

Blood pressure clinic may find one in ten suffers from hypertension

By ANDY DODGE

It's so simple, it hardly seems worth doing. But it could save you from early death or serious heart failure, loss of eyesight, stroke or kidney failure, among other illnesses.

It's watching your blood pressure. Citizens of Westmount will be able to have their blood pressure taken quickly, without pain or serious loss of time, at Victoria Hall on June 1 and 2, from 1 to 9 pm each day. It can be expected that one of every 10 Westmounters has high blood pressure—hypertension—even if he shows no symptoms, and should get to a doctor to begin treatment.

Of those who have high blood pressure, half are unaware of their condition, and of those who are aware, half don't care or are not getting treatment.

Anne Smith, public health nurse for Westmount and chief organizer of the "blood pressure days," says the target group (but not the only group) for the effort is men between the ages of 35 and 50, a sector of the population very prone to hypertension but often "too busy" to see a doctor and have their pressure checked.

Lifestyle main cause

"It's their whole lifestyle," which causes high blood pressure in this group, Ms. Smith explains. "They may have lots of pressure at work or at home with a young family. They don't exercise, they smoke, eat high cholesterol foods—all this puts more pressure on their whole system."

Ms. Smith and the other PHNs—former Westmount nurses now working through the Department of Community Health at the Montreal General Hospital, but still carrying out the same functions for Westmounters—do not plan to stop at the mere discovery that a person has high blood pressure. They will ask for the name of the family doctor, then later ask the family doctor what treatment he has prescribed and ensure the treatment is being followed.

Agencies realigned Monday

One of three "area service centres" into which Ville Marie Social Service Centre is redividing its amalgam of non-French, non-Jewish agencies is based in Westmount and officially came into being Monday morning.

Designated the Centre City Area Service Centre, it is to embrace services to clients in all Montreal island communities save the southwest and west island areas, which are to be served by their own respective centres.

J. D'Arcy Coulson, director-general of Ville Marie, Tuesday morning introduced Mrs. Joan Bailin as director of the city centre grouping to a press conference held at the former

Ransacked

A house on Carleton avenue was ransacked by thieves sometime between 5 pm Friday and 4 pm Sunday, after the culprits broke two windows in a back door to gain entry. Police are still awaiting a list of stolen goods, and were unable to determine immediately how much damage had been inflicted on the dwelling.

Open door

A bicycle was stolen from an open garage on Grosvenor sometime between April 18 and 28, police in Westmount learned last Thursday.

BUTTERFLY BALLET: Elizabeth Wallace and Alexandria Rochester appear to have different reactions to performing on stage at Victoria Hall last Friday evening. The two girls were taking part in the annual dance show put on by Westmount children who participated in the city's dance program during the winter. Many types of dance were exhibited, this one being "Butterflies and starlights" by the beginners' ballet class. More pictures are on page 10.

Roslyn festival is ready

Former Roslyn School pupils, from as far away as Toronto, New York and even Alberta, are making a special point of being here this evening for the launching of the school's two-years-in-the-making history festival.

At 7 o'clock—sharp, the organizers emphasize, because some of the dignitaries must be at the high school for commencement exercises at 8 pm—PSBGM Commissioner Mrs. Joan Rothman will open the ceremonies, with Mayor Donald C. MacCallum giving a short

Family Day off this year

"Family Day" festivities have been cancelled for this year, while city council rethinks the entire event and makes plans for a "bigger and better" recreational get-together next year. Ald. Brian Gallery told The Examiner yesterday. Last year's celebration, held on May 29, included fun and games for citizens of all ages; this year, Westmount has been keeping its recreation department budget very tight and is studying reports made on the basis of last year's day-long event.

'Operation Pro-Canada' at WMA meeting

"Operation Pro-Canada" is the name being given the panel discussion which will follow the Westmount Municipal Association's annual meeting Tuesday at 7:30 pm in Victoria Hall. The WMA originally hoped to have Quebec Cultural Development Minister Camille Laurin speak to the members but Dr. Laurin was available only for a Sunday meeting.

The panel will consist of Bernard J. Finestone, president of the Montreal Board of Trade; Alex K. Paterson, QC, from the Positive Action group; Claude Nolin, QC, president of Quebec-Canada and Stephen Scott, constitutional lawyer at McGill University. The panel will field questions from the audience after the discussion.

Besides the regular business of the annual meeting, such as the approval of the financial statement, the appointment of new officers and President Dan Tingley's report, WMA members will hear the report of the advisory council nominating committee for the school elections. It is expected that Joan Rothman will be the committee's choice for Protestant candidate in ward 4.

Also on the agenda is the approval of the changes in the association's by-laws regarding the WMA nominations for civic elections. The relatively minor changes were recommended by WMA Vice-president Dale Thompson and his election review committee. They were outlined in The Examiner, April 14.

WHS graduates 223

Westmount High School will graduate 223 students this year, 11 of them from the nursing assistant program, at ceremonies tonight at 8 pm in the school auditorium.

Twenty-three prizes and scholarships will be awarded, including nine prizes from individuals, seven from the Home and School Association and seven from the school.

The number of graduates is up slightly this year from last year when 215 completed their studies, 19 of them nursing assistants.

MAY 14 to 21
Pleasant conditions will prevail this week and the next. Nights are clear and cold with morning rime frosts. Heat thundersqualls some evenings, it is that kind of summer. Rainy in the middle of each week, and clearing for the weekend. "Crazy with the heat" once again assumes its grim summer implications, despite the fact that it is not yet June. Until the end of the week, tobacco and delicate plants will need protection. Mainly sunny and quite warm everywhere for the Victoria Day weekend.
Temperature range, nights, zero to 5 Celsius; days, 20 to 25.

Mall proposed:

Architecture student ponders Greene site and makes it a thesis

By ANDY DODGE

PROPOSED MULTI-USE BUILDING: A model of Carmen Tagle's proposed complex for the southwest corner of Greene avenue and St. Catherine street was on exhibit last week at McGill's School of Architecture.

Have you walked past the corner of Greene avenue and de Maisonneuve boulevard in the past eight months, looked at the closed service station and said, gee, something should be done to that corner? No doubt, if you're a typical Westmount shopper or have business on the street, you have.

So has Carmen Tagle, 267 Olivier avenue.

Ms. Tagle, however, happens to be an architecture student, so rather than hope that someone else would do something, she decided to do something herself. She moved to Olivier in September, just as she was wondering what she should do as a thesis for her final year at the McGill School of Architecture. Regular walks past the site twice a day, to and from the Métro, made up her mind.

She was unwilling to let her idea rest with a large and elegant multi-use complex, however. After consultations and development of her own ideas, she decided to incorporate the building into a pedestrian mall on Greene avenue, and to extend the mall around de Maisonneuve, closing off Greene entirely between Sherbrooke and St. Catherine streets.

The idea of making Greene into a pedestrian mall is not new. It has been proposed by planners as far back as 1960, when John Bland suggested it in a plan for Westmount which his firm was commissioned to do. The idea never bore fruit, though it was alluded to by DeLeuw, Cather and Associates in traffic studies and proposals to the city in 1972 and 1973. In 1975 Westmount's architectural and planning commission proposed restricting—but not cutting off completely—traffic on the street, and though city council endorsed the idea, lack of funds has held off any action.

Underground parking

Ms. Tagle worked without consulting these other plans, and has incorporated a new idea, a driveway from St. Catherine street to an underground parking lot. The parking lot would have two levels, one for commercial parking and one for tenants.

The major part of the proposal, however, is her ideas on redeveloping the entire lot now owned by Ivanhoe Corp., real estate wing of Steinberg's Ltd., including the Steinberg's supermarket, the abandoned service station and Steinberg's parking lot. Her plan would be to have large and luxurious apartments, retail outlets and commercial premises all put together, spread out laterally on six or seven stories.

Forty-two planned housing units are the most exciting part of her plan, and caught the eye of the McGill architects. They would include apartments as big as four bedrooms, some on two floors rather than one, designed to capture sun with windows on two sides and terraces facing southwest.

"This would bring housing to Greene avenue," Ms. Tagle suggested, after arguing that the Westmount Square apartments are self-contained. "It would be housing within the character of the people of Westmount. They're mostly for people moving from big houses who still want to be in Westmount and still feel they're living in a special place."

She added that while the apartments would be high-rent, the wealthy would be able to accommodate the furniture from their large homes. She has adhered strictly to Westmount's building code, with two exits from each unit and other amenities unusual to many downtown apartments.

Open atmosphere

The shopping portion has been carefully designed as well, so as not to compete with Westmount Square but to offer a more open atmosphere for shopping while still allowing commercial outlets in a semi-enclosed facility. A courtyard (which could include spillover tables for a licensed restaurant in the summertime) and connections to the lobby of the Avenue theatre, next door, as well as "drawing-card" stores such as newsstands, a grocery store and small cafeteria-bar would attract customers to "a special place just to come and browse," similar to the Old Post Office on the opposite corner of de Maisonneuve, but more open-air.

Ms. Tagle does not plan to have a direct connection between the building and the Métro, since "the design is to see people out on Greene avenue." The pedestrian street mall, however, would allow direct access to Westmount Square which would lead commuters to the subway.

In researching the proposal, Ms. Tagle tried but failed to discuss the idea with Westmount's chief building inspector, J. G. Nourse, with the architects of Bland, Lemoyne, Edwards who had drawn up the original plan, or with Ivanhoe (Steinberg's) executives, though she would still like to take the plan to the latter. She did, however, talk several times with Mrs. JoAnn Issenman, 493 Elm avenue, president of the Greene Avenue Village Association which several years ago supported the idea of a pedestrian mall.

A 32-year-old Montreal man was arrested Friday morning by Cst. Bernard Roy, Westmount's youth officer, and later charged with harassing small children near St. Leo's School with exhibitionism and enticement.

Several children had complained to the school's principal, Mlle. Marguerite Lacombe, about the man; she telephoned Cst. Roy, who personally staked out the school last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. While nothing appeared amiss on the first two days, Cst. Roy saw a car pull up near the south side of the school at about 8 am Friday, as an eight-year-old girl was approaching the building.

A man got out of the car and ran into a lane beside the school, in front of the girl; Cst. Roy followed, saw that the suspect was acting indecently and shouted at him. The man immediately ran off toward Kit-chener avenue and south toward de Maisonneuve boulevard.

Cst. Roy decided to give chase in his police car and went south on Clarke to de Maisonneuve. He arrested a man coming out of St. Leo's Church shortly thereafter, and charged him under the Criminal Code of Canada act respecting juveniles. The case thus is being processed through Social Welfare Court.

No questions

Westmount has had no inquiries about the recent zoning change concerning roof structures on high-rise buildings, which restricts their height and allows for a greater variety of recreational facilities in them. Demand for a referendum on the matter will be a subject of a register to be open at city hall next Wednesday and Thursday, and 480 signatures would be required to take the matter to a public vote.

The meeting is being sponsored by Roslyn School's joint school committee-home and school association, and will follow elections for that organization beginning at 7:45 pm.

Questions from the floor will be entertained once the speakers have offered their opinions.

12 arrests

Twelve people around Westmount were arrested for outstanding warrants during the past week, including four last Wednesday, three last Thursday and five on Monday. One taxi driver was also nabbed last Thursday for having no pocket number.

One more day

City officials discovered—rather belatedly—that May 23, the announced date on which tenders were to be opened for the sale of city property on Edgehill

Retirement of Dr. Valois leaves gap

Retirement of Dr. Antoine B. Valois, Westmount's medical officer of health (see The Examiner, April 21), brings with it some problems for the city administration, which must ensure the health of city employees while adapting to the department of community health (DCH) programs at the Montreal General Hospital for public health programs.

City council agreed in general committee prior to Monday's formal session that someone would have to be hired to look after such staff-related situations as pre-employment medical checks, periodical medical examinations of employees, overseeing medical aspects of workmen's compensation claims, overseeing maintenance of employee's medical records and first-aid treatment to employees.

It was decided that Dr. Donald Mackay, who has for many years been helpful to the city, would look after these functions. In the meantime, officials of the Montreal General Hospital are calling together a committee with some Westmount council representation, to decide what the relationship between the city and the DCH should be, and what can be done about those programs the city will be without pending establishment of a local community service centre for Westmount.

The following building permits were issued at city hall during the past week:

- May 4
1 Alexis Nihon Plaza: for G. A. Delicatessen by Express Plumbing and Heating, plumbing, $2,800;
- May 6
521 Clarke: for Mrs. M. Vezina by Cabla Construction Engr., extension, $1,500.

445 dog tags issued here

Westmount has issued some 445 dog licenses this year, as of Tuesday morning, which means there are probably many unlicensed dogs roaming the streets, considering that a total of 1,036 licenses were issued last year. The 445 figure, however, is roughly equal to the number issued by the same date last year.

Licensing of dogs helps greatly in identifying those which are picked up by the city dog-catcher, and aids police in establishing whether or not a dog has been vaccinated, should it bite a human. Old dog licenses expired May 1.

The new city dog-catcher, who has been on the job since March 9, has picked up 12 dogs so far this year.

We Say

Roslyn School —history trove

THIS evening, sharp at seven o'clock, an extraordinary event begins at Roslyn School.

The Roslyn History Project opens its doors.

Here is an occasion worthy of a prestigious institution.

But, then, Roslyn School is a prestigious institution.

A roll call of the men and women who received their early, elementary education at Roslyn would include a most impressive list of persons who have made their mark in most every field imaginable, in service to their city, province, country and the world.

On the sobering, sorrowful yet prideful side, the editor recalls his own Roslyn class of boys who emerged from their 'teens around 1939, prime for the Second World War. Half of that one Roslyn group did not return.

The big, red pile on Westmount avenue, opened in 1908, is memory-laden, obvious and appreciated perhaps more by some who were never its students: such as the three young mothers of present pupils who two years ago began their research culminating in tonight's ceremony.

Mrs. Ann Elbourne, Mrs. Molly Fripp and Mrs. Maryla Waters have been indefatigable in their gathering of more than 1,000 exhibits, mounting fascinating displays and planning the events surrounding this unique project.

Anyone ever with any connection with the school, and anyone with a sense of history and of community, should make it a "must" this evening, Friday or Saturday, to visit Roslyn and treat themselves to the fruits of this great effort.

Rotary involves the community

ALL sorts of things make for a sense of community.

Particularly occasions with lots of individual involvement.

The Rotary Club of Westmount's second annual giant "Garage" Sale and Auction last Friday evening and all day Saturday was just such an occasion.

Wholehearted participation came from hundreds of people, all of whom could draw fun, satisfaction and a sense of accomplishment from a good cause: assisting the many worthy efforts supported by the local service club throughout the year.

There were quite a few dog-tired

Rotarians by Saturday evening—some of whom are not so young as when they mounted their monster Rotary Fair of former years. But they were happy with the result.

Happy and grateful to many Westmounters, and others outside our city, who enthusiastically turned out countless valuable articles for the sale.

The good works of Rotary are many. They are carried out quietly but effectively. Beneficiaries of all sorts are countless: people for whom neither government nor charity do not or cannot provide, people who require service in its broadest meaning and of the kind Rotary calls "Service above self."

The proceeds of this sale and other monetary resources are only part of Rotary's means; the cash fuels good works, making much more possible by involvement and concern.

The Rotary Club's initiative has permitted all Westmount to come together in something worthwhile.

Social work and the PQ

THE double announcement this week that Westmount is to be the base for one of three English-language "area social service centres" for the island—and probably headquarters for the Ville Marie organization under which it is to operate—and that Ville Marie feels constrained to submit a brief to Quebec on Bill 1, raises interesting rumination on two principal policies of the Péquiste government.

One is its determination to make massive unifying intervention into areas which, not so long ago, were the preserve of private philanthropic and often volunteer effort.

The other is the determination that French shall be the province's language.

Ville Marie, put together by the Liberals to take over the various agencies once the preserve of Red Feather, Federated Charities or Catholic Charities, now is totally funded by public monies with its concomitant overall control by the provincial department of social affairs. The situation appears ready-made for the government party, which puts the "collectivity" before all.

Now add the language thing. The Lévesque regime betrays blindness in many areas of its everything-French policy when it comes down to specifics. It seems to us that the services of Ville Marie, designed for the English-speaking population, surely will give the government's thinkers and planners something of a dilemma.

There really is no other way for a social worker to deal with a client with a problem than in his or her own language, specially if the individual is either young or elderly with no expectation of comprehending French. The Liberals already had been persuaded, when reorganizing social services along French and English lines, that there were the added special nuances of the Jewish approach in which aid to the distressed has an intimate relationship to that faith.

There is nothing to say the doctrinaire national and racial planners of the Parti Québécois will not direct their attentions to these anomalies in their vision of a monolithic French Quebec society. If they do, they will be consistent.

Sooner or later, however, they may be faced with having to accept that Quebec society cannot be the perfect one they would fashion but, rather, the one they find; one which includes over a million English-speaking persons with needs—let alone desires—of their own.

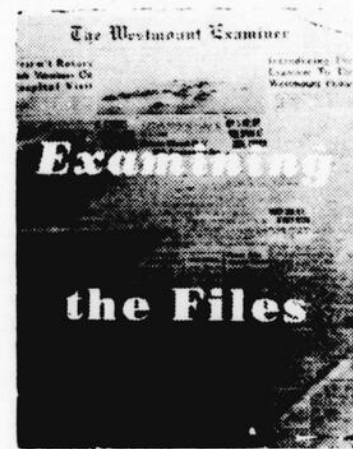

One might have thought that in the very human area of education, where they are proposing strictures which are becoming more and more indefensible as they are more closely examined, that by now they might have bent. Yet there still is no sign that they will.

However, they may find that in the social services they will meet a match for their wits. The one-to-one nature of much of social work well may defy PQ French-only philosophy and provide the first opening for moderation of their so-far inflexible one-culture thinking.

Editorial Notes

DEPARTMENT of linguistic confusion, federal division, nomenclature section: A Quebec postal region release concerning the holiday shutdown of mail service on Monday, May 23, is in two parts. The top, in French, is headed "Fête de Dollard." The bottom, in English, is captioned "Victoria Day."

The Examiner does not report unsubstantiated rumor. But it is of interest to report when a rumor is persistent, restating that it is just rumor. The latest one occasioning numerous phone calls to our office says that Premier René Lévesque has bought a house on Upper Lansdowne avenue! Such an interesting social and political event has yet to be confirmed by our regular real estate transfer listings.... There may be a case for off-street parking for the Reader's Digest annex on Metcalfe avenue, but we were told clearly last year by the local publishing company that the site of the demolished "gingerbread house" was to be "landscaped to the standard of our Redfern avenue building." Hence, we are in accord with the following observation from the May issue of Save Montreal's publication, SOS Montreal: "The landscaping style they have used is 'Los Angeles Modern,' namely a layer of asphalt with an artful display of large mobile structures which bear a strange resemblance to cars and trucks. It's a good thing they didn't build a parking lot."

Thirty-five Years Ago May 14, 1942

"It has been said that France was liquidated because Frenchmen wouldn't give up the idea that their national budget should be balanced. Hitler relied on the democracies to think in an orthodox way about money, taxes and budgets. If they did, they would never be prepared to resist him, he reasoned. When Canada, Britain and the United States announced what they would spend on armaments, they shattered a Hitler delusion. We made it clear that the cost was incidental, the important thing was the weapons. Whether we know it or not, we are living in a new world so far as money, debts, dollars and budgets are concerned."

Twenty-five Years Ago May 9, 1952

"Official opening of the enlarged and remodelled Police and Fire Station, 21 Stanton street, will be held Tuesday, May 13, at 5:30 pm. T. J. Hughes, City Manager, announced this week. The work of adding to and altering the buildings has been in progress for the past year. The whole of the interior of both the Police and Fire stations has been remodelled, a new garage for police motor vehicles added to the police station and an office block added to the Fire Station."

Fifteen Years Ago May 11, 1962

"A Westmount intellectual par excellence, C. M. 'Bud' Drury, of 579 Roslyn avenue, who said, 'It might sound pedantic if I told you what books I read,' proved his popularity with Westmount Liberals last Monday as he accepted the official nomination while the crowd cheered and whistled and the band played on. Face wreathed in smiles, 'Bud' Drury—lawyer, president and director of a number of Canadian firms and one-time deputy minister of national defence—spoke happily of Liberal enthusiasm in St. Antoine-Westmount he had been told did not exist. 'With your support,' he said, 'I will be able to carry this constituency back into the Liberal Party.'"

Five Years Ago May 11, 1972

"The Westmount School Board has endorsed the recommendations of the final report of the 4424 Youth Clinic which states that the City of Westmount or some other body should come to the clinic's rescue and provide funds to allow it to remain open. The report on the 4424 clinic was issued as the clinic's funds under a federal health department grant ran out. The report states that the leisure side of the centre could be dropped but recommends that the medical and counselling clinic be continued."

World aid

Canada has agreed to co-operate in a significant new kind of arrangement for financing high-impact projects in developing countries, the Secretary of State for External Affairs, Hon. Don Jamieson, announced recently.

Under the agreement, signed in late April at World Bank headquarters in Washington, the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) will provide up to $35 million from its bilateral loan funds for the co-financing of joint projects, in priority sectors and countries, in co-operation with the International Development Association, (IDA), an affiliate of the World Bank.

The funds will be used to help pay for development projects planned and administered by IDA in some of the world's poorest regions. The projects will be in countries and sectors eligible for Canadian assistance and will be subject to Canadian approval.

Loans made under this special arrangement will be untied and will be on normal IDA terms, which are currently similar to the terms of most CIDA loans (interest free, 10 years' grace, 50 years' repayment). Repayment by recipient countries will be made to Canada through IDA.

Development co-operation

The experimental co-financing agreement is designed to combine the better features of bilateral and multilateral assistance, and helps to meet several main recommendations of Canada's strategy for international development co-operation from 1975-1980, including the statement that "Canada will increasingly seek to enter into agreements in joint projects and activities with international institutions that address critical development problems."

It offers a mechanism for providing aid to priority areas, including countries where there is no resident Canadian mission. By standardizing procedures for co-financing, it should also lead to closer co-operation with the World Bank, resulting in administrative savings at a time of government spending restraint and allowing CIDA to make more use of the bank's research and other facilities, as recommended in the strategy.

This co-financing arrangement, the first such agreement made by the World Bank, is expected to speed the flow of Canadian funds into development projects that focus on key issues and benefit larger numbers of the world's poorest people.

Several potential projects are under consideration, with the emphasis on agricultural development and water supplies in Africa and Asia.

Old service station termed an eyesore

Sir: At the southwest corner of Greene and de Maisonneuve in our handsome city is a repellent eyesore, an abandoned gas station with boarded-up windows and ugly cement blocks barring access to vehicles. It offends the eyes of all who pass.

Is there not some action that could be taken by the police or city council to compel the proprietor, whoever it is, to make this strategically-located property more presentable?

It has been in its present unattractive state for too long already.

Forum Jewellery saying farewell

Sir: I am writing to you in the hope that this may be newsworthy for your local paper as well as the community at large.

For the past 20 years we have been the owners of the Forum Jewellery store and developed a good and quite large clientele in the vicinity.

Unfortunately, our lease expired at the end of this month and the owners of this building, the Canadian Arena Co., have refused to renew our lease, to use the place for themselves.

My purpose in writing is to ask if you would let our customers know just how thankful we are that they put so much trust in our workmanship and how we will miss their association with us.

Bill 1 briefs

Tuesday, June 7, is the day public hearings concerning Bill 1 will commence before a standing committee of the National Assembly.

Any person or group is entitled to present a brief. To date, more than 75 associations have given notice of their intent to appear.

Bill 1 will drastically change the face of Quebec. If you agree or disagree with any sections of the proposed law, please present your views to the committee. Don't sit back and wait for someone else to speak for you. The government must be told. The more people and groups that express their feelings, the better.

To appeal before this committee, simply write to the clerk of the National Assembly, Quebec, P.Q. or telephone me at 866-0512. I will be pleased to assist you in any way I can.

Reaction to Quebec-Canada has been tremendous. Al Fisher has been doing a bang-up job. He started Team Canada with me in December. When we joined forces with Michel Gratton and Quebec-Canada in late January, Al Fisher opened his office at 360 Victoria avenue, Westmount, to recruit. He has been recruiting ever since. In fact, his work is so valuable to Quebec-Canada that he was elected vice-president in charge of recruitment at the recent convention. Insiders will tell you that, to date, Al Fisher is the man making Quebec-Canada go.

If you would like to join Quebec-Canada, either call Al Fisher at 486-1196 or drop by and see the Canadian champion at 360 Victoria.

WESTMOUNT WANDERINGS

Congratulations to the public safety unit of Westmount. They were present at Police Technology Day at John Abbott College last week and literally stole the show. Also present were 50 members of the Westmount Senior Citizens Centre. They enjoyed the police dogs, police horses and all the exhibits. This weekend should see an exciting time at Roslyn School. Take the trip down memory lane. The school will be open to the public on Friday and Saturday. Don't let the organizers down. They have worked hard and long. Come out to Roslyn and see the fruits of their labor. Any suggestions as to who the next leader of the Quebec Liberal Party should be?

By-law changes roof structure restrictions

New restrictions were put on roof structures of high-rise buildings in Westmount by city council last week, while some other restrictions were eased somewhat.

The city now will allow any type of recreational facilities or storage areas in a penthouse structure, rather than only swimming pools, but will not allow any such structure to exceed more than 15 feet in height, though elevator machinery may extend 20 feet above the roof.

Such a roof structure would not be considered a "storey" of a building unless it covered more than 50 percent of the entire roof area. It would thus not be considered in determining the "height" of the building, nor the floor-area ratio.

Most such roof structures are used for heating, air conditioning and electrical and mechanical equipment; another requirement is that the structures will have to contain all the mechanical equipment located at roof level, except for exhaust fans to ventilate individual kitchens or bathrooms.

The regulations now will be the subject of public consideration, including a register to be opened at city hall for homeowners in contiguous zones, then a register to demand a referendum. Little opposition to the zoning change is expected.

All aldermen at meeting

More than 40 persons were on hand for city council's May statutory meeting last Monday night, but few questions were asked of the mayor at the end of the formal meeting. Most were on hand to witness presentation of an award for valor, given to Fmn. William Osborne for his heroics during a fire last Feb. 16.

A full turnout of seven council members was on hand at the council meeting for the first time since January, when they accepted the resignation of Ald. James L. Thom; in fact, all of the solons were seated at the table in the council chambers at exactly 8 pm, though Mayor Donald MacCallum did not bang the gavel until 8:02.

The formal session ran an unusually long 55 minutes, thanks largely to a long and detailed discussion of Westmount's 1976 financial report by Ald. Alwyn Lloyd, the extended presentation to Fmn. Osborne and presentation of scholarship trust fund awards to two students. The only council-citizen discussion, concerning the continuing traffic problem on Cote St. Antoine road, lasted 15 minutes.

address and MNA George Springate present among the invited guests.

There will be a piper and a choir of children, under the direction of teacher William Bowker, singing favorite Roslyn songs. Miss Vera Jamieson, who through the years has conducted many Westmount and Roslyn choirs, will be a special guest.

A cake, in the shape of the school's cornerstone, is to be cut by Miss Mary Greaves and Mrs. Ruth Swann (alumnae) using the original silver trowel which laid the cornerstone on Oct. 12, 1907.

A painting of the school will be presented to the principal, Miss Barbara McKnight, by the artist, Freda Pemberton Smith, also a Roslyn alumna.

The ribbon will be cut by Mrs. Dorothy Phelps—Miss Bushell—who started teaching kindergarten at Roslyn in 1908 when the school opened.

Children are participating throughout the three-day exhibition which, in the words of one, is making history "fun." Twenty-seven large chocolate cakes have been ordered, one to be shared in each classroom to launch Roslyn's 70th anniversary celebrations.

The school opened in September 1908 with 10 teachers and 264 children. There are now 32 teachers and 767 children—75 percent of them in French immersion programs, which were pioneered in 1968 on Montreal island in English schools at Roslyn.

The project currently is involving four out of every five Roslyn mothers. Three of them, Mrs. Ann Elbourne, Mrs. Molly Fripp and Mrs. Maryla Waters, have been the chief instigators and promoters.

The exhibition will be open to the public tomorrow (Friday) from 9 am to noon; 1:30 to 5 pm, and from 7 pm onward. Saturday it will be open from 10 am to 4 pm. Exhibition co-ordinator is Mrs. Pat Roman.

The project includes the writing and publishing of a book: "Roslyn, The Story of a Canadian School," to come out in September, and the establishment of a permanent record in the school's media centre as resource material for future research.

Family Service Association building at 4515 St. Catherine street west, between Park Place and Melville avenue, as well as her southwest and west island counterparts.

Mrs. Bailin was formerly director of professional services at FSA.

Mr. Coulson explained that there will be a gradual reassignment of personnel to the three area centres from the existing specializing organizations. Meanwhile, the local centre will be divided between the FSA building and the former Children's Service Centre building at 5 Weredale Park.

Eventually, it is expected that the local area centre will be concentrated at Weredale Park and, as reported in The Examiner March 31, the FSA facility would house the headquarters of Ville Marie, now located in an office building on St. Catherine street east. Relocations are due to commence next month and be completed by early fall.

Coverage co-ordinated

Mr. Coulson said that Ville Marie's plans have been co-ordinated with those of Montreal Metropolitan (French) and the Jewish Family Services to assure coverage of all citizens in the Montreal area. It is intended, for example, that small Ville Marie units might provide services to small, isolated pockets of English-speaking people from space rented in Montreal Metropolitan offices.

The southwest area centre of Ville Marie, working out of 1857 de Maisonneuve boulevard west and directed by Al Eisenring, is to serve Pointe St. Charles, Ville Emard and Lachine. The west island unit, headed by Miss Eleanor Furlong, embraces the communities west of and including Pointe Claire, and also will administer an office in Laval.

John Walker, Ville Marie's director of program management, outlined the functions of the new centres. Sixty-five percent of their efforts, he said, will be devoted to children, adolescents and families and 25 percent to the aged, with 10 percent for those between which he described as "adults."

Some 200 of Ville Marie's present 632 staff, professional and other, will be based in the area centres. Others are deployed in hospitals, schools, courts and other special services, as well as the headquarters.

Presenting Bill 1 brief

Ville Marie Social Service Centre, whose services are directed toward the Montreal area English-speaking population, is to present a brief to the Quebec National Assembly commission on Bill 1.

A meeting Sunday of board, management, staff and client representatives decided that their joint concern over the effect of the bill on the "vulnerable" groups and individuals served should be expressed.

The brief, Director-General D'Arcy Coulson explained Tuesday, would emphasize "the right of our clients and communities to social and health service in English" and their right to participate fully in the institutions providing these services.

Mr. Coulson said that he was "getting double messages" from Quebec about the government's intentions.

80 guides, brownies to camp for weekend

Westmount's guides and brownies wrap up the season's activities at the end of May but before then they are being very active, including an outing this weekend to Camp Oolahwan in Ste. Marguerite. Some 80 girls and 17 adults will go on the camping expedition.

The N.D.G. and Westmount Districts of the Girl Guides of Canada were hosts April 20 at the Frontenac Area annual general meeting and dinner at Westmount Park Church. Some 80 leaders from across Quebec gathered for a convivial evening which included a presentation to the retiring area commissioner, Mrs. Moira Fernie.

Police may hold meeting on prevention

The Montreal Urban Community Police Crime Prevention Bureau will be holding an exhibit of home security measures at the Fairview Shopping Centre in Pointe Claire next week, and Westmount's Insp. Jean Bernard suggests that citizens go there to take a look.

Some local residents have already called upon the crime prevention bureau to look over their own houses; if others request the same, a group meeting or seminar might be arranged, he said, to instruct citizens on locks, bolts, alarm systems and general security habits.

Next week, beginning Tuesday, is "Police Week." Though nothing special is being planned in Westmount, Insp. Bernard suggests the time be used by citizens and police alike to "try to work together, think of each other, be nice and get to know one another."

Three Westmount girls, Wendy Moore, Margaret Walker and Heather Hobart, were enrolled in the newly-formed Frontenac Area Cadet Unit and the evening was rounded out by skits and singing.

On May 2, after a picnic supper in Murray Park, Westmount district guides and brownies gathered at St. Matthias' Church where brownies from the 9th, 34th and 16th Packs received their wings from Mrs. Fernie. District Commissioner Mrs. Gordon Devey also presented five girls from the 66th Guide Company with their Canada Cords.

The high guide honor was received by Suzanne Amos, Jennifer Devey, Elizabeth Hobart, Lindsay Kirkland and Ann Ronald in an impressive ceremony. The girls were piped in by CSO I. G. Millington, pipe major of the City of St. Laurent Scottish Pipe Band, and were followed by five brownies carrying their Cords on white cushions. After the ceremonies all the participants were piped out.

Following the May activities, most guide and brownie packs will close until September.

Fire damages two bedrooms

Fire started in the roof at 23 Holton avenue at 1:22 pm Tuesday, apparently the result of painters burning off paint. The Westmount Fire Brigade had difficulty getting to the fire, since the building is set back from the street, and as it spread they were forced to open three holes in the roof to douse the flames. Mutual aid was called in from Hampstead and from Outremont to cover for the absent Westmount men at Station No. 1.

Damage was considered heavy to the roof area, and to two bedrooms on the upper floor, but the rest of the house suffered minimum damage.

No ordinary 'garage' sale!

The garage sale seemed to offer something to attract everyone's eye—whatever one's age.

The Rotary Club of Westmount announced yesterday that gross sales at its second annual "garage" sale and auction, held Friday evening and all day Saturday at the artificial ice rink, topped $13,000.

President William R. Rutherford thanked the generosity of citizens who donated a flood of excellent articles, the organization and efforts of local Rotarians, and the enthusiastic patronage of the crowds who descended on the sale for the overwhelming success of the event.

He told members of the club at the weekly luncheon meeting in Victoria Hall, that the excellent results would assure continuation of the club's many regular community service activities in the year ahead.

Winner of the door prize, tickets for two to Switzerland donated by Swissair, was Mrs. A. Michaud, Apt. 104, 150 Hillside Avenue—first resident of the Westmount public housing project. The ticket was drawn at yesterday's weekly Rotary luncheon meeting in Victoria Hall by a visiting Rotarian, a physician from Seattle. Mrs. Michaud is to be invited to attend next week's meeting for formal presentation of her prize.

This year's major fund-raising effort began early, based on 1976's experience when it was discovered that much more could have been sold if it had been available. Early in the winter, a committee chaired by Eugene Zinay, vice-president residential sales, A. E. LePage-Westmount Realities Inc., began its drive for donations.

Extensive advertising and telephone canvassing brought, eventually, a flood of calls for pickups all over Westmount and beyond. These kept Rotarians with cars, station wagons and trucks busy evenings and weekends over many weeks. Soon donated space in a vacant apartment and an entire sub-basement of Le Barat apartments at Atwater and Sherbrooke were filled with material of all kinds, including even a car—which itself brought in almost $1,200 during Saturday afternoon's auction of the more valuable items.

Books popular

Accepted for the first time this year were clothing and books. The latter proved particularly popular—an estimated 5,000 books of all kinds were sold, and still there was a leftover surplus which was donated to the McGill book auction, to be held in October. Some stalls, such as one specializing in articles for Mother's Day, were virtually cleaned out by buyers. Over 30 bicycles were snapped up Friday evening.

Large numbers of appliances, including television sets, changed hands to the club's benefit. Furniture and carpets did a brisk business, as did sporting goods, games and toys.

The big rink was thronged, particularly in the hours following the 6 o'clock opening Friday evening when a large crowd had gathered waiting to flood in. They were not disappointed. A community carnival atmosphere prevailed throughout the sale; it was a family occasion. Friends and relatives met and compared notes on their "finds."

Already preliminary plans are under way for next year's sale.

A patient but eager crowd jammed the entrance to the sale before the opening at 6 pm Friday.

Cautious buyers wanted to examine the goods before they bought.

Wives of Rotary Club members manned many of the sales counters.

second for art

Laila Smith, a grade one student at Roslyn School, is among the prizewinners in the recently completed art competition sponsored by Thinking Tools, the new type of children's educational toy store in the Old Post Office.

The Westmount girl took second prize in the kindergarten and grade one category of the contest. Other winners from local schools include Antoine Rostworowski of St. George's School, who placed second in the grade five, six and seven category, while honorable mentions were given to Lindsey Thompson of The Study and Debby Berkovitch of St. George's.

The winning works of art were displayed at the Old Post Office late last month.

A random sampler of things to see or do

in the bigger city surrounding us

By RICK KERRIGAN

Whether you pedal a sleek 10-speeder or a balloon tire bomb you should be greasing up the old ball bearings for another season of cycling in Montreal. If you've survived at least one summer of Montreal's ignorant drivers and your bicycle has not been destroyed by strategically-placed potholes you've likely learned enough to see you through another year. I've discovered what are probably the two most teeth-rattling, wheel-bending stretches of road on the Island of Montreal. One is the main drag of Ville St. Pierre which you hit at about 30 miles an hour after flying down the hill from Montreal West. The other is St. Catherine street anywhere in Westmount, but specially between Clark and Blenheim Place. If American B-52 pilots had done as good a job bombing the Ho Chi Minh Trail as Westmount has done neglecting St. Catherine street, the Americans would have won the war. In fact, Montreal streets and drivers are so dangerous for cyclists that a major motion picture company is planning to shoot a new disaster film here called "Bicycle" and last year a judge sentenced a motorist who had struck a cyclist to one week of riding a bicycle in Montreal. A higher court, however, overturned the sentence as a cruel and unusual punishment.

Despite the hazards, the cycling population is increasing and there are rumblings about bikeways along major streets and parking stands downtown. Breathes there a cyclist who would not like to see cars—those fume-belching antisocial machines—banned from city streets? Le Monde à Bicyclette (Citizens on Cycles) is a group which has been active for several years fighting for better facilities for cyclists. For the past couple of summers they have organized a giant bicycle parade (to be held June 4 this year) through the streets of Montreal to publicize the cause. This year they have organized a series of outings in the Montreal area for anyone who cares to ride along. You don't have to join anything or pay any money. Just show up at specified locations any Sunday from now until July 3 at 10 am, except June 4 when the big demonstration will start at 3:00 pm. This Sunday they will be exploring the Terrebonne area and will be meeting at the Botanical Gardens to start the trip. Other Sundays the cyclists will be touring interesting sections of downtown Montreal, Varennes, Pointe Claire, Rivière-des-Prairies, Laval-des-Rapides, the Lachine Canal and the St. Lawrence Seaway. For more information on meeting places and routes call Citizens on Cycles at 277-5714.

And did you hear about the long-distance cyclist who never got lonely? His bicycle spoke.

"La Langue des Fibres" is not a charter about language in the textile industry. It's the title of an exhibition at the Powerhouse Gallery May 15-June 3. The exhibition comprises 16 Quebec artists working in such techniques as macramé, knitting, crochet, weaving and basketry which are used singly and in combinations. It is intended as a survey of the many approaches to the use of fibre in art. Showing simultaneously at the gallery is "Cairns—notes on a theme" by Kay Aubanel. "Cairns, or small mounds of stones, witness to our passage in the wilderness, are evoked in photographs and mixed media." The gallery is at 3738 St. Dominique.

Tenor Royal Harris will be singing at St. Philip's Church in Montreal West on Sunday at 4:00 pm. Mr. Harris has sung at the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris and while in Vietnam was chosen as soloist for the pontifical masses celebrated by Francis Cardinal Spellman. He has also sung for the Metropolitan Opera in New York and for ABC television and received a special invitation from former U.S. president Gerald Ford to sing at the White House. Admission to Mr. Harris' recital in Montreal is free but free-will offerings will be accepted. The church is at the corner of Sherbrooke and Brock.

There is another free concert by Musica Camerata Montreal on Saturday, 5:00 pm at Christ Church Cathedral. The program will include works by Mozart, Schubert and Dohnanyi. The concert is being recorded by CBC for broadcast on the English FM network on June 8 at 4:00 pm, so bring your cough drops. The cathedral is at University and St. Catherine streets.

The Association for Research and Enlightenment is presenting a program of three speakers titled "Be your own psychic" Sunday at the Windsor Hotel 3-10:00 pm. The program is based on information given by that star psychic Edgar Cayce and "will focus on ways that each of us can tap our own latent psychic potential." Registration is $10.00, payable at the door. Students with ID get in for half price. For more information call 465-5330 or 684-5016.

The Lethbridge Rehabilitation Centre is holding an open house today until 8:00 pm as part of their 40th anniversary celebrations. The public is invited to view audio-visual presentations of the work of the centre and displays by each of the 12 departments. It is hoped that by seeing how the centre operates the public will become more aware of the potential of disabled individuals to be productive members of the community.

Over at McGill University, Dr. Gregory Baum will be the fourth lecturer in the series on plural societies. Dr. Baum is professor of both theology and religious studies and sociology at St. Michael's College of the University of Toronto and his topic for the evening will be "Nationalism and Social Justice." The lecture will be given in the auditorium of the Leacock Building, Wednesday, 8:00 pm.

The Montreal Military and Maritime Museum in the Old

Fort on St. Helen's Island is having a history fair this weekend. Among the displays you'll see is a 470-year-old suit of Maximilian armor, not exactly your three-piece worsted wool but, who knows, it will probably come back into style one of these years. If the weather is nice you can make the outing your first picnic of the year and do some frisbee flipping, fly a kite, walk in the woods or just lie back on the banks of the river with your favorite person, sipping wine and watching the St. Lawrence glide by. The fort is open 10:00 am to 5:00 pm and after June 13 the hours are extended to 6:30 pm. Admission is 50 cents for adults and two bits for kids. After June 24 there will be daily parades by the Compagnie Franche de la Marine and the Fraser Highlanders.

At last! The Montreal Museum of Fine Arts is finally doing away with their voluntary contribution admission policy and instituting a $1.00 fee for adults. Senior citizens, the handicapped, children under 12 and members will be admitted free and there are special rates for groups and tours. The voluntary program was very confusing, making me feel like a heel if I didn't drop $5.00 in the kitty. However, reacting to the fact that they were making me feel that way I gave them a quarter and had to suffer the ill-concealed contempt of the attendants. Those suffering from similar insecurities will be glad to know just what the score is now. Apparently many others felt the way I did because the museum raised only half of what they expected from the voluntary program.

Pressure. . .

The trouble is, hypertension in most cases has no symptoms, which is one reason why so many people either shrug off the news that they have difficulties or pass off recommendations that they be checked. Basically, high blood pressure means that veins and arteries have shrunk, so that the same volume of blood is passing through smaller channels, or that an excess amount of fluid is passing through the system and thus filling the channels a little too much. Either way, the heart has a more difficult time pumping the blood through, creating a condition which will eventually cause serious illness.

Besides the obvious problem of heart failure, high blood pressure can put a strain on the tiny vessels at the back of the eye, can lead to a stroke in the brain, or damage the kidneys because of rupturing or strain on the blood passing through. Preparedness and planning are the only ways to avert such eventualities—planning which includes taking a doctor's advice and having the blood pressure checked regularly.

Doctors normally have to experiment to find out the proper treatment, since there is no known cause for high blood pressure. There are pills which can be prescribed, low-salt and low-cholesterol diets may be recommended, or other means used. Some of these may have side effects, in which case the patient may simply decide to go without, while others may have no effect at all, and though the patient continues to follow them, feeling no harm, he will not return to the doctor for further screening.

"Once you have high blood pressure, you have it for the rest of your life," Ms. Smith warns. Hypertension may be brought on by serious mental strain, too many salts or not enough exercise for the heart, but nobody really knows what causes it in most cases. All doctors can offer is containment and treatment.

Increases with age

Blood pressure of human beings increases naturally with age, so it's difficult to determine an absolute norm which people could use as a guide. For a man of about 35 with no medical problems, the blood should push 120 mm of mercury into the pressure gauge at the height of the heartbeat (when the blood is surging forward), then read 80 when the blood is paused between beats. The 120/80 reading gives only a rough idea of what any person's pressure might be but the lower figure is the more important of the two, since it tells how much pressure the blood is exerting on vessels during the time of least force. Both figures might increase with age.

Low blood pressure, according to Ms. Smith, does not require much attention for most people, unless it is so low that the heart is unable to push blood to the head. Then, she suggests, a person might be prone to fainting spells; if they faint, they will fall down and the blood will find its way more easily to the head, thus righting the situation.

Some of the myths about blood pressure are that it is related to anemia or mononucleosis, headaches, dizziness or spicy foods. It is related to none of these. It is, however, connected to stress, but in a causal rather than a symptomatic way—that is, stress may cause high blood pressure, but hypertension does not mean a person becomes more jumpy, nervous or prone to worrying. Good blood pressure is not of itself an indication of good health, either, though a person who is not generally healthy is more likely eventually to have high blood pressure, according to Ms. Smith.

Diet, exercise help

Proper exercise, including a good workout of the heart two or three times a week, a reasonable diet—not too many cholesterol or too much salt (which causes the body to create more fluids)—cutting down or stopping smoking, watching one's weight and an attempt to keep stress at low levels are the best methods of avoiding hypertension.

The Victoria Hall "blood pressure screening" clinic will include various films and bits of information on how best to keep the pressure down, and nutritionist Kathy Maxwell of the Community Health Department will be on hand to advise on diet and weight control. The clinic—for those with a bit of time on their hands—will include a "nutrition" break instead of a "coffee" break.

So put yourself (and your arms in the hands of Westmount's public health nurses, Dr. Wilfred Palmer of the Queen Elizabeth Hospital's family medicine unit, and various volunteers from the MGH. The life you save or prolong will be your own.

Sale at club

St. Andrew's Group sings for its rent discusses unity idea

The members of St. Andrew's Church will reflect upon the nature of unity during this Sunday's 11 am service. In a sermon titled "The Necessity of Division," Rev. E. A. Kirker will further examine the situation in Quebec and what response the congregation might make to the government's white paper on language.

A children's program each Sunday now replaces the church school classes which have ended for the current season. Selection of teachers for next fall is being conducted by Rev. Harvey White.

St. Andrew's choir, under organist and choirmaster Gordon White, takes part in the annual Spring Festival Service for church choirs at Trinity Memorial Church next Thursday, May 19, at 8 pm. The public is invited.

A special concert by the Island City Singers will be held next Thursday, May 19, at 8 pm at Westmount Park Church to help raise funds for the church. The concert is being given by the well-known Montreal group in return for using the church's premises for rehearsals during the year. The money will go to maintenance of the church.

The Island City Singers is a group of working and studying Montrealeers who enjoy singing together. They have performed for a myriad of audiences in eastern Canada and in 1973 made an extensive tour of Britain. The program for the concert will include many well-known selections, including songs from "Fiddler on the Roof."

Spring meeting

The spring open presbyterian meeting of the Women's Missionary Society will be held in Cote des Neiges Church, 3435 Cote St. Catherine road, on Wednesday, May 18, at 7:45 pm. Guest speaker will be Dr. Ram Singh.

Appeal hits two-thirds

Salvation Army Red Shield Appeal canvassers are near the two-thirds mark in their drive to collect $505,620. Mrs. James V. Emory, general chairman, reported $316,175 in gifts and pledges as the campaign completed its first week. Included in the amount was $62,615 canvassed in advance from corporations and $96,406 given by employees at their places of work. The first Westmount committeemen to finish their canvassing assignments were J. A. Madill, 607 Clarke Avenue and William M. Molson, 1303 Greene Avenue. Contributions can be sent directly to Appeal headquarters, Suite 627, 1255 University Street.

LAST DAY FOR BOOK LOVERS' FORUM: The end of this year's season marked the end of 32 years of interfaith service provided by the Book Lovers' Forum as the group has decided to become a home reading club. Among the 400 persons at the final lecture were, left to right, Mrs. R. Ginsberg, co-chairman for the day; Dr. Kathleen Jenkins, author and chief librarian of Westmount Public Library who brought greetings on behalf of the Christian community; Mrs. Harry Joshua Stern, co-founder and general chairman for the past 32 years; Rabbi Dr. Harry J. Stern, co-founder and lecturer who reviewed Saul Bellow's "To Jerusalem and Back" at the meeting and Mrs. Asher Gerstenfeld, adviser. The Forum is closing as a result of Mrs. Stern's decision to give up the leadership of the group she and her husband founded in 1945. In an address to the final meeting Mrs. Stern said, "It was the concept of ecumenism that stimulated Rabbi Stern and me to found The Forum as an organization which would bring women of all denominations together through a common interest. The Forum has served as a medium for fellowship between those of the Jewish and Christian faiths and now has the largest membership since its founding. We can, therefore, say that we close on a note of triumph and achievement."

CAVENDISH MALL

In Toronto

The Nostalgia Factory, the Montreal store with the largest collection of original old advertising in North America, which was founded by Westmounter Rudy Franchi, has expanded into a new Toronto store at 730 Yonge street. The store opened this month and features the same wide range of memorabilia and collectibles which have focused international attention on the Montreal outlet at 295 Place d'Youville.

Expos, Indians on top in early baseball action

By NICK KASIRER

Both the atom and pee wee sections of the boys' softball leagues are into their second week of a 12-game schedule that ends June 9.

The pee wee Expos are undefeated after two games and are alone atop the standings. This week they play the Reds, who are looking for their second win, and the Mets, who are 0-2 at this early stage of the season. The Braves, Cubs and Dodgers will also be active on the three diamonds at Westmount Park.

The Indians have taken a two-point lead in the atom race, followed by the Jets and Astros with records of one win, one loss. The Chiefs will play the Astros and the Indians this week in an effort to win their first game. At the end of the regular season, the top two teams in each each section will advance to a sudden death final.

Dinner May 30

Invitations are being distributed for the annual awards dinner to take place on Monday, May 30. Crests will be presented to players on championship teams in softball, touch football and hockey. In hockey, special awards will be presented to scoring leaders and best defencemen in each league and there is a trophy for best all-round goaler. Winners from each age group of the fall tennis tournament will also be honored at the "chicken dinner."

Umpires, referees and timekeepers for all sports will also get the credit they so richly deserve for their volunteer work in holding the programs together. In addition to these awards, a new prize for outstanding figure skating will be presented in the beginner, intermediate and senior categories.

There are a few spots remaining in the bantam section of the municipal soccer league, and any 13- or 14-year-old interested in joining should contact the recreation department as soon as possible.

Rabbit Transit.

When it comes to getting around town it's hard to beat the Volkswagen Rabbit.

It zips in and out of traffic with effortless ease.

It fits small parking places that others have to pass by.

And it does it all on 30 miles to the gallon in the city.

(Or up to 45 MPG on the highway.)*

So if you'd like to be your own transit company, come in and test drive the Volkswagen Rabbit.

*Results obtained using Transport Canada approved test methods with standard four-on-the-floor transmission. Mileage will vary depending on how and where you drive, optional equipment and condition of your car. Certain features illustrated are optional at extra cost.

THE WESTMOUNT Examiner

STICK IN THE GROUND: The city's experimental answer to the proliferation of dog droppings in the now well-used dog run areas is the placement of posts and sand pits in three different locations near the park ranger station in Westmount Park. "You can lead a horse to water..." the saying goes, but as of yesterday morning it didn't seem the dogs had grasped the idea of the new installation.

Fund started for homeless

Neighbors on Prince Albert avenue will be canvassing nearby streets next week to raise funds to help out the families left homeless in the April 20 fire at 214-16 Prince Albert. The neighbors have recovered many belongings from the house and are keeping those until Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Carmichael II and Miss Sheila Bücher can find suitable accommodation elsewhere.

The fund-raising effort is being co-ordinated by Mrs. Lois Thomas, 222 Prince Albert (484-2287) and Mrs. Michele MacDougall, 230 Prince Albert (484-7180), to whom cheques can be written. Canvassers will be knocking on doors in the Somerville avenue, York street, Prince Albert avenue area.

Inspection on Monday

The 36th annual inspection of the No. 1 Squadron (West Montreal) Royal Canadian Air Cadets, will be held Monday at 7:30 pm at the Royal Montreal Regiment Armory, 4625 St. Catherine street. Major R. Caron, CD, will be the reviewing officer.

The annual event gives cadets a chance to show their parents and friends the results of their year's training, and following the march past awards will be presented in recognition of achievements of cadets during training.

Firecrackers

With Victoria Day festivities approaching next weekend, now is a good time to remind youth that the sale, possession and use of firecrackers is prohibited anywhere in Westmount. They are banned by three different city by-laws, as well as by the national fire code of Canada. In my own experience I have seen one youth who had a thumb blown off by a firecracker, another who lost part of a finger, and other grisly events too numerous to mention.

By-law 69 has prohibited citizens from "carrying with them or discharging any firearm, firecracker or fireworks or to make a fire" in city parks; By-law 187 stops them from doing so "in the streets or roads or in the vicinity of a building, grove or fence." By-law 246 says anyone selling fireworks must pay $200 for a license.

The block parents program is going very well, by the way, with at least 100 applications in so far and more coming. Those who want to apply should contact Mrs. Linda Israel at 487-2698 or inquire at schools in Westmount.

The newly-authorized municipal tax on automobile registrations could bring in $125,000 to Westmount, according to a study released recently by the Conference of Montreal Suburban Mayors. Such revenue would reduce Westmount's tax rate by some 2.6 cents per $100 valuation, or $19.77 on the average Westmount home, though in return the taxpayer would pay about $12.88 extra to register, for example, a 1977 Chevrolet.

In a position paper released by the mayors' conference last week, the chief magistrates decry the fact that the provincial government is asking for a collector's fee of five percent to raise the taxes, despite the fact that the suburban municipalities collect school taxes without charge to anyone.

The mayors will take advantage of the new tax levy, they say, however, so long as it does not create a "vicious rivalry" among the various suburbs.

While Mayor Donald MacCallum reported on most of the positions taken by the suburban mayors at last week's city council meeting (see last week's Examiner), the position paper reveals that the suburban mayors took a strong position against government policy regarding "grants in lieu of taxes" as well. Though the policy does not affect Westmount to any great extent, the mayors noted that the province is not increasing its de facto property taxes on provincially-owned property in relation to the increase in property valuations. Thus the provincial grants are becoming smaller in relation to the overall city receipts.

Suburban mayors lent support to conditional grants to municipalities, which relate mostly to water and sewer services, but noted that these apply for the most part to more rural municipalities and not to members of the Montreal Urban Community. They also asked that the government reduce the restrictions on its unconditional grants, given now to municipalities with 150,000 or more residents, so that all MUC suburbs could benefit from them.

Object to school tax

The conference of mayors strongly protested the fact that the provincial government had not reduced the rate of school tax from its level of last year, and noted that the rate was being applied to properties whose valuations had been allowed to increase (for school tax purposes) by a maximum of 10 percent. In past years the government has been reducing the amount of school tax raised through property levies.

The mayors have reacted positively to the surtax on vacant serviced lots, which will "encourage a better use of the serviced territory and reduce land speculation in urban areas," and "encourage a greater use of mass transit in increasing the costs of using automobiles and the costs of parking downtown." They noted the tax might not have much effect on suburbs which have few serviced vacant lots, but said this in no way discouraged their support for the tax for those cities which could make good use of it.

The total tax raised by the municipal car registration would not be very high in Westmount compared with many other municipalities (14 suburbs would raise more, according to the table provided), but Westmount would be able to reduce the tax of an average single-family dwelling ratepayer more than all but eight other cities or towns in the MUC.
