UI recipients not looking for jobs to be tracked down

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has started training a 250-member force to catch people who do not actively look for new jobs while they collect unemployment insurance, a senior Employment Department official said Wednesday.

Finance Minister Michael Wilson first announced the creation of the special group of investigators in November 1984 as part of a crackdown to reduce UIC expenditures. Wilson said at the time the program should save the government about $200 million annually. Although there are more than 400 investigation and control officers already involved in the prevention and detection of fraud and abuse of the system, the new force is being trained to specifically nab people who aren't doing their bit to find employment, said Joe Verbruggen, the department's director general of insurance policy.

"We're cranking up that whole aspect," said Verbruggen, adding that until now the problem has not been investigated to "any great extent."

He said unemployment insurance recipients who have been away on vacation, not shown up at job interviews arranged for them or who can't prove they have been trying to find work will lose their benefits.

Lorne Nystrom, New Democrat employment critic, says he is outraged by what he calls "Flora's force," naming the investigators after Employment and Immigration Minister Flora MacDonald.

He said the investigators will harass "ordinary folks," adding the unemployment insurance system already has sufficient checks and balances in it.

"It's almost like Big Brother is watching in case people take one step out of line.

"There's no special police force to stop the corporations and the rich and the powerful from abusing the tax system."

But MacDonald's chief of staff, Bill Musgrove, said the government is not trying to "force people into excessive job searches."

He said the investigations, to start by mid-July, will be carried out in metropolitan areas of the country where statistics show people have a chance of landing a job. Ottawa, Toronto, Montreal, Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Winnipeg, Quebec City and Hamilton will be key sites.

Regions of the country with unemployment rates of less than nine per cent will also be targets for the investigators, said Musgrove.

Nystrom said the money the government is using to fund the new force should be used to create jobs.

The 250 people in the force are not new employees. If they hadn't been hired for this job they would have been laid off or transferred to other departments because of government restraint, said Verbruggen.

Police lose prisoner in the woods

About 20 Quebec Police Force officers spent much of Wednesday in the forest near Glen Sutton looking for an escaped prisoner. They didn't find him. Story page 3.

Rocheleau: PQ will pay for attack

By Norman Delisle

QUEBEC (CP) — Gilles Rocheleau, Quebec's supply and services minister, reacted angrily Wednesday to renewed charges by opposition Parti Québécois members that he had lied to the provincial legislature.

"When you attack somebody's integrity you pay for it," Rocheleau snapped at PQ House Leader Guy Chevrette.

Rocheleau has maintained that the Montreal consulting firm Roger Pominville Ltd., hired to examine the way the government's computer system handles contracts, did not write speeches to be delivered in the legislature by the Liberals when they were in opposition.

But Chevrette, who has accused him of lying, said Tuesday the firm prepared speeches for Liberal legislature members in 1982 when they opposed the merger of Baie-Comeau with a neighboring community.

The firm charged Baie-Comeau $150,000 for its services including help given Liberal members of the legislature.

Rocheleau said Tuesday the Liberals did not use speeches prepared by Pominville in the legislature although they did use notes, documents and reports provided by the firm.

In reply to PQ questions Wednesday Rocheleau said Pominville had been hired from his political budget for $20,000 to analyse the way Quebec contracts for professional services are issued.

PUT IN COMPUTER

Under the preceding PQ government, all firms seeking such contracts were entered in a computerized central registry nicknamed Rosalie and Rocheleau said that for the purposes for which it had been designed Rosalie served the government well.

But he said the system had to be changed because, among other things, more than 400 pages of regulations governed its use and application and Rosalie, he said, must be made more "efficient and equitable."

Rocheleau promised to make the Pominville report public and said it would reveal "anomalies" in the way contracts were granted under the PQ which would show the computerized system had been unfair.

The minister mentioned a contract for professional services given former PQ cabinet minister Claude Charron by ex-premier René Lévesque before telling the PQ, "Then the ball will be back in your court."

Liberals open door to patronage

QUEBEC (CP) — The six-month-old Liberal government has opened the door to patronage in the public service, a union leader charged Wednesday.

Louis-André Cadieux, president of the Syndicat des professionnels du gouvernement du Québec, which represents government professionals, told a news conference that new rules governing the hiring of casual employees mean that "favoritism will be easy, then allowed."

Under the rules approved by the Treasury Board and scheduled to take effect next month, each department or government board or commission will keep a list of preferred candidates, and they will choose the person "best suited" to fill a position.

Under governments led by Premier Robert Bourassa in the early 1970s, Liberal members of the national assembly kept lists of their supporters and recommended them for public service jobs.

The former Parti Québécois government, defeated at the polls last Dec. 2 by Bourassa's Liberals, reformed the system. The responsibility for keeping the lists was turned over to Quebec manpower centres, and candidates were chosen by selection boards.

The Liberal government has called on those registered to re-apply at the department they wish to work for, and has ordered Quebec Manpower Centre lists destroyed.

Cadieux told reporters, "Scrapping objective rules and replacing them with a concept of 'the person best suited for the job' — without a selection board or any other evaluation method — will allow anyone to hire the person they want."

MDs: don't send specialists to remote areas

By Donald McKenzie

MONTREAL (CP) — A provincial government proposal to force new medical specialists to work in outlying regions infringes on human rights and will be fought, federations representing general practitioners, specialists and interns said Wednesday.

"We will certainly use legal recourse to fight this legislation because we think it's going against the liberties of Quebec citizens, and in this case, of Quebec doctors," said Dr. Paul Desjardins, president of the Federation of Medical Specialists of Quebec.

It adopted, the proposal — which was prepared for the cabinet and disclosed this week — would mean that the 270 interns entering residency training each year, beginning July 1, 1987, would be sent to outlying regions of Quebec for four years.

Areas such as the Gaspé and North Shore in northeastern Quebec have long suffered shortages of specialists, despite government attempts to lure them away from urban areas.

The proposal, said Desjardins, would mean no medical specialists in hospitals in Montreal, Quebec and Sherbrooke until 1991.

Those who do not complete the four years would face fines of up to $200,000.

In Ottawa, the president of the Canadian Medical Association, Dr. W.J. Vail, issued a statement denouncing the Quebec proposal as an example of unwarranted attempts by government to control doctors professionally and economically.

SEND MORE

The cabinet proposal also stipulates that an additional 50 new specialists would be sent to remote areas for just one year — 1986-87 — and not for several years, as the federations and the government had agreed last year.

Desjardins said that starting with the 1987-88 school year, all students beginning medical school would have to sign a statement recognizing that they may not be allowed to participate in the provincially-run medicare program.

"We feel they (the government) want to take total control of the medical profession from now on and forever."

Desjardins said "patient care would be shot" because "we're going to recruit a different type of person in medicine — some sort of civil servant who wants to work as a government employee."

He said he believes the public will be sympathetic to the doctors' cause.

"We feel the population does not want to be treated by physicians that have a bayonet in their back."

DID CONSULT

Clement Richer, president of the Federation of General Practitioners of Quebec, said the government consulted the federations until last November about the additional 50 specialist jobs in outlying areas, but made no reference to forcing all graduating interns to work in outlying regions.

The specialist and general practitioner organizations along with the Federation of Medical Residents and Interns of Quebec represent about 15,000 people.

They have asked Premier Robert Bourassa, Health Minister Thérèse Lavoie-Roux and Education Minister Claude Ryan for a meeting to discuss the situation.

Diplomat fired without explanation

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Brian Mulroney has fired Barney Danson, a former Liberal defence minister, as consul general in Boston.

Danson confirmed in an interview from Boston on Wednesday that External Affairs told him several months ago his posting had been cancelled, without giving a reason.

The posting, which pays between $73,000 and $85,000 a year, is made at the discretion of the prime minister. The job is normally for four years but Danson has only served two years.

Mulroney press secretary Michel Gratton did not give a reason for the firing but said it was a "friendly parting" of the ways. Gratton said the government had already extended Danson's term twice since the Conservatives won the 1984 general election.

But Danson insisted in a later interview that he "was fired because I had no intention of leaving."

"Certainly this is one of the shortest terms in the history of mankind," Danson said.

"To be extended in a two-year term is pretty good. They're giving people six-month terms now."

There is speculation that three prominent Tories are in line for the job: Jim Lee, former Prince Edward Island premier, John Buchanan, premier of Nova Scotia, and Jim McGrath, a federal MP from Newfoundland.

Buchanan could not be reached for comment but Lee said in an interview from his cottage in Stanhope, P.E.I. that: "I have no comment because I haven't been contacted."

"I'd have to find more out about it."

McGrath also refused to comment on whether he had been approached to take on the consul general's job, saying he won't get "involved in any speculative stories about my future."

O'Carroll claims policeman 'brutalized' him

By Gary Regenstreif

MONTREAL (CP) — A suburban businessman told Quebec Superior Court on Wednesday that Montreal police Const. Jacques Parent kneed him in the groin and choked him in a scuffle last year captured on videotape and broadcast internationally.

Brian O'Carroll, pointing to Parent, identified him as the officer who he said "brutalized" him in a convenience store, leaving him with limited movement of his right arm. The 55-year-old computer consultant said two officers Parent summoned entered the shop and they helped to wrestle him to the ground.

"I kept telling them, 'I give up,'" O'Carroll said. "I couldn't breathe. I thought I was going to die. I thought, what an incredibly stupid thing to do over."

O'Carroll, who was unemployed at the time of the incident, told the jury of six men and six women he entered the store in suburban St-Laurent on Jan. 5, 1985, to complain the officer had double-parked his patrol car while on unofficial business.

The clash was caught by the store's security camera on a videotape that was shown last January on TV in Canada, the United States and Britain. Members of the jury on Wednesday watched the tape, which runs for more than eight minutes.

Parent, 40, a 19-year veteran of the force, sat quietly in a navy blazer and tan pants next to his lawyer after being granted permission to remain out of the prisoners' box.

Parent has pleaded not guilty to charges of forcible confinement and assault causing bodily harm.

O'Carroll said he asked Parent in the store for his police badge number because he was angry that the police car was double parked while parking space was available nearby.

O'Carroll said Parent then "grabbed me, pushed me away from the cash," demanded his identification and tried unsuccessfully to remove his wallet from his pocket.

PM's 'honor lost' if no end to Japanese-Canadian battle: NDP

By Janet Steffenhagen

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Brian Mulroney was urged Wednesday to remember an issue that was once close to his heart and order his government to negotiate a settlement for Japanese-Canadian interned during the Second World War.

New Democrat MP Ernie Epp told Mulroney his "personal honor" will be lost if he doesn't end the growing battle over compensation by finding someone to hammer out an agreement with the National Association of Japanese-Canadians.

Speaking in the Commons, Epp accused Multiculturalism Minister Otto Jelinek of failing miserably when he refused to negotiate with the national association and turned the matter over to the federal cabinet for a resolution.

Mulroney, who once spoke loudly and passionately about the need for a fair settlement for the surviving victims of the internment camps, ignored Epp's appeal and remained seated while Jelinek defended his record.

The minister insisted he spent many months consulting all interested groups, including the national association, before submitting the proposals to cabinet. He says he has made no personal recommendation.

"I can assure all honorable members and Canadians that this government is going to keep its commitment and come forward with a fair and equitable and honorable resolution to the problem," he declared.

But Art Miki, president of the main Japanese-Canadian organization, says the process is as important as the solution and no compensation package will be acceptable if it is imposed rather than negotiated.

Mulroney has remained silent as the struggle continues for Jelinek and Miki, a Winnipeg high school principal who claims to speak for 45,000 Japanese-Canadians in the same way the Tories in Ottawa speak for Canada.

While in opposition, Mulroney argued strenuously for redress for Japanese-Canadians who were uprooted from their West Coast homes after the 1941 bombing of Pearl Harbor and sent to internment and labor camps across the country.

He confronted Pierre Trudeau on the matter on his final day in the Commons and challenged the retiring prime minister to "rise to the occasion" by apologizing for the unjust treatment.

Trudeau said his government had expressed regret for the loss of property and liberty but would not open the floodgates to other claims from groups and individuals who were wronged in the past.

"If there was a Conservative government, I can assure you we would be compensating Japanese-Canadians," Mulroney declared during the 1984 election.

Epp, the NDP multiculturalism critic, said Mulroney's honor now is on the line and he should authorize another MP to undertake full negotiations with the national association. Jelinek has said he does not intend to negotiate.

"My colleagues and I think that the acceptance of the redress package by the (national association) is the fundamental requirement if it's to be a proper redress," he told reporters later.

"In the 1940s, government acted arbitrarily. I don't think we could redress that now by arbitrary action. It has to be acceptable to the community."

Liberal MP Sergio Marchi, his party's multiculturalism critic, said Mulroney "gloated" about the issue when he was in opposition but is now dodging his responsibility.

"If the prime minister takes seriously the commitment he made to compensate then I think he has an obligation... to order the minister to negotiate or take the dossier from the minister (and give it to someone else)."

About 21,000 Japanese-Canadians, most of them born in Canada, lost property and were placed in internment camps during the 1940s. About 10,000 are still living.

The national association has asked the government to give $25,000 to each survivor and $50 million to the community to rebuild. The government was reported to be considering a $10-million fund earlier this year.

Jelinek has refused to comment on the size of the fund but says there will be an official acknowledgement of the wrongs and amendments to the War Measures Act, which was used to imprison the Japanese-Canadians.

Niles: U.S. tariffs should not harm industry or jobs

OTTAWA (CP) — The U.S. decision to impose a hefty tariff on some imported Canadian cedar products "should not constitute a mortal blow to the Canadian industry" or threaten many Canadian jobs, U.S. Ambassador Thomas Niles said Wednesday.

"We understand and regret that this action may have undesirable short-term consequences for some Canadian workers," Niles said in a letter to major Canadian newspaper editors that was also released here.

"We hope Canadians, in turn, will understand that the United States government has an obligation to help American workers and their families, who have been affected by the economic changes in this industry, adjust to new realities."

The ambassador's letter recited facts and trade figures which Niles suggested the Canadian media have neglected to mention.

"Press accounts of the action taken by the U.S. government last week... failed to provide a full discussion of the reasons for that action."

Niles said the process which led up to President Ronald Reagan's approval of the tariff last Thursday had been under way since September, and that Canadian and U.S. officials had discussed the case before.

Prime Minister Brian Mulroney fired off a letter to President Ronald Reagan expressing Canada's strong objections to the move after it was announced last week.

External Affairs Minister Joe Clark then made a call to U.S. State Secretary George Shultz expressing the same view, and Clark is to follow that with private talks with Shultz in Halifax Friday where NATO foreign ministers are meeting.

Canada now is attempting to seek compensation from the U.S. to make up the loss in exports of red cedar shakes and shingles, worth up to $250 million annually. Meetings between Canadian and U.S. officials are scheduled today in Washington to discuss possible compensation.

Clark had said originally that Canada wanted the decision reversed, since an estimated 4,000 jobs could be threatened by the move. And industry and union representatives from British Columbia, who were in Ottawa Wednesday to meet Mulroney and other cabinet ministers, said later that they are not interested in compensation, but rather in saving the industry and its jobs.

Jack Munro, head of the International Woodworkers Union, and Scott Clarke, president of Green River Log Sales, of Mission, B.C., told reporters after the meeting Wednesday that they want jobs saved. Both Munro and Clarke said they are pleased with the government's response so far, but they want the U.S. decision reversed.

The tariffs have been set at 35 per cent for the first 30 months, 20 per cent for the following two years and eight per cent for the final six months.

News-in-brief

12 arrested for Cup violence

MONTREAL (CP) — Acting on tips from citizens, Montreal police have made 12 arrests in raids following last weekend's fan violence triggered by Montreal Canadiens' Stanley Cup victory.

Det-Sgt. Kevin McGarr, who is heading the investigation into the looting of nearly 50 stores early Sunday, said the dozen people will appear in court Sept. 24 to face charges of theft and possession of stolen goods. Charges have not yet been officially laid, he said.

Drunken fans flooded out of downtown bars after the Canadiens clinched the series title Saturday and some overturned cars, lit a bonfire on downtown Ste-Catherine Street and looted stores. An estimated $2 million damage was caused and some of the vandalized merchants say they will sue the city because they received inadequate police protection.

Liberals ahead in gallup poll

MONTREAL (CP) — The Liberals continue to lead the Conservatives among decided federal voters, says a Gallup poll released today.

The poll shows the Liberals supported by 41 per cent of respondents, one percentage point higher than in last month's poll.

The poll was taken between May 1 and 3, early in the two-week Commons debate on conflict of interest that ended with the resignation of Sinclair Stevens as industry minister.

Steinberg's products seized

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 80,000 cans of Steinberg Inc.'s house brand cola, root beer, ginger ale, spruce beer, club soda, cream soda and orange drink have been seized under a court order granted to the designers of the cans' label.

The cans remain in Steinberg storage space in 11 company stores and a Steinberg warehouse but Quebec's third largest grocery chain cannot touch them until another court order is issued. They were ordered seized after Daniel and Ronny Waldston, owners of Central Art Services Inc., sued Steinberg, claiming the grocery store chain had asked them to design the label on its house-label drink cans and then had not paid for it.

Let auditor general report

OTTAWA (CP) — The auditor general should be allowed to report to Parliament whenever he has something noteworthy to say and not be restricted to just one report annually, the Commons public accounts committee says.

In a report to the government tabled in the House this week, the committee recommended that the law be changed to facilitate more timely reports from the country's chief financial watchdog.

Gov't protection on the way

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation aimed at protecting consumers by ensuring all insurance companies are on a strong financial footing will likely be unveiled before the end of next month, Junior Finance Minister Barbara McDougall said in the Commons Wednesday.

McDougall was responding to concerns expressed by Quebec Liberal MP Alfonso Gagliano, who suggested consumers need more protection to ensure that when they try to claim on their insurance they don't find their insurer has gone bankrupt.

Federal hiring freeze lifted

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal public service hiring freeze has been lifted, Treasury Board President Robert de Cotret said Wednesday.

The freeze, combined with a freeze on discretionary year-end spending, was imposed Feb. 6 as part of Ottawa's overall plan to reduce its annual deficit.

NFB edit Billy Bishop film

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate voted Wednesday to re-examine a three-year-old movie about First World War flying ace Billy Bishop with an eye to ordering the National Film Board to edit out "unproven allegations, charges and innuendoes against the integrity of Billy Bishop."

But at least one opponent of the move says it reeks of censorship and opens the door for the Senate to start examining all films by the board and the CBC.

Wanted man on the run again

OTTAWA (CP) — Master escape artist and once one of the most wanted criminals in Canada and the U.S., Paddy Mitchell is on the run again.

The Ottawa native who engineered a $750,000 gold heist at the international airport here in 1974 slipped out of an Arizona prison in broad daylight earlier this month with two other convicts to add another chapter to an outlaw career that has been grabbing headlines and frustrating police across North America for more than a decade.

Soviets let Nazi hunters in OTTAWA (CP) — The Soviet Union will meet the main demands of a federal commission that wants to travel abroad to gather information about suspected Nazi war criminals in Canada, an embassy spokesman said Wednesday.

Alexei Makarov, a consular official, said representatives of the Deschenes commission would be free to interview Soviet witnesses as they see fit, use independent interpreters and videotape all proceedings.

Vaccine prevents meningitis

TORONTO (CP) — A new vaccine now available in Canada protects against an influenza strain that is one of the most common causes of the "child-killer" bacterial meningitis.

The disease, the swelling of the tissues covering the brain and spinal cord, kills nearly 100 Canadians between ages two and five each year and also is the leading cause of acquired mental retardation in North America.

Boa constrictor must go!

FREDERICTON (CP) — Carol Haslett doesn't like snakes, especially plump, contented-looking boa constrictors like the one she's seen slithering along the sidewalks of this peaceful capital.

"Ugh," she says with a shiver when asked to recount her sightings of the reptile. "I've seen it three times with the fellow who apparently owns it and I'm very perturbed. I can't even watch movies with snakes in them without having nightmares."

A young man with a penchant for wandering through public places accompanied by a big boa has thrown downtown businessmen and city hall into a flap.

Haslett, the owner of a gift boutique, and other businessmen have complained loudly to newly elected mayor Brad Woodside about the man's appearance near their shops with his two-metre pet snake.

U.S. allowed nuclear testing

NEW YORK (AP) — The Soviet Union is prepared to allow U.S. nongovernmental scientists to staff stations in the Soviet Union to monitor underground nuclear tests, a published report says.

The New York Times says the arrangement, signed in Moscow on Wednesday, is contingent upon Washington's approval for Soviets to monitor tests in the United States.

Micronesia gets independence

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Despite Soviet objections, the United Nations Trusteeship Council voted 3-1 on Wednesday in favor of granting semi-independence to 2,000 South Pacific islands known as Micronesia. The new status is to come after 40 years of U.S. stewardship.

The issue now goes to the 15-member UN Security Council, where the Soviet Union could veto granting semi-independence to the four Micronesia states — the Northern Marianas, the Marshall Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia and Palau.

Four hours in space

MOSCOW (AP) — The world's two most experienced spacemen spent almost four hours outside their Salyut-7 orbiting station Wednesday to conduct construction experiments, the official news agency Tass said.

Cosmonauts Leonid Kizim and Vladimir Solovet spent three hours and 50 minutes building a platform and putting together a 15-metre-tall structure on top of it.

Badly nuclear infected are dead

MOSCOW (AP) — A radiologist at a Moscow hospital that is treating about 120 radiation sickness patients told a government news agency that those most seriously injured in the Chernobyl nuclear accident have already died.

The Novosti news agency quoted Dr. Angelina Guskova, chief radiologist at Hospital No. 6 in Moscow, Wednesday as saying patients "whose entire organisms and vast skin areas were affected, are no more."

Ireland should quit Britain

LONDON (Reuter) — Only 26 per cent of mainland Britons want Northern Ireland to stay in the United Kingdom, an opinion poll said Thursday.

The Gallup survey for British Broadcasting Corp. television said 24 per cent of those interviewed wanted the British-ruled province to join the Irish Republic and 35 per cent wanted it to be independent.

Killer disease not known

GAUHATI, India (AFP) — A World Health Organization team is trying to identify a malaria-like disease which has killed about 300 people, officials said Thursday.

The victims, most between seven and 14, suffer fever, gastro-enteritis, diarrhea and in some cases jaundice, the public health department said.

Aquino and rebels hold talks

MANILA (AP) — The Communist underground National Democratic Front has designated an emissary to prepare for cease-fire talks between the government of the Philippines and rebel leaders, state-run television reported Wednesday.

The front, an umbrella organization for the insurgent New People's Army and other dissident groups, also praised President Corazon Aquino's new order that the military should disarm regional political warlords, said the television report.

Threat to quit Commonwealth

SYDNEY, Australia (AFP) — Malaysian Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad has warned his country might withdraw from the Commonwealth over Britain's refusal to support economic sanctions against South Africa. The Australian Broadcasting Corporation reported today.

The network said Mahathir joined growing criticism of Britain following recent attacks by South Africa on neighbouring black states.

In London last weekend, Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda told The Observer newspaper his country is seriously considering the same move for the same reason.

Land reformers oust minister

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazil's minister of agrarian development and reform, Nelson Ribeiro, resigned Wednesday, and an aide said he was forced out by opponents of a plan to redistribute land among peasants.

Ribeiro said he quit to allow President Jose Sarney "room to put his own tone and style on the land reform process."

However, a close aide said the minister had been thwarted by land reform opponents within the government.

U.S. employees on strike

SEOUL (Reuter) — Nearly half the 23,000 South Korean civilians working for U.S. forces in their country struck Thursday for higher pay, a U.S. military spokesman said.

Gov't candidate accepts loss

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — The government party presidential candidate defeated in the May 16 Dominican Republic general election has accepted his loss and will not demand the recount his opponent agreed to earlier.

The Central Elections Board began a routine review of contested votes, but there will be no complete recount.

Jacobo Majluta had formed the eventual winner, Joaquin Balaguer of the Social Christian Reform party, to agree last week to a recount.

Union wants inquiry into Saturday's Stanley Cup riot

By Linda Drouin

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal police officers' union wants the Quebec Police Commission to hold a public inquiry to find out why it took two hours to dispatch policemen to downtown riots provoked by Saturday's Stanley Cup win by Montreal Canadiens.

After a day-long meeting, the Montreal Policemen's Brotherhood issued a statement accusing the force's leaders of "lacking planning, strategy and manpower" early Sunday morning when drunken fans looted stores, overturned cars and set bonfires.

"It's the role of the force to foresee and plan for such events," said spokesman Andre Sasseville in an interview.

Police operations director Alain St-Germain said Monday the police had no way of foreseeing the fans reaction and blamed rock and bottle throwing fans for turning back police who tried to get through the mob.

The union also blamed budget restraints for the planning inadequacies.

"The budget policies of the force played an important role regarding the number of officers that should have been standing by last Saturday," Sasseville said.

"To save a few thousand dollars in overtime, more than $1 million in damages were caused."

Sasseville said the department's riot squad was summoned to a meeting at police headquarters shortly after the downtown erupted after midnight Sunday.

The meeting lasted until 2 a.m. and the squad was kept on standby until 3 a.m. when it was finally dispatched to the Ste-Catherine and Crescent street bar strip where the worst damage was done.

"Why weren't they used in a better way?" he said. "They had the example of the incidents the night the Canadiens won the series against the (New York) Rangers, when there was only a little damage done. They should have seen what would happen."

Yvon Lamarre, the chairman of the city's executive committee, has asked the police force for a report on the weekend rioting.

Tourism association will try to sell the Eastern Townships to New Englanders

By Melanie Gruer

COMPTON — The Association touristique de l'Estrie has adopted two new plans which it says, will improve the tourism industry in the Eastern Townships.

The first is a land management plan which will help the tourism association discover which areas are best for specific activities. The director general of the association used the example of Owl's Head as being good for skiing, but Megantic as being suitable for another type of tourist attraction.

According to Réjean Beaudoin, the director general, the plan will strengthen the tourism industry in the area.

"We will improve greatly the orientation of tourism development in the Townships by determining which sector could have tourism in regards to another," says Beaudoin. "We will be able to make the planning on a complimentary vocation basis and offer a diversified product to the clientele."

The association received $130,000 federal and provincial tourism department grants which will help get the plan underway. The plan, says Beaudoin, is "good for tourist evolution."

The second plan is a three-year activity program. The association will hold a public meeting to discover exactly what is wanted and what the association can do about it. Over the next three years, says Beaudoin, the group will be able to better the tourism industry in the Townships.

The association will run four full-page advertisements in the Boston Globe to attract New Englanders to stop in the Townships on their way to Quebec City or Montreal. Many New Englanders, says Beaudoin, stop at the Rock Island-Beebe border on their way elsewhere and the association hopes the advertising will make the Americans stop in the Townships for a visit, and not just pass through the area.

Says Beaudoin, "During the last five years tourism has raised very much here. There are more tourists than ever according to government statistics."

The statistics show that in 1982, 1.3 million tourists visited the Eastern Townships region and two years later, 1.6 million tourists visited the area. The figures show a 23 per cent increase and says Beaudoin, 90 per cent of those tourists are from Montreal. Six per cent come from the Quebec City area and the other four per cent are from other areas including Ontario and the United States.

What the increase does show, says Beaudoin, is "better advertising and an improvement of the product". It also indicates that the people who do visit the area are satisfied he says.

Beaudoin also says the Townships has more tourists than any other area in Quebec. He attributes this to better advertising and improvements in the tourism product such as renovations at local ski centres and inns.

According to the people working in the tourism industry here says

Beaudoin, last year there were more people than ever. This year, Beaudoin says the association hopes to attract more tourists than ever and the Globe advertisements will help because "if they know more about our area, there's a greater chance they will stop here."

The two new plans were adopted last night at the association's annual general meeting at Domaine St. Laurent in Compton. The association has 142 members — local people in the tourism business, several municipal councils, and non-lucrative businesses such as tourism committees.

Police manhunt fails to turn up escaped prisoner near Glen Sutton

A police helicopter spoiled fishing in the Missisquoi River Wednesday afternoon as police searched for an escaped prisoner.

Police searchers came up empty-handed in their search for an escapee near Glen Sutton.

By Charles Bury

GLENSUTTON — A massive police search Wednesday failed to turn up an escaped prisoner spotted in deep forest near the U.S. border here.

About 20 members of the Quebec Police emergency squad from Montreal combed the woods until dark following the man's mid-afternoon escape. A QPF helicopter circled overhead directing the hunt.

The man sought is René Boudreau, 42, who had been held at Montreal's Parthénaïs Street jail. During interrogations, Boudreau had told QPF detectives of his involvement in a serious crime and led the detectives to the alleged scene near the Missisquoi River early Wednesday afternoon. A QPF spokesman later said that on the way to the "criminal evidence" hidden in the woods, he somehow managed to get away from his two-man escort and flee deeper into the forest.

RADIO CALL

A radio call to QPF headquarters (in the same building as the jail) was all it took to dispatch about 20 emergency squad officers in a dozen patrol cars and a service truck towards the scene.

Sirens blaring and lights flashing, the police convoy startled bystanders when it arrived in Sutton at about 5:30 p.m., tanked up at Guilbeault's Texaco and picked up a snack for the road. The police left town as quickly as they had come, heading south, then southeast along the Scenic Highway, now followed by a couple of reporters.

At the intersection of Scenic and Route 105A, the convoy skidded to a halt on the dusty gravel road and the police changed from their formal uniforms into olive-drab coveralls. Applying mosquito repellent and rubber boots, they then headed into the woods after consulting topographical maps.

'WOULD BE NICE'

One of the Montreal-based policemen observed wryly that his summer cottage was only a few hundred feet away on the south bank of the river. "It would be nice to take the boys over for a few beers later, but I don't think the sergeant would appreciate it," he said.

While the yellow QPF helicopter circled low overhead, the police scoured the swampy woods and brush south of 105A for more than an hour. They then moved back up Scenic a couple of kilometres and returned to the woods until dark — just before 8:30 p.m.

They were hunting for an escaped criminal, but all the searchers found were a few big-eyed white-tail deer. By 9 p.m. they were on their way back to Montreal.

Denis St-François, a resident of "downtown Abercorn", was fishing near the bridge adjacent to the Route 105A border crossing when the police arrived. "I gave up," he said. "The helicopter was making so much noise going round and round that the fish wouldn't bite."

SKINNY-DIPPER SURPRISED

St-François said a friend of his had a surprise encounter with the police searchers. "He was skinny dipping in the river and when he came out of the woods with nothing on, he met them face to face. I guess it was quite a surprise!"

A policeman went to get drinking water at a nearby dairy farm after he was told by a reporter that there was no health danger.

The Glen was abuzz with rumors about the "criminal evidence". Notions ranged from television sets stolen in St-Hyacinthe to human bodies killed in Highwater. None has yet been substantiated.

René Boudreau is 5 feet, 6 inches tall and weighs about 150 pounds. With thinning brown hair, he was last seen wearing blue jeans and a dark T-shirt.

The escapee is slightly known in the region because he has dated a girl from Highwater.

Watch where you swim

No, this isn't the return of 'Jaws'... it's a piece of surfaced in the Magog River. It won't bite, but it round concrete with a hole in the middle which has might smart a little if you swim into it.

Woman dies after Dunant apartment fire

SHERBROOKE — Four days after she was badly burned by a fire in her home, an 81-year old woman died Wednesday from her injuries.

Dead is Adélie Morin, of 1327 Dunant St. in Sherbrooke. Last Friday, Morin was resting on a couch in her apartment when it caught fire from an electric heater placed too close to it.

Morin's clothes caught fire and she received serious burns. An ambulance driver on his way to work stopped to help neighbors give the victim first aid before she was taken to St-Vincent de Paul hospital.

Still in the hospital's intensive-care unit, Morin died early Thursday.

The death was Sherbrooke's fourth fire-caused fatality in 1986. A mother and child died in a London Street apartment fire early in March. Late the same month another fire claimed the life of a Laurier Street resident.

Man misses death in Queen Street crash

LENNOXVILLE — A 75-year-old man had a narrow escape from death Wednesday morning when the car he was driving went off the road and struck a large truck parked in the yard of a Queen Street farm-equipment dealer.

Adélar Jacques, of Laroque Street in Sherbrooke, was taken to hospital with minor injuries but police say he missed sudden death by inches.

Jacques was heading north towards Sherbrooke from Lennoxville when the car he was driving went out of control for no apparent reason. The car careened across the three-lane roadway, bounced off one tractor, then another, and struck a converted armed-forces 2½-ton six-wheel drive truck parked in the sales yard of B. Morin Equipment, a Ford tractor dealership at 301 Queen. The car ended up back on the road and traffic was blocked for more than an hour.

Although the truck was only scratched, the Honda Morin had borrowed from his son was a total wreck. His head missed the big truck's front bumper by only a few inches.

The Sherbrooke fire department rescue squad was called to the scene and used hydraulic tools to open the small car like a can of beans, cutting away the roof and door posts.

Bring out your junk

Spring cleaning time is upon us and the city of Sherbrooke will be helping its residents next week. On June 2, 3, and 4 the city will collect junk and recyclable materials such as paper, glass and metal.

Recyclable material must be sorted and separated from the junk. All disposables must be at the curb the night before pick-up in your area. Monday's collection is in the east of the city, Tuesday's is in the west, and Wednesday's is in the north.

A Sherbrooke man had a narrow escape Wednesday when the car he was driving smashed into a converted army truck (inset).

Arguments stall Massey-Vanier hash trial

COWANSVILLE (JM) — Judge André Fauteux continued the trial of a suspected drug pusher plying his trade at Massey Vanier High School to June 12 to study certain objections raised by defence lawyer François Bourassa.

Five male juveniles and one female juvenile testified they had bought nickel-and-dime amounts of hashish from the accused in the sector of Massey Vanier Regional High School operated by the Davignon Regional School Board. In all they testified total sales during September and October 1985 might have a value of $60.

No juvenile or any person who could be linked to them may be identified according to the Youth Protection Act.

A member of the Davignon staff involved in the school's re-integration program for students who would otherwise be forced to leave their studies testified five individuals were caught smoking hashish while skipping a class.

He said three of the individuals were part of his project, including a foster child. The trio were given three days to come up with the name of the pusher or they would be expelled. "They didn't realize it was only a threat," the man said.

The foster child took it upon himself to tape-record a telephone conversation with the accused. The juvenile told the court the sole purpose of the recording was an attempt to re-establish his credibility with his foster father.

Judge Fauteux ruled at that point to allow production of a tape cassette as evidence since the juvenile had not acted as an extension of a person in authority.

Jocelyne Duval, secretary to assistant principal Paul Parenteau at Massey-Vanier, testified the accused was in her office awaiting a meeting with Parenteau when she suddenly saw him bring something from his pocket and ingest rapidly. In reply to a question from Bourassa, she testified she could not say what he had ingested.

Crown attorney Henry Keyserlingk then raised the point of the legality of the recording as the accused had not been informed the conversation was being taped. Bourassa, Keyserlingk and the judge retired to chambers and following a lengthy discussion, Fauteux said that very serious points of law had been raised and he would prefer reserving his decision until he had the time to study the jurisprudence produced by the defence when he continued the trial for the form.

Roxton Pond hearing delayed

GRANBY (JM) — Gaétan Bernier, 27, of Roxton Pond, appeared briefly in sessions court Wednesday when defence lawyer Jean Couture requested that witnesses be assigned for the preliminary hearing which was continued to June 25.

Bernier was arraigned in Granby on May 23 when he was charged with second degree murder in the death of his mother Louise Hugo.

The body of the 47-year-old Hugo was found by the Granby QPF in ner home on Paré Street in Roxton Pond on May 21. Bernier had called the Montreal Urban Community Police and told them of the crime. Results of the autopsy report were made public yesterday. It revealed Hugo died as a result of being hit on the back of the skull eight times with a blunt instrument between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. May 16. Sherbrooke QPF criminal investigation bureau officers Tom McConnell and Noel Bolduc recovered a blood-stained hammer at the scene of the crime.

They can't work in a vacuum

American public radio reported this morning that the U.S. Department of Energy, currently looking for a home for about 70,000 tonnes of highly radioactive nuclear waste, has decided against a site on the eastern seaboard.

And on Wednesday, a Minnesota congressman said the DOE is about to recommend stopping work on a second underground waste repository which it also wanted to build.

The DOE, you will remember, originally had a long list of places it was considering to use as a waste dump. One of those was in Vermont.

'Was' is the key word when it comes to Vermont. Confronted with considerable public opposition, including an outcry from those darn people who live on the other side of the border in the Eastern Townships, the DOE was forced to back off.

Now the same thing is happening in the other states the DOE is considering. It seems nothing can fill those quaint New England town halls and churches quite as quickly as the chance that a nuclear dump will come to the neighborhood.

Yet citizen unrest, as folks around here have learned, is key to winning the struggle against a bureaucracy which views America as just so many geological formations first and considers the people living above them second.

The stage seems to be set now for a shift in the policy of the DOE, from looking for a site which is technically sound but represents a political minefield, to one which is less sound but stands a better chance of being accepted on the hustings.

The choice is there and it is a very difficult one indeed. Scientists are trained to do their work as close to perfection as possible. In this case, they want to create a safe place to keep man's radioactive scrap, a material whose potency has been misunderstood and underestimated from the first day it was created.

However, as they have discovered, with more and more people understanding and fearing the consequences of having the stuff around, it is becoming increasingly difficult to convince them it won't hurt.

Inadvertently, scientists are being forced to learn an important lesson in social responsibility, or the idea that they cannot work in a vacuum, oblivious to the consequences of what they are cooking up.

Ideally, that process would have originated way back when the first nuclear reactors were built and started producing waste that no one knew what to do with (we would not be in this mess if they had).

But faced with the possibility of them not having learned that lesson in the first place, we'll take what we can get.

A paroxysm of hilarity

One of the delights of this job is that you get to review the odd book.

And of all the odd books to swim this way recently, Breeding as a Sport holds its own with the best of them.

(To get the formalities out of the way, it is 96 pages of wide-format paper; it is published by Potlatch Publications, and may be yours for a niggardly $4.95.)

BaaS was put together by former teacher Robert Nielsen, much of it taken from test papers and essays which crossed his desk. He admits, however, that no one teacher could have come up against such a rich mine of howlers out of his own experience alone, so he has larded in submissions from friends and colleagues.

The illustrations, or doodles as they are described, are by the well-known Michael Eddenden.

Not to spoil it for you, but rather to whet the appetite, let's open the opus at random and see what gladdens the eye:

"Sesame is a seed useful for opening caves," is one that leaps out.

There is something here for everyone.

History is your subject, you say? Then consider "I have nothing to offer but blood, tail, tears and sweat."

Geography? "Holland is a low, lying country."

Science, perhaps? "A molecule is a little iddy biddy piece of a thing while an atom is a teensy weensy piece."

Definitions abound.

"Puberty — the time in a woman's life between childhood and adultery."

Now, then, students — who was Vasco de Gama?

"Vasco de Gama was a Portuguese discoverer. He discovered Gama rays."

This kid probably went on to become an economist — "Chile is such a prosperous country that her exports are exceeded only by her imports."

Question: Give the characteristics of a good newspaper.

Answer: Articals are easily found and correctly wrote.

Of course.

In the "well, you asked," category we find:

Question: Name an animal peculiar to the Australian continent.

Answer: It would be peculiar to see the polar bear there.

Nielsen, in his preamble, notes that such howlers may strike at any time.

"You might even encounter one at the outset. I once had a student spell his first name incorrectly on the cover of his examination paper.

"Or it might not occur until very late in the evening — say about dawn — when you suddenly find yourself rolling on the linoleum in a paroxysm of hilarity. And just moments before you had been having fond thoughts about that enormous bottle of sleeping pills in the bathroom cabinet."

This whole book is a paroxysm of hilarity.

A military solution still evades Sri Lanka

"I promise to all the freedom-loving, peaceful people of Sri Lanka that we shall, this year, overcome, destroy and eradicate terrorism in Sri Lanka in all its forms," declared President Junius Jayewardene earlier this year. "I shall have a military solution to what I believe is a military problem."

Jayewardene is old enough to know better. He's 80 this year, and he has lived with the problem of Tamil separatism for several decades. His armed forces have grown dramatically in size since open guerilla war broke out in the Tamil north of the island two years ago, but a military solution is nowhere in sight.

Even Jayewardene himself admits that the government has lost control of the most densely populated Tamil area. "In the Jaffna peninsula, though we have the police and the army in the camps, the terrorists control it completely. It is our administration, the civil servants are paid by us, the university is run by me as Minister of Higher Education, but law and order is preserved — or the lack of it — by the terrorists."

"The boys", as the youthful Tamil fighters are universally known, now freely patrol the towns and fields of the Jaffna peninsula, greeting the Sri Lankan army with a hail of fire whenever it tries to emerge from its besieged camps. In March, they began to set up the rudiments of a local administration, imposing taxes and dividing the revenue between them. They even direct traffic.

The Sri Lankan army, in response, has declared free-fire zones for 1,000 metres around all its 60 camps in the Tamil-populated northern and eastern provinces, where troops are allowed to use mortars in reply to any attack. Since most of the camps are in urban areas, an estimated 350,000 civilians live within these zones.

To reach the areas where its troops dare not go, the government in Colombo has increasingly resorted to raids by fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships. But it is still hard to see how it will win a military victory without committing great slaughter.

"How to retake Jaffna is a problem," Jayewardene admits. "It means the killing of innocent people."

The innocent people would all be Tamils — and though they form a minority of only 15 per cent among Sri Lanka's 15 million people, there are another 50 million Tamils just across the Palk Strait in southern India. If Sri Lankan troops commit a great slaughter of Tamils in Jaffna, it could trigger an Indian invasion.

Exiled Sri Lankan Tamils operate quite openly in Madras, the big Tamil city of southern India, training guerillas, buying arms and shipping them across the Palk Strait in fast boats. Their leaders are already demanding "a humanitarian military intervention by India", and Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi could be forced to comply if the killing in Sri Lanka escalates much further.

That sort of thing has happened before. In 1971 India intervened in East Pakistan to stop Pakistani troops massacring Bengali insurgents, and created the independent nation of Bangladesh. New Delhi is not eager to repeat the performance and carve an independent state of 'Tamil Eelam' out of Sri Lanka, but Gandhi might find it impossible to resist popular demands for intervention if Jayewardene really tries for a military victory.

However, Jayewardene is trapped, for the Sinhalese majority is unwilling to countenance any compromise that gives Tamils special privileges, let alone a separate state. Though they greatly outnumber the local Tamils, the Sinhalese are always conscious of the vast bulk of India — 'Tamil India', as far as they are concerned — looming over them.

In effect, the Sinhalese behave like a threatened minority themselves, which makes them a very intolerant majority within Sri Lanka. It was Sinhalese massacres of the Tamil minority in Colombo in 1983 that finally drove the Tamil north beyond demands for local autonomy to open revolt.

Last June, the Indian government persuaded both sides to accept a ceasefire, and the Sri Lankan government and all the main Tamil guerilla organisations met in Bhutan to discuss a peaceful settlement. But the talks were finally broken off in November, and the actual fighting resumed much earlier.

The Sinhalese are still determined to preserve a unitary state, and the Tamils are now convinced that only a separate national state will protect their interests — and indeed, their lives. If the Tamils should win, however, 'Eelam' might be a quite chaotic and nasty state, for 'the boys' would effectively run it, and they can agree on very little except their commitment to various brands of Marxism.

The rivalry between the various guerilla groups — the Tamil Eelam Liberation Organisation, the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, the eelam Revolutionary Organisation of Tamils, the Eelam People's Revolutionary Liberation Front, and the curiously named Reddish Force of Tamil Eelam (maybe it will turn really red when it grows up) — is already chronic, and frequently lethal. But there is a potential control factor.

The Tamil guerillas can probably sustain their insurgency indefinitely, but the only way they can win is if India intervenes. If it did, then 'Eelam' would gain independence — but it would also be as dependent on New Delhi's good-will as Bangladesh was in the early days. And India does not want Marxist revolutionaries running the show in any of its neighbours.

Companies are pulling out of South Africa

TORONTO (CP) — Five of the 22 Canadian corporations known to have been operating in South Africa have pulled out of the country in the past 10 months, says the government official appointed to oversee Canadian companies in South Africa.

Those leaving include such industrial giants as Noranda Inc., Alcan Aluminium Ltd. and Reed Stenhouse Companies Ltd., a general insurance company, said Albert Hart, a former diplomat.

Hart was appointed last year by External Affairs Minister Joe Clark to oversee Canadian companies' compliance with the government's code of conduct for doing business in South Africa.

The sale of their interests in South Africa has reduced substantially the total value of Canadian investment there, which is still estimated at more than $100 million.

The number of Canadian companies withdrawing from South Africa is in line with the number of U.S. companies pulling out.

Last week, the Washington-based Investor Responsibility Research

Centre said 48 U.S. companies have left or plan to leave the U.S. this year.

Most of those departing, however, say it is poor economic conditions rather than political or public pressure that has driven them out.

The decision to leave was made for purely economic reasons, said Bernard Ness, president of Canada Wire and Cable.

The wholly owned subsidiary of Noranda sold its 35 per cent interest in a South African magnet wire producer in October.

"Everybody and his uncle was always calling us up — the churches and everything — asking why we were investing in South Africa," he said. "But I make my decisions for business reasons, period."

TOOK NOSE DIVE

Faced with a barrage of economic sanctions and political pressure from several countries — including Canada — that have attempted to persuade the Pretoria regime to change its racist apartheid policies, the South African economy has taken a nose dive in the past two years.

He indicated Canada Wire and Cable would go back if the South African economy turned around.

The economy was the first consideration in Alcan Aluminium's decision to sell its 24 per cent interest in a South African aluminum producer last month, company spokesman Fernand Leclerc said.

But he noted that the political situation contributed directly to the economic problems. While Alcan got about $11 million for its holdings, that is probably less than it would have received under different political conditions, Leclerc said.

While the weakened South African economy has now driven away several Canadian investors, at least 17 are known to remain. Moore Corp. Ltd. of Toronto, the world's largest manufacturer of business forms, will continue to employ about 500 people at its wholly owned South African subsidiary, company president Judson Sinclair said.

Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. insists it plans to stay too. While the economy has hurt Ford's operations considerably, a merger with a South African concern last year is expected to make it profitable again, company spokesman William Broderick said from Ford's head office in Dearborn, Mich. The company employs 4,600 people in South Africa.

Nuclear technology is a question of faith

OTTAWA (CP) — In the end, nuclear power is most probably a question of faith, not technology.

Like debates about the Virgin Birth, Creation or the existence of God, you either believe in the engineers — the new priests of our age — or you do not.

Arguments about the safety of nuclear power are beyond the ability of most of us to competently understand, let alone challenge. That leaves the decision to either accept the word of the priests or deny it.

There are some physicists and engineers who do not accept the assurances of their colleagues who support nuclear power, but for the general public, it comes back to faith.

Which engineer do you believe?

Is it possible to have an accident involving the simultaneous loss of the various systems which keep the reactor from boiling over and melting down?

Will the zirconium alloy surrounding the uranium dioxide fuel react with oxygen and produce an explosion? And will that explosion rip through the containment structure? And if it does, how much and what kind of radioactive debris will be released into the environment?

WORST YET
Before Three Mile Island and Cher-

CP News Analysis

noyl, most people believed the engineers when they said the unique design of the Candu reactor — and its series of backup safety systems, and backups to the backups — would protect us from a catastrophe like Chernobyl, the worst accident in the history of nuclear power, and an event that may eventually trigger the reformation of the religion of nuclear technology.

J. T. Rogers, a professor at Carleton University, wrote a study in 1984 for the Atomic Energy Control Board, the federal agency which regulates nuclear power, about the "thermal and hydraulic behavior of Candu cores under severe accident conditions."

The study assumes a certain sequence of events in which things do not work the way they were intended.

Using computer models, Rogers then tries to figure out whether the core would melt and, if it melted, whether the accident would lead to a breach of the various structures which surround and contain the reactor.

He concludes that even a serious accident in a Candu reactor, in which fuel melts at temperatures as high as 2,700 degrees Celsius, would not result in a disaster like the one which the world witnessed at Chernobyl.

But the way Rogers reached that conclusion is virtually incomprehensible. Only another engineer or physicist would be able to challenge his conclusions.

At one point, Rogers talks about the thermal behavior of a molten pool of pressure tubes and reactor fuel during his hypothetical accident:

"For non-boiling conditions, the correlation of Kulaeki and Goldstein was used to predict internal heat transfer coefficients for the top surface, and the results of Mayinger et al., and of Gabor, et al. were combined to predict the internal heat transfer coefficient for the bottom surface."

Even if you believe Rogers, do you believe Kulaeki and Goldstein and Mayinger and Gabor?

Norm Rubin is a researcher at Energy Probe in Toronto and a stern critic of nuclear power. He says the assurances of engineers are just mumbo-jumbo.

For him, the question is not the risk of a nuclear accident, but the consequence of such an accident, especially an accident in a place like Pickering where Ontario Hydro has eight reactors humming away on the outskirts of metropolitan Toronto.

LOW RISKS

Zig Domartski is the head of reactor regulation for the control board. He admits there are risks, but says they are very low because the engineers have designed things to minimize them.

There are risks in everything, he and other nuclear advocates say.

But for many of the risks that we face, like crossing a busy street, someone without years of technical training can assess the facts and make a decision, knowing pretty well they haven't missed something important.

If Norm Rubin is right, then we are all in trouble because, if and when Pickering goes, it might well take a large part of Toronto with it.

If Zig Domartski is right, the Candu reactor is safe and may be safer than other reactor designs — and the world will eventually beat a path to our door. In the meantime, we will have a relatively inexpensive source of energy power to all live better electrically.

Like any faith, it is tested best by doubts.

Imports robbed Canadian steel mills of $470 million in revenue

By Gord McIntosh

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — How to decrease the amount of foreign steel entering Canada and keep up the flow of Canadian steel entering the United States. This was the sticky dilemma facing 130 delegates at the Canadian Steel Trade Conference Monday.

On the one hand, research presented to this joint caucus of steel industry management and labor concluded that imports of dumped and subsidized steel robbed Canadian mills of 1.3 million tonnes of production, 4,200 jobs and $470 million in revenue.

On the other hand, the American steel industry has been devastated by foreign competition to such an extent that it's moot whether it will survive.

So far Canada has been exempt from quotas placed on U.S. steel imports. But speaker after speaker Monday, with last week's U.S. trade action against Canadian cedar shingles fresh on their minds, wondered how long it would be before a frustrated American steel industry will look north with suspicion.

"There's a myth down there that our industries are heavily subsidized and the good old boys there don't do any subsidizing," said Bill Kempling, a Conservative member of Parliament from Burlington, Ont., and chairman of the parliamentary steel caucus, an all-party coalition of MPs representing steel industry ridings.

As an illustration of the old adage that adversity brings people together — and of how bad things are — Canadian steel companies of all shapes and sizes have sent executives for three days of brainstorming with officers of the United Steelworkers of America in this industrial city, where thousands of unemployed workers from Algoma Steel Corp. are clogging the food banks.

The joint conference of management and labor has become the major steel industry lobby since its first meeting last year, also in Sault Ste. Marie.

Steel imports, which the Canadian industry says have captured 20 per cent of the domestic market, and continued access to the United States got equal billing at the conference plenary session Monday.

John Allan, chairman of Stelco says that unfairly priced imports are flooding the North American market and making life difficult for our steel mills to survive in a dwindling market.

and continued access to the United States got equal billing at the conference plenary session Monday.

FLOOD MARKET

John Allan, chairman of Stelco Inc., said that while it may be easy to conclude the American steel industry is in its current dilapidated state because it didn't remain competitive, the real answer is the unfairly priced imports flooding North America from the world's oversupply of steel mills fighting for a dwindling market.

Canada's steel industry could find itself in the same position if fair trading safeguards are not stepped up, he said.

Committee papers put before the delegates advocate "education" for the Americans and some old-fashioned protectionist hardball for competitors such as Brazil, Japan and South Korea. The material says half Canada's steel imports may be unfairly subsidized or dumped at artificially low prices.

Roger Phillips, president of Regina-based Ipsco, said American steel quotas have forced the offshore competition to look to Canada, often as a backdoor for entry to the United States, where industry executives have been complaining for months that steel is entering Canada in a semi-finished state for final processing and then shipped south as Canadian exports. The practice has been dubbed "steel laundering."

Leo Gerard, director of District 6 of the Steelworkers, said Canada should scrap its general preferential tariff scheme in which developing nations such as South Korea are given tariff preference because the practice only served to encourage the installation of additional world steel capacity and eliminate Canadian jobs.

"It is a bit difficult to explain to an unemployed Canadian steelworker that they are part of Canada's foreign aid program," said a report from a committee chaired by Phillips.

At the conference's opening session Sunday night, International Trade Minister James Kelleher announced that the Canadian Import Tribunal has been ordered to conduct an inquiry into all foreign steel imports. Among other things, it will be looking for evidence of steel laundering. On Monday, Canada Customs officials began carrying out detailed inspections of steel entering the country.

Census helps monitor farmers' economic stress

EDMONTON (CP) — Hard-pressed Canadian farmers will be asked to give a complete picture of their business expenses when filling out the census of agriculture June 3.

"In the 1981 census we asked for selected expense figures in 13 questions," agriculture census manager Mel Jones said in an interview from Ottawa on Wednesday.

Count yourself in!

"Now we are up to about 20 questions, because of the economic stress faced by farmers," he said. "It was indicated there was a big area where we needed more information."

The census of agriculture is apart from the national census for all Canadians, which also will be conducted June 3.

Farmers will report total farm receipts as they have in previous five-year census forms. But this time those figures will be complemented by full expenses incurred in operating farms.

The new census asks the same questions about rent, wages, electricity, chemical and other input costs, which have increased dramatically in recent years while the price farmers get for their produce has generally declined drastically.

This year's census goes further to address the concerns of farmers who have felt the government was not receiving a true picture of the farm economy.

Additional questions this year will ask for details about interest payments, veterinary service costs, packaging and binding expenses, fuel for heating and crop-drying and a category headed "all other farm business operating expenses."

Statistics Canada is to release the results of the census — which will take about 45 minutes for each of Canada's estimated 300,000 farmers to complete — in about a year.

Nurses worth listening to at bargaining table

When you negotiate a collective agreement, you must always state reasons for your requests for contract changes.

Sometimes these reasons take the form of pointing out that the money is there but it is being mismanaged.

Sometimes, you have to make the management team understand exactly what you do for a living. And other times you must make the opposite team realize that you are "WORTH IT."

The following is a personal list of why I think nurses are worth listening to at the bargaining table. It is also why I believe that we nurses are not where the government's budget should try to re-coup the dollars.

- Nurses are worth it... because
- a nurse is a caring individual
- a nurse is a liaison to all department for the patients
- a nurse is knowledgeable in all technical and theoretical aspects of her work
- a nurse is a professional in a multi-disciplinary team
- a nurse is legally responsible for all of her actions
- a nurse must do delegated medical acts
- a nurse must be prepared for any emergency

VCR sales likely to drop

MONTREAL (CP) — The number of video cassette recorders sold in Canada this year won't likely increase over 1985, ending a five-year boom in recorder sales, says the video product manager for Mitsubishi Electric Sales Canada Inc.

Allan Feldstein predicts the levelling-off will come after annual recorder sales in Canada climbed to 1.3 million in 1985 from 60,000 in 1980. He said about one-third of Canadian households now have a recorder and manufacturers expect sales will drop slightly over the next five years.

And it appears as if the slowdown has already begun to hurt video stores in Quebec.

The number of video outlet closures in the province is outstripping the openings by a three-to-one margin, says Frank Taddeo, the credit officer of MPA Video Inc., one of the biggest suppliers of movies to retail outlets.

Taddeo said the percentage of stores that have trouble paying bills has more than doubled in the past year, to about 20 per cent.

But that doesn't mean Quebecers' love affair with video movies has come to an end, says Jean Jolicoeur, chairman of Jolicoeur et associés, a Montreal market-research firm.

RENTS STEADY
Jolicoeur said Quebec video stores took in an estimated $140 million in rental fees last year and that figure will hold steady or rise slightly.

And the owners of the city's largest video chain are confident the situation will improve for some operators.

"There is still a lot of money out there," said Wendy Fish, a partner of Montreal Stereo Video.

"There's going to be a lot of independent stores closing, and when they close, the chains will be able to expand," said Linda Zabitsky, Fish's partner.

Apart from slumping recorder sales, video store owners have had to deal with a 12-per-cent federal tax on the sale of videos and a nine-per-cent Quebec tax on rentals.

In response, many Montreal Stereo Video outlets recently hiked their daily rental fee to $3 from $2.

One man who quit the video business was Alvin Marton, who closed his Empire Video outlet in December.

He returned to his former job as an electrician and said he now earns more on a 40-hour week — $780 before taxes — than he did putting in 80 hours a week in his video store.

TOO GOOD
"It seemed like something good to go into, but everybody else figured the same thing," he said.

Two months after Marton closed his doors, the assets of Empire Video (1982) Ltd., one of Quebec's major chains with 19 franchisees, were seized by an unpaid creditor. They are being sold off to reduce the firm's debts.

Why not get some 'cul-chah'?

Where did May go? I'm sure last week was April - but it felt like May. When confused, turn to poetry...like Spring has sprung, the grass has riz and I know where the lawnmower is...it's being strangled by grass growing too fast for a mere machine. Ah well, remember, there's more to life than short grass.

One of them is the 18th Annual Bedford Art Show. It ends this Sunday so you still have time to soak up a bit of cul-chah. If you have been staring at a blank space on your wall all winter, now's the time to fill it. There are oils, water colours, acrylics and pen-and-ink sketches with a good range of prices too. No need to take out a second mortgage. Blank space or not, the best way is to browse and fantasize about being a famous art critic. It's easy. Your "Hummm" is identical to the one used by doctors listening to your symptoms. Your head should be cocked to one side to visualize the picture on the average wall, slightly crooked. You also stand well back, then lean back further. Famous critics do it to show they'd prefer to be in a bigger room for an even longer range view. You are allowed to get close - to read the name of the artist. At the Bedford show, use the time (as I suspect famous critics do) to take a closer look and appreciate the detail that goes into an essentially simple painting to create a pleasing effect. While you're playing famous art critic, the perfect thing to fill that blank wall may leap into your arms.

If it doesn't, try the exhibition of watercolours entitled "In Celebration of Flowers" in Dunham at The Blue Armoire. It also ends on June 1st. The artist is Sunshine Taylor. I missed the opening last Friday, but I hope to pay it a visit this week. If past performance is any judge (and it usually is) it will be worth the trip. The hours during the week are 10:30 to 5:30; on Saturday and Sunday the gallery closes at 5 P.M. and on Sunday you can't get in without attracting the police before 1 P.M.

Down the Pike

By Ashley Sheltus

Back in Bedford, there will be a Flea Market and food sale at the Masonic Hall on Academy Street, Saturday, June 7th. Bring a napkin. The home cooking can start your mouth watering from the moment you enter the door.

There are a few sale tables left if you have items to sell. Call Fred Gilman at 248-3341 for reservations. Once you do, reserve a ten dollar bill to pay for the table, but you can easily get that $10 back by winnowing out the books you'll never read again, ransacking the attic, baking a pie and turning out a mess of brownies. Spread them out and let people admire your cooking and wonder "Why would anyone sell such marvellous things...and so cheaply too?" There goes the Venus with the clock in her stomach.

Panic...panic...panic. Last week I forgot the Dunham evening Dessert & Card Party! Sorry, Barbara. The notice was on time - I wasn't. The card games being played are 500 and Bridge this Friday, starting at 7 p.m. Dessert comes first. Eat supper at home, then come to the Dunham United Church for dessert and fun and card games. There will be prizes and an admission charge of $3. The evening is sponsored by the Dunham UCW to support the church.

If you can't get to Dunham, you can play 500 and Cribbage at the Legion Hall in Philipsburg on the same night. This is a Firemen's Card Party - the Philipsburg Firemen deal with everything - and you'll be welcome, even if you're one of the people who are regularly skunked. The admission price is $3. All proceeds go to the volunteer fire brigade.

To close, a few quick notes. The Red Cross fund-raising drive is on until the 15th of June. Donate now, you never know when you'll need help and it's best to be prepared.

The Bedford Archdeaconry golf tournament didn't fizzle out last weekend - nothing could fizzle in all that rain - but the match (played from canoes as golf carts) raised $3000 soggy dollars for Camp Garagona.

Finally, there will be a Deaneery Evensong on June 8th at the Anglican Church in Frelighsburg, starting at 8 p.m. You can either sing along with Gusto (the baritone in the next pew) or you can simply have a great listen.

The schoolhouse is changing

By Laurel Sherrer

SOUTH BOLTON — The little red schoolhouse in South Bolton has been painted white for years. Now a group of Women's Institute members and volunteers have set about returning it to the original color.

About 40 men, women and children from the community turned out Saturday for an old-fashioned bee to cut brush, fix fences, prepare the building for painting, erect a flagpole and partake of a pot luck dinner that could have fed a small army.

The school was built around 1864 and served as a one-room schoolhouse until the early 1950s. The Women's Institute bought the building in 1954, and since then it has served as a meeting place for the WI, as well as for baby and bridal showers, wedding receptions and family gatherings after funerals, which the WI generally caters for.

A good portion of those now living in South Bolton got their early schooling at the little red schoolhouse. Many of them were on hand to help with the repairs Saturday. And of course, to swap tales of school days.

Ardis Sabinsky (born Ardis Coates) remembers how the children's woollen mittens were laid on a rack over the wood stove in the middle of the room to dry, and how "it would reek". During her seven years there she had four teachers, and feels they did far better, with seven grades to teach, than many of today's teachers. "Teachers were more interested then," she said.

Murray Cameron told of a noon hour when the teacher and the visiting inspector went to one of the neighbor's for lunch. He, Rodney Davis and Ronald Coons decided to check out the attic, one of the forbidden areas of the school. They were doing all right, walking around on the beams, when someone shouted that the teacher was returning.

Cameron and Davis made a swift escape, but Ronald Coons broke through the ceiling in his haste, and was hanging face down into the schoolroom when the teacher and inspector walked in.

A winter noon-hour's diversion was to throw snowballs into the attic through a vent in the peak of the roof. By mid afternoon they'd be dripping through the ceiling, over the teacher's desk, if they'd been properly aimed.

Some influential people were connected with the South Bolton schoolhouse, as pointed out in a history compiled by Lillian Willey. The father of Rev. E.M. Taylor, school inspector for many years and noted local historian, attended the school that stood on the site prior to 1864. Elson Rexford, at one time English secretary of the Quebec Department of Education and Rector of Montreal High School, also went to school there.

The WI has been raising money for paint and other repairs to the building for the past two years, through fund-raising activities and donations. They are now selling raffle tickets for a quilt.

They plan to continue raising money for further repairs and improvements, including installing plumbing. A stove and refrigerator have recently been installed.

Stanstead Chapter IODE holds final meeting

STANSTEAD (IH) — The final business meeting for Stanstead Chapter IODE until September 8 took place in Lebaron Hall, Stanstead College the afternoon of May 5.

The Regent, Fern Dewey graciously welcomed the large number present, especially the members back from spending the winter months in warmer areas.

The Prayer of the Order was recited and Colors presented. In the absence of the secretary her report was given by Anna Gain who also gave the communications sent and received. One letter confirmed the use of Sunnyside School for the September 27 bazaar.

Dorcas Pocock and Beulah Cass volunteered to assist at the May 8 Border Senior Citizens luncheon in Stanstead South church hall. Mrs. Dewey thanked them, also Ingrid Millington, Dena Leblanc and Thérèse Winter for assisting at the April luncheon.

Vivian Davis presented the financial report.

Mrs. Dewey thanked Helen Edgar for having the April coffee party and announced the coffee parties during the summer recess will be June 27 at Irene Bacon's home; July 25 with Dorcas Pocock at her home in Beebe and August 29 at Ingrid Millington's, Cassville Road, Route 143.

Secretary reports: Rheta Taylor, Education, noted the donation for the student exchange to Galt students is much appreciated by the Brock twins and that in the autumn they will come and speak to the members about their visit to West Germany this summer. Lorraine Markwell appreciates the contributions of money to Kerosel Nursery School. The money has been used to create an IODE Kerner. Sunnyside School gave out 12 citizenship awards recently and congratulations are extended to Principal Tom Bean, the recipient of an award.

The closing of the season will take place on June 4 with a dinner at 12:30 noon at Ripplecove Inn, Ayer's Cliff. Rheta Taylor is convener of arrangements.

Services: Beulah Cass announced the purchase of baby wool and invited members to take some home to knit this summer.

Citizenship: Irene Bacon said members had done 133 hours of volunteer work the past month and 13 Meals on Wheels had been delivered by a member. She mentioned Madame Sauvé, Governor General of Canada who remembered the 60th birthday of the Queen and sent an appropriate gift. 73 have been awarded the Order of Canada from Madame Sauvé.

Echoes: Doris Hartley read an article on the successful Nain School project who have achieved their objective of $20,000. This is for new teaching and catering facilities for Canadians residing in the remote areas of Labrador.

The next general meeting will be on September 8 at the College. Barbara Lax and Muriel McClary will hostess the refreshments.

Thelma Dustin, chairlady for the September bazaar distributed the working lists to each one and Vivian Davis issued the admission tickets for advance sales.

Ruby Greer reported the marathon bridge games completion of another season and a cheque for $450, presented to the Three Villages and vicinity Swim School. Games will resume in the autumn.

It was voted to renew the IODE Echoes to the Haskell Library. The Provincial meeting will be held June 11 in Montreal for counselors.

Anna Gain, delegate, gave a comprehensive report of the April 16 annual meeting held in Montreal. Six attended from Stanstead Chapter.

The meeting closed in form, and refreshments were served by hostesses Lexie Rogers and Thelma Dustin. Ellen Holland poured at the tea table centred with a basket of flowers flanked by blue candles.

Belvidere Women's Institute

The monthly meeting was held on May 10 at the home of Mrs. Beryl Parker with Mrs. Myrtle Pitman, Mrs. Mary Campbell and Miss Edna Smith as hostesses.

President Margaret Smart opened the meeting with the Collect and Salute to the Flag, followed by thank-yous to Mrs. Parker for opening her home and the hostesses.

Secretary Mickie Povey being unable to attend, much to our regret, Margaret Kinkead was asked to take the roll call (eight members and two guests being present).

Money was turned in for tickets sold on the raffle and a card party to be held at some future date was discussed. Plans were made to entertain the Milby Branch at our June 14 meeting at the C.L.S.C. room in Lennoxville.

We voted money for our delegate Jessie Moore to attend the QWI convention at Macdonald College. Donation was also voted to the Canadian Cancer Society.

The president read "Tips for Gardeners" which was very appropriate at this spring season.

Correspondence was received and read from the Lennoxville and District Centre, the Regional Council for Health and Services, and a thank-you note from Doris Conley.

Standing Committee reports — Agriculture: Dorothy Montgomery had ordered School Fair supplies and spoke about our recent snow fall; Citizenship and Legislation: Myrtle Pitman read news on the Advisory Council on the Status of Women and a new law governing safety at work.

Home Economics and Health — Mina Morrison reported recycling of materials, and glasses turned in, also read about testing for radiation in milk and water in Europe. Cards, Proviso slips and pill bottles handed in.

Cultural Activities — Phyllis Hazard reported she is still working on the sale of our stock on hand; Publicity — M. Kinkead had sent in reports of previous meeting to the County convener and the Record.

Sunshine — Mina Morrison had sent out sympathy and get-well cards; Ways and Means — Jessie Moore is working on our future card party.

Margaret Smart gave us a very interesting report of the County meeting which she had attended.

May being Agriculture month, convener Dorothy Montgomery had prepared a small scrapbook with pictures of different flowers and held a contest. First prize went to Phyllis Hazard and second to Margaret Smart.

The tea collection and Pennies for Friendship drawing (won by Margaret Kinkead) ensued.

We all enjoyed a delicious supper, the hostesses being assisted in serving by Doris Pitman, Gwen Parker and Thelma Pitman.

The next meeting will be held on June 14 at the C.L.S.C. Gaston Lesard in Lennoxville.

ARCHIFÊTE 86 - ARCHITECTURE WEEK

ARCHIFÊTE was considered one of the most original major events of 1983 and 1984. And it will be back in 1986, from May 24 to May 31, at Complexe Desjardins and Montreal's Vieux-Port.

In confirming this news, architect Jean-Louis Robillard, president of Corporation de l'Archifête, emphasized the goal of ARCHIFÊTE 86: to sensitize Quebecers to architecture and to bring practising architects into closer contacts with consumers.

"ARCHIFÊTE is a celebration of architecture", he said, "it is also a chance for Quebec's architects to get out into the street and show the public the appeal and the impact of their work on the structures around us."

"We are calling on private business and on the construction and building materials industry to join in this undertaking", explained Mr. Robillard. "In 1986, we want to strengthen our ties and build a solid partnership with everyone involved in the building sector".

In 1983 and 1984, nearly two hundred events were presented as part of ARCHIFÊTE, reaching over a million Quebecers either directly or through the media.

The governments continue to support this event because it deals with the notion of Architecture as a predominant part of the public realm and concern.

ANNIVERSARY SALE

Our store was founded in 1916 by Nicholas Scheib (1889-1975) and the first location — at the corner of Alexander and King streets. In 1920 we moved to the present location, downtown at 83 King Street west. We have continued over the years to offer our customers the best possible values, always with special, personal attention and recognizing the confidence our valued customers have long given us. The current owner, Renaud Scheib, wishes to thank you by celebrating this anniversary with a special sale filled with not-to-be-missed super-specials.

St. Paul's Anglican Church Paper is a good source of parish information

By Kay Taylor

KNOWLTON—The May edition of St. Paul's Church Paper is on the theme of Stewardship and was available to the congregation at the church services on May 4.

The letter from the Pastor, the Reverend Murray Henderson, contained much to ponder in this area. There was also a report on the 1986 budget. 70% of the income needs of St. Paul's comes from the sacrificial giving of those who call St. Paul's their church. On the last page a full list was given of the various ministries and their leaders with reports of many included in the contents of booklet.

Maureen Johnston-Main, Church secretary, prepares the schedule of readers and would be pleased to put your name on an upcoming list.

John Syberg, sidespeople convenor reported, and if you are interested in joining this team, call John.

Lay Communion helpers are nominated by the Vestry and approved by Bishop Reginald Hollis. They are Frank Johnston-Main Jr., Lloyd Herman, Gordon Ladd, Stan Pepler, Steve Morson, Cy Pearson.

Altar Guild teams are Janet Woodley and Gladys Palaisy; Helene Guilbault and Evelyn Partridge; Vicky Dyball, Ruth Jugel and Merle Sykes, Debbie Ladouceur and Marjorie Marks, Elsie Royea and Wendy Paige. Their purpose is to assist the clergy. A full report was given by Janet Woodley who states serving on the Altar Guild can be a great source of pleasure and satisfaction.

The Flower Guild consisting of Janie Trew, Janet Mizener, Merle Sykes, (treasurer) also reported on the love and creativity of 12 members and 10 seasonal volunteers. New members will be welcome.

An invitation to the coffee hour following the 10 a.m. service, which has become a St. Paul's tradition, was extended by Janet Woodley. There's a lot of noise, juice for the children and a great deal of talk—Come and see for yourself.

Following Confirmation, the young people are given the opportunity to become Servers and assist Father Murray during Holy Communion. Currently they are Linda Martin, Scott Evans, Cynthia Foster, Kim Johnston-Main, Zip Johnston-Main, Lara Henderson, Jonathon Henderson, Ursula Jugel, Michelle Holloway. Under Administration is found a full report describing the responsibilities of the two bodies, their main function and commitments. Their basic principle is that Jesus is the Lord of His Church. Council members are not working to get their ideas passed but to see where Jesus wants His church to go. One of the key tasks will be to help formulate long term goals for the parish.

Members: The Corporation: Cy Pearson, Frank Johnston-Main, Sr., Stan Pepler, Richard Kozlowski with the members of Parish Council - the above plus Janet Woodley, Helen Heslam, Jake Royea, Doug Entwistle, Frank Main Jr., Craig Quinn, Gordon Ladd, Wendy Paige. Maureen Johnston-Main is the Church Secretary. She retired last year from the position of treasurer to take this post. Her responsibility covers many areas including answering questions about the many ministries and services, the publication of the weekly bulletin, correspondence, and coordination of such things as servers lists, readers lists and keeping track of these, including who is using the church hall when! She is responsible for paper work for baptisms, marriages and deaths, transferring information from old records when needed, typing the parish paper, ordering altar guild supplies. She also does all the banking and on occasion serves coffee to visiting clergy. The office telephone is 243-5787.

There were reports on Christian Education, Life in the Spirit Seminar, Thursday Bible Study. This last is led by Father Murray. Discussion is encouraged. Everyone is welcome. Thursday-9 a.m. Eucharist- 10 a.m. Bible Study in the choir room.

The co-ordinators of House Churches, Stan and Joan Pepler, gave a report on the three House Churches now operating in private homes. The rewards from being a member are tremendous- Just ask someone who is!

The Church School- A delightful sketch was part of the two page report of Mary Ellen Greer, co-ordinator The Church School has run for the past two years on a team basis with three teams of 5 to 7 people on each, and each team teaching for a 6-week period. This means each team serves twice during the year (not including summer). Approximately 30 to 40 children attend Church School on a regular basis. Ages run from 3 to 12 years. Music is planned and played by a guitarist and a pianist, who also teach the children new songs. These fall into three categories- action songs; hymns; choruses. Prayers at this time are for more men to become involved with Church School and more teachers are needed for Team 3. Anyone interested is invited to join a team for a few weeks as an observer.

Discipleship- Contact Father Murray, Brandon Sykes, Frank Main, Jr. The group of 14 men meet each week in two separate groups. Their guide- the late David Watson whose book "Discipleship" is a compendium of Biblical teaching on what it means to follow Jesus. If this looks as though it could meet a need in your life at present, speak to Father Murray or one of the men in the Discipleship Group.

Bible Study at Coldbrook- Contact Hilda Luce. Attendance is 5 to 7 people weekly, mostly residents, who all enjoy fellowship, prayer and understanding God's word. Everyone participates in reading, prayer and assisting in leadership. The fact that the programme co-ordinates with both the United Church and the Anglican Church service is appreciated.

Outreach Ministries and Activities- Prayer chain-Contact Phyllis Ladd, co-ordinator. Captains Susan Kozlowski, (assistant to the co-ordinator), Lillian Pearson, Merle and Brandon Sykes. The Prayer Chain has been in existence three years. Its members spend time each day in prayer, praise, thanksgiving and intercession. They pray for parishioners, families and friends who are ill, undergoing surgery or going through a difficult period. They offer many prayers for strengthening, for the beginning of new ventures, with prayers weekly for the different church ministries, the Sunday School, Parish Council, for Father Murray and the Sunday services and for special times- Christmas services, Holy Week, missions, special projects.

They pray not only for these but also for people and situations around the world. Results from their prayers have been seen over and over again. Sometimes quite dramatically. Over the three years, over 20 men and women who are members of the Prayer Chain, have met periodically for teaching, to celebrate the Eucharist together and just share some of the difficulties and feelings of inadequacy they have come up against. Anyone with a prayer request may call Mrs. Ladd or any of the captains and it will be quickly passed down the chain. If you would like to be a part of the Prayer Chain they would be most pleased to have you.

Tape- Contact Barry and Vicky Dyball. A large collection of christian tapes has been amassed, covering a multitude of subjects- with an excellent library on Healing and the Christian family. There are tapes of the Arm Conference in Ottawa, missions including the Festival of Renewal and of Father Murray's sermons for the past year. Tapes are displayed Sunday morning after the service.

Youth-Contact Maureen Entwistle; Diana Henderson. The young people of St. Paul's (age 12-16) get together once a week for discussion on christian living, on subjects of interest and concern to them and to have fun. The meetings take place at St. Paul's on Tuesday evenings from 7-9. During the summer meetings will become "mobile" as the group plans to take full advantage of nice weather. The day and time will vary to permit the group to go on picnics, barbecues and take part in group activities and swimming. Special guests will be invited to talk to the group and take part in discussion. Some subjects they wish to cover is drugs, abortion, human rights, divorce, various religions of the world, prejudices, child abuse, music, friendship. The list clearly shows the interest of today's youth in the surrounding world and their desire to be prepared for the many decisions and choices they will have to make. They also wish to find ways and means of becoming involved in some community activities and services. Any adults who desire to work with the youth group in any particular area or who have knowledge or experience that would be of benefit to them, would be most welcome.

Work Days at St. Paul's-Contact Gordon Ladd. There has been a workday in the Spring at St. Paul's for the past two years. These have been well attended and a great deal accomplished. Fellowship plays a great part in the success of such a day. It is a good occasion to get to know each other better.

The day is organized so the responsibility for each major work project is accepted by one person who then arranges for material and personnel for its successful completion. Little time is lost. Everyone has a feeling of a job well done.

The A.C.W. had its beginning as the W.A. of St. Paul's Church in 1896. Over the years the A.C.W. has undergone many changes, incorporated many different church groups and adapted to the times, while always relating at its core to a deep devotion to God. Last year's very successful "Past Recaptured" chaired by Helen Heslam, outlined this very full and fruitful history. Many diverse, well planned and attended events have been sponsored so far in 1986. The World Day of Prayer, a pot-luck supper during the Festival of Renewal, the Easter Tea which was fun with Gordon Ladd painting a picture while the ladies, wearing Easter bonnets watched. The A.C.W. gives generously to various organizations, to St. Paul's Church and helps in many other ways, but under the "business aspects" there has always been a deep fellowship "and this is what I would like to stress" says a 30-year veteran of the ACW.

Mission Committee- Contact Maureen Johnston-Main. The exchange with other Christians is an important way we ourselves are nurtured. The policy for the last few years has been to encourage visits from christians outside the parish- some very powerful christians came to teach- Heidi Hawkins, Canon Charles Alexander, Kathy Nicols, J. John, Canon Tom Robinson and others. As well as guests coming, members of the parish also visit other parishes.

Father Murray Henderson reports Counselling and Inner Healing Mission- showing clearly the christian life is not a life to live alone.

Marriage Enrichment- Offers help in the area of marriage and the family. The 4-week course is entitled "Evenings for Couples". It is put out by the Christian Marriage Encounter movement and is an effective way to improve communication in a couple's relationship. Main topics are Listening, Decision-making, Fighting and Healing. The program is offered with pleasure to people from other churches or those with no church connection at all. A new course starts soon. Perhaps you would be giving a precious gift to your spouse to suggest taking this course together?

Visitation- Co-ordinator, Lillian Pearson. An unobtrusive ministry by a group of parishioners to the area's sick and shut-ins. They have a regular list of people to visit, to bring news to, go talk to, maybe share some Scripture, help with some needs. They regularly visit nursing homes in the area and the hospital to see any members of the congregation or their families or just people they know of. A special effort is made at Christmas to visit as many as possible who are housebound- Contact is kept with Father Murray, notifying him of anyone wishing to have Communion brought to them. anyone who would like to be involved in a ministry of caring and one that offers many rewards is welcomed. If you know of elderly or sick persons or someone in need of special attention, please notify Lillian Pearson.

The Parish Paper- co-ordinator Wendy Paige. St. Paul's Paper is one of the powerful ways that the members of St. Paul's reach out to one another and to those in the community. There are also many practical aspects- distributing information, about upcoming event, new developments, times of worship news. The paper acts as a gathering place of the many activities, put together every three months.

Art- There is an informal unstaffed Art Ministry- the result of the fact that some very gifted artists are in our midst whose love of God overflows into creative expression. The Parish Paper shows this with work done each issue by Gwen Blanchard, Frank Johnston-Main, Sr. Lyndon Paige and many others. Gordon Ladd who made the times prizes were given special with his artistic donations and has given so much in so many other ways, Eunice Lord with her gift for creative craftsmanship. Banners are another area with such gifted creative artists as Gwen Blanchard, Maria Bretch, Evie Johnston-Main, Diana Henderson and many others. Amy Devlin, now of Kingston, has left behind so much of herself to be enjoyed. Danny Foster is a rather quiet contributor but one whose talent will not be still.

Knowlton Christians for World Outreach- St. Paul's representative Wendy Paige. This is a neophyte ecumenical organization whose purpose is to pursue a christian approach to today's social problems- to find out our responsibilities to the world, and what is being done by the christian church and groups around the world. From there- what we in Knowlton can do. KCWO grew from a three-week Lenten study programme conducted by Reverend Peter Hartgerink of Knowlton United Church and the Reverend Murray Henderson. The group's steering committee will comprise two members from each church- a programme is planned for the Fall.

Beyond the Parish there is an active dialogue between St. Paul's and other levels in the Anglican Church. The Deanery of Brome-Shefford includes Waterloo, Brome, Mansonville, Sutton, Granby. Priests, Wardens and synod delegates meet regularly. The Anglican Church in Canada of which Father Henderson is executive chairman of the board of directors of Anglican Renewal Ministries (ARM).

Under Acknowledgements, thanks was extended to all the people active in church ministries for help in creating the booklet and the team who worked on its production- Maureen Johnston-Main, Lyndon Paige, Wendy Paige, Danny Foster, Stan Pepler and Father Murray Henderson.

Milby Women's Institute 55th Anniversary

Banquet and Social evening was held at La Paysanne Motel on April 21, by the members and guests, 15 members, Mrs. O. Painter, Jessie McKee, Mary St. Laurent unable to be present, guests Mrs. D. Conley, P. Pres. County, Mrs. M. Annesley, County Pres. Bev. Suitor, former member, Irene Hadlock whose mother and sister were charter members of Milby W.I. Three former members residing in Ontario were unable to be present. Photographer Greg Patrick also kept busy with his camera.

President Dorothy Martin welcomed all in the Lounge where M. McVety, P. Powell, B. Patrick, and E. Suitor pinned a corsage of baby's breath and tiny yellow mums tied with navy ribbon on each one. All proceeded to the dining room where tables looked very elegant with white tablecloths, purple napkins with gold 55 in one corner, candelabras with two purple candles and one gold stood at each end of head table with beautifully decorated cake in centre, white with gold 55 and gold and navy streamers at each corner, placecards at each setting and baskets of mints, small white vases of yellow mums and fern on long centre table.

President and executive at head table and County President, others found their own places. President Dorothy Martin proposed a toast to County President and Milby W.I., County M. Annesley proposed a toast to the Queen. Pres. D. Martin welcomed all and said the grace, then read several Happy Anniversary Wishes from other branches.

During the dinner Mayotta Taylor read a poem, "A little mixed up" supposed to be some poor soul remembering to write but getting rather mixed up in the end. Read happy anniversary wishes from Kay, Wenda, and Carolyn, continued to read a few jokes while waiting for dessert, which gave everyone a laugh. President Dorothy Martin thanked Mr. Elson on behalf of all for the wonderful service and also a thank-you to Jennifer and those who prepared the programs, etc.

Pictures were taken in the Lounge and stairway as a group, everyone certainly looked lovely in their formals and period gowns, to Jean Naylor, Pansy Powell, Mayotta Taylor, Gertie Beatie, Bev Patrick and Lue Brady. What fun to see you ladies in the various period gowns and hats. Jean, you could take 1st prize, Pansy, you just looked like a dear grandmother.

Entertainment in lower Lounge - Mildred Cairns read the minutes of the first meeting, certainly very interesting, Mildred having been a member for 45 years. Guests were then asked if they wished to speak. County Pres. M. Annesley said how pleased she was to be present. Irene Hadlock would remember her mother attending years back. Bev Suitor glad to be present, Alberta Suitor, a 53-year member was pleased she had joined, our oldest member at present. The guest speaker, Mrs. Doris Conley, was introduced by Luella Brady. Mrs. Conley, a Past County Pres. and former teacher was very glad to tell us about some of her travels and show slides on these. She gave a brief description of each slide from the various countries and included Paris, Switzerland, England, Germany and Belgium, these were very much enjoyed by all. Winona Kirby thanked Doris and presented her with a small token of appreciation.

Mayotta and Gertie had prepared punch which they served with the help of others, while Jean cut the cake and passed it out to each one, Jean having made and decorated the cake.

President D. Martin thanked all for such a pleasant evening and everyone who worked so hard. Mayotta Taylor read the following "Prayer". Let us bow our heads one moment in silent prayer.

Oh Lord our God, this is indeed a sweet hour of prayer as we ask Thy Blessing on these Thy children. We thank Thee for the wonderful ones who have gone on before and to those who are unable to be with us this evening. May we rededicate ourselves so that we may find that Eternal Home.

Closing with these thoughts: If you are happy, pass it on. If you can laugh, pass it on. If you can be cheered by some one, pass it on. If you can extend a friendly hand, pass it on. If you have good news, pass it on. For you shall have this day only once, and if you can help someone enjoy it, pass it on.

On behalf of the Committee we hope you have enjoyed the program, our wish for you as you travel homeward in remembrance of our 55th, is that we can all be together to celebrate our 60th. Health and happiness to all and a safe journey home.

Canusa Unit regular meeting

DERBY LINE (IH) - Stanstead South Church Canusa Unit held their May meeting at the home of Gertrude Cross.

Bertie Darby, president, presided and opened the meeting with devotions. Plans were made for a luncheon on Sunday, May 18 after the worship service.

This was attended by several in the congregation, all of whom enjoyed the delicious casseroles, baked beans, salads and dessert. During the meal there were birthday celebrants present, so the birthday song was sung. In conclusion Rev. Keith Eddy thanked the Canusa members and assisting husbands for this fellowship.

At the meeting it was voted to purchase paper for table covers.

A chicken pie dinner is tentatively planned for the autumn. The Unit closing for the season banquet will take place on June 11 at The Border. The next regular meeting will be held in September.

After the adjournment and during the social period, Gertrude served tasty refreshments.

STANSTEAD (IH) - In the story of the annual meeting of the Stanstead Historical Society the name of Rosalie Hudson of Rock Island was unintentionally omitted. She is a director and an active worker in the Society. My apologies, Rosalie.

1986 NATIONAL TRANSPORT WEEK

It's our year!

in motion...in touch

TRANSPORTATION is substance, science and skill combined to create one of the most used and least understood of man's utilities * TRANSPORTATION is the means of traveling from one point to another, near or far, with varying degrees of comfort, enjoyment and profit * TRANSPORTATION is an economic, social and cultural ingredient of man's existence * TRANSPORTATION is pulsating arteries of commerce or leisurely paths of pleasure * TRANSPORTATION is a conveyor belt spanning the length and breadth of the nation, providing a constant flow of trade by air, highway, rail and waterway, linking metropolitan areas, cities and towns with farms, fields, factories and markets * TRANSPORTATION is the tangible expression of collective will, of movement and enterprise * TRANSPORTATION spans the breadth of life from the cradle to the grave * TRANSPORTATION is the record of man's progress from prehistoric past to an impelling present * TRANSPORTATION is the promise of tomorrow.

Canada's transportation industry makes up more than 20 percent of the gross national product and employs more than one million men and women. The transportation infrastructure is one of the nation's greatest physical assets. Serving the many millions of surface, marine, and air transportation vehicles, the nation is interlaced with more than 885,000 km. of highways and streets, 92,800 km. of rail lines, thousands of kilometers of inland and coastal waterways, an air network which logs 568 million km. a year. And there are 125,000 km. of pipelines.

LOOK FOR THE SUNSHINE

Every time you see a shadow
You know one thing is true —
There must be a bit of sunshine
Somewhere,
that's breaking through!
And if you'll look around you,
Where the sun's
bright jewels fall,
You'll find that you are standing
In the sunshine, after all!

THE DAYS I SPENT WITH YOU

If the pages of time could be turned back,
To the days I spent with you
I'd live again each word you said,
And things we used to do.
I would see again each flower,
Every summer sky of blue,
If the pages of time could be turned back
To the days I spent with you.

For this time I'd pay attention,
To every little thing
Like the way your eyes would crinkle up
With laughter, that made my heart sing
Or the way you'd touch my shoulder
So I'd know you loved me true,
Oh! if only time could be turned back
To the days I spent with you.

YOU'RE THE GREATEST TEACHER

Your little baby you now love to hold,
So warm, so cuddly, your heart they've stole.
Your heart they will fill with such joy.
They're so special your little girl or boy.
The bond grows stronger each and every day.
They're a miracle gift one might say.
Sadly few of us give enough real thought,
About the reality and importance that is brought,
Into our lives with that special child,
When immortality and materialism is so wild.
Your child is much like clay.
Because you mold them more every day.
In your guidance they will abide.
But often our example is their guide.

How often do we look years ahead,
When our child might look after us instead?
Would we want to be treated the same way,
As we have treated our child today?
Would we long for a kind word or two?
Words of appreciation, and a much needed thank you.
Will they be like many of us today?
Too much to be done, no time to stay!
No time to talk, to show we really care.
Like us, they'll think, we'll always be there.
They'll take for granted tomorrow's another day.
Life just goes on, so they say.
Why, because you're the greatest teacher they've had.
They've learnt what's important from their mom and dad.

ASTRO•GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

May 30, 1986

Be patient in the year ahead regarding your rewards and recognition. Nature may be a trifle tardy in getting started, but she will deliver as promised.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Financial fulfillment is likely to be in the offing for you today, but you're not apt to do as well where your social interests are concerned. Career advantages and problems in the year ahead are discussed in Gemini's Astro-Graph. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Guard against tendencies today to repeat a mistake. Don't penalize yourself because of a poor memory.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your best interests won't be served today if you impose upon others to take care of important matters that you should be attending to yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your mate's judgment as well as your own might not be up to snuff today. Before making an important decision, consult a wise counselor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Co-workers may find you a trifle difficult to get along with today. This is because you might interpret their suggestions as a form of criticism.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today either devote your full attention to business or your full attention to having fun, but don't try to do both. It's a mix that won't jell.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A compromise is called for today regarding an issue where you and your mate have taken opposing positions. If each gives a little, it can be remedied.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you react negatively to situations today, opportunities will slip past you. Come out from under that dark cloud into the sunshine.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Credit cards do not make a good substitute for cash today. If you haven't got the money in your purse or wallet, don't go into debt for momentary gratification.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A change of scenery will be good for you and your mate if you've been cloistered at home too much this week. Step out on the town.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The heavy hand of neglected duties could be weighing on your shoulders today. Respond to it even though you can't clear up everything at once.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Put sensible limits on what you intend to spend today for a good time. Unless you have proper guidelines, you will be extravagant.

For those of you who are startled by the two-club cue-bid made by West, let me introduce you to the Michaels cue-bid, a tournament convention describing a weak distributional hand with both majors. Armed with that information, North bid two hearts, which said to partner: "I have a good hand, plus a heart stopper for no-trump purposes. Please bid on." West bid two spades at his next turn to indicate that he had more length and strength in that suit than in hearts. After North had cue-bid the heart suit once more, South, compelled to make a choice, tried three no-trump. Can you blame East for doubling?

The point of the deal is that the declarer, Michael Kamil, made a fine play at trick one. On West's lead of a low spade, East put up the queen and Kamil played low. When the spade was returned, West could win the ace and clear the suit, but declarer was in control. He could give up a club to East and make his nine tricks. What if East should shift to a heart after winning the queen of spades? South would win the king and immediately play back the king of spades. If West wins and plays another heart, declarer can hold up the ace for one round and then play ace and another club. East wins the king but has no more major suit cards to play, and the doubled contract makes.

On this last scenario, why wouldn't declarer come to his hand with the diamond ace to try the club finesse? If he tries that, he might be set if East simply refuses to take his club king until the fourth round, thus preventing declarer from getting back to his hand for the fifth club.

Knowlton Scouting News

On May 1st, the Knowlton Group Committee held their monthly meeting at the home of June Call.

The Knowlton Beavers have planned, for the month of May, a nature hike and a visit to a real beaver dam.

On May 21, the Cubs had the opportunity to earn their cyclist badge. The Cubs last meeting for the '85-'86 season is on May 28.

The Group Committee congratulates the five Scouts who have earned their Chief Scout Badge. The boys are Greig Brown, Adam Foster, Jeff Page, Stephen Lacroix and Scott Teolis. This is the highest achievement in Scouting, a special commendation will be sent from Her Excellency, Jeanne Sauvé.

The Scouts and Venturers attended the Tri-District Camp on May 23-25 at Power's Court.

After the regular reports were read and approved, the evening was spent discussing the XVI World Jamboree in Australia. The committee has decided to subsidize three youths. Who the youths are and how the fund-raising will be done will be discussed at future meetings.

The next meeting, which will be the last one for this season, will be held on June 2 at the home of Rodger Pagé.

Boys go to Australia
 The XVI World Jamboree is open to Scouts and Venturers. This is the first World Jamboree to be held in the southern hemisphere. It will take place at Cataract Scout Park, near Sydney, Australia from December 30, 1987 to January 16, 1988.

The Knowlton Group Committee, a body of people who ensure the operating of the Scouting Movement comprising the Venturers, Scouts, Cubs and Beavers in the Ville de Lac Brome, has undertaken to subsidize to send three youth to the World Jamboree in Australia in 1987.

At the time of writing this article, it has not yet been decided who these three deserving Scouts will be. But deserving, they are. They have worked very hard during their years in the Scouting Movement and they will have to continue to work very hard in order for them to go on this exciting adventure.

The approximate total cost of this trip for these three youth will be $9,900.00. Each Scout will be asked to (and have to promise to) earn 22% of the individual cost for the trip, as well as earn their own spending money. His/her parents will have to ensure and encourage him/her in earning this money over the coming summer and next summer. The Movement will also encourage and guide him/her in their personal endeavours to earn this money.

The Knowlton Group Committee and the World Jamboree Fund Raising Committee will have to undertake a tremendous amount of fund raising events during the summer and the fall of 1986 to realize their 78% of the cost of subsidizing these Scouts to go to Australia. We are going to need the generous support of the residents of the Ville de Lac Brome and outlying areas for us to realize our goal.

In future issues, we will publish the names of the three Scouts chosen, and we will post various events which will be held during the summer to raise money. We know that we can succeed in our goal with your interest and support.

CFL adopts complicated playoff system but maintains East-West Grey Cup

By Mike Rutsey

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Football League, under pressure from the five Western Division teams, has revised its playoff format, the league announced Wednesday.

Under the revised format, which was approved unanimously at a special meeting of the league's board of governors Tuesday and goes into effect this year, the CFL has two potential playoff formulas. Each formula, however, ensures an East-West Grey Cup.

The key to the playoff formulas centre on the third-placed teams in each division. The basic premise for post-season play remains that the top three teams in each division will qualify unless the fourth-place club in one division has a higher points standing than the third-place team in another division.

If for example you go back to the 1983 season, Hamilton Tiger-Cats made the playoffs in the East with a 5-10-1 record. Calgary Stampeders, meanwhile, finished fourth in the West with 16 points off an 8-8 season.

This has been a sore point with the Western teams in recent history. Good teams in the West have time and again failed to make the playoffs only to see struggling, staggering teams in the East stumble into third place and an automatic playoff spot.

In the past 15 years the fourth-place team in the West has had a better record than the third-placed Eastern squad on 10 occasions. Only once in the last 15 years has a fourth-place team in the East finished the season with more points than the third-placed Western team — 1973 when Hamilton had 14 points to B.C. Lions 12.

The new format is more complicated than the present system. If a fourth-place team has the same number of points or less than a third-place team, the old playoff formula will remain. That will have the two first-place teams receiving byes with the two third-place teams playing an away semifinal at the home site of the second-place teams. The semifinal winners then play at the home of the first-place club with the two divisional winners meeting in the Grey Cup.

GETS THE NOD

If, however, a fourth-place team earns more points than a third-place team in the other division it would advance to the playoff round. One division would have a two-team, total-point series — in 1983 that would be the East — with the other division having a four-team elimination round.

In that case, the No. 1 team plays No. 4 and No. 2 plays No. 3 in the semifinals. The two winners meet in the finals and the two division champions advance to the Grey Cup.

"Our concerns, during our long review of the league's playoff system, were to maintain the East-

West Grey Cup game format while revising our playoff system which we were successful in doing," CFL commissioner Doug Mitchell said Wednesday. "We also wanted to create a system whereby all our teams had equitable chances to make the playoffs, while at the same time, ensuring our best teams during the regular season earned playoff spots."

An offshoot of the new format will be renewed interest in late-season games featuring teams that, under the old formula, would be out of the playoffs. Mitchell and the CFL governors believe that will keep greater interest and bigger gates for what was once a collection of late-season turkeys.

Nylund tells students of drug use in WCHL

REGINA (CP) — Defenceman Gary Nylund of the Toronto Maple Leafs has drawn a nasty rebuke for telling a group of Saskatoon children some of his teammates in junior hockey used drugs.

Nylund, the Leafs' No. 1 draft pick in 1982 from Portland Winter Hawks of the Western Hockey League, made the comment to students from Grades 6 to 8 at a conference last week.

"When I went to Portland, there were at least five or six guys using drugs, mostly uppers and downers," said Nylund. "Some of them would even pop pills during the game."

Nylund said Ken Hodge, his coach at Portland, also was aware of the drug use among players.

"The coach knew who they were and the scouts knew who they were so they didn't make it (to the NHL)," he told a conference at the University of Saskatchewan on drug abuse.

"I stayed away from it and was lucky enough to get drafted."

The comments have drawn criticism from Ed Chynoweth, president of the 14-team Western Hockey League, and Brian Shaw, Portland owner and general manager.

OFFICIAL SURPRISED

"I was obviously a bit surprised and disappointed," Chynoweth said from his Calgary office.

Chynoweth admitted he was concerned over Nylund's comments, but also said he would be a more worried if the allegations had been about use of cocaine or marijuana instead of pills.

Shaw said he was "absolutely appalled" by Nylund's suggestions and has turned the matter over to lawyers. The club will launch an investigation into the allegations, he said.

"People better be very careful what they say when they're questioning the integrity of somebody who's as honest a guy as Ken Hodge," Shaw said.

"He (Nylund) may well be correct, but the point that bothers me is when he says that our coach had knowledge of it. That's an absolute total lie," Shaw said.

FIND NO TRACES

Portland has tested players for drugs in each of the last two seasons with neither parents nor players complaining, he said. No traces of drugs have been found.

"We spend too much money trying to prevent drugs (use) to have some snot-nosed guy say something when in fact it isn't true," Shaw told the Regina Leader-Post.

"If it's true, then he has a right to say it," Shaw added. "But what he's saying is not true, unequivocally, and I'll sue him."

Nylund, who made the initial comment about a week ago, said he was aware the remarks would cause "some bad blood" with the Portland organization.

"If the owners want to come to me and say 'Gary, that's a bunch of garbage,' I'll tell them right to their faces that they're kidding themselves."

Gary Nylund... Causes 'bad blood'.

Bird wins MVP, says he'll play four more years

BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird made history and a confident prediction as he clung to his monopoly on the National Basketball Association's most-valuable-player award by winning it for the third straight year.

The star forward with Boston Celtics became only the third player — centres Bill Russell and Wilt Chamberlain the others — to achieve a streak that long and said he could extend it next season.

"I'm proud to be in the same group with Bill Russell because he's a Celtic," an alternately respectful and irreverent Bird said after receiving the award Wednesday. "Wilt Chamberlain talks a little bit too much for me."

He repeated his plans to play just four more seasons, but emphasized he has a lot of good games ahead of him.

"I really don't feel my career is over," said Bird, a seven-year veteran who will be 30 in December. "I think I can win it (the MVP award) some more if I just go out and work hard this summer and come back in the right frame of mind."

"I really don't care about Russell and Chamberlain because that's been a long time ago since they've been playing."

Russell won the award in 1961, 1962 and 1963, while Chamberlain won it in 1966, 1967 and 1968. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers has won a league-record six MVP awards, Russell five, Chamberlain four and Bird and Philadelphia 76ers centre Moses Malone three each.

'BEST THERE IS'

Boston backup centre Bill Walton, the MVP in 1978 when he was with Portland, said Bird "is the best basketball player there is."

A group of 78 media members made Bird a runaway choice for the award, giving him 73 first-place votes, five second-place votes and 765 of a possible 780 points. Atlanta Hawks Dominique Wilkins, the NBA's top scorer with a 30.3-point average, had the other five first-place votes and 407 points under the system that allows 10 points for a first-place vote, seven for second, five for third, three for fourth and one for fifth.

Lakers guard Earvin (Magic) Johnson was third with 205 points, followed by Houston Rockets centre Akem Olajuwon with 193 and Abdul-Jabbar with 135.

Bird led the Celtics to a 67-15 record, fourth best in NBA history, and a berth in the playoff finals.

Boston won the opener Monday over Houston, which will try to even the best-of-seven series to-night.

During the regular season, Bird led the NBA in free-throw percentage at .896, was fourth in scoring with 25.8 points per game and in three-point field-goal percentage at .423, was seventh in rebounding with a 9.8 average and ninth in steals with 2.02 per game.

Windsurfing bad for health — Laval doctors

QUEBEC — Windsurfers who skim polluted waters face an increased risk of skin infection and digestive ailments, and their access to such waters should be restricted, Quebec researchers say.

The researchers from Laval University in Quebec City said a study of windsurfers who competed on a polluted bay in 1984 showed a sharply higher rate of disease among those exposed to the water, casting doubt on the assumption of some public health officials that windsurfing can be permitted on waters considered unsafe for swimming.

"Water pollution exposes windsurfers and swimmers to similar health hazards," the scientists contend in an article in the June edition of the American Journal of Public Health, published in Washington. "Recreational windsurfers are at even higher risk as they fall more often than professionals."

"The same water quality criteria should therefore be applied to all recreational activities in which there is intentional, probable or accidental direct contact with water," they concluded.

The article was co-written by three physicians at Laval, Eric Dewailly, Claude Poirier and Francois Meyer.

Their research was based on health effects on competitors in the Windsurfer Western Hemisphere Championship, held in August 1984 in the St. Lawrence River's Baie de Beauport just below Quebec City.

The bay is contaminated by Quebec's sewage. The researchers estimate the fecal coliform count at high tide, when most of the races occurred, was about five times the acceptable level.

EAT SAME MEALS

The study compared 79 windsurfers who competed in events during all nine days of the competition with 41 employees who worked at the championship site. Both groups ate the same meals, lessening the possibility of food-linked digestive problems.

The researchers said the competitors participated in an average of seven three-hour races during the nine days, falling into the water an average of 18 times each.

On the final day of the championship, the researchers said, 45 of the 79 competitors reported they had experienced symptoms of some ailment associated with polluted water, while only eight of the 41 employees reported problems.

That means the windsurfers faced a risk 2.9 times higher of developing problems such as skin infection or digestive ailments, the researchers said. For gastrointestinal disorders — nausea, vomiting, diarrhea or abdominal pain — the risk was 5.5 times higher for the windsurfers.

The risk also increased with the number of falls into the polluted water, the researchers said. Symptoms occurred in all 10 competitors who reported falling 30 times or more, while only 44 per cent of those falling 10 times or less reported symptoms.

The research stopped with the competition, although many of the illnesses associated with water pollution could have appeared in ensuing days. Because of that factor, the scientists said they believe their estimate of the heightened risk may be too conservative.

They also said they made no effort to consider the possible higher risk of water-borne infectious diseases, such as hepatitis, with long incubation periods.

Arbour resigns as Isles' coach, but stays on as VP

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Just like 13 years ago when Al Arbour began coaching New York Islanders, it will be a new start for the National Hockey League team next season under a new coach.

Arbour, who guided the club to four consecutive Stanley Cup championships, announced his retirement Wednesday as coach of the Islanders. General manager Bill Torrey said there will be several new faces behind the bench for the 1986-87 season.

"It's time to wipe the slate clean," Torrey said. "New coach, new coaching staff ... undoubtedly, some new players."

"We've had tough times and good times," Arbour said. "Four straight Cups, (winning) 19 straight Stanley Cup series."

"It will take some kind of a hockey team to better that mark."

Arbour, 53, took over as coach of the Islanders before the 1973-74 season, the club's second year of existence. Earl Ingarfield and Phil Goyette shared the team's coaching job during the first season, when the Islanders finished 12-60-6.

In his first year, the Islanders finished with a 19-41-18 record, the only losing season under Arbour. By the end of last season he had amassed a 552-317-169 regular-season record, 109-62 in the playoffs.

COACH OF YEAR

Starting with the 1974-75 season, the Islanders reached the playoffs 12 straight years, winning the Stanley Cup from 1980-83, and Arbour was named NHL coach of the year for the 1978-79 season.

Scotty Bowman and Toe Blake of Montreal Canadiens are the only other NHL coaches to guide their teams to four consecutive Stanley Cup titles.

During the 1985-86 season, the Islanders were eliminated in the first round of the playoffs, losing to Washington Capitals in three straight games.

Arbour said he told Torrey of his decision last week in Portland, Ore., during the major junior Memorial Cup hockey playoffs.

"I've had 13 years with one of the all-time great coaches in this or any other sport," Torrey said. "He was a player's coach when he started, and he was a player's coach in the end."

"He always thought of his players first. His thoroughness, his character, his preparedness, are unequalled."

Arbour has a lifetime contract with the Islanders and will become the club's vice-president.

Windsurfers enjoying sunny weather on Lake Brome may not realize the health dangers they face.
