ROUND TOWN.

Special meeting of the St. Patrick's S. will take place in St. Patrick's Hall, on Friday night, 23rd inst., at 8 p.m. sharp. T. White lectured on The Art of Pigg to a rather small audience last night in the Synod Hall. The lecture was interesting.

Alexandra Snow-shoe Club races take place tomorrow afternoon at 2.15 sharp. Times, all very handsome, have been tried by well-known citizens, and promise competition.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Lieut.-Gov. opened the first session of third Parliament of Nova Scotia yesterday with the usual formalities. In the course of his address to the House of Assembly, Hon. Mr. said:—"I trust that one of the greatest requirements for our province in the future may be shortly met by a policy that will enable us to attract our shores the industry, capital and skill of an emigrant population from the crowded communities of Europe."

Montreal Herald says of the state of the country:—"The condition of the country, in fact, is ground for hope, and he measures proposed, which will give more power of administration for purely local matters, all tend to afford satisfaction to all but whom nothing will ever satisfy."

The Ontario Parliament Mr. Rykert said that until it shall become clearly established to this House that the Railway Aid Bill consisting of one million and a half dollars, is insufficient to meet the requirements of all bona fide railways already undertaken to which the Lieutenant Governor has assented by Order in Council, he will not support the bill, and he will not support any amendment to it.

Holden, member of Parliament for one of the Yorkshire Ridings, has given £40,000 to the fund to aid the French in discharging the indemnity to the Prussians.

Later Schurz, leader of the German Alliance, has announced that in the case of the nomination of General Grant by the Republican Convention, he will not espouse the nomination.

ST. LAWRENCE WARD.

To the Electors.

GENTLEMEN.—The letter signed "Wm. Kennedy" closes with "desire that the election should be conducted with a manly and liberal spirit." My Country and self have a right to be satisfied, and I trust, say the same? (Did "the end justify the means" in any vile and calumnious placards to be put over the city? Though Mr. Kennedy denied any knowledge of these posters, they have, without the slightest shadow of doubt, been traced to parties acting in his name, his printer riveted them, his bill-poster posted them, and both of these individuals attended his committee. Detective (or, who must, for the trustworthy police holds in Montreal, be a reliable man, well as a number of other gentlemen, can fully prove the veracity of this statement. Had any of my supporters issued a base groundless slur against Mr. Kennedy, I should have spared neither time, nor energy, nor have I traced home to guilty parties, and have them exposed.

The same gentlemanly and manly spirit, according to the phraseology of the signed Wm. Kennedy, but, in plain language, term it the meanest kind of covert innuendo allusion is made to the Sied. At a proper time and place I will be prepared to vindicate and sustain my reputation have up to the present. At the present and urgent request of a large number of workmen, who I am sure are my friends, as also men of party and passion, and first, though last, not least, electors of St. Lawrence Ward, I assume a candidate for municipal suffrage, to quote the letter signed "Wm. Kennedy," "municipal suffrage." A public meeting held in St. Patrick's Hall on the 1st inst., I stated my views as the requirements of the Ward in particular, and of the country generally, and view as promulgated in the same liberal and manly spirit in the letter signed "Wm. Kennedy."

was notified to unconditionally support any man or party whatever, nor did I pledge myself to any except that of education. That Providence my mental, political and social aims are sufficient to protect me from any insulting proposition.

Having seen amongst the working classes any life I have made their wants an essential part. Some of these, I think, the Council is competent to deal with, as in allowing me but habitable and healthy dwellings be erected, in compelling a better and thorough system of drainage, and in breathing spots and recreation grounds, &c., for

"A people's health is a nation's wealth."

A letter signed "Wm. Kennedy" is dated "I would say no Councilor fulfills his duties to his constituents who is not first ascertaining first whether the end justify the means."

Clearly represented by the letter signed "Wm. Kennedy" have not only adopted this motto, but practically pushed it to its extreme in this contest.

Very truly yours,
JAMES HOWE.

3rd EDITION

SIX O'CLOCK.

Latest from London.

LONDON, Feb. 23.

The Daily Telegraph has just issued an extra which contains what purports to be the reply of the American Government to the note of Granville on the Alabama case. Great eagerness is manifested by the people to see the papers, and extras are selling rapidly.

The workman who was killed by the American Minon, on Saturday night, having left a family in very destitute circumstances, Americans residing in London are subscribing funds to relieve the wants of the sufferers.

Workmen's Riot in Bern.

BERNE, Feb. 23.

For some time past an angry feeling has existed between Alsatian and German workmen in this city, and yesterday it culminated in a serious riot. The disorder was suppressed by the authorities, and 12 of the ringleaders of the riot were arrested, but not until many persons had been seriously injured.

Steamship Arrivals.

LONDON, Feb. 23.

The steamship Assyria, from New York, has arrived.

QUEBEC, Feb. 23.

The steamship England, from New York, has arrived.

Steam Sawmill Burned Down.

CONCORD, N.H., Feb. 21.

Crosby's steam saw-mill, with a large amount of lumber, in Charlestown, was destroyed by fire yesterday. Loss, $10,000; insurance, $4,000, in London and Liverpool companies.

Antiquities of the West.

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 21.

Professor Marsh this evening, at a meeting of the Connecticut Academy at the Sheffield School in this city, gave a brief description of his tour to the West last summer, and said, among other facts, that he found in Kansas fossils of gigantic saurians and winged reptiles twenty feet spread. In the basaltic region he found vast quantities of three-toed fossil horses. His party collected a quantity of Indian antiquities, including weapons and skulls.

A Female Strike.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 21.

The girls in the Hope and Louisville woolen mills are on a strike against the reduction of a half a cent per yard in the price for weaving, and refused to work to-day. They went to New Albany and Jeffersonville, Ind., to induce the girls there to join in the strike.

A Heavy Will Case.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 21.

An important will case is now being tried here before the U. S. Court involving half a million dollars. The plaintiff, Angelina Amory, claims to be the widow of James Amory, who died in 1868, leaving his estate to Samuel B. and John Amory, and claims also that the will is a forgery. The defendants claim, and will attempt to prove, that the plaintiff was not the wife but the mistress of James Amory, though they lived together thirty years and had eight children.

ROUND TOWN.

The English mail closes at the Post-Office this evening.

The steamship German, from Portland 7 P.M., 11th inst., arrived yesterday.

The mail for the steamship Prussian, from Portland, will be closed at 7 o'clock this evening.

Annual entertainment of the West-End W. M. Sabbath School, corner of St. Joseph and Seigneurs streets, this evening. A pleasant time is anticipated.

Mr. James McLaughlin lectures at eight this evening in the Natural History Society's lecture room, University street, on "Patriotism and the duty of the Canadian Patriot."

The examination of the lunatics, which occurred some time since at the city gaol, has been reported to the Government, but no order has yet arrived for their transmission to Beausport. Eight are to go down.

Mr. J. Baker Edwards delivered a very interesting lecture (the third of the Somerville Course) at the Natural History Society's Rooms, on Applied Science, illustrated by photo and chromo-lithography.

Another victim of the non-vaccination principle of Dr. Coderre died last night of smallpox in its most virulent form. Deceased was a French Canadian, had come from Gilbert street 21 hours previous to his decease, and was brought to the hospital in a dying condition.

We have seen a very handsome English lever watch and gold chain, with the following inscription, which speaks for itself: "Presented to Mr. H. Morrissey by the Employees of Mullarkey & Co., Feb. 22, 1872." Mr. M. is the foreman of the establishment, and is much esteemed by all who know him. The watch and chain were furnished by Mr. J. Street.

The Registrar muddle shows no sign of clearing up. The Government has not replied to the Registrar's protest against the new apartments, St. Gabriel street, which are at present occupied by a few clerks, it being unsafe to remove any documents. M. Ganvren, an architect, arrived in the city a few days since on the part of the Government, and succeeded in finding the City Building Inspector, Robillard, who is said to have examined the building and the alleged fire-proof vaults, but his assuming that it was worth anything, has not been made public. A motion by Ald. David, to ascertain whether these vaults were fit to contain such valuable papers as must be the case if ever used, has met with the fate of most matters of public importance—kept carefully in the tail-end of the day, and treated as unworthy of prompt consideration.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENT'S.

D. M. L.—Stick to the trade. If you are skillful, steady and not afraid of work, in a few very years, either here or in the neighboring province, should see you your own master, possessed of a thriving business.

ST. LAWRENCE WARD.

As there have been denials and counter-denials respecting the authorship of those slanderous posters, would it not be more to the point for each party to offer a reward for the discovery of the culprit? The appearance of any very damaging to Mr. Kennedy's party, and, if only for the sake of ferreting out a plot which reflects upon the city's fame, some steps should be taken to fasten the odium upon the right quarter.

WONDERFUL.

The Boston Herald says:—Yesterday afternoon Hannah Togos, a little girl between three and four years of age, while playing on the roof of the building Nos. 367 and 309 Federal street, in which her parents reside, fell to the ground in the back yard, a distance of 35 feet. She was insensible when found some five minutes afterward, but revived very soon. Dr. Welch was called, and on examination stated that no bones were broken, but thought she was internally injured.

CURIOSITIES OF CRIME.

A workman of Joliette, named J. Baptiste Beaugard, stole $500 from his employer, and decamped to this city, arriving yesterday, taking up his quarters at the Quebec Hotel. In the meantime, a constable had been despatched after the thief, and most opportunely, was taking breakfast at the hotel when Beaugard entered for the same purpose. Dey only knew the man from a description furnished, but was soon convinced of his identity by overhearing him tell a companion that a debt had just been paid him—$500—with which he purposed making a trip to the States. The constable and his prisoner left for Joliette to-day.

Jean Baptiste Dwoin, the fellow who represented himself as the brother of constable Lamontagne, was this morning sent down for two months, as a vagrant.

A young girl named Ollivier Auclair, was this morning bound over to keep the peace for six months toward one Anastase Gascou, who complained that she threatened to cause her violently to shuffle off this mortal coil. The counsel of Major, incarcerated for larceny, having had their application for a habeas corpus in his favor rejected by Judge Monk, applied to Judge Badgley, who allowed the application, new facts being presented. Bail was given: personal, £200; and two sureties in £100.

Sergeant Kyle left for Kingston yesterday morning, in charge of Arthur Pruneau, thief, Hogue, burglar, and Oulet, the Belgian horse thief, the two former sentenced to two years, and the latter to three years imprisonment in the Penitentiary.

PUBLIC OPINION.

Jubb vs. Poulin.

To the Editor of THE STAR.

DEAR SIR,—The letter which appeared in your paper of yesterday over the signature of "P. Poulin & Co.," intended to damage me in the eyes of the mercantile community, is an infamous slander; but I have only to call the attention of the public to the name of the writers to divert it of any harm designed by them. I undertook to travel for them in Ontario, and after being on the road a fortnight, I learned to my mortification that there was no business to be done on their account—an experience, I understand, acquired by my predecessor, also at his cost. Understanding that they meditated legal proceedings, but abandoned the idea, I herewith invite them to the test.

Yours, &c., GEO. F. JUBB.

710 St. Catherine street,
Montreal, Feb. 23, 1872.

The St. Antoine Ward Well—Scandalous Proceedings.

To the Editor of THE STAR.

SIR,—Your correspondent is quite correct in his statements concerning the outrageous compromise made in the St. Antoine Ward between Valois and Kay's Committees. I have it from the best authority, that Mr. Kay has pledged himself to vote the million, and that Messrs. G. W. Stephens, Atwater and Wilson (Herald) guarantee Mr. Valois' return next year; a nice little arrangement, certainly. I wonder how long the electors will allow themselves to be thus fooled. Things are getting mixed up somewhat, and nothing but a clean sweep of the whole Council will do.

ANOTHER VOTE.

[If the above disclosure be true, our correspondent has used language not one whit too strong. We pointed out early that a band of schemers were at work to obtain the power to mortgage Montreal property, and to this end the complete upset of our elective system, as constituted by law, was planned. Having secured this power—the same as that by which Tweed & Co. robbed New York of twenty millions—the next move was to secure candidates who would play into their hands. The proposition made to Mr.

Kennedy that he should vote for Valois unconditionally can be construed as nothing more than a most degrading insult, and any should have dared to make such a suggestion a source of humiliation to Mr. Kennedy's friends. Except in St. Antoine Ward, we have not heard of this shameful bargaining being attempted in any other quarter of the city.

None are more anxious than ourselves to see the country opened up and developed, and where municipal assistance is required, we further honest efforts in this direction, we are ever ready to urge that it be done, not as at present constituted and situated, we cannot regard the Northern Colonization Railway Company as deserving the slightest consideration at the hands of the Legislature. Though a "report" has been issued, the public know as little of what they should know of the Company's intentions, and prospects as they did three years ago when the Company obtained a charter, and since which time they have been resolutely fighting against light. Seeing that the Company is about to build a railway to St. Jerome, without asking a cent from any municipality, the abject dependence of the Northern Colonization clique upon the anticipated onslaught upon Montreal property-owners forces itself most prominently into notice. For years they have been scheming to rob a million from Montreal, and at last, it seems, they have descended so low as to tamper with the people's representatives.

We shall be glad to hear anything of the candidates mentioned above have to say for themselves.

POETRY

THE ANGELS' VISIT TO A

I heard them, mother darling,
did not you?
The angels softly singing,
all the time through;
I saw their gentle faces
in the little bed;
And I knew that God had peace their presence.

They were not idle, mother,
in pictures show,
But kept their fingers busy,
while they sat so soft and low;
'Twas sweet to see them working through the night,
Their snowy fingers glancing
like the little beams of light.

One a dress was sewing,
pure and cool as her own,
And one with brightest blossoms
wove a pretty flower crown;
When their task of love was finished,
I watch'd them wing away
Till their radiant fingers melted
in the rosy dawn of day.

But I know, my motherdarling,
that those bright ones toil'd for me,
That I shall wear that spool'd dress—
that mine that crown should be;
And, mother, then I'll beg of God—
I'll beg upon my knee—
That I may be the angel bright that's meant to summon thee.

WIT AND HUMOR

The prettiest hood we know of is child-hood.

"Come in out of the wet," said the alligator said to the little colored boys.

The reason why the ancient Britons were so formidable in battle, was because they were Pic men.

"Why doesn't your father take a newspaper?" asked a man of a little boy whom he found pilfering one from his door-step. "Cause he'd rather send me to take it," was the reply.

The name of the new Lieutenant Governor of Louisiana is Percy Bysshe Spaulley Pinch-back.

A legal question which is exercising the lawyers of Idaho is, "Does a cow become real estate when she is turned into a field?"

A lecturer in the chemical school attached to a college asked one of the students if he could plate steel. "No," replied the student. "But I could steal plate."

A little boy having broken his hobby-horse the day it was bought, his mother being so cold, when he silenced her by exclaiming, "Oh, brother! what's the good of a horse if it's broke, anyhow?"

"It is easy enough," said a speaker at an orator, "to repeal the Union of the Kingdoms of Great Britain and Ireland; transpose two letters, and they become tied Kingdoms at once."

"Why, Iehabod, I thought you were married more'n a year ago!" Well, said the rasha, it was talked of, but I found out that the girl and all her folks were opposed to it, and so I jest give 'em all the mitten and let the thing drop."

A California editor extemporaneously supplies the following paragraph from a letter: "A patriotic gentleman in Los Angeles has lessened the Government expenditure ninety-six dollars per annum, by marrying a soldier's widow and thus stopping her pension. Let every unmarried patriot in the land imitate his glorious example, and rush to arms."

One of the good stories in the life of the tragedian Young, just published in London, is that of a farmer's wife whose pond had been used by some Baptists for the immersion of their converts. Hearing of it she was very indignant, and vowed that the intruders must be kept off in the future. "I ain't no idea," she said, "of their coming and leaving all their nasty sins behind them in my water."

REMOVAL.—We would call the attention of our readers to the removal of Mr. J. F. Robinson, merchant tailor, from his old stand to more extensive premises, 529 Craig street, where he keeps, as usual, a large and varied assortment of Gentlemen's goods. Mr. Robinson prides himself specially on his style and fit; and it has got to be a by-word: "If you want to wear a good-looking, well-fitting suit of clothes, go to Robinson's, 529 Craig street." 280-17

The Late Prussia-French War.

No circumstance during the sanguinary struggle between Prussia and France struck the beholder more forcibly than the neatness and admirable fit of the Prussian military costume. The remarkable trimness of the officers was never departed from when under the severest fire. No man in the German army was more remarkable than the Prince-Bismarck himself for this peculiarity, which added to his commanding face and figure effected that unity, which, as the Emperor of France once said, "made him, every inch, a great man." It is a remarkable fact that those who have had clothes made at Callen's, 148 St. Joseph street, as they are, out by Conway, have so much improved in their appearance as to surprise their friends and excite the admiration of all who saw them.

The Queen's Hotel, Toronto, is one of the largest in the Dominion of Canada. It is one of the institutions of Toronto, and is conducted with such success as to have earned the esteem of the entire traveling public. Its situation on Front street, overlooking the Bay and Lake, is convenient to the railway stations, and business part of the city. Commercial men from the Lower Provinces and tourists generally should recollect that the hotel is recognized by travellers everywhere as the finest in the Dominion. Particulars had the good fortune of once occupying the hospitable of Mr. McGaw, and afterwards bear the house in a noble esteem.

Considering that the Canadian tariff is framed expressly to benefit Great Britain and the United States, it was hardly to be expected that from either of these quarters would come testimony of its great injustice to this Dominion, yet—and it is but another instance of British honesty—the London Daily Telegraph, an out and out Free Trader, deals with the Rouse's Point Printing Company question in a manner which puts the vast majority of the Canadian press to shame. It says:—

It seems hard that American re-printers should be simply paying 12 1/2 per cent. on all the Canadian imports of English books and purchasers of English copyrights; that is, the fault of the Canadian tariff, and not the fault of our copyright laws. The remedy is, either the imposition on re-prints of a duty so high that pirated editions would be unprofitable, or that all imports of such literature should be prohibited.

A stronger plea for a "fair play" tariff than has yet been advanced. We are told simply in the name of ourselves—a most common-sense plea of advice; yet how deplorable to our people and our Government ignorance of the printing business is but a sample of the ignorance which are at work against progress, and to which the simple suggestions by the Telegraph might be most effectively applied. The rottenness laid bare by Mr. Lovell in his Rouse's Point scheme pervades the whole of our commercial policy. On every hand, in every quarter, the same sacrifice of Canadian to foreign interests is observable, and though the disastrous results are only too plain, yet the prospect of rousing the country to recognize the need of a change seems Herculean. Ontario is supported by her agricultural resources; but what do we see in the Provinces where soil and climate are against the farmer? In the Province of Quebec the Treasury annually shows a deficit, and it is only by selling Crown Lands and cutting down Crown timber that Provincial bankruptcy is staved off. For lack of employment our native population flee to the States, and whole districts are becoming depopulated. To merely allude to emigration is ridiculous as long as such a state of affairs continues. In the Maritime Provinces, even though there are the fisheries to balance, in a measure, the agricultural resources of the West, the cry is for "Better Terms"—that is: money from the Ottawa Treasury to defray the cost of Provincial Government and public service. The press of New Brunswick declares that unless this demand is complied with the Province will become bankrupt. This is not as it should be. The Dominion contains the germs of a great and prosperous country, but the Government seem to work in direct opposition to that sterling truism: "God helps those who help themselves," and instead of every act of the Legislature being strongly marked with a solicitation for the welfare of Canada, it appears as though pains were taken to put every stumbling block possible in the way of home development and progress. The Lower Provinces should team with manufacturing industries; the soil, climate, abundance of water-power, plethora of varied mineral wealth, &c., all point to this quarter of the Dominion as fitted to become the workshop of the country. Just as, in the same way, the West is plainly intended by Providence to be the food-producing quarter. Why does the water-power run to waste? Why are our natural resources sent out of the country in the raw state to be manufactured? Why do goods manufactured supply the Canadian market? Why is Canadian capital and labor sent across the lines to find a congenial market? Daily Telegraph, the out and out Free Trader, deals with the Rouse's Point Printing Company question in a manner which puts the vast majority of the Canadian press to shame. It says:—

dian Tariff." Is it not shameful that three thousand miles away there should be shown more solicitation for Fair Play to Canada than is to be found in Canada itself? Surely this should rouse the most apathetic Canadian! The Rouse's Point scheme is but a phase of the great question of Canadian vs. Foreign Interests; but were each phase laid separately before the honest public opinion of Great Britain, there would be but the same verdict—the fault is with the Canadian tariff. Herein lies the secret of our lag-behind condition; herein is the explanation why our Emigration Departments are so many agencies for supplying population to the United States; this is the simple reason why our raw products of mines and forests go to feed American foundries, workshops and factories, and why our native population flock to the South for employment; this fully explains the barren and unpeopled condition of our land, the running to waste of our water power, the poverty-stricken condition of our treasury, the decay of Quebec, the cry for "better terms," and the general want of progress and prosperity observable far and near. The remedy is in the hands of the people. Long have we urged that it be used; and now additional pressure comes from a very unexpected quarter—from Great Britain, and from the mouthpiece of the British Government. Many hints have been given us to try and run alone, but none couched in plainer terms than this latest injunction to take care of ourselves. As a people we are dreadfully apathetic, but we do really hope this last cutting reproach from across the ocean will effect its purpose.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Birthday Celebration by the New England Society.

The anniversary of George Washington's birthday fell upon yesterday, and was commemorated by an oration delivered in the Dorchester Street American Presbyterian Church, by its pastor, the Rev. George Wells. Long previous to the hour for opening the exercises, the body of the church and gallery were filled with a varied throng, ladies and gentlemen of all nationalities. Rev. Dr. Cordner, of the Church of the Messiah, having offered up prayer, the choir, numerous and composed of excellent singers, sang "A rock in the wilderness welcomed our sires" very finely, beautifully accompanied on the organ by Mr. Joseph Gould. Rev. Dr. Cordner explained that it was a mistake if it was so considered that the orator of the evening would speak concerning Washington. The subject chosen was the development of the Puritan principle.

Rev. George Wells said—Ladies and Gentlemen.—If I felt that this gathering was a tribute to myself, I would feel it a great honor, but when I remember that this is not a personal but national occasion, I feel doubly glad and grateful. I rejoice in the expression it gives of the feelings of amity and kindness which I am sure prevail in this Dominion among citizens of various nationalities and classes, and much I trust it will ever increase and deepen. Members and friends of the New England Society with especial pleasure I congratulate you upon the renewed observance of our national festival.

since we last met in a formal and public manner to revive the memories and honor the institutions of our native land. Year society has not been dead, nor even slumbering. The election of officers, the generous support of charitable work, the celebration of all social festivals, and every pilgrim anniversary has given ample proof of our continued life and vigorous health. This is the first occasion you have listened to a set address since Dec. 22, 1864, and of the reasons of its discontinuance I have not been informed. On reading the last address I felt that what was so well done then need not be soon repeated. These generous words need our deep and lasting thanks, and they have them. I have been perplexed for a theme, not for want of inspiring subjects, but because their variety and richness increased the task of making a choice. The name of our society in itself is suggestive of the scenes and struggles of our native founders, and the love they bore to Old England, their mother country, whose memory was not only enshrined in their hearts, but cherished, as it should be, wherever patriotism is honored and liberty is loved. These are fruitful themes; as well as are the rapid and moment I could have bowed before their monuments as reverently as

THE MOHAMMEDAN AT MECCA.

It is better that they sleep in unknown graves, than that enthusiasts should exalt the circumstances by which they were encompassed, and view them by the broad, deep river of history. As the green waves of the St. Lawrence, and the dark Ottawa are first distinct and separate, gradually blending, till one noble stream, so we can observe our fathers' early history, and trace its influence upon our country. Those colonists were strong and earnest men. They brought with them, and planted firmly in the soil, a vital and germinate idea, the love of freedom. The seed has grown to a tree, while the soil and climate had much to do with its shape. It is of the influence of their surroundings upon the character and institutions, I wish to speak. Their central and controlling purpose was liberty, first religious, and then, therefore, civil; and to secure this, they braved the perils of the deep, scarcely less dangerous than those of the land. They knew little and cared less about the theories and forms of civil government. They were not a company of visionaries, or enthusiasts seeking a new theatre of operations, not rebels—nor Republicans, nor revolutionists; but simply honorable, English Christians, who loved their God and their king as Englishmen are wont to do. They loathed the ceremony and exactions of the State Church, and longed to be delivered from them.

Had this yoke been removed, Plymouth would have received other settlers. Never, probably, in the history of the world was a colony furnished less with the machinery of government. They had no charter from the royal hand, and could get none; all Charles promised them was to let them alone. They solely possessed their church covenant, and a commercial agreement with the company that equipped and sent them out. When the vessel arrived in Cape Cod Bay, they even had no leader, but in the cabin of the Mayflower, before landing, drew up a strong and straightforward series of articles, covering two pages of octavo print, which each signed under this code:

NO LAWFERS WERE REQUIRED;

and when twenty years after, Thos. Leekford, of Lincoln's Inn, attempted to practice, he was formally notified to plead no cases but his own. Can any one fail to see how their position determined and controlled their system? Owning allegiance to a King, separated from them by the broad Atlantic, with no neighbors save the savages, and without restraint standing on the platform of equal rank and rights, what could they be but that which they became—a community of freemen, self-reliant and reflective. The success of the venture established, new emigrants followed, and other settlements were formed. Roger Williams, of Salem, a city of peace, being dissatisfied, was allowed to depart, when he founded the godly city of Providence. They became separate municipalities, and from this sprang the system of townships. Their very existence depended upon their ready and skilful adaptation to their surroundings, and he who could convince and persuade his fellows became chief of all. Behold the school in which they were trained and see how exactly that was calculated to produce their distinguishing traits, independence, industry and fluency. They were intelligent as well as religious and possessed able and learned ministers from England's Universities, especially Cambridge. In 1736, the first year after their founding the colony of Massachusetts Bay, an assembly presided over by Henry Vane, afterwards the famous Sir Harry, friend and then foe of Cromwell, they, showing the first example of the kind, founded a college, granting for the purpose £400—a sum equal to the whole tax for other purposes, an endowment increased by John Harvard, who bequeathed to it his library and £350.

This, the Harvard University is well worthy of being called the Cambridge of America. It was felt not enough to educate ministers only but also their hearers, and the inhabitants of towns of a certain size were compelled to provide a teacher to train their children. This was the birth of the Common School System, while their continual wars with the French and savages caused their union, the foundation of their ultimate independence. New England has always held a preponderating influence in the National Councils, owing to the intelligence of her citizens opposed to the ignorance of the South. All know these hostile influences caused, and all know the glorious result. The Union now contains 368 chartered educational institutions to which last year by private bequest, more than $3,500,000 were given, and this is the fruit of the college founded with an endowment of £300 in 1736.

THE HISTORY OF THE LATE WAR

A bill is now before Congress to devote the whole of the public lands to the work of education, and to supplement State grants by national aid. The time is coming when every child throughout the country shall be offered the privileges of a common education, and, if not taken, be compelled to receive it, with the opportunity of acquiring higher culture. The spirit of the pilgrime is not dead; it still lives fresh and strong in the old homes beside the eastern sea, and, placed on narrow iron bands, walks the continent. The song of faith and freedom that first rose from the hoary waves of Plymouth has been carried to the lakes, into the central plains, and to the golden shores of the Pacific, echoing from North and South. The Southern States in the Rebellion boasted they would force the Western States to concede for the free navigation of the Mississippi. Since I have been in Canada, I have been told the Dominion will compel the Western States to join with her for the free navigation of the St. Lawrence—a stronger view than I have heard on the other side. (Applause and a few kisses.) Have you never heard that blood is thicker than water. Uniformly in every town of the West a course of sympathy, kindred, love exists for the homes of the East. Our countrymen have come from every continent and quarter of the globe. From the savage wilds of Africa has flowed a stream black and rich as the soil of the Nile. The great cities of Europe have poured out their population, and recently a broad and steady swarm of emigrants have set in from the Western continent. Men meet here who never before heard of each other.

This was the strain it was feared would have broken our institutions; but then it has scarcely bent under it. Prophecies of destruction have been showered upon us, thick as autumnal leaves; saw the brooks of Vesuvius, but have destroyed their authors instead. The most courageous of us have sometimes been anxious, and discouraged.

BUT THE SPIRIT OF OUR GOVERNMENT

has not been changed, except to be improved, and it has become more free, wise and just. The Pilgrim Fathers have done this; men of New England, you represent no section tonight. New England, once a geographical division, has become the exponent of the highest, holiest and most precious liberties. Resist not the angry criticisms made upon her, but let not our tongue be that which is to trumpet her defects. Rather let it be our task to defend our country from all unjust and ungenerous attacks. For her we have no cause to blush. Her history is not long and hoary, like those of the Old World, but it is spangled with proud names and glorious deeds. Our country spreads from sea to sea, sending out these iron bands across the continent, and since last year the starry flag has been crowned with the two brightest of the constellation: sturdy Nebraska and sly Nevada; and when Nebraska is more populous and Utah, geographically low, is less polygamous, it, too, will be admitted into the Union; then to be a band of stars studded from shore to shore. Our mother is worthy of our greatest pride and love. Let us be worthy of her parentage and care.

Bathusian applause greeted the conclusion of the address. The choir then sang the American National Hymn, "God Bless Our Native Land," Miss Easty and Mr. Gould taking the solo parts respectively. The singing was the most charming feature of the evening.

No intimation being on the programme as to the manner of dismissal, the audience lingered, and finally signified by rounds of applause that the party managing the affair should terminate the public proceedings in a becoming manner. Properly the benediction should have been given by one of the clergymen, but neither showing any inclination in that direction, Mr. Gould happily struck up "God Save the Queen," the audience standing, and thus terminated the public meeting.

In a large room leading off from the church, supper tables were spread, and as many ticket-holders as could find seats were speedily at work discussing the refreshments provided. Dr. S. Hunt, President of the Society, occupied the chair. A number of sentiments were proposed and responded to. Consul General Dart, in reply for the President, reviewed a considerable period of American history, and eloquently lauded President Grant.

Mr. Huntington responded for the House of Commons, and in the course of his remarks earnestly impressed upon Canadians the great need of self-reliance if they would make their country truly great. He depicted the immensity of our domain and resources, and deplored the apathy so generally apparent. The Mayor being unavoidably absent, Conn. Nelson responded for the Corporation; M. J. Doure for the 'Early Settlers'; Dr. Burns for the 'Lad of our Adoption'; Mr. McMillan Cameron for the 'Founders of New England'; Mr. Howy responded in eloquent terms to the sentiment 'Our Sister Societies' to which also Mr. Sprou replied. The 'Ladies' and the 'Prose' were duly honored, and the company dispersed.

We omitted to mention that the proceedings were conducted on temperance principles.

NOON TELEGRAMS.

More Ring Disclosures.

New York, Feb. 22.

At a meeting of the Union League Club to-night a report was made showing that a single sect of the Roman Catholics has, by alliance with the Tammany Ring, drawn from the treasury of the city and county of New York, within the last three years, for the support of its convents, churches, schools and asylums, $1,396,388, while all other sects obtained $329,373. It is also said to have secured for nothing the absolute title in fee to a whole block between 5th and 4th avenues and 50th and 51st streets, valued at $1,500,000, besides securing other blocks valued at $2,000,000 at a nominal rent.

SPARKS FROM THE TELEGRAPH.

No rioting in Washington as expected yesterday.

The Austrian Government have declined to allow the Pope to hold a Council at Trent. The statement to the effect that Sir F. Hincks intends running for North Middlesex is reported untrue.

The Golconda mine district in Idaho sold for $200,000 cash. Other claims in the vicinity are bonded in heavy amounts.

A man named Dubois, while working on Judge Lafontaine's farm near Aylmer yesterday, was instantly killed by a tree falling upon him.

Hon. Francis Adams is reported to have said about the Alabama claims:—"England, if pushed too far, would fight, but that she was disinclined for war."

The British schooner Lark, seized by a Spanish cruiser on suspicion of landing arms for the insurgents, has been released through the vigorous representations of Her Majesty's Consul General Dunlop, and has sailed for Jamaica.

It is reported that Bismarck has proposed to issue invitations to the Powers for International Congress, the object of which will be to establish a system of cheap rates of postage and to facilitate the transmission and exchange of mails.

The gathering of Legitimists at Antwerp is increasing daily and becoming more formidable. It is confined to no nationalities, although French preponderate in numbers. The chiefs are deliberating over plans for the restoration of all deposed sovereigns.

Letters from Prescott, Arizona, say the Apache Indians have nearly all left their reservations, having accumulated all the supplies of flour and meat possible from that served out to them from the Government stores, and are evidently preparing for a vigorous campaign against the troops and settlers.

A LOVELY SWINDLER.

The Latest N. Y. Confidence Game.

New York has another "Confidence Princess." This time she is named Libby Doris, and we are told, is "a beautiful girl, of about nineteen years of age, whose handsomely set and lithe figure was arrayed in a black skirt and bodice of gray silk. The girl's eyes are of a grayish blue, and her teeth are like a row of pearls; her chin full of dimples, and her smile is a most winning one. She is evidently a person of good education."

The delightful siren used to work in company with an old hag, a Madame St. Valere, who on being arrested pleaded insanity and was sent to a madhouse. The modus operandi was simple but effective. Rooms were engaged of unsuspecting landladies, then the ladies went out shopping, and shortly after their return a clerk with an assortment of valuable goods would arrive. The young gentleman was always received by the dimpled darling, and generally thrown into a delightful state of "love at first sight." This charming creature would then beg permission to show the goods to her sister who was "dressing for dinner in the next room," and when the folding doors closed the young gentleman saw the last of both the fascinating damsel and his master's wares—the couple having transferred the goods to travelling satchels and left the house, leaving behind an unpaid board bill. A victimized clerk thus told his story to the judge:—"I was sent with a lot of goods, the value of which was $175.50, to be delivered to a 'Mrs. Shipley' at No. 139 West Thirty-sixth street; that he rang the bell at that number and was where he met 'Mrs. Shipley,' alias Libby Doris, who gave him a seat by the stove and took the goods, which consisted of lace, gloves and other light but expensive materials, saying she wished to step into the next room and show them to her sister, who was dressing for dinner. I made no objection to this, said the witness, for I supposed she would soon return with the amount of the bill, which I was directed to collect; but she didn't come back at all; I sat there by that fire about fifteen or twenty minutes, without hearing any sound of returning footsteps, and, thinking all was not right, went into the room, and—well, now, Judge, what do I suppose I saw? Not 'Mrs. Shipley's' sister dressing for dinner, nor yet 'Mrs. Shipley' herself; but nothing but the boxes and strewed about the floor. The leading from the bedroom into the hall open, and it at once occurred to me

I HAD BEEN SWINDLED.

At night down stairs into the kitchen, and the landlady, of whom I inquired for 'Mrs. Shipley,' and who informed she had never seen that lady since she left us together in the back parlor. Several stories of the same sort were related the scene being laid, of course, in a fresh spot each time. The lovely prisoner was committed until her companion regained her senses sufficiently to appear in Court.

AMES STREET

HAM & Co.

VAL.

Mr. Vansittart

returned from a ramble

by the river, her lovely

colored, her cheeks crimsoned

exercise, and her simple

with scarlet leaves and, open

of the morning, had unex encountered Mrs. Vansittart and in company with a handsome gen

whose resemblance to her pupil strong hinted at their relationship. Embarrassed and confused, she had been about to with draw, when Celine sprang forward, and seiz ing her arm, spoke a few smiling words of introduction, and Cyril Vansittart bowed low, struck with her wonderful beauty, as was all strangers at first.

"Miss Jones, sir, is a fine actress," said Mrs.

Vansittart, "spatially, as she saw the look of admiration that Cyril could not repress.

"She has gotten herself up en tableau for the occasion as a rustic flower-girl. I congrat ulate you on your success, Miss Jones. When my son Cyril knows you as well as we do, he will learn to be prepared for these pretty little surprises.

Sylvia made no rejoinder, but began to ar range her flowers in a vase of water brought to her by Celine, and the old lady went out of the room, summoned by Allen, while Cyril, having by this time recovered his presence of mind, drew near and commenced a conversa tion with the beautiful young governess, while Celine, nodding close to his side, with obvious pride in his good looks and easy

grace, chimed gaily in from time to time.

"Well, Uncle Cyril," she cried, when Miss

Jones had finally gone up to her room to prepare for dinner, "what do you think of my new governess?"

"I think she is the most beautiful crea ture I ever saw in my life!" Mr. Vansittart answered, enthusiastically.

"I know you would say so!" said Celine, clapping her hands. "And I do love her so dearly, Uncle Cyril!"

"So the wild bird is tamed at last," said

Mr. Vansittart, stooping down Celine's golden hair. "What spell has she used to conquer

the rebellious one who has heretofore made the reign of governesses at Bevanmore a de cision and terror?"

"Spell? I don't know anything about spells," laughed Celine; "but I do know that I love her, and she loves me, and we're the happiest pair in the wide world, in spite of grandmamma!"

"How do you mean, in spite of her?"

"Oh, she hates poor Jane, and she is as in dependent and cross with her as possible; if

Jane hadn't had the temper of an angel,

grandmamma would have driven her away

long ago!"

Cyril Vansittart looked grave.

"This must not be," he said, contracting his brows. "My mother must learn to control her tongue and temper, where a helpless young dependent is concerned. I will not allow any such unequal warfare!"

"That's what I said all along!" cried

Celine. "If papa were here, or even Aunt

Ellen—but, you see, grandmamma never pays any attention to me, and—"

"But she will to me, I think," quietly in terrupted Mr. Vansittart. "Come, Celine, you must show me the improvements about the grounds before dinner. Get your bonnet of your hat, or whatever you girls call those little round things made out of a piece of exp and a bird's wing, and there will be plenty of time."

When Sylvia Burton reached her own apartment, she found it strangely rifled and transformed. The furniture had been moved round and altered, her own little belongings

had utterly vanished, and in the little easy chair old Mrs. Vansittart sat, a rich India shawl drawn round her distorted shoulders, future to mind your own business, I'll have you discharged, you meddling, boldspoken

hussy!"

Patience covered back to her work, and

Sylvia, obeying the goodnatured girl's direc tions, soon found herself on the pretty awning sheltered bridge which Celine had told her of and which was plainly visible from the out side grounds of Bevanmore Tower.

Crossing the bridge, she found herself in a large vestibule or hall, beyond which a second passage led to an octagonally-shaped apartment hung with pale blue chintz, with

China matting on the floor, and bamboo fur niture, while a pretty little single bed oc cupied the farther angle.

There was a fireplace in the room, where a fire was hastily kindled, and was just be ginning to give a little heat, while her own few possessions were thrown on the floor, and her trunk occupied the middle of the room.

Sylvia could not help shedding a few natural tears at the humiliating and insult ing treatment to which she was subjected,

but she set herself diligently to work to re duce the chaotic confusion of dresses, portfo lios, books, bonnets, and slippers to some thing nearer resembling order, and soon for got Mrs. Vansittart's unkindness in enjoying the lovely view from the Tower windows.

As she stood there Celine and Cyril Vansit art, coming up from the direction of the river, glanced towards the Tower, and Celine recognized her governess, waving her hand kerchief gaily to her.

"Jane," she said, when about an hour af terwards they met at dinner, "how did you find your way to the little room in the tower,

where I used to sleep last August?"

"It is my room now," said Sylvia, smiling.

"I am to be domiciled there for the future,

I believe!"

"But why did you leave the west room?"

questioned Celine.

"I believe it was required for some other use," said Sylvia, somewhat embarrassed.

"The west room? Why, surely that is my room!" said Cyril Vansittart, who had been listening to what passed. "I hope,

Miss Jones, you have not been put to the inconvenience of removing on my account?"

"It was no inconvenience, I assure you,"

said Sylvia, quietly. "In fact, I think I ra ther prefer my new quarters."

"But you will be very lonely there?"

"I am not afraid of solitude," she an swered.

"Mother," said Mr. Vansittart, turning to the grotesque figure at the head of the table,

"why did you not give me some other room?

I am grieved to have, however, unwittingly,

disturbed Miss Jones."

Mrs. Vansittart laughed a harsh, grating laugh.

"I am not yet aware," she answered, rudely,

"that all the previous arrangements of Bevanmore are to be altered to please a mere governess. If Miss Jones is displeased with her treatment, she can leave us at any time

she pleases!"

The crimson colour flooded Sylvia's whole face. Cyril Vansittart's eyes flashed.

"Mother," he said, "you are not yet the mistress of Bevanmore, although you have been allowed for some years to make it your home. My brother Gerald would scarcely tolerate this manner towards a young lady

whom he has selected to be the companion and instructor of his daughter. If you are not a little more guarded in future, I shall be compelled to inform him of your lack of courtesy."

Mrs. Vansittart turned yellow; her eyes sparkled with a malevolent glitter, but she stood in awe of her handsome son, scarcely less than Gerald Bevan, whose will, though seldom asserted, was always law at Bevan

more, and she ventured on no immediate re ply. Sylvia, pitying her rage and mortifica tion, made some observation to Celine, on the beauty of the opposite shores of the river,

now dressed in their autumn robes of gold,

and scarlet, and russet brown, and conversa

Is the mind a ponderable or an imponder able substance; an essence, vapor, or an in describable something which cannot be grasped, felt, or withheld? Man thinks, struggles, invents, tries the brain by overwork,

and loses his reason; rests his intellect, be comes calm, uses restoratives, and again thinks. When we reflect that a power of en durance can be imparted to the brain, and that weak minds have been restored to strength by Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites, we cannot but conclude that the subtle power is really ponderable

matter, from the fact that the ingredients are supplied which render it support and give it vitality. Persons who study hard should preserve their balance of power by using the

Syrup. 44

 Queen Isabella; but whether it is still permitted we cannot say.

EMMA.—St. Augustine, Paulus, and others re-introduced Christianity into England when it had been overthrown by the Saxons. The whole of Britain south of the Trent was very early Christianized, some contend as early as the first century. Most certainly the Romans, when they withdrew their legions left it a Christian country, and it is quite clear that Wales always remained Christian, for it was never subdued by the Saxons.

J. SHEARER.—To acquire a sound knowledge of English history, you should read the productions of several authors, because all of them are partial. By that means you would be enabled to strengthen your individual judgment, and for opinions for yourself. After Hume, take up Lingard. Then go to Hallam for constitutional history, and Meaussey for modern England, as he commenced with the expulsion of the Stuarts. Every student of English history should also read the chapters in Blackstone's 'Commentaries' on the rise, progress, and gradual improvement of the laws of England." His style is admirable, and he is not biased by political prejudices.

How do you do?

 You see why I'm in haste;
 I want good stuff, good fit, come on;
 You know the city best;
 I guess you're right, friend G.; 'tis true
 The city's known to me,
 And of the tailors, one and all,
 The A. J. you shall see;
 Just come with me, now Mr. G.,
 To Main street, No. 3,
 To Boon & Woodworth's, we'll happen,
 Where you will suited be;
 The suit in which I stand they make
 It fits exact, you see,
 And at the price you state, my friend,
 'Twas but a $12.00 fee,
 And all who want suits, good and cheap,
 Need only just repair
 To Boon & Woodworth's, Main street,
 And they'll be suited there.

BOON & WOODWORTH,
 280 3 St. Lawrence Main street,
 France.

Whether, under the Republic, France ever attain to the position she occupied Napoleon dwelt at the Tuilleries, is a question admitting of interminable discussion and speculation; but no one ventures to deny that McConkey's Cigar Store, opposite St. Lawrence Hall, contains a splendid assortment of smokers' requisites, particularly choice Tobaccos and Cigars. McConkey's stock of Pipes is something to see, while his sample room is quite a popular place of resort.

For Coughs, Colds, &c., use a bottle of Hore- bound and Cherry Balsam, the best remedy known for all diseases of the throat and lungs.
 Sold by Richmond Spencer, Chemist, &c.
 corner of McGill and Notre Dame streets,
 Mon. real.

Put the Question to Yourself,
 Is it possible that such inducements are being held out daily in the shape of unparalleled bargains in Groceries at the People's Store, corner McGill and St. Paul streets? If it is? And you housekeepers in particular study your own interests when there is now offered you a golden opportunity of making at least a saving of 15 cents per lb. on Tea, 1c. per lb. on Sugar, and all other goods 15 per cent. under any other house in the city. Now, as the proprietor of the People's Store has destined to enter on a new and improved status of commercial life, let public patronage keep pace with his progressive efforts and do away at once, and for ever, with these fearful profits which old fogies in business have been extracting out of the hard workings of the industrious artist, the hard working mechanic and laborer, and finally leaving them in such a position as to be, perhaps in a good many instances, unable, during an inclement and severe winter, to procure necessary fuel, clothing, &c. Therefore, let them come one and all and take advantage of such bargains, when other necessities of life are now so very high.

Customers concur with Mr. Browne in his opinion of the "old fog" system, and that such practices should be done away with.

To the Wholesale Trade
 The time is at hand when the only opportunity of the year will occur for renovating your Stores and Offices. What is there, after all, which so completely changes the appearance of an apartment as a little Paint or Paper, judiciously and tastefully applied?
 Where a merchant spends the best of his days ought not to look like a market-house or a prison. Part with a little of your handsome profits during the past year in helping the Painter, who needs employment during the winter months; and be sure that a good portion of what you pay him will find its way back to your coffers. You can go to no better man than Murphy, at 583 Craig street, near Bleury. He does all kinds of Painting and Paper-hanging, Glazing, &c.

Merchants and shippers should call upon new inventions for Ready-made Cards, Boxes, Bags, &c., at 5
 St. James street.
Ambrose's Alligator
 tians, Chibblains, Spr &c. For sale by cents.

THE "STAR."

...just last, just seven...
...the form of the Star...
...believing that the small size...
...should be more favorable to ad...
...The expectation has been raised...
...beyond our most sanguine hopes, as...
...advertising business during the last...
...three months shows an increase of over 400...
...per cent on the business of the correspond...
...ing period of last year. This great increase...
...has no alternative to enlarge...
...the paper, not only to accommodate the in...
...creased advertising, but to enable us to give...
...more readers a better paper.

...When we made the change alluded to in...
...August last, we purchased a fast double...
...feeder printing press, capable of printing...
...4,500 to 5,000 papers an hour. This fast...
...press now proves inadequate to the increased...
...circulation, as news boys and newsdealers...
...are obliged to wait too long for their papers.

...We are now negotiating for a four feeder...
...press, capable of printing 8,000 copies an...
...hour. In the meantime, until we get this...
...press running, we are obliged to alter the...
...form of the paper to four pages, to admit of...
...increased circulation. In its new form, THE STAR will...
...be the LARGEST ONE CENT DAILY...
...PAPER IN THE WORLD.

There has been little said in Washington...
...on the matter either in the papers or...
...among the people until to-day. Every one...
...seems determined to sustain the demand...

PUBLIC OPINION.

Thanksgiving for the Recovery of the Prince of Wales.

To the Editor of the STAR.

Sir,—Up to the present date I have been...
...unable to discover that any steps have been...
...taken by the ecclesiastical authorities in...
...Montreal, either Anglican or Roman, to in...
...itiate any demonstration similar to that which...
...is to be celebrated in London on the 27th in...
...stant, viz.: a grand Thanksgiving service to...
...Almighty God, for the restoration to health...
...of H. R. H. the Prince of Wales. Surely, when...
...one recalls the universal anxiety felt during...
...the time of His Royal Highness' direct...
...need by all classes and creeds of Her Most...
...Serene Majesty's subjects in this Dominion, one cannot...
...but think that all would rejoice at the oppor...
...tunity of joining their fellow-countrymen...
...across the water in a thanksgiving, the heart...
...iness of which would be measured by the in...
...tensity of the sorrow which would have been...
...felt, had the result been unfortunately dif...
...ferent.

May we hope that it is not yet too late for...
...the clergy to sanction that which the people...
...so cordially desire.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient serv't,
THANKFUL BRITON.

[A very timely suggestion, and one we hope...
...to see carried out.—Ed. Star.]

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS

R.W. COWAN, THE HATTER AND FURRIER, (RUE DU DAME & ST. PETER'S) MONTREAL.

RAILWAY ADVERTISING COMPANY, OFFICES: 213 ST. JAMES STREET, MONTREAL.

This Company has the exclusive right of placing advertisements in the Cars and Stations of the Principal Canadian Railways for a term of years.

This method of advertising in the Cars and Stations upon Railways, has become a popular one in England and upon the Continent, and is only in its infancy in America, but we hope by doing the advertising well and attractively, to make it a permanent institution of the Dominion, and give to the public who may patronize us, a valuable consideration for their money.

The Advertising in the Stations will be done handsomely and attractively in large frames, containing from 3 to 12 cards each. The frames will be of black Walnut and Goble, and each card to be glazed separately, with gold moulding between.

The Advertising in the Cars will be done in small gilt frames, containing from one to four cards each, and placed conspicuously in the Passenger Cars on the different sections, either section, as may be desired by the advertiser.

We are also prepared to place Advertisements furnished us by parties desiring to furnish their own Advertising Cards, in the Stations on the line of the roads represented by us, at reasonable rates.

We are preparing and placing in the Depot at Montreal, large painted signs upon boards, and will put them up in other Stations on line of the road, if desired.

Advertisements will be also inserted in other medium in the Dominion of Canada, on favorable terms.

For rates, &c., apply at office, 213 St. James street, Montreal.
