THE OLD MAN AND THE SPRING LEAVES.

BY JOHN J. PIATT.

Underneath the beechen tree
All things fall in love with me!
Birds, that sing so sweetly, sung
Ne'er more sweet when I was young;
Some sweet breeze I will not see,
Steals to kiss me lovingly;
All the leaves so blithe and bright,
Dancing sing in Maying light
Over me: "At last, at last,
He has stolen from the Past."

Wherefore, leaves, so gladly mad?
I am rather sad than glad.

"He is the merry child that played
Underneath our beechen shade
Years ago; when all things bright
Gladdened, glad with his delight!"

I am not the child that played
Underneath your beechen shade;
I am not the boy ye sung
Songs to, in lost fairy-tongue.
He read fairy dreams below.
Legends leaves and flowers must know;
He dreamed fairy dreams, and ye
Changed to fairies, in your glee
Dancing, singing from the tree;
And, awakened, fairy-land
Circled childhood's magic wand!
Joy swelled his heart, joy kissed his brow,
I am following funerals now.
Fairy shores from Time depart;
Lost horizons flush my heart.
I am not the child that played
Underneath your beechen shade.

"'Tis the merry child that played
Underneath our beechen shade
Years ago; whom all things bright
Loved, made glad with his delight!"

Ah! the bright leaves will not know
That an old man dreams below.
No; they will not hear nor see;
Clapping their hands at finding me,
Singing, dancing, from their tree.
Ah! their happy voices steal
Time away: again I feel,
While they sing to me apart,
The lost child steal in my heart.
They enchant me to the past—
The old man is child at last!

NEWS BY THE "ANGLO-SAXON."—The Anglo-Saxon's mail arrived in town last evening. Its contents are not very full of interesting matter. The most important subject alluded to in them is the supposed intention of the French Emperor to sell the Pope for the island of Sardinia. In the House of Commons Mr. Kinglake had stated that Cavour had bargained with Louis Napoleon that the latter was to have Sardinia; but only by means of agents employed without Cavour's concurrence, though without his opposition. Lord Jno Russell did not deny this; but spoke bitterly of the restlessness of France, and said that it required constant watchfulness. Also, that the annexation of Sardinia to France would be the signal for disruption of the Franco-Anglican alliance. The French papers without acknowledging that Sardinia is to be acquired, say that they cannot believe such a rupture would follow it. Ricasoli at Turin denies that any such cession is to take place; but men remember Savoy and Nice, and doubt.

The dreadful affray between Major Murray and Mr. Roberts has been brought prominently before the public by means of the Coroner's Inquest. It appears to be true that Murray was unacquainted with Roberts; but in Robert's rooms there were found indications of a correspondence between Roberts and a Mrs. Murray, who was also proved to have frequently visited Roberts. The fight between the two men must been a dreadful one. The whole of the walls nearly up to the ceiling were spattered with blood. The Inquest when the steamer left had not been concluded.

The news of the Bull Run affair had not reached England when the mail left. The Times, however, apropos of the report of the Secretary of War at the opening of Congress, takes occasion to say that the United States may well be proud of their army—an army raised in so short a time, by voluntary enlistment. It doubts indeed whether, what the most experienced European commanders could not do in many months, could be effected in a few weeks by General Scott. The army must, therefore, lack those requisites which training and discipline bestow. It also lacked materiel artillery and cavalry; but nevertheless must be looked upon as a force, which required nothing but time and experience to become truly formidable. The war, said the writer, would doubtless give occasion to the most ingenious warlike inventions which the world had yet seen. It wished for the United States that it might be found as easy to disband the army as it had been found to raise it.

THE SLAVES IN THE SECEDING STATES—WHAT IS THEIR STATE AND CONDITION.—We yesterday offered a few remarks upon, what appeared to us to be the revelation of a hideous scheme of treachery, by which its author hoped to conciliate the slaveholding Secessionists, by first encouraging a servile insurrection in the Seceded States, and then supplying federal troops to crush it out and restore the revolted slaves to their rebellious, but penitent masters!

That the slave element in the population of the Seceding States is destined, sooner or later, to play an important part in the pending struggle, every day, we think, affords additional evidence.

The following letter from General Butler to the Secretary at War will be found interesting, and directly bearing upon the subject. We think few of our readers will dissent from the conclusions to which the gallant General's somewhat metaphysical style of argument conducts him.

1st. Maintain the authority of the municipal law in every loyal state.

2nd. Abrogate slavery, and restore its victims to the free enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, in every rebellious State.

"HON. SIMON CAMERON, SECRETARY OF WAR.—Sir: By an order received on the morning of the 26th July from Major-General Dix, by a telegraphic order from Lieutenant General Scott, I was commanded to forward, of the troops of this department, four regiments and a half, including Col. Baker's California Regiment, to Washington via Baltimore. This order reached me at two o'clock a.m., by special boat from Baltimore. Believing that it emanated because of some pressing exigency for the defense of Washington, I issued my order before daybreak for the embarkation of the troops, sending those who were among the very best regiments I had. In the course of the following day they were all embarked for Baltimore, with the exception of some 400, for whom I had not transportation, although I had all the transport force in the hands of the Quartermaster here, to aid the Bay line of steamers, which, by the same order from Lieut.-General, was directed to furnish transportation. Up to and at that time of the order I have been preparing for an advance movement by which I hoped to cripple the resources of the enemy at Yorktown, and especially by seizing a large quantity of negroes who were being pressed into their service in building the entrenchments there. I had five days previously been enabled to mount for the first time, the first company of Light Artillery, which I had been empowered to raise, and they had but a single rifled cannon, an iron six-pounder. Of course everything must and did yield to the supposed exigency and the orders. This ordering away the troops from this department, while it weakened the troops at Newport News, necessitated the withdrawal of the troops from Hampton, where I was then throwing up intrenched works to enable me to hold the town with a small force, while I advanced up the York or James river. In the village of Hampton there were a large number of negroes, composed in a great measure of women and children of the men who had fled thither within my lines for protection, who had escaped from marauding parties of Rebels who had been gathering up able-bodied blacks to aid them in constructing their batteries on the James and York rivers. I had employed the men in Hampton in throwing up intrenchments, and they were working zealously and efficiently at that duty, saving our soldiers from that labor under the gleam of the mid-day sun. The women were earning substantially their own subsistence in washing, marketing, and taking care of the clothes of the soldiers, and rations were being served out to the men who worked for the support of the children. But by the evacuation of Hampton, rendered necessary by the withdrawal of troops, leaving me scarcely 5,000 men outside the Fort, including the force at Newport News, all these black people were obliged to break up their homes at Hampton, fleeing across the creek within my lines for protection and support. Indeed it was a most distressing sight, to see these poor creatures, who had trusted to the protection of the arms of the United States, and who aided the troops of the United States in their enterprise, to be thus obliged to flee from their homes, and the homes of their masters, who had deserted them, and become fugitives from fear of the return of the Rebel soldiery, who had threatened to shoot the men who had wrought for us, and to carry off the women, who had served us to a worse than Egyptian bondage. I have therefore now within the Peninsula, this side of Hampton Creek, 900 negroes, 300 of whom are able-bodied men, 30 of whom are men substantially past labor, 175 women, 255 children under the age of 10 years, and 170 between 10 and 18 years years, and many more coming in. The questions which this state of facts present are very embarrassing.

"First—What shall be done with them? and Second, What is their state and condition?

"Upon these questions I desire the instructions of the Department.

"The first question, however, may perhaps be answered by considering the last. Are these men, women, and children slaves? Are they free? Is their condition that of men, women, and children, or of property, or is it a mixed relation? What their status was under the Constitution and laws, we all know. What has been the effect of rebellion and a state of war upon that status? When I adopted the theory of treating the able-bodied negro fit to work in the trenches, as property liable to be used in aid of rebellion, and so contraband of war, that condition of things was in so far met, as I then and still believe, on a legal and constitutional basis. But now a new series of questions arise. Passing by women, the children cannot be treated on that basis; if property, they must be considered the incumbrance, rather than the auxilliary of an army, and, of course, in no possible legal relation, could be treated as contraband. Are they property? If they were so, they have been left by their masters and owners, deserted, thrown away, abandoned, like the wrecked vessel upon the ocean. Their former possessors and owners, have causelessly, traitorously, rebelliously, and to carry out the figure practically, abandoned them to be swallowed up by the Winter storm of starvation. If property, do they not become the property of the salvors? but we, their salvors, do not need and will not hold such property, and will assume no such ownership; has not therefore all proprietory relationship ceased? Have they not become thereupon men, women, and children? No longer under ownership of any kind, the fearful relicts of fugitive masters, have they not by their masters' acts, and the state of war, assumed the condition, which we hold to be the normal one, of those made in God's image. Is not every constitutional, legal, and moral requirement, as well to the runaway master as their relinquished slaves, thus answered? I confess that my own mind is compelled by this reasoning to look upon them as men and women. If not free born, yet free, manumitted, sent forth from the hand that held them never to be reclaimed.

"Of course if this reasoning thus imperfectly set forth is correct, my duty as a humane man is plain. I should take the same care of these men, women and children, houseless, homeless and unprovided for, as I would of the same number of men, women and children, who, for their attachment to the Union, had been driven or allowed to flee from the Confederate States. I should have no doubt on this question, had I not seen it stated that an order had been issued by Gen. McDowell in his department substantially forbidding all fugitive slaves from coming within his lines, or being harbored there. Is that order to be enforced in all military departments? If so, who are to be considered fugitive slaves? Is a slave to be considered fugitive, whose master runs away and leaves him? Is it forbidden to the troops to aid or harbor within their lines the negro children who are found therein, or is the soldier, when his march has destroyed their means of subsistence, to allow them to starve because he has driven off the rebel master? Now, shall the commander of regiment or battalion sit in judgment upon the question, whether any given black man has fled from his master, or his master fled from him? Indeed, how are the free born to be distinguished? Is any one more or less a fugitive slave because he has labored upon the rebel intrenchments? If he has so labored, if I understand it, he is to be harbored. By the reception of which, are the rebels most to be distressed, by taking those who have wrought all their rebel masters desired, masked their battery, or those who have refused to labor and left the battery unmasked.

"I have very decided opinions upon the subject of this order. It does not become me to criticise it, and I write in no spirit of criticism, but simply to explain the full difficulties that surround the enforcing it. If the enforcement of that order becomes the policy of the Government, I, as a soldier, will be bound to enforce it steadfastly, if not cheerfully. But if left to my own discretion, as you may have gathered from my reasoning, I should take a widely different course from that which it indicates.

"In a loyal State I would put down a servile insurrection. In a state of rebellion I would confiscate that which was used to oppose my arms, and take all that property which constituted the wealth of that State and furnished the means by which the war is prosecuted, besides being the cause of the war; and if, in so doing, it should be objected that human beings were brought to the free enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, such objection might not require much consideration.

"Pardon me for addressing the Secretary of War directly upon this question, as it involves some political considerations as well as propriety of military action.

"I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
"BENJAMIN F. BUTLER."

THE GRAND TRUNK.—We are inclined to believe that the Toronto Leader—whether it speaks as a heavily subsidized organ of the Ministry or simply as an exponent of the opinions of its conductors,—in the following remarks, expresses the universal opinion of the people of Canada as to the position of the Grand Trunk Company and the only possible means by which the road can be rendered remunerative to its proprietors—the Leader says:—

An English correspondent renews in our columns the extraordinary suggestion made some time ago for the relief of the bond and shareholders of the Grand Trunk Railway. He proposes to aid them by transferring their entire burden to the province, and imposing upon the Government the task of railway management. As reasonable were it to propose to transfer the railway to the moon! The connection between the Government and the railway has been too close to be pleasant or profitable to either. It has been so against the will of successive ministers; and our correspondent may rest assured that the determination on this side of the Atlantic is to terminate the connection with the least possible delay.

As for the alleged profitableness of the transfer, we apprehend that no argument can be constructed upon that head which does not apply with tenfold force to the proprietors. If the line is ever to be worked with pecuniary advantage to its owners, it must be by individual, not by government, management; and the sooner the fact is comprehended by the bond and shareholders, the better will it be for their interests. They rely a great deal too much upon the "moral responsibility"—"the implied obligation," our correspondent calls it—of the province to carry the road through its difficulties; and until the delusion be dispelled, we fear that the prospect of effective self-help is exceedingly dim. This is the point which our English friends should strive first to overcome. Let them cease crying to Hercules for deliverance. Their own efforts will do more toward generating the requisite steam than anything they are likely to obtain from the Canadian Parliament.

The condition-precedent of the coming appeal to that body appears to us very plain. It is that the bond and shareholders dismiss from their minds the expectation of gifts, loans, or advances in any shape out of the provincial chest for their accommodation or relief. Their task is an arduous one, undeniably; but they cannot get rid of it merely by closing their eyes. And their duty is to address themselves to their work just as the proprietors of another undertaking would do who found it deeply embarrassed, with only slight extraneous assistance to depend upon. It is for themselves to say how the road shall be fully equipped and how it shall be carried on; it is for themselves to provide the means for doing both; and their only tenable application to Parliament will be that the plans they mutually devise may receive the legal sanction which circumstances render necessary. There is no unwillingness on any side to co-operate with them in this regard; and more than this they ought not to seek.

DEATH AFTER THE ADMINISTRATION OF CHLOROFORM—VERDICT AT THE CORONER'S INQUEST.—We yesterday gave some of the particulars of the death of Mrs. Webb, immediately after the administration of a small quantity of chloroform in the General Hospital, preparatory to attempting the reduction of a dislocation of her left hip caused by a fall on Saturday evening. The peculiar circumstances of the case demanding an investigation, Mr. Coroner Jones caused a careful post mortem examination to be made by Dr. Beaubien, physician to the Montreal Jail, and in no way connected with the Hospital, assisted by Dr. Drake. A highly intelligent Jury having been summoned, the Inquest was proceeded with and only concluded at eight o'clock last night. A lengthened report of the evidence in a case where the facts are so few would be tedious. It may suffice to mention that besides the gentlemen who made the post mortem examination, Drs. Reddy, Scott, Bowman, Wright and Trudelle were examined, together with Mr. Chestley, who was present when the chloroform was administered. Mr. Webb, husband of deceased, and five other witnesses, stated the circumstances connected with the fall which caused the dislocation.

After a careful hearing of the evidence, the Jury agreed upon the verdict of which we append a copy, and which we may remark entirely coincides with the conclusion arrived at by Dr. Beaubien who made the post mortem examination.

VERDICT.

That the deceased, Catherine Tierney, came to her death from the effects of chloroform administered preparatory to an attempt at the reduction of a dislocation of the left hip joint, which dislocation was caused by an accidental fall on the evening of the 3rd August instant, and that the evidence goes to show that there can be no blame attached to the medical gentlemen who administered the chloroform. On the contrary we find that every precaution was used to prevent accident, and that every likely means were resorted to in order to restore animation after its first suspension.

In witness whereof, &c.,
Signed,
JOSEPH JONES, Coroner. R. CAMPBELL, JR., Foreman.
And eleven others.

THE EFFECTS ON TRADE OF FREEDOM FROM DUTIES.—The monthly returns of the Port of Quebec for July show an increase of free goods on the corresponding month of last year, amounting to nearly one million and a quarter of dollars.—It cannot be doubted that almost the whole of this large increase in importations has taken place in goods which are subject to the reciprocity treaty. We do not mean that these articles of merchandize would not have been imported if there had been no treaty, as most of them could pass through the Province in bond, previous to its enactment; but it is certain that if subjected to duty, they would not have come through Canada, merely for shipment.

THE POST-OFFICE.—The Witness like ourselves is deluged with letters complaining of the Post-Office, and, like ourselves, cannot spare space for all the complaints. He says, however, the only way to stop them is to put the Post-Office into good working order at once, and asks why not? We reply, because Post-Office Clerks act as electioneering agents for the Prime Minister, and, therefore, care nothing for the service nor for their immediate superior. Because, moreover, they are appointed, not for their capacity to act in the Post-Office, but for their skill at bullying or cajoling at the hustings.

AN ABORTIONIST IN ENGLAND COMMITTED AS A MURDERER.—We find a case reported in the London Examiner of the 13th ultimo, almost identical in its details with that which has resulted in the recent conviction of Patterson, now under sentence of death in our city jail. We shall not shock our readers with the revolting particulars of the case, as disclosed at the inquest on the body of the unfortunate victim, but shall merely say that the detestable practices upon her life, which terminated in her death, were, as near as possible, the same as those proved against Patterson. She was house-keeper to a Surgeon, named Mackley, resident in Bradford, Yorkshire, against whom the Coroner's jury returned a verdict of wilful murder, to take his trial for which capital crime he stands committed.

THE BLUENOSES LAUGH AT THE SOUTHERN BLOCKADE.—The following, says the Boston Traveller, is an extract of a letter dated Yarmouth, N. S., July 29th, received by a firm in this city:

"The captain of a schooner of about 90 tons arrived home here yesterday, having left here about three weeks since with a cargo of fish, which he took into Wilmington, N.C., sold at an enormous profit, then took a cargo of naval stores to Halifax, upon which he has cleared a pile of money. He says he saw no blockading fleet, and is preparing to go the same voyage again as soon as he can get off. Other vessels here and elsewhere along the shore are doing the same thing, and laugh at the idea of being caught."

"THE HON. MR GALT," says the Sherbrooke Gazette of Saturday, we are happy to say, has so far recovered from his lameness as to enable him to leave town for the seat of Government. He departed on Thursday morning in the Prince of Wales Car, a special train having been sent for him."

THE GREAT EASTERN.—This fine vessel sailed yesterday morning from Quebec. She had 356 passengers; 233 cabin and 123 steerage; and a full load of timber and deals.

CITY MORTALITY.—The Roman Catholic return for the past week shows 53 deaths, 25 males and 28 females. 39 were under five years of age, of whom 14 came from the Sœurs Grises. The causes of death were: apoplexy 1; consumption 5; Canadian cholera 1; general debility 1; infantile debility 30; Typhus fever 1; liver complaint 1; fever 3; paralysis 2; old age 1, at 76; small pox 3; teething 3; paralysis 1; total 53; Protestants, as stated in the return published yesterday, 11; total 64, a decrease of about 25 on the preceding week.

THEATRE ROYAL.—The engagement of the Nelson sisters will evidently be a profitable concern for the management. Last night the house was again full to witness the performance of the Foster sisters and a farce.

Many of our citizens who make periodical visits to New York, doubtless remembers John Brougham's admirable burlesque "Pocahontas," never before played here. We shall see this to-night.

The extravaganza is founded on the well known incident of early Virginian history, of the Indian maid who saved her lover from her father's wrath. From these materials Mr. Brougham has produced one of the wittiest productions of its kind that we ever saw or read. The meek dignity of the Indian king, the grotesque bearing of John Smith and his Dutch followers, and the burlesque airs and graces of Pocohontas, are each admirable. The jokes and puns follow fast on each other like hail.

If the graceful singing and acting of the Nelson sisters, and the humor of Mr. Lamb cannot make this piece go "fast and furious" we shall be surprised.

CATALOGUE SALE.—Valuable Furniture, rich and costly curtains, bedding, highly carved centre and card tables, dining room chairs, oval dining table and leaves, &c., the whole in the best order, and may be examined at Mr. Arnton's rooms up to the hour of sale on Friday morning.

GARDENING.—We are pleased to be able to inform citizens and strangers that Mr. Lunn has offered his eloquent garden for exhibition to the public during the whole of this week.

A LAKE STEAMER AT NEW YORK.—The steamer Northerner, Captain R. B. Chapman, arrived here, says the New York Commercial Advertiser, on Wednesday, from Quebec, which port she left on the 22d ult. The Northerner has been engaged as a passenger and freight boat between Ogdensburg and Lewiston, is about one thousand tons burthen, and similar in build to the America and Canada, now the Coatzocoalcas, which arrived here via the same route some three years since.

Captain Chapman passed down the rapids of the St. Lawrence in safety, and coaled at Halifax. He anticipated some trouble from the heavy guards of the steamer when at sea, but experienced none of any consequence. The weather was quite thick on the passage from the Gut of Canso, but the steamer proved herself a good sea vessel.

Captain Chapman reports the passenger and freighting business on the lakes very dull, and has brought his vessel to this port in order to dispose of her.

A SLIGHT MISTAKE.—The Pilot has made the important discovery that a paper known as the Journal du Dimanche is published in Quebec, and that it openly advocates the reconquest of Canada by France. Who knows, says our Montreal contemporary, that the Quebec journal to which we have referred may not be the organ of a party with Mr. Piche probably at the head, bent upon fooling the Emperor of France, and inducing him to enter upon a contest in which he is sure to be beaten? The Pilot then hazards the supposition that the late reinforcements sent out from England may have been made on account of what the Quebec journal says, and not with the slightest desire to interfere, either directly or indirectly, with the quarrels across the line. To quiet the perturbations of our contemporary's mind, we beg to assure him that the Quebec Journal du Dimanche does not, nor ever did exist—that it is a myth—in fact, that "there is no such nigger here." There is a paper published in France, by that name, and which we incline to believe is the veritable delinquent in this case, as we recollect to have seen and published the extract from it some time ago, which has led the Pilot into this mistake. The redoubtable Piche is innocent this time, at any rate.—Quebec Gazette.

NEW BOOKS FROM DAWSON & SON.

DUNDAS; OR A SKETCH OF CANADIAN HISTORY. By James Croil. Montreal: B. Dawson & Son.

This handsome volume is dedicated, by its author, to the descendants of the United Empire Loyalists residing in the Counties of Stormont, Dundas, and Glengarry, in testimony of his respect for the memory of their ancestors and with his best wishes for the prosperity of their descendants. Quod potni, perfeci, says Mr. Croil, in his title page, and a perusal of his interesting volume will, we feel sure, satisfy the reader that what he undertakes to do he does well. His very comprehensive sketch of Canadian history—for he commences with the discovery of the American Continent by Columbus and concludes with the Prince of Wales' visit of last year—is alike creditable to his powers of research and of discrimination, in selecting the more important and salient events of so extended a period for his narrative; while his equally comprehensive remarks upon the physical peculiarities of our country—its climate, soil, geological structure and natural history—are replete with knowledge both useful and entertaining to the Canadian reader. Mr. Croil's work is a welcome and valuable contribution to our Anglo-Canadian literature. We have much pleasure in recommending it to our readers.

THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW.—American edition. New York: Leonard Scott & Co. Montreal: B. Dawson & Son.

Taine; Mr. Mill on Representative Goverument; The Countess of Albany; Equatorial Africa and its inhabitants; Mr. Buckle's History of Civilization in England; Christian Creeds and their defenders; Contemporary Literature.

Court of Quarter-Sessions.

MR. JUSTICE COURSOL, Presiding.

Tuesday, 6th August, 1861.

James Daly, of Montreal, laborer, was charged with stealing 13 linen bags, valued at 13s, the property of Gillespie, Moffatt & Co., on the 13th July, 1861. The Jury rendered a verdict of not guilty, and the prisoner was discharged.

LARCENY.

Andrew Craig formerly pleaded not guilty to this charge, but now pleaded guilty.

BREAKING INTO A SHOP WINDOW AND LARCENY THEREFROM.

John Hunter, laborer, of Montreal, in answer to this charge, pleaded not guilty.

Mrs. Silverman, who keeps a jewelry and millinery shop in Notre Dame street, testified that, on the evening of the 8th July, 1861, she was in her establishment, when a pane of glass in one of the windows was broken by some person in the street, and on going out to the door she saw the prisoner running away towards St. Jean Bte. street.

Her son, Lyon Silverman, also testified to seeing the prisoner running round the corner of Notre Dame and St. Jean Bte. streets, when he, the witness, ran after him, and with assistance arrested the prisoner and took him to the Station House, when a blue velvet tray, which had been full of finger rings, 80 in number, was found in his possession. All the rings were not then in it, some having fallen out when the prisoner took it from the window.

Two or three other witnesses were examined, whose testimony corroborated that of Mrs. Silverman and son.

The Jury, without retiring, returned a verdict of guilty.

The Grand Jury came into Court with the following

TRUE BILLS.

Julienne Armarenger, larceny, from her master, plea not guilty. Another indictment for larceny, same plea.

James Hiley, larceny.

John Herbert, the elder, assault, plea, not guilty.

Mary Ann Wray, feloniously receiving stolen goods, &c., plea guilty.

Maria Munro, larceny from the person; plea, not guilty.

Denis Kerns, obtaining money by false pretences, plea guilty.

NO BILLS

were found in the following cases:—

John Herbert, the elder, assault, occasioning actual bodily harm.

Hilaire Paradis, and James Scott, embezzlement.

Mary McGee, larceny.

James Leonard, larceny from his master.

ASSAULT.

In the case of John Herbert, a bailiff, charged with assault, his Counsel made application to have the case postponed till the next term, as the witnesses lived at a distance, and were absent.

The Court was of opinion, however, that the defendant being a public officer, and the offence alleged to have been committed in the execution of his duty, it was expedient that the case should be disposed of immediately. It was accordingly fixed for Saturday next.

The Court was then adjourned at 4 P.M.

POLICE COURT—YESTERDAY.

Two prisoners were brought up by the Water Police.

Henry McGarry, laborer, Longueuil, for being drunk in Wellington street, was fined $2 or 15 days.

Elizabeth Dunn, Amherst street, was brought up on suspicion of stealing a cloak, but was dismissed.

ASSAULT CASES.

William Morison vs. Andrew Yates, assault. The prosecutor not appearing the case was dismissed.

Nicholas Lefebvre vs. William Hogg, assault. Postponed till this morning.

Hilaire Pichette was charged by Adelaide Poirier with assaulting her, by pulling her by the arm. Fined 1s. and costs or 8 days.

RECORDER'S COURT—YESTERDAY.

Eighteen prisoners were brought up yesterday; thirteen for drunkenness, and the remainder for vagrancy, assault, &c.

By the Statement before you for the 4 months ended 1st instant, it will be seen that the profits for that period, after deducting working expenses, are $45 372 94, which is upwards of $5,000 more than necessary to pay a Dividend of 4 per cent for the current half year, terminating 30th September next. And the directors think that from the superior class of accounts which the Bank now has, they are not too sanguine in anticipating like Dividends.

WILLIAM MOLSON,
President.

UNITED STATES.

THE COST OF WAR.

The new Income tax and Internal bill will prove interesting to all, inasmuch as its provisions concern almost every person engaged in daily labor. Tax levies generally reach only those possessed of real estate interests, but this bill extends to all the ramifications of society, and taxes the clerk proportionately with the wealthy merchant and land owner. Its principal feature is the impost of a tax of three per cent per annum on all yearly incomes over eight hundred dollars, accruing after the payment of the usual taxes, while in the case of foreign residents the rate is to be five per cent. On gold watches of a value of one dollar is laid, and on silver watches fifty cents. Carriages are to be taxed from one to fifty dollars each, in accordance with their value. Spirituous liquors are to be taxed five cents per gallon, and fermented liquors two cents per gallon, or sixty cents per barrel, when the lotter contains over thirty gallons, the tax to be paid by the distiller, who is required to keep a sworn record of the number of gallons mnaufactured. A drawback is allowed in cases where such taxed liquors may subsequently be exported.

PRIVATEERSMEN.

There are now thirty of Jefferson Davis' pirates in the Moyamensing prison, in Philadelphia.

A KANSAS SOLDIER.

The regiment of Captain Montgomery, the man who figured so conspicuously during the border ruffian troubles in Kansas, has finally been mustered into service. It is known as the Third Volunteer regiment of Kansas, and is composed of two companies of cavalry, one company of artillery, and four of infantry. A nephew of Louis Kossuth is the Adjutant.

THREE MONTHS MEN REENTERING THE SERVICE.

The Eleventh Pennsylvania regiment, just mustered out of service at Harrisburg, has already reorganized, and tendered their services to the government for the war. Richard Coulter was elected Colonel.

SPAIN RELEASES UNITED STATES SHIPS CAPTURED BY THE CONFEDERATE PRIVATEERS.

Captain Thorndike, from Cienfuegos, reports that he left at that port the barks Louisa Kilman and West Wind, and the brigs Machias, Albert Adams, Ben Dunning and Naiad, prizes of the privateer Sumter. They had been released by the Spanish authorities, and would sail under convoy of the United States steamer Crusader, which vessel was going in when the Elizabeth sailed.

GEN. MCLELLAN AND THE PRESS.

Gen. McClellan's mode of dealing with the newspaper correspondents at Washington merits hearty commendation. He assembles them together, and frankly informs them of his views and desires as respects the publication of intelligence concerning the movements of the army. Of course there is not one of them, nor one of the journals by which they are employed, but will zealously comply with the General's views.

THE DECEASED COMMANDER OF THE SCOTCH REGIMENT.

The commissioners who were despatched with flag of truce to the rebel army at Fairfax by the Secretary of War, to request the delivery of his brother's body [Colonel Cameron, of the Seventy-ninth Highland regiment,] have returned to Washington without effecting the object of their mission. They report that every kindness and courtesy were shown them by Col. Stewart, the officer in command at Fairfax Court House, but their communication having been addressed, not to any particular individual, but to "whom it may concern," they were unable to obtain the remains of Colonel Cameron. It is thought, however, that when this informality is corrected there will be no difficulty in getting possession of the body of that gallant officer.

GENERAL FREMONT.

The people will not be disappointed in the new Commander of the Department of the West. Within a week General Fremont organized and sent from St. Louis to Cairo a fleet of eight steamers, four regiments of infantry, two companies of artillery, and several detached companies of infantry. This is something like work.

PAYMENT OF TROOPS.

We much regret to see that Congress has voted down a resolution, providing for the payment of our troops monthly. Nothing can be more discouraging to the soldier than uncertainty with respect to the time when he will receive his money. Three months volunteers, who have returned from the war, still remain unpaid, and the loudest and bitterest complaints are made by men, who might have gladly re-enlisted, but for the discontent which has thus been created. The French system of paying men in cantonments every ten days, is perhaps the very best that could be devised, and we hope its adoption in this country will be ultimately secured.

JOBBERY IN NEW YORK.

From the N. Y. Tribune of Monday.

Mr. Hackley was among the highest bidders for the contract to clean the streets. Below him were nearly a score of bidders, the lowest of whom offered, upom ample security, to do the work for about half a million less than Mr. Hackley. The lower bids were rejected, Mr. Hackley's accepted, and the contract confirmed, both Boards of the Common Council hurrying through the job the same night, contrary to law, and the Mayor sitting in his office, contrary to custom, until a late hour, in order to sign the contract. Subsequently an investigation showed that the Messrs. Hope, principal owners of the contract, gave Hackley $40,000 in notes which was used to pass the bill, $20,000, it is supposed, going to George Mountjoy for the Councilmen, and $20,000 to a certain prominent Alderman for his Board—the bill being passed and signed the night following the day on which Hackley got the money. The same enquiry elicited that the brother of the Mayor, the Hon. Benjamin Wood, editor of the Daily News, and Representative in Congress from the III. District of this State, owned one-fourth of this ill-gotten contract.

In April last Andrew J. Hackley was asked before the Grand Jury, in the Court of Sessions, what he did with the forty thousand dollars received from the Messrs. Hope. He refused to answer. Recorder Hoffman decided that he must answer, and on his refusal sent him to the county jail for 30 days. The Grand Jury also indicted him for the contempt. The indictment was removed to the Oyer and Terminer by consent, and Judge Barnard, having allowed a new writ of habeas corpus, ordered the argument to be made before the general Term of the Supreme Court.

Mr. Brady, counsel for Hackley, proposed that the proceedings on the indictment should be stayed until the decision of the Court of Appeals as to the constitutional right of Hackley to refuse to answer. The District Attorney consented to this, on condition that Hackley should give a written stipulation that he would answer if the decision was adverse, and that to secure his answering he should plead guilty on the indictment, the District Attorney agreeing to waive the plea in case Hackfield did answer. The decision of the Supreme Court was against Hackley.

On the 5th of July the District Attorney had Hackley called in the Court of Sessions, in order to move for sentence under his plea of guilty. On affidavit that he was too sick to attend the matter was postponed until the 8th of July. Hackley had meanwhile been brought before the May Grand Jury, and again refused to answer. Judge McCunn refused to commit him for the contempt, but took bail in the sum of fifty thousand dollars for his appearance in July. The District Attorney caused this to be forfeited afterward; but, although the bondsmen are men of wealth, it is understood that they are not liable, because the taking of the bail by Judge McCunn was without authority of law, and therefore void.

On the 8th of July, Hackley's counsel presented an affidavit that he was too sick to attend. The District-Attorney presented counter affidavits, showing that Hackley's sickness was such that it confined him to the house during the day, but that he went out under cover of night. The Court adjourned the matter to Tuesday next, but told the counsel for Hackley very significantly that it might as well be settled at once.

Thus the case rests upon Hackley's plea of guilty, only awaiting the sentence of Judge Ingraham. For the cause of public justice it is to be hoped that full measure will be meted out to one who, virtually by his own admission, stands convicted to-day of having bribed and corrupted the Common Council of the city to enable him to rob the tax-payers and the treasury.

There is a most instructive lesson in this case. For the first time, in many years, it has been demonstrated that a corrupt Common Council cannot pursue their shameless course with impunity. Their tool, Mountjoy, who was indicted for perjury, is now a fugitive, his ill-earned wealth availing as nothing to shield him from the consequences of his misdeeds. Since June last he has kept out of the city to avoid arrest, skulking and hiding like a thief, and though Major of the 25th Regiment of New York Volunteers, he has not dared to go near them lest he be taken.

Thus Hackley, the briber, and Mountjoy, one of the depositories of the bribe, are on the high road to retribution. Both are fugitives, neither of them daring to come into the city which they have disgraced, for we do not believe that Hackley will venture to appear on Tuesday, when his case is called. If he should come, it will probably be to make a clean breast of the whole business. The distinguished Alderman who got $20,000 to distribute among certain of his colleagues, and the corrupt members among whom whom the money was divided, may induce him to keep away from Court by paying him for his silence; but it is hardly probable, should the prisoner appear, that he will consent to play the martyr for the benefit of those who sold him their votes.

BRITISH SUBJECTS IN NEW YORK.

[From the N.Y Journal of Commerce]

New York, July 24th, 1861.

TO THE HONORABLE LORD LYONS:

Your Lordship:—For some time past we have felt uneasy in the community on account of our personal safety. We need not inform you that since the fall of Fort Sumter, an extraordinary excitement in regard to the war has prevailed here, of which one striking characteristic has been a total intolerance of an honest difference of opinion. "Who is not for us is against us" has been the rule of judgment. Any person not warmly approving the justice of this war of the North against the South, has been condemned as an enemy to the North, and has been consequently subjected to much obloquy. The feeling has also prevailed against such of the loyal subjects of Her Majesty as maintained a prudent reserve in regard to the merits of the controversy, and were guided by that rule of perfect neutrality which best become them. Many of us have been in great dread that in case of disaster to the arms of the North, our lives and properties would be endangered by tumultuous assemblage of the people, despising all law and wreaking vengeance on the suspected. We regret to say that circumstances of recent occurrence have confirmed our fears; and the danger is none the less, that in instead of originating in the lower classes of the people, it springs from the very highest grade of society. Citizens occupying the most eminent position, members of the Union Defence Committee, do not hesitate in their official capacity to give utterance to doctrines of the most atrocious character, and fraught with dangerous consequences. In proof of this we have only to submit the following quotations from a report of the proceedings of the Union Defence Committee as it appeared in the New York Herald of this day.

"General Wetmore * * * For his part he held that any man that would counsel anything but the utter subjection of the rebels should be immediately taken and hanged.

"Mr Grinnell * * * No longer than Monday night last he was speaking to one of the secessionists; he was a man six feet three inches high, and he told him what he meant, that if he were strong enough he would take and hang him to the nearest lamp post.

"A gentleman among the audience here remarked that a little of this kind of hanging would have a decided salutary effect.'

In times like these, when deeds tread closely on the heels of words, and such sentiments are openly and approvingly promulgated by the leaders of public opinion, we deem our lives and properties in great danger. We would, therefore, respectfully suggest to your lordship the propriety of placing in our harbor, for the protection of peaceable and inoffensive British subjects, one or more vessels of war bearing the flag of our country, so as to give a sense of security to many who are now looking to the future with great anxiety.

May we without impropriety ask your lordship to give us early assurance that the needed protection will be granted. We have the honor to be your lordship's most obedient servants,

MANY BRITISH SUBJECTS.

TERIBLE BOWIE-KNIFE WORK.

After the battle had been raging for some hours, according to the account of this Zouavian hero, he saw an immense body of Mississippians, accompanied by some (believed to be) Baltimoreans, rush furiously over the Confederate ramparts. They at once saw the conspicuous uniform of the Zouaves, and made at them The Mississippians, after approaching near enough, ent a terrible volley from their rifles into the Zouave ranks. This done, they threw their guns aside and charged onward until each contending enemy met face to face and hand to hand in terrific combat. The Mississippians, having discarded their rifles after the first fire, fell back upon their bowie knives. These were of huge dimensions, eighteen to twenty inches long, heavy in proportion and sharp, or two-edged at the point. Attached to the handle was a lasso, some 8 to 10 feet in length, with one end securely wound round he wrist My informant says when these terrible warriors approached to within reach of their lasso, not waiting to come in bayonet range they threw forward their bowie-knives at the Zouaves after the fashion of experienced harpooners striking at a whale. Frequently they plunged in, and penetrated through a soldier's body, and were jerked out, ready to strike again while the first victim sunk into death. On several occasions the terrible bowie-knife was transfixed in a Zouave and the Zouave's bayonet in a Mississippian, both impaled and falling together. So skilfully was this deadly instrument handled by the Mississippian that he could project it to the full lasso length, kill his victim, withdraw it again with a sudden impulse, and catch the handle unerringly. In by any mischance the bowie knife missed its aim, broke the cord fastening it to the arm, or fell to the earth, revolvers were next resorted to and used with similar dexterity The hand to hand closing in with both pistol and bowie-knife, cutting, slashing, carving, and shooting almost in the same moment, was awful beyond description. Blood gushed from hundreds of wounds until, amid death, pitiful groans and appalling sights, it starched the very earth. My Zouave champion says himself and comrades did hard fighting, stood up manfully to the murderous conflict, but never before knew what undaunted bravery and courage meant. He felt no further ambition to engage in such rencounters. Having been shot through the wrist by a revolver, after escaping the fearful Mississippi weapons and disabled from further active participation in the struggle, he willingly retired to reap the glory won, convinced that to fight against Mississippians with bowie-knives and pistols, after receiving a volley of their sharp cracking rifles is no ordinary fun.

RECAPTURE FROM THE PRIVATEERS—A SHREWD AND COURAGEOUS NEGRO.—The following are some further particulars of the retaking of the schooner S. J. Warring, from the prize crew, and getting her to New York. The schooner was taken by the Jeff. Davis, which put five men on board as a prize crew, leaving on board the colored cook, Tillman, and Stedding and Donald McLeod, seamen, and a passenger named McKinnon. Tillman conceived and executed the plan of retaking the vessel. McKinnon says the pirate captain had declared his intention to sell the cook into slavery upon getting into a southern port, that he would bring a thousand dollars, and that on several occasions Tillman said with a shake of his head, "Dem folks nebber git to Charles'n." It was supposed he referred to being recaptured by a United States vessel.

Six days before the tragedy occurred, Dawsett, the New Jersey man, came to Tillman and asked him if he was willing to shed blood in order to recover the vessel. The wily steward, fearing that Dawsett was endeavoring to draw him out in order to betray his feelings to the pirates, told him he would not do so on any account; and that he had made up his mind to take the worst. He had previously arranged the whole plan with Stedding, and only awaited the favorable moment to strike the blow. Stedding was in the first mate's watch, and had to proceed with great caution, so as not to excite suspicion.

On Tuesday night it was agreed that the attempt should be made. Stedding waited until the first mate lay down on the poop-deck to sleep, and having the wheel, he coughed, which was the signal for the steward. Tillman did not come out, and Stedding removed his boots, and went into the cabin and roused him. Tillman immediately rose, obtained his large hatchet from the storeroom aft; he returned to the state-room where Arvell, the Captain, was sleeping, and gave him a heavy blow on the head. Turning quickly to the berth of Malcolm Libby, the second mate, he struck him a blow, and then ran on deck and dispatched George Stevens, the mate. All three were quickly thrown overboard by Tillman and Stedding, and the vessel was headed north.—They then placed Milner in irons, and Dawsett came forward and expressed some regret that he had not been called to assist. He willingly aided in working the vessel, and Milner was afterwards released, on condition that he would also turn to, which he did with alacrity. They had heavy squalls from the southwest, and the wind continued fair until they made the Chicoteague light. They reached New York without difficulty. The schooner was anchored off the Battery, and was the object of much curiosity. The bloody spots in the cabin, the secession flag that the pirates made out of the American ensign, which was stained with the blood of the pirate crew, and the bloody hatchet, were all inspected with great interest. They were taken to the Marshall's office. Tillman and Stedding went to the office of the Board of Underwriters in Wall Street, by invitation, where they related the particulers of the recapture of the vessel. The underwriters have expressed the intention to reward these men handsomely, which they can well afford to do, as the vessel and cargo is estimated at over $100,000. Her cargo consisted of flour, tea, furniture, machinery, &c.—N. Y. Paper.

ENGLISH MARKETS.

[From David Bannerman's Circular.]

Arrivals of wheat and Flour from Montreal and New York are still heavy. Imports from other quarters are considerable.

During the week the weather has been bright and warm for the most part, although broken at intervals by heavy showers of rain. In this neighbourhood the growing Grain is beginning to colour; and, so far, the Potatoe crop gives only slight indications of the presence of disease here and there.

Since last Wednesday the Market has been without material change, and has, on the whole, been rather quiet. American Wheat continued to be pressed from the ships at the rates which were considered low last week. Barrel Flour was very irregular in price even for fair qualities, and the sale for such was by no means lively; while Inferior and Out-of-condition parcels were utterly neglected. Canadian Pease were again more pressed than on Wednesday, and worse prices have been taken. Several sales at 18s, ex ship, were reported. Indian Corn was unaltered. Irish Oatmeal was offered cheaper, but Canadian was in fair request at 32s, to 34s, according to quality.

There was about the usual attendance at to-day's Market. Trade generally was quiet. Common runs of American Wheat are freely offered, at a decline of 6d, per boll on the week; Chicago and Milwaukie going from 22s 6d to 23s. Fine sorts about maintain former rates. Barrel Flour is 6d, cheaper for all kinds. Pease are 6d to 9d lower. Indian corn is unchanged in value. Beans are 3d to 6d lower. Oats are taken sparingly, at a decline of 3d per load. Irish Oatmeal is 6d easier, while Canadian is not worse, and is in fairish demand.

Ashes are 6d lower for both sorts.
