

GREAT BRITAIN LAUNCHING OWN SECRET WEAPON

Germans Howl As British Extend Chemical Fight

First Real Secret Weapon of War Comprises Little Paper Cards Soaked in Inflammable Chemicals Igniting When Dry—Causes Heavy Damage to Woodlands, Fields and to Clothes of Souvenir Hunters.

(By GUY RHOADES, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The Royal Air Force pounded Berlin today, raining bombs on the Potsdam railway station, the Reichstag building, the Brandenburg Gate and Unter den Linden. In London Buckingham Palace underwent repairs to one wing, blasted yesterday when a time bomb, buried in the ground, exploded without hurting anyone.

German authorities found the British raid no fun and ordered a number of streets in the diplomatic area roped off and closed for fear collapsing buildings might bury citizens. Among the missiles that fell were hundreds of incendiary bombs.

Meanwhile, Britain unleashed the first "secret" weapon of the war against Germany, little paper cards soaked in inflammable chemicals which ignite automatically when they dry. Phosphorus was said to be their base.

Germans complained bitterly that citizens had gathered some of the missiles up and taken them home in their pockets as souvenirs, only to have the heat of their bodies ignite them and set their clothes afire.

The beauty of the new incendiary weapon is that hundreds of thousands can be carried aboard a single plane and can be scattered across the countryside like snow. It is impossible to gather all of them, and they are said to have proved invaluable in raids which set fire to German forests where war factories are concealed.

The cards burn briefly with an extremely hot flame that bursts about eight inches high.

In London citizens noted that the nightly German air raid was shorter and less violent than any for the previous three nights. They have tapered for two nights now since Sunday. Today's daylight raids also were brief and light.

Nevertheless, there was an increasing conviction that Hitler's forces will try an invasion before long. It is expected simultaneous attempts will be made from the French coast and from Norway. Swedish sources a couple of days ago reported the sinking (presumably by a British submarine) of a German troop transport in the Skagerrak, a report which the Germans laboriously denied, although they were said to be advertising in Norwegian newspapers for equipment that might be washed ashore from the vessel.

The Royal Air Force also was reported to have spotted additional concentrations of barges along the French coast at such places as Boulogne and Calais. It is the practice of the R.A.F. to let the Germans assemble these vessels in considerable numbers before they bomb them to pieces. It saves bombs when they are concentrated in large formations.

It is considered most unlikely that Germans could effect a landing in force on the British coast, but it was Continued on page 2, col. 6.

Initial Graduates Of Empire Air Plan Join Armed Forces Shortly

By FRANK FLAHERTY,

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 11.—(P)—First graduates of Canada's giant air university will be ready to take their places in the fighting forces of the Empire by the end of this month. As they leave, the Canadian schools established under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan will still be growing in number and in capacity.

Air observers will be the first air crew members ready for action. The first pilots will complete their training about a month later, with the first air gunners moving out shortly afterwards. All will be from the class which entered the first initial training school at the former Eglington Hunt Club, North Toronto, last April.

Since opening of that school, the first under the plan devoted to the training of air crews for service overseas, the air observers passed through air observers' schools where they learned about photography and mapping, through the bombing and gunnery school where they learned how to aim bombs and operate machine guns, and are now in an air navigation school learning how to pilot the course of aircraft to and from scenes of action.

The pilots left the initial training school for elementary flying training schools and then passed on to the service flying training schools in which they are now completing the advanced stages of their training.

The air gunners left the Eglington School for a lengthy course in wireless telegraphy at the first wireless school in Montreal, and, on completing that, will put in four weeks at a bombing and gunnery school.

The British Commonwealth Air Training Plan is now definitely past the stage where it can be truly described as a plan although it is still growing. It is like a snowball which started slowly on a gentle grade and rolled on to a steeper grade. The snowball grows in size as it rolls more quickly and presently bursts, flinging out fragments in all directions.

There the analogy ends for while the air training plan is about to burst and fling out increased numbers of bomber and fighter crews at the enemy forces, it will not be a sudden burst ending there. The plan will keep on flinging out its explosive human products in the direction of the enemy in ever increasing numbers.

Now young British lads are reaching Canada for training and Australians and New Zealanders are expected soon. Right now some 4,500 trainees are enrolled in the schools. Continued on page 2, col. 7.

UNITED ACTION IS URGED UPON ALL CANADIANS

Finance Minister Ilsley Points to Need of All Canadians Taking Part in Second War Loan.

Ottawa, Sept. 11.—(P)—"Canada's Second War Loan, now being sold, is a direct, emphatic appeal to the people of this country for money to arm and equip our fighting forces," Finance Minister Ilsley, said in a statement to The Canadian Press today.

"I hope there is no misunderstanding of the fact that support is needed from every man and woman who is able to subscribe.

"Here is an opportunity for the many to show how they feel about the few whose courage is winning the day for us all.

"Can any one of us forget for one moment of our waking hours Continued on page 2, col. 3.

Forty Thousand Called In First Draft For Compulsory Training

Ottawa, Sept. 11.—(P)—Approximately 40,000 men of the twenty-one-year-old class will be called by the War Services Department to provide the 29,750 physically fit men who will form the first group to be given thirty-days compulsory military training, beginning October 9.

Considering the possible percentage of men who will prove unfit, officials said 10,000 more than are scheduled to enter camps for the thirty-day period will be called.

Total figures for the twenty-one-year-old class were given as 77,983 by the Department last night when it was announced that almost 1,000,000 single men between the ages of nineteen and forty-five had registered in Canada's 243 constituencies.

There will be variations in the ratio of men called to numbers available in each district, but the Department explained this depended upon the capacity of training centres in districts.

UNITED STATES USES STANDARD AIRPLANE TYPE

Existing Types Form Basis of Orders for 14,394 Army Planes Placed Under New Programme.

Washington, Sept. 11.—(P)—A basis for type-standardization and mass production of United States military aircraft was laid today with the placing of tentative orders for 14,394 army planes in one huge lot. All the planes were expected to be virtual duplicates of models already being manufactured for the army.

One official said a majority of them would be procured simply by exercising the options in some existing contracts. Other contracts will provide for the rest.

Representing an eventual expenditure of approximately $1,251,000, the tentative orders placed yesterday cover all of the army's planes contemplated in the $5,251,000,000 Defence Act, which was signed Monday.

Besides planes, which will cost an estimated $817,000,000, the orders included 28,282 engines at $377,000,000 and an unspecified number of propellers at $57,000,000.

The navy is engaged in making contracts for 2,400 more planes provided for in the defence appropriation.

COSTLY "FREE" RIDE Chicago, Sept. 11.—(P)—A man with $1,423 in his pocket demanded a free ride on a street car because, he said, "policemen don't have to pay and I want to be a policeman for a day. Jack Serant, thirty-four, rode sixty blocks before a real policeman boarded the car and arrested him. He was charged with disorderly conduct, resisting an officer and assault and battery.

DENY CHARGES TORONTO LEADS NARCOTICS USE

Police and Judiciary Circles Take Issue with Statement of Head of Federal Narcotics Division.

Toronto, Sept. 11.—(P)—Police and city judiciary circles last night denied a statement made by Col. C. H. L. Sharran, chief of the Federal Narcotics Division, that in two years Toronto has become a "marked centre of dope addiction." Col. Sharran made the statement yesterday to the Dominion Chief Constables' Association at Halifax, but admitted "the situation is being effectively overcome."

Col. A. E. Kirkpatrick of the Board of Police Commissioners, said, "There has been a steady decrease in the distribution of narcotics in Toronto. We are keeping the proper steps along with other police bodies to keep it under control."

Judge Frank Denton of the Board of Police Commissioners, said he was confident that the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, in co-operation with provincial and city police "will be able to cope with any problems they may meet."

He said, Col. Sharran's address will be given careful study at the next Board meeting Thursday. Staff Inspector Scott of the Toronto police, said conditions were not any different than they were twenty years ago. Magistrate R. J. Browne said he was not aware of any increase in the narcotic traffic in Toronto.

ROMANCE IN AN AIRPLANE Fairbury, Neb., Sept. 11.—(P)—Romance in an airplane came to Fairbury with the Civil Aeronautics Flight Training School. The only girl member of the class, Marguerite Sonderegger, 24, was married to her instructor, R. E. Lawrence, 37.

WAR BULLETINS

London, Sept. 11.—(P)—German planes attacked a convoy off the East Scottish coast last night and early today, but the ships reached their destination.

Cairo, Egypt, Sept. 11.—(P)—British airmen and Frenchmen fighting with them have definitely destroyed 177 Italian aircraft and probably destroyed ninety more in Near Eastern war operations in the three months since Italy entered the war, an authoritative British survey said today. During the three months more than six hundred tons of bombs were dropped on objectives in Italian territory.

New York, Sept. 11.—(P)—The British Broadcasting Corporation reported today in a broadcast picked up by National Broadcasting Company that negotiations between the French and Japanese in Indo-China have been broken off by the French.

Lugano, Switzerland, September 11.—(P)—Rumania's deposed king, Carol II, sped across Italy and Italian-occupied Southern France today in quest of a new haven—perhaps in Portugal.

Accompanied by red-haired Magda Lupescu, he crept out the servants' door of his Lugano hotel last night to dodge the curious, and crossed into Italy aboard his special train.

London, Sept. 11.—(P)—London's second air raid warning of the day was sounded at 3.20 p.m. (10.20 a.m. E.D.T.) today.

More than half an hour later anti-aircraft guns opened fire in the London area. High above the city the drone of airplane motors could be heard.

BENNETT WORKS ON EXPANDING PLANE OUTPUT

Former Canadian Prime Minister Spends Six Days a Week at Aircraft Production Ministry.

London, Sept. 11.—(P)—Six days a week, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, sits in the Ministry of Aircraft Production headquarters at a desk well filled with work but only closest intimates know the details of his wartime effort.

"If I spend my time talking about it," he says, "I won't be able to get the job done."

Without fuss or fanfare the former Prime Minister of Canada eased into the job. Few knew he was working alongside his long-time friend and brother-Canadian, Lord Beaverbrook, who has been a notable success as Minister for Aircraft Production.

King And Queen Absent As Delayed Action Bomb Hits Buckingham Palace

No Member of Palace Staff Injured as Bomb Wrecks Wing Used as Royal Swimming Pool—Missile Which Fell Sunday Night Did Not Explode Until Tuesday—No Royal Family Members in Residence.

(By SAM ROBERTSON, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 11.—(C.P. Cable)—A small wing of Buckingham Palace, which contained the Royal swimming pool, has been wrecked by a German time bomb but Their Majesties were not there at the time and no member of the household staff was injured.

The bomb buried itself in the Palace grounds during Sunday night's dusk-to-dawn German raid and exploded Tuesday.

The fury of the explosion hurled one-ton blocks of masonry about the lawn and shot a jagged section of a stone pillar weighing a hundred-weight over the broad roof of the Palace into the Courtyard. At least one hundred windows were smashed.

No member of the Royal Family was in residence at the Palace when the bomb fell or when it detonated.

The wing of the massive stone structure which was scarred by flying fragments lost all its windows. It contains no sleeping quarters so members of the Royal staff and the household were not endangered by the blast.

The bomb fell ten paces from the swimming pool. Eighty feet long, forty feet wide and one storey high, the wing containing the pool juts from the Palace's Northwest corner. A conservatory in Queen Victoria's time, it was converted into a pool in 1936 and is one of the favorite playgrounds of the Royal Princesses.

The blast demolished half of the stone and glass walls of the pool and left remnants of its glass skylight hanging crazily. The metal diving tower, painted sea green to match the rest of the interior, was twisted grotesquely.

Shower curtains fluttered in the breeze in the middle of the gaping hole as footmen and housemaids peered down from broken windows of the three-story Palace. It was stated that the household staff was in air raid shelters when the bomb fell. An empty shelter directly under the swimming pool was not damaged.

"There was very little damage inside the Palace," an official spokesman said. "It was mostly from flying glass and soot from chimneys. Paintings and other art objects were removed long ago."

Among the windows blown in by the concussion were those of the King's study and the Queen's sitting room, as well as the Belgian suite which in the words of the Palace spokesman "was occupied by visiting royalty in happier times."

Glass splinters were imbedded in many of the walls but there was no material damage to furniture. Soot shaken down through fireplaces when the building trembled coated furniture and hangings.

Fragments of stone and brick and torn splinters of wood were sprayed across the north lawn. Rubble almost filled in the crater thirty-five feet across and fifteen feet deep torn by the bomb. Branches of trees were strewn about.

The wreckage was in strange confusion. Continued on page 2, col. 5.

Wednesday night. The Potsdam station in the heart of Berlin was repeatedly hit by heavy bombs and several hundred incendiaries when the R.A.F. again raided the German capital last (Tuesday) night. The Potsdam station is one of Berlin's main terminal handling traffic for Magdeburg and Southwest Germany.

"Typical of present R.A.F. operations, last night's raid was made by a force of bombers which delivered the attack with great precision. Although there was ground haze over parts of the city, the heavy bombs, the station and at 11:45 began their attack.

"The pilots of all the machines engaged claimed direct hits on the station and its yards. Several of them made glide attacks through the anti-aircraft barrage. As showers of incendiaries followed the heavy bombs, fires broke out. One fire was particularly large and several smaller ones were seen. The raiders left for Continued on page 2, column 5.

No Immediate Expansion Planned In Overseas Forces Of Dominion

Vancouver, Sept. 11.—(P)—Defence Minister Ralston, who arrived here by military plane from Calgary last night for a brief visit, said that further expansion of the army is not contemplated at present.

"We are not considering any new authorization at present," he said. "That does not mean there is going to be no more recruiting. We'll still have to have men for reinforcements and tradesmen for special jobs."

The National Defence Minister is making a flying tour of the military districts in Western Canada.

He said that men called up for compulsory training would not be compelled to take night drills with militia units to which they were attached after they had completed their thirty days of training.

PREDICTS FOUR-YEAR WAR

Calgary, Sept. 11.—(P)—Canada has a backbone of 300,000 veterans of the last war who are a real asset and "their experience is of incalculable value in training men for this war," Defence Minister Ralston told officers of the Non-Permanent Active Militia at Sarcee Camp yesterday.

He warned the officers that "We are in for a war of at least four years, I am sorry to say, but that's the way it looks."

Col. Ralston inspected the "Refresher School" for officers who are to train men at the compulsory training centres at Red Deer, Camrose and Grand Prairie.

"You have been selected to take on the work of the militia training centres, an important job, one of the most important of the times," he said. "Some of the men that are going to the camp may not want to go, and it is up to you to make them like it. You have to train the men to be soldiers. It is your ultimate job when the state is in danger."

SCHOOLS TO RETAIN FEES FOR TUITION

Montreal, Sept. 11.—(P)—The Montreal Catholic School Commission "has no intention of revoking its decision" whereby pupils of Montreal Roman Catholic primary schools will pay $2.00 annually for their tuition, C. E. Gravel, general chairman, said yesterday.

He was commenting on a resolution passed at a City Council meeting Monday requesting the Commission to continue free tuition for pupils in grades one to nine. The resolution was adopted unanimously after Alderman Omer Cote described the new fee as "inhuman and unfair."

MEDAL-AWARDED CHAPLAIN FOR ARMY SERVICE

A former well known figure in local military circles, Rev. Major C. E. Charlier, senior Roman Catholic chaplain for Military District No. 4 (Montreal), has been awarded the Officers' Efficiency Decoration for long service in the Canadian militia. Major Charlier is a veteran of twenty years' service.

Local residents will remember Major Charlier as the parish priest of St. Therese, and later as the chaplain of Les Fusiliers de Sherbrooke, a post to which he was appointed in 1926.

Major Charlier began his military career twenty years ago when he was appointed chaplain of the 161st Battalion with the rank of Captain. He served overseas where he was transferred to the 22nd Battalion. In 1917, however, he was sent back to Canada because of poor health and occupied the post of chaplain at Valcartier Camp until his demobilization in 1919.

He was back in uniform again with his appointment to the local peacefulness of his country estate early each morning for his desk in the Aircraft Production Ministry, the United Kingdom press learned about it. Many laudatory articles were published but so far as the former Prime Minister was concerned it could have been better if his contribution to the Empire's fight against the Axis had never been publicly known.

"I am working in an advisory capacity," he told The Canadian Press. "Let us say no more about it. It seems a small contribution to make."

Being back in harness apparently agrees with him. He is seventy, but an associate says "He works as if he were twenty years younger than that."

In addition, he is continuing his connection with the Canadian Red Cross, as chairman of the London Advisory Committee.

firms having actual contracts with the Government for war essentials, their sub-contractors, and others indirectly engaged on war essential manufacture for the Government.

Normally the depreciation allowance for income tax purposes is ten per cent on machinery, five per cent on frame buildings and 2½ per cent on buildings constructed of steel, stone or concrete.

Except when the Minister of National Revenue and the Board rule otherwise, the definition of war contracts for purposes of depreciation will apply to contracts entered into with the Government of Canada or her Allies for essential war material on which capital assets necessary to complete the contract are constructed or acquired after September 9, 1939. This covers the period since Canada formally entered the war.

Depreciation concessions will be based upon the reasonable post-war value of the assets concerned, provided no other provision made whereby the contractor recovers his capital expenditure and that the capital assets are not paid for before by the Government under any "cessation of hostilities" clause in the contract.

COTE MURDER CASE IS RE- MANDED

Valmore Rivard, of Stratford, Wolfe County, arrested on June 7th on a charge of selling liquor illegally, pleaded not guilty before Magistrate J. H. Lemay this morning and was remanded for trial.

The case of Arthur Cote, charged with the murder of Jeffrey Munn, whose charred body was found in a ditch near Georgeville, was postponed to September 18th.

A sentence of seven days in jail and costs was handed down to Olivia Cote, of this city, for driving a car while under the influence of liquor.

Rosario Crete, of this city, was fined fifty dollars and costs or one month in jail for importing merchandise into Canada without the knowledge of the Custom officers.

FORMER WELL-KNOWN RESI- DENT DIES IN FLORIDA

A former prominently known Sherbrooke resident, who will be remembered by many of the city's older residents, died in St. Petersburg, Florida, in the person of Mrs. J. E. Poutre, nee Eugenia Desautels, it was learned here today.

Mr. and Mrs. Poutre left Sherbrooke nineteen years ago to reside in St. Petersburg, Mr. Poutre having carried on a large dry goods store here for a number of years.

Funeral services for Mrs. Poutre, who was 78 years of age, will be held on Friday in St. Petersburg.

Bomb Splinters

By D. E. BURRITT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, Sept. 11.—Bomb splinters from the Battle of Britain:

Ability of an observer to recognize a German bomber flying at 17,000 feet enabled him to report to a fighter command and have British planes sent into the air within a few minutes. In less than forty minutes from the time the enemy plane was spotted the fighters had returned, another Junkers 88 to their credit.

In a forced landing, a British trainer plane ploughed up the garden of M. W. Batten but when the Government offered to pay for the damage the Devon farmer replied: "Please put the amount towards a new plane."

Heavy calibre bombs demolished the home of William Hurrell and left only a huge crater and one wall. Rescue workers found Hurrell at the bottom of the crater, suffering from only minor injuries. On the one wall was the fireplace—filled with potatoes blown from the garden.

A lone Anson reconnaissance craft with a crew in training warded off attack by a Messerschmitt fighter which dived 1,500 feet, guns wide open. The Anson gunner, according to the Air Ministry News Service, waited until the German was within three hundred yards and then let go with his own gun. The German, surprised at the sudden resistance, banked sharply and flew back to rejoin his squadron in the distance.

One London departmental store tells its customers not to risk their lives by standing on the street to watch air battles. They have a special man for the job. So when customers enter the shelter they are informed as to what is going on in the sky, by a voice coming over a loudspeaker from an observer on the roof.

You can place your own interpretation on the following remark made by a nineteen-year-old German pilot who bailed out of a wrecked bomber: "This is the first time I have ever been in England, and I expect it will be my last."

Explosion of a delayed action bomb blew a soldier out of his house through a big hole in the wall. But he didn't have to leave his bed. It went with him—though slightly disarranged.

London buses which turn out all interior lights during air raid alarms have produced a new "soft floodlight." They are just to show boarding passengers where the platform is.

People seeking safety from enemy bombers in the London area are greeted in one shelter by a huge sign which reads: "I desire that Italy be

GUIDES HER BLIND MASTER

Duchess, a "Seeing Eye Dog," and her master, William Perret, of Montreal, who will visit Sherbrooke on the National Institute for the Blind's tag day, September 12th and 13th. In response to inquiries received by the Institute in Sherbrooke since the work started in this city concerning the training of these guide dogs, arrangements were made to bring Mr. Perret and his dog here for a demonstration on the above mentioned dates. Although this city is quite unfamiliar to him, Mr. Perret will be seen proceeding along some of Sherbrooke's busiest streets and crossing intersections with no other aid than his dog.

Mr. Perret was an employee of a Montreal bank, where he was an accountant, until a fall some seventeen years ago resulted in blindness. He acquired Duchess some two years ago, before which he was entirely dependent upon those about him for guidance. Duchess is the gift of the Montreal Ladies' Kennel Club, which organization provides, in collaboration with the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, one Seeing Eye dog a year for a Montreal blind person, from the proceeds of the annual Kennel Show. In spite of money exchange and travel conditions in the United States being terribly restricted, the Ladies' Kennel Club will provide another dog this year after the Dog Show which will be held in Montreal later in the month. The total cost of the dog and the month's training necessary for the blind person at Morrisville, N.J., amounts to $150 in the United States and for Canadians $650, and only six Canadians are allowed dogs in a year.

Centre Of Berlin Evacuated As British Intensify Raids

home after releasing all their bombs.

BERLIN ADMITS HEAVY LOSSES

Berlin, Sept. 11.—(P)—British demolition and incendiary bombs struck the heart of the German Reich today in the R.A.F.'s most spectacular Berlin attack and forced evacuation of several streets lest bomb-weakened buildings collapse.

Bombs hit the Reichstag building, the Academy of Arts and also damaged famous Brandenburg Gate in Unter den Linden. The high command claimed also that two hospitals were hit in the centre of the city. Officially the civilian toll of the attacks was five killed and several injured.

"In the diplomatic section a number of streets had to be evacuated temporarily because of the danger of houses collapsing," the daily communicate reported.

Only quick action by aid raid precautions workers prevented "numerous incendiary bombs from causing bigger damage," the communicate went on.

The high command acknowledged bombs were dropped in Northern Germany, but insisted they "caused but little damage."

"Some enemy planes succeeded in penetrating Berlin, unleashing bombs," said the communicate. "At numerous places in residential and business sections fires started."

In the raid which began shortly after midnight and lasted nearly two hours, incendiary bombs pierced the roof of the Reichstag, presently unused but still regarded by Germans as a symbol of the Reich. Workmen were said to have extinguished the flames immediately.

Both incendiary and high explosive bombs hit the district of government offices.

Bombs also struck the Academy of Arts, next door to the United States Embassy, as well as a small hotel and two hospitals, and churned craters in Unter den Linden and other thoroughfares. The American Embassy was undamaged.

An air defence estimated that ten to twenty British planes took part in the raid, attacking in four waves. The first wave released flares and succeeding formations dipped low to drop their bombs and turn their machine guns on searchlight positions.

The Reichstag building, being reconstructed slowly since the 1933 fire which Communists were accused of starting and which marked a sensational incident in the rise of Nazi to power, is only a few streets from the Wilhelmstrasse.

A 500-pound bomb crashing into the smart Unter den Linden district fell within 300 yards of the United States Embassy. This section was peppered with incendiary bombs.

Incendiary missiles struck the Brandenburg Gate, familiar sight to Berlin visitors between the American and French embassies. They hit the handsome six-arched monument to the left of the figure of the Goddess of Victory driving a four-horse chariot.

An explosive bomb near the Ministry of the Interior blew out the ground floor windows of a building occupied by the Berlin Bureau of Information News Service, American news agency. Members of its staff were unable to go to work for a time because of bomb damage in the vicinity.

Heavy calibre bombs exploded in the centre of the Avenue of Spies, a handsome street through the Tiergarten Park. A twelve-foot hole was blasted in the pavement.

Police closed off other streets because of fear of the presence of duds and possible German-type delayed-action bombs.

rest to the unmatched beauty of the town of the forty-three acres of St. James Park in which the Royal residence stands near the centre of London. Pink geraniums and the soft tones of other late summer flowers relieved the drab grayness of the Palace terraces. Trees from almost every part of the world stood like regal sentinels about the broad lawn and park beyond.

FORCED TO POLICE STATION SHELTERS

London, Sept. 11.—(P)—The King and Queen took cover under a police station today when an air raid alarm sounded as they were touring bombed areas of Southern London.

As the sirens shrieked, the King and Queen left their car, in which they had been riding with Home Secretary Sir John Anderson, and walked downstairs into the shelter.

The Royal Couple chatted with members of a demolition squad and with "Bobbies" seated in the underground shelter. The police canteen staff served them tea in big white cups and biscuits.

Their Majesties resumed their tour when the "all clear" signal sounded ten minutes later.

Lance-Corporal William Edward Young has been listed as killed in action somewhere in France but his would not believe it. Every night she left the door unlocked in the hope he would return to his High Spine home in County Durham. One night the door opened—it was a messenger with a telegram saying the soldier was a German prisoner, in hospital.

Long before dawn weary patrols of wardens covered their beats in search of time bombs, firemen worked ceaselessly to check bomb-set flames, and rescue crews dug into new heaps of debris to rescue those trapped.

Trains took many from the city, but for the most part Londoners stuck it out grimly, determined not to budge.

considered they might try before Britain takes delivery of the full order of fifty "overcast" destroyers obtained from the United States in return for sites for naval bases in British Western Hemisphere possessions.

There was little stirring yet in the First Lord of the Admiralty, told a London Service Club the British fleet in the Mediterranean is considerably stronger than it was ten days ago. British reinforcements have reached several areas in the Middle East theatre while forces from Kenya have penetrated several miles into Italian-held Ethiopia.

Large-scale operations are expected in North Africa momentarily.

GERMAN RAIDS LOSE MUCH OF INTENSITY

London, Sept. 11.—(P)—Royal Air Force bombers, diving with "great precision" through mist and bursting shells, scored many direct hits on the Potsdam railway station and yards and other targets in the heart of Berlin last night, the Air Ministry reported.

A special bulletin announcing the raids on the German capital was issued as this capital experienced a brief ten-minute air raid alarm, the first of the day, after a fourth successive night of still heavy, but lessening German attacks in which bombs fell near three famous museums and in Regent, Oxford and Bond Streets, the "Shop Window of the Empire."

Hundreds of incendiary bombs were rained on the Potsdam station, but seven-tenths of a mile from Adolf Hitler's Chancellery, the Air Ministry said, after every one of the British war planes had made a direct hit with heavy explosives.

(Berlin dispatches said that the old Reichstag building, still under repairs from the 1933 fire, and the Brandenburg Gate were hit, and that nearby explosions slightly damaged the U.S. Embassy.)

This morning's air raid alarm in London was sounded at 11:53 a.m. (6:53 a.m. E.D.T.) A daylight raid also was reported on a Welsh town.

Clouds over the London area again were turned to vivid red last night as German bombers made their fourth successive large-scale nocturnal visit. Other cities, far and wide, shared the heavy punishment this time, some of them for as long as two hours. Nevertheless, an official communicate said "Preliminary reports indicate that this is less severe and that the casualties are considerably lighter than on the preceding nights."

Warehouses and factories on the Thames waterfront and in the city were set afire, and bombs were scattered in South Wales, the Bristol Channel district, and Western and Eastern England, the communicate said.

Heavier anti-aircraft appeared to observers to have turned most of the raiders away from the central city. Nevertheless, bombs demolished one big apartment building on a square in Central London, hit a maternity hospital, smashed streets and caused large business blocks to quiver from the blasts.

Workers still were struggling to restore some of the transportation, water and gas services disrupted by previous attacks.

The London Passenger Transport Board announced that underground railway services were almost normal except for one or two short sections. Other transportation services reported operation going ahead on all routes, but that some curtailment and diversions were still necessary.

Britons read warnings in their newspapers to expect German invasion soon as the certain climax of intensified raiding, and took encouragement from reports of strong Royal Air Force counter-thrusts into Germany.

For a possible glimpse of the next phase of Britain's battle they awaited Prime Minister Winston Churchill's war review today. The speech was arranged over the radio at six p.m. (1 p.m. E.D.T.).

During the night white clouds that streaked the sky were tinged by flames in parts of Eastern and Southern London, and another fire burned brightly in the Central City, silhouetting the dome of St. Paul's Cathedral.

In the middle of the night, it was light enough to read a newspaper on the roof of The Associated Press Building in mid-city.

A communicate said the overnight bombing caused fires in warehouses and factories along the Thames and in the mid-city, and damage in the suburbs, adding:

"Preliminary reports indicate that this is less severe and that the casualties are considerably lighter than on the preceding nights."

The casualty figures for the night, or that of the night before, have not been announced. Deaths the first two nights of the raids were placed at a total of 592, with approximately 2,700 injured seriously.

One bomb fell in a famed West End street ten yards from a shelter, killing a pedestrian and shattering windows 100 yards away.

Unusually heavy anti-aircraft fire over London cut the last overnight raid shorter than previous attacks. The alarm was in effect from 8:11 p.m. to 1:40 a.m.

Some planes did penetrate the barrage. Their bombs shattered a big apartment building on a London square, hit a large maternity hospital, smashed into the streets and shook building in the central business section.

Planes forced back from the mid-London area circled the city, bombing the suburbs—aiming at targets picked out in four scouting raids the day before.

Long before dawn weary patrols of wardens covered their beats in search of time bombs, firemen worked ceaselessly to check bomb-set flames, and rescue crews dug into new heaps of debris to rescue those trapped.

Trains took many from the city, but for the most part Londoners stuck it out grimly, determined not to budge.

providing instruction for fighting personnel, pilots, observers and gunners and 7,500 more are in training as service and maintenance men.

New recruits are being taken on strength at the rate of about 700 a week. The rise of the Royal Canadian Air Force strength from some 4,500 officers and men in September, 1939, to some 25,000 in September, 1940, is largely due to the enrolment of men to operate the air training plan and pupils who will pass through the plan to combat in the skies.

Of the eighty-three training establishments called for in the plan, twenty-nine are now operating, thirty-three will be operating by September 20, and by the end of the year the number in operation will be forty-eight. All of the air-dromes needed for the schools, well over ninety, will be completed or near completion by the time the snow flies.

The plan has already been expedited greatly and the completion of this ground work before winter will make possible any further expansion which may be decided upon before spring.

Of the three initial projected training schools where recruits get basic military training, two are operating, at Toronto and Regina.

Eight of the twenty-six elementary flying training schools are operating, at Malton, Ont., Fort William, Ont., London, Ont., Windsor Mills, Que., Lethbridge, Alta., Prince Albert, Sask., Windsor, Ont., and Vancouver.

Two of sixteen projected service flying training schools are operating at Camp Borden and Ottawa.

Two out of ten projected air observers schools are working at Malton, Ont., and Edmonton.

Of ten bombing and gunnery schools projected, one is operating at Jarvis, Ont.

The first of two air navigation schools is now operating at Trenton, Ont., but is due to move to permanent location at Rivers, Man., at the end of this month.

Of the four wireless schools projected one is working at Montreal.

and water service—cut off to some districts because mains were damaged—walked to and from work because of detours and delays in transit system, and kept kits ready packed for as much comfort as possible in the air raid shelters to which the trek at dusk has become routine.

The London press and radio carried announcements of the R.A.F.'s use of Britain's new "calling cards" for Germany—little self-igniting, chemical-bearing cardboard which start fires after they are damped by the million from planes. No details about the "new weapon" were given, however.

The warnings of imminent invasion came along with recurrent reports of large concentrations of barges along the harbors and river mouths of the German-held coast of France and the Low Countries.

Many observers continued to view the repeated Nazi air thrusts at London as "only a diversion" masking or preceding a move for sea-borne attack.

Rescue crews still were digging into the heaped ruin of an East London School, demolished Monday night by a terrific explosion, in which a large number of men, women and children were feared killed.

Nearly five hundred persons, homeless after earlier raids, were sheltered in the building when it was hit.

A man whose home nearby was wrecked by the same explosion said the raiders must have dropped something huge—either aerial torpedoes or land mines—because "they were not ordinary explosions."

One explosion dug a crater forty feet wide and twenty feet deep. The refugees housed temporarily in the school were waiting to be moved to the country.

One building almost on the corner of a thoroughfare in the heart of London was badly damaged by a bomb.

A gas main beneath the middle of the street was broken. A bomb shattered shop fronts on another street, littering the pavement with so much wreckage that the street was closed.

GOOD REASON

Elizabeth, N.J., Sept. 11.—(P)—For almost two hours Michael de Stefano argued in police court against demands of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals that his horse be destroyed because of advanced age. The argument finally ended when he disclosed the animal had died two days before.

WON OUT

Kansas City, Sept. 11.—(P)—A superintendent of service at a theatre fired an usher for failing in a minor duty. "All right," said the usher, "but I'm going to march up and down out front until you come out. Then I'm going to work you over."

The superintendent peeked out about 10 p.m. The usher was marching as though on picket duty. He still was marching at 11, 12 and 1 o'clock. Finally the superintendent called him in and said: "You're hired." He had learned the usher was an amateur boxer.

TRUCHON HELD IN EAST ANGUS FATALITY

Verdict Of Criminal Negligence Returned

Twenty-Two-Year-Old Coaticook Youth, Who Was at Wheel of Car Which Collided with Agathe Roy's Automobile, Will Be Arraigned in Court Today—Was Chief Witness as Inquest Resumed Last Night.

Held responsible for the death of Agathe Roy at a coroner's inquest last night, Arthur Truchon, twenty-two years old, of Coaticook, will appear before Judge J. S. Couture in Magistrate's Court this afternoon on a charge of criminal negligence.

The inquest into the death of Miss Roy from injuries incurred in a head-on collision between the car she was driving and the automobile owned by Gaston Lareau, and driven by Truchon, was begun on Monday night and adjourned to last night when it was resumed at the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital.

There, examining the evidence, witnesses, coroner, lawyers and jury, as well as attendant visitors, examined every detail of the accident to conclude whether Arthur Truchon was responsible for the death of Agathe Roy, East Angus nurse.

One of the witnesses was wheeled in on a hospital bed, five of them wore bandages and plasters of various sorts. After listening to the evidence for four hours, the jury reached a decision in five minutes, and Arthur Truchon was held for criminal negligence.

For three quarters of an hour Arthur Truchon was questioned by Coroner Bachand, Cesaire Gervais, K.C., Crown Prosecutor, Dalma Landry, K.C., representing the Roy family, and Roger Bouchard, who held a watching brief for Lareau and the witness, Truchon, speaking quickly and clearly gave his evidence with a wealth of descriptive detail.

He declared that he and Lareau had set out from Coaticook for Sherbrooke about seven o'clock and had not stopped until arriving in the city. Then, he said, he and his friend had met the two young women, Fernande Turcotte and Rejeanne Pellerin.

After stopping at a corner store to buy some beer the party went on to East Angus, chiefly, he testified, to see a certain man, whom he wished to have treat a sore thumb.

According to Truchon, he and his friends stopped on the way for a little over an hour when most of the beer was drunk. He himself had had only one glass, the remainder of the several bottles consumed being taken by the other occupants of the car. He explained the strong smell of liquor on his clothes, testified to the other witnesses, to the spilling down his waistcoat of some of this beer.

They arrived at East Angus about eleven o'clock and stayed awhile at a small store. Here he had another small drink of beer. On the way home he was not going more than thirty miles an hour, he said.

As he approached the curve near the restie he saw the Roy car coming towards him at a considerable speed and not on the right side of the road. It was upon him before he could more than try to turn the wheel swiftly to the left, he said.

"I was well on the right," Truchon declared.

After further questioning he admitted having taken a drink in Coaticook about four o'clock in the afternoon and another at five-thirty. He had nothing on the road to Sherbrooke, and was not in the least affected by what he had had.

The Roy girls had testified to having smelt liquor on him, but he said that he had not spoken to them after the accident.

The principal witness among the sisters of Agathe Roy was Mrs. Bergeron, Fernande, quiet and controlled, with her eyes still bruised from the blow she had received, she gave her evidence easily and firmly.

The five girls, she said, had started out from Quebec about seven o'clock and had stopped only a couple of times for gasoline and something to eat. They had gone straight through Sherbrooke and were travelling at about thirty-five to forty miles an hour.

The five of them talked, she said, and sometimes they sang. In her definite opinion they were always on the right. It was her sister's custom to lower her lights in passing a car, but she could not say for certain whether she had done it on this occasion.

Seated in the back seat she had not noticed the approaching car until she heard her sisters, Agathe and Gemma, call out, and then felt the crash.

After the accident Mrs. Bergeron had spoken to one of the men, she said, and definitely smelt liquor on him. When Coroner Bachand asked Truchon to step forward, she declared that he was not the man to whom she had spoken.

Next on the stand was twenty-two year old Gemma Roy, who had been in the front seat with the driver. Over one eye there was a large bandage and the other was almost closed.

She corroborated her sister's evidence and stated firmly that the driver had never left the right hand side of the road. The car driven by Truchon had seemed to her to have been coming at an excessive speed. She had only time to call out, at the same time as her sister, "They are going to hit us!" before the collision occurred. She was unable to state positively, but she was almost certain, that her sister had dimmed her lights.

In the ambulance she had been seated beside a man, whom she identified as Truchon, having particularly noticed that his hair was badly cut (Truchon is still wearing a bandage on his chin). She declared that he had smelt strongly of liquor.

The two other sisters, Irene and Jeanne d'Arc, also concurred with their sister's evidence, and as both were knocked out by the collision, neither could give further details on the case.

The owner of the car, Gaston Lareau, of Coaticook, gave his evidence from a hospital bed, which was wheeled in before the jurors. He was evidently weary and sick. At times he could not seem to hear a question and would not answer it, and on occasions his voice was so low that his replies could scarcely be heard.

He recognized the car as his from a picture shown him and said that he had been in the back with Miss Turcotte. He had brought the beer from Coaticook, he said, and on the way to Sherbrooke had shared a bottle with his friends.

On Mr. Gervais repeating Truchon's evidence that he had five or six bottles of beer, he said feebly, "no, no, not five or six."

He had seen the collision was imminent, he declared, and had reached out forward over the back of the seat to try to grab the wheel and swerve the car.

Suffering from a fractured knee and shock, the witness was obviously too ill to be questioned further.

Other witnesses, Marthe Ross, nurse at the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, who had received the accident cases but was unable to state that she had noticed a smell of liquor; Arthur Auger and Jules Menard of the Morisset Garage in Sherbrooke, to which the cars had been brought, who testified to the excellent conditions of the brakes of both cars, and that the lights also were in running order; Alphonse Laque, Superintendent of the Provincial Road Department in Lennoxville, who, with the aid of photographs, explained the contour of the spot at which the accident took place, stating that the slight incline on the curve might cause a small acceleration in speed in the Roy car, but that the visibility was at least 400 feet, especially as the witnesses had testified that there was no fog.

Provincial Traffic Officer Mathias Lemieux was also recalled to verify his evidence that certain car tracks had been found eight feet from the left side of the road, that is the side on which Truchon was driving.

Before closing the inquest the coroner, lawyers and jury were taken up two floors in the hospital to question the Misses Fernande Turcotte and Rejeanne Pellerin, who were too ill to be moved.

The two patients were together in a darkened room. Miss Turcotte, suffering from bruises about head and face and severe shock, woke up quickly as the group entered. She was too startled and too doped with sleep to talk and the party left without questioning her.

At the other end of the room Miss Pellerin, with two broken legs and internal injuries, lay delirious. Her condition is described as critical.

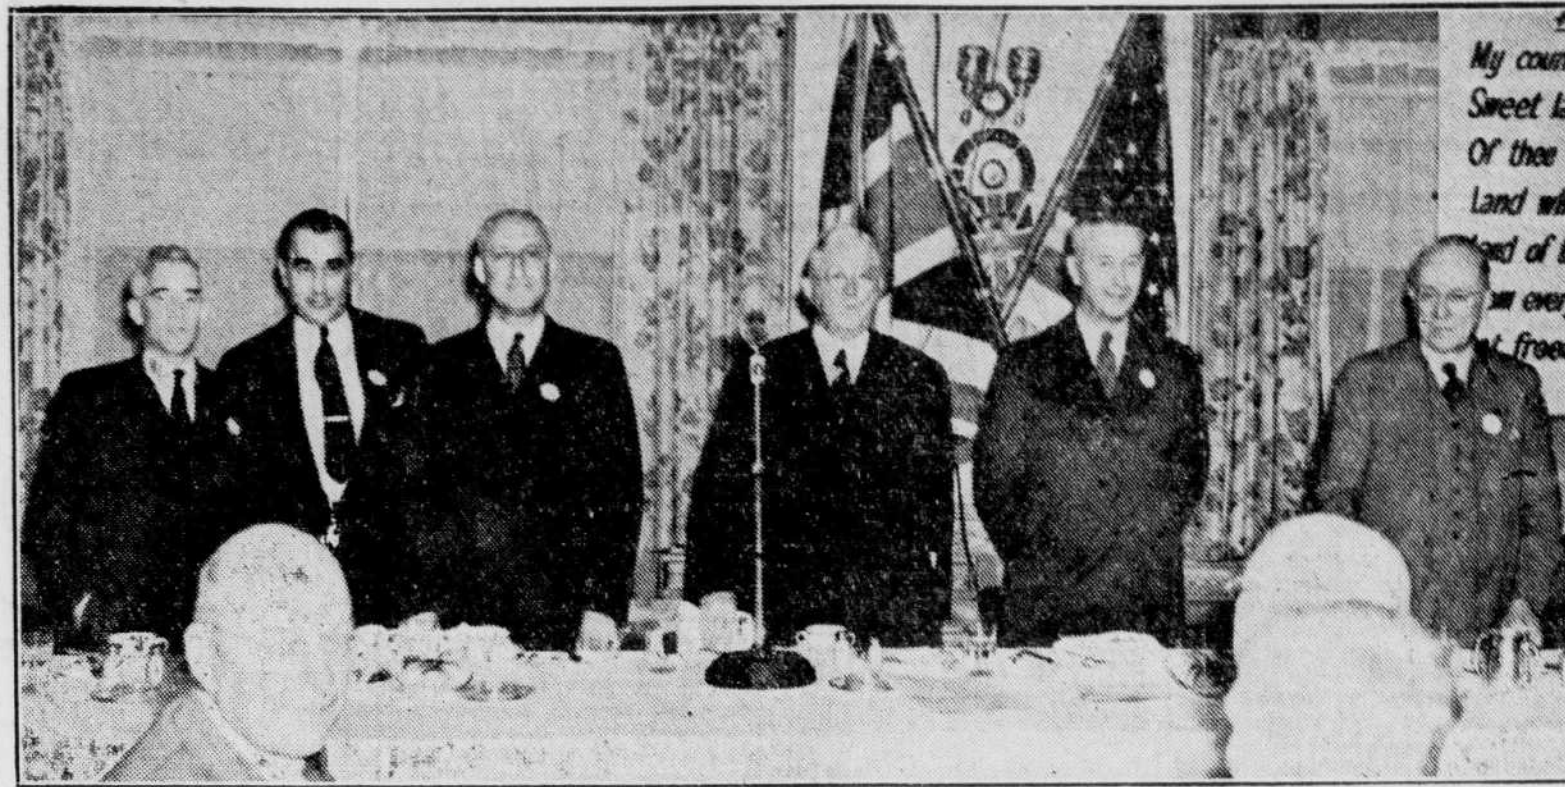

On the return to the inquest-room, Mr. Bouchard re-called Truchon in order to clear up certain points for the jury. He asked the witness to explain the testimony of Lareau, who had said that he had brought the beer from Coaticook, whereas Truchon has said it had come from the store in Sherbrooke.

The witness declared that he may have been mistaken, that he had not gone into the store with Lareau, and had thought the beer had been bought there.

He was firm in his statement that he had not drunk on the route to Sherbrooke, and that Lareau's evidence that they had divided the bottle between them referred to the other two companions in the car, Henry Clement and Douila Trudet, of Coaticook.

He declared that if Lareau had leaned from the back to try to take the wheel, he was not aware of it. After a brief address by Mr. Gervais, and a short explanation by Coroner Bachand, the jury withdrew to consider their verdict.

Within five minutes they filed in the room, and gave their decision

DEATH CLAIMED R.A. LITTLEJOHN AT LENNOXVILLE

In the death of Robert Andrew Littlejohn, which occurred yesterday morning at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Bown, 18 College Street, Lennoxville, lost a resident who had been highly esteemed by all who knew him. Mr. Littlejohn, who had been confined to bed for more than two years, passed away at the age of seventy-three years.

Born at Downsview, Ont., March 8, 1867, he was the fourth son of Samuel Littlejohn and Alice Bull. He received his education at Downsview and on January 18, 1891 was united in marriage to Miss Martha Fyfe, daughter of John Fyfe and Martha Spears, of Largs, Scotland, the marriage taking place at Orillia, Ont. Mr. and Mrs. Littlejohn resided at Orillia for ten years after their marriage, when they moved to Stanstead County in 1901. Sixteen years later, in 1917, they came to reside in the vicinity of Lennoxville, later moving into the College Town.

Mrs. Littlejohn passed away in 1926, and since that time the deceased had made his home with his sons and daughters. During his illness, for more than two years, he has been tenderly cared for by his children at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arnold Bown, Mr. Bown and their two children, Roberta and Mary.

Mr. Littlejohn leaves to mourn his loss, besides Mr. and Mrs. Bown and their family, five sons, Albert, of Way's Mills, John, Lionel and Guy, of Lennoxville, and Rupert, of Montreal; another daughter (Rubens), Mrs. Roy Aldrich, South Bay, N.B.; four daughters-in-law, Mrs. Albert Littlejohn, of Way's Mills, Mrs. John Littlejohn, Mrs. Lionel Littlejohn, of Lennoxville, and Mrs. Rupert Littlejohn, of Montreal, and one son-in-law, Mr. Roy Aldrich, of South Bay. He is also survived by his brother, Mr. D. Littlejohn, of Orillia, Ont., one sister (Clare), Mrs. Charles Smith, of Willowbrook, Sask., ten grandchildren, several nephews, nieces and cousins. He was predeceased by three brothers and three sisters.

Family prayers will be held at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Bown, 18 College Street, Lennoxville, at two o'clock on Thursday afternoon. Thence the funeral cortege will proceed to the Lennoxville United Church, where the service will be conducted by the Pastor, Rev. F. R. Matthews. Interment will be made in the family lot at Malvern Cemetery.

Mr. Littlejohn's quiet, unassuming manner and splendid character had won him a host of friends, whose regular visits to him during his illness were evidence of the regard in which he was held.

ENTERTAINMENT AT VACATION COLONY

The Vacation Colony was the scene of an enjoyable gathering last evening when Directors of the Colony entertained three hundred active members and members of the Jacques Cartier Tennis Club, who had assisted financially or otherwise during the season to enable the free transportation of the children to the beach.

During the evening pictures of salmon fishing in British Columbia, Minaki and Jasper Park were shown through the courtesy of H. J. Enright, City Passenger Agent for the Canadian National Railway, by H. Brennan, of the Passenger Department of Montreal. Another pleasant feature of the evening's entertainment was the community singing of popular numbers, led by R. Leblanc, Dr. V. A. Olivier and Edgar Gervais, with Marcel Robitaille acting as piano accompanist. Refreshments were served by the Ladies' Committee.

that Arthur Truchon was guilty of criminal negligence in the death of Agathe Roy. Coroner Bachand at once proceeded to swear out a warrant for Truchon's arrest and he was taken to the local jail.

The jury included Eugene Inkel, president, and Leopold Pellerin, Charles Hains, Gerard Larivee, and Cisse Boisland and Joseph Belanger.

Man Arrested For Not Possessing Registration Certificate Held As Suspect In Robbery Of Sugar Camp

The first Sherbrooke case of arrest for not carrying a national registration card took place yesterday afternoon when Francois Laporte, 27, of East Angus and Waterloo, was apprehended in a pawn shop on St. Edward Street, and taken to the police station for questioning.

Later it was discovered that Laporte, sometimes posing as an Italian, was alleged to have stolen equipment worth almost a hundred dollars from a maple sugar camp between Waterloo and Stukely, owned and operated by A. Bousquet, of South Stukely.

A warrant for Laporte's arrest upon charges of breaking in, entering and theft was brought to Sherbrooke last night by Georges Tetreault, chief of the Waterloo municipal police, accompanied by a provincial traffic officer, Albert Bergeron, and Laporte was taken to the Waterloo jail.

The arrest of the suspect by the Sherbrooke Criminal Investigation Department, under Detective Sergeant Boudrias, followed on a report that two suspicious characters in an old 1930 Chevrolet had been seen in the city.

W.M.S. TO AID BIBLE SOCIETY IN COLLECTING

Lennoxville Organization Named Committee for Work at First Fall Meeting Yesterday Afternoon in New United Church Hall.

Plans were outlined by members of the Women's Missionary Society of the Lennoxville United Church yesterday afternoon to collect for the Bible Society, with the following committee appointed for this work: Mrs. H. R. Frizzell, Mrs. Abbie Willard, Mrs. W. A. Hyndman, Mrs. M. Elizabeth McCurdy, Mrs. F. R. Titcomb, Mrs. J. G. Mallory and Mrs. P. Pergau. Collections will begin in the near future.

The meeting, which was conducted by the President, Mrs. P. Pergau, was held in the lower Gertrude Scott Hall. After opening with the National Anthem a report was given by Treasurer, which showed that more than half of the year's allocation for 1940 has already been met and forwarded to headquarters.

It was decided that members will sell one hundred and fifty boxes of Christmas cards in aid of the Society.

The study book will be substituted this year by pamphlets dealing with various phases of missionary work.

Mrs. F. R. Matthews conducted the worship period, the theme of which was "The Way of the Father's Will."

The title of the programme was "birch bark talking," and was a story of the work of James Evans, a missionary of about one hundred years ago, who worked among the Indians of North America. Those taking part in this characterization were Mrs. J. G. Mallory, Mrs. L. W. Smith, Miss Kay Scott, Mrs. Allen Willard and Mrs. P. Pergau.

A hymn and the Benediction concluded this busy session after which a pleasant social interlude was enjoyed when afternoon tea was served cafeteria style, the tea committee being Mrs. F. R. Titcomb, Mrs. W. A. Hyndman and Mrs. Lawrence Parker.

General Notes Mrs. David Ross has received word that her brother, Mr. W. D. MacKenzie, of Pasadena, Calif., was seriously injured in an automobile accident and is a patient in the hospital at San Bernardino, Calif. W. T. Evans, of Lennoxville, Past Grand Patriarch of the Grand En-

R. L. GAGNON IS NEW MANAGER OF ROYAL BANK

Official announcement of the appointment of R. L. Gagnon, former Manager of various branches of the Royal Bank of Canada in the British and French West Indies, Barcelona, Spain, and Paris, France, to succeed A. M. Ramsey, who after six years of service here has been transferred to the Tramways Terminal in Montreal, was made today.

Mr. Gagnon, who was born in Nova Scotia and started his banking career there, has been in the service of the Royal Bank of Canada for twenty-five years and has acted as Manager for the past seventeen years.

During his career as Manager he spent five years in the British and French West Indies, afterwards holding that position in Barcelona, Spain, all during the Spanish Civil War. Immediately before being transferred to Sherbrooke he acted as Manager of the Royal Bank in Paris, France, and left Paris two days before the German occupation, and France only one day previous to its capitulation.

Mr. Gagnon stated that Rotary was in a unique position to cultivate and standardize business and that it is the duty of every Rotarian to do this. "Vocational Service, or service in business, is the 'corner stone' in Rotary," he said.

Guests included Rev. Canon H. R. Bigg, R. L. Curphey, Guy Ingham, P. M. Robins, Ed Bradley, Col. J. P.

ROUND STEAK in Swiss Style HAS "OOMPH"

CUT STEAK into serving pieces. Add flour as you pound it. Then dust with flour and sear the steak — add one small onion — in a very hot, well-greased pan. To a pound of steak use either one-half cup of water or two cups of canned tomatoes. Add salt and pepper and about a teaspoonful of H. P. Sauce. Pour over the steak: Cover the pan and cook slowly for two hours. You'll be delighted with the flavour of steak that is cooked in this Swiss style. And you'll conclude that a sauce which can make steak so flavoursome must be grand.

So try H. P. Sauce for adding appetizing flavour to soups, stews, gravies, meats, fish, fowl and other good things on your table.

Vocational Service Subject Of Address At Rotary Club

Guy Gundaker, Past President of Rotary International, Declares "We Must Keep Our Integrity Above Reproach to Encourage and Foster High Standards of Business."

In an address before members of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club at the New Sherbrooke last night, Guy Gundaker, a Past President of Rotary International, spoke on "Vocational Service," one of the four aims of Rotary.

To illustrate the deeper meaning of "service" he related the story of a woman who while walking along a deserted street, picked up some pieces of glass and when questioned by a policeman replied that she was afraid that "some other mother's barefoot boy might chance to pass."

Mr. Gundaker remarked, "No one can ever fathom or ever know how much 'service' that woman, who was continually thinking of and helping others, had in her heart."

This is the kind of 'service' we must render not only amongst ourselves but to the whole community. Although we are quick to condemn and criticize, we must keep our integrity above reproach to encourage and foster high standards of business."

One of the essentials of business ethics is the standardization of "service." "If every business man could write his code of correct practice and hand it out to his customers and say, 'These are my standards, I want to be judged by them,' think of the high plain on which business would be established," he said.

Mr. Gundaker explained that after the war men were not called upon to do the things an ordinary business man would do. Children undernourished and under-education were given a minimum salary to work long hours in stuffy mills and consequently business ethics deteriorated. "In time and conditions like this, the people look toward the Government for aid, but it is not the duty of the Government, it is the duty of every single business man to render this 'service' to the community and have thoughtfulness for others to ameliorate these circumstances."

He suggested that Rotarians should try to foster group meetings to encourage and discuss better ethical standards among the craftsmen. "To go to the craftsman across the street and discuss his ethics of business and his standards would be imprudent," he said, "but Craft Assemblies are for just that purpose, to elevate business to a higher plain of ethical standards."

Mr. Gundaker stated that Rotary was in a unique position to cultivate and standardize business and that it is the duty of every Rotarian to do this. "Vocational Service, or service in business, is the 'corner stone' in Rotary," he said.

Guests included Rev. Canon H. R. Bigg, R. L. Curphey, Guy Ingham, P. M. Robins, Ed Bradley, Col. J. P.

Mitchell, North Hatley, and Roy M. Clark, Lennoxville. They were introduced by Rotarian Henry Downs and welcomed by Past President G. M. Wiggett.

Seated at the head table with the guest speaker and President J. H. Wark were Rotarians E. E. Goodenough, who introduced the speaker, D. J. Sully, G. M. Wiggett, J. A. Metivier, A. C. Skinner and H. H. Welsh.

Rotarian B. N. Holtham thanked the speaker and Rotarian Hugh Brown said grace. Birthday greetings were extended Rotarians Aurelian Noel and Douglas Stevens.

O God, Who art the author of peace and lover of concord, defend us Thy humble servants in all assaults of our enemies.

PUBLIC OPINION RISES

Judging from the general tone of the British press, the unwarranted German air attacks on the civilian sections of London and other centres is having the opposite desired by the German high command. Instead of undermining the morale of the people, it is raising a feeling of bitter determination to carry on the fight to the end, regardless of the cost, so that the menace of Nazi barbarism may be removed for generations to come.

This is reflected in articles by responsible British writers who are calling for a merciless "all out" war by Great Britain, and are urging the military leaders to brush aside their old school tie ethics in their sky-war against Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy. Perhaps somewhat more bitter than the majority of his colleagues but nevertheless reflecting the opinions of the average Briton, is John Gordon, who expresses the opinion that there is "no way of instilling sense and sanity into Germans at this moment except by killing them," and adds that Germans are beyond missionary work, having "gone back to the jungle age." Continuing, he declares:

"It was the German people, not Hitler alone, who made this war. They made it a war not of soldiers against soldiers, but of people against people. As they made it, so they shall have it. They who boasted that they were without mercy deserve no mercy. Justice is all they need. Let us see that justice is what they get."

The writer says that when Germany begins to whine under the whipping by the Royal Air Force "I hope there will be no sentimental nonsense this time about mercy for the poor, deluded Germans who never really wanted the war, but were just misled."

"For every bomb dropped upon the soil of Britain, we shall, before this war is finished, drop ten bombs into the heart of Germany. For every innocent civilian slaughtered to satisfy the blood lust of Hitler a hundred Germans who now exhort their Fuehrer to greater and greater infamies shall pay the price."

Gordon finds it heartening to "see signs of a return to the old offensive spirit among our leaders. . . . Defence alone . . . can never win a war." He contends to "achieve victory we must strike down Germany in Germany and Italy in Italy."

"We are still too much obsessed with the defence of our coastline. We should be fighting the Battle of Britain in Germany. This is the only place where the knockout blow can get home. Parries are all very well, but it is the solar plexus punch that ends the fight."

"When we go after wasps we don't content ourselves with a few slaps at the wasps that attack us. We go out and burn the nest. That's the way to deal with Hitler and Mussolini. Go for their nests."

THE FACTS SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES

The declarations of certain Nazi leaders that Germany has ample supplies of food for its population during the coming winter are in marked contrast to the statements of officials of the agricultural section of the German military administration in occupied France, who declare that a shortage of certain foodstuffs is inevitable which can only be met by strict rationing. They admit that the French shortage is due directly to military operations, but deny that the German occupation forces are sending large quantities of food from France into Germany. They do admit, however, that France is being pillaged in their later declaration that wheat flour is being exported to the Reich from France, but only in exchange for rye flour from which German army bread is made.

Thus it would appear that over-riden France must support the German invaders whether they are eaters of the French wheat bread or the German rye. The German command uses a rather novel means of explaining away the shortage, claiming that the French Government, during the May invasion, removed some 10,000,000 inhabitants from Northern France, including 4,000,000 agricultural workers, although neutral observers point out that German panzer divisions drove these refugees ahead of them to blockade and interfere with the movement of the Allied troops seeking to counter-attack. This had the dual effect of preventing the harvesting of standing crops and the planting of new ones.

But regardless of what explanations they give or seek to give, the German authorities are forced to admit a food shortage, while their footnotes on the situation do little if anything to strengthen their case for world support in an effort to lift the British blockade of the occupied areas. In fact, the statements will only serve to increase the conviction of other nations that any food sent to the overrun areas will find its way into Germany.

AFTERTHOUGHT ON TROTSKY

Trotsky, towering figure of the Russian revolution, is gone. Perhaps we shall never know clearly whether his murderer was a crafty agent of the revolution Trotsky helped to start, or simply a screwball whose mind wobbled at the wrong moment. Both theories are advanced; neither is proved thus far.

His death meant little to most people, for his life was lived, his triumphs achieved, his exile and death consummated in an atmosphere strange to us. But one little point is worth noting:

A chronic revolutionary conspirator like Trotsky does not become such from sheer malevolence. Trotsky was born Lev Davidovich Bronstein, of a prosperous Jewish family in the Russia of the Czars. He grew up in a country in which he saw his own people persecuted with sadistic relentlessness, a country of medieval privilege and discrimination, a country in which every liberal and humanitarian impulse was stifled and strangled by whip and cell.

This produced Leon Trotsky. Remember it the next time someone comes whispering with insinuations of race prejudice, of class hatred, of suppression, repression, and violence.

ZABERN, AND ZABERN, AND ZABERN

In Zabern, little Alsatian town, a tree has been chopped down. It was a "tree of liberty," planted in 1918 by the French when they regained Alsace from the Germans. The Germans explained, "This tree was planted as a symbol of freedom—freedom as understood by the French. For Germany this tree is a symbol of slavery and oppression. Now the tree must fall. . . ."

Where better than in Zabern? For it is in this same Vosges mountain town, called by the French Saverne, that an incident happened in 1913. Then the town was also occupied by Germans, spoil of the War of 1870. A stupid little twenty-year-old junker officer named Von Forstner became so jittery over the mockery of the Alsatian people that he went about with a guard of four privates, who stood with fixed bayonets outside shops as he bought chocolate. One day a crippled shoemaker was brought in, accused of shouting taunts at the officer. While the soldiers held him, Von Forstner slashed him across the forehead with his sabre.

Even the Germans were ashamed.

Now the Germans are again disciplining Zabern, the little Alsatian town of unhappy memories.

EDITOR'S NOTE-BOOK

England must find new names for those fifty destroyers. Perhaps Adolf could think up some names. He's called them plenty already.

John Barrymore says his latest rift with wife Elaine is "final and irrevocable," which sounds as though it might last a week this time.

Many people are wondering why Germany wants the use of Red Cross boats to pick up fallen aviators in the English Channel. Up until now the Nazi propagandists have brought them home safely.

FROM THE RECORD FILES OF THIRTY YEARS AGO

The residence of N. R. Kennedy, located near Granby, was destroyed by fire with a loss placed at $6,000.

Special trains from all sections of the Eastern Townships carried a large number of residents to Montreal for the impressive ceremonies connected with the great Eucharistic Congress being held there.

The Bury Village Council awarded the contract for the steel work on the new bridge to the Mackinnon and Holmes Company of Sherbrooke. The other sections were awarded to local tenderers.

The insurance companies formally notified the residents of Coaticook of a surcharge of one dollar per $1,000 on insurance premiums levied in the town as a result of municipal taxation which they regarded as discriminatory.

Madame Melba, the noted singer, has arrived in Sherbrooke, in anticipation of a concert to be delivered later in the Clement Theatre.

A No-License League was organized in Brome County to enforce the Canada Temperance Act with the following as officers: Mr. E. A. Dyer, Mr. Luke L. Knowlton and Rev. Geo. C. Wood.

The Scottstown Town Council studied the question of taking over the privately-owned water system to improve the service.

IN THE YOUNG WORLD

Green are the alders and green are the birches; Green are the banks, with a twinkle of blue; Green is the spray where the Bobolink perches, Shouting with joy that the world is all new!

"Everything's young!" is the song he is singing; "Young are the brooks, with their jubilant noise, Daffodils laughing, anemones swinging, Kittens and puppies and dear little boys!

"Oh! little puppies, so jolly and chubby; Oh! little boys of a similar class; Oh! little kittens, delightfully fuzzy, Tumbling together all over the grass;

"Why should you envy your elders a minute— Cats, dogs, or men with their sober employs? Yours is the world, or the best that is in it, Kittens and puppies and dear little boys!"

PRESS COMMENTS

CHURCHILL'S APPETITE FOR BATTLE

(New York Sun)

As if one war were not enough, Prime Minister Churchill has started another—he wants to get public officials to stop using highfalutin, roundabout language and express themselves in plain English. "The receipt of your communication is hereby acknowledged with thanks" will give way, if Mr. Churchill succeeds to "Thank you for your letter," and "Consideration should be given to the possibility of carrying into effect"—which he cited as a particularly horrible example of "officialness"—would probably become "We might try."

The Prime Minister will have plenty of allies in this new war, but victory won't be easy. The other fellows are solidly entrenched. Their cohorts are trained and disciplined. Their morale is excellent, because they know they are fighting for the dearest thing they possess, the right of circumlocution. They will defend it with their last periphrastic latinism.

But the bold Churchill will not be daunted. Up and at 'em, Winston!

THEY'RE SELLING HITLER SHORT

(Watertown, N.Y., Times)

Those persons who were so certain two weeks ago that Great Britain would be crushed under the Nazi avalanche are now just as positive that Hitler is at the end of his rope. No such deep depression was evident in England even during the dark days of last week as prevailed among some in this country. This has now changed. Those who gave England only thirty days to survive, are now actually optimistic.

The rising feeling of optimism is exemplified by the matter in which the price of Canadian bonds have gone up these past few days. The stock market may not be an accurate index of values, in every case, but it certainly is an encouraging barometer of sentiment. If these Canadian bonds be taken as a criterion, therefore, American confidence in the ability of England to successfully resist Hitler is at least ten points greater than it was only a few weeks ago.

While Americans may be unduly optimistic, there can be no doubt that British prestige has immeasurably increased these past few days. Looking back one day, it is almost a point of the war when the British successfully evacuated the Flanders army from Dunkirk. Although perhaps it was not realized at that time, the Dunkirk evacuation proved that England still held control of the English Channel and could maintain that control despite the full force of the German air force.

British control has never been lost even during the days when the Nazis were sending one wave after another of German war planes over England. It has been said today with German heavy artillery attacking the shell British convoys from the French coast. It is realization of this and realization of the great difficulties Hitler must face before he can possibly attempt an invasion of England which has revived British confidence and has put the German weeks or a month ago, much of the betting was on Hitler. Today even on the stock market they are selling him short.

THE SUPER SPY

(New York Post)

Spying, as we said recently, is no longer a matter of taking pictures of fortifications, hunting out secret treaties or stealing plans. The Super-Spy, the Fifth Columnist, performs much more menacing duties, uses new methods and can do much more subtle and damnable things. The Super-Spy presents our Government with a new problem, just as he did in Norway, Denmark, Belgium, Luxembourg and France. They failed to meet the challenge with new remedies in time. It is up to us to be just as resourceful in protecting ourselves against attempts to undermine our democracy as its enemies are cunning in attack. Our first step should be to turn our backs on the notion that mere observation of foreign agents, by keeping our own agents informed of their plans and activities, is protection enough. We are no longer concerned simply with intercepting messages or catching the spy as he is about to leave the country with the secret formula of fiction. Our problem now is to scotch foreign agents who seek to corrupt our own people.

GERMANY LOST OUT (Sunday Chronicle, London, Eng.) Britain's newest source of oil—the Turner Valley field of Alberta, Canada—has already yielded 7,000,000 barrels, it is revealed in a new magazine. Two years ago, after many months of arduous work, the first wells were begun.

German experts visited Turner Valley about four months before the outbreak of war. They offered to finance a pipeline to Vancouver on the Pacific coast at a cost of $4,000,000. The offer was almost accepted when a personal quarrel broke out between one of the Germans and the Canadian prospector. That was England's chance. Sir Edward Elington, on behalf of the British Government, visited Turner Valley last June and secured the whole output of the field.

HOPE FOR THE FUTURE (Montreal Gazette)

"For no matter how the war goes, it can never again be the nice agreeable world we used to know." Those who went through the former World War will recollect that similar words were uttered again and again in the press and from the platform during the years 1914-1918. And they will remember that the world did go back to its old form and was getting along famously until a recovered Germany returned to its attempt at conquest. Accordingly, there is hope for the future.

MA AND JOE AND MOLLY By: H. F. McH.—East Angus.

"You must be brave my son," she said. "Fight the good fight and the Good Lord will see you through."

It was a quiet listless day—that day that Ma and Joe and Molly had driven to Merryvale Siding to meet "the 3:30" that was to take Joe to the great city. They made a quaint but pretty picture. There was Ma, a small slight woman of fifty years, with her old-fashioned dress matching her bonnet, and with her high shoes; and Molly looking pretty as a picture with her flowing black hair and blue eyes; and Joe all dressed up in his "Sunday best," with checked suit and snap-brim hat, the freckles on his face almost matching the dots on his tie, and there was old Dobbin tied to the side of the station, looking somewhat tired after his long drive from home over the dusty country road.

If anyone had told them a few months back that Joe was going to leave them they would have laughed in his face, for Joe and Molly were going to be married. They had always planned on it. They had always played together since they were kids for Molly lived only half-a-mile down the road from Joe and Ma. Then, when they grew older, they both sang in the choir in the picturesque little Merryvale church. And now they were old enough to be married. Furthermore, Ma wanted them to get married, for "Joe was a good boy and Molly a good girl." And Ma was going to live with them—they both said so! She was to have a home with them for the rest of her days.

And Ma deserved a good home and happiness if any woman ever did! Pa Jones had died when Joe was very young and Ma had worked and slaved so Joe would have the best she could give him. After he had finished the eighth grade (the very highest in Merryvale district school) she bought him a correspondence course in "Successful Farming"—bought it out of her hard-earned pennies that he might have a better chance than just an ordinary farmer. And she had always faithfully sent him to Sunday School, and just as faithfully gave him a licking when ever he skipped to go fishing.

Now everything was going fine until one day, out of a clear sky something terrible happened—struck like a thunderbolt out of the heaven—War! War with Germany.

Now Ma and Joe and Molly were British subjects; and loyal British subjects too. Hadn't they waited at Merryvale Siding last June for four hours just to wave their flags and see the King and Queen, standing on the back platform of the Royal Train, as it wizzed by fifty miles an hour?

Now Ma didn't know much about politics or world affairs. To her "Democracy" and "Dictatorship" were just big words. All she knew was that she and Joe and Molly were giving up everything they had planned and worked and hoped for so that Joe could do his part as a loyal British subject. He was going over to fight Hitler who was against everything that was right, and who was breaking the rules of the "Good Book."

Presently the station door opened and Bill, the old station-master, came out.

"Have to flag the train for you son," he said, "ain't many people travels from here."

"My, just think," said Ma, "Just for you Joe."

The train stopped just long enough for Joe to kiss Ma and Molly good-bye, and to allow some well-dressed passengers to point and laugh at Ma's funny clothes. As the train sped away Ma and Molly were left on the platform watching the black curls of smoke as the train pulled out of view. Tears streamed down their cheeks as Ma repeated to herself, "You must be brave son, fight the good fight and the Good Lord will see you through."

"That's true," he admitted. "But you never can tell about this weather. Tomorrow it may jump up to zero!"

Housewife: "Well, do you want a meal enough to work for it?" Tramp: "I'm just hungry, ma'am, not desperate."

A man who lives on an awkward bend on a road has drawn up a scale of charges for motorists who crash through his hedge and damage his glass frames. Nobody ever seems to think up little bits of fun like this for pedestrians.

Teacher: Which little boy can tell me what it is that comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb? Scholar: Please, miss, it's our landlord when he gets the rent.

Helper (to gardener)—How long will you be pruning that tree? Gardener—An hour or so.

Helper—All right, but hurry up. The boss has told me to cut it down.

A little man was sitting in an underground train with his gasmask on the seat beside him, when a woman weighing 15 stone plopped down beside him, smashing the cardboard box containing the mask.

She apologized profusely but the little man would not be appeased. Then a voice behind him said consolingly: "Cheer up, mate. It could have been worse. Your face might have been in it."

A rather small boy asked a foreman in a shop for a job.

"What can you do, sonny?" asked the foreman.

"Anything." "Can you file smoke?" queried the foreman.

"Yes, sir, if you'll screw it in the vice for me," answered the boy. He got the job.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

ELIS DISPLAYS FULL CONFIDENCE IN HIS PARTNER

Earlier in the year, when Morrie Elis won the world championship Masters individual contest, I wrote a series of articles which proved the fine partnership game Elis plays.

In winning the world championship Masters pair event, Elis and Harry Fishbein demonstrated to the field that they are one of the greatest match point pairs in the game today.

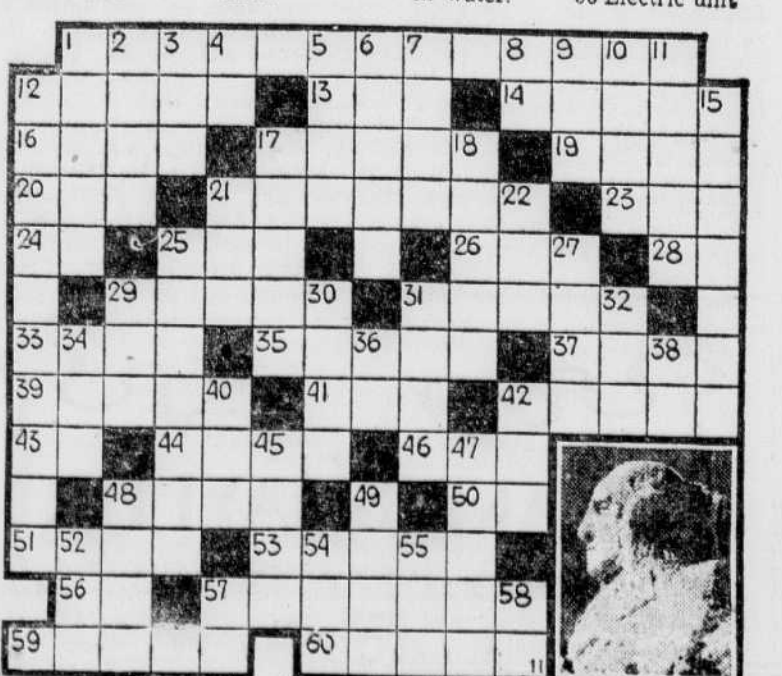

In my opinion, one of the finest demonstrations of confidence in your partner was today's hand, taken from the Masters pair event. Elis made the natural opening bid of a club, and the opponent's overcall of one heart will not be criticized. Holding so many hearts, Fishbein decided not to double, as the opponents would then run out to a safe contract, and he was willing to wait before taking any action. When Elis was doubled at two clubs, however, Fishbein decided to bid two hearts, and in passing two hearts, Elis gave a great exhibition of partnership confidence.

The opening lead was won in dummy with the ace of spades. Fishbein decided that West's nine of spades was a singleton, and that he therefore had time to tackle the trumps before forcing re-entry to dummy to cash the club ace for a spade discard. If East held any quick entry, the spade loser could not be avoided anyhow.

Dummy led a small club to the king, and North laid down the king of hearts. West won with the ace, and, embarrassed for exit, tried to give East a ruff by cashing the ace of diamonds and leading another. But that put dummy in to cash the club ace, North letting go his spade. A club ruff put North in to lay down the jack of hearts. Declarer lost only the ace of diamonds and three trumps.

IN THE WOMEN'S SPHERE

Institute Activities In Compton County

Bury, Sept. 11.—Three branches of the Women's Institute report varied activities for the months of July and August.

The members of the Institute at Bury held a picnic recently in Memorial Park. Several guests were present and roll call was answered by suggestions for a lunch pail.

In Brookbury plans were made to send boxes to four local boys overseas and donations were acknowledged from one firm. A new roof for the community hall, erected in 1921, was donated by the branch.

The group at East Clifton were given a reading on the "New Industries in Canada Occasioned by the Crisis in Europe." The members answered the roll call with different recipes for using honey.

During the month of July the Women's Institute was particularly busy, supervising voluntary registration for women. At Brookbury a successful dance was held for the benefit of refugees and for boxes to be sent to the troops abroad, which netted the sum of $25.

At the usual monthly meeting in Bury, assembled under the heading of Canadian Industries, a paper was read on "Aluminum," with samples of that metal exhibited. An interesting report was given to the society by their delegate, on the Women's Institutes convention at Macdonald College.

It was decided to take care of the flowers at the memorial gates, and ambulance money was collected from each member. The meeting was closed with a special prayer for soldiers and sailors.

Women's Clubs

PLYMOUTH GUILD

Mrs. Roy Taylor entertained the members of the Ladies' Guild of Plymouth Church for the season's opening meeting, during the course of which plans were made for a card party to be held in the immediate future.

At the conclusion of the business period the hostess served delicious refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Clarence Pashley.

WOODARD—CHRISTIE

Derby Line, Sept. 11.—The marriage took place very quietly here on Saturday afternoon, September 7th, at half past two o'clock, of Rowena Valerie Christie, R.N., daughter of Mrs. Christie, R.N., and the late Charles Edward Christie, to Raymond Corey Woodard, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Woodard, of this place, the Reverend E. L. Conklin officiating.

The bride was dressed in a wine-bronze crepe street-length frock, with touches of gold, and wore a gold bracelet which had been her father's gift to her mother. Her corsage was of Mother's Crocus gladioli, tied with satin ribbon of apple green. She was attended by Miss Dorothy Woodard, sister of the groom, who wore a salmon-rose tulle gown with corsage of rose mauve gladioli. Mr. Ernest Nason, the groom's brother-in-law, acted as best man.

Mrs. Christie, mother of the bride, wore a navy blue jacket dress with white accessories and a shoulder bouquet of white and dusty pink bloom. Mrs. Woodard, mother of the groom, wore a black and white printed sheer, with black hat, and a corsage of pale rose garden flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodard left for a motor trip to points in New England, the bride travelling in a rough black coupe and a smart black velvet gown with shoes and purse in matching color. On their return they will reside in Derby Line, Vermont.

FRAZER—PATRICK

South Dunham, Sept. 11.—A quiet, but pretty wedding took place at the United Church, Saturday, August 31, when Marjorie Helen, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Patrick, was united in marriage to Percival Richmond, only son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Frazer, of Melbourne, the Rev. S. Woolfrey officiating.

Mrs. A. Mountain presided at the organ and also sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register, accompanied by Mrs. W. Reid at the organ.

The church was decorated with large baskets of autumn flowers. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length dress of ivory silk-cut velvet over satin, and a finger-tip veil with Juliette cap of pearls. She carried a bouquet of cream and pink roses.

Miss Pearl Patrick, sister of the bride, and her only attendant, was given in a floor-length dress of pale blue net with tulle, and carried a bouquet of pink asters and pink roses.

Mr. Lorne Armstrong, of Richmond, acted as best man. Mrs. Patrick, the bride's mother, was dressed in navy and white, figured sheer with navy accessories, and wore a corsage of pink rose buds, while Mrs. Frazer, mother of the groom, wore a navy and blue figured crepe with navy accessories and a corsage of mauve sweet peas.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's home, attended only by the immediate members of the families.

A beautiful three-tiered wedding cake centered the lace-covered table, which was decorated with silver vases of pink and white flowers.

Later the couple left for a motor trip to Ottawa and Toronto, the bride wearing a belted suit of all-wool herringbone cloth in Arcadia blue with navy accessories.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Frazer will reside at Green Gables Apartments, Richmond.

Social and Personal

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Maskell will regret to hear that their little daughter, Joyce, is seriously ill at their home on Fabre Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Hal Ross Perriard, of Westmount, are guests of the latter's mother and sister, Mrs. R. E. Bradley, and Miss E. Evelyn Bradley, Goodhue Street.

Mrs. R. G. Costley has returned from Scotland, where she was a guest for two weeks at "Ardintoul." Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Scott's summer home on Lake Moffat.

Mrs. H. E. Tilbury has returned to her home on Woodward Avenue, after spending a month visiting relatives in Fredericton, N.B., and in Madawaska, Maine.

Mrs. Francis Hoye left this morning to spend the day in Montreal. She was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Hoye, Miss Phoebe McLanamy and Miss Kay Thompson, the latter of Lennoxville.

Months were read by Mrs. J. G. Ranshouan, owing to the unavoidable absence of the V.O.N. Nurses. This report stated that 174 patients had been cared for, and that in June 44 new patients were admitted, in July 42, and in August 38, making a total of 124 new cases.

There were 1,255 visits paid, 171 in Lennoxville and 1,084 in Sherbrooke. 19 confinements had been attended and also the Child Welfare Clinics every Thursday afternoon.

It was deemed advisable to discontinue the Well Baby Clinics on Tuesdays and have the mothers, who simply desired instruction or to have their babies weighed, come to the Clinic between the hours of two and three o'clock on Thursdays, since this arrangement is seemingly working out satisfactorily.

Total fees collected for the three months period amounted to $274, it being noted that only 85 visits were paid in full, 443 partly paid and 727 entirely free.

DIOCESAN MEETING OF C. W. L. HELD IN ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH HALL

The opening Diocesan meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in St. Patrick's Church Hall, with the President, Mrs. Romeo Marcotte, of Richmond, presiding.

Minutes of the last meeting were read by Miss Gertrude Conway and the financial report was presented by Mrs. G. Campbell, of Richmond.

In discussing the work outlined for the year at the National Convention held in Saint John, N.B., in June, Mrs. Marcotte emphasized that the National War Service Programme would be the main issue, and that the first and most important duty of the present time is to fulfill with promptness the pledge made at that Convention to place the sum of $25,000 at the disposal of the Dominion Government to use as they see fit.

Therefore, said the President, this responsibility rests, not only with the organization as a whole, but each member should regard the pledge as her individual responsibility, and do all in her power in order that the Sherbrooke Diocese may go over the top in reaching their objective towards this pledge.

"Today," said Mrs. Marcotte, when Britain is fighting such a valiant battle for Christian civilization, and with Canada regimentering every available force in preparation for Home Defense, we realize that Canada needs every available dollar without delay, therefore let every member take advantage of this opportunity of living up to the League's motto, "For God and Canada," in a big way.

Tentative plans were made for the Diocesan Convention to be held in Sherbrooke at the Chateau Frontenac on October 15th, when the Sherbrooke Junior Sub-Division, will be in charge.

Mrs. Albert Vallee was named convener of nominations, and Mrs. J. S. Mooney, convener for Resolutions.

Those from out-of-town who attended the meeting included Mrs. Romeo Marcotte, President, Mrs. Grant Campbell, Treasurer, Mrs. P. Campbell, President of Richmond Juniors, and Mrs. Arthur Marcotte, all of Richmond, and Miss Edith Quinn, President of the Lennoxville Sub-Division.

BOLTON CENTRE

Private William Bracey, of Montreal, and Miss Mildred Bracey, of Magog, were guests of their father, Mr. Earle Bracey, and Mrs. Bracey.

School opened on Wednesday, September 4th, with Miss Florence Barnes, of Bromley, as teacher.

Mrs. J. Berry and three daughters, of Lowell, Mass., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Willard.

Miss Elizabeth McLellan and Mr. Jack McLellan, of East Angus, Miss Anniebell Parker and the Messrs. Harold Parker and J. Poulin, of Montreal, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Neel.

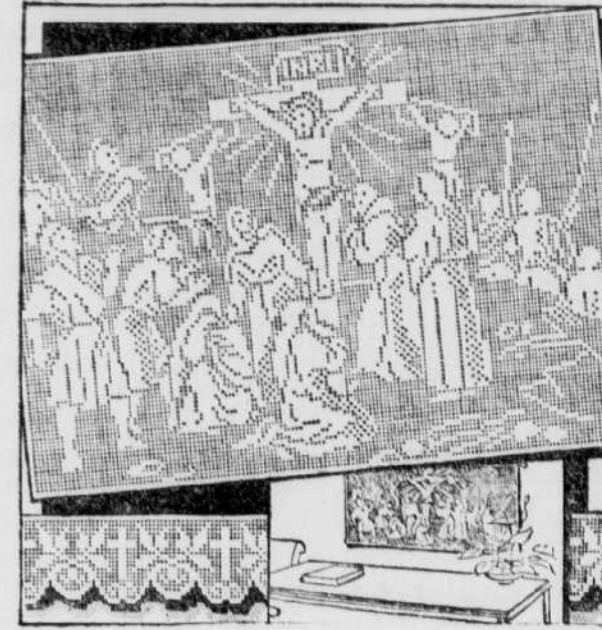

The Misses Eileen True, Helen Cousins and Jean Cousins are home from Knowlton where they have been spending the summer.

Mr. Scott Brown, of Fitch Bay, called at Riverdale.

Mr. Edwin Mitchell is home from Foster where he has been visiting his sister, Miss Florence Mitchell.

Unlike other animals, the African rat is white on top and dark underneath.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sick and the world looks pink.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calmed but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

There are just two kinds of bread in town—Ordinary bread and WORLD'S FARE BREAD!

WOMEN'S CLUB HOLDS FIRST FALL MEETING

Arrangements Begun for Demonstration and Social Evening to Be Held by Melbourne Ridge Women's Institute.

Melbourne Ridge, Sept. 9.—Plans were formed for a demonstration in Kingsbury Town Hall and for a social evening and cooking contest, to take place in late September at the home of Mrs. John Stalker, at the September meeting of the local Women's Institute.

The meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Walter Garret in Upper Melbourne, opened with Mrs. William McMorine, the President, in the chair, and about twenty members present. After the minutes were read and adopted, the correspondence was read, consisting of letters of thanks and a letter from Miss Riddle giving information about a short course to be held in handicrafts, and another in home economics.

Several decisions were taken by the group, including a plan to donate prizes to the Kingsbury School Fair, a determination to report to the Red Cross the case of a child with a crippled hand and adoption of the suggestion to give a jam and pickle shower to an invalid.

Before adjournment the reports of the annual convention of the Women's Institutes at Macdonald College were sold to the members, and a short account of the semi-annual County meeting given by Mrs. L. Driver.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Grimston and Miss Elizabeth Taylor.

How To Relieve FEMALE FUNCTIONAL COMPLAINTS

Few women today do not have some sign of functional trouble. Maybe you've noticed "ROULETTE" getting restless, moody and nervous lately? Then try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to help quiet unstrung nerves, relieve monthly pain (cramps, headache, backache, nervousness, dizziness, etc.), and help thousands of women suffering from "difficult times." Made in Canada. Try it!

IF BABY IS CROSS FIND OUT WHY

HEALTHY BABIES are not cross. Your baby should not be cross. If he is, then something is wrong in his little system. "Out of order." Probably Baby's Own Tablets can promptly "put it right." Mrs. H. J. of Fenton Falls, had the experience. She writes: "My little girl was irritable, feverish and sometimes sick at her stomach—what a relief it was, after giving her Baby's Own Tablets, to see how much better she was."

No matter how delicate your baby may be, these little over-tasting tablets cannot harm him. Easy to take. Promptly effective in clearing up simple fevers, diarrhoea, colic, constipation, simple cramp, colic, teething troubles and other minor ills.

Never be without a full box of Baby's Own Tablets. Sickens so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

RED SOX STRIKE BACK AT THREE RIVERS

Black Foxes Still One Game Ahead In Provincial Finals

Eighth-Inning Rally, Led by Bonner's Single that Started Trek of Nine Men to Plate, Brought Granby from Behind to Notch 4-2 Victory.

Granby Red Sox struck back at their opponents in the Provincial Baseball League finals yesterday when they defeated Three Rivers, 4-2.

Granby's victory still left the Black Foxes with a one-game margin as the teams went into the fourth game of the best-of-seven series. Three Rivers took the two opening games.

The Trifolians got a run in each of the second and third innings but after that went scoreless. Granby scored their runs in an eighth-inning rally.

Paul Bonner's opening single started a trek of nine men to the plate. Doljak, second man up, was out but Bonner got to second. Corrado and Wright fumbled Moore's grounder and Bonner scored.

Then Moore scored on Bloch's double and Walsh walked. Albertson was the second man out, when his fly to centre was bagged but Leach walked, filling the bases. A Texas Leaguer over second base by Kobrin scored Bloch and Walsh.

Pitko belted a circuit clout to open Three Rivers' scoring in the second. Wright scored in the third on a combination of an error by Moore and consecutive singles by Martin and Dinubio.

OLD-TIMER IN 13-INNING WIN OVER DETROIT

Lefty Grove Cast Chaotic Pennant Squabble into Greater Confusion by 6-5 Victory.

Life does begin at 40 and Lefty Grove, the gaunt ghost with a magnificent past and doubtful future has returned to haunt the already trembling American League as proof.

Old Mose manoeuvred through thirteen innings yesterday to conquer Detroit Tigers 6-5 and cast the chaotic pennant squabble into greater confusion.

Earlier this season Old Mose, who was 40 last March, seldom managed to last nine innings and when he broke a bone in his foot in August and was reported lost to Boston Red Sox for the year, nobody figured it made much difference to Boston one way or the other.

Then a week ago Sunday Old Mose came out of the limbo of the lost and battled gloriously for thirteen innings against a strong kid half his age, Sid Hudson, of Washington, and finally has beaten 1-0.

Yesterday Old Mose was up against the leading pitcher of the League, Buck Newsom, winner of 18 games against three losses, and a gallant team that was on the hot end of a five-game winning streak and in first place in the League.

Grove gave up three hits, one of them Hank Greenberg's 30th home run, for three tallies in the first inning. But after that he allowed only one run in the next 10 innings and was never behind after his team-mates tied up the score at three-all in the sixth.

His victory lifted the Red Sox within four games of the lead. Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees were kept idle by rain yesterday and both gained through Detroit's downfall, leaving this situation:

Club	W	L	Pct.	G.B.T.P.
Cleveland	76	57	.571	21
Detroit	77	58	.570	19
New York	75	57	.568	1/2
Boston	73	62	.541	4

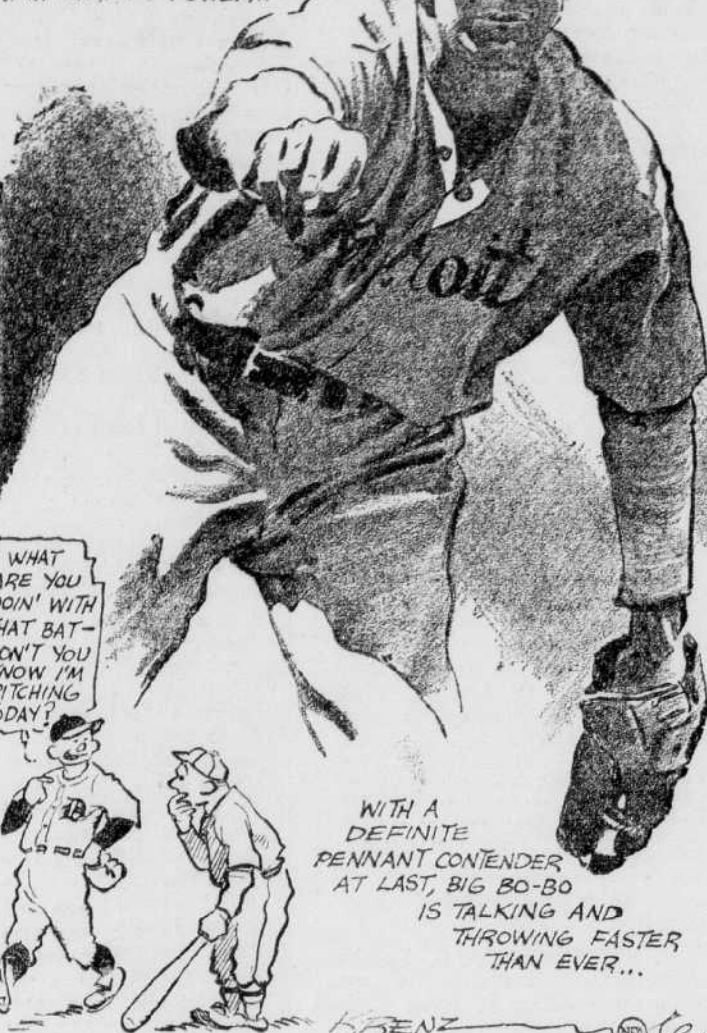

In the other American League action yesterday Washington Senators subdued Chicago White Sox 5-2. Philadelphia Athletics whipped St. Louis Browns 6-4 in a night game.

The only National League games that escaped the rain were in a doubleheader that Pittsburgh captured from the Phillies 11-3 and 11-1 in two big batting displays.

Parts of some suits of ancient armor often were corrugated like modern steel roofing in order to give them greater strength.

YOUNG GOLFERS START "SUDDEN DEATH" ROUNDS

Sixty-Four Contestants Qualify in United States Amateur Championship—Most Eyes Turned to Dick Chapman.

By GAYLE TALBOT
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Mamaroneck, N.Y., Sept. 11.—(AP)—The qualifying scramble ended, 64 earnest young golfers pair off at Winged Foot Club today in two "sudden death" rounds of match play in the United States amateur championship.

In the last two days the field of hopefuls has been reduced from a cumbersome 146. At dusk tonight there are due to be only 16 left to carry on. They go fast in the amateur.

Gene are such notables of the fairway as Johnny Goodman, George Dunlap, Jr., Chick Evans and Francis Ounier—all former champions. Gene also is young John Cree of Hamburg, N.Y., who shot a sparkling 71 on his first qualifying round and then soared to a remarkable 87 on his second try. He used up nine strokes on one hole, the 15th.

Dick Chapman of Winged Foot is the one they all will be watching as he tees off in his first test today. Dick, a night club crooner during the off-season, shot two sub-par rounds of 71-69 to capture medal honors by what apparently was a record margin. His two-day total was 140 strokes, better than the 145 registered by Marvin Ward, of Portland, Ore., the defending champion, and by Duff McCullough, of Philadelphia.

GRANBY

The many friends of Miss Nettie Galbraith are pleased to know she is able to be out again after her recent illness.

Mrs. J. B. Travers was in Montreal for a few days as guest of her sister, Mrs. A. W. McClelland, and Dr. McClelland.

Members of the 24th Shefford Field Battery, C.A.S.F., now stationed at St. Johns, who were home on a short leave at the end of the week included H. G. Ball (A.M.S.), Bdr. J. W. Riddle, Private George Heelis, Sgt. W. V. Doe and Pte. R. Webster.

Mr. William Darby, of Minot, North Dakota, Mr. A. L. Darby and Mr. Roy Darby, of Racine, Que., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Darby and Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Roberts.

Mrs. George Keep spent two days at the Granby South Ridge visiting Mrs. John Parker.

Mrs. J. F. A. McGowan and Miss Kathleen V. McGowan were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Lacombe and Miss Carrie Brown, at Montreal, and were also guests at their summer camp at Lake Hughes, in the Laurentians.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kimball, of Westfield, N.J., were visiting the former's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Roberts and her aunt, Miss Gill.

Mr. J. F. A. McGowan was a holiday visitor, in Montreal, of his brother, Mr. Frank McGowan, and Mrs. McGowan.

Miss Ruth Ball, of Montreal, was a visitor of her aunt, Mrs. F. W. Allan.

Mr. and Mrs. M. McLaughlin, of Hawkesbury, Ont., were holiday guests of their daughter, Mrs. F. S. McLean, and Mr. McLean.

A telegram received by Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Bowker announced the arrival of their son, Aircraftsman Bobby Bowker, and Aircraftsman Boyd, Bruce Doe and Douglas Reynolds, in Regina, Sask. Here they will continue their training.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Phillips, their daughter, Dorothy, and son, Walley, of St. Lambert, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Heelis.

Mr. Reg. Hutchings, of Montreal, visited his mother over the week-end.

Mr. Norman Stone spent the week-end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stone, at West Shefford.

Miss Judy Gerard, who spent a holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Campbell, at Blenheim, Ont., has returned home.

Brigadier Charles Ball, of Petawawa, spent a week-end with his mother, Mrs. H. Ball.

Miss Margaret Bradford was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Solomon at Bromo Lake for a week-end.

Mr. Alan Robinson spent a few days with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Williams, at Mount Royal.

Miss Haghena M. Darby has gone to Waterloo, where she has been engaged as French specialist in the High School.

Mr. E. A. King, of Brownsburg, Que., called on friends here. Mr. King was one of the teachers for the past two years in the Granby High School, but resigned to enter college for a higher degree.

Dr. Hills, Mrs. Hills and Mrs. J. Ernest Philie, of Springfield, were recent guests of Mrs. John Gannon.

Mrs. Gordon Brown, of Montreal, has been visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Savage.

Mrs. M. Hoare, who has been spending the summer in Montreal, has returned to Granby, and is at the home of Mrs. Thomas Norris.

A number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Halpin enjoyed a party and corn roast at their summer home at Bromo Lake.

One More Win And Rochester Red Wings Have League Flag

Mike Ryba Turns in 23rd Victory of Year by Taking Montreal Royals 8-3, and Makes Team Cinch to Win International League Pennant After Promised Easy Gain Over Buffalo.

After waiting nine years, it looks as if Rochester fans are going to be deprived of seeing their Red Wings win the International League pennant—unless they take a trip to Buffalo to witness it.

Wings moved to within half a game of the championship last night by turning back Montreal Royals in the last home game before Saturday. They need only one more victory to clinch the flag and it shouldn't be hard for them to take it from the sixth-place Bisons. But even if the Bisons sweep the series, a setback for the second-place Newark Bears will have the same effect of automatically giving them the pennant.

Last night Mike Ryba lifted Wings into the comfortable position they now enjoy, as he rang up his 23rd victory of the year, 8-3.

Newark Bears, battling desperately for the one-in-a-million chance to overtake the pacesetters, downed the Baltimore Orioles in both ends of a twin bill, 5-1 and 11-3, to extend their winning streak to eight games.

The double defeat dropped the flock 2 1/2 games behind the third-place Jersey City Giants, who split a doubleheader with Syracuse.

Giants won the opener 1-0 behind the four-hit pitching of Frank Pearce, and were well on their way to taking the second game by the same score, but Syracuse rallied for two runs in the ninth inning to nose them out 2-1.

Schedule:
3 o'clock: Alice Dauplaise vs. Andree Triggane.
7:30 o'clock: No. 1, J. M. Cote vs. Philippe Lussier; No. 2, T. Precourt and J. Rousseau vs. L. Houde and L. Desève.
