Lalonde says limits may have to be placed on number of doctors practising in one area

OTTAWA (CP) — Limits may have to be set on the doctors practising under public medical insurance plans in any one area, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Thursday.

The alternative was too many doctors in cities and not enough in towns and villages, he told reporters at the end of a two-day federal-provincial health ministers conference.

The report of a special study group said medical manpower planning was in chaos because there were inadequate statistics on the professional activities of doctors.

As well, the flood of immigrant doctors made it impossible to plan for medical education and future health needs.

Mr. Lalonde said the present ratio of about one doctor for every 630 persons was much lower than in most developed countries. An optimum ratio was one doctor for every 600 persons but British Columbia already had one for every 548 persons.

He said the ministers also discussed a system of incentives to make rural medical practices financially more attractive.

ONE-THIRD FOREIGN

They agreed it might become necessary to keep foreign-trained doctors out of Canada. More than 10,000 of the country's 31,000 doctors are foreign-trained.

Mr. Lalonde said the ministers all were concerned that young Canadians would miss out on opportunities to become doctors. "Well co-ordinated measures" soon would be taken to ensure this does not happen.

New regulations are being drafted by the immigration department which might prevent foreign doctors from entering Canada unless there is a vacancy for them, he said.

Mr. Lalonde said the most significant accomplishment of the conference was the departure from the traditional concept of medicine as treatment of illness.

The health ministers, "with surprising unanimity," agreed more attention should be paid to prevention, which now takes up less than five per cent of the total medical budget.

The final conference communique warned that acupuncture still is an experimental medical procedure and should be undertaken only on the advice of a physician.

Mr. Lalonde said there was concern that people who are not doctors are being trained in acupuncture through courses of dubious value. He mentioned a correspondence school in Vancouver and a six-week course in Quebec.

Some provincial ministers at the closed meetings had suggested that all drug advertising be banned, said Mr. Lalonde.

Others said, however, that this would be impractical because it would hurt advertising in Canadian media while Canadians would still be exposed to the advertising on U.S. television channels.

Secretaries stage Valentine strike

OTTAWA (CP) — A Valentine's Day protest by about 1,000 federal government secretaries on Parliament Hill brought a quick response by Labor Minister John Munro that complaints will be considered.

Mr. Munro, minister responsible for the status of women, said in a news release a few hours after the protest that a questionnaire will be sent to public service secretaries within months as part of an effort to identify future job placement and working conditions.

The secretaries, stenographers and typists involved in the noon-hour demonstration in below-zero temperatures are part of a 16,000-member bargaining unit. About half are secretaries.

The protest, was against allegedly slow contract talks, the practice of rug-ranking of secretaries and red-circling. Rug-ranking is the practice of determining a secretary's position by the status of her boss, while red-circling is a freeze on employee pay until it matches that of a lower classification.

Mr. Munro said the question of rug-ranking is of "great concern" to the government.

Quebec in focus

Goldbloom says settlement progressing with Indians

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Progress is being made toward arriving at a settlement with the native people over the controversial James Bay Hydro Development project in Quebec, the province's environment minister said Thursday.

Victor Goldbloom, here to deliver a public lecture at the University of Guelph, told a news conference the two sides "seem to have settled down to a practical discussion of how the situation can be resolved."

He said that although he hasn't been "directly involved in the negotiations," environmental studies by his department were having an effect on plans for the project.

He also said that development to date has been kept to an absolute minimum short of abandoning the project.

"We haven't arrived at the point of building dams," Mr. Goldbloom said. Only landing strips and roads have been built so far.

He said native people in the region have not been left out of government planning. They had been involved in the negotiations since "we started talking about developing James Bay."

Much of the opposition to the project concerns damming and flooding part of the region and intrusion of large numbers of non-resident hunters, Mr. Goldbloom said. The flooding has not yet begun and some changes have been made in the plans.

He said the environment had not been a consideration in original planning and that environmental studies were not undertaken until the government officially unveiled the project in 1971.

Native people advised to fight one battle at a time

MONTREAL (CP) — Indians and Eskimos fighting the James Bay hydroelectric development in northern Quebec have been told by a justice of the Quebec Appeal Court to finish one round in their increasingly-complicated legal battle before starting another.

This was the essence of Mr. Justice Marcel Crete's ruling Wednesday when he denied lawyers for the Indian-Eskimo coalition permission to proceed on a request for a permanent injunction against the $6-billion project, centred 600 miles north of Montreal on the shores of James Bay.

The native inhabitants of the area, in their most recent public statement of position, vowed last month to fight the project to a finish in court, rejecting a Quebec government offer of $100 million in cash and a 2,000-square-mile reserve in return for their approval of the deaurice Veaudelle, says the Last Nov. 15, after months of hearings and study, the Quebec Superior Court granted a temporary injunction to halt work on the project pending a decision on the group's request for a permanent injunction.

Mr. Justice Albert Malouf of Superior Court said construction work would do irreparable damage by the end of the year, meaning attempts by the Indians and Eskimos to preserve the environment in its natural state would fail unless the work was stopped.

Report gives poor record to use of French in work

QUEBEC (CP) — Corporate head offices in Montreal hire few French-speaking employees in relation to the number of French-language residents in the city and the working language in the offices is predominantly English, says a report prepared for the Quebec commission on the status of French in the province.

The report, prepared by Jean-Maurice Veaudelle, says the Quebec government appears to be in a weak position to alter this situation because government pressure could easily lead corporations to transfer their head offices or remove funds, decision-making power and skilled personnel from the head offices.

But it also says that changing attitudes in the western countries towards large corporations and their activities makes the government's position not as weak as it seems.

The nationalizations, which are happening just about everywhere, should help the provincial government to make Montreal head offices understand that it is to their advantage to conform to the Quebec milieu.

Cote denies he approached judge about trial opening

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Jacques Cote denied Thursday a judge's allegations that he approached the judge May 31, 1971 about a trial opening that day involving the Victoria Sporting Club.

Mr. Cote, testifying at the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime, said he met Judge Andre Chaloux of sessions court that day, but they had only a friendly chat about "old times."

Mr. Cote said he met the judge again about four months later, Sept. 9, 1971, at the request of club manager Frank d'Asi, described earlier before the inquiry as a Montreal underworld kingpin, in an attempt to speed up the trial, still undecided at that time.

Judge Chaloux testified Wednesday that, after the May 31 meeting with Mr. Cote, he had the impression the underworld was trying to buy him off. He said that at the time he had not seen Mr. Cote since 1945.

He said Mr. Cote invited him for a drink and, at one point, mentioned the trial of Eddy Zarbatany, charged with collecting money in a gaming house.

Judge Chaloux said Mr. Cote told him cases of this type should not be exaggerated and judges should "not be too severe."

Solzhenitsyn and lawyer off to Zurich

COLOGNE (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn left West Germany for Switzerland today to take up the life of a wealthy best-selling author in Western Europe.

After two nights in the rural West German village of Langenbroich, Solzhenitsyn and his Swiss lawyer boarded a train for Zurich.

The lawyer, Fritz Heeb, has been working for the last five years on Solzhenitsyn's behalf with publishers in Europe and the United States.

It was not known how long Solzhenitsyn planned to stay in Switzerland. But Heeb has indicated that the author probably will settle in Scandinavia.

The Paris newspaper France-Soir estimates the writer has amassed at least $6 million in royalties from the publication of his books outside the Soviet bloc.

Heeb has said Solzhenitsyn told him two years ago that he wanted his royalties used for humanitarian purposes inside the Soviet Union. But at that time the writer thought Soviet law protected him from expulsion.

Solzhenitsyn talked by telephone with his wife in Moscow after he arrived Wednesday in West Germany, and they had another conversation Thursday night, friends said. But there was no indication when she and the rest of the family would join him.

FAMILY CAN LEAVE
Tass, the official Soviet news agency, has said his family can join him "when they deem it necessary." But friends in Moscow said Mrs. Solzhenitsyn has not yet applied for permission to leave.

The family includes the couple's three sons, Mrs. Solzhenitsyn's 11-year-old son by a previous marriage, and her widowed mother. Friends of the family believe the Soviet government will let all of them leave.

Solzhenitsyn, 55, was in Langenbroich, a village of 23 families about 35 miles from Bonn, as a guest of German author Heinrich Boll. Both are winners of the Nobel Prize for Literature.

The Russian author refused again Thursday to grant interviews. "I am tired," he said. "I have my worries to attend to."

The friends in Moscow gave this account of the treatment the author received after he was arrested at his apartment Tuesday.

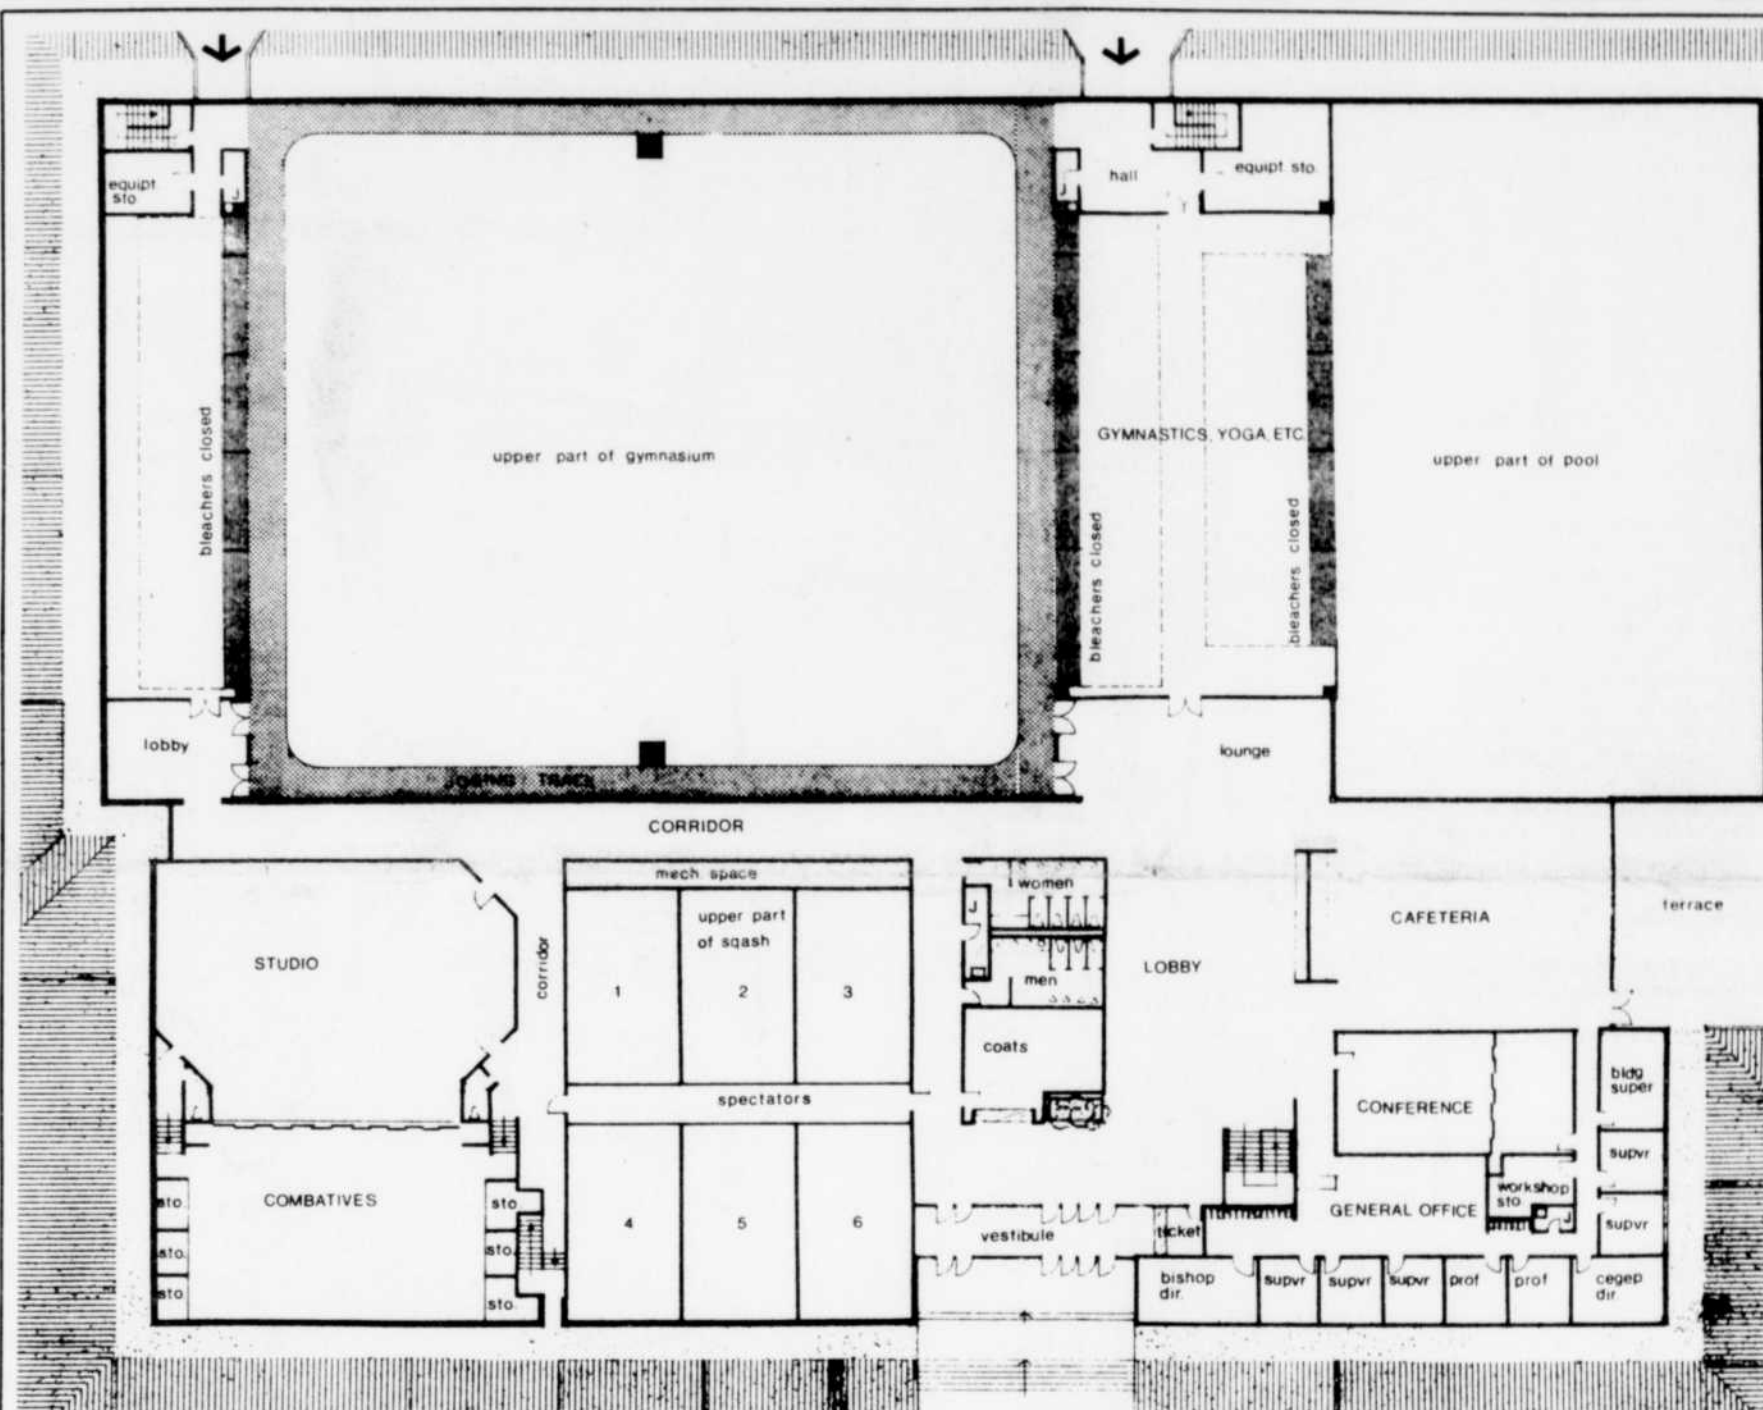

The police took him to Lefortovo prison and took the clothes he was wearing, a bag of clothes he had brought with him, the sheepskin coat he bought during his Siberian exile in 1953-56, everything in his pockets and his wristwatch.

"It was just like in his book The First Circle, only that was at Lyubyanka (Moscow's most notorious prison), not Lefortovo," one friend said.

The police then told Solzhenitsyn he was charged with treason, a charge punishable by death. He refused to sign a form acknowledging that he was acquainted with the charges, and said only that he would not cooperate in the investigation.

REFUSES TO EAT
The writer also refused to eat. Then at 1 p.m. Wednesday he was presented with the decree of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet cancelling his citizenship and expelling him.

Solzhenitsyn broke his silence to say he would not leave without his family.

Police seek escaped convict as Hearst abduction leader

BERKELEY (AP) — Authorities are reported investigating the possibility that an escaped convict is the leader of the terrorist group which kidnapped Patricia Hearst.

The San Francisco Chronicle and television station KQED said Thursday night the man is Donald David DeFreeze, 30, who escaped from California's Soledad prison last March 5 while serving a term for robbery, assault and possession of stolen cheques.

Both the newspaper and the station said DeFreeze is the Cinque of the Hearst kidnap case. However, the FBI said DeFreeze is not a prime suspect.

DeFreeze is "one of several people who are known to have used the alias Cinque," said John Kelley, assistant in charge of the San Francisco FBI office. Cinque was the name of a leader of a slave ship revolt in the 19th century.

The Chronicle said the man who called himself Cinque in a tape-recorded message to the Hearst family Tuesday was the leader and founder of the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA).

Miss Hearst, 19, was dragged from her apartment near the University of California Feb. 4. Cinque said she would be killed unless Miss Hearst's father finances a huge food giveaway for California's needy. The cost of such a food distribution has been estimated at as high as $400 million.

The girl's father is Randolph Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner and chairman of the Hearst Corp.

The Chronicle said the black man named in its copyright story astonished local protest groups by offering a "contract" to kill Oakland's black school superintendent, Dr. Marcus Foster. They refused, the story said. Foster was killed in a barrage of cyanide-filled bullets last November. Two white men charged with the killings are being held at San Quentin prison.

Television station KQED said DeFreeze had tried to join various radical groups in the area, offering his services as a killer.

The Chronicle and KQED reports came after a verbal clash between U.S. Attorney-General William Saxbe and Hearst over the FBI's strategy in the case.

Saxbe told a Washington news conference that authorities would be derelict if they learned where the co-ed was being held and didn't attempt to rescue her.

Charles Bates, FBI agent in charge of the case, said he had no intention of staging a shooting raid on the kidnappers.

Prosecutor Jaworski moves closer toward conflict with Nixon with letter to judiciary committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a strongly-worded letter to the chairman of the Senate judiciary committee, special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski has moved toward a conflict with President Nixon.

"It is now clear that evidence I deem material to our investigations will not be forthcoming," Jaworski said in a letter Thursday to Senator James Eastland (Dem. Miss.). The White House said the president himself made the decision to end cooperation with the investigations.

Jaworski disclosed that the material the president has refused to supply include the tapes of 27 presidential meetings and telephone calls related to the investigation of the Watergate break-in and cover-up. That number was far higher than had ever been indicated by the prosecutor's office.

Meanwhile, Westinghouse Broadcasting said Jaworski's office had discovered more apparent gaps in tapes of presidential conversations.

The Westinghouse report quoted well-informed sources as saying the apparent gaps appeared during sensitive discussions between Nixon and aides. It said audio experts who earlier investigated the 18-minute gap in a tape of a conversation between Nixon and former aide H. R. Haldeman had been asked to investigate the new tapes and give an opinion as to whether they might have been tampered with.

The report said it was not clear which tapes were involved. But it said the suspicions of prosecutors were aroused because the new apparent gaps appeared to wipe out some crucial parts of discussions which touched on subjects now under investigation.

Jaworski said that in rejecting his requests, the White House had given no indication "any requested recording is either irrelevant to our inquiries or subject to some particularized privilege."

Eastland was in Mississippi and had no immediate comment on the letter.

Senator Edward Kennedy (Dem. Mass.), a judiciary committee member, said he will request an early meeting of the committee "to consider the ominous implications of Mr. Jaworski's letter."

Senator John Tunney (Dem. Calif.), another member of the committee, said the White House decision "poses the possibility of a dangerous and divisive confrontation."

Gerald Warren, deputy White House press secretary, told reporters at Key Biscayne, Fla., that the president decided Jaworski already has received sufficient material "to allow the grand juries to proceed with their work without further delay."

Asked whether the president was considering firing Jaworski, Warren said the question "is not before us; the situation hasn't been raised."

It was after a conflict over access to White House tapes that Nixon fired former special prosecutor Archibald Cox last Oct. 20. Jaworski succeeded Cox.

Vice-President Gerald Ford said Jaworski's letter indicates "that the White House has cooperated sufficiently for him to carry out his duties."

Jaworski's letter said that while he has sufficient evidence for criminal indictments, "the requested material is important to a complete and thorough investigation and may contain evidence necessary for any future trials."

Alberta's stud lumber industry is sagging

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's stud lumber industry, which accounted for one-third of the province's record lumber production last year, is sagging and one producer is thinking of quitting.

The studs, custom-cut two by fours from seven to eight feet in length, are sold mainly in the United States for use in homes. Housing starts are declining and higher mortgage rates are discouraging prospective home buyers.

Alberta producers were getting as much as $165 a thousand board feet last summer. But prices this year have fallen to $95 a thousand board feet, generally considered by industry spokesmen to be the break-even point.

Buchanan Lumber Co. in High Prairie, 170 miles northwest of Edmonton, is considering closing because of low prices.

But owner Gordon Buchanan says he is afraid that if the firm closes, the loss of skilled staff might cripple a move to resume production at a later date. And he is concerned about the effect it would have on the town's economy.

GRANTS BLAMED

Mr. Buchanan places part of the blame for the decline in prices on federal government industrial grant policies. He says department of regional economic expansion grants have enabled pulp mills in British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec to add stud mill equipment to their mill operations.

These studs are penetrating markets formerly dominated by Alberta producers whose shipping costs are higher.

As an example of some of his problems, Mr. Buchanan says seven-foot studs that last July were $162 a thousand board feet were sold for $55 in January. Prices for eight-foot studs are only a little better, about $85 a thousand board feet, only 60 per cent of last summer's prices.

To cost Bishop's $3 million Construction of sports complex starts May 8

By MICHAEL ISAACS
Record Reporter

LENNOXVILLE — Construction of Bishop's University's $3 million sports complex is due to begin May 8.

In an interview with The Record yesterday, Bruce Coulter, director of the University's athletic department, predicted that the project would be completed in early March, 1975, if no unforeseen difficulties arise.

Mr. Coulter noted that the complex will be equipped with gymnasium, swimming pool, squash courts, jogging track, combatives room, cafeteria, weight-training and changing rooms, laundering facilities and offices.

The gymnasium will be able to accommodate as many as 2,000 spectators, he contended, adding that the bleachers themselves are retractable and will not take up much room when they are not being used.

AVAILABLE IN JANUARY

He hopes that some of the facility will be available for use in January of 1975, though he claims that the probability of such availability is low. "If it were available we'd be able to get some of the administrative problems worked out before September," he explains.

Mr. Coulter looks forward to the possibility of offering voluntary instructional programs in such diverse activities as squash, badminton, yoga, swimming, water safety, and use of kayak canoes.

He is particularly pleased with the laundering facilities which will be available. Everyone will be able to receive a clean change of clothing before each athletic session.

He does note that such a service would probably carry with it a small charge for all persons who use the facilities except those who have already paid a student service fee.

INVOLVE COMMUNITY

"We would like to have the community involved. Maybe through working with hospitals and social agencies we will be able to create special times when groups such as aged, young, handicapped and paraplegic people can use the facilities," Mr. Coulter asserted.

He remarked that the university would find it necessary to work out a policy of scheduling which will provide the maximum opportunity for as many persons as possible to take advantage of the complex.

Mr. Coulter also foresees the creation of several jobs for students in such areas as monitoring the building, selling tickets, laundering equipment, checking identification and tending the cafeteria.

Jean-Luc Gregoire, Bishop's controller, told The Record yesterday that the building will be heated by electricity. "At the moment electricity does not cost much more than oil and we expect the price of heating with oil to increase in the future," he explained.

Further, Mr. Gregoire said, the demands of the sports complex on the boiler house would be so large that it would be taxed to its limit. Consequently, he continued, the university plans to build a second electric sub-station concurrent with the construction of the complex itself.

Mr. Gregoire suggested that the present gymnasium will be renovated into three floors when the complex is completed. Tentative plans for use of the renovated gym include a pub, an enlarged bookstore and a study hall, he claimed.

The controller noted that the cost of the complex will exceed $3 million. Bishop's University will pay more than $2 million towards its construction.

MONEY FROM DIGES

In addition to the money put forward by the university, Mr. Gregoire said that DIGES has approved $280,000 in the 1973-74 budget and is considering approving $80,000 in the 1974-75 budget for use in the construction. DIGES is the branch of the department of education responsible for university-level education.

Mr. Gregoire pointed out that DIGES, the collegial branch of the education department, is also considering contributing an amount totalling $475,000 over the two years to the project. Although neither the DIGES amount nor the second DIGES amount has been approved by the treasury board, Mr. Gregoire expressed confidence that the monies would be available.

SHERBROOKE — Doctor Nathan Stolow, Director of the Canadian Conservation Institute of the National Museums of Canada, will address the Women's Canadian Club at a luncheon meeting on Tuesday, February 19, at 1 p.m., St. George's Club, 324 Dufferin, Sherbrooke. His topic will be: "The Conservation of Works of Art in Canada."

Dr. Stolow studied chemistry at McGill and Toronto Universities and then specialized in the application of chemistry to the conservation of works of art at the Courtauld Institute, University of London, Ph.D. 1956.

Dr. Stolow's pioneering researches and activities in conserving artistic and historic works have been widely recognized. He has published many papers and completed numerous consultations with organizations such as UNESCO.

The Institute constitutes a team of conservation and scientific specialists. They are devoted to the display that shows techniques used in conserving individual works of art, sections portraying deterioration problems, techniques and materials of the art, processes employed in conservation and restoration, methods of transporting cultural works and in mounting exhibitions, plus, the problems of fraudulent artifacts.

As a speaker, Dr. Stolow is constantly in demand and has lectured in Canada, U.S.A., Europe and Asia. He has actively promoted conservation interest through seminars, courses, television, and the press.

In recognition of his broad contributions, Dr. Stolow was the recipient of the Canada Medal in 1967. The Canadian Conservation Institute was established in 1972. It was conceived, designed and planned by Doctor Nathan Stolow as a national centre for conservation, research, training and consultation for works of art, ethnology, archaeology and history collections.

Frye to speak here

LENNOXVILLE (MI) — Northrup Frye, one of the most influential literary critics of the English-speaking world, will be speaking at Bishop's University Sunday.

Mr. Frye's topic will be 'the unity of literature'. Gary Retzlaff, Bishop's professor and member of the speakers' committee, explained that Frye believes literature is a unity derived from an expansion of myth.

Mr. Retzlaff anticipates that the speech will focus on the unification of literature through its structures and conventions.

Mr. Frye will give his presentation in Mackinnon Hall at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, February 17. Born in Sherbrooke in 1912, Frye is a descendant of the American loyalists who moved to the Eastern Townships during the American Revolution.

Library amalgamation still faces problems

SHERBROOKE (CC) — The amalgamation of the Sherbrooke Library and the Sherbrooke Municipal Library has a few more snags to be worked out but everything should be settled soon, according to Romeo Bergeron.

Councillor Bergeron is responsible for the operations of the library and was commenting on an increased government grant towards its operation.

The ministry of cultural affairs has awarded the library a $35,000 grant compared to $30,284 a year ago. The increase was due to the greater number of books now available to the public.

When the Sherbrooke Library amalgamated the books which it contained were handed over to the Municipal Library. The government also granted additional funds because more space is available. The library was enlarged and renovated last year.

"We still have some complaints to take care of," Mr. Bergeron explained. "We should be able to handle them in two or three weeks."

Mr. Bergeron said the main complaint was that there wasn't enough personnel capable of handling the English-speaking population.

"Committee members set up to oversee the amalgamation think there isn't anybody capable of purchasing the right English-language books or helping people choose the right book at the library," Mr. Bergeron said.

At present the library has one fully bilingual full-time employee. It has been able to employ one English-speaking library technician on a part-time basis.

"We are having trouble finding a qualified technician at the salary we are offering," Mr. Bergeron said. "Most qualified people are already working for schools such as Alexander Galt."

Other alternatives are being looked into and Mr. Bergeron sees no reason for anyone being disturbed. "We're trying," he said.

Andre Leclerc, responsible for laboratory section, research, herd health and reproductive problems at the Artificial Insemination Center and Yvan Charland, regional director of the Livestock Production Service, Rock Forest.

Sherbrooke's festival is on way to success

SHERBROOKE (CC) — already granted the festival corporation $20,000 to assure its permanence, hope the festival will grow to equal even the Quebec Carnival in popularity.

At the Tuesday meeting Jean Collard was confirmed director-general of the festival. He will be employed full-time by the festival and will ultimately be responsible for its success or failure.

Two other people will be employed by the festival. One is Jean Collard's secretary, and the other is Gerald Pelletier who has been loaned to the festival by the city's public relations department.

Concerts, plays, art and antique shows, French Canadian gourmet, handicrafts, sports, open air dances and other Quebecois activities are planned during the four-day festival.

Organizers hope to continue the festival on an annual basis and even, if possible, enlarge it to a two-week format in the future.

SPCA reports three convictions in local area during 1973 actions

SHERBROOKE — Three cruelty convictions and a record year for adoptions highlighted the 1973 operations of the Sherbrooke Branch of the Canadian Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA).

A resident of Upper Melbourne was sentenced to 30 days in jail for neglecting to feed and water his 15 dogs. All of the dogs had to be destroyed because of their advanced stage of starvation.

An owner of 23 cows and 1 horse in Coaticook was fined $200, for failing to feed his animals and keeping them under intolerable conditions. There was manure and dung to a depth of two feet on the floor of the barn.

Thirteen live starving dogs and 7 dead of starvation brought a sentence of 5 days in jail for a Danville resident.

All cases were initiated by the SPCA inspection services.

New homes were found for 936 dogs and puppies compared to 589 in 1972. Two hundred and forty-two cats and kittens were put out for adoption compared to 123 in 1972.

One hundred and four lost pets were returned to their owners. A total of 5,306 dogs and cats were received by the pound and 134 other types of animals ranging from lynes to ducks.

The SPCA annual control vehicle made 1,016 calls to pick up animals.

Four thousand cats and dogs were euthanized at owner's request or for medical reasons.

SPCA has a contract with the City of Sherbrooke which requires that SPCA maintain the public pound.

Sherbrooke municipal authorities have been most understanding and co-operative in this area of animal control. Any deficit on the operation of the Sherbrooke pound and the entire cost of SPCA inspection service is financed by SPCA Montreal headquarters which is, in turn, largely supported by donations.

The SPCA Sherbrooke Branch is located 920 Queen Blvd. North, telephone 567-8364.

Mr. Brezhnev in Cuba

Leonid Brezhnev's visit to Havana is over, but the diplomatic world has not ceased buzzing with rumors about the purpose of this excursion by the Soviet leader to his lone western hemisphere satellite. There is, of course, the simple explanation that Mr. Brezhnev, tired of the rigors of the Moscow winter, did what capitalists of yore used to do and travelled to Havana for a little sunshine.

But this seems too simple at a time when detente flickers on and off, and the Soviet Union is not yet certain whether she should befriend the United States or stab at its tender South American underbelly.

With Chile no longer available as a Soviet base, Cuba has remained the only support the Soviet Union has in this hemisphere. It is an expensive support indeed. The half-billion dollars pumped into Cuba each year has not significantly improved either the island's economy or Fidel Castro's gratitude in that the "Lider's" sympathies have been oscillating rather erratically between Moscow and Peking. Mr. Brezhnev would obviously want to make sure that Cuba remains firmly within the Soviet orbit and does not offer a foothold to disruptive Chinese manoeuvres, particularly at the time of Henry Kissinger's triangular diplomacy.

There may, therefore, be some substance in the reports that Mr. Brezhnev came to advise the Cubans to mend their fences with Washington. There have been several straws in the wind that blows in this direction. The new Cuban ambassador to Mexico, Fernando Lopez Muino, said last month that there are no outstanding issues between the United States and Cuba other than the trade embargo. Once this has been lifted Cuba would be ready to resume normal relations with Washington. In fact, the trade embargo is being constantly eroded.

Most of the new Caribbean states — Barbados, Jamaica and Trinidad — as well as Peru and now Argentina have resumed diplomatic relations with Havana, and President Peron's decision in particular has opened a vast breach in the embargo wall. Mr. Peron has agreed to sell to Cuba cars built in Argentina and has told Ford, Chrysler and General Motors that their products must be included in the deal.

Canada's position — that this country will not join the Organization of American States because Cuba has been excluded — may be unrealistic at this time, but if there should be a rapid improvement in the Washington-Havana relations and Cuba invited to rejoin OAS, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp's words could swiftly come home to roost. His would then be the choice of eating those words or occupying the empty chair reserved for Canada in the OAS building in Washington.

State Secretary Henry Kissinger is supposed to visit Mexico as soon as his busy schedule permits, and he will probably meet the Cuban ambassador there. The state department is strongly in favor of lifting the trade embargo, as is a majority of United States public opinion.

Plague

These must be happy days for Libya's Col. Muammar Gaddafi as he signs cheques to the world terrorists whistling a happy, victorious tune. The terrorists are on a winning streak and they have brought low governments of every hue. Military dictatorships as well as democracies are all hastening to make their peace with the gunmen, giving in to their demands almost as quickly as these are made.

The terrorists are then flown in comfort to Libya where, after a suitable rest period, they are provided with more (Western) oil money and (Soviet) guns to go and wreak havoc elsewhere.

There is, alas, no way of confronting this modern plague other than by united action of the victims, and this is a futile hope. In the disarray that exists within the Western world any joint action is beyond imagination. One wonders, however, how the public would respond were it asked in a referendum whether it subscribes to the present soft line, or whether it demands stern measures.

It is difficult to believe that the craven attitudes of ministers and their civil service are really shared by the voters who witness the hijacking of planes and ships, the airport massacres, the occupation of embassies and the bombing of buses carrying soldiers and their families.

Indeed, the IRA might soon find its wings clipped were it not for the funds, training and weapons received from Libya, which supports every terrorist movement in the Western world, including those that militate against Libya's "friends," Spain and France.

Those who submit so easily to the terrorists are — in this age which is so dependent upon fast communications — disrupting the economies and the way of life of our society. In a world where there is no security, only the bully and his paymaster are the beneficiaries.

Kremlin hasn't changed
Solzhenitsyn deportation is ancient Soviet device

Soviet authorities came up with what they probably saw as a clever way out of a predicament by deporting Alexander Solzhenitsyn, but it's an ancient device and its use will reinforce an impression abroad that the Kremlin hasn't changed much over the years.

The Nobel laureate, in a way, has wound up a victor over the Kremlin. What it did to him is bound to shadow Soviet policy for some time to come and have an impact on the current exercise in peaceful coexistence.

But the Kremlin's situation was unpleasant. While it cherished detente for practical economic reasons, it couldn't abide Solzhenitsyn. He had challenged the authority of the leaders and the party. Something had to be done.

To place on trial a celebrated though inconvenient personage and then sentence him to the very punishment he so effectively exposed in his latest book could have had effects abroad.

Since Solzhenitsyn was determined not to co-operate with them in any way, they couldn't use the "voluntary" trip-abroad ploy. And so the regime dipped back into history.

TROTSKY EXILED

The last forcible deportation was in the 1920s when Stalin expelled his political foe, the celebrated Lev Davidovich Trotsky. But the czars earlier had used forced deportation to get rid of political undesirables.

Solzhenitsyn suspected the regime wanted to let him go abroad and then lift his passport, a tactic used many times in recent years against dissidents who now reside in the United States and Europe, forever forbidden to return to their native land.

But if Solzhenitsyn wouldn't co-operate, he'd have to be forced out, whatever the cost, and cost there will be.

The decision to banish Solzhenitsyn permanently to the West instead of incarcerating him in a labor camp, and to let his family join him, might seem magnanimous to some by comparison. Most likely it was reached in the interest of the detente and the Kremlin image abroad.

Solzhenitsyn can continue his criticism from outside Soviet borders, but the West already is familiar with such criticism, and the Kremlin aim is to shield Soviet and Communist bloc people from contamination.

Perhaps the next summit scheduled for summer between Leonid Brezhnev, the Communist party chief who has much riding on his detente policy, and President Nixon will come off as planned, but it is bound to be shadowed by this deportation.

The treatment of Solzhenitsyn will hardly go unnoticed in the U.S. Congress, where there have been demands to tie favored-nation treatment — so ardently wanted by Brezhnev — to a lessening of Soviet repression.

It will have its effect, too, on the current 35-nation European security conference in Geneva and on arms talks. A European security arrangement has been a Soviet goal for 20 years in a quest for an impregnable European Communist buffer. The West has been demanding a more open Soviet society as one condition.

Reader finds energy
conference interesting

Sir:

It was interesting, indeed, to listen to the different views of the Provincial Premiers at the recent Energy Commission in Ottawa and to learn that they were in favor of exercising extreme care in the use of the many forms of energy with which this country has been blessed. It was refreshing to hear that special emphasis was laid on the fact that we have abundant opportunities to increase our national electrical output by a means which not only provides clean power year in and year out with a total absence of pollution and leaving no harmful residue behind, while, at the same time, learning the value of the energy-giving agent, neither impaired, nor weakened in any way to serve mankind in many other different ways after the energy has been extracted, or derived, from it. I refer, specifically, to water power.

This brought back to mind that some ten years ago it was my privilege to work with a group of influential citizens — the clergymen of the district, our member-elect of the Provincial Legislature, members of the Megantic County Council, the Thetford Mines Chamber of Commerce, with special cooperation from the councils of the seven municipalities immediately adjacent to the power site at Lysander Falls in a concerted move to request that this place of interest be once more developed.

At first everything proceeded according to plan; everyone was so willing to help — even junior government officials were outspoken in favor of our project, and, then, as is so often the case, "the third day came a frost, a killing frost," in the form of a discussion by none other than Mr. Rene Levesque who at that time was Minister of Hydraulics and Natural Resources in the Lesage government who rejected our request in a very few words.

But, today, the above project takes on a new significance. Canada is in urgent need of this clean unfailing source of energy, and Mr. Levesque who is no longer a Minister of the Crown — not even a member of the Provincial House, although he has tried awfully hard to be elected twice since he vetoed our request. Surely, when the constituents of his own country do not appear to place much confidence in his views, that we in the distance are not too far out on a limb when we believe that he was in error in killing our scheme, because we know that in the past, prior to 1918, two large mills at Lysander, powered by a mere fraction of the potential of the Falls, were of immense value to the community at large, and the means of livelihood for a considerable number of men and their families.

But this is all in the past — the future lies ahead. In view of the present national emergency crisis we hope that the Bourassa administration will consider anew the possibilities at Lysander. He would also like to point out that the River Thames, or Becancour, as it is now called, flows from Lysander to an even more important power site at the Red Falls — a mere four miles away as the crow flies, so it is easy to see that the same volume of water could be utilized twice.

In short, Hydro Quebec owns the two power sites, a significant parcel of land around Lysander, and all the area that would be flooded on both sides of the river upstream for a distance of approximately four miles. All we need now is ACTION — ACTION to help ease the current energy needs, and ACTION to restore Lysander Falls once more as a place of importance in this community.

Heath and Wilson present individual styles in British election campaign

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath, impeccable in grey suit and blue tie, stands imperially before his packed audience, chopping the air with a well-manicured hand and barking out still another pledge of firm, fair government.

Minutes later, in a similar room across the secluded square near Westminster, Labor Leader Harold Wilson draws thoughtfully on his pipe, rocks contentedly in a soft leather chair and observes casually that Heath really intends to be fair only to the rich and firm only with the poor.

The contrast between the two men at their daily news conferences is striking.

Heath moves through the 45-minute ritual with the air of a tank commander on the eve of a certain victory. Wilson, too, looks confident but with the air of a kind uncle or fatherly adviser and without any of Heath's rousing presentation.

The news briefings — staid, well-mannered, unproductive affairs compared with similar events in North America — are being held every morning until the Feb. 28 general election and are an essential part of the leaders' campaigns.

Because of this, many observers express surprise at the low-key style adopted by the Opposition leader.

FOLLOWING PLAN

But Wilson's staff insist everything is going according to plan. One key aide said in an interview: "Heath is out to create a sense of dire emergency and to leave the impression that only the Tories can do anything about it."

"We want people to see Harold as a quiet, reasonable, unflappable leader whom they can trust to get them out of the chaos that has come from 3½ years of Conservative government."

Wilson leaves the conduct of the briefings to his press secretary who occupies the centre of the stage, directs the questioning and decides when it is time to stop. The Labor leader tends to slouch drowsily at the side, giving slow, carefully-measured answers, rarely showing a flicker of emotion and frequently referring to notes.

Heath commands the centre stage himself and takes full control of the news conference, flanked on either side by a high-powered cabinet minister. He decides the amount of time to be allotted to the "home chaps" and to the "overseas chaps" for their questions and sits down only on the rare occasions when one of his ministers is permitted to answer.

The questions are extremely docile ones, although notably more hostile in Wilson's case than in Heath's and the leaders ramble at length in their replies.

USES TELEVISION

Liberal Leader Jeremy Thorpe, whose North Devon riding is considered in danger of falling to the Tories, has resorted to closed-circuit television to get his daily message to journalists in London without leaving home.

Thorpe is generally considered to have a more attractive television image than either Heath or Wilson but the complicated procedure of talking to him over the two-way closed-circuit system is keeping reporters away in droves, his aides say.

They argue, however, that the daily conferences are not nearly as important as many people believe.

Their main objective, acknowledged by all parties, is to let the TV cameras obtain some footage of the leaders for the evening news programs. Virtually nobody expects any rare flashes of self-revelation.

Kennedy Space Center: Is it a fire trap

WASHINGTON — Billions of dollars in equipment and research could go up in smoke at the Kennedy Space Center because of economy moves which will leave the base dangerously short on fire protection.

Major fire damage to America's launching facility would scratch the planned 1975 Soviet-American space venture as well, thus erasing one of the most promising symbols of world detente.

As of this week, the base will be protected from 3 p.m. to 7 a.m. daily by only eight on-duty firefighters. This skeleton crew is not even large enough to man the $750,000 worth of fire equipment, let alone fight a conflagration.

There are 990,000 gallons of liquid oxygen, 800,000 gallons of liquid hydrogen, plus rocket propellants to stoke a flash fire on the 800,000-acre facility. To make matters worse, the government does not insure any of its property, and additional firefighting help is at least 15 minutes away.

What firemen fear most, however, is a repeat of the Jan. 27, 1968, fire burst which took the lives of astronauts Gus Grissom, Ed White and Roger Chaffee. Astronauts are still training at the Kennedy Space Center in altitude chambers, research is being conducted and hundreds of tourists visit the base regularly.

The Boeing Company, which holds a $24.5 million contract to provide the space center with fire protection, plans to lay off 21 firemen and shift others to lower-paying jobs.

Footnote: A Boeing spokesman told our associate Jack Cloberty that the cutbacks were implemented because there will be no manned space flights until 1975. Boeing contends that the base is adequately protected. A National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman backed up Boeing, saying the cuts were necessary. He said, in any case, local crews were within five, not fifteen, minutes of the center.

Jack Anderson's

Hairy Problem: On Christmas day, seven years ago, Judy Braiman, now president of the Consumers Association of New York, developed a cough and began spitting up blood. The doctors opened her chest and discovered up to 60 "rounded nodules" in her lungs. According to a report by her doctor, a pathologist determined that the nodules were "inhalation abscesses."

Continued the physician's report: "Clinical history established that the patient had been exposed abundantly to a variety of hair sprays. When asked to produce some of these her husband quickly brought to the laboratory eight different commercial spray products ranging from oven cleaners to hair conditioners. One of the latter, the largest can and reportedly the patient's favorite hair spray (Bonat-Enhance) was especially fortified with protein."

Subsequent tests, the doctor reported, determined that "of the seven spray materials used by this patient in her home, her favorite hair spray mentioned above" was the only one chemically similar to the substance in her lungs.

"In view of these findings," the doctor concluded, "the pathologist strongly supported the diagnosis of 'thymoma' due to hair spray inhalation."

Last Dec. 3, Mrs. Braiman informed the cosmetics company that she planned to "mention Bonat's product" on an upcoming television show highlighting "the hazards of cosmetics." She also notified the firm that she had sent her data to a Senate subcommittee studying health dangers from aerosols.

Two weeks later, the president of the firm, Jerome Bonat, threatened to haul her into court. "Please be advised," he wrote, "that should your threat to allege on your next television show that your personal injury was caused by a product of ours, you will be accountable for such allegation and suit will be instituted against you personally and against the association for all damages which might be sustained as a consequence."

We spoke with Jack Fleurides, marketing manager for Bonat, who explained to us that the company's tests showed Enhance hairspray could not have been the reason for Mrs. Braiman's injury. But the feisty consumer advocate said she is still planning to air her aerosol charges on television.

Footnote: As we have reported earlier, a growing body of scientific evidence indicates aerosol sprays "contain chemicals which may sear the eyes, damage the lungs and weaken the heart."

Christmas Chisel: Vice Admiral William Behrens Jr., the naval deputy to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, found a nifty way to save money on Christmas cards. He simply mailed them out in official, franked envelopes.

A number of the admiral's acquaintances ripped into the envelopes, marked "official business, penalty for private use $300," to find a card bearing the traditional holiday greeting plus a handwritten "Merry Christmas" and Best Wishes.

According to Admiral Behrens, he mailed about 400 cards but used official envelopes only for "professional associates." First he told us that such "associates" comprised about half of his mailing list. Later, he insisted that just "a few cards" had been mailed out courtesy of the taxpayer.

Choquette-Leslie united

ROCK ISLAND — A pretty winter wedding accented with a touch of Scotland and England took place on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 2, 1974, at Stanstead South church in Rock Island at five o'clock in the afternoon, when Heather Constance, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Leslie of Beebe, Que., became the bride of Mr. John Choquette, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Choquette of St. Jean, Que.

Rev. G.W. Stokes officiated for the double-ring ceremony and Mrs. Clifford McHarg played the organ music. The church was lighted with candles and decorated with arrangements of gold, white and mauve mums. The guest pews were marked with purple Scotch heather, tied with tartan ribbons brought from Scotland by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Agnes Lay. The tartans were The Leslie, Cameron and Dress Stewart.

The bride was escorted down the aisle on the arm of her father and given in marriage by her parents. She was wearing a white velvet monk styled gown with long sleeves and round neck having a hood and sash of silver thread. She carried three long stemmed garnet roses tied with Dress Stewart Tartan and purple heather. To the church and reception she wore her mother's white fox stole.

Miss Heather Dawson as maid of honor and Miss Helen Choquette, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid were gowned alike in garnet velvet, the bodices crossed to fasten in the back and finished with short puff sleeves, the skirts were flared. They each carried three long stemmed white roses tied with the Cameron and the Leslie tartans.

Mr. Prew Savoy was groomsmen and the ushers were Mr. Michael Allatt, cousin of the bride and Mr. Robert Gaudreau. They wore boutonnieres of white carnations.

Mrs. Leslie, mother of the bride, chose a gown of forest green velvet fashioned on princess lines, she carried a pearl jeweled purse and wore a corsage of white bridal roses.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Choquette was in a gown of light pink crepe accessorized in black and a corsage of pink and white bridal roses.

Mrs. Lay, the bride's grandmother from Kent, England, and Scotland, was wearing a gown of light blue polyester crepe having silver threaded design bodice. Her accessories toned and she wore a corsage of yellow bridal roses.

As her granddaughter and husband were leaving the church she presented them with a silver good luck horse shoe and wishbone. Mr. Gary King, also from Kent, England, presented them a boot and wishbone in silver. Miss Helen Kingsley presented them a silver rolling pin. These items are symbolic of marriages in England.

The reception was held at Rippelcove Inn. Ayer's Cliff where dinner was served. The tables were enhanced with place cards decorated with white scotch heather and silver leaves. The bride's table was centered with the traditional English fruit cake, made and decorated by Allatt's of Sherbrooke, a gift to the couple. This was square with a small round cake trimmed with roses, leaves and scroll, and with two crystal and silver champagne glasses.

Mr. Steven Allatt & Mr. Prew Savoy were M.C.'s. Toasts were proposed to the couple and to the attendants, to which the groom replied. Mrs. William Black read a paper she had composed on the courtship and marriage of John and Heather. Mr. William Black, in true Scottish manner proposed a toast to a kinsman, Mrs. Lay from Scotland.

Reg. Sayer played for dancing. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Choquette left for a weekend honeymoon in the Townships and will take a belated honeymoon holiday this summer travelling to the Western Provinces of Canada.

The bride left for her weekend trip wearing a navy, red and white printed wool jersey skirt and white wool sweater blouse under her fur coat. Her corsage was yellow bridal roses.

The couple are residing in Stanstead. Mr. Gary King, a cousin of the bride from England was in charge of the guest book at the reception.

Guests attended from England, Toronto, Oshawa, Ont., St. Jean, Lennoxville, Sherbrooke and surrounding areas.

Lamadeleine—Dustin

MR. AND MRS. C.A. LAMADELEINE

BEEBE — A pretty fall wedding was solemnized on January 19, 1974, in St. Paul's Catholic Church in Barton, Vt., at two o'clock, when Lois Jean only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dustin, of Beebe, Que., became the bride of Clement A. Lamadeleine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lamadeleine, of Barton, Vt.

Rev. (Father) William Lively officiated at the double-ring nuptial Mass, assisted by Rev. Gary Stokes, Minister of the United Church of the Three Villages, who also spoke a few words and pronounced a blessing on the couple. Miss Therese Lamadeleine, sister of the groom, read the Epistle.

Mrs. Jeannine Berard, Church organist, played the traditional music, while Guy Lamadeleine, brother of the groom, played a trumpet solo. I Love You Truly and rendered a vocal solo, Love Me Tender.

Floral arrangements were used in the church.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, was in the white gown of double organza, having a lace bodice, long full organza sleeves, ending in a high lace cuff. A cap, edged with lace held her long veil which ended in a cathedral train. She carried a colonial bouquet of red and white roses, with long ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Bert Jones, of Tomfobia, Que., a friend of the bride, as matron of honor, chose a floor-length gown of yellow crepe, made in Empire style. She carried a bouquet of blue and yellow seasonal flowers.

Best man was Rocky Lamadeleine, brother of the groom, and Guy Lamadeleine, also brother of the groom and Bert Jones, friend of the couple were ushers.

Mrs. Dustin, mother of the bride chose for her daughter's wedding a floor-length gown A-line in turquoise crepe with jeweled neckline, long chiffon sleeves, with silver accessories and a corsage of red sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Albert Lamadeleine, mother of the groom, was in a rose colored double knit, street-length dress, with white lace yoke, yellow rose corsage and toning accessories.

Red rose boutonnieres were worn by the gentlemen in the bridal party.

Following the ceremony, the reception followed at the United Church, Beebe, where a buffet lunch was served by the church ladies.

The table was centered with a three-tier cake, the second and top layer being separated by small cornices, done in yellow roses, green leaves on white icing. The cake was made by Mrs. Gaston Mongeau. Blue and yellow decorations were used in the dining room.

Guests attended from Burlington, Barton, West Glover, Beebe Plain, Vt., and Beebe, Que.

Mr. and Mrs. Lamadeleine are residing in Newport, Vt., for the present.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Skin cancer cures

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can a person who has had a malignant tumor removed (skin cancer) truly be considered cured with no need for periodic checkup or a full exam to be sure it has not spread to other areas? If not, what specialist should be seen?

DEAR READER — Almost all skin cancers can be cured completely if they are removed completely soon enough. I sometimes think the public doesn't realize just how much can be done in a high percentage of cancer cases today. In almost every instance the best hope is from the earliest possible detection and cure.

A malignant mole on the skin is very dangerous and must be treated immediately for the best outlook. Most other skin tumors are slow growing. If all the abnormal cells are removed by treatment — cutting it out or burning it off — it is cured. There are some advantages to cutting the area out. The tissue can then be examined carefully under a microscope to confirm just what kind of skin cancer it is and to identify normal tissue all around the tumor to ensure its complete removal.

With early, uncomplicated skin cancers, complete removal usually doesn't require any further follow-up. However, a person who has had one skin cancer is more likely to have another one. Any suspicious spots on the skin should be seen by a dermatologist, or your family physician can remove them, or he may elect to send you to a surgeon. Some spots that are really not yet cancer, but the kind that may become cancer, can be removed by various skin ointments now available.

Not only can many cancers be cured, but a lot of them can be prevented. Number one on the list here is most cases of lung cancer. You can prevent these by not smoking. Many skin cancers can be prevented by avoiding excess exposure of the skin to sun, wind and the elements. Chronic irritation of the skin, particularly from the sun, causes changes in the skin that can become skin cancer.

By Ann Landers

Gramps should speak up!

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 74-year-old reader, male, and have been wanting to write to you for about a year. I asked my neighbor if she thought I should and she said, "Wait a few months and some other nut will write in with the same problem." Well, I've been waiting and nobody has — so here it is:

I have 12 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. God bless them. They like to come to Grandpa's house and I enjoy having them. But my dear wife passed on in 1971 and the housekeeper can't see very well, or she doesn't want to. Anyway, Ann, I have a secret complaint against these kids and I am going to tell them read it in the paper. They never miss your column.

I keep the air conditioning and the heat adjusted the way I like it. When they come in they fiddle with the thermostat and upset the temperature. Then they monkey with my TV and get it out of focus. My radio is set to the station I enjoy, but they change it to a rock station. My typewriter is busted, which is why I am writing this by hand.

I don't need to sign my name. They know who I am. Thanks, Ann — Gramps

Dear Gramps: So much for your appliances. Are your vocal cords also out of commission?

If your young relatives are steady readers they will see themselves here today. But why do so many of you want me to do your dirty work? Speak up, Gramps.

Dear Ann Landers: You have made plenty of trouble for me and I want you to know it. It's hard enough to be a step-mother — now I've got double trouble because Ann Landers says, "A high school student should be able to date if she is dependable and has a sense of responsibility."

My step-daughter is in high school. She is only 14 but has the body of an 18-year-old. The problem is she has the mind of a 10-year-old. We have told her no dating in cars until she is 16. All hell broke out around here when your column appeared.

Thanks for nothing. — Reader From The Old School

Dear O.S.: Go back and read my advice again. Then read it to your step-daughter. I said a high school girl who has integrity and a record of dependability should be permitted to date.

According to your letter, that child has neither. You're on solid ground, Mother. Don't let her beat you down.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you ran a letter from a guy who enjoys dressing up in women's clothes. He complained that the mail-order catalogues (his best source) don't show anything feminine because the dames in this country have gone nutty over pants, mannish shirts, denim and suede. He can't order anything in silk or chiffon with ruffles and frills and he's not getting his kicks.

Your advice was, "Buy the fabrics yourself and find a seamstress who can keep her mouth shut."

It's people like you who make trouble for people like us. By suggesting that he find a seamstress who can "keep her mouth shut" you plant the idea that there is something evil about a man wearing feminine apparel in the privacy of his own home. If I (and millions of others) enjoy it, whom does it hurt? You owe us all an apology.

— Another Way Dear Way: O.K. I apologize. Buy your own fabrics and find a seamstress with a big mouth.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What To Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Prosperity Rebekah Lodge

COWANSVILLE — The second bi-monthly meeting of January was held on the 21st and the first bi-monthly meeting of February was held on the 4th in the Masonic Hall at 910 Main St.

The meetings were opened by the Noble Grand, Sister Edith Fuller and assisted by the Vice Grand, Sister Donna Luce. There was an average attendance of thirty members. We had five visitors at the January meeting and they were introduced and welcomed.

The Degree team took over the meeting at this point and conferred the Degree on Mrs. Bernice Thomas of East Farnham. The Noble Grand, Sister Fuller thanked the Degree team and then returned to the business meeting.

Sister Betty Pow gave her sick committee report. She had remembered Sisters Gwen Stowe, Dorothy McKell, and Ruth Miele. She had also visited Sis. Hazel Cunningham who is back in the hospital.

Sister Mary Knight told us of a visit she'd had from Brother and Sister Norman Waldron of Montreal and their daughter Debra. The members were sorry to hear that their daughter, Cindy, is to be moved from the Butters Home where she is receiving excellent care. Our best wishes go to Bro. and Sis. Waldron.

Communications: A letter was received concerning Camp Neofa which is located in the States but opened to boys and girls of 10-18 years of age in Canada as well as the States. The Oddfellows Lodge in Granby will pay transportation costs for qualified boys and girls in this area. Our Lodges are asked to sponsor a boy or girl to go to this camp which is considered a very worthwhile project. A donation was sent to the Canadian Save the Children Fund.

Reports of Committees: Plans were completed for a 500 Card Party to be held on Feb. 16. Admission is $1.00. Refreshments will be served and there will be prizes and a door prize. The Fund-raising committee asked the members' opinion on having a Hot Dish Supper some time in March. This will be decided at our next meeting.

New Business: Sister Ruth Miele announced that she will no longer be the Matron at the Edith Kathman Home in West Brom. She is leaving on March 16. Anyone who is interested in the position of Matron of the Edith Kathman Home is asked to make application to Mr. F.G. Hyland, 1100 Lyall Ave., Montreal, Que. We wish Sister Ruth a great deal of good luck in her new position in a nursing home in St. Lambert.

Good of The Order: Sister Edith Fuller thanked the Sisters who filled in for the absent offices. Sister Beryl Brown thanked the members for the gift given her while she was away. It was nice to have Sister Beryl back with us. Sister Donna Luce asked permission to borrow our Military Whist flags for a card party that Unit. F. of the United Church is planning.

There being no further business to be brought before the members, Lodge was closed in ritual form. The members retired to the dining room for refreshments served by the hostesses Sisters Faye Taylor and Shirley Vaughan.

The next meeting will be held on February 18.

Council meetings

Rock Island

ROCK ISLAND — At the last Rock Island Council meeting, Mayor Edouard Girard and the aldermen, concerned about no action by the Department of Highways at the Highway 55 and Dewey street intersection at Stanstead, have decided to push the matter.

Since the highway was opened a few years ago, there have been well over 50 accidents, several fatal, so a resolution was approved, similar to the one a year ago, asking that action be taken immediately for the construction of an overpass intersection.

Furthermore, the council will send copies of this resolution to all neighboring municipalities asking them to make similar requests and forward them to Georges Vaillancourt, MNA for this area.

The council would like the support of individuals and organizations to back up the resolutions with letters. This is out of the jurisdiction of the council, but it is an idea.

New chairs for the council table, an issue that has been hanging fire for several years, was brought up again on Monday evening. Alderman Robert Alger presented a catalogue and the matter was left in the hands of a committee to bring in samples and prices.

A resolution was approved raising the car mileage rates used on town business from 13 to 15 cents a mile.

Alderman F. Maclure pointed out that Albert Simoneau had been chairman of the area Industrial Committee and that this position had been vacant since his declination to seek reelection to the council last November. As Rock Island's second delegate, Mr. Maclure was asked to contact Mr. Simoneau to get the summary of the work done during 1973 and if possible to get the committee on an active basis again.

Street lighting continues to be a problem in Rock Island. Alderman Alger volunteered to survey the town to locate where old lights can be replaced with mercury vapor to the best advantage.

While discussing better lighting on Main street, which should be improved after the liquor store is opened, it was suggested that the banks be approached about staying open on Thursdays rather than closing at 6 p.m. This would be an added incentive for shoppers as well as for cashing pay cheques.

Chief of police, Ronald Ticehurst, was complimented on receiving an excellent mark from the police school examinations.

Complaints of pot holes and ice on Foundry Hill was taken up with the town superintendent. He noted that the ice had been removed once again but a new drainage system would have to be undertaken for this area the coming summer.

He was instructed to get a load of cold patch as soon as possible to fill the pot holes.

A donation of $200 was authorized as a grant to the Three Villages Swim School project.

Beebe

La Jeunesse street were purchased and Councillor L. Gagnon was appointed to act for the municipality as to signing of deeds.

An interested taxpayer was seeking information regarding the sale of the former convent for education and recreation. He was referred to the proper authority in this regard.

Several bills were presented. These included the repairs to the pump on the fire engine, as well as many for supplies and town employees' wages. These were voted to be paid.

Notification has been received that the former boys' school, now owned by the Stanstead County Historical Society is tax exempted, as well as the Ogden Municipal gravel pit, which is located in the municipality of Beebe.

Credits were given to tenants who have moved from high priced apartments to lower priced ones or persons having given up occupying tenements entirely. This is for rental tax purposes.

The Control Center, manned by Mr. V. Federico, will be aided in paying one-half of the expenses of the operation of the center with Rock Island.

A substantial amount was taken in on traffic violations.

A claim notice was received for bills incurred by a person who fell on the icy street and suffered injuries. This will be dealt with when all bills are in.

The new bylaw states that tax bills go out the first of the year, from January first to March first and all taxes must be paid by December first or the property will be sent in for tax sale.

At a special meeting held recently, all town employees were granted a salary increase. The valuation roll to be sent to County Council by March first. Two tires are to be purchased for the town tractor.

A busy session was brought to a close by adjournment.

Besides his parents he leaves to mourn his passing two sisters, Anita, Mrs. Faramarz Samandari, Dr. Samandari and their son Kiumars, Tabriz, Iran and Cathryn, Mrs. Wm. Davidson, Mr. Davidson, and their children Colin and Melanie of Sutton.

The funeral was held from his home at Grace Anglican Church on January 8, Rev. Canon Brett officiating assisted by Rev. Burn Purdon of the United Church. The bearers were Gregory Townsend, Stephen Gendron, Peter Marsh, Michael Goyette, Barry Keefe, and Mark Monette, all close friends. Sabres move closer to last play-off berth with 4-2 win over Los Angeles

While Los Angeles Kings revelled in their victory in a minor battle Thursday night, Buffalo Sabres won the war.

The Kings, down 3-0 at one stage, lost 4-2 to the Sabres who moved within seven points of fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs and the final playoff berth in the National Hockey League's East Division.

After the Kings scored their first goal at 10:38 of the final period, they asked for a measurement of Buffalo goalie Rocky Farr's stick.

The Kings won their point, Farr was given a two-minute penalty, putting the Sabres two men short at 11:05, and the team was fined $200 for the illegal stick.

But the Kings didn't score with Mike Robitaille and Doug Rombough, representing Farr, in the penalty box.

In other games, Philadelphia Flyers tied New York Rangers 4-4 and New York Islanders battled to a 2-2 draw with St. Louis Blues.

The Flyers, leading the West Division, now have 76 points, seven more than Chicago Black Hawks. The Blues are tied for third with Atlanta Flames, both with 52 points, two ahead of the Kings.

Sabres 4 Kings 2
Gil Perreault scored on an empty net with 20 seconds remaining to clinch Buffalo's win.

Rene Robert, Craig Ramsay and Rene Robert scored the other Buffalo goals. Dan Maloney and Frank St. Marseille connected for Los Angeles.

"It looked to me like a big stick all through the game," said coach Bob Pulford of the Kings. "But I thought I'd wait until the proper time to protest."

"It's the first time I've ever been in this kind of trouble," said

Farr, whose stick was an eighth of an inch wider at the blade than the regulation 3 1/2 inches. "The stick was one of a batch of new ones I was using for the first time tonight."

Flyers 4 Rangers 4

Third-period goals by Rick MacLeish, Simon Nolet and Bill Barber enabled the Flyers to tie the Rangers.

The Rangers had a 3-1 first-period lead on goals by Steve Vickers, Bobby Rousseau and Pete Stenkowski. Bobby Clarke got his 26th goal for the Flyers at 15:25 of the first. Vic Hadfield scored for the Rangers at 3:01 of the second.

Islanders 2 Blues 2

The Islanders extended the Blues' winless streak to seven games, six defeats and a tie, when Ed Westfall scored at 9:15 of the second period.

Finley sells Seals

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Charles Finley hinted he made a profit by selling his hockey team, California Golden Seals, then returned to the arbitration table where his Oakland A's baseball players are seeking more money.

"I still think hockey is a great sport," the Chicago insurance millionaire said Thursday after the Golden Seals were turned over to the National Hockey League for more than $6 million.

The Seals, who left Oakland today on a road trip, are last in the Western Division and average only 5,000 fans a game at home.

Finley bought the team in 1970 for a reported $4.5 million.

"Any time Finley can sell something and say he's satisfied, that speaks for itself," he said when asked if the selling price covered his losses.

BANDO ARGUES
Finley discussed the sale at a news conference after third baseman Sal Bando of the A's argued during arbitration that he should receive $100,000 this coming season.

"It was very easy," Bando said after the two-hour hearing before arbitrator Paul Hanlon of Portland, Ore.

Finley, who suffered a heart attack last summer, has been advised by doctors to sell all his sports teams. He still owns the American Basketball Association Memphis Tams, as well as the A's.

Finley said his main concern when he bought the Seals was to keep the team in the San Francisco Bay area. The NHL, whether it keeps the team or sells it to another party, also intends to keep the franchise in the area.

James Cullen, a St. Louis lawyer who will be one of the Seals' new directors, said a news conference Saturday in Oakland will reveal any changes in the team's operation.

Fred Glover, now coach and general manager, is expected to lose at least one of the jobs.

Mixed Bonspiel gets underway here Sunday

SHERBROOKE — The annual Sherbrooke Mixed Bonspiel gets underway Sunday afternoon at the local club with a field of 36 rinks from all over the Townships competing for the trophies and top prizes.

Two trophies, the Ernie Taylor Memorial and the L.G. Balfour Company, will be up for grabs, with the former slated as the main event and the Balfour silverware will go to the winners in the consolation section.

The first shift is slated for Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. with R. Robson of Granby-St. Paul taking on S. Allatt of Sherbrooke.

The Blues took a 2-0 lead early in the first when Gordie Brooks and Greg Polis beat goalie Billy Smith. Billy Harris reduced the margin with his 13th goal of the season at 13:44 of the opening period.

Action tonight has Detroit at Montreal and Boston in Vancouver.

Toros join Whalers in first

For the first time since last October, New England Whalers have company atop the World Hockey Association East Division standings.

All it took was a day off for the Whalers Thursday and a 5-2 victory by Toronto Toros over New Jersey Knights.

The win gave the Toros 62 points, the same as the Whalers, although Toronto has played three more games than New England.

Quebec Nordiques also helped to tighten the race by defeating Chicago Cougars 5-3. The Nordiques trail the co-leaders by one point and have a six-point margin over fourth-place Cleveland Crusaders.

The Cougars are fifth with 53 points, five more than the Knights, who lost 5-4 at home to the Toros last Sunday.

The Whalers, with two wins and five defeats in their last seven starts, are expected to have trouble holding onto their share of the lead. They play 15 of their remaining 22 games on the road.

However, they get an opportunity to regain sole possession of first place when they visit Edmonton tonight for a contest against the slumping Oilers, currently on a five-game losing streak.

Toros 5 Knights 2

The Toros took a 1-0 lead in the first period and increased their margin to 4-1 after the second.

Rick Sentes scored two goals, to match last season's total of 22, and assisted on Tom Martin's 18th to lead the Toros before 1,091 fans in Cherry Hill, N.S.

Tom Simpson, his 30th and Wayne Dillon, his 21st, scored the other Toronto goals.

Kevin Morrison and Ken Block replied for the Knights.

The Toros, known as Ottawa Nationals in 1972-73, finished fourth last year, 20 points behind the first-place Whalers.

Nordiques 5 Cougars 3
"We have a seven-game road trip coming, five against the East, and this will determine our playoff spot," said Quebec coach Jacques Plante in a recent interview.

Thursday's game was the fifth in a row on the road for the Nordiques and it was their third win against two defeats.

"We have a nine-game winning streak at home, but I feel we need 83 points to assure a playoff spot," Plante said.

The Nordiques had trouble with the Cougars and managed only a 2-1 lead after two periods. However, Rejean Houle, Rejean Giroux and Michel Parizeau—his second of the game—connected in the final 20 minutes to give the Nordiques their 29th win in 57 starts.

For Houle, sidelined for several games with a groin injury, it was his 18th goal of the season. For Giroux, it was goal No. 1 in his first game of the year.

Dale Hoganson got the other Quebec goal.

Another wrestling card in Johnville

JOHNVILLE — Another excellent wrestling program is on tap here Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in the community center.

The first match of the evening is a tag team event with Denis Bergeron of Sherbrooke and Robert (Bob) Chase from Lake St. John facing Grant the Great from the Gaspé and Jerome (Crazy) Fullum of Quebec.

In the second match the very popular Roger Guillemette of Drummondville will pit his experience against big Dick Van Dyke of Lancaster, New Hampshire.

The semi-final is a two of three falls to the finish with John Patterson facing Raymond Biron, making his first appearance in Johnville this season.

The final is another two out of three falls, no time limit, for the provincial tag team belt. Tex Harrison and Stan Crawford of Boston will try to regain the championship from Richard Cote and the Belgian, Bruno Sophia, which they lost in Richmond two months ago.

PROVINCIAL CHAMPION — John Patterson, provincial champion, accompanied by his manager Lou Intelligence, will be in Johnville Saturday in a semi-final bout against Raymond Biron.

Canadians eliminated in tennis

TORONTO (CP) — Keith Carpenter of Toronto and Tony Bardsley of Vancouver, the last remaining Canadians in the Toronto international tennis tournament, were eliminated from doubles play Thursday.

The pair, sidelined earlier in singles action, were defeated 6-2, 6-4 in second-round doubles play by Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia and Allan Stone of Australia.

The Canadian pair was unable to cope with Pilic's strong forehand.

"They were returning long and hard," said Carpenter. Canada's No. 1-ranked player. "They just served and returned so well."

"Pilic's forehand was just amazing," said Bardsley. "Once you get behind them, they really start to open up. We were jumping around all over the place out there."

In earlier second-round singles matches, Pilic, the No. 5 seed, was upset by unseeded Erik van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif., 6-2, 6-4.

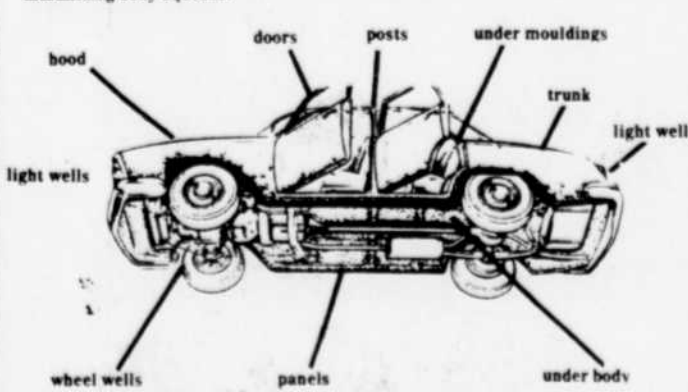

Van Dillen, known more for his doubles play with Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash., had relatively little difficulty getting past the Yugoslav.

Strong net play enabled No. 8 seed Marty Riessen of Chicago to defeat Patrick Proisy of France 7-6, 6-2.

Riessen broke Proisy's service in the 12th game of the first set.

Who needs a lesson? Chances are you do. Taking a lesson from a licensed CSA pro is one of the best bargains in skiing.

Taking lessons reduces the chance of hurting yourself on the slopes. A survey by the Canadian Ski Patrol System reveals that skiers who had taken lessons suffered fewer injuries. Members of the CSA are extensively trained in the best way to teach you to ski. A pro will also help with advice on equipment and clothing. Lessons are also a quick way of getting to know a whole bunch of people.

Lessons can really help when you're at that intermediate stage but somehow get bogged down and can't get through to the next level. A good pro will analyse what's holding you up and a morning spent with him will probably be the boost that improves your skiing overnight.

WATERLOO — The February Waterloo-Warden Women's Institute meeting was held on the 6th at the home of Mrs. C. Bowker in Warden. The President, Mrs. L. Maynes, welcomed the members and one guest, then led in the singing of the Ode and recitation of the Creed.

In answering the roll call each member named a Canadian woman outstanding in politics, art or entertainment.

Minutes of the January meeting were read and approved. Correspondence included letters of thanks for Christmas gifts, donation to the cafeteria of the Waterloo Elementary School, for scrap books sent to children in the Stoke Hospital, and for birthday cards. Miss C. Montford handed in a letter which she had received from the Junior Red Cross, expressing thanks for the used postage stamps which she had collected and sent in to this organization; proceeds from the sale of these stamps are used to help finance their Youth Service Program.

The Treasurer, Mrs. Mary Sicard, presented the financial report. A donation was voted for the work of the Save the Children Fund.

The Care package, donated by Mrs. A. Marcotte, was won by Mrs. C. Thompson.

A report on the Semi-annual meeting was given by Mrs. M. Sicard who had attended this event in her capacity of County President.

A discussion was held on entry of articles for both the Tweedsmuir and J.P. Coats handicrafts contests, also discussion on the forthcoming annual meeting when reports for all convenerships are to be presented.

Home Economics convener, Mrs. H. Smith, read an article from the Consumers' Report about the quality of containers used in the commercial canning of fruit.

Welfare and Health, Mrs. M. Hilliker, gave hints on the Eating of Meat.

Mrs. Maynes thanked our hostess, Mrs. Bowker, for her hospitality, then turned the meeting over to Mrs. G. George, Citizenship convener. Mrs.

George conducted a contest Quebec Place Names: Miss Ashton and Mrs. Copping won prizes.

The hostesses, Mrs. A. Bazinet and Mrs. C. Thompson served delicious refreshments.

The March meeting (Please note that this is our Annual meeting) will be held on March 6 at the home of Mrs. A. Bazinet.

The Annual Convention will be the end of May at Macdonald College. Interim convener reports should be sent every six months, January and June; the saving of stamps for Operation Eyesight Project in Australia.

There will be three Provincial Convenerships vacant this year — agriculture, education and publicity. Brome will be entering the drama contest this year.

There is a new rose named in honor of a former WI member, Abbie Pritchard. Through an endowment to QWI by Miss Pritchard, members who are honored by their branch receive beautiful shawls. More contact between provincial and branch executives would create better understanding. Our Collect is a wonderful Motto.

Mrs. Ruby Moore reported that our Forgotten Patient at Douglas Hospital will soon be able to leave. Also she reported that she had sent a box to a branch at Inuvik, N.W.T.

CONVENERS' REPORTS

Agriculture — Mrs. Harvey reported a new processing project for food and a better outlook for farmer's income for 1974. A bit of alcohol will kill aphids on plants.

Citizenship — Mrs. Shepardson: "We can each help the energy problem in our own little corner. A new holiday in February is to be called Heritage Day. How much do we really know about our own country?"

Education — Mrs. Riordon: The lot of the teachers looks a little brighter at present. She also read an article about a teacher of very young children in a Montreal school who was nicknamed "Miss Apple Daisy" because her name was difficult for the children to remember. When she finished, one of our members said that she learned Grade 1 from Miss Apple Daisy. Small world eh?

Publicity — Mrs. Short read an article from Mrs. McLean, president of F.W.I.C. about Women's Lib.

Welfare & Health — Mrs. Symington reported that damp heat is the best treatment for frost bite — never use snow or intense dry heat.

Home Economics — Mrs. Corey had invited Mrs. Giroux, a sewing-class teacher, who gave some very interesting hints on effective dressing and sewing. A woman can always look well if she carefully chooses style and color suitable to her type. Harmony is the keynote.

The meeting adjourned and members chose the recipe they wanted from a basket filled with the roll call "Bring a copy of your favorite cookie or cake recipe, for exchange." Lunch and a social hour followed.

DUNHAM — The February meeting of the Dunham Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. R. Paul on Wednesday, February 6.

The meeting was opened at 8:15 p.m. by the President, Mrs. W. Doherty and the members repeated the Collect in unison. The President extended a very warm welcome to everyone especially the County President, Mrs. Irene Williams. Fourteen members answered the roll call by telling about something they would like to see put into next year's program.

The minutes of the January meeting were read by the Secretary, Mrs. C. Harvey.

The following Convener reports were given.

Agriculture: Mrs. C. Martin read a humorous article called "Fanny Warner".

Education: Mrs. J. Ellis read an item from the Montreal Star entitled Classification - a mixed solution.

Publicity: Mrs. D. Vaughan read an article from Woman's Day entitled Controlling your car in emergencies.

Sunshine: Mrs. R. Paul gave a report on her funds and had the members sign a Get-Well card for Mrs. D. Quigley who had been in a car accident.

Mrs. D. Vaughan, Publicity Convener, announced that the Rebekahs in Cowansville will hold a 500 card party on Sat., Feb. 16 in their hall at 910 Main St.

The President appointed Mrs. R. Paul and Mrs. C. Martin as auditors and Mrs. J. Ellis and Mrs. D. Vaughan as the nominating committee. The President also asked that each member bring a suggestion for the motto and roll call to our next meeting.

Mrs. Laduke crocheted three beautiful doilies and donated them to our branch to be used for fund-raising. The President extended our thanks to Mrs. Laduke.

The President, Mrs. W. Doherty, then introduced the County President, Mrs. Irene Williams, who gave us an interesting report on a board meeting that she had attended in Montreal. She told us there would soon be WI pens available and that we should order them immediately if we are interested. It was decided that we would order three dozen.

Mrs. Williams also told us that the convener must send their interim reports in to the County convener twice a year, in January and July. Mrs. Williams announced the annual convention will be held on May 28-29-30-31 at Macdonald College.

Mrs. W. Doherty thanked the County President for her interesting remarks and declared the meeting adjourned. The members enjoyed the delicious refreshments served by Mrs. R. Paul.

The next meeting will be held on March 6 at the home of Mrs. R.S. Selby.

SPooner Pond — The regular meeting of the Spooner Pond Branch WI was held on February 7 at the home of Mrs. W. Parkes. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. E. Hutchings, Mrs. W. Coles and Mrs. R. Fleck.

Roll call was answered by 17 members, who had each brought six cupcakes, decorated for Valentine's Day. These were judged by Mrs. Hutchings and Mrs. E. Lyster, who awarded the prize to Mrs. W. Fraser. The cupcakes were later given to the Wales Home for their Friday afternoon tea.

Mrs. Biggs, for the Program Committee, read the new program for the first time. It will be read again at the March meeting.

The Ditty bags are to be packed in April this year. The Treasurer, Mrs. Parkes, gave a very satisfactory financial report. Bills were paid. Correspondence was read, this consisting mainly of notes of thanks for cheer boxes, etc.

Cowansville old folks have new service to benefit from COWANSVILLE (Special) — Cowansville now disposes of a new service, initiated by a Local Initiatives Program. It is called ALPA and was conceived to help the aged in their many needs.

Some ten persons are working on this community project which covers the town of Cowansville and the surroundings.

This project is formed of three sections closely linked together. The first one consists of a census of all elderly people residing in Cowansville.

To this effect, a group of young women, experienced in social assistance, will call on the aged for information regarding their health, their living conditions, their social position and above all, their needs.

During the inventory, special attention will be paid to the assistance these aged persons need to keep up their living quarters, household tasks, urgent repairs, etc. On the other hand the survey will also be mindful of the too often heavy solitude of the aged.

ALPA has resource persons who will set up a program of social activities. In time, the responsibility for the organization of different activities will be transferred to the aged themselves.

In this perspective, program activities will become creative in many aspects, since such a project will be animated by the young of the community and their goal will be to motivate the aged, according to their capacities, to the awareness of the fact that the old still have a role to play, a task to accomplish. It is understood that no activities will be forced on the aged, on the contrary, the aged themselves will determine their own needs in this matter.

The results of the survey will be served as a base for the preparation of a study concerning the solitude of the elderly and possible means to correct this situation. A report of this study will be forwarded to various authorities.

The second phase of this project will concern choice of activities inciting the elderly still capable of some form of social activities to leave their small quarters and encourage contacts with other social groups.

The goal of the third phase is to fill the urgent calls for help required by the aged. These services may be varied — household tasks, repairs, transportation, shopping, shovelling of snow, lawn cutting, etc. ... that is, any job that elderly people usually cannot accomplish due to physical conditions or financial incapacities.

All the aged people who desire more information on the possibilities of ALPA may call the organizers of the project at 263-5091 in Cowansville.

ALPA does not wish to come in conflict with other organizations or associations already in existence in Cowansville, but rather to link their effort towards a happier life for the elderly of this community.

Today's hand is almost the same as yesterday's. North and East have the same holding. So do South and West, except that South's spade suit is now headed by A-K instead of by Q-10.

He bids two clubs to see if North can show a four-card major, but North rebids two diamonds.

South has nine high-card points and wants to be in game so he jumps to three spades. This jump is a game force and North must bid again in spite of holding a minimum notrump.

There is a strong temptation to rebid three notrump with North's 4-3-3-3 distribution but North is wise enough to see that the club suit may hurt a notrump contract so North raises to four spades.

Four spades turns out to be a mighty good contract and makes easily. South worries about a possible 4-1 spade break, but since he doesn't run into one he winds up losing one trump, the ace of hearts and one club.

Three notrump would not be successful. East would open a club and the best North could do would be to collect eight tricks and wind up one trick short.

Do you recall the Variety Shows of other years for which Danville was well-known? There is still a wealth of hidden talent among the citizens, and the members of Golden Rule Lodge, IOOF invite you to come to the Town Hall on Feb. 15 for the plans for one of these shows was completed at their regular meeting last Mon. evening, Jan. 28. It was also reported at this meeting that the fire-escape at the IOOF hall would be completed as soon as a pulley was procured for the last stairs. This will be a great safety measure and one that was badly needed for the hall. Members heard the report of the Curling Day held at the Danville Curling Club. Although there was practically no curling due to the lack of electricity, all enjoyed that afternoon and evening, and, in particular, the baked bean supper served by the members of Maple Leaf Lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Beliveau were talking by phone with their daughter, Marcelle in Vancouver on Sun., Feb. 3, the occasion being her birthday. Marcelle's many friends will be pleased to know that she is able to return to work for part of each day after her recent illness.

Mrs. Frankie Hall is enjoying a holiday with her sister, Mrs. Gertrude Vogt in Hialeah, Florida. Although the weather is wonderful and she is having a marvelous time, she misses the local news, and wants the Sherbrooke Record for the duration of her visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Malboeuf of Pincoort and Mr. Yvon Gagnon of Montreal were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gillim.

Bedford

E.J. Craighead

Mr. J. Oliver Briand of Douglastown, Que., is spending some time in Bedford, a guest at the Hotel Maurice. Before returning to his home on the Gaspé Peninsula some time late in April he will visit friends and relatives in Sherbrooke. Mr. Briand is no stranger to the Eastern Townships, having been coming to this district from time to time during the past forty odd years. He wintered in the following local towns, Milan, North Hatley, Richmond, Sawyerville, Ayer's Cliff and Sherbrooke, where he has a number of relatives and finally Bedford. He finds the people in Bedford most friendly, more so than in any other part of the Province of Quebec. He has many tributes to offer to the management of the Hotel Maurice, who are making his all too brief stay a most enjoyable one, to be remembered for a long time to come.

In a recent communication Mayor Marzilli presents the following pertinent information, which will be of interest to all, and also on behalf of himself and the members of the town council, wishing a good year to the townspeople. It will be of interest to know, that in 1973 Bedford was the only town in the county that municipal valuation increased by 13 per cent to reach a taxable value of $10,400,000. In the same direction as taxable value there was an increase of 9 per cent in population to reach 3,200.

The construction of the arena and the curling club is one of the most important realizations of the city council in 1973.

In order to benefit the curling club and the arena in summer, it has been decided that the free space of the curling club will be taken to practice indoor sports, all of this, made possible by the subvention from Le Haut Commissariat des Sports and Loisirs du Quebec.

The creation of a C.L.S.C. is another great step in the line of programme of Bedford during 1973. The increasing amount of housing construction left no choice to the Town Council, but to accelerate the development of municipal services.

For the coming years, many projects are already in the progress of being realized. A new fire station will be built, the renovation of our local hospital will soon be under realization, the Town Council is now studying the possibility of a project for the renewal of main street.

Recently Heward Graftey, M.P., has announced to the town's citizens that a local initiative project is scheduled to start in the first week of January which will bring three outdoor rinks for a two months period. These are certainly good for all of the town.

In the industrial expansion sector, the hiring of an industrial commissioner, proceeding already in progress with the participation of the Ministry of Industry, Glen Brown, provincial parliament and the Town Council are many factors that will help Bedford in that sector, and will certainly bring concrete results in the next year.

Nineteen hundred and seventy-four surely will be one of Bedford's most advantageous years.

The annual meeting of Missisquoi Chapter, IOOE was held at two o'clock in the afternoon on February 11th, at the home of Mrs. Ralph Oakes. A letter had been received from Mrs. D.M. Holmes, Pointe Claire asking for suggestions on a number of points with the idea of increasing the scope of the work of the IOOE. Some of the questions were, to be a stronger force in the life of our country - how can we manage this unless our membership increases and what is suggested to accomplish this as we seem to be approaching a welfare state. Should Services look for new avenues and what do you suggest - should we become a more activist group, i.e. concerned with controversial questions and issues. As the educational scene changes, should we look for non-traditional ways of working in this field. These were only some of the questions which were up for discussion at the annual meeting.

Crusader for women's rights has some good advice

By JEAN SHARP
TORONTO (CP) — If things are going to change, women are going to have to get serious about getting power, says Laura Sabia.

"Women must get into politics."

"We have to get women in places of decision making."

Mrs. Sabia has become gadfly extraordinary on behalf of the women of Canada, whether they like it or not. Her latest base for attack is as chairman of Ontario's status of women council, appointed in the fall.

Mrs. Sabia has a long list of involvements with volunteer groups on St. Catharines in her background. She has been a school trustee, an alderman, a defeated candidate for mayor and for member of Parliament. She ran a lively hot-line show for several years.

She rocketed onto the national scene in 1965, gathering up women's groups in the go-go whirl of talk and bustle that has become her trade mark.

USED AS BASE

She was president of the Canadian Federation of University Women then and used that as a base to draw women's groups together for a push that resulted in the establishment of the royal commission on the status of women.

"I accepted the university women's presidency because I thought that's a way I can get to women."

"I had no sooner taken it on than I realized they weren't going to support me. But at least I had the office. Women have to wield power if they're going to get anywhere."

"In my own federation, a few applauded, but some didn't. I was unladylike. People wrote to say they were going to turn in their membership cards."

"But we got the job done. The national women's groups got the commission because they all pulled together. Governments love it when you stay separate."

This need for women to get to where it matters is a constant theme in her conversation nowadays and in her work with her 17-member council.

"I've done all the voluntary work you could think of, the Y, university women, home and school."

"Voluntary work is often an exercise in futility. I've been on 15 deputations to government of one kind and another."

and I can't point my finger at very much that has changed."

"I'd done all this while raising our four children. So I thought, well, I'm not going to do any more."

QUIT SCHOOL BOARD

She was elected to the separate school board and quit because after a few years she developed a conviction that there should not be two school systems.

She served seven years as an alderman.

"I always led the polls. But when I ran for mayor, women said, don't you think being mayor is a man's job? Or my husband says."

"I was defeated."

She ran as a Conservative in the 1968 federal election.

"Then I decided that, at my age, I had done politics."

Mrs. Sabia is 57.

Since the day of her appointment to the chairmanship of the status council, Mrs. Sabia has said she will quit if it is ineffective.

"I've been appointed for two years. If it's effective, and I'm asked, I'll stay on."

"I'm in the fortunate position of not having to give a damn. I don't have to work."

"If we can move governments and the private sector, we'll be successful. We now have one woman deputy minister. There now are three women on the economic council out of 24. That's an improvement, but we need 10."

'FED UP'

"I'm fed up with people like W. E. McLaughlin of the Royal Bank who tell me it takes 10 to 15 years to develop a woman before she can be appointed to the board of directors."

"Women have to be in places of power."

"People tell me women don't want it, but I think our young women do want it. Women are not having babies at the rate they did. We're not spending our lives dependent on the product of our wombs."

"We're going to have to treat women as people."

"That's why I lash out at my own church. I get angry because there's this all male clergy making decisions about women. I don't understand Catholic women who put up with this sort of thing."

"I found marriage confining for a woman. I can say it now because my children are grown up. They're all university graduates and turned out well."

Promising poet began writing at early age

By IAIN MacLEOD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

"I wrote my first poem in Grade 1," said Sid Marty. "I would have written sooner but I had to learn the alphabet first."

Today, at 29, Marty is described as one of Canada's most promising young poets.

Marty leads the seemingly ideal existence for a poet, working as a warden in Banff National Park, a way of life which inspired much of the poetry in his collection, titled Headwaters.

Most days he gets ideas out on the trail, makes notes and works them into poems back at the cabin. In Headwaters, he reveals a vivid talent for recapturing the many faces and moods of his wild environment.

SUBJECTS VARY

He leads the reader from the solitude and peacefulness of summer evenings, through reflections of imposing mountains to chilling chance encounters with bears on the trail.

In the poem Three Bears, Marty writes of one frightening meeting with a 600-pound grizzly:

"He sounds me, stops at twenty paces . . . to consider his next move."

"Speak to this bear . . . for he may know you . . . said a voice . . . in my frozen senses."

"So I spoke softly . . . in his fierce hiatus . . . a deep and secret language . . . of love and claws."

"Dropping on all fours, he grunted . . . and moving aside . . . ascended the hill!"

Marty describes the horrifying experience of fighting forest fires and the perils facing the men who try to control them.

"Fanned by wind the trees candled . . . like blocks of paraffin . . . Heat sucked water into steam . . . and scalded the nozzlemen, drove them . . . crying and cursing like pygmies before it!"

Many of the poems centre on the animals in the life of a park warden, especially his sole means of transport, the horse. Others are more personal. But over-all, the collection is one man's view of nature.

Marty was born in England but moved to Medicine Hat, Alta., at an early age. He graduated from university in Montreal in 1967 curtailing a graduate studies course at University of Calgary after a year to concentrate on poetry and working as a park warden.

His poems have been anthologized in several publications in recent years and selected poems have been published in literary magazines in Canada.

IODE goes all out to find worthwhile programs

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — The IODE has called in market researchers and computers to help them find ways to shape new programs and allow each chapter to tailor them to its own community.

Mrs. K. J. C. Dean, the order's president, says they may have to jettison some projects they have carried for years and find new ways to organize their work.

"The IODE has never been oriented to pilot projects, partly because we don't like to let things die when we have worked on them. But I feel we must learn to step in and do something and get out."

The reshaping process began with a two-day seminar with a communications counsellor. An executive committee was set up under Mrs. K. A. McCartney to decide what to do next.

They first decided the IODE needs a fresh, sharply focused national identity. They have chosen to make the Canadian family the centre of their work. For 1975, when the organization will be 75 years old, concern for children will be the theme.

Mrs. McCartney said the organization is investigating areas such as drugs and alcoholism, single parents and senior citizens as possible themes for other years.

All the order's work and the work of individual chapters is being reviewed to find out what can be retained or reshaped, what might be dropped and what new programs will be created to fit under the umbrella.

The committee also decided that all new programs must be tailored to each chapter. When they are set up, there will be suggestions for programs based partly on the size of chapters.

Mrs. McCartney explained: "If we do single parents, for instance, a chapter in a small town would probably not work with unmarried mothers. The girls tend to clear out of small towns if they are pregnant. But that chapter might be able to work with people who are divorced or widowed."

FEED COMPUTER

The first step has been to send a questionnaire to all 800 chapters to find out what they are doing now. Mrs. McCartney said if they get enough replies they will feed them to a computer to be looked at in terms of geographical areas and community size.

"It will be tabulated to tell us, for instance, whether a small town in British Columbia is interested in the same things as a small town in New Brunswick."

They hope to have the replies in, the tabulation done and some plans based on results to be presented at the annual meeting in Toronto in May so there is time for changes to be in effect by 1975.

Mrs. Dean said many of the projects the IODE has worked on over its 75 years have been things now taken care of by agencies or governments.

"But there are new needs, and we have interested volunteers, so we want a meeting point."
