

Nikita Back In Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev returned to Moscow today after a week of diplomatic encounters which rocked the world.

He landed at Vnukova Airport from Berlin where he had cooled world war fears by saying the Soviet Union would not press for a new status, which would include the departure of the allies from West Berlin, for the next six to eight months.

BERLIN (AP) — Looking weary and subdued, Nikita Khrushchev flew home today after a stopover for unity talks with East German leaders. His departure was quieter than when he arrived two days ago.

The Soviet premier left ahead of schedule, and thousands of East Berliners marching to the route to see him off got there too late.

Khrushchev, who pledged Friday night to leave things as they are in West Berlin until he is ready for a new summit conference, read this brief farewell statement in a tired voice at East Berlin's Schoenfeld Airport:

"As you know we spoke with leading personalities of East Germany over international problems and particularly those problems resulting from the torpedoing of the summit conference. There was absolute unanimity between us.

"We will work persistently for a solution of international differences on the basis of the policy of peaceful coexistence. The unity of the socialist camp is an unshakable power. Let us strengthen socialist brotherhood and guarantee a peaceful life."

The 65-year-old Soviet leader arrived at the airport with East Germany's Communist party chief Walter Ulbricht. He reviewed an honor guard and acknowledged the handclapping of Communist functionaries on hand.

Young Girl Killed In Accident

The girl, believed to be about 10 years old was struck on the highway between Stornoway and Nantes about 5 p.m.

She was taken to the St. Joseph Hospital in Lake Megantic by Jacques et Freres ambulance where she was pronounced dead on arrival.

Ottawa Puffs With Pride

Canada's First Mall For Shoppers Opens

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa puffed its chest with civic pride Friday as a three-block stretch of downtown Sparks Street, bedecked with potted trees, flowers and a fountain, was officially opened as Canada's first pedestrian shopping mall.

Mayor George Nelms, surveying the blooms, sidewalk cafes, playground and nearly 2,000 carnival-spirited citizens, conceded that the promenade — to operate through the summer months — is an "experiment."

The $30,000 mall financed by the city and merchant members of the Sparks Street Development Association, is designed to lure back to the downtown area some of the customers lost to new suburban shopping centres.

Meanwhile, in Toledo Ohio, a proposal to repeat last summer's downtown pedestrian mall experiment has been virtually killed by a five-man city council committee.

The committee on traffic and parking, which represents a majority of the council, voted unanimously against another trial after the Downtown Toledo Associates, made up of downtown merchants, said malls are a good

Lesage Attacks Quebec Patronage Raps Bridge Tenders

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Liberal party leader Jean Lesage has charged the Union Nationale government with bolstering its election fund through a closed-tender policy for bridge building.

Bridge construction contracts were awarded for twice what the structures ought to cost, he said Friday at a rally in St. Johns, 30 miles southeast of Montreal. In return, contractors made solid contributions to the electoral fund. He was continuing a grassroots campaign for the June 22 provincial election with a swing through a dozen small towns in the area.

Premier Antonio Barrette, taking a weekend rest from active campaigning, is to return to the hustings Wednesday.

Mr. Lesage directed a scathing attack at Quebec Trade Minister Paul Beaulieu, describing his department as a clearing house for patronage.

Noting that Mr. Beaulieu, member for St. Johns riding taking in the community, is to open his campaign Sunday, Mr. Lesage said he would not be surprised if the minister announced plans to bring French Renault or Peugeot auto plants into St. Johns.

ONTARIO AHEAD

"If he is as successful as he was in his plans to bring the world's fair to Montreal, there will not be much guarantee for the people of St. Johns."

Mr. Beaulieu was Quebec representative on the delegation that tried to get a 1967 World's Fair date for Montreal. The right to stage the fair went to Russia.

Mr. Lesage said the trade minister painted a glowing picture of Quebec's industrial expansion. But the truth was that Ontario was outstripping Quebec in expansion of manufacturing facilities.

In the attack on Union Nationale bridge-building, the Liberal leader said he had ordered studies by engineers into eight structures. The figures showed they cost twice what they should have.

The Union Nationale awarded bridge contracts in two ways — on a percentage basis, with the government paying labor and material costs and adding a percentage on its payments for the contractor, and the closed-tender system in which the "chosen" contractor submitted a lower estimate than the others.

Herter Flies To Washington

Organize To Defeat Russian Censure Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Christian Herter was flying back to Washington today to take charge of administration strategy aimed at defeating Russia's drive to brand the United States an aggressor before the United Nations.

Herter's return from Paris coincides with mounting U. S. confidence that Russia will be rebuffed in its follow-up move to exploit the controversial American spy flights into a resolution of censure in the world organization.

State department policy makers, after canvassing prospects, were reported confident of defeating the Russians in both the Security Council and the UN assembly.

The language Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko uses in denouncing the spy flights may offer a clue about the future of Russian-American relations.

INCREASING TENSION? — When he arrived in New York Friday night, Gromyko told reporters the international situation can become "even more aggravated" unless the U.S. stops its "aggressive acts."

President Eisenhower, on returning Friday from the wreckage of the Paris summit meeting, warned that "more irritations" possibly other incidents" might erupt as an aftermath to Premier Khrushchev's blow up of the talks.

The president arranged to fly to his Gettysburg home today for what a White House aide called a "well-deserved rest."

Collisions Block Shipping

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Great Lakes shipping started moving slowly upbound at midnight after being blocked near here for 12 hours by a double collision Friday.

The first collision sent the 444-foot vessel Standard Portland Cement to the bottom of the fog-shrouded 31-foot deep shipping channel 10 miles out from this lower Lake Huron port. About five feet of her deck remained above water.

About 20 minutes later two other upbound ships, trying to avoid the damaged vessels, collided.

Freedom Sought For Americans

WIESBADEN, Germany. — (AP) — The United States moved cautiously today to obtain freedom for eight Americans seized by East German police after their unarmed air force transport strayed behind the Iron Curtain.

The U.S. Air Force has turned the case over to the state department, apparently anticipating that East Germany will try to force Washington into direct negotiations. The U.S. does not recognize the Communist satellite regime and has rejected similar efforts following other border incidents.

Western circles saw the possibility of a new anti-American blast following Friday night's announcement by East Germany that the twin-engine C-47 had landed on her soil.

The U.S. air force said the plane was returning from a "morale flight" to Copenhagen and was en route to Hamburg in West Germany.

Commissioner Obeys Own Law

NEW YORK. — (AP) — Like any other citizen, the head of New York city's police paid a $15 parking ticket Friday.

Police commissioner P. Kennedy's unmarked car had been ticketed for illegal parking last week while he was speaking at a traffic observance luncheon. A spokesman said the fine was paid with the commissioner's own money.

Bolster Sagging Farm Prices

Family-Sized Farm Agriculture Backbone

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons agreed Friday that the family-size farm should remain the backbone of Canadian agriculture.

After hours of debate the House approved continuation of the Agricultural Stabilization Act, under which the federal government bolsters sagging farm prices.

Agriculture Minister Harkness said the Conservative government's price support program is especially designed to help the average and small farmer.

The big commercial operators, whose production is integrated with food processing plants or geared to big lucrative markets, don't need the same help, he said.

CRITICIZES NEW PARTY — Labor unions were brought into the debate by Jack Horner (PC—Acadia) a rancher who accused CCF House Leader Hazen Argue, a leader in a new political party movement, of having sold himself as a farmer "down the river to the labor party, which is controlled by unions in the United States."

Mr. Argue replied heatedly. In his Saskatchewan riding of Assiniboia, he said, he represented both farmers and labor union members.

The new party, being sparked by the CCF and the Canadian Labor Congress, is not technically a labor party, and is not dominated by foreign union leaders, Mr. Argue said.

"I do not have to malign and smear the trade union movement to work for the welfare of the farmers," he added.

PROTESTS INCOME LIMIT — In other developments in the Commons Friday, the House passes only two of the more than 300 divorce bills on its agenda, and a government supporter protested against the $5,000 limit on incomes for those seeking direct mortgage loans from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, under National Housing Act guarantee.

W. C. Henderson (PC—Caribou) said the $5,000 limit is too low for his area. Works Minister Walker said that the government would like to raise the figure to $6,000, but this would mean that the $150,000,000 to $175,000,000 it wants to invest in such direct mortgages this year would all be taken up by midsummer.

Two Men Are Killed In Rescue Attempt

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A daring bush pilot plucked an injured rancher and an ill woman from the high reaches of North America's tallest mountain late Friday. Two men died in the crash of another rescue plane.

Don Sheldon, 38, of Talkeetna, flew Mrs. Helga Bading of Anchorage and John Day of Central Point, Que., here in separate flights of his single-engine plane.

Three injured men remained on Mount McKinley, where the men were hurt in a fall and Mrs. Bading became sick from the altitude late Tuesday.

Day said the other men were frostbitten but not seriously hurt. Rescue efforts were pressed.

HAZARDOUS FLIGHT

Day, 51, was picked up at the 17,000-foot level by Link Lockett of Anchorage, flying far above the normal ceiling of his conventional helicopter. He had stripped the 'copter bare for the hazardous flight.

Sheldon made a precarious airplane landing on skis at the 14,500-foot level of the 20,300-foot mountain and flew the injured man to Talkeetna. He did the same thing earlier to rescue Mrs. Bading, 31.

Both were flown to a hospital at Elmendorf Air Force Base in Anchorage.

The hospital said Mrs. Bading was in good condition and would probably be released within 48 hours.

CONDITION UNKNOWN

No hospital report on Day's condition was immediately available.

William Stevenson owner of an Anchorage excavating firm, and an unidentified servicemen were killed when a light plane crashed and burned about 200 yards from where the injured men lay.

Day was greeted at Talkeetna's Airport by his only son, Jack Day, 23, of Seattle.

Still on the mountain were Peter Schoening, 31, and two 31-year-old twins, James and Louis Whittaker, all of Seattle.

WI Grants Under Livestock

OTTAWA (CP) — Why, asked a puzzled MP, are federal grants to the Federated Women's Institutes made under the parliamentary vote for the livestock division of the agriculture department?

As the Commons chuckled, Agriculture Minister Harkness explained to H. W. Herridge CCF-Kootenay West Friday that it was purely a matter of administration. One branch had to administer agricultural grants and since most were for livestock the grant to the Federated Women's Institutes was placed under that heading.

Violence In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal police are pressing the search for three masked men who shot and killed a 52-year-old bank manager in the course of a $1,780 holdup Friday.

Three other bank holdups, a court house shooting and a double shooting and suicide rounded out one of the most violent days in the city's history. Another major holdup occurred outside the city.

Mr. K In Spotlight Summit Week Becomes A Fiasco

—THE WEEKS NEWS—
By JOSEPH MACSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer wrote a mild review of the week's news in advance when he said last Saturday: "Khrushchev seems to be in a bad mood."

Summit week turned out to be a fiasco, the Big Four leaders staying at the diplomatic mountain-top just long enough to start an avalanche. Here's a day-by-day summary:

Sunday: President Eisenhower, arriving Paris, called for an end to "profitless bickering." Premier Khrushchev was all smiles as he bustled about visiting Prime Minister Macmillan and President de Gaulle.

Monday: Khrushchev dealt the summit conference a mortal blow at a preliminary session when he demanded that Eisenhower apologize for the recent U.S. U-2 spy plane incident and proposed that the talks be postponed six or eight months. He requested punishment of those responsible for the air espionage and he withdrew his invitation that Eisenhower visit Russia in June.

Eisenhower rejected the "ultimatum" and accused the Soviet leader of deliberately sabotaging the conference. Khrushchev won an assurance from Eisenhower that U.S. intelligence flights over Russia had ended.

The Week's News In Review

The U.S. president renewed his "open skies" surveillance plan under United Nations auspices but Khrushchev declared no foreign planes would be allowed over Russia.

Tuesday: The conference collapsed after Khrushchev refused to meet again with the Western chiefs unless Eisenhower bowed to his demands.

Wednesday: The most spectacular public display came at a 2 1/2-hour press conference when Khrushchev, by turns jocular and ranting, spoke of taking American aggressors by "the scruff of the neck."

Among his threats: to break off East-West Geneva disarmament talks; to resume nuclear testing if the U.S. does; to sign a separate East German peace treaty at a time of his own choosing; to shoot down any more spy planes.

Then Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko cabled the United Nations, asking for an emergency meeting of the Security Council to debate U.S. "aggressive acts."

Thursday: Having turned their backs on the wreckage of the conference, Eisenhower visited Portugal and Khrushchev, less belligerent, landed in East Berlin.

Friday: Macmillan, the first of the travelling world leaders to arrive home reported to

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Such is the state of culture in the United States that Gene Kelly has to go to Paris to stage a jazz ballet based on George Gershwin's Concerto in F.
 He has been commissioned by the Paris Opera to create the Gershwin ballet, and the old place may never be the same.

 "I dreamed up a plot in which Aphrodite comes down to earth and falls for a muscle man, then Zeus comes down to talk her out of it," related Kelly. "The whole thing is pretty wild."
 "The French dancers are great, but they've been schooled in the classical ballet and don't dig jazz. All their movements are the long, flowing line, and I've had to teach them to be cramped and jazzy. I conduct classes every morning and they're catching on fire."

IT'S OUT FOR U.S.
 The Kelly creation will premiere June 20, and he admitted that anything might happen: riots or cheers. He regrets that the same sort of thing can scarcely be done in the U.S.
 "The Paris Opera is state-supported, of course," he said. "There is a constant supply of talent from the ballet school which the Opera runs. . . . They take kids when they are eight and start training them."
 This is true in every major country except the U.S., Kelly points out. There is only one resident dance company, the New York City Ballet, municipally aided in part. But it, like travelling companies and TV, stage and movies, must rely on private dance schools for talent.
 "We subsidize wheat and pigs and oil fields and everything else," Kelly argued, "but we won't spend a dime for art."

Lesage In City Tomorrow

This photo was taken at a shutter speed of 1/50th of a second at f16.

Rapid Shutter Is Not Necessary To Take Good Fast Action Shots

People sometimes wonder if it requires an expensive camera to take good action photos. The truth is, some of the expensive models will not take fast action unless a little knowledge is used. Most of the better cameras have shutter speeds only up to 1/300 sec. or 1/500 sec. This, of course, is ample for most action.

But shutter speed is determined by the direction in which the action is going. For instance, a car coming up or going down the road in front of your camera will not require a very great shutter speed, as the image size of the car does not change very fast, even though the car may be going 50 miles per hour or more. But if you are standing at the side of the road and a car was to go by you, the shutter speed

By DOUGLAS GERRISH

would have to be 1/1000-sec. or better still, 1/2000 sec. This would not entirely stop the motion either. But you can stop motion even with 1/25 sec. with a little experience.

The secret is to move your camera in the same direction as the car, keeping the car in your view finder. Release the shutter while your camera is in motion. This is very important. In actual practice, what has taken place is the stopping of forward motion of the car as far as your film is concerned as they are both moving, more or less, together. This must be done smoothly. The background will be blurred, but in most cases, it makes the subject look sharper. Try it out. It's an excellent way to take pictures of speed boats, water skiers, etc.

There is the other kind of action too, such as a golfer swinging a club or a horse jumping a hurdle. Father tugging Junior up in the air—the trick in all these cases would be to watch for the object to reach its climax, or lose its momentum. Then fire away!

You will find that the subject has all the aspects of action and it will seem as though your shutter must have been set at 1/2000 sec., even though it may be only 1/60 sec. Remember in this procedure, hold the camera steady.

So the rule is that objects moving horizontally should be photographed at an angle, rather than moving across the front of the lens, unless you follow the subject with the camera. While making the exposures of objects travelling vertically, for the fraction of a second when movement has reached its peak, just before it comes down, or when the golfer has completed his swing. In this kind of picture you may find some very interesting expressions, especially if the ball is still on the tee after the swing is completed.

Major General J. M. Rockingham, reviews Number 2 Bishop's College School Cadet Corps during their Annual Inspection yesterday.

Impressive Precision

Gen. Rockingham Inspects BCS Cadet Corps In Colorful And Stirring Ceremonial Event

In a colorful and stirring ceremonial, the annual inspection of Number 2 Bishop's College School Cadet Corps was held on the school football field yesterday afternoon. Leading off with an inspection by Major General J. M. Rockingham, C.B., C.B.E., D.S.O., E.D., General Officer Commanding, Quebec Army Command, the corps went on to give demonstrations of the many facets of their training.

With impressive precision, the corps carried out a march past in column of route, march past in column of platoons and march past in line in rapid succession. This was followed by a hand demonstration, and a demonstration of company rifle drill.

During the past year, the cadets have been receiving first aid training from a St. John's Ambulance instructor, and although they have not completed this first course, according to instructor Charles Frost, they performed with the same efficiency that marked all their movements.

The first aid demonstration showed correct handling of such cases as people with fractured jaws, heads, arms and legs as well as those suffering from exhaustion and asphyxiation.

Program of training was set up and carried out by the cadets themselves throughout the year.

A number of awards were given out including one for best all-around performance of a cadet which went to Cadet Corporal R. McDonald, of Granby, who is also a Master Cadet. The Strathcona Trust Award for the best all-around cadet irrespective of rank, went to Cadet Major John Redpath, of Toronto.

The corps, which is affiliated with the Black Watch Regiment, R.H.R., is the second oldest in Canada and saw active service during the Fenian Raids of 1866. Centenary celebrations will be held next year. Annual inspections have been carried out for at least 50 years. An advance in review order and dismissal ended yesterday's inspection.

Sherbrooke firemen under the direction of fire director Percy Donahue were called to the scene by Rock Forest Town secretary J. A. Sicotte.

No one was injured in the blaze.

Safe Driving Techniques

Safe-driving techniques should be practised by every driver every day of the year, but now that warm weather is here, they are more vital than ever.

The first holiday of the summer season is this weekend. It is probably, if unfortunately, safe to predict that a number of people will be killed on the highway before the holiday ends Tuesday morning, and many more will be hurt.

There are, however, a number of things that can be done to help cut down this toll and ensure that you are not one of the victims.

The Province of Quebec Safety League offers this advice:

Take your car for a complete checkup regularly. Steering, brakes and lights must be in perfect order.

Drive at a safe distance behind the car in front of you. Should it stop suddenly, you stop, too. Leave a gap of one car length for every ten miles of speed.

Take a coffee break every two hours. It breaks the monotony of a long drive and helps to prevent "highway hypnosis."

If you are tired, let someone else drive. If you're alone, park at the side of the road and take a nap.

Observe traffic laws. Drive slower at night, in fog, and when road conditions are poor.

Sensible suggestions, these. Every driver knows them. Why not follow them?

New Pension Regulations

According to reports from Ottawa, legislation introduced in the Commons Thursday to pay old age pensions to eligible persons outside Canada is meeting with general approval.

This is as it should be.

Under the present regulations a pension is suspended once a person receiving it leaves Canada. He is entitled to payment for a maximum of six months of a year if he came back to Canada within six months.

This worked a hardship on many pensioners who wished to go outside the country to live out their lives. For many of them, it was a lifelong wish, put off because of the necessity of earning a living, and often, raising a family.

The idea behind the old-age pension is to allow our senior citizens - who have given so much to Canada - to have a measure of security and even of freedom in their retirement.

It has always seemed much like giving with one hand and taking away with the other to refuse to allow pensions to be paid to eligible people who went to live elsewhere than in Canada when they retired.

Sub-Marginal Farming

One of the questions which so often worries the city dweller, and the more successful farmer for that matter, is why so many farm families hold on to hard-hit, low-income areas instead of packing up and leaving for brighter, greener fields.

According to George W. Haythorne, assistant deputy minister of labor, in a report to the Senate committee on land use, there are many reasons why people insist upon retaining sub-marginal lands even when it might be more profitable for them to leave.

Among others he said they are tied to the land by tradition, by family ties that stretch back over the years, by a fear of the unknown, by a lack of a full knowledge about other opportunities, by a limited education.

Another reason is that people with low incomes and low standard of living are often incapable of helping themselves because all their efforts go into feeding, clothing and housing their families without any time or money to spare to start elsewhere.

Obviously, in the opinion of this expert, we cannot assume the answer is simply to shift them out from where they are now. He suggested there is a need for a careful examination of all factors—a study of resources, including manpower, to discover whether people would be better off to stay where they are.

Another alternative to removing the families from this sub-marginal land is to study of putting industry into the area, of improving land or crops and of providing better training.

Letter To The Editor

Prime Minister Diefenbaker at no time professed to be an authority on economics; yet he sensed the danger to both the national and individual economy of inflation. Higher prices must inevitably lead to decreased buying and a consequent drop in employment.

He was on sound ground when he urged both labor and capital to "hold the line." It is regrettable that his salutary advice was not taken. High salaries for labor leaders continued to countenance and urge their memberships to ask for wage increases, ers have lost their jobs following the closing of mills that were unable to meet Asiatic and European competition. If we still manage to hold our own and enable our national government to spend billions, it is due in large measure because of our possession of vast resources in materials that other nations need and purchase from us.

Undue wage inflation compels employers to invest in labor-saving machinery and thus lessens the need for workers. Automation, as it affects both the industrial and clerical worker, is bound to increase because of shorter hours, and other benefits of a social nature, all of which must come out of production which is seldom accelerated following wage increases and other concessions. The policy apparently is: "More and more for less and less." This cannot continue indefinitely.

As a nation now becoming more industrial than agricultural we must meet competition. Thousands of textile work-changed conditions, which labor unions can in no way control. No one will deny the gainfully employed citizen the right and opportunity of benefiting from decent living standards; but these can only be maintained where the workers in an enterprise are sufficiently realistic to appreciate the situation and problems of the competition both domestic and foreign. If prices were lower than they are today, it would mean increased buying power for the millions of consumers and lead to a lessening of the depression of which our socialist friends complain and put the blame on the government in office, entirely forgetting that it is not the business of the government to provide employment other than what can be created through necessary public works from which the government gets no taxable revenue.

The gainfully employed individual is a citizen before he is a trade-unionist; hence he is affected by policies that touch his economic and social interest. Peter Drucker, regarded as an outstanding authority in both economics and sociology, and the author of several important books dealing with human problems in one of his more recent works: "AMERICA'S NEXT TWENTY YEARS" says "One of our greatest economists, the late Joseph Schumpeter of Harvard pointed out in his last paper - read to the American Economic Association in December 1949, only a few days before his death, that it is inflation rather than unemployment that destroys society in the twentieth century. Schumpeter based his pessimistic appraisal of America's chances to survive as a free society on his belief that "American public opinion did not understand the danger of inflation, and

Adventures With God

There Is A Time For Laughter

By JANE SCOTT
Laughter is a legitimate emotion. Without it this world would be a gloomy place.

There are two kinds of laughter:

A—The laugh of scorn or derision.
B—Laughter denoting undiluted joy and good humor.

Since God has equipped every human being with the facilities to produce laughter, we may be sure that it is not a sin to use our equipment when the occasion is right.

Jane Scott

There is a time and season to weep, and a time to laugh," said Solomon.

And perhaps the time best suited for a good hearty laugh is when things go wrong and our less desirable emotions are gaining control over us.

Many a tense situation has been dissolved by a burst of laughter. And we may be sure that it is never wrong to overcome hatred and bad temper with laughter.

OVERCOME EVIL
"Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good," wrote St. Paul to the Romans. It is a worthy maxim but it takes more of the grace of God than the majority of us possess to put it in action.

However, I have noted that in most instances where there is provocation for evil speaking and a show of bad temper, there is usually a way of escape and some mirth-provoking incident arises to offset the disagreeable circumstances.

I am inclined to take issue with the opinion of Lord Chestfield who wrote in his letters more than 200 years ago: "Frequent and loud laughter is the characteristic of folly and ill manners; it is the manner in which the mob expressed their silly joy at silly things, and they call it being merry. In my mind there is nothing so illiberal and so ill-bred as audible laughter."

I listened to a group of psychiatrists on a radio panel discussing and analyzing the so-called humor of three popular types of entertainers, and we heard the audience reaction to their quips.

We noted with regret what Lord Chestfield describes as—"The manner in which the mob expresses their silly joy at silly things."

The loud, hysterical laughter on occasion was distasteful and perhaps a little alarming in view of the increase in emotional illness.

But we feel that even an hysterical silly laugh can be a safety measure for a tense individual. It momentarily suspends the more devastating emotions and clears the mind for a saner view of life and his baffling situations.

ANGER DISPELLED
Recently two happy grandmothers were regaling each other with humorous stories of their grandchildren's escapades.

Said one: "I shall never forget the time my daughter brought her children home for a visit. We were busy in the kitchen while the children played in the living room.

"Suddenly there was a terrific crash. My daughter ran down the hall. I took a short cut through the dining room arriving one second before her.

"Oh, Mother," she exclaimed, "have they broken the new lamp?"

"No-o-o!" I moaned, "they have knocked my beautiful violet plant to 'KINGDOM COME'."

"I dropped to my knees to pick up the pieces. Seeing me in a kneeling posture the frightened culprit folded his tiny hands and bowed his head intoning reverently 'Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven.'"

"With solemn mien he finished and started talking about Elliot Lake and Bancroft and the fact that uranium administration recently had been such that those thriving centres might face extinction.

He was at once called to order by Mr. Churchill and Mr. Speaker. No criticism of what this government had done, they said. Save that for the committee—maybe.

Arnold Peters, CCF member for Timiskaming, was next speaker. He managed to get off about 1,100 words to about 900 words of interruptions, mainly by Mr. Churchill and Mr. Speaker, because he was criticizing.

Mr. Pearson got off easier. One thing he did was quote Prime Minister Diefenbaker who said two months ago that this committee should be set up "at the earliest possible date."

Mr. Peters made one interesting comment. The committee will have 20 members. He said it was to take 20 members out of the House right now there would be no sitting.

There were scarcely 20 members in their seats. Mr. Speaker sternly called Mr. Peters to order.

Armand Dumas, Liberal member for Villeneuve, spoke next ed the Lord's prayer as I buried my face in my hands and tried to control my hysterical laughter. It was so funny that it completely dispelled my anger. And I have had a hundred hearty laughs over it since."

'SUGAR DADDY'
Not to be outdone by grandmother No. 1, grandma No. 2 related:

"During the war when sugar was scarce I managed to buy a 100-pound bag for the canning season. In my absence the head of the house got big-hearted and gave several pounds of my precious sugar to a neighboring grass widow.

"I overheard the gossip in late afternoon and at dinner time launched into a tirade before the children. Tempers flared and the guilty party was ready to strike me when junior, not understanding the connotations of his remark, chimed in: 'He's a real sugar-daddy, isn't he?'"

"We looked at each other and burst into a round of hearty laughter until tears streamed down our faces. Suddenly the loss of a few pounds of sugar seemed very trivial. A good laugh had turned the trick and saved the day, and reduced our blood pressure."

"Audible laughter" may in a few instances indicate ill-breeding, or an ill head. But this is not generally true.

LEAVEN LIVES
Many highly cultured and emotionally sound men and women are habitual loud laughers. Their laughter is infectious and they generate a wonderful atmosphere of goodwill and warm-heartedness, convincing the gloomy folk about them that "a merry heart doeth good like a medicine."

Our world needs the medicine of laughter today but, like all medicine, laughter must be used in moderation. Laughter is a God given emotion and it has its purpose in the divine scheme for our good.

But we ought to remember that there is a time for laughter. And we ought to try to laugh at the right times always avoiding the laughter of division or scorn.

We must learn to laugh with people not at them and their peculiarities. And if we do, God will use laughter to leaven our lives and bring happiness to our world.

ROLE OF SCHOOL SPORTS
(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

As we commented recently on the glamor attached to sports heroes in high schools, charging that the football player or the fast swimmer received more attention than the brilliant student, we were interested in an address given by Dr. James B. Conant, former Harvard President and now engaged in a study of education below college level. He stated that the real values and goals of education are today being sidetracked and athletics are being over-emphasized. School principals, he said, are fighting a vicious over-emphasis on sports.

Over-emphasis on sports is probably practiced more in the United States than in Canada. American colleges and universities compete for the biggest fields, the best gymnasiums and the finest teams which they boast by enticing crack athletes from other educational institutions by offering them free education, board and lodgings and even giving them pocket-money. A school or college will spend $100,000 or more on a new gymnasium, while the school laboratory or library suffer from lack of equipment or books.

In this connection the Wall Street Journal says: "Ask yourself who are the leaders in the schools in your neighborhood or town? In our town they are not the winners of scholarships or poetry contests; they are the football and basketball

SHORT SUIT BID CLUES
PARTNER
Edgar Kaplan of New York is one of our greatest young players. In addition, he has an active mind and has suggested many ideas in bidding.

Some I don't like, but one in particular is a dilly. Any good partnership will do well to adopt it.

This bid is called the short suit try. Specifically, after your partner has raised your opening major suit bid to two, you can still jump right to game if your hand calls for it.

With a doubtful hand on which you simply bid your shortest suit. Now, if your partner has strength in that suit he realizes the hand will be a misfit. If he has strength in other suits he realizes his high cards will help.

Now look at today's hand. South has a nice opening bid but his hand is barely worth some re-bid after his partner's single raise. Playing the short suit try, he will bid three clubs.

North has a minimum raise, but that short suit try is his dish. He sees that his diamond ace is really going to be valuable and that his doubleton heart will help his partner also. North jumps right to four spades.

With the diamond opening, South will have no trouble with the hand and actually can make five-odd if he plays double dummy. With a trump lead, he would have to work a little to make his game, but careful play should bring it home. In any case, the hand belongs at four spades.

You, South, hold:

What do you do?
A—Bid four spades. Your partner is interested in game and you have a very strong hand for your previous raise. Do not waste time showing the diamond ace.

West bids three hearts over your two spades and your partner and East pass. What do you do now?

Bygone Days
THIRTY YEARS AGO
President Hoover has urged that Congress take immediate action to implement the London Naval Treaty.

TWENTY YEARS AGO
The British Parliament has given prompt passage to a bill providing for the conscription of manpower and industry as the continental crisis becomes more critical.

TEN YEARS AGO
Labor Government chieftains indicated today they may water down their Socialist projects and try to rule for at least another year with their skimp majority in Parliament.

Lucien Bedard, president of Sherbrooke's Junior Chamber of Commerce, Sunday was elected president of the Eastern Townships Junior Chambers at a Regional convention held here under the chairmanship of Bertrand Garon, retiring as regional president.

captains and the pretty cheerleaders. The truly serious students are known as "brains," an identification to be avoided at all costs by the average youngster. What young girl, given her choice, would prefer the drab gown of valedictorian to the sequins of the drum majorette? Thus is educational sense affected."

There is a valuable place for athletics in schools, but there are other battles ahead of young people that require other training, too. Parents who are wondering about the course education is taking might well ask themselves, amid the cheers, whether more emphasis on the lab and the library isn't closer to education's basic goals.

Report From Ottawa

by Clyde Blackburn

OTTAWA.—At this moment of writing, the big news is from Paris and the Khrushchev-Eisenhower standoff and what happens here seems rather insignificant.

But we go on, and on, and hope for the best although we do not seem to be at our best.

Right now I am thinking about committees of the House and hoping people will be interested in knowing there are about 16 standing committees with a total membership of over 600.

That means members must be on several committees because there are only 285 of them.

Then there are a number of special or select committees set up for specific purposes—and more to come.

Parliament has been in session four months. Optimists start talking about adjournment at the end of June. Dreamers!

would not permit adequate safeguards against it." I think this is as applicable to Canadians as it is to Americans.

As Drucker states: Inflation is more than an unpersonal and general danger to society, the breeder of class hatred and the destroyer of the middle class. In an economy, where the great mass of people have become long-term creditors (through their insurance and pension holdings) and where as much as half of the employed population is on fixed salaries, which do not readily adjust to changes in money values, inflation may cause more individual suffering than even widespread unemployment.

And another exception is that some time is gained by the operations of the estimates committee.

We set up a new special committee the other day. It will examine the atomic and uranium operations in Canada since 1956, when the committee last sat.

Trade Minister Churchill made the necessary motion to set up this committee. He used a b.o.u. 3,500 uninterrupted words and was quite vocal about how active his government had been since taking over.

The Doctor Says
THROAT INFECTIONS DEMAND ANALYSIS BY YOUR DOCTOR
By Harold Thomas Hyman, M.D.
A questionnaire dealing with tonsillitis, quinsy, adenoiditis and tonsillectomy has been sent me by a committee of "curious and worried mothers" living in and around Pittsburgh.

Instead of replying directly to each of their 18 questions, I think I can better "clarify" their minds and relieve their anxieties by providing over-all considerations of the problems of throat infections and of bodily defenses against these infections.
To begin with, you must understand that the tonsils are the right and left guards of a lymphoid defense ring that includes the lingual tonsil, situated on the back of the tongue, and the adenoid group that looks down on the throat from high up in the back of the nose.
Contrary to older beliefs, these structures do not contribute any important secretion to the tissues. They are not, in the strict sense of the word, to be referred to as "glands."
To the best of present knowledge, they function as outposts of the body defenses organization. Their main assignment is to pick off and destroy bacterial invaders before they can sneak into and infiltrate our tissues.
Now while any infecting organism may try to get through the lymphoid defense ring, viruses and streptococci pose the main threat.

Less often, the invaders are staphylococci, pneumococci, meningococci, diphtheria and tubercle bacilli, and fungi of various sorts. That's one reason why only a very ignorant person would presume to look in a throat and say you had a "strep" infection.
Any time there's a border clash between invading bacteria and your lymphoid protectors, your tonsil gets red and swollen during the heat of battle. Then you complain of a sore throat and difficulty in swallowing.
If the going is particularly rough and some of the enemy get through the tonsils, you may even note swelling and pain in the secondary defense line composed of the lymph nodes (not "glands" as they're commonly called) situated in your neck and under your jaw.
When the battle casualties begin to mount up, heaps of slaughtered bacteria and martyred cells come into sight.
Usually in a "strep" infection, these heaps look like the "white

Sutton Fashion Show Repeated At Cowansville

SUTTON—A fashion show always creates a great deal of interest and there was a large and appreciative audience at the Sutton High School Auditorium to witness the Vanha showing of sportswear under the sponsorship of the Organ Fund Committee of Grace Anglican Church. The show was also held at Cowansville on May 11.

The collection ranged from tailored Swiss dress suits, through shirtwaist woollens, separate and mix-match outfits as well as play clothes for fun in the sun. Outstanding were the blouses of delicately embroidered Swiss Minicare.
To lend variety to the showing, a number of "Rain and Shine" coats were also modelled. Three or four dressier garments included a flowered cotton theatre coat, a pair of hostess pants, a silk print afternoon dress and an evening skirt and blouse.

The stage had been attractively arranged and a carpeted runway ended midway of the auditorium which gave the models a perfect setting for showing their costumes to the best advantage. The models were, Mrs. Audrey Peacock, Miss Eva Terauds, Miss Claire David, Mrs. Vera Vanha, Miss Roberta Hawke and Miss Christine Spicer, all of Cowansville.

The commentary which accompanied each appearance was given by Mrs. Donald Fadden and Mrs. Dennis Cowan played the piano for the models and also accompanied the Misses Lane, Patty and Paula Larocque, who sang two numbers during intermission.

Refreshments were served by members of Grace Church Senior Choir. Mrs. Wallace Holden was in charge of the entertainment and assisting the models were Mrs. Percy Smith, Mrs. Leon Jordan and Mrs. Douglas Brown.

The committee wishes to express thanks to those who helped to make the evening a success, also appreciation to Mr. Stanley Pergau, principal, and to the Sutton School Board for allowing the use of the auditorium and the public address system.

The proceeds were very gratifying and will be used for the Organ Fund.

AT COWANSVILLE

There was a good attendance when the fashions were modelled again in Trinity Memorial Hall, Cowansville. The Friendly Society of Trinity Church sponsored the second show.

Door prizes were a blouse, won by Mrs. Dale Morrison, a vase, by Mrs. Dennis Lyons, and a cake plate, by Mrs. A. Fortin. Mrs. George Purchase won a plant.

At the close of the show the models and those who had taken part were served refreshments, buffet style, from a table done with spring flowers and lighted tapers.

A short business meeting was held by the members when plans were made to cater to a wedding on June 25.

spots" my correspondent asked about.

In diphtheria, they appear like a dirty grey film that sticks to the surface and spreads in every direction.
But even an expert can be fooled by what he sees with the naked eye. That's why your doctor insists on making a throat culture so he can get positive identification of the criminal from his laboratory.

The reason this identification is important for you rests in the fact that different weapons have to be used for effective destruction of different criminals.
For example, penicillin and like products are death to streptococci but relatively ineffective against diphtheria and tubercle bacilli, viruses and fungi.
Diphtheria antiserum protect against the poison liberated by diphtheria bacilli but have no effect on streptococci or any other organism.

Please try to read two upcoming columns in which I'll discuss what can be done to prevent and cure these infections.

Women Should Accept More Responsibility

REGINA (CP) — Women must accept the responsibilities that go with the rights they have fought for, says Mrs. Harry S. Quart of Sillery, Que., national president of the Women's Progressive Conservative Association.

"A great many women concentrate on rights too much and have fallen down on assuming and accepting the responsibilities that go with these rights.

"Our task ahead is not only to convince the men as much as to educate the unconverted masses of women who are too apathetic and complacent."

Mrs. Quart was interviewed during a visit here following her return from Argentina where she was vice-chairman of a meeting of the UN commission on the status of women.

Most Canadian women were more interested in marriage than a career and didn't want to "storm parliament."

But they could combine their role as wife and mother with that of custodian of democracy.

"A woman interested in the affairs of her country thinks of the future of her children and her family. She develops a tremendous sense of justice. . . . The many organizations through which she serves are valuable links between governments on all levels. Through them she can make women's views known to the legislatures and councils."

ARE THESE MEN RELATIVES OF YOURS?

The review of THE NILE VOYAGEURS, printed elsewhere on this page, had particular interest for me due to the fact that several Sherbrooke men were included in the first Canadian overseas military adventure which it describes. In fact I got so involved with the Sherbrooke angle that I had to keep hunting until I found out the names of the men who in 1885 went to the distant Nile on this expedition. The names I came up with were these:

Herbert Harris John Henry, James Martin, Kenneth McLeod, Emech Hayemal and James Thompson. It would be interesting to know if relatives of these men still live in the Eastern Townships. Perhaps there are letters or newspaper accounts still extant which will throw more light on the six men who took part in this adventure. JOTTINGS would be interested in more details on this story if any reader can supply them. Why don't you drop me a line if you know anything about it.

An interesting footnote to still another review, namely THE GREEN GABLES LETTERS, which also appears elsewhere on this page is that Elizabeth Campbell, one of our best-known SATURDAY'S BOOKSHELF reviewers is distantly related to L. M. Montgomery. A native of Prince Edward Island, Mrs. Campbell's grandmother and the renowned L. M. Montgomery were cousins.

ATTENTION LADIES! "A woman cannot be truly beautiful unless she is living to the full, harmoniously developing all her potentialities. She must be mentally, physically and emotionally alive," according to John Robert Powers in his new book HOW TO HAVE MODEL BEAUTY, POISE AND PERSONALITY, published by PRENTICE-HALL. He stresses the topics of "Make Down", "Dress Down" and "Posture". "Make Up is what you put on your face", Mr. Powers says, "Make Down is the manner in which you apply it!"

MEET AN AUTHOR: Theresa E. Thomson was born in Calgary, educated in Red Deer and Winnipeg and has been both a student and staff member of the Banff School of Fine Arts. Long a member of the Canadian Authors Association, she is a past secretary of the Edmonton Branch, past president of the Ottawa Branch and has served on the National Executive. Keenly interested in poetry, she has been Chairman of the Poetry Craft group in Ottawa and is author of SILVER SHADOWS and joint author with her husband Don W. Thomson of three other poetry books, SILVER LIGHT, MYTH AND MOVEMENT and RIVER AND REALM. Mrs. Thomson's great interest however, and perhaps the thing for which she will be most honored among writers, is her work with the Canadian Writers' Foundation of which she has been Executive Secretary-Treasurer for 14 years.

ANOTHER AWARD. The Beta Sigma Phi Award of $1,000 for the best first novel by a Canadian has been won by Sheila Watson for her novel THE DOULE HOOK according to an announcement by her publishers,

Disarming, Delightful Letters

THE GREEN GABLES LETTERS — edited by WILFRID EGGLESTON 102 pages — THE RYERSON PRESS.

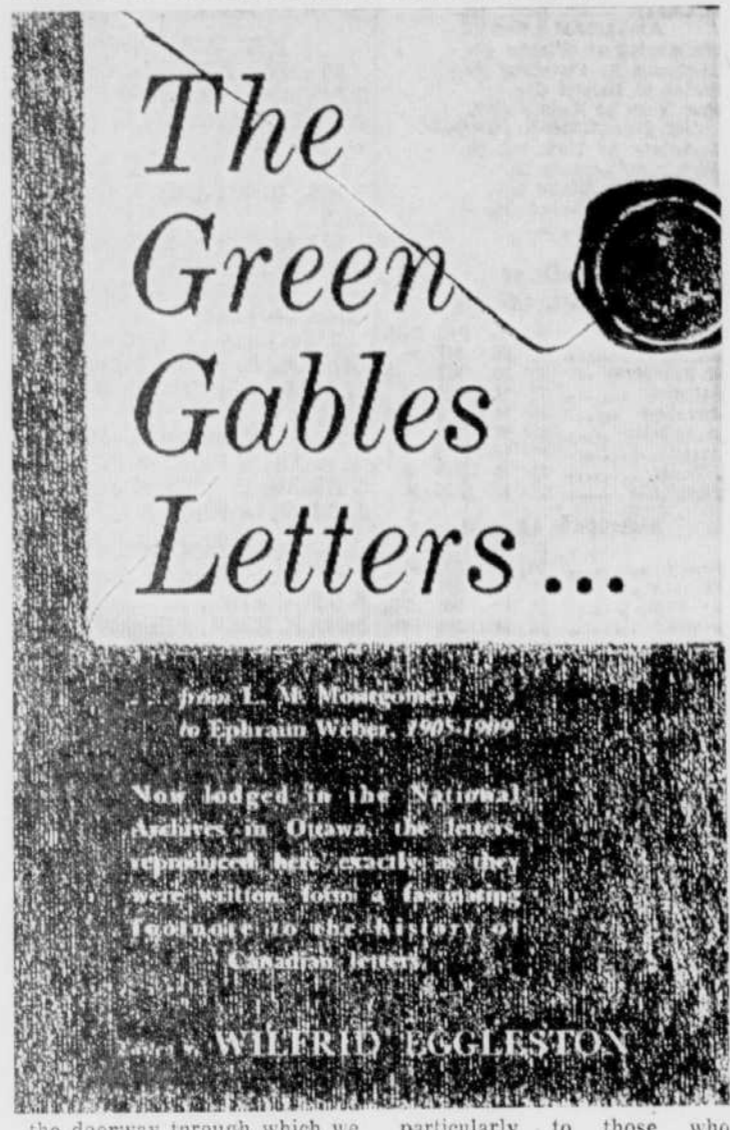

Perhaps you have to have been a school-girl devotee of Anne (spelled with an "e" as the little heroine so often so vehemently insisted) to enjoy this slim volume of letters written by Anne's creator, L. M. Montgomery and edited by Wilfrid Eggleston, Ottawa member of the Canadian Authors Association.

The letters were written to Ephraim Weber, one-time rancher, farmer and school-teacher in Western Canada, and they cover the period, from 1905 to 1909, when Miss Montgomery was gaining a foothold in the writing world - including her sudden leap to fame with the publication of her first book ANNE OF GREEN GABLES.

Since the Montgomery-Weber correspondence was an outgrowth of a fan letter Mr. Weber wrote the budding authoress — and since the letter itself was an outgrowth of his would-be-writer aspirations, — it would be strange indeed if this book did not contain much that would be of particular interest and encouragement not only to Mr. Weber but to all writers engaged in a struggle for literary recognition.

That L. M. Montgomery jumped from the comparative obscurity of Sunday School serial writing to world fame was due chiefly, at least in this reviewer's opinion, to the disarming and delightful freshness of her characters, her writing and her viewpoint — and this quality I am happy to say has carried over into her letters.

My only criticism of this book is that the author Wilfrid Eggleston seemed to have a bias in favor of Mr. Weber with the result that, for me at least, that gentleman too often intruded upon my enjoyment of the book. Undoubtedly we owe a debt of gratitude to Mr. Weber for being the type of correspondent who could elicit such interesting letters from L. M. Montgomery, but for all that so far as the reader is concerned, he is still only the doorway through which we are seeing Miss Montgomery and as such I think he could and should have been kept more in the background.

However I found this a truly fascinating book and would recommend it to anyone — but particularly to those who "love Anne, love Prince Edward Island or love writing". The book contains something of special interest and charm to all who belong in these categories.

Local Men In Important Role

The Nile Voyageurs: Edited and with an Introduction by C. P. Stacey; The Champlain Society (Toronto) 285 pages. It may well come as a surprise to residents of Sherbrooke and area to learn from this remarkable book that men from this part of Canada played an important role as members of the first Canadian overseas expedition in a British army expedition. C. P. Stacey, formerly of Ottawa, now special lecturer in history at the University of Toronto, has made in "Records of the Nile Voyageurs, 1884-1885" another of his ably written, fully documented contributions to a better understanding and wider knowledge of this country's association with Britain in military campaigns abroad in the 19th and 20th centuries.

True, the Canadian voyageur contingent in the Gordon relief expedition did not have military status but as Charles Stacey points out in his engrossing fifty-page introduction to this collection of campaign letters and other documents, it was the precursor of larger and more significant national efforts.

Seventy-six years ago Major-General C. G. Gordon — the famous but eccentric "Chinese Gordon" — was a virtual prisoner of the Sudan at Khartoum. General Lord Wolseley was given command of the British forces sent to rescue General Gordon. Wolseley's basic plan was to reach Khartoum by ascending the Nile, an idea based on his experience with the Red River expedition in Western Canada in 1870.

On September 14, 1884, a total of 386 men of all ranks, including six officers and one non-com, as well as eighteen foremen, sailed from Canada for Alexandria. This almost wholly civilian contingent was under the command of Lt.-Col. F. C. Denison of Toronto.

The Canadians returned to Quebec City from Egypt on May 25, 1885. The boatmen for this expedition were recruited from the Ottawa River area, from Three Rivers ninety-two men from Manitoba, fifty Caughnawaga Indians as well as smaller parties of white men from Sherbrooke and Peterborough.

The task and responsibility of recruiting the contingent was left entirely to the Imperial government and was organized through the office of the Governor General, Sir John A. Macdonald, in fact, frowned on the whole idea. "The Suez Canal," he wrote to Sir Charles Tupper, "is nothing to us. Why should we waste money and men in this wretched business?"

In all, sixteen members of the contingent lost their lives in service. Of these six were drowned in the Nile rapids and six died of disease. At the conclusion of the abortive military campaign, General Lord Wolseley paid a handsome public tribute to the highly helpful skill of Canadian boatmen in transporting British forces safely through the treacherous Nile cataracts.

As a forerunner of Canadian expeditionary forces in South Africa, in two world wars as well as in Korea, in Europe under NATO and, more recently, in the Suez Canal area as part of the U.N. truce force, it is significant to find in this first of all overseas efforts from this country, English-speaking as well as Indian elements of the national population, substantially represented.

Food Without Fads

FOOD WITHOUT FADS by E. W. McHenry, Ph. D., 159 pages — J. B. LIPPINCOTT CO.

Dr. McHenry, who is Professor of Nutrition and Head of the Department of Nutrition at the University of Toronto, and is actively associated with many scientific nutritional groups says that his book developed from a background of frequent addresses and newspaper articles. The title of an earlier book, "BASIC NUTRITION," by the same author, might be an alternative name for this later book which is precisely what the writer claims it to be — "a commonsense guide to nutrition". As such it makes rather flavourless fare a good bit of the book reads like a paper put out by the Department of Health, or a Grade V Health text, with lists of suggestions for healthy eating habits.

Perhaps it is difficult to obtain liveliness with a subject of this kind, but some of the books which the author roundly denounces, make more entertaining yet informative reading. What the writer terms "fads" are not strictly such, since a true fad is an opinion urged without good reason and a number of the so-called fad diets to which he refers have been presented to the reading public with convincing proofs by reliable authorities.

In short, this is an uncluttered treatise on the popular subject of nutrition written for the general reader.

Vancouver Witticisms

FROM OUR TOWN by Jack Scott, Published by McClelland and Stewart Limited, Toronto—$3.00. The author of this book, Jack Scott, is a newspaper columnist for the "Vancouver Sun." The publishers have taken some of his articles and compiled them into a witty, amusing and informative book. Each chapter is on a different subject and they range from an article on the horrors of annual staff picnics to the beauty of Vancouver's rainy weather and the problems of ants.

Mr. Scott makes his subjects live and even Henry Pludge is credible, a chronically mixed up character who appears in many of the author's pieces. Mr. Scott has some axes to grind, for example, he showed deep aversion to Outer Space parties. He has included another interesting item entitled "War for gain"—"some rules for a nice, safe war."

Much of his writing is done with tongue in cheek and I envy the readers who read Mr. Scott's daily columns.—Shirley Simpson.

'Suitable' Plays Are A Bore

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
LONDON (CP) — Philip Hope-Wallace, who sails for Canada June 29 to adjudicate his third Dominion Drama Festival, thinks it would be a pity if the contending companies limited themselves to "plays suitable for performance in drama festivals."

The 44-year-old theatre and music critic of The Guardian, who officiated at the 1948 and 1958 festivals, complained mildly that the presence of the odd "unsuitable" play makes the adjudicator's job more difficult.

It confronted him with the problem of choosing a prizewinner between an excellently realized production of an undemanding play and a less successful attempt to bring off something more ambitious.

PROBLEM PREFERRED
But he made it clear during an interview that an adjudicator is more than willing to settle for this kind of problem in compiling his prize list rather than endure the monotony of sitting through a festival composed solely of "suitable" plays.

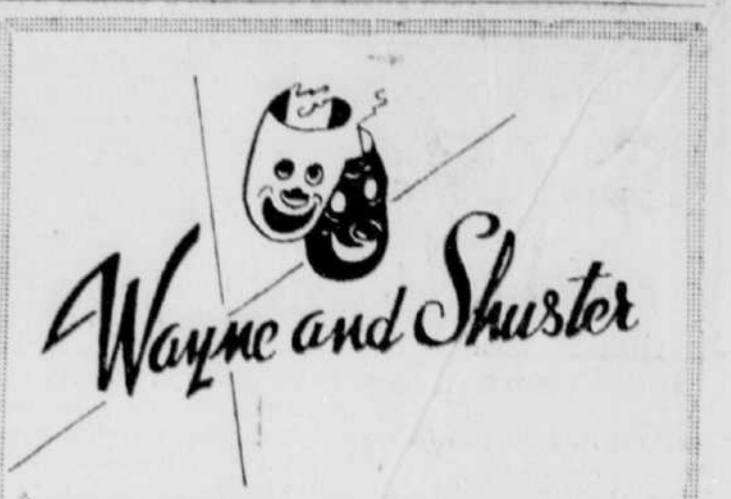

Asked if he detected any deterioration in standards as a result of the demands of Canada's professional theatre and television on the pool of amateur talent since his first visit, Hope Wallace emphatically denied it. The calibre of the acting in 1958 was just as high as it had been nine years before.

He was enthusiastic about the festival's new system of regional adjudication, in which separate teams operate in different zones. Under the previous arrangement, in which one man travelled across the country, there was the danger that his critical faculties might be overwhelmed by the sheer exhaustion of endless nights of play-watching.

FAVORS CANADIANS
Hope Wallace also strongly favored the introduction of Canadian adjudicators in the regional festivals and looks forward to the day when the dominion festival is also handled by a Canadian.

This did not mean that he didn't like his job—"after all, I don't have to go"—but simply that it would be a step forward in the Canadian theatre.

The necessity of finding a bilingual adjudicator presented a problem. But Hope-Wallace noted that no critic is truly bilingual. He admitted having considerable difficulty in finding the exact turn of phrase to get a point across in an extemporaneous French-language adjudication, even though he is a regular reader of French dramatic criticism.

DON HUDSON, CBC-TV's variety impresario who was just appointed associate producer to Jack Arthur on the Canadian National Exhibition Grandstand Show is certainly one of Canada's top showmen.

Legend has it, Hudson was so young when he started in the business that he had to be changed as often as the scenery.

His curriculum vitae includes such talents as magician, dancer, choreographer, stage-manager, producer, director, movie theatre manager, TV executive, and teller of show-business yarns.

His favorite goes back to his movie days and concerns a man who was seen leading a large brown bear into a movie theatre.

The doorman backed away and let the bear and his master in as did the petrified ushers, but the manager made of sterner stuff, came down the aisle to the pair. "Alright," he roared, "Why did you bring that big brown bear into this movie?"

"Well, I didn't want to," replied the man meekly. "But he liked the book so much!"

Brando As Lawrence of Arabia Raises Protests In Britain

By TOM A. CULLEN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
LONDON (NEA)—The British have their dander up over the casting of Marlon Brando to play Lawrence of Arabia in a new, $7,000,000 Hollywood film epic.

"What, an American Method actor playing one of the most famous Englishmen in history?" This is a typical reaction in Wardour Street, London, heart of the British film industry.

But the British press takes an even dimmer view. "The most unlikely casting decision in cinema history," is what the London News Chronicle calls it, while other newspapers sneer at Brando as "antrums in a T-shirt" and "the actor with the built-in mumble."

Backed into a corner at Claridges, Hollywood producer Sam Spiegel explained his decision to cast Brando in one of the year's fatter roles.

"We considered every possible British actor for the part," he said, "but none of them were young enough. After all, Lawrence was only 29 when he led the Arab revolt against the Turks."

Taking refuge behind a glass of vodka, Spiegel tried again. "Alec Guinness is a marvelous actor, but you can't make him look 15 years younger, can you?"

The British, however, are not likely to be appeased, not even with the announcement that Hollywood is angling for Sir Laurence Olivier to play the role of Field Marshal Lord Allenby in the film.

who was T. E. Lawrence's mother. Sir Thomas left his wife and children, changed his name to Lawrence and settled in Oxford with the governess, who bore him five sons.

Force under the assumed name of Ross, then as a private in the Royal Tank Corps under the name of Shaw.

He was fatally injured in a motorcycle crash in May, 1935, but his vitality was such that he lingered unconscious for five days before dying.

Told of Lawrence's death, Sheikh Hamoudi, a friend of the Arabian revolt days, strode up and down a flagstone hall in Aleppo. "If only he had died in battle," the sheik exclaimed. "I have lost my son, but I do not grieve for him as I do for Lawrence."

In Britain, he is still a school-boy hero. Had he lived, Lawrence would have been 72 years old in August 1960.

RECORD FIELD COMPETING IN Y'S MEN'S MEET TODAY
The largest list of entries ever to compete in any organized track and field meet in Sherbrooke is at present battling it out for top honors at the Parade Grounds. A total of sixteen schools with over 300 contestants comprise the field.

Judging from the advance comments from the various coaches it would seem that one of the top schools are going to win. They are all going to do their best, which is expected, but they don't figure on copying it. Maybe some "dark-horse" will sneak through. Despite all this we still think that Bishop's College School is the team to watch with Stanstead and Sherbrooke High giving them a fight. Coach Sam Abbott stated that his squad is not as strong in the bantam or midget sections this year and that might make a difference.

Last year BCS piled up a strong advantage in the morning events which gave them a good cushion for the afternoon. Coach Fisher's Stanstead crew packs no outstanding stars, he claims, but they should have a well balanced aggregation of field and track boys to represent them.

As for the local high Coach Jim MacKinnon stated that the team spirit was high and that they have been hard at work for the past two weeks. They placed third last year and should be up with the top teams once again.

Coach Roland Dewar of Lennoxville High claims that the small interest shown by his pupils will hold the size of the squad down. However he figures what they lack in numbers will be made up in quality.

We couldn't get any comments from the outside schools such as, Drummondville, Cowansville, Granby, Knowlton, Sutton and Waterloo just to name a few, but don't count them out as we think they may pull a surprise on the field. In past years several of our outstanding track and field boys came from out around Cowansville and Knowlton.

It will be very interesting to follow the youngsters today as they battle it out and we sincerely hope that as many parents as possible will be on hand to cheer them on. From the youngsters' viewpoint we are sure it will be greatly appreciated.

The proceeds from the meet go towards running Shore Acres Camp at Little Lake and at the same time the Club looks after underprivileged children who are unable to pay. This camp is the Club's main project which was started back in 1929 and has come a long way since.

It is a good civic cause and deserves lots of help from one and all. The meet opened this morning at 9.00 and it is scheduled to finish around 5.00 so if you can spare a few moments drop around and see the youngsters performing. It will be worth it as we figure the competition will be razor-keen.

See where Maurice "The Rocket" Richard has been asked to decide within the next week or so about his future. Maurice had a meeting with Frank Selke Thursday and he said he would comply with Mr. Selke's wish.

The famous "Rocket" who will be 39 years old Aug. 4, has suffered serious injuries the last three seasons, an almost severed Achilles tendon, fracture of the shin bone where it joins the ankle and a cheekbone fracture. These injuries coupled with his age have led to general conclusions that he is ready to call it quits.

We are willing to state that he will retire and that he will be offered a position with the club, possibly as a good-will ambassador-at-large. Maurice has done a lot for the Canadiens and knowing Mr. Selke we are sure he will be well looked after. He has a few more years to go on his contract but that will be attended to in the right manner.

The Lake Massawippi Fish and Game Club is holding a dinner Wednesday at the Pleasant View Hotel in North Hatley at 6.45 and all members with their wives are invited to be on hand. A film from Molson's, on fishing, will be shown and should be very interesting.

We had the pleasure of watching a restocking project the other day with President Lindy Lindsko out at Lachapelle Pond on the East Hatley Road. It was interesting and we didn't get our feet wet. We had a strong temptation to give President Lindy a little shove when he was dumping the trout in but we figured the water was just too cold.

Five thousand grey trout were dumped in the pond where they will remain for a couple of years. Angus Patterson of the Provincial Fish Hatchery told us that at the end of the year they would be almost five to six inches long. Pretty good size for one year. After a couple of years they will be taken out and put in Lake Massawippi for the general public. This is one of the many projects of the club. So don't forget the dinner Wednesday.

Waterloo is going to have a golf course and we understand they have already commenced to proceed with the layout. A new executive was elected and from the look of things it seems they are rolling along in high gear. Congratulations gentlemen and we wish you the best of luck in your new undertaking.

The annual Molson Star Golf Tournament will be held at the Country Club on Friday and a good crowd should be on hand. Molson's Brewery plays host to members of the press, radio and television each year.

This year Doug Harvey, Boom Boom Geoffrion, Jean-Guy Talbot, Marcel Pronovost and "Junior" Langlois will be on hand which should add plenty of color to the event but we think that as far as the press is concerned they will have plenty of their own in trying to play the course. That should be plenty of trouble for the writers.

This event has gained popularity with the press since it started and each year more take it in. It is a real outing for the boys and gives them an opportunity of meeting and talking things over. Georges Masse is looking after things at this end while Marcel Dufresne of Montreal is the main cog in the machinery. Each local Molson agent has the responsibility of bringing the members of the press from his own district so therefore in this manner no one is missed.

So members of the press, radio and TV don't forget next Friday at the Country Club. Come early in order to get your 18-holes in on time. There are plenty of prizes and we are sure that Georges Masse, Marcel Dufresne and company will give everyone a good time.

We are glad to hear that Zotique Lesperance, Director of Public Relations, is back in action. He will be here to present Molson's Trophy to the winner Friday. Nice to see you back Zotique.

Smallest Field In Years To Compete In Preakness Today

BALTIMORE (AP) — Half a dozen colts, the smallest field since 1950, were entered Friday for today's 84th Preakness—the world's richest race for three-year-old thoroughbreds.

Included in the lineup were the 1-2-3 finishers in the $158,950 Kentucky Derby two weeks ago — Isaac Blumberg's Venetian Way, Turfand Inc.'s Bally Ache, and the Canadian star, E. P. Taylor's Victoria Park.

Venetian Way remained the even money favorite to win the $150,000-added classic over the 1 3/16 miles distance.

A development during the day was the selection of a jockey for the Derby but was committed to ride elsewhere today. The job finally was given 26-year-old Tony Despirito, the Lawrence, Mass., trainer who is one of New England's most important contributors to the jockey ranks. Despirito, who led U.S. riders in 1952 with 380 winners, rode in the 1958 Preakness. He finished 12th and last with the Maine Chance Farm's Liberty Ruler.

Bally Ache, the speed demon who blistered the early Derby pace only to be caught on the final turn and passed by Venetian Way, is the 8-to-5 second choice. Victoria Park, Canada's champion two-year-old last year, is next at 6 to 1.

Pirates, Chisox Continue Winning Ways

Clemente Takes Over NL Batting Lead

Pittsburgh's hot-hitting Pirates now have a 1 1/2-game lead over San Francisco in the National League pennant race, thanks to Bob Clemente, the hottest hitter of 'em all. Clemente, hitting safely in 15 of his last 16 games, took over the batting lead and kept the Bucs in business Friday night, capping their two-run 12th inning with a two-out single that beat the Giants 5-4. It was the Pirates' fourth straight victory and their ninth in 10 games.

Milwaukee regained third place, five games, behind, although the Braves' game with the Chicago Cubs was postponed by fog. Cincinnati slipped to fourth as the St. Louis Cardinals, back to their winning ways at home, beat the Reds 6-1. Philadelphia rapped Los Angeles 6-3.

Big Klu Paces Chicago

Associated Presses Staff Writer — No matter how you spell it—Ted Kluszewski or Kluszewski, as did the tailor who goofed—he's still Big Klu.

The guy whose arms and bat resemble tree trunks drove home four runs for a 5-3 victory over New York Yankees Friday night as Chicago White Sox remained unbeaten at home and took a 1 1/2-game lead in the American League race.

Cleveland Indians moved into second place by defeating Boston Red Sox 2-0 on the three-hit pitching of Mudecat Grant and relief ace Dick Stigman. Baltimore Orioles slipped to third, blowing a 3-1 lead in the ninth for a 4-3 loss to the Tigers at Detroit. Washington's game at Kansas City was rained out.

Kluszewski, whose name was misspelled on the back of his road uniform, brought the White Sox from behind with his first home run of the season, a two-run shot off loser Whitey Ford (1-2) in the third inning. Then he clinched their ninth straight success at Comiskey Park with a bases-loaded single in a three-run eighth off reliever Ryne Duren.

The Yankees, outbitting Chicago 10-6, chased winner Early Wynn (2-1) in the ninth, when Mickey Mantle hit a two-run homer. Reliever Turk Lown finally nailed Wynn 273rd career victory by fanning Bill Skowron with two on.

The opening ceremonies will take place at 8:00 Friday, the 27, when first string curlers will be ushered onto the ice to the skirl of the pipes swishing of kilts and the well wishes of congregate curlers from North, South, East and West.

There will be teams from Eastern Township Clubs, Cap de la Madeleine, Valleyfield, Quebec Victoria, Outremont, St. John's, Thistle, Pointe Claire, Montebello and Doug. Harvey and Boom Boom Geoffrion with two other Canadian hockey stars will be there. They will trade hockey sticks for golf clubs in the afternoon of the 28 and brooms for the evening curling. A. J. Philip, Vice-President and General Manager of Canada Paper Co., and Mayor T. Bolduc, will deliver the first stones.

On Friday, May 27 after opening ceremonies and curling, there will be a dance while on Saturday there will be a buffet supper and dance. A very successful week is anticipated, so get your sweater out of mothballs and don yer bonne glengarry a' hae ye ta' the bonspiel a' Windsor Mills.

Comedy, representing the Langgollen Farm of Mrs. Liz Person, and Chase McCoy's T. V. Lark. All will pack 128 pounds. Of the three, only Divine Comedy appeared in the Derby. He ran ninth in a field of 13.

If all six go to the post the jackpot will gross $175,100 with $121,000 going to the winner.

A victory for Venetian Way, to be ridden by Bill Hartack, would give him two-thirds of the elusive triple crown. The $25,000-added Belmont Stakes June 11 in New York is the finale.

Bobby Ussery is back on Bally Ache, who has acquired new owners since the Derby. Last week a syndicate called Turfand, Inc. paid Leonard Fruchtman $1,250,000 for the colt.

EASTBOURNE, England (CP) — Fishermen here are co-operating with other seaports in an effort to trace the movements of dogfish. Up to 1930 they were caught in large numbers but now a large catch is rare. Fishermen hope to tag the fish in the same way birds are banded.

Coach Imlach Would Claim "The Rocket"

TORONTO (CP) — Coach Punch Imlach said Friday Toronto Maple Leafs will draft Montreal Canadiens star Maurice (Rocket) Richard if Canadiens do not put him on the protected list.

National Hockey League teams can protect 20 players. Anyone not on the list can be drafted by another team for $20,000. The annual draft meeting is scheduled for June in Montreal.

Imlach said Leafs would draft Richard even if he retired. Then they would try to persuade him to sign a contract and play for Leafs.

Leafs would have last chance at obtaining Richard. As the second-place team in last season's NHL series, Leafs would be allowed to draft only after New York, Boston, Detroit and Chicago.

In Montreal a spokesman for Montreal Canadiens said if the Rocket continues to play it will be for Canadiens.

If the Rocket decided to retire, he would sign retirement papers and no other club in the league could draft him.

Fun Precedes Business Of Waterloo Club

WATERLOO — The second meeting in May of the Kiwanis Club became one of chaos and confusion when the members' wives took over. Never since the formation of the club has a meeting turned from business and order to such disorder. Fines were dished out by acting president Benita Hughes for such trivial things as speaking out of order, which was every time a man ventured to speak. Kiwanianne Grace McGovern acted as sergeant-at-arms. Several resolutions were unanimously passed by the ladies with a few terrorized husbands backing them up. The chief resolutions were, no more card games on Tuesday nights, and no more Inter-Clubs with North Troy. A completely disorganized sing-along was rendered by a group of non-singers. Finally the meeting was turned over to President Walter Hughes and all members sighed with relief. A short business meeting followed with Roger McKergow reporting on the Waterloo Lake project. To take the necessary steps to clean the lake was too big a project for the club alone. The committee has been promised the moral support of several organizations in town and are going to present their findings to the Town Council hoping to receive financial aid from them to accomplish a definitely necessary project. Kiwanian Bill Johnston reported on the Teen-Age Rodeo. It was decided that the club did not have the time to carry out this project at this time, as it was busy with Little League Baseball, the Pee Wee Banquet and the Picnic Grounds. Kiwanian Bill Johnston also reported that the Men's Club of St. Paul's United Church were interested in the project and it was decided to pass it on to them. Len Harmon, guest speaker, gave an interesting and informative talk entitled, Percentage Golf. Len Harmon said to play within yourself. Pay your normal game, don't penalize yourself by trying to imitate someone else. Analyse your game and play each hole as you see it, and with what you feel is the best of your ability. The speaker was introduced by Frank Makinson and thanked by Gene Sheppard. Seated at the head table with the acting president, Benita Hughes, were her husband Walter Hughes, Kiwanian and Mrs. Frank Makinson, Len Harmon, Alden Perkins and Roger McKergow, and Mrs. McKergow, who said grace.

Days Of Exploration Over

Arctic Research For Old Hands Said Giving Way To Scientists

MONTREAL (CP) — Research in the Canadian Arctic now is more a matter for scientists than for the "old northern hands" who first explored it, says the former director of the Arctic Institute of North America.

Alan T. Belcher, who retired recently after three years at the helm of the continent's foremost establishment for the study of the north, is himself one of the old-timers, but he feels the field has passed from an era of exploration into a scientific phase.

Calgary where his father, then a sergeant-major, was stationed. Mr. Belcher joined the police as a trumpeter at 16 and during the next 36 years rose to the rank of deputy commissioner, which his father had also held.

"Our task now is to get detailed scientific information, and for this we must have minds which have had the advantage of extended university training," he says.

His first northern assignment was at Herschel Island just below the 70th parallel in the Western Arctic about 200 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

There he learned to handle a dog team and to get along with his Eskimo neighbors.

FORMER MOUNTIE

REGARD FOR ESKIMOS
"The dogs were hard to handle but the Eskimos were wonderful. I have a high regard for the honesty, intelligence and cheerful good nature of these people."

Dulling The Edge Of Loneliness

Roman Catholic Missionaries Establish Radio Network

THE PAS, Man. (CP) — A short-wave radio network has dulled the edge of loneliness for Roman Catholic missionaries in the huge vicariate apostolic of Keewatin. Working in the 350,000-square-mile district are 50 priests, 30 brothers and 150 nuns. Communications problems were acute until Most Rev. Paul Dumouchel es-established one of the largest private shortwave radio networks in Canada.

The vicariate stretches 700 miles from northwestern Ontario to the Saskatchewan-Alberta border, and extends 500 miles north from the 53rd parallel, near The Pas, 314 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

Thirteen stations now are in operation and 11 others will be added within two months. The key station is at the bishop's residence here.

Says Keep Drinking Milk

EDMONTON (CP) — Don't let talk about radioactive strontium 90 stop you from drinking milk, advises Dr. C. F. Bentley, dean of agriculture at the University of Alberta.

If you do, chances are you will consume even more strontium 90 in other foods that have been contaminated by fallout from nuclear explosions.

Dr. Bentley says fallout now has contaminated every living plant and animal in the world. Milk probably contained less than most other foods.

He describes as misleading the talk about the radioactive level of milk, explaining that scientists use milk to test radiation levels because it is produced everywhere in Canada.

"Discontinuing or reducing milk consumption in the hope that intake of strontium 90 will be reduced is a serious mistake."

Milk contained considerably less strontium from fallout than the feed the cow had eaten and the proportion of strontium to calcium was reduced considerably by the cow's digestive system.

"Consequently the amount of strontium in the milk, compared with the calcium, is only about one-eighth as high as it was in the feed."

If the milk supply were cut off, the human body would have to get its calcium from vegetables containing a much higher level of strontium.

Single Remanded

TORONTO (CP) — Television singer Tommy Common, 26, appeared in magistrate's court Thursday on charges of impaired driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident. He was remanded until June 27. The charges were laid April 23 after a car struck a parked automobile and did not stop.

submitting to his amateur dentistry.

"They would break into a nervous sweat while I pulled their teeth, but they never quivered or let out a whimper."

He was more expert in his obstetrical duties, having been given a course in midwifery by the RCMP but "what I did not like was the fact that we got all the tough cases."

"The Eskimos never bothered to appeal to us during the easy ones. We were brought in on 'instrument deliveries.' Anyhow, I can lay claim to never having lost a mother."

INTERNATIONAL BODY

His duties at the institute were more prosaic.

Replacing George Watson in 1956, he took over direction of the organization formed in 1945 and financed by the United States and Canadian National Research Councils and the Carnegie Institute.

In turn he is being succeeded by Dr. John C. Reed, formerly with the U.S. Geological Survey and a governor of the institute.

But Mr. Belcher is not retiring from the field completely.

After a summer in his garden at Ottawa, he will go to the University of Alberta to assist in setting up an arctic research department there. With growing Canadian interest in the North, he expects there will be many more opportunities for helping other Canadian universities in the same task.

The Record's Farm Report

Trade Minister Churchill doubted that the $1,276 million wheat-rye deal between the U.S. and India would affect Canada's wheat exports to India. The U.S. he said, had kept Canada informed on the deal.

Early last week Mr. Churchill's doubts were dashed. India's food and agriculture Minister, Mr. S. K. Patil, came to Ottawa to propose to Messrs. Churchill, Harkness and Fleming that Canada's wheat exports to his country be cut. India has been buying about 400,000 tons (13.3 million bushels) of wheat a year from Canada and Australia. Mr. Patil proposed this be cut by 37.5 per cent to about 8.3 million bushels.

Dollar exchange was too scarce, Mr. Patil said, to use so much of it for wheat. The $1,276 million U.S. sale of rice and wheat was for rupees, to be used by the U.S. in India for economic development. Mr. Patil suggested that India could take more of Canada's wheat on a loan or barter basis if such could be arranged. But later in the week Mr. Churchill announced that wheat going to India this year (1959-60) in gifts would fall to 4 million bushels, down from 11 million last year.

PRAIRIE OUTPUT UP INCOME DOWN

Support for recent requests by Prairie farmers for special assistance may be marshalled from current D.B.S. releases on cash farm income and farm production indexes.

For 1959, farm cash income for all provinces totalled $2,786 million, down $27 million from 1958. Most of this income drop was in Saskatchewan (down $14 million to $559.3 million) and in Alberta (down $8 million to $476.8 million).

But while these two provinces showed the greatest loss in income they showed at the same time the greatest increase in output of farm products. The index of total physical output of farms in Canada fell from 145.1 in 1958 to 143.6 in 1959. Saskatchewan's output rose by 8.2 per cent and Alberta's by 4.9 per cent in the same period. There is good reason to expect this decline in Prairie income to continue in the future. This may spur the western farm organizations to bring greater pressure on Ottawa for assistance.

FEED MILLS CONTROVERSY GROWS

Arguments for and against Prairie feed mills being given the right to purchase grain direct from farmers without being bound by agreements or quotas set by the Canadian Wheat Board are now being heard by the House Agriculture and Colonization Committee.

U.S. FILLS POULTRY GAP TARIFF ASKED

Effects of the deficiency payment plan for eggs have been widespread. By April 30 egg production for 1960 had fallen 10 per cent below 1959, poultry meat production was down 7 per cent and hatchings were expected to be down by 17 per cent.

This reduction in egg output should bring supply and demand into balance at a price close to the support level. For poultry meat the prospects are not so promising. Canada's reduced production of poultry has been an invitation for U.S. imports. Up to April 30 this year domestic marketings were 6.3 million pounds below last year but imports in the same period jumped 3.7 million pounds to 4.8 million pounds.

EAT MORE POULTRY LESS EGGS

Poultrymen found an increasing demand for poultry meat and a smaller demand for eggs in 1959. Much of the increased demand was for turkey meat which is no longer confined to Thanksgiving and Christmas feasting.

Total consumption of poultry meats increased from 27.6 million pounds in 1958 to 30.4 million pounds in 1959. Turkey meat consumption was up from 6 pounds per person to 7.9 pounds, chicken and fowl from 21.1 to 22 pounds in 1959. Egg consumption was down from 24.8 million to 24 million dozen in 1959. However, exports of eggs increased from 19.4 million dozen in 1958 to 29.9 million dozen in 1959 so that eggs in storage at the end of the year 6 million dozen from the preceding year. Since eggs have been lower in price and the export market is poor this year it is probable that consumption will rise and exports fall in 1960.

NEW SUPPORTS CATTLE HIGHER LAMB DOWN

New cattle and lamb price supports were announced last week, effective April 1. Both supports are at mandatory levels, 80 per cent of the 10-year average. Cattle support set at $18.20 a cwt is 40 cents above last year. Lamb at $19.35 is 20 cents down.

COMBINES ACT OPENS DOOR

New anti-combines legislation now before the House will open up a whole new field for legal definition of combines in the courts. Companies that would be prosecuted under present legislation because they control prices may be exempt from prosecution under the new bill (C-58) if the group of companies show they do not operate against the public interest. Emphasis is thus shifted from "degree of control" to "public interest." But "public interest" is most difficult to define for such purposes so convictions will be harder to get.

Another section permits companies to co-operate with one another on statistics, product standards, credit, research and such, without risk of prosecution. Under the old act, exchange of such information was considered tantamount to collusion. This amendment provides for prosecution only when competition is lessened by such interchange.

Competition may be weakened by the amendment proposed for section 24. It would give housewives fewer bargains also. In effect, it prohibits retailers from offering loss-leaders, that is, from offering especially good bargains on staple products in order to attract customers into their store. Another amendment requires that special allowances or discounts granted one retailer be given to all competing retailers. On the whole, the proposed amendments open the way for some lessening of competition and for somewhat greater difficulty in prosecuting collusion and combination in trade.

Do-It-Yourself

But Did You Remember To Wash The Outside Walls?

By MR. FIX

Just because your house looks a little on the grimy side is no reason to figure on an expensive paint job. If the old paint job is less than three to five years old, painting again can be a waste of money.

New paint should be washed. Chances are that nature has taken care of a good deal of the washing for you, or will once the spring rains are past. Modern paints are designed to be self-cleaning. They wear down slowly and the chalkiness is washed away by the rain. With it goes most of the soot and grime.

Helping Hand

But nature may need a helping hand. A good hose with a strong stream of water may be all that's needed.

But an even better job can be done with a thorough washing. Start with the hose, wetting one entire side of the house. Get the stream into corners. Work from the bottom up to prevent streaking. (Remember this when

Vegetarians Best Off For Arctic Living

By JAMES NELSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP) — If you're thinking of moving to the Arctic and growing your own food, your tastes had better run to eggplant, broccoli and such exotic vegetables. Ham and eggs are too expensive.

The federal department of agriculture has found that small fruits and leafy vegetables can be grown far inside the Arctic Circle without too much difficulty.

Although hens will survive there, cost of feed is almost prohibitive.

The department established an experimental sub-station near Whitehorse in the Yukon 16 years ago and has supervised experimental gardens as far north as Inuvik, the new location for Aklavik, on the shore of the Arctic Ocean at the mouth of the Mackenzie River.

F. S. Nowosad, officer in charge of northern agriculture, says farming in the sub-Arctic should no longer be considered a novelty—"it's a reality."

One of the problems encountered by the market-gardener is the lack of rainfall during the short growing season. But the long hours of sun each day are a compensation and produce rapid growth.

There are at least 1,000,000 acres of agricultural land in the north divided almost equally between the Yukon and Northwest Territories, the department says. Permanently frozen soil—permafrost—lies under all the land but it is well below the surface after the land has been tilled a few years.

Peas were planted in 1956 on land which had only 14 inches free of permafrost. Some stunted plants blossomed but there was no crop. The following year peas were again planted in the same location and the permafrost level dropped to three feet. The plants were healthy and yielded a small crop.

Green peas and lettuce have been grown successfully at Inuvik. Strawberries and egg-plants have been produced at Fort Simpson, 150 miles north of the British Columbia border in the Yukon. Broccoli, celery and cauliflower grow at Whitehorse. Corn, tomatoes, green beans and more tender garden crops are being grown under light frame covering with plastic sheeting to protect them from frost.

Potatoes have been grown on irrigated land. The watering has provided not only moisture but protection from frost. When the early-morning temperatures drop to the freezing level, sprinklers are turned on, and while the plants may be coated with ice before the sun raises the temperature and icicles fall off, they thrive.

FERTILIZER COSTLY

The department says most of the land needs fertilizer but transportation costs run high. It would cost $130 in freight alone to move a ton of fertilizer from Trail, B.C., to Whitehorse.

However, there are 200,000 acres of good agricultural soil 50 miles north of Whitehorse in the Dezadeash Valley and a market for produce among 12,000 people.

Mr. Nowosad says the Yukon and Northwest Territories may never develop field crop farms but the demand for fresh vegetables exists and they can be grown.

"Development of natural resources in the Canadian north definitely includes agriculture," he says.

FOUR-WHEEL-DRIVE TRACTOR — Alex Bracken, who farms about 600 acres near Kankakee, Ill., uses a hybrid four-wheel-drive tractor built last winter. He used rear ends of two tractors and a 100-h.p. industrial engine from an old hammer mill. The five-ton tractor can pull six 16-inch plows and a 21-foot tandem disc. Bracken says it cuts his field time in half.

UNBROKEN LEADERSHIP

The best of the past, and the present for the future -- that is the administrative theme of the National Union on the eve of another provincial election. — Quebec's highly-successful policies of autonomy and expanding economy lead onward and upward unbroken under three great leaders. — As always, each citizen shares in the brilliant future, based on effective guarantees of the National Union that leave no room for doubt in the minds of the electors on June 22nd.

Here the 'big 3' of the National Union are caught by the camera in Ottawa — officially representing the province at an intergovernmental conference where they stood, shoulder to shoulder, defending the constitutional rights of Quebec, and of every other Canadian Province.

At the time no one suspected for a moment that the Honourable Maurice Duplessis, premier of Quebec and leader of the National Union, had with him a pair of ministers who in such short time would be called upon to succeed him in the two posts, and to take up the fight for provincial rights, liberties and prerogatives as well as for administrative autonomy and provincial sovereignty . . . so essential to the progress and development of every province, and of Quebec in particular.
