Joan Goodfellow, Daughter Of Former Huntingdon Citizen Reported Missing

A story has been appearing in the Daily newspapers concerning the daughter of a former resident of Huntingdon, Mr. Allan W. Goodfellow, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Goodfellow. The daughter, Joan Goodfellow, 27, was not born here, but was known to a number of people in Huntingdon. She together with companion embarked on an exploration tour of the vast uninhabited areas around the Great Bear Lake in the Northwest Territories in June and they are now believed lost. Mr. Goodfellow, her father, is superintendent of the Fraser Company Ltd., pulp and paper plant at Plaster Rock, N.B.

Just before going on the trip Joan wrote a letter to her aunt telling of what the two women were going to do. Excerpts from that letter are given below.

"Thoroughly enjoying the preparations for our trip, as it will no doubt be a 'once in a lifetime experience. We will be travelling by canoe and outboard motor along the northwest corner of Great Bear Lake, that part called Smith Arm. Annemarie worked farther to the east two years ago so is quite familiar with the country. We have two main projects — to get the elevations of former lake levels, and to map surface materials and land forms. The former lake levels are recorded above present lake level in the form of boulder beaches We have surveying equipment to get the exact elevation. From these heights plus the mapping of landforms, we hope to be able to discover something of the geologic history within the last 5,000 to 8,000 years — the period within which the continental ice cap melted. We will also be making notes on everything we observe — ice conditions on the lake which is not entirely ice-free until August; winter currents, vegetation, animal life, weather conditions, etc. So we will be filling innumerable note books. We are also going to collect plant specimens for the National Museum and I am supposed to produce a map of vegetation. Very few people have been in this area, so there are quite a few question marks about the nature of the country.

We leave Ottawa June 22nd, fly to Yellowknife and charter a plane from there on the 25th. It will carry us, the canoe and equipment and food supplies. Another plane flies in extra food and gas from Fort Norman at the end of July, and then we are picked up about Labor Day."

The story changes as word was received that an air search for the two young women had been launched, when their canoe had been seen overturned and no trace of them when supplies were flown in.

Air Search Launched For Two Women Scientists

An air search has started for two women scientists — one of them from Montreal — who are on an exploration tour of the vast uninhabited areas around the Great Bear Lake in the Northwest Territories.

The department of mines and technical surveys in Ottawa said that the women had not been heard from for three weeks, although they were supposed to have received air supplies at pre-arranged spots.

The department identified the women as Annemarie Kroger, of the department of geography at McGill University, and Joan Goodfellow of the geographical branch of the Department of Surveys in Ottawa.

A spokesman for the department said that there was not yet reason for alarm. The girls had food with them for three weeks. They were flown into the area 1,500 miles north of Edmonton by Pilot Bob Sabelraj on June 25.

Other pilots were to stop each week with additional supplies but were unable to locate the girls.

Five planes led by Sabelraj swept the area Monday and yesterday but failed to sight the young students.

The information which the team of women geographers is intended to obtain will help scientists to understand the melting of the ice which covered the Northwest Territories during the Ice Age.

Police Find Girls' Canoe

RCMP searchers found the girls' overturned canoe on the northwest shores of Good Hope Bay and their life jackets in the water two miles away.

"We have every reason to believe the girls were drowned," an RCMP spokesman said after the finds were reported.

An air-and-water search will continue.

They were reported missing Monday July 18th, after scheduled air contacts July 4 and 12 showed no signs of life at their campsite near the Katseyedie River.

Slim Hope Still Held For Women

Mines Department officials are optimistic and the RCMP pessimistic about the fate of two women geographers missing in the Great Bear Lake area of the Northwest Territories.

Joan Goodfellow, 27, of Plaster Rock, N. B., and Anne Marie Kroeger, 35, of Montreal, were reported missing July 18 after their 17-foot freighter canoe was found 1,500 miles north of Edmonton. Two life jackets were found two miles from the canoe.

The department said in a statement that the unmarried women were seasonal employes of the department engaged in a project to investigate raised beaches as an aid to interpreting the glacial history of the Great Bear Lake region.

In the Commons, Mines Minister Comtois said the women are students and not regular employes of his department. He said they were appointed through universities by the Arctic Institute of North America.

He was having the incident investigated and would make a full report later to the House.

The department statement said the freighter canoe may have drifted from shore while the women were working on land. For this reason an air and ground search would be continued.

A Mines Department official said the women were veteran geographers. Both had done summer work for the department for several years.

Survival equipment issued to the women included a fish net and a rifle.

An RCMP spokesman said Wednesday that there is every reason to believe the women drowned.

The women were working on a joint project conducted by the Mines Department and the Arctic Institute. Miss Kroeger, a native of Hamburg, Germany, had worked on the project in 1958 and was considered a competent bush woman.

Miss Goodfellow has been doing post-graduate work in geography at the University of Toronto during the last two years.

Educated at schools in Plaster Rock, she attended high school in Stanstead, Que. Later she received her Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of New Brunswick at Fredericton and her Master's degree in geography at Clarke University, Worcester, Mass.

The foregoing tells the story as far as it is known to date. There are still beliefs that the young women may have gone along the shore into the inland in search of the information they needed. Their canoe may have drifted out from shore while they were gone, and a number of other reasons why they have not been spotted. Meanwhile, the parents and other friends await anxiously for more and definite news as to the fate of these young women.

'Busco Customs Now Open Until Midnight

Congressman Dean P. Taylor, 31st Congressional District, in a recent letter advised Assemblyman Robert Feinberg, Clinton County, that, in a letter from Ralph Kelley, Commissioner of Customs, in Washington, D.C., that the Collector of Customs at Ogdensburg has been authorized to provide inspection service at Churubusco between the hours of 8 a.m. and midnight during period July 18th to September 15th, 1960 and also has been arranged with the I.M.F. to (supply additional manpower necessary to provide the same. Also the same to be extended in 1961 from June 1 to September 15th.

In same letter Commissioner Kelley also advised that the Bureau of Customs has been informally advised the Department of Canadian National Revenue that the same hours of service will be provided at Franklin Center Station below Churubusco.

Supervisor Hugh Kavanagh Churubusco, has worked tirelessly with Customs Officials to obtain this service. — "Chateaugay Record."

W. E. Flynn Wins In Brigade Driving Competition

SOEST, Germany, July 15 — Individual competition among the best military drivers of Canada's 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group ended last month with Corporal Robert Ducharme of Craig Siding, Man., a member of 2nd Battalion Queen's Own Rifles taking top honours.

Out of a possible of 390 points Cpl. Ducharme tallied 367 to win the NATO brigade' Safe and Skilled Driving Competition.

Immediately behind him Bombardier Charles H. Robinson of Fredericton, N.B., took second place and Pte. Calvin F. Snow, 1 Tpt Coy of RR-4 Tadamagouche, N.S., came in third. These three soldiers have earned the right to represent the brigade in similar tests slated to be held in Canada later this year.

The team copetition between all brigade units was won by four drivers from 1st Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery. In addition to Bombardier Robinson the gunner-drivers were L/Bdr George Harper of Lethbridge, Alta.; and Cnrs Keith B. Shearer of Truro, N.S. and William E. Flynn of Huntingdon, Que. Gnr. Shearer won the competition last year and took part in competitions in Toronto in 1959.

Each of the 44 Competitors in the recent trials were required to observe very stringent rules. In addition to faults committed during tests points were deducted for leaning out of cabs and improper driving postures. Each driver was required to carry out parallel parking, straight line driving, serpentine driving driving through lanes of diminishing clearances and various types of backing and parking. When not at the wheel drivers took written tests on general driving questions, fire fighting and first aid.

According to Capt. Patrick E. Strump of London, Ont., director of the safe and skilled driving trials the three drivers who won a future trip to Canada "have a very good chance in the Armed Services portion of the Automotive Transport Association's truck roadeo in Toronto this fall".

Robert Howson of Valleyfield, took the high overall with a score of 237 x 250, the doubles championship - 45 x 50, and the handicap event with 95 x 100, and was runner-up in the singles event after a thrilling shootoff with Harry Willsie of Montreal.

The event took place at the weekend at Ste Barbe. Robert Howson, who has been shooting only four years, will have for his mantle for the next twelve months, the Omer DeSerres trophy. The William Haynes trophy, and the Molson's trophy, emblematic of the handicap, doubles, and high overall events respectively.

A father and son team also did very well at the meet. Emile Leduc, who is president of the Quebec Provincial Trap Association, was runner-up in the handicap event with 94 x 100 and his son Adelard was runner-up in the doubles with 44 x 50 and third in the high overall with 228 x 250. Tension was high Sunday afternoon when three shooters tied with 97 x 100 for the runner-up spot in the singles. Eddie Tuvo of Montreal, Robert Howson and Harry Willsie met in a shoot-off. Howson shot a 23 x 25, Willsie also shot a 23 x 25, Tuvo, after shooting brilliantly earlier in the day, dropped out with a 20 x 25.

In the second round Howson shot a perfect 25 x 25 while Willsie dropped one to settle the positions.

Mrs. A. Moe, Sr. Observes 108th Birthday

MRS. A. MOE, SR.

On Thursday, July 21st, Mrs. A. Moe Sr. observed her 108th birthday at her home when many friends called to congratulate her. She was the recipient of numerous good wishes both personal and by mail.

A traditional birthday cake, made by her granddaughter, Mrs. Lloyd Sproule, and decorated by her daughter, Mrs. Robert McDougall, was shared by local friends and sent to relatives unable to be present for the birthday.

"Not too many more!" was the reply given by Mrs. Moe when wishes for many "happy returns" were expressed by friends.

"She is the oldest living blind person in Canada," stated Mr. R. Corbeil, field secretary of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in Valleyfield.

Born in Hinchinbrooke, Que., in 1852, Mrs. Moe, who was married in 1874, has outlived three of her seven children. She has 24 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

When asked her secret for longevity, Mrs. Moe answered: "Clean living and hard work." She also stated: "I guess God has forgotten me on earth, so in the meantime I pray for all the blind in Canada."

Mrs. Moe enjoys the talking-books which she receives from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. She is now permanently confined to bed, due to general weakness.

On C.B.M. at 9.30 a short program featuring Mrs. Moe was conducted by Mr. Ted Millar.

Holstein Twilight Meeting Held At J. J. Murphy Farm

On Tuesday evening, July 19, the Holstein Twilight Meeting was held at the farm of Mr. J. J. Murphy and Son. The meeting was opened by the president Leslie Hay followed by a judging demonstration given by Mr. Pierre Leonard, Provincial field man, which was of interest to all. Mr. Cecil Murphy then brought forward four of his fine cows for the judging competition under the direction of Mr. Leon Beaudin, and they were judged by some 125 guests. The official judges were Mr. Pierre Leonard and Mr. J. D. Lang. During the checking of the cards, Leslie thanked Mr. J. J. Murphy for being host to the Holstein Club and then called upon him to say a few words, which he very fittingly did, followed by Mr. A. Pinsonneault, who stressed R.O.P. very strongly, as he said that there were very few R.O.P. herds in this district. Mr. Lang then urged the farmers to make farming interesting for their sons so that they will be anxious to carry on. Mr. Leonard spoke on registration of cattle and how a person goes about registering his herd. Delicious refreshments were then served, which brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

Three Children Killed In Accident Near Quebec

A tragic accident affecting local families occurred the past week near Quebec City. Three young children were struck by a car on a road near their home on the outskirts of Quebec City, and killed.

The victims were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Saumier, Mr. Saumier being a son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Saumier of Huntingdon, Que. The names of the children were Jacques, age 10; Michel, age 4 and Line, age 1 year. Mrs. Saumier, the mother, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Leblanc of St. Agnes de Dundee. The little victims are nephews and niece of Messrs. Heliodore, Isaie, Omer and Leo Saumier, of Huntingdon.

The accident occurred when Mrs. Herve Crete was driving toward Quebec and wanted to pass a bus which had stopped. In doing so, she hit the bus causing her car to go out of control. After hitting the bus she tore down about fifty feet of fence, hit two trees, then hit the children and another tree when the car went into a ditch and turned in the opposite direction. Two of the children were walking along the road, pulling a wagon in which the youngest was riding. They were going to visit at another home along the road. All three children were killed instantly.

L/Cpl Arthur Saumier has been attached to the military camp at Val Cartier for the past six years, but at the time was on special maneouvers in New Brunswick. With him was his brother Lionel and Mrs. Crete's husband.

All three were called to Quebec and arrived there on Saturday afternoon, the same day on which the accident occurred.

Mr. and Mrs. Saumier had four children, but one, a daughter, was visiting in Huntingdon with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Saumier, at the time.

People in Huntingdon and district were shocked when they heard the tragic news and the sympathy of all goes out to the bereaved families.

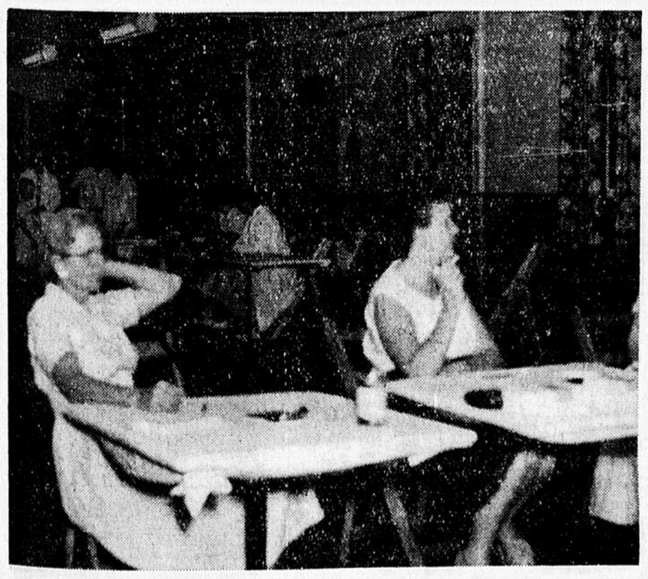

The bodies were brought to Huntingdon and rested at the Montpetit Funeral Home, from where funeral service was held at 10 a.m. Wednesday. Interment was made at St. Agnes de Dundee.

First Polio Clinic Held Under Auspices of the March of Dimes at Legion Hall

For the first time a Polio Innoculation Clinic was held in Huntingdon on Tuesday evening, July 19th, under the March of Dimes and sponsored by the Huntingdon Branch of the Canadian Legion at the Legion Hall, Fairview Road. It was well attended, 205 persons receiving their first polio shots. In the photos above — first — is the registration tables. While behind are the tables where the nurses and vaccine were stationed. The next photo shows a very young person receiving a shot administered by Dr. George Lefebvre. The last shows a look of apprehension on the face of this little more advanced recipient about to receive her shot. But it is all over in very short time. Those receiving their first shot will return again in about one month's time to receive the second shot. A longer period will go by until the third and last shot is given. This is where part of the money goes that is collected annually during the March of Dimes campaign conducted by the Canadian Legion. Remember this when you are asked to leave your porch light on in the next campaign.

CHEVROLET BUILDS A BETTER JOB TO DO YOUR JOB BETTER!

They've got the industry's greatest engineering advances — the best power plants going — outstanding stamina for whipping schedules — plus real dollar-saving economy. Truck men clear across Canada know it... and sales figures prove it... CHEVROLET is the best truck you can buy anywhere.

15,000 POUND SINGLE OR OPTIONAL 2-SPEED REAR AXLE — Standard axle's rugged, hypoid gears convert driveline torque into power to move the loads faster, more efficiently.

EXTRA-DUTY 11-INCH COIL SPRING CLUTCH — New hydraulic clutch control system and arched cover openings ensure smoother, cooler operation and longer facing life.

JOBMASTER SIX — Here's the low-cost answer to your heavier hauling problems. Efficient six-cylinder design makes the Jobmaster a natural choice for thrift. Standard on many 60 series models.

4- and OPTIONAL 5-SPEED TRANSMISSIONS — Chevrolet transmissions make truck driving just about as smooth as jockeying the family car. And they're tough, built to take miles more, years more wear.

FRONT SUSPENSION — Independent front suspension with torsion springing gives the best truck ride ever designed. Result: faster, smoother running over rough going, years longer truck life.

VARIABLE-RATE TWO STAGE REAR SPRINGS — Now . . . Two-stage smoothness! When the truck is empty, only a light part of the spring is in action. Full load causes full springing . . . you ride softer all the time.

Chevrolet trucks have earned first place in sales. And engineering advancements of the kind you see above are a big part of the reason. That's why your new truck should be a Chevrolet. Take advantage of other truck men's experiences with Chevrolet. Because whatever job you have in mind, from transcontinental hauling, to a door-to-door milk run, you know Chevrolet has been doing it for years, and making it pay like no other truck can. Fire on Farm Tuesday

The Huntingdon Fire Department received word at 12.30 p.m. on Tuesday that the barn on the late Hearn Graham farm six miles south of Huntingdon on Route 52, near Herdman, was burning. Six men from the Volunteer Fire Dept. immediately started out with the booster pump and small truck and by one o'clock the men, with help of neighbors who had formed a bucket brigade, had the fire under control and shortly after the fire was extinguished. The barn was empty and cause of the fire is unknown. The fact that there is a dug well on the farm and therefore an abundant water supply, was also a factor in keeping damage to a minimum. The farm is presently owned by Robert Barrette. Tenants are a Dutch family, the father being employed by Tully Bros.

Chateaugay Man Held In Shooting Of Widow

James H. Seymour, 22, of Chateaugay who is accussed of assault first degree with a deadly weapon in the Sunday morning (July 17th) shooting and wounding of Mrs. Shirley J. Goodchild of Brainardsville, was committed to the Clinton county jail in Plattsburgh Monday night following a hearing before Justice of the Peace Floyd Lashway of Ellenburg Center.

Seymour did not enter a plea at the hearing and arraignment was adjourned until the following evening. Seymour was represented by Attorney Allan Light of Plattsburgh.

Seymour was the object of an intensive manhunt conducted by Troop B State Police and FBI from dawn Sunday until 11:40 a.m. Monday when he surrendered voluntarily to police at his parents' home on the Dupree road in Chateauguay.

The shooting took place at Mrs. Goodchild's home about two miles east of Brainardsville in the town of Ellenburg. According to the doctor who attended Mrs. Goodchild the blast from the .12 gauge shotgun allegedly used in the shooting tore away the forearm of her right arm, seriously lacerated the left arm and inflicted less serious wounds in the chest. She underwent surgery at the Malone hospital and is reported doing very well.

Dr. J. A. Davidson Named On Team Going To Congo

Dr. Phil Edwards of Montreal, a specialist in tropical diseases and one of Canada's all-time greats in track and field, was one of four doctors named yesterday to two Canadian Red Cross medical teams being organized by the United Nations for service in the Congo.

With Dr. Edwards will be Dr. Roger Paulin, also of Montreal, Dr. J. A. Davidson, of Ormstown, Que., and Dr. Jonathan Sinclair, of Toronto.

Dr. Edwards, now 52, won three third-place bronze medals for Canada in Olympic competion while a student at McGill University.

A native of British Guiana, Dr. Edwards graduated in medicine at McGill in 1936 and set up practice in Trinidad where he remained until his enlistment in the Canadian Army in 1942. He was captured by the Japanese at Hong Kong.

A specialist in chest diseases, tropical diseases and parisitology, he lectured during the war at Macdonald College where he held classes on tropical diseases for Canadian Navy doctors.

After the war he joined the Department of Veterans Affairs and now has an office and clinic at the Queen Mary Veterans' Hospital.

Dr. Paulin, 38, is a surgical specialist in two Montreal hospitals.

The four doctors are all bilingual.

ALCOHOLICS MOLLYCODDLED SAYS MINISTER

The public attitude toward the alcoholic has become so soft, maudlin and sentimental that it actually weakens his resolve to give up drinking.

That's the contention of the Rev. A. J. MacLachlan, chaplain of an Ontario mental hospital who also says in the current MacLean's that psychologists and social workers working with alcoholics are guilty, too, of mollycoddling them.

"I hold no brief for the old-fashioned harsh treatment (whereby) the man who drank too much was stigmatized as a drunkard and condemned as a wicked fellow," the chaplain says. "On the other hand, I'm convinced that the pendulum has swung too far in the opposite direction."

He says the "disease approach" to alcoholism has boomeranged because it provides the man himself with an easy way out.

"Many alcoholics adopt an attitude which is passive, defeatist and non-cooperative. They say to the therapist, "Here I am, doctor. I'm your problem. Give me the pill that will cure me.' "

Instead of absolving the alcoholic of responsibility, those who want to help him should take an approach that would make him realize he is "the architect of his own disaster" and make him resolve to change, the Rev. MacLachlan says.

The disease approach, he contends, is "a superficial and often dangerous diagnosis - one that may prevent the alcoholic from coming to grips with the moral problems that lie at the root of his difficulties."

Autumn

Canada is approaching Autumn, with all its beauty, its serenity, its pleasures - and its problems.

Canadians, in their thousands, are approaching their own personal Autumn, many of them viewing it from many years distant, many of them on its threshold - and thousands have passed it, and known its beauty, its serenity, its pleasures - and its problems.

The population of this country is entering a new era - the era of the old. A generation or so ago, the aged person was in a small minority - today his numbers are increasing. No so long ago, age sixty was considered advanced in years - today, the sixty-year-old is regarded as an older man but not a has-been. There are several movie stars who, past sixty years, are still playing romantic parts.

In other fields, our statesmen aren't too old when they get well into their seventies. Toscanini and other famous men and women in the arts ranged anywhere in the seventies and eighties. At this time, instead of thinking that this is near the end, the sixty-five-year-old can, on the say-so of the statisticians, look forward to another fifteen or twenty years - and who should know better than the men and women who collate the human facts of then and now?

There's a lot of good advice available to the fifty-and sixty-year olds and the best of it suggests that for at least ten years before the subject reaches the time when he must retire from his job, he should engage in some preparation for those days when life won't be a jump for the alarm clock, a hurried breakfast, a wild dash for the bus or to get his car started on its daily battle with all the other cars. The first few weeks of making insulting gestures at the sound of that waker-upper will be fun but then the novelty will wear off and, instead of puzzling about some problem on the job, which can be bothering, he won't have any puzzling to do, which can be worse.... much worse, mentally and physically.

Most people have grand ideas as to what they would do if they had time — and some of the ideas are too grand. But most of us have a few sneaking ideas that, given a few hours of leisure, certain hobbies and studies and odd jobs could prove very satisfying, or even profitable.

Well, perhaps you will have no need of extra cash after you retire; perhaps you will need to augment that pension. Go ahead — try out those ideas now or when you reach your fifties. Your project may need study, or equipment, or training. Give yourself ten years, while you can still afford those expenses, and experiment with the things you have thought you could accomplish.

Don't forget, the creative occupation will prove more satisfying to most people than the leisure hour pastime. You may always have wanted to study Chinese or music or to collect this and that, but unless you have another hobby which you can put to some practical use, you won't get so much satisfaction out of it. You may be able to ask your Chinese restaurateur for your order in his own language and to enquire as to his health — but you won't get the same feeling of pride as you will out of the beautiful picture you painted, or chair you upholstered. The job you work on in someone's lovely flower garden may bring you money and pleasure if you have given time to studying the subject.

After fifty, you'll be just a little slower than you were when you were in your teens, so allow yourself extra time for your preparation for retirement. If it would help, attend night classes at your local Technical School; at hobby classes there, you'll find plenty of your contemporaries. Most of them are serving their apprenticeship to their future, too.

BEAVER COLONY

CALGARY (CP) The fish and game league was told that a colony of about 30 beaver is annoying farmers in the High River area by feeling trees and changing water courses. The provincial government offered the farmers special licences permitting destruction of the animals, but the fish and game association suggested borrowing traps and catching the beaver for the Calgary zoo.

Go-Cart Craze Denounced By Quebec Safety League

The Province of Quebec Safety League strongly opposes the use of miniature motor vehicles commonly called "Go-carts" by drivers below licensing age of 17.

While the law excludes such vehicles - designed primarily for use by children - from public streets and highways, there is little or no control over their use on private property. As a result, two children have been injured quite recently by such "go-carts" driven by boys aged 14. In some other parts of the country and in some States a great number of children were killed or injured in such "speed events" often sponsored by irresponsible adults.

The Province of Quebec Safety League therefore urges parents, dealers in such motorized vehicles and organizations to refrain from sponsoring competitive events using miniature vehicles driven by children, and to exert every effort that such "go-carts" are at no time operated by persons under legal driver age of 17.

"Go-carts" run on a gazoline motor similar to a power mower, some equipped with brakes while others are nothing more than "motorized soap boxes" which the driver stops with his feet.

Parents should know, said Paul Leboeuf, General Manager of the Safety League, "that lasting attitudes are formed in childhood." The attitudes involved in racing "Go-carts" are wrong ones because they condition youngsters to both speed and competition which they might later display on streets and highways with more tragic results.

A child, said Paul Leboeuf, is in even a greater danger in a "Go-cart" than if he were driving an automobile, which he cannot be allowed to do in Quebec until the age of 17, and at that age a good driver education course is essential to traffic safety."

Missile Can Extinguish Fires Before Flames Out Of Control

News of a remarkable fire fighting appliance designed to deal with fires occurring with crashed aircraft but which obviously has further possibilities, comes from a U.S. concern, The Solar Aircraft Company. It is in the form of a guilded missile which is launched like a rocket and which hovers like a helicopter.

Known as the Firefly, it can reach anywhere within five miles in 40 sec. It is fired and guided by push buttons and when it reaches the scene, the unmanned craft turns into a helicopter and hovers over the area. Then the remote operator by using a switch can release more than a ton of extinguishing liquid over the area before the flames can get out of control.

Looks Like Jet

The Firefly looks like a small jet aircraft with helicopter blades in its tail and a fire nozzle in its nose. A solid propellent rocket under the fuselage shoots the missile into crusing altitude. When in flight, it operates as a fixed wing aircraft. The three rotor blades are locked back to serve as tail surfaces. The Firefly is transformed into a helicopter by unlocking its rotors and firing small rocket motors in each rotor blade tip.

The missile-helicopter reaches its goal in three flight stages: (1) a ballistic trajectory: (2) powered level flight and glide, and (3) deceleration and hovering. It picks up commands from a remote operator through an electronic "brain", and translates these into mechanical control of its devices. Radar and electronic sensing devices in the vehicle enable the operator to discover where and how severe a fire is and where and how much fire extinguishing fluid to release.

Do Americans Consider War Inevitable?

The United States has become "a country where a great many people take it for granted that nuclear war, if not inevitable, is at least likely, according to Ian Sclanders, Washington editor of Maclean's Magazine.

Reporting in the current issue, Sclanders says the U.S. has become a country that "rings with cries for more weapons, drafts eight thousand men a month... a country where bomb shelters are almost as familiar as fire hydrants and where the governor of New York, Nelson Rockefeller, seriously proposes that family fallout shelters should be mandatory."

He says war jitters in the U.S. can be blamed to a large extent on propaganda from the armed forces, which want bigger appropriations, armament makers wanting fatter contracts, professional anti-Communists and other groups, each with its own motive for making the cold hotter.

To Canadians, cold war means an uneasy and uncertain peace, but to Americans it means an actual conflict which, though bloodless, must be fought and won by building up military power that will discourage Communist aggression, Sclanders says.

In their campaigns to convince Americans that "a hot war may be lurking around the corner," the propagandists are abetted by newspapers like those of the Hearst and Scripps - Howard chains, the Chicago Tribune, and certain radio commentators "whose refrain is that Americans are in dire peril from Communists within and without."

So far, he adds, "jittery Americans still seem to be outnumbered by cooler Americans — among them President Eisenhower and other leaders — who feel that nuclear war can and must be avoided."

Sclanders says the prospect in the immediate future is that the U.S. as a whole will stay apprehensive enough to push preparedness forward but — unless the unexpected happens — won't panic and precipitate a hot war.

The incidence of defective cars is too serious to ignore. The government should take steps to activate some method of car testing and certification. — Cnilliwack (B.C.) Progress.

Power Mower Menace

POWER MOWERS, especially rotaries with their powerful propeller blades, are notorious for clipping off hands, toes and feet. Less well known, but more insidious, is the rotary's ability to pick up and hurl objects and broken blades at a speed of nearly 200 miles per hour. These missiles fly indiscriminately, striking down mower operators and innocent bystanders.

Among the identified flying objects are rocks, wire, oyster shells, rope, pieces of aluminium, bits of clothes hangers, nails, bones and mower blades.

Take a look at these mower tragedies:

A four-year-old Chicago boy sitting in a swing watching his father mow the lawn, suddenly screamed and fell unconscious. Protruding from between his eyes and piercing his brain was an 8-inch long scrap of copper wire, cast off by the mower. After brain surgery, the boy died in the hospital of blood poisoning.

A 15-year old Oklahoma boy was more fortunate. The mower he was operating lurched and he felt a pellet hit his stomach. He was not in pain, but his stomach felt a little sore. A few hours later surgeons removed a 2-inch rusty nail that had passed through his stomach and come to rest in the abdominal cavity. The boy recovered with no permanent ill effects.

A middle-aged man cutting the lawn of his ranch, ran his mower over a strip of baling wire. The blade snipped off a one-inch piece, flipped it back over the mower and deep into the man's chest, killing him.

Especially pathetic was the strange killing of a 58-year-old man by a neighbor's power mower. The man had just concluded a chat with his neighbor and was strolling back across the street toward home when he fell dead with his neighbor's mower blade planted firmly in his back.

A Florida woman was killed by a blade that sailed 50 feet from a mower and through a window pane before striking her.

How to control flying missiles

Make sure the area to be mowed is clear of all wires, stones and other objects.

Examine area for rough spots, such as tree roots, which might break blade, then avoid them.

Never allow children or adults in the immediate mowing area.

Police identified the boy as Bob Dunk, age 16, of 65 Hillside Ave., Lakeside, Point Claire, employed for the summer vacation on the farm of Mr. George Hayter, Athelstan Road. Mr. Hayter told a Gleaner representative that Bob, who also worked last summer on the farm, had gone into town and was apparently on his way home when the mishap occurred.

It is believed the front wheel of Bob's bicycle came off and he was thrown over the handlebars to the pavement. At first is was thought the bicycle had been struck by a car, but such was not the case. The wheel was found 200 feet from where the boy fell.

Bob is now up and around in the hospital and will be released in a few days.

Post Cards To Have New Postage Stamp

The Postmaster General, the Hon. William Hamilton, today announced that a new postage stamp impression will be used on post cards issued by the Post Office Department. The new stamp impression will also be used on the post bands sold for the mailing of newspapers and magazines but there will be no change in the design used on stamped envelopes.

The stamp impression will bear the same portrait of Her majesty Queen Elisabeth, reproduced photographically, as the portrait which now serves on all stamped postal stationery. The basic difference in the new stamp is the word "CANADA" appearing in open Roman lettering on a solid background of colour, and the use of a larger numeral indicating the postal value.

In announcing the new post cards, Mr. Hamilton stated that some cards of the old type are still in stock at post offices and that these should last approximately one month. The cards will come into use at various post offices whenever new supplies are required.

It will not be possible to provide first day cover service for philatelists with the new stationery because of the problem of addressing them. A stock will, however, be kept on hand at the Postage Stamp Division in Ottawa to supply philatelists who have difficulty in obtaining the new forms at any local post office where the old style form remains in stock. Philatelic orders from collectors will be serviced commencing August 1st. The post cards are being printed by the British American Bank Note Company for the Post Office Department

REVIVE HEARTS WITHOUT OPERATION

A new technique to revive hearts has been discovered in the United States, according to information received by the Health League of Canada.

Cardiac massage, often a life-saving measure, can now be performed without opening the chest. The method was described by W. B. Kouwenhoven, Doctor of Engineering, James R. Jude, M.D., and Guy Knickerbocker, M.S.E., Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, Baltimore.

The technique consists of applying pressure, with one hand on top of the other, vertically downward on the patient's breast bone about sixty times per minute. At the end of each pressure stroke, the hands are lifted slightly to permit full expansion of the chest.

The report said the real value of the method lies in the fact that it can be used wherever the emergency rises — in or out of a hospital. When the heart stops, circulation must be restored promptly or the consequent loss of oxygen can do irreparable damage to the brain or nervous system.

Son of Former

The Gleaner now reports the instantaneous death of Arthur Todd, son of Mrs. Todd and the late Winthrop Todd age 21, who was killed in an auto accident near Lanoraie on the Montreal-Quebec highway on Wednesday evening of the past week.

Friends of Mrs. Todd in Huntingdon say Arthur, who worked for the C.P.R. in Montreal since his graduation from high school, was proceeding to Three Rivers with a friend when his car overturned and he was killed. Friends say the youth was not a fast driver nor was he careless, and his friend who was only shaken up in the accident says he does not know how the accident occurred.

Mrs Todd was vacationing with her other children, David 18, Wendy16, Harold 13 and Philip 12, at their summer home at Ste. Marguerite when advised of the tragedy. The funeral service for Arthur which was held at 12 noon on Saturday at Montreal West United Church, was attended by a number of the family's friends from Huntingdon and vicinity.

Pointers On How To Write A Good Letter Given By Speaker

Mr. E. M. Greaves of the Personnel Dept. of the Canadian National Railways was the speaker at the Rotary meeting on Monday. His subject was "Communicating In Writing". He was introduced by Rotarian Erle Martin and Thanked by Rotarian Francois Cleyn. Excerpts from the speech follow:

Your style in writing distinguishes you as an individual to the many people who never see you, but know you only as a correspondent. Even where you are known, your personal prestige will depend much upon the calibre of your written communications. This has long been recognized in industry; one of the first obstacles met, when promoting clerks or other workers, is the lack of ability to express themselves clearly and briefly on paper.

Your letter, or report, should mark you as an individual with a characteristic writing style. No style that copies someone else is vital, or reflects you.

Those who imitate others tend to become stereotyped in their way of writing. There is no substitute for the personal touch; this is what makes some letter writers a constant treat to their friends.

Another boody trap for the unwary is to imitate the style of some admired superior. No imitation is genuine or reflects you. For better, your style will distinguish you and be your trademark; for worse, your style will fail to impress so long as it is an imitation. You will remember how we admire a genuine Rembrandt and discount an imitation made by one of his students.

Your style should contain evidence that you take pains to be courteous and clear, while remaining concise. It is no secret that authors, who write stories or articles for money, often rewrite their articles several times in order to acquire the polished style that is their trade mark. When reading a quotation you can often identify the writer by his style even before you see the 'credit'. This style is no accident; it was the fruit of labour and thought. Too often we send off a poorly written letter because we are in a hurry and cannot afford the time. No one can afford to belittle his firm, and that is what a poorly written letter does.

When you write a letter, try to place yourself in the background. When you start a paragraph with 'I', you automatically draw attention to yourself and made the reader feel that his views are secondary. Try to make your letter 'reader-centered'. Your reader wants to know what he is going to get, or what he is expected to do. He is more interested in himself than in you, and why not? Treat him on this basis and help win his goodwill.

Do not try to be breezy, or too light hearted, or affected in any way. Keep a tight hold upon facts rather than conjectures. Try to be natural and try not to assert yourself as an individual. Think of your reader and what he expects of your report; write with him always on your mind.

Use orthodox spelling. Avoid such monstrosities as tonite, thru, or altho. Use spelling that responsible people use. One permissible exception is 'thruway'.

Be clear in all writing. If you see a sentence is becoming involved, start over. You will generally break such a sentence up into two or more sentences.

It is always a temptation to use initials. Be sure such initials are understood; start by referring to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals or the S.P.C.A. as it is popularly known. Thereafter, you can use S.P.C.A. to your heart's content.

Do not let anything said here make you think less of current good English. Our language is a river like the St. Lawrence and, like the river, it shifts, changes, receives new strength from many sources. If you are just starting to write, adopt the conservative approach until experience gives ease.

To sum up: Your style is you; it mirrors your attitudes and your sense of values. Your sincerity, clarity, and logical organization of thoughts will determine how others react to your written words. Let any article you write, therefore, reflect your best thinking and your highest standards.

CANADIANS DRINK 25.3 MILLION CUPS OF COFFEE PER DAY

Canadians are now drinking coffee at a rate of 25.3 million cups per day, or an average of 1.91 cups for everyone ten years or older, according to the findings of a survey made by Canadian Facts Ltd.

Ranking fifth among the coffee-using nations of the world, Canada last year imported 153 million pounds of green coffee to set a new high record. Of Canadian green coffee imports, almost 92 percent came from Latin America, making coffee a key factor in trade between this country and its Western Hemisphere neighbors.

More than half (55 percent) of all Canadians, 10 years of age and over, drink coffee at breakfast, compared to 22 percent who drink tea. Coffee is also the favorite beverage for between-meal breaks.

The recent survey also showed that seven out of ten Canadian households make their coffee in a percolator.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Cleland Golden Wedding Anniversary

A large gathering of relatives and friends was held in the United Church Hall, Hemmingford, on the evening of June 29th in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Cleland's Golden Wedding Anniversary.

Dinner was served to two hundred guests.

Ross McNaughton proposed the toast to the bride and groom.

Charles Barr as master of ceremonies called on several guests for a few words and thanked everyone for making the evening so successful.

Guests were present from Harrison, N.Y.; Randolph, Vt.; Alburg, Vt.; Lacolle, Que.; Ormstown, Howick, Aubrey and Montreal, Que.; and California. After the dinner, dancing was enjoyed by all to the music of Rufus Fisher's orchestra.

OVERWEIGHT MOST COMMON AFFLICTION

The most common affliction in North America is overweight, states a report received by the Health League of Canada.

In a recent interview, Dr. E. Vincent Askey, President of the American Medical Association, said people on this continent "are eating more and better than ever but exercising less. As a result — statistics show an alarmingly large number of people are seriously overweight. Obesity and long life usually don't go together."

The simple and obvious answer to the problem, he added, is weight control. This is up to the individual.

On the question of a relationship between smoking and cancer, Dr. Askey said in his personal opinion there is a definite link but he does not know whether smoking is the whole cause in some cases or just one factor among the other lung irritants. They include most of the causes of air pollution.

Dr. Askey also commented he does not believe "the Russians are up to our standards in medicine." He said there may be isolated fields in which they've done something we may not yet be able to do — such as advances in space medicine — however, in general progress "our brand of medicine is of much higher quality."

Dr. Askey also touched on a sore point with most Canadians —the cost of hospital care. He said all hospital costs depend largely on the costs of service — in other words, labor. In the old days many hospital employees worked twelve-hour shifts or longer. Now, most hospitals have three eight-hour shifts, five-day weeks and higher pay for week-ends and holidays. Also, he added, the hospital costs vary depending on the needs of the patient. It is impossible to talk about costs in terms of a certain charge per day as you would with a hotel.

One-sixth of Canada's population was affected and from 30,000 to 45,000 died in the 1918 influenza epidemic; in the world more than 20,000,000 died in the epidemic.

Good Attendance At Boat Blessing Ceremony

There was a good attendance at the Blessing of the Boats, sponsored by the Huntingdon Knights of Columbus, on Sunday, at St. Anicet. Over 100 boats were blessed by Father A. During the afternoon a drawing was held and the following were the winners of the seven prizes: 1st — $50. — Gustave Martin, Lacolle, Que.; 2nd — $25. — Father A. Boucher, St. Anicet; five other prizes of $5. each were won by: Real Goyette, St. Anicet; Notary Pilon, Huntingdon; Claude Quennville, St. Anicet; Marcel Leduc, Huntingdon and Leonard Hurteau, Cazaville. VETVILLE. — A cigarette and match machine has been installed in the Community Hall for the convenience of Vetville residents and also for the surrounding community.

Mrs. D. Watson of Dunkirk Apartment Building enjoyed the visit of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hanley of Ottawa, on Sunday, July 10th.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Farmer of Dunkirk Apartment Building are up on Cloud Nine due to the arrival of their daughter Patricia (whom they have not seen in four years) and grandchildren Lynn and Derek Grover, ages 11 and 3, of Canada Park, California, U.S.A. The Grover flew from California to New York and spent one week with Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Grover of Mount Vernon. While in New York they visited all important attractions. Three-year-old Derek was thrilled at seeing the Statue of Liberty and cannot understand why there is no snow here in Canada. Mr. and Mrs. Farmer are thrilled at seeing their first grandson and will be entertaining until September.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Watson of Dunkirk Apartment Building returned to Vetville on Monday, July 18th, after enjoying a week visiting Mr. and Mrs. L. Hanley and their family at Ottawa. Their visit included a trip to Gananoque and a boat tour of the 1000 Islands also during their visit in Ottawa witnessed the changing of the Guard at Parliament Buildings.

The monthly meeting of the Vetville Men's Club will be held in the Community Hall, on Friday, August 5th, at 7:30 P.M.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Evans of Dieppe Apartment Building have left Vetville for a visit to their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Hennigson in Montreal, for the coming week.

Mrs. T. Turcotte of Arras Apartment Building was taken to the Montreal General Hospital on July 19, and underwent an operation on July 20. Our sincere good wishes to Mrs. Turcotte for a speedy recovery and return to Vetville.

A very pleasant time was had by all who took part in the excursion by bus to Plattsburg, N.Y., on Tuesday, July 19. The bus left Vetville at 8:30 A.M. and during the day visited Plattsburg and the Beach on Lake Champlain, and except for a few short rain showers the weather was fine. This trip was organized by the Vetville Men's Club with the aid of the Ladies of Vetville for residents of Vetville. We wish to thank Bert. Evans, chairman of the committee for this outing, members of the committee, ladies of Vetville, and the bus driver for a very enjoyable outing. One of many pleasant events during the outing occurred in Plattsburg during lunch when Mr. and Mrs. George Meilleur joined our group. Mr. and Mrs. Meilleur happened to be on a fishing trip in the vicinity of Plattsburg. Mr. Meilleur is president of Vetville Men's Club and he was anxious to know about our outing so a good time was had by all.

We wish to welcome to Vetville Mr. and Mrs. J. Jackson our new residents in Vimy Apartment Building.

As bus transportation was not available for the Roman Catholic Church service on Sunday, July 24, Mrs. T. Bishop kindly arranged to have cars pick up the residents of Vetville.

Transportation for residents for Anglican Church Service from Vetville was same as usual.

On Sunday, July 24, the Maplewood Presbyterian Church Service was held in Vetville Community Hall at 10:00 A.M. The Rev. John Allan conducted the Service with Mrs. Miller as pianist and Mrs. M. Will as soloist.

Many recent visitors to Vetville praised the flower gardens of many of our Apartment buildings. We are grateful to our residents who have put in many hours in their gardens with such good results.

Mr. A. T. Reddy of Somme Apartment Building was taken by ambulance to the Queen Mary Veterans' Hospital in Montreal, on Sunday, July 24, seriously ill. Our sincere good wishes for a speedy recovery. We also are grateful to Mr. Charlie Taylor of Somme Apartment Building for his kindness in aiding Mr. Reddy getting into the hospital for treatment and Dr. Lafleur for his kindness.

We regret to report that Mrs. E. Meredith of Somme Apartment Building passed away suddenly on Thursday, July 21, while on a visit to the Maritimes with her family. Funeral service was held on July 26 at Tees & Co. Funeral Parlor, 1459 Towers St. Montreal. Our sincere sympathy to Mrs. Meredith's family.

Apparently the municipality has had a change of heart. The new ruling regarding water restrictions is as follows:

It is strictly forbidden to use water for spraying between 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. or for any useless need.

Through the grapevine it has been rumored that Tony and Prudential had a slightly heated discussion regarding a proposed house to be built next to the restaurant. Apparently the restaurant proprietor was concerned that the house would block traffic thereby making it impossible for customers to enter his establishment but it has been learned that the house will not interfere with traffic entering the project at all.

Thanks to the gentlemen who so willingly gave their time the other evening to clear the new rosity on the part of these people is certainly appreciated by the children.

Attention: All girls between the ages of twelve and fifteen years, who reside in Prudential, if you are interested in joining a girls softball team, you are requested to call Jim Williamson of 118 St. Michael, at OX. 2-4542.

The well baby clinic will be held Thursday, August 4th from 11 a.m. to 12 noon at the Catholic Church near Prudential, on route four.

The Davies, of Circle Park, spent a few days up north. They probably would have stayed a little longer, but Ken got a hankering to return to the ole homestead.

A certain red-faced husband, well known around here, for criticizing his wife's driving, returned home one evening with a deep gash on the driver's door. When this was pointed out to him, he stuttered, then with great effort said, "Well, I, ahem, er, wasn't it like that before, dear?"

Monday, August 1st, there will be a meeting of the town council. The meeting will start at 8 p.m. If you have any problems and would like to air them out or if you would just like to observe your local government in action in your behalf, why not come on down.

A recently-developed drug has produced "good to excellent" improvement in patients suffering from rheumatoid and arthritic disorders, reports Dr. Emil D. W. Hauser, a Chicago Physician. The drug is called triamcinolone acetonide and in a test it proved successful with 66 out of 67 patients. Dr. Hauser said the benefits were a sharp reduction in stiffness, tenderness and pain, a reduction in swelling and an increase in joint mobility. He added there was no evidence the drug caused any toxic reactions. Dr. Hauser's report was submitted to the Health League of Canada in a news release from the American Medical Association.

Two new lotions against acne have proved effective in clinical tests. A report said the agents do not sensitize or satin the skin but provide a drying, peeling and degerming action. A test of the lotions resulted in improvement of acne lesions in more than 370 out of 900 patients. The lotions were described in an article in Today's Health magazine.

Use vitamin pills with caution. Many of them contain folic acid, which can hinder the diagnosis of pernicious anemia. Some doctors say many cases of pernicious anemia have gone unreported because the patients took daily doses of vitamin pills containing the acid. Folic acid is needed for the normal function of the intestines and in the formation of red blood cells. Most people get all they need from a balanced diet, containing plenty of green vegetables.

Twins, who may be hard to tell apart physically, psychologically need and seek individual recognition, according to an article in Today's Health Magazine. The article says, "Twins struggle for an identity which, because of the very circumstances of their birth, is constantly threatened with eclipse. They therefore find it necessary to assert a cherished individuality and to demand individual recognition." The article added there is scientific proof that even identical twins are not carbon copies of each other. It suggested a few rules which would help each twin evolve its own personality. Dress them differently and give them different toys, encourage and praise their different skills, refer to them by name rather than "the twins", request outsiders not to ask "which one are you?" encourage each twin to develop his own interests as well as some friends he can call his own, as they grow older encourage each to spend some time on his own away from home.

You can't trust anything these days. The first reported case of shock associated with an acute allergic reaction to orange juice has been successfully treated at a hospital in Philadelphia. The patient was a 48-year -old woman who complained of dizziness and a diffuse skin rash several hours after eating a fresh orange. The woman claimed to have eaten oranges all her life without adverse reactions. The case was reported in the current journal of the American Medical Association.

Canada Again In The Role Of Protector Of The Peace

Once again Canada finds herself in the role of protector of the peace in one of the world's trouble spots.

In July, 1954, Canada was named as one of three nations to supervise the truce after the end of the fighting in Indochina.

Two years later she became the key contributor to the United Nations Emergency Force set up to guard the Arab-Israeli borders after the Suez fighting.

Now Canada is being called upon to play a part in helping prevent further trouble in revoltorn Congo, the former Belgian colony that recently won independence.

Signal Force

External Affairs Minister Howard Green told the Commons in Ottawa last week Canada has been asked by the United Nations to dispatch a "specialized signal force" to the Congo.

It was reported unofficially that about 100 signal experts, most of them drawn from the Canadian contingent with the UNEF, would go to the troubled African nation to help put communications in order.

There are several obvious reasons why Canada should be called upon so often to provide its troops for peace-making missions.

We are regarded widely as a nation with no imperialist axe to grind. We are a rich country with the resources and trained men to do the job. And our troops have distinguised themselves in such situations in the past.

No Soviet Troops

The Congo situation provided a busy week for the United Nations. It repeated its request to Belgium that it remove its troops as rapidly as possible and leave policing to UN forces. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold planned to move 6,000 UN troops into the three-week-old republic.

For the moment this action seemed to satisfy Premier Patrice Lumumba. He had threatened to call in Soviet troops to restore order in his mutiny-ridden land if the Belgians didn't get out. But the UN moves prompted him to withdraw the threat.

Plane Incident

The UN also took up the Soviet charge that the United States was engaging in provocative actions in the case of the RB-47 plane that was shot down by a Russian aircraft July 1. Vasily Kuznetsov told the security council the plane was over Soviet territory when it was downed with only two survivors.

Henry Cabot Lodge declared that at no time during the flight was the RB-47 closer than 30 miles to the Soviet coast.

Soviet Spy

While the UN was discussing the latest plane incident, the United States was ordering Petr Y. Ezhov, 39, third secretary of the Soviet embassy in Washington, to get out of the country.

U.S. authorities said that during last year's visit of Premier Khrushchev, Ezhov had engaged in getting aerial photographs of American cities and defence installations. The state department said he "flagrantly abused his diplomatic status by engaging in espionage activity." Ezhov was the 12th Soviet diplomat ousted from the United States in the last 10 years.

Israeli Ousted

In Argentina another diplomat got his walking papers. Israeli Ambassador Arieh Levavi was declared persona non grata — literally "an unacceptable person" — in the wake of Argentina's dispute with Israel over the abduction of former top Nazi Adolf Eichmann from the South American country.

Israel had made several apologies to Argentina for spiriting Eichmann out of the country and taking him back to Israel to stand trial for his part in Second World War concentration camp killings. But these did not satisfy the Argentine government and it implied that the Israeli embassy in Buenos Aires was directly connected with Eichmann's abduction.

Violence in Rhodesia

Violence erupted in Southern Rhodesia, another African trouble area. Angered by the arrest of three leaders of the National Democratic party, Negroes called a one-day strike that gave rise to rioting. In Salisbury, cars carrying whites were stoned in to restore order and more than 130 Negroes were arrested.

Salisbury is the capital of the Central African Federation, a union of Southern Rhodesia and the British protectorates of Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

The British government was reported annoyed by the arrests of the Negro leaders, whom it is understood to regard as moderates. There was some suggestion that the arrests were intended to embarrass the British cabinet.

High Honor

In London the Queen awarded Vincent Massey the Royal Victorian Chain, highest personal honor she could bestow on the former governor-general of Canada. The chain is held by only 20 others and Mr. Massey is the second Commonwealth citizen from outside Britain to receive it.

Congratulations extended to Mr. and Mrs. George Lord who celebrated their 15th wedding anniversary on Thursday, July 21st.

Mr. and Mrs. George Neil were kind enough to take along with daughter Jo-Ann, Lillian Cardinal and Keith and Lorna Lord, swimming at St. Martine on Sunday afternoon. The children really enjoyed themselves.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lord entertained Mrs. Charles Morin and daughter Joyce this week-end.

Keith and Lorna entertained on a spur of the moment party on Saturday night some twenty-four boys and girls. What started out to be five or six boys and girls coming over to dance to records started snowballing until within a short time some twenty-four arrived. They danced, played games, had soft drinks and potato chips and had a most enjoyable time. They were a very nice group of boys and girls and seemed to have a better time than if it had been planned ahead.

Mr. and Mrs. Yeudall spent three days in Saco, Maine. They had intended staying a week but unfortunately their young son, David came down with an infected ear and they had to return home. David is feeling much better now, we are happy to hear. Mr. Yeudall now happily spending the rest of his vacation cleaning windows. "Atta boy", keep up the good work — if you run out of windows everyone can direct you to some more.

Best wishes to Connie Etherington now home from Hospital. Hope you're feeling better.

Please folks, call and let us know the news. Can't print what we don't know.

THE FERTILIZING OF LAWNS

As a general rule, the following fertilizer treatment is recommended for small lawns (that is, for those of less than 10,000 square feet): 5 pounds of 10-6-4, semi-organic fertilizer per 1000 square feet at the end of April, and a repetition of this treatment about the 15th of August. However, in view of the fact that the summer of 1960 is turning out to be cool and damp, the repitition might be applied to advantage at the end of July this year.

There are several brands of lawn fertilizer on the market, each one of which is claimed to be better than its competitors. Mr. André Sauvé of the Quebec Department of Agriculture limits himself to the comment that the basic ingredients of these different fertilizers are all the same. He recommends the 10-6-4 semi-organic treatment because, in his opinion, it meets the needs of lawns under the most prevalent conditions.

GRASSHOPPER IS BIG EATER

It takes upwards of 6,000 when newly hatched to weigh an ounce, notes L. G. Putnam, a federal scientist with the Saskatoon Research Station.

Under normal conditions, their weight increases as much as two and a half times every week.

At five weeks, they become fully winged adults and are 30 to 80 times heavier than when hatched.

Grasshoppers may be slight, but there is nothing slight about their appetites, observes Mr. Putnam.

If there were one newly hatched 'hopper on every square foot in a field, those on an acre would weigh only half a pound; when they reached adult stage, they would weigh 25 pounds.

On 10 acres, roughly the area needed to keep a cow in the dry districts, there would be 250 pounds of adult grasshoppers competing with the cow.

Studies have shown that to produce this amount of "grasshopper beef" requires 450 pounds of forage, dry weight.

Concludes Mr. Putnam:

"Under severe outbreak conditions, where populations of five or more grasshoppers per square foot are common, a cow would not stand a chance against the grasshoppers, but would starve to death."

Fires and Bears

In Canada, forest fires were a major problem. The summer heat made timberland susceptible to fires in many parts of the country but British Columbia suffered the most. The battle was carried on from Vancouver Island, across the southern interior, and north to Prince George.

Just south of Cardston, Alta., in Montana's Glacier National Park, a grizzly bear attacked a party of five and seriously maimed a boy of 10. The boy, Smith Parrott, son of a park ranger, was taken to hospital in Cardston with a punctured lung, broken arm and severe cuts to the face.

Sorry to have missed the column last week, but your correspondent spent a few days at Lachine with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Griffin of 882 St. Joseph Blvd, former residents of Chateauguay. Must say that the visit was very enjoyable.

Visiting with Susan Jarvis for a week is Christine Duncan of Lachine, a friendship started by a meeting in Lachine Park.

Although late the writer would like to pass comment on the opening of Bowlarama after being given a very warm and cordial greeting by the proprietor.

The alleys are delightful and it is hoped there will be many hours of enjoyment for the teams who will compete there.

Also it is known that they will be given every assistance in a clean healthy team sport.

A late birthday goes to Wendy Jarvis of 30A, Norman Blvd., who was 5 years old on July 16. Her little guests were her brother Stephen, Chrissy and Michael Kisil, Tommy Ferguson, Michael Evans, Jeannie and Terry Gray, Mary and David Pacholka, Coleen and Debbie Parker, Heather Rutter, Sandra Calpass, a few of the mothers accompanied the children and found time after the party for a cup of tea.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson of 212A, Salaberry South, on the birth of a son, Thomas Wayne, 5 lbs., on July 16th, at St. Joseph Hospital, Lachine.

SALACIOUS LITERATURE FLOODS NEWS STANDS

"There is an appalling amount of obscene literature on news stands today," says Dr. Gordon Bates, Director General of the Health League of Canada and Editor of Health Magazine, official publication of the League.

"This literature, paper-back novels and magazines, constitutes a serious threat to youth in particular. Youngsters are naturally curious but an obscene book is not the place for them to find out about sex."

Dr. Bates said the onus is on the parents to direct their children's reading along the many paths of good literature. The emphasis on sex in many books and magazines is misguiding and is apt to develop wrong ideas that can cause serious complications when a youngster reaches maturity and marries.

Dr. Bates said we have legislation in Canada to prevent the sale of salacious literature but in his opinion it is not enforced strictly enough. He said parents, teachers' associations and religious groups should be constantly on the alert for the appearance of obscene publications at news stands, cigar stores and book shops in their communities.

"They're the people who can do something about it," he added, "and they can be sure of support from the Health League of Canada."

The only way to make farming pay... modern methods and machines

You can't farm profitably today by using yesterday's methods and obsolete machinery. They simply don't meet the demands of modern farming . . . high productivity and low production costs.

The profit potential of your farm can only be fully realized through utilizing modern methods and the latest farm machinery. Today's farm machinery measures up to the task of doing more work faster and more efficiently. Farm labour, a major cost in the operation of any farm, is kept to a bare minimum while the amount of work done per day is greatly increased. Critical farm operations get done at exactly the right time without depending on the availability of high priced farm labour.

Massey-Ferguson machines and implements completely fill the requirements of profitable farming—more work with less manpower at lower cost.

Sixteen Traffic Accidents Reported For This Week

A 1956 G.M.C. van driven by Roger C. Dubois, age 30, of 8991, 14th Ave., Ville St. Michel, ran into the rear of a 1951 Ford sedan driven by Alger Lanctôt, age 33, of St. Constant, at 5.30 p.m. on July 19, causing $250. damage to the St. Constant car. Officer Derail investigated the accident which occurred at St. Constant.

Stolen Car

A Dodge sedan, 1960, license number 695-602 Quebec, was reported stolen from the Caughnawaga Golf Club on July 20th, at 9.15 p.m. A call was received at the Mercier Bridge at 10.40 p.m. that a car bearing that license number had purchased gas in Montreal and had driven away without paying the sum of $5.60. Officer Marroni of the Provincial Police at Mercier Bridge stopped all cars leaving Montreal via the Mercier and about 11 o'clock the car appeared and, seeing that all cars were being stopped, the driver speed past the officer. Officer Marroni gave chase, with his motorcycle at speeds of 80 to 90 miles per hour. Reaching Montee St. Isidore, the officer realized the chase was becoming hopeless and fired a shot into the air. The car then stopped and the three occupants fled into a field. They were soon apprehended by the same officer and were taken to Mercier Bridge and then to Montreal Provincial Police headquarters and charged with stealing a car. The driver and his two friends are all under 18 years of age.

Damage to the latter vehicle amounted to $600. George Stacey was later taken into custody by officers of the R.C.M.P. from Caughnawaga and charged with intoxication. Officer Rousselle of the Provincial Police investigated.

Bill Blair, age 37, of 2023 Montcalm St., Lafleche, Que., told Officer Marchand of the Provincial Police, that he was proceeding along the highway at a normal speed when he rounded a curve and his passenger, Joseph Desmond Roy, age 50, fell out of the car. Roy had been leaning against the door and it is believed the catch was accidentally released. Foy was taken to St. Joseph Hospital in Lachine where he was treated for cuts, bruises, etc. to his arms, legs, face and head. He was released from hospital a few hours later. Foy's home address is 1735 Laurier St., Lafleche.

On the old Route 3 (Cote St. Catherine) two 14-year-old girls narrowly escaped death on July 22, at five p.m., when a 1950 Chevrolet coach driven by Paul-Emile Desrochers, age 32, of 49 Central St., Cote St. Catherine, went out of control and forced the girls who were walking along the road, into the ditch. Francine Barbeau of 162 Blvd. 9-C, suffered cuts and bruises to her arms and face. Her friend, Luce Lefebvre, of 4 Guerin St., Cote St. Catherine, suffered severe shock. Both were treated by Dr. Lapierre of St. Constant and then taken to their respective homes.

Damage to the car was $350. and to the truck, $250. Officer Rousselle investigated.

$100. damage was done to a 1952 Dodge sedan on the Mercier Bridge at 6.40 p.m. on July 24th when the driver, Guy Laplaine 26, of 251 St. James St., Ville St. Pierre, stopped on the bridge and was struck by a 1956 Morris sedan driven by Barry Schecter, 23, of 6266 Deacon Ave., Montreal. $150. damage was done to the Morris. The accident occurred near the Elliott curve east of Howick and the drivers were given first aid at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Elliott. Later they were treated at Barrie Memorial Hospital but their injuries were slight.

On July 21 at 6.25 a.m. a 1955 Ford coach driven by Mrs. Raymond Usereau, age 36, of Ormstown, struck a cow owned by Harold Merson of Ormstown. The car was damaged to the extent of $300. Officer Dagenais made an investigation.

The car was a complete loss and a passenger, Miss Barbara Paquette, 17, same address in Cornwall, was injured and was taken to Dr. Lafleur in Chateauguay for treatment. Chateauguay Police Dept., Officers Receive Praise For Services Rendered

Following are the copies of two letters addressed to Chateauguay Town Hall, with respect to assistance received in cases of urgent need and which resulted in lives being saved. Such letters speak well for the services offered by the Police Dept. and officers of that Dept. They show that the police are ready to give protection in all ways and a true sense of devotion to duty and the citizens should be proud to have such a force at hand when needed. The prompt action and arrival on the scene of police officers in such circumstances means the difference between saving, or losing a life. Sympathy and understanding in these cases also is a great help to those who are under a nervous strain on account of the emotional upset of the occasion. According to the letters, it would appear in both cases that the officers lost no time in arriving and carrying out the necessary functions that lead to the saving of the lives. Too often such services are not acknowledge, thus in this case we feel sure the officers will greatly appreciate the thanks that are tendered them and the citizens of Chateauguay can also join in this expression of acknowledgement.

Chateauguay Town Hall,
Station Avenue,
Chateauguay Station, Quebec

Dear Sirs:

On Wednesday, the 13th of July, we had a very frightful experience in Chateauguay North. My youngest daughter, Nancy Olson, was nearly drowned in the Chateauguay River. She was seen floating on the top of the water, and if it hadn't been for an elderly woman spotting her, she would have drowned.

We realize living near the water with a three year old can be very dangerous. She was merely sitting on the edge of the wharf washing her feet when she tumbled in. She was last seen playing in her yard, but, as little ones are, she found a way to get out of the yard and this was the result.

I am telling you this, because I wish to compliment you and thank you in every way for the competence of Constable Dubuc. If it hadn't been for his prompt arrival and general know-how we would have lost our youngest daughter. It was an act of God that the lady saw her and it was a feather in your cap for having the necessary equipment. She was given oxygen immediately but she was in bad need of air. We know that you have had to send all the way to Beauharnois for this piece of equipment and we were gratified that Chateauguay had one of its own. Maybe quite a few other lives would have been saved if they had had oxygen. When it was all over and my daughter was wrapped warmly in blankets, Constable Dubuc came back to our house at 5 o'clock to see how she was. It seemed to me as a nice gesture on his part as he had done his duty but he was interested enough to see how she was.

Right now, my daughter is in the hospital being examined for hidden effects as she had quite a bit of polluted water in her lungs.

We are thanking God for letting us have our lovable daughter back but we want to thank Constable Dubuc, Chateauguay, for having the oxygen and all the people down North who were so wonderful in helping my daughter.

Many thanks, now I know what we pay taxes for and am well pleased that our money is put to such good use.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) Edward J. Olson,

Chateauguay, 7/14/60.

To Whom It May Concern:

It is with the most profound gratitude that I wish to express personnally my most sincere thanks for having saved my life by giving me the urgent transportation required and necessitated to the General Hospital of Verdun in the Police Station Wagon driven by Chief Denis Rousseau, who extended to me the most delicate courtesy on the 15th of July, 1960 when I was losing all my blood through an hemorrhage.

I would like to outline that it was very convenient to know that in a case of urgency, we could rely on a neighboring municipality to provide the necessary help.

I reiterate my most sincere thanks to the Town of Chateauguay through whose agency, I am on the road to full recovery.

Mrs. Paul-Emile Bergevin,

Chateauguay Briefs

Friday night's thunder storm accompanied by the torrential rain did much to make lawns look fresher and greener in the Chateauguay area. The rain was lighter towards Howick and in Huntingdon it only amounted to a small shower.

Mrs. Gisèle Lalumière, secretary to Mr. Doucet at the City Hall, Town of Chateauguay, is pleased that the two-way radio and inter-com is again in first class condition. Mrs. Lalumière expects to enjoy her annual vacation within the next few weeks and says she plans to go somewhere where there is plenty of room to move around. The City Hall indeed has cramped quarters but this situation will be somewhat alleviated when the Post Office is moved; mail delivery in the Chateauguay area is expected shortly. Chateauguay Town Police, who have an office in the same building, have room for one desk, one chair and a small file, but that is all. If and when the Postmaster-General does decide Chateauguay is of age for mail delivery, it will be a red-letter day for all in City Hall.

Mr. Doucet, Town secretary-treasurer, says Mr. Irven Watt is a happy man these days because he has obtained a ditch-digger and drainage work on Tougas St. is going according to his desires. The machine, a "Grade-All", belongs to Baillargeon Freres of Montreal and is being used on a rental basis. Original cost of the digger was $35,000. Mr. Watt says the machine operates well and the work is satisfactory, but he had entertained hopes that the it would operate much faster than it does.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Landriault, proprietors of the Plaza Hotel in Chateauguay Basin, are rejoicing over the birth of a 7½-lb. son born at Ste. Agnes Hospital in Lachine, on July 19.

Town and Centre Police were busy well into the small hours of Sunday morning following the successful Regatta at Chateauguay on Saturday. All events were successful and both sides of the river were lined with spectators. Only complaints heard were from residents who were trying to get a little week-end rest and found this impossible because of the daylong roar of powerful motors. This distraction, coupled with the noise of the pile-drivers at the new bridge, is proving too much for some residents of the area and more residents than ever are spending their annual vacations out-of-town.

A Chateauguay Town Council meeting was held on Tuesday of the past week with the new mayor, Jos. Laberge, presiding. By-law 164 was passed which concerns new water and sewer service in Colonia. A letter was read to the effet that Inspectors for the Provincial Government have recommended that a sum of $10,465.95 be paid to the Town of Chateauguay with regard to winter work that was done by the unemployed. Aldermen Voisrad and Montambault were named to represent the Council on a playground committee that originates in Colonia. The auditors' report was presented in caucus after the meeting and was acceptable.

Mr. Doucet wrote to the Provincial Government this week seeking to determine the reason for the delay in starting work on the proposed 16-inch water main that will be laid to connect Chateauguay Centre (Village) with the Town of Chateauguay at Chateauguay Station.

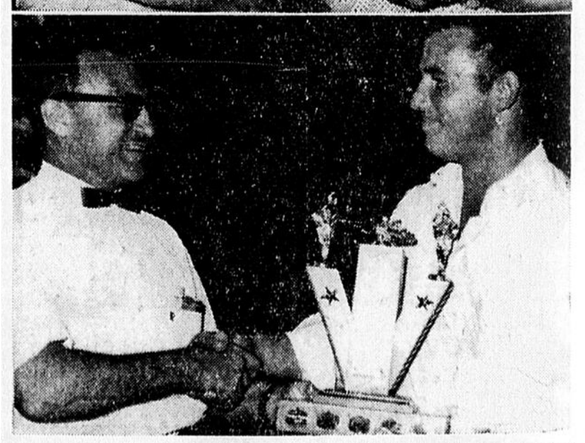

Mr. Watt and his men found a break in a water main at the corner of Duquette and Horsnell streets in Colonia this week and this has been repaired. Water pressure has been very low in this area for months but now that the repairs have been made, residents in the area should enjoy a normal supply again.

All of Chateauguay was without water on Thursday of the past week because a bird decided to perch near the switch of the water pump. Mr. Watt says the bird was blown sky high but not before a short circuit stopped the water pump. Mr. Watt says the bird was blown sky high but not before a short circuit stopped the cracked and the water was again off. In all, about four hours e-

Local Red Cross Branch Pleased With Results Of First Blood Clinic

On Friday, July 22nd, Maple School was opened for the day but not for the regular activities it was designed for. The gymnasium took on the look of a hospital at one end, and a restaurant at the other. This was the work of the local Branch of the Red Cross along with the regular nurses, nurses' aids and drivers of the Mobile Clinic of the Red Cross Society.

In an interview with Miss Lucy Mesnard, Field Director for Quebec Division of the Red Cross, it was learned that the present requirements of the Red Cross is 3000 donations per week plus an extra campaign for 10,000 donations during the summer months when donations in regular clinics fall off through vacations and people being out of town.

This summer's Campaign has been given a boost by the international Baseball League which gave the Red Cross Society 10,000 tickets to a ball game to be held August 26, 1960, in Montreal. These tickets are to be given to all donors during the summer who wish to attend the game. Also for every 1000 donations received a rocket will be shot off atop Mount Royal and it will last a minute for each 1000 so that the one for 2000 donations will last 2 minutes. In closing, Miss Mesnard wanted to congratulate the local Branch of the Red Cross who were responsible for this clinic.

In talking with Mr. R. Beauchamp after the clinic was over it was learned that there had been 156 donors and the chairman of the clinic had a few words he wanted to pass onto those who gave blood. — "The Chateauguay Red Cross Society was deeply moved by the generosity of the people who donated their blood last Friday. Were those people experimenting? We don't think so. We recognize the sincerity of their intention and they deserve the highest recognition as they will never enjoy a thank you from the unknown beneficiary who will eventually be sharing this priceless donation. We noticed the presence of several mothers at this Blood Clinic and we would like to take this opportunity to congratulate them for having participated in this worthy cause and may we wish them in return for their gesture the realization of all the sacred desires of a mother."

For the 156 donors the Chateauguay Red Cross has this message: "You have seen fit to give — May you now be rewarded."

"In closing I would like to add that this clinic would have been impossible without the help of the other members of my committee and all those who worked throughout the day and to them I give my heartfelt thanks."

Let's Take Care Around Water

IT may seem that we are harping on safety measures quite a bit in this column, but we believe that only by continually bringing safety to the fore, will the public become educated to taking precautions. The continual pounding away and repetition about a subject, will in time become embedded on the mind of a person and he is reminded when he is near the points of danger. If we can achieve this result, then we will feel that we have accomplished something worthwhile.

Why people continually ignore the dangers around them and take chance by dangerous practices, we do not know. Regulations are put into effect with a view to preventing as many accidents as possible, yet they are not followed. When you take a boat out onto the water, do you see that there is a life preserver for everyone in the boat? Do you see that those who cannot swim are equipped with such life preserver before you start out on the water? By that we mean that they should be wearing them in readiness for emergency, it is too late when an accident has happened. Do you make sure your boat is properly loaded and not overloaded? Do you put a sharp stop to clowning while in the boat, standing up and so forth and do you warn your children about these things if they take a boat out on their own? These and many other things can be the cause of accidents if not adhered to in the interests of safety. At least one person in a boating party should be a swimmer.

When having a day at the waterside, do you insist that no one goes swimming immediately after a meal, be it ever so light? Even good swimmers can get cramps and drown, if they try going into the water following a meal. It is said that two hours should elapse before going into the water following a meal. Do you caution bathers about getting beyond their depth? Those tires and other inflated articles can lead to accidents unless the parties using them are also good swimmers. Very small children should be closely watched when they are playing in the water, or near the water. They may get into deep water very quickly, especially if they go out on a wharf and happen to fall off. Never take chances with water when the place is strange or unknown to you. There are a number of dangers if you have never been to such a place before. Try to keep near to where other people are around in case you may need help.

If you have a motor propelled boat, don't try stunts of any kind, such as speeding near bathers, or where other people are in boats. Keep clear of people and take care when you return to shore that you do not harm the people who may be around. If you indulge in water skiing, do it with a view to safety to others as well as yourself.

Above all, use your head, take precautions for your own safety and think in terms of safety for others. In this way much more enjoyment will come and there will be less likelihood of tragedy to mar a pleasant holiday or outing.

Historical Notes Gleaned From "Sellar's" History

It was at the juncture when the Basin was thus being abandoned, that the English appeared. In the deserted farms, in the fields overgrown by weeds and brush, the Scotch immigrants perceived the possibility of making comfortable homes with less labor than by going into the bush. The lots were offered cheap, and before many years there were a number in their hands, and being transformed by ditching, fencing, proper cultivation, and rotation of crops into a state of productiveness. The habitant watched them with astonishment, and it came to be a proverb with them, that an Anglais would get rich on a farm where a French-Canadian would starve* The Scotch farmers were as so many unpaid instructors in their midst, and although they were slow to abandon the methods of their fathers and prejudiced against adopting innovations, example had its effect in the course of years; the old implements disappeared, better buildings were erected, grass-seed, beans and barely were introduced, potatoes grown as a regular crop, and stock fairly cared for, with the result of changing the condition of the habitants of the Basin from one of hopeless poverty to comparative comfort and independence. Among the first to come in were Robert Finlay, John Dale, George Burrell, who opened a tavern and Charles Dewitt, who were quickly followed by James Holmes, Daniel Craig, Robert Elliot, James Clark, Johua Walton, George McFadden, John Aitken, George Niven, William Watt, Robert Lang, Thomas Taylor, Thomas Duncan, John Cooper, Matt. McLean, and many others. The movement began about 1827, and continued until 1840, when, notwithstanding a number had left, there were over a score of families established along the banks of the Chateauguay for 5 miles above its mouth.

The year in which the Scotch farmers began to settle, 1827, was known among the habitants as "the Indian corn year." Wheat being a total failure, starvation stared them in the face, and to get food they loaded their traineaux with cordwood, and drew it on the ice to Montreal. As they could only take a third of a cord on their one-horse rigs, they rarely got over a dollar a load, which bought 3 bushels of salt. Returning home, and completing a journey of 30 miles, they next morning started up the Chateaugay for the lines, where they traded the salt for corn, at the rate of 2 bushels for one of salt. On getting back to the Basin, they got the corn ground and managed to bake bread by sifting the meal and mixing the finer with the coarser after boiling it. Salt was then in great demand in Franklin county, for, from its isolated situation as regards New York, it was scarce and dear. Until the railway was built, it paid well to haul salt to Malone and adjacent villages, and Macdonald made much of his money by sending there trains of teams in winter with salt, and smuggling back tea, whisky and tobacco.

*Patrick Shirreff, the famous East Lothian farmer, who visited the parishes along the south side of the St. Lawrence in 1833, in his book of travels, remarks: "In many instances, soil of the best quality did not yield more than two seeds of wheat, while the crops were intermingled with truly luxuriant indigenous tares, thistles, and sweet-clover. I had often heard of the French Canadians clinging to their farms until starved from them — that is, until the soil did not yield them food to subsist on, and I had here evidence of the process and result of such an agricultural system."

The Basin in those days was a place of considerable traffic, for until the Beauharnois canal was opened, the Chateaugay was the main outlet of the district; the highway, both summer and winter, for immigrants and their supplies and the export of potash and lumber. When the stream of immigration fairly set in, a regular ferry between Lachine and the Basin became a crying necessity. The steamer that plied to the Cascades would occasionally, when a large load offered, as a favor take the channel inside Nun's island, but she was no more to be relied upon than getting a bateau to hire when wanted. The loss and inconvenience immigrants sustained in getting across the river was very great. Georgory Dunning, an American who lived at the Basin, was the first to supply the want, and he endeavored, so far as wind and waves would permit, to make a trip each day, and in this he was aided by the Cascades steamer, which would give him a tow up the lake, casting his boat loose opposite the island. This was a great convenience, and he ferried over many hundreds of immigrants every summer, and, on the return trips, transported much potash. A sailboat, however, soon ceased to meet the requirements of the public, and an a boat propelled by horses proving a failure on the La Tortue ferry, from insufficiency of custom, it was proposed to her owners to move her up to the Lachine and Basin route, and, as an inducement, a number of the storekeepers along the Chateauguay took shares, which were placed at $20 each. The boat was placed on the route about 1828, and her captain and chief owner was Silas Dickenson, an American. She was propelled by 6 horses, which transmitted the power by their feet, they thrusting the treads on which they stood away from them. Peter Sinclair (afterwards a settler on the Ormstown concession) stood in the centre with a whip and kept them going, earning the whimsical title of "engineer of the horse-boat." It was found that the route was too long for the same team to come and go, so it was arranged that the landing-place should be 1½ miles above Lachine. She could take a large load, the habitants driving on to her with their carts, and paying 50 cents. The charge for passengers was 20c, and for them the accommodation was not good. A railing protected passersby from the horses, but one afternoon a pensioner, returning from Montreal, where he had been drawing his allowance fell upon the moving track and was trampled to death. Both he and his companion were drunk. She was of great convenience and made the Basin the outlet for a large extent of country. Her wharf was close to the present steamboat-landing, and was built by a Canadian, Pierre Reid, the horses being stabled at Dalton's. On John Smith's, an American and relative of Gregory Dunning's beside whom he lived, building a wharf opposite his tavern, the boat ran up to it, which was about a mile farther, and he stabled the horses. This annoyed the residents near the old landing, who did not like the boat's passing them, and 6 of them clubbed together to purchase a rival in the shape of a steamboat. When steamboats were first introduced on the St. Lawrence, it was the popular belief that one, sufficiently powerful, could not be built to stem the current above Montreal, and when an enterprising American was building one as a ferry to Laprairie his project was laughed at. One summer day in 1819 he demonstrated, in the presence of a great assemblage, that it could be done. His vessel, the Montreal, was small, and had a high-pressure engine, so weak that it took her from 2 to 3 hours to make her up-trip. This boat, superseded by a larger and much more powerful vessel, was for sale, and the malcontents got her for $1500. She proved a failure. Unless under full way, she was hard to steer, and her boiler being weak she lacked in power, and was constantly running aground. This gave her a bad name, while, at the same time, the horse-boat service was improved. By doubling the number of horses, and having a fresh team for each trip, she was able to run to Lachine and to pay less regard to the wind when it blew fresh. Both, however, were running without profit, and Dickenson offered to either buy or sell, when the Montreal fell to him. While she ran, she used a wharf erected by Michael Connolly alongside of Reid's, and who had left his farm in Ormstown to begin tavern-keeping at the Basin, and did not succeed. His property, after passing through several hands, was bought by John Jack, a Greenock blacksmith, and a man of genuine worth. The house he kept in connection with his smithy, was a true place of rest for the weary traveller, and was in such high repute, that many made it a point, even at a sacrifice, to push on and spend the night there. Perceiving that the horse-boat could not cope with steam and renewed competition being threatened, Dickenson was anxious to change, and on his relative, Horace Dickenson, of the Transportation company, replacing his boat on lake St. Francis by a larger, he bought the discarded boat, named the St. Francis. All went well for a time until Dickenson's death, when the company was dissolved and the steamer was bought by Jacob Dewitt, when competition was renewed. Passengers were carried at nominal prices and one boat endeavored to attract patrons by engaging a piper. The Dewitts prevailed eventually, after losses for which the subsequent profits did not recoup them, and they ran the Chateaugay, with John McEachern as captain, for a long period, extending their operations by placing the Fashion, an elegant vessel, on the route to Beauharnois. The traffic had grown to such an extent, that, up to the opening of the Beauharnois canal, the Chateaugay made two trips a day to Lachine, and generally with a barge lashed on either side of her.

The fate of Dundee and Laguerre eventually overtook the trade of the Basin, which left it for new channels. When the district began to be settled, Laprairie was its outport, and thither, through the woods from the southwards or along the river-road that passed by Caughnawaga, wended strings of carts and traineaux according to the season. Laprairie was deserted for Chateaugay, which, in turn, was left for Caughnawaga and Beauharnois, until the time came when the St. Lawrence route was superseded by the railway. While it was the highway to Montreal, tavern-keeping flourished at the Basin, and no fewer than 16 came into existence. Of their owners, the statement that can be made of all those in other parts of the district stands true, the money they got by liquor-selling did no good to them or to their families.

With another week-end over it seems as though the summer is flying by and many projects planned in the spring are yet to be accomplished. The children certainly seem to be enjoying the playground and it is a relief to the mothers to know that they're safely on the swings, see-saws and monkey bars, which undoubtedly seems to be the big attraction at the moment. Many thanks to the men who turned out Saturday morning to help level the playground, also to the thoughtful ladies who did their good turn by providing refreshing drinks. The Sports Committee seems to be devoting quite a few of their evenings to training our ball team. Ball games are held about three nights a week - How about walking down some night to give the boys your encouragement? Just in case someone doesn't know, the ball park is located at the top of West End Drive.

Everyone has no doubt received a Water Restriction Notice. All residents seem to be co-operating nicely, even the weatherman did his share by giving us a good shower on Friday evening.

A Bouquet to West End Residents

Heard the other night that when the Red Cross canvassed West End during their recent campaign for funds that we were more generous per capita than any other section of Chateauguay.

The monthly meeting of the West End Home Owners' Association took place Thursday, July 21st. There was a discussion about the Association's Fuel Oil Survey and all residents will be contacted in order to benefit both themselves and their Association in this fuel oil offer. Mr. C. Cotton, Financial Secretary handed every resident present a copy of the Financial Statement which explained revenue and expenditures for the last two months. Mr. H. Plante, Chairman of the Welfare Committee was forced to resign due to business pressures and Mr. S. Mackey was unanimously voted to take over the post. Some discussion followed concerning the Ladies Auxiliary, but it was decided that this would continue at the next Home Owners Meeting. The meeting thus adjourned at 11 p.m.

Editorial Notes

The World Is Pock-Marked With Trouble

PROBABLY the whole world is facing the greatest number of problems at this time than for many years past. The most important of these troubles is the aftermath of the breakdown of the Summit Conference and the Spy Plane incidents concerning the United States. Other trouble spots are of importance because of their possible implications and they are many and scattered. In a bald statement, the world is in a mess at this time and anything may happen.

Peculiarly, or perhaps by design, the United States is in the throes of a Presidential Election. At another time — that of the Suez crisis, the United States was in the same state. It seems that when such event is taking place in the States, there is no other thought than the domestic interest. At this time however, the United Nations is debating the accusations of Russia and the spy planes and there is much straight talk on the matter from both sides. Threats and counter threats are being made. Also at this time, the crisis in the Congo is to the fore with the United Nations sending a force to restore order in this trouble spot and delegations visiting the States for other aid. At the moment it seems much more important to settle the international differences than to spend too much time with domestic affairs. The international situation is such that unless due care is exercised, a grave condition may result.

Russia is continually bandying threats of missiles or rockets that will be fired if there are any more incidents which she terms aggressive. These are aimed at the United States and others who assist the States by having bases within their countries. Coupled with this is the trouble between the United States and Cuba and which is said to be backed by Russia. Cuba has taken over certain States owned industries and the United States has threatened retaliatory measures unless these industries are restored to their true ownership. Russia has threatened counter measures if the States carries through its plan. In fact, Russia is taking a hand in all the troubled areas and using threats against the Western Allies if they dare to interfere.

This is a high handed attitude, for in most cases it is the Western Allies who stand to lose the most if they don't do something to protect their interests. In the case of Cuba taking over various foreign industries, the Western Allies are the losers as they have the big investments in these enterprises. Russia has no interest other than from the communistic sympathy standpoint and for her to take any action, would be pure interference. In face of the threats that have been made however, the Western Allies fear that consequences may be brought about which they have no wish to be a party to. If, however, they continue to back down, Russia will have scored another bloodless victory and the influence of the Western Allies will have received a very serious setback. The uncertain part of this latest chain of events, is how much is bluff on the part of Russia and how far the Western Allies can go without endangering the world in another global conflict. At this time we stand closer to the brink than at any other time since the end of World War II.

No one wants to start a conflict, yet we can only stand so much unless we passively give in to Russia, which would mean our our coming under the Communist rule. Russia would be the all powerful and direct all affairs. Do we want this, or should we dare the risk and defy the Russian threats by taking matters into our own hands. The handling of this situation demands great courage and determination for it can well mean the end of old world rule and our democratic way of life. It is for this reason that we say the international situation requires more attention than the domestic affairs.

New Government Working Fast

THE new government at Quebec, under Jean Lesage, is losing no time in putting its election program into effect. Already some commissions have been disbanded on the grounds that they are serving no real purpose and that money will be saved the taxpayers as a result. Work is going on in connection with new educational program, although it is not likely that all of it will be working by the time the new school year starts in September. The plan to eventually provide free University education is being looked forward to by a number of students who would like to take advantage of it.

It looks that there will be a number of changes in the various departments as the new ministers become acquainted with their new jobs. The Quebec Liquor Commission is certainly due for a number of changes and this announcement will bring satisfaction to a good many. That the liquor laws need more tightening and better enforcement has been recognized for some time.

The program which the Liberals put forth as their election platform is an ambitious one in a number of ways. Its implementation will be watched with great interest and to see that it does not involve new taxes in order to be carried out. Several times of late, notices calling for tenders on road work and other works, have been seen in the daily newspapers. This is one of the places where Premier Lesage says he will save money. There will not be much known about this as far as the general public is concerned, for they will not be able to compare the present with the past in order to reach a conclusion.

Premier Lesage is to be complimented for sticking to his election promises and also for his resolution that there will be no unfairness in the placing of persons in government positions. This should mean that present holders of such positions will not be removed unless they are incapable of doing the job. If this is followed, a greater confidence will be built up.

Electing A President Of The United States

(Bank of Montreal Business Review.)

The office of President of the United States of America has long been one of great power and influence. Events in recent years, particularly, have combined to extend the direct effects of the President's influence to every corner of the earth. In these uneasy times, Canadians, and people in other countries, will naturally follow this year's presidential election with keen interest; but to many the mechanics of the United States electoral procedure are something of a mystery.

The sole intention of this Review is to describe the sequence of events that occur every four years and which culminate in the election of the Chief Executive of the United States of America, in order to assist readers in following developments in this presidential election year.

It is important to bear in mind from the outset that in 1960 the President will be elected, not directly by some 115 million United States citizens of voting age, nor by the 65 million or more expected to go to the polls, but by 537 persons who, though they never meet as a body, are known as the Electoral College.

The Constitution of the United States provides for this method of electing the President, whereby each state "appoints" a number of Electors equal to the total number of Senators and Representatives which the state sends to Congress. At present, there are 437 Representatives and 100 Senators in Congress; thus, there will be 537 members of the Electoral College, with 269 electoral votes required for a presidential candidate to achieve victory.

Since 1789, the method of choosing these Electors has changed, largely as a result of the evolution of political parties. In practice, state legislatures have directed that the Electors be chosen by popular vote within the state. The slates of candidates for Electors are now nominated, through various procedures, by the party organizations within each state. When a voter goes to the polls on Election Day he does not vote for just one Elector. Instead he indicates on the ballot which slate of Electors within his state he wishes to support. A simple majority of the popular votes in a state will carry all that state's electoral votes for the candidate of one party. Although the name of the winning presidential candidate is usually known by the end of Election Day, he is not then legally elected.

The number of electoral votes (by state) in 1960 are arranged in order of magnitude. New York State, for instance, has 45 Electors since it is entitled to elect 43 Representatives and 2 Senators to the United States Congress. Since even the six states with the smallest population have two Senators and one Representative apiece, the minimum number of electoral votes to which each state is entitled is three.

Those chosen Electors by popular vote meet on the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December in their respective states to cast their ballots for President and for Vice President. The Constitution requires that each Elector must vote for at least one presidential or vice-presidential candidate who is not a resident of the Elector's state. Certified copies of the Electors' ballots are mailed to the President of the Senate and to various other officials. Early in January, the Senate and the House of Representatives will sit as one body to witness the counting of the ballots and the candidate who obtains 269 or more electoral votes will be legally elected President of the United States. If no candidate for President should receive a majority of the electoral votes, the election would be referred to the House of Representatives, a constitutional provision that has been used only once, in 1824.

It is customary, although not constitutionally required, for each slate of Electors to vote en bloc for the presidential candidate nominated by the national convention of its party and, since 1820, only six Electors have failed to vote for the candidate whom they had been pledged to support. The most recent deviation was in 1956, when one Alabama Elector refused to vote for the Democratic candidate.

As a result of the traditional procedure of the slate of Electors from each of the fifty states voting en bloc, the successful candidate need not receive a majority of the national popular votes, in order to obtain a majority of the electoral votes. There have been several "minority" presidents in American history. For example, in 1888 Harrison received 100,000 fewer popular votes than Cleveland, but 65 more electoral votes. The most recent occurrence of this was in 1948 when Mr. Truman received just under 50% of the popular votes, but secured 57% of the votes of the Electoral College.

Prior to and during the sequence of events described above, there are other stages in choosing the President, notably the primaries, the national conventions and the campain.

Presidential primary elections emerged shortly after the beginning of this century. Like other features of the American election system, these primaries are, in effect, largely controlled at the state level by party organizations and regulated by state legislation. In about one-third of the states party voters are given the opportunity to choose delegates to the national nominating conventions and, in some states, to express their preference among party aspirants for presidential nomination. The results of these direct primaries do not as a rule influence the decisions of the national conventions as much as they affect the choice of party candidates for state and local offices.

The national party nominating conventions, first held in the 1830's have evolved outside the United States Constitution. The size of each delegation fluctuates from convention to convention but is weighted roughty according to the population and the number of party supporters in each state. The selection of delegates and alternates is made by state party organizations through the use of primaries as mentioned above, or by other means such as state conventions

The three main purposes of a national convention are to write the party platform, to organize the party for the election campaign to follow and, most important, to choose the party's presidential candidate. It is on this last item of business that the attention of some 4,000 delegates and the public as centred in July of a presidential election year.

The Constitution requires only that the President of the United States shall be a natural-born citizen, at least 35 years of age and resident within the United States for 14 years. It goes without saying, however, that the personal and political requirements for a presidential candidate are many and varied. Apart from the obvious criteria of character and ability, it is perhaps significant that, with one or two notable exceptions, certain traditional "background qualifications" appear to apply. For instance, of the ten presidential candidates elected since 1900, it is noteworthy that eight have been Governors or Senators, and six have hailed from states with more than 20 Electoral College votes.

Usually by the third day the national convention has completed its other business, and takes up its principal task - the nomination of presidential and vice-presidential candidates. The secretary of the convention begins a roll call of states to place names in nomination. Often a state listed at the beginnings of the alphabet will "yield" its nominating position to a state listed later, so that a candidate may have the advantage of being nominated by a key state early in the proceedings. The qualifications of each candidate are extolled in the nominating and seconding speeches, and these speeches are often followed by noisy, colourful demonstrations. This procedure, frequently lengthy, is followed by a second roll call by state when delegations cast their votes for particular candidates. When there are a number of candidates it may be necessary to take several roll calls of the states on the convention floor - often a dramatic procedure - until one candidate achieves a majority of the votes. As a rule, state delegations vote as a unit although delegates from many states are free to vote as individuals if they wish.

The rules covering the Republican and Democratic national conventions differ considerably but both now require a simple majority of the delegates' votes to select a presidential candidate. This candidate now assumes the leadership of his party for at least the duration of the election campaign, concentrated in September and October, and serves as its national standard-bearer.

The American voter has an unusually heavy responsibility on Election Day. Not only does he choose the Electors and President and Vice-President, but he also votes for his Representative to Congress, often for a Senator and usually for a number of state officials. The ballot which he uses to record these choices may include over 100 names and may be over 500 square inches in size, or five times the size of this page. The voting machine, which was introduced in New York State in 1892, is now used in a number of states and facilitates the recording and counting of votes. Unlike Canadian ballots, American ballots usually carry political party designations in the form of a symbol or party name. Like most other regulations governing elections in the United States, the type of ballot used is determined by each state.

In summary, the major events which lead to the choice of a Chief Executive begin with the presidential primary elections, held in certain states during the months of March through June.

During July of a presidential election year, the major political parties hold their national nominating conventions to choose their candidates for President and Vice-President. This year the Democrats met at Los Angeles, starting July 11, and the Republicans convene at Chicago starting July 25.

Active election campaigning usually begins after Labour Day and is concluded just before Election Day, which this year falls on November 8.

The members of the Electoral College will meet in their several state capitals on December 19, 1960, to cast their ballots for President and Vice-President.

On January 6, 1961, the 537 Electoral ballots will be counted before the new Congress and, in compliance with the Constitution, the candidate who receives a simple majority will be legally elected President of the United States of America.

On Inauguration Day, two weeks later, a man chosen, in effect if indirectly, by the people in a year-long sequence of traditional and legal procedures, will be invested with the powers, responsibilities and heavy burdens of one of the most exacting offices in the modern world.

Big Change Ahead In The Dairy Industry?

We've heard so much about vertical integration and technological change in the production of broilers, eggs, hogs, and market garden products, that most of us haven't had time to even imagine in what form the impact of changing times will take in the dairy industry. We've seen the feed lot system of raising beef in a commercial way, but now the dairy industry with its zero grazing, and loose housing is also heading in the same direction. The Ontario Milk Producers' Co-ordinating Board in a recent Bulletin tell us of such a program that is already operating on a large scale in Iowa. The story goes like this:

"Utah farmers for some time have been co-operating together by driving their individual herds to central milking parlours while others kept the cows on their own farms, but had companies come in to do the chores. At the big Walker-Gordon farm in New Jersey some owners are responsible for the care of their own cows, and the farm does the milking and the milk selling.

The beginning of all-out specialization and vertical integration in the dairy industry in the United States was started by a young farmer by the name of Carroll Morris, when he began operating "Fashion Farm" in Cerro Gordo County, Iowa. The present size of the farm is 10 acres, on which he maintains for 65 owners, a herd of some 800 milk cows. He feeds them, houses them, milks them, and ships the milk to the Kansas City Grade "A" Market. The total investment at the present time in "Fashion Farm" is approximately $240,000. The cows are divided into separate lots by breed and production, and are housed in a shed 52 feet by 896 feet. They are fed from 4 sheds each 30 feet by 96 feet. The milking barns or parlour is approximately 48 feet by 60 feet with overhead grain storage. The cows are milked in two 8-stall diagonal Surge milking units with the milk being piped to two 1,725 gallon bulk cooling tanks.

The milk is transported by bulk tank 305 miles to Kansas City and costs only 4 cents more per hundred weight for hauling charges than what the local dairyman pay to transport their own milk a distance of 30 miles to Mason City, Iowa. The reason is that the tank makes only one stop while the local route man has to make 25 to 30 stops at scattered farms to pick-up the same volume. The milk when it reaches Kansas City has a bacterial count of 16,000 an average test of 3.8 per cent butterfat.

A farmer wishing to participate in the cow pool must sign a contract with the pool for a three year period. He must pay $30.00 per cow per year to cover housing and equipment costs and pool farm profit. The farmer also pays for the grain mix which is fed according to production, for hay and other costs such as labour, bedding, veterinary services, electricity, heat, hauling all of which are totalled up each month and pro-rated per cow. Morris estimates that these costs will be as follows: Labour, $42.00 per cow, per month, bedding, $6.00, veterinary care, $3.00, electricity and heat, $6.00, milk hauling, 47 cents per hundred weight.

When the cow dries up the owner takes her home until she freshens, and has the privilege of raising the calf. Insemination charges to the owner of the cows are $1.75 per cow."

At the present time, some 250 of these pools are either in operation or being organized in the States, some of them privately owned, and many others co-operatively owned. F. Dean McCammon, of the Consumers Co-operative Association foresees continued growth in this development, and urges farmers to retain control over these pools through co-operative enterprise.

The Week In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) Premier Jean Lesage and three of his top Lieutenants are in Ottawa to attend the Federal-Provincial fiscal conference and other post-conference talks with members of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's cabinet.

The Federal-Provincial talks opened Monday and end Wednesday. There Mr. Lesage intends to demand a larger share of the taxation dollar for Quebec Province and hopes to negotiate arrangements so that Quebec can collect federal dollars it would have received through participation in the Trans-Canada highway project and the Federal Hospital Insurance plan.

Attorney-General Georges Lapalme and Roads Minister Bernard Pinard are also with the Premier at the talks. Six advisers and experts are also on hand.

Health Minister Dr. Alphonse Couturier will join Mr. Lesage for talks with Federal Health Minister Monteith, July 28. This session is expected to be devoted mainly in discussion of Quebec's proposed Hospital Insurance plan. The Province hopes to have its own plan in operation by January 1, 1961.

Mr. Lesage and Mr. Lapalme will also meet Justice Minister Fulton in connection with reorganization of the Provincial Police force and then Mr. Lesage and Mr. Pinard meet with National Works Minister Walker in conection with the Trans-Canada highway project. These two meetings will also take place July 28.

The Cabinet held three meetings the past week and devoted most of the time to preparation of the brief the Province will present at the conference. As he prepared to leave for Ottawa, the Premier said the brief was ready "down to the last comma."

In between the Cabinet meetings, the Premier met with heads of Quebec's six universities and announced afterwards at a press conference that a universities and classical colleges commission to inform the Government on the needs of higher education will be created by law at the next session of the Legislature.

The next session, the Premier announced, will be held in October or early November.

The commission, a body which the Liberal opposition sought for years, will be made up of representatives of the education institutions.

The former Union Nationale administration had rejected the idea as unnecessary saying each university or college could make its needs known to the Provincial Cabinet.

Meanwhile Transport Minister Gerard Cournoyer said the Government hopes to introduce legislation during the next session designed to meet repeated recommendations of traffic safety groups "if the thing is physically possible."

Mr. Cournoyer said the legislation would:

1. Set up compulsory driver insurance;
2. Create a compensation fund from which persons injured in highway accidents would be repaid when the re responsible party is insolvent;
3. Create a driver demerit system.

Mr. Cournoyer spoke after being presented with a brief by the Quebec Highway Safety Committee at the Legislature building. The brief proposed the three steps among other things.

1. Plans for construction of two normal schools for boys at Trois-Rivières and Sherbrooke. Tenders for the school at Trois-Rivières, expected to cost in the vicinity of $3,500,000, were to be called this week while tenders for the school at Sherbrooke will be called within three months.

2. Yves Leduc, Verdun Lawyer, was appointed the second assistant Deputy Minister of the Attorney-General's department. Mr. Leduc's appointment is for the Montreal district. The previous assistant, Paul Fredette, retains his post for Quebec City and district only.

3. Jean Remillard, 57, Quebec City Lawyer, was appointed new Chairman of the Civil Service Commission. He replaces J. Ernest Laforce, 82, who has retired.

4. The resignation of Provincial Police Director Hilaire Beauregard was accepted. Mr. Beauregard had submitted his resignation request shortly after the June 22 general election. He said he was in poor health.

5. Lucien D. Lachapelle was named manager of the Quebec section of the Provincial Liquor Commission replacing H. P. Hould who is retiring because of ill health.

6. Guy Poliquin, president of the association of Quebec Life Insurances, was named member of the Montreal-Laurentian autoroute board. He replaces Maurice Forget, a Montreal broker.

7. Work on two bridges to link the West end of the Island of Montreal to the mainland has been stopped pending the drafting of new plans. Public tenders for construction will be called for when the new plans are ready.

8. A long-inactive commission for beautifying the City of Quebec has been revived. The commission fell into disuse when the late Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale Government was elected in 1944.

9. Dr. Aime Fauteux, 58, was appointed a member of the Civil Service Commission. Mr. Fauteux was a candidate for leadership of the Liberal party in 1958 — at the same convention that chose Mr. Lesage for leadership.

10. A committee set up by the Union Nationale Government in 1954 to study problems related to provincial highways is disbanded as of August 1. Mr. Lesage said as far as he knew the committee had never submitted a report. As of March 1, the committee was paid $141,707, Mr. Lesage said.

T.V. Has Replaced Radio As Centre Of Entertainment

"Truly we are living in a visual age", says Mrs. Geo. Wilson, Public Relations Officer, Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, in her report on a radio and television program's survey just completed by the Provincial Women's Institutes for the season 1959-60. She goes on to say that television has replaced radio as the centre of entertainment in ninety percent of the homes reached by this survey, with an average of six viewing hours per day.

Reports show, however, continues Mrs. Wilson, that radio still has a definite place in the home. It is turned on first thing in the morning for news and weather and during working hours the homemakers enjoy the musical programs. There are also areas in Canada that still do not have television. Here the radio is a valued friend of the country woman.

The survey was carried on for both radio and television programs, under headings: Children's, Women's, Entertainment, Religion, Agriculture, News, Advertising. The more popular programs under each were listed and recommendations and comments given in each instance. Less crime and violence, especially in the programs during children's viewing hours, were requested and "Commercials toned down", another improvement asked. Mothers were unanimous in complaining about "child persuader" advertising (appeals to children for enclosed gifts and premiums). Women's programs, religious ones and those on agricultural topics were, on the whole, highly rated and in general, news coverage was commended. A variety of tastes was recorded in entertainment, but all approved of programs providing an outlet for talented young Canadians. Country hick impersonations were found objectionable, also simulated accents.

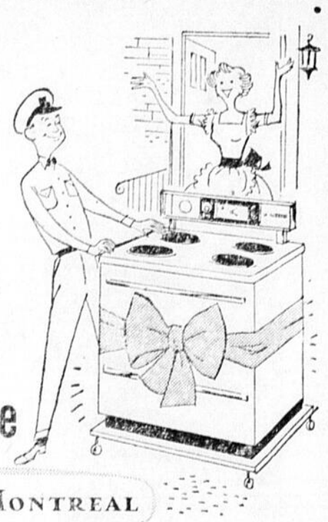

All reports, concludes Mrs. Wilson, in this survey by Women's Institutes across Canada, commend the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and private stations for their efforts to provide programs of varied interest and express appreciation of their cooperation with WI. "This is highly valued," was a frequent comment.

Milk And Strontium 90

Ever since the United States detonated the first atomic bomb over Japan in the dying days of the second World War there has been wide discussion and concern over the topics of "fallout" and "radiation." With continued nuclear testing the dangers to the public have increased, and studies have been continuing on the effects of, and methods of controlling radiation. In recent years there has been much said about the intake of Strontium 90 into the human body. Most of the studies to determine the amount of such accumulation have been carried out in milk, and as a result this product has suffered from a wave of bad publicity. The assumption has been

The hostess served dainty refreshments, assisted in serving by her sister, Mrs. Edna Erskine. Proceeds of meeting $6.65.

that milk acts as a carrier concentrating the Strontium 90. This is probably due to the fact that milk-testing was the major project of the Radiation Protection Division of the Department of National Health and Welfare for some time. Now, however, with other testing programs in operation and with testing being done on soils, rain water, human bone, as well as milk, and with scientists conducting individual studies into various phases of the problem it appears that we have tended to put too much emphasis on milk and overlooked the fact that Strontium 90 is present in almost all forms of plant life.

Recently, it has been proven that milk, rather than being a concentration of Strontium 90 is actually one of the main methods of limiting the amount of such radiation that may be safely introduced in the body. Dr. C. F. Bentley, Dean of the Faculty of Agriculture, at the University of Alberta reports that it is imperative that adequate amounts of milk be consumed by individuals in order to maintain a high level of calcium in the diet. It has been established, said Dr. Bentley, that the body will take 80% of its calcium requirements from milk, if it is consumed in sufficient quantities, and the balance from vegetables, and cereals. If the body's calcium requirements are obtained solely from vegetables and cereals, however, the intake of Strontium 90 would be 8 times higher than if milk played the part it should in a balanced diet. Dr. Bentley concludes, "an adequate amount of milk, in addition to cereals and vegetables, is not only the most healthful diet, but also contains the mimimum of Strontium 90". At a recent conference in Montreal it was pointed out that nature's most perfect manufacturing unit, the dairy cow, is capable of eliminating most of the Strontium 90 she consumes in her roughage, pasture and cereal grains, by the simple biological process of her body. This disposal and elimination of the element in question is not so achieved when we consume the plant products directly. It would appear that the dairy cow and her quality product have been falsely accused as being the main source of Strontium 90 in our diets, whereas in reality milk is one of the best methods of ensuring against this danger.

Lacolle

LACOLLE — Once again we of the Canadian Legion Branch No. 11 have to announce the sad news of the passing away of one of our conscientious Members Comrade Jim Beattie.

Jim was a man, who offered his life in time of War for his King and Country and carried on in time of Peace in the Canadian Legion with the same enthusiasm. He also was a man who carried on his, lot in life without a murmur of complaint. In all the time that we have known Jim he never uttered a word against his fellow man. He was with the Victoria Rifles of Canada in World War II. After the War Jim joined the Canadian Customs. He started in the service at Trout River, Quebec and in the Fall was transferred to Lacolle.

The Funeral took place at Knox Church (in Hemmingford) with Rev. K. Murray taking the service. The pall bearers were three Legionnaires from Lacolle Branch No. 11 and three fellow Customs Officers. The casket was draped with the Canadian Flag, the Red Ensign.

At the Graveside the President of the Legion read the Legion Tribute Service after which all the Legionnaires and Customs Officers filed passed dropping a poppy on the Casket.

The final service was taken by Rev. Murray.

Mr. Ray Reddick spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fewster.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter McCallum, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Warden of Huntingdon were guests the past week for a few days of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bernhardt.

Mr. and Mrs. James Feeny left on Friday from Dorval Airport to spend two weeks vacationing in the West and to attend the wedding of their Niece.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Smith and Merlene of Huntingdon are spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fewster and family.

Tractor Fuel Costs Reduced

Tractor fuel costs can be cut if proper attention is paid to a number of items, advises agricultural engineer J.L. Thompson of the Swift Current Experimental Farm.

A motor tune-up is advisable, he says, and this usually involves valve adjustment, spacing of points, tuning the distributor, cleaning spark plugs, and adjusting the carburetor.

If the dealer has a power take-off dynamometer the carburetor can be adjusted under load for improved economy.

Well seated valves are essential for high power output from the amount of fuel used. Piston rings in good condition also provide oil economy. To prevent undue wear of the rings, oil, oil filter and air filter should be changed according to the recommended number of working hours, or more often under dusty conditions. A dirty air filter acts as a choke and hence uses much more fuel than is necessary.

Best Operation

Usually tractors are the most economical when pulling 75 per cent of their maximum load. Heavy loads require a lower gear and light ones are usually drawn at highter speeds. For very light loads it is a good practice to operate in a higher gear and throttle back to the recommended speed. When heavy loads cause slippage above 15 per cent, it is advisable to attach tractor weights. Fuel savings will soon pay for the weights.

Drawbar loads can be reduced by proper adjustments of implements. Soft tires require more power and also wear out more quickly.

Accessories, such as the hydraulic pump, use power even when not in use and should be disconnected when not required if feasible. Brakes that drag and slipping clutches also waste power. They should be checked periodically and corrected when necessary.

Fuel storage tanks may be the cause of heavy fuel losses by evaporation. Overhead tanks should be shaded from direct sunlight and also a pressure regulator installed in the vent pipe. By maintaining a little pressure in the fuel tank, evaporation losses can be greatly reduced.

SELECTING POULTRY FOR SHOW PURPOSES

Poultry exhibitions are not as popular as they used to be, but some breeders still show fancy birds or specimens of the ordinary breeds at county fairs and elsewhere. Mr. Ulric Gauthier of the Quebec Department of Agriculture makes the following recommendations concerning exhibitions.

In the first place, it is necessary to choose birds which will meet the requirements of the class in which they are to be entered, as regards breed, sex, variety and number. Possible confusion during the handling and transportation of the birds can be avoided by the use of leg bands or rings. Poultry intended for show should be perfectly healthy so that they will not be a source of infection. They should be clean and their feet may be washed. Any poultryman, whose flock has either suffered from communicable diseases or been vaccinated within the past few weeks, should refrain from sending his birds to exhibitions.

No matter whether the birds are laying hens, cockerels or turkeys, they should be in good flesh and without defects or faults which will lead to their disqualification, such as poorly coloured plumage, crooked breastbone or deformities. If a single entry calls for several birds of the same type, they should all be of uniform age, weight and piumage.

Transportation from poultry farm to exhibition grounds should take place under good conditions, without crowding or exposure to draughts. After the show, the birds should not be returned to the flock but should be killed at once so that there will be no risk of their introducing into it any infections or parasites they may have picked up.

Miss Lucy Dann, Miss Evelyn Boisseau and Mr. Roger Boisseau of Worcester, Mass., were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fewster.

Courtesy Afloat

Courtesy pays. Sir Walter Raleigh laid his cape across a mud puddle to keep the Queen of England's shoes dry, and she gave him the whole state of Virginia. Courtesy afloat pays pretty good dividends, too, in safety and satisfaction.

Here are a few points to remember:

Anchoring in the channel

Fishermen are the worst offenders here, generally because that's often where the fish are biting. But catching fish is not sufficient reason for endangering navigation - and breaking the law. So find a fishing spot off the channel.

Blocking lauching ramps

One person, so anxious to get out onto the water that he parks his car and trailer on the approach to the launching ramp, can spoil a day's outing for a lot of boaters. After you have launched your boat, take time out to find a convenient, safe spot to park your car, leaving plenty of room for other boaters to launch their craft.

Wakes

Before you holler at that hot-rodder who speeds past your docked boat, throwing a wake that costs you several layers of paint, ask yourself if you're not sometimes guilty of the same sin. The law holds you responsible for any damage caused by your wake. Go slow near anchorages and docks, also when you pass over-loaded boats.

Skiers and swimmers

A swimmer in the water is hard to see. If he's between you and the sun, he disappears completely.

Following closely behind a water skier is bad medicine. If he falls, you're in danger of running him down. Best practice is to give skiers a wide berth. And if you're skiing, don't "buzz" boats.

Fishing boats

If there's anyone in this world who hates to be disturbed, it's the fisherman. Although it's been disproved that outboards scare fish, your wake will annoy him plenty, especially if he likes to stand up to cast.

If he's trolling, stay well aclear of the area behind his boat. Whether you cut his line, or foul your prop, nobody's going to be happy.

Hot rodding

Chances are you've outgrown playing "chicken" on the highway. Don't do it on the water. The fellow who treats either the highway or waterway as a drag strip should lose the privilege of using either.

The boater who observes the rules of the road and courtesy afloat adds to the fun of boating - including his own - and stays out of trouble.

Scotty Schlotzhaeur returned with them to spend a few weeks in Canada. The Misses Joyce and Alma Duheme visited at the same home for a week. During their stay they motored to Union Town, Pennsylvania, and returned home on Wednesday by Greyhound bus.

Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Tannahill of Montreal, cousin of Mrs. Art. Goodfellow, called at her home Friday afternoon. It was their first visit in thirty years.
