Wound Nine Years Old Fatal To Arthur Duffy

Chateaugay Man Succumbs As Result of Dreamland Café Shooting Which Took Place in Montreal

Undergoing Operation

Had Conducted Business in Malone and Chateaugay, Good Baseball Player

Nine years ago Arthur Duffy, of Chateaugay, N.Y., was shot in the head during a hold-up at the Dreamland Café, in St. Lawrence boulevard. He died early on Sunday morning at the Royal Victoria Hospital from this injury—the bullet having remained in his skull since that time as physicians found that an operation was too dangerous for fear of complications.

Duffy had been an occasional diner at the café nine years ago. One day he was sitting at a table and smoking a cigarette when a bandit entered brandishing a revolver. Duffy picked up one of the chairs and threw it at the intruder. The latter began firing his revolver and one of the bullets killed the orchestra drummer, while another wounded Duffy. He was immediately taken to a hospital, where it was found that the bullet had lodged in the skull. Duffy felt no ill-effects from the wound and it was found unnecessary to perform an operation. Recently, however, he became ill and was taken to the Royal Victoria Hospital, where he died following an operation, during which physicians attempted to remove the missile.

On February 19, 1926, Joseph Mauro, an Italian, who was arrested in Vancouver, B.C., was hanged for the murder of the orchestra drummer. Duffy was well known locally. He was a first class baseball player. He conducted a men's furnishing store in Malone for several years, later coming into business at Rochester, returning to Chateaugay over a year ago to operate the Duffy dry goods store with his uncle, James Duffy.

Impetus Given Rights League At Valleyfield Tea Meeting

Two Federal Members and A Former President of the Reform Club Give Address Before District Branch

A Definite Organization

Encouragement Accorded Filiale by League President Mrs. Pierre Casgrain

"Keep on trying, although misfortune might often fall in your path, stand up bravely always, even against the worst; if you are working for principle and justice, even if failure seems imminent, cling to your ideals," was the advice given by Dr. J. C. Moore, M.P., for Chateaugay-Huntingdon, at a Reception and Tea held by the Valleyfield-Huntingdon Branch of the League for Women's Rights in the Chateau Salaberry Hotel in Valleyfield on Saturday afternoon, when a large number of prominent persons, distinguished both socially and politically, met to hear the franchise movement discussed. Introduced in a most eloquent manner by Mrs. W. K. Philips, of Huntingdon, Dr. Moore stated that he saw no reason why women should have to fight for their rights, but, he added, it had often been said that "it is not time." He referred back to the time when vaccination was opposed, while now all opposition to that had vanished. "It is just a matter of time," he said, "until the time will come when women will obtain the franchise." He dealt at length with the manner of approach that the ladies were using in their fight.

Mr. A. W. Sullivan in a few words thanked Dr. Moore, and said that personally he did not see the reason why there should be any objection against the women's franchise.

Mr. Maxime Raymond, M.P., for Beauharnois, the guest of honor, addressed the gathering in French. He said that he wished the ladies every success in their movement, although many difficulties might be encountered on the way to success. Mr. Raymond was introduced by Mrs. Gilles R. Amiot, who remarked that she felt certain that his presence and address would give an impetus to the movement.

Mr. Albert Leblanc, speaking in French, said that the concerted efforts of the ladies were sure to show results later on, when they would become a leading force.

Mrs. G. Amiot also introduced Mr. L. A. Forsyth, K.C., ex-President of the Montreal Reform Club. Mr. Forsyth, who spoke to the League last year, and being an ardent supporter of the movement, said that, after a long and exhaustive search, he was still unable to find any reason why women should not have the right to exercise the franchise. Women are not always consistent, while men are always consistent, he remarked, while he brought in a humorous touch when he mentioned that it had been said that there was no place for saints in politics, referring to the two members at his side. Progress has been slow in regard to women's rights, he admitted, while in England the women had obtained their rights.

Gasoline Is Stolen From Autos Parked Outside of Homes

Many a local person has gone out of late in the early morning to start off the boat, expecting to reach his destination in record-breaking time and the machine either would not start, or he didn't get far on the way. There has been considerable gasoline stolen in town during the fall from parked cars. About a week ago a local resident surprised a young culprit in the act. Instead of getting away with a few gallons of gasoline, it cost the boy more than it would to have filled the tank a couple of times over. The thefts themselves are but petty ones, but when the inconveniences thereby caused are considered the matter is serious enough. There seems to be some sort of a ring in the game. The stolen gasoline is marketed to the farming communities in the outlying districts of the county.

Boy Scout Troop Will Reorganize

The Huntingdon Boy Scout Troop is reorganizing and will soon present members with a season of full activities.

The boys have been fortunate in having secured a good locale and will likely have their first meeting next Monday night. An active committee will be chosen to help guide the boys in their activities. A number of the boys want to operate a toy repair shop and it is quite possible that they will be making a door-to-door canvass of the town some time next week to collect broken and discarded toys, to repair for Christmas distribution to poor children.

Former Trooper Is Sentenced to Five Years Penitentiary

Floyd Cool, former trooper, of Glens Falls, was sentenced to five years in the North-eastern penitentiary, at Syracuse, N. Y., Saturday in a counterfeiting case involving him and Armand Vigeant, of Missisquoi. Vigeant, was being tried on ten charges, one of conspiracy and the other nine of possessing and passing counterfeit bills. Cool was on trial only on the conspiracy charge, having pleaded to the other nine counts. The sentence of five years was given for the latter charges. The cases of both will be retried at the Utica term, beginning December fourth. Meanwhile, Vigeant's bail was reduced from $5,000 to $2,500, which he was able to furnish. Spurious U. S. ten dollar bills made their appearance in this district late in the summer. New York State police checked but their efforts had not yet been of avail when a restaurant employee at Tupper Lake detected a counterfeit bill and the pair was caught.

Plan For Butter Exports By National Dairy Council

Portraying the present condition of Canada's dairy industry as a national calamity, President W. H. Forster opened a three-day meeting of the National Dairy Council recently in Toronto. The picture was given color by the statement that over 300,000 Canadian farmers are producers of milk and that the recurring surpluses of butter had a disastrous effect on prices paid to producers. A practical solution of these and other problems affecting the industry throughout Canada constitutes a worth while programme for dairy experts assembled at this gathering. The meeting, according to the secretary, Allan C. Fraser, is being held now instead of in February or March so that they may discuss marketing problems.

President Forster said that he was not one of those who believed in rushing for government aid but that in any industry conditions did arise from time to time which made it necessary to seek aid. "That time," he remarked, "seems to have arrived in our great dairy industry. Stabilization lies in control in such a manner that domestic markets can maintain a reasonable and balanced price between manufactured dairy products and liquid milk."

That a lot of mischief was created by chain stores selling butter at cut-rate prices was the opinion of Secretary Fraser. This point has been called to the attention of the Price

Ormsdown Pupils In French Debate

Notary Crête Commends School and Teachers for Success Achieved

On Monday, the annual French debate, of the Ormsdown High School, was held. The subject was "Résolu ou non, la vie de la famille d'aujourd'hui est plus heureuse que la vie de la famille d'autrefois." Mr. Crête, an Ormsdown notary, presided. He introduced each speaker, in turn, and at the close of the debate, spoke to the assembled pupils. The two sides of the debaters were as follows:

Affirmative leader, Lois Anderson; 1st speaker, Ralph Mather; 2nd speaker, Dixie Cavers; 3rd speaker, Olga Nussey. Negative leader, Olga Elder; 1st speaker, Marguerite MacDougal; 2nd speaker, Bernice MacCartney; 3rd speaker, Huntley Gregg.

The most noticeable feature of the debate was the ease with which each speaker handled the French language. There was no necessity to grope for words, and all speeches were sufficiently well prepared to allow a facility of handling, and a confidence of manner which surprised all those who were present. This fact speaks highly for Mrs. Walsh, the teacher of French in the Ormsdown High School.

The judges' decision was given in favour of the negative side. However, due to the keenness with which both sides contested their points, a very careful consideration was necessitated.

When Mr. Crête had ended his remarks, the leaders of both sides congratulated the opposing team. The occasion closed when the leader of the affirmative thanked Mr. Crête for making the debaters with his presence.

The Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary, and their pupils are happy to offer their most sincere thanks to the generous donors and to all those who so kindly encouraged the card party, organized for school interests. All was highly appreciated. Ormsdown counts less with the purse than with the heart, rather both are united, which accounts for the gratifying results of the evening of November 23.

At the end of the evening's pleasure of card playing, music, songs, recitations and refreshments, all left with impressions of their agreeable and distinguished entertainment.

As guests of honor were remarked Rev. Fr. H. Delage, pastor, presiding; Rev. Father H. Cloutier, curate of Huntingdon; Jeremiah Murphy, president of the Catholic School Commission; P. X. Guerin, Dr. W. Turcot, school commissioners; C. E. Poyart, principal of the Ormsdown Consolidated School.

Two Local Associations Held Successful Banquet At Huntingdon Chateau

Huntingdon County Fish and Game Protective Association, Board Trade Members Listen to Interesting Talks

About seventy-five guests attended a joint banquet of the Huntingdon County Fish and Game Protective Association and the Board of Trade members, in the Huntingdon Chateau Thursday evening. The principal speaker was Capt. Broadfield, from Malone. F. W. Smith of Malone also spoke, as well as M. B. Fisher, M.L.A., and Rosario Messier, representative of the Retail Merchants' Association.

W. S. Brown, President of the Board of Trade, acted as chairman of the meeting, while C. M. Oney, President of the local branch of the Fish and Game Protective Association, introduced the speakers. The Rev. J. H. Miller recited grace.

Mr. Smith, secretary of the Malone Fish and Game Club, was the first speaker and presented some very interesting facts to his audience. He defined conservation, and the things were kept to do, but also the process whereby they were kept for future generations. He stressed the fact that the time to start preserving game was when it was plentiful.

The speaker went on to tell of what had been done across the line. He told of a banquet that had been given by their club which was attended by 700 men and boys. The dinner was given free of charge, and the speaker brought a membership to the club. Of these 700 members the club gained 300 real workers. The speaker said that last year his club had liberated 20,000 full-grown speckled trout and 5,000 full-grown brook trout. These brought this total up to a quarter of a million. They also set out 1000 pheasant eggs, and 50 liberated pheasants, besides 350 hares. They closed a number of brooks for fishing.

The number of ducks, snipe, and "ported" killed by U.S. sportsmen in 1933, by the U.S. Biological Survey, was 15,000,000 and half that number died after crippling.

In closing his address the speaker exhorted the audience to preserve the game now for the future. In doing this, he said to teach the youth conservation. We should not abuse now, what rightfully belongs to future generations to use.

Speaking of conservationists, in opening his address, Capt. Broadfield said there were two main classes. Those who killed wantonly, to satisfy their own lust, and those who killed for food. He said the latter class was one of sportsmanship, so that a man could come out from his cramped city dwelling and get his "feet on the ground."

In the United States, the speaker said, the sportsmen have spent over $500,000,000 for goods, wares and merchandise. He said also there were about 250,000,000 lbs. of fur and game sold every day in the U.S.A. and 140,000,000 lbs. of fish per day.

The speaker said that many lines of game were on the down trail and that conservation would have to be carried on with more vigour in order to save these valuable assets of the country.

Mr. Broadfield closed his address with the plea that each individual do his utmost, and that the local branch of the Fish and Game Association specialize in one thing and carry it through to a finish.

Rosario Messier, Provincial Secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, pointed out that besides the conservation of fish was the conservation of trade. The greatest evil the small merchant had to fight against was the centralization of trade. The best way to fight this was for each locality to protect its own trade by putting a tax on outside canvassers. He held out the prospect that the court declared the verdict in favour of the town thus allowing a municipality to impose increased taxes on outside competition.

Mr. Fisher spoke briefly, touching on the various phases of the Fish and Game Association. He said that the members couldn't expect the government to do all, much was up to the individual. In this era of specialization he thought it was best to carry one thing through to a successful conclusion. He said that every person should be a game warden and help to enforce the law.

At the close of the general meeting the members of the Fish and Game Protective Association remained for further discussion while those interested in what Mr. Messier had to say about the Retail Merchants' Association met in another room. This latter meeting was attended by about twenty merchants. The work was a review of the Huntingdon town charter to know if it permitted imposing a specially high license on persons outside of the corporation doing business in town.

The Fish and Game Association endorsed a resolution requesting the continuance of the $5.00 license fee, and the $10.50 family license fee to U.S. tourists. A recommendation was also made that the Provincial Department forbid the use of all hook nets and nets less than four inches, and that commercials in Huntingdon county be allowed use of four-inch nets during July and August.

A committee composed of Avila Cavan, M.P., and Arthur Fisher was named to present the above resolutions before the Minister of the Department.

Hon. H. H. Stevens struck a popular note in his address at Ottawa to the Junior Board of Trade when he suggested a gigantic house-building campaign, involving perhaps a billion dollars, to help Canada out of the depression. There are so many slums, so many inadequate homes, so many idle workers, so much unemployed material available, that at first glimpse it seems almost a miracle that these ingredients do not get together of themselves and build up Canada. If Mr. Stevens keeps on making addresses like those at Ottawa his following will one suppose rise steadily. It is already a big one. These are the kind of things which seize the imagination of the people and a potential public leader needs to have a lot of them up his sleeve.

Of course Mr. Stevens' proposal is not new. It was urged a number of times at the depth of the depression. I remember very vividly the studies which George Coote, U.F.A. member for Machouane on this subject, and I am sure J. S. Woodsworth made a number of such proposals in the House and out. M. J. Coldwell, the Saskatchewan C.C.F. leader, has also advocated the plan. If government assistance to the worker is to be given, then it seems at least as sensible to give it for building houses as for building roads, with this possible exception: that when you build roads you do not enter into competition with private industry, whereas when you build houses, you do.

Which brings one to the interesting question: in this Billion Dollar Housing Scheme, is the idea for the State to do the building, or should private interests be assisted by the State? Or is it merely the hope that the private construction trade will set about on its own accord on this vast enterprise.

Perhaps it will clear up the economic background of the building industry if one asks why building of houses has practically ceased in the past three or four years. I don't pretend to originality in these observations, some of them were borrowed from the analysis of a financial paper made of the slum report recently made in the city of Toronto. Private builders have been inactive

Maltais Talks To School Children

Pleas Made For Plant Life, Game Animals and Fish by Dominion Entomologist

Under the auspices of the Huntingdon County Fish and Game Protective Association, J. B. Maltais, Entomologist, of Hemmingford, gave talks in various schools Tuesday. He visited the Catholic Boys' School, Huntingdon Convent, and Huntingdon Academy during the forenoon. The talk was repeated to the grade school pupils of the Academy and to St. Anicet Convent pupils during the afternoon. Mr. Maltais was accompanied by T. G. McClatchie, of the Hemmingford School Board and C. M. Oney, president of the Huntingdon County Fish and Game Protective Association. Agronomist J. L. Pelletier also spoke at St. Anicet.

The talks given in the various schools were practically the same, a general summation of which follows: In opening his address the speaker asked the pupils to help preserve the things of nature and not destroy them. He pointed out that the shade trees, elm, maple, etc., were not only beautiful and comfortable but they also purified the air by taking in carbon dioxide and releasing oxygen into the air. Flowers too, besides being beautiful were beneficial in the same way as the trees. He asked the students to grow flowers and cultivate a taste for beauty.

Besides the plants, the speaker also emphasized that there were animals to be protected. The snakes, toads, skunks, turtles, etc., contrary to general belief, were beneficial to man and such should be preserved. These animals feed on small harmful insects and bugs, he pointed out. "They have as much right to live as we have, and are as beautiful in their own classes as we are in ours," he said. Among the birds beneficial to man were the robin, purple martins, owls, and bluebirds. The birds classed as harmful to man were the crows, hawks, blackbirds and sometimes the sparrows. Mr. Maltais pointed out that if each other suffer, so should people be kind to them and cause them no pain. The speaker reminded his listeners that to hurt one of God's creatures was to hurt Him.

When Bad Luck Starts Following Keep on Lookout

When the demon of bad luck starts following a person, it usually gives a pretty good chase, and in case you don't believe the statement, well then ask Bill Cullen, one of the truck-drivers for Marjor-Wilson, sub-contractors for the fill on the new stretch of road west of Huntingdon. About two weeks ago Bill's truck went into the river in front of George Pringle's with a load of fill. The five-ton monster was pulled out during the day, and the machine and driver were back on the job next day, the driver none the worse for his experience, and the truck but slightly damaged. One day last week he ran over a black dog which was a pet of the General and Laberge families. He broke an axle on his truck a day or so later. Since then his truck took fire one day but he was fortunate enough to have been near a fire hydrant where the blaze was quickly extinguished.

Charity Card Party By Ladies Very Successful

Temperature Up To Sixty-Seven Degrees One Day Last Week

Weather of late has been unusually nice, especially when comparisons are made with this time last year. The rainfall has not been very heavy at any one time but consistent rains have fairly well replenished the wells which had been severely affected by the late summer drought. There have been a few snow flurries, but only one afternoon was a mantle laid, and this stayed but an hour or so when the sun came out brightly. On Thursday of this past week, when we had had a month's winter last year, the temperature was sixty-seven degrees, according to the Dominion Meteorological Service thermometer. We have read of the snows and cold in the western states, and the inclement weather of Florida, and are glad that we are still in the Province of Quebec.

B. Weber Plays With Cranes Jrs.

Last season the Cranes team of Montreal which won the provincial junior hockey title had two Huntingdon players, Jackie Kerby and Lindsay Chambers.

This year Lindsay has gone to California, but even if he were here, he and Jackie have passed out the junior age limit. A few local players tried out with Cranes this fall, and Buford Weber has been taken on the regular line-up. He played in the team's first game Thursday night when they defeated Woodland Rangers 7-3, in a game which the Gazette reporter stated as "particularly impressive."

District Exhibitors Successful At Annual Royal Winter Fair

Good Support Given Toronto Exhibition by Ayrshire Breeders From Howick-Huntingdon Section

Ness Clydesdale Winners

In Class of Twenty-eight Entries B. Ness Figures in Clover Seed Awards

The Royal Winter Fair has no more loyal supporters than the Ayrshire breeders. At the first Canadian Royal Fair the most extensive exhibit of the breed ever seen in any showing, either here or in Scotland. And this was not a mere preliminary spurt, as many supposed it to be. It has been a steady effort that has never faltered, and the Royal at has continued to be a yearly event of importance in Ayrshire history. This year the good work was continued. There were 234 entries in individual classes, and a representative of the cream of the greatest Canadian herds. Competition was of the keenest and, as usual, John Cochrane, a Scot from New Jersey, placed the ribbons with Robt. Cunningham, Ottawa, imported Borden's Blue Ribbon as the usual high calibre, and when such men are available as judges and officiate year after year, it is a stabilizing factor in show ring work that is of great importance.

An interesting spectator at this year's judging was Adam Montgomerie, Scotland, whose Lennessock Ayrshires are known in every ring in the world. He can go anywhere and see his own breeding in competition. In one class of the Royal, for instance, he had had something to do with the breeding of five of the entries. And Montgomerie is some farmer when he is at home. We learned that he has 350 Ayrshires in all, runs a couple of hundred sheep and, for cash crops, has 35 acres of small vegetables, 50 acres of rhubarb for forcing and, in season, produces over a ton of mushrooms per day. We judged that his two days at the Royal would be one of the high spots of his Canadian visit.

Geographically, competition was not so widespread as in most previous years. The far east and the far west were not represented at all. Quebec and Ontario contributed most of the entries. Ayrshire, a Pennsylvania herd of Sycamore Farms.

The mature bull class, with six entries, afforded some interesting competition. Greenan Golden Glory, exhibited by Wm. W. Skinner, Senneville, Que., has been champion at two Royals and twice at Ormsdown. Previous to leaving Scotland he was champion of the Royal there. This year Maryvale Farm, Scarborough, Ont., imported Borden's Blue Ribbon as the usual high calibre, and when such men are available as judges and officiate year after year, it is a stabilizing factor in show ring work that is of great importance.

"We are now in the twentieth century, and the country people are well-informed with the radio, by means of the newspapers, quick and easy means of transportation.

"Our greatest ambition in life is to play the role of wife and mother, to have our homes, etc.; even though the father is sometimes recognized as head of the family the mother is usually the real heart of the family."

The above paragraphs include the main substance of the address, and Mrs. Amiot concluded her address by thanking, on behalf of the League, the two counties, the different members and deputies who have given this movement such support.

Event in O'Connor Hall on Monday Night Brought in Total Proceeds of Approximately $400.00

All Prizes Donated

Funds Will be Spent on Town and Country Poor St. Joseph's Parish

To say that the charity card party organized by the ladies of St. Joseph's Parish, Huntingdon, in O'Connor Hall on Monday night was an unqualified success, would be even putting it mildly as the hall was literally jammed, and it lacked sufficient space to allow all the four hundred persons attending to play cards. Total proceeds amounted to $399.47.

The hall had been well arranged for the occasion with the card prizes placed on the stage, and the enclosure for bingo made at the rear. Very little expense was entailed in connection with the party as all the prizes for the cards and games were donated by parishioners and friends. The O'Connor Hall was given generously by D. J. O'Connor.

The ladies are deeply grateful for the whole-hearted support which was given them on all sides, by indefatigable workers within the organization, as well as the men and staff of the hall. The donors of special prizes will not be mentioned as the list is quite lengthy; in all about 110 prizes were disposed of. A quilt was raffled and went to Cecil F. Buell, of Burke. The door prize was won by Merle Patterson of Huntingdon. At Blue Bonnets Mrs. M. B. Fisher won a prize turkey which she graciously returned to the club to raise further funds. A tapestry rug was won by Armand Plead and a goose by W. E. Lefebvre. Special donations are acknowledged from Dr. J. C. Moore, M.P., M. B. Fisher, M.L.A., Adam L. Sellar, and a few others.

The funds collected are for general charity work in the parish, the country sections as much as the town.

Women Rural Centres Subject Radio Talk By Mrs. Amiot

When Bad Luck Starts Following Keep on Lookout

Ness Clydesdale Winners

In Class of Twenty-eight Entries B. Ness Figures in Clover Seed Awards

Mrs. G. Amiot of Valleyfield gave a most interesting address in a short radio broadcast on Wednesday afternoon on behalf of the League for Women's Rights. Her main topic was the "Women in Rural Centres." In her capable manner she ably described the work necessitated by the families in the smaller towns, not only with the farm work but in making a general living. "How many other women are there who succeed only through hard work and by miracles of economy, in order to keep the home comfortable and happy, are not co-workers with the men?" she asked.

"We might admit that the woman is the natural aid to man, that she is a friend in unhappy moments. Therefore, why are these rights refused women, why are these women, who are obliged to follow the laws of the province, refused the right to express their opinion in the Provincial Parliament? Men, who are in charge of all public authority, could, by their power, achieve any objective set by the women if aided by the women to carry out the plan. In all social organizations the women have always played a leading part, as they have done in family life, if only their responsibilities are considered.

"Certain anti-feminist agitators often pretend that women in the country districts have little chance to learn anything about women's rights; they are mistaken, for these women inspire the movement and are not indifferent to social problems; more so the peace and quietness of the rural districts offer a better situation for more serious thought than in the city with its turmoil. The women of the country interest themselves with political questions, civil and social problems, and it is only natural that they desire to express their opinion when they are obliged to pay their taxes.

"The economical contribution to the city ladies from the country women is such an essentiality that the refusal to grant them the rights really makes them feel an apparent social exploitation.

"We are now in the twentieth century, and the country people are well-informed with the radio, by means of the newspapers, quick and easy means of transportation.

"Our greatest ambition in life is to play the role of wife and mother, to have our homes, etc.; even though the father is sometimes recognized as head of the family the mother is usually the real heart of the family."

Huntingdon, Wednesday, Nov. 28, 1934

Ballot Voting At We wish to take advantage of the present issue of the Municipal Bulletin to remind the municipal authorities that the next elections for the rural municipalities, in 1935, will be very important, as during the said year, the term of office of the Mayor of every municipality governed by the municipal code will expire in January, May or July as the case may be and irrespective of the dates on which they were elected.

Thus, at the next municipal elections, the mayor and three councillors must be replaced.

The election of the members of the council, in virtue of the law, must be made by ballot in every municipality which has not passed a By-law approved by the electors, enacting voting by word of mouth, according to Article 266a of the Municipal Code, as enacted by the Act 19 George V, chapter 88, section 13.

Therefore, voting by ballot is obligatory in all municipalities which have not adopted such a By-law.

An election which has taken place by word of mouth, contrary to these dispositions of the law, is null and all interested persons should govern themselves accordingly.

The nomination, in virtue of the law, for elections in January, must take place in 1935, on Wednesday, January the 9th, and the voting by ballot will take place the following Monday, January 14th, 1935.

For the municipalities which have passed a By-law, adopted by the absolute majority of the members and approved by the electors, enacting voting by word of mouth, the nomination must be also on Wednesday, January the 9th, and the voting, the following day, January 10th, instead of Monday.

If a councillor wishes to be nominated for the office of mayor, he may send to the Secretary-Treasurer, before the nomination of candidates, his resignation as councillor, signed by himself before two municipal electors and such a resignation takes effect from the time of his nomination for mayor and it is not necessary that it be accepted by the councillors.

If this councillor is defeated as mayor, the office of councillor remains vacant and he cannot withdraw his resignation.

The council must fill itself this vacancy.

The above does not apply to a councillor whose term expires this year but only to a councillor who has another year of office.

Many municipalities, under the authority of article 80 of the Municipal Code, have designated the seats of each councillor by a number.

In such a case, according to article 259, the nomination paper must mention the name, surname and occupation of the candidates and the number of the seat for which they are nominated.

Therefore, there may be two or three candidates for seat number 1 and only one for each seat number two and three.

In this case, the candidates for these two seats should be proclaimed elected by acclamation and voting is held for seat number 1.

We advise the municipalities to have a separate ballot printed for each seat when there is a vote, as a great number of names on one ballot may be the cause of errors.

The ballots for the mayor as well as for the councillors are deposited in a single ballot-box.

Formerly, a ballot-box was necessary for the mayor and another one for the councillors.

This was the cause of errors and abuses and the Legislature, by the Act 20 George V, chapter 103, section 8, made the change and enacted that a single ballot-box would be used for the mayor and for the councillors.

At each election, we are asked on the eve of the voting day, where to have a ballot-box and the ballots printed?

We urge the secretary-treasurers not to wait till the last minute before attending to these matters.

They may apply to the secretary-treasurer of a nearby municipality where the secret ballot has been used; this secretary-treasurer, we feel sure, will gladly give him all the necessary information concerning such matters.

Proprietors' sons vote only if they are entered on the valuation roll as such, and if they live in the municipality with their father or mother.

Therefore, a proprietor's son living with his father in Montreal could not vote in Tres St. Sacrement, even if his father owns a property there for a large value.

We must insist anew upon the fact that nobody has the right to vote unless his name is shown on the valuation roll. This is about the only reason for a presiding officer to refuse any one from voting.

Some secretary-treasurers assume a serious responsibility in refusing the right to vote to some persons or in refusing nomination papers because the candidate or the person wishing to vote has not such and such a quality as proprietor or tenant according to law.

Thereby, they assume a part of judicial character and such a part rather belongs to the Courts. We would therefore suggest that you do not decide the intricate questions of law, but that you should leave them to the Courts to decide.

In virtue of the law, the Minister of Municipal Affairs may authorize a municipality to use typewritten ballots under the authority of article 296, if sufficient proof is given that it cannot have them printed.

This permission is granted only to municipalities far away from any centre and which cannot, in the relatively short time between nomination and election days have their ballots printed according to law.

Owing to the crowding of polling stations in certain municipalities, the council has the power, if it so decides, to order by By-law, adopted by the absolute majority of all its members, that the voting be held at more than one place or polling stations.

Such By-law must be adopted at least one month before the date of the elections.

For instance, it may be ordered that there will be two polling stations in the same building, or even in the same room when the number of electors justifies such action or again, if the municipality is very large, it may be ordered that there will be a second polling station in the third range and a third one in another range in order to accommodate the electors residing in a distant part of the municipality.

For details concerning these last provisions of the law, we advise the parties concerned to refer to Articles 266 and 313a of the Municipal Code, as enacted by the Act 17 George V, chapter 74, sections 5 and 7.

The voting lasts from eight o'clock a.m. until six o'clock p.m.

The council may, by By-law, decree that the voting will last longer than six p.m. but not later than eight p.m. (Act 22 George V, chapter 103, section 2).

R. C. Ladies Charity Town of Huntingdon and citizens of the surrounding community are due the Ladies of St. Anne and the Maternal Assistance Society, two newly formed organizations of St. Joseph's R. C. Church that have proved themselves most able workers. These ladies sponsored a party that was the largest of its kind ever held in the O'Connor Hall. The proceeds from the Monday evening card party and night-of-games will net high $350.

The old saying within the churches, "leave it to the Ladies' Aid" can be changed equally as well and appropriate to "Ladies of St. Joseph's Parish." With this money so freely and willingly given by the masses to these willing workers, such will be used for charity purposes within the Parish. The motto, "give that others may receive" was certainly exemplified in no mistaken manner, for the hundreds of prizes that were awarded for one game and another were all donated by Parishioners of the parish and good friends of the Charity Cause.

The Ladies of St. Anne and the members of the Maternal Assistance Order who sponsored and conducted the Monday evening Charity Benefit are deserving of only the highest praise and commendation for the success of their undertaking.

Two Newspapers Across Canada will be found over Celebrate 700 weekly newspapers. Some of these newspapers are hardly deserving of the name, but on the other hand they afford a service to the sparsely settled communities that some day may become a thriving town.

St. Marys and Amherstburg, two fine towns in Ontario may have been just such meagre places when the St. Mary's Journal-Argus was founded 82 years ago, or 60 years ago when the Amherstburg Echo first saw the light of day.

This week these two papers have published most outstanding anniversary numbers. St. Mary's town marks its 70th anniversary of incorporation through publishing a 36-page newspaper. Every page in the paper is an interesting page of history. Its advertisers are proud of St. Marys, and the publisher of their paper, Mr. Lorne Eedy, else the paper would not have been so generously supported in publishing this edition.

As we turn to the more western town, in the county of Essex, we find Editor Arthur Marsh reviews the days of the foundation of the Echo 60 years ago and the intervening sixty years. Amherstburg is an interesting historical centre, located on River St. Claire, near Windsor, Ont. It was at Amherstburg where the "Blacks of the South" tripped across the international boundary to their freedom in Upper Canada. Being the most southern county in all Canada this county is adapted to seed growing and advanced agriculture. With this unusual background Editor Marsh has drawn a fund of historical data for the 60th anniversary edition of the Amherstburg Echo.

Whilst many publishers across Canada have published anniversary editions in 1934 none of them are deserving more commendation than Editor Lorne Eedy of St. Marys or Arthur W. Marsh and son John of the Amherstburg Echo.

These Pernicious Slot Machines These pernicious contraptions, some of which are functioning in this town, have caused a furore in most of our citizens, and we think their anger is justified. We do not wish to start a controversy on the ethics of gambling but desire with emphasis to advise our readers that slot machines undoubtedly foster the gambling instinct.

Many of our cities and towns have taken official action to ban these machines, but in nearly all cases, the legal right of municipalities to govern their operation seems to be in doubt.

Looking upon the law as the line of demarcation which divides the righteous from the inmates of a penitentiary it appears that to keep on the right side of the line, the machine must deliver some commodity of merchandise. This is usually a little candy mint worth wholesale about 1000 for a dollar. This mint is for the gambler. What mint does the proprietor get? He gets a real mint, the product of a mint of George Rex, a product recognized by bank managers, who look disdainfully on candy mints as a deposit. The sucker gets his sucker; the proprietor waxes fat.

This is how you become a millionaire. You walk to the counter where the machine is operated and give the attendant a quarter. He gives you five metal slugs that fit the machine. You drop these into a slot one after the other and pull a lever each time. If the machine falls to "cough up," being human, you with high dudgeon buy another quarter's worth of slugs. Perhaps this time the machine is kindly disposed and returns you two slugs. Then you have that wonderful feeling of easy money or unearned wealth. All is well in the world. You buy a further quarter's worth of slugs, and so on. You have overlooked one important fact. For every dollar you have put in it 60 cents remains.

P. T. Barnum must have been a minor prophet when he said, "one is born every minute."

You are not only a thief as you wander home-wards, realizing that you have robbed little Bobby of his new boots which he so badly needs, but you are concocting a feasible lie for the grocer as to why you cannot pay your bill. Observation of the clients of these machines reveals that they are those who can ill afford such a doubtful amusement.

Perhaps the worst feature of all is the spirit of gambling it engenders in the youth of our towns. A little luck at the start and the gambling instinct is aroused to its highest pitch. Money to stake must be obtained at all costs. It is hard to instil into youths and even adults, that something cannot be obtained for nothing. Only a long series of losses will bring this simple mathematical fact home to the gambler.

The question of the operation of these devilish devices should be first on the agenda of our Council. It is against the law for the slugs to be cashed into currency over the counter. Are they? Is a man spending a dollar for a cent's worth of candy? Let common sense predominate in our reasoning.

Zane Grey Speaks

Motion pictures have needed a scouring for a long, long time. Zane Grey, novelist declares in approving the campaign for cleaner films. "The motion picture, if it glorifies the criminal, hallows the vampire, and exhibits the perverted, it does what otherwise would be a beautiful romance, cannot help but have a powerful effect on the minds of our younger generation," says Grey. Novels, short stories, radio, and even art, are tainted with indecency, he contends.

Law Goes Broke

After serving four months of a 14-year sentence in North Dakota's state prison, John H. Dumphy, escaped Chicago police captured him and wired the North Dakota warden to come and get him. "We're broke," the warden wired back. "The $125 it would cost to return him would buy 200 bushels of barley for the prison. Let him go." So it Dumphy ever feels like returning to prison he will have to pay his own expenses.

Fortunes in Arms

Before President Roosevelt placed a ban on the export of war material to Paraguay and Bolivia, the two South American republics at war, United States arms manufacturers were averaging a profit of $7 a minute on materials sold these countries. This was revealed by the senate munitions investigating committee. Sales of war material to Bolivia, Colombia, Peru, China and Japan totaled $47,056,886 in January of this year. During April the total was $43,257,431. Japan topped the list as the largest purchaser, China was second, and Bolivia third. An investigation will be made into a charge the Standard Oil company of New Jersey is financing Bolivia's war budget.

Brides at Five

The Sarda act, which forbids the marriage of children in British India, is being evaded by Indians who are crossing over the frontier into French territory. Ninety marriages of children have been performed in a single day at Yanam, a French town near Cocanada, South India. The brides and bridegrooms are the children of people whose homes are in British India territory. The parents include government servants, doctors, lawyers and even people who recommended adult marriages for others. Trains and motor buses brought the marriage parties to Yanam, and girls between the ages of five and ten were hurriedly married to boys of 15 and 18.

Boys Die Off

Seven male members of the Dietrich family near Belmont, Ohio, have died of the same mysterious malady since 1868. The disease is called "creeping paralysis" which, in all seven cases, first showed up at the age of five and proved fatal by the age of 18. Two living members of the family, Glenn Dietrich, 16, and John Dietrich, 17, now are afflicted with the same disease and doctors declare they cannot live more than a year. A brother, Samuel, died two years ago. A clinic of 50 specialists examined the two youths now ill but were unable to diagnose the mysterious disease other than to say it is a form of paralysis. It has not affected any but male members of the family.

Technocracy Auction

The furnishings and equipment of "the birthplace of technocracy" at Ponton Lakes, N.J., went under the auctioneer's hammer and realized only $75 towards the $237 the Chief Technocrat Howard Scott owes the town for back rent on the old municipal power house, where the theory of technocracy was first elaborated. A small crowd of unimpressed local second-hand dealers attended the sale, bidding without enthusiasm. The high bid of the sale was $34, for one of the three ancient automobiles Scott kept.

Heart Sewed Up

To save the life of George Hampton, 41, Lancaster, Pa., when a stab wound reached his heart, doctors had to make an incision, lifted the heart from its place, stitched the wound and replaced the organ. Hampton not only survived the operation, but is on the road to recovery.

Leopard Trap

A negro workman at Worcester, Cape Province, who walked round a rock and found himself face to face with a leopard got such a fright that his hair turned grey. The man had set a trap for leopards behind a rock. When he went to see if he had caught any he came face to face with the animal—but it was not in the trap! Man and beast stared at one another for a moment, then dashed off in opposite directions.

Lives on Cows

When your family does not have the money to send you to college there are several ways to overcome that difficulty if you do not become discouraged too easily. Clyde Wilson, 21, at the University of Arkansas, brought two cows with him to college, whose milk, sold around town, more than pays his expenses.

Finger-printing All

Massachusetts now has a state law providing for volunteer finger-printing. The hope of the state bureau of identification is to make finger-printing universal for the good of the citizens themselves. In a campaign of education bureau officials point out that fingerprinting is particularly advisable as an aid for victims of amnesia or accidents, or for lost children. Also, it will prove of great benefit in settling insurance claims, and identifying persons who have died in hospitals, penal or charity institutions.

Passes Up Billions

Back in 1886, George Honeyball found gold in a district known as the Rand in the Transvaal, South Africa. Without investigating the richness of his find he sold his rights for $25 to Godfrey Lys, who in turn sold his rights to a mining company. In the 48 years since then more than 600,000,000 worth of gold has been taken from the Rand district. Godfrey Lys has disappeared, but George Honeyball still lives in a cottage on the outskirts of Johannesburg, a poverty-stricken old man.

Begging Pays

A man of twenty-six has been arrested 266 times in Madrid for begging and still he stays in the capital, which is something of a beggars' paradise. Some of the older hands at the game claim to have been in prison 400 times. Nearly all prefer prison to work. One woman who used to beg outside the house of parliament sent four sons to the university.

Pilgrimage Revived

Cardinal Bourne recently led the first national pilgrimage in more than 400 years to the Shrine of Our Lady at Walsingham, England, where the Virgin Mary is believed to have appeared in a few years the ruler destroyed the Priory, confiscated the lands and treasures, burnt the shrine and executed five of the Priory canons for treason. A new shrine has just been completed in the Slipper Chapel, so named because in ancient days pilgrims used to remove their shoes when visiting it. Walsingham once was England's Nazareth, which brought it such immense fame. It was founded about 1061. Like Lourdes, it had its holy wells, and became famous for the many miracles which were believed to have been wrought there.

Batman at Party

If you think war-time friendships are not lasting just listen to this story of the thoughtfulness of a battalion commander for his war-time batman. Major Gordon Dingle, of the 3rd battalion, Toronto regiment, received a letter from Col. William Rae, commanding officer of the old Third battalion, telling him he was sorry he could not get back for the Canadian corps reunion, but asking him to locate his old batman, George Redden and see he got to the reunion. The only address he could give were one in South Boston and one in Lynn, Mass. Major Dingle turned the matter over to the Canadian National railways, which located Redden in three hours, wired him his ticket and he went to Toronto to meet his old comrades. And Colonel Rae footed the bill.

Why Sign Then?

A few weeks ago a petition was circulated in Astoria, Ore., and signed by numerous persons. The heading stated very plainly the signers were joining the Communist party. The list was published in a local paper, and the editor never spent such a busy week as afterward. In every issue since then he has been printing explanations and disavowals from signers who said they had not read the petition heading and merely signed it as a favor to the person passing it. It always pays to read what you are signing before putting down your name, even if it is only a petition.

Want More Babies

France has become so alarmed over its falling birth rate that a nationwide campaign for more babies is being conducted by a group of eminent Frenchmen including two ex-presidents, Millerand and Poincare, ex-Premier Herriot and the cardinal archbishop of Paris. In 1933 there were 40,000 fewer births in France than in 1932. If the rate of decrease shown in the last six years continues there will be only approximately 500,000 births in France in 1944 as against 1,000,000 a year as far back as 1870.

Mighty Waist Line

Wishing to go from Rosario, Argentina, to Buenos Aires, by train, Pedro Cardozo bought a ticket but was forced to ride in the baggage car. The reason, he was too big to get into a passenger coach. Cardozo is said to be the fattest man in the world, weighing 638 pounds. He is 30 years old, 5½ feet tall and has a waist line of 7 feet 10 inches.

Triplets at Party

A most unusual party was held in Oakland, Calif., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Isom. It was a "triplets" party. Four trios of infants, one belonging to the Isoms, being present. The triplets did not seem to care much about the affair as all of them slept throughout the evening so the parents had to eat all the ice cream and cake.

Old Song Revived

"The Man on the Flying Trapeze," most recent of the old songs revived by the radio, was composed in 1887 by Alfred Lee. George Leybourne wrote the words. Too bad the two authors could not have lived to share in the present-day profits of their production which are much greater than when the song was written originally. It is the six best seller at present, even in competition with modern songs.

Sleeper Gains

The Chicago stenographer, Patricia McGuire, who has been asleep for more than two and one-half years, again is showing signs of returning consciousness. From time to time she opens her eyes and follows persons as they move about the room, but she is still unable to talk or move her body. Apparently the girl has suffered no serious physical effects as she has gained ten pounds during the long sleep. She must be nourished by forced feeding.

School Notes

By Staff Reporter

The Academy is slated for better things at considerable cost to the school board. A new slate blackboard is being put up in Grades X and XI. This will give an up-to-date surface for the students to work on.

The scholastic record of the school is still playing as strongly as ever, even though the needles are changed. The results in Grade X's Geometry examination were very gratifying. The work of Betty Carr being especially excellent. In Grade XI Ethel Waldie's English paper was of an equally high standard.

Miss Herdman, Grade VIII teacher, was ill on Monday. Her work was shared by the other members of the staff.

The party given last Friday evening by Grade IX in honour of Grade VIII, was thoroughly enjoyed by all the students present. Two of the students helped to supply the music for the dancing. A delicious lunch of cake, sandwiches and coffee was served. There will probably be no more class parties until the annual Christmas Ball which will be held in the school this year, Thursday evening, Dec. 20th.

The boys are looking forward to the freezing up of the river for some pre-season skating and hockey. The hockey prospects are playing basketball to keep limbered up after rugby.

Mr. George Rennie and two sons of Guelph, Ont., visited at the home of his brother, Mr. Eddie Rennie, several days last week.

Mrs. Murdoch Rosevear spent the past week at Covey Hill with her sister, Mrs. Charles Stevenson, who is suffering from blood poisoning in her arm.

Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Wilson and Mrs. Robert Wilson were callers on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ovens, Tatehurst.

Mrs. Chester Wilson spent a few days last week at Tullochgorum, the guest of her sister, Mrs. Robt. Craig.

"15c put it back into service!"

"MONEY was so scarce last fall that a new dress was out of the question for me," writes a Three Rivers woman. "All I had was a light green silk which had lost its first color beauty. But the enviable new dress Diamond Dyes and an hour's work gave me a beautiful dress, practically new. Just think what a wonderful amount of pleasure and pride that 'Ic bought!' Women everywhere are saving on their clothing bills by using Diamond Dyes—the successful way to give permanent dark colors by boiling. They say there are no colors like Diamond Dyes, rich and deep. This is because Diamond Dyes contain a greater amount of the finest aniline coloring. For dainty light shades without boiling, use the wonderful new Diamond Tints. All stores have them, 15c."

On Tuesday evening of last week very interesting and instructive pictures were shown to a large audience of school children and their parents and friends under the supervision of Nurse Meiling and Dr. J. Patenaude, who have held a succession of Clinics in Munro Hall this past Summer and Fall, when many of the children in and about this community were benefited. These pictures presented in Munro Hall were along health lines, care of teeth, correct posture, etc., in story form which made them doubly interesting to the children. A short comedy was thrown in for good measure and all who attended could not help but feel that a most profitable evening had been spent and that the Provincial Health Unit was doing a great work towards the education of our youth along the lines of health.

On Thursday afternoon, Mrs. H. Wilson entertained the United Church Woman's Association at her home. Quelling was the work of the afternoon. There was a good attendance of members and visitors. In the absence of the President the meeting was conducted by the Vice-Pres. The December meeting will be held early in the month at the home of Mrs. Gardner, when the dime-cards will be received. A delicious hot supper was served by the hostess. The birthday of one of the members was celebrated by a lighter birthday cake which was served at the supper hour. Mrs. Barwick and Mrs. Wilson were appointed to prepare the Christmas Cheer boxes.

Miss Edna Alexander of Montreal spent the week-end with her aunt, Mrs. Gardner.

Death On The Roads

TERRIBLE experiences in Great Britain of casualties upon the public highways and streets, have driven the usually staid and circumspectly spoken London Times to remark that: "The common experience of all who use the roads in any capacity is that there are fools who invite death and hogs who inflict it; and it is against these minorities of inconsistent road-users that the majorities of all classes of road-users ought to combine."

The ghastly accounts of killings and maimings by automobiles, in country as well as in cities, has compelled newspaper readers to come to the conclusion that we are approaching an era of deadly war, waged by many owners or drivers of these costly and speedy machines upon all who have occasion to use our roadways.

Since the practical passing of the horse from the highways, such magnificently surfaced and graded roads were built at the public expense, had never been dreamed of in former days.

The automobilists at once took possession of these publicly-owned possessions, as though by right, and as a matter of course.

Speedways, they were never intended to be but as they were seized upon by too many of our people, and those who recognized their great importance economically, and great them with judgment as advantages to the community, suffered seriously at their hands.

A prominent journal in the neighboring republic stated after investigation that: "Data collected from many parts of the United States by insurance companies show that 10 per cent of the drivers cause 60 per cent of the motor accidents."

No one can wonder that there is afoot in many countries, a drive for safety by all road-users; by the ninetieths of motorists who are sane and courteous as well as by pedestrians, since all have to share the road with the deadly few.

Any one of us, on any day, may die under the wheel of a dangerous fool. Hence the universally felt need for a drive in every municipality which must be a fight against the deadly one-tenth of drivers who are making per cent of the drivers cause 60 per cent of the accidents.

It is clear that the majority of accidents are caused by repeaters. These repeaters are habitual speed-freaks, rule-breakers, careless incompetents.

That narrows the issue. It makes possible effective action. Fines will not deter repeaters, but prison sentences will.

That is why, in Montreal, for example, the public, the police and the Courts are "cracking down" on reckless drivers, with promise of still severer penalties to come.

And there is another effective weapon to be used against dangerous drivers, especially recidivists. Cancel their licenses!

With the deadly tenth driven off the roads, our death toll would be cut by these means to a fraction of its present size. Our judges have the power, by suspending or cancelling licenses, to rid us of the worst offenders.

By all means let the municipal authorities everywhere, enable the administrators of our laws to use the powers committed to them, without favor or fear.

The appalling number of young children unnumbered among the victims of the speeding or incompetent drivers of cars and trucks, emphasizes the necessity for a general attack upon such misusers of our highways.

Drivers under the influence of intoxicants to any extent, have no right upon the public roads in any civilized community, and it is the plain duty of every police officer, to see that they are kept off the roads permanently.

The drive for safe roads, which is fast becoming world-wide is no mere uprising of motorists against motorists, though pedestrians are very properly up in arms.

It is a fight by both motorists and pedestrians to make the roads safe for both!

—Family Herald.

Editor Solves Problem

ONE of the problems an editor has to contend with is that of persons arraigned in police court wanting their names kept out of the paper. It is a daily problem, and one that adds many a grey hair to the editorial cranium.

The Reporter, a newspaper published at Independence, Kansas, has a way of its own in dealing with requests for consideration by auto drivers whose weakness gets them into police court. In that city when an offender asks the editor to suppress the news of his arrest for driving while intoxicated, a temperance pledge is "pulled on him" and if he signs it the Reporter will suppress the news.

According to Charles Spence, the editor, more than 100 have signed, and only three have broken the pledge—at least have repeated the offense and been caught. Here is the pledge form:

"The undersigned, having been arrested for drunkenness and fined in the police court of Independence, wishes to have no mention made of the incident in the Daily Reporter."

No mention is made of this incident in the Reporter. One of the reasons for this is that the Reporter has our consent in publishing a news story concerning the same, as well as a mention the particulars of the case which caused us to sign this pledge, and likewise the fact that we signed it."

In the three cases of pledge violation the Reporter published all the facts, as per the agreement. One of the pledge signers was a prominent local advertiser.

Farmer Debtors and Their Creditors

THE legislation known as The Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, which was passed by the Dominion Parliament at its last session, and which is being put into operation in Ontario, is designed to keep those farmers on the land who, because of the hard times and for other reasons, became financially entangled to the extent that they could not meet their obligations with creditors.

The need of legislation of this kind was apparent to the Dominion Government. Official receivers in this district have already given sympathetic hearing to some sad stories. In a majority of cases conditions have changed since they purchased their present farms. They bought under favorable circumstances, with high prices and good prospects. It was not long before they found they could not meet their interest payments, they were in debt for farm machinery, etc., and were in danger of losing all they had invested.

This Act will give them another chance. They have the right now of calling their creditors together, of making requests upon them for extensions or reductions of their debts based on their own ability to farm and the productive qualities of their farms. Already there have been instances of farmers being saved from ruin. The creditors on being given the facts have been ready in most instances to do the fair things. These unfortunate farmers do not want to have their debts wiped off, but they are asking for some relief from their load of debt for specified times until they get a chance to accomplish something, believing that with rising prices in farm products they will be able to make good. There is much to be commended in the Act, and much will depend on its administration as to its success.

—Cornwall Standard Freeholder.

Will We Never Learn From Others' Errors?

THE parallel between Canada's action in attempting to pass the price of wheat futures at Winnipeg, with the attempts of the Federal Farm Board in the United States to maintain a fixed price for wheat is so exact that numerous commentators have felt impelled to comment upon it. Those who best know the sorry results of Washington's blundering with wheat are amazed that Canada should continue so fatuous a wheat policy as Mr. Bennett and Mr. McParland have embarked upon.

American experiments in holding back wheat, stabilizing it by government purchases and pegging prices effectively threw American wheat growers and millers out of the world market. Canada's equally ridiculous experiment bids fair to do the same thing in this country. We are a nation built upon a wheat economy. The export of wheat and flour is essential to any measure of prosperity at all. Yet we are deliberately undertaking to have but one effect, namely taking governmental policies which that of closing up our foreign markets for wheat and flour.

The statement in the Northwest Miller that "blundering policies finally have brought the world wheat trade to a low estate" cannot be denied. Well indeed may that old established paper of the milling trade say that "all of the millions of bushels of so-called surplus would long ago have been used for food in other countries if the world would not have set up their programmes of stimulating production, restrictions and quotas would have been determined by military rather than by economic considerations, and the international wheat trade would not have been so hopelessly askew" had the wheat balance been permitted to liquidate itself by natural processes and had governments stayed out of wheat.

A Law Every Mother Should Know and Observe

Never Give Your Child An Unknown Remedy without Asking Your Doctor First

According to any doctor you ask, the only safe way is never to give your child a remedy you don't know all about, without asking him first.

When it comes to "milk of magnesia," that you know everywhere, for over 60 years, doctors have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia for your child."

So—always say Phillips' when you buy. And, for your own peace of mind, see that your child gets this: the finest men know. Made in Canada.

Practical Encouragement

THE Provincial Secretary, Hon. Athol Murray, has acted promptly upon a very happy thought. His decision that in the future distribution of books to prize-winners in the provincial schools selections shall be made from the works of Canadian authors published in this province is an admirable one. The books will include those which have been given special distinction, by awards and otherwise, together with such others as are considered most suitable for the purpose intended. There is thus to be opened up a new and important field for the writings of Canadian Exercise of a little foresight and care might have saved many lives that have been lost through carbon monoxide poisoning, the effects of which creep stealthily upon the victim like a thief in the night. Following closely the rules that have been outlined above may easily prevent many an accident, perhaps with fatal consequences.

Ormslow

A delightful card party was held on Friday evening in the Parish Hall under the auspices of the Reverend Sisters of the Holy Names. Forty-eight tables were occupied with enthusiastic players of Bridge, Five Hundred, and Euchre, which were played in a non-progressive manner. The same four players remained together throughout the evening with the winner of each table being awarded a prize. Following the serving of excellent refreshments the drawing of the door prize took place and was won by Mr. Pierre Reid, an electric table lamp raffled went to Mrs. P. Laberge and Miss Claire St. Denis was the lucky winner of a three story fruit cake. During the evening and at the intermission a musical program was given by the children of the higher grades of the school and was much enjoyed and drew a hearty response from the audience. The net proceeds amounted to $128.94 and will be used for the benefit of the pupils of St. Malachie Model School in obtaining equipment for better amusements and sports.

A good-sized turnout for the first social evening of the carpet bowling members of the I.O.O.F. when they entertained four teams from the Brotherhood Society on Thursday. Ladies' and Gent's Furnishings

Visitors to Bermuda in spring never cease to marvel at the day of a Happy Holiday. Bermuda at all seasons of the year possesses unique floral charm. Fields of stately Easter Lilies, magnificent hedges of oleanders, and hibiscus, are the leading specialties. The scarlet poinsettia, scarlet cordia, acalypha, palms, flaming lantana, royal poinciana and pigeonberry.

Sports at Valleyfield

The newly formed basketball league held its first meeting on Thursday evening at the Garde Champlain hall and elected the following officers: W. G. E. Aird, honorary president; Father Hebert, honorary vice-president; Robert Harris, president; Jos. Dege, vice-president and H. C. Nixon, secretary-treasurer.

All games will be played at the Garde Champlain hall and an exhibition game has been planned for Monday night between two teams picked from Moco club players. The game will get underway at 7.30.

The Moco Basketball Club met on Tuesday evening and elected Robert Harris, chairman; Stuart Aird, secretary-treasurer, and Earl Ruthman, general advisor. The Mocos will have a strong team as several of the players have had experience with other clubs.

The league will have four clubs. The Moco, First Valleyfield, Boy Scouts, Garde Champlain, and the Knights of Columbus. If the Knights are unable to put a team in the loop a Moco second team will be formed to fill the vacancy.

Robert Harris will coach the Moco club; the Garde Champlain will have Eddie Burgess as playing coach, and the Scouts will be under the guidance of Mr. Charles Fittou.

The final of the Montreal Cottons Club billiard handicap competition was played Friday evening. Kay Mayon was beaten by Jack McCracken in a thrilling upset.

The Valleyfield Badminton Club had little success against the Beauharnois Club on Saturday evening. Minus the services of Gordon Taylor, Miss Smith, Stuart Aird, and Miss Lois Aird, the local club was able to take only two matches from the visitors. Richard Powell and Gyth Garwood won both men's singles for the local victory.

Miss Lorine Buttress was forced to play in three matches which was a severe handicap. Miss Gladys O'Neill, Miss Smith, and Miss Lois Aird, Baird and the Misses L. and S. Baird of Notre Dame de Grace motored to town on Sunday and spent the day with friends here.

serve grand champion. He too, is owned by Maryvale Farm, Sycamore. Farm came fourth with Strathglass Dalbar; J. H. Black, Lachute, Que., next with Netherton Swank, and sixth was A. H. Hatch, Granby, Mass., not a Canadian-bred bull in the lot.

Three-year-old bulls found the situation reversed with only one imported bull, and he at the foot of his class. Burnside Standard Bearer led for J. P. Bradley, Lachute, Que.; 2. Credholme Culls Brilliant, Credholme Farm, Streetsville, Ont.; 3. Glen Campbell First Mate, W. P. Gamble, Guelph (known to hundreds of old O. A. C. boys as Prof. "Bull" Gamble); 4. Lesnesock Supreme, Harry McGee, Islington, Ont. Two-year-old bulls were also a splendid quartette, led by Crofthead Adjutant, for W. H. Coverdale, Sycamore; 2. Sycamore Sailor, Sycamore Farms; 3. Springburn Redman, Pringle Bros., Huntingdon, Que.; 4. Top Grade's Perfection, Russell Logan, Howick, Que.

And still another quartette—senior yearlings. Hon. W. C. Pitfield, Cartierville, Que., had the junior champion in Le Moine Point Enterprise; 2. Springbank Royal James, W. J. Roger, Lachute; 3. Burnside Satisfaction, for Ness & Sons; 4. Sycamore Heatherbar, in junior yearlings. Sycamore got their first red ribbon with Sycamore Drummer; 2. Credholme Steamer; 3. Cherry Bank Cupbearer, P. D. McArthur, Howick, Que.; 4. Glen Campbell.

In a great class of sixteen calves, Sycamore again led and had the reserve junior championship with Gay Boy; 2. Gilbert McMillan, Huntingdon, Que., with a son of the grand champion bull; 3. C. J. Miller, Lachute, Que.; 4. Ness & Sons, Junior calves were a uniform dozen, headed by Ness with a son of Burnside Lucky Boy; 2. Glen Campbell; 3. Geo. T. Dugg & Son, Shawville, Que.; 4. Pitfield.

First award in bull junior calf class, Ayrshire, went to R. R. Ness & Sons, Howick, Que., on Burnside Lucky Specimen. Fourth in the bull senior calf class went to the same farm, with fifth place garnered by P. D. McArthur, Howick.

Waldo Skinner, of Senneville, Que., took first and second for cows; first for heifers, two and under three, in milk, and second for cows, four and under five, in milk.

Heifer senior yearlings:
1—Glen Campbell Farm, Dundas, Ont., on Glen Campbell Flame 2nd.
2—Sycamore Farms, Douglassville, Penn., on Sycamore Brown Star.
3—R. R. Ness & Sons, Howick, Que., on Burnside Lucky.
4—P. D. McArthur, Howick, Que., on Cherry Bank Royal Gem.
5—Gilbert McMillan, Huntingdon, Que., on Springburn Charm.

Heifer junior yearlings:
1—J. H. Black, Lachute, Que., on Willowbough Lady Mra.
2—W. H. Coverdale, Portmouth, Ont., on Le Moine Point Lucille.
3—W. C. Pitfield, Cartierville, Que., on Saragay Happy 2nd.

4—Waldo Skinner, Senneville, Que., on Bois de La Roche Benie.
J. H. Black, Lachute, Que., had a third in Ayrshire four-year-old cows, in milk.

The two-year-olds made probably the strongest class of all in the opinion of the judge. Seven were shown and they were uniformly good throughout. The top was the reserve senior champion, Raymondale Farm, Vaudreuil, Quebec, was second.

In the eight three-year-olds, State Board of Control of Wisconsin was first with Mount Victoria Farms, Hudson Heights, Que., second on a son of Johanna Rag, Apple Past, Watson Bros., King, Ont., was third.

Starting with the junior Holstein bulls, on the first day of judging at the Royal Winter Fair, the classes worked up to a grand climax in the aged bull classes, possibly the best has been seen in Canada.

Judge V. S. Culver, Exeter, N.H., who placed them, stated without hesitation that the tops were the best he had ever seen anywhere.

Bruce Ness, of Howick, won fourth on Cartier red clover seed, and sixth on other Red Clover in a class of 28 entries.

Additional results in the judging of Clydesdale horses gave R. R. Ness and Sons, of Howick, Que., first prize for stallions foaled previous to January 1, 1931, with their entry, Elegance.

Miss Margaret Stewart Leads in Competition For Bermuda Free Trip

The voting in the "popularity competition" whereby the winner will receive a free trip to Bermuda shows that Miss Margaret Stewart of Valleyfield is in the lead. Her vote stands at 8100. Miss Grace Warden, Huntingdon, takes second place, her vote Wednesday evening being 6500. Miss Luella McMillan, Ormslow, takes third place with a score of 5900 votes. Mrs. W. J. Goudry's curling club supporters are known to be holding back some votes, and the votes already credited her are 5400. Miss Marcella Taillefer who was awarded the title "Queen of Valleyfield" in competition for the "Queen of Canadian Sports" has polled 1000 votes. Miss Taillefer's workers headed by Lucien Leduc have been very much devoted to the organization of their "Valleyfield Queen" contest, so have been obliged to hold back on his competition. Mr. Leduc and his organization of young workers are now ready to put forth their efforts in behalf of Miss Taillefer and next week they hope to have a very substantial vote polled.

Aubrey

The Sunshine Musical Band met at the noon hour Friday in Howick Consolidated School with a good attendance of members and friends.

The Scripture lesson for the day was that of the day of a Happy Holiday and "New Year's Day" were read by the superintendent whilst Ina Bennie and Donald McKell gave the radio broadcast. The meeting was closed by Norma Rorison. The closing item was the candle indulged in for a couple of hours.

The concert put on by the Siloki C.G.I.T. group in the United Church on Saturday evening was well attended and showed that much time and effort had been put forth by the girls, and their leader, Mrs. A. B. B. Moore. The program opened with songs sung about a campfire, other items were two half-hour plays, tableaux, piano solos by Ruby Gilmore and Joyce McKell, violin and piano duet by Beulah Gruer and Elsie Angell. The closing item was the candle lighting act, the girls nineteen in number, circling the hall and singing "Follow the Gleam" after which they repeated the C.G.I.T. pledge and sang "Taps." Refreshments were sold at the close. The proceeds of the evening amounted to about $20 and the group are very grateful to all who helped to make it a success.

A meeting of the Women's Association of the United Church was held on Monday afternoon at the home of its president, Mrs. J. Peddie. Reports for the years work were read and plans made for the coming year are as follows: President, Mrs. Edwin Knox; vice-president, Mrs. J. Bruce, Ness; R. B. Ness; secretary, Mrs. A. B. MacFarlane; secretary, Mrs. A. Bennie.

The Georgetown W.M.S. held their Thanksgiving meeting on Wednesday evening of last week. Although not a full attendance a splendid address was given by the pastor, Rev. T. J. Watson, from the text, "Remove not the ancient landmarks which thy fathers have set." A silver collection was taken.

W.M.S. Meeting

On Tuesday afternoon, November 13th, the Georgetown W.M.S. held their monthly meeting in the Church. Mrs. Jas. Kerr presided and assisted in the devotional period by Mrs. S. Kerr, Mrs. J. Whyte and Mrs. D. McCaig. As this was "Home Helpers Day" an attendance of 34 members and visitors were present and responded to the roll call by the text word "Charity."

Two of our members, Mrs. John Holden and Mrs. Penelope McCartney, were made Life Members.

Strong in all Departments Bank of Montreal Maintains Reassuring Liquid Position

Total Assets Stand at $759,108,178—Quickly Available Resources Are $491,247,207, Equal to 71.97% of all Liabilities to the Public—Cash on Hand and in Central Gold Reserves Totals $87,210,888, Equal to 12.77% of Public Liabilities—Statement Published in Readily Understandable Form

Strong in all departments, the Bank of Montreal is forwarding to shareholders an annual statement that reveals a reassuring position. The statement shows total assets of $759,108,178, included among these are quickly available resources of $491,247,207, equal to 71.97% of all liabilities to the public. Strength is lent to the liquid assets by total cash holdings in the Bank and in Central Gold Reserves of $87,210,888, equal to 12.77% of public liabilities. The principal holdings in liquid assets are government and other bonds and debentures of $317,936,912. In line with the Bank's policy, the greater portion of these consists of gilt-edge securities which mature at early dates.

Notwithstanding general evidence of more active manufacturing conditions, current loans are slightly down at $234,477,941 as compared with $251,885,262 at the end of the previous year. This would indicate that a number of Canadian companies still find it possible to finance business in its present volume without leaning heavily on banking accommodation.

Deposits Well Maintained
Deposits are well maintained, especially in view of recent large government bond offerings. Total deposits payable on demand and after notice are $650,218,835, compared with $641,346,710. Notes of the Bank in circulation are up to $35,255,876 from $33,819,807, doubtless reflecting a greater measure of general business activity.

Of special interest is the showing of total assets of $759,108,178 with which to meet payment of liabilities to the public of $652,569,368, leaving an excess of assets over liabilities to the public of $76,538,810.

Profit and Loss Account

Profits for the year are reported at $4,105,624, from which are deducted Dominion and Provincial government taxes totalling $900,654, leaving net profits at $3,204,969, equal to 4.23% on the combined capital, rest undivided profits. From this amount has been paid $2,880,000 in dividends to shareholders, as compared with $3,060,000 in the previous year. A further deduction of $100,000 as reserve for bank premises, the same as last year, leaves an amount of $234,477,941 to be applied to profit and loss account. With the addition the total at credit of profit and loss carried forward is $1,809,820, up from $1,585,451 a year ago.

As has been the practice for the past few years, the Bank has issued the statement for the public in an easily understandable form, with explanatory notes for each of the headings under which the figures are grouped.

The report will be submitted to shareholders at the annual general meeting which will be held at the Head Office of the Bank in Montreal on Monday, December 3rd.

Huntingdon

A meeting of persons interested in the Christmas Tree League was called for Thursday night but no one showed up so a later meeting may or may not be called.

A well attended meeting of the ladies of St. Joseph's Parish was held in the Huntingdon Columbus Club rooms Wednesday afternoon.

The meeting was called by officials of the Chateaugay-Huntingdon Health Unit to give lectures on subjects of interest to married women. The address was given by Dr. J. A. Patenaude, Health Officer, and demonstrations were given by Nurse Melting and Nurse Poisson. Since the organization of the Maternal Assistance Society in the parish it has been decided that such conferences on hygiene be held at regular intervals.

It is a matter of much gratification to hear that Mrs. Austin J. Kelly have purchased the desirable located residence of the late Mrs. John Miller. It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. Kelly in the meantime will have this residence rented, and remain in the day when they wish to retire from their farm in "Fertile Valley."

Mr. Eric Weber, who was employed at the Chateau during the summer months sails tomorrow from Quebec on the S. Aurania for his home at Chemnitz, Germany, where he will spend the winter months.

Mrs. J. C. Lorden and family left Tuesday morning for St. Johns, Que., to join Mr. Lorden and take up residence there. Mr. Lorden was recently appointed Canadian manager of the J. B. Martin Co., manufacturers of silk velvets, whose plant is located there. The best wishes of the community are extended to the Lorden family.

ELECTRICALLY BAKED BREAD

During the past few weeks many out-of-town customers have been coming to the Three Rivers to inspect the modern electric bake oven installed in La Boulangerie Moderne by The Shawinigan Water & Power Company. Bakers from Valleyfield, Sorel, Victoriaville, and other places, Black Lake, St. Joseph de Beauce, Ste. Therese, Ste. Eustache, St. Gabriel de Brandon, St. Thomas de Joliette and Louiseville have attended demonstrations and studied bread baking under the most modern conditions.

For over a month, careful tests have been carried out on the electric oven at La Boulangerie Moderne, and it has been found that not only does the operating cost compare very favourably with ovens using coal, wood and oil, but the electric oven is faster, cleaner, bakes bread more evenly, saves labour because it is entirely automatic, effects a saving in dough and takes up far less space in the bakery.

There are several thousand such installations in the United States, but practically none in the bakeries of the Province of Quebec, in spite of the fact that the rates for this service in most parts of the Province are less than one third of those charged in the United States.

Bakers who have watched the Three Rivers installation in operation are enthusiastic about the advantages it provides over old baking methods, and it is expected that in the near future we shall be supplied with electrically baked bread from all progressive Quebec bakers.

WOMAN SWEARS TO STATEMENT

Mrs. Adgou Normandin, Montreal, Quebec, wanted to help her husband, who she tells how she got permanent relief from indigestion and constipation, in a statement given under oath before a notary so everyone can be sure of its truth. She declares, "I suffered badly from indigestion. Everything I ate formed gas which caused heartburn. I found that by taking Fruit-A-Tives my indigestion disappeared. I am lively and energetic all day now."

Copy of Mrs. Normandin's sworn statement will be sent on request. Write Fruitatives Limited, Ottawa, Canada.

FRUIT-A-TIVES—25c and 50c EVERYWHERE

Note the Coral Roads in Bermuda. The vegetation is so luxuriant and the ideal temperature encourages great growth. The average temperature throughout the year in Bermuda is 70.2 degrees. Rainfall is usually of brief duration and the skies clear very quickly after a shower.

WHAT TO WEAR

Visitors should take an outfit similar to that used during a summer sojourn at a northern resort. Heavy clothing is desired when on board ship to Bermuda.

Hemmingford

The Young People enjoyed a social evening in the Anglican Hall on Thursday. There were about thirty-five present.

On the occasion of her approaching marriage Miss Mildred Moore was entertained on Tuesday, Nov. 20th, at the home of her aunt, Mrs. W. J. Johnson, assisted by Miss Jessie Jackson, at a miscellaneous shower. It came as a delightful surprise with numerous, daintily wrapped white parcels, which were showered over her at a given signal, the striking of a note on the piano. Many of the gifts came by mail from relatives and friends at a distance.

Miss Gertrude Keddy of Valleyfield was a week-end guest at W. C. Collings'.

Mr. and Mrs. Petch of Toronto are visiting their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Petch.

Mr. Gordon Fulcher was a week-end visitor at the Manse with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Fulcher.

Mr. Bob Clifford of McGill spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Brown.

Miss Gladys Pelletier of Montreal and Miss Ann Petch were week-end guests at the Pelletier home, Barrington.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Pelletier were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lidstone and Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn Bennett of Montreal.

Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was dispensed at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning. There were eight new communicants.

Howick

On Friday evening, November 23rd, the Akita C.G.I.T. Group entertained a number of young people at the home of the Misses Linda and Norma Steele.

Games and music were enjoyed by all, the music being furnished by Ralph Logan and Allister Rorison. Refreshments were then served after which Janet Kerr moved a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Steele, Linda and Norma for their kind hospitality.

Rockburn

This community was shocked on Tuesday to hear of the death of Mr. Patton which occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. F. Rennie, where he and Mrs. Patton have been for the past year. Mr. Patton came a few years ago from Covey Hill and during his life here had made many friends and won the respect and esteem of all. As caretaker of Hillside Cemetery, which he kept in beautiful order, as well as in the other walks of life, he will be greatly missed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Gowan, accompanied by Mr. George and Mr. J. H. Gowan motored to Montreal Sunday.

The Governor of West Virginia, while travelling through Arizona, noticed the dry, dusty appearance of the country.

Governor—"Doesn't it ever rain here?"
Native—"Rain? Rain? Why, say, partner, there's bullfrogs in these parts over 10 years that have not learned to swim yet."

Athelstan

The November meeting of the Presbyterian Women's Missionary Auxiliary was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. L. D. Watson with a splendid attendance. Short items of news were given by those members who attended the executive meeting of Montreal Presbyterian held in Knox Crescent Church recently. Mrs. Hampson gave the lesson from the closing chapter of Seven Seas of Service. The study of the new book "Fellow Citizens" will be begun early in the New Year.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Elder spent Saturday in Montreal. Miss Carol Ross returned home with them after spending the past few weeks with friends in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Lefebvre and two children of Franklin Centre were guests on Wednesday of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cuisson.

Maltais Talks To School Children

In connection with the Fish and Game Association Mr. Maltais said that there was a sport in just getting out in nature, and that hunting game in season was quite all right. In hunting, though we must not forget to preserve some for future generations to use, he said. In preserving game we must keep three things in mind. They are not injurious, they are beautiful, and many poor people live on what they are able to kill; also the elements as rain, cold, heat, destroy many of the wild animals. "It is our duty to protect what God gave us to use, and not to abuse," the speaker said.

Pointing out the best way to study nature Mr. Maltais suggested getting it from the best nature book in the world, "The green book of nature." He also suggested a small manual as a help and personal experience as the best teacher.

Mr. Oney, in thanking the speaker, spoke of prizes that were to be given this winter for the best bird houses built by the students.

Mr. McClatchie, chairman of the Hemmingford School Board, thanked the pupils for their good attention, commending the teachers for their ability as disciplinarians.

Howick

The November meeting of the Akita C.G.I.T. Group was held at the home of Miss Gertrude MacFarlane on Saturday, November 17th.

There were 15 members present and the program for the next few months was planned. The meeting was closed by singing "Haps" after which refreshments were served by the hostess.

Robson

Mrs. Robt. Turnbull and children of Bluff Point, N.Y., spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Sweet.

Mrs. P. A. Sweet has received news of the death of her cousin, Mrs. Ellinwood of Waltham, Mass., on Monday, Nov. 19th. Mrs. Ellinwood and family were frequent visitors at the Sweet home and their friends here offer their sympathy to the family that remain.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bradley and son, Donald, and Miss Nellie Kearns of Montreal were week-end guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. White-side Kearns.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Cleland made a business trip to the city on Wednesday.

Miss Elleda Stewart and Miss Smith of Montreal were week-end guests at the W. H. Stewart home.

Mrs. T. A. Robson is spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Nina Fiddes.

Mrs. Herbert Gilmore and family of Russelltown were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fernie Beattie.

Miss Marie Grant of Montreal was a recent guest of her sister, Mrs. Willis Clark.

Mr. Willis Clark had a ploughing bee breaking up new land last Thursday.

Mrs. John Beattie is not improving as fast as her many friends would wish. She is still confined to bed suffering from rheumatism.

The Young People of Knox Church presented the play "The Path Across the Hill" to a well filled hall in Hemmingford last Friday night. The play which is a comedy-drama was excellently well put on. Each actor had evidently studied the character they were representing, and as a result the acting was very fine. From the time the curtain went up to introduce the characters till it was rung down on the tableau at the close of the third act there was not a dull moment. It would be impossible to single anyone out for special praise when all did so well in their own parts, but nothing could be funnier than the love making of Salamander and Zuzu, or Lattie hiding under the table listening to her grandmother proposing to Grandpa Crawford. The difficult dramatic parts of Grandpa Crawford and his loving granddaughter, Ruth, were finely sustained. Dr. Jimmie Reid and his bride, Flo, gave an excellent illustration of the old saying, "marry in haste and repent at leisure." The parts of Robert Post, who learnt to forgive, and Walter, Ruth's brother, were well put in to complete a fine story. The cast was: Grandpa Crawford, Charles Barr; Robert Post, Jack Stewart; Dr. Jimmie Reid, Lyle Simpson; Walter (Ruth's brother), Melbourne Sample; Salamander, Wilmer Sample; Grandma, Mrs. Fernie Beattie; Ruth, Lois Gray; Flo, Mrs. Kenneth Kearns; Lattie, Eleanor Moody; Zuzu, Ella Beattie.

The success of the play was due to the untiring efforts of the director, Rev. J. G. Fulcher, who was assisted by Mrs. Emmett Cleland, who attended each practice and took a great interest in arranging its details. At the close of the evening's performance Mrs. Fulcher entertained those taking part in her home to a delightful lunch and a pleasant social hour.

Hemmingford

Mrs. Norman Lane and Miss Mildred McKay of Montreal were recent visitors here.

Mrs. J. S. Cleland spent a couple of days in Montreal last week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Lytle were recent visitors in Montreal.

"Come To My Wedding"

By Ruby M. Ayres

"I suppose it's very undutiful of me," Gyp remarked, "but I hope I won't come home yet, poor darling! We're having such a marvelous time, aren't we, Estelle?"

"You seem to be," Estelle said. "And I am!" Gyp declared. "Gordon and I have planned all sorts of things for next week, haven't we? We've quite decided that now is the time to see life with a capital 'L'. You're getting lazy, Gordon. Come and dance."

The following week-end Estelle went away. She made an elaborate pretense about being bored, and not wanting to go.

"I'm getting old," she said with a yawn. "Things that used to amuse me are beginning to pall. . . . Will you get away?"

This last remark was to Shatters, the Pekinese, who was pawing her frock, begging to be taken up.

"Are you going to take him with you?" Gyp asked.

She looked at the little animal rather wistfully; she had often tried to make friends with Shatters, but true to the tradition of his race he had refused all her advances, turning up a black, snub nose in haughty disdain and growling in his best imitation of a lion.

Shatters was a pretty little fellow, sable brown except for a white patch like a bib beneath his chin, and white feathers round his feet. Gyp thought it was amazing that he should be so devoted to Estelle, seeing that she often treated him with impatient disregard.

"Take him with me! Not likely," Estelle said. "He'll be all right; he's used to being left behind."

She went off gaily enough, having kissed Gyp on both cheeks.

"You haven't left an address," Gyp said.

Estelle shrugged her shoulders. "No, and I don't intend to," she said briskly. "I don't want to be bothered with letters and things. By the way, if there's one from Billy you might open it and see what his lordship says."

"Open it?"

"Of course; there won't be anything in it. Bill's no good at writing passionate love letters," she added with sarcasm.

Gyp followed her to the door. "But if anything happens," she said anxiously.

"What can happen? Nothing, worse luck. Nothing that won't keep till Monday anyway, and I'll be home then."

Gyp went up to her room; she was feeling very tired.

"Too many late nights, I suppose," she thought wryly. "Too many cocktails, too much pretense. I wonder how long I could keep it up without dying."

She lay down on the bed and closed her eyes.

Chapter 21

Later, when Gordon Mathers called her up she said, "I'm so glad to hear your voice. I'm terribly lonely."

"What would you like to do?"

Gyp glanced toward the window where the sun seemed to be basking the streets and the stonework of the houses opposite.

"I'd love a day at the sea," she said impulsively.

"Today?"

"No, tomorrow. Come early. And—Gordon?"

"My sweet?"

"I'll bring Shatters."

She heard the stifled exclamation he made.

"You don't mean Estelle's infernal Pekie?"

"I do, and he isn't infernal."

"Very well, if it's a case of love me love my dog, bring him with all means. What time will you be ready?"

"Nine o'clock."

"My lamb, I haven't been up as early as that for twenty years."

"Then it will do you a world of good. I'll expect you at nine, the phone."

As she turned away from the phone she found Jennings at her elbow. "The mail, Miss Gyp."

"Nothing for me," Gyp said. "There never is." Then she saw that the top-most letter bore an English stamp, and she took it up with a strange feeling of apprehension.

It was addressed in her father's handwriting to Estelle, and she suddenly remembered what Estelle had said. "Open it and see what his lordship says."

But of course she could not do that! She put the letter back on the tray.

"Mrs. Farrow will be back on Monday," she said. "And Jennings, I am going out for the day tomorrow."

"Very good, miss," Jennings turned as he reached the door. "Mrs. Farrow will not address with me," he said stiffly.

"No. She didn't want to be bothered," Gyp answered, but again that queer foreboding touched her heart. Suppose something did happen after all?

"I'm going to drive like the devil all the way," Mathers said. "Mind the dog doesn't fall out."

Gyp had insisted on bringing Shatters, and he was now tucked between them, his little black nose sniffing the air and his ears flapping wildly in the breeze.

"He's getting visibly younger with every mile," Gyp declared.

She had taken off her hat, and her soft brown hair was blowing about in wild disorder.

"We're three children out for the day," Mathers agreed happily. He looked at her with a smile. "It's funny, isn't it? Everything seems all right always, if you're with the right person."

Gyp's heart gave a queer little throb and she turned her face away, though she answered gaily enough. "Right people please. Shatters is a direct descendant from all the Chinese Emperors."

It was so true, she thought, that everything was always all right if you were with the right person, that Mathers said, "But she had hardly ever had that experience—might never have it again."

"I've brought the lunch," Mathers said when they reached their destination. "I know what restaurants and hotels are like at this time of the year, so I wasn't taking any chances."

"I hope you've brought something for Shatters," Gyp said severely.

"I told them to put in a special chop," he answered with mock gravity.

They parked the car and carried the hamper down to the beach.

"Shatters has gone mad already," Gyp said laughing.

The little animal was careering about, his eyes bright with excitement, barking joyously.

"He'll be in a nice mess when we go home!" Mathers promised.

They picnicked with the rug from the car as a table, and Gyp took off her shoes and stockings and paddled "between courses," as she called it.

"I wonder what Estelle would say if she could see us," she said suddenly.

"She'd be green with envy," Mathers answered. He sat up suddenly and looked at her sparkling face. "You know, you're such a darling, Gyp, you make my heart turn over."

"I think you're a darling, too, but you don't make my heart turn over," she said soberly. "I wish you did."

After a little she said, "I wonder where Estelle has gone?"

She could feel his eyes upon her as he asked, "Don't you know?"

Gyp shook her head. "She wouldn't leave her address. She does as a rule."

"Have some more chicken? I've saved the wish bone for you."

She took it from him absently.

"You must wish," Mathers said sternly. "Wish while we pull, and whoever gets the funny little bit at the top will have the wish granted."

They looked at each other with serious eyes.

"Now then, ready? Go!"

They pulled; Mathers only half-heartedly, and Gyp with all her strength. "Well, you've got it," he said.

She made a little grimace. "Well, it's no use, because I know my wish will never come true."

"Was it something so impossible?"

"Utterly impossible."

"It was nothing to do with me then," Mathers said grimly. "If it had been it would have come true. You know, Gyp, I'd do anything in the world for you."

He was throwing his little pebbles into the sea vigorously as he went on. "It's queer how someone comes along and upsets all your ideas. Before I met you, if anyone had told me that I could sit on the beach like this, and be perfectly happy and contented, I'd have laughed."

With anyone but you now, I'd be bored to death. That's why I think it's such a pity you won't marry me. I'd be quite a decent fellow if you were my wife."

He shook his head. "If you knew the sort of life I'd led—"

"Do all men have a past?" she queried.

"Yes, all men do darned silly things they live to regret. I know I've been a fool, scores of times." He looked a little grim. "The queer thing about it is that I never want to lie to you. If you were anyone else I'd tell you all sorts of fairy stories, about never having cared for anyone before, and the usual stuff."

"And have you cared for anyone before?"

He nodded. "Yes. It's a long time ago, though."

"Where is she?"

"I don't even know. She turned me down—called me a rotter. She was quite right, but I'd have been different if she'd stuck to me. Not that there was any reason why she should." He was building a castle of little flat pebbles with infinite care.

"You know girls don't realize that a fellow, no matter how rotten he's been, could go quite straight and be decent—if the right girl got hold of him."

He looked up at her with a smile. "That's what I always think about Wilding; he's never had a real chance. He's always got hold of the wrong things and the wrong people—the wrong women especially."

"Isn't that his own fault?"

Mathers shook his head. "I don't think so. A fellow just drifts along until he comes across the right one, and then the contrast shows him what a fool he's been. Second best is all right until you meet the best."

Gyp shook the crumbs from her lap and stood up.

"Come and paddle," she said.

Chapter 22

Mathers chuckled. "I haven't paddled for years. You're the only little girl I know."

He kicked off his shoes and socks, and followed her down to the water's edge. Shatters yapping wildly at their heels. Mathers said gravely, "Now, this is my idea of complete happiness. Look out! You're stepping on a jelly-fish."

Gyp gave a little scream, and he put an arm round her.

"All right—he's floated away."

She gently disengaged herself, and again the thought went clamoring through her mind. "If only it were David!"

Not that she still loved him of course, or did she? Useless to speculate anyway, and she broke out hurriedly.

"Isn't this better than night clubs and hot rooms, and things like that?"

"It suits me."

"But it wouldn't for long; we'd get bored, I suppose. Gordon, do you think anyone is ever really happy and satisfied all the time?"

He looked at her critically. "Sometimes you talk like a woman who has been terribly disillusioned."

He said, "You're talking like that now, even though you look like a child who ought to be playing with dolls."

"I used to love dolls."

"David was telling me about you," Mathers said. "Weren't you playing at weddings the first time he met you?"

Gyp bit her lip. So David had not kept even that little episode sacred! She said with forced lightness, "Yes, I was. I was dressed up in a sheet, and I let you, my dear, ask me to come to my wedding."

"I wish you'd ask me to come to your wedding, Gyp," he said in a low voice.

"I don't think I'll ever marry," she answered.

"I hope not unless you marry me." That was a very selfish remark, Gyp said severely. "Oh, Gordon, just look at Shatters!"

The little dog was gallantly plunging through the water after them, out of his depth, a pathetic little rag of a dog, only his nose and chin visible above the water.

Mathers stooped and picked him up by the scruff of his neck, holding him at arm's length, laughing at the woe-begone sight he presented.

Gyp held out her arms.

"Give him to me. I must dry him. I brought a towel."

They went back to the rug and the remains of the picnic, and Shatters was thoroughly dried in spite of his struggles and protestations.

"This has been one of the happiest days of my life," Gyp said when Shatters was snugly wrapped in her coat and preparing to sleep off his excitement.

"Is being, not has been," Mathers corrected. "And if the Chinese Emperor has quite done with the towel, do you think I might borrow it?"

She passed it across to him, and he watched while he gravely turned his socks inside out and fastened his shoes.

"We'll go somewhere and have dinner," he said, but Gyp shook her head.

"I must get home early."

"Why, in Heaven's name?"

"I don't know. I've just got a sort of feeling that I must. Do you ever get feelings like that?"

"Prenotions?"

"Yes, I've had one ever since Estelle went away that something is going to happen."

"I don't know. I've been wondering what we'd do if we wanted her and she couldn't be found."

Mathers laughed cynically. "Well, Wilding has a phone."

She stared at him, and he went on carelessly. "Wherever he is, she is; you can bet your life. I know what Estelle's week-ends mean."

Gyp's lips moved, but no words would come; she felt cold from head to foot. Presently she moved stiffly, got up. "I don't think you ought to say things like that. I'm sure it isn't true."

Mathers flushed a little.

"I'm sorry, I thought you knew. You and Estelle always seem to be such friends."

"Do we?" There was a queer little smile round Gyp's mouth; she seemed trying to smile to hide some terrible hurt. "Pass me those plates, please."

Mathers took her outstretched hand. "I'm so sorry, Gyp. I'm a blundering fool. Forget I ever said it, will you?"

She met his eyes bravely. "It's forgotten already," she promised.

"I'm sorry, I thought you knew. You and Estelle always seem to be such friends."

Shatters was lying on his back snoring loudly, and Gyp had drawn her coat closely around her, snuggling down into it, still with the same cold feeling.

THANKS TO BUCKLEY'S HE NEVER WORRIES ABOUT BRONCHITIS NOW

Mr. Clifford G. Morrison, Rainy River, Ont., has abundant reason to bless the day he heard of BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE.

Since his school days he has suffered from bronchitis, but now at the first sign of an attack he nips it in the bud with BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE.

He says: "My experience with this wonderful medicine makes me always keep a bottle in the medicine chest—I never worry about bronchitis now."

Mr. Morrison's experience can be yours. If you are lying awake nights, racked to pieces with coughing, choked up until you can hardly breathe, just try BUCKLEY'S MIXTURE. You will be astounded how your breathing will instantly become easier.

There's nothing like Buckley's for quick, sure, safe relief. It acts like a flash—A single sip proves it.

"Wherever he is, she is."

Well, it was no business of hers, no business of hers.

"Asleep?" Mathers asked, bending down to her.

"No."

"You're so quiet."

"I'm a little tired, that's all."

"Lean against me and close your eyes. You'll be able to get a nap."

"I'm all right really—thank you."

She sat wide-eyed, staring at the road and the ever-increasing dusk.

"Wherever he is, she is."

Funny how some words refused to leave one; how they went on and on like darting birds, going a little distance away, and then coming back to scream again.

A fresh horror of life arose in Gyp's heart. Why should things like this be allowed to spoil a day that had been full of happiness? She wanted to get out of the car and run and run until she had run away from everyone—away from life.

She said suddenly: "Let's not go home. Let's have dinner out, after all."

Mathers agreed willingly.

They left Shatters asleep in the car, and dined at a wayside inn. The food was not too good, but anything would have tasted the same to Gyp. There was a terrible restlessness in her heart; she wanted to go home, and yet she dreaded it. There seemed no corner in the whole world where she could outrun the things which were clamoring in her mind.

It was only half past nine when they reached home.

"I suppose I mustn't come in?" Mathers asked.

"Not tonight. I really am tired."

His eyes pleaded, and she said kindly, "Come tomorrow morning, and we'll take Shatters for a walk."

"In the park?"

Gyp shivered. "No. I don't like the park very much."

Mathers had rung the bell, and already Jennings was in the doorway. He looked a little disturbed for one usually so placid.

"Is anything the matter?" Gyp asked him after Gordon had gone.

"The master will be home at eleven-miss," Jennings said ponderously. "A wireless came. The boat is in the harbor."

Gyp caught her breath.

"And we don't know where Mrs. Farrow is!"

"No, miss," he answered gravely. Gyp bundled Shatters, still sleeping, into his disdained arms.

"Put him in his basket, and Jennings, I'm going out again. Don't tell anyone I've been in." She added after a moment, "I'm bringing Mrs. Farrow back. You do understand, don't you?"

"Yes, miss—but"

Gyp was gone before he could finish his sentence, and he could hear her light steps running away down the street.

She must bring Estelle back, that was all she knew; she must bring Estelle back before Billy arrived. She must—she must!

"Wherever he is, she is."

She picked up a taxicab at the corner of the street.

"Washington Square, please."

New Plan Helps Mothers Solve Problem of Colds

Mothers Adopt Plan by the Makers of Vicks VapoRub for Better Control of Colds in the Home

Introduced with the Remarkable New Aid in Preventing Colds—Vicks Va-tro-nol

Every mother is burdened with the problem of colds—especially the frequent colds of children. It is good news indeed, then, that the makers of Vicks VapoRub have perfected a Plan for Better Control of Colds in the home. The helpfulness of Vicks Plan in reducing the number and duration of colds has been tested by physicians—and proved in everyday home use by thousands.

Trial Offer to Vicks Users

Vicks Plan is introduced along with the new Vicks Va-tro-nol based on a new idea for preventing colds—comparison product to Vicks VapoRub, the modern method of treating colds. Get a bottle of the new preparation and keep it beside your jar of VapoRub—for use as directed below. Unless you are delighted with results, your druggist is authorized to refund your money.

Here, briefly, is how Vicks Plan works:

To Help Prevent Many Colds

When children come in sniffing and sneezing, apply Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. Use Va-tro-nol yourself at that first scratchy, sneezy irritation of the nose and upper throat. Va-tro-nol stimulates the functions Nature has provided—in the nose—to prevent colds, and to throw off colds in their early stages. Its timely use helps to avoid many colds entirely.

To Help Shorten a Cold

If a cold strikes without warning, or slips by every precaution (as some colds always will) depend on Vicks VapoRub. Just rubbed on throat and chest, it attacks the cold direct—two ways at once—by stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster—and by inhalation of its medicated vapors direct to inflamed air-passages. This combined action loosens phlegm, soothes irritated membranes, helps break congestion.

Together with the use of these two products, Vicks Plan contains certain simple rules of health for building resistance to colds. Have your family follow Vicks Plan and help them to greater freedom from colds. Full details of the Plan are in each Vicks package.

Huntingdon County Council

An adjourned meeting of the Huntingdon County Council took place on Monday, Councillor Joly being absent. W. R. Perry, Warden, presiding. The present contract with Cummins and Robinson, contractors, on the Laguerre River Drainage Ditch, was cancelled.

The Secretary was authorized to hand back to the said contractors Cummins and Robinson, their cheque of $7500, as security on their original contract.

Impetus Given Rights League At Valleyfield Tea Meeting

shortly after the Great War. The reason why women have so much difficulty getting their rights was the "regime of community," in which women, while they took a keen interest in property, etc., were not able to exercise their rights. He did not believe that the politicians were treating the Bill in the proper manner, and said that not enough pressure was being exerted upon the politicians.

There should be some definite organization in each district, he said, as many of the members for Parliament hear very little about the movement until the Bill comes up before the House. "Your members should not despair," he said, "and should continue a more gallant and chivalrous effort," also making reference to a similar movement that took place in Nova Scotia. There is no need for the women of this province to feel discouraged at the apparently slow progress being made in the movement, because actual progress in legislation, he pointed out, is being made. He assured the ladies. He suggested that the ladies might "let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works." While sometimes some people think that small things pass unnoticed, he said, and in conclusion wished the ladies every success.

Mrs. C. L. Roman thanked Mr. Forsyth, and said that she wished there were more supporters such as Mr. Forsyth was to the League.

Mrs. Amiot introduced Mrs. Pierre Carignan, President of the League for Women's Rights, Montreal. The latter made short remarks, in French, on statements made by previous speakers, and dealt considerably with the position of the woman in the home. She mentioned that recently she had received a letter with a small amount of money enclosed from a sympathiser of the movement, who asked that the contribution be used to further the work. She said that the ladies should continue their efforts, even though they would probably meet with many discouragements.

Mrs. W. G. E. Aird thanked the speakers for the occasion on behalf of the League.

Among others present were Miss Yvette Laniel, who spoke for a few minutes at the opening of the meeting, Mayor Philom Bilette of Valleyfield, Dr. C. L. Roman, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. E. Aird and Miss Waters, Mrs. E. Potter, Dr. Caza, Mr. Godbout, Mr. Malouin, and many others.

A delightful tea was served following the addresses, in the dining hall of the Chateau Salaberry.

Mrs. James Robb was to have presided at the Reception, but owing to her illness was unable to attend. Mrs. Amiot presided in her place.

Tatehurst

Mr. and Mrs. Martin and Jackie Jarvais of N. D. G. spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Upton. Master Rupert Upton returned with them and is spending a few days in Montreal.

Mrs. Walter Scott entertained a number of ladies at tea hour on Tuesday last.

Mrs. Duncan Brown entertained on Saturday, Nov. 17th, at a birthday party in honor of her daughter Jean. Eighteen little friends enjoyed the games during the afternoon. At tea time a delicious lunch was served including an attractive birthday cake. After tea the children departed wishing Jean many more happy birthdays. Jean was the recipient of many lovely gifts.

Obituary

The late Matthew Kee

On November 21st, 1934, after a long and useful career, Mr. Matthew Kee passed away peacefully at his home in Ormstown, Que., in his 94th year.

He was the son of David Kee and Martha Bateson, who came from the North of Ireland to Ormstown in 1841. Sir Robert Bateson of Belfast, Ireland, was an uncle of the deceased.

Mr. Kee received his academic education in the old stone school-house in the Third Concession of Ormstown and his training in business in Beatharnois and Montreal.

After being in partnership with Mr. Samuel Cottingham for a few years he established a general store of his own on Main Street in 1874 where he carried on successfully until 1923 when he retired at the age of eighty-two.

He was Mayor of Ormstown two years in succession 1903-1905 and was secretary-treasurer of both village and parish school boards for several years.

In religion he was a Presbyterian and was always a generous supporter of the church. He was secretary-treasurer of St. Paul's Church for forty years, 1875-1915 and was superintendent of the Sunday School for twelve years, 1899-1911.

The Bible Society received his active support as he was the local secretary for many years and depository was under his charge in his store.

In his nineteenth year he assisted in laying the cornerstone of the new Presbyterian Church, June 1931.

He was a steady, energetic man all his life and did everything to the best of his ability, his motto being "Whatever is worth doing, is worth doing well."

He is survived by his widow, Mary Adelaide Hood, a son, Dr. F. W. Kee, Sheldon, Ill., three daughters, Mrs. A. E. Atwood, Ottawa, Miss Alice Kee

Montreal and Mrs. Wm. Oliver, Saskatoon, seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. A son, Thomas D. Kee of Los Angeles, Calif., predeceased him in 1927.

The funeral service was held in the Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Walter Ross officiating, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Pollock of St. Paul's United.

The late Miss R. E. Smith

Miss Rose Ella Smith, twin sister of Mrs. David McClatchie of 98 Rugar Street, Plattsburg, N.Y., passed away unexpectedly Tuesday night, November 21st, at the McClatchie home where she had resided for a number of years. Her death was discovered early Wednesday morning by Mrs. McClatchie, who went to her sister's room to awaken her. Dr. Ira Rowson, Clinton county coroner conducted an investigation and rendered a verdict of death from natural causes.

Miss Smith had been in ill health for several months and suffered from a heart ailment. A recent illness had left her in a weakened condition. Miss Smith was a native of Yarmouth, N.S., and for a time previous to coming to Plattsburg about 30 years ago, she resided at Hemmingford, P.Q. She was in her 61st year.

The deceased is survived by three sisters, Mrs. McClatchie, Mrs. Horace Boyd of St. Chrysostome, P.Q., and Mrs. George Moses of Yarmouth, N.S. Also four half sisters, Mrs. J. A. Miranda of Gananoque, Ont., Miss Anne Robertson of Boston, Mass., and Miss Maude Robertson of Montreal, Miss Janet Robertson, of Pasadena, Cal.

Funeral services were conducted from the Presbyterian church Friday afternoon. Interment was at Hemmingford, P.Q.

Motorist's Wife—"What lovely day clouds. I'd just love to be up there sitting on one of them."

Motorist—"All right. You drive the car."

Glenelm

The Kensington Young Women's Association met at the home of Mrs. C. H. Brown on Saturday afternoon. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. H. Woodside. It being the last meeting of the year various reports were read and election of officers as follows: President, Miss Christina McNicol; Secy, Miss Lydia Lewis; Treas., Miss Marjorie Elder; Organist, Miss Eleanor Gordon; Work Committee, Mrs. Ira Campbell, Mrs. C. H. Brown and Miss Ida Anderson. A social afternoon was spent. A dainty lunch was served to seven members and several invited friends by the hostess.

Mr. William Murray, Sr., is seriously ill at his home here, also Mr. James Barrie, who is at the home of Mr. A. W. Small and is being cared for by Mrs. W. Lang. We hope for a speedy recovery.

Messrs. W. H. Crawford and Marvin Crawford are spending a few days in Montreal at the home of Mr. W. S. McKinnon.

Miss Audrey Stewart, Montreal, spent the week-end at the home of her mother, Mrs. W. R. Stewart.

"Have you a book called 'Man the Master'?"

St. Agnes de Dundee

Mrs. Albertine St. Pierre, also Mr. and Mrs. J. Brossolot of Montreal were guests of Mr. Edmond Quenneville last Thursday.

Mr. Louis Latulipe, also Mr. Leonard Leblanc, of Valleyfield spent the week-end with their grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Leblanc.

Mr. Cleophas Richer, also his daughter, Mrs. Adrien Lalonde spent a week visiting Mr. and Mrs. Miner Aubain in Montreal, also Mr. and Mrs. Romeo Genier in St. Jean, Irberville.

Mr. Leonard Quesnel of Ste. Martine visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Zenophile Quesnel last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Latulipe of Bombay, N.Y., last Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Latulipe.

Mrs. Raoul Beaulieu of St. Louis was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Narcisse Legault Sunday.

STEADY PROGRESS

During the last year or more no publication has shown more remarkable strides in the matter of increased circulation than has the Family Herald and Weekly Star. This is not strange for it is evident that in times of stress people are prone to cut down on the number and variety of magazines and papers coming into their home and they find in the Family Herald and Weekly Star a paper which, at $1.00 per year, gives them every variety of reading, for old and young, all combined in this one publication. Every issue overflows with practical farming ideas, up-to-the-minute articles, short stories together with a weekly newspaper section which rounds out a feast of reading without compare. Truly it has been well said that the Family Herald and Weekly Star is the best for the least.

YOUR GROCER CAN HELP YOU TO Keep on the Sunny Side of Winter

Raw, bleak days bring a change in living habits. You get less outdoor exercise—less vitalizing sunshine. At this time of year you must maintain your strength and energy to help ward off colds and other winter infections.

Your grocer can help you to sunny living. On his shelves you'll find Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, the cereal that helps keep you free from common constipation, due to insufficient "bulk." This ailment is the most frequent cause of sluggish days, loss of appetite and energy.

You can correct common constipation safely by proper diet. Serve ALL-BRAN regularly. Its gentle bulk, much like that in leafy vegetables, aids elimination. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

Get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. With each meal, in severe cases. If not relieved in this way, see your doctor.

Unlike cathartics, the same amount of ALL-BRAN continues to be effective when served regularly. Sold by all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Ayrshires in R.O.P.

The Secretary, Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association reports that during the month of November he received 144 reports of cows and heifers, which have qualified in the R.O.P.—58 in the 365 day division and 86 in the Honor Roll or 365 day division.

Forty-eight of the 58 records in the 365 day division were made on two milkings-a-day.

Three year old class—Glengarry Laura, owners, Cumming Bros., Lancaster, Ont., 9,130 lbs. milk, 438 lbs. fat, test, 4.90% fat; Spruce Row Lady Dewdrop, owners, Easton Bros., Charlottetown, P.E.I., 9,345 lbs. milk, 436 lbs. fat, ave. test, 4.60% fat; Tocadema Kyle Chevrete, owner, J. E. M. Toupin, St. Jodire, Que., 10,242 lbs. milk, 425 lbs. fat, ave. test, 4.15% fat.

In the Honor Roll or 365 day division 70 of the 86 records were made on two milkings-a-day.

Two year old class—Pride de St. Methode, owners, Perme Ecole Provinciale, La Gorgendriere, Que., 12,196 lbs. milk, 458 lbs. fat, ave. test, 4.52% fat; Bois de la Roche Jessie 2nd, 9,283 lbs. milk, 454 lbs. fat, ave. test, 4.89% fat; Bois de la Roche Royal Flower, 8,675 lbs. milk, 395 lbs. fat, ave. test, 4.55% fat. Both these cows were owned by Valdo W. Skinner, Senneville, Que.

Valleyfield Council

A letter from the Canadian Fire Underwriters drawing the attention of the Council to the particular requirements for fireproofing buildings in good order for the winter months was brought up for discussion at the regular meeting of Valleyfield Council on Wednesday evening. The Chief of Police was asked to make particular note of the suggestions.

A letter from the Canadian Bronze Co. Ltd., accepting the plan drawn up by the council for the municipal valuation for the next ten years, was filed. Ald. Larocque gave notice of a motion he intends to propose at the next meeting for a by-law to state for municipal purposes, the valuation of the Canadian Bronze as $60,000, for a ten-year period.

Request by Mr. A. Desjean, superintendent of the Aqueduct, asking that the council purchase four blinds for the building housing small boats, and the purchase of a color photograph apparatus, was discussed, and the chairman of the Aqueduct Department was authorized to purchase these requirements.

Request by the Canadian Bronze asking that another light be placed on the street near the factory was tabled.

Ald. Hebert asked that the request sent in recently by residents of Stevenson St. for more street lights on that street be brought up for discussion. It was agreed that the necessary lights should be erected.

Ald. Miron gave details on the proposition of exchanging a certain piece of city land with Damase Alard. Mayor Billette was authorized to sign the contract with Damase Alard on condition that the latter agrees to do certain building projects, that the building belonging to the Corporation, at the one end of the piece of land should not be demolished, and that he agree to pay costs of the contract.

The chairman of the Aqueduct Department was authorized to purchase the necessary coal for his department. Mayor Billette informed the council that J. A. Racicot, engineer of the Roads Department, had asked for the opinion of the council in regard to a certain change in the road between Montreal-Valleyfield, and between Melocheville-Valleyfield, so that the road would pass through Sarallé division. The council was entirely opposed to any change of this kind.

The treasurer was authorized to change the name of Vve. J. Normand on the valuation roll to P. E. Chateau, for prop. No. 92-96.

Water examination report for week ending Nov. 9, showed the water analysis to be favorable.

Tenders for supplying snow fence were opened and considered: General Construction Co., 4,000 feet of fence of 4 ft. height, at $8.48 per 100 ft., 400 poles of 7 ft. at $8.48 each; 400 poles of 8 ft. at $9.48 each; Megantic Manufacturing Co., 4,000 ft. of fence of 4 ft. at $7 per 100 ft. No final decision was made on the matter.

Mayor Billette informed the council that the Parish of St. Cecile, following information received, did not wish to contribute more than $1000 for completion of the road from the end of St. Laurent St. The clerk was asked to write to the Parish Council asking for an official statement of the Parish of St. Cecile, and was left with the Finance Department for consideration.

Rev. A. J. V. De Lano, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, officiating. The bride wore a brown ensemble and a corsage bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. She was attended by Miss Margaret Dadds, sister of the groom, who was attired in a peacock blue tulle with a bouquet of orchid chrysanthemums. Following the ceremony a luncheon was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dadds at Plattsburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. Dadds have gone to Flint, Mich., to make their home.

Mrs. George Smith and Miss Mildred Smith of Champlain spent Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Wm. Akster.

Chateaugay Basin

Fifty members of the Parent-Teachers' Association of the Julius Richardson School, Chateaugay, Que., and friends, met in the School Hall on Tuesday evening and, after a brief business meeting, were given an interesting address by Dr. I. K. Williams, who recently moved to this town and is practicing in the district. The speaker was introduced by Mr. Yarnell, and chose as his subject, "The Physical Well-Being of the Child." Due to lack of time and the tremendous ground which would have to be covered to deal with the subject thoroughly, Dr. Williams explained that his intention was merely to outline the subject and avoid details for the time being. He particularly stressed the necessity for the study and application of preventive and curative hygienic methods to meet the problems and dangers peculiar to the four ages of childhood. Also, emphasizing the importance of intelligent pre-natal care to both the mother and child, and the important part which the best ordering and regulating of diet plays on the life of any child—rest and proper food being so essential for the infant and the pre-school child.

The speaker also spoke of the care which should be taken when erecting schools so that proper sanitary conditions may exist, and stressed the importance which proper diet plays in the life of the school child, and mentioned the order and variety of food in the diet, and the importance of securing an adequate supply of fresh air, so that the school child might be protected against the dangers of contagious and upper-respiratory diseases, which are so prevalent throughout classrooms.

In closing Dr. Williams said that at any time he would be very pleased to speak again, at some future date, on any one phase of his address.

On the motion of Mrs. S. Gilbert, Mr. Ashley recently appointed school trustee, was nominated to succeed the late Mr. Peter Reid as Vice-President of the Association. Mrs. Louis Smith, Mrs. Ross Lang and Mrs. George Henderson were nominated by Mrs. David Lang and Mrs. Norman Ashley to form a committee for the organization of the annual Christmas Tree. Mrs. S. Gilbert, accompanied by Mrs. L. Smith, sang a couple of vocal solos. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served, the hostesses being Mrs. Davidson and Mrs. James Clinton. "God Save the King" closed the evening's programme.

A dialogue through Australia was shown the children of the Julius Richardson School on Friday evening. Mr. George Henderson kindly lending his movie camera for the occasion. The children were keenly interested in the play, and the set of reeks, and it was of special interest and help to those who, this year for the first time, are studying Australia and will now have a clear vision of the mode of life and travel, and the products of the island and their manufacture, and physical features together with many other interesting and educational points as exemplified in the pictures.

A celebration in honour of St. Charles was held in the hall of the Franciscan Chapel Christ the King, on Sunday evening when the Girls' Choir entertained. A sumptuous supper was served and after the meal, games and an old-fashioned coffee hour were the order of the evening.

Miss Yvette Pregel and little Miss Fernande Dupont were the lucky winners of prizes which were donated by Miss J. Soyex for games played during the evening of fun.

Under the direction of Mrs. Jarvis Arnold, St. Georges Players presented "Mimi Lights a Candle," prize Christmas play of the Federated Clubs of America, on Friday evening to an audience which was held to a keen point of interest throughout the entire performance. The cast included: Mrs. Randall, Margaret White; Grandma, Marjorie Barnes; Mimi, Edith Brereton; Children, Jenny Henderson, Gerald Gilbert, Jenny McBride, Norma Walton; Tim Cook, Laura, Aileen McDiarmid.

A short musical programme preceded the play in which piano solos were played by Mrs. Louis Smith and Miss Lorna Herbert, and vocal solos sung by Mrs. Arthur Williams, and Messrs. Hallett Arnold and John Bonnell, also a vocal duet by Mrs. Jarvis Arnold and Mr. Hallett Arnold.

The Wesley Players of Montreal gave their second annual "Seth Parker Evening" in St. Andrew's Hall on Saturday evening, when they, magically transported their audience away off to the little town of Jonesport, Maine, where on a Sunday evening, all the members of the group were gathered together in the home of the well-loved Seth Parker to sing together and enjoy a real old-fashioned "gathering." Of course, Mother Parker, Lizzie, the Captain, Cephus and all the others were there, and after their evening of hearty singing and jollity the audience left the hall with a feeling of good-fellowship to all, as Seth would have everyone do and which he practiced throughout his own life.

Valleyfield

Approximately one hundred and fifty couples attended the dance held in the Valleyfield Tourist Club on Saturday night. Lucien Leduc being the promoter when Miss Marcelle Taillefer sponsored by the Knights of Columbus, one of five candidates for the crown of the queen of sports was elected. She will represent Valleyfield at the general election to be held on Saturday, December 8th at the Place Vigier Hotel in Montreal for the purpose of electing a queen of sports for the Province of Quebec.

The residence of Mr. Adrien Anyot on Salisbury St., was the scene of a fire on Saturday morning caused by an overheated stove. The kitchen was completely gutted. The main part of the house was considerably damaged by smoke and water. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

A series of thefts during the past week was culminated by the arrest of five individuals on Saturday, one pleading guilty to an offence of stealing four cases of empty beer bottles from the yard of Mr. Adrien Cholette in Bellefleur. He was sentenced to two months in jail.

The Anyot pool room on Victoria St., was entered Saturday morning and thieves cleaned out the stock of cigarettes, cigars and chocolates.

A quantity of food stolen from a residence on Nicholson St. and one on Champlain St. was recovered in a cache of a boat house along with a large quantity of other stolen articles not yet identified.

The bicycle belonging to Mr. Leduc, C. N. Telegraph Messenger, stolen from in front of his home on Boulevard du Havre, has not been recovered.

Persons—

Mr. and Mrs. S. Whelehan, Mrs. M. J. Grace of Montreal and Mrs. P. H. Ellwood, the Heights, were visiting relatives in town on Wednesday.

Mrs. G. Maker returned on Tuesday from a short visit to Chicago.

The Ladies' Aid of the United Church held a very successful turkey supper and entertainment in the church hall on Thursday evening. The tables were artistically decorated with pine needles and bittersweet, giving the hall a real Christmas atmosphere. Rev. J. G. Greig said a few words before supper was served, while Rev. H. A. Naylor offered prayer.

The programme that followed consisted of a dance by the Misses Joyce Crook, Audrey Johnson, Barbara Read; "Rob Roy," a comical sketch; song, by Miss Lois Aird, tap dancing, selections by J. O'Neill's orchestra, and a playlet, with Mrs. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Hendel, Alice Exley and John Greig taking part; Rob Roy; musical trio, Miss Gnaedinger, Miss Haselton and Mr. Gnaedinger; solo by Miss Gerty; The concert closed with music by the orchestra.
