

Westmount Park renovation plan 'won't cost penny'

By PETER BLACK

A REVAMPED Westmount Park will not cost the city "one penny from taxes," Alderman John Shingler told council Monday, while unveiling plans for what he says will make the greenspace "probably the finest municipal park in Canada."

Ald Shingler, commissioner of parks and recreation, said the $175,000 scheme would provide facilities "directed at the recreational activities that meet the needs of the people."

He said the park will be paid for in its entirety from a fund of "well over $200,000" accrued from cadastral operation assessments against developers, taken in cash rather than land.

Focused on two central paths through the park, for pedestrians and for bicyclists, plans call for the complete incorporation of the blocked-off section of de Maisonneuve boulevard into landscaped park land.

He said a thorough landscaping job would make it clear to motorists that they are facing parkland when they arrive at Melville avenue at de Maisonneuve.

With council's approval of an expenditure of $9,150 for the next phase of landscape architect Ron Williams' work, Ald Shingler expects work to commence in April and the project completed by the fall, in time for the freshly-planted trees to take hold.

A highlight of the park development would be the construction of a bandstand near the eastern boundary of the park. Grounds surround-

Park won't go to dogs; run moved

By LAUREEN SWEENEY

A city decision to move the dog run out of Westmount Park to an upgraded 24-hour run at the northeast corner of Lansdowne avenue and St Catherine street was revealed publicly at Monday night's city council meeting, unleashing a snapping protest from dog owners.

They claimed the city had broken a promise to consult with them before making a final decision, that moving the dog run was taking away a "community centre" and that dog owners constituted a large percentage of park users.

Alderman John Shingler, who made the announcement, said the decision had been "a painful step" arrived at in accordance with the overall development of the park and considering the needs of all 20,000 citizens.

"We're taking away a privilege, not a right," he said, explaining that Westmount maintained 10 dog runs "making us quite singular" in Canada.

The city was not, at this time, taking steps regarding a contemplated parks curfew, he said, and citizens could still walk their dogs on

Answers critics at meeting:

Too late to bar project, mayor welcomes tower

By PETER BLACK

Critics of the proposed Greene avenue tower brought their case to city council Monday. While they received a hearing, Mayor Brian Gallery conceded the project is all but a fait accompli.

Judy Mappin, a Greene avenue merchant who has spearheaded the opposition to the 20-storey project, presented a submission to council asking that no building permit be issued to the developers, Anjar Investments, "for a building that does not meet the design criteria of Westmount Square."

The petition further demands that no permit be granted "until the matter has been opened for public discussion and decision after the architectural proposal has been made known."

Mayor Gallery acknowledged the concern of the group represented by Mrs Mappin, but said "nothing can be done about the height (of the building). The law allows it. What's important is the quality of the building. We have an architectural and

Wallet gone

A blue wallet was reported stolen from an office at 4000 de Maisonneuve boulevard sometime between Feb 13-15, police said. It contained no money. Total amount of the theft was $15.

THE BUMPY ROAD: The residents of 343 Metcalfe avenue were alarmed Jan 14 to find the street outside their home rising with a fairly large bubble. Suspecting an underground water leak, Westmount contacted the Montreal water works, but due to the Montreal blue collar strike it could be a while before anything is done. In the interim, Westmount put up a caution sign to warn motorists of the roller coaster ride.

A 16-year-old Westmount girl was taken to hospital Monday last week after she was hit by an unknown vehicle while crossing south on Dorchester boulevard on the west side of Atwater avenue, police said.

She was taken to the Montreal Children's Hospital suffering injuries to both legs.

The hit-and-run car, described as a red Honda, had been driving north and was making a left turn west onto Dorchester about 8 pm when it hit the girl, a resident of de Maisonneuve boulevard.

Sabotage suspected in light foul-up

Continued problems with the traffic lights on Victoria avenue and Sherbrooke street last week are suspected to have been caused by sabotage, Alex deF. Heron, Westmount director of power and communications, told THE EXAMINER.

After mechanical difficulties put the traffic lights out of commission early Feb 22 until they were repaired late Feb 25, more difficulties soon surfaced as the lights signalled both green and red simultaneously.

Upon further examination, it seemed that someone who had access to the traffic light control panel had tampered with the "flash switch," Mr Heron said.

"It is quite possible this was a spillover of the Montreal blue collar strike," he added, referring to the numerous cases of defective lights which have surfaced since Montreal's maintenance employees began a strike Feb 13.

Mr Heron said, however, that the chance of that type of sabotage happening again is relatively small since the city has recently made modifications to the control panel in question and others similar to it.

Cigarette ignites gown, patient catches fire

A 63-year-old patient at the Reddy Memorial Hospital sustained second degree burns to most of the body Tuesday after his clothing caught fire while he was smoking in a third-floor sitting room of the hospital, fire officials said.

Nurses used wet blankets to extinguish the flames shortly before 5:30 pm and firefighters were called to the scene.

The incident was discovered by a nurse who heard screams from the sitting room where she found the man completely on fire.

Fire investigators said they did not know whether or not the room contained a smoke detector, but "probably not since it was a smoking area."

The victim, a resident of St Antoine street, was described as wearing a nightgown. He was reported yesterday in stable condition but was being transferred to the Montreal General Hospital.

Firm hired to do search for new DG

The firm of Spencer Stuart, management consultants, was officially appointed Monday evening to recruit a suitable candidate to fill the position of director general made vacant by the recent death of Frank Davis.

The director general's duties are being performed temporarily by Peter Patenaude, Westmount assistant director general.

While five tenders were made,

Spencer Stuart's fee of $15,000 plus out-of-pocket expenses was deemed the most attractive.

Details of the other bids were not immediately available.

Camera, jewels stolen on Roslyn

A camera and some jewelry were believed missing from a house broken into on Roslyn avenue Friday, police said. The back door was forced open causing an estimated $450 damage sometime between 10:30 am and 7 pm.

The incident was reported by the son of the victim who was away.

Ransacked

More than $1,200 damage was reported to a building containing two duplexes on Grosvenor avenue Feb 22-23, police report. The damage was believed to have resulted from a family dispute by a resident who had moved out. The place was reportedly turned upside down but nothing was taken.

HON Michael Wilson attended Westmount's Selwyn House for two years until his family moved back to Toronto.

The finance minister's on-going education and experience evidently was not unlike and probably better than that of a typical upper-level Westmounter who has made it in the financial world.

And because of the interests and concerns of a high proportion of Westmounters, what Mr Wilson set out to do and the way he aims to achieve it strike a responsive, sympathetic and supportive note in this community.

To hear the established opponents of the present government, led by the opposition parties, tell it, Mr Wilson's budget last week is little more than a rip-off, particularly of the middle class taxpayers of Canada.

By that token, there should be revolutionary talk in Westmount, a hotbed of middle-classism. In fact, we hear little of that except from the socialist-minded types with whom we also abound, though in more limited numbers than those who inhabit the real world of business. Entrepreneurship and free enterprise remain dominant here despite scholarly theory of what society should but realistically cannot be.

Rather, we are hearing a lot of praise hereabouts for Mr Wilson's budget, considering the long established preference for the Liberal Party in this community. Not so surprising, given the level of local intelligence and achievement: even the most ardent Grit supporters recognize that the reason their gang is not still in control in Ottawa is that they made such an awful botch of it over the long time they were the government.

Even if Westmount Liberal adherents may have specific criticisms of Conservative budget provisions, they are muted in the realization that the Canadian federal financial debacle was almost entirely Liberal made.

One would not believe it from Mr John Turner's comments on the budget: carping without offering any alternatives to cutting government expenditure and raising revenues, to reduce the speed at which the nation's astronomical debt continues to climb. Himself a former finance minister, who incidentally helped us well on our way to taking on programs which we couldn't afford, he seems bereft of constructive ideas, from either hindsight or original thinking.

Mr Edward Broadbent, the leader of the New Democrats from whom the Liberals learned many of their novel ways of "socially desirable" spending, seemed totally oblivious to deficits or debt, prattling about the downtrodden Canadian people and "privileged" business — without which Canadians would be jobless, unless employed by already bloated government.

If we have one criticism of Mr Wilson and of his leader, Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, it is that this government has not sufficiently painted as a crisis the national debt and the on-going deficits which Mr Wilson is attempting to reduce rather than let grow.

If the forecast deficit reduction to $29.8 billions is achieved, one of our office figurers has calculated that that annual shortfall will have been reached only by its accumulation at the rate of $945 per second!

No wonder (and this was a couple of months ago) a Canadian child had $8,000 of debt on his or her head at birth.

No wonder fully a third of the national budget now goes simply to paying interest on our communal federal debt.

We should be taking heart that Mr Wilson is aiming to do something about it. The question is: how effective can he be?

Even the most optimistic Tory should realize that, while the budget is trimming the deficit, the "trimmed" deficit is adding to our debt by $29.8 billions annually, and we certainly are not repaying old debt at anything approaching that rate. In other words, our national debt still is growing on such a scale as to suggest we may never get out of the still worsening spiral.

There is war to be waged on the problem. One might have expected recognition across party lines that we are in a national crisis, headed for disaster without concerted, unified effort.

There are indications that even within the Tory party there are backbenchers and even cabinet ministers — the latter with pet departmental projects they would rather protect from cutting — who are not onside with their finance minister.

It is alarming to hear the detractors from Mr Wilson's efforts. It does no credit to the nay-sayers of all parties to offer only platitudinous criticisms when constructive support is indicated.

Good messages poorly conveyed

FOR a bunch of otherwise pretty good communicators, the members of the elected Gallery administration of Westmount don't always carry it off collectively.

Two issues have, we think, been handled well, internally to their own satisfaction and probably ultimately to that of the public.

The trouble is that in the shorter term present, they did a rather poor job of telling those immediately concerned.

We speak here of two things which, by their nature, should have alerted mayor and aldermen to the sensitivity of the subjects: highrises and dogs, not necessarily in that order of importance.

Over two decades ago it was pretty well established that in its development Westmount should look to its southeast quadrant for dense, highrise, big-tax property development. Much of that has come to pass. A significant parcel, subject of much heated debate in the early 1970s was the northeast corner of St Catherine street and Greene avenue. This was a natural extension of the Westmount Square complex.

Our point here is that a battle was fought and won for the side of the big apartment building with stores at street level. The crisis atmosphere of the Parti Québécois victory put the project on ice. For a decade now we rarely have passed the site, a parking lot all this time, without wondering: "When are they going to start?"

Now it is about to happen. City hall learned it from the developer. How nice it would have been if interested parties in the neighborhood, including the Greene avenue merchants and remaining members of the originally-contesting team, simply had been tipped off that the tower once more was on go.

Instead of a public which had become generally attuned to the idea, old wounds were grazed needlessly among neighbors who feel they will be affected, not all necessarily adversely, i.e. the merchants.

Then there is the decision to shift the dog-run out of Westmount Park down to the green area behind the rink at Lansdowne avenue and St Catherine street. Apparently there had been good communication between city hall and the dog owners over Westmount Park's redevelopment and the necessity of moving the dogs' toilet area. The unused putting green had been prominently suggested.

Thus, it came as a surprise, for some unwelcome, to learn that the canine set is to be shifted out of the park altogether. It is said the Glen site never arose in discussions; it simply was announced without warning.

We've made this point before yet it bears constant repetition. The pleasant, conscientious, hard-working, dedicated, talented, imaginative individuals who make up our city council can, collectively, be something else. Group dynamism does not always include the kind of sensitivity which those comprising the group often possess as individuals.

To fill this void, public relations counsel can be invaluable if not essential. In an economy drive some years ago, the City of Westmount chopped its public relations counsel; not by judicious trimming of some of the more expensive services, but totally.

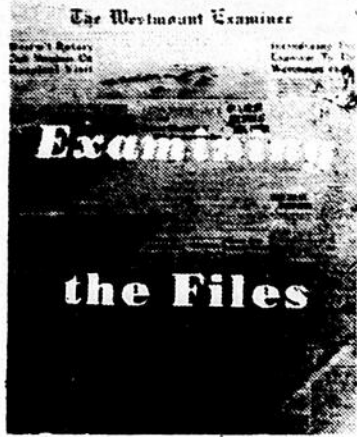

That in our view was a mistake and it never has been rectified. The principals in a body such as a municipal council need an independent, professional view of how they are doing public-imagewise and advice on comporting themselves. However adept they may be individually in their daily lives in their relationships with others, "the council" or "the city" is not merely the sum of those responsible for it. Rather it somehow is a creature in its own right, with motivations not necessarily in accord with those of its masters.

It is quite possible, for example, that mayor and aldermen can have the best of relationships with the Greene neighbors or the dog-owners yet for "the city" to behave like a boor.

There have been many instances of this in the past. "Firegate" comes immediately to mind, when decent members of council let "the city" get away from them, eventually redounding to their own individual discredit. An extreme case, but an example of just how tricky public relations can be.

I Say!

INOOPORTUNE seems to be the current advertising promotion of a U.S. beer being produced and marketed in Canada by the Molsons. Against a backdrop of the skyline of any large city (we thought we could see Westmount Square in one version) a large silver beer can speeds at low level over the ground — looking for all the world like another current U.S. export to Canada, a cruise missile — which crashed on its last two flights!

A little more than a year ago Smithers celebrated his 50th anniversary in business and was showered with congratulations from the many persons he had served, as well as a formal letter of felicitations from the Westmount City Council. Now known as J. Smithers and Sons, and owned and operated by Mr Smithers' two sons, the shop has been located at its present site for the last 49 years."

The by-law, which received item-by-item approval last week, was passed despite the votes of the nine mayors. Twenty suburban mayors voted for police integration. 'I felt that I could not vote for the by-law when I disapproved of so much in it,' Mr McEntyre said. Voting against, with Westmount, were St Leonard, Dorval, Lachine, Kirkland, Pointe Claire, Hampstead, LaSalle and Outremont. The Quebec Municipal Commission will hold hearings on the by-law at some future unannounced date during which any interested persons may express their opinions of the bill. It then has to be approved by the provincial cabinet."

Both the provincial cabinet and the treasury board have ratified a decision to give Dawson a permanent location. David Payne, special assistant to Education Minister Camille Laurin, said Dawson was 'the priority dossier at the moment,' and one in which he has taken a personal interest. 'The only thing that remains is the choice of location,' he told THE EXAMINER on Friday. He indicated that the Mother House is the top choice of the cabinet and treasury board, but was unwilling to commit the government absolutely to that pending further negotiations."

TENANTS PROTEST DISMISSAL OF "TOO-OLD" DOORMAN

OUR M.N.A.
Hon. Richard D. French
SAYS...

A measure of success

ALL of my adult life I have done my best to avoid federal-provincial issues. One seems to talk so long, to so little benefit to the taxpayer. Last week I felt like a Muslim converted to Catholicism and taking his first alcoholic drink at this first communion. Whether I liked it or not, I was co-chairperson of a federal-provincial conference on telecommunications.

Now this was the first such meeting since 1982, when the show broke up in acrimony after half a day. Most of the players and even the nature of the game have changed since then, but the potential for misunderstandings and conflicts of all kinds remains forbiddingly high. In addition, the problem is just about the most complex issue of economic regulation I have ever come across — even were every participant as informed as every other, and seeking the same objectives, which clearly is not the case.

So we met, and we talked. We talked on the record in public, on the record in camera, off the record in camera, at lunch, at dinner, in cocktail parties, in corridors, and in hotel suites. We caballed and we compromised. What was the object of all this frenetic negotiation? We resolved that elected officials ought to retake the initiative in telecommunications regulation, an initiative which had passed, faute de mieux, to regulators while politicians couldn't agree. We established a committee of ministers, of which I am co-chairperson, to try to maintain the momentum in this regard. We are, in short, getting ready to get ready to address the fundamental issues.

I thought this was a trifle slender to offer the taxpayer/telephone user. My officials assured me, on the contrary, that it was a minor triumph — the meeting had not broken down in mutual recrimination, as had all of its predecessors over the last fifteen years.

OUR M.P.
Hon. Donald J. Johnston
SAYS...

Missed opportunities

IN his budget last week and in statements since, our finance minister, Michael Wilson, argues that his two budgets and his November 1984 Economic Statement should be viewed as a coherent package.

The Economic Statement cut minor spending in areas such as health, environment and conservation which are critical to our future prosperity while leaving major areas untouched. The May budget quickly came to grief when it was realized that the government planned to reduce the spending power of elderly Canadians already living below the poverty line while offering a $500,000 lifetime capital gains exemption to the more affluent.

The government's declaration that the May budget was "tough but fair" was quickly rejected.

Now we are faced with a budget that claims to reduce the deficit, mainly through cuts. In fact, Mr Wilson says cuts account for 70 percent of the reduction while tax increases only make up 30 percent. But where are the numbers that support this contention? Tax increases of $5 billion in the next two years are all too real and will be felt by almost everyone with the burden being greatest on middle-income Canadians. But what about the 70 percent cuts. What $12 billion of expenditure is the government planning to cut during those two years? It appears that their approach is much like the person who says: "Look at the forty thousand dollars I have saved today by not purchasing that Mercedes Benz."

When all is said and done on the "cutting" side, the government expects its expenditures to rise from $112 billion to $117 billion from this year to next. Businesses and individuals who have tightened their own belts with real income losses are unlikely to consider a $5 billion increase as a reduction in government expenditures.

The bottom line is that current government strategy will lead to higher taxes on a permanent basis to pay for annual increases in spending. Judging by public reaction, Canadians do not see that as acceptable.

In all fairness, it is clear that Mr Wilson

TO BE UPGRADED: The northeast corner of St Catherine street and Lansdowne avenue, beside the arena, will be upgraded this spring to a 24-hour dog run in conjunction with the closure of the dog run in Westmount Park. Announcement of the changes brought loud protests from dog owners at Monday's council meeting.

comfort station, has become a gathering place in the park where seniors and punkers meet together, dog owner Rita Schaffer, 68 Arlington avenue, told the council meeting, "You are taking away a community centre."

Ald Shingler said he hoped the other nine dog runs would fulfil this need.

He was asked by another citizen, Brian Puddington of 370 Lansdowne avenue, to consider the number of hours dog owners spent on the Westmount Park dog run. "We are probably the people using the park most," he said. "Most of us want to stay where we are."

Andy Dodge, 331 Lansdowne, who led off the questioning, said he was happy to see the city had "pulled back on the curfew which I thought a very dangerous item."

He also asked for assurances that "we will have something safe and useable within Westmount Park" until upgrading of the new location was completed.

Ald Shingler replied that there was no intention of bringing the changes into effect "in the foreseeable future."

City officials told THE EXAMINER yesterday work would start on the new run when park crews could work on the area so that it would be ready for the summer.

A survey by the city showed that the surface of the dog run in Westmount Park suffers continued burning from dog excrement and must be watered down at least three times a week.

The daily clean-up of the run and paths in Westmount Park from dogs is estimated at about $4,000 a year.

Of 46 Canadian municipalities polled by Westmount regarding dogs, 37 returned questionnaires, Ald Shingler said.

Of these, six had dog runs, some in unimproved areas and ravines, 18 permitted leashed dogs in parks and 35 required dogs to be leashed at all times, the only exceptions being Regina and Charlottetown.

leash through the park 24 hours a day.

Although the new location had been discussed during meetings between city officials and the Westmount Dog Owners' Association some time ago, members told city council they had been under the impression the city was favoring the area of the present putting green and had learned of the decision only by accident last week (see You Say, page four).

The new location at St Catherine and Lansdowne, which already is a dog run, is expected to be ready for this summer. It is to be fenced in, lighted, relandscaped and probably available for use night and day, Ald Shingler said.

Gas leak draws emergency crews

Firefighters were called out last Thursday to clean up gas leaking from a Marianopolis student's car parked on Ramezay road near St Sulpice, public safety officers said.

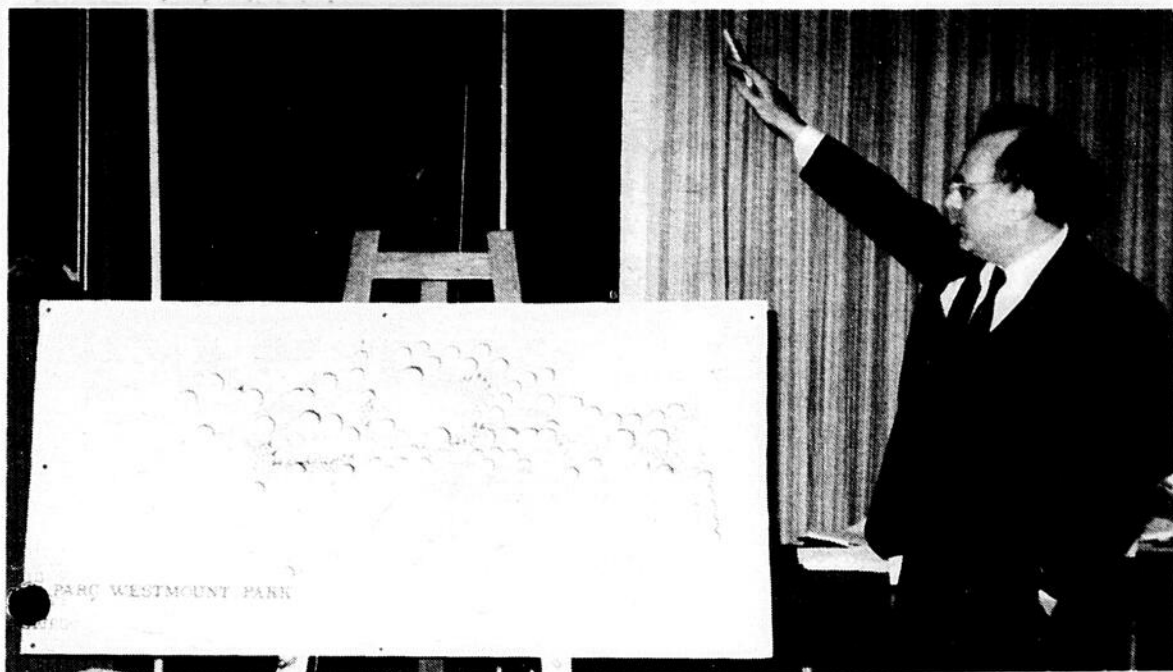

MUC police also responded after firemen decided the AMC Pacer should be towed away. This became unnecessary when the vehicle's owner arrived in time to drive it.

The gas spill was discovered shortly before 2 pm while public safety officers were checking for violations of the two-hour parking limit.

PRESENTING...THE PARK: Unveiling the city's plans for redevelopment of Westmount Park is Alderman John Shingler, who vowed at Monday's city council meeting that the revamping would cost the taxpayer nary un sou. The plans call for the installation of new bicycle and pedestrian paths, a bandstand, and a wide selection of arboreal landscaping, to preserve the park's greenspace character. Work is expected to start next month.

ing the stand would be sloped gently for the comfort and better viewing of spectators.

The stage could be used for scheduled concerts in the park as well as by itinerant musicians.

"We would encourage people who might want to act as minstrels," Ald Shingler said.

There will be a designated family sports and a picnic area where now exists the controversial dog run (see separate story).

Plans also call for a tennis practice board attached to tennis courts in the southwest corner of the park as well as an area for volleyball and basketball in the summer months.

More effective bleachers are to be installed at the two baseball diamonds in the park, Ald Shingler said.

The pedestrian path will have a series of steps to discourage their use by non-pedestrians. "The losers under this plan will be skateboards and kids learning to ride bicycles (on the pedestrian walk)," he said.

Landscaping consisting of a "wide variety of vegetation" will be placed between the pedestrian and bicycle paths to "build up a clear barrier," Ald Shingler said.

Tenders for the project will be called for once project plans are finalized sometime before the end of March, a city official said.

Hot muffler ignites gas

A car fire Wednesday last week at Claremont avenue and Sherbrooke street broke out when gas ignited after leaking onto a hot muffler, fire officials said. Damage to the red 1984 Trans Am was estimated at $300.

Firemen were called to the scene at 11:49 am and used a pressurized extinguisher as well as a 1 1/2-inch hose to put out the fire. The vehicle belonged to a resident of Granby.

Public safety officers said the fire started under the rear of the car at the southwest corner of the intersection.

Dog popular

A cocker spaniel, found Monday afternoon last week on Metcalfe avenue and taken to the Animal Hospital of Westmount, was claimed that night by the dog's owner, public safety officers report. The finder, who lived nearby, had offered to adopt the dog.

$40-million tower will 'please' critics: architect

By PETER BLACK

The 20-storey project proposed for the northeast corner of Greene avenue and St Catherine street will be called Le Château Westmount Square, project architect Henri Colombani told THE EXAMINER this week.

The consortium behind the project, Anjar Investments, has an agreement with the owners of the Westmount Square complex, to adopt the name of the Mies van der Rohe creation, although it will not borrow the architectural style.

Mr Colombani says the structure will be fashioned in imported French natural stone and copper and total project costs could reach upwards of $40 million. He estimates construction alone could total well over $20 million.

He says the tower will share "the same philosophy" as the Château Apartments on Sherbrooke street facing the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. Consequently, Mr Colombani says, the building "will be less than modernist."

'Very high quality'

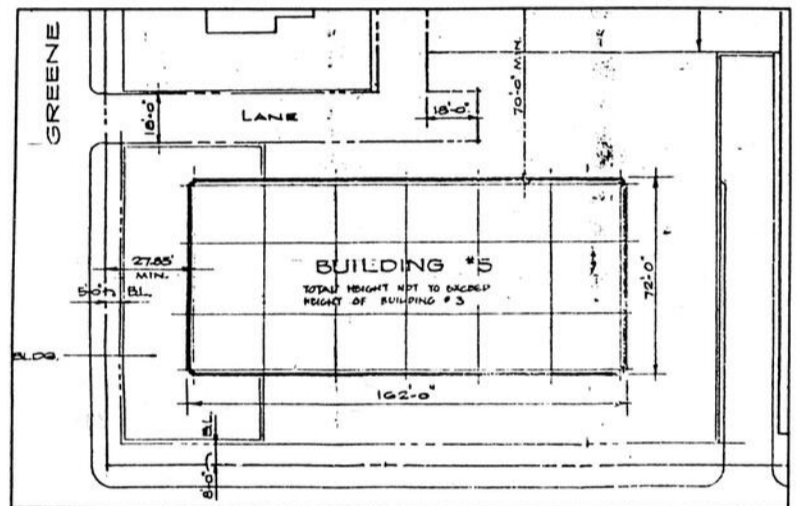

Although some opponents of the project have argued that if there must be a tower at the corner it should emulate the design of Westmount Square, Mr Colombani promises that the building will be "very unique, and very high quality."

He said an underground connection to Westmount Square and the Métro is being considered by the developers, although no specific proposals have been made.

A city official said the matter of a tunnel to Westmount Square has

A MODEL TOWER: This model at Westmount City Hall gives a rough idea of what the proposed new building on the northeast corner of Greene avenue and St Catherine street will look like in the context of the area. The new building is in the centre of the picture with Greene avenue running north just to the left of it. The existing Westmount Square towers are at right and the First Quebec building is in the foreground. Although the shape of the proposed building is not necessarily accurate, the model does represent its maximum allowable height.

This sketch from the city's zoning by-law covering the site of the new 20-storey Château Westmount Square indicates how the tower itself must be set back from the both Greene avenue, at left, and St Catherine street, bottom. Only the first floor of the structure, to contain retail outlets, is allowed to be built beside the street.

been discussed with the developers in regular meetings on design details, but no commitment has been made by Anjar because of the legal implications.

Westmount Square officials had not responded by press time to questions about a connecting passage-way.

Mr Colombani said he is convinced that sceptics of the project "will be pleased with it once they see it."

"I will be glad to give them all the information I can. I am concerned with their fears," he said.

The architect said he spoke recently with Judy Mappin, a Greene avenue merchant and outspoken critic of the project.

"I told her I was ready anytime" to meet with people concerned about the aesthetics of the project.

He said a press conference unveiling the final design of the tower would be held in about a month.

City go-ahead for tower could come as early as April

City officials are meeting frequently with the architect for the new Le Château Westmount Square to ensure the project satisfies the expectations of Westmounters, a city official says.

Judging from progress so far in agreeing on design specifications, Bruce St Louis, director of services for the city, says a building permit could be issued in four to six weeks and construction commence shortly afterwards.

While the tower itself will be 20 storeys in height, the maximum allowed under the existing zoning, that of the tallest of the Westmount Square structures, only a one-storey building will be permitted abutting the street.

The retail level could be subdivided into from one to eight outlets, a matter which is at the developer's discretion, Mr St Louis said.

The city has helped fashion the eventual color of the stone used, having insisted on the use of masonry for the exterior surfaces. The color will be a medium tone of grey-beige, Mr St Louis said.

He said that because of the impact of the building on its environs, the city's architecture and planning commission has taken more time than usual to go over the building specifications thoroughly.

Discussions are now focused on the volume of the building after which examination of the interior design will proceed, Mr St Louis said.

He said the process is "an enormous task" for the architect, Henri Colombani, as a change made on the ground floor may affect the other 20 floors.

The third to 12th floors of the building are expected to contain eight units each, while floors 13 through 20 may contain a maximum six units.

will be set back 27 feet from the sidewalk at Greene as well as St Catherine street. Its width cannot exceed 72 feet and length (along St Catherine) is limited to 162, according to the zoning by-law.

Woman injured in car crash on Sherbrooke

A 30-year-old Westmount woman was taken to hospital Monday last week following a rearend collision involving three westbound cars on Sherbrooke street just east of Greene avenue, police said.

The victim, a resident of Grosvenor avenue, was taken to the Queen Elizabeth Hospital by Urgences Santé after bumping her head into the windshield and hitting her lip on the steering wheel. She was reported as not wearing a seat belt.

The accident occurred about 5:20 pm when the victim's car, a rust-colored Toyota, which had been stopped behind another, was struck in the rear and pushed into the one ahead.

It was the only one to sustain damage, estimated at between $250-$500.

Water damages Super Tube shop

A tap left running flooded the floor of the front showroom area of the Super Tube firm at 4026 St Catherine street Wednesday last week with about 5 cm of water, public safety officers said. Damage was reported to the carpet and base of a television set.

When emergency crews arrived shortly after 7:54 am, they found water seeping outside under the front door.

Firefighters forced their way into the building through a rear door causing $25 damage, according to MUC police.

planning commission whose members love the city as much as you."

The mayor said, "Even today we were assured that the building is turning out to be something magnificent."

The "ad hoc committee" opposed to the building argues that zoning permitting the 20-story structure was only granted with completion of Westmount Square in mind. It says that a deviation from the architectural concept would be a contravention of the zoning by-law.

By-law limited

While the by-law does set height, set-back and density specifications, exterior decor details are not specified. It is the mandate of the city's architectural and planning commission to oversee the aesthetic features of construction projects, a city official explained.

Mayor Gallery said the architect may be invited to a city council meeting to explain the project. "I think we should greet him as a friend."

Allan Bull, a member of the Westmount Municipal Association, asked Mayor Gallery during the question period if the city had done a cost-benefit analysis of the Greene project.

A city official said he would supply that information to Mr Bull.

Asked by Allen Nutik, "How council let this one slip by?" Mayor Gallery said it has long been the belief of the city that the section of St Catherine street between Atwater avenue and Greene is to be the city's economic base.

He noted that the corner site has been a parking lot for 10 years and now it is finally being developed.

"I think it's going to be a great building," the mayor said.

(See separate story for more on the new building's design.)

Watch found

A black Timex watch was reported lost in King George Park Saturday by a resident of Metcalfe avenue, according to police.

Burned stores entered

A row of four unoccupied buildings ravaged by fire Jan 19 on Greene avenue were discovered broken into Sunday night, public safety officials said.

Locks and hasps securing doors at 1353-1363 Greene were noticed by PSO James Novak to have been pulled off. Firemen and MUC police were called to the scene shortly before 10 pm.

It was not immediately known what might have been taken or what exactly had occurred.

Avoids vehicle, hits lamp post

The driver of a car which struck the lamp post in the intersection of Montrose avenue and Ramezay road last Thursday was found to owe $34.50 to Westmount Municipal Court for an unpaid traffic warrant, police said. He lived in Montreal.

The accident was reported to have occurred in an effort to avoid hitting a northbound car. Police said the westbound driver had been attempting to turn south at the time.

Alternate-side parking scheme in effect April 1

By LAUREEN SWEENEY

The city's new three-part daytime parking changes are being phased into effect following Monday night's city council meeting which passed a resolution to establish alternate side of the street parking on seven roads.

All are located in the southwest sector of the city and are expected to be appropriately signed by April 1 when winter parking restrictions are lifted.

Car owners requiring on-street parking during the day now can purchase permits for $30 a month if they qualify for nighttime stickers. These went on sale Tuesday and can be obtained from the city's ticket office at 21 Stanton street.

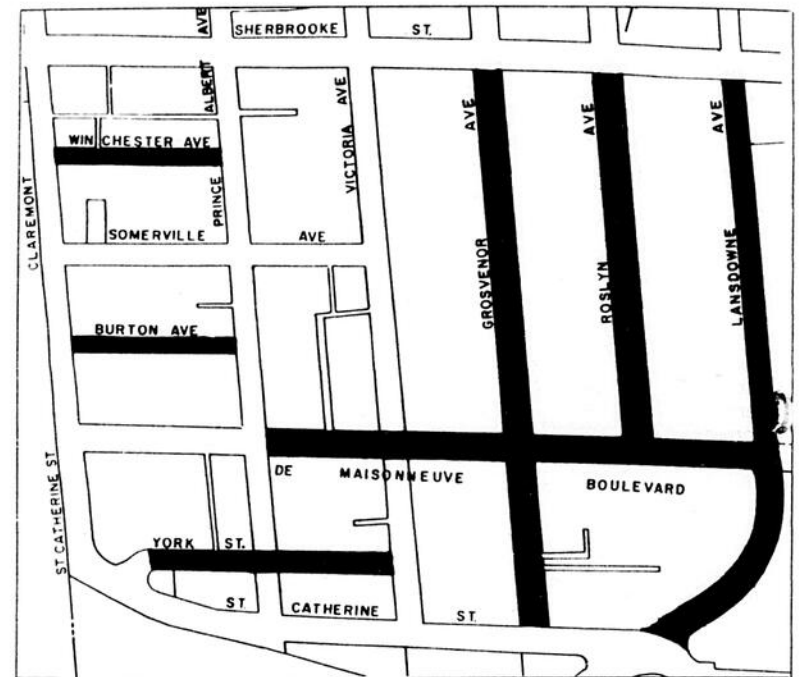

(A nighttime sticker already authorizes a car owner to park on the street on weekends.)

The third change, reserved on-street parking for residents of the southeast section of the city, could be implemented by June, according to city officials. Details are expected to be finalized at the March 17 meeting of council in general committee.

All seven streets designated for alternate side parking during daytime hours of 8 am and 5 pm are blocks south of Sherbrooke street.

They are: Winchester, Burton, York, Grosvenor, Roslyn and Lansdowne as well as de Maisonneuve between Lansdowne and Prince Albert.

The signs, which now have to be ordered, are expected to arrive and be installed by April 1 to coincide with the lifting of winter parking restrictions, according to Bruce St Louis, the city's director of services.

Map shows streets designated for alternate side of the street parking between 8 am and 5 pm.

Alderman Paul Fortin, commissioner of public security, explained that the move to alternate side of the street parking not only would avoid cars always parking on the same side of the street but would also provide a looping effect for street cleaning and snow removal.

The system, widely used throughout other municipalities, eliminates the need to post no-parking sandwich boards for such operations.

Streets were chosen according to the following criteria: width, available parking spaces, traffic volume and visual impact of added signage.

Ald Sally Aitken, who said a number of citizens had contacted her regarding the $30 daytime parking fee, explained she would support the new daytime parking changes "because I feel there is no alternative if we are to go ahead with the daytime effort."

The changes were proposed by the city following a public consultation meeting held at Victoria Hall Feb 26, 1985 and circulated as recommendations in a mayor's letter to all Westmount residents in December.

All homes to get book on renovation

All households in Westmount will be receiving a new brochure on renovating residential properties in the city, Alderman Phillip Aspinball told municipal council Monday.

The brochure, illustrated with photographs and diagrams, informs property-owners on the dos and don'ts of home renovation in Westmount, including a recitation of by-laws establishing standards for materials, construction and design (see story Feb 13).

Ald Aspinball said that some 8,000 more copies of the "excellent" 32-page booklet would be printed and delivered at an estimated cost of $5,640 for printing plus postage.

Mayor Brian Gallery said that the city should be proud of the quality of the brochure and the calibre of members of the city's architecture and planning commission.

Ald Sally Aitken reminded council that "the seminal thinking" behind the brochure came from a joint project of the Westmount Municipal Association and the Westmount Historical Association.

X-country skis taken from car

Three pairs of cross-country skis were stolen Feb 21 from a green Dodge parked near 4500 Sherbrooke street, according to police. They were valued at $150.

Another three pairs of skis valued at $300 were stolen from a garage on Kensington avenue sometime between Feb 20-22. The garage was unlocked.

Door unlocked

A door was found unlocked at the office building at 345 Victoria avenue Wednesday night last week when police answered a call for a burglar alarm, officials report. The alarm was activated about 8 pm. All appeared in order.

Model citizens

A white vinyl wallet found Tuesday last week on the sliding hill at King George Park by three girls was left with the attendant at the comfort station, according to public safety officers.

Honduran bomberos impressed by Canadian firefighting savvy

By LAUREEN SWEENEY

A group of 18 firefighters from Honduras visited the Westmount Fire Brigade Wednesday last week to learn about urban firefighting Canadian-style.

The Spanish-speaking visitors, all instructors in the country's federally-operated fire service, drove here for the day from Montpelier, Vermont, where they were attending a two-week training course with the Vermont State Firefighters' Association.

The course was conducted under a U.S. foreign aid program which has established a sister-state relationship between Vermont and Honduras.

The bomberos — Spanish for firefighters — were invited here by Westmount's fire chief, Director William Timmons, a volunteer fire instructor in the Vermont association, who arranged the day's activities.

These included a reception and firefighting presentation at the Westmount fire station, a sightseeing trip over the mountain and tours of both the Montreal fire department's training school and newly-opened firehall number 19 at de Lorimer avenue and Ontario street.

Westmount Alderman Rhoda Vineberg, fire commissioner, who welcomed the group through translators at the start of the reception, told them that "to be called comisionada de bomberos is a privilege."

Speaking on behalf of the Hondurans, Captain Abdon said the group was looking to the firefighting presentation "so we can acquire knowledge to take back to our country."

Close co-operation

Ronald Pitkin, a Vermont instructor and co-ordinator of the Honduran fire training project who accompanied the group, noted that "a truly international relationship" exists in the fire service between Quebec and Vermont.

Both were presented with Westmount fire helmets, and, in return, a uniform badge was given to Director Timmons by the Honduran firemen.

All the visitors were presented with Canadian souvenirs donated by the office of Donald Johnston, Westmount's MP. These included flags, pins and copies of the proclamation of the Canadian constitution.

Scarcely had the reception begun in the lecture room of the Stanton street station when fire bells went off calling out some of the Westmount men to a car fire at Sherbrooke street and Claremont avenue.

When a report from the fire scene later came over the intercom advising that firemen were using a 1 1/2-inch stream as well as an extinguisher on the vehicle, it was immediately translated for the Hondurans who nodded and smiled approvingly.

Slide presentations then were conducted by Westmount Assistant Fire Director René Morin as well as Outremont's Chief Inspector Harold Harvey.

The bomberos were told that in Canada the size of a municipality's fire department depended on the Number of firemen in mutual aid here matches all Honduras

THE number of firefighters in the six municipalities which comprise Westmount's mutual aid system, protecting about 175,000 persons, is about equal to the number of paid firemen in Honduras, a country of three and a half million population.

Westmount firefighters were told Wednesday last week during the visit here of 18 Honduran firemen that the country employed 200-250 firefighters in the largely federal fire service. Another 700 were volunteers.

The mutual aid system here employs a combined total of 225 firefighters, all professional. This is in addition to the 1,700 firemen in Montreal.

The Honduran statistics were provided in answer to a question from Westmount fire captain Graham Morrison following a presentation to the Hondurans on the organization of urban firefighting in the Montreal area.

He was told by Ronald Pitkin, a Vermont training instructor who accompanied the visitors, that the fire service in Honduras was largely federal. Only one of the two main cities in the Central American country had a municipal fire department.

amount of money citizens wanted to pay for protection.

Many questions

They participated enthusiastically in the session, asking about the number of trucks in the mutual aid system as well as where various pieces of apparatus had been manufactured.

Wearing their tropical short-sleeved khaki uniforms with colorful insignia, the Honduran firemen, who salute their officers, looked more like soldiers than firefighters.

Before leaving the Westmount station about 1 pm, they joined proudly in the singing of O Canada.

Although the Hondurans were to return home from Vermont Sunday, Ron Pitkin told THE EXAMINER he would be visiting Honduras shortly to continue the training program.

As chairman of Vermont's emergency preparedness committee, he hoped the training program with the Hondurans might extend into that area to deal, in particular, with natural disasters.

He also hoped to get training manuals translated into Spanish since all fire training in Honduras was conducted by word of mouth, he said.

The U.S. sister-state relationships with countries in the Americas were established under American President John F. Kennedy through an Alliance for Progress plan called Partners of the Americas, Mr Pitkin explained. The plan has been aimed mainly at carrying out projects dealing with agriculture and small business, he said.

Dir Timmons helps Vermont train firemen

Westmount's fire chief, Director William Timmons, recently was appointed as an instructor in a training program operated by the Vermont State Firefighters' Association.

Although he has participated for the past 10 years as a volunteer instructor at various fire courses in both Vermont and New York states, the appointment made him official.

The announcement was made Wednesday last week during the visit to Westmount of Honduran fire training instructors involved in a two-week course given by Vermont fire service trainers.

Beyond Westmount's Borders

A random sampler of things to see or do

by RICK KERRIGAN

Another classic returns

Theatre-goers who recently saw and enjoyed the National Theatre School production of She Stoops to Conquer at the Centaur theatre will be pleased to hear that another classic, Molière's The Miser, will be coming to a Montreal stage. The play is being produced by the McGill drama department and can be seen Wednesday until March 15 and March 19-22, 8 pm, in Moysse Hall of the Arts Building on the McGill Campus. The play is being directed by Westmounter Harry Anderson, a professor of the McGill drama department. The translation from the original French was done by Donald Sutherland. This play takes a shot at everybody in the excessive era of Louis XIV: young lovers, conniving servants, their gullible masters, the rising bourgeoisie; it is a play of "mistaken identities, complicated plots, discoveries, dupes, deceivers, and innocents," in the commedia dell'arte tradition, which "illustrate the ironies of an era of flamboyance, licentiousness, and folly." Tickets are available at Sadie's box office in the Student Union, 3480 McTavish street. For information call 392-4695.

Kids vs parents on stage

Les Petits Pouvoirs, a play by Suzanne Lebeau for children over six and their parents, will be presented Saturday, 2 pm, at the Patro Le Prévost auditorium, 7355 Christophe Colomb avenue. The playwright recognizes the keen observations of children and notes that what while parents want what is best for their children, this does not always correspond to the feelings and daily needs of their children. You can pick up free tickets at Le Prévost or call 872-1523 in the afternoons for reservations.

Students dance their stuff

The 15 scholarship students of the École de Danse Eddy Toussaint will be performing Wednesday, 8 pm, at the Patro Le Prévost auditorium, 7355 Christophe Colomb avenue. To mark International Youth Year, the theme of the choreographies is peace. The approach will reflect their training so there will be elements of classical, modern, jazz, and even folk dance in the show. You can pick up free tickets at Le Prévost or make reservations by calling 872-1523 in the afternoons.

Dancing into spring

Les Grands Ballets Canadiens will be presenting Catulli Carmina as part of the program for their performances tonight through Saturday, 8 pm, at Place des Arts. This work is the second part of the Carl Orff trilogy and it was choreographed by John Butler. The first, of course, is Carmina Burana which Les GBC has performed several times. Carl Orff composed the trilogy in 1943 and it is described as man's constant fight against destiny through love. This second part is inspired by the writings of the Latin poet Catullus and it "captures the passion of love's desire." James Kudelka's In Paradisum and Balanchine's Serenade also are on the program. Les GBC will be presenting a Balanchine-Kudelka program March 20-22 and will hold a special tribute to dancer Jerilyn Dana who will give her final performance March 22.

Juniors give concert

The Orchestre Junior du Conservatoire de Musique de Montréal will give a concert Saturday, 8 pm, at Saint Charles Garnier Church, 1195 Sauvé street east. The orchestra will play works by Vivaldi, Mozart, Marcellino, and Arensky. Admission is free.

Join the music

If you're an amateur musician looking for a place to play you can join the CAMMAC-Montreal orchestra any Tuesday evening until May 21, at 4450 St Hubert street. The orchestra will be working on a Prokofiev symphony this term. In April there will be singing workshops. For more information call 932-8755 weekday mornings.

Café goes Latin

The Café Hora will feature the Latin-American dance group Viva Mexico Saturday, 9 pm, at the YMHA, 5480 Westbury avenue. Along with the featured performance there will be an opportunity to participate in social, Israeli and disco dancing.

Music from Golem

Ian Tamblyn, a singer-songwriter, will be performing Saturday, 8:30 pm, at the Golem Concert Room, 3460 Stanley street. He has played at clubs, concert halls and folk festivals across Canada and you may have seen him opening the Joan Armatrading concert at Place des Arts. Tickets are available at the door. By the way, Vally will be performing at the Golem March 26 and tickets for that show now are on sale at the Golem or in Westmount at the Magnus book shop on Sherbrooke street.

Concerts at noon

Réjeanne Desautels, organ, and Natalie Choquette, soprano, will perform a concert titled "From Bach to Jazz" today at noon in the atrium of Maison Alcan, 1188 Sherbrooke street west. On Friday the group Tango X 3 will perform. The Ensemble Cordes Encore, a string quartet, will give a concert March 18 at noon and Lise Daoust, flute, and Marjorie Tanaka, piano, will perform March 19. Music and dance of the Baroque will be featured in a concert March 20 with the Alcan Choir, Danse Autre Temps, and Trio Baroque. The Choir of Howell's School in Cardiff, Wales, will give a concert March 21. Admission to all these concerts is free.

Eat, drink, help orchestra

The Montreal Chamber Orchestra is having a little fund-raising event

Tuesday, 6-8 pm, at the Restaurant Baci, 2095 McGill College avenue. For the price of your ticket, you will hear the orchestra under the direction of Wanda Kaluzny play music from the classical repertoire. You will also have the opportunity to drink wine and eat some Italian food. For ticket information call 932-9971.

New work featured

The Orchestre des Jeunes du Québec will perform Friday and Saturday, 8 pm, in Redpath Hall, 3459 McTavish street. The orchestra will be featuring a work titled Swiateo, un pas vers la lumière, commissioned by the orchestra and composed by Michel-Georges Brégent. Also on the program will be works by Ives and Schubert. Tickets are on sale at the Place des Arts box office or at the door.

Music from McGill

Student vocal ensembles under the direction of Margaret Kalil will perform Tuesday, 5 pm, in Pollack Hall, 555 Sherbrooke street west. At 8 pm, saxophone ensembles under the direction of Gerald Danovitch will perform.

Jacques Giroux will give an organ recital Wednesday, 12:15 pm, in Redpath Hall on the McGill Campus. The piano duo of Dorothy Morton and Esther Master will perform works by Dvorak, Schubert, Samuel Barber, and Rossini-Gottschalk 8 pm in Pollack Hall.

Kenneth Woodman, pianist, will play works by Mozart, Schubert, and Brahms March 14, 8 pm, in Pollack Hall. Admission to all the concerts is free.

Sonatas to be featured

The Studio de Musique Ancienne de Montréal will perform a selection of sonatas from the Rosary Sonatas by H.I.F. Biber Sunday, 8 pm, in Pollack Hall, 555 Sherbrooke street west. Work of film animators at Arts Westmount fest

Arts Westmount will host a 90-minute film animation festival March 22 at 2:30 pm in the lodge room at Victoria Hall. Admission is free. Graeme Ross, event organizer and a director of Arts Westmount, says "basically most films are made for adults but I'm sure the children will enjoy them too."

The animations selected for the festival will consist of award-winning works from the National Film Board and Radio-Canada.

Among the highlights is Radio-Canada's Crac, an Academy award-winning film centring around the history of a rocking chair used as an analogy for Quebec.

"It's a gem," Mr Ross said. The collection of animations should average 10 to 15 minutes each in length. The majority of NFB films will have voices while the international releases from Radio-Canada will consist mostly of sounds and effects.

Mr Ross, a well-established film animator with Radio-Canada, said one second of animation requires 24 drawings, and for every drawing there are up to six other levels of depth drawings.

As a result, he said, it is no wonder that "a seven- to eight-minute animation takes a year and a half to complete."

To do an animation "is basically a one man show," Mr Ross said, although the editor, sound and lighting crew and cameramen can be invaluable to an animator's production.

For instance, Mr Ross explained, "cameramen demystify quite a bit of the shooting" by setting up the proposed scenes so the animator can see what he's up against.

Mr Ross mentioned the possibility that one of the animations shown at the festival may be of his creation.

Local health care agencies merge to form 'Centracare'

The recent marriage of two well-known Westmount health care agencies so far seems pleasing to both partners.

Serving the city for nearly 15 years, We Sit Better and Dorlec Corporation have consolidated efforts and linked up with Centracare Health Services — a nationwide organization.

According to Paula Engels, office co-ordinator, the new arrangement is working very well.

Housed in spacious new offices at 4920 de Maisonneuve boulevard west, the Centracare staff provides a wide variety of health care services with the flexibility it says only a private organization can manage.

Centracare specializes in convalescent and geriatric care. Although, "you don't have to be 80 (years old) to need our help," said Joyce Besso, the nursing supervisor.

In offering home care, companionship and institutional services, Centracare "has no minimum requirements," Mrs Engels said. "Our professionals are all highly trained and prepared to work any number of hours at any time of day or night."

While Centracare services are not covered under Quebec medicare, the costs for registered nursing care are provided for under Blue Cross medical insurance (up to 24 weeks) and under certain clauses in other insurance policies. The services of nurse's aides, orderlies and registered nurse's assistants (RNA) are not covered under any plan.

Before sending out their staff of registered nurses, social workers and other professionals, the applicant's requests are carefully studied to be sure the services to be provided fit the need.

AIDS expert Alumni guest

Opened home to city scouts, Inuit family struck by fire

By LAUREEN SWEENEY

Efforts are being undertaken by a Westmount scouting group to help an Inuit family flown to Montreal two weeks ago for emergency medical treatment after a tragic fire destroyed their home in Great Whale River, 700 miles north of Montreal, on Hudson Bay.

The Inukpuk family, who opened their home to two Westmount scouts from St Andrew's Group Committee during a Westmount exchange visit in 1981, now has lost everything, according to social workers.

Although it is too early to assess exactly what help might be needed, and what assistance might be forthcoming from their own community, "the fire was very tragic," explained Cecile Bertrand in Great Whale River.

The family's baby, a three-year-old daughter, was killed, as was a 16-year-old friend.

The five survivors all were hospitalized in Montreal for treatment of burns, some expected to remain here for some time.

The family's main concern at present is for the condition of the father, Moses, age 50, a carpenter by trade and a hunter. He is reported in stable condition in intensive care at the Montreal General Hospital having sustained third degree burns to 70 percent of his body while trying in vain to rescue the baby, as they call her.

Both his sons, Moses, 21, and Gilbert, soon 20, former scouts who stayed in Westmount, are recovering from severe burns. A 12-year-old daughter, Lucy, also is hospitalized with burns to the arms.

Kathleen, their mother, who speaks only her native tongue, has now been discharged.

The father's brother, Noah Inukpuk, former mayor of Great Whale River, who flew to Montreal over the weekend to visit the family, said the fire was believed to have been started by the young child probably playing with matches.

Simon agrees. "The fire was terrible," he recalls. "It was early in the morning and we were all asleep. My mother started screaming when she awoke and saw the flames."

He said he opened his bedroom door to find out what the problem was and was faced by a wall of flames which he ran through to leave.

"When we were outside, we realized my little sister was still inside," Simon continued. "My father heard her crying and went back in to find her but he could not. The flames were terrible."

Gilbert then broke a living room window to help his father and was burned on the leg, back and arm.

For Gilbert, there is another loss as well. He had been expecting to compete in the Arctic Games in Whitehorse this month with the team representing Great Whale River.

"But we have much to be thankful for," notes Simon. "We have our father."

Friends of the family made through scouting in Westmount have been visiting the family daily and are hoping to organize assistance.

Inuit mayor's visit to Westmount marked

While most citizens arrived at Monday night's city council meeting wearing boots and heavy coats, one visitor found the weather quite balmy.

Noah Inukpuk, a former mayor of Great Whale River and now mayor of Umiujaq, a new community being built further north on Hudson Bay, appeared in only his suit and shoes. "It's warm out," he observed politely.

Mayor Inukpuk was introduced by Westmount Mayor Brian Gallery at the start of the meeting and presented with a city pin.

Mr Inukpuk, as mayor of Great Whale River during a Boy Scout exchange between Westmount and his community in 1981, previously had received a book on Westmount presented to scouts for him by former mayor Donald MacCallum. (See story July 16, 1981.)

This, however, was his first time in Westmount.

Mr Inukpuk told Mayor Gallery following his introduction Monday night that he noticed the Westmount council table was "laid out" differently from his community's council table.

He also said he appreciated the "good treatment" Montrealers gave his people when they came here, specially for medical treatment.

Mr Inukpuk was visiting Montreal to monitor the progress of his brother's family hospitalized here following a tragic house fire in Great Whale River (see separate story).

Lawyer John Marler, MBE, dies suddenly at 78

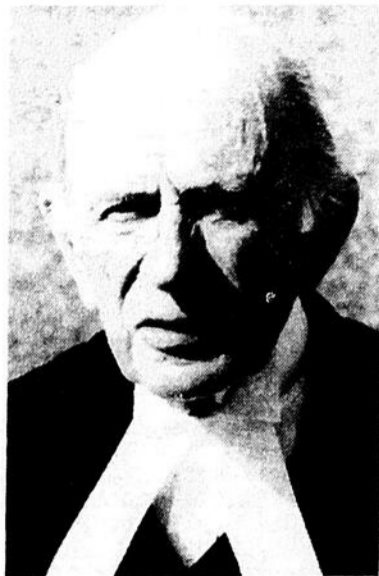

A funeral service is to be held today (Thursday) for John de Montmollin Marler, 638 Clarke avenue, a distinguished lawyer and recipient of an MBE for his work prosecuting Canadian wartime criminals.

Mr Marler, who died suddenly Sunday at age 78, was a partner in the firm of Ogilvy, Renault until his retirement seven years ago, after which he was a consulting attorney.

For many years Mr Marler served as trustee of a fund established by Westmount and other Quebec citizens to see to the needs of the family of Sergeant-Major Walter Leja, who was seriously injured in an FLQ letter box bomb blast in Westmount in 1963.

Mr Marler's great-great-grandfather, a Swiss cleric, is thought to have been the first Protestant missionary in Quebec.

Mr Marler is survived by his wife Diana (née Laing), daughters Carolyn Shilton of Beaconsfield, Dr Lisa

John de M. Marler, MBE

Hamilton, a veterinarian practicing in Philadelphia, and son David, working for the firm MAERSC in Tokyo, Japan.

He was grandfather to Matthew Shilton.

The Marlers have lived at the Clarke avenue address for 31 years. Prior to that they were on Decasson road for seven years.

The funeral service is planned for St Matthias' Anglican Church, 10 Church Hill, at 2 pm.

The family asks that donations be made to the Royal Victoria Hospital Endowment fund.

Active community worker, mayor's mother mourned

A memorial mass is to take place Monday at 11 am in the Ascension of Our Lord Church for Kathleen Hingston Williams, mother of Mayor Brian Gallery.

Mrs Williams, wife of the late John O'Neill Gallery and the late S.E. Williams, died Saturday at her home in Vero Beach, Florida, following a long illness. She was 74.

A former Westmount resident and community worker, she was described as "a great leader" by her son. "She did a lot for me," Mayor Gallery told THE EXAMINER.

Kathleen Hingston Williams

His Worship, who had visited her in Florida two weeks ago, returned south Tuesday morning following the Monday night council meeting where he was extended the condolences of council by pro-mayor Rhoda Vineberg.

Mrs Williams is also survived by a daughter, Lillian Porter, of Ottawa, as well as six grandchildren and three sisters: Betty (Mrs George Daly), Andrea (Mrs William McNally), and Cynthia (Mrs Robert Vaughan). A fourth sister, Osla, (Mrs E.D. Gray-Donald) predeceased her.

Mrs Williams was the granddaughter of Senator Sir William Hingston, mayor of Montreal in 1875 and 1876, and the daughter of Donald Hingston, founder of St Mary's Hospital.

She was vice-president of Gallery Publications until selling the business to her son.

Mrs Williams was well known as an active community worker during the 1940s and 1950s, having been the first woman on the advisory committee of the playgrounds and parks of Montreal.

She was national chairman of the Canadian Save the Children Fund and organizer of the United Nations children's appeal in Quebec.

In 1949, she served as federal elections director of women's associations for the Quebec Progressive Conservative Party.

Mrs Williams served two terms as president of the Junior League of Montreal and was founder and president of the maternity committee of St Mary's Hospital.

She was the first chairman of the juvenile delinquency prevention week as well as boys' and girls' week. She also served on the Youth Bureau.

She was a board member of the Mental Hygiene Institute, the YMCA, Child Welfare and the Victorian Order of Nurses.

Mrs Williams retired from her active community life after her second marriage when she moved to the Eastern Townships and subsequently to Florida.

Memorial service Tuesday for Dr Francis McNaughton

A memorial service for Dr Francis Lothian McNaughton is to be held Tuesday at 1 pm in the Hurlings Jackson Amphitheatre of the Montreal Neurological Institute, 3801 University street.

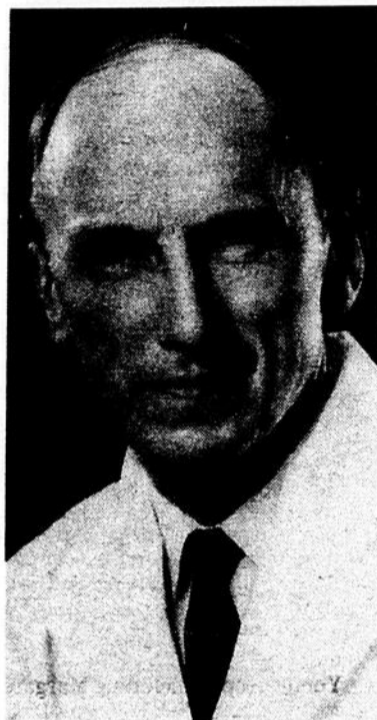

Dr McNaughton, a longtime resident of Victoria avenue, died Friday at the Montreal Neurological Institute where he had served most of his career.

Born in 1906, Dr McNaughton was one of six children. His father, Dr F.M.A. McNaughton, was a Westmount family physician and city health officer.

Dr McNaughton went through the Westmount public school system, graduating with highest honors at Westmount High and scoring the second highest matriculation results in Quebec.

Dr McNaughton graduated with the Holmes Medal from the faculty of medicine at McGill University in 1931. After two years of post-graduate studies in Boston and London, England, Dr McNaughton returned to Westmount and began his illustrious career as a neurologist at the Montreal General Hospital and then at Montreal Neurological Institute. He also taught at McGill University and was named Emeritus Professor in 1974.

"He lived his whole life in Westmount," his daughter Ruth McNaughton said. "I don't think he would have lived anywhere else. He loved it (Westmount)."

Dr McNaughton, who was known for his quick wit and compassionate nature, developed an extensive chain of friends and colleagues, one of whom was Norman Bethune, hero of the Chinese revolution.

In the late seventies, in perhaps his most memorable trip, according to his daughter, Dr McNaughton visited China to retrace the steps of his friend with the help of China's Norman Bethune Society.

"My father's most outstanding aspect was his compassion for his patients and people in general," Ruth McNaughton said. "It seems almost old-fashioned today."

Dr McNaughton is survived by his wife Louise Keith, his children Ruth, Catherine and Eleanore, his granddaughter Sandra and his sisters Eleanore McNaughton and Ethel Ingham.

Treasures to preview at Emanu-El

A preview of the "Precious Legacy" exhibit is planned for Temple Emanu-El-Beth Sholom March 16.

The preview is part of a series of events preceding the Museum of Fine Arts exhibit to be launched April 11 and continue to May 26.

The items consist of religious artifacts housed in Czechoslovakia and looted by the Nazis during the Second World War.

According to a notice from Temple Emanu-El, the exhibit inspired the following comments from writer Dr Fred Weinberg of Toronto: "One visit will not do because there is so much to see, fall in love with and mourn."

"An exciting visual experience and a sadness as one reflects on the spiritual grandeur of a Jewish way of life that was wiped out overnight."

The preview is to include breakfast at 9:30 am at a nominal charge, followed by a lecture and slides by two museum tour guides at 10 am. It is to take place in the synagogue community house.

14 h 00, durant le temps du Carême, il y a rencontre de réflexion à la salle Saint-Léon, 310, avenue Clarke. Ces rencontres sont animées par sœur Flore Dussault, c.n.d. qui présente un exposé et l'écoute d'un message de Jean Vanier enregistré lors d'une retraite prêchée à Sherbrooke l'été dernier.

IT'S GOOD TO BE IN PICKLES: Simon Witenoff, president of Mrs Whyte's Products, addressed the Rotary Club of Westmount last Wednesday on the merits of being in the pickle business. Mr Witenoff said he never saw the pickle business "as something that someone who had a choice would do." After a couple of trips to Europe to "find himself" in the early seventies, however, Mr Witenoff finally chose to work in the family business his grandmother, the renowned "Mrs Whyte," initiated 50 years ago. Mr Witenoff said he is now very happily into pickles.

Garbage piles not fire hazard

Accumulations of garbage spotted over the weekend by public safety officers at the rear of two local commercial establishments were checked out by fire officials who reported neither to be an immediate fire hazard.

Firefighters were called first to the rear of 4881 Sherbrooke street Sunday at 5:45 pm to inspect what they reported as a small pile of cardboard boxes and paint cans. They went later to 4010 St Catherine street for a buildup of garbage at the rear of a restaurant.

Workers shushed after complaint

When Westmount public safety officers were called to check out a noise complaint of roofers working at 218 Redfern avenue Sunday, they reported asking the men to respect the request for quiet.

Officials of the Public Security Unit said they were unable to caution the men regarding the Lord's Day Act since it fell under federal jurisdiction.

Post struck

More than $500 damage was caused to a lamp post outside 27 Rosemount avenue Friday when it was hit by a delivery truck backing into a driveway, police report. The driver left behind his name and licence plate number. The accident took place about 6:45 pm.

Church entered

An answering machine and computer valued at $4,700 were stolen sometime Saturday or Sunday from St Stephen's Anglican Church, police said. The building was broken into by forcing open a door leading to the rear.

Skis gone

Downhill skis valued at $300 were stolen from a locker in the apartment building at 231 Kensington avenue sometime between Feb 15-20, according to police. The Head skis were valued at $300.

Bump was accident says youth

An 11-year-old Westmount boy who allegedly bumped a 57-year-old woman on the back in Westmount Park Friday afternoon was taken to the Westmount Public Library to await police but no action was taken against him, officials report.

Police said witnesses supported the boy's story that he had been running into the park after swimming at the YMCA and had accidentally bumped into the woman.

The victim, who had been walking through the park, stated she had heard a group of seven or eight youths yelling, "There's that old lady. Someone should crash her."

The woman caught the suspect by the jacket and took him to the library.

Wine, radio, TV stolen from home

A color TV set was among items totalling $1,300 stolen from an apartment broken into Monday last week at 4212 de Maisonneuve boulevard, police report.

Entry was gained sometime between 9 am and 6:30 pm by forcing the front door lock and frame, probably using a screwdriver. A radio, purse and several bottles of wine also were taken.

Broken window brings police

An open window spotted by public safety officers Sunday at the Unity Boys' and Girls' Club, 1090 Greene avenue, ended up bringing three MUC police cars to the scene when a burglary was suspected.

The place was checked and reported in order. The second storey window had been propped open with a book.

Worker falls, hospitalized

A 64-year-old construction worker was taken to hospital last Thursday after falling at 32 Sunnyside avenue, public safety officials said. He was believed to have broken a leg. An Urgences Santé ambulance transported the victim to Jean Talon Hospital near his home.

Fire personnel from the first responder unit also were called to the scene shortly before 2 am.

Hit-and-run

A parked car across from 6 Sunnyside avenue last Thursday was believed to have been hit by an unknown vehicle passing too close, police said. The car's mirror was broken off and found on the street. The hit-and-run mishap occurred sometime between 6:15 pm and 8:15 pm.

Gear slips

A car blocking a driveway at 470 Victoria avenue Friday morning might have slipped out of gear and rolled into the location, according to public safety officers. MUC police were called to the scene.

Youth found

A youth reported missing from the boys' home at Shawbridge was found Monday night on the back stairway of a home on Lansdowne avenue, police said. The boy was 14.

A collision between a car attempting to park and a passing vehicle ended up causing more than $500 damage to one and between $250-$500 to the other last Thursday, police said. The mishap occurred in front of 4146 St Catherine street about 7:20 pm.

Bumper bumped

More than $500 damage was caused to a car parked last Thursday in front of 7 Burton avenue, police report. The left rear bumper was believed hit by an unknown vehicle sometime between 12 noon and 6 pm.

Bike found

Theft foiled
A good lock and a solid door frame are credited with foiling an attempt to break into a house on Olivier avenue over the weekend, police said. A screwdriver appeared to have been used in the incident which caused $100 damage to the doorway.

Man arrested
A 37-year-old Montreal motorist wanted on a warrant from the Verdun municipal court was arrested Wednesday last week at The Boulevard and Roslyn avenue, police report. He was released on a promise to appear in court. The warrant was discovered when police checked the man out after stopping him at 9:45 am.

Animal tracks
When public safety officers were called to investigate footprints at the rear of a house on Oakland avenue Sunday by a frightened resident, they reported finding tracks in the snow, officials said. The alleged burglar turned out to be an animal of undetermined species.

Door forced
It was not immediately known if anything was taken from a house broken into on Arlington avenue Monday last week near Côte St Antoine road, police report. Entry was gained by forcing a lock on an inner front door after the outer door was left unlocked between 2:10 pm and 2:45 pm.

Radio stolen
An $800 radio was stolen from a car parked overnight Saturday-Sunday in front of 807 Upper Belmont avenue, police report. The grey Audi 5000 was not reported damaged in the incident.

636 Victoria avenue; and Bonnie Yaphe, 11 Melbourne avenue.

It should be noted that this group is not organized as a special coalition or "official organization"; we are, however, all dog-owners and regular users of the dog runs in Westmount Park. In the case of Mrs Dodge, Mrs Loggie and Ms Jamieson, they have used the park in one way or another most of their lives.

The first point to be discussed was the curfew. Mr Shingler pointed out there had been great resistance on the part of city council to the imposition of a curfew, but that, in the final analysis and after learning that most other communities have such a curfew, council had succumbed to pressure from police and public security authorities to impose one.

It was the unanimous view of those present that such a curfew is odious, unnecessary and probably would make the park more dangerous than it already is. By removing the regular nighttime users of the park, who are mostly dog-walkers, we are openly inviting derelicts and undesirable elements to take over. The examples of Central Park in New York City and Girouard Park in Notre Dame de Grâce were cited as possibilities of what Westmount Park could become. Dogs, by their very nature, provide a certain degree of security in the park. The dog-owners are by and large a law-abiding public and would be on the watch for illegal or undesirable activities in the park.

It was also pointed out that there are already laws on the books which could prevent most undesirable activities from taking place. Most of these are contained in the parks by-law and the nuisance by-law, and include such things as no drinking in the park, leaving trash and food where they cause a danger to the public, excessive noise, vandalism, vagrancy, etc. If these by-laws are not enforced vigorously, it is highly doubtful that a new law prohibiting people (and dogs) from using the park would be enforced to any greater extent.

Further, it was noted that the by-law would be used to prevent situations which happen on occasion during a three-month period, for the most part, including June, July and August, and then, mostly on weekend nights. The dog-walkers, by necessity, use the park seven days (and nights) a week, 12 months a year. To impose a blanket by-law which would seriously restrict their activities for the sake of what is still, in Westmount and especially in Westmount Park, a relatively minor problem is overkill at the very least.

Mr Shingler went on to explain that city council intended to close down the current dog run and have dog-owners go to the southwestern corner of the park, at the corner of Lansdowne and St Catherine street, which would have to be entirely fenced, landscaped and lighted to make it safe as a dog run. This would then become an 18- or 24-hour dog run.

It was pointed out that the original plans presented to the public for consideration (last fall) had proposed that the present putting green area become the dog run, thus opening the central flat area for use all day and evening for others. There had been little objection raised at the public meeting to this proposal.

Mr Shingler later received a petition with 35 signatures asking for retention of the putting green. In December, he was handed a petition with 129 signatures supporting retention of "a dog run" in Westmount Park, with the notation that none of those who signed it supported the Lansdowne-St Catherine run, which is separated from the park by the skating rink and swimming pool.

It appears he has ignored both of these, or at least misconstrued the message they contained. While I cannot speak for the 35 signers, I wrote in the accompanying letter with the larger petition that "opinion was...divided on the question of moving the present dog run," but that "there was no support for using only the area behind the skating rink (the Lansdowne-St Catherine dog run), which is unattractive, dangerous, and a long distance for those coming from the east or north sides of the park."

Mr Shingler promised at the meeting that the area would be fenced in, landscaped and lighted, making it more attractive than it is now, and then added the "carrot" of proposing that it be made into an area for agrees. Just one year ago (March 1, 1985), he said on CTV's Question Period program: "I don't want to increase taxes, Terry. I think we have a good deal of scope on the expenditure side to deal with the deficit problem. A tax increase, certainly a general tax increase, puts a dampening effect on the economy and I don't want to see us do that." Unfortunately, he has failed to convince his cabinet colleagues.

exclusive use as a dog run, day and night. While this has tempered our wholehearted opposition to the loss of a dog run in Westmount Park, it is not by any means the most attractive alternative.

It should be noted that the Lansdowne-St Catherine area already is officially designated as a dog run. In fact, some dogs do use it — some owners have said that they prefer it because their dogs don't get along well with the dogs that use the Westmount Park run. But no matter how much embellishment is added to it, it will still be far from most dog-owners' homes, windy, noisy and secluded.

Those who use Westmount Park come from as far east as Clarke and Argyle avenues; Arlington, Strathcona and Mount Stephen to the north; Winchester, Burton and Somerville to the west — all on foot. It is highly likely many people would feel disenfranchised by the move and would simply not bring their dogs to run. These people, then, would be removed from the park and their presence as a deterrent would be lost.

On the other hand, if the Lansdowne-St Catherine area were fenced in and publicly designated as a 24-hour dog run, it could possibly become a very popular depository for citizens from all across the island, the only one of its type in the Montreal Urban Community. At the very least, people would be drawn there from every part of Westmount, N.D.G., Côte des Neiges and St Henri, shipping their dogs in by car and using up any available parking in the area. It would no longer be a dog run for lower-Westmount dog owners, but could easily become Montreal's prime dog toilet.

Of course, the problem of dog feces came up during the meeting. Mr Shingler acknowledged that the problem has gotten better in the past year or so, but of course at this time of year it appears terrible. It was noted that the responsible dog-walkers do clean up, and that these are mostly the ones who care enough about their dogs to use the dog runs.

It was also noted that the problem would not go away by removing the dog run, since dogs are just as likely to defecate on their way to the dog run as when they finally arrive there. Education, persuasion and enforcement of the clean-up by-law are the tools to use in dealing with this problem — not the establishment of a windswept corner where it would be hidden from public view.

In closing, our major objection lies in the fact that there was little consultation with dog-owners (or, in fact, anyone) about a proposed action which affects us seriously. The steps taken since the fall meeting about the park — where it was proposed to most of our satisfaction that the putting green become the new dog run — have been done behind closed doors. It was only because I happened to phone Mr Shingler last Thursday evening, specifically to find out what was happening, that I discovered the situation.

Regarding the curfew, there appears to have been no research done to find out about the effectiveness of a curfew in preventing crime in the parks where it is imposed. Already we are paying additional taxes for a public security force which is supposed to add more "eyes and ears" in Westmount's parks and streets. We and our dogs are additional eyes, ears and noses — at no cost to the taxpayers — and we ask that we be allowed to continue using the park. Because we only learned of the situation last Thursday evening, there has been little time to mobilize forces or prepare alternatives. Therefore our major request is that you withdraw the proposed actions to allow for further consultation. We feel the proposal has brought up some very serious questions which have to be addressed, including both security and the rights of citizens, dog-owners or not. We would be happy to meet with you in the coming weeks to go over these and determine, through democratic means, the future of Westmount Park.

Yours very truly,
Andy Dodge

Dear Mr Garland,
Thank you for setting up the lovely oval rink behind Westmount High School. It is unique because of its size and wonderful because it is outdoors. Although we discovered it late in the season we have enjoyed it very much.

Westmounter Angell joins U.S.-Soviet student swap

By THOR VALDMANIS

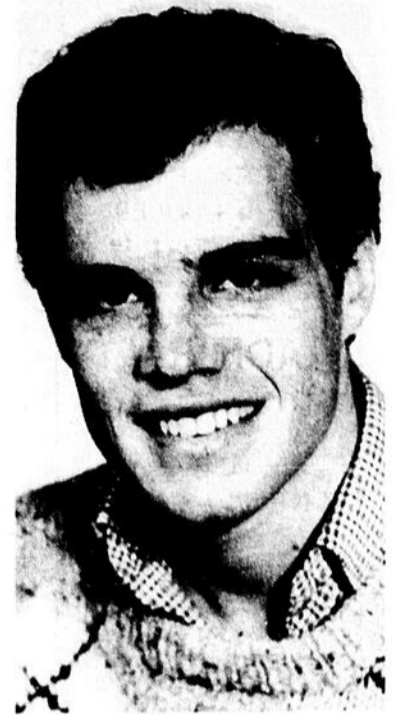

Westmounter David Angell is en route to Moscow this week for a series of discussions with Soviet students from state universities there.

Mr Angell, in undergraduate studies at Yale University, was chosen out of a field of approximately 200 candidates from the Ivy League university, the only non-American to be chosen for the 15-student contingent.

The 12-day trip, funded largely through individual and foundation grants, will take the delegation, all of whom are under 25, to Moscow and Leningrad. According to a Yale press release, "The Yale-U.S.S.R. Exchange Project will serve as a prototype for the new student exchange programs initiated at the Geneva summit."

This will be the second consecutive year of the Yale project after what Mr Angell says was a disappointing start. Last year's effort failed to meet many expectations, Mr Angell told THE EXAMINER, when reached at his New Haven, Connecticut residence.

Because of Soviet Politburo chief Konstantin Chernenko's death, "the first two days were cancelled and the rest of the trip was largely a make-shift operation," Mr Angell explained. He added that this year everyone is anticipating a much more substantial visit.

In meetings with representatives of the U.S.S.R. Student Council, topics are to range from such international flashpoints as Nicaragua and Afghanistan to more benign subjects such as cultural and athletic interests.

Mr Angell, a Lower Canada College graduate, has been active in the Westmount-based Children For Peace group and worked in Ottawa last summer on Canada's response to the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative invitation for the department of external affairs.

He says that "seeing that they (the Soviets) are human beings too will probably be the most valuable part of the trip."

Essay contest in progress

The city's 13th annual essay competition guidelines have been sent to all Westmount area schools, Ald Sally Aitken reported to council Monday evening.

The competition is open to all elementary and secondary students who live in Westmount or who attend Westmount area schools.

There are both class and individual categories with top prizes reaching as high as $100.

The deadline for submission of work is April 15 at 4:30 pm. All entries must be addressed to the Westmount Essay Competition, care of city hall.

Interested persons are asked to contact their local school or phone 935-8531, ext 239.

Ald Aitken told council she would like to see 1985's participation record bested.

"I think we should top it," she said.

Fashion extravaganza planned by St George's

St George's School's second annual Fashion Extravaganza is planned for Wednesday at 8 pm at Victoria Hall, 4626 Sherbrooke street.

Over 25 students from grades 7 to 11 will be modeling fashions from well-known Montreal stores including Laura Ashley, Lily Simon, Benetton, Gloria, Clothesline, Olly, and Le Château. Designs will also be modeled from the house of Hollywood, Kaid, Willie Wear, Gotex and Santa Cruz.

Printed T-shirts by St George's students Rasmus Schionning and James Di Salvio will also be displayed.

Grade 11 student Daniel Shapiro, of Westmount, Stephanie Astic and Camella Cerelli are co-chairmen of this event. Tickets are limited, organizers say. For information please call 937-9289.

Cleaver series of lectures starts March 14

The first of Vanier College's newly established bi-annual lecture series dedicated to the memory of Elizabeth Cleaver is planned for March 14.

Ms Cleaver, an artist and long-time Westmount resident, died last summer at the age of 45.

She is described by Vanier College as "one of Canada's best known and most accomplished illustrators of children's books."

The inaugural Elizabeth Cleaver Memorial Lecture will be given by William Toye, editorial director of Oxford University Press Canada and good friend of Ms Cleaver's.

The lecture is to take place 7:30 pm at Vanier College's Snowdon campus, 5160 Decarie boulevard.

Tickets are $3 and $3.50 at the door. A reception will follow.

Library videos make learning pleasurable

The Maple and the Crown is the newest edition to the Westmount Public Library videocassette collection.

The VHS collection, which began circulation last weekend, already features over 45 selections, in both French and English.

The emphasis of the collection is on pleasure and learning, the library staff point out.

"Programs for children will be a priority of the collection and we shall try to carry a good selection of cultural videos too," added Rosemary Lydon, chief librarian.

The new collection went into circulation last Saturday. On payment of a $25 refundable deposit, library members are allowed to borrow up to two cassettes for a period of two days at a time.

Broncs, Mules buck opposition

There were three exciting games last week in peewee hockey. The first was a match between the Canadiens and the Broncs. The Broncs opened the scoring right off the face-off, as Graham Wood put it in. Four minutes later, Anthony Cohen made the score 2-0 for the Broncs.

The Broncs got another goal, with two minutes left, to increase their lead to 3-0. With 30 seconds left in the first period, the Canadiens got on the scoreboard, when Sean Pattee put one in, making it 3-1 for the Broncs.

The Broncs opened the second period as well, to make the score 4-1. Three minutes later the Canadiens narrowed the lead to 4-2, as Adam Ray put it in. Blair Pattee opened the third period for the Broncs, to put them in the lead by a 5-2 margin.

Now it was the Canadiens last chance to get back when five minutes later they got two quick goals by Sean Pattee to complete his hat trick, and to make the score 5-4.

With two minutes left, Lucas Carsley put it in, to tie the game at 5-5. The Canadiens believed they had the tie but the Broncs had another idea. With 9 seconds left Daniel Sauv  put one in to win the game for the Broncs.

The final score was 6-5.

The second game was between the Mules and the Scouts. With four minutes remaining in the first period, the Scouts opened the scoring, as Andrew Blundell scored. Three minutes later the Mules tied the game at 1.

The Mules opened the second period, as Dino Martinicchio tallied. Four minutes passed before the Mules scored again, when Jason Palangio scored to put his team in a 3-1 lead. Ga l Gravenor scored next for the Scouts, to make the score 3-2. With two minutes left in the second period, Dylan Adair scored to tie the game at 3.

The Scouts opened the third period, to take the lead and make it 4-3. One minute later, the Scouts got yet another goal, to make the score 5-3. With one minute remaining, the Mules' Christian Matossian scored to make the final score 5-4 for the Scouts.

Coming next Wednesday is the second annual mini-skate competition. Fifty-six skaters will be competing in novice, junior, intermediate and senior categories.

The ages range from five to 16.

The public is invited to come and be entertained at 5 pm to 10 pm. The show will be held in the Westmount arena.

Mayor lauds winter carnival

Mayor Brian Gallery praised the efforts of organizers and participants of Westmount's recent winter carnival Monday night at the monthly council meeting.

In particular, the mayor said, "The Alice in Wonderland ice show was wonderful ... Beverly Adams (girls recreation supervisor) deserves a medal."

Nissan vs Honda at intersection

Two cars sustained more than $500 damage Saturday in a collision at Greene avenue and Dorchester boulevard shortly before 1 am, police report. No injuries were reported.

A red northbound 1986 Nissan had to be towed away after colliding with a southbound Honda turning east off Greene.

LONG PLUNGE: Martha McCall soars from on high in winning form at a recent tower diving competition.

McCall sisters to diving championships

Westmount's diving McCall sisters, Cynthia and Martha, have been at it again, successfully plunging their way to the National Open Winter Diving Championships to be held at the Pointe Claire pool the March 21 weekend.

At the recent provincial championships, Martha, 15, finished second in the 10-metre platform, fourth in the one-metre springboard and sixth in the three-metre platform.

Cynthia, 23, also competed impressively, finishing first in the one-metre springboard and second in the three-metre springboard.

While there is still to be plenty of water under the tower before they qualify for the 1988 Olympics in Seoul, South Korea, observers say both Martha and Cynthia are expected to do very well in the upcoming nationals.

Coplan PSBGM vice-chairman

Stephen Coplan, commissioner for Côte St Luc, is the new vice-chairman of the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal (PSBGM), it has been announced.

Mr Coplan succeeds Dr Laurence Patterson who recently retired after 55 years "as a key player in Protestant education," according to a PSBGM press release.

After being elected to the post by fellow commissioners, Mr Coplan said one of his major challenges in the near future will be that the "declining enrolment in the English sector and government financial problems are going to make it extremely difficult for the PSBGM to continue to offer the same programs and services it has in the past."

Jeep trick

A Westmount woman whose Jeep ran out of gas at the corner of Lansdowne avenue and St Catherine street Tuesday evening last week was driven to a service station by public safety officers to obtain the necessary fuel, officials said.

STOP to carry on but not on Greene ave

Early in the morning of Jan 19, fire swept through a series of office buildings on Greene avenue. Amongst them were the offices and library of STOP, one of Montreal's oldest environmental groups.

Located at the top of 1361 Greene, STOP bore the brunt of the fire which reached an inferno intensity before being brought under control after four hours by the Westmount Fire Brigade.

As a result, files containing up to 15 years of research and a major environmental resource center were virtually destroyed, the group reports.

At an emergency meeting of STOP's executive committee, held immediately after the blaze, the directors unanimously agreed that STOP would continue.

"This is a terrible tragedy, but we see it as a challenge to our future," says Lynnae Dudley, STOP president, "a challenge that can be overcome with public support." Ms Dudley told THE EXAMINER that STOP would probably not be able to return to a Greene site due to the high rents. STOP had been on Greene avenue for over 10 years.

STOP considers that its role has become even more important today than it was when STOP was formed in 1970 to alert citizens and lobby policymakers on environmental issues.

Despite the sudden loss of its offices STOP was still able to be present at its hearing before Quebec's access to information commission on Jan 24, five days after the fire. A week later it was also back on top presenting a brief to the MUC on its proposed urban development plan.

"We aim to continue the same breadth and depth of 'environmental watchdog' activities," says Bruce Walker, STOP's research director "and we are already starting to rebuild our dossiers with documents donated by active members and concerned citizens."

Mr Walker says STOP still needs basic and specialized information on the following subjects: urban water pollution and its treatment; industrial air and water pollution; the disposal and recycling of industrial wastes; indoor air pollution; non-smokers' rights; urban planning and urban transportation; and acid rain.

Working out of a temporary office downtown but using the same phone number (932-7267), an intense search is being made for permanent offices at a reasonable rent.

"To help us rebuild we need everything from paper clips to filing cabinets," says Ms Dudley.

"Equally important are monetary donations which are tax deductible. Public support is critical if we are to make up our losses as quickly as possible. But if this is as forthcoming as it has been in the past I am confident we will regain our former strength."

Cheques should be made payable to STOP Inc and mailed to Bruce Walker, STOP research director, 1910 de Maisonneuve boulevard, apt 2, Montreal H3H 1K2.

'Creative music' program for kids

The Westmount YMCA is offering a program in creative music for pre-school age children. The program gives children the opportunity to express their feelings and ideas through music, drama, body movement and voice, says the Y.

The objective is to allow children to develop a capacity to listen attentively and become aware of and sensitive to sound.

Activities are to include movement exploration activities, rhythm through name games, music fundamentals and creating instruments.

Fee for the 12-week program starting March 30 is $48 for members and $58 for non-members. For more information call the Y at 931-8046.

Château owners pondering payment for fired doorman

By THOR VALDMANIS

The doorman fired last week because he was deemed too old by management may yet receive a financial settlement from the owners of the Château Maisonneuve apartment complex, Creccal Trust.

After contacting Antonina Creccal, assistant property manager for Creccal Trust, by phone Tuesday, George Grainger, 73, was told, he said, "that her father would decide by Wednesday what or how much to give me."

Miss Creccal told THE EXAMINER that while some decision would be reached in time for Wednesday's pay cheque issue, the amount given to Mr Grainger would not be disclosed publicly.

"Financial matters are private

Fuse blamed for church smoke

A small amount of smoke was found Sunday morning at the rear of St Léon de Westmount Church, 330 Clarke avenue, after a 400-watt fuse in the main electrical entry melted, fire officials report.

Firefighters were called to the premises at 11:16 am for smoke and dimming lights. Although a service was in progress, the building was not evacuated, public safety officers said. Power was shut off.

and that's that," Mrs Creccal said.

Mr Grainger still is owed two days' pay. Also, according to an official at the Quebec labor standards board, article 83 of the Quebec Labor Act would entitle Mr Grainger, a veteran of over 10 years of service as doorman in the Château, to eight weeks' written notice or, in the case of early termination, eight weeks' pay.

Mr Grainger's sudden firing a week ago, without any written notice or recognition of his 13 years of service in the building, sparked a tenants' protest involving petitions and demands for the popular doorman's reinstatement.

Many tenants felt Mr Grainger was the "best doorman we've ever had."

In the past week, Mr Grainger has made inquiries into potential legal options available to him, but has not acted formally as yet.

Hot muffler ignites gas

A car fire Wednesday last week at Claremont avenue and Sherbrooke street broke out when gas ignited after leaking onto a hot muffler, fire officials said. Damage to the red 1984 Trans Am was estimated at $300.

Firemen were called to the scene at 11:49 am and used a

Post-meeting ritual:

Nutik attacks city council for 'undemocratic' tactics

By THOR VALDMANIS

Declared 1987 mayoralty candidate Allen Nutik berated city council and Mayor Brian Gallery following Monday's council meeting, in a spectacle that is becoming a ritual monthly protest against council's restrictions on the public question period at its meetings.

"This is a travesty of justice, Mr Mayor!" Mr Nutik hollered repeatedly as Mayor Gallery, followed by his council, retreated to the city hall's inner chambers to resume its private committee meeting.

Twelve minutes into overtime (the recently adopted procedure limits question period to 30 minutes and two questions per person) the mayor adjourned Westmount's monthly council meeting despite protests from the approximately 30 residents in attendance, some of whom still had questions.

"Why don't they answer questions?" asked an angered Mr Nutik, a local businessman. "What are they afraid of? I have no gun, only verbal bullets."

Before question period ended, Mr Nutik had asked city council who was going to be held accountable for the Greene avenue tower decision (see separate story).

Mayor Gallery replied that while he regretted that council had failed to down-zone the Greene-St Catherine street corner, the city was working with the developer of the proposed 20-storey tower, to make it "something Westmount can be proud of."

The mayor's response appeared to please few people and, after the meeting adjourned, Mr Nutik attacked the administration's record as "undemocratic."

"They (the council) wish to hide behind closed doors. We wish to conduct the public's business in public, where it belongs."

At last month's council meeting, Mr Nutik announced he would again seek the mayor's chair in the next municipal election, some 20 months away, due to his growing dissatisfaction with the present council. He was defeated for the mayoralty by Mr Gallery in 1983 by a margin of 2-1.

ON MULTICULTURAL BOARD: Westmount businessman Bernard Finestone has been appointed to a one-year term on the Montreal Urban Community's advisory committee on multicultural relations, established last summer. Mr Finestone is chairman of the Quebec region of the Canadian Jewish Congress. The 12 committee members represent the 650,000 people in the MUC who are affiliated with non-English or French cultural groups.

Here's $4.93 that counts!

All of $4.93 separated the winner from the loser in the contest for a $6,000 Westmount city contract.

Electromega Limited was awarded a $5,985.57 contract at the city council meeting Monday night to supply the city with two automatic traffic counters.

Les Entreprises Blouin Ltée submitted a quote of $5,990.64, just $4.93 more than Electromega's offer.

The counters will provide valuable data on Westmount traffic volume to be studied at traffic committee planning sessions, a city official said.

The two companies were the only ones to submit a bid for the contract after five were invited to tender.
