British Seek Four Nation Peace Treaty

Extension of Anglo-German Friendship Talks to Include Non-Aggression Pact Between Britain, Germany, Soviet Russia and France Believed Near — Many Difficulties Still Reported in Way of Settling Sudeten Minority Problem.

London, July 23.—(AP)—Talk of a new "peace-preserving" alignment swirled over Europe today as British, French and German leaders discussed means of relieving central European tension with their own aids.

Some quarters close to the British Government mentioned the possibility of a non-aggression pact among France, Soviet Russia and Germany as a possible way out of a muddle arising from self-government demands of Nazi-supported Germans in Czechoslovakia.

Another suggestion was that Germany might approve a four-power plan involving France, Germany, Great Britain and Italy to work out a solution.

Still another was a reported German willingness to enter immediately a non-aggression pact with Czechoslovakia if the Sudeten problem could be answered.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, of Great Britain, discussed the point with his Foreign Minister, Viscount Halifax, who returned from Paris conferences on the international situation resulting in Anglo-French reaffirmations of brotherly love.

The French Cabinet was called to meet today in a special session to review the French position in the light of the latest diplomatic moves.

At the same time Dr. Herbert von Dirksen, German ambassador to London, left for Berlin to report to Chancellor Adolf Hitler on his forty-five-minute "courtesy call" on Chamberlain yesterday, when Mr. Chamberlain was understood to have told the envoy he shared Hitler's desire to settle European problems peacefully.

Some London circles felt the talks between Chamberlain and Von Dirksen, and between Lord Halifax and Captain Fritz Wiedemann, Hitler's adjutant—who brought assurances of Germany's desire for peaceful settlement of outstanding questions—indicated a "considerable softening" of the German attitude.

But this optimistic belief apparently found no counterpart in Paris, where the feeling was reported that the "German gesture" of peace might be an adroit move by Hitler to separate France and Great Britain.

This French opinion persisted in some quarters. Reports here said Von Dirksen, in his talk with Mr. Chamberlain, emphasized the wide gap between the Czechoslovak Government's offer of four provinces in the Sudeten Germans, and the Sudeten's demand for complete provincial autonomy for themselves in Czechoslovakia, as well as repeated Captain Wiedemann's assurance to Lord Halifax of Hitler's peaceful intentions.

It was also said there was no suggestion of Britain's making a settlement. Continued on Page 2, Col. 2.

URGES GREATER CONTROL OVER FOOD INDUSTRY

London, July 23.—(AP)—Great Britain, boosting a national fitness campaign, has before it a report from the Committee Against Malnutrition suggesting creation of public boards controlling production and distribution of foods essential to the nation's health.

The committee suggested the boards, under the care of a separate Government minister, could bring about reduction in prices of vital foodstuffs such as milk, fruit, vegetables and fish, making them available to all on the ground that basic foods are a "primary necessity and must be guaranteed inalienably to all."

The food boards mentioned in the report would be responsible for the whole process of production and distribution from marketing of fertilizers to household delivery of foods and would control food imports or their storage.

Committee members found scales of public statutory benefits (unemployment relief, old age pensions and the like) were too low to provide the means of adequate nutrition. They also criticized as piecemeal, lacking in continuity and being administered "in the spirit of the old poor law" existing means of providing free milk to school children and expectant mothers.

BERMUDA RESIDENTS SURPRISED BY SKIS

Hamilton, Bermuda, July 23.—(AP)—Residents of Hamilton blinked more than once when the liner Monarch of Bermuda arrived in port and six passengers strolled down the gang-plank onto this tourist island—carrying skis.

Even in the middle of winter, this equipment would be peculiar in Bermuda, but the situation was cleared up when it was learned they were en route to Chile to compete in an international skiing contest.

Extended Fires On Vancouver Island Double Menaced Areas

Settlements on Half-Dozen Fronts Threatened By Fire Which Has Been Spreading Steadily — Hundreds of Millions of Feet of Picked Lumber Faces Destruction As Unchecked Flames Rush Through Heavy Forests.

Courtenay, B.C., July 23.—(AP)—Vancouver Island's tremendous forest fire had doubled its area of devastation within eight hours today and increased its threat to settlements on a half-dozen fronts.

The great fire was also breaking out again in sectors where, for the last two days, it had been temporarily under control. Some thirty miles to the north, residents of Campbellton were warned to be ready to evacuate their homes as the fire sprang up again three miles north of the settlement in second growth and slash.

The Canadian destroyer Fraser landed fifty seamen at Comox and despatched them to Bevin as a bucket brigade to protect buildings from flying sparks. Another fifty men stood ready to go ashore and act as fire fighters wherever they were needed.

In the Quims area to the north, the fire which destroyed the fishing resort of Forbes Landing had again broken out and was burning through 35,000,000 feet of bucked timber, property of Elk River Lumber Company.

At two hundred picked loggers sprayed streams of water over the logging village of Headquarters to hold off a sideshot that was roaring through 40,000,000 feet of bucked timber, the main income struck inland during the night, "crowning" through the trees-top of Constitution Hill towards Forbidden Plateau.

As the flames advanced, they increased the potential threat to the coal-mining towns of Bevin and Cumberland, just south of Courtenay. The three towns, population centres of the central part of the island, would only be threatened, however, by a change in wind direction, forest officials said.

Tighter Restriction Placed Upon Market Grading Of Farm Products

Ottawa, July 23.—(AP)—Te butter and cheese grading term "no grade" has been replaced by "below third grade" by Order-in-Council on recommendation of the Dairy Products Marketing Division, Agriculture Department, it was announced yesterday.

The reason for the change, the Department said, was a misunderstanding on the part of some purchasers of butter as to what was meant by "no grade." Consumers were being led to believe that "no grade" meant that the butter represented by this term had not been graded, when actually it was intended to convey the information that the quality was so poor that a grade was not placed upon it.

The grade mark must be placed on the main panel of the wrapper and also on the carton (when such is used) and is a guide to purchasers of butter, informing them of the quality of the product contained in the package. Every province in Canada, with the exception of Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia, has made it compulsory by law to brand each print or block of creamy butter with one of the grade marks as described when offered for sale or sold to consumers.

FIX WATER CONTENT OF SKIM-MILK CHEESE

Ottawa, July 22.—(AP)—Legal maximum of water content of processed skim-milk cheese has been fixed by Order-in-Council at forty-three per cent, the Agriculture Department announced yesterday.

Skim-milk cheese is a cheese which has been manufactured from milk commonly known as skim-milk, or from milk from which any cream has been removed, or from milk to which skim-milk has been added. Skim-milk cheese is also any cheese which contains less than forty-eight per cent of milk fat in the water-free basis.

MAJOR DOUGLAS PRESENTS HIS SIDE OF FIGHT

Founder of Social Credit Movement Declares That Aberhart Government Not Attempting to Enforce Social Credit Principles.

London, July 23.—(C.P. Cable)—Major C. H. Douglas, founder of the economic system known as Social Credit, described as "a storm in a teacup" Wednesday night's chaotic meeting of London's Social Credit forces at which blows were struck and police were summoned.

At the meeting, John Hargrave, National Leader, declared the party renounced the political leadership of Major Douglas "because he failed to seize the golden opportunity presented by the 1935 electoral victory in Alberta," and for other reasons.

John Douglas, today said the gathering was a purely private one in which he was in no way connected. "Although I dropped in at the hall for a few minutes, I wasn't concerned with either side of the dispute."

Referring to the agitation of a certain element of the movement for organization of Social Credit on party lines, the Major observed: "Endeavouring to bring about Social Credit by party politics is like backing a dark horse against all entries (including the dark horse) and allowing the bookmaker to fix the handicaps."

The Alberta election of 1935 was not a Social Credit victory. It primarily was a verdict on the results of the United Farmers of Alberta administration and second, a personal triumph for Premier Aberhart in conditions perhaps approximating those which would obtain if Lloyd George were thirty years younger, lived in South Wales, South Wales had home rule and Lloyd George had control of the British Broadcasting Corporation.

As Mr. Aberhart himself complained he was opposed by the Social Credit movement in Alberta, an opposition which was silenced only by a personal appeal from myself.

Major Douglas declared there never has been a Social Credit Government in Alberta. From August, 1936, to March, 1937, there has been a financial dictatorship working through an increasingly restive Premier.

"There is now a social democratic administration, with Mr. Aberhart as chief executive, which cannot govern because it is not allowed to govern but which can and has demonstrated why it is not allowed to govern and so has set in motion forces which eventually may give it power to govern."

"There is no more chance of obtaining an electoral majority within a reasonable time for the titular Social Credit party in this country than there is for the survival of the well-known celluloid cat in hades. By the time it is elected it would have jettisoned everything that would make it effective."

Japanese Forces Undertaking Long Awaited Kiukiang Drive

Japanese Naval Cominque Announces Landings Were Effected at Several Points On the Southern Shores of the Yangtze River, Putting Invaders Within Ten Miles of Kiukiang, Considered Key to Provisional Chinese Capital.

Shanghai, July 23.—(AP)—Japanese naval and land forces began a long-awaited assault today on Kiukiang, key point in the push toward Hankow.

A Japanese naval communiqué announced landings were effected at several points on the southern shores of the Yangtze River, putting the invaders within ten miles of Kiukiang, just 135 miles down the Yangtze from the Chinese provisional capital.

Guerrillas blew up a steel bridge over the Chang River on the border of Hunan and Hunan Provinces, interrupting traffic of the Peiping-Hankow railway.

EIGHTEEN JAP BOMBERS RAID SHANGHAI

Canton, July 23.—(AP)—Eighteen Japanese bombers raided Canton today, damaging a new power station in the Saichun district, which adjoins the International Settlement on Shamen Island.

Although the bombs dropped a good two miles from the settlement, doors and windows were rattled violently by the concussion. The bombs were believed to have been unusually large.

The raid occurred two hours after Sir Geoffrey Northcote, Governor of Hong Kong, departed after a two-day visit.

PRESENT DAY YOUTH HAS GREAT RESPONSIBILITY.

Ramsgate, England, July 23.—(C.P. Cable)—The Marquis of Willington, in an address to Chatham House scholars yesterday, said he believes youths of the present generation have "much larger responsibilities than we had in our youth."

The former Governor-General of Canada added: "Whenever I go I am confident of the future if only you will remember these three things: work for peace, stick to democracy, and never give up your Christian heritage."

UNION LEADERS REJECT BLAME FOR WALK-OUTS

Montreal, July 23.—(AP)—Albert Cote, president of the National Catholic Federation of Textile Workers, sent a letter last night to General Manager Blair Gordon, of Dominion Textiles Limited, dissociating the union from action of a crowd which raided the Company's St. Gregoire office and assaulted two officers.

Cote said the workers who caused the trouble were "a small minority" of the two thousand workers employed in the St. Gregoire plant, and he suggested "the Company sveltch the rumors that the mill at Montmorency will be closed as a means of reprisal."

The trouble arose from a strike of about one hundred night workers who demanded increased pay. When negotiations failed, a mob raided the office, assaulting Gordon and one of the mill superintendents.

TWO RELEASED ON BAIL

Quebec, July 23.—(AP)—Joseph Bouchard and Elie Simard two of four textile workers arrested by Provincial Police on charges of assaulting General Manager Blair Gordon of Dominion Textile Company during a labor disturbance last week at nearby St. Gregoire, Montmorency, were released yesterday.

Fresh Border Incidents Add To High Soviet-Jap Tension

Reports Declare That Two Japanese Motorboats Violated Soviet Frontier and Landed a Military Detachment on Faingov — Brisk Exchange of Bullets, Resulting in Wounding of Two Jap Soldiers, Followed Attack Upon Russian Cutter.

Moscow, July 23.—(AP)—Reports of a Japanese-Soviet border clash and a Japanese landing on the Soviet Island Faingov renewed Far-Eastern tension today just as it was subsiding after a Japanese protest that Soviet troops had violated the Manchoukuoan frontier on July 11th.

Dispatches from Khabarovsk, Siberian city near the Manchoukuoan border, said two Japanese-Manchoukuoan motorboats violated the Soviet frontier near the settlement of Vidnoye on Thursday and landed a military detachment on Faingov.

Soon afterwards, the reports said, a Soviet cutter passing the Island was fired upon and a brisk exchange of bullets followed, resulting in the wounding of two Japanese-Manchoukuoan soldiers and the capture of one machine gun, five Japanese rifles and a quantity of ammunition.

The encounter, said Tass (Russian) News Agency, occurred on the Ussuri River, north of the Changkufeng district—near where Siberian, Japanese Korea and Manchoukuoan meet, and where Red soldiers occupied a piece of land July 11th which both Russia and Manchoukuo claim.

(A Tokyo Foreign Office spokesman denied yesterday that Japan threatened force to eject the soldiers, although Tokyo newspapers quoted a spokesman that Russia's action "must be interpreted as a challenge to Japan." He was reported to have said Russia must assume responsibility for results of the border incident and declared "Japan is ready and has every right to take all necessary steps." Russia rejected flatly the Japanese protest about the incident.)

There was no report. The young rector promptly put a camp cot in an upper room in the front of the church—separated from the main auditorium by a bannister and a railing—and set up a cook stove in the basement. His bathroom is the general wash room of the church.

"After I had been here nearly eight months a parishioner agreed to partition off my quarters if the congregation would supply the material," he said. "Now I have a bachelor apartment which I believe is as cozy as any one could wish."

By doing without a rectory, St. Hilda's has reduced the mortgage from $25,000 to $16,000 and has built a 1,000 addition to the church. "The people's interest in the church has been stimulated by my example," Mr. Jackson said. "The congregation even attends to the grounds now and has made them a credit to the community."

OLD CAMP TRICKS REVIVED

Kitchener, Ont., July 23.—(AP)—There are cycles in camp tricks, too, it seems. Now they're back pulling the old wartime gags at a nearby Boy Scout camp. A bunch of the boys were lugging pails around in circles the other day, detailed to whitewash the "Last Post." They failed to locate the elusive cairn upright.

DESIRE TO PLAY WITH BOTTLE FATAL TO CHILD

Montreal, July 23.—(AP)—Paul Corbell, seven, died yesterday because he wanted to play with a bottle. The child died thirty-six hours after swallowing a number of his grandfather's sleeping pills, kept in a small bottle. The empty container was found in the unconscious boy's right hand.

Public Works Minister Will Officially Assume Lands And Forests Post

Col. the Hon. Johnny Bourque Announced This Morning That He Will Be Sworn In Next Tuesday As Minister of Lands and Forests, Now Held By Prime Minister, In Addition to Holding Present Public Works Portfolio.

JAMAICA CREATING BIG WOOD RESERVE

Kingston, Jamaica, July 23.—(AP)—Jamaica's Forestry Department has announced that more than 180,000 acres of land in thirty different areas of the island have been reserved for forest lands.

The department has planted two timber nurseries and intensive planting is being carried out this year. No sales of young trees will be made this year it is said, but next year there will be an ample supply of seedlings for sale.

on bond of $950 each. Edmond Desgagne and Arthur Pare remained in jail.

After long discussions and many rumors it was definitely announced to the Record this morning by Colonel the Hon. Johnny Bourque that he would take over the portfolio of Lands and Forests in the Provincial Government. He said that he expected to be sworn into his new post next Tuesday. Sherbrooke papers are the first to carry the announcement of this appointment.

Col. Bourque, who has been Minister of Public Works in the Duplessis Government since its election in 1937, will not relinquish this post but will be in charge of both ministries.

"I feel confident that the new arrangement will prove satisfactory both to the citizens of the Province of Quebec and to Premier Duplessis," stated the Minister this morning.

Col. Bourque was born in Sherbrooke forty-three years ago and was educated at St. Charles Seminary. His public career started when he served two terms as alderman for the East Ward. He was a School Commissioner for four years and served a term as President of the Sherbrooke Board of Trade.

Enlisting as a private in 1914, Col. Bourque came home from the Great War with a leg wound and a captaincy. Continuing his activity in military affairs he became Major and then Commanding officer of the Sherbrooke Fusiliers.

First elected to the Legislature in 1936 the Minister was re-elected in 1937 and was appointed Minister of Public Works. In the same year he represented the Province at the Coronation of King George VI, and with his wife, Mrs. Bourque, was presented at Court.

By the addition of the portfolio of Lands and Forests to that of Public Works Colonel Bourque has added further laurels to his already brilliant career.

Judge Forest Extends Jurisdiction To Marriages Outside The Province

Montreal, July 23.—(AP)—Marriage of two Roman Catholics by an Anglican minister "is a clandestine ceremony" and therefore null and void, Mr. Justice Alfred Forest ruled yesterday in Superior Court in annulling the marriage of Anne McKenzie of Montreal and Harold Edward Lunney of Saint John, N.B.

It was the third annulment the Judge has granted in as many days and once again he decided Roman Catholics in Quebec Province enjoy the same rights they held under the French regime prior to 1763. Priests alone then were keepers of the registers of civil status and bishops were the sole persons authorized to grant dispensations.

Judge Forest said in the present case Anne McKenzie was a Roman Catholic, nineteen years of age and a resident of Montreal, who, during a visit to Saint John in 1928 and without authorization or consent of her parents, was married by Rev. McKenzie Naughton to the defendant.

"He had seen the defendant only once prior to the marriage and immediately after the ceremony embarked by train for Montreal, before the marriage was consummated," the Judge said. "According to Canon Law and under the laws of Quebec Province, where the plaintiff always resided, this matrimonial union is absolutely null."

NEW OFFENSIVE IS UNDERTAKEN BY LOYALISTS

Great Drive Launched Along Catalan Front In Effort to Reduce Steadily Increasing Pressure on Valencia Defences.

Hendaye, France, July 23.—(P)—The Spanish Government launched a vigorous offensive on the Catalan front today in an effort to reduce the steadily increasing insurgent pressure on the Valencia defences.

The renewal of fighting near the French frontier spread warfare once again to every major front in Spain. Insurgent offensives already were under way on the southern and central fronts in addition to the eastern where General Franco's forces are driving on Valencia.

On the long-dormant Catalan front, Government militiamen directed their attacks against the key towns of Sort and Tremp in the Noguera Pallaresa River valley, hammering at them unceasingly.

Insurgent dispatches reported slight gains in heavy fighting around Viver, thirty-four miles northwest of Valencia on the Teruel-Mediterranean highway. These gains were said to include the elimination of a pocket of resistance in the Espina Mountains.

A Government communique said, however, that Government forces had taken a stand outside Viver in a determined effort to halt the drive toward the coast.

Government pursuit planes were reported to have downed five insurgent craft in the Viver sector.

SETTLEMENT HOPES IN GERMANY MOUNT

Berlin, July 23.—(P)—Hopes of an ultimate understanding between Germany and Great Britain were nursed in official German quarters today as the results of King George's state visit to France this week were studied.

The optimism was based on a realization that both Great Britain and France seemed determined to make clear to the Czechoslovak Government that far-reaching concessions to its clamorous, autonomy-seeking minorities were essential.

Some newspapers emphasized this fact as "a surprising action in connection with the Royal visit."

Political circles wondered what new viewpoints Dr. Herbert von Dirksen, German ambassador to London, might bring with him as he returned for several weeks' leave. His report on conversations with Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain, it was hoped, might put negotiations for a peaceful settlement of European problems a step forward.

Chancellor Adolf Hitler apparently was willing to leave to the autonomy-seeking, Nazi-supported German Sudeten their fight for such concessions as they can obtain.

Hitler, there is reason to believe, mimes no words when it comes to stating what should be Czechoslovakia's future as a member of the European family.

Czechoslovakia, he insists, must sever her alliance with Soviet Russia as he thinks this endangers European peace permanently.

Czechoslovakia, Chancellor Hitler believes, must range herself alongside her powerful German neighbor in a customs union—and she must be neutral in the sense that Switzerland is.

CONFESSION OF NOVA SCOTIAN CLEARS DEATH

Massachusetts Police Declare That Details of "Conscience Confession" to Truro R.C.M.P. Dovetail With Accident Eight Years Ago.

Cambridge, Mass., July 22.—(P)—Police last night said their records dovetailed with a reported "conscience confession" of a man in Truro, N.S., that he drove an automobile which killed a child in a hit-run accident here in 1930.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Truro notified Cambridge authorities that the man, asserting that he was "conscience stricken," told them a story of running down the child accidentally on a "Friday the 13th" about eight years ago.

A check by Cambridge police of their old records showed that John Pettipas, two years old, struck by an automobile, Friday, June 13, 1930, died a week later. They had never located the driver.

The Canadian officials quoted the man as saying he remained in the vicinity of Cambridge for three years after the accident then moved to Nova Scotia, where he has been employed.

BATHER LOSES LIFE IN DIVE OFF WHARF

Two And Half Hours Spent In Attempt To Revive Young Man

Two and a half hours of artificial respiration efforts proved futile. Guertin, reportedly a heavy eater and a poor swimmer, was under water about thirteen minutes.

The Eastern Townships counted their eleventh drowning victim of the season today with the death last night at Magog of Raymond Guertin, thirty years old, of Montreal, who lost his life when he dove off the Government wharf and failed to re-appear.

Artificial respiration was practiced by Deputy Chief Leduc and Russell Blackwood, assisted by Ball and Simard. Members of the Dominion Textile First Aid class and Dr. Ormsby also lent their assistance. A pull motor was later pressed into use.

An inquest will be held today by Dr. G. A. Bowen, district coroner. Guertin, whose home was in Montreal, worked as a chauffeur for H. L. Warren, in whose employ he had been for the past three years.

Adelard Gosselin, Eugene Duchemin, Clifford Holt, Fred Lilley, Edgar Whalley, Ronald Drew, E. Lacasse and Frank Grimshaw were among the members of the Dominion Textile First Aid class who endeavored to revive Guertin through artificial respiration methods.

When he finally broke Guertin's hold and returned to the surface, Ball also dove in and succeeded in reaching the drowning man, but could not bring him up.

Chief of Police Lavoie and Deputy Chief Leduc, called to the scene, recovered the body within a few minutes with grappling irons.

Chief Of Police Issues Warning To Swimmers, Canoeists To Be Careful

The Eastern Townships' heavy drowning toll, increased last night by a fatality at Magog, today elicited a warning from Chief of Police H. O. Camirand to bathers, canoeists and others indulging in water sports to be prudent.

No less than eleven drownings have occurred in this district since the advent of warm weather, the Chief pointed out, and in the large majority of cases the tragedies happened under circumstances that would not have existed had prudence and care been taken.

With the summer holidays only a little more than half completed, Chief Camirand's advice should serve to have district residents exercise a greater measure of caution while swimming or boating.

No person, the Chief pointed out, should enter the water after a meal. Non-swimmers should be particularly careful and should select for bathing only such beaches as have been declared safe. Many a tragedy has occurred when a non-swimmer, wading in a river or lake, suddenly stepped into a drop-off and disappeared from view, drowning before friends could come to his rescue.

Seditious Literature Object Of District Police Campaign

Persons Opposing Established Order of Things Stand Little Chance of Spreading Their Propaganda in This District—Arrests of Two Or Three Persons Suspected of Distributing Seditious Reading Matter Pending.

Persons opposing the established order of things have little chance of spreading their propaganda in this district, and police officials, it was learned from an authoritative source today, have been waging war upon distributors of seditious literature and pamphlets urging the overthrow of church and social governments.

During the past few weeks, the Record learned, various sections of the Eastern Townships have been flooded with reading material of an undesirable nature. Advised of the matter, police officials have been investigating and the arrest of two or three persons is pending. Complaints against them may be sworn out today.

It will be recalled that about two years ago three persons describing themselves as Witnesses of Jehovah were arrested by a member of the Provincial Police Department on charges of conspiracy.

The trio stood trial in local Court of King's Bench and were found guilty and sentenced to fines of fifteen dollars and costs, with the alternative of imprisonment upon non-payment of fines. Their case was carried to the Appeal Court in Montreal and the Sherbrooke decision maintained. They then appeared before the Supreme Court of Canada for permission to carry their case before that tribunal, but their petition was rejected.

Brief And Pointed

Whether his ideas are right or wrong, William Gallacher, Communist member of the British House of Commons, has given parliamentarians of the world a pointed lecture on the art of brevity in public debate. Speaking on the bill covering holidays with pay, the Communist member expressed his disagreement with the measure in the following words:

"I only want to say one thing. This is a rotten bill. It comes from a rotten Government, and it represents a rotten system."

Here in three short sentences, the gentleman has expressed his disgust with conditions in general. No flowery speeches were required to outline his likes and dislikes, no gems of oratory designed to enrich the English vocabulary were poured upon the ears of rather unwilling and somewhat discomfited listeners. Believing that brevity was the soul of wit, Mr. Gallacher came straight to the point. He did not like the thing and he was frank in admitting it. In fact, he somewhat resembled the little boy who finally came to the conclusion that there was nothing the matter with himself but that his reaction to things generally came from the world being wrong.

Although, the Scottish member was extremely blunt and rather impolite from accepted standards, to word-weary Canadians, thoroughly fed up with the wordage which fills Hansard during a six-month long session which accomplishes nothing, his statements furnish a distinct relief. Canadian politicians might materially improve their position if they were to study his statements and express their own views in phrases comparably brief and pointed, even if somewhat more refined.

What more could the gentleman have said, even if he had spoken for hours.

Hospital Ladies' Auxiliary To Make Appeal

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Sherbrooke Hospital is preparing to launch its annual financial campaign. Already letters have been forwarded to representatives of the Auxiliary, and in September the appeal will be made to all kind friends and sympathetic supporters of the Hospital to render what assistance they can.

The donations need not be large. Large and small will be welcomed, and all donations will be appreciated in the kind spirit in which they are given.

This annual appeal on behalf of the Sherbrooke Hospital is not restricted to the City of Sherbrooke. Nor should it be. The Sherbrooke Hospital is an institution of the Eastern Townships. It is the only English-speaking Hospital in this section of Quebec Province and its doors are open to all.

The sick of all creeds and nationalities are admitted to the Sherbrooke Hospital, and clergymen of the different churches, Catholic and Jewish, as well as Protestant, visit their sick and administer to their dying.

The Hospital is largely dependent upon the generosity of its supporters. Economical administration is practised by the Governors and staff of the Hospital, but the upkeep of such an institution is such that the Hospital cannot be self-sustaining.

Each year hundreds of charity cases are admitted to the Hospital, while in many other cases patients are not in a position to pay the Hospital their complete bill.

In former years the appeal of the Ladies' Auxiliary has met with a generous response. This year their request again goes forward in the hope that the Hospital's friends throughout the Townships will show their usual generosity so that the objective of the campaign may be more than realized.

Those in charge of the Hospital are working day and night, Sundays and holidays throughout the year to relieve suffering and to lighten the burden of sickness among men, women and children.

This work is being done in God's name and those who give to the campaign in His name are certain of reward. They are not only certain of reward, but they will have the added satisfaction of knowing that they are being partners in a great Christian work of making brighter and happier the lives of those who are suffering and in pain.

The appeal of the Ladies' Auxiliary merits support, and their work encouragement. The success of their campaign will encourage them to continue their work for the Hospital and for the community.

An Old Tradition Disappears

With the announcement from the labor distribution headquarters of Western Canada that despite an unusually heavy grain crop, the Prairie Provinces will be able to fill their own needs for agricultural labor, it would appear that one of the pre-depression traditions of Canadian life—the harvesters' excursion—has forever disappeared.

As late as the year 1923, fifty thousand young Canadians from the Eastern Provinces made their way west aboard these excursions, paying a nominal fare of ten dollars from Quebec and Ontario to Winnipeg, and a corresponding rate beyond, the return fare being fifteen dollars. True, the accommodation on these specials may not have been everything that was desired but they provided an opportunity for the young man of those days to see a wide section of the country, and at the same time more than earn the expenses of his journey in the harvest fields of the west.

To many who took the westward journey, the higher price for the return trip meant little or nothing, for a substantial portion of them made their permanent homes in the new land, often bringing their families west at a later date. Thus, today, many of the leading citizens of Western Canada proudly boast that they are products of the wheat field and the old colonist car.

But the advance of progress has taken its toll of this, as it has of many other institutions, and the introduction of modern machinery, which enables one man to do the work of ten as in the days gone by, has removed the need for these great seasonal migrations of labor.

Thus is gone the old excursions but not forgotten in the minds of thousands of Canadians today who look back with wistful memories to the nights of fifteen, twenty or even thirty years ago when the long trains of crowded cars steamed out of the stations of Eastern Canada carrying their human cargo to the wheat fields of the west. Here this often amateur labor from the East played an important part in harvesting the golden grain of the prairies and thus enrich the country as a whole, but in many cases provided the rising generation with its first opportunity of earning real money and giving it its first lesson in self reliance.

A Diet Of Gasoline

From many reports that have been coming to this country, Germans have not been over-eating since the Nazis decided to divert importations of food into importations of munitions. Since "Strength Through Food" is apparently a lost ideal which does not comport with Nazi theories of autarchy, the German people are perhaps the gainers if they are permitted to make motor cars their food substitute instead of guns and shells. Cars against butter is a hair's breadth better than guns against butter as a national aspiration. By dashing fast enough over the countryside in their "Strength Through Joy" six they may be able to take their minds off the price and the scarcity of food.

O TROUBLED WORLD

O troubled world, what ails these tragic times? Once days ran gladly like well-ordered rhymes, And men could face the future unafraid, Wistful with dreams of what our God had made And given as a birthright for their needs. The earth was sweet with kindness and brave deeds.

But now, with hate and havoc everywhere, Rumors of wars, and shattered hopes laid bare; With prejudice and pain along the way, We wonder at the dawn of each new day, And tremble where the red rose softly climbs. O troubled world, what ails these tragic times?

THE OBLIGATIONS OF SERVICE

2 Chron. XXIX, II: "The Lord hath chosen you to serve Him."

The impression is far too general that happiness and success in life consists in our being served; and that service to others, while it may be necessary, is nevertheless rather a nuisance. But, in reality, the only life worth living is the life of service. For whether we appreciate the fact or not, to serve is the happy fate of all true men. Even the King is merely the Chief Servant of the Empire—and well do he and his gracious consort perform their duties as in their past visit to France.

Similarly, the Judge is the servant of the Law, the Lawyer of his client for the time being, the Doctor of his patient. So we need not concern ourselves with the question: "Shall I serve, or not?" We should take that for granted, realizing that rightly to live is to serve. The question each one of us has to decide is: "Whom shall I serve?"

We ask that question when we are about to decide what shall be our special work or business in life. But, far more important than this is the decision affecting our eternal interests. A man may "miss his vocation," as the saying is, and yet be fairly useful and contented. Not so it is with him who makes the wrong choice when the question arises: Shall I serve Jesus Christ, or shall I not?

What a wonderful thing is this power of choice! We exercise it so naturally, as the saying is, that we simply take it for granted, seldom taking the trouble to realize what a part it plays in shaping our lives here and hereafter. Free will is a most precious and yet perilous possession, for the Lord has so willed it that the blessings and privileges are counterbalanced by the dangers and responsibilities of choice.

In which are, of course, many things in which no choice is given us. We have no choice as to our natural inheritance of physical and mental endowments. Even the decision as to where we shall live is not always left to our own will, because where our home be, and doubtless, it is just as well that our liberty should be limited. A certain amount of responsibility is helpful and stimulating, but too much is burdensome and dangerous. Even the most confident individual occasionally finds himself in a position of painful uncertainty as to what line of action is for the best. Some contingency arises that demands immediate retirement, and grave issues hang upon his choice.

May we not learn from this that in such matters as admit of free selection on our part, we should use our liberty wisely and unselfishly; in matters wherein no choice is given us, we should thank the good Lord that, as far as these are concerned, we are saved from the possible consequences of our shortsighted ignorance.

In the mysterious providence of God, it has been so decreed that in the most momentous of all possible decisions—that of serving or refusing to serve God—our wills are left absolutely free!

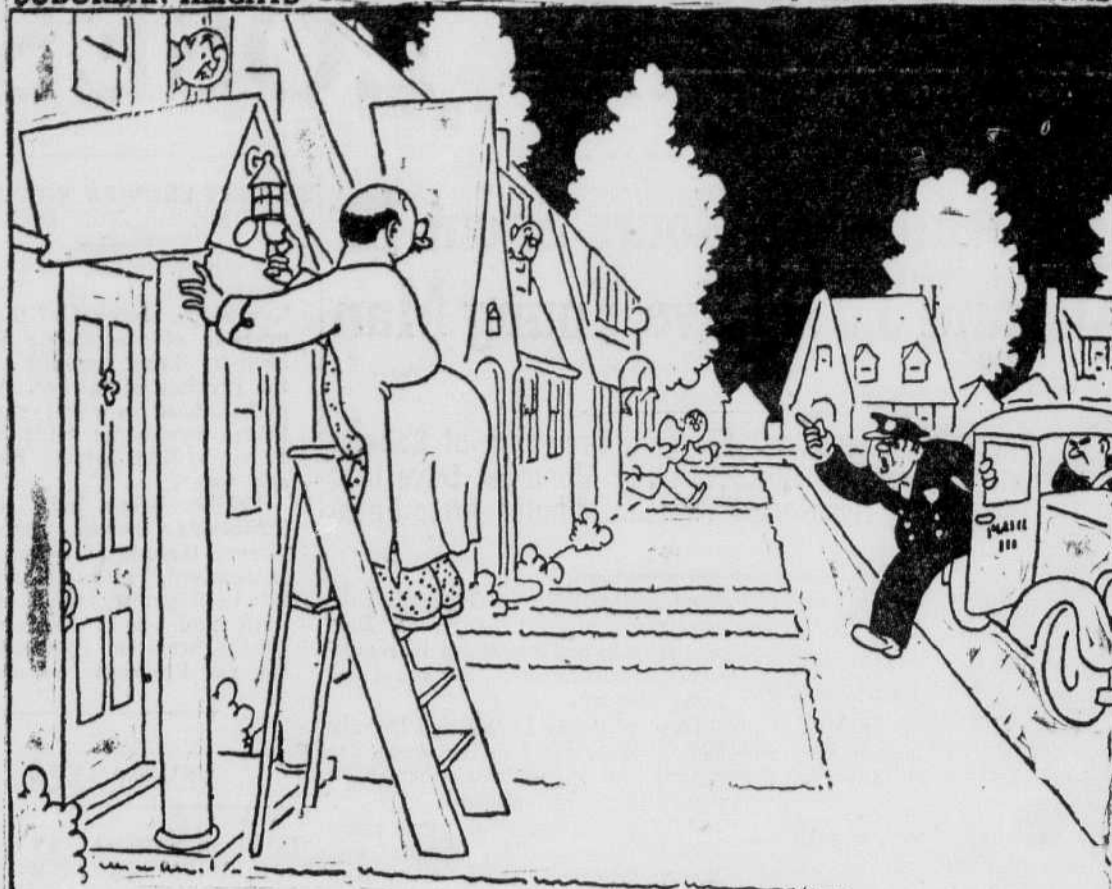

Consider the words of Joshua in our text. The worthy successor of Moses to leadership in Israel has been reminding his people of the deliverance from Egyptian bondage, guidance through the wilderness, and their triumphant entry under the Divine leadership into the Promised Land, thus making the strongest possible appeal to their sentiments of gratitude and loyalty. And yet, he goes on to tell them that they are free! All these wonderful obligations to Jehovah do not bind their souls. Joshua bids them "Choose!"—"Choose you this day whom ye will serve!"

This same message comes to us today. The point at issue is our attitude towards God, not His towards us. Whether we believe in Him and serve Him, or not, God wishes us well. He might fairly command our service, but He disdains accepting it on such terms. He does not say: "Pay Me that thou owest." No, He says: "Whosoever will, may come, and take of the water of life freely."

Choose ye! Need I say that, in comparison with this service which the Lord puts before us open for our selection, every other choice with which we may be confronted in life dwindles into utter insignificance. Choose you this day whom ye will serve! As in the case of Israel, so many centuries ago, there is put before us in this our day life or death blessing or bane; so, may God direct our choice, and touch our wayward hearts, and may His spirit enable us to realize more and more, as the years fly by, the awful responsibility of the power of choice.

THANK YOU FOR YOUR KIND WORDS

To the Editor, Sherbrooke Record. Dear Sir—Will you please allow me space in your paper to congratulate you and also to thank you for your editorial "Time For Definite Action," which appeared in your issue of Saturday, July 16th.

If these groups continue they can, and will, get outside help, possibly they are getting it now. If they prefer any of the collection of 'isms to a democratic form of government, why, in the name of common sense, do they not go to one of those countries to live?

Now, Mr. Editor, when it is obvious that a thing has to be done, is there anything gained by delay? If we have got to fight, now is the time to begin it. There is not a wasted word in your editorial.

May the government of the people, by the people, for the people continue to live in this country. Yours truly, MERRIT B. LONGEWAY, Sutton, Quebec.

WORDS OF WISDOM

As a man's salutation, so is the total of his character; in nothing do we lay ourselves so open as in our manner of meeting and salutation.—Lavater.

It's going on and up that's the fun of studying, not arriving at the place. Arriving is the end.—W. M. Hunt.

I had rather have a fool to make me merry than experience to make me sad.—Shakespeare.

Such help as we can give each other.—Ruskin.

A holy life is a voice; it speaks when the tongue is silent, and is either a constant attraction or a perpetual reproof.—Leighton.

HERE AND THERE

Boy: "You look like a smart girl; let's get married." Girl: "Nothing doing; I'm just as smart as I look."

Husband: "What would you do if I should die and leave you?" Wife: "Leave me—how much?"

Mother: "And who is the best behaved in your class?" Sonny: "Teacher."

Teacher: "What is our duty to our neighbor?" Wise Little Jane: "To keep an eye on him."

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

A GRAND SLAM IS SUCCESSFULLY MADE THROUGH REVERSING THE DUMMY

BY WM. MCKENNEY Secretary, American Contract Bridge League

Most players find the mechanics of their first duplicate game a bit confusing. However Phil Spitalny, the nationally known girls' orchestra leader, played his first duplicate game with me the other night, and handled today's hand in a masterful manner, executing a line of play known as "reversing the dummy."

By this procedure, the declarer uses his own trumps to ruff losing cards and then extracts the adversely held trumps with dummy's cards. After hearts had been bid and supported, of course, the bidding of other suits was only for the purpose of showing first-round control. When the dummy went down, Spitalny could see that even if he established his long spades, he would still be left with a diamond loser unless the sween dropped doubleton.

Now, Mr. Editor, when it is obvious that a thing has to be done, is there anything gained by delay? If we have got to fight, now is the time to begin it. There is not a wasted word in your editorial.

Contract Problem

(Solution in next issue)

The contract is three no trump by South, who is confronted with a problem on the very first trick. Should this trick be won with the ace, or should South hold off one round?

Hand diagram showing cards: Spades: A, K, J, 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, A; Hearts: A, 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, A; Diamonds: A, K, J, 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, A; Clubs: A, K, J, 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, A.

Duplicate—E & W vul. Opener—A 2 23

The reverse dummy seemed to give a better chance.

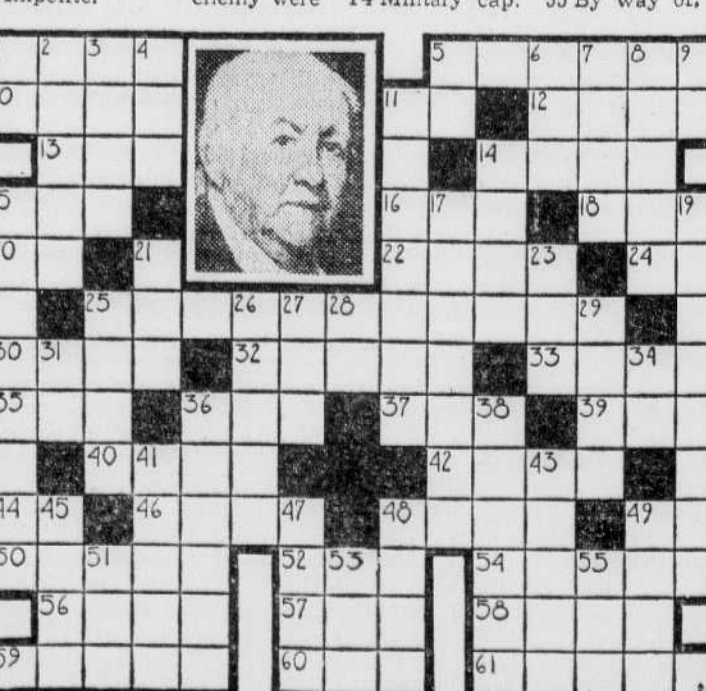

He won the first trick with the ace, then ruffed a club with the jack and returned to dummy by leading the deuce of hearts, winning with the eight. The last club was ruffed with the queen, and the heart king overtaken with the ace. Another round of trumps pulled the last trump, and Spitalny discarded his losing diamond. The queen, ace and king of spades were then cashed, and a low spade ruffed in dummy.

Now the ace and king of diamonds and the six of spades took the last three tricks and fulfilled the grand slam.

IN THE WOMEN'S SPHERE

Modes And Manners

Question: "Will you please tell me whether it is all right to wear a bolero-type dress, wheat-colored shoes to match, and a white hat and purse, to a four o'clock wedding? Would a large cake platter be an appropriate wedding gift. The bride was my best friend at school. Must I send some kind of letter after the wedding?"—G. I. S.

Answer: The costume described sounds appropriate. For an afternoon wedding, dressy afternoon clothes are supposed to be worn. The gift may be anything which you think will prove useful to the bride. Guests do not have to write to the bride after the wedding. They offer good wishes following the ceremony. Say, "I wish you happiness," or, "I know you will be happy." But say, "Congratulations!" to the bridegroom. He is supposed to be the lucky one.

Question: "Is it right for a man to wear a straw hat with a dinner coat, or should the hat be of felt?"—I. W.

Answer: He may wear either a straw or a felt hat.

Beauty Tips

Question: "I have light colored eyebrows and I know they need darkening to give my face more personality, but when I use eye brow pencil, even a brown one, the effect is artificial and harsh. Am I using the pencil incorrectly or am I just self-conscious about the way I look?"—Edna.

You are probably using the eyebrow pencil too heavily. Study the shape of your eyebrows and, if fairly good, follow this line. Instead of drawing the pencil in a line over the arch, however, take tiny light strokes about the length of a hair and let them overlap slightly so the line is a faint feathered one. I think you will then find the line quite pleasing and natural in appearance.

SKIRTS HAVE SWING WHEN GIRLS DANCE

Preoccupied with your vacation plans? Busy shopping for that long anticipated cruise, or that camping trip? Whatever your problem, the shops meet you half way in solving it. There were never so many specialized clothes. It's a help, but there is a silly side to it, too. After all one does not really need to be restricted to one dress for each sport, with the possible exception of swimming.

The same old advice still holds good—if you must do without something—make it the afternoon dress. Unless you are sure of attending some special dress-up occasion, like a wedding, you'll do in smart spectator sports clothes until it's time for that "date" when you will probably slay them by appearing in a full-skirted, strapless evening dress.

Shoulder straps have completely slipped out of sight. If you have the shoulder for it, do wear one of these devastating dresses; it need be of nothing more elaborate than dotted Swiss. It's that new line that's important.

Let them talk of slimmer lines for autumn, but we are not nearly done with summer clothes yet and we are still raving over those wide and swinging skirts that are so effective on the dance floor. Of course you have another charming choice, the draped statuette dresses, usually of rayon jersey. They are particularly stunning in white. Shop windows have been filled with them and by this time roof gardens and smart dancing places everywhere must be too.

Prints? Of course, New York is alive with them, for the woman who doesn't possess a white spotted black or navy suit, or dress, must be particularly strong-minded. They are just what the doctor ordered for general use and not hard to wear. Next in mass production are the sheers, many leading black by a narrow margin.

Hats? The burnt straws look fresh, new and different but there are lots of all-white ones, too, and would you believe it, that old, old favorite, the red hat, is reappearing.

If there is one feature of the mid-season openings about which there seems to be no doubt for further development, it is embroideries. Summer fashions here have made use of them and according to the midseason collections, practically every couturier expresses the ornamental side of fashion through embroidery. Schiaparelli and Mainbocher have more than all others indicated their feeling for embroidery.

How To Be A Young Man's Darling

Young men—that is, twenty-two or so—want girls to be beautiful, sophisticated and reasonably intelligent. At least that is what the seniors at Fordham University say they hope for when they meet a girl.

Just what does a young man mean when he says he wants a girl to be "reasonably intelligent"?

Well, probably, that she will be smart enough to appreciate his wisdom—without topping it.

Well versed enough in the affairs of the day to understand what he is getting at when he tells her what is "wrong" with the way things are being run.

Wise enough to attract just the right amount of attention at dances—and for the right reason.

Intelligent enough to know what is "the thing" and what isn't—in the matter of bands and swing artists.

Clever enough not to talk sense unless he starts it.

Intuitive enough to know that she will never be forgiven if she gets his best friend a date with anyone who isn't "beautiful, sophisticated and reasonably intelligent."

Wise enough to take control of the "necking" situation—and keep control of it.

Smart enough to believe less than is meant, instead of more.

Clever enough to end an evening while it is still fun, and not after it has begun to drag.

Sensible enough to know how to do a few things expertly—dancing, swimming, riding, or even managing a line of chatter well.

By "reasonably intelligent" the twenty-two year old young man means a girl who knows enough to fit into his picture.

MIND YOUR MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below.

1—Is it important that a house guest not leave any of his belonging behind when he leaves his hostess' house?

2—Should a house guest leave the newspaper he has just read scattered over the floor?

3—Should a guest who smokes in bed be very careful so as not to burn a sheet or blanket?

4—Should a young girl who is spending a week-end with friends take her entertainment in her own hands—and use her friend's cottage as she would a hotel?

5—Should a week-end guest fit himself into the schedule of the household—or expect it to be changed to suit him?

What would you do if— You are a hostess living in a summer cottage and have invited guests for the week-end who care nothing for active sports—not even swimming.

(a) Plan to entertain them in some other way? (b) You go ahead and swim, play tennis and golf as always, and let them look out for themselves? (c) Insist that they take part in the sports you usually go for?

ANSWERS 1—Yes. 2—No. An untidy guest is a trial to most hostesses. 3—Yes. 4—Not if she ever wants to be invited back. 5—Do as the family does. Best "What Would You Do" solution—(a).

THESE TASTE BETTER THAN THEY LOOK IN PRINT

Does the heat drive your appetite crazy? If it does, you should know about these oddities sent in by readers and tested by me. They taste far sadder than they read.

Pear Nectar Salad (Serves 6) Two cans pear nectar (about 3 cups), 4 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon granulated sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, few drops tabasco sauce, 4 1-2 teaspoons gelatin, 4 tablespoons cold water, shredded lettuce, mayonnaise.

Combine nectar, lemon juice, sugar, salt and tabasco sauce and heat to boiling point. Add gelatin moistened in water and stir to dissolve. Add sufficient coloring to give desired shade. Pour into individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold and serve on beds of shredded lettuce. Top with mayonnaise.

Note: Apricot, peach-nectarine, plum or peach nectar may be substituted, eliminating the food coloring.

Fruit Pudding Butter a piece and cover the bottom with slices of bread. Add a layer of canned fruit salad (not the juice), then cover with more bread.

Beat an egg in 2 tablespoons of milk, adding about 2 tablespoons of sugar and pour over the pudding, adding more milk if necessary so that bread is well covered. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees F.) until golden brown. Serve with whipped cream.

You And Your Child

LET TALENTED CHILD LEAD NORMAL LIFE So many parents want their child to be a genius, that they are easily deluded into believing they have one. If all the children beloved by their parents to be geniuses actually were exceptionally brilliant, genius would be a very common article. However, it is still as rare as it ever was.

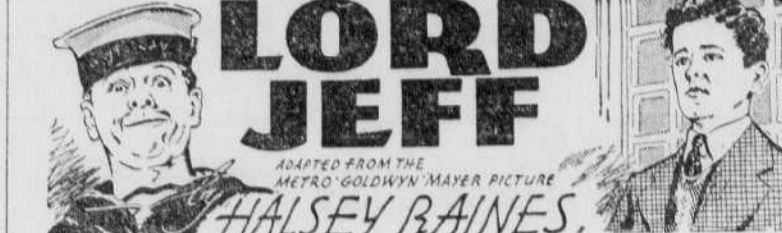

We happen to be living in extraordinary times. Scientific miracles are no longer stagger the imagination. We ride in the sky. Children growing up today know more because there is more to know.

Also the percentage of educated parents is greater, and knowledge in general is more accessible. The general level of knowledge in children is bound to be higher than it formerly was.

But, even if a child actually is a genius, it is nothing to boast about. In fact, such a child's parents have a serious problem on their hands. Such a child requires special handling. While developing his creative powers, the parents should keep from him the fact that he is out of the ordinary. It isn't easy. Talented children often experience an unhappy childhood.

When a child has exceptional gifts, the tendency is to stress these at the expense of personality and character development. But he is a person with normal needs and desires, and only incidentally a genius. He needs the comradeship of his contemporaries if he is to enjoy life. It should not be dunned into him that he is different. Give him every opportunity to develop his particular talent, but in all other respects deal with him as with any other child.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR Sent to a welfare home when his "governess" turns out to be an adroit jewel thief, fourteen-year-old Geoffrey Braemer drops the title of "Lord" but still looks on himself as vastly superior to the boys in the school. He offers a bribe to Terry O'Mulvaney, popular senior student, to get special favors, and is censured by Captain Briggs, school head.

Chapter Six Crusty Jinks with Terry as an able assistant was teaching the novices at the nautical school the science of knots. With experienced hands he explained the intricacies of the round turn, the half hitch, the clove hitch, and the sheepshank.

Finding most of the boys fumbling around hopelessly, Crusty was surprised to see Geoffrey do a clean job with every knot, on the first attempt.

"I don't know if you've got the beam to be a seaman," he said, with grudging approval. "But you've got the knack of lines and ropes."

"I'd just as soon be a chimney sweep," replied Geoffrey.

"Well, lad, that's as you wish," said Crusty, controlling his resentment. "As for me, I say there's no finer feelin' on earth than bein' a ship's crew when she noses in her berth. I'd want nothin' better than to be young again, and aboard the Queen Mary."

Terry looked up and nodded assent. "I'd be givin' the last one of me stripes to be sure I'd be in her crew," he said.

Half turning as he caught a glimpse of a speeding bicycle, Geoffrey saw the postman spinning up the path leading to the Administration Building. Quick as lightning he decided he must break away. He must be on hand when the mail was left, before anyone tried to intercept a letter from Doris or Jim.

Clutching at his heart and giving a sharp cry, Geoffrey sank to a ground. The expression on his face was as natural and convincing as the one he had assumed the day he helped Jim and Doris manoeuvre the theft of the necklace.

Waving the boys back, Crusty bent over him. "Better go to your cot and lie down a bit," he advised. "If you don't feel top-hole in half an hour, I'll take you around to sick bay."

"Thank you, sir," said Geoffrey, apparently very appreciative. "I'm sure I'll be quite all right."

"Maybe I'd better send O'Mulvaney along," said Crusty.

"Oh, no, sir," Geoffrey answered, alarmed at the chance of interference. "I can make it alone."

Doobfully, Crusty looked after him while he hobbled off.

Once he had reached the dormitory, Geoffrey ducked out of sight and ran madly toward the rear entrance of the Administration Building. The mail was on the long centre table.

Geoffrey began to run frantically through the pile of several dozen letters, cards and papers. He was so intent on his task that he failed to note the approach of Mrs. Briggs. She, in turn, thought there was something very strange about this hurried, over-excited manner.

"What are you doing, Geoffrey?" she asked.

"Oh! I thought there might be a letter for me."

"Probably there is, but you'll have to wait your turn with the rest."

"Couldn't I sort them for you, Mrs. Briggs?" the boy begged.

"No, you can't," she replied, a bit suspiciously. "But I've been doing it so many years, I'd feel lost if I missed a day. You may go back to your class."

Chagrined and dejected, Geoffrey slowly passed down the corridor of the executive building. He stopped in one corner, low in thought, and gave vent to his feelings by kicking away at some imaginary obstacle. He was oblivious of the fact that Crusty Jinks and some of the boys had entered through the opposite door.

"Braemer! Come here!" called Crusty sharply.

Sheepish at being caught, Geoffrey slowly obeyed.

"Got over yer fain'tin' spell mighty smart," said Crusty. "That'll be a black mark against you."

"I still feel weak, sir," said Geoffrey, "but I thought a breath of fresh air would do me good."

"And is the air fresher in the Administration Building that hit is 'h'outside? That'll cost you another black mark for lyin'."

FOOT ACHE BANISHED BY DAILY CARE

Do you have memories of yourself as a little girl running barefoot on the warm sand or over the cool, damp grass in the early morning? If so, you probably sigh for those blissful days again. You never had any foot aches then. You didn't have to force your feet into shoes that were too small for you. You didn't have to walk miles on hard, hot sidewalks or tramp upstairs and down several dozen times a day, doing the routine tasks required to run a home.

But cheer up! Foot comfort can still be yours if you are sensible. If your feet are tired and burning at the end of a day, give them the following treatment two or three times a week—or daily, if possible.

Soak your feet in a basin of warm water to which you have added a handful of Epsom salts or plain table salt. Then wash them in fresh water, scrubbing vigorously with a footbrush and soap. Work over the sole of the foot and around the toes and cuticles. Now run water as hot as you can stand it, and then cold, over your feet, alternating hot and cold several times to speed up the circulation.

Dry the feet thoroughly, especially between the toes. You may now, if you wish, call it a day, dust your feet with a cooling, soothing powder, and go to bed. Or you may give yourself a foot massage with a creamy white foot lotion. If you do not have a special foot cream or lotion, any good cream or hand lotion will do.

Begin with the toes, massaging each one separately and working from their tips up over the ankles. Use both hands with the thumbs on top of the foot, the fingers curled around the palm or sole of your foot. Stroke gently upward and massage with a rotary movement in the hollows at either side of the heel. Now massage over the calves of the legs to the knees. Dancers like to finish their nightly foot and leg massage with an ice rub—a splendid trick for firming the tissues.

If you must put on your shoes immediately after a foot bath, pat the feet with a cooling eau de Cologne or astringent, and put on fresh stockings. Try to wear shoes that really fit. Do not be worried or surprised if you find that, in the summer, you need a shoe that is a half size larger. Even the healthiest feet tend to swell slightly with the heat. Stockings that fit are as essential as shoes that fit. Too small stockings bind the feet and cause them to ache. Stockings that are too large may wrinkle and cause blisters.

Of course, you dress up your feet in the summer. Not only do you apply polish to your toe nails but, if you are wise, you give your feet a complete pedicure. If you have never acquired the pedicure habit, try it every week for a month, and see how much it contributes to the comfort of your feet. If you need any other inspiration, look at some of the charming new pedicure sets that are on the market. These come in attractive and convenient kits and include everything from nail clippers and foot cream to cuticle pushers and polish.

KEEP CORDS CAREFULLY A little ordinary care in storing electric cords prolongs their usefulness. Fabric covered cords should not be allowed to become dusty, twisted, damp or worn from coming in contact with sharp surfaces. Hang them straight on in wide loops over a rounded peg. Rubber cords do not twist easily and are more suitable for use in rooms where there is danger that contact with water might cause a short circuit.

"Climbin' riggin's one thing you don't learn out of readin' a book."

"I see nothing so wonderful about climbin'. Even monkeys can do it."

"Monkeys are putty smart," said Crusty. "Anyway, there's worse hurt than a bruise, or even a broken bone. Shirkin's one of them—and you saved yourself from that!"

Geoffrey grumpily picked himself up and started away, while mutters of disapproval came from the boys who had been watching.

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

The Little Hero

DAN BROWN was thirteen years old when he became a hero. And this is how it all happened. But before we tell the story, let us make you better acquainted with Dan. His mother, of course, called him "Greatest boy in the world," and his father declared he was "a regular brick." But the boys at school often laughed at Dan and called him "Gurl-kid," just because he was not big and tough and rough. His face was small and delicate, his hair was soft and his eyes as blue as a baby's. And that is why the rough boys at school called him "Gurl-kid." But Dan did not mind in the least. He only turned up his nose at these untalented boys and said he "didn't give a fig."

"Here, Put This Around Your Waist," cried Dan.

Then there was another reason why the boys at school thought Dan was a "Gurl-kid." He had never had a fight! And for the life of him, he could not understand why he should go about fighting like a savage Indian or a wild beast. He had few differences to settle with boys and he managed to settle these without the proverbial scrap. Not that the other boys did not often try to force a fight on him. But he would say, "It takes two to make a fight," and go along about his business. When some one would call out, "Coward!" he would reply, "I don't agree with you. I am not a coward but I am not a savage, either."

But Dan had many admirers among the grown-ups. A great many little boys' mothers would say to their naughty sons: "Why can't you be nice-behaved like Dan Brown? He's always such a little gentleman!"

One evening, just after dark, Dan's mother asked him to go on an errand for her to the outskirts of town to take a basket of fruit to a sick friend. It was a beautiful evening, the moon was just rising beyond a long hill. The pretty town lay so quiet, the people sitting on porches and in yards, getting fresh air of coming night.

Dan soon reached the home of the sick lady, and found her in a very excited frame of mind. "I sent Fanny to the neighbor's for a pitcher of milk, and she has not returned," she said. "She's been gone an hour or more. And her father's gone down town to the post office, and I guess the train is late—I haven't heard it whistle yet. So he'll remain till the train arrives in order to get his mail!"

"Oh, don't worry, Mrs. Craig," said Dan. "I'll run fetch Fanny. Did she go to Mrs. Frank's?"

"Yes, it's only three blocks away and I told her to come home at once," replied Mrs. Craig. "I'm so afraid something has happened to her."

"Don't be anxious, Mrs. Craig. I'll find Fanny all right!" And Dan ran out of the house and down the street in the direction of the Frank's home. He found old Grandfather Frank sitting on the porch, smoking his pipe. The others of the family, so the old man said had gone to the country and would not return till late at night. As the old man was very deaf, Dan was obliged to scream his questions to him. "Had Fanny been there for a pitcher of milk?"

The old man shook his head. He hadn't seen Fanny Craig all day. Dan began to feel a bit anxious himself. He turned about and started to retrace his steps to Mrs. Craig's home. But when outside the gate he heard a low, meaning cry. It came from behind a high hedge that grew around a vacant lot bordering the Frank's grounds. Dan hurried behind the hedge, going in through a gap which formed a gateway. Across the lot ran a footpath which made a short cut between the Craig's house and the Frank's house. Dan followed the weed-bordered path for some twenty feet when he suddenly came upon an old excavation. Some one had started to build a house evidently and had just got the cellar dug out and then abandoned the project. Weeds as high as one's head grew about the crumbling-in old hole. Dan again heard the cry of distress, and knew it to come from the cellar. He ran to the edge and looked over. "Fanny!" called Dan, leaning over the edge.

"Oh, it's me!" cried a little girl's voice, half-stifled with sobs. "I fell in and I can't get out. The water's most up to my waist. Oh, get me out, please! Who are you?"

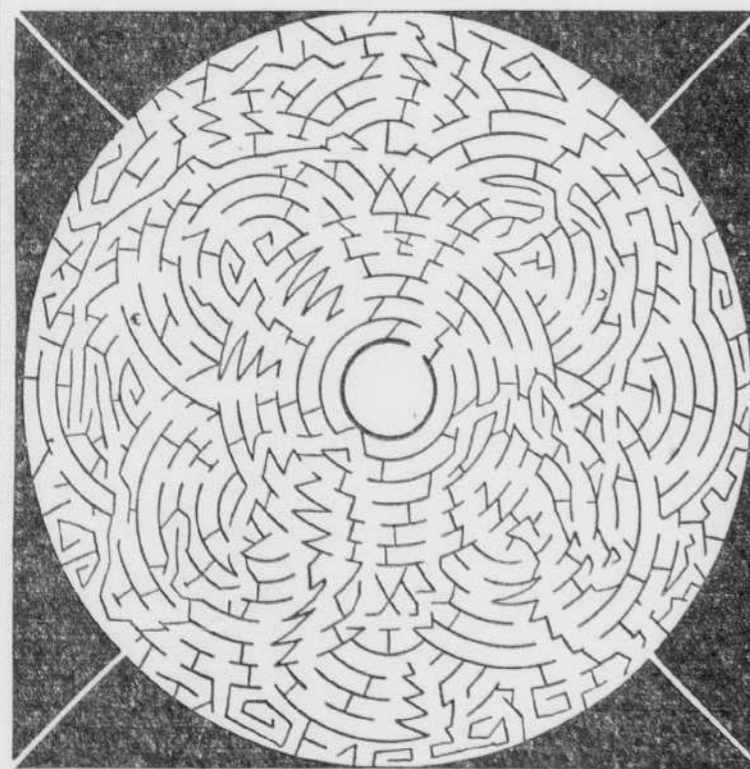

"I'm Dan Brown," said Dan, feeling that he had a difficult task before him, for he could see that a recent rain had made the cellar walls slippery. And there were no steps leading from the hole.

"Don't be afraid, Fanny. I'll soon get you out," he promised. He was thinking faster than he was talking and this is what passed through his mind: "If I should go to old Grandfather Frank to ask him to assist me, it would take half an hour to make him understand what I was saying. And I have no time to lose. I must not go to Fanny's home and tell the news, for poor Mrs. Craig would be frightened half to death, and it would

NOW FOR A SWING!

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

HI—now for a big swing! Hold tight!" says BROWN-haired Teddy. "This is going to be a high one—right up near the RED apples among the GREEN leaves!"

"Oh, zoodle!" cries YELLOW-haired Susie May. "I'd like to go as high as the BLUE sky!"

"Well, all aboard!" and Teddy takes hold on one long YELLOW swing rope and Susie May holds on to both sides and sits firmly on the BROWN board seat.

Teddy wears a light YELLOW sailor suit. It has RED collar and cuffs. The star on the collar is White and his tie is dark BLUE. He wears dark BROWN shoes. Susie May wears a light PURPLE frock and socks and ribbon to match it. Her large hat is BROWN straw bound with PURPLE ribbon. Her petticoats are White and her slippers are BLACK. The grass is

GREEN with a few YELLOW flowers in it and GRAY (use BLACK lightly) flag-stones under the swing. Both Susie May and Teddy have PINK (use RED lightly) cheeks and RED lips.

The border of this picture can be colored bright BLUE and the lettering with apples and leaves behind should be YELLOW.

Washing The Cat

I NEVER shall forget the day that Papa washed the cat. I've had just lots and lots of fun but never fun like that. Puss looked so dirty Papa thought she ought to have a scrub. And so we got a towel and soap and put her in the tub.

At first she didn't struggle much, just made some scary cries, Till Papa started scrubbing and some soap got in her eyes. Then she began to fuss and claw and pull with all her might—I never would have thought a cat could put up such a fight.

Hold her! Hold her! Papa hollered: don't you let her paws get loose; I tried hard to keep her quiet but it wasn't any use— She had about a dozen feet or so it seemed to me. For fast as I'd get hold of one she'd whip up another free.

She muzzed the room up awful and made both of us a mess. Till she broke away and scooted like the limited express; Down the hall and through the kitchen, leaving in a trail of wet. Out underneath the porch she ran as far as she could get.

Mamma scolded us like forty, said we should have had more sense, And told us we had better go and sit out on the fence. Or hang ourselves to dry across the clothesline in the yard, And said if we tried it again she'd whip us good and hard.

The HANDY BOY AT HOME

BY CHARLES A. KING,
STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, PLYMOUTH, N.H.

VERY few shower bath addicts ever refuse an opportunity to indulge in their favorite method of bathing. Many of them install shower baths in their own homes but to others this may not be feasible but still the desire for a shower persists.

A shower bath may be simple or very elaborate but usually in either case force water is necessary. The writer looks back a number of years to a gymnasium of which the members were a group of teachers and office workers who had fitted a large empty room, mostly with home made equipment, but we had lots of exercise there and often dreamed of a shower bath but we came ker-plunk against the question of force water and there was nothing to be said, for there was none available in the frontier town where we lived.

It has been said that if you want a thing long enough and think about it earnestly enough it will come to pass and we proved this, for one day a couple of the boys had some time on their hands, and having access to some odds and ends of boards and scantling, and a few tools, they built a couple of shelves supported 15" and 10" from the floor. Four posts 2" x 3" x 99", two cleats 3 1/2" x 35", four cleats 3 1/2" x 33 1/2", one shelf 38" x 36" and one shelf 30" x 33 1/2" were assembled as shown. When the rest of us came the coat of the three tubs, the necessary soldering, the valve, the shower fittings and the oiled cotton curtain was quickly subscribed, a matter of about $7.00 if I remember correctly. The club made arrangements with a young man of all work to fill the upper 40 each day the club met and pour away the water that

SHOWER BATH FOR CAMP OR BOYS' CLUB

Poor Little Flower

THERE are many legends about the flowers and how they got their names. There are also many different stories about the same flower, because in the beginning of time each country had its own ideas about things, and they made up their tales to suit their climate and their surroundings.

Take, for instance, that dear little spring blossom, the Forget-Me-Not, small as it is, it has many stories as to the origin of its name, but perhaps the prettiest one is this:

Many thousands of years ago the fairies all assembled early in spring to give the flowers names. The stately rose lifted its head a trifle higher as the Queen of the Fairies waved her wand over it and said: "We will call you Rose!" The modest Violet hung its head to receive the blessing from the Fairy, and the pure white Lily bowed its head in appreciation. Then came the Pansy with her laughing eyes and was pleased with her name, and the Tulip lisped her thanks to the Queen for her gift.

"Away," cried the Fairies, "and be merry these beautiful spring days."

"I am called Rose," sang the rose as it tripped along.

"My name is Lily, I think it is the purest name in the world," cried that delighted flower as he went to tell it to his children.

"Wont the children love me?" said the dainty Pansy to the Violet as they walked arm in arm to their flowerbeds.

The Tulip wafted kisses to all the others, as she hastened along. One little blue blossom fairly flew to its kind to tell them the good news. She kept repeating her name so often to herself that by the time she came near the silvery rivulet where her sisters were eagerly waiting for her, she had entirely forgotten it. Down she sat and

Mamma Robin's Umbrella

CHIRP, chirp!" came from the window sill, and Elsie turned around in her little bed to see who her early visitor was.

"Oh," she exclaimed, "Where did you come from so early this bright morning?"

"Chirp," answered the robin, hopping a little closer to the inside. "I want some crumbs for my baby up there in the tree." At least that is what Elsie thought she said, and in a minute the little girl was out of bed and was gathering up the crumbs that were missing for her time cake had made on the tray. All the time she was approaching the window sill, and while she was spreading the bits of cake Elsie was talking to the bird in the most reassuring way, and the Robin seemed to appreciate the fact that she meant her no harm for she firmly kept her perch on the sill, and when the feast was spread out before her she filled her little bill and flew up in the tree where her baby was eagerly waiting for its breakfast.

"Peek, Peek," came from the tree, and then "Chirp, chirp," from the mother.

After that Elsie and the mother-bird became great friends and Mrs. Robin came every morning for her family's breakfast. About a week after the bird's first visit to the sill, Elsie woke up early in the morning and heard the big rain drops on the window pane.

"Oh dear!" she sighed, "My poor little baby robin will get dripping wet in her nest up there." Then Elsie tried to think out a plan by which she could protect her pets, for by this time she began to regard them as hers. "I wonder whether Mamma Robin will call for her food this morning?" she went on musing and then she watched the window for the little feathery visitor.

"Time to get up," said Mother coming into Elsie's room with a sunny smile that made the girl almost forget it was raining. "You overslept yourself, and no wonder for it is dark enough to be very early in the morning."

"No, Mother, I have been awake a long time, and I have been waiting for my little visitor. Poor little creatures they cannot escape the rain, but must get wet and cold, while we have all the comforts of home."

"I'm afraid you are waiting your sympathy, Elsie," said her mother. "The mother bird does not mind the rain, and I'm sure she'll find some means of protecting her baby until its feathers grow large enough to protect it, too."

While Elsie was dressing her mother went to tidy up the bedrooms and glancing out of the window she saw something that made her stop her work and call to Elsie. "Elsie come here quick, and your question of how the mother bird protects her baby from the rain will be answered."

Elsie was by her mother's side in a jiffy and there in the tree she saw the mother bird completely covering the nest with her outstretched wings. Not a drop of rain could reach the young ones.

Then she ceased worrying for she knew that every mamma bird carried her umbrella with her all the time and that her babies were as safe as if they lived in a big brick house instead of in a little straw nest up in a tree.

Not A Drop Of Rain Could Reach The Young Ones.

FINANCIAL AND MARKET NEWS

AIRCRAFT AND MINING ISSUES RALLY LEADERS

Prospects of Large Orders From Great Britain Cause Strength in Many Industrials While Golds Lead Mining Shares.

Toronto, July 23.—Stock market recovery forces got back into their early June stride in the last week on Canadian markets after passing through a consolidating period.

At the close of yesterday's session base metal shares were at their high level of the year, industrials were within a quarter point of their high, registered last January, and the golds were only about two and a half points under the year's top.

National Steel Car stands out with an advance of $9.75 in the week and there were several gains of one dollar and two dollars or more among the other steels.

Market circles appear to be impressed by the possibility that the company may get substantial orders from the British Government. Canadian Car common moved up $1.00 to a new high for the year at $17.

Next to the steels, the utilities, foods, implements and liquors played a part in lifting the Toronto Exchange index for the industrials 4.55 in the week to 126.58, a new high for the current advance and only .26 under the top for the year.

Walkers common advanced $4 on the Toronto market and was well supported in London on its recent earnings statement. Distillers' Securities firm $1.50. Other pivotal issues advancing $1 to $2 or more included Westons, Montreal Power and United Fuel preferred, Rogers-Majestic added slightly less than $1 and Massey Harris and Cockshutt Plow had about the same pick-up.

In two sessions of the week more than a million shares were traded with the medium-price goods becoming progressively active. Senior goods registered a strong tone while trading in moderate volume. Dome registered a new high and McIntyre sold at 45, its highest price touched this year. Dome gained $2.35 and McIntyre $1.25. Lake Shore and Hoffinger had smaller advances. Pamour featured the secondary group with a rise of 85 cents in heavy trading.

International Nickel and Noranda continued in the forefront of the leadership, posting gains of $2.25 and $1.85 respectively. Smelters firms $1 and the change base metals, including Ventures, Sherritt, Falconbridge, Pind Orelite and Wain-Ametel are up for the week.

George Raft in "You and Me," which opens at the Granada Theatre tomorrow.

At the Granada: "You and Me," which opens at the Granada Theatre tomorrow, tells the story of an "ex-mo" and an "ex-con" trying to go straight.

The film stars Sylvia Sydney and George Raft for the first time since "Pick-up" in 1933. It's the ninth time each has played in crime movies. Both are native New Yorkers.

Raft from a Hell's Kitchen tenement, and Sylvia from a Bronx upstairs flat.

He reached Hollywood via prize fight, baseball, dancing in night clubs and roof revues. Sylvia crashed the gates via stage route—and now has returned to that medium.

Also on the programme is "Sinners in Paradise," starring Ma-Je Evans, John Boles and Bruce Cabot.

Marion Martin, turned by stage commentators "the most beautiful girl on Broadway" makes her screen debut in an important role.

At the Premier: Young Girl who loves her man so desperately that she follows him into a backward and brutal penal colony in order to prove it, is the central figure in "Prison Farm," which opens at the Premier Theatre tomorrow with Shirley Ross, Lloyd Nolan and John Howard in the lead-

SAWYERVILLE

It was with a sense of shock that those acquainted with the Rev. Arthur H. Moore during his ministry in Sawyerville heard of his tragic death. Mr. Moore spent the first years of his ministry here, and it was chiefly due to his initiative and energy that St. Phillip's Mission Hall and parsonage were built.

Though that was forty years ago, there are still those who remember with respect and affection his work here. A memorial service was held in the Mission Hall at the same hour as the funeral at Acton Vale with a good attendance of his old friends who were unable to attend the funeral.

Miss Mary LaPage, of Bourgainville, and Miss Audrey McCallum, of Bridgetown, were guests for a few days of the Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Dunn at the parsonage.

Miss Merle Lindsay, of Bury, who is visiting relatives here, was among the guests who attended the funeral at the home of Miss Mabel Bowker.

Master George Hurley, of Coaticook, is the guest of his grandfather, Mr. E. Waldron, and aunt, Miss Marjorie Waldron.

Miss Ross, playing an incurably romantic working girl, turns a deaf ear to the advice of her friends and to her own better judgment and puts her future completely in the hands of her shiftless sweetheart, Nolan.

When his activities land him in a backward prison camp, the girl prefers punishment to separation and serves a sentence with him. On the prison farm she undergoes terrors and lives among conditions which bring to mind the equally stirring film of a few years ago, "I am a Fugitive."

She works at brick-breaking labor for the profit of the authorities, is spied upon constantly by stool-pigeons and insulted by degenerate officials.

The added attraction is "The Old Wyoming Trail," featuring Charles Starrett and Barbara Weeks. The story deals with that period when unscrupulous sharpers were attempting to make quick fortunes by gathering up land to sell to the advancing railroads for rights of way.

Meat Costs Higher As Prices Rise Generally On Lansdowne

Bacon and Liver Lead Way As Nearly All Market Prices Shoot Upwards — Strawberries Finished But Blueberries and Red Currants Plentiful — Vegetable Prices Slightly Lower.

With the meat market leading the way there has been a general rise in agricultural products prices over last week, statistics from the Lansdowne Market showed yesterday afternoon.

With the exception of broilers, which dropped from fifty to forty cents a pound, any change in the prices of meat showed an upward trend. Bacon went from thirty to thirty-five cents a pound, while calf's liver jumped from twenty-five to thirty-five cents a pound.

Ham, pork, and cottage rolls all registered gains, with mutton and steak prices remaining the same.

In the dairy market, butter, best creamery, rose to thirty cents a pound from twenty-eight last week, while eggs jumped up from twenty-five and thirty cents to do to half change in the price of cheese was a five cent drop in the cost of Roquefort.

Prices showed a generally higher trend on the fruit market, although raspberries dropped five cents a basket. Strawberries are now finished, but blueberries and red currants are plentiful. Both the latter fruits sell at fifteen cents a box. Grapes showed a big increase, jumping from ten cents a pound to eighteen and twenty cents. Lemons were the only fruit showing a marked decrease in price, dropping from thirty-five and forty-five cents a dozen to twenty-five cents.

Prices on the vegetable market remained fairly steady, showing slight decreases. Rhubarb doubled in price, but yellow onions, new potatoes and green onions all went down.

Over the whole market prices were somewhat higher than last week. Prices of flour and grain showed no change.

The following price list of the quotations in the provision market includes those of farmers and butchers in that section.

THE DAIRY MARKET: Butter, best creamery, 30c; Butter, best dairy, lb., 25c to 27c; Eggs, per dozen, 35c to 45c; Pullets' Eggs, per dozen, 33c; Cheese, 18c to 30c; Krate, Cheese, 30c to 40c; Oke, lb., 40c to 43c; Brookfield, 40c to 43c; Roquefort, 55c to 70c.

TEXTILE FLINGER MASTERED BEAVER CREW

Collin Displayed Fine Control In One-Hitter

Textile Trowned Beavers Four to Nothing As Collin Hand-cuffed Opponents—Boisvert Squad Downed Lennoxville Five to Two and Hoboes Slugged Way to Fifteen-Eleven Victory Over Etoile Filante.

Pitcher Collin, of the Textile softball team, came very close to hurling a no-hit game against the Beavers on the Parade Grounds last night, a single by Norm Welsh in the sixth inning being the only safety credited to the Terrey-Mitchler crew, who went down to a four to nothing defeat.

COLLIN'S CURVES BAFFLED BEAVERS

Textile and Beavers played a tight game throughout the seven innings, and the Beavers put up the most stubborn resistance they have shown all year against the strong millmen. Their play in the field was only mediocre—it used to be much worse—but Textile found it hard to drive the ball past the fielders, who managed to get in front of it even though they sometimes dropped it.

It was their weakness at bat that cost them the contest, Collin was breaking sharply, causing the Beavers to swing valiantly but futilely. Up until the sixth, a no-hitter was in prospect, but Norm Welsh dropped a bingle between the infield and the pasture to shatter his chances.

Textile tallied two runs in the first as two hits and two free tickets were handed out by Emile Houde, back on the mound for Beavers, and a single tallies were chalked up in each of the fourth and sixth frames.

Line-ups: Welsh, Kouri, Lessard, Jowers, Holgate, Wooten, W. Mutchler, H. Terrey, C. Terrey and Houde. Textile: Baker, G. Riel, Boisvert, Rondeau, Roy, Raymond, J. Riel, Loubier, Humphrey and Collin. Score by innings: 000 000 0-0 1 2 Beavers . . . 200 101 x-4 11 1 Batteries: Houde and Wooton; Collin and Humphrey.

LENNOXVILLE'S WINNING STREAK SNAPPED

After a short string of winning games the Lennoxville lads met a five to two defeat at the hands of the Boisvert aggregation. "Vin" the Boisvert was largely responsible for the Boisvert victory, as he limited the visitors to six hits, scattering them in all but the first frame, when a walk and two hits, one of them a home-run by Jim Povey, gave Eddie Prinn's merry-men two tallies.

Going into their half of the first, Boisvert tied up the old ball game on two base-knocks and a brace of miscues by the Lennoxville squad. The third Boisvert run came in the fourth as four bingles and a fielder's choice managed to push in "Slim" Rousseau.

Fred Slater and Patton scored the final markers in the fifth, and neither outfit was able to dent the platter from that point on.

Score by innings: Lennoxville . . . 200 000 0-2 6 3 Boisvert . . . 200 120 x-5 12 1 Batteries: Bellam and Hadlock; Corcoran and F. Slater.

HOBOS TOOK HIGH-SCORING TILT

Runs came thick and fast as Charlie Clark and his swashbuckling Hoboes plastered their way to a fifteen to eleven triumph over the Etoile Filante ten. The game was called in the fifth because of darkness, and no inning was scoreless.

Hoboes crossed the plate four times in the second, seven times in a wild third, once in the fourth and three times in the fifth, while the "Shooting Stars" registered a brace of markers in the first, third and fourth and five in the second.

Lacharite, with three hits and three runs, was perhaps the most effective Hobo while Monfette and Gervais stood out for Etoile Filante.

All told, twenty-five hits went to make up twenty-six runs, and at times the game resembled the original "Comedy of Errors." The players on both sides, however, feel that a good time was had by all—certainly the spectators enjoyed themselves.

Score by innings: Hoboes . . . 047 13-15 14 8

It would be interesting to know what Paul Critchell, scout for New York Yankees, thought of Paul Calvert after watching him stand the Three Rivers batting stars on their ears Thursday night. Critchell was here last Sunday when Paul had trouble with his control, and it is learned via the grapevine route that he was not much impressed, but it is more that likely he changed his mind little by little as thirteen hitters fanned the breeze.

Calvert had so much stuff that Elton Douse had a tough time holding onto his deliveries. His curve was breaking to perfection, while his speed ball fairly burned past the plate. What was especially pleasing was the fact that Paul took the razzing from the Three Rivers' bench without batting an eye and went right ahead holding the boys down.

Luckily for Small, Cohen and Crowley they don't get paid according to the number of put-outs they make. They had a real holiday, only two balls coming anywhere near them, due not only to the fine pitching but also to the smart fielding of Moge, Avayanz, DeMoe and Di-rubio.

In passing, "Di Rube" came through nicely in the clutch, directing a hit past Second-base man Huston and scoring a run. Di-rubio will probably pull out of his slump in a big way because he has a good eye, and very seldom strikes at a bad ball. If the elbowers send them down the alley, that ball is due for a good many rides.

Huston played twenty games with Connie Mack's American League Athletics last year, according to Roger Dugre, scorer for the Sherbrooke squad. He is a strong defensive player, but not so hot wit the stick.

Gene Sullivan, nemesis of the local pitchers last year, hasn't shown much of his old batting power here so far, while Paul Martin has failed miserably at the plate. He almost broke his back swinging at Calvert's slants.

Jackie Huxtable, who was released by officials of the local team, secured a berth down in the Colliery League and is reported well satisfied with his job. Elliot Small is down in Massachusetts playing his old position at second base.

Probably not many fans knew that when Elliott Small played here he had hardly recovered from an operation for appendicitis. His side was tightly strapped, yet his exertions caused adhesions and he was advised by a doctor to drop baseball for this season.

So Superheater captured the championship of the Industrial Softball League. Good pitching and hitting seem to have been the secrets of their success, while the field-generals of Ben Grime must not be overlooked. It would be interesting to see the Tigers hook up with a few City Softball League outfits. They would more than likely surprise not a few of the aggregations in the senior circuit.

Officials of the City League are making a fine effort to have every game played and the eliminations started by August 8. Not content with regular Monday, Wednesday and Friday night encounters, they are running off Tuesday and Thursday contests and the lads on the eleven teams are responding nobly, even though to get in there three or four times a week may necessitate postponing a date with the girlfriend—and eloquent explanations subsequently.

Kayser, New Wellington and City Transit have practically clinched the first three positions in the play-offs, although plenty can happen to upset their serenity. Anybody who likes playing long shots is welcome to put down the odd peso on the Beavers, who can never be counted out until the last error is made. A dog-fight for fourth place is in prospect, with Textile on the inside track.

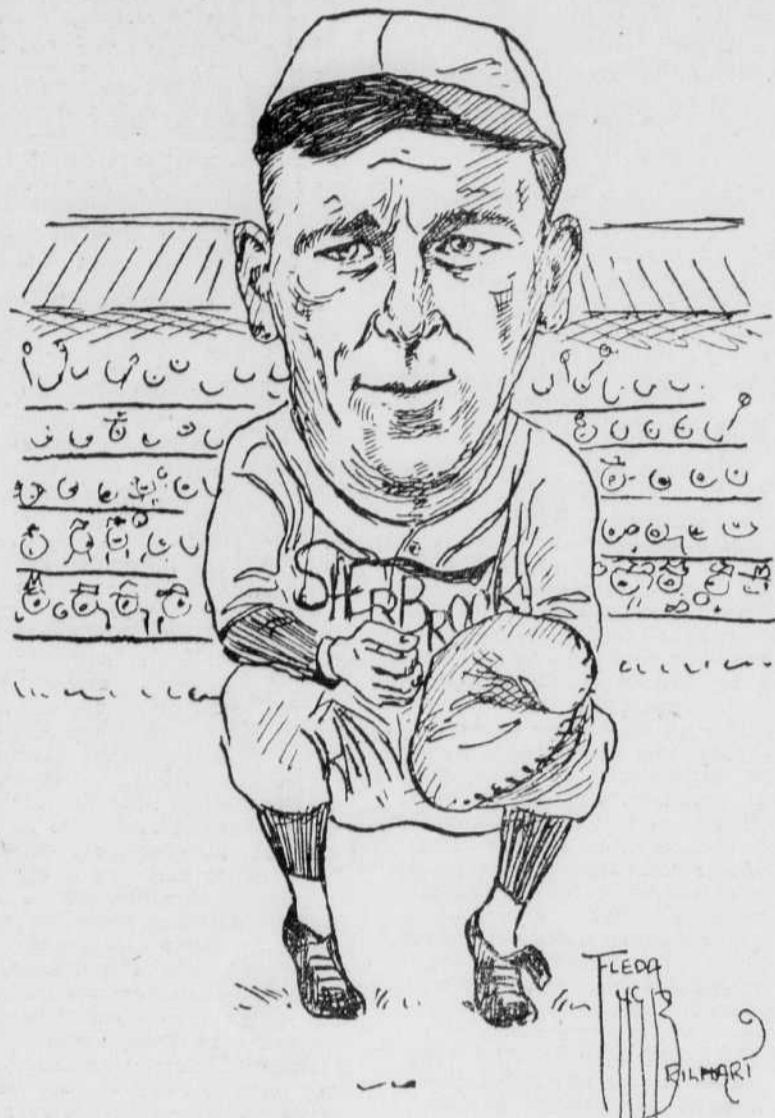

Plodding along the winding trail to fistic glory and quickly approaching the cross-roads of his career comes "Two-Ton" Tony Galento, who, it is said, trains on "beer, pretzels and big black cigars." The National Boxing Association has rated the round Jersey barkeeper the number one challenger for the crown that adorns the dusky head of Joe Louis, and the big boy will be watched closely when he faces John Henry Lewis next Tuesday in Philadelphia.

Galento has flattened the last five men to face him, and polished off Nathan Mann quicker than did Louis. He packs a mighty wallop in the trusty right arm, no doubt as a result of the strength acquired "serving 'em up," and if he cracks Lewis a few times should have him on the canvas. On the other hand, John Henry is as fast as greased lightning, and whether or not Tony can step with him is a matter of conjecture. As a boxer, Lewis is miles ahead of the mountainous Galento, but if he tries to match punches, it should be just too bad for him.

Another fight should attract a large crowd—the Ambers-Armstrong tilt on August 12. Lou's publicity men are playing up the grudge-fight angle and claim the cocky pugilist wants to trim Armstrong as much as Louis was aching to floor Schmeling. The colored "Buzz Saw" looks like the man to pick.

Scouts from New York Giants and

SHERBROOKE'S "SULTAN OF SWAT"

A mighty man is Dave Barry, and feared by all pitchers in the Provincial Baseball League—and rightly so, as his average of over .400 shows.

Dave is twenty-four years old, and tips the beam at 175 pounds, and when he puts his powerful frame behind a swing the ball really takes a ride.

He learned his baseball at school in his home town, Lynn, Mass. He caught for La Salle Military Academy, and in 1935, playing with Glace Bay in the Nova Scotia Colliery League, he was the league's leading hitter.

At the present time he is on top of the batting list in the Provincial League and has shown no signs of falling into a slump.

Dave considers the pitching on the average in the loop to be better than in the Colliery League, and declares Paul Calvert one of the best hurlers he has ever seen.

Johnson and Andrews, of Sorel, Pomorski, of Drummondville, Budzyna, of Quebec, and Robinson, of Three Rivers are the boys he finds hardest to hit, but his performance to date has shown that he takes them all as they come and gets his hits as usual.

LONG GRIND TO GOLFING TITLE OPENS TUESDAY

"Sandy" Still Favored to Gain Seventh Dominion Crown—Jack Nash and Pete Kelly Among Tourney's "Dark Horses."

London, Ont., July 23.—An advance army of amateur golfers moved on London today, ready for massed and individual attacks on the three titles that will be settled in a full week of play.

Over the rolling course of the London Hunt and Country Club the steadily gathering forces engaged in mock warfare and studied the par-seventy layout for the serious business to come.

Three titles will be tossed on the fairways and greens. Two of them will be decided Monday when seven Canadian Provincial teams fight it out for the twelfth time for the Willingdon Cup and the juniors of all Canada stage an innovation by playing for their own Canadian crown and the newly donated Buckingham Cup.

The two competitions will be staged simultaneously over thirty-six holes of medal play.

Starting Tuesday, the long trail begins that leads to the Canadian Amateur championship Saturday night. An international field of one hundred and sixteen will start the match play, including C. Ross Somerville, master of his home course, who seeks his seventh Dominion crown.

Provincial champions and sharp-shooting veterans and newcomers to the Provincial team ranks are ready to spring an upset.

That there is the "dark horse" who figures in every titular match. One of these is Jack Nash, though as familiar as Somerville with the Hunt Club course, and former Ontario champion.

First day rounds provide a generous quota of feature matches. Pete Kelly, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island champion, will meet a teammate from his own squad, John Steele, of Riverside, N. B.

Bill Holt, the Syracuse sharpshooter, will meet Gil Walker, of London. Frank Corrigan, of Ottawa Chaudiere, 1938 Quebec champion, is drawn against Bert Barnabe, of Ottawa.

Ernie Palmer, of Winnipeg, Manitoba's champion, will meet Gaston Ouellette, of Ottawa Rivermead, Quebec's new junior champion. Three other Manitobans, all placed on the Provincial team, have drawn first round byes in the amateur championship.

Cincinnati Reds are expected next week to take a gander at Paul Calvert.

"BLACK MIKE" PLANS RETURN TO BALL WARS

Cochrane Will Not Make Decision, However, Till Physicians Have Examined Him Again—Tiger's Front Office Assents.

Detroit, July 23.—(AP)—"Tiger Town's" baseball fandom awaited today in more or less suspense, and considerable skepticism, the decision of Manager Mickey Cochrane on whether to return to an active role as Detroit's catcher.

The verdict was entirely up to "Black Mike" whose brilliant playing career was cut short by a disastrous bean ball in the spring of 1937 but who now has the consent of his own front office to play again if his judgment permits.

Word from Philadelphia, last point on Detroit's current doleful eastern tour, said Cochrane would not make up his mind until physicians have examined him again and baseball men indicated his decision would come then only after further serious study.

At any rate, Mickey may essay a comeback if he wishes. It was disclosed late yesterday that Walter O. Briggs, Tiger president, has consented, impressing Cochrane, however, that he first must "consider the matter seriously."

When the bean ball cracked Mickey's skull in three places and laid him in a hospital bed for weeks the fiery pilot had to give up a playing post and become a bench manager. Briggs at the time insisted on that.

Cochrane was uncertain whether his immediate return would greatly aid the slumping Tigers, whose seven straight defeats have dropped them into sixth place in the American League.

Besides whatever physical peril his return might involve, Cochrane apparently would face additional problems. He's just past thirty-five, and may need some conditioning to get in shape.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Outstanding players in yesterday's major league games were: "Ducky" Medwick, Cardinals—Hit Triple, double and single and drove in five runs in twelve to three win over Dodgers.

"Pinky" Higgins, Red Sox—His double and single drove in three runs in seven to four win over Indians.

Arky Vaughan, Pirates—Drove in two runs with double and single to beat Bees four to three.

Beau Bell, Browns—Hit two singles, driving in two runs, in nine to seven victory over Senators.

Wally Berger, Reds, and Chuck Klein, Phillies—Berger's homer and single sent two runs across in five to two opener win; Klein collected three hits and drove in as many runs in eleven to ten nightcap decision.

The hill-billy was witnessing his first stage show on his first visit, to the big city. In an interval between the acts he turned to the metropolitan who had the seat next to him.

"Where do all of those actors come from?" he inquired. "Were they brought on especially for this show, or do they live here?"

"I believe most of them live here in town," said the big city fellow. "Well, they do right well for home talent," said the hill-billy.

Their last trip, which ended with last night's six to one victory over Bisons, almost proved disastrous. They won only five of twenty games and went without victory for eleven straight games.

Syracuse Chiefs have lost seven of their last eight games and are only six and a half games in front of the Giants who are in a virtual deadlock for fifth place with Montreal Royals. The Royals fell astern of the Giants when they were beaten eight to four by the league-leading Newark Bears.

Toronto Leafs moved within a game of Royals by whipping Baltimore four to two, Rochester and Syracuse were rained out on the loop's other contest.

For the second successive night the Giants backed up good pitching with offensive power. While Rollie Stiles was holding the Bisons to six hits and one unearned run, the Giants hammered out twelve hits, including five doubles and a homer by Jack Winsett.

Bears clouted a trio of Montreal hurlers for fifteen hits in taking their third in a row from the Royals. Mike Chartak, filling in for the injured Les Scarsella, set the pace with a homer and triple that drove in three runs.

DAVE BARRY HOME FOR WEEK-END

Rumors that Dave Barry had left the local Provincial Baseball League team were denied emphatically by Roland Dugre, president of the club, when questioned this morning.

"Barry is spending the week-end at his home in Lynn, Mass., and will be here Sunday night for the game against Sorel," declared Mr. Dugre.

JOHN HIBBARD WON ST. PAT'S CHAMPIONSHIP

Defeating Mariella Charest last night in four sets, 1-6, 6-4, 6-1 and 6-3, Johnny Hibbard captured the championship of the St. Patrick's Tennis Tournament.

Dean Due To Go Again—Opposes Giants Today

Unpredictable Dizzy Will Have to Prove He's Back To Stay Against Terrymen—Mickey Cochrane May Return to Active List—Pirates Marked Up Twentieth Win In Twenty-Five Games—Berger Banged Ball.

A lot of fans who have been trying since last Sunday to figure out what a sore arm means to a pitcher may get the answer today, for Dizzy is due to go again.

The unpredictable Jerome Herman Dean, absent from the baseball war from early May to mid July, made an amazing return when he stopped the light-hitting Boston Bees with four hits. Today he has to show whether he can make the comeback stick when he faces the pennant-seeking New York Giants in one game of a doubleheader created when the teams were rained out yesterday.

If Old Diz can prove he's back to stay, the fans can turn their attention to the possibility of another comeback—that of "Black Mike" Cochrane—or such current affairs as Pittsburgh's persistent victory streak, the batting of Wally Berger, a big factor in keeping Cincinnati in the National League race—or Cleveland's last-ditch effort to recapture the American League leadership.

Cochrane received permission from Walter O. Briggs, owner of Detroit Tigers, to seek reinstatement as an active player, but he didn't actually say yesterday that he would try to come back and replace the "bearded" Rudy York and seek to pull Tigers out of sixth place.

Berger, another "comebacker" since he's back with Manager Bill McKeechie, of Cincinnati, for whom he did some heavy hitting in Boston a couple of years ago, played an important role in the Reds' even break with the Phillies yesterday.

He clouted two homers, one in the opener which Cincinnati won five to two and the other in a seven-run rally that prevented a rout as the Phils won the afterpiece, eleven to ten.

Pirates, leading the Giants by two games, marked up their twentieth victory in twenty-five games since they started the winning streak that carried them to the top when they edged out Boston Bees four to three.

Indians, rained out for two days in which they saw three double-headers against the league-leading New York Yankees pile up, dropped further back as they took a seven to four setback against Red Sox at Boston. The Sox battered Bobby Feller and Johnny Humphries in two decisive innings for a victory that left them only a game and a half behind Cleveland and two and a half back of the Yanks.

St. Louis was featured in both the day's other games as rain halted the White Sox-Yankees and Detroit-Athletics contests. Brown ended Washington's four-game winning streak by nouncing out a nine to seven decision. Cards battered Brooklyn for six runs in the first and went on to win twelve to three for their biggest scoring spurge since June 2.

Trainer Earl Sande wanted a fast track for Maxwell Howard's Stagehand and his stablemate, The Chief. Hal Price Healdy, Kentucky breeder, hoped for a mildly muddy strip, for it was upon this kind of a track that his Menow recently defeated War Admiral.

However, Sande was not altogether dismayed by a heavy rain early last night and said his conqueror of Senebec could run well enough over a drying-out track.

And so matters stood as post time neared, for although eight were down to start in the one and a quarter mile test, the race was regarded as a two-horse affair.

A certain young fellow went to Scotland, and wishing to let a friend know of his safe arrival, entered a post office and inquired if he could send a telegram direct to London, and how long it would take. The attendant, a young lady, cut short his inquiries with, "I'm not paid to answer silly questions."

Imagine her feelings, however, when she found herself compelled to wire the following: "Arrived safe. Girls here ugly and bad-tempered."

STAGEHAND VS. MENOW AT ARLINGTON

Chicago, July 23.—(AP)—Two dashers three years old, Stagehand and Menow, and the probable track conditions at post time shared in the speculation today as Arlington Park prepared to handle a crowd of 40,000 for the tenth running of the $30,000 Arlington classic.

Trainer Earl Sande wanted a fast track for Maxwell Howard's Stagehand and his stablemate, The Chief. Hal Price Healdy, Kentucky breeder, hoped for a mildly muddy strip, for it was upon this kind of a track that his Menow recently defeated War Admiral.

However, Sande was not altogether dismayed by a heavy rain early last night and said his conqueror of Senebec could run well enough over a drying-out track.
