Bazaar Financial Success

The annual bazaar held on Friday last in the Shawville Theartre, and sponsored by the ladies organizations of St. Paul's Church, was well patronized. The work tables, which were decorated with red and green, displayed many beautiful articles, with a large variety of fancy and general needle work. Many of the articles were soon bought up by early purchasers.

Tables of home cooking also received a large share of patronage. Afternoon tea was served and the ladies in charge were kept busy during the afternoon and early evening. The candy and novelty tables found no difficulty in disposing of their various lines. The Fish Pond was a popular place for the children.

A well-filled hall greeted the Anglican Y. P., for their evening performance. It consisted of a three-act play, "He's My Pal." The young players again brought complimentary remarks from many in the audience for the manner in which they presented their respective parts, and held the attention of their audience from the opening to the finish of the play.

Those taking part were: Misses Amy Corrigan, Norma Dale, Dorothy Caldwell, Marion Smyth, Lorna Wilson, Jean Smith, and Messrs. Lewis Judd, Keith Brownlee, John Howard, Herb Wickens, Alton Stark and Arthur Smyth.

G. B. Rothwell Dies Suddenly

George B. Rothwell, director of Production Services, Dominion Department of Agriculture, and former Dominion Livestock Commissioner, died suddenly Sunday afternoon at the Ottawa Civic Hospital. He was 55 years of age and news of his death came as a great shock to hundreds of friends throughout the country.

Mr. Rothwell, who made his home at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, for years, entered hospital four weeks ago to undergo an operation. Following it he appeared to be progressing favorably and well on the road to recovery when he suffered a sudden seizure Sunday, shortly after dinner. He died within a short time.

One of the best known officials of the Agriculture Department, Mr. Rothwell had been in the service for 27 years. During that time he travelled extensively throughout Canada and visited Europe several times in the course of his duties.

Mr. Rothwell was a son of Benjamin Rothwell and the late Mrs. Rothwell. His father is the widely known horse breeder of the Montreal road, now in his 91st year.

The late Mr. Rothwell visited Shawville many times in agricultural matters and was known to many citizens of this district.

What Science is Doing

NERVOUSNESS AND TOOTH DECAY

Nervousness precipitates decay in children's teeth, according to Dr. Percy R. Howe, Boston, who said long research had shown that a child's diet might be sufficient for good tooth structure and condition, but the diet advantage would be offset by a nervous spell.

—o—

CYCLONE CORES WARM

Shooting the eye of a cyclone with a radio sonde, a robot weather observer and radio transmitter carried aloft by balloons, has revealed that the cyclone has a warm core, and that it may travel on overhead atmosphere tracks in the stratosphere instead of being governed by surface weather conditions.

—o—

HALTS PUERPERAL FEVER

Philadelphia physicians after nearly three years of experimentation have announced development of a new vaccine against puerperal infections (childbirth fever) which proved 100 per cent. effective in 229 cases tested. Not one case of puerperal sepsis, cause of 50 per cent. of all obstetric deaths, developed during the experiments.

—o—

"ROCKING BED" CURE

Rocking beds, a new aid to medical treatment, are described in the proceedings of the Mayo Clinic.

The report says that in the first eighty-eight cases at the clinic the beds have given "rather striking and rapid relief of pain" in the legs and have brought sleep to many sleepless persons.

They were used mostly on persons with arteriosclerosis which had interfered with circulation of the blood, with complications that produced gangrene in some instances.

Flying Through The Troposphere

If aerial research continues at its present pace, huge freight and passenger planes will climb into the troposphere and fly under perfect conditions from one continent to another. Since 1934 conditions in this layer of the atmosphere have been studied and a number of experimental flights already made. Flying above 20,000 ft., planes will be sealed and carry their own air, for above this altitude the atmosphere is so rare that cigarettes go out through lack of oxygen.

But well above the clouds, the atmosphere is nearly always fine, and owing to the lighter quality of the air there is less drag or friction. Because of this, planes will travel at least 25 per cent. faster.

SCOUTING

A Thanksgiving Day model airplane flying contest of Brampton, Ont., Scouts brought out 11 models. The prize for the plane remaining longest in the air went to Scout William Riseberry and the second to Scout William Bean.

Two alert Sudbury Scouts out hunting with their father noticed a cord hanging from the limb of a tree. Investigating, they found a radio meteorgraph released from Baltimore. The instrument indicated the moistures, temperatures and the height to which the instrument had ascended.

Clinton, Ont., Rover Scouts on a fishing trip discovered a brush fire, notified the farmer and assisted him to extinguish the fire.

The Boy Scouts of St. Catharines have an attractive district headquarters, "Carmichael House" a large brick building adjoining St. Thomas church, named after Mr. H. J. Carmichael, President of the local Scout Association. A spacious room permits meetings of Cub Packs or Scout Troops unable to meet in their usual places, in an emergency, upstairs are cooking facilities, and storage for the tents and other equipment for the district camp site, "Wigwassin," near the Welland ship canal.

How Can I?

BY ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I press a suit more satisfactorily?

A. Fold a large piece of newspaper lengthwise, wet one side of it, and fold the dry side over the wet side. Place the wet side against the suit and iron on the dry side. This will also prevent a shiny suit.

Q. How can I make a good pin cushion?

A. Dry hair-combings make a nice filling for pin cushions. Dried coffee grounds are also satisfactory, as they do not gather moisture nor rust.

Q. How can I check hiccoughs?

A. An old remedy which often proves very effective is to put the blade of a table knife on the tongue for a few minutes.

Q. How can I return tatting to a good clear color when it has become very soiled?

A. The best plan is to wet the tatting and soap it well. Then lay it on some hand brush. This will clean it beautifully without harming it.

Q. How can I remove odors from bottles?

A. Fill half-full of cold water and add a tablespoonful of dry mustard. Shake vigorously, let stand half an hour, and rinse thoroughly with clear water.

Q. How can I determine if the turkey is ready to take from the oven?

A. One method is to pierce the leg. If the juice is white, or pale pink, the turkey is ready.

Modern Etiquette

BY ROBERTA LEE

1. Isn't it poor taste for the friends of a newly married couple to make them conspicuous in public by attaching placards to their car, and performing other such so-called jokes?

2. At a holiday dinner, such as Thanksgiving or Christmas, where the service might be called semi-formal, is it all right to offer the guests a second helping of turkey?

3. When a married woman is travelling alone, should she sign the hotel register Mrs. H. L. Hudson, or Mary Lou Hudson?

4. Should a guest stay beyond the time specified in the invitation, when the hostess says, "Can't you stay longer?"

5. What would be the best phrase to use when a man is introducing another man to his wife?

6. It being the woman's privilege to offer her hand to a man, if the man should offer his hand, what should she do?

Answers:

1. Yes. This is not only very bad taste, but often vulgar. Marriage is too sacred to be made a public jest by self-appointed clowns. 2. Yes, by all means do so. 3. She should sign, Mrs. H. L. Hudson, and her home city, but not her street address. 4. No. A hostess is usually trying to be hospitable when she makes such a remark. A guest should not overstay the time specified. 5. "Martha, this is Mr. White (or Charles White)." 6. The well-bred woman will accept it, of course. It would be very rude, unfriendly, and exceedingly embarrassing if she did not.

Name of Bay Barrie Is On

Kempenfelt Bay Named After British Rear-Admiral of 18th Century

The super-destroyer Kempenfelt, which has been taken over by the Canadian navy, has been re-christened Assiniboine. While it is no doubt the custom to change a vessel's name under these circumstances, and Assiniboine is a good native-Canadian name, Kempenfelt is also familiar to Canadians as that of the bay on which Barrie is located. Canada's new naval unit is no doubt called after the Assiniboine river which bears the name of the Assiniboine or Stoney Indian tribe. The word means "one who roasts by the use of stones," an old Indian custom.

Governor Simcoe Bestowed It

Kempenfelt bay and the super-destroyer Kempenfelt were both named after a British rear-admiral, Richard Kempenfelt, of Swedish descent, who lived in the eighteenth century and went down with the Royal George at the time when its bottom fell out, an event pictured by Cowper in a well-known poem. It was Governor Simcoe who bestowed the name on the Ontario bay.

Have You Heard ?

An Irish priest one Sunday, referring to the miracle of the loaves and fishes, said in error that five people had been fed with five thousand loaves and two small fishes. After the service some of the congregation discussed the statement, one of them named Murphy declaring that, if it were a miracle, he himself could do the same thing. The next Sunday the priest, having heard of this, reintroduced the subject. "I should have told you last Sunday," he said, "that five thousand people had been fed with five loaves and two small fishes." Then, looking down at Mr. Murphy, he added: "You could not do that, Mr. Murphy, could you?" "Ah, sure, yer riv'rence, I could aisily enough," replied Murphy, "if I gave 'em what were left over from last Sunday!"

Both the fond mother and the patient photographer had failed to make the restless little boy sit still long enough to have his picture taken. Finally the photographer suggested that the mother should leave the studio for a few minutes. During her absence he was successful in taking a good picture. "What did the nice photographer say to make mother's little darling sit still while I was out of the room?" she asked the child on the way home. "He said: 'You sit still, you little rascal, or I'll knock your head off'," replied the child.

A maid who recently joined the church was asked how she knew she was converted.

His bagpipe playing was the chief thing that mattered to him in life. One night, while he was strutting about the room, skirling for all he was worth, his wife attempted a mild protest.

"Jock," she said, "that's an awful noise you're making."

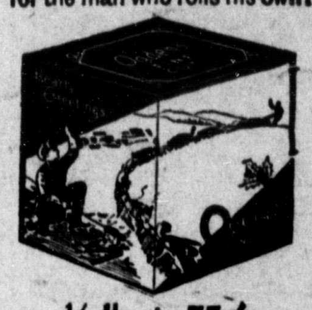

So Jock sat down and took off his boots.

NEWS PARADE ...

Over in England they've been calling it "The Bore War." A tense populace, nerved to expect the worst in air raids, gas attacks, immediately upon the commencement of hostilities with Germany, has been experiencing one of the greatest mass boredoms in all history. In the eleventh week of the war, however, signs were evident that Britain's millions were beginning to climb up from that letdown feeling, and were realizing that life could be gay and amusing even on the brink of catastrophe.

"Adolf in Blunderland" took the country by storm. First introduced by the BBC to the unsuspecting ears of radio fans, this wild satire on Lewis Carroll's immortal classic supplied the necessary impetus towards national emotional recovery. Britain laughed again. Here's how it went in part:

"'Twas Danzig, and the Swastikoves
Did heil and hittle in the Reich . . .
He took his Aryan horde in hand,
Long time the Gestapo he taught;
Then rested he by the Baltic Sea
And stood awhile in thought.
And as a Polish oath they swore,
The grabberwoch with eyes aflame
Came goring down the Corridor
And goebbeled as it came . . .

Adolf: "Dear, dear! How queer everything is today. But if I am not myself, who am I? Well, I'm sure I'm not Bismarck, for his hair was bristly and mine falls in a beautiful bang right over my left eye. And I can't be Napoleon, because he retreated from Moscow . . . Oh, dear! I wish I could get my thoughts straight."

—o—

The eleventh week of the war saw a sudden increase in disasters on the sea. Outlaw mines, drifting in the path of neutral shipping in the war zone, took a heavy toll of non-combatant lives, sank dozens of ships, British, Dutch, Lithuanian, Japanese. Was it the German intention to circle the British Isles with a chain of deadly mines which would cut off the stream of supplies from overseas?

—o—

The curtain was lifted last week on a reign of terror whose horribleness the world had merely been conjecturing since March of this year. In the provinces of Bohemia and Moravia (Czecho-Slovakia), where demonstrations and riots against the Germans have recently been occurring, 50,000 people were said to have been arrested by Nazi police over one week-end, more than a hundred killed, school children carried off to concentration camps, colleges closed indefinitely.

—o—

Germany last week declared her main war aim to be the destruction of British supremacy in the world. But how could a nation, with its own worst enemy (Czecho-Slovakia) curled right at its heart, hope to wage successful war for any period of time? Some political observers gave the Nazi regime till next spring to collapse. The army high command were obviously on the outs with Nazi party chiefs, some reports even indicating that Hitler's generals had refused to attempt an invasion of Holland. Was Hitler on the horns of a dilemma from which he could escape only by sacrificing himself? Were all the Nazi chickens coming home to roost simultaneously? The mistakes of the past (Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland)—blocking any decisive move? The next few weeks were expected to make clear to us the answer.

Canada's Doors Opened Wider

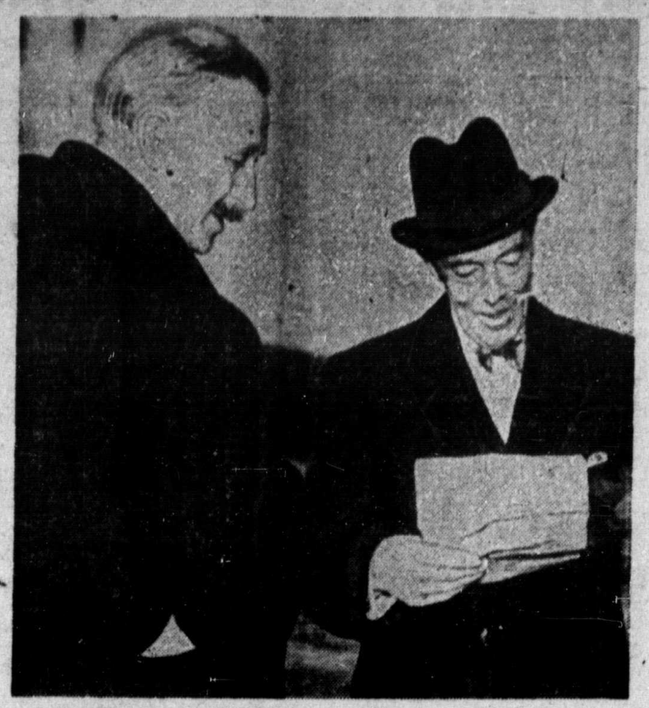

Canada opened wider its doors to immigrants in the first six months of the present fiscal year. Number of immigrants entering Canada totalled 12,024, an increase of 10,704 over the same period the previous fiscal year, the immigration department reports at Ottawa.

Entry of Sudeten Germans, who left that section of Czecho-Slovakia after the German annexation, accounted for a 79.5 per cent. increase in immigration from Northern European races, who numbered 1,556 compared with 867. The number of immigrants of German origin was 975 compared with 382 last year.

Immigrants from the British Isles at 2,544 showed an increase of 15.1 per cent. while the number from the United States rose by 1.3 per cent. to 3,410 from 3,365. Immigrants of other European races totalled 4,514 compared with 4,262. Of this class Jewish immigrants showed the largest increase, the total rising to 1,107 from 236.

A total of 17,568,467 pedestrians and passengers in vehicles crossed the Ontario-United States boundary during 1938 via facilities provided by international bridge, tunnel and ferry companies.

ONTARIO OUTDOORS

By VIC BAKER

DUCK-OUTS

That well-known and active conservation organization, Ducks Unlimited (Canada), "shot" the first of its "duck-outs" recently at Tatagwa Lake near Weyburn, Sask., in a campaign that will make use of ordinary dynamite to do good work for ducks and conservation in general. This idea of digging duck-outs for ducks is a new one in this country, and should eventually prove successful in blasting miles of ditches through western swamps and prairie country to make homes for the ducks.

An expert handler of dynamite did the explosive work and made deep holes all over the shallow and nearly dried out Tatagwa Lake, so that greater quantities of water will gather there, especially in the spring, and thus be a stopping off place for the ducks in their migration northward. Enough water is expected to be gathered in these dynamited holes to last throughout the breeding season.

DAM BEAVER

Dynamite is often called upon to help defend the services of mankind against the overwhelming forces of Nature. For instance, this common substance was used recently to blow up a section of a beaver dam in the northeast corner of Peterborough County after water had backed up and blocked the important boundary road on the Hastings-Peterborough line. According to Game Overseer I. J. Lyons, who broke the offending embankment, there was more than 100 yards of roadway flooded by Mr. Beaver's playful construction work, and the flow of water was spreading over nearby farms. The dam, he said, was in the middle of a tag alder swamp and he feared the beavers will only rebuild it and create a similar situation again in the near future which will again call for similar drastic steps.

TOPICS OF THE HOCKEY SEASON IN ONTARIO

New Clubs Accepted

Hockey interest throughout Canada is going ahead, with many new clubs being formed. This speaks well for the spirit of sportsmen in "carrying on" for the enjoyment and physical well-being of our young men in time of war.

New clubs accepted into O.H.A. membership by the Executive Committee follow: Parry Sound Intermediate "B"; Parry Sound Junior "C"; Port Elgin Junior "C"; 100th Battery, Listowel, Intermediate "B"; Hamilton Consel, Photos, Junior "B"; Niagara Falls Industrial League; Orillia Junior "C"; Orillia, Intermediate "B" Perth Regiment C.A.S.F. at Stratford, Intermediate "B".

For fifty years the O.H.A. has been in existence and has continuously operated a Senior series. No other sporting organization in Canada can equal that record.

The Ontario Hockey Association dates back to November 27, 1890, and the Queen's Hotel, Toronto, now the Royal York, was its birthplace. The founders of the O.H.A. were Hon. Arthur Stanley, son of a former Governor General of Canada, Judge Barron of Stratford, and Harry Ward, M.P., from East Durham. Lt.-Col. A. M. Cosby of Toronto was the first President; Messrs. Barron and Ward, Vice-Presidents; C. R. Hamilton, of Toronto Victorias, Secretary; C. K. Temple, Toronto, Treasurer; and P. D. Ross, Ottawa, J. F. Smellie, Captain Evans, J. C. Garvin, William Hendrie, Jr., Hamilton, A. F. D. MacGachen, Lindsay, and W. A. H. Kerr former the first Executive. The first Senior O.H.A. championship was won by the Ottawa club, with Toronto St. George's runners-up.

THE SOYA BEAN

There are ten thousand acres under soya bean production in Canada, mostly in Ontario. Ten years ago it was an unknown crop in the Dominion. Its uses are many and the soya bean has become an important raw material in the automobile, electrical appliance, enamel, soap and feed industries, as well as in innumerable industries using plastics. It is anticipated that the war will greatly extend the cultivation and utility of the soya bean.—Marketing.

War Costs Here In Second Month Were 9 Millions

Canada's special war expenditures in October are listed at $9,300,829, in a report issued at Ottawa by the office of the comptroller of the treasury.

First Official Figure

It was the first official government figure on the war costs to be made public. There was no September figure given and as returns are sometimes delayed in reaching the treasury, it is possible that part of the total might have been expended in September.

The war expenditures would be taken from the $100,000,000 war appropriation voted at the special session of Parliament last September. It is considered possible that the money was used largely by the Defense Purchasing Board which handled government war buying prior to being taken over by the new War Supply Board last November 1.

The war cost figure was included in a general survey of the government's balance sheet for October, and for the six months April to October, inclusive.

100 Million A Day Is Spent On War

Rough Estimate Made of Total Cash Cost In Present Conflict — Germany Heads List

The war is costing possibly $100,000,000 a day in current cash outlay alone. Additional costs in losses of property, arms and commercial revenue cannot be computed now.

The $100,000,000 is neither an official nor exact figure. It is merely an estimate value made from the best information available at Washington, D.C. The estimate may be far too high. On the other hand, war costs may rise even further, if and when wholesale destruction of men, guns, fortifications and ships begins.

However, data from several different sources indicate that Germany, heading the list, may have spent $12,000,000,000 for war by the end of her fiscal year next March; Great Britain, her Dominions and colonies, at least $5,262,000,000; and France, using a calendar year fiscal period, at least $2,194,758,000 by the end of 1939.

By the end of March, Germany and the British Empire supposedly will have spent $17,262,000,000 for a war that began 211 days earlier on Sept. 2, or $81,800,000 a day. By the end of December, 120 days after the start of hostilities, France will have spent $2,194,758,081; or $18,200,000 a day. The total is $100,000,000 a day.

The war appropriation of $100,000,000 was voted by Canada in September. Defenses, expenditures for 1939-40, before the declaration of war, had been budgetted at $53,000,000, giving Canada a total of $153,000,000 for war.

Rabies Quarantine Hampers Hunters

Hunters who regularly use dogs following their favorite sport in Bruce County are under a handicap these days, due to the rabies epidemic which broke out in the Wingham district earlier in the fall.

Quarantine measures were ordered throughout a widespread area and under these a dog, when at liberty, must be muzzled. Now a hound with a muzzle is little use in hunting, nimrods declare, and say they are unable to follow their favorite sport with any degree of success.

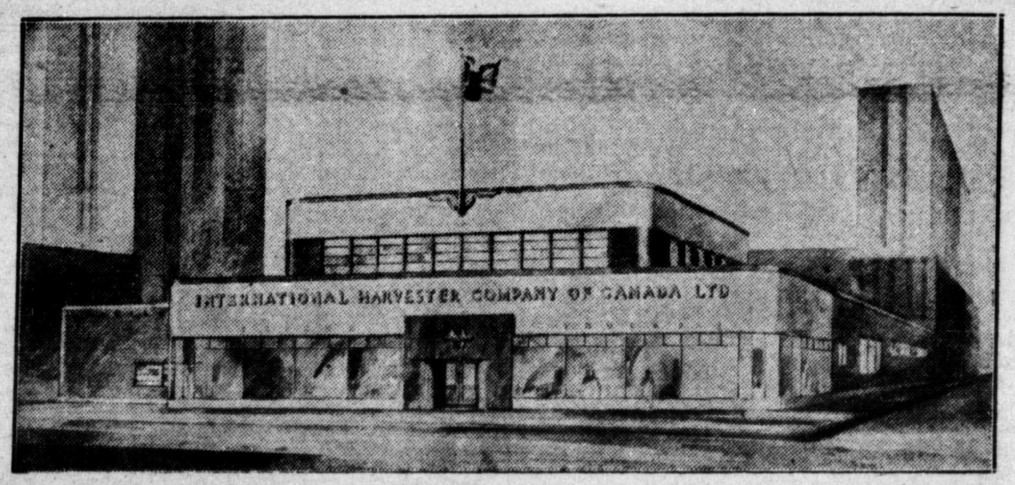

Two Air Marshals Meet On Canadian Soil

Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, G.C.V.O., K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., A.F.C., (right in picture) was welcomed by Air Marshal W. A. Bishop, V.C., D.S.O., D.F.C., on his arrival in Canada to lend his invaluable aid to the Empire air training scheme now under way here under the guidance of Lord Riverdale. Picture was taken when Sir Robert reached Montreal. Britain's fighting planes and bombers, he said, were superior to those of the enemy. He also stressed the superiority of the Curtiss planes to the German Messerschmidts.

Let each one in the community help these young people to make the best of their opportunities. Help them to have their fun at the right time and help them to plan their lives to find time for the right things.

The names of the pupils in the different grades alphabetically arranged according to percents appear in another column. We congratulate those over 70 per cent. We hope that many more will be in that class by the next report.

Hot Mediterranean Wind Aids in Cork Formation

The wind blows fierce and hot in the Mediterranean during the dry season, and that is why most of the world's cork comes from Portugal, Spain and north Africa. For the cork trees there, getting the full hot blasts, in self-defense thicken the outer bark as insulation. And the result is cork, used in linoleum, insulation board, baseball centers, badminton balls, floats, fishing bobbers and life preservers.

Cork is industrially important because it can be compressed like no other solid. A cubic inch, under 14,000 pounds pressure in a press, spreads sidewise only a quarter inch. Remove the pressure and it will regain 95 per cent of its height. The secret is in its remarkable cellular structure, which makes cork different from most other fibrous vegetable material. The cells of cork are built in the form of 14 cells surrounding one cell. Each cell is filled with air, and the thin walls are cemented together with natural gum or resin. A cubic inch of cork has about 300,000,000 such cells. Compress cork, and the air in the cells resist. Because of the air, cork is light. Because of the sealing between each cell, cork does not transfer heat, so is good for insulating and sound-proofing; because it is resilient, it minimizes vibration, hence it is useful in machinery.

In 20 years a cork tree has an outer bark an inch thick. It cannot be stripped again for nine years. The quality improves with each stripping, and the average tree is good for 14 strippings, nine years apart.

Modern Beach Footwear Designed by Japanese

From the south of France has spread to Miami beach and Malibu a fashion of footwear with lightweight soles three inches thick to keep the feet off the hot sands. A new vogue in the West, it is centuries old in Japan. The geta, as Japan's stilted clog is called, dates back to the Eighth century in literature, but first achieved widespread popularity in the Tokugawa period, which began in the Seventeenth century.

Nowadays it takes a big shop to contain anything like a fair selection of the many kinds of geta. The fine-weather geta, called koma-geta, is carved from a single block of wood, and for sole and heel has two thick, square supports called ha ("teeth"). Taka-geta ("high" geta) have thin wood insoles to make the wearer appear taller. These are for bad weather. Then for small girls are pokkuri (also called koppori). These, as is implied by the very sound of their names, make a sound like a trotting horse as the child runs along the sidewalk.

A geta has two straps, which radiate from a peg between the big toe and its neighbor to two points on either side of the heel. This calls for the sort of sock worn by the sandaled races of north Africa and manufactured in the United States by health concerns--that is, one that has a separate compartment for the big toe. These socks, called tabi, may be of cotton, wool, silk or other material, are ankle high only, and are worn by persons of either sex.

Roman Names Given To Months of Year

In ancient Rome, a new month started on the day of the new moon, or the day after, so it is not surprising that we derive our word "month" from the ancient forms of the word "moon." Our word "calendar" is derived from "calendae," meaning the first day of the Roman month. The derivations of the names of the months in our calendar follow:

January, from Janus, a figure in Roman mythology who presided over all beginnings. He was represented as having two faces—one looking back to the year past, and the other, looking forward on the current year.

February is from the Latin Februarius, meaning "to purify." It had its origin in the Roman festivals of the Lupercalia.

March was named for Mars, the god of war.

April is from the Latin aprilis, meaning "to open."

May is from Maia, the mythological figure symbolizing growth.

June is from Junius, a Roman gens or clan.

July, named in honor of Julius Caesar, who was born in this month.

August, named in honor of Augustus Caesar.

The remaining months were named from the positions they held in the calendar before its revision by Julius Caesar. The earliest Roman calendar had only 10 months: Martius, Aprilis, Maius, Junius, Quintilis, Sextilis, September, October, November and December. While September is the ninth month in our calendar, it was the seventh in the Roman calendar and derived its name from the Latin septem, meaning "seven"; October, the eighth month, from octo, the Latin for "eight"; November, the ninth month, from novem, meaning "nine," and December, the tenth month, is derived from decem, the Latin for "ten."

Winter Care of Mares

An important item in the care of brood mares during the winter is daily exercise—enough to keep them healthy, but they should not be driven in deep snow or made to haul heavy loads. When brood mares stay idle all winter, their foals are usually weak. The amounts of feed depend on the size of the mare, her condition and the amount of work she is expected to do. When young brood mares have not completed their growth, more liberal feeding is desirable. As a rule, a good grade of mixed hay together with oats and bran will suffice, and a few roots a day will help keep the mare in good health.

At the Dominion Experimental Farm at Fredericton, N.B., the basic ration for brood mares is half a pound of grain, made up of three parts of oats and one part of bran, and one pound of mixed hay for every hundred pounds of live weight Thus a 1,600 pound mare would get eight pounds of grain and 16 pounds of hay daily. The mares are watered three times a day, and always have salt within reach. As a precaution against joint trouble in the foals, the mares are given a teaspoonful of potassium iodide in the drinking water on the first and fifteenth of each month beginning with the first of October.

First Schools Developed For Use of Privileged

It would probably surprise most children, and for that matter, many grownups, to hear that the word "school" is derived from the Greek word meaning leisure. School was once a privilege which only those who possessed spare time to spend could use. Even the rich were often too busy for school. Fighting was man's work; sewing, weaving, spinning, cooking, bearing and rearing children was woman's.

As life became more settled, cities sprang up, and men fought in armies instead of as individuals, some men began to have leisure to turn their minds toward other things than keeping alive. They began to inquire first about the world they lived in, then about themselves, and to spend their leisure hours in groups, at what might seem a game of 20 questions.

The women were not included in these groups, for their work in the home continued. In time, however, slaves began to take over some of the domestic duties and the women, too, had leisure to put into learning if they chose.

Today the idea of school as leisure has receded into the shadowy past. The privilege of learning has been forgotten. It has become such an accepted thing, that, like most commonplaces it has grown tedious. Yet the child, when he first asks questions, first begins to examine the world he lives in, and then his own inner life, still has the attitude of our remote ancestors. He is still eager and animated, and finds his work play.

If adults would remember this and keep him in the same state of interested receptivity, encouraging his inquiry, leading him on and on in the paths of knowledge, joining with him in the search for truth, instead of talking down to him and dulling his curiosity, school might once more connote pleasure rather than pain.

Money to Burn

Bills charred almost beyond recognition, and bills soaked by water until they resemble chunks of mud, are included in the approximately $3,000,000 worth of currency which each year is sent to the United States treasury in Washington for redemption. Most of the mutilated money comes to Washington in the fall of the year; treasury experts have decided that this is because people hide bills among waste papers in stoves unusued during the summer, and forget the money is there when they light the stove when the first cool evening comes along.

London Hat Fire

During western Europe's severest drouth and heat wave in three years, a bystander in Hyde Park London, saw a whiff of smoke rise from Phyllis Proctor's straw hat. First Prince of Wales Named 600 Years Ago

Since the title prince of Wales was created by Edward I, in the year 1301, for his eldest son, there have been 20 princes of Wales, including the men who afterward became Edward VII, George V and Edward VIII. The late George V became prince of Wales when his father succeeded to the throne in 1901. The title may be bestowed on the eldest surviving son of the monarch, or on his grandson if he is the nearest heir. It is not inherited but is extinguished when the holder of the title becomes king or if he dies before the ruler.

Wales was ruled by Welsh princes from the Tenth to the Thirteenth century. The last of these was Llewelyn, who was compelled to submit to Edward I in 1277. On Llewelyn's death in 1282 the title ceased but Edward revived it for his eldest surviving son and heir, later Edward II. According to legend, King Edward I in conquering Wales promised the people that if they ceased resistance he would give them a native-born prince who could not speak a word of English. Two years after Llewelyn's death, this son of Edward I was born in Carnarvon in Wales. It was not until 1301, however, that the title was bestowed on him and by that time he could certainly speak English.

Louisiana Purchase

When Napoleon Bonaparte, in 1803, then first consul with one foot on the imperial ladder, turned salesman and knocked down a distant empire known as the Louisiana Purchase for three cents an acre, he probably did not dream that the country that purchased the vast domain would in a few years become a haven of exile for members of his family after his grand debacle at Waterloo. Or did he? It is historically significant that it was suggested in the treaty by Napoleon himself that the territory thus ceded should become the background of future American states, says the Kansas City Times. Then, after the fateful sun of Waterloo went down in the last tragedy of his military and imperial career, it is known that he dallied with the thought of escaping to America with his brother, Joseph, king of Spain, but the fates ruled otherwise. His hesitation took him to the rock of St. Helena. But his canny brother did seek safety in American exile and lived here many years, preceded and followed by others of the Bonaparte family.

TELFORD—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Telford, who passed away Dec. 5th, 1938.
Quickly and quietly came the call
His sudden death surprised us all.
To a beautiful life came a sudden end,
He died as he lived everyone's friend.
Now oft and oft our thoughts do wonder,
To a grave not far away,
Where we laid our dear daddy,
Just one year ago to day.
Our lips cannot tell how we miss him
Our heads cannot tell what to say,
God alone knows how we miss him,
In a home that is lonesome today.
Remembrance keep him ever near.
Sadly missed by his loving

The "Off set" Disc

Experiments commenced by the Dominion Field Husbandry Division at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, in 1934 to secure information on the value of various types of ploughs have been expanded to include tests of the "off set" type of disc. This implement is essentially a double one-way disc. The results of these experiments to date indicate that there is little difference in the draft of mouldboard and disc plows under ordinary conditions. Under dry and hard conditions, the disc plow has required slightly less draft. The draft of the one-way disc has been found to be considerably less than the ordinary plow, as in the case with the "off-set" disc. Present indications are that the yields of crop following the mouldboard plow on sod land are slightly superior to those following the disc plow. The one-way disc has not proven satisfactory for sod land. As yet, no yield data are available for the "off-set" disc, but it would appear considerably more effective on sod land than the one way disc, and has been operated very satisfactorily in the cultivation of stubble land.

LOVE LAUGHS AT THE DOCTOR

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

CONSTANCE MAIDWELL—heroine; the stand-in.

DEREK MANTHON—an artist who loved money first.

HILDEGARDE THORVALD—Derek painted her portrait.

DR. ROGERS—he met his most difficult case.

* * *

Yesterday: Ready to marry Derek Manthon, Constance is stunned when she receives a surprise note from him on the eve of their wedding.

CHAPTER II

For a long time Constance stood, staring out over the wintery park with its frozen little lake. But she was not looking at the lake. Before her eyes danced fragments of phrases — incomprehensible, unbelievable phrases from Derek's note.

"Darling," Derek had begun. "I hope you will understand."

Presently she stirred and looked vaguely down at the blue silk lounging pajamas she still wore—for she had barely finished her morning coffee when the note was delivered.

She supposed she must change her clothes if she were to go out.

"Won't you come down to the studio as soon as possible," Derek had written. "I can't get away; and we must talk things over."

Talk things over. . . . Talk! You couldn't talk away suffering like this.

"Talk Things Over"

It was sleeting. She must wear something serviceable. She put on an old tweed suit and crammed a soft felt hat down over the dusky waves of her hair.

When she had clasped the fastenings of her overshoes, she stood for a moment before the mirror in her bathroom door, looking at herself with a kind of compassionate curiosity—wondering how a girl would look to whom a thing like this could happen.

What she saw was a slight, almost boyish figure—too thin, she had always thought; but Derek had laughed at that.

"You don't need curves, darling," he said. "You have such a beautiful skeleton."

The girl in the mirror had a smoothly oval face with skin soft as petunia petals framed in blue-black hair. Derek had once said that the planes of her face were fluid, so sensitive was it to the most delicate shades of emotion. . . . Perhaps the most notable things about her were her mouth, which was at once humorous and tender, and her eyes—sometimes blue, sometimes stormy gray—with their look of expecting too much of life.

Young Man In A Hurry

As Constance went up the front steps of the building where Derek had his studio, the door opened abruptly, and a man came out, colliding with her and completely upsetting her balance. He caught her expertly, set her upright again, and said, "Sorry. What a clumsy ape I am!"

"It's all right," Constance murmured, smiling because he looked so absurdly big and startled and concerned.

He was a youngish man, with sandy hair touched with copper, singularly live and inquisitive brown eyes in a blunt, not unpleasant face, and an air of being habitually in a hurry. But he was not hurrying now. He continued to stand in her path, looking down at her a little strangely.

"You wouldn't be a materialization, would you?" he asked. Then, as Constance looked faintly alarmed, he hurried on, smiling wryly as if realizing how absurd he must look and not enjoying the picture, "But of course not. Phantoms don't just straighten their hats and murmur polite things when you knock them around; they shriek and clank chains, don't they?"

He held the door open and Constance went in.

"We Must Plan"

Derek was on his knees when she entered the studio, whistling as he transferred clothing from a chest of drawers to a trunk.

As Constance closed the door and stood for a moment with her back against it, to steady herself for what was to come, he broke off in his whistling, sprang lightly up, and came over to take her into his arms, making of it all one swift, beautiful movement.

"You're a darling to come so soon, Connie," he said almost gaily. "Isn't this the devil—after all our planning? I know what you must be feeling," he added swiftly as he bent to help her with her coat. "But can't you imagine how I feel, too?" . . . And yet, Constance thought, you were whistling. . . . "But come over to the fire," Derek went on. "There's so little time to talk, and we must plan."

Constance said with a quietness she had to clench her hands to achieve, "What is there to plan? It's all settled, isn't it?"

* * *

Our Future At Stake

But she did sit down in the armchair he drew up for her before the fireplace. The wood fire needed replenishing; but for the moment neither of them noticed that.

"Settled? Why, Connie, you sound—after all, it's our future that's at stake. . . . Darling, I counted on you to understand!"

"I am trying to understand, Derek. But it's all rather sudden, isn't it?"

"Listen, darling!" Derek dropped to the stool at her feet, and taking one of her hands, rested his cheek against it, lean and warm and hard. "You're marrying an artist. In my work it's either a feast or a famine. . . . I couldn't stand famine—on your account I mean, of course. What I want for you is pearls and sables."

"But Derek, I don't care about that, really," Constance said. Then looking down at his bright, eager face, she thought, I am behaving badly. After all, it is for me Derek is planning.

"You see," Derek was going on, "they want the portrait done before the first of May. That's why they want us to fly west with them this afternoon."

Us. . . . Why, then—why hadn't Derek said so at first? In that terribly hurried curt note he had written, "They want me to go with them."

"But," Constance gasped between joy and exasperation, "why didn't you explain that when you wrote? I'm not—"

She was going to say, "I'm not nearly packed"; but she broke off to plan happily, I can just make it if I get the housemaid to help me. Let's see—I can wear that pin-striped suit on the plane, and my gray fox fur. . . I'm glad I got the red hat and bag.

But Derek was going on, carried along by his own feverish preoccupation:

"There'll be four of us in the party. You see Miss Thorvald had a rather bad fall from a horse last week. The family physician, who happens to be east on a vacation, is insisting that they take a nurse with them in case she's not so fully recovered as she thinks she is."

No Time To Explain

After a moment Constance said, "I see. Of course."

"Think of the advertising this will give me, darling," Derek ran on. "California is rolling in money. And in California a commission from Baron Grapefruit is equal to a royal command."

"It must be," murmured Constance, "if it's more important than — does this — this royal personage know that you were planning to start on your honeymoon tomorrow?"

Derek stirred uneasily.

"That's what I was getting around to," he said, a strange flatness in his voice. "As a matter of fact, I haven't had a minute to explain the suituation. There's been no talk of anything, but Miss Thorvald's portrait. But they're coming around here this morning for a few minutes. I thought we could — well, bring the matter up indirectly, and I have an idea they may suggest your coming on a little later."

He glanced hastily at his watch, and sprang to his feet.

"They may be here any minute now . . . Connie, dear, you wouldn't mind finishing my trunk like a darling, while I nail up these boxes, would you? I've only got a few hours."

Constance rose and began mechanically to fold shirts and pajamas. There were six suits of silk pajamas, beautifully monogrammed. Constance had given them to Derek for Christmas. Derek liked the feel of silk against his skin.

The Sumptuous Daughter

"Listen, Connie," Derek rushed on, sparing her a whimsical grimace from the box of points that he was sorting, "you'll love this: what the Baron wants is something that will be a kind of glorified advertisement of the California fruit belt . . . Heaps of luscious fruits—white and purple grapes, persimmons, nectarines, oranges — with the sumptuous daughter in the very midst as a kind of presiding deity . . . Bacchanalian, what? . . . I'm hoping he'll listen to reason—although she'd fit into it, at that."

Constance said with a delicate malice for which she hated herself, "I gather that Miss Thorvald is not too bad to look at . . . No harelip, then, after all?"

"Hildegarde Thorvald is — " Derek broke off to finish impatiently, "What in thunder are we talkinng about Hildegarde Thorvald for? It is us I'm interested in.

"Oh, darling — "

A knock sounded sharply on the door of the studio.

Penguin's Parade

A penguin is a funny bird.
He cannot sing at all, I've heard.
Although he has a great big bill,
He does not warble, chirp, or trill.
His wings will never carry him
Above the ground, but he can swim
And use a wing, much like an oar,
To paddle him from shore to shore.
When penguins walk, they always waddle.
They look like midget men who toddle
Across a stage, all neatly dressed
In evening suit and formal vest.
Why should they wear their party clothes
In lands of storm and ice and snows?

One Bite From Pie Too Much For Thief

Police of Brantford, Ont., last week were seeking a burglar who prefers cigarettes to pie. E. Bayley, of that city reported one morning that his home had been entered some time after midnight, the burglar cutting away the glass from a basement window and unfastening the catch.

A purse was stolen from the dining room. In the purse were $11 in cash, a compact, a driver's license, and some receipts. A pie was removed from the refrigerator, but only one bite was missing. A large package of cigarettes also disappeared.

Mend Damaged Home Articles

The Handy Woman Armed With Glue, Plaster and Patience Takes Care of Her Household "Invalids"

How many invalids have you at home? Probably dozens! Treasures damaged in accidents. That favorite vase in ragments. The chair with the broken leg.

Don't mourn their sad state. Just mend them!

China, Furniture

Broken China — Clean all the pieces thoroughly. Be sure to get a good glue or cement. Carefully dry the broken pieces and select two that fit together. Apply a fine coating of glue to the edge of each, leave the glue to become nearly dry, and then press them firmly together. Let that first joint set completely before sticking the next in its place, and add piece by piece leaving each to set before doing the next.

Broken Furniture — Clean the wood thoroughly and warm it before applying the glue. Apply the glue thinly, and don't let it get too dry. While it is still tacky bring the broken pieces firmly together and bind them tightly with string, leaving them bound for a whole day. Needless to say, be sure exactly how they ift together before you stick them together!

With glue, plaster and patience, it is surprising how many treasures you can mend.

TABLE TALKS

By SADIE B. CHAMBERS

THE SMALL CAKE IS TRUMPS

The things I should like to write about for this approaching holiday season are legion. My column has not sufficient space to discuss with you suggestions for all your holiday cooking. However, the small cake has become a staple article in almost any stock of goodies and has become a social leader in this modern world with its lovely hospitality. This sweet little morsel can always appear with grace before the unexpected visitor. It is splendid with fruit, custard or frozen desserts, and will also fill the bill very well for an evening lunch preceded by the inesitable sandwich.

I am giving you my four favorites to help fill your cookie jar or the hidden box to be ready for the jolly times before and after the arrival of Santa Claus.

FRUIT MACAROONS

2 egg whites
⅛ teaspoon salt ,
2/3 cup fruit sugar ,
½ teaspoon almond extract
1 cup shredded coconut (very fine)
½ cup chopped filberts
¼ cup candied cherries (chopped)
¼ cup chopped dates chopped fine

Beat whites of eggs very stiff but not dry; add salt. Beat the sugar in very slowly, beating after each addition until very stiff. Add flavouring coconut, nuts and fruits. Drop with a teaspoon on a floured pan preferably dusted with cornstarch. Bake in slow oven (300°F.) until a light brown.

BUTTERSCOTCH DREAMS

1/3 cup butter
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
⅞ cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ cup rolled pecans (or walnuts)
1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt butter. Mix in the brown sugar, cool to about lukewarm. Add egg, slightly beaten; mix thoroughly. Sift the required amount of flour, salt and baking powder; sift three times. Combine the mixtures well. Add nuts and vanilla. Grease pan (10x10) and bake in moderate oven (350°) about 15 minutes until browned nicely and drawing slightly away from side of pan. Cut in squares while still warm.

SHORT BREAD

1 cup butter
½ cup fruit sugar
2 cups flour

Cream butter until very light. Gradually blend in the sugar. Beat until very light and fluffy. Measure flour and sift three times. Turn mixture on a lightly floured board mixing in the flour (kneading) until the mixture cracks. Place in a pan (ungreased). Cut according to your preference, either in squares or with fancy cookie cutters, decorating the top with nuts or cherries. Red and green cherries help your color scheme for Christmas.

DREAM FINGERS

½ cup butter
½ cup sugar (white)
2 egg yolks
1¾ cups flour
2 egg whites
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 cups brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped pecans.

Cream butter thoroughly. Blend in sugar well. Beat egg yolks well and add to butter and sugar mixture. Sift measured flour twice and fold into mixture. For the second mixture beat egg whites stiff but not dry, adding the salt. Beat in the brown sugar gradually and beat well. Add vanilla and pecans. Grease and flour a shallow pan and press first mixture into it firmly. Over this spread the second mixture (egg-white). Bake in slow oven (275°) for 60 minutes. Cut in fingers or squares while still warm.

YOUR HOUSEHOLD PROBLEMS

Have you fussy eaters in your family? Do you have trouble providing a varied and interesting menu? Do your cakes fail? Then write, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Sadie B. Chambers, care of this paper, and she will endeavour to solve your problems.

Send, Don't Take Child To Dentist

Solo Visits Work Out Much Better, Dentists Declare

The parent who takes his child to the dentist's office with the assurance "This dentist won't hurt you one little bit," is probably doing more to harm the dentist's approach to the child than the parent realizes.

Local dentists, said the Stratford Beacon-Herald agreed that parents would be well advised to let their children make solo visits to the dental office when those visits are necessary. The general feeling is that it's a lot easier to approach a child when he or she is alone than if there is a sympathizing parent in the background to listen to any outcry. The outcry probably would never come if the parent was not there to hear it.

Alone, Or With Friend

If a child realizes that he or she has to go to the dentist alone, then that child will buck up and face the music without a bit of fuss.

If a friend accompanies the child instead of the parent the patient is a lot easier to handle. Dr. H. W. Baker said. "I find in one hundred per cent of the cases that if the child comes alone, or with a playmate, there is less likely to be a scene than if the parent comes along," he added.

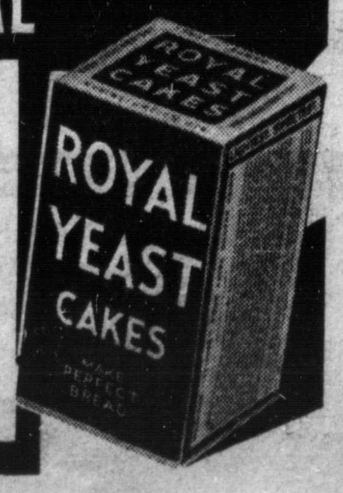

Auburn, Ont., farmers sighed for days gone by when George Rutledge, celebrating his 96th birthday told of the price he once got for wheat—$2.12 a bushel.

LESSON X

SPREADING THE GOOD NEWS

Matt. 10

Printed Text, Matt. 10:24-39

Golden Text.—He that heareth, let him say, Come. Rev. 22:17.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time.—The winter of A.D. 28-29.

Place.—In Galilee, although we do not know exactly where.

Christ gives instructions to the Twelve Disciples, telling each of them where they are to labor, then what particular work they are to do. The Twelve were to go, not to the Gentiles, nor even to the Samaritans, but to "the lost sheep of the house of Israel." They were to transmit a message that the kingdom of heaven was at hand, that the King of the kingdom was there in their midst. Christ pictures for the disciples a life of poverty and incessant labor. He prepares them for the sufferings that would come upon them as they continued to preach the gospel throughout the land of Palestine.

Matt. 10:24. A disciple is not above his teacher, nor a servant above his lord. 25. It is enough for the disciple that he be as his teacher, and the servant as his lord. If they have called the master of the house Beelzebub, how much more them of his household! Our Lord reminds the disciples that in suffering persecution they are suffering no more than their Master suffered.

26. Fear them not therefore: for there is nothing covered, that shall not be revealed; and hid, that shall not be known. 27. What I tell you in the darkness, speak ye in the light; and what ye hear in the ear, proclaim upon the housetops. In spite of all opposition, the truth will come out, the facts concerning Jesus Christ will somehow reach the ears of the people. 28. And be not afraid of them that kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell. Persecution might tempt a man to deny Christ, and thereby escape physical punishment and death; but after death comes the judgment. Christ here urges to be afraid of no man, no matter what power a man might use in crushing out their lives; but they should ever stand in fear of God who determines their eternal destinies.

29. Are not two sparrows sold for a penny? and not one of them shall fall on the ground without your Father: 30. but the very hairs of your head are all numbered. 31. Fear not therefore: ye are of more value than many sparrows. The third reason why the disciples should not fear is because of God's providential care for them. There is no promise here that all men should expect to be delivered from persecution, but there is a more precious promise, that men will never be abandoned in the hour of persecution and suffering.

32. Everyone therefore who shall confess me before men, him will I also confess before my Father who is in heaven. 33. But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father who is in heaven. Confession is necessary but only such confession as proceeds from true faith in the heart. The inward confession and allegiance of the heart, the firm, consistent, lifelong siding with Jesus, the merging of our own interests and those of his kingdom, these are things that are of greatest importance. To confess Christ is nothing less than to connect one's self indissolubly with Christ and stand for him in life and death.

34. Think not that I came to send peace on the earth: I came not to send peace, but a sword. 35. For I came to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law: 36. and a man's foes shall be they of his own household. The disciples had to choose between Christ and the relatives or housemates who were set against him. The sword is perhaps only symbolical of conflict.

37. He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me; and he that loveth son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me. To give any other one than Christ the centre of our life is to doom ourselves to restlessness of soul, dissatisfaction with life. 38. And he that doth not take his cross and follow after me, is not worthy of me. 39. He that findeth his life shall lose it; and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it. He that finds his life, in the sense of keeping, or being ready to keep, his bodily life by forsaking Christ shall lose his truest life, which consists in union with him, the source of all life.

Ontario's Prize Pupil Won Many Scholarships

Marion Jenkins, who entered the University of Toronto this year, is Ontario's prize pupil by virtue of the fact that she won six scholarships during last June's examinations, two of which she was not allowed to hold. Scholastics is not the only thing that Marion excels in, she takes an active part in household duties as well as social events and sports in her home-town, Toronto.

Big Slaughter Wild Animals

5,000 Specimens Buffalo, Elk, Deer, Moose Are Being Cut Up For Meat In Wainwright Park, Alta.

A big killing in the fullest acceptance of the term is going on at the big Buffalo Park in Wainwright Alta. Between now and the New Year, if the marksmen are accurate and speedy in skinning and cutting up 5,000 animals — buffalo, elk, deer, moose and the odd yak will be reduced to meat.

Destitute Indians in the district and farther away will be faring well and living high this winter from the slaughter now under way. Part of the meat from the 5,000 animal population will be marketed commercially. The Indians will get most of the rest .... the hides for clothing and the meat for food.

Various factors, apart from the park being required otherwise, contribute to the clearing. The population is too large. The park is over-grazed and the grazing is none too good. The elks eat the best of it, leaving less for the buffalo. The natural increase being heavy and all the parks being full, it became necessary to resort to slaughter. This requires expert marksmen who also know how to butcher.

Employment of Indians to do their own butchering was not a success for the reason that in a great many instances they did not know how and those who did, lacked sufficient energy for the enterprise.

Playless People Said Dangerous

"The Ability to Play Is Necessary or Democratic Society"

A theory that "the most dangerous people in the world are those who do not play," was advanced last week by Marguerite Kehr, dean of women at State Teachers College, Bloomsburg, Pa., as she inquired "Can you imagine Adolf Hitler singing close harmony at an alumni reunion or yelling himself hoarse at a baseball game?"

Play For Play's Sake

"The ability to play is necessary for a democratic form of society," Miss Kehr declared. "There is not much real recreation in the totalitarian countries.

"Recreation in our country is a means of self-expression which is free, not regimented. We believe in play for play's sake, not as a preparation for war.

Shand Dam Work Moving On Well

Grand River Conservation Commission Hears That There is no Chance of This Year's Construction Being Endangered by Winter And Spring Flood Conditions

Work on the Shand Dam has now proceeded to such an extent there is no chance of this year's construction being endangered by winter conditions or by spring floods, Chief Engineer H. G. Acres told the Grand River Conservation Commission in session at Galt recently.

Dr. Acres reported that wet weather had resulted in some of the concrete work being behind schedule but it had reached a point beyond flood danger and could be completed next spring without holding up next year's program.

Mole Is Rarely If Ever Cancer

Birthmarks Too, Are Relatively Harmless Provided They Are Not Subjected to Prolonged Irritation

That unsightly mole on Milady's neck is absolved as a cause of a cancer.

Dr. Eugene Traub, of New York, told the American Academy of Dermatology and Syphilology last week that such blemishes "rarely, if ever" terminate in cancer of the skin.

"All blood vessel birthmarks which are red to purple in color are only cosmetic deformities," he said. "The pigmented dark brown, warty and hairy birthmarks are also relatively innocent.

"Only if subjected in some fashion to prolonged irritation are they apt to grow wildly."

Beware Innocent-Looking Growths

But skin growths that appear most innocent often are apt to cause the most trouble, Dr. Taub warned.

"The smooth, dark brown or the dark blue marks, devoid of hair, are the ones that are most dangerous," he explained. "It is from this type that melanoma (serious skin cancer) often develops."

Dr. Traub said the type of the birthmark determines whether it can be removed safely. He counselled:

"Many of these blemishes may be readily and safely removed and without leaving a scar. "Some of them however, are really dangerous and should be left alone or destroyed in a 'radical' manner (such as surgery)."

Canada Getting New Markets

Australia and South China Are Offering Outlets For Goods

The war is tending to open up new markets for Canada to Australia and South China, according to the current issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal, published by the trade and commerce department, Ottawa.

A report from the department's trade commissioners in Australia said: "The outbreak of hostilities in Europe and the consequent disturbance of markets and normal trade channels has resulted in an increasing number of inquiries as to the ability of Canadian manufacturers to export to Australia the commodities formerly drawn from Europe and United Kingdom sources."

Taken Away From Europe

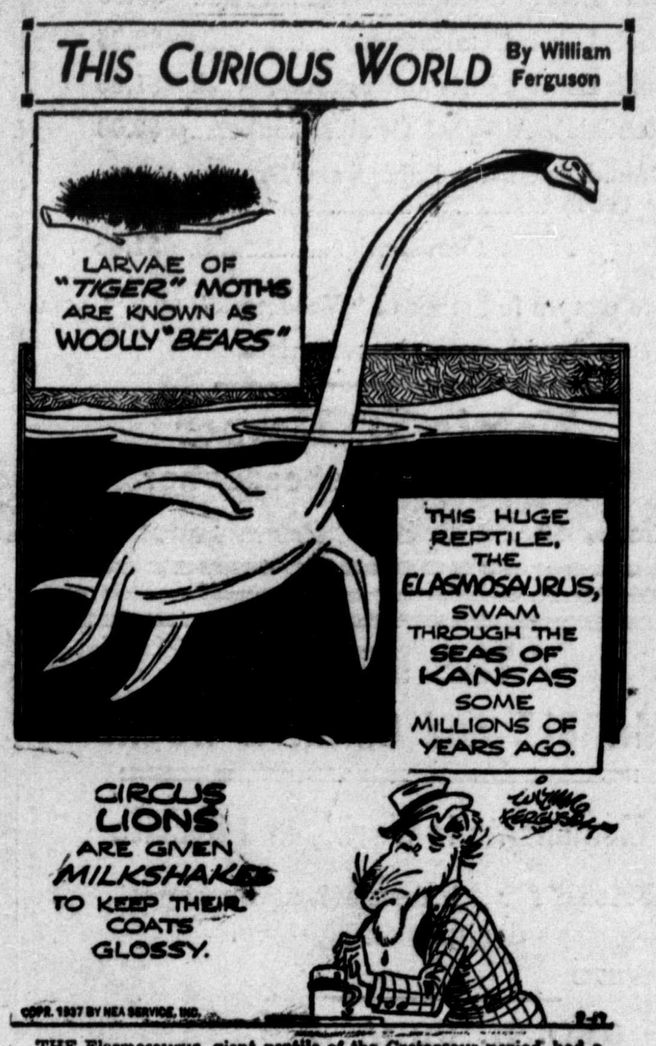

The uncertainty of obtaining the supplies from United Kingdom and European producers is an important factor, the report said.

A market already is established in Australia for a wide range of products such as textiles, metals, machinery, earthenware, paper, jewelry, toys and chemicals.

The trade commissioner at Hong Kong reported he has received a great many inquiries for Canadian sources of supply of products formerly imported into Hong Kong from Germany. Products concerned are chemicals, hardware, minerals, newsprint and glass.

It is estimated that Canada's production of sugar from the 1939 sugar beet crop will amount to approximately 80,000,000 pounds.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

THE Elasmosaurus, giant reptile of the Cretaceous period, had a body similar to a porpoise, and an astonishing snake-like neck. It had a length of 40 feet, and inhabited the area now known as Kansas, which, at that time, was a vast sea, as deposits now indicate.

MARRIED

CLARKE—MOYLE

St. Mary's Church, Quyon, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday morning, Nov. 29th, when Loretta Mary Moyle, daughter of Mrs. John M. Moyle and the late Mr. Moyle, of Quyon, became the bride of Austin Ambrose Clarke, son of Mrs. Henry Clarke and the Mr. Clarke, Quyon. Rev. O. J. McDonald officiated.

The music was played by Miss Geraldine Stanton, cousin of the bridegroom, who also sang a solo at communion. Miss Kay Mulligan sang "Ave Marie" and "Just For Today."

The bride was attired in a street-length frock of midnight blue velvet designed with a fitted bodice, full skirt, sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves. She wore a matching velvet turban and accessories, and also wore a silver fox fur, the gift of the bridegroom. Her corsage was Johanna Hill roses.

The bridesmaid chose a street-length gown of Aurora Rose crepe designed with shirred bodice, V neckline and circular skirt with bustle back. Her hat and accessories were black, and she wore a corsage of Briarcliffe roses.

Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at a local hotel to immediate families, after which the young couple left on a motor trip to Boston and other eastern points. For travelling the bride wore a navy blue crepe dress with matching accessories, over which she wore a teal blue wool boucle coat with blue fox collar. Upon their return they will reside in South Onslow, Que.

Lure of Talking Pictures Thrills Australian Natives

The lure of the talkies has penetrated to the wilds of Arnhem island, in north Australia, and the problems officials have now is not to keep white men out of this huge aboriginal preserve, but to keep the natives in.

Recently six aborigines reached Darwin, capital of the northern territory, after walking hundreds of miles through the unsurveyed fastness of Arnhem Land, swimming swollen rivers infested with crocodiles and risking their lives in passing through territory of hostile tribes—all to see a cinema show.

They came from Milingimi, on the northeastern end of the Arnhem land coast, and their long trek lasted four months. Later nearly a score of natives made a similar journey for the same purpose, and the glamour of the talkies now has spread throughout the nomadic tribes of the north.

Picture night for the natives is the event of the week in Darwin, even for the "detribalized" blacks, and only illness keeps them away. One evening the manager of Darwin's cinema received a message that he was wanted in the office.

When he got there he found an aborigine waiting for him—and a dog, a mongrel, flea-bitten hound. The native explained that if he was going to the cinema his dog was, too.

The dog, he went on, had never seen the talkies and he was willing to pay for a seat for himself and another for the dog so that that oversight could be remedied.

Pupils Steal Show

What was intended to be an inspection by the central provinces education minister of schools in the district of Itarsi, in India, was turned into a celebration by the pupils. As the minister finished inspection of the first schools visited, the pupils were dismissed, and they followed him. When he reached Itarsi several hundred boys and many adults invaded the hall in advance, waving flags and singing songs. The inspection was abandoned, the minister made a speech and was presented a garland.

Bee's Hula Hula

If you see a honeybee doing the hula-hula, prick up your ears and maybe you'll hear some gossip hot from the hive. Scientists have discovered that bees don't talk with the buzz of their wings, but with the movements of their bodies. According to Dr. J. E. Eckert, bee specialist at the University of California, says Country Home Magazine, there's a word for every wiggle. Most of the bees' undulations, performed in the air, tell other bees where to locate a new supply of food.

Egyptian Beauty Experts

The ancient Egyptians were first-rate beauty parlor experts and probably originated the first "hair-do" fashions in our civilization. Apparatus for waving the hair has been discovered in ancient tombs together with numerous preparations or "kohl," the ancient counterpart of eyelash coloring or mascara.
