

Until better plan is formulated Dairy subsidy cutbacks to stay — Olsen

By PRESTON GURD

RICHMOND — Federal Agriculture Minister Bud Olsen said here last night that although the dairy situation is improving, government holdbacks of subsidies will remain in force until a better dairy plan is prepared.

Confusion follows in wake of construction strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Confusion reigned briefly at construction sites in the Montreal area Monday as most of 25,000 workers returned to work following weekend settlement of their three-week strike.

Johns-Manville plans expand Asbestos plant

ASBESTOS — Canadian Johns-Manville Co. Ltd. yesterday announced plans to build a new asbestos manufacturing plant which will create an estimated 200 new jobs in Asbestos.

K. V. Lindell, chairman of the board, said the new factory will have production facilities for textiles, railway brake shoes and other related items.

The new plant will have 86,000 square feet of floor space.

The existing facilities at Asbestos are already considered among the largest in the world.

Florent Audette, director of the Montreal Construction Union, affiliated to the Confederation of National Trade Unions, said settlement "was made so quickly" that many contractors were caught unprepared.

After 139 hours of deliberation, negotiators for the Confederation of National Trade Unions and the Quebec Federation of Labor reached agreement with employer associations on the key issue of union stewards policing job sites.

After the issue was settled, union leaders urged their members to return to work while other contract issues continued to be negotiated.

The agreement provides that all unions or union groups have the right to appoint a steward on each work site where an employer has seven or more workers.

"We can't call it a total victory but it's better than nothing."

The federal subsidies were cut by the government's dairy bill passed last year which withholds subsidization from farmers who produce more than their allotted quotas.

Mr. Olsen was answering to objections to the dairy policy presented by representatives of the Union of Catholic farmers at a meeting in Richmond.

Mr. Olsen said the holdbacks are working favorably and cited government figures which indicate that the subsidy cuts are causing producers to adjust their production to more reasonable levels.

The entire question of subsidies for dairy farmers got a thorough going over during the evening as Mr. Olsen wound up explaining the government's policy twice in five hours.

Mr. Olsen was in Richmond at the invitation of the Richmond-Melbourne Board of Trade, who asked him to be guest speaker at their annual meeting at the Belle-View Golf Club last night.

However, the (UCC) heard of the meeting and telephoned the minister yesterday morning, requesting his presence at a meeting in Richmond's Catholic church later that evening.

Facing the Board of Trade, Mr. Olsen briefly outlined the current federal dairy policy and the reasoning behind it.

He said that the federal government is involved in the day-to-day operations of the industrial milk shippers - those who send their milk directly for processing into butter, skim milk powder and cheese - in two ways: by supporting the market price and by direct subsidies.

He said that while the question of subsidies is more controversial, the market support program is more significant "in relation to the total returns which dairy farmers get for milk."

The Canadian Dairy Commission buys dairy products during periods of high production and places them back on the market during low production periods, stabilizing the price and preventing wide seasonal fluctuations, he said.

However, he noted that the commission must also bear the cost of carrying these products until they are sold and must dispose of product surpluses to Canadian requirements on the international market at a considerable loss.

He concluded that "market support is a very worthwhile program and one which I don't think anyone in the industry would want to change - at least not very rapidly or suddenly."

Turning to the matter of subsidies, Mr. Olsen said the realization that the prices producers were getting for milk and cream were not high enough to give them a fair standard of living prompted the government to increase the support prices.

The result was that consumers bought less as the price went up, while producers, realizing they could sell everything they produced to the government, boosted production, creating an unwieldy surplus.

The answer to this was to replace higher market supports with direct subsidies, he said.

There is one proviso, he said. The government would only subsidize farmers up to the level of production determined by current market needs. Also, the cost of unloading produce surplus to the needs of the market must be borne by the producers themselves.

Market needs are set by means of "subsidy eligibility quotas."

In order to finance the disposal of surplus goods on the international market (at a loss), the government instituted a system of "holdbacks", subsidies withheld to cover the surplus.

Postal negotiations are still at stand-off

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations between the postal unions and the government appeared in a continuing deadlock Monday as both sides firmed up their bargaining positions outside the meeting room.

Union and government representatives refused to comment on progress made at Monday's morning and afternoon sessions. But the second absence in two days of the top union leaders from the bargaining table and a hard-stand statement by Treasury Board President C. M. Drury threw more light on the current status of the talks.

Mr. Drury said the government has a public mandate to resist the wage demands of the union.

Where people during the 1968 postal strike had urged the government to be less rigid in negotiations, "this time we've had people telling us that we should take away the right to strike, or to use troops or to use more firmness but no one has been telling us to be less rigid," he said in an interview.

The government's firmness on postal wage demands is supported by a public mandate to control inflation, Mr. Drury said. On the union side, William Houle, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, and Roger Decarie, president of the Letter Carriers Union, stayed away from the negotiation room Monday afternoon after meeting with government representatives in the morning.

During the first absence of Mr. Houle and Mr. Decarie, Sunday evening, union local leaders in Vancouver and Montreal reported receiving instructions from their Ottawa headquarters to send out strike directors across British Columbia and Quebec.

Arriving at Monday's morning session, the leaders would only say they had been tending to "union business" Sunday night. Their absence apparently came as a surprise to representatives of treasury board, the government bargaining agent.

Despite security wraps on the talks, treasury board spokesmen said agreement has been reached on most of the lesser issues in the contract. The remaining stumbling blocks are wages and job security, the crucial issues since contract negotiations started last September.

STRIKE IMMINENT
The union leaders are armed with a strike threat authorized by 60 per cent of their 27,000 members in a vote last Wednesday.

A conciliation board report early this month split three ways on the wage issue.

Vallieres granted bail pending bombing trial

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Vallieres, arrested in New York in 1966 on a variety of charges connected with Quebec terrorist bombings, has been granted bail pending trial on a manslaughter charge.

Mr. Justice Albert LeBlanc of Quebec Superior Court ruled Monday that the same $2,000 bail set earlier in a seditious case against Vallieres, also pending this fall, he applied in the manslaughter charge.

In addition, Vallieres must raise $5,000 for bail pending his appeal of an earlier manslaughter conviction and $500 while awaiting an appeal on a contempt of court conviction before he can leave prison.

Supporters of Vallieres, campaigning for more than two years for the release of Quebec's "political prisoners," could not provide the $7,500 immediately.

Vallieres, who did appear in court Monday, has been on a hunger strike for the last week, protesting earlier refusals of bail.

He will come to trial this fall on a charge of manslaughter in the bombing death of Jean Corbo, a teen-age member of the Front de Liberation Quebecois killed in 1966 when the bomb he was to place exploded in his hands.

Also facing Vallieres in a charge of seditious in connection with his book about French-Canadians entitled Les Negres Blanc d'Amerique—the White Negroes of America.

Alert constable corrals holdup suspect

SHERBROOKE — A 39-year-old East Angus resident will appear in court today to face two counts of armed robbery in connection with a holdup yesterday at a small Alexander St. jewelry store.

The suspect was picked up by police a scant four minutes after the holdup took place.

At exactly 5:29 p.m. yesterday, police received a phone call from the Belanger jewelry store informing them that an armed man had just held up the place and escaped with some money.

Police cars raced over to Alexander Street to find that the robber had disappeared.

Meanwhile, in a nearby patrol car, police Sergeant Leo Paquin, 27, was patrolling up on King St. near Gillespie when he spotted a suspect.

"He looked very suspicious, fitting the description of a man who early Sunday morning had staged a hold-up in an all-night lunch cart in downtown Sherbrooke," Sgt. Paquin said later.

His pistol in hand, Sgt. Paquin yelled at the suspect to stop.

"He made a move for something inside his coat pocket but I told him to stop or I would shoot him," he added.

Still alone, he disarmed the suspect and took him into custody.

At police headquarters, a target pistol lay on a shelf beside other objects confiscated during the arrest.

But police officials refused to reveal whether the pistol was loaded when the suspect was arrested.

Yesterday's late afternoon robbery towed in a small amount of money and a watch for the robber, while the robbery at Simms early Sunday morning netted an estimated $200 police said.

Late last night, Detective St. Bonneau said the suspect had a previous record for selling liquor illegally and had served two months in jail for it.

He added the suspect would be charged for both Sunday's early hold-up and yesterday's as well.

QUEBEC IN FOCUS

Spent $1M to move mail

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Eric Kierans reported Monday his department spent $1,036,295 in Montreal this spring for extra trucks, drivers and security guards to keep the mail moving during a bitter dispute with the regular truck drivers.

The figures were tabled in the Commons by the minister in response to written questions by Conservative postal critic Heath Macquarrie (Hillsborough).

Listed was $379,090 spent between Feb. 3 and April 30 for special protection units of two man security cars and $657,204 up to May 4 for new truckers and their assistants.

Mr. Kierans also reported that a further $1,054,967 has been spent to buy 439 delivery trucks as a result of a decision to take over the delivery system previously contracted out to private firms.

Until March 31, when the postal contract of the firm of G. Lapalme Inc. expired, there were a total of 310 trucks engaged in the service, the report stated. The Lapalme firm is among 10 from which the post office has since bought trucks.

Kidney patient recovering

MONTREAL (CP) — Ernest Edwin Locke, 22, of Jordan Bay, N.S. remained in satisfactory condition Monday following his kidney transplant operation last Thursday.

Dr. Jean-Guy Beaudoin, who assisted Dr. Lloyd MacLean in the operation at Royal Victoria Hospital, said Mr. Locke was progressing without complications.

Discuss health operations

QUEBEC (CP) — Marcel Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, and Norbert Rodrigue, president of the National Services Federation, met Monday with Health Minister Claude Castonguay to discuss the current situation in private Quebec hospitals.

Mr. Castonguay Friday agreed to meet with representatives of 50 private hospitals in an effort to avoid a strike set for May 31 by non-medical personnel.

In a brief presented to the minister, Mr. Pepin and Mr. Rodrigue said the working conditions in private institutions should not be inferior to those in public hospitals.

Humidify Indoor Air
To Help Avoid Dry Skin

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—For a long time, my son and I have had dry skin. Could it be caused by soap or some vitamin deficiency? What do you advise?

A—Dry skin is usually more of a problem in winter than in summer, especially in persons who fail to humidify the indoor air in cold weather. You should bathe in lukewarm (not hot) water and use very little soap.

Bathing twice a week rather than daily will help and, instead of rubbing yourself dry, use your towel to pat or fan yourself dry. A very thin coat of cold cream before retiring will help to prevent dryness. Vitamins A and B are essential for a healthy skin but it is doubtful that your dry skin is caused by a deficiency of these vitamins.

Q—I am a man, 21. I can't get a close shave. I've tried different kinds of blades and an electric shaver. When I shave, my skin gets red and flaky and hurts. What do you suggest?

A—You may have seborrheic dermatitis. Since an electric shaver will not irritate your skin, use it two or three times a day if necessary. Apply methasone valerate (Valisone) cream to the reddened areas once or twice a day and use a dandruff-removing shampoo two or three times a week.

Q—Would a cream that contains ammoniated mercury and natural estrogen be harmful to my skin?

Cowansville holds meeting

COWANSVILLE — Unit B, Church, inviting members and their husbands to hear a guest speaker, Mrs. Shipley at their May 20 meeting. The members enjoyed an interesting talk by Miss Hayes on a trip to Newfoundland, which she took a few years ago.

Miss Josie Hayes read a letter from the Leprosy Mission, expressing appreciation for stamps collected by members of the Unit. The Secretary read an invitation from the Ladies Guild of Dunham's All Saints Anglican

At the tea hour, the ladies enjoyed refreshments served in a spring-like atmosphere at the dining room table, decorated with spring flowers.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. B. Brown.

This summer go boating on a cushion of air

WINNIPEG (CP) — Small, versatile craft adaptable to both winter and summer use soon will float into the recreation market on a cushion of air.

Smooth-riding and year-round machines, they require only a cushion of air for a road, giving them a wide range of applications and making them a strong opponent of the power toboggan for the recreation dollar.

They are the Hoverhawk and Hoverhornet, two products of Hover-Air Limited of England, introduced recently in Canada for the first time.

The Hoverhornet is the smaller of the two, a one-seater selling for about $1,700 while the Hoverhawk seats two and costs in the neighborhood of $7,500.

Exclusive distributing rights in North America have been placed in the hands of H. C. Paul Ltd. of Winnipeg and indications are that the potential market for the hovercraft is promising.

"We feel the sales potential is excellent," said Bruce Marshall, general marketing manager for H. C. Paul.

"We don't feel we can disclose the results of our sales projection study but there is a strong market particularly in recreation."

PLANS OUTLINED

The appointment of H. C. Paul as the North American distributor was announced in Winnipeg recently along with plans for training programs and distribution.

Mr. Marshall said his company, distributors for a number of power products, will establish dealerships from "a large number of applications already received."

These dealerships will be trained in the operation of the machines so they can conduct demonstrations of their own.

Initially, the manufacturer will conduct training programs in the operation of the vehicles in Winnipeg. The trainees then will be dispatched to other areas to give instruction.

The hovercraft are powered by two cycle gasoline engines selected to withstand low or high temperatures and some models will reach speeds of 45 miles an hour on land and 35 on water.

Both are amphibious and the Hoverhornet is light enough to be transported on the roof of a car.

In addition to the propulsion engines, each has a lift fan which creates the cushion of air.

The Hovercraft is a little over eight feet long and 41 inches high and weighs 150 pounds. It hovers six inches off the ground, reaches 40 miles an hour on land and uses about one gallon of fuel an hour.

The Hoverhawk, on the other hand, measures more than 15 feet in length, four feet, seven inches high, and hovers about 10 inches off the ground.

COST LOOKS HIGH

The cost may be out of reach for many, but Mr. Marshall says a number of things have to be taken into account.

"We feel we have a vehicle that truly is a year-round machine," he said. "A person doesn't have to have a power toboggan and a boat and who knows what else. It's all in one."

In England, where the machines were introduced, HoverAir is the only company to have the smaller hovercraft licensed by the Air Registration Board.

There are no regulations concerning operation of the vehicles other than safety standards set by the government.

Similarly, there are no regulations in Canada governing them but Mr. Paul said federal legislation is coming.

City Report

By RICHARD SPALDING

SHERBROOKE — South Ward Ald. Romeo Bergeron urged council last night to "eliminate peddlers and call in professionals" to do repair work for the city.

Mr. Bergeron, mechanical engineer by profession, was indignant during last night's council meeting when reports were received concerning repairs done to the roof of the arena last year.

Last night's outburst by the South Ward alderman is one of many Mr. Bergeron has made recently over the qualifications and competence of independent firms handling building repairs for the city.

Referring back to last summer, East Ward Ald. Gerard Deziel replied that during the time the city called for tenders for the roof repairs, "no tenders were received from the expert roof coverers."

Stressing the issue a little further, West Ward Ald. Tony Pinard added "Engineers last summer said these 'peddlers' were fit for the job."

South Ward Ald. Carl Camirand asked council last night to clamp down on jay walking in the city.

"It's a real shame," he said, "to see all those people walking across the streets without the slightest measure of personal safety."

A circulation technician is included in the plans for next year, Deziel told council last night.

Sherbrooke Chief of Police Edouard Moreau continued his campaign against recommendations contained in a report released by city engineer J. P. Lavoie.

Mr. Lavoie asked that the stop sign located in front of 358 10th Ave. be removed to provide parking space for a jeweler operating there.

The stop sign stands in front of an amusement park and is located there for the safety of children.

City manager Richard Fabi said last night a proposal by the city of Magog to build a large garbage incinerator would be too expensive for the city.

The letter asked the city of Sherbrooke if it would be interested in sharing the cost of the incinerator.

"It would be too expensive for Sherbrooke to cater its garbage 25 miles away when disposal sites were readily available."

Streets "a rotten shame" Council raps local street repair program

SHERBROOKE — East Ward Ald. Romeo Quintal last night asked council to adopt greater concern for the condition of streets in the city. Mr. Quintal, chairman of the Public Works Committee, told council the allotted $125,000 budget figure for road repairs would be exhausted in a few weeks.

"We're spending an estimated

$20,000 a week on street repairs," the alderman said, "with five crews working around the clock."

Asked to account for the terrible conditions of some streets, Mr. Quintal replied that the crews are concentrating on streets with a heavy traffic rate.

During last week's repair operations, Mr. Quintal pointed out that the men in his department had only been able to work for two days because of inclement weather.

North Ward Ald. Luc Lamoureux questioned his colleague's competence in regard to the overall plan he had implemented in dealing with the street repairs.

Mr. Lamoureux asked if there had been any prior organization by the public works department before work crews thronged the streets of Sherbrooke with asphalt.

To add to the unpopular issue, Carl Camirand, the dean of aldermen said that street conditions in the city are terrible and "a rotten shame."

Furthermore, Mr. Camirand suggested the city end the street dilemma and spend the necessary amount of money to repair the streets once and for all.

The tone of urgency in Mr. Camirand's statement prompted aldermen into giving serious

Industrial leaders present provincial economic plan

A strategy for the economic development of Quebec which sets "reasonable and desirable" objectives to be reached by 1976, and recommends a comprehensive series of steps to achieve them, yesterday was handed Prime Minister Robert Bourassa at a meeting of the General Council of Industry of Quebec.

The 81-page document, supported by original charts, graphs and tables, was prepared by the Council for Quebec by a group of economists on loan from member firms. The team, which delivered its report in April, was headed by N.S. Takacs of Greenshields Inc., and Louis Riopel of Canadian Pacific.

Paul A. Outmet, Q.C., president and director general of the Council — a group of 58 of Quebec's leading business figures who volunteer their services to the province — remarked that the report represents "a basic document which should influence economic policies over the medium term."

Main objectives of the strategy presented Prime Minister Bourassa, who was accompanied by Gerard D. Levesque, minister of industry and commerce and Claude Simard, minister without portfolio to industry and commerce, include:

— A 30 per cent rise in the standard of living of the Quebec population;

— Lowering of the unemployment rate to between four and four-and-a-half per cent, together with the creation of employment opportunities to absorb the expected increase in the labor force and — The reduction of regional disparities.

Stressing that a determined effort by all segments of Quebec society will be needed to attain these goals — "there are neither magic formulae, nor short cuts, which might enable Quebec to reach its economic goals in a quick, simple and painless fashion" — the authors of the strategy said they felt the objectives were "moderately ambitious but attainable."

Expressions of confidence that these targets can be reached run through the study.

Their attainment will call for a volume of private and public capital expenditure equal to about 23 per cent of Quebec's Gross Product — $5.7 billion a year or $40 billion over the next seven years leading to the creation of 72,000 new jobs a year or a total of about 500,000 by 1976.

Part of the report is devoted to pinpointing Quebec's present economic position. Noting that Quebec forms "an integral part of the Canadian — indeed the broader North American — economy", the study places the province's economic future in the context of developments in the North American and world economy.

Lower voting age wise

Comparatively little protest appears to have been generated over amendments to the Canada Elections Act which would give Canadians aged eighteen the right to vote in federal elections, as compared with the present limit of twenty-one.

This follows the practice established in Quebec province during the elections of 1966 and the results of the lowered voting age in this province could account for the reluctance of federal politicians to oppose the proposed federal changes.

Certainly the outcome of the April 29 vote in this province fails to indicate any massive desire on the part of the young people for a concentrated youth power. It is doubtful if the results in any constituency were changed by the massing of the youth for any particular party.

Lowering of the voting age recognizes the indisputable fact that young people, generally, become sophisticated at an earlier age today than was the case as recently as a mere decade ago. However, sophistication is not synonymous with wisdom or maturity.

But the change can be regarded as constructive if it encourages more young people to participate in the democratic process from within the established political system instead of sniping at it from outside.

There are no hard and fast rules which can be applied in the final analysis to establish age qualifications for voting.

The age of maturity varied according to class in early England for example. The general rule was that a peasant's son reached maturity at the age of fifteen. A merchant's son reached that exalted state when he could count pence and measure cloth. Only the sons of knights had to wait until twenty-one. They were not considered strong enough until then to ride in heavy armor and wield lances as well.

Eventually, twenty-one became the age of majority for all, as English law was gradually brought into line with that governing upper classes.

What was practical for one age is not necessarily so for another.

The rule today seems to be that if you are old enough to grow a beard you are old enough to vote. Since armor has gone out of fashion, perhaps this rule is as good as any.

But, what about the feminine voters?

How not to run business

The much-discussed report of the Auditor-General of Canada contains many instances of decidedly bad management on the part of various Crown agencies, among them the six Queen's Printer bookshops operated by the government across Canada. Over-stocking may be a mild term for some of the practices uncovered by Mr. Henderson and his staff.

For instance, the Auditor-General says that of 4,800 copies of Fishes of the Atlantic Coast, printed in January, 1967, fully 3,705 remain on hand with a retail value of $31,000.

Rideau Hall, An Illustrated History of Government House, became available in June 1967 with a press run of 8,000 copies and a retail price of $12. 7,000 remain on hand.

Flora of Manitoba — plants, not a Scottish lady, is a 600-page book printed in 1957. There were 1,283 copies on hand in 1965 and there are still 1,150 copies in stock.

Stocks of photographic slides bought in Europe with good Canadian dollars, sporting titles like Egypt — Paintings From the Tombs and Temples and Toulouse Lautrec, are still on hand to the tune of 8,913 sets with a retail value of $38,000.

In two years the Queen's Printer bookshops sold only 100 sets of slides of Canada's Parliament and they still have 1,500 sets on hand with a retail value of $9,000. The present value of books and slides on hand is slightly over $7,000,000.

What a way to run a business.

The Happy Middle Ground Must Be

Nixon a loner on decisions

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)

What we have been looking at in the past few weeks—probably more clearly than ever before in his long public career—is the purest Richard Nixon.

I mean to say much more by that than simply to endorse the President's own televised assertion, backed up by the findings of diligent reporters, that he alone made the decision to send troops into Cambodia to assault Red sanctuaries.

There is nothing new at all about U.S. presidents making basically military decisions or operating as their own secretaries of state. They know, and commonly accept, that the big burden of judgment is theirs.

What is possibly unique about Richard Nixon is not his heavily stressed reliance upon his own judgment but the magnitude of his distrust in others.

One reason so much has been made of his seeming dependence upon the advice of Attorney General John Mitchell is that he is one of the few in Nixon's hierarchy who could be detected in any kind of continuing relationship with the President.

But I have it from a closely attuned Nixon-watcher that Mitchell's role in key decisions of many sorts probably has been grossly overplayed and that the attorney general almost surely was telling it straight when he told some students he had little to do with the Cambodia decision.

None of this means Nixon does not consult. Of course, he confers with military and foreign policy advisers, though probably with far fewer than some presidents have done. But the evidence is that their judgments have a much smaller place in the "final mix" than might be the case with someone other than Nixon.

Surely this whole town—and by now the nation—knows that the President keeps not only his good friend, Secretary of State William Rogers, in the dark on impending decisions, but a wide range of lesser, yet important, foreign affairs specialists.

Absolutely astounding is the word that Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird, on the eve of the announcement, was unaware the President was about to fix a 150,000 troop withdrawal figure for next day. This is far more revealing than the evidence that Laird expressed reservations about the Cambodian undertaking. For Laird has long been presumed to be in intimate understanding with the President on the political necessity for troop withdrawals and a winding down of our role in Vietnam.

When confidences are not exchanged at the crucial moment of decision, it suggests more than some notion about a need for "secrecy." It suggests the President's unwillingness to test his judgment in the still smoldering fires of doubt among his aides.

Here his much-advertised penchant for "working isolation" has a major bearing.

It is easy to pass off his habit of sequestering himself with yellow pad and pencil as a wise means of buying "think time," and to argue that Americans could not care less how he works so long as the results are productive in the fields of policy and action.

But one perceptive Nixonite believes, and he is persuasive, that Nixon uses the "isolation" device to wall himself off from the emotional content which may infuse the judgments of people he might see in person. He wants to weigh their arguments coldly from a sheet of paper.

Is there a paradox in this? I seem to be saying he distrusts the judgments of others, yet fears to hear them because they might be persuasive.

Both things, I think, may well be true. The President unmistakably believes he has "strong points"—a grasp of foreign affairs is one, of politics another. Moreover, he wants to be perceived by the nation and the world as strong, not weak.

Nevertheless, in the view of at least a few of his associates and watchers, Nixon has a shaky, soft inner core. Even as he distrusts astonishingly the judgments of others, he distrusts his own capacity to resist them in personal confrontation. So he has set a new record for not talking to his cabinet—and many within the White House itself.

And from this shakiness, deep-rooted, comes a strange blend of boldness and caution which plagues him now more than ever in his public life.

MATTER OF FACT
JOSEPH ALSOP

The new ball game

WASHINGTON —At the risk of being overly personal, the recent exchange between Sen. Edward Kennedy and this reporter requires a footnote. The trouble is that with all decency, all his eloquence, all his normal good sense, all his normal good sense, the senator has altogether missed the key point.

The key point is that we are now in an altogether new ball game, quite different from the first quarter-century of the cold war and very much more dangerous. This is the real meaning of the Soviet take-over of the main air defense of Egypt, with Russian flyers, Russian technicians and Russian ground troops.

We are in an altogether new ball game for two reasons. First, the Soviets have never before committed their troops to a military adventure beyond the recognized borders of the Soviet empire. You can argue that the Cuban missile crisis might have ended with an exception to this rule; but it would have been a mighty unpleasant exception!

Second, the Soviets have never before sought to extend their empire's borders in any important way. By all kinds of methods in all kinds of places, from Korea to Cuba, they have tried to make trouble for the United States and to promote the Communist cause. Until now, however, they have not attempted direct expansion of their own zone of power. But they are doing it now.

The Soviet purpose has not been understood because of the galloping self-deception now being practiced in much of the State Department, in large sectors of the intelligence community and, above all, among the liberal intellectuals. Israel's existence, it is repeatedly said, "really helps the Soviets," by giving them leverage with the Arabs.

That was true for a couple of years after the Six-Day War; but it is now hogwash. The Soviets are playing for much bigger stakes than a mere gain of leverage with the Egyptians or Syrians. They are now playing for the entire Middle East, which they will surely win if Israel is beaten to her knees, or is actually destroyed with Soviet help.

If that happens, the Arab states that still retain links with the West will go down like so many ninepins. Soviet power will be the only kind of power in the whole of the Middle East.

The Arabs, to be sure, may not be reduced to the subject-status of the unhappy Czechs—or, at any rate, not right away. But with any power but Soviet power excluded from the Middle East, the Kremlin's heavy hand will be on the oil-tap, on which the economic life of Japan and Western Europe still very largely depends. The possibilities of blackmail will be almost limitless.

The stakes in the game, in sum, are more than big enough to justify the quite new kinds of risks the Soviets are running. As far as these new kinds of risks are concerned, moreover, the Vietnamese war has nothing to do with the case.

The wiser Soviet experts are agreed that there are two reasons why the Soviets have started a new ball game. One is the sheer enormity of the opportunity in the Middle East—if only the United States will stand aside, while Israel is in fact beaten to her knees or finally destroyed with Soviet help.

The other reason is the abrupt decline of the American nuclear margin, from five-to-one superiority in President Kennedy's time to less than parity today. Anyone could foresee that such a decline of our margin would lead to a Soviet recalculation of risks; indeed, this reporter repeatedly predicted it. And it has now occurred, with dire results.

Where the Vietnamese war does enter is by its encouragement of a kind of self-indulgent lunacy among the liberal intellectuals. They talk, nowadays, as though the cold war were no worse than a bad cold—and a bad cold, at that, which the world caught from Dean G. Acheson. They argue that the right way to deal with dreadful dangers is to wish they were not there.

They forget that in the Soviet Union they are facing a government whose civilian leaders actively and unanimously collaborated, in the terror years before 1939, in Josef Stalin's cold-blooded extermination of 20 million fellow citizens. In sum, the liberal intellectuals' world view is compounded of ignorance, vanity and total unreality.

As to the Nixon Administration, its Middle Eastern policy to date has been shockingly pusillanimous. This is where the Administration has really done wrong; yet it has been almost entirely immune from attack, thus far, because such an attack would demand an admission from the liberal intellectuals that they have also been dead wrong in their view of the world.

Mail call

THE
COLUMN

WASHINGTON — If anyone has any doubts that this country is uptight, he should read the mail that's pouring into the newspapers, television stations, networks and politicians' offices. Not since I proved conclusively that there was no such person as J. Edgar Hoover (I said he had been invented by The Reader's Digest) have I received so many letters from people wanting to give their opinions of "the situation".

The mail breaks down something like this:

Those who agree with what I have been saying have been writing highly intelligent, pithy letters and indicate they represent the same true honest American spirit that has made this country great.

Those who disagree with me have written idiotic missives that are pointless, repetitious and disappointing in content. One can only gather that the people who have taken issue with me are bigoted, narrow-minded and are unable to grasp the "big picture."

There seems to be a trend these days, when writing a letter, to send copies of it to 10 other people at the same time. For example, I am receiving copies of dozens of letters that people have sent to President Nixon. I feel embarrassed reading these letters because I'm certain President Nixon hasn't read the originals, and I hate to read his mail before he does.

The obscenity court, both from the extreme right and extreme left, is up 23 percent since the Nixon Administration took over.

The four-letter word has come into its own and the sexual act now precedes the name of any person in the public eye.

You can usually tell how worked up a country is by how many letters you receive from people who write on the envelopes after they seal them. Lately this percentage has reached a new high. It doesn't bother me too much, but it's been really shaking up my mailman.

In a recent survey, CBS discovered that less than 50 percent of the American people believed in the Bill of Rights. I can confirm their survey. The solutions that people have for dissenters in this country are as follows:

"All blacks should be sent back to Africa." All students should be sent to Vietnam; "All liberals should be sent to Russia." and "All protesters should be sent to jail."

I have discovered that there is a shortage of writing paper in the United States and more and more people are scrawling their thoughts on the newspaper itself and sending it in. Also many people are saving money by signing one letter with six or seven signatures. I don't mind this but I'm hard put to know which person deserves an answer.

These are the conclusions that can be made from my mail.

More and more people are taking an interest in what is going on in the world and getting involved.

This is a very dangerous thing because you can't have a democracy if everyone wants to participate.

The Silent Majority is not now and never has been silent. Educated people can't spell. This is particularly true of students and secretaries who take dictation.

People who enjoyed humorous articles about President Johnson find nothing funny when someone makes light of President Nixon.

Spiro Agnew's fans are legion. Martha Mitchell has her own following. Editors do not see any humor in mail from their readers about anything.

BERRY'S WORLD

"The thing that burned me up was when Nixon referred to campus revolutionaries as 'BUMS'."

Boom in campus broadcasting spreads

Ambitious students from Newfoundland to British Columbia are eager to prove to sometimes skeptical audiences that campus broadcasting operations are more than "toy radio."

Of more than 40 campus operations checked in a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press, at least 16 have sprung into operation since 1965. All but a handful are closed-circuit systems but many plan applications to the Canadian Radio and Television Commission for on-the-air licences.

Annual operating expenses run from a few hundred dollars to an expenditure like the $32,000 spent by the Saskatoon campus of the University of Saskatchewan, which operates one of the few on-air stations at present.

Ottawa University claims the only "carrier current" system in Canada. This broadcast method employs AC power lines, and listeners can plug their radios into sockets and pick up the station within 200 feet of the campus building.

USE PRO EQUIPMENT

The students are initiating radio almost entirely on their own and doing it with professional ability—and more or less with professional equipment.

Lorne Richtman, promotion director of the campus radio station at York University, Toronto, explains the successes of the student operations this way:

"We are winning students because we are motivated by enthusiasm rather than money."

Some students say the boom in campus broadcasting seems to be part of what they call a communications trend, and is due partially to the increase in community colleges.

"They are reducing the communications gap," said one Ontario student, "and that should make Marshall McLuhan very happy."

Queen's University and the University of Alberta claim to be the veterans of Canadian campus radio, both having made their debut in the 1920s. The on-campus operation at the University of British Columbia started in 1938.

The newest stations include those at the University of Guelph, St. Mary's University at Halifax, the University of Prince Edward Island and Mount Allison University at Sackville, N.B.—all of which started in the last year.

SELLS AIR TIME

The majority of the campus stations receive most of their operating expenses from university student councils or similar organizations. About 75 per cent of them carry commercials. Varsity radio, at the University of Toronto, is one of the major carriers of commercials and must sell $6,000 worth of them annually.

Some like the freedom of a non-commercial operation.

Brian Devereux, 21, of Sydney, N.S., program director at St. Francis Xavier University, says:

"We don't have to worry about commercials, so we can be tremendous experimenters. Commercial radio doesn't have time for this. They have to please an audience and we don't."

But the format of the university radio operations, for the greater part, follows closely the pattern of the larger commercial stations.

Music and news, with a campus slant, mark the programming on most stations, with rock music by far the most widely accepted sound in music.

The Regina campus of the University of Saskatchewan used the professional technique of conducting a survey to determine their choice in music.

"We ran a survey to determine what people like," said Don MacKenzie, station director of the university radio station. "The music they liked seemed to be mostly rock, blues and folk. We attempted newscasts but they didn't go over too well."

HEAVY ON SPORTS

Another feature of the campus stations is the frequent broadcasting of student sporting events.

Bob Summers, chairman of Ottawa University's radio station, said: "Our sports department broadcasts hockey and football games on the campus, and in some instances, when the team has reached the playoffs, we telephone play-by-play broadcasts from other areas."

One station that prides itself on its news coverage of campus events is the radio station at Memorial University, St. John's, Nfld.

Randy Earle, station manager, says he doesn't want their news coverage to become "a rip-and-read operation"—one that relies almost entirely on material from outside sources that can be read as is. For this reason he urges his staff to give campus events top priority in news coverage.

Steve Assaly, 21, of Montreal, an announcer at Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S., said that "as a news medium we try to tie it in with the campus newspaper."

He said the station provides "great training for the staff" and "entertainment for the kids on campus."

Tom Taschuk, a fourth-year electrical engineering student and station manager for CKSR at the University of Alberta, said the value of the station is that "universities as large as they are now can't provide cohesiveness, and the stations help."

"We bring students a little closer to one another and to the academic community that is the essence of the university."

BETTER THAN PAPER

He said it is a better communicator than the student newspaper.

"We can get the news to the student at once rather than several days later," he said.

Announcer Ron Mertens of the University of Ottawa said: "The station is another means of communication on the campus—we're just trying to get them aware of what's happening here."

The more complex on-air stations now operating include Ryerson's CJRT, Queen's University's CFRC and CJUS-FM at the Saskatoon campus of the University of Saskatchewan.

Station CKUA was a student operation when the University of Alberta administration applied for and got a commercial licence. It has since been taken over by Alberta Government Telephones, although the licence is still owned by the university.

SHERBROOKE HOSPITAL ALUMNAE

The Sherbrooke Hospital Alumnae Association held its monthly meeting recently at the Norton Residence. Mrs. Erwin Watson, first vice-president conducted the meeting with 21 members in attendance.

Mrs. Watson thanked Miss Helen Litowsky and her committee for their efforts in making the graduation banquet a success and for her work in distributing the raffle books.

A discussion ensued as to future banquets and dances. Mrs. James Atto noted that next year marks the 75th anniversary of the Sherbrooke Hospital School of Nursing and the 50th anniversary of the Alumnae Association. Due to the fact the last nursing class graduates in 2 years, some members felt that a large reunion should be held at that time. It was moved by Mrs. Atto and seconded by Mrs. Frances Whittle that the executive study this problem and appoint a committee to start working on it.

It was decided that another letter be sent to the administration inquiring for a room in the residence in which to hold alumnae meetings and to keep records when it ceases to be a nursing residence.

Miss Jean MacMillan drew the winning number for the $50 bond. The winner was Miss Helen Litowsky, nurse at the hospital.

Mrs. Watson then bade farewell to Miss Marjory Beckwith, a fellow alumnae member, who is leaving to continue her work among the people in Angola. A gift was presented to her by Mrs. Ernest Taylor on behalf of those present.

Delicious refreshments were then served by the hostesses, Mrs. James Atto, Miss Nancy Cullen and Miss Priscilla Biffin.

The doorprize was won by Mrs. Gerald Brvant.

TRINITY UCW

Trinity United Church Women held their regular monthly meeting in the church parlor on Court St. on May 19th, with Mrs.

Eric Fuller presiding. The treasurer reported on the recent successful spring tea and sale. Letters of thanks were read for flowers and one from the Cecil Butters Home for used clothing.

Mrs. W. Hodge, welfare convener, stated that more clothing would be appreciated. Mrs. J. Wright reported that 109 visits were made to sick and shut-ins during the past month. Members were advised to contact the treasurer, Mrs. L. Humphries, if they could attend the annual UCW Summer meeting at McDonald College from August 17th to 19th.

Mrs. W. E. Hodge circulated the collectors' books for the Canadian Bible Society campaign. Canvassers will be completing their visits shortly.

Ladies of other United Churches were present to hear Miss Frances Walbridge, missionary returned from Angola and will be returning to the Congo after her furlough. Miss Walbridge has been a missionary in the educational field in Angola for twenty-eight years. She gave a very interesting and informative talk on the situation of the church and life of the African people, accompanied by colored slides. Mrs. M. Fuller and Mrs. W. E. Hodge introduced and thanked the speaker respectively.

Mrs. J. Burnell led the devotional period based on the thought, If Jesus came to visit at your house.

Mrs. L. Thomson made an appeal for homes during the next school year for the 140 students from North Shore Quebec and Labrador who have been accepted to attend Alexander Galt Regional High School.

The next regular meeting will be in September. Mrs. B. Hyatt, Mrs. F. Doyle and Mrs. H. S. Robinson were the hostesses for the evening.

Showers in the Townships

STANSTEAD — Mrs. Lindsay Black was the guest of honor at a stork shower at the home of Mrs. Hector Channell, attended by several friends.

Mrs. Black, her mother, Mrs. Arnold McVay of Ayer's Cliff, and mother-in-law, Mrs. William Black of Stanstead were each presented with unique corsages in pastel stork colors, made by Mrs. Richard Hilliker, the co-hostess. They were made of plastic flowers centered with tulle on which reposed a wee baby doll.

The expectant mother was assisted in opening the gifts by the expectant grandmothers. There were many lovely and useful items including blankets and knits.

Debbie thanked everyone for their thoughtfulness.

Mrs. Channell and Mrs. Hilliker, assisted by others, served afternoon tea. The stork cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Clyde Curtis, was in white with stork decor. It was cut and served by Debbie.

Guests attended from Newport, Ayer's Cliff, Granville, Candiac and Boundary Villages.

Mr. Wade Ross and Miss Susan

Searles of Kitchener, Ontario, were honored guests on May 16th when approximately 50 relatives gathered at the home of the groom-to-be parents for a Jack and Jill shower. Miss Cathy Ross presented Miss Searles with a corsage of carnations.

Following the opening of gaily wrapped gifts including blankets, china, linen and corning ware, the happy couple thanked everyone. The guests all signed a special bride's book, a gift of Mrs. E. Taylor.

Refreshments were served with Mrs. Charles Ross, Mrs. Stanley Logan and Mrs. Willard Ross. The lovely double ring shower cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Charles Ross.

Guests were from Kitchener, North Bay, Montreal, Thetford Mines, Baldwin Mills, Bury, Cookshire, Broughton, Waterville, Lennoxville and Sherbrooke.

In year-old decline

Stock market continues to take beating

Canadian stock markets took a beating Monday in the continuation of a decline that started more than a year ago.

The plunge followed that at New York where the Dow Jones index, traditional measure of stock market health, had its sharpest loss in 6½ years.

The Toronto Stock Exchange industrial index had its heaviest single-day decline in seven years and Montreal's industrial measure hit a three-year low.

Economists and analysts offered a variety of reasons, but there appeared to be general agreement that the market hasn't hit bottom.

In Ottawa Finance Minister Edgar Benson said he was not alarmed by the sharp decline in the markets because "I think there is an underlying strength in the Western economies."

"Nobody likes to see the markets going down, including me," he said in an interview.

U.S. DRAGS CANADA
Mr. Benson said the Canadian markets were being dragged down in sympathy with United States markets.

He listed the Southeast Asia war, continuing price inflation in the U. S. and last week's announcement that an anticipated surplus in the U. S. federal budget had turned into a deficit as reasons for American market declines.

Dr. James Gillies, dean of the faculty of administrative studies at York University in Toronto, said he sees a "Continuing decline for some time."

"There is no reason to be optimistic," he said.

Other analysts predicted a decline in the Dow Jones to 540 or even 525 from Monday's 641.36. Some expected sharp swings—perhaps equal to 100 Dow Jones points—in a volatile market before the start of a general recovery.

ALL SECTIONS HIT
The decline was general, hitting all sections of the market.

At Toronto, losses outnumbered gains 483 to 66; at Montreal it was 197 against 23.

Of the 36 most-active industrials, mines and oils on the Toronto and Montreal exchanges, not one showed an increase. The losing industrials read like a list of bluechips: Imperial Oil, International Nickel, Albitibi Paper, Bell Canada, Home Oil.

Dr. Gillies said the stock market is always a better indicator of expectations than reality—and people in the United States are in a nervous state over the economy—and over the state of the social structure.

"But it is not devastating," he said. "I don't see another 1919."

The Toronto analyst who said he couldn't see the end of the drop said he thought it had hit bottom last Friday.

ROUGH AGAIN TODAY
"But with a 20-point drop in New York Monday, it means there will be margin calls and the market probably is in for another rough day Tuesday," he said.

A Montreal analyst said the market is over-reaching because of general pessimism from investors who have already lost considerable money.

"We are seeing a lot of irrationality right now and this has usually signalled a bottoming out in the past. The downward pressure is mainly technical as a result of short covering, margin calls and the like."

Another Montreal analyst said he doubts a severe depression will occur.

"Because of investor psychology, the market tends to reflect what investors expect the economy to do. In this sense the market is saying things will get worse before they get better. If we get back to fundamentals, the economy and the market should improve over the next year or two."

WEST IS QUIET
A spokesman for the Vancouver exchange said "the market is quiet and there is no reason to expect an improvement in the next little while."

In Ottawa, C. M. Drury, treasury board president, said public concern about inflation, increased by the stock market slide, will mean the government will have wide support in the event of a postal strike.

The Toronto industrial index dropped 6.09 points Monday to 145.28. It ranged between 164.25 and 198.77 during 1969 and closed at 186.37. A year ago on Monday, May 26 the index dropped 0.07 during the day to 197.77.

In New York, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks plunged 20.51 points to 641.36. The average has not been as low since Dec. 18, 1962, when it closed at 640.14.

On Nov. 22, 1963, the day President Kennedy was assassinated, the average plunged 21.16 points.

In the last 17 months the Dow average has lost more than 323 points.

Declines outpaced advances by more than 1,200 issues.

HERE & THERE

LENNOXVILLE — Lennoxville Sea Rangers, Senior Girl Guides have opened a second-hand book shop, in back of the library on the corner of Queen and Belvidere Sts.

At one of two book sales during the past year, a first edition of Hemmingway was sold for 50 cents. The estimated value is $12.

Partly to serve the community, proceeds from the sales also will benefit three members, two who are travelling to Mexico this summer and one going out West. A sea ranger group, members also hope to eventually buy a sail boat.

The Sea Rangers welcome donations of books.

Obituaries

HOMER G. GARDNER, OF MANSONVILLE.

The death of Homer Gardner occurred at the Waterbury Hospital, after a lengthy illness, on Saturday, April 18, 1970. He was born February 28, 1881, the only son of Charles Gardner and his wife, Leora Rollins. With the exception of two years, one spent in California, and the other in Fort William, his whole life was spent in the vicinity of Owl's Head.

On May 18, 1907, he married Miriam James and of this union eight children were born, of these children, a son, James, died at the age of two years, and a daughter, Bernice (Mrs. K.R. Moore) died May 11, 1951.

Left to mourn his death are his wife, four sons, Robert, Haydensville, Mass.; Orrin, North Hatley; Lyle, Dunkin, and Maurice, who resides on the home farm at Owl's Head; two daughters, Flora, Mrs. Clifton Jersey, Mansonville, and Miriam, Mrs. George Vines, North Troy, Vt., also 13 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

The funeral was held at the C. E. Wilson and Son Funeral Chapel, Mansonville, Rev. J.H.M. Brett of Sutton officiated. Burial was in the family lot in the Owl's Head Cemetery.

The bearers were six grandsons, Robert Gardner, Jr., Murray Gardner, Stanley Gardner, Graydon Gardner, Sydney Jersey and Gary Vines.

Those from a distance who attended were from Sherbrooke, North Hatley, Rock Island, Beebe, Newport and North Troy, Vt., Melbourne, Haydensville and Williamsburg, Mass.

MRS. NELSON THOMPSON OF SUTTON

SUTTON — The death of Mrs. Nelson G. Thompson of Sutton, occurred at the Brome - Missisquoi - Perkins Hospital on Monday, April 27, 1970, after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Thompson, the former Ruth Lewis, born July 17, 1917, was the only daughter of the late Proctor M. and Mrs. Lewis of Sutton. She was married to Mr. Nelson G. Thompson, Sutton on June 20, 1936.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband, two daughters, Carolyn (Mrs. Garey Haynes), Montreal, and Nancy, Mrs. Claude Mireault, her mother, Mrs. Annie Lewis, a brother, Merlin Lewis, as well as several other relatives.

Mrs. Thompson was an ardent worker in Calvary United Church, having served as an elder and member of the choir, as well as the Evening Group of the U.C.W.

The funeral service was held April 29, conducted by Rev. K.A. Thomson in Calvary United Church, following prayers at C. E. Wilson's Funeral Home on Mountain Street, with interment in Fairmount Cemetery.

The bearers were Cecil Gilbert, Douglas Mudgett, Murray O'Regan, Cecil Proper, Loren Sherr and Edward Vogel.

Relatives from out of town who attended the funeral were from Ottawa, Chateaugay, Montreal, Sherbrooke, Waterloo and Cowansville.

Just a few sales per week and you're laughing at the salary concept, because you're in the upper income bracket.

Our way must be proving right for we have over 900 contented commission salespeople. They're with us only because they're making big money.

Our internationally renowned company spends millions of dollars annually for qualified leads. In addition to our comprehensive benefits including major medical and life insurance. Bonuses too.

If you're a real salesman you shouldn't fail to check us out. We're on the New York Stock Exchange. You've seen our ads in Look, Reader's Digest, TV, etc., as Famous Schools. Famous Artists, Famous Writers and the Famous Photographers' Schools. We offer America's most distinguished faculty in choosing: Norman Rockwell, Jon Wainwright, Rod Serling, Bennett Cerf, Faith Baldwin, Richard Avedon, Bert Stern etc. The ideal man is over 25, owns a car, and can do some traveling and must be bilingual. East Angus UCW donates to Sherbrooke Hospital

EAST ANGUS - The United Church Women of East Angus held its meeting in the church hall on May 12 with an attendance of 14 members. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. F. Gaulin and devotional period conducted by Mrs. C. Damon.

The treasurer, Mrs. F. Mackenzie, gave the financial report showing a favorable bank balance. It was voted to give $10 to the Sherbrooke Hospital Financial Campaign.

Mrs. A. Currie and Mrs. Janet Stevenson, convener of the wool committee, reported they had enough wool for the present.

Mrs. Gaulin thanked the ladies who had served two meals for the recent meeting of the Quebec - Sherbrooke Presbytery, held in Emmanuel United Church.

For the program, Rev. G. Lohhorst presented three resolutions pertaining to situations in the church for the ladies to discuss in three groups.

He later obtained answers from the groups and held a discussion on these with the members.

A picnic lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. F. Gaulin, Mrs. L. Kinnear and Mrs. F. Mackenzie.

Discussion on drugs arranged by Bedford young people

BEDFORD - On May 15 in the Youth Dungeon an interesting discussion was held on drugs. The evening was organized by the young people themselves.

Jean Claude Lalonger, of the Federal Ministry of Health, gave an informative talk on drugs. He was introduced by Jacques Coderre.

Mr. Lalonger stated that Canada was a member country of the Drug Pact signed in 1961 at Geneva for international control of drugs, therefore, has to abide by rules and regulations of the agreement. The Ministry of Health sees these rules as enforced to control use of drugs in Canada, also to inform the public about the dangers of misuse. There are three main drugs and their derivatives, controlled under the agreement, cocaine, opium and marijuana.

A licence is required to import these drugs, as well as a licence by the exporting country, so there is a cross reference to see that the same amount of drugs reach the importer, as left the exporter, and none is lost or stolen. Also a record is kept of all drugs sold to hospitals and druggists, who must keep individual drug registers, stating where every small quantity of the drug is sold or disposed of, in this way drugs are kept from the illegal trade.

Canada is the first country in the world to have national control of amphetamines and barbiturates. The same type of register is kept for these drugs as for the hard drugs mentioned. It is hoped to extend control internationally as more countries develop stricter controls.

Opium is one of the hard drugs. People develop a tolerance for it, and require larger and larger doses. A psychological as well as a physical dependence is built up. There are several clinics across Canada for the treatment of addicts, but are not very successful, and not satisfactory for control. As a person's tolerance for the drug is built up, dosage must increase, and funds must be obtained by illegal means because the cost becomes so high, often $100 per day, thus leading to a life of crime.

Demerol is a chemical drug with similar effects to opium. When a person tries to stop taking these drugs he is sick physically, having terrible spasms.

Cocaine causes a psychological dependence only, the same as cigarettes. The barbiturates are also habit forming because one develops a psychological dependence on them, as well as a tolerance.

Marijuana is a hallucination producing drug causing people to lose interest in themselves, studies and surroundings, and become neglectful of everything and everybody. There is no physical dependence, nor is a tolerance built up, but there is a psychological one.

Amphetamines are dangerous because a tolerance is developed and the person feels he has more energy than he really does, and can continue functioning for long periods with no rest nor food, until finally the body breaks down. They can also cause depression. These are the drugs in many diet and pep pills, but under a doctor's control, may be used safely. Tranquilizers are also under the control of the Ministry of Health, but more control is necessary. People develop a tolerance for them as well.

Marijuana is dangerous because it produces hallucinations, which change one's perception of time and distance, as well as a change in personality. The effect on one person is different from that on another. Also the effect of one cigarette can be different from that of another. Also the same person may be affected differently from mood to mood, depending on time, time, much stronger than marijuana, but has the same effects.

Mr. Lalonger is personally against the legalization of marijuana because it gives a person an artificial feeling, and a false sense of confidence, and one is not aware of what he is doing.

LSD is more dangerous than other drugs discussed, because it can cause damage to the chromosomes, and also because flashbacks often occur with no warning, even after one dose of LSD. But there is always a reaction after taking LSD, while some times after marijuana nothing happens. There are drug users of all ages. Marijuana has a very strong odor. The climate of Canada is not warm enough to grow marijuana here to produce cannabis. Opium comes mainly from Turkey, where the government gives farmers money not to grow it, but they get twice as much to sell it illegally so they still grow it. It is usually transformed to morphine in Syria, where 5 kilos give 10 kilos of morphine. In Italy it is transformed into heroin.

Marijuana does not pay for risks taken in importing it, as does heroin, which is worth up to $500 a kilo, and some times mixed with marijuana, so people will buy heroin instead. Marijuana users are doubling in number every year.

Drug problems are related to the big city population, with Toronto having the greatest number, followed by Montreal and Vancouver. Canada's record is good, compared to that of the United States.

Mr. Lalonger's talk was followed by an interesting discussion and question period, parents and teenagers both joining in with provocative questions. There was wonderful dialogue between the two age groups. So many ideas were put forward, it was decided to hold another evening for parents and teenagers in the near future to continue the discussion.

After Mr. Francois Levesque and Mrs. Raymond Breault summed up the discussion period, Jacques Coderre thanked Mr. Lalonger for his informative talk, and parents for attending.

Magog launches softball league

MAGOG (Special) — Magog's new ball field at the Princess Elizabeth High School in Magog was officially opened Sunday, when the four teams in the Magog South Softball League staged exhibition games. The project has already proven a worthwhile endeavour to get the two language groups together in this area. Sunday's action saw a huge crowd rally to see the "over 30 players" show their skills.

In declaring the field open, Mayor Theroux said the project was made possible through co-operation with the Protestant School Board, of which Ronald Trew is chairman in Magog and Allen Channell a member.

Alderman Oliva Hamel was the first to bat in the opening, while councillor Guy Beaudoin caught. Gaston Gauvin, chief organizer, introduced the invited guests and the teams, and expressed appreciation to Molson Breweries for their sponsorship.

In Sunday's exhibition games, The Pomerleau Texaco Garage team beat the Chateau du Lac Hotel squad 5-1 while Pat and Bob's Diner team won 7-4 over the Magog Dry Cleaning team.

Fanfare was added Sunday, when the girls' band from the Sacret Heart Convent played at the opening.

MAGOG'S SOUTH SIDE BALL PARK OPENED SUNDAY when alderman Oliva Hamel was first up to bat in a ceremonial opening. His catcher was alderman Guy Beaudoin, while Mayor Maurice Theroux, the South Shore League vice-president Francis Bennett, and Molson representative

Serge Gosselin look on. Others attending the official opening, but not in the photo were Ronald Trew and Allen Channell of the Stanstead County Protestant School Board, through whose co-operation, the ball stadium was made possible.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

CAHA to deal with proposals

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association was expected to deal with some of its branches' potentially controversial proposals today or Wednesday after a series of closed meetings of its senior, junior and minor congresses.

World Cup rallyist killed

PANAMA CITY (AP) — The co-driver of a French car in the London to Mexico World Cup Rally was killed and his companion injured Sunday night in a collision with a private automobile at the entrance to the town of Penonome, 100 miles west of Panama City.

The dead man was identified by Panamanian authorities as Yenni Jean Maran.

His companion, Paul Coltelloni, was in hospital in Penonome with multiple abrasions and contusions over the left eye and severe bruises of the neck and back.

Two Panamanians in the private car in the crash were in hospital with multiple contusions and face injuries.

The Citroen held the last position among the 26 cars which made it to Panama from the original field of 98 entries that started April 19 from London. On arrival in Panama Saturday for the last leg of the race, the Citroen had an accumulated time loss of 56 hours 49 minutes. The leading car has lost seven hours 10 minutes.

Soccer fans demand tickets

MEXICO CITY (Reuters) — About 100 angry Mexican soccer fans, carrying placards attacking the World Cup organizing committee, marched down the capital's Avenida Reforma Monday demanding tickets for the World Cup.

The demonstrators blocked traffic on the main artery road through Mexico City. They carried placards reading "we are Mexicans, we demand tickets" and "don't hide the tickets."

The demonstration followed a 48-hour round-the-clock vigil by 2,000 persons who slept in lines outside ticket offices.

"They did not sell us one ticket," one of the demonstration leaders said. "All they want to sell are series which cost 900 pesos (about $80) and are much too expensive for us."

The march on the Hotel Maria Isabel, headquarters of the International Football Federation, came to an abrupt end when a police sergeant and three clubswinging policemen confronted the demonstrators.

World Cup competition starts May 31.

U.S. open trials begin

GARY KOCH, an 18-year-old Florida high school senior, led Monday's first day of qualifying for the United States Open golf championships with a 36-hole total of 131, 13 under par for the DeSoto Lakes course.

Koch, the lowest of five qualifiers at Sarasota, Fla., tied the course record with his secondround 65, matching the previous record of Dow Finsterwald and Sam Snead.

Koch was among a record 3,642 golfers attempting to qualify Monday and Tuesday for sectional tests on June 8 or 9. The Open will be played June 18-21 at the Hazeltine National Golf Course in Chaska, Minn. Only 34 golfers are exempt from qualifying.

Orville Moody, who won the Open last year at Houston, head the exempt list. Others include Gary Player, Billy Casper, Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer.

BONDESON LED

Touring pro Paul Bondeson had a fine 65-69-134 to lead 28 qualifiers at Atlanta's Flat Creek Golf Club's par-72 layout. Dapper Doug Sanders was next at 67-73-140 while Charles Siford made it with 73-70-143.

Amateur Bobby Wadkins of Richmond, Va., younger brother of Walker Cupper Lanny Wadkins, led six qualifiers at Nashville with a 67-70-137. Pros Lou Graham and Mason Rudolph also made it with 68-72-140 and 71-71-142, respectively. Touring rookie pro Bobby Nichols, Cookeville, Tenn., failed, however, with a 72-79-151.

Jim Colbert, with a 70-79-139, topped 13 qualifiers at the Kansas City eliminations.

Randy Glover and Leon Crump each had 142s as 11 players made it at Sanford, N.C.

No difficulties foreseen-CFL tilt

TORONTO (CP) — A television contract, double-indemnity insurance policies and a mid-summer date has the Canadian Football League and the players' association looking forward to a successful revival of the annual all-star game.

The verbal agreement with CTV which will televise the July 2 game on its national network assures that expenses will be met in bringing the all-star team members to Ottawa to meet the 1969 Grey Cup champion Rough Riders, says Gary Schneider, past president of the players' association.

Schneider told a news conference Monday the insurance policies will compensate any player and his team for time lost due to an injury suffered in the game.

And the date of the game assures all in attendance of warm, if not dry, game conditions. The four previous all-star games, from 1955 to 1958, were plagued by bad weather because they came after the late-November Grey Cup games.

"I think we can ensure the field won't be frozen," Schneider said. "But we won't commit ourselves as to whether it will be soggy."

CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur praised the players' association, whose pension fund receives proceeds from the game, for initiating the pre-season format.

"They're doing an awful lot better than we did," said Gaudaur, who helped set up the first all-star game, an East-West encounter at Toronto which ended in a 6-6 tie.

"It's obvious they're going to pull it off," he told the news conference. "The success of the game is important to football and the players' pensions."

The all-star team consists of four players from each of the eight other CFL teams. They were selected by the league coaches and the makeup of the team adheres to the import quota of 14 players as in regular-season play.

The all-stars will be coached by Eagle Keys whose Saskatchewan team lost the Grey Cup to Ottawa last year. And Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster will again pit his signal-calling against that of Ottawa's Russ Jackson.

Each player on the winning team receives $200 and the losers $100 each.

"The amount in no way is indicative of proper compensation," said Schneider, "but the game is for the players' benefit."

Plante ready if health holds

MONTREAL (CP) — Goalie Jacques Plante said Monday he hopes the latest shift in the National Hockey League trade winds that wafted him to Toronto Maple Leafs from St. Louis Blues hasn't come too late.

Plante, 41, who started with the old Montreal Royals of the now-defunct Quebec Senior Hockey League in 1951, was sent to the Leafs Monday in return for "future considerations."

"I just hope the move is not too late for me at my age," he said. "I haven't talked to the Toronto people yet, but I'm sure if my health remains okay I'll be there."

Plante, who played for Montreal Canadiens on a full-time basis in 1954 after two partial seasons, was traded to New York Rangers in June, 1963. He retired from pro hockey from 1965 to 1968 before he returned to the expansion Blues and shared the Vezina Trophy in 1968-69 with veteran Glenn Hall. WON

VEZINA 5 TIMES

He won the Vezina as top goalkeeper while with the Canadiens on five separate occasions and also took the Hart Trophy as the league's most valuable player for the 1961-62 season.

"I had a feeling I was going somewhere, but I didn't know where," Plante, the modern-era inventor of the goalkeeping mask, said in an interview. "I hoped it wouldn't be to an expansion club."

He credits his mask for saving his life during the opening game of this spring's Stanley Cup final round between Boston Bruins and the Blues. He was hit squarely on the mask, suffered a concussion and missed the remainder of the series.

Plante said he is disappointed "naturally" by leaving St. Louis because "I was never treated better."

KNEW HE WAS WANTED

"I felt I was wanted there and if I feel I'm wanted by a team I feel good. Toronto has a young team and I know they are building..." He said the fact the Leafs have Bruce Gamble "a proven NHL goalie" will take some of the pressure off him.

"I won't be No. 1 there and I know I won't be playing all the key games."

It is believed Plante is part of a three-way deal among the Leafs, Blues and the Rangers which started when Toronto sent defenceman Tim Horton to New York late in the season.

HOCKEY STYLES — Jacques Plante takes off the original glass-fibre mask that started a netminding style early in the 1950-60 National Hockey League season. This picture shows Plante with a stitched gash on his nose suffered during the 1960 season - the type of injury the mask was designed to prevent.
