ARMIES TAKE A REST AFTER 4 DAY BATTLE

Dearth of Trustworthy News From Balkans—Greek Torpedo Boat Sinks Battleship.

Constantinople, Nov. 1.—Late to-night it was reported that fighting had been suspended by the Turkish and Bulgarian armies, the men of both of which were suffering from fatigue from the battle that had been in progress continuously for four days.

Seven thousand more wounded men are expected to arrive here from the front to-morrow.

BLOODY MASSACRE OF GREEKS BY THE TURKS

Athens, Nov. 1.—Accounts are published here of a massacre of Greeks by Turks in the town of Servia, just across the Greek frontier in Turkey. They say that the fleeing Turkish troops in passing through the village of Metassa ordered the Greek inhabitants to follow them on peril of being massacred by Turkish cavalry.

On refusing 52 of the Greeks were made prisoners and taken to Servia and lodged in the jail, in which were 75 others of their compariots. Later the governor of the prison told the Greeks they were free and ordered them to leave the building. On emerging the Greeks were surrounded by soldiers and an armed mob who began a massacre. Only four of the Greeks escaped with their lives. When the massacre was over a soldier cut off the noses and hands of the dead men.

REPORTS FROM BALKANS ARE STILL CONFLICTING.

London, Nov. 1—The perplexity arising from the policy of the governments engaged in warfare in southeastern Europe in totally excluding newspaper correspondents from the scene of hostilities is more pronounced than ever to-night.

An extraordinary series of despatches from Nazim Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, claiming that the Turkish army had recaptured Bunarhissar and was still holding its own against the Bulgarian advance, were published in Constantinople to-day. In the absence of independent testimony, however, various assumptions as to the accuracy of these telegrams are possible. They may be belated despatches referring to earlier stages of the struggle, or mere representations for the benefit of the Turkish populace. On the other hand they may mean that the Bulgarian victory was not so complete as was reported by Sofia, or possibly that the nine divisions of Turkish reserves the reports of yesterday said had been ordered to the Turkish centre may be holding back the Bulgarian advance.

Except for the general statement that the Turks were retreating on Chataldja, fighting rear guard actions, no details of the battle were forthcoming from Sofia to-day, but the arrival of 5000 wounded men in Constantinople tells its own story of the sanguinary character of the encounter. Despite the optimistic reports from the Turkish side it is not believed here that the Turkish army can retrieve itself.

Allies To Dictate Terms.

All the indications from Sofia are that the allies are determined to dictate terms of peace from Constantinople. That is the construction placed on an editorial from the official newspaper Mir, published at Sofia, and in other official intimations that the Bulgarians appear to expect to be in Constantinople within a fortnight at the most. Whether this will be possible depends upon the strength of the Chataldja fortified lines, which for nearly a century have been regarded as an impregnable stronghold from which the Turks would dare the world to expel them.

Diplomatic activity over the situation continues in the European capitals, but the Balkan allies in their present mood are ill-disposed toward any European interference.

The most interesting feature of the war news to-day was the brilliant exploit of a Greek torpedo boat sinking a Turkish battleship at Saloniki Thursday night.

No news was received from Adrianople to-day. Tarabosch and Scutari are still holding out, despite continuous bombardment by the Montenegrins.

British and French warships arrived at Saloniki to-night for the protection of their nationals.

NEW LIGHTING SYSTEM SUCCESSFULLY STARTED

Minor Accident to Power House Boilers Delays the Opening---Mayor Drouin Throws The Switch to Turn On The Current.

Mayor Nap. Drouin switched on the current last night at 11.10 o'clock that illuminated the city streets by the new system of lighting that is now being furnished by the Dorchester Electric Company. A tour of the city streets in which the new lights have been installed showed them to be much brighter in the clear brilliancy of the light in comparison to past conditions when the Quebec Merger had the contract to carry out the illumination.

PRAISE FOR NEW COMPANY.

The Dorchester Electric Company deserves the greatest praise for the manner in which they have kept their contract with the city, and it is noteworthy how the company has been able to do so, when all things in connection with the matter are taken into consideration.

It is not quite a year since the Dorchester company was formed and made a tender for the contract, which was awarded to them, and only six months since the company was properly organized and secured the services of Mr. William T. Wilson, C. E., as manager and electrical engineer, who was formerly a member of the Montreal Power Co.

In Mr. Wilson the Dorchester Electric Company not only secured the services of a capable engineer and organizer, but on active man, as he has proved himself to be by the performance of a gigantic work.

Mr. Wilson had not only the task to organize, but to prepare every specification in connection with the entire plant and buildings, draw up the plans and afterwards attend to all the details, and his success is not only worthy of praise, but places him in the front rank of electrical engineers.

The installation of the Dorchester plant was completed only yesterday. It is planned that the current would have been switched on by Mayor Drouin from the City Hall last evening at 5.30 o'clock, where a switch to light the city was temporarily installed, but unfortunately, just as everything was in readiness, an accident happened in connection with the new boilers.

The packing of one of the valves blew out, which necessitated the installing of a new injector. At first this accident was looked upon as trifling and easy to remedy in the course of an hour or two, at least that was the opinion of a large number of gentlemen not initiated into the mysteries of the mechanical art.

In the meantime Mayor Drouin, surrounded by a number of aldermen and prominent citizens, waited patiently in his City Hall reception rooms. Among those present were: Hon. Nemise Garneau, president of the Dorchester Electric Co.; F. Gald. Lymon and L. A. Cannon, K. C., directors; W. T. Wilson, manager; Wm. A. Marsh and J. Picard, president and vice president of the Board; Mr. Nash, Quebec manager Montreal Bank; Mayor Cantin, of Montcalmville; Liqut. Col. James, Aldermen Lavigueur, Verret, Confell and Collier, G. A. Vandry, E. T. Nesbitt, Geo. Tanguay and others to the number of about 100.

Company Entertains Officials.

At 6 o'clock, when it was realized that the accident could not be remedied for at least another hour or two, Hon. Nemise Garneau called the company to order, and after explaining the cause of the delay, invited the company to partake of refreshments which had been provided by the company. At the same time he gave an outline of the formation of the company the work accomplished in organization and proposed the health of His Worship the Mayor, whom he characterized as a man of energy who devoted the greatest part of his time in the interest of the city and was always on the alert to promote new industries.

Mayor Drouin made a happy acknowledgment, and in the course of his remarks referred to his efforts in endeavoring to have the Q. R. L. H. & P. Co. come to the city's assistance when it was found that the ornamental lamps would not be ready for installation to light the principal streets of the city. The Q. R. L. H. & P. Co. promised that they would come to the city's assistance if required, for a month or two if necessary, and this promise was made by the chief officials of the electric company. But when the first moment came to render favor the company refused unless the city would sign a contract for a whole year's lighting.

The Mayor then sought relief from the Bell Telephone Co. and asked to be allowed to string wires on their poles until they could have their own light, but was refused, because the Bell Telephone Co. had entered into an agreement with the Q. R. L. H. & P. Co. to so refuse. Thus it could be seen that the electric light company thought they had the city at their mercy, and he, as Mayor, intrusted with the interests of the citizens, had his duty to perform, and he certainly was not going to be held up in the city's trouble by the merger, even if they had to go back to the days of kerosene and candle lighting.

He also referred to the wonderful work accomplished by the Dorchester Electric Company, who, it might be said, built their plant in the space of three months, thanks to the energy and ability of the company's manager, Mr. Wilson.

Mr. Wilson, in response, spoke of the work done, and also regretted that a mishap should have occurred to delay the start of the service.

Mr. L. A. Cannon, K.C., Alderman and Chairman of the City Finance Committee and Director of the Dorchester Electric Company, paid a tribute to the work accomplished by Manager Wilson.

COL. ROOSEVELT AGAIN SPEAKS IN NEW YORK

Addressing Big Audience in the Garden, Asks For Votes Rather Than Cheers.

New York, Nov. 1.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt, for the second time in three days, to-night addressed an audience of thousands in Madison Square Garden. There had preceded him to the Garden, through the medium of Comptroller A. Prendergast, chairman of the meeting, request that no effort be made by the crowd to cheer him beyond the limit of time accorded last night in the same hall to Governor Wilson.

WANTS VOTES, NOT CHEERS.

"When Col. Roosevelt raises his left hand," said Mr. Prendergast, "he asks you to let him proceed with his speech, because he desires a record next Tuesday in the voting, rather than a record to-night in the duration of the cheers."

Oscar S. Straus, candidate for governor, and other state speakers, had held the stage until 9.40 before cheers from the outside signalled the approach of the Presidential candidate. The applause from within swelled to a roar as Col. Roosevelt forced his way to the front of the platform a minute later. He was smiling broadly, and he waved a welcome to all parts of the hall.

It was 25 minutes before his uplifted hand brought the cheering to an end. After it had gone on for 20 minutes, he raised his arm, but the crowd renewed its cheers and he dropped the arm to his side. Again he made the gesture, but an enthusiast unfurled a giant bandanna from the roof of the Garden and the crowd was again in an uproar.

A band from Yonkers, N. Y., that had invaded one end of the hall behind banners announcing "Live Bull Moose from Yonkers," added to the enthusiasm by keeping several notes ahead of the official band on every tune that was played. Col. Roosevelt joined with gusto in the singing of "A Hot Time," but finally gave up when the Yonkers band ran away with the crowd.

When order was secured, he set the crowd laughing again with his greeting to the Yonkers enthusiasts.

"Men and women of New York," he said, and after a pause added: "And Yonkers."

"How about Jersey?" cried a voice; "you will hear from us on election day."

"Watch that you vote the way you shout," retorted Col. Roosevelt.

The Presidential candidate, declaring that he spoke in behalf of the Progressive state and local tickets of New York, talked for over an hour, his voice strong and his strength apparently unimpaired by the effort. Success in the state, he declared, was essential to Progressive success throughout the nation.

WHITMAN WARNED OF ALLEGED PLOT AGAINST HIS LIFE

New York Gamblers Boast That They Are Lifting Lid Since Becker Trial.

New York, Nov. 1.—District-Attorney Whitman was warned again today of an alleged plot against his life, and he was told that with the conclusion of the Becker trial "the lid" was being lifted gradually in the Tenderloin district and that gamblers were resuming business. The prosecutor declined to discuss the warning except to admit that he had received a letter and telegram to the effect that four Chicago "thugs" were due here by train tomorrow to 'get"" him. He said it was nothing new for him to receive threats, and he would not care about them if it were not for his family, but it is known that unusual precautions are being taken to guard him. A detective was at his side practically all day.

GAMBLING HOUSES QUIET.

Investigation has failed to verify rumors of pronounced activity in gambling circles, but a number of houses were said to have re-opened for business quietly and unobtrusively conducted. Many gamblers who left the city at the time of the exposure of the Becker-Rosenthal case have returned, it is known. It was even carried to the District-Attorney in newspaper reports that another lieutenant was pursuing the grafting tactice which Becker is alleged to have employed and that he was a silent partner in one of the gambling houses.

The prosecutor had no announcement to make concerning his future actions, but he made it known that he will not rest his case against the "system" with the conviction of Becker. He is working up evidence regarding police laxity and grafting to lay before the extraordinary grand jury which is to contiuue the John Doe proceedings immediately after the cases of the gunmen in the Rosenthal murder are disposed of.

Becker in his cell in the death house at Sing Sing prison, is being closely guarded. It is practically a case of one murderer assigned to look after another, for to-day James Dillon, a convict who killed a Brooklyn man, has been given the work of caring for Becker's cell. Dillon does not facedeath for him crime, as does Becker, who is therefore exempt under prison rules from menial labor.

Wife Comes Thrice Weekly.

The daily visits which Becker was first allowed to receive from his wife, have been cut to three a week. This has disappointed the couple, but they are making the best of it by the exchange of letters. Becker is also chafing under the loss of exercise. In the Tombs he had a daily promenade throughg the corridors, but now he has only a short walk between the rows of cells in the death house.

William Ferrick, the former member of the Becker police squad, who was indicted for perjury yesterday, was to-day formally suspended from the police force. He is on a honeymoon, having been married last night after his indictment. He did not learn of the grand jury's action until today, he said, when he appeared this afternoon, pleaded not guilty and gave $2,500 bonds for his appearance.

THREATEN A WAR IN HOCKEY GAME

Pacific Coast Association is Out With Ultimatum to N. H. A. on Commission Question.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 1.—Officials of the Pacific Coast Hockey Association to-night issued an ultimatum to the National Hockey Association and unless the Eastern association takes a more favorable view of the terms to govern a commission as submitted by the Coast League at the annual meeting in Montreal on Saturday, Nov. 9, hockey war is assured.

At a conference of the Coast League officials held yesterday it was decided to telegraph President Quinn, of the N. H. A., to the effect that it would be impossible to send a representative to Montreal, but the P. C. H. A. was prepared to amalgamate if the Eastern clubs waived all claims on Hyland and Johnson, the two who have joined the Montreal Wanderers. As the request is refused, the P. C. H. A. magnates will immediately take steps to sign Eastern players. This will mean a war and a general scramble between hockey magnates for the best players in the game.

MONTREAL-QUEBEC TRAIN WRECKED, TWO ARE KILLED

Engineer and Fireman Lose Lives When Train Strikes Open Switch---Engine and Baggage Car Capsize---Passengers Unhurt.

A fatal accident occurred on the C.P.R. yesterday afternoon at Lanoraie, near Joliette, and about half way between Montreal and Quebec, when two Quebecers were killed. The train left Montreal at 1.30 and was due in this city at 6.30 last evening, but upon arriving at Lanoraie, about 60 miles east of Montreal, at 3 o'clock, the engine jumped the track, due, it is said, to an open switch, and carried the baggage car with it.

The engine toppled over and Engineer Juneau and Fireman Ruellard went down with the engine, and their bodies had not been recovered when the train continued on its way last evening.

PASSENGERS ESCAPE INJURY.

The train arrived at the Palais station at 10.15 last evening, instead of at 6.30, with a new crew and new engine. Conductor "Bob" McCleary was in charge of the train and was in the baggage car at the time of the accident and sustained injuries to his right hand as well as one of his feet, while Baggageman Frechette had his nose broken and his head badly cut. Mr. McCleary remained over at Lanoraie, but Frechette arrived in town last evening and went to the Hotel Dieu hospital to be attended to.

There was a large number of passengers on the train, but fortunately no fatalities are reported, although several of the passengers received quite a shock.

A new locomotive and baggage car was sent on from Montreal, with a new crew, which brought the train in shortly after ten o'clock last evening. A wrecking crew was also sent on to Lanoraie from Montreal to remove the locomotive and recover the bodies of the engineer and fireman, but that train had not arrived on the scene when the east bound passenger train had left. All the victims of the accident were Quebecers.

Engineer Juneau was the father of nine children, while his fireman, Jos. Ruellard, was also married and leaves a wife and three children. Frechette the baggageman, who was injured, is a resident of Limoilou.

MR. LAVERGNE ATTACKS THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

Mr. Armand Lavergne, M.P.P., addressed a large meeting at Lorette yesterday, the meeting being held in the town hall owing to the inclemency of the weather. Mr. St. Amand, as mayor of the parish and prefect of the county, presided over the meeting, which included a large number of Quebec Liberals, who were anxious to know what Mr. Bourassa's lieutenant had to say against Hon. L. P. Pelletier.

Naturally, as was expected, Mr. Lavergne's speech was principally devoted to the Postmaster-General, who, he claimed, had not carried out the promises made during the campaign. Mr. Lavergne was the only speaker, although several prominent Liberals occupied seats on the platform and were expected to address the audience.

CITY MAY ASK RIGHT TO TAX USELESS POLES

City Streets Are Disfigured By Electric Companies and Legislature Will Be Petitioned.

The Mayor and Aldermen of Quebec, alarmed at the number of useless electric light and telephone poles that line the streets of Quebec, giving the city thoroughfares the appearance of a veritable forest, have under consideration a means to compel the companies to pay for the privilege of foisting these ugly obstacles on the city.

ASK RIGHT TO TAX POLES.

It is said that the city authorities have in mind the addition of a clause in the city bill that is in course of preparation to present to the next meeting of the Provincial Legislature. This clause will request the right for the city to tax all poles erected by electric light, telephone and telegraph companies in the city thoroughfares.

There are at present more than 1200 poles on the streets of Quebec, and a large number of them are of no avail to the companies. Nevertheless, the companies refuse to remove them, and the city is powerless to compel their removal.

Therefore it is practically decided by the city to seek legislation that will allow the imposition of a tax on each pole and thus force the companies to pay for these street obstructions, whether they are in use or not.

The erection of street poles in Quebec has become an unmitigated nuisance. In places they are so bunched that the space between them does not measure more than six feet, and this condition of things exists on both sides of the roadway.

Heretofore, the companies interested were satisfied to place their poles on the roadway at the edge of the sidewalk, but of late they have made bold to place them inside the curbstone, forcing pedestrians to walk along the sidewalks in single file for want of room for people to walk two abreast.

The nuisance also prevents a pedestrian from wending his way with an open umbrella over his head, and later on, if the increase of poles continues, people will be obliged to give over the sidewalks altogether to erection of poles, and join the quadrupeds in seeking the roadway.

The amount of the tax to be imposed, should the legislation be passed will be in the neighborhood of $1, which may have the effect of compelling the electric light and telephone companies to remove the poles not in actual use, and not only remove the present eyesore, but allow the citizens of Quebec to walk their streets with more freedom.

A Natural Remedy

Time was when disease was thought to be due to the direct influence of evil spirits, and exorcism and magic were invoked to cast it out.

Science has taught us wisdom. The evil spirits exist still. We call them "Disease Germs," and they also must be cast out. Once lodged in the stomach or intestines, fever with its hallucinations, or biliousness with its aches and pains, is the result.

ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT'

is the approved remedy for driving out disease germs. Its action is quick and thorough. It clears the intestines, rouses the torpid liver to new life, stimulates the mucous membrane to a healthy action, and cleanses and invigorates the whole digestive tract.

Be prepared for emergencies by always keeping a bottle in the house.

FIREPROOF FLOOR CONSTRUCTION

The "FABER" system can be regarded as the most approved form of fire resisting construction, girders not being required even in the case of large spans. Girders and unprotected steel beams have been proved a source of great danger in fires, for by epansion and twisting they may cause the collapse of the whole structure, as has repeatedly happened.

THE "EMERGENCY" IN ACTUAL FACT NOW.

With the Bulgarian invader only fifty miles from Constantinople, with the Turks virtually suing for peace, and with the Great Powers arranging to have their diplomats meet in Paris, the clown, we referred to the other day, is still dancing round the mouth of the cannon, making us laugh at his comical outcry "Is there any danger?" We hear that even Mr. Bourassa has offered to take the stump to prove that there is no danger, or that, even were there any danger, it is none of our business, interested as he would have all Canadians, only in his parochalisms and special pleading. And what are the urgency appeals of Lord Churchill and Lord Roberts and Lord Charles Beresford or any responsible Minister of the Crown, compared with the hip-hip-hurrah fluencies of Mr. Bourassa's appeals to the unthinking? The comments sent by the despatches when co-ordinated, prove that the three victorious principalities of the Balkan Peninsula have become victorious from being prepared for war. But Canada being only a remote country parish, in the eyes of Mr. Bourassa and his somewhat boisterous clientele, with no concern in the affairs of the outside world, can take to re-reading the annals of 1837, and draw its lessons of war from the part which Mr. Bourassa's progenitor played when once the call to arms was sounded down at St. Denis. The Turks have been subdued because they were not prepared for war, thinking that while the minarets of Constantinople stood and the Sultan's Palace remained untouched, there was no likelihood that Turkey's prestige would wither and die as it is withering and dying today. We place our candid opinion of the Turk in a subsequent separate article; and we trust that no Canadian will be hurt to the heart by our diagnosis—not even the "no-emergency" man.

PRACTICAL PATRIOTISM.

There is quite a measure of praise being meted out to the brave-hearted Greek-born Canadians, who have given up their all to join the ranks of their countrymen at home, to save the land of Pericles and Thermistocles from the clutshes of the Turk. These Greek lads are going home to fight for their place of nativity. But we had Canadian lads who once went far away from the land of their nativity to keep in the battles of Old England. Nor is it likely that the native land of these brave lads is likely to show that it is less backward now, than its "very own soldier-boys" were then, in identifying itself with the movement that is finding its way all over the Empire at the present moment towards the upholding of the Empire's prestige. There is a whole storehouse of practical patriotism, we are inclined to think, left in us still, which is never likely to blush on account of not being as brave at its heart as the Greek lads are, who have lately been taking passage for Greece at their own expense. Britain has not called on Canada to go over to help her. Neither did the little kingdom of Greece send for her boys to go over to help her. But they have gone of their own free-will. And now it is Canada's turn as a whole to meet of her own free-will the emergency, that has been so much talked over of late.

INDIGNATION WELL-FOUNDED

The people of Quebec know now for a certainty where the city is at, with respect to the Merger that has sought to make a monopoly of the lighting and street-car systems of our town and did it for a time, too. It has come to be said for some time back that one might as well address a stone-wall, as seek to move the said Merger to give us that service the city has a right to demand. The last of a supercilious tyranny has, however, put the City Council on its mettle, and the indignation against the challenge of the directorate of the top-heavy Merger to throw the city in darkness for a time, unless its agreement with the civic authorities was continued for another year, has been likened unto "the last straw on the camel's back." The Chronicle has repeatedly been blamed for standing up for the public convenience, in the matter of the insufficiency of the light for even domestic uses, and the irregularitles of the street-car service. Even some of our friends and subscribers have quickly accused us of being too serious in our appeals for an improvement in the practical administration of the affairs of the would-be monopoly, that seemed not to care a straw for anything that might be said concerning its indifference to the comfort of its patrons. Now, as we have said, the people of Quebec know for a certainty where the city it at, with respect with the Merger's way of doing things; and the Merger ought to know, or be further taught, what it is up against, in its unworthy challeuge to the authority from which it draws its privileges. This is no age in which the tyranny of a monopoly can be tolerated. A public utility can never nowadays strengthen itself sufficiently to defy for long the public demand. The City Council is in the way of showing this; and whatever the inconveniencies may be, until the new sustem of lighting the city is inaugurated, these inconveniences will no doubt be borne with patience, when it is kept in mind what a preposterous demand was lately made by the officiate of the Merger. No stumbling-block has ever been put in the way of the Light, Heat and Power Company, in its plans for the city's comforts; but now when their comforts, as the primary object of its existence, have been given a very secondary place in its administration, if any at all, it can no longer be an offence to point out the deficiencies of that administration, until a remedy is seen to, not only in the lighting of our houses but also in the street-car and railway service.

SIR WILFRID'S NAVAL POLICY.

The ice is becoming thinner and thinner under Sir Wilfrid Laurier's feet; and yet one cannot but admire in a way, the tenacity with which he holds on to the policies from which he has suffered shipwreck, namely, Reciprocity and a limited Naval Policy When doing honor to Mr. McCrea at Sherbrooke the other night, in a city where manufacturing interests would have suffered greatly had Reciprocity been acceptable as a national policy that would have undermined the true "National Policy" which has brought visible commercial prosperity to the Eastern Provinces, Sir Wilfrid was discreet enough to say nothing about his longings to have the question of Reciprocity resuscitated as a Liberal canvass. It was unfortunate that he should have given less heed to his discretion in referring to the government that has succeeded his, as being a blank only as far as administrative industry is concerned. That reference was too near an approach to the untruthful for an ex-premier of Canada to utter, in presence of the desire we all have to judge Sir Wilfrid by what he says. He should leave that kind of pleading to his satellites of the Liberal underworld where falsehood is more fashionable than the truth. Besides, Sir Wilfrid must surely know that the people have been put in possession of the facts of the case, referring to the administrative industy of the present Minister of the Crown; and these facts, honestly collated, cannot but place the Leader of the Opposition in rather an awkward position, that looks too much like a self-condemnation. Indeed, Sir Wilfrid, for the past month or two, has harldly been measuring his own mental and moral stature by a right-kind of self-appreciation. He has been taking the public too much into his confidence about his personal affairs—his grey locks, his rigor of mind and body, his loungings to be back into power again, the domestic influences at work on him, his happiness as an Oppositionist, and other things derogatory to his dignity, that one does not know where the jocular ends in him and the serious begins. In his Sherbrooke address he has dealt with his own Navy inauguration ,and that is something tangible to deal with in an editorial way, we intend to do so, out of respect to his attitude, even if our readers know as much about that naval policy by this time as the Chronicle does or even Sir Wilfrid himself.

THE TURK AND HIS KIND.

The Turk is by no means the most enviable person to deal with. In the closet of diplomacy he is more or less like a bull in a china-shop and not to be trusted. On the battlefield he is cruel and remorseless. In commerce he is away behind the times. In powers of self-government he is limited to the instincts of the primitive. Drunk or sober his way of doing things is semi-savage or semi-civilized. As a Moslem, he looks upon a progressive Christian much as does the rabid partizan Liberal partizan Liberal out of office look upon a Conservative in office. He is as ready to deny the right as he is to rampage in behalf of the wrong. A fatalist, he takes his chances with his self-ception, to decry and fight against every good word and work, and justify his conduct, when he is proven to have taken a wrong course, by denouncing all and sundry that he has stood in his way of victory. Now he is face to face with his fate: and already his knees are beginning to tremble towards the option that he will either have to ask the pardon of those whom he has autraged, or kneel for protection from whatever of the spirit of benevolence there is in his environment. And—poor fellow—is he not to be pitied? His limitations of knowledge and morality being so apparent, what is to be done with him, so that the companion for him may pot grow into detestation of the place he has usurped so long in civilization?

PRESIDENT SUSPENDER
NONE-SO-EASY

THE HYPOCRISY OF THE CORRUPTIONIST.

It is all coming out how the Province of Saskatchewan was made to say that Reciprocity was the policy to get the Liberal party back to power. The Winnipeg Telegram tells us the story in pretty strong language in the hearing of those who would have introduced their vile electioneering methods in Manitoba lately, proving the hypocricy of the rascals as they danced in a fit of rage round the protectors of the electorate of MacDonald.

"So close at hand as this present year," says the Telegram, "the province of Saskatchewan was delivered body and soul into the hands of the most corrupt and unrepresentative government in Canada, whose power is tainted at its source by the methods used to obtain it, by fraud and violence unheard of before in Canada's history. Yet these oracular patriots were dumb except when they hailed the result as a victory for reciprocity. The safeguard of citizenship, the election oath, was tampered with by a decadent legislation. Aliens were massed on the voters' lists by obedient registrars and Canadians were disfranchised. The polls were delivered over to a strong arm brigade who not merely made arrests but handcuffed and exposed to every public insult and contumely Canadian citizens. It was all of a piece, only, not a constituency; but a whole Canadian province was debauched and coerced. This is common knowledge, yet no offender was brought to book because the mountains of justice were sealed by those who planned and wrought the villainy."

And who is going to plead in favor of such political exploiters getting back into power in Canada, save these same exploiters and those of their dishonest kidney. The fallacy that "the one side is as bad as the other" can hardly be advanced in a case of this kind—as it is often advanced when the corruptionist is caught red-handed—to justify any canvass to get such conscienceless scoundrels back into a scramble for office again.

Senator A. C. Bell, of Nova Scotia, has passed away. He was one of the stalwart Conservatives of his native province— a man of great dignity of presence and honesty of endeavor in the public service. No name is better known in Nova Scotia than that of the late Senator. No man's public reputation stood higher as the once manfully strove to retain his seat in the Commons against methods of electioneering of the unworthiest kind. Gentlemanly in his every activity, and modest in his approach to all public questions, he may safely be given a niche in provincial history among the "celebrities" of the Maritime Provinces.

The oratoria of Mendelssohn's "Elijah," given on Thursday night, was an event never to be forgotten by those who heard it. Criticism of detail would be entirely out of place in presence of the impressive "tout ensemble," which virtually lifted the audience out of themselves and their auditorium surroundings, within the charms of the genius of the immortal composer, by means of the well-balanced and charmingly concentrated choruses, the dramatic naturalness of the soloists, and the refinement of the orchestral effects. All praise is due to our own Mr. J. A. Gauvin, under whose direction Quebec was given the chance of hearing the New York Opera Company at its best.

TEMPERATE PEOPLE DRINK FOX HEAD ALES

Many temperance advocates urge the use of Ales which without intoxicating satisfy the requirements of those to whom pink lemonade or tea does not appeal.

Fox Head Ales are as tasty as they are wholesome.

All dealers can supply you.

It is sad that public service corporations forget that, after all, their very existence is dependent upon the good will of the public that they serve. Outside of the good will of that public, they own nothing but the junk value of their machinery. Wise corporations have learned this in wise cities.

"EXCUSE ME" A Laugh-Maker

Of Henry W. Savage's offering of Rupert Hughes' farce "Excuse Me," a play that relates the comic incidents befalling an amusing company of travellers on a railway trip from Chicago to Reno, enthusiastic commendation is justied, for at the Gaiety Theatre in New York it made an enormous hit and achieved the notable run of nine months. Therefore there is a Broadway guarantee of the kind and quality of "Excuse Me" as its long run proclaims its tremendous popularity. Without exception New York dramatic critics declared that no such clever play as "Excuse Me" had been seen in years. They said it scintillated with bright lines, that laughter came with remarkable frequency. One said, "There is in it that which makes one want to see it again." That explains the farce's success. "Excuse Me" gains on repetition. It draws people back time and again and each time they enjoy it more than before. Its humor grows. Therein lies the reason for the protracted New York run. No play can last nine months on Broadway unless it is so clever people go to see it repeatedly. "Excuse Me" is this kind. It is unique in idea and novel in setting. It is a bright and ingenious wielding into an entertaining play of episodes on a railway journey with all the scenes in the Pullman cars. Evevry moment and every happening is a laugh, yet there is decided plausibility in it all, in the events of the trip and in the persons who while droll and amusing are faithful types. In fact, "Excuse Me" might really have happened, and is all the funnier for its fidelity to the actual. It is clean, clever, legitimate farce with action each instant and laughter with cause. Plot? Who cares for a plot in a farce? Story, yes and "Excuse Me" has one—a dozen of them, each delightfully entertaining and all combining for orresistible mirth. Do not expect the story in advance. It is better to get it at the play. Be certain, though, that it is thoroughly enjoyable. The cast is admirable. It is a guaranteed Henry W. Savage offering. "Excuse Me" will be presented Monday and Tuesday night at the Auditorium, with a matinee Tuesday.

THE BOHEMIAN GIRL.

Nothing succeeds like success and this is once more demonstrated in the case of the Aborn Opera Company's revival of that most popular of operas "The Bohemian Girl" (in English), which is now in its second successful year, and which comes to the Auditorium for two nights, Friday and Saturday, and matinee Saturday. The secret of the phenomenal success of Balfe's masterpiece is not hard to find, when one recalls such beautiful ballads as "The Heart Bowed Down," "Bliss Forever Past," "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls" and "Then You'll Remember Me," and various others numbering in the total more than any other standard opera contains. Combined with these is a book that evolves as pretty a romance as forms a part of any opera now being presented. It is said the Messrs. Aborn have given to "The Bohemian Girl" a scenic equipment comprising six magnificent scenes, among which is Count Arnheim's castle in the mountains of Austro-Hungary, a picturesque Gypsy camp, a street fair and the marble halls. Previous to the Aborns revival of this opera no American managers had ever undertaken the task of treating it spectacularly, to which it lends itself so perfectly. For instance, in the first act they employ a score of horses in thrillingly melodramatic style, and in the second, in the Gypsy camp, are seen a band of real Gypsies with their horses, dogs, chickens, geese and swine, while in the street fair scene the Hassen Ben Ali troupe of whirlwind acrobats are among the unusual features shown. While these innovations were never attempted in the United States previous to their adoption by the Messrs. Aborn, on the ground that they were inconsistent, they have all found to not only fit, but greatly enhance the interest of the opera. In the interpretation of the opera is employed an unusually large company, which includes besides an exceptionally strong double cast of grand opera soloists as principals, an immense chorus, corps de ballet and a number of special performers. Most important in the cast is Blanche Morrison as "Arline," Claudis Albright as the "Gypsy Queen," Roy Pilcher as "Thaddeus," James Stevens as "Count Arnheim," Joseph Florian as "Devilshoof," Clifton Webb as "Florestein" and Geraldine Bruce as "Buda." The special orchestra will be conducted by Joseph E. Nicol. Sale of tickets is now open.

INTERCOLONIAL IN PROSPEROUS STATE

General Manager Tiffin Says Government Road Is Doing a Big Business.

Mr. E. Tiffin, General Manager of the Intercolonial Railway, who arrived in Quebec on Thursday last en route to Moncton, N.B., in an interview with a Chronicle reporter yesterday, said that the Intercolonial Railway is doing a big and prosperous business, and will be obliged to considerably increase its rolling stock.

"The Intercolonial from Halifax to Montreal is in a superb condition, and the road is doing the biggest business in both its passenger and freight carrying service in its history.

"The business has so increased that the Government has been obliged to increase its rolling stock to a great degree, and recently have ordered fifteen additional locomotives of the largest and most improved type.

"One thousand steel frame wooden box cars aud twenty-five refrigerator cars have been ordered, of the newest type. A number of the box cars ordered will be built of steel.

"A lot of steel coal cars with side dumps and a lot of Hartois convertible cars, eight new sleepers, coaches and colonist cars and baggage cars have also been ordered. The money to pay for all this rolling stock is taken from the revenue, without the necessity of increasing the capital account of the Government road.

"Added to this a large amount of money from the revenue account has been expended for the upkeep of the road from Halifax to Montreal, as well as for maintenance of the road-bed and rolling stock, which today is in superb condition.

"The business done in the Intercolonial this year is much larger in volume than in any previous year, and the outlook for the future is still brighter, and this fact has in itself induced the Government to continue the Ocean Limited time service until the 9th of January, and possibly all winter.

Expects Grain Freights.

"The Intercolonial expects to move a large mount of western grain this winter to St. John and Halifax, and we have already made a number of contracts for the handling of this business.

The Western grain will reach the Intercolonial from Depot Harbor and Tiffin, Georgian Bay. Car shortage is the all-absorbing question these days with all Canadian railways, and we are putting forth every effort to equip our road promptly in this respect.

Besides building in our own Moncton car shops, we have placed orders with the Canadian Car Co., Montreal, the Amherst Car Company, and the Nova Scotia Car Company of Halifax.

"Besides our regular business we expect to handle a large immigration business this winter, much larger than heretofore. The war between Turkey and the Balkan States may to a certain extent interfere with Continental emigration, but there is hope of an early termination of the war, that may offset our fears in this respect."

Mr. Tiffin, who is one of the most active and expert traffic railroad managers on the Continent, never appeared so sanguine about the prospects of the Intercolonial as he does today, and is confident that the Government road will never again show a deficit.

He was asked if it was to his knowledge that the Government was preparing to use the haulage rights of running the Intercolonial over the Transcontinental tracks to Winnipeg and even further West, to haul grain from the Canadian West to the Maritime ports this winter.

He answered that the question was altogether out of his province to answer, as the matter rested entirely with the Government, besides he had no knowledge whatever of the Government's intention in that respect, or if the matter was even under consideration.

ferred to the manner in which Quebec had been handicapped in having new industries do business here, which was not the fault of the promoters who sought to come, or the citizens, but of corporate interests doing business in the city of Quebec.

He referred to Mr. Whitehead, head of the Three Rivers cotton mills, who desired to establish their works at Limoilou, and had a bill before the Legislature to that effect which was blocked by Quebec electric power companies because they would not have the furnishing of the power.

Mr. Whitehead naturally sought the cheapest power he could obtain, which he was assured from Shawinigan Falls, and when his bill was blocked he went to Three Rivers, where the immense mills were erected, and was responsible for enticing other large industries to establish their plants in that city that otherwise would have come to Quebec.

Mr. F. Gold Lyman, Montreal director of the Dorchester Company, said that the people of Montreal had come to realize that Quebec had taken a step ahead and would go forward and eventually have a bright future, and for this reason Montreal men were ready and willing to invest their money here.

In response to further toasts, Mr. Nash spoke, also Mr. Marsh, president of the Quebec Board of Trade; Mayor Cantin, of Montcalmville; Aldermen Verret and others, including an acknowledgment of a toast to the press by a Chronicle representative.

All the speakers in the course of their remarks paid a high tribute to the energy and ability of Manager Wilson and his wonderful accomplishment in making it possible for the Dorchester Electric Company to keep faith with the city in their contract.

Lights Turned On.

The mayor and gentlemen present remained at the City Hall until 10.30 o'clock and then received a telephone message that the boilers were refilled, steam up and it was only a question of a short time when the current would be ready to light the street lamps.

It was then decided that the company would proceed to the power house at the foot of Grant street, where the mayor turned on the switch that lighted up the city streets at 11.10 o'clock.

The city is now independent o fthe Q. R., L., H. & P. Co In the mantime the principal thoroughfares, which incude Fabrique, Du Fort and St. Louis streets, Grande Allee, St. John, St. Joseph and Crown streets, and Mountain Hill, will have to remain in darkness until the ornamental lights and installed or some other arrangement can be made to light those streets.

Business Men To Rescue.

Several business houses along those streets have been good enough to keep their windows lighted for the convenience of the public, including Mr. A. Siefert, who kept his electric signs lighted all Thursday night and last evening up to midnight.

It is suggested that all the proprietors of stores in the principal streets keep their show windows lighted and curtains up until the city finds means to light the streets. This will not only prove a boon to grateful citizens, but also will enable the city police to protect property from burglars, who might endeavor to carry on their nefarious work under the advantage afforded them of dark streets.

TRAVELLING DESK.

Why do without a week-end desk when you may have one of those conveniences for the making of it and, incidentally, be sure of always having at hand your own sort of pen and your individual stationery?

Get a pasteboard-covered blank book of about 12x12 in size, detach its leaves and veil its marble outer surface with any pretty, substantial fabric—toile de joury, printed linen or raw silk, damask or tapestry.

Then, on the inner side of one leaf, paste a covering of blotting paper and against the other leaf affix three sides of a leaf of the covering material, leaving the upper and inner edge gaping and firming a pocket for the writing materials with the exception of the ink which must be carried in an encased bottle unless a fountain pen is custimarily employed. Thus equipped, one may conveniently make up correspondence arrears while traverling or visiting as the flat little case may easily be packed into even a small sized hand bag.

The resignation of Hon. F. D. Monk as Minister of Public Works has come about under circumstances which are creditable to the Government and at the same time creditable to Mr. Monk. These circumstances involved, on the part of the Government a determination to do its duty as a Government, on the part of Mr. Monk a determination to observe a promise made by him as an individual member prior to the formation of the present Government. Mr. Monk's retirement was effected without bitterness on either side but, on the contrary, with the most friendly personal feelings and with no diminution of that mutual good will existing prior to Mr. Monk's decision to resign. Mr. Monk considered himself personally pledged to a reference of any naval policy to the people. When the Government as a whole reached the conclusion, following the visit of the Prime Minister and some of his colleagues to England, that the situation in Great Britain called for immediate aid, Mr. Monk found himself unable to agree to a measure of aid without the question being first referred to the people. At the same time he recognized the naval situation to be grave and critical. As an honorable man Mr. Monk was bound to observe his pledge, and his course must have been followed by any other minister similarly situated. The other members of the Government had made no pledge to refer the question of immediate aid to the people. They could not see eye to eye with Mr. Monk, while thoroughly appreciating his position. Under these circumstances Mr. Monk took the only course, out of the question. He goes out of the Government in obedience to sense of duty, and this has entitled him to the respect alike of political friend and opponent. At the same time the circumstances of his withdrawal have crystallized the belief that the Government intends to propose, for immediate action by Parliament, a strong measure of effective aid to Great Britain in a grave and critical moment.

UGH! NOT CALOMEL, OIL OR SALTS, BUT DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS,"

Give Your Stomach, Liver and 30 Feet of Bowels a Thorough Cleansing Without Grippe or Nausea. Ends headache, Biliousness, Indigestion and Constipation.

This wonderful fruit laxative acts as a liver and bowel cleanser—tonic—not as an irritant. Its action is natural and gentle—no griping. It is positive and prompt—no waiting.

If your stomach is sour and filled with vile gases, your head aches, or you are bilious, nervous, dizzy, half sick, your tongue coated, your thirty feet of bowels clogged with waste not properly carried off—don't wait. Surely take a taspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs to-night, and in the morning all constipated waste, sour bile, gases and poisons will move on and out of the system, gently but thoroughly—no griping—no nauses—no weakness. In the old days people let these matters run until they needed a large dose of physic, then they took something severe, like castor oil, salts or cathartics, that meant abuse to the bowels. These are the days of the gentle and natural—the days of Syrup of Figs. This way you are not drugging yourself. Syrup of Figs being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics can not cause injury.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and look for the name, California Fig Syrup Company on the label. This is the genuine—old reliable. Any other so-called Fig Syrup is an imitation often meant to deceive you. Refuse such with contempt.

TO DARN FANCY HOSE.

When the members of the family wear fancy hose it is very nice to buy a spool of silkateen the shade of the hose to darn them with, as it's almost impossible to find darning cotton in the fancy shades, and the silkateen is very soft and smooth after laundering.

After men's hose get beyond repairing, save them to draw in over the hand when blacking stoves. You will find they save the hands from getting discolored. The woolen hose are fine to pull over the hand and rub stoves with after blacking, as they give a splendid polish. Nickel on stoves and nickel tea kettles can be kept bright very easily by cleaning them thoroughly, with soap and water and then wiping them over every morning with a cloth dampened with kerosene oil.

Bishop Grisdale.

INVESTIGATION FOLLOWS QUARREL OF EMPLOYES.

As a result of two workingmen falling out with each other, an investigation will be commenced at the Marine and Fisheries Quebec agency to-day. It appears that one of the parties made a complaint to the department against his fellow workers. Apart from this the investigation does not apply to any other person, and there is no truth in the story that the "head hunters are still at work."

A silver plated tray may be purchased to-day for 25c. at Seifert's.

NEW WARRANT OFFICERS.

Recent miltia orders from Ottawa have officially notified the following non-commissioned officers of the Quebec Militia corps that they have been promoted to the rank of warrant officers.

R.C.G.A.—To be bandmaster with warrant rank, Bandmaster Charles O'Neill, from Sept. 1, 1912.

Imperial Army Corps—To be Sgt.-Major and Quartermaster, R. N. McCauley, from Nov. 21, 1911.

Canadian Ordnance Corps—To be Conductor, Sub-Conductor F. Hebert.

Fine silver plated knife rests 90c. a pair to-day at Seifert's.

DEPORTATION POSTPONED.

The three old country French girls who were arrested some weeks ago in a raid made upon two houses of ill-repute, and have since been confined in gaol awaiting deportation, were not deported yesterday by the SS. Empress of Ireland. The prisoners were removed under guard from the gaol yesterday afternoon to the Louise docks to be placed on board the steamer, but owing to the crowd of passengers on board, passage was refused. The girls will, however, be deported by the C.P.R. SS. Montreal that sails next Wednesday for Liverpool.

MERGER GENEROUS WITH LIGHTS ON THE TERRACE

The Q. R., L., H. & P Co. had so much electric current to spare after turning out the city arc lights on Thursday midnight that they did not know how to get rid of it. This was very evident on Dufferin Terrace, when the Merger kept the lamps burning as late as 10 o'clock yesterday morning, much to the amusement of the public and especially citizens who had to feel their way home in the darkened city when the Merger turned off the current the previous midnight.

Their thoughtful generosity, not to speak of their courtesy towards the people of Quebec who have put up with the very indifferent lighting and street car service will long be remembered.

A silver plated butter dish with a glass lining may be had for a dollar to-day at Seifert's.

MRS. LEGGATT'S FUNERAL.

The death of Mrs. Leggatt, widow of Henry Plenderleath Leggatt, in her 88th year, removes one whose friends of her own generation had well nigh all gone before her. For the last nineteen years Mrs. Leggatt has lived at the Woman's Christian Association, where her gentle disposition and beautiful Christian spirit have greatly endeared her not only to all living there, but also to the ladies in charge of the management of the institution. For about three weeks past Mrs. Leggatt had suffered from bronchial pneumonia and her death on Wednesday last was not unexpected. Despite the best of care she sank into the peaceful sleep of death, attended by her neice, Miss Cary, and many other friends.

The funeral service was conducted in the Y.W.C.A. yesterday afternoon by the Rev. G. H. Cobbledick, assisted by Rev. I. M. Thompson. Mrs. W. E. Paxman sang "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." Among the chief mourners were her nephew, Mr. Justice Cannon, and his sons, Mr. Arthur Cannon, Mr. Lionel Cannon, Mr. Paul Turcot, her cousin, Col. Jones, Mr. Arthur Veasey, Mr. W. A. Bignell and Mr. J. Harrower.

PRESENTATION TO SANITARIUM HEAD

At a reception of the friends of Lake Edward Sanitarium held at the residence of the Hon. Richard Turner on Wednesday last, the Lady Superintendent, Miss Dodd, was made the recipient of a token of the respect and esteem in which she is held by the directors and friends of the institution.

Mr. Turner alluded in most appreciative terms to the work which Miss Dodd had accomplished. She had taken hold of the work from the first with a complete knowledge of all that it meant and all that was needed to carry it on. Her advice in every particular had been acted upon and as a result the good work of the institution was known far and wide. The usefulness of the Sanitarium was being more and more appreciated and the number of twenty-two patients had been reached. The number of those who have been materially improved in health and the number of those who have come back as complete cures show that the institution is doing a noble work, and to Miss Dodd's unfailing devotion to her difficult task no small part of this success is due.

Mr. Turner then read the following address:

Miss Dodd,

Lady Superintendent
Lake Edward Sanitarium:

Madam:

The directors of the Lake Edward Sanitarium, and a few friends, appreciating your labors, decided to present you with a slight token of, their good will.

You assumed the position of Lady Superintendent at its inception, and organized it in all its details, and by good judgment in the internal ordering of all matters, your cheerful and happy reception of those who became inmates and their friends, and your strict discipline exercised with judgment, assisted by doctors of experience, has placed the Lake Edward Sanitarium in the front rank, as the favorable results of the patients has proved.

We appreciate your services, and acknowledge that you are specially endowed with the gifts that must create and make the Sanitariumm a success.

We trust that the Lake Edward Sanitarium may have you as Lady Superintendent for many years. Please accept this slight token of our esteem.

Other directors present emphasized all that Mr. Turner had said and assured Miss Dodd of the deep appreciation in which her work is held by the people of Quebec.

Mr. Turner also made appreciative remarks about the help which the Sanitarium had received and was constantly receiving from the ladies' committee. The institution is recognized by the public of Quebec as one of the best of its kind in the country and shows the very best results.

EUCHRE AND DANCING PARTY AT CITADEL

A very interesting euchre and dacing party was held at the Citadel sergeants' mess last night, under the auspices of the warrant officers, staff sergeants and sergeants of the R. C. G. A.

There was quite a large gathering present, composed of all the non-commissioned officers of the garrison and their wives, and civilian guests to the number in all 150 persons. The mess rooms were very tastefully decorated for the occasion and nothing was left undone to make the entertainment a most enjoyable success.

The committee in charge of arrangements, Sergt. Major Power, Quarter Master Sergt. Robert, Sergts. Lake, Hampshire, Buckley and Band Sergt. W. Pugh were acme of courtesy and zeal in looking after the comfort of their guests.

The game of euchre, for attractive prizes, was commenced shortly after 8 o'clock and was keenly contested until 10.30 o'clock, when the following players were declared prize winners: Ladies—First, Mrs. Taylor, second, Mrs. Creegan. Gents—First, Sergt. Woodland; second, Quarter Master Sergt. Vaugh. Consolation—Mrs. Morrison and Mr. Howland.

Dancing was started immediately after the game and kept up until the early hours of the morning, and refreshments were served throughout the night, including a sumptous midnight supper.

The R. C. G. A Orchestra furnished the music and all who attended were delighted with the good time that was provided.

Correspondence

Editor of the Chronicle.

The woman's branch of the S. P. C. A., while greatly appreciating the kind words of "A Friend of the Society," do not feel that they can lay claim to all the good deeds assigned to them, as only one drinking trough was put up by the woman's branch, that one being on the Ste. Foye road, outside the city limits. The other one, at the foot of DeSalaberry, at the request of the society, was put up by the city, who also acceeded to the suggestion of the society in the matter of the blocks on Garden and St. Louis streets, the city engineers being at all times ready to do his best in aiding the society.

ALL SAINTS' DAY.

Yesterday being the feast of All Saints and a statutory holiday, business was practically suspended in Quebec. Besides the closing of the banks and all public offices most of the wholesale and retaile stores were closed and the weather was so disagreeable that very few pedestrians were seen on the streets excpt th members of the various church congregations going and coming from divine service.

QUEBEC MAN RUN OVER BY TRAIN AND KILLED

Joseph Fortier, aged 52 years, a former resident of Dorchester street, this city, was accidently killed at Magog on Thursday last while attempting to board a moving freight train.

Fortier, who recently went to Magog and had charge of the iron work of the Dominion Textile Co. extension, felt indisposed and decided to come home to Quebec. He sought passage on a freight train and while attempting to climb on board, accidently slipped and fell across the track, and the wheels of the train passed over both legs, amputating them from the knees. He was picked up and taken to the hospital, but died shortly afterwards.

BUTTONHOOKS HIS SALAD AND KEYS HIS DESSERT.

Operate on "Human Ostrich" and Find 132 Nails, Six Jacknives and Other Junk in His Stomach.

Pittsfield, Mass., Oct. 31.—Luke Parsons, "the human ostrich," who was in training for his annual Thanksgiving feast of jacknives and spikes, for which he has a special fondness, was operated on at the House of Mercy Hospital Saturday night, and 132 nails, two keys, six jacknives and a piece of iron were removed from his stomach and intestines.

Dr. W. O. Wilder, the hospital physician, assisted by Dr. I. S. F. Dodd, performed the operation. The nails had punctured the abdomen and periotonitis resulted, which led Parsons to apply for admission to the hospital on his statement that "my digestion is out of order."

While he was working as a carpenter ten years ago Parsons accidentally swallowed some shingle nails. The diet gave him no trouble and he took to training with nails as a regular menu, and adding jacknives and pieces of tin with buttonhooks as a salad and keys for dessert.

"I am feeling pretty hungry this afternoon," he said one day, and to satisfy his hunger he swallowed a gross of collar buttons.

Parsons told his surgeon that he had eaten no "solid" nourishment in iron or steel since last Thanksgiving. He is forty years old and has served several times in the Berkshire House of Correction. Dr. Dodd said to-day Parsons would probably live, but it would require from forty-eight to seventy-two hours to finally determine the outcome.

COURAGE.

Discouraged, eh? The world looks dark,
And all your hopes have gone astray;
Your finest shots have bissed the mark,
You're heartsick and discouraged, eh?

Plans that you built from all went wrong,
You can not seem to find the way
And it seems ain to plod along,
You're heartsick and discouraged, er?

Take heart! Each morning starts anew,
Return unto the battle line;
Against far greater odds than you
Brave men have fought with courage fine.

Despite the buffetings of fate,
They've risen, time and time again,
To stand, face front and shoulders straight
As leaders of their fellowmen.

And you, now blinded by despair,
Heartsick and weary of the fight,
On every hand beset by care,
Can, if you will, attain the light.

PACKEY MCFARLAND IS READY TO QUIT

Chicago Lightweight To Retire After One More Battle—Has Made $200,000.

Chicago, Nov. 1—"Packey" McFarland announced to-day he would retire from the prize ring after his forthcoming contest with "Young" Jack O'Brien in Philadelphia next month. He said he was tired of the continual rigor of training and that the lure of the dollar had lost some of its draw.

"There are only three fights I would like to get before I quit," McFarland said. "I'd like to take on Ad Wolgast, the champion. I'd like to meet Jack Britton, a Chicago boy, who is a comer, and I would like to get into a ring with Battling Nelson just to give him a whipping.

"I have made about $200,000 in the last five years and that is why I am ready to quit. My best winning was with Matt Wells, the Englishman. I drew down $10,000 for that fight. My battle with Jimmy Britt in San Francisco brought me $5,000. I have a number of smaller fights right along and clean up nearly $50,000 a year.

"I never bet on myself, but have made a little betting on others. It never has been a paying proposition to bet, though, and I quit it."

TAYLOR WILL NOT GIVE OUT WHAT HE INTENDS TO DO.

Ottawa, Nov. 1—The Victoria despatch claiming Fred Taylor for the Westerners is a little premature. When Lester Patrick was in Ottawa he made several offiers to the "Cyclone," but nothing definite came of it. Fred is sitting tight and will not give out what he is going to do, but he shows no signs of jumping west and the chances are that his case will be fixed up at the annual meeting of the N.H.A. on Nov. 9.

THE BATTLE FOR BIG-FOUR HONORS.

Ottawa, Nov. 1—Dr. Galvin, the Ottawa big four football coach, has no misgivings about the game to-morrow. "We'll win sure," he says just as he has remarked before all the games. "Our boys are going better now than they did before. I don't see where the Argos have a chance, although I expect a hard fight. But we'll win. Just put it down that Ottawa will have a championship team to-morrow night."

From the amount of stress laid on Smirlie Lawson and the part he is expected to play in the titular battle for big four honors at the park, the remaining thirteen men of the Argonaut team don't appear to have much to do.

Doc Galvin is very secretive about the personnel of his team, but this is about what the line-up will be :—Flying wing, McCann; backs, Robertson, Gerard (centre) or Williams; quarter, Snelling; scrimmage, Kuhn, Emmerson and Phillips; insides, Vaughan and Black; middles, Megloughlin and Kilt; outside, Ryan and Hickey.

JOCKEY CLUB WINS CASE IN TORONTO

Toronto, Nov. 1.—The defendants in the action brought by Jockey Trubel against the Niagara Racing Association, the Ontario Jockey Club, and William P. Fraser, were successful in their motion before Justice Latchford, at Osgoode Hall to-day, for an order striking out the jury notice, the clubs desiring trial without a jury.

Trubel was last summer expelled from the club, his license as a jockey having been taken from him and he now seeks heavy damages on the ground that he has been bereft of his means of making a livelihood. He alleges conspiracy on the part of the Canadian Racing Association and the two defendant clubs.

SOME TIMELY HELPS.

A pinch of salt put into the lamps when they are filled with oil will cause them to burn with more brilliance.

An excellent way of cleaning carpets is to scrub and wash them with the following mixture: Put into a large pan 1 gallon of water and add to it 1 pound of yellow soap, shaved thin, and half a pound of washing soda; let these boil together until the soap and soda are melted; wash only a small portion of the carpet at once and rinse with clear water.

To prevent matting from becoming dark colored, wash it occasionally in salt and water.

To clean soiled wall paper—Take half a loaf of bread and gently rub the soiled portions, working always in a downward direction; as soon as the bread is soiled cut off thin slice.

If the seats of caned chairs are sagging, turn them upside down, wash well with soapy water, soaking so as to thoroughly wet them, and in drying they will stiffen to almost, if not quite, their normal condition.

MCGILL KICKING ABOUT OFFICIALS

Shaughnessy Makes Claim That 'Varsity Is Butting In On Queen's Game.

Montreal, Nov. 1—Around old McGill they are discussing the possibility of there being no game with Queens at all Saturday. For there is a dead-lock over the official question. McGill have submitted a number of names of Interprovincial men to the Queen's officials, which Queen's refuse to accept, declaring at the same time that they will accept none but 'Varsity men. Coach Shaughnessy, of McGill, is said to be very much incensed about the matter and is said to have declared that 'Varsity are trying to "butt in" on the game. Consequently he recommends that the game be abandoned unless Queen's will accept Interprovincial officials. The officials suggested by McGill are Phil Mackenzie, Billy McMaster, Teddy Savage, Robbins, Elliott, Green or Ralph Ripley.

WILL ACCEPT SEAT ON THE BENCH.

Toronto, Nov. 1—The News says: Considerable speculation has followed the announcement from Ottawa regarding the elevations to the high court benches. Several rumors are circulated in connection with the appointments. The most interesting is that F. E. Hodgins, K.C., will not accept the honor. It is understood that perosnal reasons actuate him, but Mr. Hodgins declines to discuss the question, preferring to await official notification of his appointment. His friends are less reticent and one close to Mr. Hodgins, this afternoon, said there was little doubt but that pressure of other matters would prevent him taking a position on the bench at this juncture.

POWER COMPANY GAINS ITS POINT.

Toronto, Nov. 1—By a judgment given by Justice Latchford at Osgoode Hall this morning, the Toronto and Niagara Power Company are allowed to erect poles for the stringing of transmission wires in the streets of Toronto unmolested, the company having been granted an injunction restraining the city from interfering.

"You have no right to interfere with the erection of these poles," His Lordship said to the City Council. "Point out to me as a matter of law why the order shouldn't go. There is the judgment of the Privy Council, the highest court in the British Empire, and I think I am obliged to follow it. Besides, the city is not hurt in the least by any order restraining the interference of the police."

The injunction will prevail until the time of the trial, but when that will be, none of those appearing in the action appeared to know.

Mr. Singer blames the police for not preventing the affair. He was warned yesterday.

RUPTURE

Next Monday (the 4th) until Thursday (the 7th), the Specialist

MR A. CLAVERIE

so well known in Quebec, will be again at the VICTORIA HOTEL.
Hours: 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 6 to 9 p.m.
All advice given free.

How many are suffering from rupture and yet fail to properly treat themselves—they, in fact believe that—rupture is a disease without gravity.

Unfortunately, THEY ARE MISTAKEN.

Too often, TERRIBLE ACCIDENTS OCCUR, sometimes causing death.

Rupture is, in fact, one of THE MOST DANGEROUS INFIRMITIES KNOWN.

If a rupture is not maintained, or is wrongly maintained—WHICH IS JUST AS BAD—it will most certainly increase, slowly or suddenly until it reaches FEARFUL PROPORTIONS.

Then it will mean for the patient an impossibility to work and even move; it will make all his body weak, and he will become as an old person or an invalid.

But there is A MORE TERRIBLE DANGER: the strangulation; in an unexpected manner, and WITHOUT ANY WARNING, the rupture is pinched and it strangles: the digestion is suddenly blocked, and it means FEARFUL DEATH WITHIN 24 HOURS.

It is thus EXTREMELY IMPRUDENT to neglect a rupture, because it means at any moment the danger of sudden death.

Unfortunately it is not with the usual trade trusses that one may be protected and cured; it often occurs, on the contrary, that these trusses do more harm than good.

It is only BY A PERFECT SCIENTIFIC system that one may be made free from all fear and INSURE LIFE AND HEALTH.

So I strongly recommend to my readers the Method and Apparatus of Mr. A. Claverie, the world-renowned Specialist.

Hundreds of thousands of patients, who were leading a miserable life of pain and fear, have recovered, by using the Claverie System, STRENGTH, COMFORT, YOUTH AND QUIETUDE.

It is thus a rare chance which all ruptured people of this district will eagerly grasp, by going to the Parisian Specialist at the Victoria Hotel.

It will mean for them the end of their suffering and the BEGINING OF A NEW LIFE.

DIZZINESS ANOTHER SYMPTOM of EYESTRAIN.

To the lay mind it may be difficult to understand how dizziness can be induced by the eyes, yet many cases of vertigo are due to nothing more or less than eyestrain. If your system is in good order, your dizzy spells are undoubtedly caused by the strained condition of your eyes. The right glasses will correct this defect in your vision and you will never be troubled with dizziness from this source again. We make glasses for this purpose at satisfactory prices.

When washing white silk golves, in lukewarm water. After rubbing a little, draw them on your hands and dry in the sun. This will make them nice and white and will not stretch.

To mend your kid gloves take a piece of your hair and mend it as you would with thread. This will not tear the gloves and will last.

Before baking potatoes it is necessary to wash them. If you would get a small hand brush, it would be very convenient to use for this purpose.

When burned by steam, rub quickly with butter. It will not blister if this is quickly done.

NEW HOTEL SCHEME.

Councillor Russell has returned to town from Boston accompanied by a Mr. Clements of that city, well known as a large contractor. A Chronicle reporter interviewed Mr. Russell yesterday on the prospects of the new hotel. He says he has come to Quebec to make an estimate of the total cost of the proposed building.

A HUNDRED YEARS AGO TODAY

GENERAL HULL.

We find, by a late American paper, that this gentleman gives some trouble to the American Government. He has asked for an enquiry, which they seem determined not to grant. They pretend that they wish to bring him to trial; but, say they, he is a prisoner on parole; we have no right to punish him, hang him for instance, and therefore it is useless to try him; thus, very charitably, insinuating that he is in a case only to be tried to be hanged. In the meantime, though it is very certain that either he or his employers deserve that distinction, it is likely that the world will be left in the dark as to which of the two is the best entitled to it.

JAPANESE PARTIES.

There are several requests for Japanese affairs, which are answered collectively in the following description:

Ask all the guests to wear kimonos, with the hair done as Japanese as possible, which means a liberal supply of tiny fans, and even diminutive lanterns to be used as ornaments five or six are not too many for one coiffure Lanterns in the air shapes, fans, screens and parasols will transform rooms into bowers of beauty and crepe tissue paper cut into strips make charming portieres and window drapery. Chinese lilies growing in green or yellow Japanese bowls are effective, and artificial cherry blossoms, chrysanthemums and water lilies should be used in profusion. Japanese incense burners are not expensive, and the pungent odor is most pleasing.

Tea should be served in cups without handles and the Japs no not sugar. However, most people require it, so have it with lemon and cream.

Rice flour may be purchased, and from it make tiny sweetened cakes, and the Japanese always begin and end a feast with salted plums. Olives will have to answer. Fish is always served in some form, also rice and delicious sweetmeats and preserves. They never serve meat with the bones, and it is usually cut into small bits. For vegetables they are very fond of a special lily bulb, so onions will be a fair substitute.

Tea is served as soon as a guest arrives and many times during a repas but the cups are very small, napkin come folded in animal forms, such a. birds, frogs, etc., and it is part of the game to see if the guests can refold them in the same lines. Mats come in all sizes to be used as doilies, and they are very decorative.

There are several Japanese songs that are pretty and not difficult, which would add to the pleasure of an affair of this kind. Then there are quaint Chinese spoons made in China, which are inexpensive, and could be given the guests as souvenirs, or in a church affair they might be sold for 10 or 15 cents. Patterns come for kimonos and they should be worn with a wide sash or obi tied under the arms and in a bow in the back, with rather short ends. Glancing through illustrated books on Japan will give correct ideas as to dressing the hair, and show the proper way of adjusting the kimonos.

IDEAS FOR A GERMAN AFTERNOON.

Here are a few suggestions for the correspondent who wishes to give an afternoon party with a German flavor, as it were, but I can not give cake recipes, as I haven't them at hand. However, a very satisfactory substitute may be made with coffee cake from an up-to-date baker's shop, for the beloved "kuchen." If the baker will put sliced apples over the cake you will put sliced apples over the cake you will be in good "German" style when you serve it. They make a custard pie, either individual or in a regular pie tin, with canned cherries stirred through the custard. Seed cakes and nut cookies are also much in favor, and at all times coffee, in fact, last and between times, it is served. You may call the affair a "kaffee klatsch;" in other words, "coffee and chatter." Use the German flag and colors for decoration. The red, black and white is always effective and pretty lanterns may be made from frames of wire on pasteboard bottom and tops covered with paper strings alternating, black, red and white. Small steins filled with nuts or bonbons make appropriate souvenirs.

REPRESENTATIVE BIRTHDAY PARTY.

To add interest to a birthday party ask your guests to come in a costume representing some one whose birthday occurs in the month you give the party, or to wear something indicative of an event in the month. For instance, in the month of November, some one could represent a "topaz," one be a chrysanthemum, still another would be represented by "Thanksgiving," etc. There will be no dullness. For refreshments have a big birthday cake for the centerpiece, surrounded by a circle (made from a barrel hoop) filled with candies. Then for something different I would have scalloped oysters, in ramakins, minced ham and olive sandwiches, salted pistachio nuts, molasses kisses and maccaroos, ice cream. Cider and coffee to drink, with doughnuts for the men. I never knew a creature of the masculine persuasion who did not audibly express his pleasure at the sight of "fried holes," as a youngster of my acquaintance calls them. To add zest to the occasion you might offer a small prize for the costume or character harlest to guess.

The summoning of Parliament for November 21st means that before many weeks the country will know all that there is to know on the subject of the Borden Goverament's naval policy. The announcement of the date sufficiently answers Liberal predictions that the Government would seek and find some pretext for delaying the opening until the new year. Predictions of that sort have been freely circulated in opposition newspapers for some weeks, the wish being probably father to the thought. They have been circulated despite the definite declaration of the Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden in Montreal on September 21st, that Parliament would meet in the autumn. The statement of the Prime Minister should have settled, and with a majority of the people undoubtedly did settle, the question as to the readiness of the Government to meet the House. As a matter of fact there is every indication that the opening of the second session of the twelfth Parliament will find the Government's sessional agenda in an advanced stage of preparation so that no time will be lost in getting important legislation before Parliament. This means that there is to be a working session from the start, making possible a comparatively early prorogation consistent with the importance of the measures to be considered. The naval policy will of course be the principal matter for the consideration of the House. Recent developments substantiate the belief that that policy will be one worthy of the people of Canada, involving as one of its main features immediate and effective aid to the mother country, such aid to be given in a manner calculated to amply safeguard the status of Canada as a self-governing dominion within the Empire.

FASHION CRAFT SUITS MADE TO MEASURE.

Particular dressers are divided into two classes, those who buy clothes partly made up and those who must have their clothes made to measure. We are prepared to cater to both classes.

Numbers of men come into our store, having seen a suit which they admired in our window and say they would like to buy the suit, but cannot wear a partly made up suit of clothes.

When we show them the same material in the piece and tell them we can make a Fashion Craft suit to their order, they are surprised. When we go further than this and tell them that we positively guarantee the fit and style of every Fashion Craft suit we make up, they are still more surprised.

Among our assortment of suitings can be seen all the newest patterns in all the popular shades in worsteds, tweeds, vicunas, serges—designs and materials which appeal to the well dressed man.

The shops of Fashion Craft are owned by L. Achille Roy, in Quebec.

FAMOUS TORONTO ACTRESS DIES FROM CONSUMPTION

Toronto, Nov. 1—Miss Mabel Barrison, the clever Toronto actress, who won fame by her work in musical comedy and farce, died of consumption to-night at 7.45 o'clock after a long illness.

Miss Barrison was born in Toronto, her name being Eva Farrance. In her teens she was employed in a local publishing house, but having a taste for the stage she secured an engagement in chorus work. Her first big chance came when Julian Mitchell, the stage director, picked her out of the Weber-Fields chorus for an important part in "Babes in Toyland," in which she made a hit. She demonstrated her versatility by her creation of the title role in "The Blue Mouse," the author, Clyde Fitch, having selected her for the part. She appeared in many other musical comedy successes.

LIFEBOAT COUPLE ON CUPID'S CRAFT

Engagement of Miss Helen M. Newsom and Karl H. Behr is Announced by Grandmother.

New York, Oct. 30.—Two passengers on the Titanic when the liner sank last April, who were picked up by the Carpathia, will be married soon, it was announced last night. They are Miss Helen M. Newsom, daughter of Mrs. R. L. Beckwith of the Wendolyn, One Hundred street and Riverside Drive, and Karl H. Behr, crack tennis player.

The young couple and the bride's mother do not consider the engagement a "ship-wreck romance" or a Titanic love affair." Miss Newsom and Mr. Behr, all three said last night in Mrs. Beckwith's home, have known each other several years, and the love affair had been going on for some time before the disaster. Mr. Behr intimated last night that he thought the engagement would have come, wreck or no wreck, and Miss Newsom didn't deny it.

"Miss Newsom was a schoolmate and an intimate friend of my sister at Briarcliff," said Mr. Behr. "Oh, yes; we were on the steamer together and we were in the same lifeboat, as was natural, since we were all in the same party. It is also true that we were not engaged at the time."

Mr. and Mrs. Beckwith and Miss Newson had gone abroad for a six months trip and sailed on the Titanic from Liverpool. Mr. Behr joined them at Cherbourg, as he had arranged.

Found Ismay All Right.

The boat in which the Beckwiths, Miss Newsom and Mr. Behr were saved was one the launching of which had been directed by Bruce Ismay, managing director of the line. When the ship struck the iceberg Mr. Behr was undressing in his cabin on D deck. He ran to the bow of the boat on the lower deck, where were the staterooms of Miss Newsom and the Beckwiths. All then sought a lifeboat. The first one they found was full.

"When Mrs. Beckwith came to the second boat," said Mr. Behr after he had landed in New York, "and before she attempted to get in it, she asked whether the men could go with her. I heard Mr. Ismay reply, "Why certainly, madam." We were apparently the last passengers on the top deck. Our boat drifted around with others until nearly seven o'clock before we were taken on board the Carpathia."

Miss Newton is about twenty years old and Mr. Behr is not quite thirty. She is above the medium height, with dark hair and eyes. She is fond of outdoor sports. She was born in Columbus, O., which is Mrs. Beckwith's old home, and it was in Columbus that the first announcement of the engagement was made last evening by Mrs. William Monypeny, Miss Newsom's grandmother.

Father Was a Banker.

Miss Newsom's father was Logan C. Newsom, a leading banker in the Ohio city. She left Columbus before she made her debut in society, but is a frequent visitor there.

Mr. Behr is one of the best known tennis players in the country. He was graduated from Yale in 1905, and was regarded as one of the best all around athletes the university has produced. In 1905 he was ranked third in American tennis and played on the international team that went to England. He has kept up his tennis ever since and figured in many tournaments last summer. He defeated Raymond D. Little in the semi-finals for the Cedarhurst cup singles in June.

THE MARTYRS TO DIABETES.

There are hundreds of martyrs to diabetes walking the streets of our cities and towns. They are to be found in every walk of life. They will be found principally among the successful men, the men who have worked and eaten and drank, not wisely but too well, who, in the frenzied pursuit of success and wealth, have neglected to take proper rest and proper exercise. These men are daily suffering untold mental and physical agonies. They are paying the price of neglect and headlessness. They need their ability now more than ever, need to be fit and well. Instead, they are in the grip of the dread malady, Diabetes-mellitus.

While they are piling up their wealth or working indefatigably toward some goal of political or professional success, a scientist in far-off Germany was working in their behalf—working patiently, industriously to provide a means of saving for them their health, the greatest boon of life. He succeeded. They—the martyrs—may now enjoy the benefits of his research and work. He has given it to the world in the form of Sanol's Anti-Diabetes, (in the United States Expargo-Anti-Diabetes, which remedy has already made some wonderful cures in Winnipeg and other Canadian Cities. The makers have strong testimonials from residents of cities. A post-card will bring these addresses. The formula for this remedy has been secured for the exclusive use of the SANOL MANUFACTURING COMPANY OF CANADA LTD. 977 Main street, Winnipeg, Man. The remedy is for sale by John La Roche 735 St. Valier St. Price $2.00 per bottle.

After looking over the despatches, it will be noted that the Turk is no more unspeakable than his adversaries.

QUEBEC MUST EXPAND WESTWARD

IT is a well-known fact that every city moves westward in its aggrandisement or expansion. There's a "Lure of the West" or a something in the balmy western breeze that serves as a magnet to draw people towards it. The history of every city is the same in this respect.

From a residential point of view, the west is always superior to any other, if only from the fact that wind is mostly from the west in the best of the year, and the smoke from manufacturing establishments is carried in other directions and the atmosphere of the western section is always purified by the sweet, pure and uncontaminated breeze.

MONTCALM PARK is not only at the western extremity of Quebec, but its splendid position on the heights overlooking the picturesque St. Charles Valley makes the most healthful and the most beautiful residential section in or near Quebec.

MONTCALM PARK BUILDING LOTS

offer all city conveniences, including tramways, waterworks, drainage, electric light, telephone.

Wise purchasers with little capital have made fortunes in short order by investing early in new sections, and now is the time to buy lots in the MONTCALM PARK. Nothing can prevent these lots from greatly increasing in value within the next few years.

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured His Rheumatism

Prof. J. F. DAVIS
563 Church St., Toronto.

I want to say to the people of Toronto and elsewhere that "Fruit-a-tives" is my only medicine and has been for the last four years. Previous to that, I had been very much troubled with Rheumatism and Kidney Disease, and had taken many remedies as well as employing hot applications of salt bags, etc., without getting satisfactory results.

Noticing the advertisement of "Fruit-a-tives," I adopted this treatment altogether and, as everybody knows, since taking "Fruit-a-tives," I have been enjoying the very best health and find it a pleasure to follow my vocation of Dancing and Deportment Instruction."

Prof. Davis, the celebrated teacher of dancing and deportment in Toronto, is quite frank in stating that "Fruit-a-tives" alone cured him of distressing Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS

Curiosity about new and unusual music in America is often short-breathed at the start, and, when once it has been satisfied, it is prone to remain stationary. Having heard the music of Debussy, perhaps to repletion, and having heard, less frequently, the music of d'Indy, we believe ourselves sufficiently acquainted with the "new" and less academic Parisian composers. Round and round the programmes of the symphony orchestra go Debussy's Nocturnes, his "Afternoon of a Farm" and his "Iberia," while now and again d'Indy's symphonies or his "Istar" have their turn. We hear these pieces of the two composers who have changed the face of contemporary French music, believe we know the new aspect of it and heed scarcely at all the composers who have come after them. The other day, Debussy had a fiftieth birthday and last spring d'Indy was sixtyone years old. Being innovators they seem ever young; in fact they are middle-aged and more; and other and interesting juniors have succeeded them whose music is still almost unknown, in America — Florent Schmitt, for example. Deodat de Severac and the slightly elder Ravel.

By so much, then, it is a hopeful sign of the musical times that Mr. Damrosch has included Ravel's ballet suite, "Mother Goose," in the programmes of his symphony concerts in New York this season and that the Boston Opera House announces Ravel's little ballet, "Adelaide" among its possible productions for the winter. Now and then, too, the conductor of a choral society has heard of Schmitt's remarkable setting of the Forty-sixth Psalm, though, of course, he dares not yet propose it for actual performance. Similarly a few exploring singers are discovering Severac's songs and audiences may yet hear them. Though Severac has written oftener for the theatre than for the concert-room, there are orchestral pieces by Ravel and Schmitt that still await our conductors. It may be — as Dr. Muck, for example, contends—that these younger composers merely walk in the ways of their elders, and have little to say on their own account that is either original or sincere. But how are we to know the justice of this, or of opposing, judgement upon their music unless we hear it? Moreover, if they do only walk in the ways of their predecessors, it would be interesting to see just what gait they take. Besides, to add to this confusion, the "Debussyites" will lay their hands on their hearts and swear that Ravel has wandered far from the paths of Debussyan righteousness, while some of those who have heard Schmitt's or Severac's music are quite sure that it has an individuality of its own.

NEWS OF MUSIC.

Vitalizing Brahms.

Here and there in the biographies of Brahms, there is a hint that he thought the conductors of his own time took his music too literally. Hearing it now, as perchance he may in the Elysian fields, he cannot complain on that score of the succeeding generation. One and all, they are resolved that it shall sound with the largest voice and the most diversified eloquence that they can give it. The Variations on a Theme by Haydn are scored for the modest symphony orchestra of fifty years ago—two flutes, two oboes, two clarinets, two bassoons, four horns and so forth to the "usual strings." Now, at the Symphony Concerts of Friday and Saturday, Dr. Muck multiplied these instruments and often doubled them, until he had nearly the full orchestra playing the Variations. Precisely as he, or any other conductor, would augment the prescribed wind choir in a place by Beethoven, so he augmented it in a piece by Brahms—and with equal reason since Brahms practicaly used the orchestra that he inherited from Beethoven.

Thus, the Variations gained a wealth of warm, rich, full-bodied, yet adroitly modulated tone; the balance of the string and the wind parts was better preserved, the instrumental colors were more vivid and the whole piece waxed in musical vitality. Dr. Muck in turn "read" the Variations with a clearness of exposition that made them luminous; gave them every warrantable variety of expression in rhythm and modulation, contest and climax, found the one revealing pace for each; missed not the worth of a figure; and finally impressed upon them an eloquence of his own that made them seem not calculated musical mathematics, but uprising musical architecture. As with the "Eroica" a week before, it is hard to recall any such vivid performance here of these much-repeated Variations. Yet the audience took it as a matter of course. So soon has it become accustomed to the returned conductor.

Discovering the Guitar.

Out of Barcelona by way of Paris, a Spaniard has come to Boston who can mke the guitar sound as it never sounded before except to those who, by happy chance, have heard it similarly played in Spain. His name is Miguel Llobet; he has had both Spanish and French training; and he plays upon his music that Spanish composers of worth have written for it—music that glorifies folk-song and folk-dance and yet keeps the savor of them. On Saturday evening, he played his guitar before a little company in Mr. Caplet's room at the Opera House, and it became as another instrument to that which girls twang on moonlit verandas or longing pick in college dormitories. From it Mr. Llobet drew tones that had not a suggestion of wood and wire, that were beautifully soft, round and pellucid, that had light, shadow, glamor, that sounded sometimes like the aerial tones that Debussy seems to seek in his piano pieces. In such tones, Mr. Llobet played Spanish dances, with an instinctive and practised sense of modulation in pace and rythm that made them sound like new, strange, subtle and tingling things It was as though the shadows and the spirits of the dancers danced in the music, as they might on the smoky walls of the cafe. He played, too folk-songs of sad voice that could not be merry long and that ran in strange bitter-sweet harmonies. He had, also, his virtuoso piece. For as he proved, there is an idealizing virtuosity of the guitar.

Weingartner on "Parsifal"

Mr. Weingartner, who likes to write for the newspapers almost as well as he does to conduct and compose, has entered the controversy over the copyright of "Parsifal" in an article in the Neue Freie Presse of Vienna. While he admits Wagner's intermittent willingness to have the opera performed elsewhere than at Baireuth and makes his reservations about the performances, he yet favors a law that shall enable the Wagner family to retain exclusive possession of the music-drama. In the New York Tribune Mr. Krehbiel summarizes or quotes parts of Mr. Weingartner's article.

He points out very appositely that Wagner had in his hands the means to put his wish that "Parsifal" be reserved exclusively for Baireuth into effect, but did not embrace it. He needed only to refrain from publishing the score, and the drama would have forever been the private property of Wahnfried. Moreover, to emphasize the point that Wagner's expressed wishes are of no weight in the case, Mr. Weingartner says that the composer not only had contemplated giving performance rights of "Parsifal" to some theatres, but in the case of the Royal Opera House at Munich had actually done so. In spite of this, he favors a retention of the Baireuth monopoly, on the ground that only in the festival theatre is it possible to secure the proper mood for the enjoyment and appreciation of the opera.

It is the house itself which at the outset creates the mood which we can attain in no other theatre. As in a Catholic church, the silent incense smoke, trembling through the semi-darkened room, arouses in us the feelings which are essential to a devotional attendance on the divine service, so the sight of the Baireuth house, its situation, the memories of its creator, the consciousness of all the great things which were projected here and carried out, though only in part, fill us with a sort of devotional sympathy, which is intensified by the religious element and the conviction that the spaces of this house open to us something which is shut out from all the rest of the world.

I say all the rest of the world, despite the fact that an American treatre director with daring hand ventured to throw a stone into the fountain of Wagnerism and performed "Parsifal" on the other side of the ocean. But the waves created by this act were not strong enough to wash away the nimbus which attaches to Baireuth by reason of its exclusive possession of "Parsifal." The New York "Parsifal" had no effect either externally or internally. It was an event, a sensation, like many others, but not a vital experience. On the stage of the Metropolitan the pure fool who is so willingly accepted in Baireuth could not compel belief. In the third act, by far the most beautiful in the opera, in which we might almost believe luminous strands from Beethoven's last quarters are woven into the music, there was a disturbing want of that intimacy which is so essential to this act, and which cannot be attained in lrge opera houses built for spectacular operas and ballets. At the end it became tiresome. But even if the New York performance had been better than it was it could not have been the Baireuth "Parsifal".

Damning the Dying.

Leoncavallo and Mascagni belong to that most horrible form of the past—a past tht has not yet become a part of the old oldworld, the genuine old-world. They have no suspicion that they are out-played and outdone and relegated to the realms of dead things; but we who belong to the living generation understand that they do; and the hungry generation which is arising under our feet to hurl us down will not so much as stop to consider them. Except in the most brilliant epochs, its growing epochs, the really virile artists have had to hark back to the predecessors. When the life threatened to die completely out of German music. Wagner had to re-base his art on Weber. Now neither Leoncavallo nor Mascagni has any primitive inspiration: both are copyists nd neither copies anything worth the copying. They copy the popular features of Verdi and of no one but Verdi. Not one note in their scores that has the slightest value does not come from Verdi. They dished it up with fresh decorations and the imitations were successful at first with the populace; but when they tried the game again the populace did not respond.

Items of the Day.

Albert Epalding, the violinist, who is to make a European tour during the winter and the spring, took leave of his public in New York, yesterday afternoon, in the first recital of the season. In the course of it, he played five little pieces of his own composing and the reviewer for the Times says that "they showed a more or less graceful fancy, intelligence in exploiting the technique of the violin, some swill in the treatment of diminutive musical ideas; but also a prevailing restlessness of harmony. They did not seem to indicate that Mr. Sparling had anything musical of much significance to say for its own sake.

Mr. Zenatello and Mme. Gay are expected in New York at the middle of the week. They will sing first with Mr. Dippel's company in Philadelphia and Chicago, returning to the Boston Opera House soon after the season has begun there. In November, also, they are to appear in concert in Worcester—their first joint venture of the kind hereabouts. Mr. Zenatello as a concert-singer is not easy to imagine.

Georg Henschel has abandoned the series of song recitals that he was to undertake in America next winter. The strain of such a tour and many engagements in England are the ostensible reasons for this change of purpose. As probably, he and his managers have discovered that he is little known to the newer musical generation in America and that it would be difficult to stir public curiosity about him. As it happens, on the last day of this month, Mr. Henschel as pianist, singer and conductor, will have been on the stage for fifty years.

The American venture with the performance of Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah," as an opera will begin in Pittsfield on Rriray. In general the representation will copy that which the Moody-Manners company arranged in England last winter. The principal singers will be Mr. Gwilym Miles for the part of Elijah and Mme. Esther Adalberto for that of the Widow. Here is the division into acts and scenes:

Act. I. Scene 1—Plain of Gilead. Scene 2—Cherith Brook. Scene 3—The Widow's House in Zarepath.

Act. II. The Temple of Baal and the Ruin of the Israelites' Temple.

Act III. Scene 1—The Edge of the Wilderness of Beersheba, a city in the distance. Scene 2—Elijah Translated in a Chariot of Fire.

TO CLEAN A WHITE FELT HAT

To clean a white felt hat, take common lump starch and enough water to make it the consistency of thick cream and after brushing out all the dust, brush it on the hat until well covered; an old tooth brush is fine for the purpose, and leave in the sun until thoroughly dry, then brush it off with a stiff brush and the hat will be clean and white. For a light blue felt color, make the starch the same shade as the hat with blueing and it will look lovely.

FEMININE FANCY

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

The white of an egg beaten stiff and stirred thick with salt is a good remedy for a sprain. Bind on to the affected part and renew as often as it becomes dry. It works like a charm.

An envelope pasted in the cover of a cook book makes a very handy device for keeping loose recipes.

Ordinary wire clothes-hangers covered with raffia put on in button-hole stich are very dainty. The raffia prevents rust on delicate material, which is sometimes the case with metal hangers.

A "CAMPHORATED" COLD CREAM

Another preparation for chapped lips, especially is made by dissolving a very little, say a sixteenth of an ounce, of the best isinglass in 3 ounces of rosewater, which should be warm. When entirely dissolved, strain and ste aside in a covered bowl for twenty-four hours; then add a quarter of an ounce of camphorated oil, to be had at any drug store, and three-quarters of an ounce of glycerin. When this is poured into porcelain jars, it hardens, and becomes an "ice" that, rubbed over chapped lips, both before going out and after coming in, will cure them.

The lips should not be bitten when November's winds are keen; they become rough, then sore, and nobody can be called beautiful with dry, scaly, rough and swollen lips; they should be as smooth as the skin on the face.

Almost any woman should be able to procure every one of the few ingredients I have mentioned; a druggist must make his living, and does so by adding the cost of his time in preparing these soothing remedies. If glycerine seems to burn, remember to use a very little, even a quarter of what is given in these formulas. Pure glycerine will burn like a coal of fire and wrinkle any skin, but added properly it is one of the most healing of all ingredients, and never harms the tenderest skin. If a woman keeps a bottle of glycerin, pours some in palms and rubs into her face and hands, she may expect wrinkles, a drawn, scaled sensation, almost a burn to follow. Add three times the quantity of rose water that you have glycerin and the skin becomes smooth, cured of dryness and scaliness and is healed. Common sense is a rare commodity, and it is needed in using cosmetics of any kind, even the simplest.

TO MAKE OLD RIBBONS LOOK LIKE NEW.

To begin with, the ribbons to be washed must be of good quality. Cheap ribbons fade even before they are washed, but good ribbons can be washed many times and still look fresh and new. With good, pure soap prepare a basinful of warm suds and place in it all the ribbons of one color. When they have soaked for 15 minutes remove and spread them, piece by piece, flat on a smooth surface. Then with a soft brush (an old nail brush will do) rub until all the streaks and spots disappear. A little cooking soda will help to remove the obstinate stains. Rinse out the soda-suds in clear, warm water. Do not wring the ribbons as you would handkerchiefs, but fold them smoothly and press them between the hands until you get out as much water as possible. If you desire, the ribbons to be stiff as when new, put a few drops of vinegar in the rincing water. Have the ironing board ready; spread the ribbons between two towels and press with a moderately hot iron until thoroughly dry. This method will be found excellent with satin, taffeta, peau de soie, gros-grain, Liberty silk, miroir velevt and other ribbons—except silk velvet. Silk velvet should be merely dampdeen—not soaked—and run quickly back and forth over the face of a hot iron, (silk side next to the iron) until dry. With a clothesbrush, brush up the face of the ribbon gently but thoroughly and the old velvet ribbon will be restored to its original condition. Creased silk ribbons may be restored by being laid evenly on a board and dampened with a very clean sponge. Then roll them smoothly and tightly on a ribbon block, of greater breadth than the ribbon, and let them remain until dry. Riddon and other silks should be put away for preservation in brown paper; the chloride of lime used in the manufacture of white paper frequently produces discoloration. White satin should be pinned in blue paper with brown paper outside sewed together at the edges.

The dainty lace and net jabots which form part of most lingerie waists should be squeezed through a lather of pure white soap and hot water and rinsed in milk. Iron on the wrong side on thick flannel. To give a creamy tone, add a little tea to the milk.

ALGONQUIN PARK A WINTER RESORT

Famous Playground on the Grand Trunk Is Rival Of Switzerland.

With Switzerland Canada is taking its rightful place as the Winter playground of the nations. One of the most popular districts where unrivaled opportunities are found for healthful sport and where an invigorating atmosphere may be enjoyed is the Algonquin National Park of Ontario. In summer it is the stamping ground of the angler, camper and tourist, and its pre-eminence as a fishing ground has been conceded, but with the first frost of Autumn the camper and angler have stored their tents, their rods and their canoes and the lovers of Winter sport follow in the footsteps of the summer visitors and take possession of "The Highland Inn," the well run and comfortable hotel at Algonquin Park Station that offers splendid accommodation at reasonable rates.

Algonquin Park is at an altitude of 2,000 feet above sea level, is reached over the Ottawa Division of the Grand Trunk Railway System, is about 200 miles north of Toronto, and 175 miles west of Ottawa. The Winter rates at "The Highland Inn" are $14.00 to $16.00 per week, and the several attractions of the Park in Winter are depicted in a handsome booklet entitled "Winter in Ontario's Highland Heritage," copies of which may be had free by addressing a postal card to Wm. Gall, Manager, "Highland Inn," Algonquin Park Station, Ont.

WHEN IRELAND HAD COMMERCE AND CULTURE

In view of the Home Rule struggle now going on in Great Britain the following extract is suggestive. I take it from "The Life of Oliver Goldsmith," by Frank Frankfort Moore:

"It is difficult for people nowadays to form a picture of the condition of Ireland pervious to the conquest by England as it is for them to appreciate the glories of the early Italian republics from a casual visit to the chief cities of to-day. And, curiously enough, it is among the archives of these places of splendid decay, rather than those of England, that one must search for confirmation of the vague traditions of the place Ireland occupied in the enterprises of civilization.

"English historians have been long in crediting the stories of Ireland's brilliant past, but that was only because they failed to look in the right direction for such records as would have enabled them to correct some of their misstatements. It is now beyond the region of surmise that up to the fourteenth century the trade of Ireland with foreign countries was very great. Her splendid harbors were crowded with ships, and her products were exchanged for those of France, Spain, Italy and the Netherlands.

"In several of the chief towns, especially in the seaports, abundant traces remain of the advanced civilization of the inhabitants of Ireland and of their connection with European culture. It could scarcely have been otherwise. The island had a language and a literature of its own, as well as a definite school of art, a school of music and a school of poetry. Thus it occupied a place of distinction in the estimation of other centres of high culture.

"It has never, we think, been made quite plain that it was the wealth of Ireland that first attracted the attention of England. I was regarded in early Tudor times, when the spirit of adventure was rife, as a sort of El Dorado—one that was within easy reach of English ships.

"The spirit of adventure was the spirit of plunder, and there never was a time when robbery outside of the boundary of one's own country was so universally regarded as praiseworthy. Spain had been plundering in America for more than a hundred years and England had organized expeditions for the plundering of the plunderers.

"Unless one has been made aware of the wealth of Ireland on is quite incapable of understanding why England should have taken so much trouble to conquer the island and keep the people in a condition of subjection. If Ireland had been a poor country, or if her industry and enterprise had not been regarded as a serious menace to English trade, it is certain that England would not have taken the enormous trouble she did to get a footing on the island, and to maintain that fothold. Unfortunately, however, her rulers thought that the only sure foothold that could be found was on the necks of the people, and the result was, as is well known deplorable.

"If both nations had recognized the fact that a strong alliance on terms of perfert equality would be of mutual advantage, stimulating industry and correrce on both sides of the channel, the result would have been to make a rival in importance in the world. Unhappily, however, there seemed to be no desire on either side to accept the possibility of the existence of any other relationship between them than that of invaders and invaded.

"The story of the years that intervened between the earliest attempt to subjugate the Irish and the beginning of the nineteenth century is the most wretched that was ever written by the sword of an invader with the heart-blood of the invaded. Massacres were followed by retaliating slaughters of men, women and children: and the best families of the Irish were expatriated, finding in France, Spain and America a welcome, and living to take part with them in the old fight against England. Those who remained in Ireland were subjected to such acts of injustice as would be incredible were they not fully authenticated by reference to the statute books of many reigns.

"The incidents of their oppressions after a time came to be accepted by the people as the natural order of things; but the taking of such a view of matters marks their degeneracy."

BROWN BREAD.

One pint each of rye or graham and Indian meal, one cup molasses, three-fourths cup of sour milk, one and one-half teaspoons soda, one and one-half pints cold water. Put on stove over cold water (all brown breads are better when put on to steam over cold water), which is afterwards brought to the boiling point and kept constantly boiling until bread is done; steam four hours and brown over in the oven.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES.

Hartshorn will restore colors taken out by acids.

Clean brass kettles with salt and vinegar.

Polish steel knives and forks with powdered brick dust or charcoal.

Rub flat irons on a board covered with fine salt to make them smooth.

Fresh cut grass scattered over carpets before sweeping will make them look bright as new.

Clean oilcloth with lukewarm water and a soft rag; never use hot water or soap.

Wipe straw matting with a cloth dipped in salt, then wipe dry.

Pour boiling water through cloth to remove tea or fruit stains.

To remove ink stains from clothing wet the spot with sour milk or rub with a piece of lemon and salt.

A tablespoonful of turpentine boiled with clothes will greatly aid the whitening process.

Kerosene will soften boots and shoes that have been wet.

Cold rain water and soap will remove machine oil from wash goods.

Use kerosene to clean porcelain bath-tubs.

To clean willow furniture scrub with strong salt water and dry in the sun.

Cut flowers may be preserved for two weeks by putting a tablespoonful of powdered charcoal in a glass of water, then place the flowers in the glass so their lower edges are submerged in the liquid. Another method is to put a little saltpetre or carbonate of such in the water.

An anti-rub laundry process—Take 2 oz. spirits of turpentine and mix well with 1-4 oz. spirits of sal ammoniac. Put the mixture into a tub half full of warm water, in which 8 oz. best hard soap has been dissolved. In this the clothes are immersed at night, and the next morning rinsed. The dirtiest clothes will be found free from dirt. They last much longer, as no rubbing is necessary, and half the labor is saved.

Broken china may be mended by brushing the edges with white lead used by painters. Press the pieces together and tie them in place, then set aside two or three days and dry, and the articles will not again break in the same place, and water will not effect it.

To tighten cane chair bottoms—Turn the chair bottom upward and sponge the cane thoroughly with hot water until it is well soaked; should it be dirty use a little soap. Let it dry in the air and it will be as tight and firm as when new.

As a substitute for cream—Beat three eggs to a stiff froth; gradually pour over them boiling hot tea until the thickness of cream is obtained.

RED CROSS SOCIETY OF JAPAN

According to the Oriental Review the Red Cross Society of Japan is not only one of the largest but one of the best organized of the Red Cross societies in the world. It has a membership of 1,500,000, its property is estimated to be worth $1,500,000 and its annual income is $500,000.

The society, as is well known, found it possible to render really remarkable service in the relief of the ill and wounded of the opposing forces during the Chino-Japanese and Russo-Japanese wars. With the increase of its power and influence in those times, it immediately began to extend its acitvities to relief work of an international nature.

During the Boxer troubles in North China its hospital ships and reserve hospitals took care of the ill and wounded of the allied forces, and it easily won the approbation of the Powers for the excellence of its work. In the recent revolutionary outbreaks in China it sent relief corps to Hankow, China, and attended to 5000 of the ill and wounded. In the absence of an effective Red Cross organization in China the work done by the Japanese earned the genuine appreciation of the Chinese people.

At the time of the San Francisco earthquake it contributed 400,000 yen (about $200,000) to the relief fund, and at the time of the earthquake in Italy 414,000 lira ($103,000).

The most remarkable feature of the activities of the Red Cross Society stress and trouble. In a way this is keeping up the efficiency of the so of Japan, however, is undoubtedly in its relief work in time of peace. It has local stations or sections all over the country, and each does an enormous amount of relief work in time of ciety's medical staff and nurses for the more serious business of war.

The Keenest Edges Ever Made

GILLETTE
Safety Razor Blades

Office and Factory:
The New Gillette Bldg., Montreal.

Poets have sung and historians told of the razor-edged blades of Damascus steel with which men used to carve each other.

Those were wonderful products of the steel-worker's art—for the time and generation. But modern Science knows where those men guessed, and its keenest products, carry edges uniformly sharper and harder than the best the old steel-workers turned out.

Every piece of steel from which Gillette blades are made has to come up to a carefully-worked-out chemical analysis, so searching that any defect is quickly detected.

Then each paper-thin blade is hardened through and through by electricity, at a temperature regulated to a fraction of a degree, giving an even, perfectly hardened metal that hand-forging and rule-of-thumb methods could never equal.

At your Druggist's, Jeweler's or Hardware Dealer's, buy a Gillette — you'll enjoy its lasting keenness. Standard Sets $5.00— Pocket Editions $5.00 to $6.00—Combination Sets $6.50 up.

Is Alcoholism A Disease Or A Poisoning

Old Theories vs. Modern Methods

THE OLD WAY

"The unfortunate victim of alcoholic drink is treated in this age much as the poor classes were in the time when men were imprisoned for debt. In those days financial disability was dealt with as a moral crime, and the victim thereof suffered odium as well as misfortune. As time went on the world became convinced that the insolvent man was being made worse by the treatment instead of being given a chance for recovery, and imprisonment or debt was abolished.

There are indications that we are coming to the same way of treating the victims of alcohol in modern times—that is, as a patient instead of a criminal. In Quebec we have a hospital for the treatment of drunkards, where they can have the benefits of the most advanced scientific treatment, such as is given to sufferers from other diseases. As it is now, the wretched drunkard gets no consideration from the public except to be cursed and thrown into jail, and then liberated to get drunk again.

"The drunkard is a victim of disease, as much as the consumptive, and his case is curable like that of the consumptive. The way to cure it and confer great benefit on society, is to give him the advantage of modern scientific knowledge in such hospitals as the Neal Institute, 11 Haldimand St., Quebec."

THE NEW WAY

The old methods of treating alcoholism or the drink habit is only resorted to by those who have not taken the trouble to investigate the modern method.

It has been demonstrated and proven beyond all question that alcoholism can be perfectly cured in three days' time and that the old method of treating it as a disease was little in advance of the "putting them in jail" treatment.

Dr. B. E. Neal, a recognized authority on the treatment of alcoholism, in his statement to physicians, says :

"I have devoted a great many years to study of Inebrity, and based upon the result of my theoretical study and practical, clinical investigation, I claim alcoholism is not a disease, but a poisoning, and that by a treatment of neutralization and elimination, alcoholic patients can be restored to a normal condition, so far as the effects of alcohol are concerned, IN THREE DAYS' TIME. I do not claim that the prolonged and excessive use of alcohol will not cause pathological changes in various organs, but I do claim that fully ninety per cent of drinking men are comparatively healthy and that when the poisonous effect of alcohol is neutralized and perfect elimination secured, they will in all probability live just as long and as comfortably as men who have not drunk to excess!"

The City Officials of Quebec would do well to call at the Quebec Hospital, 11 Haldimand St., and observe the work being done there in the curing of patients afflicted with alcoholism, by THE ORIGINAL NEAL THREE DAY CURE. A thorough investigation will undoubtedly result in their being convinced that they already have a place for the proper treatment of alcoholic patients.

STOMACH SOUR? GOT INDIGESTION ALSO

Pape's Diapepsin" will make your disordered stomach feel fine in five minutes. Time It!

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only fifty cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases, then you will understand why dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for indigestion or gastritis or any other stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion.

OLD RECORDS OF CANADA'S HISTORY

Manuscript Commission Now Doing Important Work Under Direction of Secretary.

How Dr. Roche has been taking a keen interest in the archives since the transfer of this branch to the department of Secretary of State where it properly belongs. Just whf it was ever kept by the old government under the Minister of Agriculture was always a mystery, and its connection with farming was never explained. Dr. Roche has personally interested himself in the work of the archives and the collecting of valuable historical documents and manuscript. He found that several years ago a manuscript commission was formed, consisting of members from various parts of Canada to assist and advise the minister and Dr. Doughty, the archivist. This commission had practically never been called together and no use had been made of its services. The Minister re-organized the commission and added to it a number of well-known historian students.

First Meeting.

The first meeting was called last week and a systematic campaign to gather early Canadian documents of interest to students was inaugurated. The commission also authorized the publication of a valuable volume of a thousand pages containing the records of all early legislation in Western Canada. This promises to be the most valuable publication of an historical kind in Canada for years. Prof. Oliver of Saskatchewan University has been at work for two years collecting the records and he has discovered many documents which were long thought to have been lost. The commission also authorized the publication of a catalogue of all western documents and another catalogue of the 10,000 maps in the archives.

The work of this commission in collecting and arranging Canadian historical records promises to be of great benefit in marking out the earlier stages of development in various parts of the Dominion.

THE FIRST SCHOOLMASTER.

It was one thousand one hundred and eight years ago that Alcuin, the first schoolmaster, finished his earthly course—October 30, 804. Quietly, as the grape comes to the vine or the light to the morning, the grand old man did his wonderful work and lay down to sleep with his fathers.

It was a great work that the old Yorkshire schoolmaster did—a work that has been growing ever since he began it, more than eleven centuries ago, that is to keep on along its grand, victorious way until the superstition and ignorance that are the fruitful mothers of most of our evils are quite banished from the earth.

When Alcuin began his self-imposed task as educator all Europe lay in densest mental darkness. It was only here and there that a person was to be found who could read and write. The masses of the people in all lands were brutally illiterate, as ignorant of the past as so many sheep, and, saving their immediate surroundings, of contemporary events also. The "glory which was Greece and the grandeur which was Rome" had passed away, and in the intellectual midnight which followed their departure all memory of them was lost sight of.

Alcuin resolved to put the entering wedge into the great black, appalling mass of ignorance. He had no desire to found a great house, much less to become a prince or potentate in state or church; he cared nothing for money, of fame, or courtly honors; he simply hoped to become the means of spreading knowledge among men. Like Abou Ben Adhem, he loved his fellowmen, pitied them in their ignorance, deplored the degradation that the ignorance fostered, and with as fine an ambition as ever stirred the heart he said: "I will do what I can to help them."

With the determination that never wavered, Alcuin buckled down to his mighty task, and kept at it till he died, at the age of sixty-nine, having fought one of the hardest battles and won one of the most glorious victories on record. Many of the founders of great houses are forgotten, many who become great in church and state are sleeping in oblivion, but Alcuin's work and Alcuin's name are immortal.

Charlemagne—one of the greatest of men—heard about the Yorkshire school teach and invited him to take up his residence at his court and become his preceptor. He did so, and the result was the "school in the palace," the starting point of the intellectual enlightenment of France. One of the highest authorities in literature says: "France is indebted to Alcuin for all the polite learning it boasted of in that and the following ages."

The famous school established by the Englishman at Tours became the Mecca of the seekers after wisdom from all over Europe. Light went out from it into all the dark corners of the kingdom, and the passion for knowledge which the master created bore its benign fruits upon every hand.

The same high authority just referred to assures us that the universities of Paris, Tours, Fudden, Soissons and many others, owe to Alcuin their origin and increase; those of which he was not the founder being at least enlightened by his teachings and enrich by the benefits he secured for them from Charlemagne.

Right up to the year 804 did the old crusader againts ignorance keep up his battle, and when, in the Fall of that year, he reached the end of his work it was not without the satisfaction of knowing that he had not toiled in vain.

The dark midnight gloom had passed and the morning was at hand. He saw its radiance all round him. Knowledge was born, and Alcuin knew that, once born, knowledge would grow until her uplifting influence filled the world.

UNIQUE HAIR FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

Did you ever hear of a "spool" party? Well, I must tell you what a good time the dozen youngsters recently had who received invitations to spend the afternoon from "3 to 5" with a 6-year-old hostess. The oldest guest was 9, and she proved quite a little help in assisting the younger children. For months this mother had been saving spools and begging them of her friends for this occasion.

First, quaint dolls were made of the larger spools by cutting a slit for a cardboard nose, painting in eyes, nose and mouth with black paint (ink will do); little sticks or toothpicks made the arms, inserted in slits cut with a penknife, and hands were easily molded from chewing gum.

It takes only a few deft turns to complete a doll, and the children are intensely interested in their construction.

Next make a bowling alley out of an ironing board slightly elevated at one end, the other resting on the floor. Give each child an equal number of marbles, arrange spools at the foot of the board like tenpins and proceed to see who wins. This is great fun. Provide needles with large eyes, a spool of colored cotton twine, and have a spool-stringing contest, with a little favor for the one making the best time.

Serve the refreshments at 4.30, so the guests will all be home by 6. Miniature spool candy boxes may be purchased at the favor counter; fill with sugar peppermints to be taken home as souvenirs. Now save all your spools, you mothers who want something new for a party.

C. P. R. APPRENTICE COMPETITIVE EXAMS.

The C.P.R. Angus shops apprentices have passed the competitive examination for the five International Correspondence School Scholarships, given by the C.P.R. Company. The winners are Emile R. Laporte, Royden A. Smith, Oswald Christenson, Nelson Garfield Coxon, and Jaseph McHugh, of Montreal. Apprentices are eligible for the above competition after attending school for three years or thereabouts at the Angus shops, during which time they attend four hours per week in the company's time and are required to pass a competitive examination. The first five best secure a scholarship and are allowed to attend school for two years more until the completion of their apprenticeship, during which time they are helped to master the most difficult subject of their courses, whilst the others who are not fortunatae in the examination stay in the shop until they finish their apprenticeship. Apprentices in the shops are taught by competent instructors the best and quickest way to do each class of work in order to keep up the shop output. In the instruction room the apprentices are taught on the line of work they follow by competent teachers in the different trades. During the winter months evening classes are held for everyone who wishes to attend. The attendance for last year was remarkably good, and excellent results were obtained. The teachers for the above evening classes are supported by the Council of Arts and Manufacturers. The apprentice system at Angus shops comes directly under Mr. Lacey R. Johnson, General Superintendent of Angus shops, who never hesitates to approve anything in favor of apprentice education.

A SWEEPING HINT.

When sweeping a room open the windows and sweep toward the centre of the room. This prevents dust from settling on the woodwork and the walls do not get so dusty as they otherwise would.

To lessen dust when sweeping soak some newspapers in water, wring them and tear in small pieces, then scatter about the floor and as you sweep the dust adheres to the paper instead of flying about all over the furniture. I think this is better than tea leaves.

Buttons are used so much now as trimming or ornament that a pretty way to sew them on when they are not to button is to adopt some design which covers the edges. I use rope silk, the color to match the dress or some lontrasting color. You want a button with four holes. These look like an embroidered button, unless carefully examined and are much prettier than when sewed on the ordinary way; and however large the button it has to lay perfectly flat to the goods.

MISS MABEL BARRISON HOLDING HER OWN

Toronto, Nov. 1.—Miss Mabel Barrison, the Canadian actress whose death from tuberculosis has been momentarily expected for over a week, has shown a slight improvement. Her husband, who was called here from Chicago last Friday, has left to rejoin his theatrical company. Although her physicians abandoned hope for Miss Barrison on Thursday of last week and said that her death was only a matter of hours, she is making a gallant fight for life, and although she took no nourishment from Tuesday to Thursday of this week, on Wednesday she expressed a desire to get up and dress. Rumors of her death published in the United States have caused great embarrassment to her family, as a deluge of telegrams of enquiry and premature condolences from prominent stage people have today reached the house where Miss Barrison is lying ill. Although still in a critical condition, the slight improvement manifested gives rise to hopes of further prolonging her life.

WEEK STOMACHS

Need New, Rich Blood to Restore Them to a Healthy Condition.

Actually in need of food to nourish the body and yet afraid to eat because of the racking pains that follow. That is the condition of the sufferer from indigestion—a choice between starvation or merciless torture.

The urgent need of all dyspeptics, of everybody whose organs of digestion have become unfit to perform their important duty, is for stronger stomachs that can extract nourishment from food. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills give weak stomachs just the strength they need by enriching the blood supply, thus giving tone and strength to the stomach and its nerves, and enabling it to do the work nature intended it to do. Thousands of cases of indigestion have been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, of which the following is but one instance. Miss L. A. Brown, Port Albert, Ont., says: "For a number of years I was a terrible sufferer from indigestion, and as a result I became completely run down, and suffered from backaches and nervous troubles as well. I had to force myself to eat, but never enjoyed a meal owing to the awful pains that followed eating. Life was becoming a burden, and as medicine after medicine failed to help me I felt I was doomed to go through life a constant sufferer. Finally a married sister strongly urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have reason to be thankful that I followed her advice, as they have fully restored my health, and I can now enjoy all kinds of food without the least discomfort, and my friends say I am looking better than I have done for years. At all events I know I feel like a new person, so shall always praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HELVETIA MORE IN FAULT.

London, Nov. 1.—The president of the Admiralty Court gave judgment yesterday in an action arising out of the collision in the St. Lawrance on July 27 last between the C. P. R. liner Empress of Britain and the collier Helvetia, as a result of which the latter was sunk and the Empress of Britain severely damaged. He found that while both vessels were to blame, the principal fault lay with the Helvetia, the owners of which must pay seven-twelfths of the damages.

BRIGHT TID BITS OF NEWS FLASHED ACROSS THE SEA

ONE ENGLISH WOMAN WHO HAS HER OWN WAY OFTEN.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

COINCIDING with the imprisonment of Mr. Mark Wilks, the Clapton schoolmaster, for refusing to be held responsible for his wife's taxes comes the story of how a woman scientist outwitted Somerset House and the British Museum on exactly the same point.

Dr. Marie Stopes, who, though married to Mr. Reginald R. Gates, retains her maiden name a little time ago did some special work for the British Museum, and in settling her account for £75 the paymaster there, acting also as income tax collector, deducted the tax, which for "earned increment" is equivalent to about four cents off the dollar. Dr. Stopes was indignant and returned the draft, insisting on payment in full. Then there was a wait and an attempt to interview her. A new draft was sent after a time, but now a tax of six cents off the dollar was deducted. Dr. Stopes then began to cause trouble, and eventually the officials said the claim for reimbursement should be made by her husband.

Dr. Stopes' next move was to threaten to sue the museum for the return of the deducted tax. Somerset House then called to talk it over. An amusing interview followed from Dr. Stopes' point of view, and the harassed officials eventually promised to end the matter by sending the deducted money to her husband. Then Dr. Stopes called in Mr. Lloyd-George, writing a somewhat pointed letter to the Chancellor, with the result that the repayment to husband idea was dropped and the deducted money was sent to Dr. Stopes herself, to the great joy of the entire militant section, who had eagerly watched the fight.

One of the most remarkable changes of the day, by the way, is the attitude of women toward women, and in no place is it more noticeable than in London 'buses. In these times the "man in the street" rarely gives up his seat to a woman, and women—though they have no right—resent it. It hurts their pride, for one thing. But in certain circumstances another woman always comes to the rescue, and if the newcomer into a crowded 'bus is elderly or carries a burden the most fashionable woman will jump up and give her her place.

Lady Constance Lytton was one of the first to start this idea of chivalry from one woman to another, having spoken much on the subject. The woman defined as "catty" is almost non-existent, even at women's clubs, where she was rampant a few years ago. If the suffragists have done nothing else they have inspired an esprit de corps which is having some good effect among their sex.

WEDDING IN THE HAND IS WORTH MANY A PROMISE.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

"FIRST she would, and then she wouldn't," an old vaudeville ditty, which was the rage of London some thirty years ago, might well be made the title of a little drama in real life that was played at Dungiven, Londonderry, the other day.

A young man was seeing his bride off from the railway station on her way to America, where he promised to join her in a month, when another young man was observed dragging her baggage from the guard's van. Asked what he meant, he appealed to the girl not to go to America and he would marry her immediately. The other young man got angry at that and bundled the boxes back into the train, while his rival as quickly dragged them out again.

The girl was in a quandary what to do, and "You'll have no luck if you go away" from the rival swain settled the matter. She decided not to go, and get married immediately rather than chance the American wedding next month.

The brother of the girl, who was accompanying her, sympathized with the disappointed bridegroom, who now was in tears and said he could not go to America, because "I don't know the way," he said.

There was an immediate wedding, amid tremendous rejoicing in Dungiven, and all the muzzle loading guns in the town were brought out and fired incessantly.

BOXING PARSON OF WALES IS PROUD OF HIS PROWESS.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

"GALLANT little Wales" is proud of her octogenarian boxing parson, the Rev. John Gower, rector of Trefriw, Carnarvonshire, who has just turned his eighty-second year, and yet retains all the vigor of youth. It is his boast that it is due to his practice of boxing and wrestling that he has retained his health, strength and activity to such an old age.

Preaching on his birthday, he took as his text Jacob's declaration while wrestling with the angel, "I will not let thee go until thou bless me."

"I have wrestled with thousands of strong men," he said, "and vanquished them all. Indeed, I never met my match, except in my two brothers, with whom I brought off draws."

He added that he was still an expert boxer and well able to defend himself. "The first thing I did on entering Chester College was to knock out the champion boxer there, a feat I repeated when I entered Oxford University." In fact, the old boxing parson claims never to have been beaten with the gloves.

"It is wicked of parents," he concluded, "to consider sport sinful. Every boy should learn to wrestle, box and swim, and every girl should know how to swim."

"DOWN WITH QUARANTINE" THE CRY OF ALL THE DOG LOVERS OF ENGLAND

MRS PELHAM-CLINTON

HOLLAND BUCKLEY ESQ

Lady de Bathe's Campaign to Regulate Restrictions Bearing Good Fruit.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

A CAMPAIGN in favor of the relaxation of the Board of Agriculture's quarantine regulations, which Lady de Bathe, before leaving for America, said she hoped would be started in England, finds favor with all English dog lovers.

Interviews which your correspondent has had with many of them show that while nearly all agree the rules have done good, many are of the opinion that they should be less stringent, while some would like to see them abolished. One of the latter is Rear Admiral Charles H. Bayley, owner of the magnificent speciment of the bloodhound breed Ch. Mary of Burgundy.

"Down with quarantine!" said the Rear Admiral, in his bluff, sailorly way. "I agree with everything Lady de Bathe has said. The whole system is utter rot."

He then proceeded to give his own experiences with what he described "the red tape of the quarantine."

"In February, 1900, I took command of H. M. S. Monarch at the Cape of Good Hope. I took out two dogs with me, and they were passed after being inspected by a veterinary surgeon. Two years later I brought them and a Kaffir hound home, and they were put into six months' quarantine, although they came from a country where hydrophobia is unknown.

"I managed to get them out after three months with a polite letter informing me that if I took them out of England again they would not be allowed to return.

HORSES QUARANTINED.

"Again, when serving on board the Nelson, the flagship in Australia, the Admiral, in 1888, took two horses from Sydney, in Australia, to Auckland, in New Zealand, where his wife was spending the summer. On arrival they were hoisted out, and directly afterward a man came on board and said he had met the two horses and a dog going up to Government House, and had put them in quarantine.

"I told him he had better see the Admiral, as they belonged to him. The Admiral soon settled the business by telling him if they were not taken out of quarantine at once he would take his squadron of six ships away and would not return. That meant a great loss to the town, and so they were at once released.

"But I think a still worse case happened when the Nelson returned to England. We had on board a pet sheep that had left England with us four and a half years before, and so had served the whole commission with us. A good home was awaiting it, but we were not allowed to land it at Chatham and had to kill it."

Holland Buckley, whose strain of Clonmell terriers is known all over the world, expressed his views of the Board of Agriculture's rules.

"I regard the quarantine as monstrous and the period as ridiculous," he said. I was in thorough agreement with the regulations when first imposed, but to keep these arbitrary provisions still running when the need has passed away is utterly fatuous and presses most hardly upon the law-abiding person whose tender scruples will not allow any infraction of any laws, no matter how unjust.

"But there are very many others who laugh at the regulations, and import dogs by the hundreds by means of the gentle dope at the port before landing.

"Other means are also employed, such as the provision of cheap understudies for the quarantined animal at the appointed place.

"Any law which can be made inoperative should either be altered or wiped off the slate altogether. I personally advocate the veterinary inspection of all landed dogs at their owners' place for a period such as the Veterinary College may deem necessary."

MRS. PELHAM-CLINTON'S VIEWS.

"While deploring the discomfort and inconvenience which dogs and their owners suffer, to say nothing of the expense," said Mrs. Pelham-Clinton, the owner of the famous Amersham Kennels of French bulldogs, "it is but fair to render 'honor where honor is due.'

"Some years ago there were cases of rabies in Great Britain—dogs died, or were destroyed, and a few cases of rabies were from time to time reported in human beings, death sometimes resulting.

"For many years now there have been no cases of rabies in the British Islands; therefore, it would seem that the six months' quarantine has proved sufficient to enable the authorities to state that there has been no case at large in all these years.

"It would be interesting and instructive to learn from the different accredited quarantine stations the number of dogs, if any, that have been destroyed for rabies during the six months' detention, since these regulations came into force.

"I have been an importer of French bulldogs for some years, and some of the most famous dogs of the breed have had to pay the penalty of their change of country. In some cases it was very trying to the dogs' spirits, though the best of care and attention was given.

"My Ch. Brunette of Amersham, also Pierrette, Pierrot and Ch. Charlemagne of Amersham, which afterward went to America to continue its triumphs there, all had the long period of probation to serve.

"More recently Sin Sin of Amersham, which won its first championship laurels at the Ladies' Kennel Association Show in July, having come from America, had to wait the full six months in retirement before making its début. So you see I have been tried and my dogs tied by these regulations, and I have often railed against them, but I think they were wise and right.

"All these dogs came from dealers, and therefore how could one know to what risk they might have been exposed?

"The position, however, of a pet dog being taken abroad for a few weeks, or even months, is a very different one, but it is equally difficult, and every one will agree, I think, that the chances of rabies in such cases are reduced to a minimum. But how can the regulations be made to cover the requirements with safety? And might not a lessening of the vigilance open a door to possible fraudulent substitutions by unscrupulous persons?

"It needs legislation undoubtedly, but it seems to me not so very simple that all dog owners and lovers could wish it to be."

RELAXATION SOUGHT IN VAIN.

"I am afraid the Board of Agriculture's rules will never be relaxed," said Mr. Walter Baxendale, the kennel editor of the Field, who is one of England's leading dog experts.

"Lovers of dogs of all descriptions have agitated against quarantine until they have got tired of it, but the Board will not give way.

"There is no doubt about it that the order has stamped out rabies, and that, you moust admit, is a really good thing. The quarantine has been compulsory as regards dogs taken to Australia for very many years, and the disease is unknown there.

"It is strange, however, that there is exemption (as regards England) in favor of performing dogs."

"I cannot go quite as far as to say that the Board of Agriculture's regulations are 'useless,' as they have stamped out rabies in England, but I do agree with you that they are now oppresive," said Baroness Campbell von Laurentz, who is a stanch supporter of the very graceful Italian greyhounds, which can be traced back for centuries, and of which she has a kennel at Rosemead, Windsor.

"Well known and registered dogs should, I think, be allowed to be taken in and out of England, and foreign dogs might be allowed to be exhibited at English shows. The real harm and hardship seems to me to be not so much the sentimental one of depriving people of their pets as that in some breeds the want of fresh blood is badly felt.

"This is particularly so in the one I am interested in, as Italian greyhounds are too sensitive for any one who knows them to allow them to go through three months' quarantine.

"Some years ago I imported one, but was allowed to keep it from the first under inspection, and I do not know why this should not again be permitted.

"Surely a stud dog should be distinguished from a mongrel picked up without any previous knowledge of the surroundings."

"BETTER THAN NONE AT ALL."

"Better than none at all," is the view held by Hon. W. B. Wrottesley, who is a great animal lover and owns many fine specimens of the Great Dane breed.

"I consider the present regulations have done a lot of good and were needed at the time they came in force, and I should be very sorry to see them done away with altogether, as England at the present time is free from rabies, whereas abroad one hears of bad cases.

"At the same time I think the regulations could be amended. For instance, any one taking a pet dog abroad for a period should be allowed an order, with a full description of the dog, permitting him to bring it into England again at the end of the given time without quarantine.

"Also any one living abroad might be allowed to bring a dog into England provided he had proof that he had the dog in his possession entirely for, say, one year. But I think the present regulations better than none at all."

"I feel sure that I shall be voicing the opinion of all dog lovers by saying that the irksome rules are cruel and unnecessary," said Mr. Fred North, the bull terrier expert. "There can be no two opinions that the present rules are far too rigid and stringent. For instance, before a dog can be shipped to most places where quarantine rules are in vogue it has to be taken to a veterinary surgeon appointed specially by the Board of Agriculture, on the very day the ship departs for the necessary inspection, so that it may not come into contact with any other dog.

"Surely this should be sufficient; but no, the poor little pet, which has generally been well cared for and lived in luxury, must go into quarantine for several months.

"Recently I sent out a very valuable Manchester terrier, also the toy black and tan Ch. Bess Beauty, to Mrs. Jeannie Chubb, of Melbourne, who told that they had to go into isolation for a long time, but that she had gone to the expense of having a special room built for them so that they should take no harm."

MODERATE THE REGULATIONS.

Mrs. Hebe Wilson Bidwell, whose devotion to dogs is divided between Dalmatians and deerhounds, takes a liberal view of the subject. She says:—

"The quarantine question requires a lot of consideration before even breeders of dogs (although I personally have suffered enough through the said regulation) ventilate their ideas on the subject.

"What I would ask for is to moderate the regulation, and most decidedly allow owners to keep their dogs in quarantine on their own premises (where such an arrangement is possible), such premises to be inspected at intervals by a veterinary surgeon approved by the government.

"A very heavy penalty should be imposed if a quarantined animal was allowed to break the quarantine.

"A special kennel and run, of course, to be insisted upon and approved of by a government inspector before sanction could be given to allow a person to keep a dog as suggested. I think three months at longest should be sufficient if an animal was veterinarily exammed periodically after that date."

ZOOLOGICAL MONSTROSITY IN STONE EXCITES LONDONERS.

LONDON, Saturday.

ALL London is calling upon some kind expert to solve the precise zoological nature of the two quaint beasts in stone outside the entrance to the new King Edward VII. gallery at the British Museum. The strange animals in question appear to represent a cross—hitherto unknown to natural science—between the British lion and the Sphinx, and continue to cause much amusement to passersby in general and small boys in particular.

A London newspaper in commenting on the subject concludes with the remark that it "will reward liberally any reader informing us where we may see this curious combination in the flesh."

DRURY LANE THEATRE IS A HUNDRED YEARS OLD.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

DRURY LANE, which London, at any rate, looks upon as the most famous playhouse in the world, has reached the hundredth anniversary of its opening. But there had been three previous playhouses on the same site, including that of which Nell Gwynne was a star, when she laughed at a king and the king fell in love.

There has so long been a Drury Lane that a century seems but a span in its history, but it has been a strangely crowded century. Almost every conceivable kind of entertainment has been presented at some time or other, from Shakespeare and Sabini to conjurers and a circus, from grand opera to a menagerie.

A hundred years ago the Cockney playgoer went to see the new Drury's first pantomime of "Harlequin Humpo, or Columbine by Candlelight," when the whole house was lighted up with tall wax candles, while to-day within the very same walls on the very same stage there is "Everywoman," with real automobiles and wonderful electrical ingenuities.

MANY A HAMLET RECALLED BY A DOOMED THEATRE.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

THE old Princess' Theatre, which to the younger generation of to-day is known only as a disfigurement of Oxford street, is to be pulled down. The "housebreakers" will be at work in a few days, for the famous old theatre is to give place to a palatial hotel.

Recalling some of the glories of the old house, it was here that the first panorama was seen, where the earliest Shakespearian revival was tried, where Dion Boucicault's dramas were produced, where Wilson Barrett made a fortune, where "Drink" had its long run and where the Terrys went to "school."

It was opened nearly a century ago by one Hamlet—that was the name of the builder—a Bond street jeweller, who enjoyed the patronage of King George IV. and whose passion for the then novel panorama landed him in the bankruptcy court. It was, in effect, closed by another Hamlet, Wilson Barrett, whose Shakespearian eccentricities sent him on a world wandering, from which he returned a half million dollar man again.

Hamlet's panorama became a theatre in the '70's, and for a long time a mixed programme of opera, drama and extravaganza was explicited. Hither came many American visitors, including Edwin Forrest and Charlotte Cushman, who are said to have made a "sensation" in "Macbeth." Afterward Miss Cushman played Romeo.

Another Hamlet associated his name with the Princess—Macready. In the '50's Charles Kean distinguished the Princess by a remarkable series of Shakespearian revivals. Never in the history of the stage had there been such a subordination of all the arts. Kean set the fashion of "cramming" the public with explanatory pamphlets, the preposterous erudition of which fills one with laughter now. He marshalled the British Museum to support the most wonderful confections of archaeology, and cited the old Testament in proof of Shakespearian zoology that would move an elementary schoolboy of to-day to mirth.

Incidentally he introduced the Terry children, Kate and Ellen, to the stage at the Princess', and Dion Boucicault ran away with one of his actresses, Agnes Robertson, still to be seen at first nights in London, the prettiest old lady that ever coquetted with eighty.

Later Charles Reade's adaptation of "L'Assomoir" as "Drink" made a fortune for the Gooches, and then the Princess' most obligingly caught fire. The present heatre was then built, being regarded thirty years ago as the last word in architecture and construction. But it did no good till Wilson Barrett came along with "The Lights of London," followed by "The Silver King," with which he made fortune on fortune.

Later experiences of the Princess' include a melodrama with a scenic "sensation" which stuck and revealed the simple mechanism. The audience shrieked. Had the illusion worked the play might have run a year. Then came Anna Ruppert, the "skin specialist," as an emotional actress, and a manager who being publicly denounced as "a d—d thief," imperturbably retorted "Chestnuts!"

RADIUM ILLUSION SHOWS THE WONDERS OF THAT PRODUCT.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

IN the medical exhibition at Westminster there is a dark room where an expert, rather bleached in appearance from living so much without light, shows you some of the wonders of radium.

When your eyes have got used to the woolly darkness of his cave he will hand you a commonplace cardboard box and tell you to stare intertly at the lid. You do so, and soon the thing becomes luminous, breaks out into shifting radiations as if it contained some wonderfully heatless coal of fire. The expert says it looks like a snow storm, and so it does if you can imagine flakes of rosy snow drifting and circling round a centre. Then he opens the door and lets in the disillusioning daylight, and taking off the lid you find inside the box nothing but a tiny drop of water, a new and fascinating branch of radium therapy.

You can now buy it in bottles—radiogen water—and drink it for the cure of rheumatism, gout and similar ailments.

The theory now is, of course, that the therapeutic virtue of the waters of Bath, Buxton, and other wells is mainly due to their radio activity. It has been observed that the workmen in the mines in Bohemia and in Cornwall, where radium ore is dug, rarely suffer from rheumatism or neuralgia. So you can drink radium as medicine as well as use it as a searchlight in surgery.

ENGLAND MUCH EXCITED OVER THE HUNGRY SUFFRAGETTES.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

THE adoption by imprisoned suffragists of the hunger strike and the resort to forcible feeding on the part of the prison authorities is arousing considerable discussion. Many persons of authority hold that the law should take its course, and that women who have been sentenced for outrages should be treated as would any other convict. On the other hand there are many influential persons who denounce what they call the "brutality" meted out to "merely political offenders."

The recent release from Mountjoy Prison, Ireland, of two women in an enfeebled condition after serving only a few weeks of their sentence has provoked further criticism of the policy of forcible feeding.

Professor F. Adeney, who is himself strongly in favor of suffrage for women, is of opinion that if any of these women should die through their own folly in refusing to take food the whole blame would lie not upon the government or the prison doctors, but upon the few misguided people who were influencing and advising them.

"There is no doubt," he said, "that this practice is too terrible an assault upon women and too abominable a matter to be allowed to continue. Despite what the leaders of these unfortunate and misguided women may say, there is no doubt that the prison authorities are doing their best in the interests of the women to preserve their lives. But what is to prevent any other criminal from adopting similar means of escaping punishment for offences? When it comes to the crimes of arson and serious assault there can be no question of political offence, and it cannot be allowed that criminal offenders shall escape the sentences of the courts because they are women who refuse to take food."

$20,000 LEFT TO A DOG, WHICH HAS DIED, PUZZLES JUDGES.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

THE judges of the law courts are puzzled what to do in a curious action that has arisen out of the will of a Russian princess who died early this year leaving $20,000 to a toy terrier named Gipsy, with the proviso that her pet should be intrusted to the charge of a certain very old friend, whom she named.

Within six months Gipsy followed her mistress to the grave, and as the legacy was practically intact when Gipsy passed away the dog's custodian asserted that she was the legal successor to the money.

But a claim was formulated on behalf of an offspring of Gipsy's who, being a puppy of high degree, was duly registered at birth.

Now the judges are wondering what they should do with this unprecedented claim and are taking time to think the matter out.

LLOYD'S ISSUES POLICIES ON A DOZEN CHIMPANZEES.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

DURING the last few days some peculiar insurances have been effected at Lloyd's. One of the policies taken out covered all risks, including death, on twelve performing chimpanzees for a year. The value is $7,500, and the rate the unusually high one of 300 per cent. Another insurance is on a wild African buffalo which is on its way to the Zoo, the premium being $80 on $750.

So far as concerns the contingency of a general Parliamentary election before the end of the year the rate has dropped to $80, which is, however, a substantial figure, more especially as there are only three months now in which to bring about a dissolution.

In the case of the Presidential contest in the United States there is no alteration in quotations for Dr. Woodrow Wilson, the prospect of the return of either Mr. Taft or Mr. Roosevelt being regarded as very remote.

WHISKERS AND EVENING GARB BURNING TOPICS IN LONDON.

[Special Despatch.]
LONDON, Saturday.

WITH the approach of winter the old question of the reform of men's evening clothes crops up again. There has been much talk about the revival of the side whiskers and the ruffled shirt, but neither is likely to be taken up very seriously, though a limited crop of short whiskers is being cultivated for the forthcoming season. The Outfitter is of opinion that more fancy waistcoats of different hues will be worn this winter than have been seen since the early Victorian days, drab, fawn and various shades of gray being the most popular, with V-shaped opening and four buttons. Double rows of silk braid down the sides of the trousers will also be "the thing" to be in fashion.

CHILDREN USE LIVING ANIMALS AS DRAWING MODELS

LONDON SCHOOL CHILDREN DRAWING A DROMEDARY FROM LIFE

School children in London learn to draw at first hand. Classes are taken to the Zoological Park, for instance, and the pupils sketch from life the animals and birds. According to reports made to the London County Council, much talent has been uncovered by this course. The children seem to enjoy these sketching excursions thoroughly, and their enthusiasm helps them in the work.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

McDonald & Lesperance, stock brokers, private wire to New York and Montreal, Hochelaga Bank Building. Telephone 1227.

(Canadian Press Service.)

New York, Nov. 1.—Observance of religious holidays at all the principal European centres, Berlin excepted, and a holiday here to-morrow in honor of the late Vice President Sherman served to curtail to-day's operations on the local Stock Exchange to a very considerable extent. An additional deterrent was found in call money which rose to 9 per cent, a fraction over yesterday's official quotation, although the close was nearer 6 per cent.

Prospects of an impairment of the clearing house reserves prompted some calling of loans by local banks. In a general way, however, to-morrow's bank statement is expected to work out more favorably than recent forecasts indicated. The high money rates of the last few days resulted in a heavy inflow of money from interior banks desirous of availing themselves of the more remunerative interest returns. These receipts have reduced local bank losses to a nominal figure. Some anxiety is felt regarding the loan account. Payments during the week for our securities sold abroad in the course of the recent demoralization there is expected to show in a material expasion of loans.

To-day's business on the exchange was the smallest of any full day in some weeks. Opening prices showed general advances, with a smart gain in Canadian Pacific. This was followed by general declines, which obliterated all early gains and then a long period of stagnation. Towards the close, when it became evident that there would be no repetition of yesterday's money "squeeze," the market once more grew moderately active, closing with a firm undertone.

Several important railway systems issued returns for September. The St. Paul road showed a net gain for that month of $920,000, while the Pennsylvania road showed $378,000 on its eastern lines and only $177,000 on those west of Pittsburg. The New York Central showed a net decrease of $543,000.

Bonds were firm with marked improvement in speculative issues. Total sales, par value, were $1,440,000.

United States Government bonds were unchanged on call.

CLOSING LETTER.

By private wire to Neuville Belleau & Co., 93 St. Peter srteet. Phone, 946, 4076.

New York, Nov. 1.—The market was a decidedly uninteresting affair, with trading at a low ebb, traders preferring to take no stand in view of the fact that to-morrow will be a holiday, out of respect to the memory of the late Vice President Sherman, whose funeral takes place to-morrow.

Moreover, London was closed so that there was no one from that source. Although the cables from the other side invariably reported that intervention by the great powers in the Balkan war was only a question of a short time, there was still a feeling that something unfavorable might develop before Monday. This tended to keep down commitments on the bull side, though, on the other hand, the bears were not encouraged by the results of the operations to put out short lines. The rise in call money to 9 per cent was also a retarding factor, though the bank statement promises to be better than seemed likely earlier in the week. The gain in cash from the interior tended to offset the loss to the Sub-Treasury. Railroad earnings were rather mixed, the St. Paul making a splendid showing, though that of the New York Central was disappointing. Politics were still discussed in Wall Street circles, but do not appear to be causing much worriment as the result is regarded as a foregone conclusion. It looks as if there was a quiet accumulation of stocks by large interests on recessions, but no active market is expected until after the election. Traders are also disposed to wait for the Supreme Court decisions and the results of arbitration board deliberations.

We advise the policy of quick turns for the immediate future, though believing in ultimately higher prices and would discriminate against pool specialties which have been unduly exploited.

STAR GIVER IN HER OWN DEFENCE

Her Counsel Admits That Mineral Poison May Have Been Found In Body.

Chicago, Nov. 1—Mrs. Louise Lindloff, accused of poisoning her son Arthur, took the stand in her own defence to-day. Before she was called her counsel took the state by surprise by admitting that mineral poison was found in the body of the boy and also in those of the two husbands, the two daughters and the brother-in-law of Mrs. Lindloff, whose deaths the prosecution has attempted to link with that of Arthur Lindloff as the victims of a chain of poisonings. Experts for the defence were called to testify that the poison found might have been an ingredient of medicines and that the contrary could not be proven.

The accused woman's testimony was in support of this theory. She testied that all members of her family had been afflicted with a skin disease in the treatment of which the mineral poison she is accused of having administered to her son is commonly used. She told of having been married to Julius Graunke, her first husband, when she was 17 years old in Treptoll, Germany, and of joining him later in Milwaukee, Wis., where he died and she married William Lindloff.

COURT WON'T HEAR ETTOR'S STATEMENT

Defendant In Lawrence Strike Murder Refused Privilege of Addressing Jury.

Salem, Mass., Nov. 1—Joseph J. Ettor, leader of the Lawrence textile strike last winter, who with Arturo Giovannitti and Joseph Caruso, is on trial here charged with responsibility for the murder of Anna Lopizzo, sought to make a personal statement to the court to-day just before opening remarks for the defence began. His request was denied and Judge Quinn ordered that counsel for the defendants proceed. The court had previously declined to rule on a motion to take the case from the jury, but granted to defendants counsel a right to renew it when the testimony is concluded.

After the Commonwealth had closed its case Judge Quinn directed that two of the attorneys for the defence should make opening statements and he designated W. Scott Peters, attorney for Giovannitti, and J. H. Sisk, counsel for Caruso, to address the jury. He first directed that but one attorney should speak for all, but when Mr. Sisk explained that his client was charged as principal and the others as accessories to the crime and that he would like to present a separate statement, the court permitted him to do so. J. P. S. Mahoney, counsel for Ettor, and Fred H. Moore, advisory counsel of the Industrial Workers of the World, protested, but were overruled.

When the Court convened after luncheon, Mr. Mahoney announced that the defendant Ettor asked the privilege of addressing the court.

"I don't care to hear from him at this time," said Judge Quinn. "Counsel will proceed."

Exception To Ruling.

"On behalf of the defendant," Attorney Moore said, addressing the court, "I wish to have an exception to the ruling of the court in denying the defendant his constitutional right to explain why it is his desire to have his personal counsel address the jury on his behalf."

Judge Quinn ordered the exception noted and again directed counsel to proceed with the addresses to the jury. Ettor appeared much concerned and he he leaped frequently from his seat in the prisoners cage to confer earnestly with his attorneys.

In outlining the rdefence of Ettor and Giovannitti Attorney Peters declared the defence would prove that throughout the strike the defendants counselled against violence and would introduce testimony to show that on several occasions they actually prevented violence. He said testimony would be given to show that the mill owners actually incited trouble for the purpose of discrediting the strikers, and that private detectives hired by the mill owners were arrested for committing depredations and afterward released when the police learned their identity. Both Ettor and Giovannitti, he announced, would take the stand and brand as falsehoods the testimony given against them by private detectives. Giovannitti, he said, would deny absolutely the speech attributed to him in which he was quotoed as having advised the strikers to "prowl like wild animals at night, seeking the blood of the scabs." The defendant, Attorney Peters said, would tell the jury just what he did say in all his speeches.

Mr. Sisk, outlining the defence of Caruso, said that defendant would also take the witness stand and deny absolutely that he was at the scene of the killing of Anna Lopizzo on the night of Jan. 29. His defence will be an alibi, his wife, a friend and other witnesses being ready to testify that at the time of the riot, Caruso was at home eating his supper.

The first witness for the defence will take the stand to-morrow. Nearly two hundred names are on the list of probable witnesses to be called.

DAY BY DAY

There is the magic figure that Cleveland, Ohio, conjures with. Tom Johnson started it with his 3-cent street car fares. Then followed the 3-cent public dance halls, and we doubt not there may be 3-cent lunch counters, 3-cent stores and 3-cent lodging houses in this wonderful City of Three.

It is Cleveland that has petitioned for the restoration of the 3-cent piece in the United States, the coin that was once the execration of street car conductors everywhere, a coin that was perpetually representing itself as a dime in all obscure lights and the hasty transactions involving the making of change in the ordinary course of barter.

Thirty thousand residents of Cleveland have now banded together in a sworn brotherhood to purchase no eggs for three weeks until the price has descended to 30 cents note the bewitchment of tnat revered numerical three, so essential to all public and private action in Cleveland. Verily, this is the city of the Rule of Three.

YSAYE, THE CARUSO OF THE VIOLIN

When Eugene Ysaye plays his wonderful violin, one finds it difficult whether most to admire the luscious, limpid and large tone, or the phenomenal skill of his art. To call him the "Caruso of the violin", gives him only half credit for what he does; but it is because of the wonderous richness of his tone quality that the appellation has been added to a category with others. Its a change, anyway, from hailing him as "A giant of the bow", or "The greatest violinist of the age". When Caruso sings, it is the rich beauty of his voice and the warmth of his singing that stirs the populace; for the same reasons does Ysaye stir the great audience that flock to hear him. Musically, of course, no comparisons could be drawn between the Metropolitan tenor and the Belgium virtuoso, but it is simply on the sensuous side of judging where there is a similarity. Musically, Ysaye ranks with the great composer of all time and with the thinkers who have helped to unravel the intricacies of music as a science.

CROCHET NEEDLE TO MEND UNDERWEAR.

A crochet needle is a good thing to mend knit underwear with. To do this, place the worn portion in an embroidery frame; then, with thread to suit the mesh of the garment, wool, silk or cotton, pick up the ends if the stitches where they are broken off and unite them, working back and forth until the holes are filled in evenly and smoothly. Perhaps the neck of the underwear has stretched in the washing until it is all out of shape; in that case run a drawstring around the neck, wet it and draw it into place; then when it is dry it will be the proper size. You may then crochet a neat beading in place of the one which has worn out, rip off the old facing in the front and stitch on in its place a new strip of sateen. Sew the old holes together as closely as you can to their original size and shape, then catch them down to the sateen and cut that to fit; then work the hole as you would if it were a new one.
