charles, a like precision reminiscent of the robbery itself, for which 11 men besides Wilson were sentenced. Some £2,300,000 of the loot has yet to be recovered and it is thought Wilson wasn't exactly short of cash after his escape.

"You can be sure they're not related," said one detective with a grim smile.

A police search for Charles Frederick Wilson, 34, a blue-eyed self-styled bookie, has spread over continents since he was sprung from a Birmingham prison Aug. 12.

It was a sensational and humiliating sequel to the even more sensational great train robbery of Aug. 6, 1963, when a gang grabbed more than £2,600,000 from a Glasgow-London train near Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire.

Wilson had served just under four months of a 30-year sentence for his part in the robbery when accomplices from Chief Superintendent Gerald Baumber of the Birmingham criminal investigation division and his men have checked thousands of tips from citizens and the underworld. Inquiries have stretched to North and South America, North Africa and Europe, with Ireland being a favorite hunting ground. Britain gave Canada a description of Wilson through Interpol, the worldwide police agency.

RICHMOND — With reconstruction and employment for returned soldiers the theme of the annual meeting of the Eastern Townships Associated Boards of Trade and the Eastern Townships Settlement Society, a five man committee was named for town planning in the Eastern Townships here yesterday.

P. H. Boivin, Mayor of Granby, was named chairman and those who will serve with him are W. H. Bradley of Sherbrooke, Dr. Jean Smith of Richmond, Arthur Irvin of Stanstead and F. A. Pouliot general manager of the Quebec Central Railroad Sherbrooke.

Dr. A. R. Jewitt, addressing the 36th graduating class of Lennoxville High School Saturday night, stressed the importance of continuing an education to an even further extent than that received in school.

Introduced by the Principal, E. E. Denison, and thanked by the Assistant Principal, R. L. Brigden, Dr. Jewitt, principal of Bishop's University, pointed out to the graduates just what lies ahead of them in the years immediately to come.

DECEASED SENTENCE

Amid the public outrage, there was a certain amount of sympathy for Wilson. Some folk considered it strange that Wilson got 30 years when non-capital murder and sex crimes carry lesser penalties. One vicar said from his pulpit that the Wilson sentence was "barbarous."

Baumber has conducted a study of the escape from Birmingham's Winsongreen Prison. His report has been given to the home office and the director of public prosecutions for possible action.

Gerald Waring REPORTING

OTTAWA — George Hees is remembered around Ottawa not least for his pithy political comments. Like his advice about the CNR to Manitoba Tory MPs after the 1957 election.

"Remember, boys, it's our railroad now," said the new Tory minister of transport.

Well, of course it's no longer the Conservatives' railroad. It's Jack Pickersgill's railroad, and fair game for any Tory MP who wants — and which doesn't? — to clobber the Grit government for CNR President Donald Gordon's insistence that you can't run a railroad on the basis of political pussyfooting past unpopular decisions.

The CBC is the second most flagellated whipping boy, and in the last few days the opposition has been lashing left and right — at the CNR for daring to abolish two divisional points in order to reduce costs, and at the CBC for daring to air an interview with US Nazi leader Lincoln Rockwell.

If you agree that the role of the CNR is to provide transportation at the lowest economic cost, then the decision to "run through" Nakina, Ont., and Wainwright, Alta., is unassailable. The CNR's methods in implementing this decision may not be — that is something the commissioner appointed by the government will look into.

If you agree that the role of the CBC in its news and public affairs features is to present the world as it finds it, then the decision to air the Rockwell interview can be attacked only on the ground of editorial judgment. Is it of importance or interest to Canadians generally? If not, there is reason for criticism, but otherwise an abhorrence of Nazism will not suffice.

By and large our MPs are a practical, down-to-earth lot. They can understand the business of applying power to machine wheels to haul box cars of wheat or iron or canned milk from A to B at X cents per ton mile. But the artier side of television production, where abstracts of esthetics and form and taste and intellectual appreciation are important factors, often makes them fume privately — and sometimes publicly — that the longhairs in the CBC are throwing away the taxpayers' money.

On occasion they may be right. Certainly the CBC wasted $40,000 on a film on Cuba and $35,000 on the "Mr. Pearson" film — both of which it junked as unsuitable. It spent $270,000 covering the Queen's visit, and perhaps that was too much. But who is to say? Many opposition MPs want to have CBC executives and producers up before a committee, as a means of exchanging information and opinions, and to emphasize the CBC's responsibility to Parliament.

The MPs want a more careful accounting of how the CBC will spend $88 millions of public funds this year, and they want, I think, some reassurance by the CBC brass that there is proper corporate control over those responsible for some of the further-out programs. But the MPs eschew any desire to establish censorship over the CBC, and more would abolish state-owned radio and TV. Indeed, all its critics say they are motivated by a desire to see it improved and even extended.

This seems reasonable to me, except that it's pretty late in this session to launch a committee inquiry into the CBC. But late or not, the Liberals aren't keen on it. It's their CBC now.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Martin Luther, reformer and Bible translator, nailed his 95 theses to the door of a church at Wittenberg 447 years ago today—in 1517.

His original theses were directed against the sale of indulgences by the Dominican monk Johann Tetzel. They were burned as heretical, but translation spread throughout Germany. Luther, known as the founder of Protestant Civilization, died in 1546.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1914 — the British cruiser Hermes was torpedoed in the Straits of Dover, the seventh British cruiser to be destroyed by submarine attack or mines; British casualties on the Western Front to this date were announced as 59,790 killed, wounded or taken prisoner.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1939 — the Italian cabinet was shuffled as Mussolini moved in and removed ministers believed to be Nazi sympathizers; marked activity was reported on the Western Front with Germans using long-range artillery.

SECOND LENNOXVILLE

Going up from the Pack to the Troop is a recognition of a boy's progress in Scouting. It is a good time to have the parents witness Scouting in action. The Second Lennoxville Group wisely invited the Fathers and Mothers to see the following five Cubs forsake the Pack Circle for the Scout Horseshoe — Richard Blais, Philip Smith, Dean Rick, Steven Mitchell, and Bruce Yeandel. Skipper Bill Van Horn and his Patrol Leaders introduced the fledgling Scouts to their new patrol. But other important things were done at last Wednesday's meeting, too! Akela Herb Pratt almost bankrupted the Group Committee by issuing so many badges. If there are records of such things this must be it-thirty badges.

The Athlete's Badge was given to Scott Parker, Philip Smith and Paul Gentry. Bruce Yeandel won the Homecraft, Artist, Cyclist, Teamplayer, Guide, Toy-maker and First Aid Badges. Philip Smith also received the Swimmer's, House Orderly, Gardener's, Cyclist's, and Guide Badges. Paul Gentry was awarded the Collector's, Artist's, Cyclist's and Guide Badges. Another busy Cub was Peter Diorio, he received the House Orderly, Cyclist's, Team player's and First Aider's Badges. Lyle Sample accepted his House Orderly, Cyclist's, Guide and Toy-maker's Badges. Richard Blais received two—the Cyclist's and Guide Badges. And Edwin Deacon was given his Gardener's Badge. A busy evening, indeed!

COMPLAINTS
The Students' Executive Council, invited by the administration to prepare a brief on its ideas for the future of the university, is throwing part of the honor out to the student body at large.

Students have been invited to submit their own ideas on the Bishop's of tomorrow to the S.E.C., which it pledges to consider in the drawing up of its brief. Reformists are finally taking pains in hand for a purpose other than that of writing expressions of their malcontent to the student weekly newspaper.

When the complaint-box is full, as it were, the pleas for change will be systematized by S.E.C. scribes and turned loose in the final obstacle-course before realization, the administration.

Or it may not be this way at all. There is some speculation that it would be more consistent with the political outlook of a significant segment of the Bishop's student population to submit memoranda hoping that everything will remain as it is.

CONFERENCES

Bishop's expects to be represented at the fourth annual Laval Conference on Canadian Affairs in mid-November. Topic for discussion will be "Canadian Quality vis-a-vis the United States". (Note the ingenious bilingual title of that title, surely a sign of the times).

At the same time, it is hoped that other students will be representing Bishop's at a McGill Conference on World Affairs. This will merely analyze the question of "Disarmament and World Peace" — a tonic amenable to the calmest and most disinterested of debate compared to the issue of Canadian Quality, no doubt.

TREASURE VAN
The Bishop's World University Service of Canada group has announced that the Treasure Van in Lennoxville last week sold $2,162.45 (after sales tax) to treasure-hunters of the university and the area. The goal had been $2,000.

Almost 150 Bishop's students helped in the sale of the loot, proceeds of which will be turned over to the W.U.S.C. for its work in improving the lot of less affluent scholars.

SPORTS
The football Gaitsers, without doubt on their way to their third straight conference title, whipped St. Pat's College (Ottawa) Gaels 38 to nothing last weekend, to remain unbeaten in regular league play.

Their final match of the regular season pits them against Macdonald College, at Bishop's, today.

Sporting aggressiveness is finally being caught by the soccer Satans as well, it would appear, as the eleven kicking beezlebubs managed their first win of the season last weekend, a three to nothing triumph over Ottawa University.

The divine law which destroys the sin but redeems the sinner will be taken up at the services in Christian Science churches this Sunday, in the reading of the week's Lesson-Sermon on the subject "Eternal Punishment." From the denominational text-book, appropriate passages will include: "He that touches the hem of Christ's robe and masters his mortal beliefs, animality, and hate, rejoices in the proof of healing—in a sweet and certain sense that God is Love" (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy).

Musty-Patton wedding

The marriage of Beverley Jean, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kenneth Patton, of Sherbrooke to Mr. Henry George Musty, of Lennoxville, eldest son of Mrs. Thomas Freestone, of Lennoxville and the late Robert George Musty took place on October 10, 1964 at 3.30 o'clock in St. George's Anglican Church, Lennoxville. Archdeacon T. J. Matthews officiated. Mr. A. E. Bartlett played the wedding music and the soloist was Miss Thelma Crawford who sang "Bless Their Home" and "The Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Large yellow and white chrysanthemums adorned the chancel and the guest pews were marked with autumn colored leaves and white satin bows.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length satin gown, fashioned with a bell-shaped skirt, the fitted bodice having a scooped neckline and fingertip sleeves. A headpiece of open rosebuds held her bouffant veil in place. She wore a single strand of pearls and carried a large bouquet of red roses.

Miss Shirley McGenty, as maid of honor, wore a street-length dress of gold peau-de-soie, fashioned with a bell-shaped skirt, having a fitted bodice, scooped neckline and three-quarter sleeves. She wore a matching rose as a headpiece and carried a colonial bouquet of blue and gold poms.

Mrs. Bruce Patton, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Patricia Brooks, cousin of the groom were the bridesmaids, wearing dresses and headpieces similar to that of the maid of honor in blue peau-de-soie. They also carried colonial bouquets of gold and blue poms.

Little Mary Ellen Sylvester, niece of the groom, as flower girl, wore a full nylon over blue peau-de-soie dress with matching hat. She carried a basket of assorted gold flowers.

Mr. Albert Sylvester, brother-in-law of the groom acted as best man and the ushers were Messrs. Richard Musty, brother of the groom and Bruce Patton, brother of the bride.

The bride's mother was attired in a two-piece street-length dress of teal blue, a black velvet hat, black accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

The groom's mother chose a navy blue check suit, black accessories and wore a corsage of red Sweetheart roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Mayfair Room at the New Sherbrooke Hotel. The bride's table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake and vases of yellow and gold shastas decorated the table.

Telegrams from Port Credit and Sudbury, Ontario were read to the bride and groom.

Later the couple left for a trip through the New England States and Ontario, the bride wearing for travelling a dark blue suit, multicolor feather hat, black accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Guests attended from Burford, Port Credit, and Smiths Falls, Ontario, St. Jean, Pierreford, Sawyerville, Hatley, Moe's River, Waterville, Sherbrooke and Lennoxville. The couple are residing at 250 Queen Street, Lennoxville.

What 'little old ladies'?

Ever since the term "little old ladies in tennis shoes" became a part of our political language I've been looking and looking for just one little old lady in tennis shoes. And you know something, I haven't found one yet.

Oh, I've met a number of women in their seventies and eighties—plenty old enough to be little old ladies, if they had a mind to be.

But somehow the term little old lady just doesn't apply to any of the older women I run across. The ones who cross my path wear their age with a nonchalance that is downright fascinating.

They always seem to be busy—just going on a trip or returning from one, entertaining or being entertained, working in their gardens, keeping up with public affairs, doing volunteer work, pinch hitting for a much younger homemaker who is bogged down in some family crisis.

Though they've lived a goodly number of years these older women don't seem in any way like little old ladies.

And as for those "tennis shoes" little old ladies are supposedly addicted to—I'm sure the older women I know would not be caught dead in them.

Their daughters and their granddaughters might not be above running around in tennis shoes (or even hair curlers, for that matter) but the older women believe in dressing in keep-

MUSIC ON RECORDS

VERDI — Requiem Mass; Elisabeth Schwarzkopf, soprano; Christa Ludwig, mezzo-soprano; Nicolai Gedda, tenor; Nicolai Ghiaurov, bass; The Philharmonia Chorus; Carlo Maria Giulini, cond. (ANGEL mono B 3649) — There are few things more moving in the musical repertoire than this masterpiece. Further, there has never been a more magnificent recording of it than the present one. Giulini is a genius in combining soloists, chorus and orchestra in near-perfect balance. His is not only a musical performance but also a powerfully spiritual one. No one soloist could be set above the others. They are all magnificent, both alone and in combination. I must remark, however, on the wonderful "Agnus Dei" as sung by Ludwig and Schwarzkopf. Their blend and unity of purpose make this one of the great moments of the piece. Schwarzkopf's high soft B flat at the end of "Domine fac" is another. There are many more. The Philharmonia Chorus sounds magnificent. They respond completely to every demand made on them. To say that this is a fine achievement is an understatement.

HAYDN — Symphony No. 82, "The Bear"; Symphony No. 83, "The Hen"; The New York Philharmonic; Leonard Bernstein, cond. (COLUMBIA stereo MS 6609) — Haydn's symphony "The Bear" takes its name from the last movement, which is dance-like, over a droning bass. It is a light-hearted and delightful symphony, with an opening movement bursting with exuberance and energy, and a graceful second movement with variations on a simple theme. The Menuetto has a stirring opening theme alternating with a more modest one. The title "The Hen" probably comes from the first movement where a few barnyard sounds open an otherwise fairly serious piece. Only the last movement is entirely lighthearted. The New York Philharmonic gives an excellent and flexible account of these symphonies. Their rich, elegant sound is well-suited to this music.

BEETHOVEN — Piano Trio, Op. 1, No. 1; HAYDN — Divertimento for Cello and Orchestra; ROZSA — Tema con Variazioni, for violin, cello and orchestra; Jascha Heifetz, violin; Gregor Piatigorsky, cello; Jacob Lateiner, piano; (RCA VICTOR stereo LSC - 2770) — The piano trio is a youthful and unrestrained work, and these performers have captured this spirit extremely well. Piatigorsky's performance of the Haydn Divertimento is memorable for its intensity and subtle variations of tone. Rozsa's "Tema con Variazioni" is a very pleasing piece that becomes even more attractive on subsequent hearings.

The coin • • • • • by winifred mather, f.r.n.s. box

The mints of Canada and the United States have recently made some rather startling announcements of importance to coin collectors in both countries.

The first announcement by the Bureau of the Mint in Washington stated that there would be no proof sets of United States coins issued in 1965. The second announcement came from the United States Treasury Department to the effect that all United States coins struck between January 1st and July 1st, 1965, would bear the date 1964. This date freeze may last longer but there was a stipulation in the legislation that it could be terminated by July 1st but not before.

While many United States citizens have been collecting Canadian coins, and particularly our proof-like sets issued by the Royal Canadian Mint, the present restrictions in the United States will probably be an inducement to many more Americans to collect our coins and to order Canadian proof-like sets.

And in Canada there will be restrictions also. The Royal Canadian Mint recently announced that there will be no more separately packaged silver dollars issued to collectors, at least in 1965. The only specially-packaged coins will be the sets of one of each denomination packaged in polyethylene and the number of sets to be supplied to each person has been reduced from fifty to five.

The price of the sets, which the Mint calls uncirculated but which are called proof-like by collectors and dealers, has been raised from $3.00 to $4.00.

However, the rise in price will not deter collectors from buying Canadian proof-like sets, but it must be emphasized that the mint will not accept any orders for 1965 coins before January 1st, 1965, and 1964 proof-like sets are no longer available from the mint. There were so many orders early in the year that the mint had to refuse all orders received after April 30th.

Not only does the demand for Canadian proof-like sets grow each year but in 1965 there will be an additional inducement as all coin denominations will have a new obverse, with the present laureate young head of the Queen being replaced by a more mature portrait with a tiara.

Behind the scenes view of those teacher jokes

THE PREDICAMENTS OF EUSTACE PRIM by Maurice
Gibbons; Mussion Book Co.;
$3.75; 134 pages.

For many decades teachers and the teaching profession have been a continuing source of humour and the butt of many jokes particularly from people outside the teaching profession. It is refreshing therefore, in The Predicaments of Eustace Prim to get an inside view. One need read nothing about the author to realize that Mr. Gibbons is a teacher. None other could write so realistically of the major disasters and petty grievances which contribute to making it essential for 20 percent of all teachers to seek psychiatric help at some time during their teaching careers. The unbalanced register, the slightly-behind day book, the endless forms, the money to be collected, the daily patrol of grounds and hall, the irate parents who know it isn't Johnny's fault, and that unforgettable day when the inspector unexpectedly arrives, which one immediately back to the classroom.

As Mr. Gibbons so aptly puts it, "Unfortunately while the lesson must always go on, it does not always come off." Many examples of this can be found in the book, and in almost every case, Mr. Eustace Prim exits vanquished. Therefore Mr. Prim does not come through as a realistic character.

Rather the author uses Eustace as his scapegoat. "If I mucked anything up in class, he was always able to handle it muckierly. He was my catharsis. If I wished to complain about some injustice Prim could always be sent tilting at that particular windmill to satirize it. He was my comfort. If I was down the old bird could always rise from the ashes of greater failure to fall gloriously again."

A Four Freedoms Literary Award of $1,000 will be given for the first time in 1965 by B'nai B'rith Women. The prize has been established in order to further, through literature, President Franklin D. Roosevelt's concept of universal human rights as expressed in his Four Freedoms Speech and will be given for the literary work published, in the United States or Canada, in 1964 which makes the most outstanding contribution to thought on human rights issues. Judges for the competition include Alan Barth, Pearl Buck and Associate Justice William O. Douglas.

Canada has its own home-grown Mafia operating in the guise of a religious sect says Vancouver reporter Simma Holt in her forthcoming book TERROR IN THE NAME OF GOD. The story of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors due for release across Canada next week. A complete Doukhobor history from their origins in Russia to their activities in present day Canada, TERROR IN THE NAME OF GOD is, according to its publishers, MCCLELLAND & STEWART, a shocking revelation of fanatical terrorism let loose in the name of religious freedom by a sect which has defied Canadian law for over half a century.

Kate Aitken who has for some years been chairman of the Ontario division of UNICEF has taken on the National UNICEF Halloween Chairmanship—which means that she is particularly busy just now with so many children across Canada prepared to devote tonight's Halloween activities to this good cause.

Each season sees a new crop of first-book authors appearing on the writing scene.

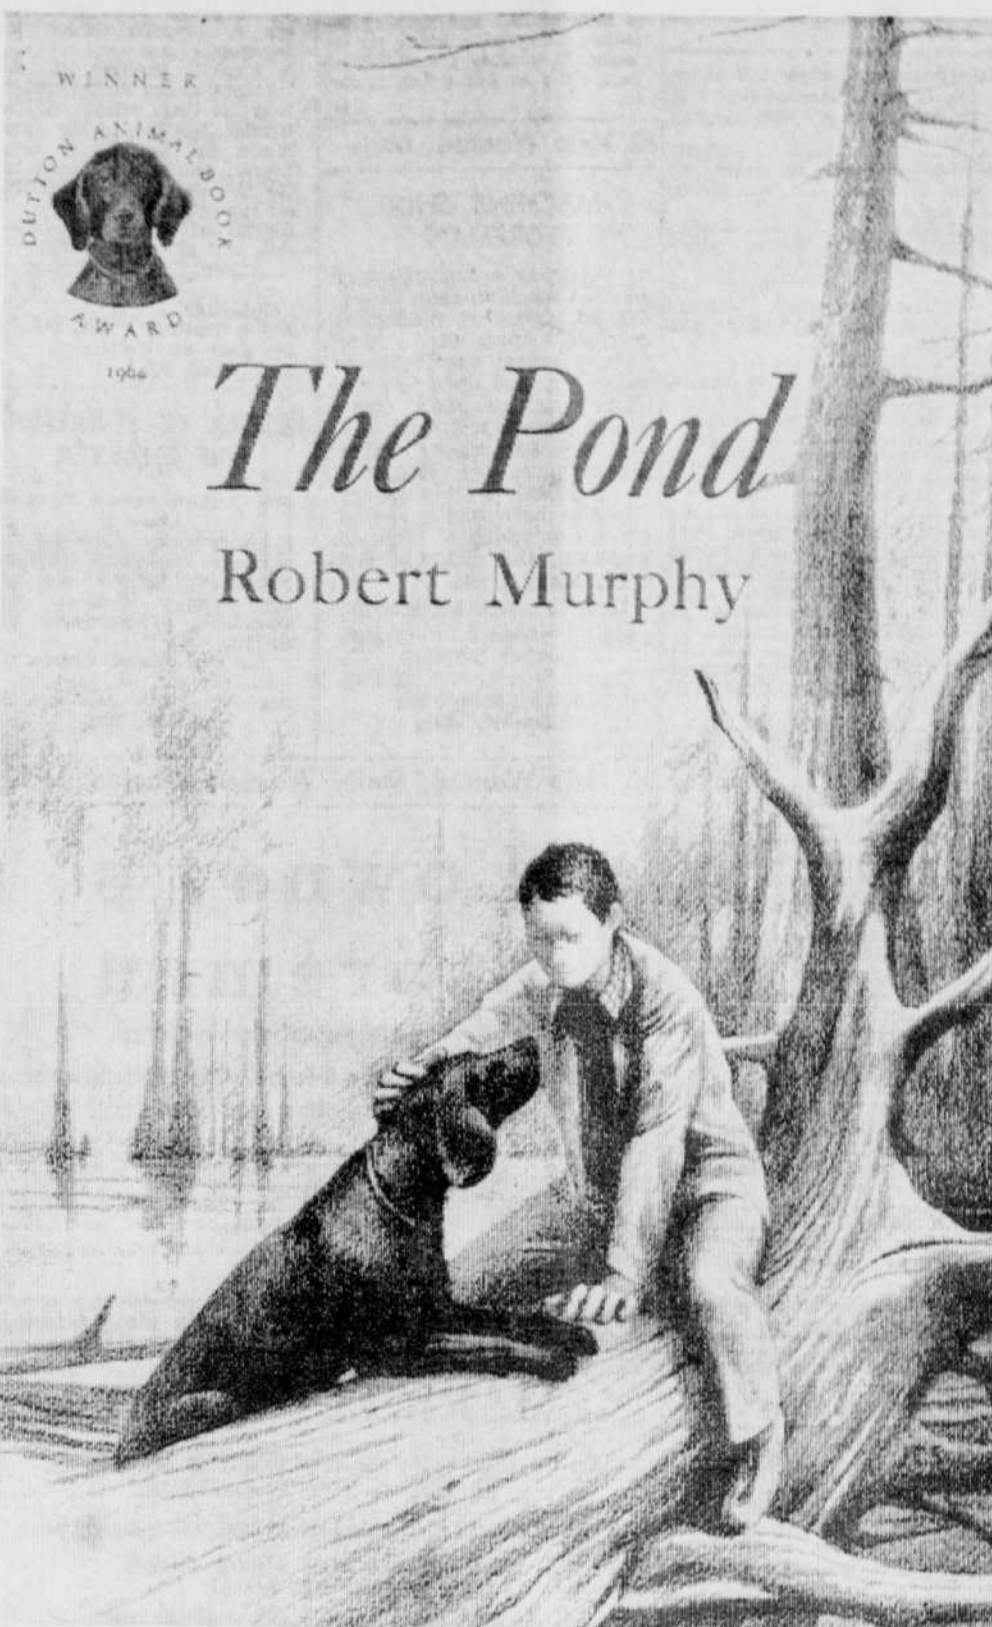

The advent of a first-book author is like the birth of a baby. There are the anxious publisher - parents hovering over the literary crib. There are the reviewer-midwives waiting to help—or occasionally ruthlessly abort—the embryonic writer. There are all the relatives—those who have already produced their own first books—waiting to see what will happen to the toddler-author in their midst. And finally there is the reader-society whose job it is to accept or reject this aspirant to literary citizenship.

Some first-book authors are one-book authors. They die in infancy. Others go on to a long and fruitful career. Of these their fellow authors and readers eventually take pride in saying, "I remember when his first book came out..."

Because I find it interesting to follow the careers of first-book authors—and I think readers of this page might find it equally so—I am planning to do a series on those Canadian authors whose first books appear in the book stores this fall.

This series will be my midwifery. The future of these authors—fruitful career or infant mortality—may well rest with you, the reader.

NAKED SOCIETY joins series of Vance Packard's forewarnings

VANCE PACKARD

They seek meaning in anything excepting only 'honest toil'

THE SARDANA DANCERS, by Robin Jenkins; (Clarke Irwin), Johnathon Cape, London; 350 pgs; $6.00. All Mr. Jenkins' characters stand out in brilliant relief, each pursuing his own destiny as his nature and circumstances demand. If THE SARDANA DANCERS is not a life-lived-happily-ever-after type of story, it is satisfactory, because the reader knows it is an honest portrayal of real emotions and behaviours.

The story involves a number of divergent characters who live at Cabo Creus, a small sea-side place in Spain, among whom is Johnathon Broome, a young English poet. Johnathon is remote and seemingly cold, very puritanical in his attitudes and suffering from acute frustration as he realizes his creative ability is more wish than fact.

His twin sister Maddy, a gregarious extravert with no puritanical inhibitions, recognizes her limitations as a painter; she believes Johnathon would be a better poet were he to fall in love. Actually, both Johnathon and Maddy are unhappy and searching for something to put meaning into their lives; their trouble is that they have too much money, too much time, too much creative desire with too little talent.

THE NAKED SOCIETY, by Vance Packard; Mussion Book Co.; $6.65.

This is the latest in Mr. Packard's books of protest against one or another facet of present day life. This time he tells with frightening detail of the modern trend toward loss of privacy for the individual, and the mildness with which the trend is accepted by its victims. He cites one instance after another wherein a person's private life is probed mercilessly either with or without his own knowledge, and he tells of the emergence of firms and machines that are designed for just this purpose, and it seems that no one except the author is sufficiently aware of what is happening to do anything about the situation, and it is Mr. Packard's mission to warn us before it is too late.

All this makes for alarming reading, and as you are deeply involved in the book you become enraged, and that feeling continues for some weeks afterward. Unfortunately, Mr. Packard sets forward his ideas and describes the situation vividly but offers no solution, so we are no further ahead even though we may be forewarned. Law-abiding citizens have to conform whether they like it or not, and Mr. Packard as a prophet of doom is unsurpassed, but what good does it do to paint such a gloomy picture if there is no way out for the individual?

In a recent copy of Life Magazine there was a brief article on a new invention that enables people driving in a truck along a street to discover what television programs are being watched inside each house the truck passes. This was reported quite matter-of-factly as a marvelous new development that would save the people who want to know, all the trouble of making telephone surveys, but no reference was made to the fact that surely inside the walls of one's home one ought to be able to do anything without an outsider detecting one's activities without permission. Whether tuning in to a certain television program or browbeating one's wife, it is a private affair and it should stay that way. This is the sort of thing that Mr. Packard feels so strongly about, and anyone who hears his voice crying in the wilderness would be delighted to answer him, but the unanswered question is what do we do about it all?

Collecting

Townships

The stamp show and exhibition will be underway in Sherbrooke as you read this column. The officials of the Eastern Townships Stamp Club and the St. Francis Collectors Club are to be congratulated for sponsoring this annual event. The show last year, held in Lennoxville, was most successful and attracted a goodly number of people. It is hoped that the public will once again show this keen interest and attend the event at Howardene in Sherbrooke.

The show will open at officially at 2 p.m. with civic and religious authorities in attendance, followed by a reception for the invited guests.

There will be a number of frames containing stamps from the world over, tonicals such as trains on stamps, stamps on stamps, flowers and animals, displays of the United Nations and of Canadian material, the stamps on show will be directed at the beginner and the collector who has probably placed his collection to one side, and through this it is hoped that increased philatelic activity will enable the clubs to sponsor larger and better shows.

The ideal show would have a Court of Honour with displays of material from specialized collections and various postal administration exhibits, and then a area with competitive exhibits from local collectors. We feel that stamp shows are a great deal of fun and you are urged to attend the show either today or tomorrow at Howardene, Sherbrooke.

The Tonga Gold Coin set that was issued on the 19th of this month was to commemorate the Pan Pacific and South East Asia Women's Association Conference held in Nuku'alofa, the first international meeting to be held in Tonga. The designs of the eight stamps, four postage and four airmail, feature the one fourth Koula gold coin of the Kingdom of Tonga.

The stamps, individually cut, as were the Gold Coin commemoratives issued last year, were produced for Tonga in England by the same company which produced the 1963 issue which attracted so much attention in philatelic and numismatic circles. The four ordinary postage commemoratives show the one fourth Koula coin on stamps in the shape of hearts. The airmails show the one fourth Koula stamp on a map of Tonga, die cut with the ocean represented by gold borders around a die cut stamp.

The new stamps will remain on sale until December 31 unless the supply is exhausted earlier. The stamps will be popular and should be purchased at the new issue prices and not at the high prices that will doubtlessly prevail should the set prove to be in demand. The lesson learned with the last gold coin set should be remembered by all collectors.

A visitor recently showed his collection of bridges of stamps and it was indeed a pleasant hour. The stamps were mounted on plain album pages and information about the different bridges was tastefully placed around each stamp. The time to write about such a collection would certainly run into many hours, but the pleasure and the time spent in looking up the information in books of reference surely would be an education in itself.

Such a collection may not have too much value to another collector, but value is not the idea of collecting stamps. The pleasure and the leisurely hours spent with the hobby are the rewards. The profit making should be left to speculators; it is not a hobby when collectors start wondering if the catalogue value has advanced on the set that was purchased last year when it was in demand. A Canadian collection written up with information about our famous men and landmarks would be fascinating but most of us are satisfied with the notations which appear under the stamp and seem to care little about the political life or work of the men themselves.

Should you need something to add interest to your Canadian collection, try finding out about the buildings, animals, flowers and people pictured. A few years ago a collector brought along about three pages of information he had gathered about the Royal Yacht "Britannia"—our preference would be the Bluenose—what glorious history there would be in this stamp.

Beatrice, Lady Glenavy Talented woman's famous friends

TODAY WE WILL ONLY
GOSSIP, by Beatrice, Lady
Glenavy; Longmans; $7.75;
296 pp.

Lady Glenavy is the widow of the late Lord Glenavy, Governor of the Bank of Ireland, and from this fact alone we might expect her recollections to concern themselves with society life. However, Beatrice Elvery, though highly sociable, had no social position to speak of, being born into a shopkeeper's family. No debutante, she led the Bohemian life of a painter in Dublin. She seems to have enjoyed unusual freedom for a young girl at the turn of the century, and not only was allowed to study in London and Paris, but made lasting friendships with some unconventional artistic and literary personages.

Her nearest friends were Katherine Mansfield, S. S. Kotelnisky, D. H. and Frieda Lawrence, and the painter William Orpen. She also knew Yeats, G. K. Chesterton, George Bernard Shaw, James Stephens, George Moore and Oliver St. John Gogarty. Her reminiscences of these interesting people are enlivened by photographs, some of them highly candid, as a shot of G. B. S. in an outlandish bathing suit, and the infant Samuel Beckett (author of Waiting for Godot) saying his prayers in a white nightdress at his mother's knee. There are even more revealing quotes from letters, many of which have never been published before.

Lady Glenavy must be a most remarkable personality, to have maintained the admiration of so many gifted people. That she is a fine artist in her own right is evinced by four reproductions of her own work. We are curious to know more about her own life and family. Her late husband remains a shadowy figure, and she never mentions that her sons, Patrick and Michael, have become fairly well-known writers.

Such personal touches as there are add greatly to the charm of the narrative, and the brief accounts of her girlhood at Carrickmines, and her schooling and efforts to establish herself as an artist, are especially interesting. Her memories of her friends are less absorbing to those who are not well up on their Irish literary history. We all know about Shaw, and Katherine Mansfield, but some of the lesser luminaries don't quite register, and their wisest remarks tend to lose their sparkle over the years.

Handicap Pace headlines weekend racing card this evening, classes filled, Handicap Trot tonight also

The main features on the weekend racing card at the Sherbrooke Track will take place this evening. A Handicap Pace for a purse of $350 will headline the card while also tonight a Handicap Trot for a purse of $300 and a Pace for the same amount are the top events this evening.

The main feature for Sunday afternoon is an Optional Claiming race for a purse of $300 which takes place as the ninth dash on the card. This evening a total of 77 horses will go to the gate while tomorrow with the exception of one class, in the sixth dash, every class will see eight starters.

In the main event this evening seven have filed their entries in what should be a close battle. It is a well balanced class and anyone of the seven could emerge the winner.

Coombs' Bluet Scott has the fourth position in the seven-horse field while Lefebvre's Abbe Dean is third. Fanny Clap has the favored spot and Albert Tontant's Sister Adios has the second slot with Rhythm, Mae and Dick Adios completing the front row. Maid Drummond has the seventh spot in the

In the Handicap Trot it looks like another tough battle between Brownie Iba and Chief Corsica. Last Sunday Florent Brochu beat the field under the wire in 2:10 4/5 followed by Ferland's Brownie Iba and MacArthur's Eddie Boy Jr. This should be another close fight the whole way. Angus Farm's Scotch Glory broke stride last week but could give the field trouble if he remains on his feet.

Newell's Lone Elm Reddy should be one of the favorites for Sunday's main feature. He won in 2:13 last Sunday but tough competition can be expected from the rest of the field. Express Beauty and Suzanne Clap, who won in 2:13 also, could be right up with the top horses.

The rest of the classes are fairly well balanced and with some decent weather the fans should witness some good races. The racing club has asked for an extension in order to stage a few more programs but as yet haven't received a favorable answer. The final card is listed for Wednesday, Nov. 7, and the season may end with that unless the extension is granted.

Pittsburgh can be spoilers in NFL weekend action, meet Browns as St. Louis Cards at home to Giants Pittsburgh Steelers, who threw a monkey wrench into last season's battle for the National Football League's Eastern Division title, have an opportunity to scramble the race again this weekend — with an umbrella.

The Steelers parlayed three ties and seven victories into a shot at their first divisional crown last year despite a poor win-loss percentage, but bowed out with a loss to New York Giants in the last game of the regular season.

Now they're bogged down with a 3-4 record but could throw the Eastern race into a tight struggle by beating Cleveland Browns in one of the key games on the NFL schedule Sunday.

The Browns have a 5-1 record but their lone loss was to the Steelers, who got the job done with an effective 6-1-4 umbrella defence that stymied Cleveland.

TRY TO EVEN SERIES
While the Browns are trying to even the season series with the Steelers, second-place St. Louis Cardinals 4-2, will be at New York against the Giants and third-place Philadelphia Eagles 4-3, at home to Washington Redskins.

Baltimore Colts, leading the Western Division with a 6-1 record, could break the race open by downing San Francisco 49ers while Detroit Lions and Los Angeles Rams, tied for second with 4-2-1 records, are battling heads.

In other games, Green Bay Packers and Chicago Bears will try to get untracked against Minnesota Vikings and Dallas Cowboys respectively.

The American Football League gets under way Saturday night with Boston Patriots at New York Jets in a key Eastern Division game.

Sunday, Buffalo Bills, only unbeaten and untied team in either league, will go for a perfect 8-0 record at Houston Oilers. Oakland Raiders are at San Diego Chargers and Denver Broncos at Kansas City Chiefs.

HEADING FOR RECORD
The Steelers, in handing the Browns their only defeat, not only held Jimmy Brown to 27 yards rushing, but rolled up 354 yards on the ground themselves with John Henry Johnson getting 200. Johnson was held to 58 last week and the Steelers lost to Philadelphia.

Brown has gained 664 yards for the season and needs only 14 more to become the first NFL player to gain 10,000 yards solely on the ground.

The Cardinals could grab a share of the eastern lead by beating the Giants if the Steelers can handle the Browns. The Giants, defending eastern kings, are in last place with a 1-5-1 record.

Rangers call upon McMahon, replaces Brown

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers of the National Hockey League called up defenseman Mike McMahon from Baltimore Clippers of the American League Friday so Arnie Brown of the parent club can attend the funeral of his father in Apsley, Ont.

Brown will miss Sunday's game with the Montreal Canadiens but will rejoin the Rangers in time for Tuesday night's encounter in Chicago.

Richmond to have fancy skating school

RICHMOND — A group of young ladies, twenty or so, turned out at the Coliseum Thursday evening to attend the opening of the fancy skating program which will be held this season.

Robert Dutil of the Sherbrooke Skating Club, a fancy skater in his own right, instructed the girls in the first two-hour program. The Board of Recreation, Inc., of Richmond, is sponsoring this and hopes that more girls and even young men will take up the art of fancy skating.

The rainy weather was the reason for the small number who attended the first night's lessons. These are given each Thursday evening from 7 to 9 p.m.

St. Pat's High School walked off with their first championship in the St. Francis Valley Junior soccer league yesterday, defeating Lennoxville High School 5-4 on a total-goal basis.

The newly-crowned champions used every minute of regular playing time in the tilt as well as a full overtime period before winning the title and Hi-Y Trophy.

Irish supremacy reigned on the field in this last minute when Donald Mills potted his second goal of the game to give his team the championship. The corner kick centered squarely at the goalmouth, fumbled by L.H.S. netminder Chamberlain, thus ending the game and the playoffs.

St. Pat's opened the scoring early in the opening half, as the offensive attack sent Danny Greenland down the field, passing over to Danny Stock, potting the goal. The champions opened fire once again ten minutes later, as Mills made his presence felt for the first time, however not the last, capitalizing on a pass from captain Alfred Bell.

WAYNE BERRY SCORES THREE

Wayne Berry, star center for Lennoxville, decided that the time had come for them to make their move. He did just that within the space of two minutes, tying the match 2-2 on successive goals. His one man show sent the spirit and hope back into the squad, fighting for the coveted award.

The second half sent L.H.S. ahead, once again Berry leading in the scoring play. With the latter mark bringing the total number of goals to an even keel, both squads sent offensive and defensive mechanisms into high gear, halting any further advances.

CORNER KICKS FUTILE

Corner kicks proved to be futile for St. Pat's as chance after chance for gaining the sudden death tilt was foiled by the Lennoxville squad. However, the right hand corner held the winning goal as Mills ended the game with his mark.

The Green and White completed their best season in the junior loop, having won four of their six games, losing one and tying one. Excellent passing from team members Danny Greenland and Alfred Bell aided in the win, as well as Don Mills, starring in the game. Lennoxville's top men were Wayne Berry and Crosby Cotton, the former taking care of the goals, with the latter offering any needed assistance on the field.

St. Pat's Goal: Ron Sargent, J. Ronaldi, D. Tobin, A. Bell, R. Durocher, G. Meissner, P. Peters, M. Pepin, D. Stock, D. Mills and Danny Greenland.
L.H.S. Goal: A. Chamberlain, D. Garard, M. Howes, C. Cotton, W. Berry, P. Hewitt, R. Bouchar, R. Smith, P. Walters, J. Maxwell, A. Halsall.

Clair's job not in jeopardy, meet Argos

Midway through the season, Frank Clair's job as head coach of the Ottawa Rough Riders was never more secure.

Recently, however, rumor has it that after three straight losses, which saw the Riders relinquish first place to Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Clair's club will have to make a good showing in the EFC finals to save him from the chopping block.

But Ottawa club officials denied reports that Clair's job is in jeopardy.

"It is the most ridiculous thing I have heard in my 20 years with the Ottawa club," general manager Red O'Quinn said Friday.

"In all my time here Frank Clair's future has never been questioned or even mentioned," he said. "I am in touch constantly with the club directors and the matter has never entered any conversation."

"There has been no discussion about Clair at all," agreed club president Barry O'Brien. "We are not the kind of employers to hold a gun to a man's head and say 'win or else.' The whole idea is nonsense."

O'Brien said that as far as he is concerned Clair will have "no trouble obtaining a contract renewal when the time comes."

COULD USE WIN

Clair is anxious to get started on a recovery program and, while today's match in Toronto against the last-place Argonauts is meaningless in the standings, an impressive win could be just the medicine Clair and the Riders need to silence the critics.

Hamilton and Montreal Alouettes wind up the regular schedule in Montreal Sunday in a game which likewise will have no effect on the standings. Hamilton has first place locked up, with Ottawa second, Montreal third and Argos last.

The sudden-death eastern semi-final playoff opens in Ottawa Nov. 7 with Montreal visiting. If Ottawa wins, the first of a two-game, total-point final between the Rough Riders and Hamilton will be played at Ottawa Nov. 14. If the Alouettes win, the first game will be played at Montreal Nov. 14 or 15, depending on the outcome next week of an intercollegiate game.

Clair has refused to let the rumors bother him. "I think we'll do all right when we meet Montreal in the semi-final," he said. "Our biggest problem is getting our offence working again. We have to get (quarterback Russ) Jackson passing like he is capable of doing and get Whit Tucker back in the lineup."

HAS BACK TROUBLE

Tucker, one of the country's outstanding pass receivers, has been out of action with back trouble. Clair has been working him out the last couple of weeks, but will most likely have him for the Montreal clash.

The Riders placed on waivers rookie quarterback Junior Edge from the University of North Carolina. The move was made necessary by the signing earlier this week of halfback Bo Scott from Ohio State.

Today's game will be broadcast on the CBC national television network starting at 2 p.m.

Argos have nothing at stake in today's outing and will take the opportunity to look over some of their youngsters. Karl Sweetan will start at quarterback, with regular pivot Jackie Parker holding down a half-back spot.

Junior league to hold draft Sunday morning

The annual draft of players by the Sherbrooke Junior Hockey League will take place Sunday morning at the Arena.

All players interested in playing junior hockey are asked to be on hand and reminded that they must bring their own equipment. The draft will commence at 10:30 and will run for an hour.

This year it has been decided that only three clubs will be operated by the league instead of the usual four. This was studied at the meeting Monday and since the age limit for all minor players has been backed up it means they can perform another season if their birthdays are within the new extension.

Anyone wishing to play junior hockey this year must attend the draft so to allow the three different coaches an opportunity of picking their players.

ET Junior loop opens Sunday in Richmond

RICHMOND — The Eastern Townships Junior B Hockey League Sunday with three games scheduled in the Connie Dion circuit. Dion, president of the E.T. Junior B loop, announced a 30-game schedule for the six clubs, Lake Megantic, Waterloo, Drummondville, Asbestos, Magog and Richmond.

Last year's champs, Richmond Flyers, host Magog Aces and the locals have a new coach, Gaston Bernard, of Acton Vale. There are also new additions to the roster judging from their performance in the All-Star game played here last Sunday. This one should prove to be as good a game.

The All-Star tilt ended in a 1-1 tie and with about four minutes remaining in the game the power went off in Richmond. Officials called the game due to lack of electricity. In other tilts Sunday, Waterloo hosts Megantic while Drummondville travels to the mining town meeting Asbestos.

Bill Frank must report to Dallas Cowboys

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tackle Bill Frank has not succeeded in bolting an agreement between British Columbia Lions and Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League, Lions announced Friday.

The club said it has been informed that Joe Foss, commissioner of the American Football League, has refused to register Frank's new contract with San Diego Chargers of the AFL.

This means Frank still is legally bound to report to Dallas under terms of a trade agreement with Lions of the Canadian league.

Frank, suspended by Lions for disciplinary reasons, was ordered to Dallas earlier this month but went straight to San Diego instead and the AFL club announced his signing Thursday.

Will be gunning for third straight win, Gauls have new players in lineup, game slated for 7:30 p.m.

Two important games are on tap tomorrow in the Quebec Provincial Senior Hockey League. Sherbrooke will be at home to St. Hyacinthe tomorrow evening, game time 7:30 p.m., while in the afternoon the Vics of Granby move over to Drummondville to take on the Rockets.

The Beavers will be gunning for their third straight victory when they take on the Gauls tomorrow evening. They knocked the Rockets over in two straight and are favorites to come up with their third consecutive victory.

Coach Georges Roy had his crew out for a light workout yesterday and will have them on skates again this afternoon in preparation for their game with the Gauls. The Beavers pulled through Thursday without any serious injuries and should have a full club ready for duty.

A win for the locals would move them a step closer to the top of the standing and no doubt Coach Roy will have his squad gunning for the decision St. Hyacinthe will be paying their first visit to Sherbrooke this year.

Sherbrooke may have a new player in uniform for tomorrow evening's game. He is Cartier, a youngster just fresh out of junior ranks having played for Sorel last season in the Metropolitan Junior League. He will report for practice today and Coach Roy will discuss terms with him.

Georges Guibault will centre Simon Nolet and Bob Brooks as one trio while Rene Pepin will be between Ronnie Racette and Real Rousseau. On the other line will be Claude Cardin and Rod Gaudreault on the wings with Bob Dupre or young Cartier in the centre.

Coach Roy announced after Thursday's game that Larry Drouin had been released to Drummondville and commencing tomorrow will join the Rockets. Manager Poliquin completed a deal with Georges Roy in order to try and bolster his club.

St. Hyacinthe will present a few new players in their lineup since last year. Manager Fournier has made quite a few deals since losing Chuck Poxon and Andy Besette. The loss of these two players left a big hole in their lineup. They are with the Verdun Pirates.

The Gauls may have a new goalie in the nets. Joe Lacoursiere was their regular netminder last season but this year they have been trying out a few newcomers. On their attacking lines the Gauls have added some new men in an effort to secure more scoring power and should with a little time, round out a strong attacking force.

Maple Leafs and Bruins appear to have problems, Canadiens at home to Bruins, Black Hawks at Toronto

Toronto Maple Leafs have a centre who in the past has been piece of first place and Boston Bruins are last in the National Hockey League race, but Leafs they "are just not working" appear to have almost as many problems as the tail-end Bruins.

The defending Stanley Cup champion Leafs, who play host to Chicago Black Hawks in Saturday night action, are currently undergoing treatment for sloppy defence, erratic shooting and ineffective penalty killing, turning on a whistle signal and sprinting to the corner boards, then back to centre.

The players also spent an hour skating in on the wings and firing on an empty net. Imlach hopes this will sharpen up their shooting eyes.

The Bruins' last-place position shouldn't really surprise anyone—they haven't been out of the cellar for the last few years. However, he expects did pick this as the year the Bruins would start to move
