A comparison of prices is earnestly solicited.

THE MONTREAL HERALD

TUESDAY MORNING, NOV. 4, 1856.

News by the "Canadian."—We give under our telegraphic heading a summary of the Canadian's news. She left Liverpool on the 22d ultimo and was unfortunately stranded, on Saturday night, on White Island, near Riviere du Loup. It is confidently hoped she will be got of without damage. Her passengers are expected by the Quebec boats this morning, some having reached town last night by railroad.

At a late hour last night we received the English papers, per Canadian, through the kindness of Mr. Pickup, but there is nothing of any importance but what is touched on under our telegraphic summary.

Bad Morality and a Worse Precedent.—It will be seen by the report of the trial, which we publish this morning, that Mr. Brogdin, of Port Hope, who recently deliberately slew—we must not say murdered—a person of the name of Henderson, with whom his (Brogdin's) wife was living in open and adulterous cohabitation, has been acquitted by a jury of his country, notwithstanding the able, judicious and, to our mind, entirely conclusive charge of the Chief Justice. We cannot record this decision without at the same time recording our condemnation of the conduct of the jury, who, by their verdict, not only maintain the right of an individual to place himself—and for the sole and only purpose of wreaking his revenge on an enemy—above the laws of his country, but thus create a precedent which cannot fail to inflict a most grievous injury upon society. It would be presumptuous in us to attempt to add to the force of Sir John Robinson's reasoning on the particular case, in which an Upper Canada jury have declared deliberate and, most assuredly, "of malice aforethought" killing, no murder; but this we will say, that—excepting under very peculiar circumstances of falsehood and deceit, which certainly do not appear to have occurred in the present case—the word seduction is utterly inapplicable in the case of infidelity on the part of a married woman—nay, we will go further and maintain that, if there be degrees of guilt in such cases, the heavier amount must ever and always rest upon and be borne by the female. The matter is a painful and disagreeable one, either to contemplate or to discuss, but even at the risk of offending the delicacy of some and the good taste of others of our readers we have felt it our duty, as public journalists, not to pass over in silence a decision which we cannot help considering as having been dictated by weak and effeminate, however amiable, sentiment, and not by the evidence, on which the jury were bound by their oaths and by the laws of their country to have based it; and which is calculated to inflict the most serious evils upon any community where such decisions meet with either sympathy or approval from the public.

The London "Times" again.—Certainly our great London contemporary must have gone mad about affairs on this side of the Atlantic. About a week ago we had one of his leader-writers discussing the passage of a "fore and aft" schooner, the "Dean Richmond," from Chicago to Liverpool, as if the saving of 3d. or 6d. on a barrel of flour for transhipment at a Canadian port—supposing always any such saving could take place—involved the ruin of the British grain grower, unless he addicted himself more closely to scientific culture, and forever closed the British markets against the Greek merchants and their Black Sea grain.—This mail brings us a still more absurd specimen of the way in which this much-vaunted journal sifts its information. It gravely publishes nearly a column and a half of a narrative, which it alleges is that of an eye-witness, who recounts the history of a journey from Maçon to Augusta in Georgia. The following is a synopsis of the events recorded by the London Times, as they are afterwards summed up in a leader:—

The train starts with 25 passengers, occasionally taking up some and putting down some in the course of a journey which begins at five in the afternoon and ends at half-past three the next morning. The passengers know about as much of each other at starting as passengers usually do. Three get into the train together; another is an acquaintance of theirs; two others are friends, and there are two fathers with their sons. In the course of ten hours and a half in this select community, no larger than is sometimes assembled round a private dinner party in this metropolis, there are five actual duels with fatal results; a sixth duel, which was arranged, but did not come off owing to the death of an intended principal in another duel; a seventh duel, which there was every reason to believe had taken place, though the train went on too soon for the results to transpire; eightly, a murder. Of the two dozen passengers fifteen are mentioned as entering more or less into the action of the drama, twelve took a direct part in duels; six were killed, and three were left on the way fighting. Four of the duels were fought at convenient spots, the train stopping for the purpose; one was fought in the luggage car while the train was in motion; and the one with uncertain results was fought at a regular stopping place. Three of the dead bodies were left behind; one was carried from the scene of the duel and deposited on the luggage; another lay where it fell in the luggage car; another was thrown out on the road side. Of the six killed two were fathers and two were their sons, one father killed while avenging his son, and one child murdered for lamenting his father.—On the occasion of the first duel the train did not stay it out, but the result followed by telegraph. At the second and fourth the conductor, becoming keen in the sport, waited, and the survivors remounted the train; but in the last instance the conductor seems to have felt a qualm, and he managed to leave one of the survivors on the road, while, with the aid of the fireman, he boxed up the other to prevent further slaughter. The time was generally night, the last affair being at three in the morning.—It is stated that these are not uncommon incidents, and that scarce a week passes without some fatal encounter on the road.

It is really astonishing, that any tolerably well-informed person, to say nothing of a journalist of the very highest pretensions, could be hoaxed by so transparently absurd a story as the one thus abridged. But the Times not only published the story; but as we have intimated, adds a leader on the day after its publication, in which its Editor declares that he took all the pains possible, to verify it before it did so.

Death of Captain Bell.—It is with deep and sincere regret we perform the painful duty of announcing the sudden death of this efficient, indefatigable and conscientious public officer, which took place, in this port, on Sunday night, after only a few hours' illness. Captain Bell, as most of our city readers are aware, has, since the commencement of the present deepening operations of the ship-channel between this port and Quebec, been the able and efficient superintendent of the work, under the Harbour Commissioners; and we have no hesitation in adding that his death is not only a calamity which will press hard upon these gentlemen in their official capacity, but it must be a subject of unfeigned sorrow to them, and to all who enjoyed the advantage of Captain Bell's acquaintance—each may say, with Hamlet, and without hyperbole or exaggeration:—

He was a man, take him for all in all,
I shall not look upon his like again.

Captain Bell was in the prime of life, being in his 39th year. He was a native of Wetherton, in the County of Cumberland, England, lost his wife some five or six years ago and leaves three children, residing with his sister at Sorel, to mourn with their aunt over his premature decease—which, we may add, was the result of a severe apoplectic fit.—Alas! alas!

Death's shaft's fly thick! the cup goes round,
And who so artful as to put it by!

To Correspondents.—"A Subscriber to Both" is, of course, fully entitled to his own opinion. He, and others, should, however, remember that, when a body of gentlemen are appointed to and accept a difficult and onerous duty, the least thing those appointing them can do, in common fairness and courtesy, is to leave them, without interference, to carry out their arrangements, and judge them by the result. Were they to listen to the suggestions of every anonymous volunteer-critic in the newspapers, success would be out of the question, and failure certain.

The Mercantile Library Association.—A preliminary meeting, in connexion with the above Association, was held at the Odd Fellows' Hall, on Monday night, at which Mr. Walshe, the Principal of the Lower Canada College, announced the curriculum of studies intended to be pursued. It is intended to form twelve classes, in which Writing, Arithmetic, Mathematics, Geography, Commercial Law, History, Drawing, Music, the English, French, German, Latin, Greek and Hebrew Languages, will be taught. These classes are chiefly intended for young men who are engaged in business during the day, and they are to be continued during the winter months. As our space is rather limited, we shall give a more detailed account of this most praiseworthy effort, on the part of Mr. Walshe, in our next publication.

New Music.—We have received the following pieces of new music from Mr. Prince, Notre Dame Street:—

1.—"The Jubilee, or Railway Celebration Polka."
2.—"The Histrionic Polka."
3.—"The Old Elm Tree"—Song.

The first piece—"The Jubilee, or Celebration Polka"—has been written expressly by Mr. Prince for the forthcoming Railway Festivities, and is Dedicated to the Directors and Managers of the Canadian Grand Trunk Company. This piece fully sustains the author's reputation, and cannot fail, with its admirable imitations of the noisy procession, the strains of the ball, and the carnival or banquet, to become immensely popular.

"The Histrionic Polka" is another very successful composition by the same author, and will doubtless be remembered by many who had the pleasure of dancing to it at the Histrionic Assemblies.

"The Old Elm Tree" is another charming ballad by Crouch, the author of "Kathleen Mavourneen." See advertisement.

Panorama of the West.—The stay of this Panoroma in the city being limited, our citizens should not defer making an early call at the Mechanics' Hall. This Panorama is painted by Mons. Andrieu, an artist who is spoken of in the American papers as a painter of no mean capacity. We can recommend this Exhibition to our readers as a work of considerable merit, and we trust the talented proprietor will receive all the encouragement which his painting so justly merits.

Sir Allan Napier McNab, Bart., and Miss McNab, arrived in town on Saturday, from England, and are now staying at the Donegana Hotel.

Erratum.—In Dr. P. E. McKeon's letter, published yesterday, for "of the Canadian ministry," read "by the Canadian ministry."

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

Judgments in the Superior Court.

October 31, 1856.

Before the Hon. Justices Smith,
" " Mondelet.
" " Chabot.

Cloutier v. Boulanger—Intricacy of the Law of Real Estate.—Smith, J.—A petitory action by Madame Cloutier to recover half a certain property at St. Hyacinthe. The grounds were these: By the marriage between Gendron and Vallée, father and mother of the plaintiff, there was created a community of property and the land now in question was ameubli, in order that it might fall within the community. Madame Gendron died leaving the present plaintiff her heir. During the minority of the child, the father obtained authority to sell this property; he sold accordingly in his own name, as well as in quality of tutor to the child, and he became the purchaser for 100 francs and a life-rent. Gendron remained in possession under this sale, and being in possession sold to Boulanger, and the action was now brought by the child to compel Boulanger to give up one half the property. The defendant had called Gendron en garantie, who denied the right of plaintiff to recover, saying that she had accepted her rights under the community, the proof of which would be found in the proceedings which took place at her marriage; the inventory of the community, containing an entry of part of this purchase money, having been then produced; and, farther, that the plaintiff had ratified this sale and confirmed all the acts of her father as tutor. Moreover, that useful improvements had been made on the property, for which she must contribute if she recovered the land. The questions to be determined were; 1st. If Gendron had authority to sell? 2nd. If so, whether he could himself become the purchaser? 3rd. If any illegality had existed in the sale—whether anything had been done since to ratify it, and so prevent the Plaintiff from benefitting! The first question must be answered in the affirmative. As to the second, there was nothing to show that the tutor could become the purchaser of the minor's property, and the general principle of law was against it. It did not matter that he was joint proprietor, and the effect of his acquisition was that he acquired for the minor and himself. Thus things were after the sale precisely in the same position as before it took place, and no property had been vested to the exclusion of the minor. On the last question the Court held that there had been no abandonment of the Plaintiff's rights, for any release by Cloutier, her husband, could not be binding upon her. The Court, therefore, in the usual form declared her the possessor of one half the property, and ordered an expertes.—The question of impenses utiles could not come up till after the portage.

Cushing v. Municipality of Acton, and Cushing v. Benoit, Inspector of Roads.—Smith, J.—The Plaintiff in both these actions said that he was a proprietor within the municipality, and that the Municipal Council had passed a by-law directing a road to be made; but had afterwards illegally revoked it. The alleged damage arose out of no trespass or voie de fait; but in consequence of this revocation of a by-law, by which Plaintiff was prevented from getting out some timber, which he could have brought into use, if the road had been made. To this the defendant replied by demurrer that no such action could be. The Court was of that opinion. The Municipal Council must be the sole judges of the exercise of the discretion with which they were intrusted. There would be no end to it, if a corporation could be sued on every by-law which it made. When a corporation did wrong, the remedy was by mandamus, a clear proof that no such action as this could lie at common law. Both actions dismissed.

Wolfe v. McGowie—Mondelet, J.—His Honor differed from the majority. The action was to recover damages for wood cut by the defendant on the lands of the plaintiff. The declaration set forth that this wood had been cut in a certain year and during ten years before and after, especially in the years 1845, 1846, and 1847. The only proof related to some wood that was cut in 1843, about which year there was not a word to be found in the declaration. This was too vague. It was impossible for the defendant to answer upon it, or in the case of a new action on the same account to plead chose juige. It was said indeed that there was a bill of particulars. That was the first time he had heard of a bill of particulars connected with an action for damages; but if it had been done, it ought not to be done.

Smith, J.—Whatever defence might arise out of matters of pleading was for the party himself to take advantage of, and not for the Court to point out, and here the defendant had been quite ready to accept the issue on its merits. There was nothing extraordinary in a bill of particulars pointing out what wood the defendant was said to have taken. The Court thought the proof sufficient; the men who had cut the timber having stated the number of sticks they had cut, and a gentleman largely engaged in the trade having proved the value. Judgment for the plaintiff.

POLICE COURT.

Monday, Nov. 3, 1856.

Before James M'Gill Desrivieres, Esq., J.P.

Mary Bryan and Margaret Wakeman, vagrants, were sent to jail for two calendar months.

George Conlon was charged with being drunk in the public Streets. Fined 10s and costs. The defendant not being able to pay was committed to the house of correction for one calendar month.

RECORDER'S COURT.

Before the Recorder.

Monday, Nov. 3.

Pierre Dupuis, laborer, pleaded guilty to having assaulted Constable John O'Leary, on the 29 October, by striking complainant a blow on the neck. Fined 5s, or 8 days' imprisonment at hard labor.

James Green, carter was charged with having driven faster than a moderate trot in St. Lawrence Street. Fined 20s.

Green pleaded guilty to having assaulted Constable Joseph Lacroix, by striking complainant with a stick. This assault arose out of the previous case. Fined 20s, or 15 days' imprisonment at hard labor.

Ann McDonald pleaded guilty to having assaulted Bernard Maguire, livery stable keeper, by striking complainant several blows. Fined 20s, or 4 days' imprisonment at hard labor.

Those who have used the Oxygenated Bitters for Dyspepsia, attest the superior efficacy of this medicine. Its health-restoring qualities not being subject to any re-action from stimulants, is the secret of its great success.

THE BROGDIN TRIAL.

ACQUITTAL OF THE PRISONER.

(Reported for the Globe.)

The trial of George Brogdin, Attorney, Port Hope, for the murder of Thomas Henderson, also an Attorney, on the 23rd of September last, came on yesterday at the Cobourg Assize Court, before Chief Justice Sir J. B. Robinson.

Solicitor General Smith conducted the trial on behalf of the Crown, assisted by S. B. Campbell, Esq., who appeared for the friends of the deceased. The prisoner was defended by Thos. Galt, Esq., George A. Phillpotts, Esq., W. H. Weller, Esq., N. Kirchoffer, Esq., and G. M. Clarke, Esq. He had been arraigned at a previous sitting of the court, and pleaded not guilty.

The Solicitor General said, in stating the case, he should confine himself strictly to a statement of the facts and the law, so far as he knew them. In this country, heretofore, the laws had been respected, and no man could be found so bold as to take the law into his own hands, where the act might involve the death of a fellow-being, with the hope that he might escape with impunity. The state of things was very different in countries not far distant. Here a man might go at large without the fear of his liberty or his life being endangered. If that was the case, to what was it to be attributed? The reason was, undoubtedly, to be traced to the manner in which the law was administered—to its being administered justly—justice at the same time, where practicable, being tempered with mercy.

After some further remarks of the same kind, the Sol. Gen. stated the facts as they will be found detailed in the following evidence.

Francis F. Booth.—Saw deceased on 23d September last, on board the "Arabian" at Toronto. Were fellow-passengers. Got to Port Hope about four in the afternoon. Had some conversation with deceased. He said he was going to the Fair. He expressed no intention of landing at Port Hope. Was in the saloon with him when we reached the wharf at Port Hope. Those in the saloon stood rather lower than those on the wharf. I looked out at the window and saw prisoner on wharf. I mentioned it to Henderson. Prisoner approached the boat. He was on the opposite side of the wharf when I first saw him, and he came towards the boat. Saw him draw a pistol, like that now produced. At this time, he was about fifteen feet from the window. Almost immediately afterwards I heard the discharge. Before it was discharged, I jumped away from the window, and pulled Henderson with me. As I drew him away, his back was partially to the window. When the prisoner fired, Henderson said, "My God, I'm shot!" He did not speak afterwards. I got upon the wharf immediately. Some one asked, "Who shot the man?" and I heard some one reply, "There he is," pointing to Brogdin going up the wharf. Had heard Henderson say, "Good day," to some one on the wharf. At the time of the shot, Henderson was stooping, as if to avoid being shot.

Cross-examined—As soon as prisoner saw the face of the deceased, he drew the pistol and fired. Did not hear the deceased say "Hallo! George." Prisoner's name is George. Henderson could have avoided being seen, if he had chosen. I advised him to keep out of sight.

Thomas O'Reilly gave confirmatory evidence.

John Burnham—I was present on 23rd September on the Port Hope wharf. Did not see Brogdin till after the arrival of the Arabian.—When I first saw him, he was withdrawing a pistol from the saloon window, and putting it in his pocket, George Henderson went towards the prisoner and said—"I'll have you arrested," and Brogdin replied—"Damn you, I'll shoot you." Brogdin then went from the wharf towards the town.

Dr. W. H. Evatt gave medical evidence.

Ellis Grimmon, a constable—Arrested prisoner on the 23rd September. He came towards me, and said—"I am your prisoner." He asked—"Is he dead?" I said—"I do not know." He replied—"If he is, I'm satisfied."

Some other evidence was given; but without eliciting anything of importance.

This closed the case for the prosecution.

SPEECH FOR THE DEFENCE.

Mr. Galt then proceeded to address the jury. He fully agreed with every word which had fallen from the Solicitor General in describing this case—that a more wilful or clear case of murder, never was tried in a court of justice, if those circumstances which had been brought forward were all. But when he told them that the prisoner at the bar laboured under a degree of provocation with which no one instance referred to by the Solicitor General was to be compared, he felt perfectly confident that, under the charge of the Court, as well as men, as brothers, as husbands, as fathers, they would acquit the prisoner of any offence whatever. They might feel constrained to say that, in his relation as a member of society, the prisoner had been guilty of a violation of the law; but as men, having the feelings of men, he had not the slightest doubt before the case closed they would in their hearts acquit him of any offence against the laws of his Maker. There were certain circumstances in which the law made great allowances. These were where the provocation was of that grievous character, which was sufficient to beat down every barrier raised to control a man's natural feelings. If, in those circumstances, a person did commit an offence the law acquitted him. What he was going to contend was that the circumstances surrounding it were such as to render the act not murder, not manslaughter, not justifiable homicide, not excusable homicide. It was his intention to show the state of mind of the prisoner at the moment the offence was committed. What he meant was this, that the definition of murder being the taking the life of a fellow-creature with deliberate malice, they must be satisfied before finding the prisoner guilty that he was in the possession of cool or deliberate senses. If he had been drinking and had thereby excited his nerves and feelings, and in that state had killed the deceased, the law would not admit of the influence of liquor being any palliation. But what the law would admit as palliation in such a case was that, from the state of the man's own mind, not influenced by any adventitious circumstances, he was incapable at the moment when he did the act of considering what he was doing. Now what was the injury which the unfortunate young man at the bar had sustained at the hands of Thomas Henderson? Why, the greatest wrong which one man could suffer at the hands of another. His wife had been deliberately seduced and her affections taken from him; his happiness had been destroyed; his name had been degraded—and entirely through the act of that man. There was one description of homicide which, in the eye of the law, was unquestionably murder. Every text writer laid it down as a rule in criminal jurisprudence that where one person took the life of another in a duel, that was murder. But it might surprise them to hear that, in the annals of blood stained jurisprudence, there was not one instance on record where a man who had killed another in fair open combat, was convicted of murder. Whence the reason Judges, juries, and persons in general would never sanction and throw a shield over that which was a direct violation of the law without some strong reason? It was generally felt that where there had been a violation of certain private rights, and where public opinion was strongly in its favor, there it was justifiable. He could cite case after case to show that allowance must be made for the frailty of human nature. The same excuse for crime under circumstances of great provocation was to be found in the Scotch case of Sir Alexander Boswell, where the provocation was grossly scurrilous language. As respected the case which they were trying, there could be no doubt that, according to the law, there could be no palliation with the view of reducing the crime from murder to manslaughter, if the jury were satisfied that, at the time the prisoner took the life of Henderson, he was in the cool possession of his faculties. He believed he should be able to prove that that was not the case—and, having done so, he called upon them to give effect to the principle which had been laid down in the cases which he had referred to. It must be borne in mind that, after the deceased man Henderson had robbed the unfortunate prisoner of his greatest prize on earth, the first time he saw him was on the day of the alleged murder in the harbour at Port Hope. There was no time for his blood to cool. Henderson had used threats of violence towards the prisoner, and he had told a witness only on the day before his death, when he saw symptoms of relenting on the part of Brogdin towards his wife, that he did not care for Brogdin, because he was perfectly satisfied from this conduct that Brogdin would never get a verdict in a civil action against him.

The only sentence which could be passed on the prisoner, if they found him guilty of deliberate murder, was that of death. Or, if the Executive should see fit to commute his sentence, what then should be his fate? Nothing less than perpetual imprisonment in the Penitentiary. The question for their decision was in a smal compass it was a question for the jury alone. The question was, what was the intention of George Brogdin—was he accountable for his acts at the very time he presented the pistol and shot Thomas Henderson? The learned counsel then proceeded to narrate succinctly what first occasioned his unfortunate friend to suspect that his happinees had been destroyed by Henderson. The deceased and the prisoner were school-fellows together. Not only that, they had served their articles in the same office—They were on terms of the utmost intimacy. Henderson left this country and went to Australia or California. There he succeeded in making a considerable sum of money—and then, most unhappily, he returned to Canada. Brogdin received him with pleasure. Brogdin's family consisted of his wife, and he believed two unmarried sisters of Brogdin's wife, and a child. It was not until the 10th of July last that Brogdin had reason to suspect that an intimacy existed between Mrs. Brogdin and the deceased. On that day there was a pic-nic party, at which it appeared a certain degree of coolness was shown to Mrs. Brogdin by some of the ladies who were present. His client was the last person to supect anything wrong. The coldness exhibited towards Mrs. Brogdin on the occasion referred to, could of course be attributed to nothing but the intimacy between her and Henderson. There was one circumstance much calculated to allay all suspicion. It was supposed that Henderson was paying his addresses to one of Mrs. B.'s sisters. However, on the 20th of the same month, Mr. Brogdin's attention was called to two letters. The letters were read by the learned counsel, and clearly showed a guilty intimacy between Henderson and Mrs. Brodgin. Of course it was impossible to depict the state of Brodgin's mind when he found the manner in which he had been treated. Mr. Galt then related the circumstances of the elopement, the pursuit of Mrs. Bodgin, and the subsequent conduct of Henderson down to the time when he was shot; and concluded by appealing to the jury to show a merciful consideration towards his client.

EVIDENCE FOR THE DEFENCE.

N. Kirchoffer. Barrister, Port Hope. The prisoner studied with me. He was married to Miss Hornby, two or three years ago. They had one child. It was generally reported that Mrs. Brogdin eloped with deceased. Deceased and prisoner were both natives of the place, and fellow students in my office. I believe they had been old school fellows. On the 23rd September I went down to the wharf. Saw Mr. H. J. Ruttan, Mr. Scott, and Mr. Brogdin, together.—When we came off the boat, Brogdin talked about a land sale in a jesting manner. He did not appear at all excited. Somebody came over, and in an under tone said, "Tom Henderson is on board." Fearing Brogdin's feelings might be hurt, if he had heard the remark, I turned round and saw he was gone. I then saw him at the saloon window, and heard the shot fired.

Similar evidence was given by Messrs. Scott and Harper.

Thomas Turner.—Saw the Arabian coming in on the day in question. Mr. Welsh called my attention to Henderson being on board. Before the boat stopped, I heard him call out "How d'ye do George?" Am satisfied that was addressed to the prisoner. It was immediately before the shot was fired. I went over to Rochester in the boat in which Henderson and Mrs. Brogdin went off. Heard a female voice with Henderson in his state-room.

To Sol. Gen. Smith.—After Henderson was shot, George Henderson ran towards Brogdin. Brogdin drew his pistol again out of his pocket, presented it at George Henderson, told him to take care.

George Clarke.—Prisoner had talked to me of several letters of Henderson's. Brogdin asked me if I had seen the letter Henderson had sent to Capt. D. McBride, in which he spoke of having his wife as his mistress.

Mr. Galt proposed to read this letter as evidence of Henderson's admission of the adultery.

The Chief Justice said it could not be admitted, as there was no evidence that Brogdin had seen the letter, and committed what he did from the indignation thereby excited.

Examination of Mr. Clarke resumed—Two or three weeks after his wife went away, Brogdin had spoken to me about making provision for her. Said he loved her too well to allow her to die in a ditch, which she would, if she continued with Henderson. He wished me to arrange a meeting. Got to Niagara on the 18th or 19th. Mrs. Brogdin was at Niagara with her mother. I took Mrs. Brogdin from there to Hamilton. Telegraphed Brogdin that I was there Got no answer. Next morning received a message from Brogdin that he would not come. Learned at Niagara that Henderson was still visiting Mrs. Brogdin. He arranged another meeting at Toronto. Brogdin saw his wife there. She gave up some letters and agreed to adivorce, he providing some respectable lodging for her about Toronto. She returned with me to Niagara. At Niagara I met Henderson on the wharf. He came to me in an excited way, said he heard I had been interfering, and wanted a fight with me. He changed his mind, and got into the cab with Mrs. Brogdin. I went in at the other side and told him to get out—said he might have a conversation with Mrs. Brogdin at her mother's house, in my presence. He got out and afterwards saw her in my presence. He was at first very familiar with her, which I said he should not be in my presence. He finally agreed to leave her. We had afterwards some conversation together. He spoke of a telegraph he had sent to Brogdin, like that just produced,—"Suspension Bridge, 16th August—Henderson, your friend is here on the way to Niagara. A friend." He seemed annoyed at an imputation having been cast on his courage in a newspaper report. Said he carried arms, and if George met him it would be worse for him. He spoke of Brogdin as a poor fool, that he knew nothing of the use of weapons. Said he heard he had been practising, but would stand no chance with him. Finally, said he never would trouble Mrs. Brogdin again. On returning to Port Hope I related the whole of the circumstances to Brogdin. Henderson wrote me a few days afterwards, imputing improper motives for my interference, and said he was to be in New York and wished me to see him. I saw him in New York on Saturday the 6th September, and he apologised for imputing to me such motives. Returned to Port Hope on the 13th; Brogdin showed me a letter from Henderson, enclosing one from his wife, imputing the same motives, evidenty written under improper influence. Before I went to New York I wrote the to Rev. W. A. Johnson, Toronto, requesting him to procure a respectable place for Mrs. Brogdin, and do what he could to make her comfortable. On 22nd Sept., I got on board the Provincial at Cobourg, and there met Henderson. He said he was satisfied Brogdin could get nothing from a jury after arranging to provide for his wife, and that that was all he feared; at the same time he showed me a pistol, capped and loaded, saying if he met Brogdin, he would have no chance with him. Henderson admitted to me that he had occupied the same state room with Mrs. Brogdin on the steamer, across to Rochester. On the 22nd, Henderson said he was going to Collingwood. As we were coming to Port Hope I advised Henderson not to show himself, as I expected to meet him on the wharf. He said he did not care though he met him, as he had been called a coward in the papers. On touching at Port Hope, I went up to meet Brogdin to prevent his coming down. Henderson landed at Toronto, and must have returned next day by the Arabian. Henderson told me that the account in the newspapers had been a great introduction to him; that he had met many who were glad to see him in a "Hail fellow well met" style, and that often, on cars and steamboats in the States, they would not take his fare. Henderson denied to me that he had had any improper connexion with Mrs. Brogdin, but he spoke at the same time as if he wished me to infer that he had. Believe Brogdin was not aware that Henderson was coming on the 23rd. I told Mr. Brogdin what Henderson had said to me in New York, that he would never put foot on Canada soil again.

Robert W. Smart—Told Brogdin I would not have received Henderson so well in New York, if I had seen the letter which I afterwards did in McBride's possession. I told him it made out his wife a prostitute, and that it insinuated that McBride had had connexion with her. He seemed a good deal excited.

Solicitor General Smith again addressed the jury for the prosecution. He said that, having heard the whole of the evidence on his behalf, he regretted that he was unable to change his mind, or to recede from the opinion he had expressed at the commencement of the trial, when he told the jury that the prisoner at the bar was guilty of wilful and deliberate murder.

THE JUDGE'S CHARGE.

The Chief Justice then proceeded so read over the evidence to the Jury. Having done so, he said,—Gentlemen of the Jury, that is all the evidence material to the case. I had some difficulty in admitting some parts of it, which might have been received on the part of the prosecution, as tending to show feelings of ill will and enmity in the mind of the prisoner towards deceased, but which could not very well be received on the part of the prisoner, to show that if angry some weeks before, and if angry when he killed Henderson, it was not without good cause that he did so. I only received it on account of the intimation by the prisoner's counsel, that they thought they could prove that suffering under the grievous wrong the prisoner had received from Henderson, and exasperated as he was by the different occurrences which had happened in the interval between the elopement and the 23d September, the prisoner was in a manner urged on to madness, so as to be in a state of frenzy at the moment, and that on that account some allowance should be made for him. And I could not take it on myself to refuse evidence that might possibly prove what was thus intimated. This, gentlemen, is a very lamentable case. You see the prisoner. He is apparently a person of very mild manners and demeanour.—To look at him, I would not have expected any degree of violence, such as is imputed to the prisoner. It must be taken into consideration also that you have heard nothing in disparagement of character, before the 23d of September. No doubt, too, he had received a very grievous injury. With regard to Henderson, there is a good deal to show that he was a person whose moral principles and habits were not good. It is not in our power to tell, in regard to the unhappy connection that seems to have existed between him and the wife of Brogdin, how much was the fault of Henderson, and how much the fault of the young woman herself. It is quite certain that if the prisoner Brogdin is a young man of the respectable character he seems to be; he seems to have been married to a woman not worthy of his affection. Still it is probable that she was rather seduced by Henderson than that Henderson was seduced from the path of virtue by her. But, after we have said all this which naturally arises out of the peculiar circumstance of the case, we must not forget that we have a great duty to discharge on this occasion. Mr. Galt read to you extracts from the language of judges. These extracts are new to me. I have read them many times, and there is this circumstance to account for them. The feeling that prevailed in all civilized countries till a late period on the subject of duelling, took a stronger hold in Ireland than anywhere else, the people there being hasty and ready to resent an injury. It is not, therefore, very surprising to find some of those Judges make use of languages which no one with the feelings of a Christian, and having respect to the laws of his country, could possibly make use of, inasmuch as it encouraged the Jury, while acknowledging that the act was murder, to set aside the law, and to pronounce it, not only no murder, but no offence at all, on the ground that a gentleman could not be expected to control his resentment so far as to forgive and forget injuries of a certain kind. It would be much more easy to produce innumerable instances in which Judges of far greater eminence, and much more Christian feeling, have lamented that such language should have been used, and have held language of a very different description. But we may relieve ourselves of the necessity of talking about duels, for this was not a duel. Had Henderson and Brogdin met in a duel, and Brogdin taken the other's life, and been brought here to answer for it, I must have told you that there was not the slightest question that, if one man called another out, meaning to make use of sword or pistol to take his life, no matter what the extent of the injury might have been—I must have told you there was not the slightest question but that was murder. A jury, acting on their own convictions, might have looked on it differently; and had they done so, I as a member of society, would have regretted it. But, gentlemen, this is not a case of that kind. The fact is admitted, that the prisoner having received no doubt, a grievous injury at the hand of the deceased, on the first occasion that he met him afterwards, being himself surrounded by gentlemen, with whom he has been conversing coolly, showing that his mind was under no state of exasperation, that there was nothing like insanity about him at all, the moment he saw the deceased, Henderson, took a pistol out of his pocket, which, for some purpose or other he had placed there, and with some view kept it loaded, without the slightest hesitation aimed that pistol at the heart of Henderson and shot him, and when he heard he was dead, said he was satisfied. I can only say that it is utterly impossible in my view, that there could be a plainer case of murder than that. There may be other injuries committed against a man just as great and painful as that committed against the prisoner. Suppose that Brogdin had been living with his wife cordially and happily, that she had never been seduced from her fidelity, but that Henderson had met her in the street, and shot her, and succeeded in making his escape. Suppose that Bregdin had met him some weeks afterwards, and instead of having him arrested and secured, had taken a pistol out of his pocket and shot him, rather than appeal for redress to the justice of his country, could you have said that that that was an excusable act? I should certainly say not, and it would be an unfortunate state of things in any community, if such an act should be allowed. Or, take the case of a man, who, because he entertains vindictive feelings against others, places a block of wood on the railway track, by which 50 or 60 lives have been lost. If that person were brought forward and could not deny the deed, and if the relative of any of those who had been barbarously murdered, were to take a pistol and kill the man, it could hardly be denied that he had as good reason for doing so as existed in the present case. If he did it in hot blood at the time of the occurrence, it would be manslaughter; but if he did it weeks afterwards, in the interval conversing coolly with his friends, and attending to his business, it would be nothing else than murder. It had been urged, however, on behalf of the prisoner, that at the moment he dic not know what he was doing. It is for you to judge of that as of all the other parts of the case. Can you then sincerely say, if anger flashed upon him at the moment, when he saw the man by whom his wife had been carried away from him, that you can take that as a proof that he was at the time insane, or is there anything in the evidence, from the beginning to the end of it, to show that when he killed Henderson he was a madman at the moment? There can be no doubt it was an act which a man in his cool, sound senses ought not to commit, and his committing it gave the strongest evidence that he was exasperated and under the influence of a deep-seated hatred, but that is a very different thing from being a madman.—There cannot be a plainer definition of murder, than a man's killing another because he hates him. Questions often arise in Courts whether 20 minutes or 30 minutes are enough to allow the blood to cool, but there is never any question about weeks or months. If, when the Arabian approached, Brogdin had taken out his pistol and shot Henderson, without any one's having the slightest idea of the reason the act would have been so strange that you would have thought there must have been some accident. But, when you know that he had received an injury at the hands of this person, and had been greatly enraged against him, then there is no longer any doubt that he shot him because he hated him. He had good reason to hate him, but the law does not admit that as any excuse for murder.

The Jury retired to consider their verdict a few minutes before 6 o'clock, and at 23 minutes to 7, they returned a verdict of Not Guilty.

HUNTINGTON AND STILWELL, THE FINANCIERS.

From the New York Herald.

There are many people in this great metropolis who live in fine houses, wear purple and fine linen, drink Burgundy every day, and make their wives walking advertisements for jewellers and dry goods dealers. These persons have no property—'they toil not neither do they spin'—but in the magnificence of their surroundings and the extravagance of their establishments, they rival the famous robber of the Arabian Nights, who had two or three acres of diamonds at his disposal. Everybody wonders where the magnificent Mr. Snob, and the splendid Mrs. Snob get the money to pay for all their luxuries; but once in a while there comes a grand crash—some of the lights of Wall Street are let for half a million, and the finale of Snob, who has not saved enough to clog the wheels of justice, is a tour to Sing Sing.

Such seems to be the case with the note broker Huntingdon, who now lies in the Tombs awaiting trial for forging notes of hand to the amount of over half a million of dollars. Huntingdon was undoubtedly a man of considerable ability, which he used for bad ends. He had the implicit confidence of many men in the mercantile world, and put his nearest friends in for large amounts. Perfectly familiar with the manner of conducting business in Wall Street, he ascertained what notes good houses had out, and duplicated them without fear of discovery. A single relapse into the carelessness which, on the part of others, had caused the success of his exploits, ruined him in a moment. It is a solid proof of the truth of the maxim that honesty is the best policy, that all great rascals, no matter how able they may be, always do have their relapses, and are always discovered.

The career of Huntington has been like a display of fireworks, brilliant and evanescent. For a little while he spent money like water.—He had six or eight horses—two pairs for carriages for himself and wife, and several fast trotters—his sideboard was brilliant with massive plate. He was a great man at Saratoga, Niagara and Rockaway, where his wife had more trunks and more diamonds than any one else; and in town he kept up two matrimonial establishments, one regular and the other irregular—one a Christian home, the other a Mahommedan seraglio—one according to the laws of New York and the other according to the customs of the Mormons—within a few doors of each other. He was a prince for an hour. People eat his dinners, drove his horses, drank his wine, borrowed his money, and wondered how he got it all. But the crash came at last, and what are all his former splendors compared with his present position? He bought his luxuries at a tremendous high price.

The case of this man is peculiarly illustrative of the slap-dash style of doing business which has become quite common in New York. Our merchants make their money easily and throw it away foolishly. In old times trade was a vocation which was pursued by men of honor. Fifty years ago the first requisities for mercantile life were unsullied integrity, and unremitting attention to business. Then merchants met each other with perfect confidence; the word of one of their fellows was good as his bond. In such a time fraud was unknown, because it was impossible. Now, most of onr merchants, though generous, liberal and benevolent as their sires, seem enervated by success. They trust all their affairs to confidential clerks, agents, factors, brokers, and it is no wonder that these men, dazzled by the display of their employers, should yield to temptation. The merchants give them every facility by their lax way of conducting business, and the merchants are morally responsible for the result.—That this Huntington should have raised five hundred thousand dollars on forged paper is monstrous, and is clearly the result of carelessness on the part of the victims.

The great financial centre of the republic is full of Huntingtons and Schuylers. Every two or three weeks some of the frauds come to light. If it is a large affair, like the achievements of the men we have just mentioned, it creates a panic for a week or two; but if it is a small piece of rascality, it is hushed up, the victims submitting quietly rather than be ridiculed by a public exposure, by which they would not get their money back, but receive a public verdict of "served him right." We have reason to believe that the frauds which have been made known to the public are insignificant compared with those which are undiscovered or kept secret. Wall street is full of hurry-skurry, slap-dash, head-over-heels financiers, who never know how they stand on any one else's books, or how any one else stands on their own. The opening for Schuylerisms and Huntingtonisms is consequently magnificent, and it is improved to the fullest extent.

The report of the Stilwell proceedings in the case of Wight, which appeared exclusively in the Herald on Monday, coming close as it did upon the Huntington revelations, has excited great interest amongst the financial operators. It appears by the evidence already adduced in this case under the Stilwell act that a man of very moderate resources—a clerk at a salary of a thousand dollars a year—is transformed into an importer, and being such for only ninety days, keeps his equipage and resides in an up town palace, furnished without regard to expense. All his apparent wealth proves to be a a shadow and the millionaire—a myth. The examination in the case of Wight will be resumed to-morrow (Thursday) before Chief Justice Oakley, in the Superior Court.

A scald or burn can be easily cured by the use of Perry Davis' Vegetable Pain Killer. It is equally effectual in curing headache, pain in the stomach and bowels, dysentery, diarrhœa and cholera.

Quebec, Nov. 3.

LIVERPOOL CORN MARKET—Tuesday, 21st.

There has been less doing in wheat during the week, and on Friday rather less money was in some instances accepted.

Good flour has been scarce, and fully as dear.

Oats have fallen one halfpenny per bushel, and Indian Corn 6d ℔ quarter. In other articles there has been no alteration.

At our market to-day there was only a moderate demand for wheat, and prices closed about the same as on this day week.

Oats were more plentiful, and 1@2d ℔ bushel lower.

Barley was fully as dear.

There was a good feeding demand for Indian Corn at 6d ℔ quarter improvement on the week.

New oatmeal was 6d ℔ load easier. Old supported former rates.

The flour trade was dull, without material change in prices. Wheat per 70lbs, Upper Canadian, 9s 6d @ 10s 6d; L. Canadian, 8s @ 9s; American white, 10s @ 10s 9d; Red, 8s @ 9s 6d.

Indian Corn, ℔ 480 lbs, white, 35s @ 36s; Yellow, 34s @ 35s; M'xed 34s @ 34s 6d.

Flour per 280 lbs. Western Canal 32s @ 34s; Philadelphia 34s @ 35s; Baltimore 34s @ 35s; Ohio 37s @ 39s; Sour 29s @ 31s; Canadian sweet 34s @ 40s., extra quality 39s @ 40s.

Of the British Foreign Legion, about 2050 have volunteered to go to the Cape. The remainder between 3,000 and 4,000 men, will be discharged and sent home.

On Sunday last there were 72 marriages of Volunteers at Colchester.

A piece of plate valued at £50, subscribed for in amounts of 1s by 800 inhabitants of Portsmouth, and other friends, was last week presented to Vice-Admiral Sir Charles Napier, at Manchester Hall, in token of their estimation of his brilliant career as a naval officer, and to mark their high sense of his uncompromising integrity.

On Sunday last, about 3,000 or 4,000 persons were assembled in the immense Music Hall in the Surrey Gardens, London, listening to the ministrations of an extremely popular dissenting minister, Rev. Mr. Sturgeon, when three persons rose in the body of the Hall, and raising their arms aloft called out in a loud voice, fire, fire, instantly the panic stricken audience rushed to the door, and several persons were trampled to death.

Nothing interesting in English politics, except that Lord Palmerston is reported to be preparing a new reform bill, to cut out Lord John Russell's similar measure.

Neapolitan affairs progress as previously indicated. Diplomatic intercourse is suspended by France and England; but no act of hostility is to be taken.

The court of Naples has haughtily resisted the advice of France and England, though offered in the most friendly manner.

The measures of rigor and coercion adopted as the means of administration by the two Sicilies to agitate Italy, and compromise the continuance of order in Europe, under the conviction of the danger of such a state of things, France and England had hoped to obviate them by prudent advice. The above was misunderstood, and the government of the two Sicilies, closing its eyes to all evidence, resolved to persist in its fatal course.

The ill-reception accorded to legitimate observations—an insulting doubt thrown over the purity of our intentions—offensive language opposed to salutary counsels, and finally, an obstinate refusal, could not allow the longer continuance of amicable relations. This suspension of official intercourse in no sense constitutes any intervention in internal affairs, and still less any act of hostility. Nevertheless the security of the subjects of the two governments being possibly compromised, the latter to provide against such a contingency, have united their squadrons that have not sent their ships into the Neapolitan waters. In order not to give room for an erroneous interpretation this simple measure of eventual protection, which has no character of menace, cannot, moreover, be considered as any support or encouragement to those who seek to shake the throne of the King of the two Sicilies.

Considerable doubts are expressed as to the truth of the statement that the Austrians have commenced, on the summons of France, to evacuate the Danubian Principalities.

PRUSSIA.

Prussian papers announces, but wants confirmation, that the Boundary Commission to settle the frontier line between Russia and Moldavia is dissolved without accomplishing its mission.

SPAIN.

From Spain the intelligence is that the sequestration has been received from Queen Christina's property.

The Cologne Gazette says all the Powers, excepting the United States, have assented or will assent to the original protocol of May the 9th of the present year, respecting Danish Sound Dues.

A ministerial crisis and increasing financial difficulties exist at Constantinople. Austrian influence is on the increase. In Turkish Countries the sending of troops against Montenegro is discontinued.

DENMARK.

The ministerial crisis in Denmark has resulted in the installation of the old ministry.

The French commercial crisis presents a more favorable aspect; but anxiety is still manifested.

Persia solicits the modification of France in the difficulty with Britain.

ARRIVAL OF THE "VIGO."

New York, Nov. 3.

The "Vigo" brings three days later news from the Continent of Europe.

The Paris Conference was to re-assemble on the 15th November.

A German paper states that the King of Naples has urged on the Cabinets of St. Petersburg, Vienna, and Berlin to conclude in favor of the integrity of his Kingdom, a treaty annalogous to that guaranteeing the integrity of the Ottoman Empire.

The latest advices state that the preparations for the defence of Naples are redoubled.

No modification of the Ministry had taken place.

All are anxiously looking for the allied fleets. The French squadron was anchored on the roads at Toulon, ready to depart.

Four Sardinian ships are at Genoa.

An English ship had arrived at Ajaccio, Oct. 12th, with orders for Admiral Dundas to sail on the 13th. Accordingly, two steam-frigates put to sea next morning, and the remainder of the squadron sailed in the evening.

The Gazette de Madrid publishes the decrees relative to the retirement of the late Ministry and the installation of the new.

The degradation of the former Liberals, and the nomination of the new President of the Council, are countersigned by M. Callarlo, Minister of Public Works.

The decrees which appoint the other members are countersigned by Marshal Narvaez.

The Queen declares, as is usual on such occasions in Spain, that she is well satisfied with the distinguished and extraordinary services—the zeal—the intelligence and devotion of Marshal O'Donnell. Genl. Dulce returns to Sanlander under pretext of ill health.

BEST HAIR DYE IN THE WORLD.

This is strong language, yet Bogle's Electric Hair Dye (recently improved) was proven to be so by the judges at the late Mechanics' Fair, held in Boston, (among whom was Dr. Hayes, the eminent chemist and State assayer) who awarded it the over the choicest Hair Dyes on exhibition from all parts of the Union. Its unparalleled superiority consists in, 1st,—The ingredients are nourishing to the hair, not destructive, as others are. 2nd,—Does not stain nor hurt the skin. 3rd,—Is easily applied, and dyes the hair any color required, from a delicate brown to a deep black, so natural as to appear marvellous. Manufactured, sold, and applied, by Wm. Bogle, 277 Washington Street, Boston; and sold by druggists everywhere.

Don't Believe it!—If any interested one tells you that physic, iodines, guiacum, bleeding, and a hundred other injudicious means will relieve pain like Dr. Smith's "Electric Oil," don't believe it. The simple proof is daily made evident in many places by the undoing of the previous bad management of the most severe cases ever heard of in this country or any other, by the use of the "Electric Oil." The mail brings hundreds like this:—

Portland, Me., July 21.

A. E. Smith, M.D.: The box Electric Oil came safe. Enclosed please find d'ft. I wish the entire State for ten years. Send more Oil and circulars, &c.

H. H. Hay, Wholesale Druggist.

From Dr. Green.—A. F. Smith, Philadelphia.—Please send by first Express $500 worth of Electric Oil, assorted sizes. It is selling rapidly and I am out. I have made great cures.

S. F. Green, M.D., Williamsport, Pa.
September 9, 1856.

Old Dr. Van Doren, No. 3 Fall St., Trenton, N.J., says, "I have cured over 70 cases with Dr. Smith's "Electric Oil," and never failed in a single instance. There is much in using it right." Dr. James Blee, Limestone, Montour Co., Pa., says in a letter, "Dr. Smith's 'Electric Oil,' of Philadelphia, has cured several of our very best known citizens."

In Canada, this Oil is being thoroughly introduced, and is much liked by all.

E. W. Palmer, the well-known Druggist of Kingston, said last evening at St. Lawrence Hall, that he had in a few days retailed about three dozen dollar bottles, besides selling considerable to the country.

Caution!—The only genuine "Electric Oil" is sold at Dr. Smith's Great Central Medical Depot, N. E. Corner Walnut and Eighth Sts., Philadelphia.

FOR SALE.

JAMES & WILLIAM MYLES

HAVING Dissolved Partnership, now offer for sale their

Wharf Property, Nail Factory, and Coal Yard,

In this City. The proprietors being anxious to close their business, will sell part or the entire, and as there is nothing due on the property, will give such time as may be agreed upon. The Wharf has 10 feet of water, is nearly new, and built for their own trade—consequently immensely strong. The Boiler has 5 flues, 44 feet long, only steamed one year. The Engine, 30 horse power, is capable of driving two run of Flouring Stones, in addition, or 20 Nail Machines. The Factory is now in successful operation, with 10 machines, 5 of which are self-acting Shears, 3 inch Iron Shafting and Pulleys, Patent Furnace and Blower, and have made 45 cwt of Nails per day.
The Yard is better than half an acre, lying on the corner of John and Guise Streets, and adjoining the other property.
The above is elegantly situated for any large business, either for shipping or receiving goods by water, or for city consumption. John Street being graded and macadamized two years ago, is now in excellent condition.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF

Colds, Coughs, and Hoarseness.

BRIMFIELD, MASS., 20th Dec., 1855.

DR. J. C. AYER: I do not hesitate to say the best remedy I have ever found for Coughs, Hoarseness, Influenza, and the concomitant symptoms of a Cold, is your CHERRY PECTORAL. Its constant use in my practice and my family for the last ten years has shown it to possess superior virtues for the treatment of these complaints. EBEN KNIGHT, M.D.

A. B. MORTLEY, ESQ., of UTICA, N. Y., writes: "I have used your PECTORAL myself and in my family ever since you invented it, and believe it the best medicine for its purpose ever put out. With a bad cold I should sooner pay twenty-five dollars for a bottle than do without it, or take any other remedy."

Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza.

SPRINGFIELD, MISS., Feb. 7, 1856.

BROTHER AYER: I will cheerfully certify your PECTORAL is the best remedy we possess for the cure of Whooping Cough, Croup, and the chest diseases of children. We of your fraternity in the South appreciate your skill, and commend your medicine to our people.
HIRAM CONKLIN, M. D.

AMOS LEE, ESQ., MONTEREY, IA., writes, 3d Jan., 1856: "I had a tedious Influenza, which confined me in doors six weeks; took many medicines without relief; finally tried your PECTORAL by the advice of our clergyman. The first dose relieved the soreness in my throat and lungs; less than one half the bottle made me completely well. Your medicines are the cheapest as well as the best we can buy, and we esteem you, Doctor, and your remedies, as the poor man's friend."

Asthma or Phthisic, and Bronchitis.

WEST MANCHESTER, PA., Feb. 4, 1856.

SIR: Your CHERRY PECTORAL is performing marvellous cures in this section. It has relieved several from alarming symptoms of consumption, and is now curing a man who has labored under an affection of the lungs for the last forty years. HENRY L. PARKS, Merchant.

A. A. RAMSEY, M.D., ALBION, MONROE CO., IOWA, writes, Sept. 6, 1855: "During my practice of many years I have found nothing equal to your CHERRY PECTORAL for giving ease and relief to consumptive patients, or curing such as are curable."

We might add volumes of evidence, but the most convincing proof of the virtues of this remedy is found in its effects upon trial.

Consumption.

Probably no one remedy has ever been known which cured so many and such dangerous cases as this. Some no human aid can reach; but even to those the CHERRY PECTORAL affords relief and comfort.

ASTOR HOUSE, NEW YORK CITY, March 5, 1856

DOCTOR AYER, LOWELL: I feel it a duty and a pleasure to inform you what your CHERRY PECTORAL has done for my wife. She had been five months laboring under the dangerous symptoms of Consumption, from which no aid we could procure gave her much relief. She was steadily failing, until Dr. Strong, of this city, where we have come for advice, recommended a trial of your medicine. We bless his kindness, as we do your skill, for she has recovered from that day. She is not yet as strong as she used to be, but is free from her cough, and calls herself well.

Yours with gratitude and regard,
ORLANDO SHELBY, OF SHELBYVILLE.

Consumptives, do not despair till you have tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is made by one of the best medical chemists in the world, and its cures all around us bespeak the high merits of its virtues.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills.

THE sciences of Chemistry and Medicine have been taxed their utmost to produce this best, most perfect purgative which is known to man. Innumerable proofs are shown that these PILLS have virtues which surpass in excellence the ordinary medicines, and that they win unprecedentedly upon the esteem of all men. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. Their penetrating properties stimulate the vital activities of the body, remove the obstructions of its organs, purify the blood, and expel disease. They purge out the foul humors which breed and grow distemper, stimulate sluggish or disordered organs into their natural action, and impart healthy tone with strength to the whole system. Not only do they cure the every-day complaints of every body, but also formidable and dangerous diseases that have baffled the best of human skill. While they produce powerful effects, they are at the same time, in diminished doses, the safest and best physic that can be employed for children. Being sugar-coated, they are pleasant to take; and being purely vegetable, are free from any risk of harm. Cures have been made which surpass belief were they not substantiated by men of such exalted position and character as to forbid the suspicion of untruth. Many eminent clergymen and physicians have lent their names to certify to the public the reliability of my remedies, while others have sent me the assurance of their conviction that my Preparations contribute immensely to the relief of my afflicted, suffering fellow-men.

The Agent below named is pleased to furnish gratis my American Almanac, containing directions for their use and certificates of their cures, of the following complaints:—

Costiveness, Bilious Complaints, Rheumatism, Dropsy, Heartburn, Headache arising from a foul Stomach, Nausea, Indigestion, Morbid Inaction of the Bowels and Pain arising therefrom, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, all Ulcerous and Cutaneous Diseases which require an evacuant Medicine, Scrofula or King's Evil. They also, by purifying the blood and stimulating the system, cure many complaints which it would not be supposed they could reach, such as Deafness, Partial Blindness, Neuralgia and Nervous Irritability, Derangements of the Liver and Kidneys, Gout, and other kindred complaints arising from a low state of the body or obstruction of its functions.

Do not be put off by unprincipled dealers with some other pill they make more profit on. Ask for AYER'S PILLS, and take nothing else. No other they can give you compares with this in its intrinsic value or curative powers. The sick want the best aid there is for them, and they should have it.

To the Medical Profession and the Public.

THE attention of the Medical Profession and Public is invited to the following preparation:

Tarrant's Effervescent Seltzer Aperient

prepared on an entirely new principle, from a late and accurate analysis of the celebrated combining efficacy, economy, and portability, with such additions and improvements as will be found materially to increase its efficacy.

SELTZER SPRING, IN GERMANY,

This much esteemed highly valuable preparation will not fail to effectually remove Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious Affections, Headache, Heartburn, Acidity of the Stomach, Costiveness, Gout, Rheumatism, Loss of Appetite, Gravel, Nervous Debility, Nausea or Vomiting, Affections of the Liver, &c. &c.

Tarrant's Compound Extract of Cubebs and Copabia,

Sanctioned by popular opinion and the high authority of the most distinguished of the medical faculty; it offers to the afflicted a remedy whose success has in every instance supported its deserved reputation. Being convenient and agreeable in its use, experience has proved that it retains in every climate its desirable and truly valuable character. It is in the form of a paste, is tasteless, and does not impair the digestion. It is prepared with the greatest possible care, upon well tested principles. To persons following the sea, or going long voyages, this preparation possesses qualities far surpassing any other—neat and portable in its form, speedy and efficacious in its operation, successful both in the chronic and worst stages of the severest diseases, whilst the usual and nauseous taste and unpleasant odor is completely avoided in this preparation.

Prepared and sold, Wholesale and Retail, by JOHN A. TARRANT, successor to James Tarrant, 278 Greenwich, corner of Warren street, New York; and for sale by the principal Druggists in the United States, British Provinces, West Indies and South America.

Thorn's Compound Extract of Copabia and Sarsaparilla possesses a few advantages not enjoyed by any other medicine, and which must, with an enlightened public, render it assuredly highly popular, and a desideratum long sought for in the medical world. It needs no confinement or change of diet. In its approved form, that of a paste, it is entirely tasteless, and causes no unpleasant sensation to the patient.

It has acquired the utmost fame in almost every part of Europe. It has been examined, approved of, and sanctioned by the faculty of medicine, and recommended by the most eminent of the profession. Prepared by J. B. Thorn, Chemist, London, and for sale wholesale and retail by J. A. TARRANT, sole agent for the United States, 278 Greenwich street, New York.

☞ The serious attention of the afflicted is respectfully invited to a trial of

Dr. Grover Coe's Standard Family Remedies.

Dr. Coe's Liquid Harmattan is guaranteed to be the most efficient external application extant, for the certain cure of Ulcers or Fever, Sores, Abscesses, including Psoas and Lumbar, Felons, Biles, Carbuncles, Chancres, Buboes, Ague in the breast, and every variety of external inflammation.

Warranted to arrest Mortification, when arising from Burns, Wounds, and other external conditions, and to prevent it when used in time.

Also warranted to check Felons, and prevent suppuration when applied before matter has commenced forming. Used early in cases of punctured wounds from nails, pitchforks, &c., it prevents all symptoms of Tetanus or Locked-jaw, and removes them when arising from want of its timely application.

Dr. Coe's Anti-Mercurial Alterative Syrup

A pleasant, safe and efficient remedy for the radical cure of Rheumatism, Erysipelas, Leucorrhea, Scrofula, Gonnorrhœa, Syphilis, Mercurial Affections, Ulceration of the Kidneys & Bowels, and all diseases arising from a vitiated condition of the blood and fluids.

Dr. Coe's Family Vegetable Pills.

The best and safest Cathartic Pill for popular use ever offered to the public.

For the cure of Sick Headache, Dyspepsia, Constipation, functional derangements of the Liver, Spleen, and other viscera, they stand unrivalled. These are not crude and untried remedies, experimentally placed before the public, but they have stood the test of years. The proprietor is a practising Physician, and they are the same remedies he relies upon to sustain his wide-spread reputation as a competent and successful guardian of the public health. The Harmattan has saved the lives of over 50 years, the original formula having been obtained from the Indians by an ancestor of the present proprietor, who has improved and brought it to its present degree of perfection.

The Syrup and Pills originated with himself, and during 12 years extensive practice, thousands have had cause to feel grateful for their efficacy.

For wounds and sores on Horses the world is challenged to produce anything equal to the Harmattan.

For full directions and explanations, see pamphlets accompanying the medicines.

TAKE NOTICE.

MY LATE FATHER established the DEPOT for the PLANTAGENET WATER at No. 4 PLACE D'ARMES. This Establishment is the only one in Montreal duly authorized to sell and deliver Water from the Plantagenet Spring. To Farmers and others.

THE Subscribers have just received a small Cargo of ROCK SALT, so useful for Cattle and Horses, which they offer to Farmers and others, in large or small quantities, at a LOW PRICE.

This Mineral production, so necessary to mankind, is universally distributed over the globe. Most animals have an instinctive relish for it; and from its frequent presence in the solids and fluids of the animal economy, it may be supposed to perform an important part in nutrition. It certainly promotes digestion, and the almost universal animal craving for it proves it to be a salutary stimulus in health; indeed, neither man nor beast can live without it. In all the countries of Europe, so necessary is Salt thought to be for animals, that it is always within their reach, whether in the stable or in the pasture. From its being in large lumps it is not very soluble, so lasts a long time when exposed to the weather. This Salt is also much used for Dairy purposes, and with certain kinds of lands is a valuable manure.
