One dead, one seriously injured in wake of blaze

Sherbrooke hotel levelled by fire

By CROSBIE COTTON
Record Reporter

SHERBROOKE — Fire department inspectors started combing through the debris of the New Sherbrooke Hotel early this morning in an attempt to determine the cause of the fire.

The blaze, which erupted early Saturday morning, caused unofficial damage estimates of $750,000, left one hotel employee dead and another in serious condition at the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital. At least four other persons were treated for minor injuries in local hospitals during the inferno. They were later released.

"Inspectors will be on the scene early Monday morning," a Sherbrooke fire department spokesman said Sunday. "I don't think anything has been found yet but we can't rule out arson," he continued.

The three owners of the hotel, Maurice Fillion, Camille Messara and Lucien Leclerc, are scheduled to meet early this week to decide the future of the landmark which was completely ruined by flames throughout the morning Saturday. "I can't say we are going to rebuild," Mr. Leclerc told The Record during the height of the fire.

A TOTAL LOSS

"It is a total loss. I knew it wasn't fireproof," he added. "It will be a joint decision," Mr. Leclerc continued. "The three of us will get together at the beginning of the week to decide what we are going to do."

Firemen found the charred body of hotel employee Roger St. Francois stretched beside the door to his room on the second floor late Saturday afternoon. "I guess he tried to get out and was suffocated by the smoke," a fire department spokesman said.

Another hotel employee, Miss Andree Clement, was reported off the serious list in St. Vincent de Paul Hospital late Sunday night. She was taken to the hospital after leaping from the third floor window of her hotel room before firemen arrived.

Dr. Philippe Dionne who treated Miss Clement told The Record that she had suffered at least seven fractures and was badly disfigured.

Security ambulance driver Guy Proulx who picked the woman from the sidewalk to take her to the hospital said: "It seems she landed right on her face. She was completely disfigured and suffering from multiple fractures."

The fire broke out about 6:30 a.m. Firemen arrived about 6:45 a.m. and spent nearly five hours bringing the blaze under control. More than 60 men and all of the city's fire equipment were used in the first general alert of 1972.

"It was the worst fire of the year," Captain Leo Paul Lessard, the director of the first firemen on the scene, said. "It was much harder to fight than the fire which destroyed the New Wellington Hotel last year."

PREVENT FIRE FROM SPREADING

Captain Lessard credited good work by the firemen in preventing the flames from spreading to adjoining buildings. "Our whole strategy was to try to stop the fire from spreading," Captain Lessard said. "We surrounded the hotel and were able to contain it," he said.

In the end, no other buildings were affected — not even by smoke and water damage, according to the fire department spokesman.

The blaze was first noticed by the hotel's barber, Marc Legendre, who quickly awakened maintenance manager George Labrecque. "The fire started in Room No. 311 which we use to store reserve mattresses," Mr. Labrecque said.

"I grabbed four extinguishers and tried to put it out but I couldn't,"

Mr. Labrecque then rushed back to his room and grabbed his own mattress. "I tried to smother it but couldn't," he said.

"NOT A SINGLE DROP"

"I rushed to turn on the fire hose but when I opened the valve not a single drop of water came out," he contended. "The fire spread like hell."

The more than 40 guests staying at the hotel at the outbreak scurried from the establishment in different forms of attire. At least one individual ran out into the freezing weather clad only in his pajamas.

Many people were awakened from their slumber by the fire alarm while others were brought out of their sleep by rocks breaking through their windows. "I was driving by on my way to go hunting when I saw the flames," insurance agent Daniel Audit said.

"I threw rocks through the windows trying to wake people up," he added.

Traffic was halted for most of the day on Depot and King streets as hundreds of curious onlookers crowded around in an attempt to see the fire. Smoke billowed high into the sky throughout most of the morning.

The New Sherbrooke Hotel contained many meeting rooms as well as a discotheque and bar-salon. Trans-Ocean Travel Service also housed its operations in the hotel.

"We were able to get all files and tickets out," Tom Stock of Trans-Ocean said. "We will be in business at the beginning of next week."

"We will probably be in other offices but we will be at work at the beginning of the week. We saved everything we needed. Our customers need not worry."

NO OFFICIAL DAMAGE FIGURE

No official figure for the loss has been determined. "I would say that it was worth about $750,000," Mr. Leclerc said.

"The hotel was not insured for that amount, it was only insured for $500,000," he added.

The flames were under control by noon although firemen remained on the scene throughout the weekend. Security agents were brought in to keep the curious away from the hotel.

All that is left of the top three floors is the outer shell although the walls have caved in at places. "There is still the danger that the walls might fall and hurt someone," one of the guards said.

Municipal transport buses were rerouted most of the day and many of them were not on time as the busy King and Wellington street intersection came to a standstill.

This was the scene Saturday as Sherbrooke firemen fought hard to control the blaze at the New Sherbrooke Hotel.

WALL COLLAPSES — Part of the wall of the Sherbrooke Hotel collapsed from the pressure of hours of water poured on the hotel by firemen.

Fortunately the wall caved inward, away from the street, and no one was hurt by the falling debris. For more photos, see p. 8.

JOB WELL DONE — Sherbrooke firemen are to be congratulated for preventing the blaze from spreading to adjoining buildings. They worked hard, finally bringing the fire under control some six hours after it began. For more photos see p. 8. (Record photos — L. Harris, C. Cotton)

LUNCHEON DATE — Canadian singing star Paul Anka poses between his two "long-time buddies" producer Drew Crossan and Elwood Glover. Anka had just appeared as the sole guest on the hour-long Elwood Glover's Luncheon Date show on CBC.

TV. It was a pleasant reunion. Anka noted on the air that he was glad to be back working with Glover and Crossan again because it was Glover who played his records when he was still a "nobody", and Crossan first put him on television.

There was nothing wrong with South's heart contract except that if West had been a seventh son of a seventh son he could have opened a club and defeated it.

On the other hand, if East and West had just been inclined to bid a little more, South would never have had a chance to play at four hearts.

East might have pulled himself together and given his partner a competitive raise to two spades or West might have elected to try a takeout double with his nice hand. Either way they could have reached the easy spade game.

As it was, South won the spade lead, drew trumps and led a club toward dummy. After this start it was an easy matter for East to win a club, lead a diamond to his partner, win a second club after West led that suit and let West's second diamond trick set the contract.

It was tough luck to find the king and jack of clubs and queen of diamonds in the wrong spots, but a careful South would have made the contract in any event.

After drawing trumps he would lead a low diamond toward dummy and would have had time to set up his last two diamonds for a discard of one of dummy's clubs.

By ROBERT HAMILTON

Bell Canada has filed with the Telecommunications Commission two applications for approval of revisions to its tariffs of rates for service, equipment and facilities.

Application "A" requests approval of certain increases in rates to be effective January 1, 1973, or as soon thereafter as possible, and application "B" requests approval of certain further increases to be effective January 1, 1974. Since Bell Canada applied for and got an increase in rates in January 1971, it is beginning to look like Ma Bell is never going to be satisfied and is now reaching out for increases annually.

This is where our Government must give serious consideration to the demands of the Canadian taxpayers. A storm of protest is already in the making all over the country over the insatiable demands of Bell Canada so aptly described by one of the corporate bums. Canadians in all walks of life are fed up to the teeth with the tactics used by big business to milk the public for all it can get, thus encouraging the unions in their demands for still higher wages, which in turn sends the inflationary spiral to still higher heights.

MUST CLOSE RANKS

I have many times in this column written of the necessity for all Pensioners, senior citizens and everybody on fixed incomes to close ranks and make their feelings known on any and all subjects such as the Bell demands. The results of the recent election have given to us Pensioners some hope of the improvement in our economic status. The government now finds itself in a position where it has to give sympathetic consideration to the demands of the opposition parties if it wishes to remain in power.

We are all, by now, aware that both opposition parties have advocated a reasonable raise in pensions to cope with the cost of living. The promises both parties have made to the voters have to be honoured so it is reasonable to assume that this coming year, January probably, there will be an improvement in the financial status of all Pensioners.

Now we have the spectre of Bell Canada with her tentacles outspread, ready to take in the shekels which would keep her shareholders happy and at the same time nullify any small benefit which the Pensioners may gain from any increase in their already too small pension. So again, the Pensioners must be alert to the seriousness of the demands made by Bell Canada.

There has to be a massive write-in protest against the incessant demands of this company. The date of the hearing of the application has been fixed as the 10th of January 1973 at the Court Room of the Commission at 400 Laurier Avenue West, Ottawa. Protests should be mailed by December 13, 1972. Complaints should be sent to your member of parliament and your feelings should be made known in no uncertain terms.

MUST REMEMBER LESSONS

You have to remember the lessons of the recent election. The people of Canada showed the Government proof of their general disapproval of its conduct in the country's affairs in that vote. The country's two million plus Pensioners showed their own specific disapproval by voting for those candidates who were sympathetic to their requests.

We Pensioners cannot by any manner of means be apathetic to any one thing that touches on our economic standing. We have to be ever alert and we have to keep those in Ottawa also alert to our needs.

This can be done only if we will ourselves to watch everything that comes up which may affect our economic standing.

We must be quick to protest, to let our parliamentary representatives know that we expect them to do the job they were voted into office to do, that is, to represent their people in the constituency.

Remember, all things come to those who work for them — not to those who wait!

Canadian scientists working on sea vehicle

By GLENNIS ZILM

HALIFAX (CP) — Canadian scientists are working on a better unmanned underwater vehicle to examine ocean floors, especially rough, deep seabeds such as those off the Maritimes, Dr. D.E.T. Bidgood said Saturday.

The director of the geophysics division of the Nova Scotia Research Foundation told a science writers' seminar that the foundation has spent two years developing a special V-fin towed system that is providing some highly accurate charts of the ocean floor.

Knowledge of the ocean bottom off the Maritimes is vital to undersea exploration for oil, Dr. Bidgood said. Oil-drilling rigs can cost up to $60,000 a day to operate, he said. Engineers need information about the ocean floor in order to decide what kinds of anchors can hold the rigs steady.

The kinds of knowledge needed include whether the bottom is rock, gravel or silt, whether it is fairly flat and smooth or rough and rocky and, in some special instances, whether a channel has been exposed by icebergs scraping along the bottom.

Seabed examination usually is done by using sonic devices from a boat or towed barge, Dr. Bidgood said.

Business Bonspiel set

NORTH HATLEY — Invitations have been sent to approximately 70 industries and businesses inviting them to participate in the annual Industrial Bonspiel from November 25 - Dec. 2 at the North Hatley curling club.

The annual event, held since the club's inception, is open to all businesses whether they belong to curling club or not. Newcomers to the sport are especially welcome and can pick up handy tips on this sport from some of the regular members.

One sponsor for this event will be L.G. Balfour Co. of Canada who have solidly supported this widely circulated activity for many years. The team with the greatest distance to travel at present registration time is from Toronto representing Pacific Petroleum Ltd.

Canadian Ingersoll Rand Co. is the other sponsor and is new this year, although many teams representing that company have participated each year.

The final competition takes place on Saturday December 2 at 8 p.m. with dinner being served by the Ladies section of the club earlier in the evening.

Invitations have been sent to clubs in Ontario and extensively throughout Quebec. Anyone wishing to participate in this event can do so by contacting Frank Rudd before 9 p.m. Thursday Nov. 23.

14 experts to explore English in Quebec at symposium Future of English Quebec under discussion at Bishop's

LENNOXVILLE (CC) — What do Timothy Matthews and Robert Lemieux have in common? Mr. Matthews is the Anglican Bishop of Quebec while Mr. Lemieux has made national headlines as lawyer for the accused leaders of the 1970 October Crisis.

They can't have anything in common — can they? They do. They both have views on the future of the English-speaking population in Quebec.

Wednesday Nov. 22, Robert Lemieux and Timothy Matthews will be among the more than 14 experts on Quebec's English-speaking population taking part in a symposium at Bishop's University.

The symposium, which is open to the public, will take place in the Centennial Theatre. Sponsored by the Bishop's University and Champlain College Speaker's Committee, the day long event has as its theme "The Past and the Future of the English-Speaking Quebecois."

The day will be divided into four panels each dealing with a different aspect of the English in the province. The first panel starts at 10 a.m. and is concerned with a statistical analysis of the English in Quebec.

Speaking on the panel will be Philip Cutler, a well-known labor lawyer who has been involved with the Montreal Police Brotherhood, the Common Front and the La Presse labor conflict, Jan Morgan, who has just recently conducted a demographic study of the English in Quebec and Robert Mahow, a member of the Gendron Commission and an employee of the vital statistics branch of Statistics Quebec. The panel will be held from 10 a.m. until noon.

The first panel in the afternoon is called "The Cultural Contribution." Speaking on this panel will be Bishop Matthews, Rabbi Stuart Rosenberg, author of "The Jewish Community in Canada", University of Sherbrooke English and French literature expert Ronald Sutherland and Allan Wright, Department of Education employee in charge of courses in all secondary schools throughout Quebec. The panel will be held from 1:15-3:15 p.m.

Another panel has as its theme "The Economic Contribution of the English." Participating in the discussion will be J.R.

Hutcheson, president of Canadian Johns-Manville Co., Gilles Paquet, head of the economics department at Carleton University and an expert on the multinational corporation and Stanley Ryerson, a well-known Quebec writer and critic. Mr. Ryerson was involved with the 1970 cross-Canada tour to raise funds for the victims of the War Measures Act.

At 7:30 p.m. the CBC will show a documentary which has not yet been shown on television called "Les Anglais." Organizers have been able to secure the controversial show even though it is against CBC rules to show the documentary before it has appeared on television.

The final panel running from 8:30-10:30 p.m. will look at the future of the English in Quebec. Lawyer Lemieux will join Claude Charron, Parti Quebecois MNA, Michael Oliver, President of Carleton University, Peter Desparats, Ottawa editor of the Toronto Star, and the deputy minister of education John Dinsmore.

Panelists will deliver a short paper. The discussion will then be open to the floor.

SNOW FUN — It's no fun when you're caught without snow tires, can't find a shovel, have lost your gloves or discover other annoyances after winter's first visit. Townships residents are experiencing some of these inconveniences today following the first snowfall of the year of about six inches. Most of the snow should turn to slush with today's high near 35, however. But at least two Townships residents, seen above, seem to be enjoying the first snowfall.

Leaders praise Brandt's win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Governments in Eastern and Western Europe joined in praise Sunday night of Chancellor Willy Brandt's decisive victory in the West German elections.

East Germany hailed Brandt's re-election as a confirmation of his Ostpolitik, or policy of reducing tensions with the Soviet bloc.

The East German news agency ADN said: "The way now is cleared for the signing and ratification of the treaty on basic relations between West Germany and East Germany."

Moscow radio reported the election results without comment, but commentaries in the state-controlled press prior to the vote had made no secret of the Kremlin's preference for Brandt over his opponent, Rainer Barzel.

HEATH IS HAPPY

Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain was reported gratified by what he considered an indication of stability in West German politics at a time when Britain is about to enter the European Common Market. He also was reported delighted at the victory of Brandt as a personal friend.

Foreign Minister Knud B. Anderson of Denmark received the election news with "great pleasure" and said it gave him "a feeling of security" to know that Brandt will continue at the helm as West Germany proceeded with its policy of normalizing relations with Eastern Europe.

In a radio statement, Andersen also indicated that Denmark might recognize East Germany before the end of the year.

There was no immediate government reaction from Paris, but French officials had made clear they were looking forward to a Brandt victory.

In Washington, United States officials declined comment.

Bourassa pledges protection of minority rights despite party vote

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Liberal party voted during the weekend for a policy which would direct all immigrant children from non-English-speaking countries into the province's French-language school system.

But Premier Robert Bourassa pledged in his speech closing the party's 17th annual convention that minority language rights will be "completely respected" in his government's policies.

He told reporters after the resolution passed Saturday that his government is not bound by the party's resolutions and that it will be treated as one of the elements to be taken into account in drawing up an overall language policy.

He also would not say when the government will introduce language legislation.

The resolution to place future immigrants in the French-language school system, unless they come from English-speaking countries, was passed in a sometimes-stormy workshop meeting Saturday and confirmed at the convention's plenary session Sunday.

However, the plenary session accepted a motion from Dorothy Linkletter, a delegate from a Montreal riding, to refer the resolution to a party committee for study of its constitutionality.

SAME AS PQ

The resolution gives the Liberals a policy similar to that of the Parti Quebecois, which introduced a private member's bill in the Quebec national assembly last week aimed at enacting the same policy.

The Liberal resolution proposes that "henceforth immigrants coming from non-Anglophone countries to Quebec be obliged to take their education in French up to the end of secondary school."

It adds four conditions:

—That the government make French the working language and inform prospective immigrants that French is the priority language in Quebec and that they must achieve a perfect working knowledge of the language.

—That children of new immigrants be educated in French up to the end of secondary school "provided that English be taught in all public schools from the second year."

All work no play? — Wrong!

By CROSBIE COTTON

Record Reporter

LENNOXVILLE — College education is all work and no play, right?

Not if your name is Doug MacAuley. Mr. MacAuley was hired at the beginning of the school year to set up a physical education program at Champlain Regional College in Lennoxville.

"I believe that it is just as important to have a sound body as a sound mind," explained the physical education expert who left the staff of Alexander Galt Regional High School to join the two-year-old CEGEP.

"Students are not allowed to graduate if they have not taken any physical education courses," Mr. MacAuley continued. "What we are trying to do is give them the basis training so that when they graduate they will carry on some form of enjoyable physical exercise."

All full time students at the CEGEP must take at least one physical education course per semester. The course covers 15 hours of lessons and practice.

"We are not trying to make experts out of the students," Mr. MacAuley added. "What we really are attempting to do is get them to like a sport — get them to enjoy physical effort."

Nearly every sport that can be named is available for the students under the direction to Doug MacAuley and his staff. During the fall term they offered archery, horseback riding, judo, karate, tennis, squash and many others.

Many courses will be repeated throughout the winter while others will be added to the list. Additions will include hockey, cross-country skiing, figure skating and badminton. "We try to offer as much as possible," MacAuley pointed out.

Students who want to learn a sport which is not scheduled have only to collect the names of 15 students who are willing to take a course and present it to the physical education director. "If 15 students want the course I will do everything I can to see them get it," MacAuley said, "as long as it is within my budget."

The physical education director also feels that it is just as important for the students to get involved in different sports as well as to participate in them. Because of that belief he has started giving credits for community involvement. Students who act as minor league coaches or referees will be awarded a physical education credit.

Not all students are in favor of a compulsory physical education program however. Now that they are college students many of the youngsters believe that organized and forced physical exercise is not necessary. "Sure we have some that don't want to take part but all in all most of the students are in favor of our program," Mr. MacAuley said.

"Those who don't want to probably have never liked sports," he added. "We are trying to get them to like them."

Mr. MacAuley was the head of the physical education department at AGRHS from its inception before coming to Champlain this year. Why did he leave the Lennoxville based regional school? "I like to change," he said.

"If we stay at a job for too long often we become bored with it."

"I don't want it to happen to me. I liked the staff at AGRHS and I liked the students. However it is always a challenge to set up something new like we have here."

Judging from the success of the program at Champlain Regional College it can be said that Mr. MacAuley has lived up to the task of setting up a physical education program. He has battled the challenge and ended up the winner.

Growing alarm

There is growing alarm within the Nixon administration over the economic programs of our West European allies.

What bothers the Nixon men deeply is a program now being worked out in the European Common Market which aims eventually at a bloc of 60 countries, each giving the others trade preferences and discriminating against the products of the United States and other non-member lands.

The first step aims at bringing in a group of Mediterranean lands. Quiet behind-the-scenes talks are going ahead on this first-step program now despite some concerned effort on the part of special U.S. trade representatives to stem the tide.

This system of protection and discrimination would, of course, put the United States at a severe trade disadvantage. Worse yet, the Nixon economic-trade specialists here fear, it would set off a race worldwide to set up competing protectionist trade blocs. This development would knock the props out of the freer trade policies which American presidents, Republican and Democrat alike, have pushed for the past two decades.

However inconsistent our other policies from time to time, both political parties have united on the necessity for cutting trade barriers as a stimulus to prosperity.

The growth of these protectionist blocs might make it very difficult indeed for the United States to recover from its unfavorable balance of trade unless Washington, too, resorted to stiff import controls and set up an international preference bloc of its own.

The Europeans tell Mr. Nixon's protesting representatives that the rising tide of U.S. technology is forcing them into this protectionism.

The U.S. technology base is too strong, and growing too rapidly, they claim, for Europeans to compete.

First there's the vast U.S. market itself, which sparks new technology and offers the opportunity for profitable exploitation of new developments. Then there's the worldwide spread of U.S. companies which enables this country to learn quickly and to rapidly take advantage of technological improvements wherever they're developed.

The financial strength of these international U.S. concerns provides them with the necessary capital to put these advanced technological discoveries into use with amazing speed, the European Common Market men say. As a result, they claim, Europe must in self defense expand its own base. Thus the plan for a 60-country alliance.

But the Europeans are increasingly worried about American counter moves. They've urged Washington to end the war in Vietnam and to build relations with the Communist lands and thus ease the cold war.

Now that President Nixon is following this advice, they're worried that their plans for discriminating against the United States may drive this country into economic alliances with Russia and China, and cause Washington to direct U.S. investment and development aid emphasis to Southeast Asia and the Far East in the next decade, leaving West Europe (with its heavy need for advanced technology investment) somewhat out in the cold.

The dilemma of the Europeans is clear and sharp. They need U.S. advanced technology, yet they want to be free of this dependence. They want to discriminate against the United States economically, but not so sharply as the United States will react strongly enough to injure their economies.

These European fears give the U.S. negotiators some leverage. This problem has no solution so dramatic as the Moscow and Peking visits. But it will occupy Nixon for some years to come.

New cures for the blue-collar blues?

with William F. Buckley Jr.

There have been vague protests in the past against shoddy workmanship, absenteeism, and the weakening of the will to work, but now it is becoming a formal preoccupation of American business, which recently convened, under the sponsorship of Industry Week, four or five experts on the subject, stuck them in front of television cameras for four or five hours, and gave them an opportunity to speak, via closed channel, to 3,000 business leaders around the country. As usual, in affairs of this sort, no line emerged. But interesting things were said.

Mr. Robert Townsend was there with his catherine wheel. You will remember him as the man who put Avis on the map as No. 2, went on to write the bestseller, "Up The Organization", and nowadays does consulting work, and writes fire-eating book reviews for the New York Times at the expense of American business, which he thinks is corrupt and going to the dogs. The reason people don't work better, he says, is because the organization of American business is crazy. Here are some of his prescriptions:

The boss. He should be constantly with the workers. So important is this that the paraphernalia of The Boss should be entirely removed. He shouldn't have a mahogany office, shouldn't have a limousine, shouldn't have a space reserved outside the office for his car, shouldn't be addressed by anything but his first name, and shouldn't receive a salary more than five times that of the least of the employees. For all intents and purposes, that means his salary should not be in excess of $25,000.

What happens then? Well sir, what happens then is that morale is very high, people have a sense of participation in the business. Anyone is allowed to apply for any job. Absenteeism all but disappears, absit invidia, and the problem is pretty well solved.

Mr. W.P. Gullander of the National Association of Manufacturers objected on the grounds that the formula ignores the market function in management. If the boss is a truly successful boss, he is worth more than 25 grand, and someone is going to bid him away. It's okay, if there is someone around to replace him, but people who are successful bosses are not that easy to find. I wonder who is nowadays the boss at Avis.

Professor William Gomberg of the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania stressed the workers' view, and reiterated the general hostility, now well acknowledged, to the idea of the assembly line, which was pretty much killed off by Charlie Chaplin in his famous movie.

There are very new approaches now to manufacturing. They stress joint endeavor, and there are exciting case histories around of business whose productivity has increased by this formula.

Professor Gomberg went on to say a very interesting thing, to wit that labor unions are ontologically monopolistic, that if you take away from them their monopoly privileges, really they have nothing left to offer. He challenged one participant to come up with the name of a single successful labor union which was not a monopoly, and said contestant failed. Very interesting.

Labor unions, said Mr. Gomberg, are regulated only when they discover that, at a certain point in the graph, they press their demands at the expense of their own members. But they should be expected to press their demands exactly that far.

Professor Frederick Herzberg stressed the shifting notion of obligation. Once it was everywhere assumed that to justify oneself before God, before one's family, and before one's countrymen, one was obliged to work hard and long.

That is substantially eroded. There hasn't been, however, a correlative erosion in the notion of society's responsibility to the individual, so that the old tensions, between the demands of the individual and the intracatibilities of nature, don't quite come forward with the wealth-making razzmatazz of yore.

We have got to discover ways to stimulate the old ethos, as Bertie Wooster would say: and nobody has quite done it yet, and probably nobody is going to do it, as lassitude beckons.

One feels sorry for societies that cop-out, but particularly for individuals within those societies who have energy and ideas to burn.

What will they do? They won't be permitted to burn the midnight oil, because that would cause pollution.

Reader forum

Dreads pollution

Dear Sir:

It is with a great deal of concern and dread that the Brigham people are becoming aware that the "authorities" are planning to pollute their beloved village and countryside by purchasing several farms on the outskirts of Brigham for a dump.

It does not take much imagination, if any, to realize what this will mean to the residents of Brigham village and surrounding area. There will always be a foul odour in the air for people to breathe instead of the sweet, clean, pure, unpolluted air it is now their great privilege to breathe in this polluted world we live.

In a short time homes will become rat-infested, to say nothing of countless other unwanted animals which thrive on dumps, pestering them. Before long, our pretty, peaceful, happy little village will become a very unhappy, discontented place, where nobody will want to live.

At one end of the village we have the beautiful Yamaska River flowing peacefully along, which adds much to the beauty of the scene — are we going to allow a dirty, filthy, vermin-infested, foul smelling, stinking dump to mar the beauty at the other end, as well as pollute the clean, sweet, pure air? Let's hope not!

In this day and age, all we hear is pollution! pollution! Prevent pollution! Is this preventing pollution by introducing it into one of the few places where it does not already exist? There are many places much more favourably situated for "dumps" than the one in question.

As I understand it, all the surrounding cities and towns within a radius of forty miles are planning on dumping their garbage onto Brigham territory.

Why pick on Brigham? What is wrong with some of the present dumps? They are just as central, perhaps more so. Why can they not be enlarged? They are quite out of sight of the public and not so many would have to breathe polluted air day after day.

They have been there for years, why go to all the expense of changing now just to pollute a quiet, sweet-smelling, little residential village?

First W.I. broadcast

Dear Sir:

To set history straight may I be given the opportunity to correct an article in The Record of Nov. 8th under the heading W.I. BROADCASTS?

It states Mrs. Clayton Conley gave the first W.I. broadcast on Feb. 9th, 1947, as she was QWI president at that time. I, as president of Sherbrooke County W.I., gave that first broadcast and the original script is in my possession. Furthermore, the late Mrs. Smallman was the president as Mrs. Conley did not get elected until the following June.

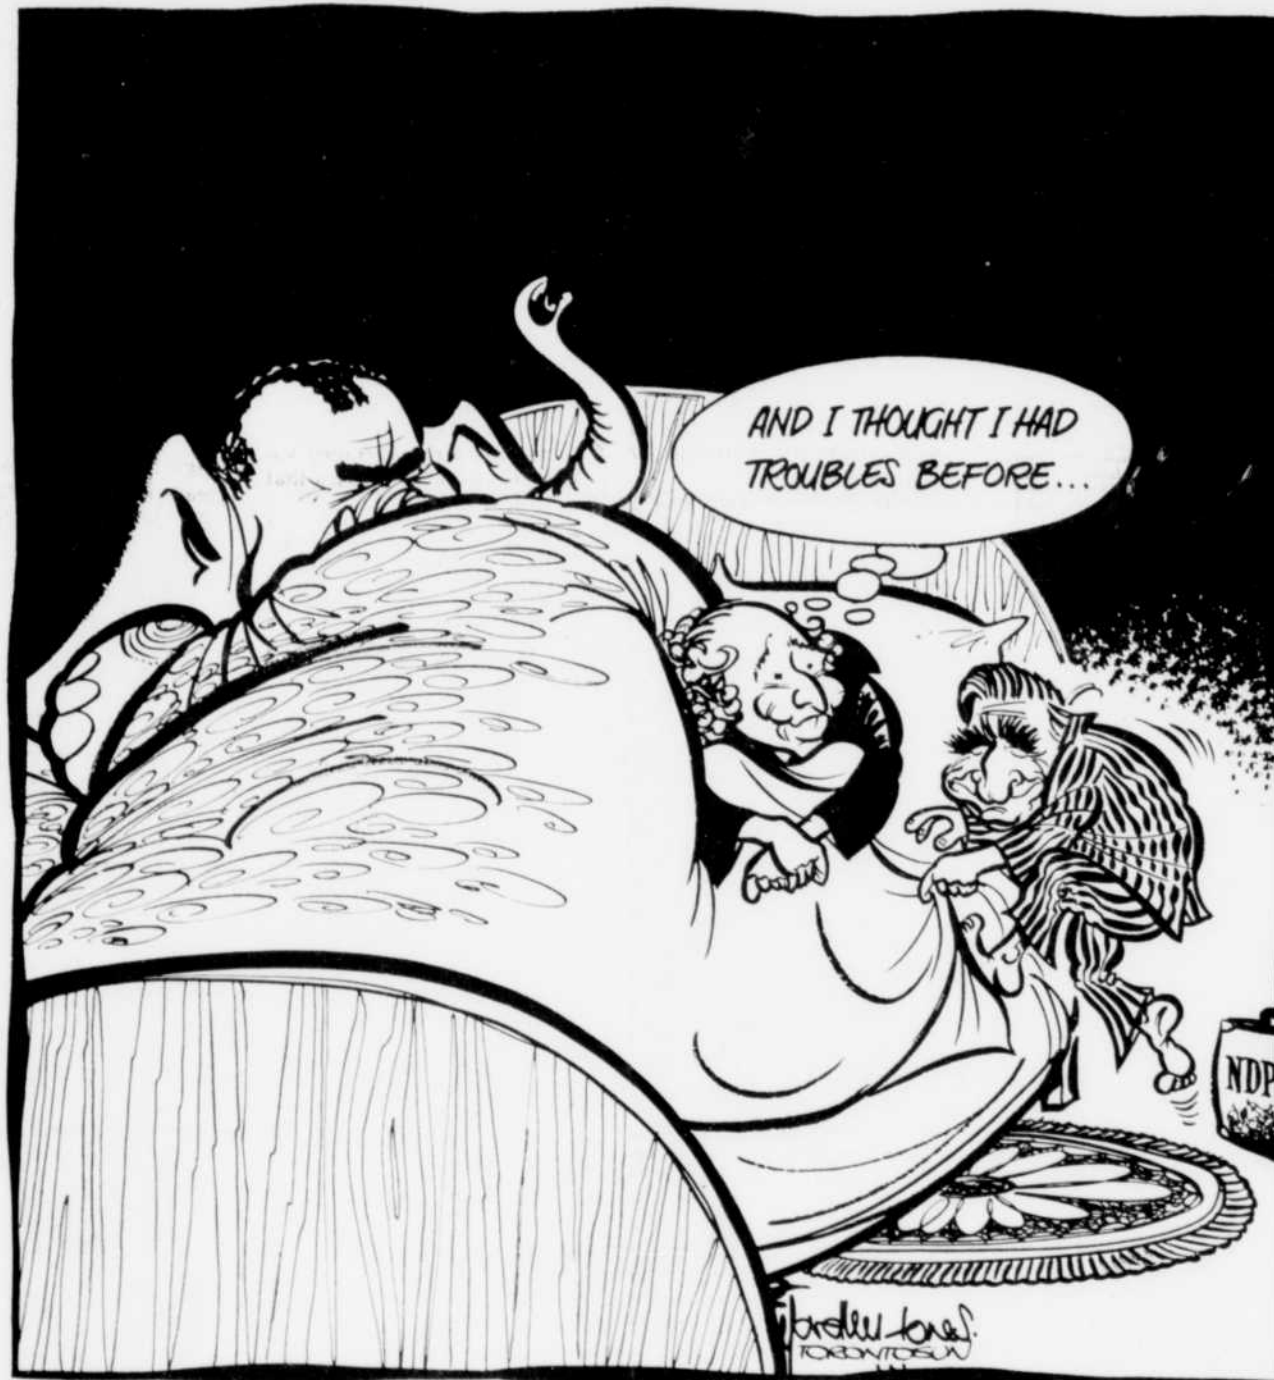

I attended the semi-annual QWI board meeting and on my return worked through Mr. W.G. MacDougall, local agricultural representative, to get time on the air.

On getting assurance of a time slot I called a meeting of the presidents of Stanstead, Richmond and Compton Counties namely Mrs. George Parsons, Bury, Mrs. Howard Cass, Beebe, and Mrs. Ira Patrick, Denison's Mills and a program was drawn up.

Little did we think it would continue until now. May it continue to enlighten its listeners for many more years.

Thank you, Mr. Editor.

Mrs. W.T. Pearson

Air industry evolving

By BERNIE GOEDHART

EDMONTON (CP) — There will be "a slow melding" of charter and scheduled carrier services as the air transportation industry evolves, Maxwell Ward, president of Wardair Canada Ltd., predicts.

Meanwhile, it must be recognized that the two perform different functions and need not oppose each other, Mr. Ward said in an interview.

He sees the charter carrier as "basic to serving the leisure travel market. . . . For example, I would suggest that next summer the North Atlantic market would be served by charter services predominantly."

"The reason is that in the summer of 1973, non-affinity charters will be in force, which would eliminate the need for people to belong to organizations (in order to travel on charter flights)."

Mr. Ward, 50, who has long opposed the six-month club membership rule, said the United States already put new rules into effect, Britain has announced hers, and the Canadian government is "working on it."

He said the new rules will be in effect by January. "As far as the public is concerned, it will enable any member of the public to book a flight three months ahead, and put a deposit on a seat to be assured of that seat."

LESS CHEATING

Mr. Ward said the new rules will help eliminate such situations as "intermediaries" cheating people or absconding with funds.

Under the new rules "the public will be able to buy transportation from travel agents, good airlines, and the airlines will be closer to the actual transactions."

The non-affinity ruling "had to come," he said. "And we haven't seen the end yet."

Whereas charter flights serve the leisure market, scheduled services are "required for the commerce of the country," Mr. Ward said. "The average individual (planning a holiday) knows well ahead of time when he's going and for what length of time. But the businessman needs his seat immediately."

said he doesn't know when the government will give its answer.

Mr. Ward in 1968 was quoted as saying it was time for the government to get out of the aviation business; that government assistance was needed to start airlines in Canada, but today is hampering free enterprise.

Asked if he recalled the statement, Mr. Ward nodded and said: "Except that the government isn't getting out of it."

He said it does bother him "a bit" to see a government airline buying shares of Wardair, but added: "My philosophies have changed a lot. International travel has to be a national service. I can see that this is the only way it's going to go."

"I feel strongly that Canadian industry must pull together if it's going to compete with other countries on the international market."

"We'd go on existing without the Air Canada agreement, there's no doubt about that. But the agreement adds a stability to major carriers in the Canadian international charter industry."

BERRY'S WORLD

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Info Is Offered On Nitroglycerin

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am writing to ask for some clarification about nitroglycerin pills. You said in one of your columns that they are quite all right for the treatment of recurring angina but harmful for persons who had chest pains. What is the difference between angina which my doctor told me I have, and chest pains. How can one tell when he is having an attack of angina without the pain? I was told by my doctor that it would not harm me to take nitroglycerin in anticipation of pain unless I overdo it.

You also said that the reason nitroglycerin didn't harm some people is because they weren't fresh by the time they are taken. How long will they keep and what is the best container to keep them in? I carry mine in a plastic box in my pocket, which I refill from time to time from pills contained in a small glass bottle of 100 pills as they come from the drug store. I have this refilled every three or four months.

Dear Reader — Because the use of nitroglycerin tablets is widespread, it is important that people really understand their use, benefits and dangers. Angina pectoris is the constricting or squeezing discomfort or pain in the chest associated with heart disease. Angina lasts less than 10 minutes. Longer episodes may be a heart attack.

Individuals who have "established angina" with regular recurring chest discomfort of short duration and who receive relief from this discomfort by nitroglycerin are taking the right medicine. The individual who has not had any angina or chest pain for a period of several months and has not been taking nitroglycerin tablets, because he didn't need them, and then suddenly develops chest pains should call his doctor first.

The onset of chest discomfort that resembles angina in a person who hasn't had angina for a month or years, often means a heart attack and the treatment is different. These individuals are well advised not to take anything except under their doctor's recommendation, and he will usually want to see them right away. Nitroglycerin tablets taken at the onset of a heart attack (I'm not talking about angina) can sometimes lower the blood pressure and cause shock, thereby complicating the heart attack and may be very dangerous. You can take nitroglycerin tablets to prevent angina as your doctor has recommended.

Nitroglycerin tablets will not stay fresh unless they are kept in a special container. The small glass bottles with the 100 pills that you get from the drug store is carefully sealed to keep the pills fresh. In this state they will stay fresh for months or years. Once the seal is broken and the tablets are exposed to the air and normal environment, they will gradually deteriorate. The rate of deterioration varies but you should not keep pills longer than six months after the seal on the initial bottle is broken or in a plastic box or other ordinary container. Even this may be stretching it a little for some preparations. Most of them, if kept in their original bottle even though the seal is broken, should be good for a period of three to six months, however.

Dear O.L.M.: Of course.

Dear Ann Landers: I hate to be scientific about a matter so esthetic—I refer to "Green Thumb Thelma" who insists that speaking tenderly to her plants made them flourish. Your response hinted that you didn't believe it. Well, you're both wrong. Whether one speaks nicely or not is irrelevant, but SPEAKING does help.

Humans breathe out carbon dioxide, a chemical which plants breathe in. So, by speaking to the plants we supply them with one of their basic needs. In other words, the plant would do just as well whether you recite a poem by Yeats or one of Hitler's speeches.

I'm not discouraging speaking nicely to plants. I'm just letting plant lovers know that it doesn't matter WHAT you say—so long as you say something. — Petunia Clark

Dear Ann Landers: We have a three-year-old son who is healthy and active but I am teaching him not to run wild in my living room and to keep his hands off other people's nice things. The problem is the children of my friends and relatives. What can I do about THEM?

I've stopped inviting certain folks for Sunday suppers because I don't know what else to do. Is a hostess supposed to sit in silence with a pained look on her face and pray nothing gets smashed? Or should she discipline the child even though the mother is right there? What's the answer? I'm — Lost In Cincinnati

Dear Cincinnati: Some mothers become suddenly hard-of-hearing when they take their children to the homes of friends and relatives. If you have such mothers in your home and their kids are tearing up the place, I see no reason to "sit in silence with a pained look on your face." Tell the little darlings that you don't allow rough play in your house and if they aren't interested in the games, coloring books and crayons you've supplied for little visitors, you will ask their mothers to take them home. Then do it.

Allow people to be different

How to survive the Canadian winter

STORM KIT USEFUL

If you travel in areas of heavy snow and sparse population or if you've a chance of getting stuck on the road, it might pay to carry a storm kit in the car.

The department recommends it include two or more blankets, matches, candles, an extra parka, socks. It should contain some high-calorie, non-perishable food, a first-aid kit, shovel, flashlight, booster cables, tow chain, fire extinguisher and catalytic heater.

If you are stuck in a storm, don't try to walk through it to find shelter. Don't overexert yourself or subject yourself to overexposure trying to push or shovel your car out if the situation is hopeless.

Your best shelter is usually the car. Run the motor and heater sparingly, leaving a downwind window open for ventilation. Exercise occasionally, and if you have passengers, don't let everyone sleep at the same time.

Leave the dome light on at night and use a flashing warning light if you have one available.

The unrecognized poet

TORONTO (CP) — Miriam Waddington is writing a novel which "is going to be the kind of novel nobody is going to read."

She is in the midst of writing four short stories which "may be utter failures—but I'm still going to write them."

And Mrs. Waddington, frenetic, energetic, harried and varied Toronto poet, has just produced her seventh collection of poetry, containing nothing close to "utter failures."

Driving Home, published by Oxford University Press ($2.95), is one-third new poetry, two-thirds selected works from her other collections.

The new and old may contrast styles—"I've tried to simplify my style"—but the quality is consistent.

Advice to the Young, published this year in Saturday Night magazine, which appears in the New Poems section, and Looking for Strawberries in June, written in 1968 and included in Say Yes, Mrs. Waddington's 1969 collection, are notable.

SHOW TALENT

Other writers say they show the talent of a poet whose style is crisp and refreshing, detailed, yet not overly so, and sufficiently vague to allow one to read into a work whatever one wishes.

The influence of both her native Manitoba and her ancestors' Europe is evident.

and perhaps explains the clarity of her writing.

The poet is associate professor of English at York University where she has taught "everything from Chaucer on." This year she is teaching a graduate course in Canadian literature of the 1930s, contemporary Canadian poetry and literary analysis.

"I really can't do much writing in the year," she said in an interview in her art-filled Toronto home. "I do some poetry. There's no continuity. It's a struggle."

"My impulse is to withdraw completely. But that's not intelligent."

NEED MORE TIME

She wishes universities would offer more positions for writers in residence to allow them time to write, give them enough money to live on and provide them with social contacts while doing so.

Until they do, she will continue teaching "in buildings full of anonymous offices, hundreds of them, lots of floors, lots of students."

"It's not very easy for an artist," she said. "It's not conducive to work. There's no allowance for anyone who is creative."

One thing she won't teach is creative writing—"I prefer to teach theory. I don't get my work mixed up in my teaching."

Mrs. Waddington, mother of two sons 20 and 25, has never won a Governor-General's Award and admitted feeling unrecognized.

"But I've made my peace with it."

"I think all writers think they're a great talent or they would never put pen to paper. As Yeats said, you can never have enough love or fame."

"One would like to be recognized, but that's not the reason for writing."

"NOT WORLDLY"

Mrs. Waddington gave the impression that she hasn't enough time to herself.

"I'm really not worldly, and I am retreating. I just don't want to bother. I'm getting more poetic in my nature."

"I always lived a conventional life, but I'm getting less patient with conventional things these days. I haven't all that much time left and I don't want to spend it on conventional things."

She is also past the stage of getting together with other poets to discuss poetry, putting up with people who are not "helpful to each other," and tolerating "poor work."

The poet also dislikes critics' trying to be funny at the expense of a writer.

"Critics can't be better critics than they are people," she said.

New Canadian poets?

"They're wearing headbands in their poetry, so to speak," she said. "They're beating drums that aren't real drums. They should have some suitable restraint."

Death was not by misadventure

livers, hearts and limbs preserved in jars with the yellowed labels of crimes committed long ago, a human head embalmed in a murky pool of formaldehyde, a century of violence catalogued on wooden shelves—this is Dr. Milton Helsen's museum.

After 18 years as the city's chief medical examiner, he is still intrigued by death's special signatures. Helsen lingers over the specimens he has collected, pausing to study the curiosities of organs inside bottles.

Helsen is widely regarded as the foremost medical sleuth in the United States. He frequently is asked to testify in trials across the country and sometimes is cast as the most crucial witness.

His key testimony five years ago helped convict Dr. Carl Coppolino in a Florida court of the murder of his wife by a poison previously thought undetectable in a body.

TRACK DOWN CAUSES

Helsen, 70, directs a staff of 15 doctors at his six-story building in the New York University Medical Center.

On a $2 million budget, he is responsible for investigating about a third of the deaths in New York City and determining the causes of about 31,000 sudden, suspicious, obviously violent or unusual deaths each year.

He and his staff perform 8,000 autopsies a year, nearly one every hour on the average. Their job—forensic pathology—is part detective work and part medical. They are not so much interested in who did it, but what did it.

"The responsibility here is to determine the cause of death and to find the answer to questions that may arise later on," said Helsen. "We don't work against a suspect. We try to get as much information as we can."

The medical examiner's investigation begins at the death scene, where he will take note of the body position, look for unusual stains or discharge and studies the environment.

DOES NUMEROUS TESTS

Then he checks for outward marks of violence, for a possibly hidden bullet wound. Finally, he examines the organs and slices sections from parts of the body for microscopic analysis. He uses blood and chemical tests of various tissues.

Characterizing an autopsy as "an interpretive job," Helsen said: "It isn't just taking stock. You can overlook things very easily if you're not careful."

A cardiac patient does not die necessarily from a heart attack, Helsen continued. The patient might have choked to death on a chunk of steak.

"Everyone thinks that all a medical examiner has to do is an autopsy; we discover homicides in our work," Helsen said.

"There are no perfect crimes. There are only untrained and blundering investigators, slipshod medical examiners."

One of his favorite examples of a discovered crime occurred some years ago around dinner time. Helsen had been summoned to a fleabag hotel, where a woman seemingly died of an overdose of pills from a vial on the bedstand.

NOTED TWO CLUES

She was lying face up and apparently died in her sleep. But the chief medical examiner noticed two incriminating details: there were a few tiny hemorrhages in the whites of her eyes plus a lipstick mark on the pillow.

Had she been lying face down, the hemorrhages could have been normal. And had Helsen not seen her until the next morning, the body's degenerative changes would have made them meaningless.

Helsen determined that she was smothered, and her estranged husband later confessed to the crime.

In the Coppolino trial, defence lawyer F. Lee Bailey could not sway Helsen from his conclusion that the defendant killed his 32-year-old wife in 1965 by injecting her with succinylcholine, a deadly drug that quickly splits into its harmless components.

As a result, Coppolino is behind bars.

Food must be a pleasure not a necessity

TORONTO (CP) — Dinner-table dullness has been epidemic in Canada for too long, says Sandra Gottlieb. She says Canadians really believe they should eat what's in front of them without comment or complaint.

"Canadians traditionally treat food like sex. They don't talk about it."

"There's no reason why we have to live off frozen fish fillets and California fruit."

The great weakness of Canada is that we'll settle for mediocrity."

Mrs. Gottlieb is author of The Gourmet's Canada, a gastronomic tour of the country. In it she describes with enthusiasm the foods of every region and various backgrounds. She has included a scattering of receipts and lists of shops and low-priced restaurants and wines she approves.

A native of Winnipeg, she lives in Ottawa. She said in an interview she and her husband both come from families of fussy eaters.

Canadians were in danger of losing their food heritage out of apathy and bad merchandising.

LOSING TASTE BUDS

"We're losing our taste buds in Canada, and we don't have to. We've got fantastic food resources. We have everything there from caviar on downwards."

"We have to push ourselves. We have to grow it and distribute it better. We depend too much on California."

"For instance, supermarkets have contracts with California distributors, and a farmer who lives right next door to a supermarket can't sell his stuff."

"The problem with berries, throughout Canada, is the picking. People don't want to pick them any more. People who own apple and berry farms aren't millionaires. They can't pay $2.50 an hour."

The Island Brook Fish and Game Club held a very successful Oyster supper in the Town Hall. Mr. Gordon French cooked the oysters while all the community ladies helped wait on table. Mr. Clem Lowry's orchestra provided music while different ones sang. Mr. Fred Martin won the rifle which was raffled off.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Milliner of Ontario and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Kerr of Oshawa, Ont., were all visitors to Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Kerr. Mr. Franklin Kerr has returned home from the Sherbrooke Hospital and is improving very well after his unfortunate accident.

Mr. Archie Stronach of Sherbrooke spent a few weeks visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Lennis Ewing and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stanley.

Because of these two factors, she said, Canadian blueberries and raspberries are rarely seen except in roadside stands and farmers' markets or on pick-your-own farms. Canadians ate a curtailed variety of imported berries that have less taste.

She maintained misread market demands cut down the variety and flavor of native apples available in Canada.

URGES RESTOCKING

"We grow apples for appearance and color, not taste."

"In Banff, people want to eat the wonderful local trout. They don't know it's frozen, from Japan, because of our game laws."

"We don't do enough restocking. If it's properly controlled, restaurants can serve game. There isn't going to be a mass demand."

She said most Winnipeg gold-diggers come from Minnesota.

"But they don't restock fish. It's not too late. Look at the salmon on the West Coast. It had almost disappeared."

"That's what I mean. If you're totally uninterested in what you eat, you won't do anything. If you're interested in what you eat, you'll want to be able to eat it 20 years from now."

"It's a question of horse sense and of good business."

Mrs. Gottlieb said Canadians don't have to eat dreary food anywhere in the country.

"There's nowhere I've been in Canada where you can't get something good to eat if you look out for it. There may not be a good restaurant, but there'll be good shops."

"I just ask people. I'll ask a taxi driver, an MP. They'll tell you, 'Mary Lou's a great cook, and this is where she shops.'"

"It's participatory gastronomy."

"Anything is good as long as it's fresh and well cooked. It's the pre-cooked, pre-digested foods we have to avoid."

Island Brook

Texstyles

Madeleine Levason

Surprises are in store for Canadian Christmas shoppers this year. A whole new world of textile information will be revealed when the Textile Labelling Act comes into effect on December 1. Our retail stores must then assume the responsibility for the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth of fibre content labelling on all textiles they sell.

We freely predict that a lot of anonymous textile merchandise, stripped of vague "fashion" names will be revealed for what it is, or will disappear from stores. A well-known retailer once told me that "the public is always confused," and I have long argued that many retail sales promotion tactics were designed to keep them confused.

The information required by the new labelling law is by no means a departure from labelling practices carried on by responsible Canadian manufacturers and retailers for years. Fibre companies, fabric mills, and manufacturers of textiles have long provided content information in the interests of sound business practices.

The real change now lies in the fact that the information must be provided in specific standardized form and "must be easily readable, readily visible and accessible to the prospective customer at point of sale."

Three basic pieces of information must be included: The generic name, in English and French, of each textile fibre present in the amount of 5 per cent or more; the percentage content of each fibre present and the name and postal address of the manufacturer, individual or firm responsible for labelling the article.

Penalties for not complying with the regulations include up to a year in jail, or a fine up to $10,000, or both.

Practically all textile articles for home and apparel must be permanently labelled but there are two categories of permanency. Labels able to withstand up to 10 launderings are generally required, but need not be securely attached to such home textile items as carpets, draperies and upholstery fabrics.

Garment trimmings, which comprise less than 15 per cent of the outer surface of an item, do not need to be identified but, linings, particularly those added for warmth or insulation, must be declared.

There is a special provision for manufacturers who do not want to put their name and address on "seconds" or merchandise for promotions. They can be assigned a code number by the Dept. of Consumer and Corporate Affairs. The Department would reveal the identity to a consumer when requested.

Miss Levason will be glad to answer any questions pertaining to textiles. Write her at P.O. Box 36, Westmount, Montreal 215, Que.

First Canadian Western

SOUTHAMPTON, England (CP) — After 14 years in the British film and television industry, Canadian director Alan Gibson is looking to Canada for his next project.

He believes the film will be the first authentic Canadian western, taking a tilt at some of the fondly-held myths about the old frontier days.

The Great Western Showdown looks nostalgically at the Canadian pioneer era and "reveals some fascinating facts about life on the old frontier," the 34-year-old Gibson says.

"Among the most surprising is the fact that the Indians were often better educated and spoke better English than the settlers who came from European stock."

Until that project gets under way next spring, Gibson is busy with a new British television serial, The Capone Investment.

Set in the peaceful English countryside near the film studios in Hampshire, the story centres on the ghost of mobster Al Capone looking for a legendary fortune he is said to have amassed from the Canadian subsidiary of his illicit liquor empire.

HUNT FOR MILLIONS

The hunt is for a 4 million pounds nest-egg, reputedly invested by one of Capone's henchmen in Britain to conceal it from the prying eyes of U.S. treasury agents when he sold off the Canadian interest in the illegal business.

All this is in the Gibson vein. He made his debut as a film director with thrillers and horror films, the latest of which recently opened in London.

Dracula, A.D. 1972 is a gory modernization of the classic horror theme. He said he enjoys sequences which are "black in mood and texture."

Gibson's return to Canada later will be his first since he left in 1957 after an eight-month stint at the University of Western Ontario.

He was born in London, Ont., but rarely stopped anywhere long enough to call it home.

"My father was a brigadier in the army, which meant that we were constantly on the move, mainly around Nova Scotia," recalled Gibson, a burly six-footer.

STUDIED ACTING

When he came to Britain,

he studied acting at the Old Vic in Bristol.

"At that time I wanted to be an actor, but during the two years I spent at the Old Vic, I developed a greater interest in directing and the production side of the business," he said.

Gibson took a job as a floor manager, working as a director's assistant with a London-based commercial TV network.

Eighteen months later "I took one of the most important decisions in my career," applying for a job as a trainee drama director for the BBC's newly-established second channel.

About 100 of us were accepted out of something like 10,000 applicants," he said.

One of his first major assignments was a 75-minute production of a play Not for Every Eye, by the French-Canadian writer Gerard Besette.

He spent three years with the BBC, working on about 40 productions, including Samuel Beckett's only play written for the medium, Hey, Joe.

"I worked very closely with the master on the production, a truly marvellous experience," Gibson said.

Recently, he has been working as a free-lance director for both the BBC and Britain's commercial network.

CHAFING DISH SPECIALTIES CALL FOR FLORIDA CITRUS

Ask any hostess. The greatest way to entertain is at a buffet supper. With a cheery chafing dish, she can prepare delectable food "at table"—saving hours in the kitchen.

Florida oranges and grapefruit are marvelous in chafing dish specialties, from appetizers through desserts—and are available fresh throughout most of the year. Here are two new versions of popular Shrimp Curry and Crepes Suzette. The aromatic citrus flavor in the curry and the crepes makes for memorable feasting every time these dishes are served.

Organize for your supper by having everything handy. Best fuel for a party is Sterno canned heat. It's safe, odorless, smokeless. For higher heat or longer cooking, Sterno chafing dish liquid fills the bill beautifully. It's non-toxic, too.

FLORIDA SHRIMP CURRY

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 6 tablespoons flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1 tablespoon curry powder
- 1 chicken bouillon cube
- 2 1/2 cups milk
- 1/2 cup frozen Florida grapefruit juice concentrate
- 2 pounds cleaned, cooked shrimp
- 2 cups Florida grapefruit sections*, divided
- 1/2 cup chopped parsley
- 4 cups hot cooked rice

Photograph No. MS-H

ELEGANT ORANGE-SAUCE CREPES ARE A DESSERT FAVORITE... with Florida orange segments, will call for encores from guests when you prepare them "at table" in a chafing dish.

Melt butter in chafing dish; add onion and cook until tender, but not brown. Blend in flour, salt and curry powder; add bouillon cube. Gradually stir in milk and grapefruit juice. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add shrimp and 1 cup of the grapefruit sections. Heat to serving temperature over low heat. Turn into serving dish. Combine parsley and rice; serve with curry. Serve with remaining cup grapefruit sections, chopped peanuts and flaked coconut, as curry condiments.

Yield: 6 servings.

To section Florida grapefruit, cut slice from top, then cut off peel in strips from top to bottom, cutting deep enough to remove white membrane, then cut slice from bottom. Or cut off peel round and round spiral fashion. Go over fruit again, removing any remaining white membrane. Cut along side of each dividing membrane from outside to middle of core. Remove section by section, over bowl to retain juice from fruit.

ORANGE CREPES

Crepes:

- 3 eggs
- 2 egg yolks
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup Florida orange juice
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind

Beat eggs and egg yolks. Add remaining ingredients and beat until smooth. Let stand at room temperature for at least 1 hour. Lightly brush hot 7 or 8-inch skillet with salad oil. Add 2 tablespoons batter to skillet; turn and flip skillet so mixture covers bottom evenly. Batter will set immediately into thin lacy pancake. When it browns, in about 15 to 20 seconds, loosen with spatula and flip over. Brown other side, in just a few seconds, and turn crepe out onto foil or waxed paper. Repeat with remaining batter.

Orange Sauce:

- 1/2 cup soft butter
- 1/2 cup confectioners' sugar
- 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
- 3 tablespoons orange liqueur (Grand Marnier or Cointreau)
- 1/2 cup Florida orange juice
- 1 cup Florida orange sections*

Cream soft butter with confectioners' sugar and orange rind. Gradually blend in orange liqueur. Spread about 1/2 teaspoon of mixture over side of crepe that was browned second (this is the less attractive side). Roll up crepe with orange mixture inside. Place remaining mixture with orange juice in large skillet or chafing dish. Heat until bubbly. Add rolled crepes and heat, spooning sauce over. Add orange sections and heat just 2 or 3 minutes longer.

Yield: 6 servings of 3 crepes each.

Mrs. Killiner told the ladies about her own Institute branch in Ireland and showed them her Institute pin and several other items including an Institute Diary in which she asked them to write messages about our own Institute. COOKSHIRE — In spite of the inclement weather, there was a good attendance at the annual Remembrance Day service, which was held at the cenotaph in the town park on Saturday, Nov. 11 at 11:30 a.m.

The Veterans and the East Angus Band gathered in the parking lot behind the Bank of Montreal, and paraded to the town park, under the direction of Major M. Mowle.

O Canada was sung, a prayer given by the Rev. A. Fairbairn (in English and French), and the Mayor, Mr. Lucien Brault, gave an address in French and English. He maintained that it was a good idea to have a Remembrance Day service in show respect to those who gave their lives that others might have freedom.

The Master of ceremonies, Mr. R.G. Hodge, read the names of those who had died in action, and also of those who had died later.

Numerous wreaths were placed at the foot of the cenotaph by the different societies, business establishments and individuals. Mr. Hodge gave the Legion Ritual, and Mr. Harmel, the bugler, played the Last Post, two minutes of silence were observed, followed by Reveille.

God Save the Queen was sung, and the marchers and their friends went to the Legion Hut, where refreshments were served.

Quite a few of the veterans took part in the East Angus Remembrance Day service in the afternoon.

Swims Irish Sea but can't cross legs

HEMEL HEMPSTEAD, England (CP) — He is able to swim the Irish Sea but he is unable to cross his legs. He defies sharks and jellyfish but his pulse won't operate normally.

Add to the well-known perils of long-distance swimming Kevin Murphy's special problems.

At 23, he is possibly one of the world's bravest, most unheralded and zaniest athletes with boundless energy and an immense reserve of personal strength.

But try as he may, this chunky, powerful swimmer literally is unable to cross his legs.

And there's more: Murphy has developed two extra bones on the inside of his pelvis and has a pulse rate about one-third slower than the average.

"It's mysterious—makes me a bit of a freak," he says.

DUE TO SWIMMING

Murphy, a reporter on The Evening Echo, the local newspaper in this Hertfordshire town, doesn't spend much time thinking about these physical changes.

"It has something to do with my swimming, I think," he says.

Doctors say the most likely explanation for his condition is, in fact, the three hours or so of swimming which he does every day.

They say the huge thigh muscles he has developed are structured in such a way that they simply don't allow his legs to cross. The extra pelvic bones have probably been needed to support these muscles and constant exercise has led to a reduced pulse rate.

At any rate, there is no doubt why Murphy has become the squat, powerful figure he now is.

Apart from his exacting daily practice sessions, he is the first man to swim the 66 miles around the Isle of Wight non-stop. That "little adventure" involved an excruciating 35 hours in the water.

CROSSED CHANNEL

He's also managed to cross the English Channel both ways without a break and now is looking for a sponsor to help defray the costs of a three-way Channel swim.

Among his other preoccupations: He'd like to swim the stormy North Sea; cross the Irish Sea both ways—he's already made a one-way crossing—and take part in long-distance swims in Canada and the United States.

No one has ever managed to swim the Irish Sea before and nobody has even considered a three-way, crossing of the Channel.

"My mind concentrates on the end of the swim but otherwise, it's inactive," he said in an interview. "Always, there's the knowledge in the background that if I can just finish it this time, I won't ever have to do it again."

CAUGHT IN GALE

Murphy considers his major failures to be two unsuccessful attempts to make a return crossing of the Irish Sea. His first effort ended when he got caught in a gale and the second, in July, was abandoned after nine hours of relentless stinging by schools of jellyfish.

But for Murphy, the real challenges to a long-distance swimmer are to be found in North America. "That's where the sport is recognized and I'd like to get involved." His problem is money. Working for The Echo, a newspaper owned by Canadian-born Lord Thomson of Fleet, he earns a standard salary of about $6,000 a year.

KEEPS JOB

"To swim in North America, I'd have to give up my job and since I want to stay in journalism, that's a pretty difficult decision."

To keep in shape, Murphy plans to swim the 18 miles across South Africa's False Bay in January. He will be surrounded by a large steel cage and accompanied by armed divers. The bay is infested with man-eating sharks.

"I also have a fiancée whom I see sometimes. Not often, you'll understand."

MRS. LOTTIE HERRING
of Bury

The death of Mrs. Lottie Herring, formerly of Bury, occurred at the Wales Home on Oct. 25, 1972. She had just passed her 84th birthday.

Lottie Melmer Smith was born in Bury on Oct. 3, 1888, the eldest in the family of the late Malcolm Addison Smith and his wife Augusta Alberta Dorman Smith. On her mother's side, Mrs. Herring was a third generation descendant of the two pioneer families of Dorman and Parsons. When a young child her parents moved to Macanabee, a little settlement near Scottstown. Some time later they moved to Scottstown where she received her education. In the early 1900s, her parents bought a farm in Newport townships in the locality known as Knicky-Knicky where she lived until her marriage on December 19, 1905, to Stanley Herring of Bury.

During the first few years of their married life they lived in the Bury area until in 1909 they bought a farm in the Knicky-Knicky neighborhood where they lived until 1922. Three children were born to them, Lyle, who passed away in May of this year, Amelia who died in 1962 and Elwin who survives her.

In 1922, Mr. and Mrs. Herring sold their property in Knicky-Knicky and went to live in Mr. Herring's old home in the Herring neighborhood, where they lived until 1946, at which time their younger son Elwin, took over the home with his wife and family and his parents took up residence in Bury village.

Mr. Herring died in December 1953. Following her husband's death, Mrs. Herring continued to live in Bury until 1962, when, visualizing approaching age with its inevitable infirmities, after due consideration, she decided to dispose of her household goods and enter the Wales Home where she had been a resident for over 10 years.

While living here she had been a faithful adherent of St. Thomas' church at Bown, a dependable worker in the Ladies Guild of which she was president for several terms, until the church was destroyed by fire in 1943, and never rebuilt.

Life on a farm in those early days was not easy, with none of the labor saving equipment of the present day, she not only carried on her own household tasks but was ever available to help her neighbors with theirs. Her kind and sympathetic nature, her keen sense of humor attracted many friends, especially among the young people of whom one child once remarked "I like her because she is kind to animals and children." Many social evenings were spent at their home.

Her philosophic outlook on life enabled her to endure her trials and tribulations, of which she had many, without imposing her personal griefs on others. The four years from 1941 to 1945, while their son was held a prisoner of war at Hong-Kong was a time of dread and anxiety, hoping for the best, yet fearing the worst, but happily for all concerned their fears were not realized, and he was able to return home in 1945.

For many months, she cared for her bed ridden husband with unfailing patience until his passing. The tragic death of her only daughter in April 1962 was a crushing blow, and in May of the present year, she received the sad news of the sudden death of her eldest son Lyle, at which time she was too ill to attend his funeral or look upon his face again. Shortly afterward, she entered the Sherbrooke Hospital where she was a patient for over five months, having undergone surgery from which she did not make a good recovery. In late September, she returned to the Wales Home becoming gradually weaker until the end came on October 25.

Funeral services were held on Thursday, Oct. 27, at St. Paul's Church, following prayers at the funeral parlor with Rev. M. Jones officiating. With Mrs. Robert Mayhew at the organ, an augmented choir sang two favorite hymns, The Old Rugged Cross and Safe in the Arms of Jesus, with the Nunc Dimittis as the casket was borne from the church.

Acting as bearers were six old friends and neighbors, Clifford Anderson, Ronald Ward, Keith Smith, Gordon Dougherty, Douglas Harrison and Osborne Allison.

In the bright sunshine of a late October day, she was laid to rest in the family lot in the little Bown Cemetery, near the site of the church where she and her family had so often worshipped together.

Surviving are her son Elwin and daughter-in-law Jessie, her daughter-in-law Clara, Mrs. Lyle Herring of Bishopston, two granddaughters Norma, Mrs. Robert Harrison of Beloeil, Fern, Mrs. Willis McConnell of Mississauga, Ont., four grandsons, Kenneth Herring of Cowansville, Eric of Ontario, Ashton and Dennis of Lennoxville, and their families, a sister Mrs. Alden Wilson of East Angus and a brother Rupert of Manitoba, several great-grandchildren and numerous more distant relatives. She was predeceased by a brother Roland who passed away in September, 1921.

Loyola bombed, fall 58-6

EDMONTON (CP) — The small and inexperienced Loyola College Warriors fell before an aerial blitz that carried University of Alberta Golden Bears to a 58-6 win Saturday in the Western College Bowl.

Loyola held Alberta within reach until the third quarter and had several opportunities in the second quarter to take the lead. Coach Doug Daigneault, who said before the game he liked being rated an underdog because it took off some of the pressure, pondered the thumping in the Loyola dressing room—where it was quiet but not subdued after the game. He said he expected to win and "we could have if we had put something across in the second quarter."

That was when Golden Bears seemed intent on blowing their early lead. A series of errors and penalties left the Warriors in good field position throughout the quarter and eventually they came up with a first down on the Alberta one-yard line.

The Golden Bear defence, led by linebacker and defensive captain Andy McLeod—named the game's most valuable player—and tackle Al Sheman-chuk, thwarted Loyola on three consecutive thrusts.

HITS FAST
Minutes later Gerald Kunyk entered the game and threw two Alberta touchdown passes in his first three plays from scrimmage. "That ended it," conceded Daigneault as Loyola defensive coach Tony Pajackowski softly emphasized: "We didn't quit." Both coach Jim Donlevy of Alberta and Daigneault agreed.

JOHN STUART, Sr.

of Beebe

The death of Mr. John Stuart, Sr., beloved husband of the late Catherine (Dolly) Leith Johnston, of Beebe, Que., occurred at the Sherbrooke Hospital, on Thursday, Nov. 2, 1972, in his 79th year, following a lengthy illness.

The funeral was held from the Cass Funeral Home, Stanstead, to All Saints' Anglican Church, Beebe, for the service at 2:00 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 6.

The service was conducted by Canon Harold Church, assisted by Miss Viola Moraville on the organ.

Interment was in Woodside Cemetery, Beebe. Pallbearers were: Austin Young, Raoul Boissier, Stanley Millar, Cecil Millar, Alton Wing and George Hatch.

Mr. Stuart was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, on Nov. 1894. In 1913, he immigrated to Canada and settled at Magoon's Point. A few years later, he moved to Beebe where he resided with his family until his death. A respected member of the community, Mr. Stuart was a sincere friend and neighbour, always willing to help others. He served in the Second World War with the Forestry Corps. He was employed by Butterfield's, in Rock Island, until his retirement in 1960, after many years service.

His wife, the late Catherine (Dolly) Leith Johnston, predeceased him on May 4, 1969. He is survived by four sons, John David, of Shawbridge, Que.; Gordon Douglas, of North Hatley, Que.; Bruce Charles, of Rothesay, N.B.; William George, of Sherbrooke, Que.; and one daughter, Mrs. Wilder Hatch (Catherine Elizabeth), of Tomifobia, Que., as well as 23 grandchildren.

The funeral service was held in the South Ely Baptist Church of which he was a member, on Oct. 18. The church was too small to hold all who came to the funeral, which was conducted by Rev. Ernest Tetreault and Rev. E. Boisvert. Two of his favorite hymns were sung, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "Nearer My God to Thee", with Mrs. E. Tetreault at the organ.

Injury to Doyle seen key to 'Riders return

By ROD EDWARDS
WINNIPEG (CP) — An injury to Winnipeg Blue Bombers' middle linebacker, Mickey Doyle, it was agreed by both sides, spelled the difference in Saskatchewan Roughriders' last-minute victory in the Western Football Conference final Sunday.

It really hurt them when Doyle got hurt," said Rider quarterback Ron Lancaster in a delirious Saskatchewan dressing room.

"They had to put Phil Minnick in the middle and Paul Robson on the outside. Robson isn't as strong as Minnick. It was the linebackers who stopped our running game in the first half."

Lancaster said offensive tackle Clyde Brock had an easier time blocking on the right side against Robson and it opened up the outside for running by fullback George Reed. Winnipeg coach Jim Spavital echoed Lancaster's analysis.

"When Mickey got hurt that was it... Our outside was..."

DOYLE BREAKS LEG

Doyle suffered a broken leg just above the ankle late in the third quarter with the score 24-14 in Winnipeg's favor.

But other factors contributed to the loss, particularly interceptions.

Lewis Cook intercepted early in the fourth quarter and it was turned into a field goal to make the score 24-17. Then with time running out, Ted Dushinski returned an interception to the Winnipeg 47-yard line. Riders marched in for a touchdown by Reed to tie the score.

"I was really surprised when he Don Jones threw the ball," said Dushinski. "I was just waiting for it."

The veteran defensive back said it "was a little grudge match... They always seemed to outkick us."

The field goal by Abendschan sailed perfectly through the goal posts, a sharp contrast to his first try which went wide.

Hockey Gaiters hang tough, eke out victory

LENNOXVILLE (CC) — It could have been a repeat of Thursday night's performance for Bishop's University Gaiters when they met the Royal Military College Cadets in Lennoxville. But it wasn't.

Thursday evening at the Sherbrooke Sports Palace the Gaiters sprang to a quick 3-0 lead against the Green and Gold but eventually lost 7-5.

Saturday the Gaiters worked their way to a 2-0 lead, boosted it to 3-1 with 13 minutes left in the game and then hung on for dear life to defeat the Cadets 3-2 in the first home game of the season.

In other Quebec University Athletic Association competition over the weekend the University of Sherbrooke romped to a 9-0 victory Friday over the same RMC Cadets. Loyola College Warriors upended McGill University 6-3 Friday and the University of Quebec at Three Rivers 5-3 Saturday.

Saturday's win gives the Bishop's University Gaiters a 1-1 record in the early stages of the season.

The Gaiters jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first period on a goal by Sandy Baptist. Baptist was set up by Kevin Brown who is emerging as one of this year's most promising players.

Bishop's second goal came in the second period when newcomer Brown rammed in his first goal of the season. He now has three assists for a total of four points. Assisting on Brown's goal were Wayne Rahm and Mike Bookalam.

RMC narrowed the margin when Chuck Brakman scored at the 10:09 mark of the second period with the help of passes from Steve Blanchard and Dave Hall.

In the third period Lennoxville native Steve Mitchell scored at the 7:39 mark to move the Gaiters into a 3-1 lead. The goal which proved to be the winner was set up by Gary Nichol and Mike Paul.

But RMC didn't give up. The Cadets poured on the steam and pulled to within a one goal margin at the 10:11 mark in the third period when Marc Ouellet threaded the needle after getting the puck from Ron Davidson and Steve Blanchard.

The crowd estimated at 1,000 were kept on their feet for the final ten minutes of the third period as the Cadets threatened time and time again to score. Brilliant saves by Bishop's goalie Alain Hebert robbed RMC of a tie. At the same time the Gaiters tried to boost their lead, coming close several times without being able to bulge the twine.

It was a relatively mild game as a total of 34 minutes in minor penalties were handed out — 18 minutes to RMC and 16 minutes to Bishop's.

Bishop's outshot RMC 31-29 over three periods. The Gaiters next tilt is Tuesday when they travel to meet Loyola College Warriors in Montreal. The same two teams will meet in Lennoxville Friday.

Bishop's coaches smile, teams take all four games

LENNOXVILLE (CC) — If Bishop's University basketball coaches Garth Smith and Dodie Goodwin are walking around today with smiles on their faces there is no need to wonder why.

Friday night both the women's and men's basketball teams were getting ready to play a total of four games over the weekend. Today the four games are over and the teams are back home with four wins under their belts.

As the women's team was defeating the University of Quebec at Montreal 77-49 Friday, 200 miles away, in Kingston, the male Gaiters were well on their way to beating the Royal Military College Cadets 71-52.

Saturday afternoon as the boys were defeating St. Lawrence College 93-71 in an exhibition game, their female counterparts were able to squeak a fired-up McGill squad 32-29 in a defensive battle.

"It was a hard game but the girls were able to pull it out when the chips were down," Miss Goodwin said referring to her squad's effort in their close win over McGill. The wins leave the Gaiterettes undefeated with three wins in the still young season.

The Saturday contest was the

Galt teams win, lose

LENNOXVILLE — Alexander Galt Regional High School split a Friday night double-header against Champlain College with the basketballers winning 47-34, while the senior hockey team lost 4-2.

Brandon Naeve scored 13 points for the Pipers, followed by Graham Ramage with eight points. Richard Boivin sunk seven points, while Larry Brazel and Red Dion tied for six points each.

Eugene Duguay and Pierre Couplé made five and two points respectively.

A total of 24 penalties were handed out with Champlain getting 14 of them.

Schmautz pots 7, Canucks look no longer

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

During the National Hockey League draft meeting in Montreal last June, general manager Bud Poile of Vancouver Canucks let it be known to anyone who would listen he was looking for scoring punch.

"We've got to get some forwards who can score," Poile said when he showed up for the draft meetings.

Coach Vic Stasiuk agreed and said: "Let's shop around for some guys who know where the net is."

The Canucks apparently haven't found those "guys" yet although one might have been on their team all along. He is right winger Bobby Schmautz, who scored four goals Sunday night in leading the Canucks to a 9-5 victory over Buffalo Sabres.

The four goals gave Schmautz a total of seven in his last two games. He scored three for the Canucks Friday night against

Los Angeles Kings.

Meanwhile, Bobby Orr is back and the Bruins are beginning to roll. Orr returned to the Boston lineup Saturday night after missing most of the season following knee surgery. He helped in leading the defending Stanley Cup champions to a 7-3 victory over New York Islanders Saturday night and Sunday night the Bruins held on to defeat Toronto Maple Leafs 6-5.

In other games, Pittsburgh Penguins ended New York Rangers' six-game winning streak by downing them 5-3. Atlanta Flames nipped Philadelphia Flyers 3-2 and Minnesota North Stars trimmed Chicago Black Hawks 5-1.

CANADIENS BEATEN

Saturday night, the Hawks disposed of Montreal Canadiens 5-3, handing the East Division leaders their second defeat in 20 games. Minnesota and Toronto played to a 4-4 tie, Pittsburgh whipped Atlanta 6-1, the Rangers defeated St. Louis Blues 3-1 and Los Angeles trounced Detroit Red Wings 8-3.

Schmautz, a Saskatoon native, played in the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League before having minor league tryouts with teams in the Western and Central hockey leagues.

He played in the NHL with Chicago during 1967-1969 before catching on with Vancouver in the 1970-71 season. Last season in 60 games he scored 12 goals but so far this season he has accounted for 13 goals in 19 games, the last seven goals coming in two games.

Schmautz attributes his sudden scoring punch to the fact he is hitting the net with his shots.

"That seems to be the difference," he said Sunday after his four goals against Buffalo. "I'm hitting the net now instead of missing it."

Of his three goals in the second period, Schmautz said:

"It's rare... It just happened so quick. Tell you the truth, I didn't feel like I was playing too well in the first period, but it goes to show you, I guess you get the chances sometimes. How it can just change when you get a goal!"

Buffalo scored early in the game when Gil Perreault beat goalie Dunc Wilson after cruising in from the left side but Bobby Lalonde quickly tied it for the Canucks. Then the Canucks scored three goals on Roger Crozier to give the Canucks a 4-1 lead at the end of the first period.

Schmautz then took over, scoring three goals in the second period and one in the third. Rick Martin, Buffalo's high-scoring winger, got two goals for the Sabres, his 15th and 16th.

Buffalo's loss ended a disastrous road trip which saw them go without a victory in six games.

The Bruins got two-goal performances from Mike Walton and rookie Greg Sheppard in disposing of the Leafs in Boston.

Walton scored his seventh goal of the season in the first period and then added his eighth with the help of Johnny Bucyk's 600th NHL assist in the second period.

Orr managed only one assist Sunday night but he scored Boston's first goal Saturday night against the Islanders and assisted on another by Phil Esposito.

FIVE SHARE GOALS

Five different players scored for Pittsburgh against the Rangers whose defeat was their second in 15 games—both against the Penguins. Bryan Hexall started the Pittsburgh scoring in the last three minutes of the first period and Greg Polis and Darryl Edstrand made it 3-0 early in the second period before Dale Rolfe scored for the Rangers.

The Flames, now in a three-way tie for second place in the tight West Division, got two goals from Larry Romanchuk, his first in the NHL. He broke a scoreless tie in the second period with his first goal and after Philadelphia went ahead 2-1 on goals by Ross Lonsberry and Ed Van Impe, Romanchuk tied the game midway in the third period. Bob Leiter later scored the winning goal.

The Black Hawks, after out-hustling the Canadiens Saturday night in Montreal, were robbed repeatedly by North Star goalie Gilles Gilbert Sunday night.

Gilles turned aside 41 Chicago shots in sparking the North Stars to their second victory in two games against the Hawks, defending West division champions.

The North Stars, on the other hand, needed only 19 shots on goal for their victory. Ted Harris, Terry Holbrook, Danny Grant, Barry Gibbs and Murray Oliver scored for Minnesota while rookie defenceman Phil Russell got Chicago's goal.

COACH UNHAPPY

The Hawks got goals Saturday night against the Canadiens from Bill White, Jim Pappin, Cliff Koroll, Dennis Hull and Pit Martin while Yvan Cournoyer, with his 250th NHL goal, Jacques Lemaire and Jim Roberts scored for the Canadiens.

Chicago coach Billy Reay, summing up his team victory, said: "They worked harder and more collectively than they have been doing all season."

But he was unhappy because four Hawks failed to beat goalie Ken Dryden on four breakaways.

Beavers coast to win behind Wiseman

By ALEX RADMANOVICH

Record Reporter

SHERBROOKE — Sherbrooke Beavers surged to a 6-1 first period lead and coasted to an easy 8-5 victory over Sorel in Quebec Major Junior hockey action at the Sports Palace last night before 2100 spectators.

Wes Wiseman notched his first three-goal performance of the season to lead the Beavers in their early onslaught. Pierre Lagarere with two, and Mario Desjardins also scored in the first twenty minutes of play.

The Beavers added one goal in each of the second and third periods to round out the scoring. Sylvain Parent tallied in the middle period on a power play effort while Francois Rochon closed Sherbrooke's scoring in a similar situation early in the final.

For Sorel, Raynald Gill scored three goals, one in each period. Denis Desgagne and Pierre Mondou added third period markers, both goals coming after the Beavers failed to capitalize at the opposite side of the rink.

In the first period Sherbrooke scored almost at will, Wiseman drawing first blood at the three-minute mark with a power-play goal. Before the period was ten minutes old the score stood at 3-1 for the locals, Laganierie and Wiseman finding the mark for Sherbrooke and Gill replying for Sorel.

Before the period ended Desjardins, Wiseman with his third and Laganierie with his second had all but put the game out of reach. Interestingly, the Beavers managed only 12 shots on net in the period, the same number as Sorel.

The second period featured several good Sherbrooke rushes and a few half-hearted Sorel attempts. Late in the period the teams traded power play goals, Parent giving the Beavers a short-lived 7-1 bulge before Gill beat goalie Rejean Lemelin for his second goal of the game.

Sorel outshot Sherbrooke 12-9 in the period.

With less than two minutes elapsed in the final period Rochon single-handedly beat Sorel goalie Claude Legris when he outskated four defenders during a Sherbrooke power-play. The Beavers had numerous scoring chances as the final twenty minutes went by but their passing and shooting deteriorated with lack of desire.

Sorel closed the gap to 8-5 on goals by Mondou, Desgagne and Gill beating a hapless Lemelin with drives from near the crease. However, the result was never in doubt although the visitors outshot the Beavers 16-13.

The third period was filled with high-sticking, elbowing and unnecessary roughness as the Sorel players tried to exact revenge in the form of physical intimidation. Two minor skirmishes erupted late in the game, the Beavers ending up on the short end of the scorecard on each occasion.

With the victory Sherbrooke grabbed sole possession of their place in the standings. It was the third time this season that the Beavers defeated Sorel at the Sports Palace.

Dolphins win again, 'It's Super Bowl or bust'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

After overtaking the Jets, Miami Dolphins are heading for the National Football League's wild, blue yonder.

It's Super Bowl or bust, says coach Don Shula.

"We've got to get this football team ready to start the playoffs," said Shula after the Dolphins won the American Football Conference's Eastern Division title with a 28-24 come-from-behind win over New York Jets Sunday.

Shula said he wouldn't take anything less than a return to the NFL's championship game. The Dolphins were humiliated in the Super Bowl last year by Dallas Cowboys.

"Sure, winning a division championship is important," said Shula, "but now we've got the second season to think about."

In winning the division title, the Dolphins took their 10th straight victory this year. With four games to go, they threaten to become only the third team in NFL history to finish a regular season undefeated.

HE'S NOT EXCITED

That aspect of the season doesn't particularly excite the Dolphins' field boss.

"Certainly, winning is important, foremost," said Shula, "but if anybody's injured we're going to try to get them healthy for the post-season games—even if it means not using our best and losing a few regular-season games."

While Miami won the AFC

East, the NFL's remaining division titles were still undecided after Sunday's action.

Cleveland Browns bounced Pittsburgh Steelers 26-24 and threw their AFC Central race into a tie. Oakland crushed Denver 37-20 and moved 1½ games up on Kansas City Chiefs in the AFC West. The Chiefs were beaten 27-17 by San Diego Chargers.

In the National Football Conference, Dallas Cowboys smashed Philadelphia Eagles 28-7 and moved within a halfgame of leading Washington in the East. The Redskins play tonight against Atlanta Falcons, who are tied for first in the West.

Los Angeles fell into a tie with Atlanta after dropping a 45-41 decision to Minnesota Vikings. Green Bay held on to first in the Central by one game after beating Houston Oilers 23-10.

COLTS EDGE BENGALS

In the other games, it was: Baltimore 20 Cincinnati 19; Buffalo 27 New England 24; Detroit 27 New Orleans 14; New York 13 St. Louis 7 and San Francisco 34, Chicago 21.

Safety Dick Anderson set up two Miami touchdowns with a pass interception and fumble recovery as the Dolphins beat the Jets in a heart-stopping game decided in the closing quarter.

With the Jets leading 24-21 in the last period, Anderson fell on a fumble by the Jets' Cliff McLain at the New York 27.

Four plays later, Mercury Morris ran 14 yards around the left side for the winning touchdown.
