City not told of highway plan

It was news to council, news to those involved, and became news to the public Monday evening at city council's statutory August meeting.

The City of Montreal is considering a six-lane, limited-access service road for the Trans-Canada highway, to run across the southern edge of Westmount between Atwater avenue and Glen road. The plans threaten homes on Greene avenue that were rescued from demolition for the elevated highway and park land now under development by Westmount.

Though technically still on the drawing boards at the Montreal planning department, the highway plans have been debated with several groups affected by the proposal, but never with Westmount.

A source at the planning department told The Examiner Tuesday "discussions" have already been held with the Montreal Urban Community Transportation Commission, which would lose a repair shop if the road is built, and Bell Canada, which might lose considerable parking space.

The City of Westmount, through whose territory much of the proposed new highway runs, only learned of the plans "accidentally" last week.

News of the suggested highway came out at Monday night's city council meeting, when Ald. Douglas Robertson announced that the city will try to find out everything they could about it. The highway plans, he said, were discovered by architect Michael Fish, who has been planning a park for the lower Westmount area below the Trans-Canada highway.

The general idea behind the proposal,

Dark lines indicate planned highway according to the planning department, is to handle overflow traffic from the Trans-Canada highway, much as Cremazie boulevard and Jean Talon streets handle the overflow off the Metropolitan expressway in the north end of Montreal. Planners feel this would allow St. Antoine and St. James streets in St. Henri to be used exclusively by local vehicles.

Digging starts at Hillside

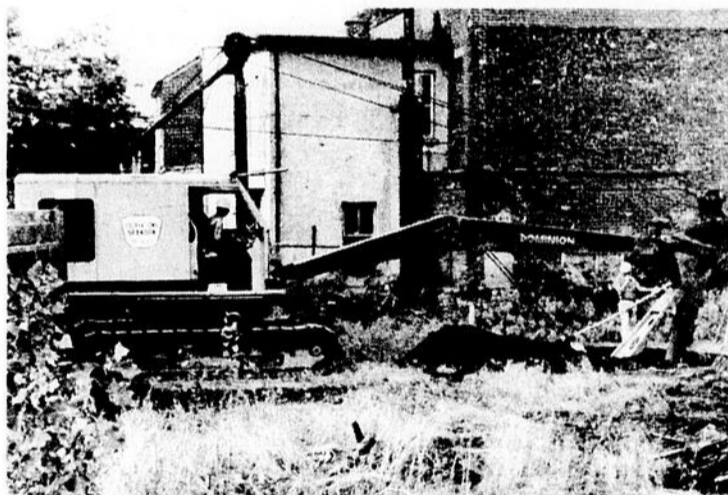

Ground was broken early Monday morning to start construction of the Hillside Place public housing project. Work began at the west end of the site following issuance of an excavation permit by the city on Friday.

A steam shovel unceremoniously dipped its claw into the ground with only construction workers on hand to mark the occasion. As with the contract-signing for the project, the city organized no ceremony for the event.

While excavation went on as planned, the on-again, off-again rail strike forced cancellation of plans of opponents of the project to hold a breakfast at the site this week.

The gathering, meant to demonstrate the noise near the site due to trains and the Trans-Canada highway, was originally scheduled for Tuesday morning, then postponed until this morning before it was cancelled completely Wednesday evening.

Opponents of the project are

CMHC has admitted that the Hillside site does not conform to the minimum standards of the National Housing Act but has not yet stated definitely if funds will be cut off. Quebec Housing

NEXT WEEK'S WEATHER

By ERIC NEAL

August 10 to 18

Our harvest season opens with this August Full Moon, and conditions will be mainly sunny and dry to the end of the month. Local thundersqualls travelling from the Great Lakes to the eastern seaboard will be complementary to similar American storms.

Nights become a little colder from Monday onwards, and northern counties are likely to have their first frosts, so the warm portion of our summer comes to an end.

Wide temperature range probable. Down to 30 degrees at dawn and up to 80 some days in the Laurentians and the north. Southern counties 40 and 85 degrees F. Rain, ¼". A coastal hurricane will drag cold air down from the icy north.

Vacation-time truck load

A typical vacation-time crime occurred last Tuesday during the day at 607 Clarke avenue, when thieves entered the rear window of the house after presumably backing a truck up to the rear door. They drove off with a 26-inch color television console they had brought down from the second floor, then added a camera and some jewelry to the haul.

Neighbors, according to detectives, were unaware of the incident.

Westmount police urge citizens to report to them any suspicious cars or trucks they might see around homes, especially during the summer holiday season when many of the houses are unoccupied.

Silver where?

Silverware and a small amount of jewelry were stolen from an apartment at 4500 de Maisonneuve boulevard during the day on Friday. Thieves entered the apartment by picking the lock.

Aye laddie, it's a wee world

Though astronauts circling the globe always remind us that it is a small world that we live in, an earthly example can strike home just as easily.

Ours this week was provided by Mrs. E. Dubois, 426 Clarke avenue, who drew to our attention the following clipping from a July issue of "The Scottish Express." It was sent to her by a Scottish friend and is entitled "Just fancy."

"Drivers who exchanged particulars after a bump on a road between Inverness and Nairn yesterday discovered they were both driving cars from the same hire firm, and both were on holiday from Westmount, Quebec."

Corporation has said it will pay the federal share should CMHC pull out.

Noise studied

Both CMHC and the opponents of the project are also awaiting an analysis by the National Research Council of decibel level tests done on the site some years ago.

At Monday evening's meeting of Westmount city council, the Hillside project was given only routine consideration as Ald. Donald MacCallum moved that the city redivide the lot on which the project is to be built in order to allow construction of four separate complexes on the one lot.

Since zoning requirements allow for only one building or complex per lot, the original cadastre number 4719 was divided into lot numbers 4719-1, -2, -3, and -4. On three of the lots, Ald. MacCallum explained, two structures with common heating and garage units will form complexes with about 18 units in each of them. Lot 4719-4 will have only one structure, comprised of nine units, built at the east end of the site.

Ald. MacCallum noted that the smaller structure may be enlarged if and when a second phase is ever added to the original units expected for completion next May.

City council also took note of official correspondence from the Quebec Housing Corporation confirming the order-in-council approving the housing project. The order was given on June 27.

With excavation work already underway, a building permit for the actual construction was expected to be issued at city hall this afternoon.

United churches to salute RCMP

"A Salute to the RCMP" will be the theme of the joint service held for the United Churches of Westmount at Westmount Park Church Sunday.

Originally known as the North-West Mounted Police, the force was created in 1873 by order-in-council, signed on August 30 of that year by Sir John A. Macdonald. Throughout this year observance is being made of the centennial, with both nationally and community sponsored events.

With the cooperation of A - Commr. M. J. Y. Dube, officer commanding 'C' Company, representatives of the Force will attend the service on Sunday, and will participate. His Worship Mayor Paul A. Ouimet has graciously consented to represent the City of Westmount and read a lesson.

Special music will be provided by the brass choir of the Canada Symphony, a young Westmount-based musical organization.

The Rev. J. Ernest Nix will conduct the service and preach on the centennial theme, both honoring the splendid contribution made by the RCMP in maintaining law and order over a vast area, and pointing up the necessity for the popular support of law by the people for the general welfare of the nation.

All are welcome to attend, and coffee will be served in Webster Hall at a social hour following the service.

We Say

Let's be underwhelmed

OLD houses have been in the Montreal news a lot lately.

Westmount has many old houses. The Montreal fuss has been over the old Van Horne residence on Sherbrooke street and the threat of its destruction to make way for something more modern and more profitable to someone.

Entangled in the arguments are the old railway tycoon and the house, separately or together for their parts in Montreal and Canadian history, and the house alone as an architectural object and-or its planning significance in the centre of town.

We happen to think that there have been, before and since, greater men to be honored and finer houses to be preserved and, therefore, the "historical site" case is rather weak.

However, the old house and its remaining neighbors are unprotected from the wreckers' hammers. Blockzoning philosophies and land-value economics do not envisage the virtue of interspersing new highrises with sound, eye-pleasing, soul-lifting contrasts from earlier eras. Thus the "historical site" route appeared to be the only avenue for seeking preservation—an object in which we heartily concur.

Westmount would do well to ponder the matter. We do not, yet, have the same pressures from replacing the old with the new which characterize downtown Montreal. But let us never forget that Westmount is not so much a suburb as a newer but associated inner-core city of Greater Montreal, and already we have experienced the encroachment of high-rises and artery-widenings, notably in the Atwater-Dorchester-Greene-de Maisonneuve area.

We can expect the impact of redevelopment in Westmount to intensify in the future. We perhaps do not have many buildings of truly historical significance. Yet there are structures and rows of them whose preservation is justified on purely aesthetic grounds, specially if they are to have overwhelming new neighbors.

A few months ago we suggested that consideration should be given to cease trying to find a developer to put another high-rise on the Tupper parking lot. We suggested, instead, a park with perhaps underground parking. Unrelieved large buildings, even when provided with imaginative setbacks, plazas and the like, still require the relief.

A plan for Westmount some years ago suggested that logically The Boulevard might be an area for high-rise development. We don't quarrel with that. As a through, inter-municipal artery it frequently earns the epithet "gasoline alley" and, given the geography of our island, likely is to remain heavily travelled.

However, if in due course fine homes on The Boulevard give way to apartment development, let it be planned that the change be tempered with variety and that some existing properties remain along the way with their particular character.

We readily appreciate that the problems will be more than just ones of city planning in the architectural sense and that the thornier questions will be economic, given our systems of valuation and local taxation.

Perhaps what we are saying is that our respected architectural and planning commission needs some broadening of the disciplines represented, to give it expertise in economics, taxation, social science and perhaps other study areas, bearing on shape, atmosphere, lifestyle and other features of the city of tomorrow.

It would be in keeping if Westmount were the model.

Foreign investment and tax incentives

Two weeks ago I had the pleasure of being in Westmount for a meeting with constituents on the subject of Canadian control of Canadian corporations. The range of discussion centered around two areas; one being the foreign investment review bill and the other being tax incentives. Two areas of clarification have presented themselves, which I would like to discuss in detail.

The first is the question of significant benefit. What is it? We believe that it is necessary to ensure that future foreign take-overs and the establishment of new foreign controlled businesses will be of significant benefit to Canada. How? By encouraging such enterprises to put greater efforts into: exporting and innovating, processing raw materials in Canada, procuring supplies in Canada, doubling Canadian managerial and technical talent, decision making, and risk taking.

In considering whether the foreign investors' proposed investment in the Canadian business will bring significant benefit to Canada five factors will be taken into account:

- 1) The effect of the proposed investment on the level and nature of economic activity in Canada, including employment;
- 2) The degree and significance of participation by Canadians in business enterprises and in any industry or industries in Canada of which it forms a part;
- 3) The effect of the proposed investment on productivity, industrial efficiency, technological development, product innovation and product variety in Canada;
- 4) The effect of the proposed investment on competition within any industry or industries in Canada; and
- 5) The compatibility of the investment with national industrial and economical policies, including those enunciated by the provinces.

Minister's role

In reviewing the proposed investment, the Minister may not be convinced it will bring significant benefit to Canada—or may wish to have more information with which to assess it. The Minister could discuss the matter with the foreign investors, with persons the foreign investor requests be consulted, and with the government of the province concerned. Those consulted would have the opportunity to make representations and to provide additional information. The investors may also offer additional undertakings.

tearing it down to make room for a more modern building. It is reported that the land has been purchased by Harry Bronfman, another Westmounter."

Fifteen Years Ago
August 8, 1958

"Miss Alice N. S. Lighthall, daughter of the late W.D. Lighthall, has offered to the City as a gift a portrait of her father who was Mayor of Westmount from 1900 to 1902. The Council at its meeting on August 4th accepted the gift on behalf of the City. It would appear that the late Mrs. LightHall expressed the wish that the portrait of her husband be offered to the City."

Five Years Ago
August 8, 1968

"The City of Westmount has signed an agreement with the Rubin Corporation Limited to prepare a feasibility study and a program for the eventual redevelopment of the urban renewal area in the south eastern section of the city. Mayor Tucker said that, under the terms of the agreement, the Rubin Corporation has the exclusive right to work on the development program until July 15, 1969."

The bill recognizes that foreign direct investment often brings benefits to Canada and has a role to play in development of the Canadian economy. Frequently the benefits can be improved and the Bill provides opportunities to improve them. It rules out discrimination among countries or retroactive discrimination against firms already located in Canada; but rather, is future oriented. The bill envisages a policy within the range of reasonable foreign investment policies being adopted by other countries.

The second point for clarification is the question of Canadian control and the 'presumption of non-eligibility.' The non-eligible person is defined precisely in the bill and includes a citizen of a foreign country who is not a landed immigrant in Canada; a landed immigrant who has been here for six years and has not become a Canadian citizen; or a Canadian citizen who is not ordinarily resident in Canada. Whether a person is ordinarily resident in Canada will, of course, depend on the facts of the case. The intention is that persons who do not have their main place of residence in Canada should be considered to be non-eligible.

The 'group' concept can be explained as follows: A corporation is presumed to be non-eligible if it is controlled by a group of persons any member of which is non-eligible. The concept is used because of the difficulty of penetrating the group to determine the degree of control exercised by any particular person, such as the non-eligible person. The effect of this is modified to a certain extent by clause 3(7).

Not understood

The presumptions of non-eligibility are a very important part of the bill and are probably an area that has caused a good deal of confusion because they are not clearly understood.

The presumption of non-eligibility of a corporation are: if more than five per cent of the voting shares are owned by any single non-eligible person, the corporation is presumed to be non-eligible or foreign controlled. . . the corporation is presumed—and I emphasize the word presumed—to be non-eligible or foreign controlled.

If 25 per cent of the voting shares of a publicly traded company—40 per cent of a private company — are owned by non-eligible persons in aggregate, again the company is presumed to be non-eligible, even if no single non-eligible shareholder owns five per cent or more.

The presumptions of non-eligibility do not attempt to define when a corporation is non-eligible or foreign controlled. If a company is controlled by a non-eligible person or foreigner, that company is foreign controlled and subject to review — regardless of the so called level of presumptions — whether the foreigner exercises control by means of three per cent of the voting shares or six per cent, ten per cent or any other percentage.

The presumption is mainly relevant where a transaction is brought before the court. It merely places the burden of proof on the non-eligible shareholder or shareholders involved, rather than on the government to demonstrate where control does, in fact, lie.

To discuss highly specific points of a bill in an article such as this has its limitations. However, my travel across western Canada recently, and my visit to Westmount have shown that these two questions are those most frequently asked by men of business. To misunderstand these two points is to miss the whole aim of the bill, which is to improve the benefits of foreign investment and to be fair and reasonable towards foreign investors. Should you wish to study the foreign investment review bill in its entirety, copies of it are available through my office at 283-5789.

Report shows deficit less than budgeted

Westmount's deficit for 1972 turned out to be less than half of the budgeted amount according to the city's financial statements that were approved by city council at their statutory August meeting Monday evening.

The actual deficit for the year turned out to be $261,513 while that budgeted $503,900; the difference due, in large part to the city's receipt of $364,000 more than expected as its share of provincial sales tax.

The announcement of this drew the largest laughter of the evening from council and the eight members of the public present as commissioner of finance Ald. Leeds Nelson explained that the rise in sales tax revenue was due to an increase in tax from liquor sales.

"I contributed most of it," he quipped, causing Mayor Ouimet to reply, "I trust this increase is a province-wide thing and not just in Westmount."

As the laughter ebbed, Ald. Nelson pointed out further highlights of the financial statements that have been delayed from their normal June release due to staff changes at city hall.

Other items that were substantially off budget included interest on tax arrears at $220,224, well above a budgeted $150,000, and $81,171 in rent from the MUC which was not budgeted at all.

Working the other way was revenue from light and power which, at $2,403,477, was $312,000 below budget. Sundry revenue, except for the MUC rent, was also less than expected and so were MUC taxes and collections. The 1972 deficit, though less than budgeted, still remains more than double that of 1971 which was $120,542.

Two adjacent houses on Victoria avenue were broken into last week, between Wednesday morning and Thursday evening. The window in the door of 537 Victoria avenue had been broken, and cash was missing from the building. Thieves entered 539 Victoria avenue by jemmmying the lock, then taking jewelry and a movie projector from the house. There was no damage to the interior of either house.

Nab pushers Busy, wet evening.

Westmount patrolmen found three youths pushing a car along Sherbrooke street early Saturday morning, and stopped them to find out what they were doing. The juveniles admitted they were trying to start the car, which they had stolen from behind 4250 Sherbrooke street.

It rained Monday night. If you didn't realize it, talk to the evening shift at the Westmount Fire Station. They knew. Some of the men chased as many as five different calls in a two-hour stretch; not for fires, for floods. They unplugged drains, mopped floors, helped carry furniture out of rain-soaked basements.

Many of the incidents involved problems which could have been avoided—if people would, for example, take last fall's leaves out of their drainpipes—though others were the result of backed-up sewers and drainpipes which could not take the incredible volume of water which came down in two different torrents.

Truck no. 23, Westmount's salvage vehicle, was dispatched to 656 Belmont avenue along with a pump truck at 7:14 pm. There they found a blocked street drain had caused a water-fall into the basement of the building.

Nine minutes later, the two trucks went off to Victoria Hall, where water backed up from the drain in the men's wash room had caused a flood. Once the salvage truck had been used to advantage, it took off to 3135 St. Antoine street, where a flooding back yard had poured under the door into the kitchen. Already there was another pump truck, no. 22, which had been called there at 7:32.

The salvage truck went back to Victoria Hall to help the pump-truck men still working there; later in the evening both crews were called to 499 Elm avenue, where a blocked roof drain had caused seepage into the house.

Meanwhile, no. 22 pump left the St. Antoine kitchen flood to answer a call at 88 Arlington avenue, where backed-up water from a plugged roof drain started dripping into the bathroom. On their arrival they were joined by a ladder truck and crew. Just after 8:00 it went on to the YMCA building on Sherbrooke street, where water was backed up from drains in the men's washroom. At 8:35, having finished at the YMCA, they went off to 1111 Greene avenue, where a woman reported a leaking roof. There seemed to be no problem with the drainpipes, so firemen helped mop up and told the owner to have the roof checked.

From there they were on to 81 Chesterfield avenue, where the drainpipe was indeed blocked. Water was leaking in through the ceiling, a problem quickly corrected by clearing the drain. The rain had stopped.

Highway . . .

The route envisioned would begin at the present St. James-St. Antoine intersection just outside Westmount, running with three lanes in either direction, at ground level, alongside the present Trans-Canada highway, through an industrial zone on the southern edge of Westmount.

Opposite the Imperial Tobacco building, the eastbound lane would swerve south through the railroad yards that are expected to be ripped up shortly, then join onto what is now St. Antoine street, which would be changed from a one-way west to a one-way east street. The east-bound lane would follow St. Antoine street, moving through the southern edge of Westmount and on into Montreal.

According to the plans, the entire westbound lane would pass through Westmount, joining up with what is now Selby street past Dawson college (it is not clear whether Dawson has been consulted about losing some parking space at the corner of Selby and Hallowell streets).

Constructed along the present Selby street, the westbound lane would then pass through the space now occupied by houses at the corner of Selby and Greene avenue, then down through the proposed park site north of Brooke avenue and north of Sheinart's store at the corner of Atwater avenue and St. Antoine street. It would cut across Atwater, joining up with the present route of St. Antoine street about a block east of Westmount city limits. From there, the planners say, St. Antoine would become a two-way street into the middle of the city.

"It will come as news also to the roads department," Ald. Robertson suggested, "which has tendered buildings along that right of way." Although the buildings in question will fall immediately south of the proposed route, maps seem to indicate, planners said they had not talked with the roads department about moving a pillar holding up the elevated expressway to allow the service road to pass by underneath.

"I don't think the citizens of Westmount have to be unduly concerned," a Montreal planning department spokesman said about what he considered just a "staff report."

"It's not the province that's doing it," he added, indicating there would be plenty of prior consultation with Westmount before construction began.

Rationale for the project, according to the spokesman, was to take the overflow traffic out of the heavily built-up district along St. James and St. Antoine streets. He said the only dwellings which would have to go would be four of the flats in the northernmost building on Greene avenue south of Selby street.

Mr. Fish, upon completion of his plans for a park between the Trans-Canada highway and the houses along St. Antoine street, had visited the Montreal Planning department to make sure the plans could go forward. He was reportedly incensed when he discovered the proposals, which would obliterate between one-third and one-half of the land he had hoped to use. "The Greene and St. Antoine houses and Dawson College would become islands between the two lanes of traffic," he suggested later.

Montreal planners, countering this argument, noted that the buildings are already "an island" between the expressway and St. Antoine street.

Fred Leclaire, who has been active in supporting development of the park, told Westmount alderman Monday night they should ignore the proposals and go ahead with the park "as is our right." "I think we have to stand up and just say 'to hell with you!'"

Alderman Robertson reminded Mr. Leclaire, however, that "an elephant never thinks of the grass he is trampling."

City Hall, meanwhile, has requested Montreal to send them all pertinent information about the plan and will give serious consideration to the implications of the proposal.

Pension plan overhaul fights inflation effects

Pensions for city employees exclusive of police and firemen received dramatic revision Monday night, as City Council agreed to take steps to bring them in line with inflation and cost of living increases.

The pensions, which were enacted in a bylaw dating back to 1966, have been under negotiation by employee representatives and city officials for several years now; the agreement approved Monday night takes note not only of inflationary trends but of Canadian and Quebec pension plans and old age pensions as they affect retired city personnel.

Ald. Leeds Nelson, in moving the amendments to the pension bylaw, noted three "major improvements" being made. First, pensions will be based on the average of the best seven years of an employee's salaries while with the city, rather than the best ten years as in the old bylaw.

"With inflation the way it is today," Ald. Nelson pointed out, "it's just not sensible to work on a ten-year basis."

The plan also allows for an interest rate on pension savings commensurate with the going bank interest rate on Jan. 1 of each year, rather than the old fixed two-per cent rate allowed under the old bylaw.

An employee "dismissed for cause," or fired by the city for unreasonable practice will receive interest on his pension earnings, a practice specifically prohibited under the old bylaw.

Further, city employees will be given the option, upon early retirement, of spreading out their pension payments to allow for more money to be paid before they begin receiving Quebec Pension Plan payments and old-age pensions when they reach the age of 65.

Driver appears in hit-run case

The hit-and-run automobile collision which occurred on Sherbrooke street west at Claremont avenue July 26 (see last week's Examiner) was solved Tuesday morning when Westmount police finally got in touch with the owner of the runaway vehicle involved.

John Voyatzis, 43, of Montreal had hit a parked truck owned by Bill Baker, also of Montreal, and had driven off without reporting the incident. A nearby witness had turned over the license number of Mr. Voyatzis' vehicle to Mr. Baker.

Mr. Voyatzis, when reached by police, claimed he had left his name and phone number on Mr. Baker's truck, but said an earlier incident in Montreal had led him to believe he did not have to report the collision to police. Montreal police had told him they were not to be called to take reports of minor collisions.

Mr. Voyatzis had caused $150 damage to Mr. Baker's truck.

Westmount police noted that it was clearly marked on Mr. Voyatzis' insurance card that he was to "report all accidents to police," noting this was for his own protection. He might otherwise be held responsible for claims having nothing to do with his specific accident.

Most people, police said, report even minor collisions to them.

'Splash bash' set Wednesday

One of the highlights of the summer at the Westmount swimming pool will be on Wednesday when the recreation department holds its first "splash bash."

The free pool party will, besides swimming, include games, dancing, music and, as pool officials say, plain old "fun."

The bash will take place in two stages; those 12 years old and under from six to eight o'clock in the evening and for those 13 and over and adults from eight until 11.

Pool officials say party-goers are welcome to bring their own snacks but ask that no glass containers be included.

Local boy earns lacrosse letter

Glenn Marshall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Marshall, 4998 de Maisonneuve boulevard, has been awarded a varsity letter for his performance as a junior midfielder with the 1973 Ithaca College lacrosse team.

The Ithacans won the ECAC New York State Tournament last May and finished the season with a 9-3 overall record. The team finished second in the Independent College Athletic Conference behind national small college champ Hobart.

Marshall, who earned his third varsity letter for the college, was a starter for the first midfield and scored 18 points for the Ithacans. He is a general studies major at Ithaca.

Equipment, asphalt tenders approved

Tenders for two new dump trucks, a snow blower and an ice resurfacing machine were approved without contest at Monday night's City Council meeting, putting the city on the line for $106,400.

International Harvester, the only company to offer the city dump trucks, will sell two of them for $24,660.

SMI Industries Ltd., the only company to offer an acceptable tender for a snow blower unit, will sell one to the city for $58,608.

Frank J. Zamboni & Company Limited offered the city an ice resurfacing machine for the skating rink, to cost $15,231.

Asphalt bought

Council also agreed to purchase over $46,500 worth of asphalt for city streets for resurfacing work to commence in early September. Contracts for both 1½-inch surfaces and 3-inch surfaces went to Charles Duranceau Limitee, the lowest among five companies offering the city their wares. Duranceau was willing to lay 1½-inch layers for $40,516.13 and 3-inch layers for $6,019.65.

Beaver Asphalt Paving Co. Ltd., which won two of the three contracts last year, came a close second in its bids, asking

Cedar accident leads to charge for no license

A car which went out of control on Cedar avenue last Wednesday evening caused considerable property damage to two different lawns and resulted in charges being laid against the unlicensed driver of the vehicle.

Cliff Clemons, a 20-year-old Montrealer, was headed east on Cedar avenue near Mountain avenue at about eight pm in a 1973 Buick owned by a New York City woman. As he came around the corner, Mr. Clemons lost control of his car and went onto the sidewalk, hitting a lamp standard.

From there the car went onto the lawn at 3275 Cedar avenue, causing considerable damage. Still moving, the car hit a retaining wall at 3269 Cedar avenue and caused considerable damage to that lawn before finally coming to a stop.

The front end of the car was demolished and the windshield was smashed, though Mr. Clemons was not hurt.

He will be charged in Westmount court for driving without a license.

$41,533.66 for the 1½-inch paving and $6,108.83 for the 3-inch work. Bids were also received from the Francon division of Canfarge, Ltd., La Compagnie Meloche Inc. and Demix Laval Ltee. All of their bids were considerably higher.

Last year well over $10,000 more was spent on resurfacing streets than is expected to be spent this year, since the city asked for "deep-strength" asphalt in addition to the two surfacing contracts.

Thom takes top title

City Council agreed Monday night that Alderman James Thom would become acting mayor of Westmount in September for a four-month period, replacing Ald. William Wood who has held the post for the past four months. The title means Ald. Thom will chair council meetings and fill in for Mayor Paul Ouimet when he is away from the city between September and December.

Sign of times

Two young women were caught Wednesday in Steinberg's at Alexis Nihon Plaza trying to walk off with seven steaks they had cached in their handbags. The two, both from Verdun, are single and unemployed, 18 and 21 years old.

The steaks would have retailed for about $16.

Perhaps it's a sign of the times.

Council makes dozen stops

"Stop" signs are to be erected along Windsor, Chesterfield, Burton and Springfield avenues, it was decided Monday night by city council.

Burton and Springfield avenues will each have signs installed at both ends, causing traffic to stop at Claremont and Victoria avenues as it comes off Burton, and at Mount Stephen and Metcalfe avenues coming off Springfield.

Signs will be put on Windsor avenue at the intersections of Claremont and Victoria avenues; similar signs will go up on Chesterfield avenue for both of those streets. As well, signs on Chesterfield will stop traffic in both directions, at Prince Albert avenue thus creating a four-way stop arrangement at that intersection.

In all, 12 new stop signs will appear shortly in Westmount.
