MARIPOSA'S PASSENGERS

TAKEN OFF BY THE ALLAN LINE STEAMER SARDINIAN.

MOST OF THE CREW RETURNING ON THE AUSTRIAN.

Pirates Made Their Appearance, but the Ship was Protected by a British Cruiser—Mariposa in a Bad Position.

All doubt was removed yesterday of the identity of the steamship stranded in the Straits of Belle Isle.

The Allan Line Steamship Austrian arrived up in the gulf and at the first signal station she confirmed the fears that it was the Dominion Line Steamship Mariposa.

The Austrian passed Father Point at 11.15 last night and further particulars of the disaster were received. One of the most important pieces of intelligence was the news that the Mariposa's passengers were taken off by the Allan Line Steamship Sardinian outward bound and will be in England as soon as they would had not their steamer met with such a serious mishap.

The despatch from Father Point received by the Herald at an early hour this morning contains the following information:

"I boarded the Steamship Austrian and found that she had 43 of the crew of the wrecked S.S. Mariposa on board. The passengers have been transferred safely to the R.M.S. Sardinian, bound for Liverpool. Captain Cave and a few hands stand by the steamer. No lives were lost.

"The Mariposa is stranded to the west of Point Amour, in an exposed position, lying on a rocky bottom, full of water.

"The Belle Isle pirates were already beginning to gather like carrion around the ship, but H.M.S. Buzzard put in an appearance at the right moment to keep them off.

"Captain Cave has plenty of provisions for all requirements. The tug Lord Stanley left Quebec this morning to proceed to Belle Isle with all haste and render all the assistance possible. She calls here to-night for information and should reach Point Amour on Sunday.

"The ship's crew were landing sheep and cattle from the Mariposa when the Austrian left them."

A gentleman from Newfoundland in conversation with a Herald reporter yesterday said: "If the ship aground in the Straits of Belle Isle proves to be the Mariposa, they will never get her off. I have been familiar with the coast since I was a boy, and it is about the wickedest imaginable. Except a ship, particularly a large iron ship, gets afloat within twenty-four hours after she has struck, her doom is almost certainly sealed. The weather there is very changeable, and an undertow comes in that will grind a hole in a ship's bottom upon the sharp teeth of rock with which the place is full, in a very short space of time. I was driven ashore there in a small schooner once, and we only got off by lightening her cargo, but it was an exceedingly uncomfortable position.

"It is a mistake to allow the captains of liners to act as their own pilots. They know all about everything theoretically, of course, but could not compare with some of the fishermen or small ship owner captains who could bring them through the most dangerous passages almost blindfolded. I remember one such who brought H. M. S. Eclipse through when no one else could have done it. Another I sailed with from St. Pierre to Boston could not write his own name and calculated the position of every light and buoy by dead reckoning. He was altogether unacquainted with the coast further south and relied more or less on what people had told him regarding the lights. I assisted by reading the "Coast Pilot" to him every day, and we came through all right. You can imagine what sort of a pilot a man like that must make on a coast with which he was quite familiar."

Quebec, Sept. 27.—The wrecking steamer Lord Stanley with schooner G. T. D., steam pumps and appliances left port at eleven a.m. to go to the assistance of the stranded Dominion Line Steamship Mariposa. If all goes well she will reach there on Sunday afternoon.

The Mariposa is supposed to have struck the same reef as that on which the British cruiser Lilly was wrecked some years ago. She must have got there Monday night or early Tuesday morning.

She is the third steamship that has come to grief on the St. Lawrence route this season, the others including one Thomson and two Dominion liners.

THE VACANT PORTFOLIO.

Wm. Smith, M.P. for South Ontario, for Minister of Agriculture.

Whitby, Ont., Sept. 27.—The executive of the Liberal-Conservative Association of South Ontario, together with a number of other gentlemen who are prominent residents of this county, met at the Royal Hotel here this afternoon in regard to the appointment of a Minister of Agriculture for Canada in the place of Hon. A. R. Angers. It was unanimously resolved that a practical farmer should hold this portfolio, and action was taken towards directing the attention of Sir Mackenzie Bowell to the suitability of Wm. Smith, M.P. for South Ontario, as a thoroughly representative farmer and experienced legislator for office by the appointment of a large and influential deputation to wait upon the Premier at Ottawa as soon as an engagement to receive it can be arranged by telegraph.

HEIR TO $250,000.

Joseph Fallowfield of Brampton the Lucky Man.

Toronto, Sept. 27.—Joseph Fallowfield, of Brampton, is perhaps the happiest man in Canada to-day. He is a laborer in almost destitute circumstances, and has a wife and five small children. This morning he received a cablegram from London, telling him that an uncle had died in London, leaving him $250,000. He came to Toronto this afternoon, and leaves to-night for New York, whence he sails for England to-morrow morning.

A Noted Clown Dead.

London, Sept. 27.—Harry Payne, the pantomine clown, is dead.

THE TAILLON CANDIDATE.

HON. M. F. HACKETT ENDORSES MR. McDONNELL

And Incidentally Makes Another Promise to Remove the Business Tax.

Although C. A. McDonnell may disagree with the Paris loan and the business tax, and may even accept the invitation to go to Quebec as a critic of the Government, the Taillon Administration will endorse his candidature and mark him as their own.

Hon. M. F. Hackett made this known at the meeting in St. Maurice Street rink last night, which was presided over by Senator Murphy. A large platform was erected, on which the stalwarts of the Conservative party ranged themselves around the candidate. There were between three and four hundred people in the hall, every one of whom was assumed by the speakers to be a friend. It was noticeable, though, that the applause and cheering came from the platform mainly. The applauding portion of the crowd was much the smaller one.

Mr. McDonnell took the adage, "Show me a man's friends and I will tell you what he is," as a text for the first part of his speech. He showed his political friends to the meeting as a guarantee of his own Conservative principles. He had served a time of probation, for since he was 21 he had taken an interest in the affairs of the Irish people in that ward, political, social, and otherwise. All he did was with the hope that the Irish people should not stand aloof, but should take their place and be a force and power in the Canadian confederation. For some small reasons he had to come before the electors as an Independent Conservative, but, he added, "I see the silver lining to the cloud. I have been perusing the financial working of the province under the present Administration and can see the sunshine breaking in, leading me to believe that in the not far distance an equilibrium will set in between revenue and expenditure, the last of the dark cloud over the province will have passed away, and a wave of prosperity will flow over it again."

Mr. Hackett said he was anxious to meet the people of Montreal and discuss the questions of the day with them. This he did by eulogizing the late member, Mr. McDonnell, and Mr. Curran, whom he considered the foremost Irishman in the land. A tirade against the late Administration followed, embellished with statistics, more or less one-sided. The taxes of 1892 he excused on the ground of necessity, and part of these he said were about to be taken off. "In 1892, when Mr. Hall put the tax into operation, he promised that so soon as it was possible it would be a source of pleasure and pride to us to have them taken off. That promise has been repeated in each budget speech since, and last December Premier Taillon promised to take off the commercial tax in the city of Montreal this year. It is with pleasure, Mr. Chairman, that I announce to-night that this tax will be taken off by the first act of the next session. As the youngest member of the Cabinet I did not want to make this statement on my own authority, so I got this telegram from Mr. Taillon:

"'Please declare tax on certain persons and all licenses for certain manufacturers will be repealed next session.

"'L. O. TAILLON.'

"This is not being done because there is an election in Montreal to-day, but because Mr. Hall promised it. The succession tax has been reduced one-third, and this year will be reduced further or abolished altogether."

As to loans Mr. Hackett declared that the Government had not made one new loan. All they did was to pay the debts of another administration, and they had done their best. The day for railway subsidies had passed, and this would mean another saving. Then came the official endorsement. "It has been asked," said Mr. Hackett, "if the Government of Quebec intends to support the candidature of Mr. McDonnell. It most certainly does. Mr. McDonnell is known to the citizens of Montreal, and his honesty and probity need no eulogy from me. Honest men are what we want at Quebec, men who will criticise our acts if they are not to their liking. We want men down there who will be thoroughly independent. We want men who will not bow and cringe at the wish of the party whips. For this reason the Government gives its entire and cordial support to the candidate selected by the people of St. Ann's Ward."

Mr. Paquette spoke in French, and caused an exodus from the hall.

Solicitor-General Curran was the last speaker, and steered clear of provincial politics. He contented himself, for the most part, with the softer amenities of political life.

The meeting concluded with the regulation cheers.

GREAT WRONG DONE.

Lt.-Col. Chapleau on the Manitoba School Question.

Winnipeg, Sept., 27.—Lieut.-Governor Chapleau, of Quebec, visited the French settlement of St. Jean to-day. In a speech in reply to the address of welcome Governor Chapleau said referring to the school question: "As a British subject, and as a looker-on at the events of the day, I would say that the unmistakeable voice of the great mass of people of Canada, both Protestants and Catholics and of every nationality proclaimed the fact that a great wrong had been perpetrated, and that while differences might arise as to the settlement of the minor points in the remedy to be provided, yet the mass concurred in this, that the wrong had to be righted." The Governor and his party leave for Quebec Saturday afternoon.

DEFAULTER ARRESTED.

W. B. Palmer Was Making for the Border on a Bicycle.

Hamilton, Sept. 27.—W. B. Palmer, the defaulting teller in the Bank of Commerce, who disappeared on Wednesday afternoon was arrested to-day by Detective Reid near the village of Jordan, between Hamilton and St. Catharines. Palmer had left the city by the H., G. and B. electric road, going to Grimsby, where he stayed until to-day, when he started to make his way to the border on his wheel. The local detective got a clue as to his mode of leaving the city and followed it up successfully. The amount of Palmer's shortage is not yet known. He was very haggard and careworn when arrested, and was apparently much worried about his affairs.

RUMORED CHANGES

IN THE HIGH OFFICIAL POSITIONS OF THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

REPETION OF THE REPORT OF MR. SEARGEANT'S RESIGNATION.

General Superintendent Stephenson's Name Mentioned in Connection With the General Managership—Other Rumored Changes.

London, Ont., Sept. 27.—Railway circles in this city were considerably agitated to-day over rumored changes in the high official positions on the Grand Trunk. It has been known for some time that General Manager Seargeant had determined to resign before the end of this year, and on the return of President Sir Rivers-Wilson and party to Montreal Mr. Seargeant handed in his resignation.

A Chicago despatch to-day says that the general managership was offered to Mr. S. R. Callaway, who for many years was private secretary to the old Great Western manager, and is now general manager of the Nickel Plate lines, but he declined.

It is now stated that General Superintendent Stephenson will be offered Mr. Seargeant's position, and Assistant Manager Wainwright will be continued in his present position. Assistant Superintendent Tiffin, of this city, has been named for the general superintendency, so the rumor goes, and Mr. Samuel Barker, formerly a resident of this city, and a member of the old law firm of Becher, Barker & Street, will succeed to Solicitor Bell's position, the latter official being retired after a long and successful term.

Who Mr. Tiffin's successor in the assistant superintendency here will be is not known, but many believe that Mr. David Morice, of Toronto, who was formerly assistant superintendent here, will be again given the position.

It is also stated that Mechanical Superintendent Herbert Wallis, of Montreal, will be promoted, and will succeed Mr. Joseph Hobson, of Hamilton. None of the head officials here were in a position to deny or confirm these rumors, but among the general employes they gained considerable credence. Mr. Tiffin has been in Montreal for several days, and is not expected home till next week.

DR. WILLIAMSON DEAD.

He Was a Brother-in-Law of Sir John A. Macdonald.

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 27.—Last night Rev. Dr. Williamson, professor of Astronomy in Queen's University, died after a brief illness, aged 87 years.

The funeral of Prof. Williamson will take place on Tuesday next at 3 p.m. The Senate of Queen's is making the arrangements.

Prof. James Williamson, L.L.D., had been identified with Queen's University since its second session, having come to Canada in 1843. For more than half a century he had been one of the mainstays of the college. His strong personality, his highly cultured mind, and his long experience gave much weight to his counsels, so that his influence was long paramount in the affairs of the university. Mathematics and physics were the subjects which he was nominally given to teach; but besides these two important branches he at different times lectured on philosophy, on chemistry, and natural history, while he was a highly accomplished classical scholar, and could at any time have taken hold of the Latin and Greek classes, if an exigency demanded it. He was an honor man of Edinburgh University, graduating at an era in the history of his Alma Mater of peculiar splendor, and it was his ambition to transplant as much as possible of the spirit and educational methods of that great institution to the Canadian college in which his life work was to be performed. At one time he was offered a position in Toronto University, which he declined, however, resolved to give his whole energy and attainments to the fuller development of the university with whose first endeavors his youth was identified. And it was his joy to see a college with only two professors and a principal, and a mere handful of raw lads as pupils, grow into the large and well-equipped Queen's University of to-day, with its hundreds of students in training. He was the link connecting the several periods of the college's history, and the bond uniting successive generations of students to the university. He was always the students' friend, though exacting enough in the work he required of them; and so his appearance on the platform of successive convocations, especially since he became advanced in years, was always the signal of uproarious applause from the boys in the gallery. He remained in harness to the last. Although suffering at the time, he insisted upon discharging the function which he loved, of presenting to the chancellor for laureation the graduates at the end of last session, leaving his bed for the purpose, and returning to it as soon as the function was over.

Dr. Williamson's power of concentration was remarkable; and so absorbed did he come in the subject engaging his attention that he was oblivious to everything else, and many are the curious anecdotes related of his absence of mind. Indeed, his last illness was traceable to a fit of abstraction, he having remained in the observatory for several hours at night pursuing his favorite study, until he was thoroughly chilled.

Dr. Williamson has left one son by his first wife, an Edinburgh lady. His second wife was a sister of the late Sir John A. Macdonald. In the life of the latter by Mr. Pope there are playful allusions to Dr. Williamson, between whom and his distinguished brother-in-law a warm attachment grew up; and now his ashes are to be laid beside those of the friend whom he so devoutly loved and by whom he was so heartily loved in return.

The Late Mr. Shepherd.

The Council of the municipality of Como at a recent meeting moved the following resolution of sympathy on the death of the late Mr. R. W. Shepherd: "That this Council desires to express deep sorrow and regret at the loss we have sustained in our midst by the death of Mr. R. W. Shepherd, sr., who was ever ready by his counsel and advice to aid and assist us in all our enterprises. We sincerely feel and know that his death will be greatly felt in this municipality, and his kindly presence greatly missed, and we hereby send our heartfelt regrets and condolence to Mrs. R. W. Shepherd and family in token of our esteem and respect for one who did so much for this community, and one whose place cannot be filled."

DEFENCE IS WEAK.

UNSATISFACTORY EVIDENCE ON BEHALF OF THEODORE DURANT.

EXTRAVAGANT ASSERTIONS OF HIS ATTORNEYS NOT BORNE OUT.

The Present Situation of the Case Causes no Change in the Bearing of the Prisoner.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 27.—If Theodore Durant has anything tangible upon which to base his denial of the charge that he murdered Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams his attorneys have failed to give satisfactory evidence of the fact up to the present time, in the opinion of those who have watched the case closely. After two days devoted to the testimony of the defence the trial was adjourned at noon to-day until next Tuesday. In the meantime, however, the defence have disclosed enough to satisfy the prosecution that Durant's attorneys are groping in the dark in the hope that something may develop within the next few days.

The weakness of the defence is made more apparent at this time on account of the extravagant assertions that Durant's attorneys have made since the trial began. When the prosecution was engaged in putting its case, and the situation looked darkest for Durant, Attorney Duprey was accustomed to snap his fingers and remark that he had no fears for the future of his client.

"We shall clear him in three minutes," said Duprey, "and the public will be at a loss to understand how Durant's name was ever connected with the case." The same line of extravagant claims was continued when Attorney Duprey made his opening speech for the defence.

"Not only will the prisoner tell with his own lips the simple story of his life on the day that Blanche Lamont was murdered," continued Duprey, "but Dr. Cheney will tell you that Durant was at Cooper Medical College at the very hour when the murder of Blanche Lamont is said to have taken place. Besides that we will prove to you that Durant never tried to pawn Miss Lamont's ring at Oppenheim's store. On the contrary, we will bring forward the young man who did try to pawn a ring at Oppenheim's similar to the one worn by Miss Lamont."

In view of these startling statements it was at first beleieved that the defence might have a strong case held in reserve which would put to a severe test the case of the prosecution. Dr. Cheney, who was expected to tell so much for the defence, was as strong a witness for the prosecution as has taken the stand during the trial. Instead of fulfilling Duprey's statement, and swearing that Durant attended a lecture at Cooper Medical College the day he said he had no recollection of seeing the young medical student there. The denial dumfounded the defence.

To-day, instead of placing witnesses on the stand to testify to some material facts in connection with Durant's alibi, two gasfitters were called to testify with regard to the sunburners in the gallery of Emanuel Church. For two hours the crowd was bored and the jury made tired bya long series of questions and answers relative to the minutest part of the construction of a sunburner. Not once during the entire session was the name of Blanche Lamont mentioned, nor was anything said to indicate tha tit was not a suit to collect a plumber's bill instead of a murder trial that was before the court. The evident purpose of the examination, however, was to show that the repairing of sunburners would necessarily result in the escape of a great deal of gas. This testimony will be used to substantiate Durant's statement that he was suffering from partial asphyxiation when he came down from the church belfry, trembling and flushed, and met Organist King in the auditorium.

A significant feature of the testimony of the two gasfitters was the fact that each testified that he made an examination of the sunburners in Emanuel Church on September 21. The prosecution interprets this to mean the defence had nothing upon which to base a case until the case of the people was nearly completed. Only when confronted by the actual necessity of opening its case, it is believed that the defence made an attempt to secure witnesses to testify with regard to the sunburners.

The present standing of his case, however, produced no change in the demeanor of Durant. Day after day he sits in the court room beside his father and mother and listens to the evidence against him without a sign of emotion. This stoicism on the part of the prisoner is only surpassed by that of his mother. Mrs. Durant seems to have no conception of the gravity of her son's situation. Attired in waving plumes and a tailor-made gown, such as a lady might wear at a matinee, she laughs and chats with her friends while the evidence that the prosecution believes will hang her son is being put against him. To frequenters of the court room, Mrs. Durant's conduct is almost as unfathomable as that of her son. Durant's father, however, looks careworn and gives evidence of the intense mental strain through which he must be passing.

MONTREAL CENTRE.

Dr. Guerin's Canvass Meeting With Encouraging Results.

Dr. Guerin's central committee rooms have been opened in Birks' old store, 233 St. James Street, and ward committee rooms in Griffintown, Point St. Charles, and Centre Ward. The various committees are all hard at work, and the prospects even thus early in the canvass indicate a victory for Dr. Guerin. The little muddle into which Premier Taillon brought his candidate over the business tax bills has disheartened the McDonnell party, and the exposure of the trick which was to be played on the electorate has roused even political opponents in favor of the honest candidate. Dr. Guerin's meetings will be in full swing next week.

Another Antarctic Expedition.

London, Sept. 27.—The Times to-morrow will publish a despatch from Melbourne which says that Hon. George Houstoun Reid, Premier of the colony of New South Wales, is securing the co-operation of the other colonies in the raising of funds for an Antartic expedition.

IT WAS A CASE OF SUICIDE.

Toronto, Sept. 27.—A post-mortem examination was made this morning of the remains of Alvin Jenks, who was found dead yesterday morning at his house, 112 Brunswick Street. The examination showed that he came to his death entirely from asphyxiation from gas. There was no symptoms of poisoning, nor was there anything else of a suspicious nature to be found. Coroner Young has withdrawn the warrant for an inquest this evening, the case being obviously one of suicide.

MEETING OF THE CABINET.

D. GIROUARD, Q.C., M.P., APPOINTED TO THE SUPREME COURT.

QUESTION OF AN EXTRA SESSION TO BE DISCUSSED TO-DAY.

Applicants for the Senatorial Vacancies Pressing Their Claims Upon the Ministers.

(Special to the Herald.)

Ottawa, Sept. 27.—All the Ministers of the Crown except Senator Ferguson, of Prince Edward Island, were present at the meeting of the Cabinet to-day. Another meeting will be held to-morrow, when it is understood that the question of the extra session will be discussed. Senator Frank Smith is staying over for this meeting.

Mr. D. Girouard, Q.C., M.P. for Jacques Cartier, was appointed a Justice of the Supreme Court in place of Justice Fournier, retired.

The appointment of Senators was taken up at to-day's meeting. It is stated on pretty good authority that Hon. Michael Adams is to get one of the appointments for New Brunswick. There are ten vacancies in all. Everyone who has any chance of getting a position is now looking for it from the Government, and in consequence there are a large number of politicians and party heelers chasing the members of the Cabinet to-night and advocating their claims for preferment. Dr. Lachapelle, M.P.; Mr. Frechette, M.P.; Mr. Adams and Mr. Leblanc, Speaker of the Quebec Legislature, were among those who were in the city to-day. They arrived from Collingwood with Mr. Ouimet.

It is also reported to-night that Mr. Beaudin is to get the appointment of the vacancy on the Superior Court bench in Montreal.

At to-day's session of the Stationary Engineers, the last day of the sixth annual convention, a good deal of business was run through. After receiving routine reports, a discussion came on anent a motion to procure working models of such machinery and apparatus as the members were in the habit of using. Many of the members thought that manufacturers in the Dominion would only be too willing to furnish models, in view of the benefits to be derived from the advertising they would thus receive. A motion that the executive take steps to procure such models, the understanding being that all local branches might have the use of these, was carried.

Prof. Henry Montgomery, of Trinity University, Toronto, and his son, are in the city. Their trip is for the purpose of collecting specimens of minerals in this district for the use of the class in the university. Prof. Montgomery has been for several weeks searching in the mining quarters of East Templeton and up the Gatineau, and has succeeded in obtaining several large cases of minerals. He stated that there is no section in Canada so rich in so many different ores as the Gatineau district.

The Riessler brothers, whose extradition has been granted by the Dominion Government, will be forwarded to Germany by the steamer Canadia, of the Belgian Line, from Montreal to-morrow. They are charged with embezzlement, and were arrested in Toronto.

The Canada Central Fair practically closed to-day. To-night's performance, which was witnessed by another immense crowd, being the last of the programme of attractions. To-morrow will be devoted to the removing of stock. As already stated, the fair was a great success, and all are loud in their praises of the way in which the executive carried out all the details.

AMUSEMENTS.

The spacious stage of Sohmer Park has often been turned into a lecture platform before and large crowds have been in attendance, but it is doubtful if there has ever been such a large audience there as will be on Monday evening next, when Dr. Thomas O'Sullivan of Limerick, Ireland, one of Ireland's most gifted orators, will deliver a lecture on the Irish question of to-day. The doctor is now in his his way from the Chicago convention, and it is at the request of a number of friends Montreal that he will lecture here, and these friends say it will be the greatest lecture on the Irish question ever delivered in Canada.

BREVITIES.

The ladies of the Samaritan Hospital on Sherbrooke Street will hold an "At Home" on the afternoon and evenings of Tuesday and Wednesday next, October 1 and 2.

The Presbyterian College will open on Wednesday next, October 2. A large increase is noted in the number of students who will be in attendance during the coming session.

A small fire occurred in the premises of Mr. A. Leverdeau, 250 Lafontaine Street, at 7.45 o'clock last evening, slight damage being done. The fire originated in a bedroom, while the family were in the lower apartments of the house.

The 6th Fusiliers passed inspection on the Champ de Mars at nine o'clock last evening. There was a good turnout, and the parade was a most satisfactory one.

The visiting governors to the Montreal General Hospital for the week commencing Monday, the 30th September, are: J. E. Mullin, I. H. Stearns, Wm. Yuile, W. R. Miller.

A Curious Little Ceremony.

There is a curious little ceremony that takes place nightly in a theatre. To the manager, reposing in his dressing room between the acts, enters a gentleman of engaging manners in evening dress, who presents him with a little slip of paper. This slip of paper the manager sometimes glances at with a complacent smile, and puts, significantly, into his waistcoat pocket; sometimes he rends it in fragments and casts it to earth, cursing his night as Job his day. That little document is a note of the box office receipts for the evening, the financial pulse of the theatre.

Now with a play by a brand new man, unless it chanced to catch on from the very first, there would probably be the most feverishly fluctuating and perplexing varieties in that pulse; little runs up of a few nights, and little runs down again. So that the manager might well be in doubtful dilemma. If he takes the play off, he loses all the money he has spent upon it; if he keeps it on, it may work up into a success—it may, also, lose more money for him, when he has already lost too much.—Nineteenth Century.

TREND OF TRADE.

Bradstreet's and Dun's Reviews of the Past Week.

Failures for the week have been 216 in the United States, against 235 last year, and 50 in Canada, against 55 last year.

Bradstreet's to-morrow will say: Features of the week are increased demand for money east and west, the maintenance of widespread and active demand for iron and steel, and a further upward movement of the price of raw cotton, together with advances in quotatios for flour, wheat and wool. Sudden changes in the weather affecting a wide expanse of territory have made general trade irregular, but reports from these sections unfavorably affected are in part offset by the stimulation of demand for certain staples in other parts of the country.

New York, Sept. 27.—Dun's trade review will say to-morrow: The fall statement of about 2,000 commercial failures for the third quarter of 1895 will be published next week, and will show liabilities of about $30,000,000, of which about $11,000,000 have been of manufacturing, and $17,600,000 of trading concerns.

Wheat exports from both coasts of the United States and from Montreal, wheat flour as wheat, are the largest since last March, 3,151,000 bushels, against 2,-538,000 bushels last week, 2,562,000 bushels in the week one year ago, and as compared with 3,189,000 bushels two years ago, and with 4,017,000 busjels three years ago.

Bradstreet's says: In the Province of Quebec general trade shows improvement since August. Demand is active for sugar, teas and canned goods, and with settled weather it is believed orders for dry goods will be improved. At Toronto wholesale business is comparatively quiet, but prospects are for an active business. Advices from St. John, N.B., are that wholesale trade is quite satisfactory, many customers from a distance being present. The Nova Scotia apple crop will not be as large as last year, but the quality will be good.

Bank clearings at Winnipeg, Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and Halifax aggregate $19,263,000 this week, a falling off of about four per cent. from last week, and two per cent. as compared with the like week one year ago, but an increase of ten per cent. as contrasted with the like period in 1893.

There are 1,336 mercantile failures reported from the Canadian Dominion during the past nine months, 86 fewer than in the like portion of last year. The reduction in the total volume of liabilities of failing traders in the Dominion is even more marked, 37 per cent., and is well distributed throughout the most thickly settled provinces.

Bradstreet's reports the week's total bank clearings at 85 principal cities of the United States as $992,924,422, an increase over a year ago of 20.8 per cent. Outside of New York City the clearings were $433,064,656, an increase of 11.3 per cent.

The clearings in the Dominion of Canada were: Montreal, $10,777,814, decrease 10.8 per cent.; Toronto, $5,537,222, increase 11.9 per cent.; Halifax, $1,258,770, increase 6.8 per cent.; Winnipeg, $1,028,639, decrease 10.6 per cent.; Hamilton, $661,079, increase 21.0 per cent.; totals $19,263,524, decrease 3.5 per cent.

TO ELECT THE LORDS.

Proposed Conservative Reform of the Upper Chamber.

London, Sept. 27.—The Daily Chronicle, an organ of the Liberal party, states in its issue of to-day that the leaders of the Conservative party intends to make the House of Lords an elective body, either adopting the principle already existing in relation to Scottish Peers sitting in the House of Lords, or to have the House of Commons elect an upper chamber from the peerage. It is also, according to the Chronicle, intended to give Peers the right to forego the House of Lords' prerogatives and enter the House of Commons.

London, Sept. 28.—An editorial in the Graphic this morning on the reform of the House of Lords says: "It is essential that the number of hereditary peers now sitting in the Lords should be reduced by applying the elective principle employed in the cases of the Scotch and Irish peers. The Earl of Dunraven and other independent Unionists are known to favor this. Its application would purge the Lords of a few of the black sheep who give occasion to the enemy to scoff, and would at the same time allow the peers who are inactive in the work of Parliament to be replaced by representatives of great municipal and other commercial and learned institutions, and possibly would also allow the introduction into the sovereign parliament of the empire of representatives of the great communities across the sea, who bear allegiance to the Queen, but who have not a voice in the control of the Government."

HALF-RATERS ARE EVEN.

SPRUCE IV AND ETHELWYNN NOW CREDITED WITH TWO RACES EACH.

AMERICAN YACHT WON YESTERDAY'S RACE BY A LITTLE OVER ONE MINUTE.

English Athletes Entered for the Canadian Championships—The International Cricket Match—To-day's Rugby Matches—Lennoxville Will Default to Quebec — General Sporting News.

Oyster Bay, N.Y., Sept. 27.—The fourth race between the English challenger Spruce IV., of the Minima Yacht Club, and Ethelwynn, of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club, of Connecticut, was sailed to-day on Long Island Sound. As the racers came over the last leg Spruce went ahead very fast, and it was apprehended by some spectators that she would overhaul the Yankee yet. But the distance that the Connecticut ship was ahead was too great to be overcome, and the Ball brothers landed their ship a winner by one minute twenty-two seconds. A surprise came when Mr. Sturdee, after reaching the club house, sat down at one of the desks and began to write out a protest. Nobody who had witnessed the race could discover on what he was basing his claim, but he went ahead preparing what seemed to be a lengthy document. He was mum about its contents, but when he got through with it he handed it over to the committee, who immediately went into session to act upon it. At about the same time the club members became aware that the official figures of the day were as follows:

Start—Spruce IV., 2.25.00; Ethelwynn, 2.25.00.

First mark—Spruce, 2.48.03; Ethelwynn, 2.48.08.

Second mark—Ethelwynn, 2.33.36; Spruce,, 2.35.46.

Third mark—Ethelwynn, 3.54.39; Spruce, 3.56.24.

Fourth mark — Ethelwynn, 4.15.05; Spruce, 4.16.13.

Fifth mark—Ethelwynn, 4.54.20; Spruce, 4.55.52.

Finish—Ethelwynn, 5.11.36; Spruce, 5.12.46.

ANOTHER CHALLENGER.

London, Sept. 27.—Mr. Herbert Moir, a well-known colonial yachtsman, has written an open letter to the Yachting World, in which he says:

"I know that I am expressing the feelings of many thousands of Englishmen at home and abroad, when I say that the America's Cup should be brought back to the Old Country. I am prepared to form a syndicate to build a yacht to be called West Australia, to bring the cup back to Old England, and to subscribe £500."

Since this letter appeared, Mr. Moir has been fairly inundated with offers to subscribe sums ranging from £50 to £1,000, until at the present moment he has been promised over £30,000 for the purpose of challenging for the cup. Mr. Moir is the head of a large western Australian corporation with headquarters in Cannon Street, London.

Mr. Moir said, in an interview this afternoon: "I have long wished to build a yacht to compete for the America's Cup. I wrote a challenge, which was published first in the Financial News last week. Since then Mr. Rose has challenged for the cup.

"I understand that Valkyrie III. cost the Dunraven syndicate £80,000, with designers' fees, and I am quite prepared to spend an equal sum. I shall call the boat after the colony where I have made my greatest successes, West Australia. It will be a fine keel craft, and will be built upon lines somewhat similar to Britannia.

"The acceptance of Mr. Rose's challenge for the America's Cup will preclude the possibility of my racing in 1896, but I shall have my yacht ready for 1897.

"In this enterprise I am associated with a syndicate of wealthy yachtsmen and sportsmen of the west end. I cannot reveal the names of these gentlemen at present, however. I am ready to sail anywhere. Any water that is good enough for Defender is good enough for me. Any conditions that are fair enough for Defender are fair enough for me.

"The question as to who shall design the West Australia has not yet been settled. I am negotiating with four designers. I may say, however, that I prefer the Clyde to the South of England yacht-builders."

The ship's boys won the toss, and, having elected to kick with the sun, soon settled down to their work with a very keen appetite. The game was not many minutes old before the home team defence was called upon to do some very lively work, and, if combination were added to the pretty pieces of individual play, there are many teams in this city who would feel proud to see the names of some of the ship's boys figuring on their list of players. The teams were as follows:

NEWS FROM QUEBEC.

Disappointment for Lieut. Panet—Supreme Court Rumor.

(Special to the Herald.)

Quebec, Sept. 27.—Hon. Mr. Flynn returned from the Magdalen Islands today.

It is reported that Hon. A. R. Angers sent word to a friend here to-day, saying that efforts were being made at Ottawa to get Mr. Justice Taschereau to resign. The same report goes on to say that Mr. Justice Wurtele would have a chance to succeed him.

Lieut.-Col. Wilson, R.C.A., has just returned from Toronto, where he instituted an action for $10,000 damages against the Toronto Telegram for alleged libellous statements published in that journal anent the gallant colonel's recent visit to England.

Considerable excitement was caused here by the news from Kingston that Capt. Gaudet, of "A" Battery, R.C.A., has been appointed superintendent of the cartridge factory at Quebec, in place of Lieut.-Col. Prevost, deceased. Lieut. Panet and all his Conservative friends were startled by the announcement.

The Provincial Superintendent of Education to-day assured a deputation of Protestant ratepayers of St. Gregoire, who complained that they were obliged to pay school taxes to the Roman Catholic Commissioners, that relief would be afforded either by special enactment or by Order-in-Council.

Messrs. Klock Bros., lumber merchants, of Mattawa, completed arrangements here to-day for the purchase of a block of 150 miles of timber limits on the Upper Ottawa, belonging to Mr. A. Charlebois, contractor, of this city. The price paid is over $100,000.

ROMAN CATHOLIC PROVINCIAL COUNCIL.

Informal Opening of the Council Yesterday.

The bishops, who will compose the First Provincial Roman Catholic Council, assembled yesterday at the church at St. Henri. The edifice was beautifully decorated, and the sanctuary was a blaze of light. The scene was indeed beautiful, and the service was impressive. There was little standing room to be found in the church, but the congregation was composed of ladies mostly. Solemn benediction was celebrated by Dom Antoine, the mitred abbot of the Trappist Fathers of Oka. There were present at the benediction Mgr. Louis Zephirin Moreau, bishop of St. Hyacinthe; Mgr. Maxime Decelles, coadjutor bishop of St. Hyacinthe and bishop of Druzipora; Mgr. Paul Larocque, bishop of Sherbrooke; Mgr. Joseph Medard Emard, bishop of Valleyfield. Their Lordships are the suffragant bishops of His Grace Archbishop Fabre. They were received by Cure R. Decarie at the presbytery at St. Henri. Amongst some of the clergy who followed in procession from the church to the presbytery, which is only a few yards distant, were: Rev. F. X. Plante, Rev. T. Decarie, Rev. A. V. J. Piette, Rev. J. B. Rioux, Rev. J. A. Brault, Rev. E. P. Guilbault, Rev. F. X. Ecrement and the Christian Brothers. As the ceremonies at St. Henri did not form part of those of the council there was not a large number of the clergy present. After a short stay at the presbytery the bishops departed in double carriages for the archbishop's palace. The people of St. Henri and St. Cunegonde turned out en masse to see them pass, and Notre Dame Street was decorated with flags. The children of the brothers' and of the sisters' schools lined the sidewalks. At the Cathedral the bishops were received by Canons Racicot, Vaillant, Archambault and Cousineau. They were conducted to the altar of the Blessed Sacrament, where they remained in prayer for a short time, after which they were received by His Grace Archbishop Fabre, in the parlor of the palace. The reception was quite informal. To-day at 3 p.m. the bishops will hold a preliminary meeting, at which they will elect their canons and their theologians. These will be instructed to attend immediately the sessions of the council. His Grace with the four suffragant bishops are the fathers of the council.

McGill Glee and Banjo Club's Concert.

Great preparations are being made for the concert on the 25th of October. Everything is now in running order, and both clubs have settled down to hard practice. Nearly forty names were added to the membership the past week, making a total of sixty members, the highest number ever reached in the history of the McGill Club. Yale and Princeton Clubs will be the guests of the McGill boys on the above date, and no doubt this will be the commencement of more intimate relations between McGill and her sister universities, as well as bringing about more friendly feelings amongst her different faculties regarding theatre night.

THE BANQUE DU PEUPLE.

Depositors and Shareholders Appoint a Committee to Work With Directors.

An informal meeting of stockholders and depositors of the Banque du Peuple was held at 8 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the office of Hon. F. E. Among those present were: Hon. A. Thibaudeau, A. Racine, Samuel Bell, J. O. Dupuy, John Crawford, Leopold Rodier, George W. Eadie, P. P. Martin, James Baylis, Jesse Joseph, F. X. Craig, H. The resolution was given to the president of the bank, and this morning a meeting of the board will be called to consider it.

An answer will be communicated to the chairman of the meeting at noon today.

The committee represent several hundred thousand dollars in deposits and shares in the bank.

COULD BE IMPROVED.

Marquis of Londonderry on the House of Lords.

London, Sept. 27.—Responding to a toast to the House of Lords, at a banquet given at Ripon to-night, the Marquis of Londonderry said that he thought the House of Lords could be improved in many ways, and he hoped that the Unionists would grapple with the question. The House of Lords might hereafter have to oppose the House of Commons in measures not so unpopular as the Home Rule measure. Therefore he wished it to be strong, that no stone could be cast at its action.

George Bennett and his wife were arrested last evening by Constables Robert and Charrette, of No. 6 Station, on a charge of stealing $65 and other valuables from Lavecque's restaurant, St. James Street.

AMUSEMENTS.

The grand concert by the Melba Operatic Concert Company, which is to take place on next Friday evening, at the Academy of Music, will undoubtedly be one of the memorable musical occasions of the year. It will be notable for the opportunity to hear Madame Scalchi, the great contralto artist, without whom, it may almost be said, no great operatic cast can now be made; to enjoy the singing of Mlle. Bauermeister, whose great popularity at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, has been earned only by unquestioned musical gifts and a remarkable power over her audiences; to appreciate the fine abilities both as vocalists and as dramatic artists of Sig. Guiseppe Campanari, the basso, and Sig. D'Aubigne, the tenor, of this company who, if all reports are true, are to prove themselves worthy members of a distinguished musical world; the efforts of all having the important assistance of a well-trained orchestra, under the baton of an English conductor, Mr. Landon Ronald, especially engaged for this company, whose ability may be judged from the fact that he has become chef d'orchestre under the famous Sir Augustus Harris.

But, after all, one has so far but considered the accessories of the picture, the setting of the gem. The supreme interest of the occasion will be in Melba, whose liquid notes have set crazy with enthusiasm the soberest critics of the musical centres of two continents. There can be no doubt that in hearing her this community is to listen for the first time to the only artist who can give the musical delight heretofore only possible to be experienced by those who were so fortunate as to hear Jenny Lind and Patti in their prime.

THE THEATRE ROYAL.

There are numerous productions nowadays which find their way upon the stage, and are termed farce-comedies, because there is nothing else they can be called. "A Railroad Ticket," however, is a refreshing exception to this class. It is full of ludicrous situations and funny scenes, and is entertaining throughout. The plot—for there is one in "A Railroad Ticket"—hinges upon the trials and tribulations of a ticket broker, who makes up in nerve what he lacks in capital. The action is quick, and the dialogue is always bright, and at times witty, while the stage is seldom bereft of the presence of a bevy of pretty girls, whose tasteful costumes and bright faces lend color and charm to the whole production. A real electric car, propelled by a storage battery and running upon steel rails makes frequent trips across the stage, and lends an air of realism to the play. The car plays an important part, and the scenes enacted in connection with it are productive of considerable merriment. The company presenting the piece is an excellent one, and includes Eugene Canfield, Jas. H. Bradbury, Gus. C. Weinberg, Harry Porter, Frank Gardiner, John S. THE RETORT COURTEOUS.

Mayor Villeneuve Writes the Attorney-General Regarding the $500,000 Suit.

Mayor Villeneuve sent the following reply to the Hon. T. C. Casgrain, Attorney-General, yesterday evening regarding the letter of the latter on the claim of the Provincial Government for $500,000 against the city on account of the fines collected in the Recorder's Court.

"The Hon. Th. Chase Casgrain, Attorney-General, Quebec:

"Dear Sir,—In reply to your letter of the 25th inst., I must tell you that I never said, and nobody said, in my presence, that you had withdrawn your claim or abandoned your action, but simply that you stayed the proceedings in order to give the Council of the City of Montreal time to come to an arrangement with the Government on the subject. I also said, and you cannot deny it, that you had stated that if the action had been taken it was due to a misunderstanding, and I concluded from this that if there had been no misunderstanding no action would have been taken, and that it should be considered as non-existent. This was, it seems to me, the logical conclusion to be drawn from our conversation.

"In any case, the proof that I very well understood your statement is that on the day following our interview I caused the Finance Committee to appoint a sub-committee to enter into communication with the Government on the matter.

"As to the statements made by the city attorneys, I am informed that what they really said has been misunderstood, and that they never had any intention of saying that the city had no serious defence to offer to the suit entered by the Government. I am no more responsible in this case than in many others for the interpretations or comments of the newspapers, and I hope this explanation may satisfy you.

"I repeat that we shall be ready to see you, either in Quebec or Montreal, whenever you may deem it opportune, or wherever it will be more convenient for you to receive us, and to produce for your information all the papers and documents relating to this matter, and all the communications which have passed between the Government and the City.

"I have the honor to be, Sir,

"Your faithful servant,

"J. O. VILLENEUVE, Mayor."

HIS PROTEGE.

I was sojourning in the land of the far Southwest, and contentedly loafing, as particularly suits the climate, and a second lieutenant, when the office door opened slowly and a head covered with an old Grand Army hat was thrust in.

The lips moved, but made no sound; then the head was withdrawn and the door almost shut. It opened again, a very little way, and disclosed part of a blue-clad figure, some six feet in height.

Then it closed again, and opened as before, only somewhat wider. The man came into the room, but kept one hand on the knob, to facilitate his escape if necessary, it appeared.

I held my peace and watched him. He was worse than unkempt; he was, in fact, about as seedy an individual as I have ever seen covered by a Grand Army coat. His eyes were red and his hands shook badly. I suspected at once what the trouble was, knowing the failing of his class.

Reconciling himself to the shutting of the door, and relinquishing his grasp on the knob at last, he took off his hat and sat upon the extreme edge of a chair. He studied the window panes intently, and chewed his tobacco in a meditative fashion.

There was no telling how long this might last, so I faced about to my desk again and began to write.

Fully ten minutes elapsed before the silent figure gave any sign. "I'm busted again," it began.

"Yes," I answered.

"Uh-hu."

I went at my copying again. Five more minutes.

"Where's the colonel at?"

"He's sick."

"Oh, he is?" This in the tone of a child reading a primer. "What's the matter with 'im?"

"He's got the grippe."

"When's he comin' back?"

"In two or three weeks, perhaps."

"Oh, damn!" Quite as you or I might [illegible]ly say "Pshaw."

"Is there anything I can do for you?"

"None." A resumption of the window and tobacco. "I'm busted again."

"So you said."

"I've been drunk, too."

"Well, you look rather like it."

"Do I?"

"Queer, ain't it, how you can most generally tell?"

"Very queer," I agreed.

"Now, I thought I looked pretty good, but I reckon I was off."

"You might be worse," I consoled him. "I've seen them look worse."

"Yes, so have I." The pause was repeated. "I told you I was busted, didn't I? Well, what in blazes do you suppose I told you for?"

"I really can't say."

"Can't you, really? Wasn't you never busted?"

With a truthfulness far greater than might be generally felt, I replied that I had been sometimes.

"Well, what do you generally want when you're in a hole?"

"Money."

"That's what I want."

The deduction was logical and obvious. I felt my nerves trembling and fell weakly into the net.

"I suppose you want me to lend you some?"

"Nope, but I want you to give me some. You're going to give me some, ain't you?"

"Well, I really can't see why I should."

"The colonel does."

"The colonel may have some reasons for it. Besides, how do I know he does?"

"I say so."

The tone was above dispute.

"And does the colonel act as your paymaster whenever you are hard up?"

"Yep."

"Why does he help you to go to the bad?"

"It does him more good than it does him hurt, I guess."

The colonel was not one deliberately and in cold blood to care for the cultivation of his soul; there must be some other reason, and I said so.

"I reckon there is."

"What is it?"

"I done him a service once."

"May I ask what it was?"

"I jest kept his little brother from gettin' shot."

"How was that?"

"Well, will you give me a quarter if I tell you?"

"What will you do with it?"

"Get two drinks."

"All right; go on."

"That's how I got that arm."

"What arm?" I enquired, looking at the member.

"That. Don't you see I can't bend it? The piece of shell cut through my arm and along in here," placing his palsied fingers on his side.

"The colonel sat an awful lot of store by that brother of his. His name was Kingsley and he wasn't mor'n eighteen. He was a mighty fine feller, too, and thay told a lot of stuff about his havin' a young wife up there in the North. They sez she was the very girl the colonel was mashed on, too. The colonel is a good-hearted cuss ain't he?"

I replied with conviction that he was.

"If it had been me an' my brother I'd have wanted him killed off, I guess, but the colonel, he like to have went crazy every time the youngster got in the hot part of the fight. He sez to him once—I heard him—'If you should be shot it 'ud just end Dora,' and one time they got a letter sayin' that Dora had a little girl. I guess he wasn't as much in love with his Dora as the colonel was.

The story came to an abrupt end here. The veteran was thinking over his past. In course of time he went on:

"Once just before the baby was born there was a fight, and the colonel couldn't make Kingsley stay where it was safe. The colonel, he was charging around like a hen that's hatched ducks and sees 'em swimin'. But he couldn't get near his brother. He was by me for a minute and he says to me to keep that fool boy out of trouble. 'Bout ten minutes later a shell busted near us and I go in front of Kingsley. That's all."

That was all. It certainly didn't sound like much, as the laconic old fellow put it. I looked at his face, which was to the last degree "battle scarred," as the the soldiers say; at his nervous hands and wavering eyes, his filthy coat and shapeless hat.

This was all that was left of a hero—a man who for a mere friend had risked death and endured worse than death.

I admired a character I could not understand. Then with the sophistry of my race and kind, the mighty virtue of small souls, I condemned his weakness. He was disgusting; a dirty old drunkard, a beggar, too; a man who would ask for a dime to get a drink with; lost to all pride and sense of shame. It was men of this kind who gave old soldiers such a hard name.

However, I came down to his mental level by degrees. He was quivering with anticipation, and the hand of the good arm was lying on his knee ready to be stretched out at a moment's notice. What makes you drink like that?" I felt that the role of reformer did not suit me.

"I like it."

"But why don't you try to stop?"

"Can't—now."

"Whatever made you start in?"

"The pain from the wound. I got drunk to stop it, and by and by, when it had stopped for good, I couldn't let up. Ain't you done askin' questions yet? I want that quarter."

My consciousness did not trouble me in the least for turning over to him enough of my month's pay to keep him gloriously drunk for a week; nor even did it when I saw him taken in a limp and senseless state to the station house.

I told the Colonel and he paid the veteran's fine—for the thirty-first time, he informed me.—Gwendolen Overton, in the Argonaut.

Poetry Societies.

How lamentably true is Mr. Lang's contention, "Can anything speak more clearly of the decadence of the art of poetry than the birth of so many poetical societies? They all demonstrate that people have not the courage to study verse in solitude and for their proper pleasure; men and women need confederates in this adventure. There is safety in numbers, and, by dint of tea parties, recitations, discussions, quarrels and the like, Dr. Furnivall and his friends keep blowing the faint embers on the altar of Apollo. They cannot raise a flame!" Such may be the fate of Tennyson.

But no society—not even a clique of log rollers—was needed to secure him popularity. He gave expression to the intenser emotions and larger movements of his time—or, at all events, what seemed to be such—to an extent and with a perfection of art to which none of his rivals could lay claim. And when all is said and done, what is the greatest poet of a period but the man who gives the most artistic expression to the deepest feelings of the greatest number?—From the Scottish Review.

THE DEMERS TRIAL

PREVIOUS MEDICAL EVIDENCE CONTRADICTED BY DEFENCE.

PRISONER'S EMPLOYERS GIVE HIM A GOOD CHARACTER.

No Women Were Present Yesterday as Spectators

The most striking feature of the Court of Queen's Bench yesterday was the entire absence of the female element The judge's orders in regard to their presence in the court have been strictly enforced.

Some new evidence is expected in the rebuttal examination in the Demers case, and this evidence will most likely bear on the blood stained clothing. It is understood that a reporter will testify as to certain statements Demers made to him when not under oath in reference to his movements on the day of the tragedy.

The first witness called was John Bumbray. The prisoner worked for him during two years. During the time that Demers worked for him his character was of the very best.

Madame Sauve was next called. During the time that Demers and his wife were her neighbors she was never witness to any scenes, and according to her opinion they were a model couple. She had never had any reason to find fault with the conduct of Demers towards her daughter.

Edmond Boisseau, clerk, St. Hyacinthe, swore that it was he who packed Demers' furniture and goods, and sent them to St. Charles. He did not pack up a blue dress.

R. J. Latimer, carriage-maker, testified that Demers began work for him about two years and a half ago. His character and general reputation so far as witness knew was of the best, and far above the average. On the day of the murder he saw accused several times during the course of the morning. About 11 o'clock he was engaged in a business conversation with the prisoner for about 15 minutes. At that time Demers was to all appearance in his usual state, and he noticed no signs whatever of excitement. Witness never heard of Dame Philomene Roy, except in reading her evidence in the paper. She never worked for him.

Mark Larose, clerk of the Circuit Court, produced a record of an action taken by Philomene Waesson Roy against one Larocque, dated in the year 1889, in which plaintiff said under oath that she was a spinster. According to her evidence in the Demers case, at that time Dame Philomene Roy had already been twice married.

D. Brodeur, advocate, stated that he was the lawyer who drew up the document, and remembers distinctly that the woman told him she was a spinster. When witness happened to be at the enquete recently, he heard the woman declare that she had been married twice. He would not attempt to judge of the legal value of her evidence at the enquete.

MORE MEDICAL EVIDENCE.

Dr. Arthur Joyal, physician, Montreal; testified that he has been practising medicine for twelve years. During that time he spent three years and six months in Europe. He has heard the evidence in this case. When asked if it was possible assuming that the evidence brought out is true, for this woman to have died between twelve and one o'clock, he replied, that unless he were to make a choice of the evidence of some individual witness, he could not answer the question.

Crown Prosecutor Quinn objected to this answer, as it was not the witness's place to assume or judge of the evidence; that rested with the jury.

Mr. Desmarais then changed the question, assuming that at three o'clock the woman was dead, and at ten o'clock the body was rigid.

Witness was asked what was his opinion regarding the hour of death.

Dr. Joyal replied that he considered the death a recent one, adding that by recent he meant any length of time, not less, however than two hours.

Witness volunteered to read from an author regarding the rigidity of bodies.

Crown Prosecutor Quinn, however, objected to this, claiming that a witness had right to speak from his experience and scientific knowledge, but was not justified in reading or quoting extracts.

Judge Wurtele, after hearing the argument, retired for a quarter of an hour, and on his return decided that the witness was not justified in reading from an author. His evidence, the learned judge said, should be confined to his practical knowledge or experience, and not what he had learnt from books.

The court rose at one o'clock.

At the resumption of the case at 2.15 the evidence of Dr. Joyal was continued. It went to show that bleeding hastened the coldness of the body, and if the vertebrae of the neck is cut rigidity may be instantaneous. Witness stated that if the rigidity of the body was still increasing or becoming more pronounced at six o'clock he would place the hour of death at between twelve and one o'clock.

The position of the body when found goes to prove that death was instantaneous, otherwise the weight of the limbs alone would make them fall flat, unless otherwise obstructed.

Witness had requested Mr. Desmarais recently to allow him to visit the house in which the tragedy occurred. He had gone there accompanied by Mr. Desmarais, and during the course of his visit he opened the blinds in the room where the woman was murdered. On the frame of the shutter he noticed a spot which he took to be blood. Later on the same day witness examined the spot by means of a microscope and was convinced that it was a spot of blood. In the afternoon when he returned he noticed some cloth threads on that portion of the shutter where the blood mark was. The shutter was produced in court and it was clearly apparent that where the blood spot was the wood has been cut away.

Jean Baptiste Adolphe Lamarche, physician, the next witness, said he has been a professor in Laval University for the last twenty years. He has been professor in various branches of medicine. A supposed case was put before witness of a person dead under the same circumstances as Mrs. Demers, and he was asked to give his opinion regarding the time at which death occurred. The fact that a great flow of blood had taken place inclined him to believe that the time of death was comparatively recent, and taking into consideration the fact that rigidity was incomplete witness believed that death might have occurred within three or four hours and perhaps less. Rigor mortis takes longer to set in when persons are in good health than when they are in poor health. Witness maintained that in the report of the autopsy there was no amination of the spinal marrow would which might have been pierced, and which piercing would have caused death, and the fact that this had not been incorporated in the report of the doctors who performed the autopsy, must make him state that this very salient point was left out, and therefore according to his conscience he was obliged to state that the autopsy was not properly performed. Witness was asked by the judge what the effects of leaving out the examination of the spinal marrow would be. He replied that if the spinal marrow had been examined properly it would have told what instrument was the cause of death, which at present is an unknown factor. Death might have resulted from hemorrhage or nervousness. If the spinal marrow had been touched in any manner the result would have been immediate rigor mortis.

With the conclusion of Dr. Lamarche's evidence the court adjourned until ten o'clock this morning.

THE GOOD WILL CLUB

And "Holiday House," Their Summer Home at Berthier.

For three years past a good work has been carried on unostentatiously in this city by the Good Will Club, an association of ladies who founded the club for working girls. They have a cosily furnished house at 2078 St. Catherine Street, with comfortable and homelike parlors, reading room and dormitories. Here working girls who have no friends in the city can find a home on almost nominal terms.

Perhaps a more important work is that in connection with the summer home, as it is certainly a wider one. Hundreds of girls have been enabled to find a needed rest there for a week or so, feeling perfectly independent in the knowledge that they are paying their own way. The summer quarters of the Good Will Club is known by the very appropriate name of "Holiday House." It is situated in one of the loveliest spots in Berthier (en haut), in a charming situation, close to the water and near the boat landing and railway station. The rooms are large and airy, and furnished in keeping with the character of the place with a variety of couches and easy chairs. The object is to give a thorough change to girls who get no other rest during the year. The bill of fare is in charge of a first-class housekeeper, and is the ideal summer diet. A great deal of milk is considered essential, and lunches between meals or at bedtime are the order of the day. Two lady officers of the Good Will Club are in constant charge. They are the hostesses, meet the guests at station or boat, take personal charge of their entertainment while they remain, chaperon all hay cart rides, picnics and boating parties, and nurse guests if they are ill. The pleasure all this is to the girls is not to be told in words. After fifty weeks of toil and worry in the workshop or store the stay there seems like living in another world.

The cost of board at "Holiday House" does not, of course, begin to cover all the expenses. These are met by a very few ladies who started the scheme, and who have carried it on during the past three years. They recognize that the greatest need is not among those to whom charity can be offered. There are also hundreds of brave, self-reliant working girls, who toil early and late for wages that would barely suffice to keep some girls in shoes and gloves, with which they must keep themselves and help their small brothers and sisters too. These are the girls whom it is hardest to help, and any more delicate or effective way of overcoming their sensitive feelings it would be hard to devise. Any person who donates $5 to the work has the privilege of sending an invitation for any young girl they choose for one week, free of railway fare and all expenses, or for two weeks without railway fare. That such a girl is not paying all her own way is known to none except the president of the club. She is simply a young guest of the ladies of "Holiday House."

There are many ways in which people interested can add to the value of the house. Housekeeprs might contribute blankets, comforters, house and table linen, and any shawls or wraps they do not require would be very acceptable to the girls for their afternoon naps or cool evening dresses. Many of them do not realize until they get there that even when city thermometers are ranging high country evenings are decidedly cool. The expenses of "Holiday House" are necessarily considerable, and the officers of the club will be glad to hear from any who feel they would like to help in the work next year. When so small a sum will give a girl the sorely needed rest which she cannot possibly obtain in any other way, it only needs to have the public made better acquainted with the work of the Good Will Club to bring in both workers and the means to carry on the work.

A Glimpse into the Orient.

In passing along St. James Street, opposite Victoria Square, the writer has noticed that the stone steps which lead into the Albert Building have been covered with an elegant Persian rug.

Impelled by a desire to see the reason for this peculiar decoration of a staid old business block, he entered the building. He was well repaid for his trouble, as will any of our readers be. It proves to be the display made by Mr. Hicks of his recent consignment of Turkish and Persian rugs and tapestry, together with other art productions of the Orient.

A magnificent Indian rug is there, of a deep-red color and of the finest texture, the duplicate of which is now in possession of the Prince of Wales. Another even more beautiful and yet more marvelous, in point of workmanship, is one made entirely of silk, made, of course, by hand, with over six hundred stitches to the inch—a work perhaps of years.

We find numerous saddle bags, faced with camel's skin, which show just enough evidences of wear to lend them a romantic interest. The pockets on either side are woven in elaborate figures. These saddle bags are held sacred by the Turks, as they have been used in their holy pilgrimages to Mecca.

Again, we are attracted by the long strips of camel's hair weave, once used in the halls of palaces and mosques. They are secured by the soldiers as plunder, while they are engaged in quelling some riot or civil war, and, passing through many hands, are brought here to adorn the stairs of our own homes as no domestic carpet can do.

The antique Persian rugs show the most marvelous skill, beautifully colored in rich reds and blues. Every thread, all wool and colored with pure vegetable dyes. Some are shown which have been used for more than half a century. They may show some wear on the surface, but the backs of the rugs lose none of their color or the clearness of their patterns.

We can see here the Royal India carpet, seldom seen outside of India. It has a soft, yielding surface like down, while on the reverse side we see the clear-cut figures that show perfect workmanship.

In the Persian rugs the colors are bright and varied, while the dark luxuriance of the east predominates in the Indian weaves.

Mounting the stairs and forcing our way through portieres, figured with the weird patterns of nation embroidery, we find ourselves, it seems, in the very court of eastern royalty. Here are shown most of the large rugs, many of them used for years with no loss in their color or figure.

It is difficult for one not an expert in the matter to give you the Turkish names of these rugs and carpets and to speak familiarily of the djidjim portieres and the Dagasthan or Kiz-Kilim Rugs. But what everyone can appreciate is the extreme beauty in color and pattern of these art treasures.

The sheen and lustre on some of the rugs seem almost able to reflect one's face, as they do reflect their own delicate shadings.

Civilization has done little for us in this matter. Even the modern work of the Turks and Persians cannot equal these relics of native skill, while among our domestic manufactures we find no comparison at all. The history of many of these rugs is lost, but we know them to be the best products of native ingenuity, and our own judgment stamps them as elegant. The entire display will be sold at auction by Mr. Hicks on October 1 and 2, at 288 St. James Street.

FLOUR MILL BURNED.

Fire in Ingersoll, Ont., Does Damage to the Extent of $30,000.

Ingersoll, Ont., Sept. 27.—Wm. Partlo's fine flour mill was burned to the ground and its contents were totally destroyed about 11.30 last night. The fire, supposed to have been started by the engine, was discovered by some ladies in a dressmaker's shop on King Street. Mr. Partlo, although residing opposite the mill, was not aware of anything serious until notified at a late hour and promptly gave the alarm. The brigade was promptly on hand, but it was soon seen that the building could not be saved, although the firemen tried strenuously to do so, and the building and its contents succumbed to the destroying element. The fire-proof grain elevator adjoining the mill was not harmed. Loss on mill about $20,000, with insurance about $12,000, distributed in three companies.

MONTREAL, SEPTEMBER 28.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

A couple of weeks ago reference was made to Canadian trade with Great Britain, as shown in the published returns of the Board of Trade, which reflected very little, if any, improvement for the month of July as compared with previous months. The complete returns for August and the first eight months of the present year are now to hand, and it is very gratifying to be able to record more encouraging conditions than for some months past. The imports into Canada for August from the mother country amounted to £421,959, as against £373,447 for the corresponding month of last year, an increase of £48,512, or nearly 13 per cent. For the eight months the total imports were valued at £2,311,119, as compared with £2,432,903, a net falling off of £121,787, or about 5 per cent. Turning to the exports from Canada to the United Kingdom the showing is not so satisfactory, although the decreases are not so pronounced as have been chronicled in previous months. The exports for August were in value £1,664,246, as compared with £1,700,913 for the corresponding month of last year, a decline of £36,667, or nearly 2 1-4 per cent. For the eight months ending August 31 the total exports were valued at £5,609,712, as against £5,786,298, a decrease of £176,586, or about 3 per cent. While it may very properly be contended by our protectionist contemporaries that this decline is not a serious matter considering the general depressed condition of trade for some months past it is a matter for regret, as with very few exceptions increasing business has been the rule in other countries.

A good deal of fuss has been made by Tory papers in an endeavor to prove that the present Government has done wonderful things in the way of developing Canada's cheese trade with England. In this respect they must be greatly disappointed in the trade returns under review. These show that the exports of cheese to the mother country during the first eight months of 1894 were valued at £1,240,673. During the first eight months of the present year the exports had fallen off to £1,086,951, a decline of £163,722, or over $800,000. The figures need no comment, they speak for themselves.

One of the most interesting features of the New York market for exchange has been the shipments of gold to Canada for account of Canadian banks. These shipments excited considerable comment, coming just the time they did, when the condition of the United States gold reserve was the subject of so much interest, not unmixed with anxiety. Enquiry among our local bankers, however, elicited the information that these shipments were not resulting from any abnormal condition, but were perfectly natural, particularly at this time. Canadian banks keep large gold balances in New York, and they are simply drawing upon them because of the need of cash for the movement of crops and to meet the requirements of the fall trade. Some of the banks are also strengthening their cash reserves before the preparation of their semi-annual statements. Exports of gold from New York to Europe have now almost ceased, to the great relief of Government and Treasury officials. A further shipment of some $2,500,000 is, however, being arranged for Saturday next. This gold is going to Austria, the Government of which country is offering a special premium in the shape of a commission for the gold. The precious metal is needed by that country in connection with the completion of its new financial arrangements, which have already been referred to in this column. It is hoped that these shipments will be the last before the next meeting of Congress, when measures will doubtless be taken to place the finances of the country on a more satisfactory and sound basis.

In the local market there is apparently no lack of money, as it still offers freely at 4 to 4 1-2 per cent. The Montreal Gas Company has declared its customary half-yearly dividend of 5 per cent., which is about what was expected. We payments of this and other dividends just about due will release a further amount of money, which will go to seek investment, so that the prospects are for easy money for some time to come. The annual report of the Royal Electric Company, which was issued to shareholders this week, is considered as on the whole very satisfactory. It covers a period of fifteen months and shows the net gain on the operations for this period to be $106,209. Out of this five quarterly dividends of 2 per cent. each were paid, amounting in all to $99,900.10, the remainder going to the credit of the profit and loss account, which has now reached the tidy figure of $308,758.

Canadian securities in the London market have had an upward tendency, Canadian Pacific selling as high as 62, the highest point touched this year. The principal changes were as follows:

Risen—Canadian Pacific 3 1-2, Canadian Pacific pfd. 2, Grand Trunk ord. 1-4, British Columbia bank 1-2, Canada Company 1, New Brunswick bonds 1, Ontario and Quebec shares 1.

Fallen—Grand Trunk 1st pfd. 1-2, 2nd pfd. 1-4, 3rd pfd. 1-4, and Bell's Asbestos 1-2.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

The Democratic convention at Syracuse has completed its labors and presents the platform of the New York State Democracy for the approval of the electors. The ticket nominated appears to have been decided upon according to the spirit of compromise necessary in dealing with the several factions of the party, despite which the candidates are understood to be individually strong men who, it is confidently asserted, will be acceptable to the body of the electors.

The measures proposed are of more importance than the men put up to see that they are carried out. There are two planks in the platform adopted which are worthy of special notice as marking a distinct advance from any stand hitherto taken by the Democracy of that state. These are the resolutions relating to the currency and the excise questions. With regard to the first, the Democracy lays down that gold and silver shall be the only legal tender. This practically demands the ultimate extinction of the Treasury notes which are now a legal tender, and also the withdrawal of the silver certificates which, though not specified as redeemable in gold, must be maintained at par in gold by the Treasury. The gradual retirement and extinction of the greenback currency decided upon will lighten the burden now laid upon the Treasury, which is bound to redeem them in gold, and the declaration against the free and unlimited coinage of silver is a satisfactory guarantee of adherence to sound money principles.

The stand taken upon the liquor question may be regarded as a revolt against the recent rigid enforcement of the law in New York city. To quote Commissioner Roosevelt, "The best way to have a bad law repealed is to enforce it strictly," and this truth seems to have struck home with the Democracy. Home rule in excise matters is in brief their attitude. A modification or repeal of excise laws unsupported by public sentiment, leaving each community to determine by popular vote the restrictions to be placed upon the sale of liquor, having regard always to a proper celebration of a day of rest and an orderly Sunday, is the Democratic solution of the liquor question. Local option, as outlined, has theoretically much to be said in its favor. The practice of it in New York State where there are so many communities of different characteristics should meet many of the difficulties with which the enforcers of the law have hitherto had to contend.

On the question of the tariff, as was to be expected, the convention enthusiastically reaffirmed the platform of 1892 and endorsed the administration of President Cleveland.

An incident of the convention, which may seriously affect the fortunes of the party, was the practical recognition of Tammany as the regular Democratic organization of New York city. The struggle of years between that wing of the party called the State Democrats, which includes every anti-Tammany Democrat in New York city, and the Tammany Hall organization has been settled, for a time at least, in favor of the unsavory crowd whose methods were so recently exposed by the investigations of the Lexow Committee. The attitude of the State Democrats was that they were entitled to one-third of the seats if they were entitled to representation at all, and to offer them fewer was illogical, as they constituted the third wing of the party. Through Tammany's influence their representation was restricted to one-fifth of the seats, and they withdrew from the convention. Their leaders announced themselves as opposed to Tammany but loyal to the ticket promised, in the maintaining of which attitude it is probable they will find some difficulty. The indications already are that the issue in New York city will not be fought on Democratic as opposed to Republican principles, but on the question of Tammany versus anti-Tammany. Bearing in mind the recent overwhelming victory for good government, it cannot be said that the outlook is cheering for Tammany.

Considered as a whole, the declaration of principles and policy put forward will excite attention throughout the country and will satisfy most Democrats as a clear and explicit statement of the attitude of the party on state issues.

MONTREAL BEING SHORN AND FALLING INTO THE REAR.

It is an interesting tale that is told by Mr. Campbell in a letter elsewhere in this paper. The substance of it is that Montreal has been playing the foolish part of burying her talents in the ground.

With a grand harbour capable of floating the largest ocean steamships; nearer than New York to Liverpool by about 800 miles, and as near to the great West and Northwest via the proposed Ottawa route as Buffalo is, the decadence of Montreal as an ocean port is indisputable and disgraceful. The Americans respect our railways as leading factors in the trunk line competition; but they regard our water route and our great ocean ports as being scarcely in the transportation business, if not as being too insignificant to be considered.

It looks as though this state of things must prevail until after we shall have had a few very respectable funerals. There are so many highly influential citizens interested in preserving something like the status quo that progress has to own up that it is now only a reminiscence. As you were, or its substantial equivalent, as you are, is their motto. The advantage of Montreal is all very well so long as it does not interrupt the flow that inures to their advantage.

If Montreal will in downright earnest give her aid and countenance to the opening up of the Ottawa and French Rivers route, and meanwhile throw her harbour open free to the commerce of the world, she will be doing something worthy of her manifest destiny.

It is amongst the curiosities of our time how the commercial interests of Montreal are really trifling with a great situation. They are asking the Government for free canals. Why they should have the canals free and yet keep their harbour shackled is what cannot be very well understood, unless we accept the allegation that some special interests stand to profit by it. The port of Montreal is being ruined not by the canal tools but by the harbour dues, and by the combination of water transportation companies by which as high a rate is charged on grain from Kingston to Montreal, a distance of 180 miles, as from Buffalo to New York, a distance of 495 miles. Montreal is just now "like a sheep before her shearers, dumb;" and they are shearing her everlastingly.

One of the most hopeful signs for those engaged in agriculture in this country is the growth of cheese making. Within a decade the cheese industry has risen from an inferior position to one of the first importance. According to the census returns the number of factories increased from 709 in 1880 to 1,565 in 1890, the invested capital increased from $1,021,438 to $2,586,583, value of output increased from $5,464,454 to $9,784,288, and in the latter year $753,067 was paid in wages to 3,013 people, while $6,804,611 was paid to the farmers for raw material.

The Hamilton Herald says:

"Gossip from Ottawa has it that Langevin may return to the Cabinet to fill the vacancy created when Angers left. It is not so very long ago that Langevin was driven in disgrace from the Cabinet over his connection with the McGreevy-Connelly scandals. But in Canada the quality of mercy extended to political wrong-doers is never strained."

Quite right; the quality of mercy extended to political evil-doers in this country has already burst under the strain imposed.

The Hungarians are to celebrate the 1,000th anniversary of their national existence next year by a festival which is planned to last the entire year. There are to be festivities of various kinds at different seasons, and several important national monuments and buildings are to be dedicated or their corner-stones to be laid. The new Houses of Parliament at Budapest are to be opened in January, and soon afterwards the national Pantheon, which is to contain the busts and statues of the country's heroes and celebrities, is to be dedicated. Corner-stones are to be laid to two new bridges over the Danube, two sections of Budapest are to be rebuilt and some 500 schools opened in the kingdom.

We must go from home to see ourselves as others see us. The Toronto Star says:

"In consequence of what Wiggins is pleased to call his prophecy, many people in Quebec have been afraid to leave home since Friday last, others took refuge in cellars, others picked their apples to prevent loss by the storm, and some weighted or tied down their loose property. These are very simple, foolish people, but it was outrageous to frighten them so, and the Government should see to it that Wiggins tends to his work and leaves prophesy alone."

There are doubtless some very simple and foolish people in Quebec, but with all our sources of information alert, we have not yet heard of any such manifestations of idiocy as those outlined by the Star.

The Mail and Empire publishes an exceedingly pleasant and complimentary article on the Province of Quebec. It has been making great progress; it "seems to have entered upon a new era in the production of wealth"; butter and cheese are booming, money is flowing in, children are going to agricultural schools, and "the Provincial Government has had an enlightened and energetic ally in the church." It is a pleasant picture, and we hope a correct one. But is this the same province that the Mail and Empire depicts in another article as the habitat of boodling politicians? Why lament that power is passing from the "Ontario Reformers" to those of the prosperous and enlightened Province of Quebec?—Toronto Globe.

If this opinion were put forth by a United States paper, that paper would promptly be labelled as a Mugwump organ.

The Toronto Star says:

"The report comes again that Sir Hector Langevin will return to the Dominion Cabinet and fill the existing vacancy. If this appointment is made Canadians in all provinces will be even more heartily disgusted than many of them now are, with the personnel of the Government which rules this country.

The Government isn't crowded with bright, able, magnetic statesmen who are respected by the people, and if any man is to be introduced, it should be one who has a strong personality, whom Canadians can support and admire. The Cabinet Minister should be above the average citizen in intellect and executive ability, and equal to him in morality.

This Dominion Government, however, is haunted by Langevin, and seems as though it wouldn't be happy till it gets him. The fallen knight seems to have a mystic wand whic, when exercised properly, has a superhuman influence over the czars of the Conservative party.

Canadians do not want Sir Hector Langevin as their guide and philosopher, because they believe he is not a typical Canadian, and they believe that he is not as honest as he should be. He neglected his trust, and has never yet given evidence of repentance."

CORRESPONDENCE.

Free This Port.

To the Editor of the Herald:

Sir—In 1871 I left this good city of Montreal and became a member of the Chicago Board of Trade. In 1895 I find myself again in Montreal, a member of the Montreal Board of Trade. In the twenty-four years there has not been a gain of five new men to the grain trade of this port of Montreal. Duluth has sprung into life. Our Northwest has opened up, but the grain trade of Canada's one seaport has been quite independent of the development of the west. That may be proven by a glance at our harbor to-day. As a Canadian I feel humbled at our port being the laughing stock of America.

But we have some progressive men of twenty-five years standing. An election is about due, and this is a good time to ask for things. The Committee on Inland Transportation has worked the council of our board to ask the Government to abolish the Welland Canal tolls. In this restrictive age, free canals sound well. These Welland Canal tolls are a weight on trade; more especially on the trade of the two transportation companies that keep up by agreement an iron bound rate of freight between Kingston and Montreal. Unfortunately Americans are freighting grain from the west to their east cheaper than by our route. Our Government is coolly asked to surrender the revenue collected through our canal on American trade between Ogdensburg, Chicago and Duluth, in order that these two transportation companies may get some business at the rates of freight which they choose to dictate. If American competition is severe, it is the Canadian revenue which must suffer, not their freight rates. That is all there is to it. American ships may have the free use of our canal—the revenue may go—but rates between Kingston and Montreal must be maintained.

These companies do not propose to change their rates to meet American competition. If American freights are high we get some grain. If American freights are low business become very bad at this port, and Welland Canal tolls cover a multitude of sins. The Government is asked to assist these companies at the expense of the people.

Why should we give the Americans everything? Notwithstanding the treaty of Washington they refuse us the Erie and Champlain Canals. There happen to be many other weights purely Canadian which might be "lifted." Montreal port charges are great weights on Canadian trade. They might be lifted in exactly the same proportion as Welland Canal tolls, without disturbing the American contribution to the expense of maintaining our canal. Wharfage tolls here about balance Welland tolls, and Canadians pay more wharfage tolls than Welland tolls. Who gains most depends on which tolls are lifted. Apparently the council of the Montreal Board of Trade, under the stress of the Inland Transportation Committee and others, prefer allowing Montreal tolls to stand and clearin gaway the American tolls. Give us a free port first.

CHAMBRE DE COMMERCE.

Customs Laws Which Injure the Operations of Merchants.

At the weekly meeting of the Chambre de Commerce yesterday a letter was read from the Wholesale Grocers' Association of the Montreal Board of Trade, complaining that several members had received notice from the Collector of Customs, demanding that goods in bond more than two years be either exported or duty be paid on them, in accordance with sec. 99 of the Customs Act, which provides that goods not finally cleared within that time may be sold by the Collector of Customs for the payment of duties, warehouse rent and other charges, the surplus, if any, coming to the owners. The letter further stated that the act for some years past had not been put into operation, and that its enforcement at the present time was felt to be a serious hardship to importers, particularly those of groceries, wines, and liquors, the time of two years being much too short to meet the requirements of the trade. The Chambre was therefore asked to use its influence with the Government to have the time extended from two to four years.

The letter also drew attention to subsection 2 of clause 81 of the Customs Act, which provides that no transfer of less than a whole package shall be valid and no more than three transfers of the same goods shall be allowed before entry thereof for duty or for exportation, and asked that steps be taken to have it altered, permitting the transfer of goods while in bond as many times as desired, the limit at present prescribed often affecting prejudicially the trade in groceries, wines, liquors, etc.

The council adopted unanimously a resolution, praying the Honorable Minister of Customs to extend the action of sec. 90 of the Customs Act to four years, and also that the trade be allowed to make all the transfers required of goods in bond within the same limit.

The secretary read a letter from the Consul-General of France, informing the members that he had received and transmitted to him the general bulletin of the French Merchant Mauni for the year 1895, together with the table of railroad rates of France and railroad map of the same country.

The council then proceeded to discuss and adopt a series of new by-laws for the internal government of the Chambre, and the remainder of the session was occupied by routine business.

An Injunction Suspended.

Judge Taschereau rendered judgment yesterday in the case of A. Tremblay vs. the board of delegates of the counties of Chambly and Laprairie. An injunction was granted, at the suit of the plaintiff, to stop certain works, which had been ordered by a proces verbal of the board of delegates. Plaintiff urged in support of his petition for injunction that an appeal had been taken to the Circuit Court against the proces verbal or by-law. As the Circuit Court had rejected the appeal, it was held by the court that there no longer exists any reason why the injunction should be maintained. Consequently the injunction was suspended.

Dr. Robt. A. Walker, house surgeon of the Western General Hospital, reports the number of patients in the hospital as 27. In the outdoor department there were 52 medical and surgical cases, 23 nose and throat cases, and 8 accidents.

HALL CAINE TALKS.

HE DISCUSSES CANADA'S COPYRIGHT CLAIMS.

HIS LITERARY METHODS ARE FULLY DESCRIBED.

Slept But Five Hours on the Voyage—Often Goes Four or Five Days Without Sleep This is When He is Writing a Story.

Thomas Henry Hall Caine, the English novelist, whose book. "The Manxman," was dramatized and produced here last winter by Wilson Barrett, was one of the passengers who arrived in New York this week on the White Star Line steamer Britannic. He was accompanied by his wife and their oldest child, Ralph, a boy of 11 years.

Hall Caine, as he is known, is a Manxman. He is rather under middle height, is slender and spare, and is active even to restlessness. He has long curling auburn hair, and wears a full beard and moustache, which are of a more ruddy hue than his hair. His face is pale, his mouth is sensitive, and his eyes are rather sunken, but very bright, and indicate his nervous disposition.

When a number of newspaper men saw Mr. Caine at the Holland House Mrs. Caine sat on a sofa, and was an interested listener while her famous husband told of his object in coming to this country. It is his first visit. As Mr. Caine talked he walked about the room or perched himself upon the arm of a chair or the arm of the sofa. He spoke with animation, and used his hands and arms frequently in gesticulations. He said :

"My mission, if I may dignify my purpose with such a name, is to bring about some sort of an understanding or agreement between Canada and England regarding the Canadian Copyright law. I came as a delegate from the English Society of Authors, and, unofficially, I represent also the English publishers. I have letters from the English Colonial Office, but I do not represent the office in any official capacity. As I came to speak officially to the Canadians regarding their copyright law, it would be indelicate for me to go into details regarding what I am going to propose before I lay the matter before them, but I can speak in a general way regarding the situation.'

THE COMPLAINT OF CANADA.

"Canada complains that we do not understand her case, and by visiting her leading cities and talking with her authors and publishers I hope to come to an understanding of just how they feel upon the subject. Canada is at present under obligations entered into at the Berne Convention and desires to withdraw from these. She claims the right to legislate upon these matters for herself, and of that right there can be no doubt, so far as concerns herself. The question is how far she can legislate as affecting imperial rights.

"It has been said in Canada that I am coming there to look after my own interests as an author, but this is not true. If that were all, our best course would be to use our influence at home to keep things as they are. To succeed in my purpose we must make some concessions."

Mr. Caine interrupted himself at this point to order tea, which his wife poured out.

"I had what might be called a delightful voyage," he then continued, "but probably I was the only person who was glad when it was over. My old enemy, insomnia, attacked me on the ship, and I do not think I slept more than five hours in the whole time. At home I live where the tides rise and fall right under my window, and the beating of the waves tends to make me sleep—when I can sleep."

Often, he added, he went four or five days without sleep. A question as to when these times were most apt to occur brought out an interesting explanation of his methods of work in writing his stories.

"It is when I am forming the story in my mind," he said. "I am a creature of impulses. I go for long times without doing anything, and then for long times I work constantly. During the first part of a working spell I am bringing together in my mind a great mass of details and trying to form from them the general plan of my story. Then I have to read a lot to get the special information which I find I need. Then I get this all into shape in my mind, and write a rough sketch of my book—perhaps as much as a one volume book. Then I take this up in parts and form and reform it in my mind until I have it all ready to write. This is where I differ from mechanical workers. I have each part of the story written in my mind just as I want it to appear upon paper before I sit down to write it.

"Then I have a theory that the manner of telling a story should not overshadow the matter. I believe in literary style, but the words should not distract the reader's attention from the purpose of the writer. An eminent American, J. B. Gough, the temperance orator, used to tell a story which illustrates my meaning. When he was in England, a lady, who admired him very much, made him a present of a diamond ring. In compliment to her he decided to wear it that night when he lectured. He noticed all through the lecture that he did not get a hold upon his audience, and that he missed making the points with them that he was accustomed to. After the lecture he spoke of this. 'It was the ring,' his friends said. 'The flashing of the diamond distracted attention from what you said.' The diamond flashes of words should not be allowed to distract attention from the writer's thoughts."

In answer to a question about himself, Mr. Caine said:

"I WAS BROUGHT UP AS AN ARCHITECT in the country, and at the same time used to lecture upon literary topics. Shakespeare was one of my favorite subjects. My lectures attracted the attention of Dante Rossetti, who lived in London in a great big desolate barn of a house in Chelsea. There he used to paint and write a little and walk in the desolate garden attached to the house. He asked me to go there and live with him. I went to the mountains of Cumberland for my health and invited him to join me there. He said he would if I would come for him, and from that time we never parted until he died in my arms in 1880.

"He introduced me to many literary people and gave me advantages, but there were some disadvantages, too, connected with his introductions of me. People identified me with him, and the aesthetic school of writers and those who have read my works know that that is entirely unlike what I am."

He said that he had brought over with him a new dramatic version of the "Manxman," adapted from his book in accordance with his own conception of the story.

"I hope," he said, "that it will appeal more to the American public than did the one Wilson Barrett produced here. Barrett made his own adaptation of the story. He viewed the story from his own standpoint, and built a play that began nowhere and ended nowhere. The dialogue was almost entirely his own. The portion of the story that did not gather about him was of no importance to him. My story does not centre around Pete and Philip, or even the girl. Its motive is in the struggle between love and ambition, and where that leads me I go."

The play, he said, would be produced in London this fall, an arrangement having been made with Barrett, whose contract for the English rights runs until Jan. 1.

Mr. Caine was born in 1858, and is therefore 42 years old. Besides the boy Ralph, he has another child, a boy of 4 years, who was left at home. Among his works are "The Shadow of a Crime," "A Son of Hagar," "The Deemster," "The Bondsman," and "The Scapegoat."

The recent census figures show that in 11 years 143 townships in Massachusetts have lost in population.

CHANGING STREET LEVELS

Important Judgment as to the City's Responsibility.

Judge Belanger rendered judgment yesterday in the case of John Toohey vs. the city of Montreal. Mr. Toohey claimed $1,800 from the city for damages caused by the laying of a permanent sidewalk in front of his property, Nos. 84 to 94 Craig Street, between Adolphus and Voltigeurs Streets. In 1890 the city placed the sidewalks in position and raised the level of the street ten inches. This obliged Mr. Toohey to raise his property and make certain ameliorations. The city contended that Mr. Toohey, like all proprietors, should have obtained the level from the street inspector before beginning to erect his buildings. As he had not done so, conformably to the law of 52 Victoria, he had no right to claim damages. If he took the level by guessing what it was without seeking official information at the City Hall he would have to suffer the consequences. The city, moreover, alleged that the laying of these sidewalks was in the public good, no matter what damages were caused. As no illegal act was done by laying them the city could not be held responsible; but far from injuring the property it was alleged that the sidewalk enhanced its value.

The court held that there was nothing to show that Mr. Toohey was obliged to seek the level; when he constructed his buildings, the law of 52 Victoria was not in force, and it was only subsequently that proprietors had to seek the proper level at which to erect their buildings. In law the city is responsible for damages caused to individuals, whether for sidewalks or any othetr public works, even when the city acts within the limit of its powers and does so for the public good. Damages to the extent of $550 were consequently awarded.

An Illegal Transaction.

Judge Gill rendered judgment yesterday in the case of Francois Groleau vs. Napoleon Beaudry.

Groleau sought to recover $100, which he had paid Beaudry on the latter promising to withdraw a charge of robbery which had been preferred against a son of Groleau in the Police Court. The charge was not withdrawn as promised and the son was condemned. Beaudry alleged that he merely acted as the representative of Labatt, to whom Groleau owed a greater sum than the $100 which had been paid. Groleau was accordingly credited with the payment of the $100, and it went to reduce his liability. Beaudry, moreover, alleges that he had not promised to withdraw the chare, but only to inform the police magistrate of the payment, so that he might exercise clemency in the matter.

The court held that Groleau had proved his case. The defendant could not withdraw his charge, consequently the transaction was illegal, and it would be impossible for the court to give it any effect whatever. Therefore Groleau would have to be repaid what he gave to Beaudry. Judgment was rendered accordingly.

Corn Gems.—Place two cups of corn meal in a bowl, put two ounces of butter in the centre, and pour over one cup of boiling milk; stir; then add one cup of cold milk, three eggs well beaten, salt, and one cup of flour; beat well, and then add two and a half teaspoonfuls of Cook's Friend Baking Powder, mixing all thoroughly. Pour into greased gem pans, and bake in a hot oven thirty minutes.

Ragout of Duck.—Take a pair of ducks, draw, clean and singe the same as chicken. Place them in a baking pan, put a thin slice of bacon over the breast, add half a cup of water to the pan, and bake in a quick oven three-quarters of an hour, if tame duck; if wild one, bake only thirty minutes. Now take from the fire and carve them, making eight pieces of each duck, the wings, legs and second joints together, two pieces of the breast and two of the back. Now put the butter (two tablespoonfuls) in a saucepan and stir until a dark brown; then add two tablespoonfuls of flour, mix until smooth; add a pint of stock or boiling water; stir continually until it boils, then add one tablespoonful of onion juice, a tablespoonful of mushroom catsup, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, a bay leaf, salt and pepper to taste, and four or five mushrooms chopped fine; now add the ducks and all the gravy from the dish on which you carved them; cover and simmer gently for twenty minutes, if tame, ten minutes if wild. Take from the fire, add half a gill of sherry, if you use wine, and serve on a heated dish, with a border of toasted bread cut into triangles. Arrange around the dish, points to the outer edge.

New Century Pudding.—Shred and chop one cup of suet fine; stone one cup of raisins; pick, wash and dry one cup of currants. Beat the suet and one cup of sugar and the yolks of two eggs together until light, then add a cup of milk and three cups of flour; beat until smooth, add one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of salt and the whites of two eggs, well beaten; then add one teaspoonful of baking powder; mix well, and add the fruit well flavored; turn into a greased mould, and boil continuously for three hours. Serve hot with wine or hard sauce.

Ham Croquettes—Take two cups of hot mashed potatoes and mix with it a tablespoonful of butter, the yolks of two eggs, and a dash of cayenne; beat until smooth; turn out to cool. Put one cup of finely chopped ham (cooked) in a small frying pan, with one yolk of an egg, and stir over the fire for about one minute; turn it out to cool. When cool take a large tablespoonful of the potatoes and form it into a hollow in the palm of your hand; put into this hollow a large teaspoonful of the ham, fold the potato over it, and form into a ball, making a potato ball with a ham centre. Dip these in beaten egg and then in bread crumbs, and fry in boiling fat.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

A special to the Denver Times from Hot Springs, Wyo., says: The bones found by Professor J. L. Wharton, of Columbia College, New York, near the head of Bitter Creek and pronounced by him the "missing link," were the skeleton of a pet monkey owned by cowboys, which died about twelve years ago.

Sergeant-Major George, of the Queen's Own, Toronto, is suing the city for $60 damages, on account of a hole in the road on College Street, which caused him to fall from his bicycle, and receive serious injuries. Dr. Doolittle, president of the C. W. A., appeared, and on behalf of ten thousand bicyclists in the city, protested that the city should keep the streets in proper repair.

The Duke of Cambridge, whose retirement as commander-in-chief of the forces was recently announced, and who was succeeded by Lord Wolseley, made a long speech at a luncheon, which was given in his honor Thursday in Edinburgh. He began his remarks be referring to the charge that he had opposed all changes that had been suggested in connection with the army. This charge he denied, maintaining that on the contrary he had always led in making changes that tended to add to the efficiency of the British troops.

Messrs. H. W. Mulvena, batonnier, and J. B. Genest, secretary of the bar of the district of St. Francis, accompanied by Hon. W. B. Ives, Minister of Trade and Commerce, waited on Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, Minister of Justice, Thursday, and presented a memorial from the bar of the district, asking that an assistant to Judge Brooks be appointed as the work of the district was about three times as much as that of any other district in the Province of Quebec, where there was only one judge, and more than that in the majority of districts where there are two judges.

TEMPLE MUSIC HALL.

Opening Entertainment an Agreeable Success.

The opening of the hall in the Masonic Temple, which is to be known as the Temple Music Hall, took place Thursday night, and was most successful. The management did wisely when they engaged Mrs. Mercedes Leigh and Letitia Guy Crowl to inaugurate the hall with their dramatic and musical entertainment, which was a delightful one. The pretty little hall was well filled by an appreciative audience. The affair was under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity, and the patronesses for the occasion were: Lady Casault, Mrs. Andrew Allan, Mrs. Geo. A. Drummond, Mrs. Hugh Graham, Mrs. Hector Mackenzie, Mrs. Donald Macmaster, Mrs. F. Massey, Mrs. Pangman, Mrs. Robert Reid, Mrs. Wurtele, Mrs. Wheeler.

The programme was without a tedious number, and all the prejudices renowned in proverbs against a whistling woman were disarmed by Miss Letitia Guy Crowl. Select solos from Orditi Meyerbeer, Thomas and Herz charmed the audience by the skill, judgment and expression shown in their rendition. Mrs. Leigh was most entertaining in her clever character impersonations, her mimetic powers being something wonderful. As a reader she proved herself no mean elocutionist. Miss Sophia Meyers alternated the two special artistes with pleasing piano solos. The hall was crowded at the second performance last evening.

"STOP THIEF!"

An Exciting Chase After a Pickpocket This Morning.

Much excitement was caused on Notre Dame Street yesterday morning by the cry of "stop thief," and the chasing of a man by a crowd of people all calling loudly for his capture.

An American lady named Mrs. Sanderson, in company with some friends, was visiting Notre Dame Church, when she felt a hand being drawn from her pocket. Turning quickly she was in time to see a man making off with her purse. Leaping down the church steps the thief lost his hat, and with the purse still in his hand turned west and ran as if for his life. The cry of "stop thief" was quickly taken up, and in a few moments a crowd was after him at full speed. A well known broker saw the pursued approaching and made an effort to stop him. With a blow that would have felled an ox the broker went to earth and no one else interrupted the flying thief. He turned down St. Helen Street and dodging around the sharp corners of Montreal's closely packed commercial houses, succeeded in getting away.

The purse contained railway tickets, many important private papers and about $75 in cash. The pickpocket's hat was purchased in Buffalo and is evidently quite new. He can secure it by communicating with the police.

NOT GUILTY.

Case Against the Grays Breaks Down and They are Acquitted.

Peterboro, Ont., Sept. 27.—The case against Mr. and Mrs. Gray, charged with murdering the old man Scollie on February 23, 1894, completely broke down. The Crown concluded its evidence this morning, and practically had no case at all. It was not proved that Scollie had been murdered, and much less that accused killed him.

The defence were ready to go on when Chancellor Boyd, the presiding judge, stopped them and directed a verdict of not guilty, which was at once rendered, and the accused couple was at once acquitted.

A GAME OF CARDS

Leads to Murder, Followed by a Lynching.

Bakersfield, Cala., Sept. 27.—News comes from Kernville that Phillip Seibert, in an altercation over a game of cards, was shot and killed by Willie Archer, an Indian. Archer was arrested. At the inquest a verdict of wilful murder was returned, after which a number of citizens took Archer from the officers and killed him. He was found with six bullet holes and several fatal knife cuts in his body.

BUTCHERED IN A CHURCH.

Ten Armenians Killed by Turkish Soldiers.

Varna, Sept. 27.—Advices from Antioch state that Ottoman officials there have succeeded in exciting Mussulmans with a report of an inpending massacre by Armenians. As a result of this, Mussulmans, accompanied by police, raided an Armenian church and searched the building for arms. The Armenians resisted, and in the conflict which ensued ten of them were killed. A reign of terror prevails at Kemakh and Ergugen, owing to oppression by the Turks. Many Armenians have been arrested.

SUGAR UP AGAIN.

Local refiners have again advanced the prices of refined sugars, this time 1-16c. Granulated is now quoted at 4 1-16c and yellows 3 1-16c to 3 3-4c, according to quality.

THE B. C. MINES.

During the past week two good and reliable mining men, who were not stock-holders, stated, after a visit and inspection of the Cariboo mine at Quesnelle forks, that the showing was remarkable, and that the fall clean-up will astonish even the enthusiasts about the hydraulic mines of the Cariboo Region.—Victoria Times.

Rossland, B.C., Sept. 14.—There is no slacking off in the work on the mines. The present pay roll is estimated at $30,000 a month, but commencing November 1st it is expected to increase to $75,000. This estimate is conservative and is based on the proportion of 125 men to the War Eagle, 100 to the Le Roi, 25 to the Josie, Crown Point, Iron Horse, Nickle Plate, Center Star, Columbia and Kootenay, and from 10 to 3 men on the other claims that will be worked through the winter.

It is possible that the Cliff claim will be worked this winter. If so 20 men will be employed on it. This property has a tunnel in $30 ore and is fast developing into one of the best mines in the district. It has one of the largest ore bodies in the camp. John S. Cook and S. M. Wharton are the owners. They recently refused $155,000 for the property. Mr. Cook owns one-third of the town of Rossland and is the principal owner of the St. Elmo Consolidated, Coxey and other properties. A recent test of a sample from the Cliff showed $31.25 in gold and copper.

H. L. Rogers, of Spokane, manager of the High Ore Gold Mining Co., is in the camp. He is having winter quarters built for his men and will operate the High Ore mine all winter. This property adjoins the Jumbo, owned in Spokane, which has developed from a prospect to a rich mine.

It is understood a 50-foot shaft is to be sunk on the Ivanhoe. This property has an enormous ledge of pyritic iron and quartz, and old miners predict that depth will make a valuable mine.

Three expensive plants have been ordered and are now coming forward from the east. The first to arrive will be a large air compressor, boilers and engine for the War Eagle mine. The Center Star and R. E. Lee have ordered similar plants, which are expected to arrive within the next ten days.

I am credibly informed that the Canadian Pacific has laid out a town site at the mouth of Murphy creek. Work on the cross sectioning of the road to Trail is being rushed. The railroad station at the mouth of the creek will be about 500 feet above the river. From that point there will be a rise of 2,200 to Rossland, or a three per cent. grade.

Work on the smelter at Trail is to go ahead at once. Three hundred men will be employed on the smelter and at cutting wood.—Vancouver World.

A Newfoundlander on Island Affairs

A gentleman from Newfoundland, who was at the Windsor yesterday, talked to a Herald reporter on the prospects of the country. Regarding the smuggling operations, of which so much has been heard lately, he said:

"The smuggling is done in a very ingenious manner down there. My father was a Custom House officer, but when I was a young man I used to assist pretty frequently in smuggling operations. I was one of some six or eight who knew all the secrets which have lately come to light. I at one time offered the Attorney-General of Newfoundland to give him, for $2,000, some important information regarding smuggling which was going on, and he answered me, 'we understand our business.' I determined to let the secret die with me.

"The county would benefit greatly by annexation to Canada. It only wants to be developed to become a valuable portion of the country. There is a tremendous lot of mineral wealth waiting for some one to take hold of and work it. I am agent for a silver mine there yielding 200 oz. to the ton, and gold, coal and lead are also abundant. Except in the north the climate is far from severe. The people are very careful of their money and not given to trust the banks. One old fellow once paid me an account from a keg, where he had some $4,000 saved in Mexican doubloons and American $20 pieces."

Catarrh Relieved in 10 to 60 Minutes.

One short puff of the breath through the blower supplied with each bottle of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder diffuses this powder over the surface of the nasal passages. Painless and delightful to use, it relieves instantly and permanently cures catarrh, hay fever, colds, headache, sore throat, tonsilitis and deafness. 60 cents. Sold by druggists. Sample sent on receipt of two three-cent stamps. S. G. Detchon, 44 Church Street, Toronto.

FINANCIAL.

Friday, Sept. 27.

There was more activity in the local stock market this morning and prices generally were firmer. Montreal Street Railway sold up to 208¾ for old stock and 207½ for new, while Toronto Railway was half a point higher at 83½. Pacific was very active in comparison to the trading in the stock during the last few months and made another record high price for this year, selling up to 60¾. Another active stock was Montreal Telegraph, a considerable block of which sold at 166. Gas, while fairly active was fractionally lower, selling at 203½, ex-dividend, equal to 208½ regular. The Duluth stocks probably in sympathy with the advance in Pacific came in for more attention and common sold at 7½ and preferred at 15. Both these stocks closed very firm. The rest of the miscellaneous list calls for little comment, but prices held very firm. In bank stocks Peoples was a little firmer a sale being noted at 12, while in the Bonds Department a sale of $3,000. Bell Telephone bonds was noted at 104. We hear of no change in the money market the rate for call loans being 4 to 4½ per cent.

Business was dull in the afternoon, but prices generally held steady. Gas and Pacific were dealt in on about the same basis as in the morning, while Duluth common and Cable were fractionally higher. The market closed fractionally lower.

The highest, lowest and closing prices, total sales and net changes from yesterday's closing prices for actual sales in the local market were as follows:

NEW YORK GOSSIP

J. S. Bache & Co., New York, wire their local manager, C. D. Monk, as follows:

Crossman & Co. have withdrawn $1,500,000 from the sub-treasury.

It is said that Crossman & Co. have been asked to ship £1,000,000 sterling to Berlin, the condition being that it must be there before October 10. This condition makes the transaction doubtful. If America does not ship it then the supply will be drawn from London, which may affect the Bank of England price of gold.

Representatives of the Distillers Co. say there is no change in the situation. The difficulty, which developed Wednesday afternoon is still unsettled. The action of the stock, however, creates a belief that interests, which sold on this disagreement, have been buying in anticipation of settlement later.

Boston special: The American Distillers Co. expects to have its 10,000 bush Majestic distillery at Terre Haute completed November 1. The delay is in the finishing and structural iron by the Carnegie Steel Co., which has delayed the completion of the plant.

Omaha, January 1 to August 31, decrease, $430,820.

Conferences between the leading anthracite interests which have been going on in this city and Philadelphia all day have not yet reached a final conclusion. However, enough is known to warrant the statement that every important interest has thus far agreed to put into operation on October 1 the following schedule: Stove, $3.50; chestnut, $3.40; egg, $3.15; broken, $3; f.o.b., net. The gross price is 15 cents in addition. This is an advance by some of the companies of 40 cents and by others of 25 cents over their previous highest figures. It is understood that Lackawanna will ask higher prices than those stated.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

TICKER GOSSIP FROM R. MEREDITH.

The fact that out of 250,000 shares dealt in, yesterday's transactions in 180,000 shares were contributed by six stocks is plain evidence that small cliques of operators influenced the operators of yesterday. The fact that the governing committee of the Stock Exchange had declined by an almost unanimous vote to refuse the demand for frequent financial statements from the American Sugar Refining Co. was a plain notice that the foolish theory of some recent attacks on the stocks was ill founded, and that Sugar would continue to be an attractive property for operators who are willing to risk much in the hope of gaining much if their speculative guesses are right. Speculation in the industrial stocks is still largely absorbed by Whiskey. This stock is still subject to the manipulation which usually attends negotiations for settlement of controversies in any trade.

THE LONDON SITUATION.

New York, Sept. 27.—The Evening Post's special London cablegram says: The conclusion of the Stock Exchange settlement to-day caused a good demand for money, owing to the heavy settlement in mines. The markets were good, especially mines and Americans. In the latter there is a large investment business here. Reading fives are in favor on re-organization rumors. Prices close at near the best. The general outlook for speculation is still good, though the mines is certainly too wild, and suggests trouble, though probably not at present.

THE DAY IN WALL STREET.

New York, Sept. 27. — The Evening Post's financial article says: Reading securities led the market to-day. London began the buying, partly on arbitrage account, for the early foreign price was well above the New York level. These foreign purchases were followed by rather heavy local buying of both shares and bonds, the movement being entirely based on the belief that the reorganization plan will be issued in Philadelphia to-night. Few details were even rumored, and, of course, under the circumstances, nobody troubled himself to argue whether stocks and bonds ought to be alike favorably affected. However, last month's experience on the issue of the Erie plan, and the recent advances in the price of coal, combined to help the market for Reading's own securities. A further advance in anthracite was, in fact, to-day under consideration. That it was high time for such trade readjustment current railway statements show. Advance in prices, with the purpose of adding largely to trade profits already in existence, would meet honest opposition in many conservative quarters. But the Reading Coal Company's August statement, published to-day, shows an actual loss on mining operations of $191,872. In the nine months of the fiscal year the loss was $487,769, against a profit of $244,953, even in the hard times of 1893. This reckoning, let it be observed, makes no account of payment on the debt. Including that, the nine months' deficit is nearly $1,400,000.

COMMERCIAL.

J. S. Bache & Co.'s Chicago letter said:

Friday, Sept. 27.

Wheat opened excited and higher on buying by shorts. At the advance local bulls who bought freely yesterday sold out, checking advance. Reported gold engagements for export of three million induced fresh selling for short account. Market has ruled nervous all day. The news, if anything, was bearish, but market is oversold and speculative sentiment is growing more bullish. Market receives better support on all weak spots. Receipts in the Northwest 841 cars, compared with 915 cars last year. Export sales 76,000, clearances none. Cable advices bearish, but quotation higher in sympathy with advance here. Market closes strong at small improvement over yesterday's closing. Corn dull, firm, with very small transactions. Market influenced entirely by action in wheat. Provisions opened stronger on higher prices for hogs and strength in wheat. Shorts bought in October lard and Swift & Co. bought June product. All the other packers sold. Market closes about highest point of the day.

A despatch from Walker of Chicago said: Expectations are for large receipts of corn in the near future, both old and new. Kansas City was receiving cars new corn yesterday. The cash corn premium has disappeared, and the cash demand is nothing pressing. There does not appear to be any moving in carrying, but on the contrary looks like a loss in storage and insurance on small amounts. We would advise closing the September corn.

The Argentine Republic has for the past three years been a much more important source of supply than India, and for the last two years has actually furnished almost double the quantity contributed by India. The imports from Argentine amounted to 26,331,984 bush. in 1894-5, against 21,704,676 bush. in 1893-4; 11,160,802 bush. in 1892-3, and only 5,024,266 bush. in 1891-2.—Wall St. Journal.

Prime writes: "The Eastern Iowa corn is out of the way of the frost. It will make a good crop, but no bumper crop, as it has matured so fast on account of the extremely dry weather that a great deal of the grain will be loose on the cob. Very little old corn left, and do not look for a free movement of new. Very little plowing done, ground very dry.

"Southern Nebraska corn has finished ripening. Throughout Southeastern Nebraska it will generally be used at home. Feeders in neighboring localities have been offered corn by dealers within the past 10 days for 22 cents. If it can be furnished for 22 cents here it is evident that farmers in those sections where a good crop was grown are going to get a small price for it."

A Liverpool report says: Receipts during the past three days were: Wheat, 183,000 centals, including 32,000 American; American corn, 130,500 centals.

Liverpool, Sept. 27, 4.15 p.m.—Wheat—Spot, firm; demand moderate; No. 2 red winter, 4s 11d; No. 2 red spring, stocks exhausted; No. 1 hard Manitoba, 5s; No. 1 California, 5s 1-2d; futures opened quiet but steady, with near positions 3-4d higher, and distant positions 1d higher; closed quiet but steady, with near positions 3-4d to 1 1-2d higher, and distant positions 1-2d to 3-4d higher; business heaviest on middle positions; September, 5s 1-2d; October, 4s 11 3-4d; December, 5s 3-4d; January, 5s 1 1-4d; February, 5s 3d. Corn—Spot, firm; American mixed, new, 3s 6 1-2d; futures opened quiet but steady; near and distant positions 1-4d higher; closed quiet, with January and February 1-4d higher, and other months unchanged from last night's closing; business heaviest on early positions; September, 3s 6d; October, 3s 4 3-4d; November, 3s 6d; December, 3s 5 3-4d; January, 3s 3 3-4d; February, 3s 4 1-2d. Flour—Firm; fair demand; freely supplied; St. Louis fancy winter, 6s 9d. Peas—Canadian, 4s 10d.

The estimated receipts for to-morrow in Chicago are as follows by cars: Wheat, 80; corn, 575; oats, 415; and hogs, 5,000 head.

To-day's receipts by cars in Chicago were: Wheat 77, contract 23; corn, 705, contract 658; oats 346, contract 85; hogs, 17,000 head.

Grain—There is no change in the aspect of the local grain market. Business was dull to-day in oats, and prices were not changed. All the grades were quiet. We quote:

Wheat, No. 1 hard	Nominal.
Wheat, No. 2 hard	Nominal.
Corn, duty paid	Nominal.

Oats	30½c to 30½

Flour—Business in Manitoba flour for local account is still increasing, chiefly for old flour for immediate shipment. Enquiries are being made for export, but it is not probable that much flour will be shipped for some time. Ontario millers report a fair amount of business at fair prices. We quote:

PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS.

Cheese—The local market has undergone no material change, and was void of interest to-day. Business was ruling quiet and dull on spot, and there was a little easier feeling, but prices showed no change, from 8c to 8 1-4c being quoted for finest Ontario. We quote as follows:

Finest Ontario	8c to 8¼c
Townships	7¾c to 7⅞c
Quebec	7¾c to 7⅞c

Liverpool, Sept. 27.—Cheese—Steady; demand moderate; finest American white, new, 37s; finest American colored, new, 37s 6d. Butter—Finest United States, 70s; good, 50s.

Butter—Butter still continues very dull on spot, and business outside of a little local demand for creamery is purely nominal. The market is rather easy in tone, and prices are fractionally unchanged at the same rates quoted yesterday, viz.:

Finest creamery	17c to 18c
Townships	14c to 15c
Western Dairy	12c to 13½c

Eggs—The improvement in the market keeps up well, and the demand is now much better. Values are firm at previous quotations, i.e., choice candled, 12c to 12 1-2c, and ordinary at about 11 1-2c.

Provisions—Provisions still remain unchanged. Prices are generally steady and well maintained, but pork is easy.

Sheep—Receipts, 10,000; market slow and weak.

BONSECOURS MARKET.

The attendance of farmers at the Bonsecours Market this morning was very good, but business was not quite so active, as there was not so large an attendance of buyers as usual. Prices held fairly well, however, and there was a good supply of garden and farm produce. We quote as follows:

Fruit—Peaches, 50c to $1 per basket; bananas, 10c to 20c per dozen; pears, 25c to 90c; plums, 40c to 45c; lemons, 50c to 80c per dozen; apples, $1.25 to $2.25 per barrel.

Vegetables—Potatoes, 25c to 40c; carrots, 20c to 40c; turnips, 30c to 50c; onions, 40c to 50c; cabbage, 10c to 25c; tomatoes, 15c to 30c.

Poultry—Chickens, 45c to 80c; fowl, 60c to 80c per pair; turkeys, $1 to $1.75; geese, 55c to 75c; tame ducks, 90c to $1.25.

Game—Black duck, 65c per couple; partridge, 90c to $1 per brace; teal duck, $35c; pigeons, 25c per pair; snipe, $2.40 to $2.50; plover, $3.60 to $3.75 per dozen.

Dairy Produce—Butter, 17c to 25c; cheese, 10c to 14c; eggs, new laid, 18c to 25c; maple sugar, 8c to 10c; syrup, 65c to 75c.

THE FLOUR OUTPUT.

Minneapolis, Sept. 27.—The Northwestern Miller gives the following summary of the week's milling news: The output last week at four points with comparisons were:

	Sept. 21, '95. Brls.	Sept. 22, '94. Brls.
Minneapolis	251,340	210,440
Superior-Duluth	107,580	95,115
Milwaukee	37,260	38,970
St. Louis	75,600	72,200
Totals	471,780	416,725

There have been only about three weeks when the mills ground as much flour as they did last week, and they were during last fall. Every mill in this city is going full capacity and production promises to approach 270,000 barrels this week. Sales last week were very nearly 500,000 barrels. At Superior, Duluth last week, production was the heaviest on record. All mills are going this week and the figures may reach 110,000 barrels.

IRON AND STEEL TRADE.

Cleveland, Sept. 27.—The Iron Trade Review says:

The double effort put forth recently to stem the tide of advances in iron and steel was temporarily successful. Sales of Bessemer pig iron by a large western buyer at prices from fifty cents to one dollar below those previously ruling, coming simultaneously with the buying for Pittsburg delivery of two blocks of eastern iron, to be made from imported ores, offset fot the time the fact of the generally admitted inadequacy of Central Western furnaces to the enormous current consumption of steel in tributary districts. In Bessemer pig iron there has been some buying on a basis of $17 Pittsburg, a good-sized block of metal being taken at this figure. Minor sales have been made at $16.50, Valley furnace. The position of foundry iron producers is one of continued strength. A small additional freight advance on Southern iron comes October 15. Meantime Southern furnaces are selling for further future deliveries than were entertained a few months ago. Lake Superior charcoal, which was slow to catch the step, has made more rapid advances in October than any other iron, and is now $15.25 to $16 at lake port. Steel billets are for the time being affected by the peculiar conditions surrounding Bessemer iron. Pittsburg sales have been at $23.75 to $24. In the Cleveland district steel has been quiet. Chicago billet sales were 15,000 tons in the week. In the Cleveland district a western mill compelled Pittsburg to go below what had been accepted as market, and now a sharp struggle is on between Chicago and Pittsburg for several thousand tons of material for an upper lake shipyard. Railroad buying keeps up, but it is largely for track supplies and repair work.

TORONTO PRODUCE MARKETS.

Toronto, Sept. 27.—The market is about the same. Wheat—In the local market prices are firmer. Winter G.T.R. west sold at 61c, and that figure was bid for car lots on the Northern. No. 1 hard spot, Toronto and west, quoted at 70c, and 70c was bid for 20,000 bushels, Montreal freights, delivery first half of October. Holders ask 72c for same. Flour—About the same. Strong rollers in demand, Toronto freights, at $2.80, but holders ask rather more. Mill-feed—Quiet and easy. Bran is quoted at $11, Toronto freights, and shorts at $13. Peas—Car lots sold high freights west at 48c. Oats—Demand from lumber camps active and a good deal of business is being done. Mixed quoted at 23c, high freights west, and white at 23 1-2c to 24c. Rye—Car lots sold east at 43c and 44c would probably be paid on a low freight to western distilleries. There is no export buying. Barley—Feed quiet and easy at 31c to 32c outside. One car was bought at 31c west.

QUEBEC NOTES.

Pilots Complaining—A New Factory—That Attempted Train Wrecking.

(Special to the Herald.)

Quebec, Sept. 27.—The fact that the English war vessels dispensed with the services of pilots on their return to Bic has caused considerable complaint from the pilots. They claim that the warships violated the laws protecting pilots who are an incorporated body.

A new boot and shoe firm has been formed and is about starting business under the firm name of the Standard Boot Co., Mr. W. A. Marsh is president.

The police is now investigating the case of an attempt to wreck a passenger train on the Quebec & Lake St. John Railway, on the 13th inst. It is reported that the authorities are likely never to find out the real authors of this outrageous attempt.

This evening's newspaper L'Evenement, denies the report of an attempt to wreck Mr. Laurier's train at Chicoutimi while in another column the same paper is announcing that the police court is busy making searches for the nameless people who are the authors of the affair.

Police Court News.

James Powell and William Farrell were brought up before Judge Dugas in the Police Court on a charge of stealing a $100 gold watch from Francis McKenzie on St. Paul Street some days ago. They pleaded not guilty and have been remanded for trial.

Three Jews named Ita Frank, Louis Silverman and Sarah Deeskin, were brought before Magistrate Lafontaine for assaulting a Circuit Court bailiff named Elie Rochon. He was sent to seize a quantity of goods and was not allowed to do so. The goods were afterwards concealed. The trio pleaded not guilty and have been remanded for trial.

MANY DISAPPOINTED.

Toronto Fair Visitors Hoped to See the Manufacture of a Well-known Product.

Toronto, (Special), Sept. 23.—Many regrets were expressed by visitors to the Industrial Fair that the Dodd's Medicine Company of this city did not have a display of their well-known Dodd's Kidney Pills, the remedy which has by this time become so widely and favorably known for the absolute cure of all complaints of the kidneys, even in the most acute stages. A rumor was current that a public exhibition of the manufacture of the remedy would be given, but the restricted space this year prevented the possibility of such a scheme. Those who went away disappointed at not seeing the manufacture of their favorite remedy will have to wait till next year.

Scott's Sarsaparilla

ACUTE Inflammatory Rheumatism is produced by an excess of uric acid in the blood. Paralysis is nearly a dead circulation produced by impure and impoverished blood. So-called neuralgia of the thigh is sciatic rheumatism; scrofulitic rheumatism is hereditary; syphilitic results from syphilis; gout is caused by high living; sluggish circulation affects the heart.

"THE KIND THAT CURES"

Thus the whole line of rheumatic diseases owe their being to an affected circulation of impure blood. No person can suffer a rheumatic pain that has a free and equal circulation of pure blood, and this accounts for Scott's Sarsaparilla curing the supposed incurable cases. It eradicates all rheumatic poisons and acids from the blood and equalizes the circulation.

MONTREAL DAILY HERALD, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1895.—12 PAGES.

"A WEEK of thorough enjoyment," said Sir Henry Irving, as I chatted with him on Saturday night. "Yes, my friend, a week of thorough enjoyment which I shall not soon forget. Tell Montreal that I shall come back some day." He closed the first week of the 1895-96 season here on Saturday night with the first production in America of Dr. Conan Doyle's "A Story of Waterloo." The Academy was crowded and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed. It was used as a curtain raiser, and was followed by "The Bells."

The story of Waterloo has been told many times, but never as penned by Doyle and pictured by Irving. It only takes thirty-five minutes to tell it and to work into it some of the prettiest detail that the stage has known.

This particular story of Waterloo is that a soldier was on his way to the battle with powder, which was badly needed. The route was blocked by a wood on fire when Brewster, then a corporal in the Royal Scots, or Third guards, successfully passes through the fire, lanking the powder at its destination, Brewster is now eighty-six years old and still delights to tell the story of Waterloo.

"'The regiment is proud of you,' says the Dook. 'And I'm proud of the regiment,' says I. 'And a damned good answer, too,' says the Dook."

This little speech Corporal Gregory Brewster persists in still retailing at every convenient chance, and it was received with greater cheers the more the old veteran spoke it.

Irving's presentation of the part is a character study that even excels anything he is now appearing in.

When the Colonel calls upon Brewster and suddenly says, "you are Corporal Brewster." "Yes, sir," and "I am Colonel," the aged veteran sprang to his feet in an effort to salute the officer, only to fall back exhausted.

The scene brought tears to the entire audience and for some moments the tumultuous applause stopped the play.

Then Brewster retold his story as he grew fainter and fainter, and as he sank to sleep murmured, "I have one favor to ask; give me a flag and a firing party."

Shortly afterward little Nora and Sergeant McDonald are chatting, when the old veteran springs to his feet, and, still asleep, once more goes through the fearful powder story.

Death comes, and, as ever, Irving's passing scene is grand in its painfulness.

"What do you think?" asks Nora, and the sergeant replies, "I think the Third Guards have their full muster now."

It was touching in the extreme. Applause broke from the audience only after it was realized that the scene was but of the mimic stage.

There was no chance for criticism. Every detail was carefully attended to, and Miss Gibson and Messrs. Mellish and Webster deserve a word of praise.

Sir Henry made a pretty little speech, and at midnight the company left on a special train for Toronto.

John Hare has been strongly advised by many of his American friends to present while in America one or more of the series of Robertson's comedies, which made his management of the old Court Theatre, London, so noteworthy an era. Sir Henry Irving and many others of Mr. Hare's English friends are also said to strongly recommend this course, so it is possible that we may have an opportunity of seeing Sam Gerridge and other Robertsonian characters depicted by the artist who first made them famous. So far it has only been definitely decided to include in the repertoire of the Garrick Theatre Company for America Mr. Coghlan's comedietta, "A Quiet Rubber," Sydney Grundy's "A Pair of Spectacles," and A. W. Pinero's "The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith."

The Sporting Duchess has entered upon the second month of its run in New York. The thrilling features of the melodrama, notably the Derby race scene, are as exciting as ever. Miss Alice Kilby, of this city, is playing a nice part in the piece.

"Admirer" sends me the first act of a drama he has written entitled: "Lost in Montreal" and asks for an honest opinion of its merits. There can be no doubt but that it is written in a style that not even the greatest dramatists of the day have failed to acquire. I give the closing scene in the act so that others than myself may enjoy it.

Act 1.—Scene 3.—Same as First.—Darkness.

(Enter John Melrose with candle). Lays candle down, looks slowly around, quivering. (J.M.)—What noise was that I heard in this room a moment ago. Ah, I know it—the will—the stolen will—(takes will from drawers)—Ah, the will, the blessed will, that hands this estate over to me. (Looking around) Ah, the will, (noise outside)—(frightened). Ugh, the cursed will that worries and tortures the life out of me. (Noise). Humph. (Frightened). Ha, ha, me afraid of such a slight noise as that. Ha, ha, oh no, that not my nature. (Frightened) (drinks). Ah, now I feel better. (Noise) But lo, what noise is that I hear (listens) (humming noise crossing room) (shakes and will drops from his hands) (Humming noise repeated) (looking around) where is my conscience tonight? Is it my fast deranging mind that seems to stir the spirits of the night? (Humming repeated) (looks around). What noise is that I hear? (louder). Ah, I know thee, the spirit of my dead brother comes to warn me of what I am doing. Ah, (pausing) I am stealing the will that belongs to my dead brother's children. Ah, ha, no, no, here, here—haunt me not. Here avenge your wrongs thus (unsteady walks to sideboard). Now, courage, ah here it is (handling bottle) (looks at it) Poison, yes (fills up glass with wine). Now, spirit of my dead brother take avenge on me thus, thou who haunts me in my sleep at night be avenged on me now, for all my past crimes (raises glass to lips) (humming) (glass shakes and he leans on table for help). Ah, courage here goes, (raises glass) (voice outside sings "Nearer My God to Thee") (he listens and as voice approaches he throws down glass violently) and as E. M. (wife) enters he falls in her arms outstretched. (He calls) Repent, yes repent. (Hand raised and wife holds him up) (tableaux) (curtain).

Now, as to my opinion of this play, I can only say that "admirer" may rest assured that he is a writer, such as Montreal has never known before.

Alexander Salvini several years ago was advised by Mr. Irving, who took a warm personal interest in his career, to attempt the role of Hamlet. Mr. Irving was of the opinion that the pragmatic English Hamlet was being overdone, and that the time was ripe for a Hamlet with color, emotion, fire, and, in short, some redeeming trait of romanticism. In April last Salvini played his Hamlet for the first time, and now we are promised that soon Montreal is to see it.

Opera comique will be given at the Academy of Music week after next, as it has seldom before been given in Montreal. That is rather a broad statement, but the fact the Abbey Schoeffel and Grau, the invincible trio of impressarios is responsible for it, makes it worthy of credence. Two operas will be included in the short season of one week at the Academy, and both will enlist the full strength of the Lillian Russell Opera Company, which is, of course, headed by the peerless Lillian herself. Two carloads of scenery and baggage are already at the Custom House for the production of "The Tzigane," which will be the first work presented, and two more carloads, representing the investiture of Offenbach's rare old gem, "La Perichole," will accompany the company from Washington. "The Tzigane," in which Miss Russell will begin her engagement was written especially for her by Reginald DeKoven and Harry B. Smith. It had a wonderfully long run in New York, and has since received the unqualified endorsement of Boston and Washington. The company in support of Miss Russell numbers one hundred people, and among them are a dozen of the cleverest singers and comedians on the light opera stage. The advance sale of seats and boxes for the Russell engagement will begin next Thursday morning.

The production of "My Wife's Friend" at the Academy this week is worth more attention than the papers have given it. One cannot help but laugh and laugh heartily, at the play if it is carefully listened to and watched from beginning to end. I never had the pleasure of seeing W. C. Andrews before, and it was a pleasant surprise, indeed. He is of the same school as Drew, Hilliard and Goodwin, and if I mistake not will be heard from in something far more pretentious than his present piece. His leading lady, too, is an actress of whom we have heard little, but who surely must come to the front. She is so absolutely genuine in all she does. Even to the kiss which she gives her affianced (Mr. Andrews)—even that is genuine. So much so that I thought she was Mrs. Andrews, but I learn differently. But, seriously, she is clever, very, and though Mrs. Arminda Ponsby Luster is a pretty part, it is scarcely in keeping with the young lady's talents.

* * *

Sometimes a "mommer" is a great comfort and help to a young lady striving for prima donna honors and—sometimes she isn't. There is a young lady at one of the theatres who has a "mommer" who always travels with her, who thinks that the sun rises and sets over her head and who believes that Melba and Calve aren't in the same class with her—well, we'll call her Sallie because that isn't a bit like her name nor any other prima donna's. On Tuesday evening Sallie smiled prettily as she tripped upon the stage, and in the lobby of the theatre all evening there stood a tremendous basket of roses directed to her in a big, bold hand—as big and as bold a hand as Jimmy White could muster.

Just before the curtain fell on the last act the basket was carried around by two ushers into Sallie's dressing room, and there, after the last call had been answered, the whole cast gathered around to admire it and wonder who sent it. Sallie's "mommer" looked it over in evident astonishment.

"Well, well!" she exclaimed, "I never thought it would be that big."

The latest is that Squire B. Bancroft and Mrs. Squire B. Bancroft are contemplating a journey after American shekels. Squire B. and Mrs. Squire B. are well known and well liked on the London stage, and the recurrence of their names reminds me that Squire B. was very anxious a year ago to secure the English rights for Sardou's "Mme. Sans Gene."

Sir Henry, he was plain Henry Irving then, got the piece, you know, and there is a little story about how he announced his purchase to Mr. Bancroft that I never remember to have seen in print.

"Mme. Sans Gene" was produced in London by the original French Company, and everybody, including a lot of would-be purchasers of the English rights, was there. Bancroft had a stall, and Sir Henry had a box. After the first act Bancroft decided he'd take the piece—he had been rather afraid to come to a full decision before that. Even then he thought it would be just as well to get Sir Henry's opinion, and so he bustled around to the great actor's box.

"Well, how do you like it?" he queried, scarcely waiting for Sir Henry to ask him to take a seat. "It's great," he rattled on, "great! A hit! A splendid property!" and then remembering that Sir Henry had as yet expressed no opinion, "don't you think so?"

"I'm glad you like it, Mr. Bancroft," replied Sir Henry, in that slow way of his, "I'm extremely glad you approve it, for I bought it at noon to-day for Miss Terry."

The London Times thus speaks of the first production in England of "Trilby": "The play is mainly in the form it has had in New York, but Mr. Tree has introduced some alterations. In the second act he now gives an indication of what is to come by betraying symptoms of great exhaustion through the transfer of his powers to Trilby. He breaks into a passion of blasphemy, but realizing suddenly that his life is being sapped he falls to his knees in fear, only to return, however, to his scoffing when he thinks he is past the danger. A feature of the play is the delicate way in which it treats the lax morality of the students and the frailty of the heroine, the grosser side being almost eliminated. The reception accorded to the piece on Saturday night was a very flattering one. There was general disappointment at the lameness of the finale, but otherwise there was plenty of enthusiasm. As represented by Miss Dorothy Baird, Trilby was a most charming young woman, whose attractions quite accounted for so many people losing their heads about her. Mr. Tree's Svengali was a sombre but most impressive person. Craftiness was strongly marked, but the great feature of the character is the frenzy with which Svengali pursues his object of so hypnotizing Trilby that, although she is deaf to tone, she shall sing as woman never sang before, and so bring him wealth. At the close of the performance Mr. Tree thanked the audience for their reception of the piece, and introduced Mr. Potter, who, he said, had travelled 3,000 miles in order to be present."

King Humbert of Italy is a vegetarian and seldom eats anything except bread, potatoes and fruit.

"Coriolanus," which Henry Irving will bring out this fall, was last produced in London in 1860 by Samuel Phelps.

In the privacy of his study Emperor William smokes a big china-bowled pipe of the typical German kind.

Lady Randolph Churchill is beguiling her widowhood by riding a bicycle at Aix-les-Bains, with manifest improvement to her health.

Sarah Bernhardt has presented her two pet gorillas to Jardin des Plantes of Paris. She is now anxious to engage a sea-serpent for the season.

Andrew Lang is writing a life of John Gibson Lockhart, the son-in-law and biographer of Sir Walter Scott and editor of the Quarterly Review.

Only Mr. Sims Reeves's most intimate friends were aware of his marriage a fort night ago to Miss Maude Rene, one of his pupils, who had already been heard on the concert platform. A few months ago his first wife, well known as Miss Emma Lucombe, died, it will be remembered, rather suddenly.

The summer house of Prof. Bell, the telephone inventor, is on an estate of 15,000 acres in Cape Breton, on the Bras d'Or. On one of the neighboring lakes the professor has a house-boat propelled by a steam launch, with a trap door cut in the floor of his dining-room, so that he can fish, if the fancy strikes him, while at the table.

It is said that the newly-granted arms of Sir Henry Irving are now ready, but rumor has not disclosed the motto. Who would like to suggest one? The shield is sable, on which are four swans argent, in the centre is a wreath of laurels or, and a similar wreath surrounds the helmet."

Mrs. Annie E. Barr has lived for so long in America that many persons have come to regard her as an American. She is a North of England woman, and was married in Kendal Parish Church, Westmoreland. She spent many years in Scotland prior to leaving for America, and in her latest work, "Bernicia," Mrs. Barr gives evidence of this fact by her acquaintance with Jacobite history and lore.

M. Vallot, the rich Frenchman who has made a hobby of climbing Mont Blanc, and who has made the ascent twenty times, is a slight, little man, not at all a typical climber. In his knickerbocker suit he looked more like the conventional tourist of the seaside than a mountaineer. M. Vallot now has a project for surveying the Mont Blanc range, and, with a civil engineer and nearly a dozen assistants, he recently passed through Chamonix on his way to the mountain.

Mme. Deschamps, oldest of the Paris market women, is dead at the age of ninety-four. She supplied the Tuileries with vegetables in the days of Charles X. and Napoleon III., and she had the impression for years that the Emperor was in love with her. To Mme. Deschamps was attributed the invention of Julienne soup, or at least of the practice of chipping the vegetables used in that soup. Though a famous character, she was buried without any funeral honors from her associates.

It will be remembered that a short time ago, whilst Lord Charles Beresford was being rowed across Chatham Dockyard, the boat upset, the seaman who was rowing him being picked up in an exhausted state, Lord Charles swimming ashore. As a memento of the occasion, Lord Charles has presented his companion with a meerschaum pipe, the case of which carries a silver plate bearing an inscription recording "our jolly ducking." A grim touch is added to the kindly gift by the fact that the bowl of the pipe is moulded in the shape of Death's head.

It is said that Lady Dudley is probably the only peeress of the realm who has risen from the rank of a shop girl to her present social eminence. True, she bore prior to her marriage the name of Gurney, one of the most ancient in Norfolk. The young countess's father, however, met with business reverses, resigned his partnership in the Gurney Bank, and surrendered all his possessions for the benefit of his creditors. Mrs. Gurney opened a milliner's shop in London, but met with scant success, her two daughters, who acted as assistants, ultimately becoming saleswomen in the shop of the modiste, Madame Elise.

Mr. Balfour is going to have a solid month at golf. The more he plays the more, he becomes fascinated with the game, and quite a considerable number of new Tory members, impressed by his example, are acting upon the notion that, in order to show proper "form," it is necessary to supplement membership of the Carlton Club by becoming initiated into the healthful mysteries of the golf links. There is no doubt that Mr. Balfour has done more than anybody else to make the game of golf fashionable and popular amongst politicians. Often when bored by the debates in the House he will talk quite eagerly with colleagues about his favorite recreation.

Among society women who cycle Lady Archibald Campbell is one of the latest to declare against the skirt. "Having tried (she writes to the World) the various skirt patents, all of them, as I think, absolutely irrational in conception, and after having also tried the mysterious convertible blind or curtain arrangements in the way of skirts constructed so as to tuck up or let down, to show or conceal, as occasion requires, the harmless knickerbocker, I most cordially disapprove of all. I agree with accomplished cyclists of both sexes who cultivate cycling as an art, that any skirt is out of the question which is not cut short enough to clear cranks and pedals when the cyclist is seated, and make dress guards unnecessary."

King Khama is the most interesting African of the present century. His career bears an extraordinary parallelism with that of King David, and he is the darling of the English missionary world. When 18 years of age he incurred the anger of his father, the truculent Sekomo, because he would not take a second wife, and during the last 20 years, since his own accession to power, he has abolished polygamy, witchcraft, and "smelling out"; has introduced English methods of dress, trial by jury, religious toleration and education; set to his people an example of unobtrusive piety, and has done far more than the British Colonial Office to keep the Hamburg fire-water out of the reach of his people. Like David, too, he has moved his court from the Hebron-like village of Shoshong to a new Jerusalem at Palapye.

The late Mrs. Barrie has seldom stirred out of Kirriemuir, the Forfarshire town her son has made famous as Thrums, nor even to the last could she quite understand why people should come all the way from America to look at the house where James Matthew was born, especially as she had another son who was a school inspector. The old lady, from whom the novelist has inherited his intellectual force, was a perfect specimen of the unsophisticated, outspoken, true-hearted Scotchwoman of the last generation, not above bannocks and skimmed milk, but on a level with the greatest in nobility of thought and independence of character. A few weeks ago Mrs. Barrie, who had long been ailing, was so much better that her son and his wife started away to Davos Platz to visit Dr. and Mrs. Conan Doyle. It will be a deep regret to Mr. Barrie, who has all the Scottish reverence for parents, that he was not with his mother when she died.

A paragraph has appeared in the Scottish papers stating that the Queen's good health is owing to her careful dieting, one of her practices being to take "a small liquer glass of very fine old whisky after both luncheon and dinner." This is a pure invention, for the Queen never drinks any spirits undiluted. Her Majesty occasionally takes a small glass of fine old whisky mixed with a tumbler of mineral water. People must have a queer idea about "careful dieting" who include raw spirits in the regimen. The Queen takes a light breakfast, a hearty luncheon, a substantial tea, but, at a quarter to nine, when dinner is served, Her Majesty eats very sparingly, and only of the lightest and most nutritious food. About midway between breakfast and luncheon, when the Queen is transacting business (all the heavy work of the day being over and done with at half-past one), Her Majesty takes a refresher in the shape of either a cup of beef tea as strong as it can be made or an egg beaten with a little milk or sherry.—Truth.

SAVED MUCH SUFFERING.

REV. FATHER BUTLER'S INTERESTING EXPERIENCE.

Suffered From an Abscess in the Side Which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cured After Other Medicines Failed.

(Caledonia, N.S., Gold Hunter.)

Faith leads many to believe, yet when one has experienced anything and has reason to rejoice, it is far stronger proof than faith without reasonable proof. About four miles from Caledonia, along a pleasant road, passing by numerous farms, lives Rev. T. J. Butler, the parish priest of this district. Reports having come to the ears of our reporter about a wonderful cure effected by Dr. Williams Pink Pills, he called on Mr. Butler to seek information on the subject. Mr. Butler spoke in very high terms of the Pink Pills, and said they had saved him untold suffering, and perhaps saved his life. The reverend gentleman felt a little hesitancy at giving a public testimonial at first, but after our reporter remarked that if one was really grateful for a remarkable cure he thought it was his duty to give it publicity for humanity's sake, he cheerfully consented. His story in his own words is as follows:—"I was led to take Pink Pills through reading the testimonials in the papers. I was troubled with an abscess in my side and had tried many different medicines without avail. I took medical advice on the subject, and was told I would have to undergo an operation to cure it which would cost me about $100. At last I determined to try Pink Pills, but without a great feeling of faith of their curing me. One box helped me and I resolved to take a three months' course, and give them a fair trial. I did so, and to-day I am completely cured of the abscess in my side through using Pink Pills, and I always recommend friends of mine to use Pink Pills for diseases of the blood." As Father Butler is well known throughout this county his statement is a clincher to the many wonderful testimonials that have appeared in the Gold Hunter from time to time. On enquiring at the stores of J. E. Cushing and N. F. Douglas, it was found that Pink Pills have a sale second to none. Mr. Cushing on being asked if he knew of any cures effected by them, replied that he had heard a great many personally say Pink Pills had helped them wonderfully. If given a fair and thorough trial Pink Pills are a certain cure for all diseases of the blood and nerves, such as rheumatism, neuralgia, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance, nervous headache, nervous prostration and the tired feeling therefrom, the after effects of la grippe, diseases depending on humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. Pink Pills give a healthy glow to pale and sallow complexions and are a specific for the troubles peculiar to the female system, and in the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of any nature. Sold by all dealers or sent by mail, postpaid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N.Y. Beware of imitations and substitutes alleged to be "just as good."

Napoleon forces mate in 5 moves.

This would appear a courtier-like move on the part of Count Bertrand. He ought to have taken P—K 5 with Q, having the exchange and 2 pawns in return for a very formidable attack.

The above game is taken from "Waifs and Strays," published by Captain Hugh A. Kennedy, who has been aptly styled "The Boswell of Chess."

Hastings, Eng., Sept. 3, 1895.

My Dear Mr. Elwell,—As I said in a letter written about a week ago, you would doubtless know the result before the letter reached you. And now, in receipt of your cable message, permit me to say that among all the kindly words of congratulation sent me there are two or three I prize more than all the rest—those from my dear Brooklyn friends.

It seems but fitting for me to say that I value the position I have taken here, not so much for myself as for our glorious country and our glorious Brooklyn Chess Club; and in this the hour of my life, permit me, through yourself, to express the most heartfelt thanks to my friends who have enabled me to achieve the result.

I hope and trust this victory will awaken that chess enthusiasm which has so long lain dormant, and will induce Americans to realize that in America we can raise up chess players as good as the best. I trust my success has not changed me, and that I shall always be the same Pillsbury—only I hope, with added chess powers.

I have been approached with regard to a chess match with Lasker for the championship, and have stated that I could say nothing till I could see my American friends. Such a match must of necessity be played in England, and the Hastings Chess Club has already requested first consideration for its financial arrangements for at least half of the games.

In case the arrangements are concluded the match would hardly be commenced before March 1, 1896, and therefore I give it to you simply as news, as I shall do nothing definite about it till I see you.

I have written a few lines to the Brooklyn Chess Club, which I enclose. With warmest regards to all my friends, and particularly to Mr. Foster Higgins, to whom I trust you will express my renewed and lasting appreciation of his kindness. I am, sincerely yours,

H. N. PILLSBURY.

Pollock to Be Entertained.

It is contemplated by Mr. Pollock's friends on his arrival in this city to give him some sort of recognition of his victories at Hastings. It is not definitely decided what form this will take; perhaps simultaneous games may be played, the entrance fee to be given Mr. Pollock or a purse may be made up by subscription. He will be well received on his return.

It is barely possible that a chess club will be formed in Lachine this winter There are several good players there, and some who can beat a supposed first-class player at odds of a rook, and beat him badly.

Pillsbury May Visit Montreal This Winter.

The pleasant manner in which this young chess hero was treated by Montrealers while here during the Lasker-Steinitz match has not been forgotten, and it is on the cards that we may be favored with a visit from him soon.

DO NOT SUFFER

With Kidney Complaint—You Can be Relieved Within Six Hours.

I take much pleasure in stating that I have been using South American Kidney Cure, and found relief within six hours after first dose taken. I became sick in January, 1893, when I employed several of the local physicians, and was treated by them until the fall of 1893 without receiving much benefit. I then began using South American Kidney Cure, and have found great benefit, and am almost, if not quite, cured. Have not been taking any of the medicine for seven weeks and feel as well as ever.

A Prayer for Fine Weather.

From Macmillan's Magazine.

There was the minister of Broughton who prayed for dry weather in the midst of a perfect downpour, and when notwithstanding his prayers the great blasts of rain still beat on the window, exclaimed in his aggravation, "Lord, Lord, but this is maist reedeklous!!"

ENGLAND.

Mr. Gladstone, the greatest financial Minister of the century, describes bimetallism as one of the "passing humors" of the hour, and the remark will probably be quoted as a classic epitaph on the delusion which Mr. Balfour, as one of its prime authors in England, has done his best to kill and bury.

The returns of the Metropolitan Asylums Board on Sept. 12 showed a decline in the number of both smallpox and fever patients. During the day there were four fresh cases of smallpox and forty-two of scarlet fever. The number remaining under treatment at midnight on Wednesday was 318 and 2,678 respectively.

The flowers preserved in a block of ice, sent from Sydney for the Queen, have not yet been presented to Her Majesty. They are blue Australian water lilies—the blue a beautiful ultramarine—and in their unusual setting they make a bouquet of more than a quarter of a ton in weight. For the present the water-lilies are keeping their bloom in an ice chamber to which they were removed from the steamer.

Sir Charles Cust, who is giving up Leasowe Castle, is about to have the contents of the famous Cheshire mansion brought to the hammer. These include some fine pieces of old oak, old steel coffers, and a rare fossil skull and horns of the Bos Primigenius and other interesting remains of early forest life. Visitors will have the opportunity of seeing applied in the decoration of the dining room the identical carved oak furnishing of the notorious Star Chamber, which was abolished in 1641.

Few men were better known in Leeds than Mr. Thomas Evan Pritt, manager of the Leeds Joint Stock Bank, and formerly of the London and Yorkshire Bank, who has just died at Torquay. He was a keen angler, and the founder of the Yorkshire Angling Association, for which he obtained some capital fishing near Penrith, while he published books on his favorite pursuit, including "North Country Flies" and "The Book of the Grayling," while he was writing as a serial at the time of his death "An Angler's Basket."

The action of Cardiff in electing the Marquis of Bute as mayor, followed by the election of the Earl of Warwick as mayor of Warwick, appears to be quite contagious. Sheffield is to have the Duke of Norfolk as mayor next year, Longton is to have the Duke of Sutherland, and now Dudley is pressing the Earl of Dudley to accept nomination as mayor of the borough. Rotherham, only a step behind, is anxious to obtain the services of Viscount Milton. Now the corporation of Whitehaven have unanimously decided to ask Lord Lonsdale, the host of the German Emperor, to accept the mayoralty of that borough for the second year.

By the death of Mr. Ralph Hart Tweddell, on Sept. 8, the engineering profession loses one of its most able members. In the public mind his name is chiefly associated with the hydraulic riveter which he invented, but among his brother engineers he was well known to have done much other good work. The application of hydraulic pressure to the working of machine tools was, however, his great achievement. There is now hardly an important shipbuilding and engineering establishment throughout the world that has not hydraulic riveters or flanging presses based on what is known to engineers as the "Tweddell system."

Bulgaria is the school for rising diplomatists. Sir Nicholas Roderick O'Conor, who succeeded Sir Frank Lascelles in Sofia, now succeeds him as Ambassador at St. Petersburg. The scion of an old Roscommon family, he began his diplomatic career in Berlin in 1866, and then served in Madrid, Washington, Brazil, Peking—where he did good work as charge d'affaires—again in Washington as Secretary of Legation, and from that was posted to the Bulgarian capital, in which it is enough to say he showed himself no unworthy heir to Sir F. Lascelles' reputation. After five years there he went back to Peking, this time as the head of the mission, and he has done well under the most difficult circumstances.

Mr. Sam Woods, President of the Lancashire Miners' Federation, addressing a large meeting of miners at Pendlebury, near Manchester, said the Rosebery Conciliation Board agreement would end in July next, and there was every indication from the stacks on coalpit hills and the crowded condition of the mines with men, that another attack would then be made upon miners' wages. Private reductions were being sought all over Lancashire and the funds of the federation were being used to prevent inroads upon their organisation. While the membership in Yorkshire stood at 54,000 it was only 27,000 in Lancashire, though there were the same number of workers. The Lancashire Federation had decided to place a scheme for its reconstruction on the same lines as Yorkshire before meetings of the men throughout the country, and if adopted, as he believed it would be, he ventured to predict the membership would be increased to 40,000 by March. There were some signs of an improvement in trade, and he hoped at the end of the year they would be able to join the Scotch miners in asking for an advance.

Lord Wodehouse, eldest son of the Earl of Kimberley, who was fined £5 at the Petty Sessions held at Smallburgh, Norfolk, on July 30, for committing an assault at a meeting held at North Walsham in connetion with the East Norfolk election, has been removed from the Commission of the Peace. His lordship himself publicly announced this fact at a meeting at North Walsham in celebration of the return of Mr. R. J. Price. He said the Tories had carried their revenge as far as they could. He did not consider it a disgrace, and he left it to the electors of East Norfolk to judge whether he deserved this insult from the Tory Government. Mr. Price, M.P., expressed his disgust at the tactics of the Tory party in removing Lord Wodehouse from the bench, and said there were scores of Tory magistrates who had committed worse offences than this technical assault, and who yet remained on the roll. He moved a resolution declaring that the removal of Lord Wodehouse was not only a great injustice, but a great loss to the district, and he suggested that a monster petition should be prepared for presentation to the Lord Chancellor. The resolution was carried unanimously.

The proceedings of the Trade Union Congress, says the London Times, have disappointed the hopes we formed about them. The congress has had a fair opportunity of improving on its last year's work, but it has not taken advantage of it. We find, on the contrary, a repetition of the old faults which exposed the Norwich Congress to general and well-deserved ridicule. Collectivist theories are in the same favor as before. We have never unreservedly approved of trade unionism in any of its forms, but with Old Unionism in the ascendant we certainly looked for something less preposterous than the Cardiff Congress has put forward. We see, too, with some amusement, that the congress has declared by an overwhelming majority for the speedy abolition of a second chamber, as hostile to labor legislation, and that it has gone a little out of its way to express its disapproval of the German Emperor and of the manager of the Taff Vale Railway. We should have thought that at the present moment the congress might have felt that a more modest attitude was becoming to it. The general election has resulted in the signal discomfiture of some of its most prominent members. Old and new Unionists have been involved in the same catastrophe. We may add, further, as a correspondent has pointed out, that even in its own little kindgom the importance of the congress has been markedly on the decline. Trade unionism is less popular with the working classes than it used to be. It is a question, further, by what right at any time the Trade Union Congress could speak as representing the working classes. In the day of its extreme prosperity it did not represent quite one-seventh of their number; and in 1893, out of eleven million industrial workers in the United Kingdom, there were, roughly speaking, one million unionists and ten million non-unionists. Such facts as these throw additional ridicule on the proceedings at Norwich and at Cardiff.

IRELAND.

An unusually large number of emigrants left Coal-island, and Stewartstown, Co. Tyrone, and Draperstown, County Derry, during the past week. It is noteworthy that the emigrants are mostly young girls and boys, who have been engaged at service, but a good many of them are the sons and daughters of small farmers.

At the meeting of the Dublin Corporation on Monday, the Unionist members being absent in accordance with their resolution passed on Saturday, Mr. Reilly moved the resolution of which he had given notice that the members of the Corporation in their robes of office should take part in the coming public demonstration in honor of the memory of the late Mr. Parnell on the occasion of the anniversary of his death. The resolution was passed unanimously.

The interesting function of formally opening a dairy factory, established under the auspices of the Irish Agricultural Organization Society, took place on Friday at Ballywilliam, near Nenagh, in the presence of a large attendance of local gentry, farmers and others interested in the agricultural co-operative movement. It is the first of a number of co-operative undertakings of its kind, by which it is proposed to supersede the old system of dairying in that part of the country, and it is an excellent and complete concern in every detail.

It seems that the disturbances in Truagh threatened to be of a much more serious nature than was at first anticipated. A correspondent says it is now stated on authority that the ground in the vicinity in which the emergency men were employed was ploughed up with bullets, and that the party were in a very hazardous position for some time. At the beginning of the hostilities the police charged their weapons with buckshot, but later, when matters began to assume a serious aspect, the buckshot was withdrawn, and ball cartridges inserted in the rifles. Notwithstanding that the police were pressed to fire on the crowd they refused to do so, as there were women present. Sir John Leslie, steward, it is understood, decided to withdraw from Treanor's holding sooner than see any blood shed. The chief difficulty would seem to be getting away from the farm. The hilltops were covered with people, who threw stones and other missiles at the emergency men as they retired. No arrests have been made, and it is understood that no arrests will follow.

A sensational occurrence, which threatens to assume the dimensions of a society scandal (says the Freeman's Journal), is stated to have taken place at Kilbeggan on Sunday last. The facts as elicited from a most reliable source are said to be as follows: Mr. John Locke, senior partner in the Kilbeggan Distillery, had been absent from home for some days, and on returning on Saturday evening last he found Captain F. T. Lund, 9th Lancers, Aldershot, staying at his house as the guest of Mrs. Locke. Captain Lund had been a visitor there previously during the hunting season last winter, but on Mr. Locke's arrival home on Saturday it would appear he ordered the guest to leave. The latter is stated to have declined to comply, and an angry altercation followed, in the course of which Mr. Locke brought in a number of his workmen to expel Captain Lund by force. Ultimately the matter ended for the time being, the captain being expected to leave next day. On Sunday, however, another altercation ensued. Mr. Locke sought the assistance of the constabulary on the ground that he apprehended a breach of the peace, and Head Constable Hanna, with two members of the force, proceeded to the house. Mr. Locke again requested Captain Lund to quit his residence, and after several angry passages and recriminations the last-named is stated to have asked that he should be granted two hours for packing. The reply is said to have been that only fifteen minutes would be allowed, at the expiration of which time the captain's baggage was deposited outside the street door, and he shortly afterwards drove off on a hackney car to the residence of Mr. James H. Locke, (brother of Mr. John Locke), at Arnaglue. Captain Lund is said to have subsequently left for the house of Mr. Featherstonhaugh, Carrick, County Westmeath. The affair has caused tremendous excitement.

SCOTLAND

Robert Burns, the last surviving relative of Scotland's poet, received a few days ago from a representative of the Scotsman a gift of £13 from Scottish associations in South Africa.

Bicycles are used by 38 men of the County of Aberdeen Constabulary.

The Town Council of Aberdeen has fixed the price of gas at 3s 4d per thousand cubic feet, a reduction of one penny on last year's rate.

A terrific thunder storm passed over Perthshire one night last week, the houses being shaken by the heavy reverberations of the thunder. The rivers are flooded, and great damage has been done to the crops by the inundation of a large tract of country. Many houses were badly flooded, especially in Crieff and its neighborhood.

It seems a pity that the negotiations for the incorporation of the various small burghs around Edinburgh with the metropolis should have come to a standstill. It is hoped that only a temporary hitch blocks the way. There is no doubt than an immense amount of trouble and vexation would be saved to both the police and postal authorities if this arrangement could be carried into effect.

The Duke of Sutherland, in observance of the good old Scottish custom, according to which every man's children, from the laird's downwards, went to the parish school, has this year sent his two sons, the Marquis of Stafford and Lord Alistair Gower, to the Golspie Public (or Board) School. Thus the Marquis begins his education among those who will one day be his tenants and workmen.

It is satisfactory to think that the new Water Supply Scheme for the City of Edinburgh from the Talla system is on the fair way to realisation. At last the Scottish metropolis will enjoy a water supply that will be both abundant and good. That from Alnwickhill, the Crawley Springs, and Glencorse is excellent, but it is not nearly adequate to the growing wants of the people.

An interesting wedding took place on Wednesday morning at Douglas Castle, Lanarkshire, the seat of the Earl and Countess of Home. The contracting parties were Lieut. Lord Gillford, R.N., eldest son of Admiral Earl of Clanwilliam, and Lady Mary Margaret Elizabeth Douglas Home, eldest daughter of the Earl of Home. The bridegroom, it will be remembered, is one of the few survivors of the Victoria disaster.

How many rats should put an ordinary man to flight? We now know that thirty won't cause a Scotch judge to turn tail. Sheriff Campbell Smith has just had before him at Dundee a case of broken tenancy on account of an incursion of the rodents, and, while he gave judgment in favor of the occupant who had left the house on account of the rats, he told him he thought he and his family had been unduly alarmed. "If they could not face them themselves they should have got a cat or a dog to assist them. To be put to flight by three rats—for these were all the defender had seen — was hardly to be understood. He knew some timid people were terrified by rats, but three rats or thirty rats would not frighten his lordship out of a house."

The fourth mod or gathering of the Highland Association which is to be held in Glasgow on 25th October next promises to be a very great success. A number of the choirs from various parts of the Highlands have indicated their intention of competing. Through the efforts of Mr. R. Macleod, Inverness, the gold medalist of last mod for solo singing, Inverness is likely to be this year represented by the choir of the Blind Institute. This choir is well trained by Mr. Roddie, and have good prospects of carrying off a prize. The expenses of sending the choir will be somewhat heavy. "An Comunn Gaidhealach" has agreed to contribute a handsome sum in respect of the choir services at the great Gaelic concert in the evening, but a considerable sum is still required.

The new conductor of the Scottish Orchestra, whose musical season in Glasgow will soon be beginning, is a Dutchman. His name is William Kes, and he is a native of Dordrecht. Thirty-nine years of age, Mr. Kes has had a long career, for he early studied the violin. Having obtained a violin scholarship, he spent three years under Wieniawski, Joachim, Richter, and David. Then he became principal violinist of the orchestra at the Park Theatre, Amsterdam, and afterwards became conductor. Then he returned to Dordrecht as director of its Conservatoire. Since 1888 he has been conducting a fine series of orchestral concerts in Amsterdam, introducing many examples of early musical work. Mr. Kes has been created Knight of Orange and Nassau. Besides being a distinguished player and conductor, Mr. Kes has genuine talent as a composer of sonatas and songs.

The General Assembly's Commission on the Religious Condition of the People last week held meetings in the Presbyteries of Caithness, Dornoch, Tain and Dingwall. Little or no religious indifference, as the phrase is generally understood, prevails in the north, says a correspondent, but from that peculiar sense of "unworthiness" which is characteristic of Highlanders, great difficulty is experienced in inducing them to become communicants. As regards the relations with other churches, the ministers of all, with one exception, reported that there were the most friendly feelings, and that they were frequently asked to take part in religious as well as social gatherings with the ministers of the Free Church. The old feeling of hostility to the Established Church had given way, and now its ministers were everywhere made welcome.

What a melancholy affair the late strike in Dundee has been. There seems to have been nothing of the kind. A few boys, whose services are necessary in the jute manufacture, suddenly resolved to strike for an increase of wages. It was refused to them. Some of the workpeople were of necessity thrown out of employment by the strike of the lads, and then, apparently without any consideration of the possible consequences, mill after mill was closed by the resolution of the operatives to strike for 10 per cent. advance in wages. They do not appear to have consulted together on the subject. The strike seems to have spread as a fire might spread, or as infection might spread. It was estimated that between 30,000 and 40,000 operatives were out of work last week, and at least 20,000 of them must have been out of work for nearly three weeks. They have lost all the wages that they would have earned in that time, and they have not even the small satisfaction of having got an advance now.

The great-grandson of the poet is an officer in the employment of the city of Edinburgh, and wears the distinguishing uniform of the corps. To a man in the enjoyment of good health, and with no encumbrance, the position is one of tolerable comfort, but unfortunately the last descendant of the Scottish bard is now practically unfit for duty of any kind, and most of the work of his office has to be performed by his wife. Robt. Burns was originally a soldier, but being the only son of his mother, he was prevailed upon to purchase his discharge, after seven years' service, for the sum of eighteen pounds. Then, like many a Tommy Atkins, who has no pension to fall back upon, he took to all sorts of odd jobs, chiefly of an open-air character; and finally he found himself, through the good offices of Mr. Dobbie, the painter and decorator in George St., and the late Bailie Hall, of the Edinburgh Town Council, installed under Mr. Macleod, the city gardener. For some time he was employed in the city gardens, until in lifting a heavy stone on the Calton Hill he met with an accident which confined him to the infirmary for three months, and left him a changed and weakened man. Curiously enough, the accident, which in a great measure is responsible for the present unfortunate condition, took place immediately under the monument erected to the memory of his great-grandfather. The result of that accident, combined with rheumatism, has been to leave him in such a condition that he is often confined to bed for days together, and even when he is in health he hobbles about leaning on a stick, the picture of a worn-out man.

THE COLONIES.

The cabman's lot at Melbourne cannot be a happy one. In order to meet the competition of omnibuses and tram cars threepenny fares have been started as an experiment.

The reported discoveries of gold in Griqualand West are turning out to be genuine. The local capitalists are acquiring properties, and Kimberley is resuming something of its old activity.

The Tasmanian Assembly has passed the Income-Tax Bill, which imposes a tax of 8d. in the pound on income derived from personal exertions, and of 1s. in the pound on income obtained from property.

A company has been locally floated in Bulawayo, South Africa, called the Ancient Ruins Company, with a capital of £25,000, to search for treasure. This is probably owing to some remarkable finds of ancient valuables a few weeks ago.

Mr. H. C. Russel, the astronomer, of New South Wales, does not anticipate the break up of the drought in the northwest. It extends from the river Lachlan to the Queensland border and has lasted eight months. It is expected to cause great losses of sheep and cattle; and destructive bush-fires are already raging throughout the colony. Owing to the continued drought the New South Wales Government ordered Sunday last to be observed as a day of humiliation and prayer.

Olive Schreiver, the well-known author, has turned her attention to South African politics, and, with her husband, has published a remarkable manifesto. All sections of public life are freely criticized, but against Mr. Rhodes, "the argument," says the Cape Times, "takes on the note of passion. The Prime Minister is accustomed to bitter and continuous attack, the sources, the motives or the manner of which often draw the sting. But this is the most tremendous anti-Rhodes broadside that we have yet seen. It pulsates with energy and conviction; it has subtle suggestions of sorrow as well as anger; it seems to cover everything; and it marshals everything to witness against this one man as a sinister and dangerous influence. As Mr. Rhodes, in spite of risking his Dutch following by Scab legislation, has still and seems likely to continue to have an exceedingly large majority, it is a very bad look-out for Cape Colony if all this be true. It is a tremendous indictment." Among the retrogressive measures noted are: Raising, while other lands are lowering, the Franchise. Seeking to introduce, while others are abandoning, the lash. The Labor Tax. Alienation of public lands, minerals and precious stones, here and in Rhodesia. Taxing, not luxuries, monopolies and liquor, but the people's food and necessaries. Letting Scab continue while Australia eradicates it. Haarhoff's Curfew Bill.

FOREIGN.

According to the figures given in Petite Republique the subscriptions already obtained in Paris and the provinces for the Carmaux strike by Socialist propaganda amount to 53,457f.

The enthusiasm with which the project of an International Exhibition in Paris in 1900 was first received has been followed by a sharp reaction, but it now seems too late to abandon the scheme.

The San Francisco News Letter says the "although an independent Republic, yet notwithstanding this, these United States are still to all intents and purposes nothing more nor less than English colonies.

At Plauen, in Germany, a beneficent millionaire has left a legacy and a yearly rent in order to build and endow a cooking school which should be a patern for the State schools throughout the country.

The Pope will shortly be the possessor of probably the most valuable chair "on earth." It is constructed of solid silver, and is of the value of eight thousand pounds. It is the gift of Mr. Troop, a wealthy American banker.

It is a curious circumstance, and one that is not generally known, even in the centre of the engineering trade, that Russia has never yet been able to produce men capable of building high class marine engines. Ships are built in various parts of that country, and Russia has turned out many fine specimens of warships. But the Czar has to send abroad for his engines.

Attempts are being made to arrange another "horseless carriage" competition on somewhat similar lines to the one which took place recently in France. The Engineer believes that a very large trade can be done in the production of the new vehicle, if only a suitable carriage can be designed. Already, it is said, prizes to the extent of £1,000 have been offered in view of the forthcoming competition.

A shocking scene was witnessed at the Pezon Menagerie at Lyons, which it is hoped will serve as a lesson to amateur frequenters of cages of wild animals. A railway porter named Leon Eyssette, anxious to have his photograph taken in the cage of a well-known lion, Romulus, was literally torn to pieces by the animal. The tamer Lucas was sent for, but he arrived too late. The occurrence has created great excitement in Lyons.

The Paris newspapers continue to discuss the reported hoisting of the British flag on the Minquier Rocks, between Jersey and St. Malo. Most of them call upon the French Government to refuse to abandon a group of islets situated almost within cannon-shot of the French coast. Others demand that the group shall at least be neutralized. The Minister of Marine is stated by the Echo de Paris to be about to send another vessel to ascertain definitely whether the British flag has been hoisted or not.

The curious fact is brought out by a writer in a French newspaper that Augustus von Bismarck, one of the ancestors of the Iron Chancellor, began his career as a soldier in the army of France. He fought in Lorraine and Burgundy in the seventeenth century, during the operations of Bernard of Saxe-Weimar, which had for their final result the passing of Alsace into the hands of France. "A Bismarck," says this French writer, "has taken Alsace from us; a Bismarck helped to give Alsace to us."

M. Victor Bouteilhe, the father of the Rothschild bomb-thrower, Leon Bouteilhe, was, says a Paris correspondent, a staff-officer of Gen. Dombrowski during the Commune of 1871. He was, therefore, in the same company with Commandant Henry, the father of Emil Henry, who was guillotined for the outrages in the rue des Bons Enfants and at the Cafe Terminus. Leon Bouteilhe's education was paid for by a wealthy priest, but he was expelled from the seminary for misconduct. Bouteilhe's sisters occupy highly respectable positions near Paris. One is married, the other having nearly completed her novitiate as a Sister of Charity.

The Queen Regent of Spain a few days ago, says a Reuter telegram, received a visit at her summer residence of Miramar from the Papal Nuncio, the Bishop of Vitoria, and the Prior of Consuegra. After luncheon, while the Queen conversed with the Nuncio, King Alfonso boldly challenged the Bishop of Vitoria to a game at billiards. The prelate accepted, the Prior of Consuegra undertook to chalk the cues and mark the game, and play began. There was an amusing contrast between the persons of the players. The Bishop is a tall man, while the little King, though valorously striving to make the most of his height, had difficulty at times in reaching his ball. The game was watched with much interest by the guests who surrounded the table. The Bishop did not win.

PROTESTANT AND CATHOLIC CLERGYMEN

Are of One Mind Touching the Remedial Character of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder.

While Protestants and Roman Catholics are wide apart as to certain remedial measures proposed just now, they find common meeting ground in Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. Take Hamilton alone. This medicine has been used by Presbyterians like the Rev. Mungo Fraser, D.D., and Rev. John Scott, D.D., by Episcopalians as with the Rev. W. H. Wade, and Rev. Chas. E. Whitcombe; by the well-known Baptist Rev. G. A. Anderson; by prominent members of the Methodist Church, and by the Rev. Father Hinchey, and many of his parishioners. They all tell the one story of the great good this medicine has done them. The same story has come from the most prominent clergymen in Toronto and elsewhere. It is unlike any other catarrhal remedy, simple, easy and pleasant to take, and quick in a cure. It will give relief within ten minutes in Hay Fever. Sold by all druggists. Sample bottle and blower sent on receipt of two 3-cent stamps. S. G. Detchon, 44 Church Street, Toronto.

Sympathetic Youngsters and Art.

Amusing comments upon art objects are occasionally heard. Two little boys wheeled their "bikes" up to the gate of the Zoological Garden, where they caught sight of the beautiful bronze group which the Fairmount Park Art Association has placed there. Gazing for a moment at the dying lioness, pierced with an arrow, the playing cub, and the old lion roaring his grief and rage, the full pathos of the story sank into one of the little chaps and, pointing to the cruel barb, he cried with a voice full of tears, "Who stuck it intil him, Billy? Who stuck it intil him?" Billy didn't know who the guilty party was, but he did know a man who had a bow and arrow.

Munkacsy's great painting, the "Last Day of a Condemned Man," also comes in for a share of sympathetic interest. One of a group of boys who were gazing at the prisoner in that picture suddenly brightened up and suggested to the other fellows, "Well, if all them people wuz to jump on that soldier at once, then he could get away, couldn't he?" And having provided the prisoner with a way out of his desperate fix, a whole load of anxiety seemed to be lifted off their minds.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Musical Matters.

The season is now, it may be said, in full view, and a very perplexing panorama it presents. Not only in Montreal, but all over the continent the promise is for an extraordinary and profuse display of talent. Each new issue of the papers contains some fresh announcement of an engagement of some orb of more or less magnitude to assist in the scintillation of the musical firmament, till it makes one's spirit hurriedly climb down from the dizzy heights of the prospective, and pessimistically hope in the language of the "fin de siecle" that more has not been bitten off than can be conveniently masticated. It is somewhat curious that when last season was absolutely a struggle for the "survival of the fittest" in matters musical and almost all enterprise was paralyzed that there should apparently be a launching out of capital, or its American equivalent "enterprise," to such a hazardous extent. The summer season has done little, if anything, to justify it, but the signs of the times are evidently such as to suggest to the impressarios the advisability of speculative engagements, and it may be taken as a healthful one which everyone must wish should be a reliable indication of a good time coming.

* * *

In Montreal the prospect is most uncertain. The Philharmonic is out with a bigger programme than ever, a new choral society has entered the lists and commenced its application for recognition, the amateur orchestra has begun rehearsals with a very evident vitality and enthusiasm in its organizaton, and the management of the French Opera has in the face of financial loss last year redoubled its exertions to give satisfaction and make both ends meet. The programme is a big one, and it needs all the patronage and support that can be brought to make it a success.

And surely there is something offered for all. To those who disapprove of theatricals there is plenty in sight in the form which they consider unobjectionable, and there is a double duty upon them to put their professions into practice and show that they believe in their convictions by supporting what they uphold. To those who are attached to the living pictures of the stage an ample opportunity will be given to study and enjoy the masterpieces which have been created for it. There is hardly a form of music that will not be represented in some manner or phase, and the public should recollect that good things are not self-supporting, and that artists are neither immortal nor ethereal. They must eat to live. Art and its votaries are like few other things; they live for others and others must in return take care of them.

* * *

But my most serious word is to my fellow and brother critics. If there is a class of men who can do much to help the success of the season they form that class. Not by insensate and indiscriminate adulation—the "puff" and the "boom" have never assisted and will never assist art. Criticism is not a play upon words, to be jockeyed and used to exalt the writer at the expense of the subject. It is first a gift and then an education. The gift of criticism is a rare one, for it must mean that incisive and administrative capacity which sees where the ordinary individual may only feel his way, and demands form and perfection in everything and can light the way to them, but it must just the same be augmented by a careful and earnest study of the subject. However brilliant the natural gift of criticism may be ignorance will stultify it and render its judgements worthless.

* * *

The artists for the French Opera arrived a week ago, and the opening will take place next Thursday. All the seats for the opening night have been disposed of I hear. This is gratifying, but hardly unexpected; if it were an over-subscription for the last performance there would be ground for surprise. Besides the company and scenery the management has brought over three instrumentalists, two violinists and a pianist. One of the violinists, a M. Barbe, and nephew of M. Adrien Barbe, the first tenor, made a great impression on the vessel on the way across. It is said he is a fine artist.

* * *

"Le Songe d'une Nuit d'Ete (Midsummer Night's Dream), with which it is probable the season will open, was written by Ambroise Thomas in 1850 for the Opera Comique, of Paris, where it was produced on April 20, 1850. This was sixteen years before Mignon, which is, it may be said, his representative work, nor does "Le Songe" belong to the same period. Critics have divided Thomas' work into three divisions or periods, and this opera belongs to the middle period, which extended from 1848 to 1861, comprising very light opera, almost bouffe, which, being poetical and refined in form, made a protest against the forced and hackneyed forms of the Italian school. "Le Songe d'une Nuit d'Ete," although a burlesque on the lives and times of Queen Elizabeth and Shakespeare, has no connection with Shakespeare's play of the same name.

* * *

A recent clipping says: "A concert will be given in October (in New York) to introduce Master Maurier Kaufmann, a young American violinist, who is said to be a boy of exceptional talent." "American violinist" is good with that name, but perhaps Master Kaufmann was born in some part of America. It seems a rather slim argument towards "Americanism in music" and reminds me of a squib I saw one time that in Halifax they manufactured sardines out of sprats by hanging up a map of the Mediterranean in the canning room.

* * *

Emile Sauret, the distinguished pianist, comes to America in January next. This reminds one that M. Sauret was the first of the three living ex-husbands of Teresa Carreno, the great pianiste, who has been divorced three times, her other ventures being Tagliapietra and Eugene D'Albert.

If the Sadducees of old could have imagined such a conjugal condition as this it would have enabled them to make their poser about the woman who had seven husbands in the grave very much more intricate.

* * *

There is a rumor that Massault may at last visit this continent this winter.

* * *

The New York season is announced in brilliant colors. Two opera seasons, Abbey's opening Nov. 18, of French, Italian, German and English grand opera, and Damrosch's of Wagner opera later on; also the Philarmonic concerts, Damrosch Symphony concerts, both beginning in November, the Oratorio Society and the Boston Symphony concerts. Among the operatic novelties will be "Le Cid," "La Navaraise," "Hansel and Gretel" and "Bartered Bride. Among the artists, vocal and instrumental, will be Calve, Melba, Sembrich, Nordica, the de Reszkes, Plancon, Brema, Januschowsky, Lolo Beth, Olitzka, Rivarde, Loebaume, Ondricek, Saurét, Marsick, Nachez, Paderewski and Emil Fischer.

* * *

The Paderewski tour will be as follows: Oct. 30, New York, Polish Fantasie with Damrosch Orchestra; Nov. 2, New York, first recital; Nov. 6, Philadelphia; Nov. 9, New York, second recital; Nov. 11, Brooklyn; Nov. 13, Philadelphia; Nov. 16, New York; Nov. 19, Boston, with Boston Symphony Orchestra; Nov. 21 and 22, Portland, Me.; Nov. 23, Boston; Nov. 25, Worcester; Nov. 27, Springfield; Nov. 28, Troy; Nov. 30, Boston; Dec. 2, Hartford; Dec. 3, New Haven; Dec. 5, Providence; Dec. 7, Boston; Dec. 9, Philadelphia; Dec. 10 and 13, Washington; Dec. 11, Baltimore; Dec. 16 and 18, Pittsburg; Dec. 19, Cleveland; Dec. 21, Buffalo.

Montreal is conspicuous by its absence. Why can't we have crazes here before the artists become historical?

* * *

A couple of Sundays ago I was in Toronto, and happening to drop into the Metropolitan Methodist Church on Church Street just after morning service heard part of the choir practice, conducted by Mr. F. H. Torrington, an accomplished musician, and formerly, it will be remembered, of Montreal.

The singing was very fine, but I was particularly struck with a young contralto, of the name of Miss Burrows, who possesses an exquisite voice, of most sympathetic quality. This young lady sang "I Cling to Thee, My Saviour," by Crozier, a song which is admirably written and contains some beautiful modulations. Miss Burrows is still studying at the Toronto College of Music in oratorio and church music. I wish she were a Montrealer.

* * *

Here are some personal notes from abroad: Mr. Nikisch will be the conductor of the Gewandhaus concerts in Leipsic. His brief career as a director of the opera at Budapest suggests the thought that a sojourn in America is creative of a spirit of independence, which is incompatible with the methods which prevail in the royal institutions in Europe. Verdi is said to have devoted the last four months to church music and to have composed several hymns to the Virgin and a mass in honor of St. Antony of Padua. A story is going the rounds to the effect that Saint-Saens has finished an opera entitled "Brunhilde," and that, true to his roving instincts, he composed the music in Paris, Toulouse, Spain, Algiers, Egypt, Ceylon and Cochin China, being driven from one place to another by the cold and noise. Emilio Pizzi, who used to live in New York, and composed "Gabriella" for Mme. Patti, is said to be at work on an English opera. Humperdinck has finished the score of "Die Konigskinder," another fairy opera, and it will be performed at Munich about Christmas.

HARMONY.

WAS A PATIENT

In St. Joseph's Hospital, Hamilton, Ont.

The Doctors Said a Surgical Operation Was Necessary to Effect a Cure.

THE LADY LEFT HOSPITAL AND DOCTORS.

She Uses Paine's Celery Compound and is Cured.

Another wonderful, almost miraculous, cure to report. As usual, the afflicted one is saved by the use of Paine's Celery Compound.

Mrs. Annie Saunders, the cured lady, lives in Bracondale, a pleasant suburb of Toronto. Her sufferings from a trouble common to many women were terrible, and the wonder is that she now lives. To her medical and hospital treatment proved of no avail. At a critical juncture the doctors deemed an operation imperatively necessary.

Mrs. Saunders would not sanction the proposed operation; she decided to try a medicine that had cured thousands; she had faith in its wondrous powers to make her a new woman. Paine's Celery Compound was her chosen agent; she used it, and thanks Providence for the happy change effected. She writes as follows regarding her cure:

"It is with much pleasure that I testify to the value of your wonderful Paine's Celery Compound. I was a great sufferer from severe attacks of neuralgia in the left ovary. At times the attacks were so acute that I thought I would lose my reason.

"Several doctors treated me, and I was a patient in St. Joseph's Hospital, Hamilton. I obtained no relief from medical treatment. The doctors said unless I had the ovary taken away I could not be cured.

"Instead of submitting to the operation I used Paine's Celery Compound, and I am thankful your valuable medicine cured me. I feel like a new woman, and I would like all sufferers to know just what this great medicine has done for me."

Christianity and Mohammedanism.

Outside of Christendom what we behold is stagnation and decay. Nowhere is there the faintest sign of progress, except in Japan, and Japan has advanced by adopting the methods and imbibing freely the spirit, if not the actual creed, of Christendom. The horrors of Port Arthur prove that the assimilation of the Christian spirit is very imperfect without the formal organism in which it has been historically enshrined; but at least these horrors were apologized for, and the war was otherwise conducted according to the rules of civilized warfare. Japan is, therefore, the exception which proves the rule, and the exception is due entirely to the influence of Christianity.

In all other non-Christian States whatever movement there may be is backward. And nowhere is that tendency more marked than under the rule of the Crescent. It is, therefore, an unfortunate time for a Moslem to choose for instituting a comparison between Islam and Christianity, much to the disadvantage of the latter, both intellectually and morally. Yet this is what some Indian Moslems have lately been doing. It is significant that these vindications of Islam, at the expense of Christianity, all hail from India, where Islam has long ceased to be a ruling power, and has, therefore, been unable to exhibit its real spirit.—Quarterly Review.

DIZZINESS IN THE HEAD.

This is a Sure Precursor of Apoplexy, and Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart at Once to be Taken.

No one can read the daily papers without being seriously impressed with the fact that a large number of people in the present age have within their system the evidence of apoplexy. This is seen and felt often in a trembling and uncertainty of the limbs, and frequently in an unpleasant dizziness and lightness of the head. He is a very unwise man who, knowing these symptoms to exist, does not promptly take measures to have them removed. We know of no remedy that has been so remarkably successful in this particular as Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. Primarily it is a heart Cure, but it is equally effective in what is to some extent a parallel disease, apopletic symptoms. In a season when unusual heat prevails and excitement often runs high, we are doing a kindness to men and women by letting them know of this remarkable medicine.

Literary Notes.

One would scarcely expect the story of the making of a pair of equestrian statues of Lincoln and Grant to be as interesting as a piece of fiction; but this it truly proves to be in McClure's Magazine for October, where Mr. Cleveland Moffett describes the long and patient labors of the artists O'Donovan and Eakins, first in the collection and study of documents and the discovery of suitable living models for horse and rider, and then in the actual modelling of the life-size statues lately completed by them for the Brooklyn memorial arch. A grand-nephew of the poet Keats, Mr. John Gilmer Speed, takes note, in the same number, of the centenary of the poet's birth, in a paper written from original letters and manuscripts in his possession. Mr. James R. Gilmore ("Edmund Kirke") tells how the office of the New York Tribune was armed against the mob that assailed it at the time of the New York draft riots. Another newspaper article written largely from personal experience is Mr. James Creelman's account of the London Times, and its development, character and policy under the mastership of three succeeding John Walters, the last of whom, shortly before his death, revised Mr. Creelman's paper. The quality of personal experience gives special value also to a paper by Theodore Roosevelt, president of the New York Police Board, on the closing of the New York saloons on Sunday; to a story of riding over an earthquake in a locomotive, by an engineer, Cy Warman; and to Governor Thayer's account of Gen. Grant's abrupt removal from command at Pilot Knob and his as abrupt restoration. So much for the matter-of-fact side of this number of McClure's. It is no less notable on the imaginative side, including new stories by Anthony Hope, Robert Louis Stevenson, Ian Maclaren and Stanley J. Weyman, and a poem by Mrs. T. H. Huxley.

The October Arena contains a startling paper by A. R. Barrett, an ex-Government examiner for failed banks, entitled "The Era of Fraud." It should lead to prompt action looking toward protecting the people from unscrupulous guardians of their funds. The editor of the Arena gives a charming historical sketch on "Chester-on-the-Dee," the only walled city in England, and a place exceedingly rich in historical interest. This contribution is made especially attractive by a number of exceedingly fine full-page illustrations. Mr. Flower also contributes a paper on "Sir Thomas More," which is one of the series of papers on the Renaissance which have been appearing in the Arena. The brilliant, logical and incisive writer, Helen H. Gardener, contributes her third paper on the history of the recent legislative battle for sound morality. These contributions are of special value to all persons interested in protecting girlhood and raising the standard of morality.

The Herald has received several numbers of the Searchlight, of San Francisco, a woman's journal, devoted to social reform and the enfranchisement of women generally and particularly those of the Pacific coast. It is a bright, attractively gotten up paper, and will doubtless be of great assistance to the cause it advocates. It will interest Canadians to learn that the talented editor, Helen Gregory-Flesher, M.A., is a Hamilton lady.

One of the most exciting tales of adventure from the pen of Stanley J. Weyman since the appearance of A Gentleman of France is the House of the Wolf, a sketch of incidents during the massacre of St. Bartholomew. Mr. Weyman's attention to detail imparts a local coloring to the story, so vivid that the scenes represented appear almost to be passing before the eyes of the reader. There is a pretty love story running through and relieving the almost too realistic description of the horrors of that dreadful episode. The author's knowledge of the French history of that period and his power to depict the important events of the time through the mouths of his heroes were never more clearly shown. (Copp, Clark & Co.)

"Neighbors of Ours," a book by Henry W. Nevinson, is in many respects a remarkable work. It aims to be nothing more than a series of sketches of low London life, but its striking realism cannot fail to impress even the most careless reader. Mr. Nevinson has been almost cruelly true to life. He has sought an unlovely type, and he has not sought to idealize it. There are ten of these sketches of not widely varying merit, but one in particular, the "St. George of Rochester," is, perhaps, the most striking of all. These stories are told by Jacko Britton, who appears to be, from his own description of himself, a fair sample of a young London rough. He early introduces his readers to the "neighbors," whose curious doings make up the book. A knowledge almost startling of life among low class Londoners is betrayed throughout in expressions of thought which, while put into the patois of Jacko, could never have been conceived by that interesting young man. Nothing is spared in the way of language to make plain the manner of life of a very large proportion of the inhabitants of the modern Babylon. In the story of the St. George, to which reference has already been made, the talk of the old bargee in his description of the one romance of his life brings with it all the pathos that could be crowded into many a tale of drawing rooms and doings therein. It brings with it also the smell of the river, and the reader cannot fail to feel sorry for the old man who won the Doggett badge, but who lost at last the woman he loved—albeit unlawfully. "Little Scotty" is another pathetic story, and "In the Spring" shows clearly how romance may even find a home in the heart of a dirty old pedlar of canary food. The last two stories, "Father Christmus" and "Only an Accident" plainly betray something more than a passing knowledge with such military matters as fall to the lot of the average volunteer. "And the good of an officer is as 'e's kind o' bound to see yer through; and if 'e don't, it ain't none o' yer doin', and yer've got 'im to curse at," remarks Jacko casually. Perhaps a better definition of the average soldier's views on the question could not be made.

Altogether the book is of great interest, though it may possibly come in for harsh criticism on account of the very realism which makes it so entertaining. "Neighbors of ours" is one of the latest of Macmillan's Colonial Library, of which the Copp, Clark Co., Ltd., Toronto, are the agents in Canada.

Edward Bok, the editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, has written a book for young men called "Successward: A Young Man's Book for Young Men," which the Revells will publish in a fortnight. The book aims to cover all the important phases of a young man's life: his business life, social life, his amusements, religious life, dress, his attitude towards women and the question of his marriage. This is Mr. Bok's first book.

"Alton Locke" has been reprinted by Macmillan & Co. in pocket form, with a prefatory memoir by Thos. Hughes, the celebrated author of "Tom Brown's Schooldays." The extraordinary popularity of Kingsley's work is indicated on the title page: "First published by Macmillan and Co., 1862; reprinted 1874, 1875; new edition, with memoir, 1876; reprinted July and December, 1877, 1879, 1881, 1882, 1883, 1885, 1886; new edition, January, 1890; reprinted, October, 1890; pocket edition, 1895." The Copp, Clark Co., Ltd., of Toronto, have special arrangements with the London publishers.

Godey's Magazine for October is a Southern number. A very artistic cover by M. de Lipman emphasizes this, and the two leading articles are upon "The Cotton States Exposition at Atlanta," and "King Cotton and his Subjects." The latter treats of cotton picking in the picturesque and the commercial aspects. Other finely illustrated papers are upon Mr. French, the sculptor; "Types of French Beauty;" "Great Singers of This Century," and "The Experience of an American at an Italian Vintage." Among the varied fiction is a remarkable story of society by Frances Aymar Mathews, entitled "A Confession of Success.' The Fashion Department, as usual, covers the field of particular interest to women.

A feature of Godey's which is unique among monthly magazines is the series now running under the title of "Music in America." The papers are of interest to all readers, and of positive value to those who play or sing.

The Ladies' Home Journal for October contains among other excellent articles: "The Dream Ship"—poem, by Eugene Field, with drawing by W. L. Taylor; "Lincoln's Hesitancy to Marry," by John Gilmer Speed; "Loving Too Late," by Amelia E. Barr; "Where Was the Garden of Eden?" by Edward S. Martin, with illustrations from photographs by J. G. Woodward; "Two Unique Church Festivals," by Carrie May Ashton and Mrs. A. G. Lewis; "A Painter of Miniatures," by Nancy Huston Banks, with reproductions; "The Woman Who Most Influenced Me—V." by Thomas Wentworth Higginson; "The Strike in the Choir," by Robert J. Burdette, with drawings by B. West Clinedinst; "A Japanese Room," by F. Schuyler Mathews, with drawings by the author; "Where American Life Really Exists," by Edward W. Bok; "Religion in the Family," by Charles H. Parkhurst, D.D.; "Suggestions for Evening Parties," by Mrs. A. G. Lewis, Mrs. Burton Kingsland and Alice C. Willard; "The Girl and Her Church," by Ruth Ashmore; "Just Among Ourselves," by Mrs. Lyman Abbott.

The Bookman seems likely to secure the same clientele by its American edition which it has for its British edition. It has been called the busy man's literary journal, for it covers all parts of current nal, for it covers all parts of current literature. Among the interesting articles in the October number is the conclusion of Ian Maclaren's latest story, "Drumsheugh's Reward," "The Migration of Popular Songs," by the American editor, Prof. Peck; "Maurice Maeterlinck at Home," by Magdeleine Pidoux. Mr. J. Macdonald Oxley, of Montreal, gives the second chapter of his experiences with editors, dealing this time with "Accepted Addresses." Besides these there is the latest literary gossip, American, British and continental, a London letter from Dr. Robertson Nicoll and an equally brilliant Paris letter from Robt. H. Sherard.

Washington's Water Tunnel.

From the Washington Post.

Once upon a time the War Department began the construction of a tunnel beneath the city of Washington. It was a very big tunnel, and a big amount of money was expended on the undertaking. Part of the Potomac was to be diverted from its course, and persuaded by engineering art to provide the residents at the capital with a constant, never-failing supply of clearest, coldest water. With the details of the plan and with the names of the planners all Washington is familiar. The tunnel did not literally cave in, but the arrangements for its construction fell through, and after a turbulent time of charges and countercharges, investigations and removals, with which again all Washington is familiar, the work was abandoned, the digging was stopped, and the underground water-way, like the overhead trolley wire, supplied mostly material for comment. Recently it has been rumored that the tunnel is to be reopened, and the work in it started again. In the chief engineer's division, "nothing definite is known," and no names and no plans are yet made public. The only real facts thus far are a demanded investigation of a seeming waste of sound money, and a late act of Congress implying a determination to redeem it. If the tunnel should be reopened there will be plenty of Army officers willing and anxious to have charge of its engineering.

Newfoundland and Paradise.

Newfoundland (or Newland, as it is called in a statute of Henry VIII.) is a very different place from the foggy, ice-bound land which most people imagine it. It is further south in latitude than Great Britain; it is no land of fog, and the summers are delightful. It is true that the winters are long and severe, for there is no gulf stream to temper the ocean; but, even in the winter, the sun shines brilliantly—the fogs, in which the prevalent idea envelopes the island, are really far out at sea. May is the most unpleasant month, for ten and twelve feet of snowdrift and four and five feet of ice must be got rid of somehow; so Newfoundland becomes a world of slush and misery. Then June is too often bleak and biting. But before it is over, what a delightful change has come! and it comes with some certainty; there is rarely the disappointment which an English summer brings. We have enjoyed nothing better than the firwoods of Avalon in the summer, their cranberries and hurts and wild raspberries—and the globe flowers and pitcher plants and Linnaea borealis in the marshes.

The country has a character of its own; yet ever and again it recalls old England more perhaps than any other part of the earth. There is a good deal of Devonshire in yon old farm which was settled years ago by Devonshire men; Croker's River is much like a Yorkshire trout stream, and the pools in the early July evening show much the same insect life. But on the banks of the rivers bloom the calmia and azalea; and the Still Water far down amid the forests of pine and fir has a vastness and solitude which we do not see over here. What delightful trout fishing there is, too! how free they come! only the mosquitoes and sand flies are certainly a drawback. And what a paradise for picnics! over the high ground to Topsail Cove, and to Portugal Cove, and Torbay, and Flat Rock. They were no mean picnics in the old days, when the whole community seemed to turn out and drive off to the rendezvous in a continuous stream. For round about the sixties the island was prosperous, and the presence of the military gave life and tone to society.

A quarter of a century has wrought a change; the removal of the troops was certainly a loss; the thought of the island moved in a narrow circle; it lost touch with the outside world; and gradually selfishness and corruption have wrought the failure of responsible government. The present distress of the Newfoundland fishermen is due partly to economic causes; in some measure to the difficulty of the French shore; but very largely to that state of political degeneracy which made it possible for the Supreme Court a year ago to unseat a whole ministry on petition.—Westminster Review.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's CHLORODYNE

Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in Court that DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne, and the whole story of the defendant, Freeman, was literally untrue, and he regretted to say that it had been sworn to.—Times, July 10, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S Chlorodyne is the best and most certain remedy in Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Consumption, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S Chlorodyne—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, December 31, 1864.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S Chlorodyne is a certain cure for Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Colic, &c.

Caution.—None genuine without the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne" in the stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle. Sole manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33 Great Russell St., London, Eng. Sold at 1s. 1½d.; 2s. 9d.
