County Loan Objective Passed

4th Victory Loan Objective Passed by 19 Per Cent

Number of Subscribers Increased by 218 Over Previous Drive—Large Last Minute Subscriptions Help Town's Objective

The Fourth Victory Loan Objective for Huntingdon County was passed on Saturday night, when the figures soared up to a total of $608,450 from $504,100 on Saturday morning. The announcement was made over a loud speaker system set up at the Bank of Commerce building, at about 10 o'clock, Saturday evening. Thus it was known that the objective of $535,000 had been surpassed by 13 percent. This result was compiled from telephone reports received from the Victory Loan salesmen and was given out immediately it was known. Later figures show that the County sales reached the sum of $638,450, or 19 per cent over the objective, which represents about $47.00 per capita, exclusive of the amount raised by Chateauguay Barracks and the special names.

Huntingdon Town reached its objective on Thursday and has now passed it by 11%. Two good sized contributions from local concerns made up the deficiency and put the town over the top. These subscriptions were as follows:

The Chateau ..... $10,000.
Huntingdon Woollen Mills Ltd. ..... 30,000.

Other districts shown to have reached their objective or are over the top are as follows:

Hemmingford ..... 119%
Hinchinbrooke ..... 106%
Franklin ..... 105%
Dundee ..... 118%
Elgin ..... 100%
Ste. Barbe ..... 132%

Ste. Barbe is to be congratulated upon its fine showing in this campaign, having a large margin of excess of objective than any of the other districts in the county.

It was originally intended that Chateauguay Barracks have an objective of $10,000 to be included in Hinchinbrooke, making the latter's total objective $58,000. The committee, however, felt that the citizens would like to obtain their respective objectives without the inclusion of returns from the Barracks. Hinchinbrooke can therefore be congratulated upon having obtained its quota of $48,000 unaided, in fact it exceeded this by 6%.

Gordon Kerby, chairman of the Loan Campaign for the Huntingdon Woollen Mills Ltd., did a fine job in selling a total of $13,800 in bonds to 188 employees at the mill. The company executives and the employees combined brought the total to $61,400. This most impressive amount did much in helping the Town of Huntingdon to reach and pass its objective.

Some of the highlights of the campaign are that there were 218 more subscribers in this drive than the last. There was an increase in amount of bonds sold of $141,400 exclusive of Chateauguay Barracks, over the previous campaign.

Mr. R. E. Cogland and Mr. W. A. Hunter head the County in the amount of bonds sold as well as in the number. Mr. Albert Dupuis of Dundee, has the highest average for bonds sold, being an average of $691 per sale. Mr. John Leahy, of Hemmingford, is next in line with $543 per sale, and Mr. R. E. Cogland is next with $456 per sale. The two former made fewer sales than did Mr. Cogland, who has the highest number of sales. Franklin sales were increased from 67 for the last drive to 117 in this drive. Elgin sales increased from 54 for the last drive to 94 for this one.

The following are the figures for the districts in the county and the total amount raised by the campaign:

| | Objective | Sales No. | Amt. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Huntingdon | 210,000 | 705 | 233,750 |

Soldiers Enjoy Blue Bell Bullets at Camp Drill Hall

Bell Telephone Employees Sponsor Variety Entertainment For Men at T.C. 41

A cast of 30 actors and actresses, all of whom are or were employees of the Montreal Branch of the Bell Telephone Company, presented a variety concert at the Drill Hall on Thursday evening for the benefit of the men who are stationed at T.C. 41, and their friends. Unlike most shows, the "Blue Bell Bullets" entertainment is not sponsored by the Company for which it is named, but is financed by about 2500 of the 3000 employees of the Bell Telephone Co. who work on the island of Montreal. Each week a percentage of their pay cheque is voluntarily deducted for the purpose of keeping the show on the road.

The first number on Thursday's entertainment was a solo by John Vrooland, a talented vocalist with a highly pleasing baritone voice. Miss Mildred Julian, "Gracie Fields" singer who really is good, drew rounds of applause with such numbers as "The Greatest Aspidistra in the World, "Walter" and a series of "naughty-naughty" songs.

"Knittin' for Britain" was a much applauded number. This was a song and dance routine with Miss Goldthorpe as vocalist. These girls should really know how to knit, because, since the outbreak of war in 1939, they have converted thousands of tons of wool into garments for Men of the Services.

"Dr. Churchvelt Operates" was certainly a timely farce. In this sketch, a slightly tipsy old doctor and his none-too-sensible nurse performed a series of operations on Dick Matthews, whose rôle was the World. Firstly, the "doctor" removed the "world's" gallstones and appendix, which represented internal strife; he then proceeded to remove a long string of swastikas and rising suns; lastly, saying that the most important part was yet to come, he worked and worked and at last pulled out a handful of money for the "Fourth Victory Loan" and the slogan, "Give till it Hurts."

Miss Myrtle Fletcher, soprano, sang "Moonlight Cocktails" in a pleasing manner. This vocal was followed by the Misses Peggy Cowan and Barbara Davidson in "Toppers", a first-rate toe show. Miss Simone Gagnon was highly lauded when she sang a series of French songs; Miss Gagnon is a talented singer with contralto voice.

A rhumba number with the entire cast of girls wasn't half bad according to the amount of applause. "The Man of Destiny", Courtland MacNeil, proved a decided hit with his corny jokes, his banjo, and last but not least, his realistic imitation of trombone music.

Dick Kugelman, magician par excellence, assisted by Miss Denis Sydal, was a decided asset to the entertainment. One of his feats was to have two soldiers tie Miss Sydal securely, pass the lose end of the rope through an 18x10 inch key hole, draw a curtain, and have a soldier from Coy. "D" pull the girl through. Although the audience could not see the feat actually performed, the soldier who pulled the girl through believed he had committed manslaughter when the girl screamed with the final tug.

"The Travelling Salesmen", Dick Matthews and Jack Vincent, proved a 3-star laugh hit. With each taking the other the wrong way, they certainly did some tall misunderstanding. "Waltz Fantasy" was truly beautiful. In this number six beautiful girls executed their dance number by the light of Chinese lanterns, and an excellent effect.

Miss Mildred Julian rendered several songs, after which "That Man Again", Courtland MacNeil, almost had people rolling in the aisles with his red hot songs. "Military Tap", by the girls, was well done, after which the National Anthem was played.

Major John Molson, A.O.C. at C.-A.(B)T.C. No. 41, thanked the troupe and stated that he hoped they would return to this training centre in the near future. The entire cast and their friends were later entertained at the Officers' Mess.

Exceeds 15 Mile Taxi Limit; Valleyfield Man is Fined

Antonin L'Heureux, 137 Nicholson Street, Valleyfield, Quebec, accused of driving his taxi at a distance exceeding 15 miles as prescribed by the law, was found guilty and condemned by Judge Andre Regnier, who sentenced him to pay a fine of $25.00 and costs, or to one month imprisonment. The case was heard at Montreal, on Monday. Mr. Gontran Saintonge, of Valleyfield, represented the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Marriage Action Dismissed

Former Huntingdon School Girl and Soldier Husband Fail in Application For Marriage Annulment

Mr. Justice Alfred Forest of Montreal, delivered judgment on Friday in the Superior Court dismissing an action in annulation of marriage. In this instance, the Court admitted that the marriage in question was illegal, because the husband and plaintiff, Verner Craig Maillward, a minor and orphan, who was stationed at C.A. (B) T.C. No. 41, Huntingdon, for some months, married without the consent of guardians or tutor ad hoc. Nevertheless, his action was dismissed. And for this stated reason: As a minor acting without authorization of guardian or tutor, he has no legal status to take an action-in-law. Plaintiff's future rights were reserved by the judgment. "This is the first time a case of this kind has been heard in the courts of the province," Judge Forest observed.

Plaintiff joined the armed forces when he was 16, the Judge added. When 17 years of age, he married last September 5 eighteen-year-old Florence Ruth Leroy, whose parents consented to the union. The celebrating clergyman was the Rev. J. H. W. Rhys, of St. Stephen's Church, Montreal. Plaintiff sought annulation of the marriage on the ground that he was a minor and had not the consent of his guardians. His parents died some years ago.

The former Miss Florence Leroy attended Huntingdon High School for a number of years, during which time she stayed at the Presbyterian School Home. She left here during the school term of 1942-43 for the purpose of becoming married.

The couple separated three weeks after the marriage and Judge Forest remarked that before taking action Maillward telephoned to his wife telling her of his purpose. She declared that she would be pleased to recover her liberty. However, the court was not able to grant this, for the reasons stated above.

In reaching this conclusion Mr. Justice Forest, again noting that a minor alone could not give valid consent to his own marriage, said the celebrating clergyman was remiss in his duty because, knowing that the bridegroom's parents were dead, should have insisted on the presence of the youth's tutor, or, alternatively, "he ought to have peremptorily refused to sanction this contract between two children."

His Lordship also observed: "The marriage licence was obtained without sureties in the presence of an irresponsible couple who were not qualified to authorize an act of this importance, and the licence was issued by an officer who showed lack of scruple and competence. The notice of the attorney-general ought to be called to this fact."

Leonard Trepanier appeared for the plaintiff.

Egg Rationing Seen Only Way To Meet Needs

Dealers Expect to Fall Short on Either Domestic or Export Quotas

Rationing of eggs is seen by some men in the produce trade as a distinct necessity if Canada is to come anywhere near meeting her commitments to the United Kingdom this year. Production is now at or near the peak and dealers state deliveries are falling short of requirements. These have been placed at 345 million dozens for the year including the 63 million dozen for the United Kingdom and about 29 million dozen for the armed forces.

In 1941 egg production was estimated at 244 million dozen; total supply, including imports, being 269 million dozen. "Domestic disappearance" was set at over 247 million dozen. In normal years Canada hardly supplied her own requirements.

Rationing of Meat

Two factors that have affected the situation recently are the announcement that meat would be rationed, with the public urged to make good the cut in meat by using eggs, and the requirements of the chick hatchery businesses which normally takes an estimated 50,000 cases of eggs or 1.5 million dozen in a normal year. This year efforts have been made in official circles to increase the number of chicks hatched and it is understood that all chick hatcheries are taxed to the utmost. Hatcheries probably will take three million dozen. This will mean fewer eggs for human consumption for some months until the new chicks start to lay.

One reason for disappointing production is said to be the food situation. Owing to the demands of war for certain products which enter into the manufacture of concentrated foods, and the increased requirements for feeding hogs, etc., poultry raisers find considerable difficulty in getting sufficient supplies of concentrated foods. Fish oil, for instance, is stated to be almost unobtainable. This lack of concentrates has undoubtedly checked the increase in egg production which might otherwise be expected from the larger number of poultry.

Only Three Percent Of 2,000,000 "Smokes" Fail to Get Through

Colonel E. A. Deacon, director of Auxiliary Services, Canadian Army, announced recently that of more than 2,000,000 parcels of cigarettes and tobacco sent to Canadian soldiers overseas during 1942, approximately 61,000 were lost due to enemy action, This loss, about three percent, was low because of the work of the Canadian and Allied navies in protecting convoys.

In the first three months of 1943, when about 500,000 cigarettes and tobacco parcels were shipped overseas, only 84 complaints were received and of these 76 were satisfactorily accounted for. In 1942, the postal authorities received 3,561 complaints of non-receipt of parcels, and were able to account for 3,547 of them.

Hot Summer Forecast By Ontario Survey

A survey released by Frank MacDougall, Deputy Minister of Lands and Forests for Ontario, forecasts a hot, dry summer with fire hazards starting late but becoming abnormally high later on.

The survey declared that heavy snowfalls and low temperatures of the last winter would indicate a hot summer. The spring breakup generally has been two weeks later than normal.

Fuel Wood Price For Valleyfield Due For Sharp Reduction in Price

Situation is Being Reviewed by Fuel Controller G. C. Piche

A reduction in the consumers price to be paid for maple fuel wood in Valleyfield is near at hand, and will be welcomed news to a great many of our readers. At the present time people in Valleyfield are paying for maple wood the ceiling price as it is in Montreal, viz $5.85 for 12" wood, whereas in the neighboring communities the same wood would cost $4.25 per cord. Mr. G. C. Piche, the fuel controller for this section of Quebec Province, held a meeting of mayors from the towns and villages of the Eastern Townships and communities south of the St. Lawrence River, and the expressed opinion was that a uniform price should prevail in all these centers, for at the present time such is not the case.

The wood fuel ceiling for Valleyfield is placed in the same category as Montreal. The wood supplied Valleyfield, comes from very same wood lots as many towns in the nearby communities comes from.

Wood in the bush is usually cut in three foot lengths and the retail ceiling price for same is $10 a cord. Woodsmen have been selling this wood at $10 a cord and then on top of that the dealers were called upon to truck it and sell it to the customers at a higher price. Wood bought in three foot lengths when cut in two and split does not yield three cords of 12" wood, but usually 2.6 cords of 12" wood.

From what we have been able to learn on the wood fuel situation, Valleyfield will be placed in the B. schedule of price ceiling for wood which will mean 12" maple wood will retail to the consumer in Valleyfield at $4.25 a cord in place of $5.85 as is provided for in Schedule "C" in which category Valleyfield has been in up to the present moment.

The reduction of $1.60 a cord for 12" maple wood will represent a saving of a good many thousands of dollars per annum to the populace of Valleyfield. We feel this will be welcomed news especially so as this schedule will more than likely be put into force within a very few days time.

Dr. J. C. Moore Dies Tuesday

Was an Outstanding Medical Practitioner And Leading Light Amongst Local Conservatives

DR. J. C. MOORE

Dr. J. C. Moore, the family physician and surgeon, who became so well and favourably known as to be almost loved in a great many homes throughout the Chateauguay Valley, died on Tuesday morning, at his home in Huntingdon. For a great many years Dr. Moore practised medicine at Rockburn, before moving to Huntingdon. His outstanding success as a medical practitioner made his advice often sought by the medical fraternity.

Dr. Moore was born at St. Chrysostome, September 21, 1872, son of the late Robert C. Moore and Mary Clarke. He was educated at Huntingdon Academy and McGill University. In 1903, he was united in marriage with Laura Bell, of Montreal.

Dr. Moore, besides being an outstanding medical practitioner, was one who took a very keen interest in organization and public matters. A great many people referred to him for his sage advice on a number of matters, and this he freely accorded them to the best of his ability.

Politically, Dr. Moore was an ardent Conservative, and opposed the late Andrew Philps in an election for the Quebec Legislature. Defeat in this election did not discourage Dr. Moore's political ambitions, but when the Federal election was held on July 28, 1930, he contested the riding Chateauguay - Huntingdon, and was duly elected over D. J. O'Connor, who was the sitting member. D. J. O'Connor and Dr. J. C. Moore both lent their unstinted support toward having the Laguerre drainage scheme promoted, so that the 22,000 acres of muck lands in that area might be brought under cultivation. The lands have been greatly improved through this drainage scheme and already the production in that area has been tremendously increased. The cost of the undertaking was considerable, but in the years to come, will prove to be well worth while.

In religion, Dr. Moore was a member of the Huntingdon United Church, of which congregation he was an Elder. Of recent years, Dr. Moore was confined to his home, but previously he was most regular in church attendance and generous in his support in the way of services and kind.

Years ago Dr. Moore was seized with a paralytic stroke which made it next to impossible for him to carry on his extensive practise. His love for this chosen profession was great, and being so hindered from carrying on, was a great blow to him. When the Barrie Memorial Hospital got under way, the doctors of the Chateauguay Valley found they had a great friend in Dr. Moore, for here he was equipped with an office full of medical instruments and supplies, which he had accumulated for years. These surgical instruments he bestowed upon the Barrie Memorial Hospital upon the understanding that no public acknowledgment be made of them while he was on earth. This was quite typical of the deceased, for he continually performed acts of kindness for which he did not ask or seek public acknowledgment. His reward was that of having loyal friends; and they were many. As a benefactor, we may not have heard a great deal about Dr. Moore, but this we know, he performed a multiplicity of benevolent acts which were worthy of much recognition. This community benefited much through his being a medical practitioner.

To his bereaved widow the sympathy of the entire community goes forward.

Should Get Subsidy With April Cheque

Agriculture Minister Gardiner says in a departmental statement that producers should receive the previously-announced subsidy on milk purchased during March and April and used in production of concentrated whole milk products with their final payment for milk purchased during April.

The Agriculture Department had received reports that farmers had not received the benefit of any subsidies paid on milk during March and April. Announcement of the subsidy—consisting of 25 cents per 100 pounds of milk—was made early in April, but not in time for inclusion of any part of the subsidy with payments for March milk purchases.

The announcement said the subsidy is to be paid by manufacturers of concentrated whole milk products to the milk producers. The manufacturers will then apply through the milk board of the province to the Dominion Department of Agriculture for refund of the amount of subsidy paid.

Arbor Day Set For Friday

Oaks to be Planted in Honor of Mayor McNair, and D. J. O'Connor, M.L.A., Board of Trade President

Arbor Day for Huntingdon takes place on Friday, May 21, with a celebration at 1.30 o'clock, in Prince Arthur Square. Ald. Alex. Fawcett and Mr. G. F. Dixon, chairman of the Board of Trade Town Improvement Committee, have arranged a short programme. The Boys Band of Huntingdon High School is to open the proceedings with "O Canada." The Cadets and High School children will take up positions in Prince Arthur Square. Mayor W. E. S. McNair will preside and make a short address. Two oak trees are to be planted at the Park, one in the name of Mayor W. E. S. McNair and the second in the name of D. J. O'Connor, M.L.A. There is a possibility that Mr. O'Connor will not be here, as he fully expects to remain in Quebec, if he should not be here, the tree will quite likely be planted by his estimable wife.

NOTE: The date for Arbor Day has been changed from Thursday to Friday on account of the funeral of the late Dr. J. C. Moore.

Of the two hundred maples, and perhaps as many spruce that are to arrive from the Quebec Department of Lands and Forests nursery at Berthierville, the greater number of same will be planted along the upper end of Wellington St., Hunter Street and along Chalmers Street. A number of trees will also be planted at the Filter Plant. Trees will be provided private individuals who request them, and such may be had as long as they last, through making application to Alderman Fawcett or Mr. G. F. Dixon.

Mr. Dixon is planning on planting a number of spruce trees near Huntingdon Mills Limited, so that eventually they will serve not only for beautification, but as a permanent snow fence. Trees are also to be planted about the corner of Bouchette and Hunter Sts. Trees have been offered both the Roman Catholic and Protestant cemeteries.

The planting of these trees will, to a considerable extent, help replace the trees that were destroyed by the ice storm of the past winter, and where vacant spots now prevail, these in due time, will be beautified.

Valleyfield Loan Total $1,808,000

Quota Exceeded by 35%—Objective Reached in First Ten Days

The people of Valleyfield whose objective in the Fourth Victory Loan was $1,340,000, have bought to the amount of $1,808,000; that is 35% more than the quota set. It was a grand success, considering the objective was reached during the first ten days of the campaign. The work done by the organizers and canvassers greatly encouraged the population to subscribe to the loan. All the different classes of society subscribed and special mention must be made of the employees of the local manufacturing establishments who subscribed $691,000, 150% of the amount allotted to such industries. This is the largest amount ever subscribed in a Victory Loan to date. Which proves that the workers "Back the Attack" to the end.

The general sales amounted to $497,000, whereas the objective was $340,000.

The total sum greatly surpasses the expectations of the joint-chairmen, Dr. O. E. Caza and Lt.-Col. W. G. E. Aird, who in turn have not reserved their congratulations for all those who directly took part in the campaign, but have passed them on to one and all.

FAIR DAY TRADESMEN

It is said that many business appointments are cancelled as a usual practice in Paraguay when it rains.

County Hospital Fund Off to Good Start

Contributions For Huntingdon County Hospital Being Received Indicate Enthusiasm For the Cause

The past week saw the launching of an appeal for funds for the Huntingdon County Hospital and a ready response was forthcoming. One of the first contributions received was from Mr. Bennie Coccia, of Huntingdon, who made a contribution of $100 and who said he was pleased to be able to do this as he thought the need was great. Such a spirit bids well for the success of the project and the Hospital Board feels that most people will have the same opinion on the subject.

Other contributions were also made as a result of the appearance of the advertisement in The Gleaner and several more persons have enquired about the idea and what they should do to help. Several persons seem to be in a quandary as to whether they have to contribute their donation in a lump sum. For their benefit it might be stated that any sum can be contributed on an instalment plan spread over the period of twelve months, or persons can become yearly contributors and agree to pay a certain sum each month or each quarter. The payment or agreement to pay the sum of $100 per person, or in the case of a man and wife, or some other one member of the family, the sum of $150, entitles such persons to life membership in the hospital affairs and the opportunity to serve on the Hospital Board. However, any contribution will be accepted, whatever its proportions, and small contributions are as welcome as large ones. The names of contributors will be published in The Gleaner each week or as they are received.

The names of contributors and the amounts to date are as follows:

Mrs. Louisa McMillan, Huntingdon ..... $100.
Mr. Bennie Coccia, Huntingdon 100.
Mrs. Elizabeth Stewart, Glenelm ..... 100.
Mr. and Mrs. Alex Fawcett, Huntingdon ..... 150.
Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Grant, Huntingdon ..... 150.
Mrs. Mary Sellar, Huntingdon .. 50.
Mr. and Mrs. N. McCrimmon, Huntingdon ..... 150.
Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Fraser, Dundee ..... 150.
Mrs. Adam L. Sellar, Huntingdon ..... 150.
Mrs. Reginald Graham, Huntingdon ..... 100.
Miss Louisa Graham, Huntingdon ..... 100.
Mr. Lawrence Brown, Huntingdon ..... 100.
Clifford Booth, Huntingdon .... 100.

The drive is on and contributions will be gladly accepted. It is the intention to have this hospital operating quite early in the Fall, therefore your contributions will become the barometer by which this opening will be set. A certain amount of work will have to be done after the Convent school has vacated the building, but it is hoped that the opening will not be delayed long after that time.

Winter Fuel Question Has Attention of Council

Three Building Permits Granted—Several New Fire Hydrants to be Installed—Action to be Taken on Tax Arrears

The bills, as read, were ordered paid at a regular meeting of the Huntingdon Town Council, on Monday evening.

At a special meeting of the Council held since the last regular meeting, a resolution regarding the winter's fuel supply was sent to the Honourable C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply. At Monday's meeting a reply to the resolution was read from W. J. Bennett, on behalf of the Minister of Munitions and Supply, stating that immediate consideration would be made. The resolution was that Huntingdon and Valleyfield be placed in the same category in regards wood.

Three building permits were applied for and granted. The first was from Fawcett and Grant Ltd., which firm wishes to enlarge their factory by an addition of a building 60 feet by 60 feet, which will be made of cement blocks and will be fireproof. The second was from Mr. J. H. Henry, who wishes to build on King street. The last was from Mr. Thos. Anderson, who is going to build a house on Hunter street west.

A letter was read from Mr. C. J. Kyle, on behalf of the residents of Hunter street west, asking that a fire hydrant be installed in the vicinity of the seven new houses that have been erected in that section. It was decided that the hydrant should be installed at an early date.

A letter was read from Fawcett and Grant Ltd. stating that the nearest fire hydrant to their factory was more than 300 feet away. After due consideration, it was decided that a modern fire hydrant would be placed in a position that would afford fire protection to this concern.

As it is advisable to have at least two fire hydrants on hand in case of breakage, the secretary-treasurer was authorized to order two new hydrants.

The secretary-treasurer presented a list of over 70 names of residents of Huntingdon whose water and/or Municipal taxes are in arrears. It was decided that a Public Notice would be inserted in the Huntingdon Gleaner informing these people that if their taxes are not paid within a certain date, that action would be taken to have the bills paid. In the case of water taxes, the water will be turned off, and no excuses will be accepted, as sufficient warnings have been issued. In the case of Municipal taxes, those who have not paid their dues within the allotted time will be sued.

Alderman A. Fawcett was nominated pro-Mayor for the ensuing three months.

Alderman Cappiello stated that he recently attended a meeting of the Huntingdon Soldiers' Club, and it was the executive's wish that he apply to the Council for permission for the Club to hold a street dance some Friday night in June. It was decided that as a night has already been arranged for a street dance early in July, that the two should not be held too closely. The street dance sponsored by the Canadian Legion will be held on July 5, and as a result the Soldiers' Club have been offered June 4, 11 or 18 for their dance.

Thursday is Arbor Day, and Alderman Fawcett extended an invitation to the Council to attend the ceremony which is to be held in Prince Arthur Square at 1.30 p.m.

Shawinigan Reduces Electricity Rates

The people of this community were pleasantly surprised when they received the accounts for electricity from the Shawinigan Water and Power Co. this month, to find that an announcement accompanied it to the effect that a reduction in rates would take place in the very near future. The Huntingdon Town Council has been negotiating with the Power Company for a reduction in rates and it was announced at the last council meeting that success had attained their efforts. The following is a general announcement by the company of the reduction in rates.

Montreal.—Shawinigan Water and Power Co's plan for downward revision of its domestic service and general service rates has been approved by the Public Service Board of Quebec. It is estimated that in the aggregate the new rates will mean a saving of better than $100,000 to customers served by the company.

Broadly speaking, the new rate schedule provides that the minimum demand for all general service customers, where a meter is installed, is reduced from 2 k.v.a., to 1 k.v.a. as from Oct. 1, 1942.

The rate schedule which now applies to all communities having less than 500 customers is revised so that the charge for energy in volume is reduced from 1½ cents gross per k.w.h. to 1 cent gross per k.w.h., effective as from November 1, 1942.

For cities and towns, and larger communities served by the company, the rate is revised downward generally, though the service charge, discounts and minimum charge remain unchanged.

Huntingdon County and Chateauguay West Goes Over the Top

DESPITE the large amount required to put Huntingdon County in reach of its Victory Loan objective as reported in the last issue of The Gleaner, the objective was reached and passed on Saturday night. In almost every case, where a drive has been held, no matter what the nature, Huntingdon County citizens have come through with colors flying. It is a source of pride with these citizens that they have never failed in making a success of a just cause. For this reason, Huntingdon is known as one of the progressive towns of Canada, and the people are proud of their achievements.

A great measure of the success can be attributed to the business people of the community who sponsored advertising in behalf of this Loan Campaign and in other campaigns. The local committee and the canvassers are to be congratulated on their untiring efforts as also is Mr. James Church and Mr. A. W. Grandchamp, the campaign organizers. These organizers have worked in complete harmony with the people of the County and with the local committee and the newspaper. The Gleaner's relations with all those responsible for the campaign have been most cordial and enjoyable.

The Gleaner commends the people of Huntingdon County for their efforts and subscriptions in behalf of the Fourth Victory Loan Drive.

CHATEAUGUAY WEST PASSES OBJECTIVE

Reports reaching us from Chateauguay West show that this Division also passed its objective by a considerable amount. The amount reported is $310,000 on Saturday night, which is $10,000 over the objective set. The loan was very well distributed and there was an increased number of applications. The people are to be congratulated on their support of the loan. The canvassers and the local committee and the campaign organizer, Mr. J. A. McQueston are to be commended on their thorough work and efforts to make the campaign a success. The business people of Ormstown, Howick and Brysonville also supported the campaign in fine manner by contributing to space to advertise the Fourth Victory Loan.

The Gleaner takes this opportunity of congratulating the people of Chateauguay West on the success of their Loan Campaign.

Enthusiasm For Hospital

THE response to the appeal for funds for the Huntingdon County Hospital seems to be receiving a ready and sympathetic answer. $950. has already been received in answer to the appeal which just went out last week, and as of Monday when this article was written. Considering the fact that the Victory Loan drive was still on, the response was a ready one. It seems quite apparent that there is much enthusiasm for the project and that once the people realise that the drive is on in earnest, they will give it their immediate support.

$20,000 seems a large amount of money, but if everyone will contribute even a small amount per family throughout the County, it will soon be raised. It might be well to note here that a donation of $100. entitles the person to a life membership and possibilities of serving on the Hospital Board. In the case of a man and wife, a donation of $150. will give the same privileges to both. Yearly contributions of ten dollars per person will make such persons eligible for membership and able to serve on the Hospital Board. All sums can be paid in cash in a lump amount, or can be paid in instalments throughout the period of a year, without impairing the privileges accorded.

No better way of showing your appreciation of the need of a hospital can be given, than by your contacting the secretary of the Hospital Board, Mr. J. E. Barrett, and signifying your intention of supporting the project with a contribution.

The Battle For Africa is Over

A GREAT victory has been achieved in Africa, after years of gruelling warfare, reverses and set-backs that have taken our armies right inside Egypt. Hope has been lost and hope regained, at times the safety of the Suez Canal and the great naval base of Alexandria almost despaired of. Then our strength was built up and we began to turn the tables on the enemy, it was his turn to fight the rearguard actions and be forced back over the land he had gained and into parts of the country he or our men had never been in before. Now he is routed and has given up in unconditional surrender. Africa has been freed of the Axis grip and makes the first real freeing of enslaved nations.

This victory is one of the quietest, perhaps ever experienced. We have had no victories in this war, this is the first real one we have, but the people are taking it very quietly. No celebration, no flag waving as of old. Are we not proud of the achievement, or have we become so accustomed to losses and setbacks, that we do not realise what a victory has been gained? We have not just pushed the Axis armies back a few miles, we have driven them out for good, or if they have not been driven out they are in no position to make any more trouble. Africa is free.

The next step in this war is beyond a shadow of doubt, the invasion of the European continent. Many guesses have been made where this is likely to take place, but it would be better to wait and see. It may be in one place, it may be in another, in any case it is good to keep the Axis Powers guessing, it is all part of the game of bewilderment. It is quite possible that the attack may take the form of simultaneous attacks at different points, such tactics would keep the enemy occupied to a greater degree and prevent concentration of heavy forces at any one given point. Chances of a bridgehead been driven in under such circumstances would be more likely. The weakest spot would be the first to give.

Perhaps it is the imminence of this new attack that has shrouded the victory in Africa. Such a victory in times past would have called for great celebrations and the decoration of the towns and villages throughout the country. Maybe the people and the authorities can't even believe it is true, or that it is too good to be true. We have waited nearly four years for word of victory and now when it has been gained, we just go on in the usual way.

This liberation of Africa means more to us than perhaps the people realise. It frees thousands of soldiers, ships, planes, guns and munitions of all kinds. To a greater extent our trade routes will be more free, it allows for a freer transit of supplies to the Far East and the battle with the Japs. Hitler must concentrate his forces nearer home, he won't be so free to rove around, the danger is to him instead of to the United Nations. He must be on the defence now instead of us.

Church bells in England rang out their peal of victory for the closing of the African campaign, on Sunday, and special services were held in the churches of that country and also of this on the same day. Messages were exchanged between King George VI and Prime Minister Churchill on the successful conclusion of the battle.

Canada Day at Chicago

A SYMBOL of the freedom and friendship existing between this country and the United States was established when the International Harvester Company sponsored a "Canada Day" under the auspices of the Harvester Club, in Chicago. Among those present were: Major General T. L. Tremblay, C.M.G., D.S.O., E.D., (F.)A.D.C., Inspector General of the Army for Eastern Canada and Joint Associate Director of the National Selective Service of Canada, as principal speaker; Squadron Leader R. M. Christie; Major George Benoit, Assistant to the Vice-Chairman, Wartime Information Board, Ottawa; W. H. Gallienne, British Consul General, Chicago; J. Roland Kay, British Vice-Consul and M. B. Palmer, Canadian Government Trade Commissioner, Chicago. Prime Minister Mackenzie King sent a message to the gathering, which was one of the first articles on the programme.

The messages given at this gathering were all expressive of Canada and the International Harvester Company published a special souvenir edition of the publication "Harvester World", for this occasion.

The sentiment behind the occasion is that the peoples of these two nations are fighting together, living together with common ideals and with lasting friendship. In times of war they can still meet one with the other and discuss common interests in a friendly spirit, even to the extent that representatives of the armed forces of each country can meet on common and friendly ground. The fact is that the United States can dedicate a programme in its own country to Canada and that a great feeling of friendship can obtain.

The International Harvester Company is to be congratulated for its fostering and furthering of this friendly spirit that has existed between the two countries for so many years.

What of the Four Freedoms?

AMONG points which have been widely discussed of late and which have constituted a large part of the Victory Loan campaign, is the matter of the four freedoms. Among these four freedoms is one—Freedom of Religion. In this particular instance it would seem that the idea of freedom of religion, is the right of any person to worship as he or she pleases, to go to the church of his or her choice and to join whatever church may be chosen. It would also seem that a person has a right and a privilege to change his or her mind and to change to another church if they so desire.

In a recent report of a case published in The Montreal Daily Star, on Tuesday, May 11th, a Protestant woman seeking the custody of her four-year-old daughter, was awarded this custody, but she must take the child to the Roman Catholic Church on Sundays and teach her the prayers and precepts of the Roman Catholic religion. This judgment was handed down by Justice Forest in the Superior Court, pending a separation action in that court. The mother, who was endeavoring to supplement her income by working out, and whose husband is overseas with the Canadian Forces, had entrusted the child to the care of the husband's relatives. When she went to recover her child, she was refused. It was for this reason that she was seeking the custody of the child through the courts.

In the face of the four freedoms being predominately thrust forward as part of the reason for which we are fighting this war, it seems rather unjust and uncalled for that a court order should be made that restricts this woman from taking advantage of one of the freedoms so illustratingly advertised during the Victory Loan campaign. Such restriction does not seem to constitute the British idea of justice. This woman has committed no real offense that she be denied the right and privilege of bringing up the child in whatever religious way she desires, yet that privilege is denied her. She has not been charged with neglect of the child or failure to properly care for it, nor is there any evidence reported that she is an unfit mother for the child, or it is doubtful whether the judge would have awarded the custody at all.

Then what has this woman done that she be denied the privilege of one of the freedoms for which we are supposedly fighting today? If such decisions are to be handed down in our courts, what effect are they going to have on the fighting morale of our people? Are we to be denied the things which we have always considered our rightful inheritance. Most people are willing to abide by the wartime restrictions because they realise it will ultimately lead to victory, but are they willing to be bereft of the freedoms for which they have fought for years to attain and retain?

The woman and the child are just other persons insofar as the case is concerned, but it is the principle involved and the precedent of the case that mostly attracts our attention. Laws are made and have to be kept, but we know of no law under the British code of justice which demands that a person can be made to take a child or be made to go himself or herself to any particular church or to follow any particular religion. Why was such a demand made of this woman, or for that matter why was the order made at all. It would seem that all the justice had to decide was whether this mother was entitled to the custody of the child and whether she was a fit person to have such custody. As to what religion the child was brought up under, it would seem it should be a matter for the exercise of the mother's own privilege and her freedom to worship as she pleases and bring her child up in that way if she should so choose.

A Revered Doctor Passes

IT is with regret that we record in this issue the passing of Dr. J. C. Moore, who has been so highly respected and who conducted such a extended medical practice throughout the Chateauguay Valley for so many years. So outstanding was Dr. Moore as a medical doctor and surgeon, his services as a consultant physician were frequently called for by fellow physicians and families. During the past few years the doctor was unable to continue his beloved profession, due to a paralytic stroke which incapaciated him and compelled his retirement.

He led a full life and was deeply interested in public affairs of all kinds. His interest in the affairs of the community caused him to seek election as a Member of Parliament so that he might better represent the people of Chateauguay-Huntingdon.

During warmer days of the summer, he was a noticeable figure when he used to sit on the verandah of his house on Chateauguay Street, or in his chair on the lawn. He had a cheery greeting for all who passed and liked to have a few words with these passers-by. To a man who had always been active, this inactivity must have been irksome at times, but if it was, he never gave evidence of it.

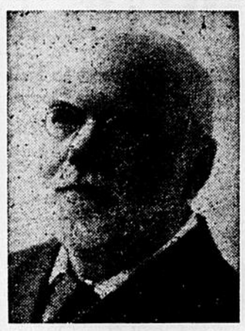

His passing will come as a shock to all citizens of this community and he will be deeply missed by everyone who knew him. The Gleaner takes this opportunity of extending sympathy to the bereaved and joins the community in paying respect to a revered gentleman.

CHATEAUGUAY, BEAUHARNOIS and HUNTINGDON COUNTIES

From Manuscripts of
The Late ROBERT SELLAR

ROBERT KELLY—My wife and I came to this country in 1837. At Montreal met old Grady of Athelstan, who, telling me of Wilsons and Hendersons, old neighbours, being in Huntingdon, came up to see the country, and decided to settle, instead of going to Upper Canada. But my lot, which was last to be taken up in Boyd Settlement, owing to its being wettest, from the Seignory, who had held almost every lot in that concession, at $4 per acre. The Wilsons were 10 years before us and the Boyds 6. I worked that summer with Wilson, who lived on the Gore, and after threshing his wheat and winning it on a sheet in the field, he gave me a bushel in part payment of wages. That bushel I carried home and to Huntingdon to be ground. The water was so high near Outarde that I was like to drop it. Carried it home and that was first flour we had. My wife had inquired how to bake, and learning hops were necessary, mixed them, knowing nothing about leavening and the first loaf came from the chandry as hard as flint and bitter. I got a cow the following spring, pasturing it on a neighbor's land. Season of '38 sowed 2 bus. of wheat in a piece of land I had cleared up, and never wanted for bread after that. Hall lot was 8 and extended back to McConville, and Grant lived on 10. The roads out were by Muir's and Donnelly's and the roads back to Gore went through Robson's and Blachford's, the latter coming out at Purse's. About 1845 I was elected school commissioner, and to attend meetings at Herdman, I often went to Athelstan and walked up in preference to going by trail through bush, with which I was not acquainted. There were three schools—one on Watt's hill, one in Cowan's and one on a corner of my lot, where cheese factory is. After several years, Inspector Bruce favoured amalgamating them, when the stone school house was put up, I drew up the house from Watt's and lived in it many years and Miss Loring drew the Curran one, which was on bank of creek between river and McNaughton's. The one in village was jointly put up by Hinchinbrook and I took it off contractor's hand. There was a sawmill at Athelstan where Elder's is and a grist mill where present one is—both owned by Gardner. Grady's tavern was near where Boyce lives, and where he had about 30 acres. Gardner, to accommodate the people who came to his mills, got him to move to Athelstan, where he gave him a lot. He put up his house there, a log one, in '38. I helped to raise it. His son told me they got their whiskey from Mitchell and a 40 gallon bbl. cost $10. One barrel they kept count of and found they took in $60 besides what they drank themselves and gave in treats. You could get a heifer with calf then for $8 or $10. Butter was almost unsaleable. After canal was begun, I took 4 tubs in latter part of winter to sell. A store keeper at St. Timothy took a tub and I sold other two by small quantities. At Beauharnois I could not find a buyer for remaining one, and ultimately met a pedlar going across the lake to Lachine who gave me 5½d per lb. for it. I belonged to the volunteers and in summer rose in time to be in village by six, when we drilled for two hours, and returned home to work. If not excused from drill in afternoon, had to go back at four. Had to stand sentry three times one week and four the other. Sentry lasted eight hours out of twenty-four. The pay was $10 a month, with deduction for rations. It was the only way to get cash except making black salts. We put them in a trough hewn from a large basswood and drew them by another. Morrison bought them generally but I have taken them to Mitchell's and Fort Covington. Matt Muir opposed our opening a front road and wanted us to have a central side road at Donnelly's in order not to have to work in it, but I insisted in a regular front road, knowing we could get outlets to it by and by. The road was opened out from end to end, but it was quite a while before the present side line to Huntingdon was made. The lower side line could not go in the allowance, owing to the creek. The flat south of the Outarde was burned over Miramichi year and was a dreadful swamp, often preventing passage to the Gore. I have had oats on my back field eaten by bears.

MICHAEL McVEA—I am a native of Dungannon, County Tynne, Ireland, was born in 1803. I came out in 1928, and worked two years in Quebec. Work getting scarce in 1830, between the arrival of the spring and fall fleets, I went up to Chambly, to see an old neighbor, Parks, who hired me to go and work on Armstrong's farm in Godmanchester. Armstrong was from Tynne, his brother having a mill three miles from Dungannon. His marriage offended his people, causing him to enlist. He was a bombardier and his deafness was the result of the firing of the cannon. After serving a number of years, he was discharged for deafness, with a pension of 6d a day, and sent to Canada, to be placed in charge of the barracks and ordnance at Chambly. In 1828 he bought the lot Whealy is now on, and put his wife and his son John in charge, meaning to retire himself when old. In 1832 the fort at Chambly was abandoned and he was sent to Ile aux Noir, but not liking the place, he came to Godmanchester, where he spent the rest of his life. He lived with us two years before his death. I came up in the summer of 1830 as stated, and found the country just a forest. When I went back an acre or two from the house, I thought no man could ever have been there before me. I am not sure, but rather think that Laird and James Lunan were before the Armstrongs on the ridge. I can recollect of no other Old Country men.

"Are Still in Chains" Writes Canadian

Lieut. Arthur M. Hueston, of Sarnia, Ont., officer in the Essex Scottish Regiment, who was taken prisoner at Dieppe last Summer, wrote in a card received in London recently, that "we are still in chains."

The officer, son of the publisher of the Sarnia Canadian Observer, H. M. Hueston, was believed to have been among the first group of Canadian prisoners shackled in German prison camps last Autumn.

He wrote London friends: "There are a few Americans in the camp from Africa but as we are still in chains and held incommunicado from the rest of the camp, I don't know them."

His seven pencil-scribbled lines also disclosed "we are receiving plenty of cigarettes and cigars from Canada" but implied, friends said, that the food situation was much less satisfactory.

IN THE SAME BOAT

Some one said the other day that this is the time of year when the housewife, intent on early housecleaning, discovers that the paperhanger can come the first week in July—if he finishes his other jobs in time.

Well, as far as we can learn, there are a whole lot of other people going to find themselves in the same boat as the housewife.

The man of the house will discover that the man who dug his garden last year, just isn't this year. And the boy who cut his grass is far away. And if he wants his ashes taken out of his cellar, he will have to do it himself, or wait for another year.

We are a bit afraid too, that quite a few farmers who need help at seeding time, will get the promise of a man along about the first of July and the promise of help for the harvest along in November some time—if help is any more plentiful then.—Huron Expositor.

DISCORD IS A GRAVE MENACE

With all the new political parties springing up in Canada there is a grave danger of internal dissension, as we have actually seen in our time, in France, an example of a once great nation humbled and broken because of internal discord which paved the way for conquest, ridiculously easy conquest, when all factors are considered, by a foreign power which was united, by the iron grip of compulsion.

Prime Minister King was well advised to point out to Parliament and people, as he did recently, the danger to this or any other democratic country of a great number of parties. Premier King was in rare form and didn't mince his words, he didn't pull punches and backed up all his statements with facts.

As long as we can retain two parties, by whatever names they may be known, we have some hope of unity, but as soon as we branch out into multi-party organization we sacrifice all hope of a strong national government by any party and face the dismal prospect of many parties-bargaining with one another in order to achieve a coalition whose chief concern is to satisfy its component groups. Under any such setup the public interest goes to the board.

We have a country to take pride in, and a war record which stands comparison with that of any people and these factors command our utter loyalty and our best effort, irrespective of party label or personal differences. Instead of supporting new parties let us stick to two parties, working and co-operating to make them an ideal representation of a united freedom loving people.—Shawinigan Standard.

WEEK AT OTTAWA

War's Financial Outlays

One major war financial measure, the billion dollar Mutual Aid Bill has passed the House of Commons and debate on another covering an appropriation of the huge sum of $3,890,000,000 for war expenses for the fiscal year is now in full swing. Running parallel for a time at least with the successful campaign for the Fourth Victory Loan of $1,100,000,000 the debate on measures involving sums of such magnitude represents a new milestone in Canadian financial history. For Canadians and for the world at large the programme throws a new light on this country's contribution to the common cause.

Changes in War Production

War is not static, and changes are being made and are in contemplation in the country's war production as well as in that of allied nations. As explained in the House by Mr. Howe, the minister of munitions and supply, we are passing from the defensive to the offensive phase of the combat. There is not such pressing need for anti-aircraft guns. The production of many other types of guns and artillery ammunition has also reached the point where troops are adequately equipped and have a store in reserve. The whole production programme has to keep tuned to the altering demands of troops on the land, sea and air. There is still a shortage of men in many war plants, and where production declines in one factory or group of factories, selective service has to send the men released to the industries where they are most urgently needed.

Another point mentioned in the debate is that the tank is not the overwhelming weapon of offense that it was in the early stages of the war when the panzer divisions smashed through France and the low countries. Not that the tank will not continue to be formidable weapon but massed artillery fire and the "tank busting" airplane have taken its measure and made a myth of its invincibility.

Canada's Post War Merchant Marine

In the days of peace to come Canada may again become a factor in the merchant marine service of the world as she was some years ago. Canada has sold under the Hyde Park Agreement a number of ships built in her yards to the United States, and this has helped to bring in American dollars which were so urgently needed to pay for supplies from this country. Now the exchange situation is no longer acute, for the present at least, and no further sales of cargo vessels are being made. This country has kept in Canada as many ships as she could man and these are flying under our flag. It takes four years to train men to carry out efficiently the duties of captain or chief engineer. Britain in spite of her great need of merchant ship officers has lent some of these high officers to the Canadian merchant fleet. As the work of training goes on, Canada will keep more and more ships under her own flag. Under Mutual Aid ships will not be sold but chartered at a nominal figure, and these will be returned to this country at the close of hostilities. About 200 vessels have been chartered during the war to Great Britain, and these will, after peace is restored, become part of Canada's merchant service. It is not of course simply a question of having the ships and the men to operate them, to create a merchant marine. The ships of Canada will have to compete with long established services such as that of Norway for example, which is run on the most economical and efficient lines, but Canada has a long coast line with several ports and is a great trading nation. Experience is the only effective teacher. When her seamen gain that experince we may see many vessels carrying the Canadian flag calling regularly at the ports of the world.

Corvettes Not Obsolete

Naval warfare demands constant change in equipment, but the corvette has not outlived its usefulness. This was explained to the Commons by the minister of the navy, Angus Macdonald. Three corvettes from Canada in recent months have sunk three submarines in the Mediterranean waters. This shows that they could cross the Atlantic and could still put up an effective attack when they got to the other side. They are very useful in the vital work of convoying across the Atlantic. Some larger ships such as frigates and destroyers were being constructed, but the corvette would continue to play a useful role in sea operations until the end of the war.

War Appropriation Resolution

The Commons is now hearing a review by the ministers of defence and other war ministers of the policy they are pursuing and of the progress of the work of their departments. This is of more serious interest now than ever before with the major offensive of the United Nations looming above the horizon and

Paper that sticks to polished wood surfaces can be removed by rubbing with a little salad oil slightly heated. When the paper has come off, the surface should be rubbed with a good furniture polish.

Weekly Tips For Meat Rationing

The packer and butcher take scrupulous care of meat while it is in their hands. It is just as important that proper care be given to meat in the home in order that any waste through spoilage may be avoided.

Here are some tips on meat care from the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

The wrapping paper should be removed from meat as soon as it comes from the butcher. If this is not done the paper acts as a blotter, drawing out some of the juices of the meat, the surface of the meat is kept moist and spoilage occurs more quickly.

Meat should be kept as cold as possible. Uncooked meat should be covered lightly, preferably with waxed paper. Cooked meat should be allowed to cool uncovered, then be closely covered to prevent drying out, and kept cold. Ground meat, either raw or cooked, spoils more quickly than unground meat and should always be used promptly.

Left over stews or soups which have been cooked with potatoes or thickened with flour will spoil quickly and should be used up promptly.

Meat should be wiped with a damp cloth. Washing is necessary only with the organ meats where clotted blood has to be removed and sometimes with smoked hams.

CARTHAGINIAN TANKS

Since ancient times elephants have been utilized in the work of man. Very early in the beginning of civilization skilled hunters went into the jungles of Africa to trap these mighty beasts. Specially-made ships were built to transport them to Carthage and to Rome, and much toil and patience were used to train them for work and for war.

History records the unusual and interesting use of elephants by Hannibal when he invaded Italy by way of the icy Alps. A battery of two hundred elephants accompanied this great army of invasion, and it was Hannibal's intention to use them much as our modern army-tanks are used, to crush and terrorize the enemy.

But Hannibal, great warrior that he was, had failed to reckon with one thing—fodder for his living tanks—and when his army had after untold hardships reached the sunny valleys of Italy, only some forty elephants remained alive.

Hannibal used his remaining elephants as an advance unit to frighten the Romans, but they, too, knew something of elephants. They new that Hannibal's raw jungle beasts had never heard the sound of trumpets, and when they blew these instruments lustily, the advancing elephants broke rank and fled in disorder.

After elephants have been trained and made accustomed to warfare, they are almost fearless, as has been demonstrated many times. In the hunting of lions and leopards they have been used to good advantage, carrying the hunters through the jungles and giving them protection and firing advantage from howdahs, or platforms, on their backs. As willing and intelligent workers elephants have proved their usefulness in India in the teak forests and in the shipyards where they lift the heavy logs and beams at the command of their keepers. Here in the United States they have served both as entertainers and laborers with the great circuses. It is well known that elephants become greatly attached to their keepers.

DAHLIA'S WHATNOTS

Harriet Beecher Stowe's high principles and notable literary achievements prove the influence of both heredity and environment. Her biographer says she had "the superintendence of a devoted father, the care of a loving and pious mother, the advantages of a quiet, orderly, and well-conducted home." Is quiet an advantage in childhood? Perhaps our teachers could tell us the answer and say whether roaring jazz and raving voices are calculated to promote the moral character and mental poise necessary for keenness to grasp and perseverance to pursue the work of the schoolroom.

Harriet's father, Dr. Lyman Beecher, died in 1863, and of him his famous son, Henry Ward Beecher, said, he lived as simply virtuous, as nobly Christian, as heroically active as any man of whom we have had any account in history.

Another said of him that his life was a testimony to the value of labour and of perseverance which resulted not only in his own intellectual development, but in the matured culture and eminent usefulness of his sons and daughters. These became known throughout the continent as "The Beechers." At his trade as a blacksmith, he earned the money to put himself through college. His father before him had also been a blacksmith and was known in all the country round for his determined character. His son Lyman was so tiny a baby that, for the amusement of visitors, it is said he was sometimes placed in a silver tankard. He was not robust when young, but, by strictly temperate habits, he was able to live a strenuous life, dying at the age of 87 after having seen his thirteen children distinguish themselves as orators or authors. Outside of the States, the most widely known is his daughter Harriet, whose "Uncle Tom's Cabin" made her famous almost at a bound. She was born at Litchfield, Conn., in 1814. She was so sedulous a student that at the age of 15 she began teaching in the school at Hartford which her sister Catherine had opened, and which numbered 150 pupils. Catherine herself was a remarkable woman. Of her it was said, "The mere fact that anything was customary had for her little charm—she demanded that it should be useful, otherwise it found no place in her system of education." Seeing the want of efficient books, she wrote and prepared textbooks on arithmetic and other subjects, and these were soon in general use. Later on she conducted a campaign for the education of all the children of America, travelling, writing, and speaking.

At 21 Harriet married the Rev. Calvin E. Stowe, a professor in Lane Seminary, Cincinnati, of which her father was the principal. For seventeen years her life was a peaceful one in the love of her husband, and the care and education of her children. As a quiet young woman she had been remarkable for her sedateness and quiet depth of character, and now the small pieces of composition which she contributed to periodicals during these earlier years of her married life indicated a high moral purpose rather than an intention merely to give pleasure. The presence of a distant relative in the household gave Mrs. Stowe greater leisure for writing and other pursuits. Sometimes she took into her home children of escaped slaves and trained them with her own, also lodging and assisting the fugitives. The famous "Underground Railway" ran within a few feet of Mrs. Stowe's house. It was devised by Friends and Abolitionists to help runaway slaves to escape. Often, she says, she would be wakened in the night by the rattling of the waggon carrying the unhappy fugitives; then she would hear the quick tramp of horses and knew the slaves were pursued.

The Abolitionists converted the pupils of Lane Seminary to the doctrine of freedom; those who owned slaves freed them, while others started Sunday and evening schools for the liberated colored people. Slave-owners took alarm at the movement and urged on the mob to violence. It was feared they might destroy the seminary and the homes of Dr. Beecher and Professor Stowe. The Board of Trustees forbade the students to discuss slavery, and then the students left, and the college was ruined. Dr. Beecher had to retire, and Professor Stowe accepted a position in Andover, Mass. At that time, 1850, Mrs. Stowe commenced her great tale which came out as a serial in the "Washington National Era." Its publication in book form was demanded and the sales were immence not only in America but in England, and when translated on the Continent.

Southern interests claimed that its statements had no foundation in fact, and the authoress replied by compiling "Key to Uncle Tom's Cabin." In 1853 Mrs. Stowe, with her husband and brother, Rev. Charles Beecher, travelled to England, Scotland, Paris, Switzerland, and the Rhine. She described this tour in "Sunny Memories of Foreign Lands." In 1856 her second slave tale "Dred," appeared, and she still wrote for magazines and newspapers.

The following is from her pen: "In a recent battle fell a Secession Colonel, the last remaining son of his mother, and she a widow. That mother had sold eleven children of her servant. The latter went to her and said, 'Missis, we even now. You sold all my children. God took all yourn. Now, I forgive you'."

Some of Mrs. Stowe's paragraphs remind one of Abraham Lincoln's solemn utterances. The last sentence of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" runs thus: "Not surer is the eternal law by which the millstone sinks in the ocean than that stronger law by which injustice and cruelty shall bring on nations the wrath of almighty God!"

She said that once started the book seemed to write itself. It almost seemed that the Divine Spirit urged her to perform the duty, and that when she essayed obedience, He Himself guided her pen.

Harriet Beecher Stowe died in 1896.

ITALIAN PRISONERS GET THE "BREAKS"

Allied Headquarters in North Africa.—As a truckload of Italian prisoners rolled away from the front a group of American soldiers voiced a few wisecracks. Came the retort from one Italian who spoke perfect English: "Why are you laughing at us? We're going to New York; you're going to Italy!"

Will Know Soon How Much Sugar Available For Canning

S. R. Noble, sugar administrator for the Prices Board, said recently, it had received from Canadian consumers particulars of their sugar requirements for canning purposes, and that these requirements would be "fitted in" with the stocks of sugar considered available for use in canning.

He was commenting upon an announcement from the United States office of price administration that a top limit of 25 pounds of sugar per person for home canning and freezing of this year's fruit crop there has been set.

"The (Canadian) public," Mr. Noble said, "will get the right to purchase so much sugar; the figure should be released within a day or so. We propose to set a quota for each district." He said he could give no indication of the amount to be allowed each person for canning. However, the figures of 15 pounds per person annually for those living in urban districts and 25 pounds for rural residents have been used as a yardstick in estimating requirements. When applications for canning sugar are submitted, they will be cut down according to the supply available.

Some consumers last year submitted applications for as much as 200 pounds of sugar for canning needs. Regional rationing boards will allot sugar supplies.

WEDDING

BROWN—HENDERSON

The marriage of Miss Marie Elizabeth Viola Henderson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Henderson, 32 E. 5th St., Hialeah, Fla., to Flight Officer David W. Brown, of Los Angeles, Cal., took place Saturday, April 24, at 8 p.m. in Holy Cross Episcopal church, Hialeah. The Rev. Dr. Gasque officiated, before an altar banked with palms and Easter lilies.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a pale blue crepe suit with large white picture hat, trimmed with blue ribbon and white veil, and white accessories, with a corsage of orchids.

Miss Pearl Henderson, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid. She wore an aqua crepe suit, with small white hat and veil, and corsage of pale yellow rose buds.

Miss Henderson graduated from Miami Edison High School, Miami, Fla., and was a member of the Edison Cadettes. She has been employed in a government position in Miami for the past year-and-a-half.

Flight Officer Brown is the son of Mrs. Louise A. Brown, of California. He graduated from Wentworth Institute of Boston, Mass., as a former commercial pilot and also had two years training with the R.C.A.F. in Canada.

The couple will reside in Fort Myers, Florida, where he is stationed.

Miss Henderson is a grand-daughter of Mrs. W. H. Henderson, of the Gore, and a niece of Mrs. William Graham, of Dewittville, and also of Earle Sadler, of Ormstown, Que.

Canning Sugar Ration Set at Half of Request

The Ration Administration of the Prices Board announced last week that 100,000,000 pounds of sugar—approximately half the quantity asked for by Canadian housewives—will be available for home canning this year.

The announcement said the Ration Administration had received applications for a grand total of 209,996,368 pounds and consequently many Canadian consumers would receive less sugar than they applied for.

"Canada produces only about one-fifth of the sugar it consumes," said the ration division. "Some of North America's largest sources of sugar supply now are in enemy hands, and war on the high seas greatly curtailed our imports from the remaining sources of supply. These imports can be brought in only at great danger to sailors and ships.

"Despite all these difficulties, the Sugar Administration has been able to secure for home canning purposes 100,000,000 pounds of sugar. This must be divided among the people who have applied for sugar for canning. The total amount of sugar they have requested is very much more than the 100,000,000 pounds available, and accordingly it is necessary to reduce the quantities asked for by many applicants in order to make the fairest possible distribution to all."

Distribution of supplies available for each area is in the hands of more than 500 local ration boards, the announcement said housewives will receive their sugar canning coupons from their local boards by June 1.

How many Quebec Workers know this?

QUEBEC has much to be proud of—her rivers, mountains, lakes and trees—her natural resources—her cities and towns.

But how many know that the workers of Quebec are called "the best workers in the world"? Manufacturers who have located within this Province have come here, not only for low-cost power, abundant raw materials and good transportation facilities, but because "the best workers in the world" are to be found in this Province of Quebec.

If Shawinigan takes pride in having brought to the workers opportunities for profitable employment, it is those workers who have availed themselves of these opportunities and brought credit to themselves and to the Province. To all of the workers of Quebec; to the newsprint, textile, chemical, aluminum, asbestos, wood pulp and other Quebec industries, sincere congratulations.

SHAWINIGAN AT WAR

The outbreak of hostilities found Shawinigan ready with sufficient power to provide instantly the driving force for the vitally important war industries now in full swing in the Province of Quebec.

D. of B. Lawn Bowling Assn.

A meeting of the District of Beauharnois Lawn Bowling Association was held at Valleyfield on Friday, when the following officers were elected for 1943-44: President, Mr. J. McAlpine, Valleyfield; Honorary Vice-Presidents, Mr. C. H. Potter, Valleyfield, Dr. W. S. McLaren, Ormstown; Vice-President, Mr. W. E. S. McNair, Huntingdon; Secretary, Mr. E. C. Martin, Huntingdon. Valleyfield delegates nominated are Messrs. C. Mayoh and W. Hannah; Huntingdon delegates are Messrs. A. Fawcett and W. K. Pope. The president was authorized to have all shields to date placed on the Fisher and Robb Trophies. It was decided to operate a double schedule with only two clubs, Huntingdon and Valleyfield, with games beginning about the middle of June. It was also decided to start the O'Connor Cup games about the same time.

Attempted Robberies

During the early hours of Saturday morning, some unknown person or persons broke a small pane of glass from the front window of the house in which Miss Mary Bruce resides, on Lorne Avenue. It is not known whether this was an attempt to burglarize the premises or whether somebody deliberately broke the window. Miss Bruce, on hearing the noise, arose and heard the footsteps of a person running away.

83 Bouchette street was the scene of a second disturbance, the home of the late Mr. Chas. Lefebvre, who died a few months ago. Mr. A. C. H. Picard, who is in charge of the premises, stated that when he went to inspect the home on Saturday, a lock on the rear door was broken, and there were signs that there had been prowlers in the house, which is now vacant, as Mrs. Lefebvre is living with her daughter in Montreal. It is believed that the house was entered some time between Wednesday evening and Saturday morning, as Mrs. Jos. Moniqui, who lives at 81 Bouchette street, states that the lock was broken when she was using a clothes-line at the rear of that house on Wednesday. It is believed that, if the news is authentic, that it might have been an attempt to steal carpenter tools that were supposedly on the premises.

Miss Doris Stephenson, of Franklin Centre, was a week-end guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Dawson.

Mrs. Ethel Dawson, Conductor of the Rebekah Assembly of Quebec, attended the Rebekah School of Instruction in Victoria Hall, Montreal, on Saturday evening.

Week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Chambers were Mr. and Mrs. Norman Stewart, of Plattsburg, N.Y.

Dr. A. A. White, B.V. Sc., is leaving on Thursday for Prince Edward Island to work for the Federal Government. Last year, he spent three months in the Province of Nova Scotia, where he did T.B. testing of cattle in the Annapolis Valley, returning to his home here late in April. His stay in Prince Edward Island will be one of an indefinite period.

Mr. J. A. Lanktree recently received word that his son, Gordon, has graduated from No. 3 Initial Training School, Victoriaville, and has received his "Props" as a Leading Aircraftsman. He expects to be stationed at Windsor Mills, Que. L.A.C. Lanktree is convalescing at Athabaska, five miles east of Victoriaville, where he had his tonsils removed a few days ago.

The regular monthly meeting of the United Church W.M.S. met in the church May 12th. There was a good attendance. The president, Mrs. J. Reid opened the meeting with singing and prayer. As this was the Thank-Offering meeting, a special programme was arranged. A solo was given by Mrs. L. E. Mason, a visitor in town, and was appreciated by all. The special speaker for the occasion was Mrs. Stanley Ruddock. It was an address with a sincere missionary spirit, and a depth of earnestness and conviction. It left a deep impression on all those present. It was based on Paul's words Rom. 12-1: "I beseech you therefore brethren by the mercies of God that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice holy, acceptable unto God which is your reasonable service."

The meeting closed with prayer, after which light refreshments were served. The offering amounted to about $85.00.

Twenty-eight years ago Mr. Daniel Faubert was named license issuer for this area by the Quebec Motor Vehicles Department. At that time, the number of cars licensed was few in number, there being approximately 100 cars licensed in the season. Throughout these twenty-eight years Mr. Faubert filled this position for all but three years, when the office was held by Mr. C. B. Kelly. Mr. Faubert has resigned the post, and on Wednesday Mr. J. P. de Blois, Director of Quebec Motor Vehicle Services, Quebec, was in Huntingdon and installed Mr. John Myers as Mr. Faubert's successor. Mr. Myers took over on May 13 with his office being located in the Shell Service Station, Chateauguay St. Mr. Faubert served the community exceptionally well during the 25 years he held this important office.

Four-Vehicle Collision

An International pick-up truck, driven by Mr. Guy Lefebvre, from Huntingdon, figured in a collision with three other motor vehicles at the Pearl-Main street corner, Malone, on Thursday afternoon. Joseph Durham, of Brasher Falls, was driving off Pearl street and possibly lost control of the car he was driving. His vehicle struck the Lefebvre truck, which was parked in the centre parking space, and with the impact of the truck a small coupe parked beside the truck was considerably damaged. The coupe rolled across the street and struck a fourth car, causing slight damage.

Weather Continues Wet and Cool

Much of the high water that covered low-lying areas during the first three days of last week has now disappeared, and, although the land is still wet, it is drying quickly, due to the brisk wind. In Town, the floors in the basements of many houses were covered with water. Farmers stated that their cisterns were full for the first time in two years, and people with wells are not suffering from a lack of good drinking water. Victory gardeners are disappointed as the land is much too wet to work.

A wind of high velocity rose on Sunday evening, and continued through most of the night. The "Walk Your Horses" sign on the lower bridge which has been threatening to fall for some time, fell with the first few gusts of wind. Luckily, there were no passers-by in the area at the time.

Election of Officers

Mr. John J. Tannahill was re-elected Mayor of the Township of Godmanchester last Wednesday. Messrs. John A. Caldwell, William Graham and Joseph Chartrand, Councillors for Seats Nos. 1, 3, and 5, respectively, whose terms had also expired, were re-elected. The terms of Councillors E. Rankin, H. Biggar and R. Pringle do not expire for another year.

$83.75 Realized

A three-act comedy farce, "Aunt Susie Shoots the Works," given by the Georgetown Bible Class, was presented in the Huntingdon High School auditorium on Thursday evening, under the auspices of St. Andrew's Young Women's Association. The auditorium was filled to capacity, the audience being mostly from out-of-town. Between acts, the popular and talented Cullen children from Ormstown delighted all with their dance numbers. All members of the cast played their roles well, and receipts of the evening amounted to $83.75, admission being 35 and 25 cents. After the play, refreshments were served to the Georgetown Bible Class at the Manse.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Kelly, Betty and Edward, of Montreal, spent the week-end at the home of his brother, Mr. R. G. Kelly. Miss Beatrice Kirby, of Montreal, was a week-end guest at the same home.

Constable G. A. Dobbin was recently transferred from Montreal to the local detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, replacing Constable C. A. Bellefeuille, who was transferred to Montreal.

Sgt. Air-Gunner Leon Grenon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Grenon, Sr., is spending a two weeks' furlough at home. He has been stationed at Mont Joli, Que.

Word has been received that Lloyd Stott, of Saranac Lake, N.Y., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Stott, formerly of Huntingdon, has recently received the rank of Corporal. He took his basic training at Atlantic City and is presently stationed at Fort Monmouth, Redbank, N.J.

The funeral of the late Dr. J. C. Moore is to take place on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. The Arbor Day ceremony which was to take place in Prince Arthur Square at 1.30 o'clock has been postponed until Friday, May 21, at the same hour.

A verdict of death from natural causes was returned, as the deceased had died of a heart affliction.

Mrs. Petch spoke on women's work in various fields giving many intimate details of well-known women, ending with a few words on our dearly loved Queen.

One of the members of this branch, Mrs. W. Keddy, has received a very interesting letter from a 10-year-old child in Ireland, acknowledging some clothing donated by Mrs. Keddy through the W.I. and Red Cross last Christmas.

This little girl's relatives, father, brother and brother-in-law are serving in the British Army, and this letter shows that garments made and given through proper channels, arrive to gladden the hearts of little children.

WHY-NOTS

Worry-Not, friends and mothers, dear,
We are living with death, ever so near.
Thousands die, and left alone,
A little cross; a soul from home.

Forget-Not, a little cross to wear;
Our maker fashions with blending care,
The homeward march, now drawing near;
They die again, after twenty-fifth year.

Weep-Not, for those who have not returned;
Life begins where death is earned.
The Why-nots are paid for Canada's pride,
They took their punishment from every side.

I have listed the Nots, that are tied by faith;
We have tied many knots by blood and mistake;
I have suffered their agony as they die;
I hope to live and find out—Why?

Written by Pte. F. M. A. Dobson, of Ormstown, Que., with 2nd Div. C. A. Overseas.

Educational Conference at Sherbrooke Attended by Two Hundred Delegates

Large School Unit Held Sound Policy — Politicians Held Foes of Education by Harold N. Chamberlain, Guest Speaker

The larger unit of administration for schools, although on a voluntary basis at the beginning, should have legislative backing, Harold N. Chamberlain, supervising principal, Whitney Point Central School, Whitney Point, N.Y., told educationists gathered at Sherbrooke recently, from all parts of the province for a two-day conference.

Speaking on The Educational Advantages of the Larger Unit of Administration, Mr. Chamberlain stressed the importance of making the actual formation of such units elective with the local people in the early stages, "Any program of organization of the larger unit should retain all possible democratic control."

The organization of such a unit, should not, however, be considered "satisfactory or necessary," Mr. Chamberlain said, "unless the net results are better teaching services available for more pupils who are not at the present time receiving such services." The organization of an adequate administrative school unit should result in "more satisfactory economical differentiation of the educational curriculum, especially in the smaller school systems, more satisfactory teaching services in the smaller school systems, and better efficiency and lower financial cost through co-operative organization and exchange available in the larger unit."

As an example of the way in which a district might go about organizing a school unit, Mr. Chamberlain suggested that all members of existing school commissions in a certain area automatically become a larger administrative unit district council with power to elect a district board of five members, to which the council could delegate powers and responsibility as it saw fit.

Concerning finances, Mr. Chamberlain emphasized the point that the "cost of the administrative unit need not be excessive," and, indeed, should "save for the district its entire cost." The cost could be borne proportionately by the province and district concerned, he said.

In listing educational advantages which the larger unit could bring to school of the province, the speaker mentioned libraries and supplementary reading exchanges, "supply teachers banks," continuous district curriculum revision study, assembly programme exchanges, exchanges of special types of teachers, guidance staffs, full-time attendance officers, and adequate testing departments.

Mr. Chamberlain illustrated his address by examples of what had actually been accomplished in various American schools by the adoption of the larger unit of administration program.

A general discussion period followed Mr. Chamberlain's address, dealing chiefly with the larger, administrative unit as it would affect Quebec.

David Munroe, president of the High School Principals Association, presided at the meeting, which was held in Sherbrooke Protestant High School.

Post-war education must not be made a political football, Harold N. Chamberlain, supervising principal, Whitney Point Central School, Whitney Point, N.Y., declared in an address delivered at the second day morning session of the educationnl conference. Mr. Chamberlain brought greetings to Quebec Protestant education leaders from New York State education bodies.

Speaking on Education Today and After the War, Mr. Chamberlain termed enemies of education "those political parasites who would for mere vote-getting, make of education a political football . . . Education now or after the war," he continued, "cannot be political."

Other enemies of education Mr. Chamberlain listed as "economic parasites," and "social parasites." "Education can and must take true criticism and will profit therefrom, but must relentlessly overcome false enemies who will again march forth in full force after the war."

Tracing briefly the evolution of education, with special reference to America, Mr. Chamberlain said that "it does not mean teaching people what they do not know. It means teaching them to behave as they do not behave."

The speaker stressed the point that schools of tomorrow must "much more carefully guide youth," providing education "adapted to the needs of all boys and girls of the 'teen age group."

Aims of postwar education, Mr. Chamberlain listed as a dominant health aim, a dominant vocational aim, a dominant cultural aim, a dominant social-civic aim, with character education as the foundation stone, and religion in education permeating all educational experiences. "We must never be satisfied" he concluded.

Business Meetings Held

The first part of the morning session of the conference, began with a meeting of the High School Principals' Association. Meetings held included those of the Stanstead County Teachers' Association, the Compton Teachers' Association, the Sherbrooke Teachers' Association, the Brome County Teachers' Association, the Adult Education Association and the High School Principals' Association.

At the High School Principals' gathering E. C. Amaron, principal of Stanstead College, introduced a motion, which was carried, asking that the P.A.P.T. endeavor to get a more standardized interpretation of the Health Act as it pertains to quarantine regulations. In the discussion following Dr. Murray Stalker, Ormstown, vice-president of the Association of Protestants School Boards, outlined briefly the health program now carried on in the schools. The health committee of the A.P.S.B., he said, was advocating an annual efficient health examination of every pupil.

"It is not good enough," he stated, "that a nurse go into a school and pass 50-60 children a morning. It should be done by a physician who is interested in his job . . . Nothing in the whole education system is so important as this type of work."

The question of teacher shortage was considered with the view to considering what high school principals could do towards encouraging pupils to enter the teaching profession.

Hold Latin Unessential

A motion was passed recommending that the principal of McGill University again be advised of the fact that the H.S.P.A. felt that Latin should no longer be required for university entrance.

At the Adult Education Association meeting, E. C. Amaron was again chosen president. Other officers were: vice-presidents, Geo. Halliday, Sawyerville, D. C. Munroe, Ormstown; secretary-treasurer, E. L. Gilbert, Asbestos; members of the executive, Alex Sim, secretary of the Eastern Townships Adult Education Council. It was also decided at the meeting to form a Quebec Council of Community Schools, to replace the Eastern Townships Adult Education Council, since the work had extended to parts of the province outside the limits of the townships.

The conference closed with a luncheon in the New Sherbrooke House tendered the visiting educationalists by the Sherbrooke City Council and the Sherbrooke Protestant School Board, and presided over by Mayor A. C. Ross.

Guest speaker at the luncheon was John W. Barnett, general secretary of the Alberta Teachers' Association, who spoke on legal status for teachers, or automatic membership in the provincial teachers' organization. Voluntary membership in such a body often worked out as "compulsion of the worst kind," Mr. Barnett said.

Describing the benefits which such legislature had brought to the teaching profession in Alberta, Mr. Barnett said, "It has given a flip to the whole teacher movement there, because we are all in on it."

Citizens benefitted as well from such an act, Mr. Barnett declared, since "it is our guarantee to the public that members of the teaching profession will conduct themselves aright."

Reminding teachers of their duty to the state, Mr. Barnett said: "If we had the 50,000 teachers of Canada solidly in one organization, who could tell where we'd be able to go? No one has more potentiality for benefitting the nation than the teaching profession. We can do it. We can make this world move. We can become the leaders in educational thought."

Mr. Barnett was introduced by D E. Pope, president of the P.A.P.T., and was thanked by F. N. Stephen, vice-president of the High School Principals' Association.

The visitors were welcomed by Mayor Ross, and by J. H. Wark, chairman of the Sherbrooke Protestant School Board, D. C. Munroe, Ormstown, president of the H.S.P.A., thanked the Sherbrooke Council and the Sherbrooke School Board.

More than 200 delegates, including teachers, school principals, inspectors, clergy, members of parliament, members of the Protestant Committee, school board members and representatives of the Roman Catholic teachers attended the two-day conference, which was the first regional one of its kind to be held in Quebec.

Covey Hill

Another good showing of pictures under adult education supervision and sponsored by the Covey Hill-Havelock Red Cross group, took place in the Town Hall on Friday evening, attracting a crowded audience. For the enlightenment of those whom we hear asking "How do they know just what, etc.?" we quote from the National Film booklet: This film "Freighters Under Fire," aims to show the U-boat danger in all its grim starkness. Through the skilful adoption of material from seized Nazi films, we are able to follow the under-water forays of German submarines.

This picture depicts two classes of marine heroes, those who man the combatant corvettes and the merchant sailors, unsung heroes of the Atlantic battle.

"Fur Country" dramatizes a week in the life of a trapper in the James Bay area of Northern Ontario. He was seen setting out in the teeth of a bitter gale to seek for pelts.

The picture "Canadian Mail" showed various aspects of the postal service, including the dropping of mail bags from airplanes in isolated sections of our own Province.

Public Protected Against Danger Diseased Meats

For the year ended March, 1942, a total of 14,164 cattle was condemned in Canada as unsuitable for human food. It is estimated that 55 per cent of the meat consumed in Canada is Dominion Government inspected. Considering that condemnations of inspected meats were so heavy, it follows that condemnations on the remaining 45 per cent should have been proportionately so, said Dr. D. J. McLellan, Inspector in charge at Peterboro, Ont., for the Health of Animals Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, in a recent address to members of the Ontario Veterinary Association. Many of these animals undoubtedly were "country slaughtered" with little regard for modern sanitary methods and slight provision made for separating the healthy from the diseased, the sound from the unsound. It is evident that the stamp which appears on the portions of meat coming from the 93 packing houses, reading "Canada Approved" is the public's guarantee of a wholesome product, a guarantee that not only is the product derived from healthy animals but also that it contains no injurious preservatives and was prepared under modern sanitary conditions, explained Dr. McLellan.

Dominion meat inspection is rendering a service of first national importance to the public. It is an undisputed fact that certain diseases of animals are transmitted to man, said Dr. McLellan, and the objects of meat inspection are, first, the detection of these diseases and the protection of the public against the dangers which threaten human life from these diseases; second, the supervision of hygiene and sanitation in the preparation of products derived from healthy animals.

Throughout Canada, 93 packing houses are operating under Dominion Government inspection, engaging a full-time staff of 317 which includes qualified veterinarians and lay inspectors. The Meat and Canned Foods Act covering meat inspection provides for a thorough and efficient inspection both before and after slaughter of all animals killed at official establishments engaged in interprovincial and foreign export business. Packing houses operating without inspection are limited to trade within their own province. The Act also requires an examination by trained lay inspectors of all products prepared from slaughtered animals and for supervision of all operations, including shipping and receiving of products.

Packing houses under Dominion inspection are allotted a staff of inspectors, the size of the staff depending on the volume of business done. Each of these packing houses is given an official number, and this number, together with the words "Canada Approved," is stamped on every carcass or portion of meat food product leaving the plant after inspection. By this number, the origin of the food product can be established accurately, when necessary.

Model Planes to Aid In Winning the War

"That," said the Leading Aircraftman, "is a Messerschmitt 109." In rapid succession as planes flitted past his line of vision, he continued, "and that is a Spitfire, that's a Hurricane, that's a Junkers 2 Dive Bomber."

The R.C.A.F. instructor nodded satisfied approval. Then he gathered up an armful of Spitfires, Hurricanes, Junkers and Messerschmitts and started putting them away in a cupboard.

This isn't a story of a Gulliver and a Lilliputian air force; it is part of the technique of winning a war, according to an article on model planes by Ken MacTaggart in a recent issue of C-I-L Oval.

All over Canada, Commonwealth Air Training instructors are teaching embyro fighter and bomber crews how to recognize friendly or enemy aircraft in the twinkling of an eye and they are using tiny model aircraft that are exact duplicates of their deadly prototypes, exact to a startling degree of duplication in even such details as camouflage and identity markings.

A humming worship of young Canadians is making it possible for Canada's airmen in training to have these model craft. At almost any time during the school day these young Canadians toil at their task in a system of nine relays of freshfaced boys. Their factory is the wood-working shop of the aircraft annex of the Central Technical School in Toronto and the young workers are students of the nine classes engaged in the four-year aeronautical course. Their objective is 1,800 planes, made up of 45 different models, and their present production rate is about 100 a month.

Ambulance drivers, rescue personnel and air raid wardens in Britain may soon spend their spare time doing anything from secret factory work to examining Bank of England notes to detect forgery.

Compulsory Pasteurization Of Milk A Possibility

Godbout Government Keenly Alive to Situation in Quebec—Many Petitions Presented on Subject

By Health League of Canada

With medical urging and informed public opinion behind it, the drive for compulsory milk pasteurization in the Province of Quebec has made such headway that introduction of legislation by Premier Adelard Godbout's Government is considered in many quarters to be a certainty.

Some 65 influential organizations, including not only medical, public health and nursing bodies, but religious, educational and commercial institutions, service clubs and business firms have sent petitions to the Godbout Government asking for the legislation.

It is believed that any popular poll would show wide public support for the measure, and an indication of this was seen in Outremont, suburb of Montreal, where pasteurization became a municipal election issue. Joseph Beaubien, 78 years old, re-elected mayor of Outremont for a 34th term was opposed by a candidate who did not believe in pasteurization. The defeated candidate had a majority (of three votes) in only one of the 38 polls.

If Quebec adopts compulsory pasteurization, it will be the second Province in Canada to do so. The Ontario Government adopted pasteurization in 1938 after, it is said, Premier Mitchell Hepburn learned that no case of bone tuberculosis among children had developed in Toronto since the city passed its milk pasteurization ordinance in 1914. All bone tuberculosis cases among children treated in Toronto had come from outside the city, it was demonstrated. Compulsory pasteurization has had wide public support in Ontario and it is considered an outstanding public achievement.

The Godbout Government of Quebec is keenly alive to the situation in Quebec, with its high tuberculosis, typhoid, diptheria, scarlet fever and infant mortality rates. The Government has been sensitive to criticism from outside the Province while taking consistent action to overcome the handicaps of early inaction. Criticism of Quebec's venereal-disease attitude by a Western newspaper had immediate response from Premier Godbout, who not only pointed to the Province's 1941 Venereal disease control legislation—as good as any in Canada—but took pride in appreciable reduction in the incidence of communicable disease generally.

Opposition to pasteurization in Quebec has come chiefly from cranks and the uninformed, of whom there are a number in every Province.

The medical evidence that milk loses none of its nutritive value is complete and overwhelming. However, Le Devoir, Montreal newspaper, has made itself champion of the opposition, admittedly in the minority. It holds that pasteurized milk is as susceptible to contamination as raw milk and also advances the old fallacious argument that raw milk has advantages over the other. The answer to Le Devoir's statement is, of course, that any food can be contaminated after having been hygienically produced or sterilized. The answer lies in sanitary handling methods.

If Devoir's argument was good, it would be useless to sterilize surgical instruments, as they could be contaminated again before use.

Le Canada, also of Montreal, has taken the sound position of pointing to well known statistics available from other countries as well as Canada, showing that pasteurization has effectively reduced infant mortality and the incidence of all milk-borne disease.

In fact, the opposition has no argument at all. Pasteurized milk is a safe, healthy food, necessary to the good nutrition of children and adults. As a raw product it has killed and crippled uncounted thousands of children.

Pasteurization of milk is endorsed and urged by the Canadian Medical Association; British Medical Association; Canadian Public Health sociation; American Medical Association; American Public Health Association; League of Nations Health Committee.

Treat Gladioli to Get Good Bloom

Due to war conditions, it would appear that gladioli growers are going to experience more difficulty than ever in safeguarding their favourite flowers from the attacks of thrips, states Alan G. Dustan, Division of Entomology, Dominion Department of Agriculture. In the past, when corm treatments had been somewhat neglected, or where migration of thrips from nearby gardens occurred, the careful gardener resorted to summer sprays made with tartar emetic or paris green and a sweetener. The poisons are still available but brown sugar, honey, and corn syrup are now too precious to spray about a garden.

With the possibility of control by spraying virtually removed, it is essential this spring that all corms be thoroughly and carefully treated. In the past, it has been found that the negect of treating new corms purchased from whatever source was one of the most common methods of introducing the thrips insects into clean plantations and neighbourhoods.

There are several methods of treating corms—dipping in hot water, corrosive sublimate and lysol, and fumigation by calcium cyanide, and methyl bromide. The hot water treatment is convenient for the grower with few corms to treat, and should be used only in the spring, after the corms are fully ripened, and planting follows immediately. The corms should be immersed for 10 minutes in a bath at a temperature of 120 degrees F.

A corrosive sublimate dip may be made at the rate of one ounce to six gallons of water. Corms should be soaked for three hours if peeled, or for 20 hours, if unpeeled. The dip is effective at room temperature, or at about 70 degrees. It should be used once only and then discarded for a fresh dip. Corms should be treated just before planting, and thus saving trouble in drying them before re-storing. The greatest care must be taken. The sublimate is a deadly poison.

As naphthalene flakes are scarce, and the price of corrosive sublimate is increasing, lysol has come into prominence as a dip at the rate of 5 teaspoonfuls to one gallon of water. Peeled or unpeeled, the corms should be soaked for 6 hours.

Rolled Oats Take Sting Out of Meat Rationing

If Two Pounds of Meat a Week Not Enough, Try This Canadian Meat "stretcher"

Meatless Tuesdays in Canadian restaurants and a two-pound weekly meat limit for consumers at home puts another strain on Canada's wartime housewives. But meat rationing is necessary and so the housewife who has learned to make one pound of tea or coffee do the work that two pounds did before must now start planning how to stretch out her meat ration to satisfy her family and preserve their health and strength.

Kitchen tests by professional dietitians, conducted since meat rationing was first on the way, have disclosed an untapped source of meat substitute. When rolled oats are mixed with meat, tests have proved, the meat stretches twice as far, tastes as good or better and contains all the food value required for health and stamina.

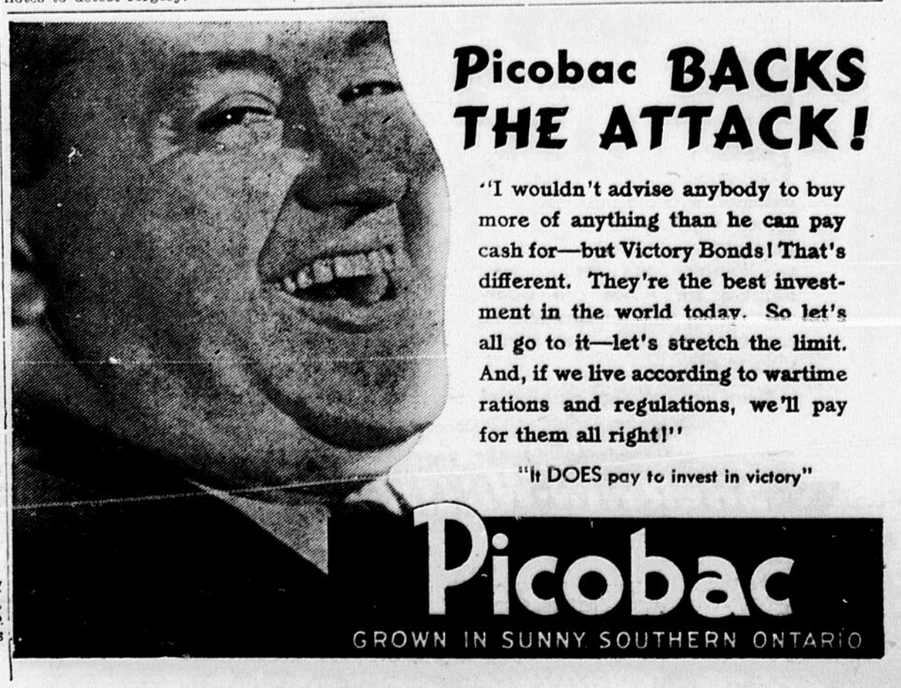

Long regarded as almost exclusively a breakfast food, rolled oats have the same vitamin content as an equal amount of whole meat. Rolled oats, for instance contain 72 international units of Vitamin B1 per ounce, as well as iron, calcium and other minerals and they are high in protein value. Food value is important, but almost equally important are taste and appearance. Keeping these factors in mind dietitians produced a delicious meat loaf, sufficient to serve a family of five, with the use of just one pound of minced meat, combined with rolled oats. Since oats are unrationed this combination dish offers a practical answer to a housewife's prayer. The tested recipe follows:

Meat Loaf

Take the following ingredients and mix well together in a baking dish: 1 lb. fresh minced beef; ½ cup rolled oats; 1 egg; 1 cup milk or 1 cup water with left-over gravy mixed in it; 1 tbsp. pork fat (if meat is lean); 2 tsps. Salt; ¼ tsp. pepper; ¼ tsp. sage; ½ small onion; cut fine; 1 tsp. meat sauce (if desired). Bake 1½ hours in medium slow oven and serve hot or cold.

Mrs. Stirret Cameron and son Franklin, were dinner guests of Mrs. George D. Elliott, Tatehurst, on Sunday, and attended the funeral of the late Mrs. James Sangster, Ormstown, in the afternoon.

Mrs. A. B. Cameron spent the past ten days with her friend, Miss Mae Mark, Finch, Ont.

Rumor Clinic ...

INNOCENCE IS NO EXCUSE

(Prepared by the Canadian Column)

We have all seen how an innocent or thoughtless action can cause disastrous results. The same is true of rumors. Our enemies are using this means to full advantage by spreading malicious lies and rumors regarding our war effort.

In a Democracy where free speech is part of our daily life, each of us can be guilty of sabotage by repeating these lies. These rumors and deceptions, even though repeated innocently or thoughtlessly, are dangerous, and damaging to our cause. They are inexcusable.

Don't allow your freedom of speech to become helpful to Hitler. Inform yourself of the facts. Be a help instead of a hindrance.

RUMOR: "When training or other 'planes in the Air Force return from flights, the gasoline in their tanks as well as the anti-freeze in the radiators of water-cooled machines is dumped and allowed to go to waste."

FACT: Royal Canadian Airforce Information: "This rumor is becoming a hardy perennial and there is absolutely no truth in it. We have had to deny this before. It originates, we believe, from the fact that after flights gasoline and anti-freeze is drained off into underground tanks. It is a safety measure. Persons unacquainted with the procedure, and not noticing the drain pipe to the underground tank, might very well assume that the gasoline or other liquid is being emptied on to the ground. Like so many other rumors of needless waste and extravagance in the armed forces, this one is absolutely without foundation. No gasoline or other valuable fluid is wasted."

RUMOR: "I have it on good authority that considerable horse meat is being eaten in Canada, and people are unaware of what kind of meat they are actually being sold."

FACT: "There is no foundation for a statement of this kind. Considerable horse meat is not being eaten in Canada; likewise it is definitely not being sold under another name. Horse meat has been offered for sale in only a few isolated districts, but was properly labeled as such. The law requires that anyone offering this type of meat for sale must advertise it as horse meat. It is true that horse meat is used extensively as feed for foxes and minks, but in such cases it is shipped directly from the point of slaughtering to the ranch."

RUMOR: "A submarine came up off Rimouski and let off four Germans. They were allowed to come ashore and were followed. At a later date two men were caught entering a side window of a bank at Sussex. They had oily rags with them and presumably were going to set fire to the building. Another was caught at Antigonish."

RUMOR: "A German spy was caught in Sussex camp wearing a uniform. He was making a call to his wife (supposedly) at Hampton; and he was traced and caught. He is believed to be the fourth man from the submarine."

FACT: Commissioner S. T. Wood, Royal Canadian Mounted Police: "We know of no case involving four men landed from a submarine. No case has come to our attention which parallels those set forth in these rumors. We have never heard of any spy in uniform being apprehended." Superintendent H. A. R. Gagnon, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Montreal: "This Force would be in possession of details if there was the slightest truth in these stories. The rumors are down right lies."

RUMOR: "The reason for being rationed on meat in Canada is due to the fact that the best quality of meat is being shipped overseas to different armed forces in Europe, and soon we will have to resort to eating horse flesh".

FACT: Office of the Director of Processed Meats, Wartime Prices and Trade Board: "This is an absurd rumor as well as a very harmful and malicious one. There is absolutely no foundation for the statements contained therein. Meat is being rationed in Canada so that existing supplies may be equitably distributed, both among our fighting forces and our civilian population. After essential requirements of the armed forces and the civilian population are met, any surplus goes to our fighting allies who are in need of food. The suggestion that Canadians will have to eat horse flesh is definitely a mischievous bit of rumor-mongering and absolutely false."

RUMOR: "The Government does not allow anyone to plant sugar-beet this year so that they can produce sugar for their own use."

FACT: S. R. Noble, Sugar Administrator, Wartime Prices and Trade Board: "There is absolutely nothing to this rumor. There is no regulation which prevents anyone planting sugar-beet. We doubt very much, however, the feasibility of an individual planting sugar-beet with the intention of producing sugar for his own use. Processing sugar-beet for sugar is a pretty involved process. There is actually nothing to prevent an individual trying however."

ADVISORY BOARD: The Rumor Clinic is supervised by an Editorial Board consisting of: Dr. F. Cyril James, Principal and Vice-Chancellor, McGill University; Paul Vaillancourt, Honorary Secretary for the Red Cross, Province of Quebec; Mr. Justice C. Gordon Mackinnon; Paul Fournier, President, Montréal Trades and Labour Council; Lieut.-Col. W. C. Nicholson, D.S.O., M.C.* Vice-President, Canadian Legion; Alfred Charpentier, General President, Confédération des Travailleurs Catholiques du Canada; Honourable Wilfrid Bovey, Member Legislative Council; Col. G. G. D. Kilpatrick, Director of Army Education, National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa.

You can help. Don't repeat rumors—Report them. Write to the: Canadian Column, Transportation Building, Montreal. (All letters must be signed. Unsigned letters are disregarded.) ### Technicolor Hit, "Black Swan"

The master story-teller's most exciting story of the sea, Rafael Sabatini's "The Black Swan," has been translated by 20th Century-Fox into a rousing adventure film. Said to retain all the lusty tang of the book, the film looms all the more glorious, in its swashbuckling way, thanks to the gift of blazing Technicolor.

Starring Tyronne Power and Maureen O'Hara, the film coming on Sunday and Monday, May 23 and 24, to the O'Connor Theatre features a cast fully equal in magnitude to the richness of the story—Laird Gregar, Thomas Mitchell, George Sanders, Anthony Quinn, George Zucco and hundreds of others.

Rafael Sabatini's breath-taking tale is a classic, of course. The book has yet to be written that can match "The Black Swan" in virility, in the tempestuousness of its romance, the breakneck pace of its turbulent action, the fury of its stirring characters.

And the story's offspring, the motion picture? Well, the word "motion" would seem to hold the answer. Tales that live between covers of a book, almost breathe to millions when endowed with the scope and movement of the screen.

Th film's story is known to virtually all. It holds a nautical telescope, so to speak, over the whole era when villainy wore a sash and cutlass, and the only political creed in the world was love, gold and adventure. It tells the saga of the freebooters, those bold seafarers turned loose by greedy princes to waylay other greedy princes.

The dashing role of Capt. James Waring, a buccaneer who plunders a ship's prize or lady's lips with equal abandon, would seem to be tailor-made for Power, and who better for the two-fisted brother brigands of the sea than the cinema's most hissable character actors—Laird Cregar, Thomas Mitchell, George Sanders, Anthony Quinn and George Zucco? Incidentally, "The Black Swan" marks the first romantic pairing of Power and Miss O'Hara.

The Elgin Ladies' Aid was entertained in the Church, on Friday, May 14th. The Ladies spent the day quilting on a Red Cross quilt, which not being finished, was taken to Mrs. McDonald's to be completed. A delicious hot dinner was served by Mrs. G. Black and Mrs. G. McMillan to eleven members and 21 invited guests. The meeting was opened at 2.30 by the President, in the usual form with singing and reading scripture lesson. The next item of business was the presentation of a quilt to Mrs. McMillan, by the President, Mrs. G. D. Elder, from the members of the Aid. Mrs. McMillan thanked the ladies for their kindness to her. A solo sung by Miss Janet Arthur and accompanied on the piano by Mrs. W. Smellie, was very much enjoyed. Mrs. McMillan gave a very interesting talk on Church Work. Meeting closed with prayer. Collection $8.40.

Mrs. Watson Tannahill has been confined to bed for the past week, with a severe attack of sinus trouble.

The President of Elgin Sunday School, Miss Lillian Murdock and Mr. and Mrs. MacMillan met at the home of Mrs. W. F. McDonald, on Friday evening, to discuss operation of the Sunday School for the coming summer.

Health Notes

INDUSTRIAL HEALTH

With the endorsation of the Federal Government, a tested plan for supervising the health of Canadian factory workers has been announced today by the industrial division of the Health League of Canada. This announcement culminated months of study by the division's technical committee into the problem of reducing the heavy cost of sickness and absenteeism in wartime industry.

"Realizing that sickness costs Canadian industries up to 3,000,000 man-days per month our technical committee has prepared a complete plan for health and nutrition in plants," H. W. Weis, national chairman of the league's industrial division, explained. Details of the plan were submitted to Hon. Ian A. Mackenzie, minister of pensions and national health, and Dr. L. B. Pett, director of Nutrition Services, Ottawa.

In his endorsation of the plan, Mr. Mackenzie said: "I have examined with a great deal of interest the plan of the Health League of Canada to promote health in Canadian industry. It seems to me to be complete and practical. Its general adoption by industry will not only further Canada's war effort but will be an important factor in solving some of our post-war problems. I heartily approve and endorse this program and sincerely hope that your committee may have every success."

Similar commendation came from Doctor Pett, who found that the league's outline of nutritional education and food supervision was "admirably fitted to help all Canadian industry."

Vital need of health conservation in industry, both now and after the war, was emphasized by Mr. Weis in his announcement. He pointed out that time lost due to sickness is costing Canadian industrial workers an estimated $135,000,000 in wages annually.

"Moreover," he added, "this loss is far more serious when considered in terms of production. Industrial hygiene authorities estimate that the total hidden loss of the employer is at least one and a half times as great as the wages lost by employees because of illness."

Briefly, according to Mr. Weis, the plan gives employers practical data on:

1. How to start and operate a medical programme for workers.
2. How eating habits may be improved.
3. How health can be maintained through a vigorous educational programme.

"But it should be remembered," Mr. Weis concluded, "that better health is only one of the many important results of this plan for health conservation. Other benefits include fewer accidents and increased efficiency. All the material has been prepared by leading authorities in the fields of health and nutrition and complete details are offered plant officials without charge on request."

Honorary chairman of the Health League's industrial division is J. S. McLean, president of Canada Packers, Ltd., Toronto. The directors include Dr. Gordon Bates, general director, Toronto; Dr. C. F. Blackler, Acting Chief Division of Industrial Hygiene, Department of Pensions and National Health, Ottawa; Dr. J. G. # The Bomber Press In Great-Britain ...

Another in a series of articles written by W. R. Legge and C. V. Charters, who represented the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association in a recent tour overseas.

CANADIAN RED CROSS HEADQUARTERS

(Article No. 21) By Walter R. Legge

There is a large building in the heart of London in which a band of busy workers, many of them volunteers, do their utmost to help alleviate the miseries caused by the war.

It is Canadian Red Cross Headquarters. Last August the Canadian editors went there and were shown some of the work in progress.

These Headquarters occupy five stories of a building loaned to the Red Cross by Lord Crichley. The offices overlook Berkeley Square, a spot made famous in song and drama, which would scarcely be recognized by those who knew it in peace time.

The iron railing around the square has been made into munitions. This railing was a famous Georgian relic over three hundred years old. The grass has all been trampled down and trenches have added to the scene of desolation.

Several buildings in the immediate vicinity have been struck. Lady Willingdon's house on one corner of the square has suffered a direct hit.

Inside the Red Cross Building, however, everything is clean and well ordered and the work goes on with quiet efficiency.

Crates of supplies are being unloaded, sorted, listed, and stored away in their proper places, or made into shipments to fill requisitions.

Few people realize the amount of work accomplished by the Red Cross, not only in quantity, but in variety. We saw them making up special parcels for prisoners of war, supplies for hospitals and for sick and wounded, articles for babies of men on active service, replacements of articles lost by men who had been shot down, torpedoed or bombed, and many other urgent needs.

It is possible in some cases, that the very lives of prisoners of war in enemy hands has depended upon the parcels supplied by the Red Cross. Each prisoner is allowed one parcel of food weekly. These parcels supplied by the Red Cross weigh approximately eleven pounds. In addition, the prisoners are allowed a quarterly parcel from the next-of-kin.

They told us that parcels to prisoners in Germany are getting through to them fairly well and that they are now getting through to prisoners in Italy much better than they were previously.

The Red Cross received many requests for special articles. Every effort is made to supply them if possible and if they are allowed to be sent. We were shown one letter received from Flying Officer Bruce Dawson Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Campbell, of Pointe Claire, Que., asking for elementary and advanced textbooks on Algebra and Trigonometry. This shows that many prisoners are anxious to put their enforced idleness to as good use as possible.

Those at work in the Red Cross Headquarters went to great pains to show us around and answer our questions. One of them was Lady Ellison, who is doing work in the prisoners' department. She did similar work during the last war.

While looking at the boxes of goods sent over from local Red Cross groups in Canada, we were told that soldiers have an aversion to mitts, and usually will not wear them. As a result those sent over from Canada have to be made over into gloves.

The great need was stressed for turtle neck sweaters, gloves, and seamen's socks. Last named are also used by airmen.

On some shelves were more unusual items, such as maple sugar, and other supplies made in Canada. Some supplies were being assembled to replace kits lost by soldiers at Dieppe.

A constant supply of comforts to all services of the Canadian Forces is being delivered. Every week, on a regular delivery basis by Red Cross Transport, and thence through the usual channels of supply, thousands of woollen comforts are being issued to the troops. Every week, invalid delicacies, hospital supplies, cigarettes, chewing gum, games, pipes, etc., are being sent to General Hospitals, Casualty Clearing Stations, Field Ambulances, and to R.A.F. and civilian hospitals where Canadian patients may be.

A huge visitors' service is maintained throughout England and Scotland. Canadian Red Cross visitors (all voluntary) maintain daily contact with Canadian patients in Canadian Army, and British and Scottish hospitals, see that they get needed supplies, shop for them, and sometimes even write letters for them. Visitors' reports, in detail, are sent weekly to Berkeley Square, where information is collected, and, when necessary, letters are written to next-of-kin in Canada.

Handicrafts at all Canadian General Hospitals are supervised entirely by the Canadian Red Cross. Staffs at all the hospitals furnish materials for rug-making and leather work, and teach patients how to make the articles. The patients pay for the cost of the materials, and are allowed to make a small profit out of their handiwork.

The Relief Department at Berkeley Square ships out on an average fifty thousand civilian relief articles of clothing per week.

The Canadian Junior Red Cross supports and has adopted eight residential War Nurseries in England, and supplies clothing for the youthful inmates. Three more such Nurseries are shortly to be adopted.

Less than one hundred years ago, the sufferings of wounded soldiers and prisoners were intensified by lack of care and utter neglect. Today, thanks to the Red Cross, there is a tremendous change. One cannot help but be impressed by the strides taken since the International Red Cross was organized by rules drafted at a conference in Geneva in 1863.

The Canadian Red Cross Headquarter in London is a reservoir into which pours supplies produced by small groups all across Canada. Thence in turn they are spread over a vast territory to fill a wide range of needs. No wonder it is a busy spot.

SPAIN GROWS MORE NEUTRAL EVERY HOUR

Washington.—Juan Francisco de Cardenas, Spanish Ambassador to the United States, conferred with President Roosevelt recently and later said he told the President that "Spain every day is more decided to keep out of the war." The Ambassador, who plans to leave shortly for Madrid for a fortnight's consultation with his Government, said he wanted to ask the President whether he had anything special for him to convey. He added, however, that he is taking no special message back to Spain.

"Military Medicine"

By Capt. W. D. Brace, R.C.A.M.C.
Chateauguay Barracks

The following is the third in a series from an address given by Capt. W. D. Brace, R.C.A.M.C., Chateauguay Barracks, before the members of Chateauguay Lodge, A.F. & A.M. No. 36, entitled "Military Medicine."

Blood transfusions have always been a necessity for sick people, injured people and those recovering from surgical operations. Under normal conditions they were not too difficult to manage. A donor could usually be found and if his blood turned out to be the right type all was well. But under abnormal conditions it was a different story.

"Wrecks and disasters, epidemics, hurricanes, and earthquakes, suddenly produce the need for blood transfusion on a mass scale. Often these things happened in remote regions and it was simply impossible to get enough typed blood. Blood with not keep. It could not be shipped and so hundreds and thousands of people died for the lack of it. London suffered the blitz, great numbers of people were severely wounded. Some way had to be found to get blood to them—blood that would keep. North American doctors solved the problem. They found that when blood is whirled in a centrifuge, the red corpuscles separate from the viscid pale fluid called plasma, and this plasma had remarkable properties. It would do everything for the patient that whole blood would do. It could be preserved for a long period, and it did not have to be typed—it was all one universal type. As a result of this war development every hospital will have that invaluable possession, the blood bank."

Some racial agitators—U.S.A. have demanded the non mixing of blood of the races—white and colored in the blood banks. They have been kept separate.

Revolutionary advance methods of processing animal blood so that it can be transferred into the human bodies is nearing completion. Substitution of the processed animal blood would remove a handle which trouble makers have been attempting to seize.

It is not expected that there will be any public antipathy to the new method once the public mind becomes accustomed to the idea. It is pointed out that most of the antitoxins which have so drastically reduced the toll of diseases such as tetanus, diphtheria and the like, in human beings are developed in the bodies of animals. Horses are generally used for the purpose.

Today blood substitutes are being used. The most important are a chemical constituent of the blood known as Albumin and a new concentrated type of powdered plasma.

Shock, that mysterious process which is characterized by a progressive failure of circulation, although no vital organ may appear damaged is the most common cause of death on the battlefield and in bombings.

When the tissues of the body are injured they release a poisonous liquid which paralyses the capillaries; this allows the plasma of the blood to pass into the tissues—leaving the red cells in the B.V's. The old style blood transfusions only added more red cells to the already overpacked blood.

A Dr. Cohen extracted albumin from human blood. He demonstrated how tiny particles of this protein-albumin drew water from the body into the blood vessels surely and rapidly setting up a balancing process raising this blood pressure, red corpuscles were increased and the poison routed.

The injection of protein albumin is five times as effective in raising blood pressure as plasma and ten times as effective as blood. It can be carried in a small syringe in the pocket of a uniform and injected in a matter of seconds. Think of what this means in terms of storage space.

Now albumin is administered first, operating and bandaging second. This process of reducing pooled human blood to albumin is secret; released only to government licensed laboratories.

Rescue planes in the South Pacific and in the Atlantic waters regularly drop parachutes holding albumin for torpedoed ship's survivors.

The new form of powdered plasma—a concentrated essence has been developed. It is an inert chemical powder, packaged in individual field kits for soldiers. The kits are about the size of a cigar box. They contain a half pint of powder plasma, an equal amount of water, a rubber tube and a hollow needle, and can be administered in a few minutes in a shell hole.

These two accepted blood substitutes may be self administered in one to three minutes.

There are other substitutes, including bovine albumin which have not yet been fully accepted. Blood experts predict that the time is near when human blood will not be needed. Cows, horses and fish may ultimately supply them.

The Red Army nurses always carry 200 c.c. (about 6½ ozs.) of blood of the universal type in an ampule, provided with a sterilized rubber tube, needle and filter. Blood transfusions can thus be given to wounded soldiers even before the nurse shoulders and carries them with their guns off the field.

The Russians have a new technique by which blood for transfusion is taken directly from dead casualties. This is a closely guarded secret.

At the present time with us, human blood is ammunition. So—"Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition." The Surgeon General of the U. S. estimated that the U. S. would require 100,000,000 quarts of blood during the war.

Blood transfusion as a means of treatment to the sick and wounded has saved and is saving the lives of countless numbers.

Around Scouting

By Lorne Barnewell V . . . B.P

The Editorial Department of the Boy Scouts Association, Ottawa, has just released a pamphlet entitled "The Press of Canada and the Boy Scout Movement", in which it does credit to the local troop. Let me quote it, hereunder:

"Scouting is a fine training for all young boys and teaches them much that they should know of the finer things of life. Scouts are taught among other things to help others without thought of reward for themselves. This produces the unselfish attitude which means so much in the world today. Too many persons are apt to think too much of themselves and not enough of their fellowmen. The Scout Movement teaches brotherhood in its full sense, and if its teachings are adhered to throughout life, will mean much to the boy who has learned them."

If my memory serves me right, I believe this quotation is a portion extracted from an editorial which appeared in this paper during our Scout Week. This speaks well for the 1st Huntingdon Troop, because, not only are these articles kept on file in the Provincial Headquarters in Montreal, but Ottawa requested a copy of our special Boy Scout Week page to keep on their files. Newspapers across Canada, coast to coast, paid tribute to the Boy Scout Movement and to its great Founder, the late Lord Baden-Powell, of Gilwell.

Now for news of the local Scouts. The Stag Patrol under the leadership of David Irving, has advanced ahead of the three other patrols in the new competition. Their total up to this writing is 35 points, while closely following on their heels are the Wolves with Patrol Leader Geo. Goodfellow at the helm. He is keeping his patrol in second place with 34. Stuart Beattie's team is in fourth place with 28, just one point behind Jimmy Bickford's Beavers. All in all the contest is pretty close. When a patrol is 100% in attendance at each meeting, with uniforms clean, hair and teeth brushed, shoes shined, points are very seldom taken off.

If you are at a meeting and you have to open one of your pockets for a notebook, or pencil etc., and you know that inspection time is due, just remember to do it up again, because one point taken off for a minor thing like that could cost the competition for your patrol. Take a tip and watch these things.

Last week's meeting was one of those off nights when a short meeting was in order, therefore, time was too short for any work.

Private Thomas Black, who works in the local camp hospital has consented to give the members of this troop a series of lectures and demonstrations in first aid and ambulance work. All Scouts know and realize the importance of this work, and therefore, prepare themselves for it. After these lectures are over, the boys will be qualified for their Ambulance Badge. This will be a chance to review some of the things that have probably been forgotten.

Trooper George Whittaker, former editor of "Thumbs Up" and now serving in an armoured corps overseas, sends greetings to all the boys in this troop. Yours truly served under him as assistant Scoutmaster in 1940. He has organized a Rover Scout Troop amongst Scouts and Scouters now serving overseas in the armed forces. He tells me he reads this article concerning the local troop with a great deal of enthusiasm, despite the fact that he doesn't know anyone of you. How is that for friendship.

That's all for this trip, so until next week when another in this series of columns makes its appearance, keep your chins up and work and play for victory.—Chief.
