ROME (AP)—Princess Irene of The Netherlands and Prince Carlos of Bourbon - Parma, a pretender to the Spanish Throne were married today in a wedding short on royalty and long on controversy.

Neither the bride's parents, Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard, nor the rest of Europe's reigning monarchs attended the ceremony in Rome's Basilica of St. Mary Major. Irene's three sisters also were absent.

The ceremony was performed by Paolo Cardinal Giobbe, for 23 years papal nuncio in The Netherlands.

The romance of the blonde, 25-year-old princess and the 34-year-old prince had been buffeted for months by controversy arising from religion and his position as claimant to the throne from the Carlist branch of Spanish monarchists.

Irene's conversion to the prince's Roman Catholic faith caused a sensation in The Netherlands, whose royal family is traditionally Protestant.

The princess also renounced her right to succession to the Dutch throne—she was next in line behind Princess Beatrix—and publicly espoused her future husband's campaign for the vacant Spanish throne.

There was widespread belief in The Netherlands that the Bourbon-Parma family was trying to use the marriage to bolster its claim in Spain. The Dutch government vetoed a big wedding in Holland.

The Bourbon - Parmas, who live in France, chose Rome for the wedding as "neutral territory." But the Dutch government put pressure on Queen Juliana and her family not to attend to keep them out of Spanish politics. Irene became a virtual exile from her homeland. But Irene and Carlos insisted in an interview last week that mother and daughter were still devoted and that Juliana did not oppose their marriage.

Informed circles in The Hague said Irene's wedding gown was a gift from her mother.

The marriage brings Irene and Carlos into competition with Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon and his wife, Princess Sophie of Greece.

FAVORS JUAN CARLOS

Juan Carlos is the grandson of Spain's last king, Alfonso XIII, and the son of Don Juan de Borbon, recognized as the rightful pretender by Spain's old-time monarchists.

BRIDAL COUPLE ADAPT — In the absence of bride's father, Prince Carlos of Bourbon-Parma, pretender to the Spanish throne, escorts his bride-to-be, Princess Irene, down the aisle to the altar in Rome's Basilica of St. Mary Major to take their marriage vows today. None of the Dutch royal family attended the ceremony because the Dutch government did not want the royal family involved in the contest for the Spanish throne.

Arising from extended allowances

Que. tax break possible

OTTAWA (CP) — Some Quebec parents may get a better income tax break than parents in other provinces arising out of the proposed federal extension of family allowance to students aged 16 and 17.

But Finance Minister Gordon told the Commons Tuesday night that the benefit will be offset by a reduction in federal payments to the Quebec government under the new federal-Quebec agreement.

The highly complex question arose as the Commons debated an income tax amendment relating to Ottawa's plan to pay $10 monthly family allowances, starting in September, to mothers of 16 and 17-year-old who stay in school.

The federal payment would be made year-round ,or a total of $120 a year. However for three or four years the Quebec government has paid $10 monthly education allowances, for 10 months a year—$100 a year—for students aged 16 and 17.

Under the new Ottawa-Quebec deal, the federal payments won't be made in Quebec, but the provincial government will receive matching compensation from Ottawa.

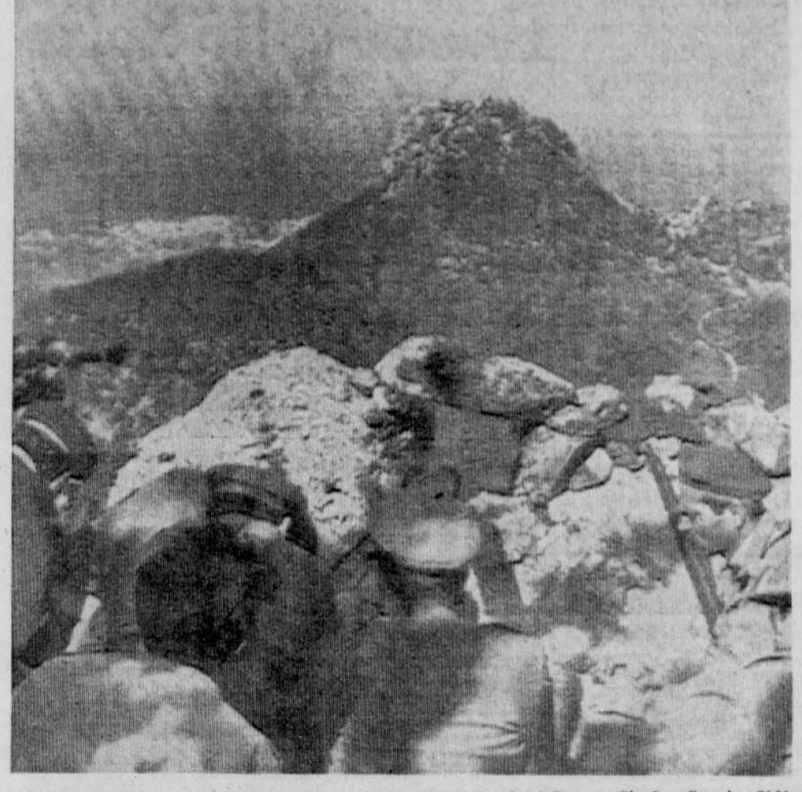

However, George Nowlan, former Conservative finance minister, pointed to what he called "an anomalous situation."

He said that the Quebec parent of a 16-year-old could receive the $100 yearly provincial allowance, yet on his income tax return could claim a deduction from taxable income of $550 on grounds that the child wasn't eligible for the federal allowance.

Yet similar parents in other provinces receiving the $120-a-year federal allowance for a 16-year-old could claim a tax deduction of only $300.

Mr. Gordon made an attempt at explaining what will happen. He said the federal compensation paid to the Quebec government will be the $120 a child which would have otherwise been paid in federal allowances minus a "quite substantial" amount corresponding to the lower tax deduction in the rest of the country for parents in the higher income brackets.

He suggested the situation would be clearer when legislation is introduced later.

Found alive after 4 days in ET woods

STE.-MARTYRS CANADIENS — Lucien Perusse 68, of Levis, who became lost in the woods near this village Saturday afternoon was found yesterday at 3:15 p.m., weak but happy after four days without food.

He was found by Raymond Assad, a government geologist from Quebec City who knew the area well.

Mr. Assad, who had separated from the other searchers to try his luck in a particular area, came upon Mr. Perusse at 3:15 p.m. Mr. Perusse was sitting resting on a tree stump, in the woods about a quarter of a mile from Lake Nicolet, and two miles from the nearest highway.

Mr. Assad, who was alone, gave Mr. Perusse a sandwich and left him to go for aid.

He went back to Ste. Martyrs, which was three or four miles distant and returned with a group of men and a stretcher, said Cpl. Rene Simard of the Sherbrooke detachment of provincial police, who was in charge of the search.

The man was taken to the Arthabaska Hospital in Victoriaville, after a period of about an hour and a half. It took that long to get him out of the woods and to Ste. Martyrs as the woods were wet, overgrown and generally hard going, police said.

There were about 60 volunteers in the search yesterday.

Fear man is lost in river

Sherbrooke fire department boatmen were dragging waters at the junction of the Magog and St. Francis Rivers in downtown Sherbrooke at noon today in a search for a workman believed to have fallen into the Magog River.

Missing is Gilles Clement of Magog, an employee of the JSF construction company, which is doing foundation work for the Big Forks Street bridge across the Magog River.

Foreman Paul Proulx said Clement was last seen unloading lumber from a truck on a ramp half way out across the river.

He said Clement's presence was missed when the men took their 10.30 a.m. coffee break. After an investigation failed to locate the man, the fire department was called.

Police methods

MONTREAL—(CP)— Methods used by the Quebec Provincial Police during their investigation of the 1953 killings of three United States hunters in the Gaspe Peninsula came to the fore Tuesday at the Coffin inquiry.

Marion Petrie, who lived with Wilbert Coffin for 17 years, testified she had been questioned or kept in jail for almost a full day and was told Coffin had been questioned for three days and three nights without rest.

'Unfair' to Vt. maple

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Winston L. Prouty, Vermont Republican, told the senate Tuesday his state's producers of maple syrup and its derivatives are hard-pressed because of the disparity between Canadian and U.S. tariff rates.

He said the Canadian tariff on U.S. maple products amounts to roughly 17½ per cent, or more than three times the U.S. rate of 1½ cents a pound on maple syrup and two cents a pound of maple sugar products.

Fire on policies

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal government's fiscal and economic policies were being fired upon from all corners of the Opposition benches Tuesday, and a speech by U.S. State Undersecretary George Ball was caught, and shredded, in the cross-fire.

Mr. Ball delivered his now-famous speech in Harriman, N.Y., Saturday. It has earned more publicity in the Commons than any American document since the U.S. state department issued a "clarification" of Canadian - U.S. nuclear negotiations 15 months ago.

In fact Opposition Leader Diefenbaker mentioned the two papers in the same breath Tuesday as he tried to get Finance Minister Gordon to comment on Mr. Ball's speech.

Investigate 'child labor'

PQ pay said too poor

QUEBEC— (CP) —Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson called on the Quebec government Tuesday night to do something for the 350,000 Quebecers he said are earning less than $1 an hour.

He said two immediate steps are needed—a minimum hourly wage of $1, and equal pay for women doing the same work as men.

Speaking in the legislature debate of the labor department's budget, Mr. Johnson said the government has made no progress in the minimum wage field since the 1962 provincial election, when it won a number of seats by warning workers of the possible economic consequences of a $1 minimum wage.

Labor Minister Carrier Fortin replied that free negotiation between labor and management has resulted in a large number of collective agreements providing for hourly wages less than $1.

There were also a large number providing for considerably higher pay, but in general the government had to proceed carefully to avoid consequences worse than the conditions it set out to improve.

Mr. Fortin said some classes of workers, including forest workers and certain categories of municipal and school board employees, have received general wage increases recently.

As for equal pay for women, there was no law saying the pay for a given job should vary according to the sex of the workers.

Mr. Fortin said his department is seeking measures to keep children under 16 off the labor market.

He said too many children between 14 and 16 years of age are quitting school to look for jobs, although the number has been halved since 1960 when the minimum school-leaving age was raised to 15 from 14.

Mr. Fortin spoke after Maurice Bellemare (UN—Champlain) denounced the minimum wage commission for issuing work permits to school-age children.

The opposition member said such work permits should not be issued without the signature of the child's parents and the recommendation of his local social service bureau.

The labor minister said the document in question is not really a work permit but simply an attestation that the child can read and write, that his working conditions are not too dangerous and that he is being paid the legal minimum wage.

Quebec is its absolute master —Jean Lesage

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Lesage said Tuesday the Quebec legislature is "absolute master" of its own laws, and will not have to seek federal approval if it decides to modify its portable pension plan.

He was replying in the legislature to Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson, who said he found it odd that Prime Minister Pearson used the word 'option" in referring to provincial pension plans.

Mr. Johnson asked whether the Canada Pension Plan was another joint program, which provinces could join if they wished or stay out and receive equivalent payment.

Mr. Lesage said he too was struck by the use of the word "option," but wanted to repeat that Quebec will have absolute control over its pension plan. The province would handle the collection, administration and investment of funds as well as the payment of pensions.

The premier added he is preparing a formal reply to Mr. Pearson concerning the latest federal-provincial fiscal arrangements, but said it will add nothing to last Friday's budget speech.

Twitted by the opposition leader about his fondness for Mr. Pearson, Mr. Lesage said he has never concealed his friendship and admiration for the Prime Minister although there were disagreements between them when both held cabinet posts under former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent.

"He was my teacher in diplomacy," Mr. Lesage said of Mr. Pearson. "I have had to be a pretty good student."

Greek-Cypriots hold fire after blast by UN chief

NICOSIA (AP) — Greek-Cypriots held their fire today after the United Nations peace-force commander denounced their drive to hurl the Turks from the strategic Kyrenia Pass.

There was no indication how long the lull, which set in Tuesday, would last. But UN observers reported relative quiet throughout the island.

The commander of the Greek-Cypriot forces besieging St. Hilarion Castle said he had halted his drive to consolidate his position. Some of his forces were only 200 yards from the medieval fortress, a key to the Turkish-held Kyrenia Pass and the highway through it, which connects Nicosia with the north coast of Cyprus.

The Greek commander claimed he could take the castle any time he wished. He had 350 men, while about 150 Turkish-Cypriot fighters were believed in the castle and the area of the pass a mile to the west.

In Nicosia, where sporadic shooting between the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot quarters is routine, only four shots were heard during the night. No casualties were reported.

Canadian troops of the UN complement in Cyprus came under fire for the second day in a row Tuesday as they patrolled mountains around St. Hilarion Castle.

SHOOT AT CANADIANS

"We were shot up again this morning by Turks both when we were coming up the mountain and when we were coming down," said Sgt. Bert Viveto of Oromocto, N.B.

Diveto was with the patrol of six Royal Canadian Dragoons' armored cars that several times a day patrol the road through the Kyrenia Pass past the castle.

Diveto said that the shots missed the Canadian armored cars "though they came close enough."

Russian is ordered out on bribe charge

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is waiting hourly for confirmation from the Soviet Embassy that Russian reporter Vasily Tarasov has been sent out of the country.

External Affairs Minister Martin announced late Tuesday that the reporter for the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia was caught red-handed Monday when he tried to bribe secret industrial information out of a civil servant.

The government employee, whom officials won't identify, tipped the RCMP when he realized Tarasov was befriending him with a view to offering him the bribe.

Tarasov's non-immigrant visa was cancelled, he was turned over to Russian Embassy authorities, and Soviet Ambassador Ivan Shpedko was told Tarasov must leave the country immediately.

One government source indicated that the external affairs department had received no word of the Russian Embassy's intention, although advance notification of his departure was expected. Another source said the expulsion was to be carried out "right away," without the formality of notification.

Tarasov, a genial, blond crewcut man of 35, had been in Australia, New Zealand, and Pakistan before coming to Ottawa.

TRAVELLED A LOT

Alexander Zhigulev, reporter for the Russian news agency Tass, said Tarasov travelled widely throughout Canada whereas Zhigulev concentrated his work in Ottawa. Zhigulev hadn't seen Tarasov for several days and knew nothing about the Monday night arrest until late Tuesday when the news broke.

According to Mr. Martin's statement in the Commons, Tarasov sought secret information on Canadian industrial processes, but because of the advance tip-off to the RCMP, did not obtain them. He was taken into custody Monday night soon after he obtained some documents—apparently as a police plant — and questioned before being turned over to the embassy.

TARASOV SKETCH — This sketch of Russian journalist Vasily Tarasov was made by CJOH-TV artist Jean Richard. Tarasov was ordered by the Canadian government to leave the country after trying to obtain secret information from a government employee.

Takes delayed Bermuda trip

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage, who missed his annual Easter Holiday because of the federal-provincial fiscal conference, will leave Saturday for a week in Bermuda.

He is to return to Quebec City May 10.

This year, the fiscal conference and its aftermath didn't allow most cabinet members to holiday during the usual legislature Easter Recess.

Education dept. staff is scarce

QUEBEC (CP) — Informed sources said Tuesday the Quebec government is having difficulty finding top civil servants for its new education department. As a result creation of the department may be some time away.

Though the bill to create the department has been approved, a series of cabinet decisions requiring ratification by the lieutenant-governor — a formality —must be made before it officially comes into being.

The minister also certainly will be Paul Gerin-Lajoie, now youth minister and the man who campaigned for the new department. But a deputy minister and two associate deputy ministers must be chosen, and the top personnel needed to get such a structure into operation, hired.

Bride-to-be feted at shower in Waterloo

WATERLOO — Miss Ina Chapman was a guest at a miscellaneous shower on April 26, held in honor of her approaching marriage to Ross Elston, of Bolton Center.

The hostesses who arranged this event were Mrs. Dareth Miller (Irene Watts) of Montreal, Mrs. Dwight Chapman (Joan Atkinson) and Miss Anne Fisher. The party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Fisher, Clark Hill.

The shower was a complete surprise to Miss Chapman who arrived to find between 20 and 30 friends waiting for her. Mrs. Miller escorted the guest of honor to a specially decorated chair and presented her with a corsage. The chair and the rooms were carried out in the color scheme of pink and white.

The bride-to-be was the recipient of beautiful and useful gifts.

Refreshments included a large bride's cake, iced in green and yellow, which centered the table. Green and yellow tapers completed the table arrangements.

GENERAL NOTES

Poster contest to be again held at Derby Line

DERBY LINE — The April 20 meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary, Foster Cosby Unit No. 73, conducted by the first vice - president, Mrs. Velma Curtis, was held at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Cross, with a good attendance.

The treasurer reported that the delegates for Girl's State this year, which is sponsored by this Unit, will be Janet Rowden, with first alternate to be Linda Farrow. It was voted to send for an oratory pin to be presented to Miss Vicki Cowens of Derby Line, for her fine work in the oratory contest, held recently at Enosburg Falls, at the mid-winter conference.

A committee composed of Mrs. Velma Curtis, Mrs. Gertrude Stevens and Mrs. Harriet Downing, will set up rules for the poppy poster contest. The fifth and sixth Grades in the Derby Line Graded School will participate again this year. Prizes will be given for the best three posters, these to be displayed in the various stores before Memorial Day, the end of May. Plans were also discussed for the sale of the poppies, each member pledging, that she would do her part in making the day successful.

The secretary was requested to write to the department president, inviting her to the May meeting. This Unit was unable to attend the meeting in Island Pond, when Mrs. Grazini was present.

April is child welfare month. The members are requested to look for any good clothing and leave it with Mrs. Bev. Queenin, child welfare chairman.

Mrs. Gertrude Cross was appointed to look into the school signs at the Derby Line School and also interview one of the trustees concerning them.

The Derby Line Home Demonstration group is undertaking a civic project and has asked any interested group to help them, clean the village hall. This will be held the 16 and 23 of May. It is hoped that any interested citizens of Derby Line will come one or both days to help.

At the close of the meeting cake and coffee was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Cross and Mrs. Mildred Palin.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

NO COMPLAINT IN TOURNEY PLAY

All is not beer and skittles for the players in the Intercollegiate Tournament.

North and South must reach three no-trump to obtain their par. The contract is a good one, but perfect defense will beat it.

South is supposed to be the declarer and West is directed to open the five of clubs. From that point on, it is up to the players.

East wins the first trick with the king of clubs and should return the eight spot. Declarer will play either the queen or nine, and, at this point, it will be up to West to duck.

East's return of the eight spot has marked him with two or three clubs only. If he started with two, there will be no way to beat the contract. If he started with three and holds the king of diamonds, the hand will be set.

How does West know that his partner did not start with four clubs? Because he would have returned his original fourth best if he had.

West ducks the club and South is in. He tries the diamond finesse, but East wins the trick and leads a club to give his partner three club tricks.

In rubber bridge, North and South would complain about bad luck. South would point out that the hand needed a club opening, a 5-3 break with just the right clubs in the West hand, a losing diamond finesse and good defense to beat him.

In the tournament there is no complaint. He gets his par anyway.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

The development of a baby's vision is a gradual thing just as all phases of physical and mental development. At birth, he can distinguish only light and dark and his eyes work independently. But along about 3 months of age eye muscles are sufficiently developed to focus both eyes at the same time. By this time, too, vision sharpens and he begins to distinguish shapes, responds happily to familiar faces and bright-coloured objects.

Sight-seeing strategy. Eye muscles need exercise to develop. You can encourage baby to exercise his eyes by providing things that will help him on his sight-seeing excursions. A gently swaying mobile . . . bright-coloured or glint n' glitter. A gay toy or two attached to his crib . . . a balloon tied to playpen bars. And, if you place the crib where he can follow your comings and goings, he'll get plenty of happy eyefuls.

Eye-appeal for a baby meal. We all know that babies react favourably to pleasing flavours but little appetites respond to pleasing colours, too. Gerber Strained Egg Yolks have the sunniest colour that ever lighted up a baby's eye. Add to this a dreamy, creamy texture and a delicious fresh-egg flavour and you've a delicacy fit for a little prince or princess. They provide a good dietary source of vitamin A, iron and protein for excellent nutritional benefits.

Juicy story with nutritional overtones. Gerber Strained Fruit Juices offer your baby sipping pleasure beyond measure plus a good source of vitamin C. Refreshing as you please for baby's "juice breaks" . . . a wonderful snack time pick-me-up for toddlers on the go. Five delectable varieties to choose from . . . all delightfully mild to please little palates. Pasteurized, of course, for your baby's protection . . . carefully strained for easy feeding. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Donations voted by OES chapter at Cookshire

COOKSHIRE — Chapter No. 46, O.E.S., held its monthly meeting in the Masonic Chambers, with Sister Mary Ashe in the East.

Money was voted to Scripture prizes for the school children; for Cancer Research; for the Peace Garden Fund; and for ESTARL. Tentative plans were made for the players of Christ Church, in East Angus, to present a play here in the near future, in Victoria Hall.

A number of invitations were received from other chapters to attend meetings when the W.G.M., Sister May Wallace, will made her official visit. A letter of thanks was received from the Home of Retarded Children, in Dixville, for a small donation of money.

Blast victims moved

STANSTEAD —(Special)— Two people critically burned in a propane gas explosion and fire at a summer cottage near here Sunday were transferred by ambulance yesterday to the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston, Mass.

Taken in two ambulances, accompanied by two registered nurses from the Orleans County Memorial Hospital at Newport were Mrs. Lena Rolnick and her sister, Mrs. Sarah White, both of Springfield, Mass.

A third victim, Mrs. Rolnick's husband, Saul, died of burns in the OCM Hospital yesterday morning.

An ambulance firm spokesman said he was in constant contact with the two ambulances during the trip. The ambulances left Newport at 3.45 and arrived in Boston at 7.15 p.m.

En route, both patients were administered blood transfusions. At one period one of the victims was administered oxygen.

The ambulance spokesman described the trip as "successful".

Meanwhile, Stanstead Quebec Provincial Police said today that an inquest is expected to be held next week into the death of Mr. Rolnick. No date has been set as yet.

Elderly woman evacuated from her burning home

BALDWIN'S MILL — (Special) — Three local residents have been credited with saving the life of an elderly semi-invalid woman here yesterday during a $7,000 blaze that gutted the home, barn, shed and garage of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Markwell.

According to reports, Mrs. Markwell, 85, was in her house at the time of the fire. She apparently became hysterical and refused to leave her home.

Three residents, Mrs. Angus Patterson, Mrs. Wilson and Mr. Vermore Lyon, school bus driver, went in after the woman and managed to help her out of the burning building.

Mrs. Markwell is a semi-invalid, walking with a cane after a fall a few months ago.

The fire started from a grass fire at about 3.55 p.m. At 5 p.m. the three buildings were gutted. Mr. Markwell, 87, and a neighbour were burning grass in a back yard. The fire went out of control, spread to the backyard and burned a hedge owned by Mrs. Stella White.

Much of the credit for saving at least four nearby buildings go to the six men and a fire truck sent by the Provincial Fish Hatchery at Lake Lyster. The Coaticook fire department was called but arrived too late to save the Markwell buildings.

Firemen were still watering the area at 1.30 this morning.

While neighbours formed a bucket brigade to control the Markwell fire, the Fish Hatchery men watered down nearby lawns and homes.

The one and one-half story high 67-year-old frame house was connected to the barn and shed. A car was lost in the blaze that swept through the garage.

The Markwells escaped with nothing but the clothes on their backs. Personal belongings and some $300 in cash were lost in the fire.

Damage was estimated at $7,000. The buildings had insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. Markwell are staying at the home of th.ir son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Daniels in Norton, Vermont.

Hotel menaced

NORTH HATLEY — (Staff) — The Hatley Inn, the former Terrace Club here, was threatened by a grass fire yesterday about 1 p.m.

Inn manager Ray Egan said the $100,000 building now undergoing renovation, was saved by some 25 construction workers, who put out the fire.

The local fire department was called in but were not needed.

Wrongly quoted

AYER'S CLIFF — Secretary treasurer Leland Mosher said today he was erroneously quoted in an article in yesterday's Record regarding the imposition of a uniform six per cent sales tax throughout Quebec. Mr. Mosher said today that the mayor is out of town and council meets on Monday. He said any official report on the sales tax move will have to come from Quebec.

Finnish consul-general is Border Rotary speaker

ROCK ISLAND — (Special) — Lawrence Tembs, Consul General of Finland, from Montreal, was the guest speaker at the Boundary Rotary Club gathering held on Monday evening, at the Del Monty Hotel.

Mr. Tembs spoke of the location of Finland which has 793 miles along the Soviet Union Border and is separated from Sweden by the Gulf of Bothnia, and of Rotary in Finland.

Mr. Tembs, said that after Iceland, Finland is the most northern country. He noted the temperatures in comparison with Quebec, and that Finland is one of the countries of the midnight sun. The speaker said over 90 per cent of the people are of the Lutheran faith, that forests are the basic economy. He spoke fo the culture and noted civil service personnel must speak both Finnish and Swedish.

Speaking on a historic note, Mr. Tembs told of the government efforts to defend the country. He said that Finland was the first country to extend the voting franchise to women. There are now 200 parliamentary seat in Finland of which many are occupied by women.

On December 6, 1917, Finland declared its independence and in 1920 was at peace with Russia and later with Germany in 1942.

He said the loss of lives, in three wars had been heavy, as well as costly, and people had to be resettled because of loss of territory.

Mr. Tembs was introduced by J. D. Ferguson, and it was evident from the introduction that Mr. Tembs is a great ambassador of good will between all the countries of the world. He was thanked by E. J. Struthers, who was responsible for the presence of Mr. Tembs at this Rotary gathering.

Mr. Struthers had earlier in the meeting read an interesting letter to the Club from Onni Silkkila, President of Paimio Rotary Club, in Finland. In the letter Mr. Silkkila spoke of Paimio as a rural district in South West Finland, close to the Gulf of Finland. The center of the district is named Vista.

The Rotary Club started there in 1955. The membership is made up of farmers, merchants, bankers, teachers, doctors and engineers and others.

Mr. Tembs received a standing ovation from his listeners, and was informed by C. R. MacLean, of the Border Club, that when this Border Club was established in June 1935 it was the first international club in the world.

A Sherbrooke man appeared before Judge Roger Bouchard in Social Welfare Court on a charge of non-support of his 12-year-old son.

The man is separated from his wife, and his son is in a foster home in Sherbrooke. The father had promised to pay $25 a month to the family to help support the boy but as yet he has not done so, said court clerk Gerard Bessette. He was released on $200 bail and has been ordered to appear for trial on May 12.

Georges Gregoire of Asbestos pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while his faculties were impaired by alcohol, in Court of Sessions yesterday morning, and he was fined $50 and costs and his driving permit was suspended for a period of three months.

Crown prosecutor's main duty; to win justice, not convictions

The duty of a crown prosecutor in criminal cases is not to obtain convictions but to see to it that justice is done, Guy Blanchette, District of St. Francis crown prosecutor told members of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club at their regular weekly meeting at the New Sherbrooke Hotel last evening.

Mr. Blanchette spoke on his duties as a prosecutor.

The crown prosecutor is there to put all the facts before the court and the judge he said.

"He must see to it that the accused gets a fair trial, if one is necessary, or determine the penalty he should get, or if the accused is innocent the crown prosecutor must see to it that the judge acquits him," he said.

"The first duties of the Crown Prosecutor, that of presenting all the facts, is not necessarily the most complex or most difficult thing he has to do. The most difficult is to suggest just sentence for the accused and the society we represent," he said.

The accused could be condemned to anywhere from one day to ten years in the penitentiary for the same offence depending on the circumstances and whether or not the accused has a previous record, he said.

Out of the 35 to 40 first offenders a week who come before the bench, 90 per cent are juveniles between the ages of 18 and 20. "The question most prominent in my mind," he said, "is shall we give the youth a chance and hope he has learned his lesson or sentence him to a severe penalty and make a criminal out of him. This is a most difficult decision to make."

The crown prosecutor's duties in this district are only part time duties and his jurisdiction covers Sherbrooke, Stanstead, Compton and Richmond counties.

Mr. Blanchette became a Queen's Counsel in July of 1963 and was named to the post of crown prosecutor in November of last year. He has been a lawyer in Sherbrooke for 16 years.

"The crown prosecutor represents her majesty the Queen in all criminal cases and certain cases against federal and provincial statutes," said Mr. Blanchette.

He conducts speedy trials before a magistrate or a justice of the peace. If there is found to be criminal negligence in certain car accident cases the crown prosecutor must be there to represent the Queen, he said.

"The Crown Prosecutor is a liaison officer between the police and the judge. When somebody has a complaint against someone the police are the first to know about it and when they have completed their investigation, the crown prosecutor must make his own to find out if there may be possible ulterior motives of prejudices which may have been the reason for the pressing of charges," he said.

"Once convinced an offence has really been committed we have to submit a report of our findings to the Attorney General's office at Quebec to determine if a charge should be laid against the accused. When this has been done in instances where speedy trials are required we speak to the attorney general's office by phone to get the necessary authority," he said.

Sherbrooke Hospital annual meeting

Deficit during 1963 reported $205,817

The Sherbrooke Hospital operated at a deficit of $205,817 during 1963, the hospital's annual financial statement presented last night shows.

Although this was a marked increase over the 1962 deficit, the president of the hospital, Evans Joslin pointed out that certain adjustments have yet to be made to the financial statement which are expected to reduce the deficit.

These adjustments would be in the form of additional payments from the Quebec Hospital Insurance Service. Payments from the services are based on a budget, and are revised after actual operating expenditures have been reviewed.

Mr. Joslin made the remarks at the annual meeting of the corporation of the hospital, where the financial statement and annual report were presented to members.

A 12 per cent increase in expenditures or $145,406 balanced only by 5 per cent more revenue or $53,356 was blamed for this year's higher deficit. Salaries and wages accounted for the lion's share of the increased expenditure, with an over all increase of $130,350. At $911,705, salaries and wages represented about 69 per cent of total expenditure.

The salary increases break down into $107,970 in the Patients' Service Departments and $22,380 in General Service Departments.

Mr. Joslin attributed the shorter work-week and generally higher rates of pay for the increased personnel cost. These should not be considered as the result of the hospital insurance scheme, Mr. Joslin suggested.

The hospital president cited a recent study of New York hospitals — where there is no hospital insurance — which concludes that hospital costs in 1967 will increase by 35 to 37 per cent over those in 1962.

MORE SERVICES

The report cites new scientific developments, improved patient care, and higher salaries, for increased costs, Mr. Joslin told corporation members. Special professional services — operating and recovery rooms, X-ray departments, clinical laboratories — are also expected to take an increasingly large share of hospital budgets, according to the report.

The operation of the hospital bear out the report's findings, said Mr. Joslin, with minor increases in most items. This was generally due to greater usage or higher cost.

In reviewing other hospital statistics, Mr. Joslin pointed to the slight increase in admissions over the previous year, accompanied by reduced time for patient care. This was due, he said, to rapid turnover and improved use of facilities.

"The result was a most commendable drop in the average days stayed" he said.

Births also showed an increase, the report says, bringing the number of babies born in the hospital to the highest recorded in its history. Here again the average stay was shorter.

A not unexpected increase in the use of Out-Patient Department facilities was also noted.

Its increased use presents an ever more pressing problem, Mr. Joslin said. The only possible alternative to extensive curtailment of services which is unthinkable, is physical expansion, he added.

The laboratory, and X-ray department, also reported greater activity. The former department saw the installation of a new X-ray machine, which Mr. Joslin said, created a further encroachment upon space.

In order to increase hospital space, Mr. Joslin reported that the planning committee is awaiting plans from the consultant for an extension to the north wing, proposed as the first stage in the expansion program.

"It will provide much needed additional space for the Out-patient department, and rooms for an isolation ward, as well as beds for other type of patients," he said.

"It will at the same time, permit the replanning, and the enlargement of certain departments. These plans will be submitted to the government for approval and financial assistance as soon as possible."

Dr. Lucien Levesque was appointed a member of the Courtesy Medical Staff group in the Department of Medicine and Obstetrics and Dr. Gilles Lauzon a member of the Courtesy Central Staff on the recommendation of the Credentials Committee in accordance with hospital by-laws, Mr. Joslin concluded.

Nursing activity up, maintain high level

With increased nursing activities in all departments of the Sherbrooke Hospital, nursing care was maintained at a high level, the director of nursing at the hospital, Miss Clara Aitkenhead RN told the annual meeting of the hospital's corporation, last night.

In presenting the annual report of the Nursing Department for the year 1963, Miss Aitkenhead said that at the end of the year there were 211 people in the department.

She said that during the year there was a 50 per cent turnover in staff.

These included 39 senior staff nurses, two part time teachers, 34 general staff nurses and 64 student nurses. As well there were 24 graduate nursing assistants and 16 pupil nursing assistants.

Relief graduate nursing staff averaged 11.54 daily as compared to 11.51 in 1962. Married nurses continued to supply most of the relief which was necessary for vacations, illness, leaves of absence and days off the nursing director told the Corporation members.

Miss Aitkenhead pointed out that more students are going to Montreal for study and only fourteen student nurses are presently enrolled in the hospital's sixth class.

Graduation exercises were held on October 2, 1963. The class of 23 nurses brought the total number of nurses graduated to 598.

Special tribute was paid the Ladies' Auxiliary and Carry-on-Club for their contributions and assistance to the hospital in 1963.

Girl Scouts of Vermont meet at Boundary, Stowe

DERBY LINE — Miss Emilie Gruppe, Vermont Girl Scout Council Field Director, was in Derby Line and met with adult representatives of the troops of Newport, Derby and Derby Line, to discuss possibilities of having a two day, day camp in the area. Suitable places are being investigated.

The Vermont Girl Scout Council would send out two trainers with equipment to the site to aid all girls and adults in learning and sharing their campcraft skills. It would also, for a small fee, give Girl Scouts who cannot go to an established Girl Scout camp, a chance to do and learn things with other scouts in the out of doors.

MEETING AT STOWE

The first official meeting of the newly formed Vermont Girl Scout Council Inc., was held in Stowe, Vt., on April 20, with 150 or more adults, delegates and members representing 4,500 Vermont Girl Scouts. Delegates and adults were from Orleans County and Essex County.

They included Mrs. Irene Rushford, Newport, Mrs. W. Lanquist, and Mrs. Ruby Hitchcock, Derby, Mrs. Leslie Johns and Miss Jean Simpson and Mrs. A. Wright, of East Craftsbury, Mrs. Mary Murray and Mrs. Ann Aldrich, Derby Line. At this meeting were civic heads and leaders of other youth groups and organizations as 4 H, Boy Scouts, Campfire, and two representatives of the Canadian Girl Guides, of Quebec. Governor Hoff was also present.

The new organization received its official Vermont Council flag in a ceremony conducted by the Springfield Neighborhood.

Mrs. Douglas Brayton, of Stowe, welcomed the delegates from the 13 Neighborhoods and the guests.

Included in the day's program were workshops under the leadership of Mrs. Sylvia Finn, of Boston, Mass., Mrs. C. Huffman, Northfield, Vt., Mrs. R. Dumas, Waterbury, Vt., Mrs. Walter Higgins, Underhill, Vt., and Mrs. L. Dill, of Craftsbury.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Gordon Morse, president of the Vermont Council.

The proposed Council goals are to strengthen Neighborhoods; build strong community support; offer an outdoor experience for each girl.

A training experience for each adult was discussed during the lunch hour and many ideas were exchanged.

Name officers at annual meeting of H. and S.

WATERLOO — At the annual meeting of the Home and School Association on April 23, officers were elected for the coming year, L. Waterhouse, immediate past president thanked the members of the association for their co-operation throughout the year.

Mrs. Coupland submitted the slate of incoming officers, which was accepted, as follows: Honorary president, O. T. Pickford; president, Mrs. John Black; recording secretary, Mrs. Don Williams; corresponding secretary, Gordon Dunsmore. Program, Mrs. A. Reed; representative to trade school, Mrs. F. Graves; membership, Mrs. C. Cochrane, teachers, Mrs. R. McKergow; cafeteria, O. T. Pickford; refreshments, Mrs. Brousseau; ways and means, B. Heath, R. Lawrence; class mother, Mrs. Blampin.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Melanie Holtz, Provincial Director of Mental Health for Province of Ontario, whose subject was, Emotional Disturbances in Children, and how to help them. She stated that last year 3,658 children were admitted to mental hospitals for the first time, half of these were retarded and half were disturbed. Only six institutions in all of Canada are equipped to care for mentally disturbed children. Jails and reform schools are no solution, and about 10 per cent of all children need professional help.

Mrs. Holtz described symptoms of schizophrenia in children from babyhood to teens. She suggested ways to deal with withdrawn children, overly aggressive ones, and other types. An interesting discussion period followed.

Mrs. R. A. Clark, of Farnham, brought greetings from the Bedford District Council. She stressed the need for more interest in the Council and Federation.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Coupland and thanked by Mrs. H. Snow.

Refreshments were served in the cafeteria.

ET representative for Senate post

Creation of a Senate vacancy inevitably results in jockeying for position among the party faithful for nomination to the post which is considered one of the choicest sinecures in the Canadian public service. And judging from the hurrying and scurrying which has become evident since the opening of the seat by the death of Senator Charles B. Howard, the battle for the District of Wellington seat will be as tough as any witnessed in the past.

But the nature of the appointee, whoever he or she may be, is of special interest to the English speaking residents of the Eastern Townships.

Traditionally the Wellington seat, embracing the eastern section of the Eastern Townships, had been filled by an English language Protestant, in keeping with the original idea that one of the purposes of the Senate was to preserve the interests of the minorities. The same custom applied to the District of Bedford.

However the Bedford vacancy was filled by a French-Canadian resident of Montreal and according to reports the same fate may befall the Wellington seat.

In effect, the Senate representation from the Province of Quebec apparently is becoming the exclusive privilege of residents of Greater Montreal and the Quebec City areas.

Of the twenty-three Quebec members of the Upper House, twelve list their place of residence as Montreal or Outremont and nine from Quebec City or Levis. One each nominally reside in Three Rivers and Riviere-du-Loup. And of the twenty-three, only three are of English Protestant origin. One is an Irish Roman Catholic.

This tendency to ignore the Eastern Townships when making Upper House appointments has not been confined to Senate nominees.

In the Quebec Legislative Assembly the District of Wellington is represented by a Montreal lawyer and the District of Bedford by a Quebec City newspaperman.

Development of regional highways

The announcement Monday i Quebec City of a new series of highway complexes in the Eastern Townships area will be greeted here with general satisfaction.

In Sherbrooke, there may be some grumbling about the fact that the new highway linking US highway No. 91 at Rock Island with the ET autoroute will join with the autoroute some considerable distance from Sherbrooke. It had been hoped the junction would be closer to the city.

However, authorities say the distance from Sherbrooke to the border will be about the same as the present route, and because of the limited access nature of the new highway, the trip should take 20 minutes less.

The route to the American border is the most important new link in the ET highway system.

Others will help complete the road transportation picture in this area. Surveying for a new Route 5, passing west of Richmond to join with the Trans-Canada highway (Route 9) is underway. A new link in the ET autoroute will run from Omerville to Route 5, bypassing Bourque Boulevard, which was never designed as a limited access superhighway.

And finally, improvements are being contemplated to the road between Sherbrooke and Lennoxville — a short, but heavily-travelled stretch of roadway that is at present inadequate for the function it must perform.

With the rapid development of the South Shore area the Eastern Townships district has been anticipating a rosy future. The building of the ET autoroute enchances these hopes, and there can be no doubt that the extension of modern highways throughout the Townships will give them a further boost.

Drastic remedy for sports violence

If government officials in this country become unduly alarmed at the violence frequently displayed at hockey games they have a drastic but probably effective remedy closely at hand. They could copy the decision of the Algerian Secretary of State for Youth and Sports who ordered the public banned from championship soccer matches after a number of encounters ended in wild disorder.

Thus the teams played in empty, heavily-guarded stadiums while the fans of Algeria's favorite sport were compelled to get the results on the radio.

Closing the gates to the public results from a series of incidents in which referees and police have been forced to flee mobs of angry spectators descending on the field after an unpopular decision, the wounding of two spectators in an exchange of pistol fire and a three-hour riot in which nine players and twenty spectators were injured.

Of course team officials claim, as do their Canadian counterparts, that these incidents result from over-excitement and that really little can be done about them.

But in all probability the loss of the spectator gate would result in the finding of some method to keep over-ardent players and visitors under control.

Other papers say:

Superlatives spoiling the language

Never use five words when three will suffice. That's basic instruction for those who essay the career of news reporting. And according to a Boston educator journalism may be the last citadel against a trend toward improper use of language.

(Welland Tribune)

Dr. John E. Buchard, dean of the Schoool of Humanities at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, finds use of the superlative one of the principal corruptions of language. He says: Concern is always deep concern, situations are always unique, insights are profound, experience is broad, and progress is never just progress but a breakthrough.

Dr. Buchard puts some of the blame for the trend upon educator colleagues. He contends that by the evidence of their writing, a very high fraction of American professors today are, if not illiterate, at least boorish in their use of words. Students and schools both would profit, he maintains, from education programs "which would create a love of and a respect for words."

Admitting that any living language in perpetual process of corruption, Dr. Buchard added that it is not a happy thing for a civilization when "the speech of the ignorant and tasteless prevails over that of the educated and cultivated, not only in the markets where it has always done so, but among the professors."

TODAY IN HISTORY

The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room

Let no man seek his own, but every man another's wealth . . . . Even as I please all men in all things, not seeking mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they may be saved.
(I Corinthians 10:24, 33.)

PRAYER: O God, we thank Thee for Thy love without measure, Thy grace more than sufficient for the redemption of all mankind. Help us to turn to Thee in faith, asking forgiveness for our sins and for strength to live Christlike lives. In our Redeemer's name we ask. Amen.

Mistake arouses speculation

When Khrushchev's death report is finally true, will Mao lead?

By LEON DENNEN

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Since Nikita Khrushchev is 70 and mortal, the flashed report out of Moscow that he is dead will one day be true. Reactions to the recent false report of the Soviet premier's demise have given specialists on communism some interesting insight into the effect that that day will have on the Red world and the East-West relations.

Here are the highlights of their analysis:

• The disappearance of Khrushchev from the world political arena would open the way for a reconciliation between Russia and Red China.

• In Russia, it would strengthen the position of the die-hard Stalinists and "internal Chinese" (vnutrennyia kitaitsy) in the Soviet Communist party.

• In the non-Communist world, Khrushchev's death and the resulting transfer of political leadership from Russia to Red China would bring about "another round" of strikes, sporadic revolutions and civil wars.

With Khrushchev gone, Mao Tse-tung would have a good chance of becoming the most authoritative spokesman for world communism.

The quarrel between Russia and China has deep roots. It is based as much on race, nationalism and geography as on personal enmity between Krushchev and Mao and the correct interpretation of Marxist-Leninist dogma.

Russia has a 4,000-mile-long vulnerable frontier with Red China. She is in possession of vast territories claimed by Mao. Moscow always has viewed with alarm the prospect of a strong China. More than 30 years ago, the legendary Mikhail Bordoin, the Kremlin's top agent in China, predicted the troubles that currently rock the Red world. In a secret conversation with this writer one winter night in Moscow, Borodin said:

"China must never be permitted to become strong or independent if the Russian revolution is to survive."

China's Red rulers, on their side, are proud people. They have a profound contempt for foreigners and "white colonialists," Russians included. They are dogmatic Communists but they are also conscious of the antiquity of their civilization and have always regarded the Russians as barbarians.

Nevertheless, Mao does not seek an open split in the Red camp. He wants to assert his authority as Lenin's and Stalin's legitimate successor. However, he has made it plain in recent conversations with missions from France and Romania that it is Khrushchev's head he wanted as the price for Communist unity.

The Soviet premier never disguised his intense hatred for his Red Chinese rival. As long ago as 1960, Khrushchev contemptuously dismissed Mao as "a man old, but unwise" and a "worn-out galosh" that should be discarded.

Khrushchev reiterated his contempt for Mao in a recent conversation in Moscow with former French Premier Guy Mollet. When Mollet asked when Russia — in view of Khrushchev's so-called liberal policies — will permit the existence of opposition parties the Soviet premier banged the table with his fist and replied:

"Do you want me to give Vyacheslav Molotov an opportunity to establish his pro-Chinese party in Russia? The answer is — never."

Mao recently repaid the compliment by castigating Khrushchev as a "Bible-reading and psalm-singing buffoon" and a "laughing stock."

There is no doubt that as long as Khrushchev remains in power in Moscow and Mao in Peking the division in the Red camp will grow deeper.

This gives the free world a breathing spell. It presents an unparalled opportunity for the West to seize the diplomatic initiative.

When the report of Khrushchev's death is true, Mao's policy of revolutionary brinkmanship is likely to become the leading ideology and strategy in a united Red bloc.

Lifting off planning table

Europeans work on space project

PARIS (AP) — A European space effort is slowly lifting off the planning table.

The Europeans hope to send up their own satellites, space probes and a large orbiting astronomical observatory over the next few years. The aim is to capture some of the scientific, technical and economic benefits now nearly monopolized by the United States and Soviet Union.

With less than $500,000,000 over five to eight years compared with the $2,550,000,000 U.S. space budget for one year alone, they hardly hope to rival the giants. But they are forging ahead with efforts to get Europe into orbit.

The combined effort lets the smaller countries share in developments that would be too costly on an individual basis. For other countries such as France it supplements national programs.

The program is in two stages which maintain a wide administrative separation. They share the same headquarters building but admit to only informal contacts.

The reason is that neutral countries shy away from the rocket makers as smacking of weaponry.

The satellite-making stage is known as the European Space Research Organization. It is supported by Belgium, Britain, Denmark, France, West Germany, The Netherlands, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, and, when it ratifies the agreement as expected, Italy.

The rocketry group is known as the European Launcher Development Organization. Its members include Australia, the only non-European participant, plus Belgium, Britain, France, West Germany, The Netherlands and—again on ratification—Italy.

ESRO has a $200,000,000 budget spread over eight years to launch 400 sounding rockets, six small and eight medium satellites and seven space probes. It is dedicated to peaceful purposes only.

Only the rockets are lacking from ESRO plans, and that's where ELDO comes in. Its $196,000,000 five - year budget should yield by 1966 a three-stage rocket capable of putting 1.2 metric tons into a low orbit or smaller loads into higher orbits.

ESRO is counting heavily on the ELDO rocket for advanced projects but in the meantime will use British, French and American rockets for launchings.

Britain will supply the first stage of the rocket, picking up the Blue Streak where it was abandoned as a British strategic weapon in 1960.

The second stage is being made by France and Germany will build the stubby third stage. Italy will supply test vehicles. Belgium will provide downrange guidance stations, and The Netherlands the long-range telemetry facilities.

In moderate luxury

Costly interviews support the Nhus

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS — (NEA) — Early morning travelers on the Austerlitz station subway line would scarcely notice a pretty Asian girl.

Her almond eyes are topped with coal-black hair done in the current bouffant style which Parisian teen-agers have adopted. Even her clothes are inconspicuous.

How could they know that this particular Paris University student is 18-year old Le Thuy (Vietnamese for Limpid Water), eldest daughter of the Madame Ngo Dinh Nhu, who but a few months ago ranked as a major celebrity. She appeared on the cover of most magazines and rated headlines in the French press. The French appreciated the fact that the first lady of Viet Nam was alluring — especially in her picturesque native costume. With her daughter she made a very pretty picture indeed.

Today, Madame Nhu has had to reduce her standard of living compared to what she enjoyed in Saigon. With her four children she is now living in a moderately luxurious five-room apartment overlooking the Champs de Mars and the nearby military school. Interviews are firmly discouraged. They are granted for a consideration — the starting price is $1,000.

Some two months ago, Match magazine produced six pages of color photographs of Madame Nhu at home with her children — which, it is reported, cost the publisher several thousand dollars. What is more, the butcher, baker, grocer, even her coiffeur refuse to say anything at all about her.

Her immediate entourage consists of a cook and his wife, a personal maid and a Vietnamese secretary.

Madame Nhu insists that money means little to her, that personally she could live on two bowls of rice a day.

"The first three months were very difficult," she says. Apparently she is living on advances received from a French publishing house for her memoirs, plus contributions from family connections and, of course, an interview here and there.

She is, however, no longer the headliner she once was. Even the news that the Saigon government had made a formal request for her extradition did not cause more than a ripple in the French press. A spokesman at the Foreign Office said this had been put through the usual channels for consideration but that it conceivably could be months before it was answered.

Meanwhile Trac (15) and Quinh (11), the Nhu boys, have been enrolled at Stanislas, a Catholic college on the Left Bank. Le Thuy, who wants to be a surgeon, realizes that she has at least 10 years of hard study ahead of her.

She had just passed her baccalaureate when her father was assassinated, and it was he who counseled her when she hesitated between law and medicine. "If you study medicine you will always be useful to all people in times of war as well as peace," said he.

Le Thuy has made some friends at medical school and will often sit awhile with them over a cup of coffee in a student cafe near the Luxembourg Gardens.

Few of the customers there realize who she is or perhaps even remember the tremendous tragedy which darkened her young life.

Madame Nhu, busy on the last chapters of her story, sees few visitors. She is, according to reports, confident, that "one day I shall go back home."

matter of fact

Sweet potatoes are propagated not by seeds, but by sprouts and cuttings. This is because, except in the tropics, the seeds produce plants totally unlike the parent plant. Tropical sweet potatoes do produce seeds, but with such hard coats that they sometimes take a year to germinate.

Displeased with projects

Apathy is shown towards farming in Monday BCRDO-UCC meeting

Rudy Dallenbach
BCRDO secretary

By TED BEAUDOIN
(Record staff reporter)

MANSONVILLE — Apathy on the part of many farmers in this area towards making a living out of farming was a dominating point of Monday night's meeting between the Brome County Rural Development Organization, and members of the UCC (Union des Cultivateurs Catholiques), said Rudy Dallenbach, executive, secretary of the BCRDO.

Mr. Dallenbach spoke on the principles of ARDA (Agricultural and Rural Development Act), and what is meant for those who participated.

"Something strongly in evidence was the farmers' displeasure at the many government projects that just didn't pan out for them. Now they are discouraged at farming, and have almost convinced themselves there is no money to be made in this profession."

Mr. Dallenbach also noted that the members complained about various increase in produce, such as milk, lumber, and said "they feel it is hopeless in this area."

"It takes more than just an hour to talk to these people and convince them of ARDA's good and what it can do for a region.

A significant fact was that they had heard of ARDA, but never bothered to find out what it is and what it could have done for them," said Mr. Dallenbach.

"They're sick of government programs that do nothing for them."

He also said it would take many more meetings of an explanatory nature before people there began to regain an interest in their lands and farming.

"We invited all of them to attend the ARDA meeting scheduled for Tuesday night in the Knowlton High School to see what ARDA can do."

About 20 men and 30 women attended the Mansonville meeting.

Granby gardens to open in May

The official opening of the Granby Zoological Gardens will take place for the 1964 season, on May, 16th. On this occasion the Provincial Minister of Tourism, Mr. Lionel Bertrand will be present. A civic reception will be given him at 5 p.m.

The Granby Zoo is becoming more known as time goes on and those who visit will notice new and attractive gardens and new animals, such as the babies born there, recently and new animals that have been sent as gifts.

What is so rare as a talking starling? —a singing, swinging bilingual bird

SUTTON — (Special) — Though language problems may vex Quebec people, two bright young talking starlings owned by Mrs. Ed Wentworth of Abercorn can say short sentences in both French and English.

Only a year old, the pair of feathered linguists has picked up words in both languages.

The birds can also whistle tunes and will sit on chair backs and watch television shows.

Sammy and Petey, as the birds are named, live at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth.

Mrs. Wentworth explained how she came by these unusual pets in this way at a recent interview.

"I didn't buy these birds at a bird shop," she said, "they came from a nest built by wild starlings under the eaves of our barn last spring. They climbed from the nest onto a beam inside the building, then fluttered down on the barn floor. There I found them, cold and crying for food, when I went up in the morning to pitch down some day. Their parents, with others of a big brood still left to be fed, never once came near them. So, rather than let them perish from hunger or exposure, I took them to the house to raise as pets."

Mr. Wentworth, handy with tools, built Sammy and Pete, their own metal roofed bird house. They prefer it to the larger cage that they were recently presented.

After they had learned to fly well, the starlings made themselves useful by catching flies. "No flies here," said Mrs. Wentworth proudly. "Not with those little hunters."

Besides flies, the starlings eat bananas, raw peaches, canned blueberries, cracked wheat, millet seeds, canary seeds and some prepared bird foods.

Asked if the birds had cat trouble, Mrs. Wentworth shook her head. "Whenever Minnie, our housecat came in from outdoors to lie by the stove, they would stand on her back and groom her in search for insects. When they had curried her with bills on one side, she would roll over to let them do the other."

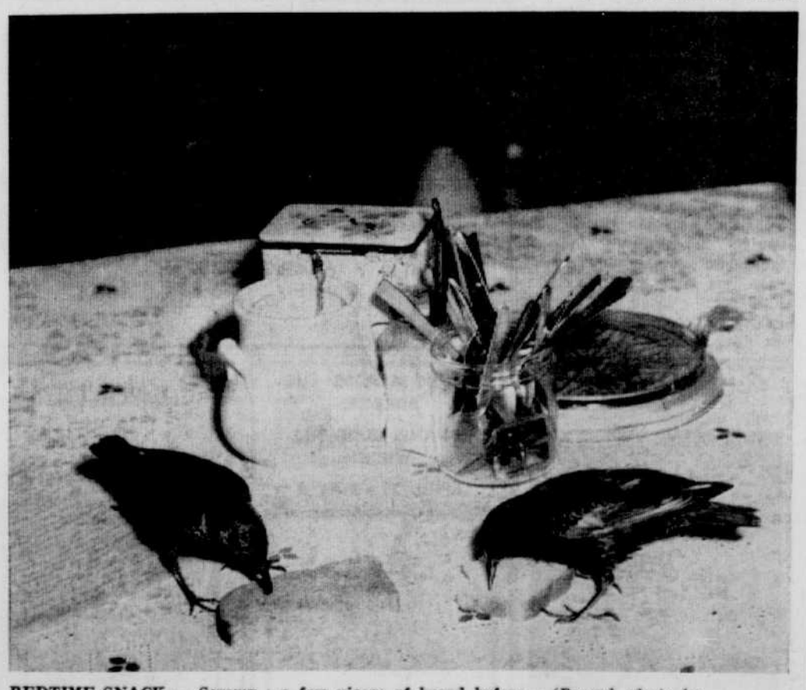

Mrs. Wentworth picked up a large, old-looking book on the kitchen table. In this dictionary printed before starlings were brought across the Atlantic to New York City in 1890, there's a lot of information about European starlings. In this paragraph that I read," she said, "it says that those birds, when taken young enough, can be taught to whistle and even to talk. So, to amuse myself while my husband was at work, I decided to play teacher."

"You'd be surprised," she said "how fast the birds caught the idea. Soon, after I had repeated a word slowly, several times, they would try to say it too—and by the middle of August they had quite a vocabulary."

"I've had some handsome offers for those starlings recently," said Mrs. Wentworth, "but I'm just not interested. I'd feel lost without my talking birds."

Juvenile fined $100 and costs

SWEETSBURG — (Staff) — A South Durham juvenile who pleaded not guilty on April 13 before Judge Patrick E. Delaney on a charge of assisting in distilling illicit alcohol Monday was fined $100 and costs.

The incident occurred on December 7, according to a Granby RCMP spokesman. The youth was given 15 days to pay, or six months in jail for default of payment.

Eigteen-year old Arthur Ditchman, who was charged with dangerous driving on April 16, was fined $200 and costs. Ditchman led the QPP Cowansville detachment car on a 100-mile-an-hour chase, and finally cracked the car on a bridge on the road leading to Notre-Dame de-Stanbridge.

Farnham youths given one year

SWEETSBURG — (Staff) — Three Farnham young men were sentenced to one year imprisonment Monday by Judge Patrick E. Delaney in the Sessions of the Peace court.

Yvon Leblanc, 18; Claude Boulais, 18, and Jacques Caron, 19, were found guilty of 11 charges each of theft of hub caps. Edmond Lamarche, 21, will undergo his preliminary enquiry on May 11 on the same number of charges.

The foursome were arrested shortly before midnight Monday, April 20 behind the Hotel Maurice in Cowansville, while apparently in the act of relieving cars of their hubcaps.

A QPP spokesman said the four had been operating between St. Johns, Bedford, Granby and Cowansville during the last month.

St. Johns annexes part of St. Luc

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec legislature gave second reading Tuesday to a bill authorizing St. Johns, Que., to annex part of the neighboring municipality of St. Luc.

Annexation was sought to permit immediate construction of a $12,000,000 textile plant by Richelieu Textiles, a subsidiary of Dominion Textile Company Limited.

Pierre Laporte, municipal affairs minister, said both communities have agreed to the annexation because St. Luc cannot provide the necessary services for such a large industry.

Opposition leader Daniel Johnson agreed in principle with the bill.

Kiwanians recall signing of Rush-Bagot agreement

During Canada-United States Goodwill Week Kiwanians celebrate the great treaty of friendship known as the Rush-Bagot Agreement, named after the two men who affixed their names to the historic document for their respective nations.

Richard Rush was an American lawyer and diplomat, born in Philadelphia, the City of Brotherly Love. In 1797 he graduated from Princeton and three years later was admitted to the bar. In 1811 he had advanced to the position of attorney general for Pennsylvania and in the same year was made Controller of the Treasury. In 1817 he went as ambassador to the Court of St. James in London, remaining there until 1825.

Sir Charles Bagot was a British diplomat and administrator. In 1808 he was Under Secretary of State. In 1814 he was Minister to France and two years later was Minister to the United States at Washington. It was while serving in this capacity that he negotiated the famous Rush-Bagot Agreement by an exchange of notes with Richard Rush who was then Acting Secretary of State for his country.

GENE SHEPPARD
president
Waterloo Kiwanis

Though the treaty immortalizes the names of Rush and Bagot, the men who had immediate charge of the negotiations, it should be understood that in the background, on the side of the United States, Thomas Jefferson, John Quincy Adams, James Madison, and James Monroe, and for England, Lord Castlereagh, were powerful influences for creation of the sentiment necessary for adoption of the treaty.

In 1817, when this treaty was signed, the world was in a state of turmoil and unrest. This North American continent of ours was not exempt from this disquiet. Immediately following the War of 1812, Great Britain sought to strengthen her position by substantial increase of her naval power on the Great Lakes. It was only natural that her neighbor to the south should take steps to offset this by a program of shipbuilding of equal magnitude.

President Madison saw how suicidal such a rivalry would be and what a danger it created. It would mean a heavy drain on two national treasuries which had already been severely pinched, and it would invite a wanton waste of valuable lives and precious material. James Monroe, then Secretary of State, was invited to begin negotiations with England to check, if possible, so dangerous and so wasteful a procedure.

Yet England felt that it was only on the sea that she could offset any large increase in land forces which the United States seemed disposed to create, but quietly, on April 28, 1817, the negotiations had proceeded so far that the Rush-Bagot Agreement, revocable on six months' notice from either side, was signed. By that treaty Britain and the United States were each permitted to keep four vessels with one eighteen-pound gun on the Great Lakes. Revenue cutter and trading ships were permitted.

The agreement was proclaimed by President Monroe on April 28, 1818, as of effect April 28, 1817, the date of exchange of notes between Rush and Bagot.

Construction of new war vessels was at once stopped by both parties, and soon "only dismantled or uncompleted hulks were left as a reminder of former warring fleets."

The conditions of that agreement have never been revoked, and it is impossible to measure its influence in the promotion of peace between the two peoples who have lived side by side without a single shot being fired. There were times of stress in the boundary disputes of 1842, 1846, and 1904, but no navies had glory to gain by putting the issue of the arbitrament of war, and what might have been a signal for war passed off with renewed expression of friendship.

During the Canadian rebellion of 1837 there were acts which were a source of annoyance to both Canada and the United States. Notice was given the States that temporarily it was found necessary to equip a more extensive naval armament under the British flag than was allowed by the convention of 1817 for the sole purpose of guarding the provinces against manifest dangers, to be discontinued at the earliest possible moment after the danger no longer existed. Five years later the force had been reduced to the strict limit prescribed by the agreement. During the Civil War in the United States a like necessity arose for increasing armament on the lakes. Canada was notified of this necessity for defensive armament, and when the crisis was passed, a return to treaty basis was quickly made.

So by the Rush-Bagot Agreement of 1817 a new era was born in international relations which has maintained for nearly a century and a half an atmosphere in which mutual trust, friendship, and goodwill have held sway, an era in which we have the romance of 3,000 miles of unguarded frontier across which the hand of friendship has been continuously extended, 3,000 miles without a fort or soldier on guard, an invisible boundary between countries with natural resources so great as easily to attract attention of covetous eyes. Yet during this period the strains in relations between these two great countries have been less tense than the interstate and inter-provincial strains which have arisen during that time.

Members of the Kiwanis Club of Sherbrooke will play a leading role, in the observance of Canada—U.S. Goodwill Week April 26 to May 2 according to club president Bryce McGregor.

The Kiwanis Club of Sherbrooke hosts May 2 an inter-club, international meeting to be held at the New Sherbrooke Hotel.

Clubs from Quebec and New England are expected to attend the meeting. From Quebec come Dorchester Montreal, St. George - Montreal, Montreal, Granby, Waterloo, Magog, and Thetford Mines.

New England clubs are coming from Newport, Hardwick, St. Johnsbury, Montpelier, Rutland, Brattleboro, Barre, Burlington, South Burlington, Saint Albans, all in Vermont and four New Hampshire clubs, Berlin, Franklin, Laconia and Lancaster.

Mr. McGregor went on to say that this will be the 41st annual celebration of the event, which is designed to focus attention on the century and a half that Canada and the United States have lived together in peace, with their 3,000 miles of undefended border a constant reminder of the friendship that exists between them.

BRYCE MCGREGOR
president of
Sherbrooke Kiwanis

Canada-U.S. Goodwill Week was originated by Kiwanis and now enjoys wide participation in both countries.

In 1923, U.S. President Warren G. Harding spoke at Stanley Park, Vancouver, British Columbia, the first American President to visit Canada while in office. The president, a Kiwanian, spoke on the friendship that both countries enjoyed. Two years after his death, fellow Kiwanians from both sides of the order erected the Harding International Goodwill Memorial at Stanley Park. This memorial was the inspiration for thirty-four Kiwanis peace markers built in later years, all but three of which are located at principal ports of entry between the two nations.

The first of these was erected on January 22, 1935, at the Ambassador Bridge between Detroit and Windsor. The three peace markers not on the border are located at Milepost 1220 on the Alaska Highway, at Mount Eisenhower in the Canadian Rockies, and in Washington, D.C.

Each bears the following inscription: "This unfortified Boundary Line between the Dominion of Canada and the United States of America should quicken the remembrance of the more than a century old friendship between these two countries — a lesson of peace to all nations."

This year Canada-U.S. Goodwill Week begins on April 26, the anniversary of the signing of the Rush-Bagot Agreement in 1817. This agreement is the sole legal basis for 3,000 miles of unfortified boundary. It virtually demilitarizes the boundary between the United States and Canada by calling for a limitation of naval vessels on the waterways between the countries and instructing those vessels which are deemed necessary to interfere in no way the peaceful passage of merchant ships of either country. This agreement can be terminated by a simple six-months' notice on the part of either signer.

Mutual understanding, goodwill

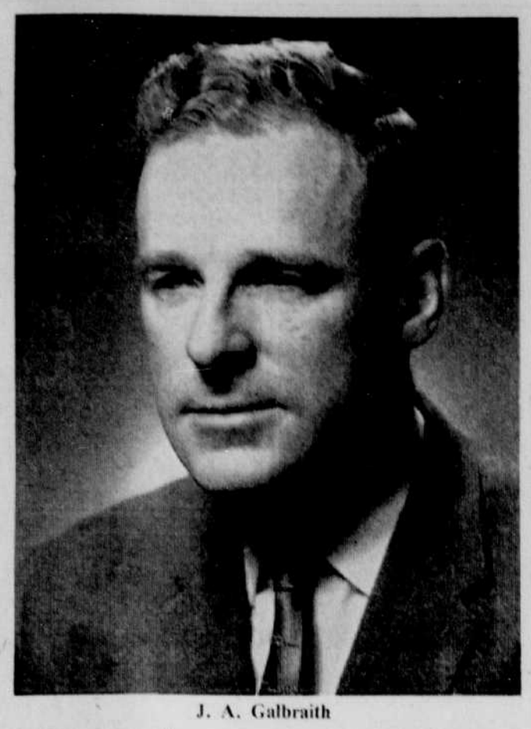

April 26-May 2 marks the 41st observance of Canada-U.S. Goodwill Week, in which the more than 260,000 men of Kiwanis in more than 5,200 Kiwanis clubs across the United States and Canada will play a leading role.

Kiwanis International initiated the observance known as Canada-U.S. Goodwill Week in 1923 as a means to focus attention on the more than a century of mutual understanding and peace which has existed between the two great countries.

This year is the 147th anniversary of the signing of the Rush - Bagot Agreement, a treaty of friendship that resulted in the demilitarizing of the 3,000 miles of border between the two countries. The anniversary date of that signing falls within Canada-U.S. Goodwill Week each year.

In 1923, the U.S. President, Kiwanian Warren G. Harding, spoke at Stanley Park, Vancouver, British Columbia, the first American President to visit Canada while in office. The President spoke on the friendship which both countries enjoyed. Two years after his death, fellow Kiwanians from both sides of the border erected the Harding International Goodwill Memorial to his memory at Stanley Park. This memorial was the inspiration for thirty-four Kiwanis peace markers built in later years, all but three of which are located at principal ports of entry between the two nations.

The first of these was erected on January 22, 1935, at the Ambassador Bridge between Detroit and Windsor. The three peace markers not on the border are located in Washington, D.C., at Mount Eisenhower in the Canadian Rockies, and at Milepost 1220 on the Alaska Highway. Each bears the following inscription: "This unfortified Boundary Line between the Dominion of Canada and the United States of America should quicken the rememberance of the more than a century old friendship between these two countries—a lesson of peace to all nations."

J. A. Galbraith

Speaker at meeting is Dr. J. Galbraith

Dr. J. A. Gailbraith who is in charge of the Economic Research Department of the Royal Bank of Canada, Head Office Montreal, will be the speaker for the Kiwanis Club Inc., Canada - U.S. Goodwill Week meeting Saturday, May 2nd., at the New Sherbrooke Hotel.

Born in Montreal, 1922, where re resided until 1935, Dr. Galbraith, from 1935 to 1942 resided in New York city and vicinity, where he received high school education. He returned to Montreal in 1942 to join RCAF and served as an air navigator in the European theatre of war. He attended McGill University after the war, obtaining the degrees of B. Comm, M. Comm, and Ph.D. in economics.

Dr. Galbraith worked for the Dominion Government, in Ottawa, as an economist, 1950-52 and since 1952 with the economic research department of The Royal Bank of Canada.

In addition, since 1962, he has been a part-time lecturer at McGill University, instructing third-year students, in money and banking.

He recently had a book on banking published by McGill University Press called The Economics of Banking Operations.

Cowansville Little League laying plans for grand opening, May 7, 36-game schedule to be played

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) — Attempts are being made by Little League officials to have an opening-day parade and ceremonies for the first doubleheader game to be played Saturday afternoon, May 9.

League president Art Stocks said at a meeting held in the Hotel Maurice on Monday night that the Pirates will play the Orioles, and the Braves battle the Cardinals in the opening game of a 36-game series (not 54 as previously reported).

"The town has said it will make improvements to the playing field." One of the improvements is to be a drainage ditch running around the field.

It was also decided at the meeting to begin outdoor practices, which started Tuesday night, will continue tonight, Thursday and Saturday morning.

To date we've got 29 names out for practices, and we could certainly use more," said Mr. Stocks.

He also asked that more parents turn out to provide moral support for the boys. Parents don't stop them from playing, but they could provide more support.

Picture on 1960 Olympics finally hits country, terrific layout

NEW YORK (AP)—This sort of thing could put the Olympics out of business. I mean this new movie about the 1960 Olympics in Rome.

It could shake up Broadway and the ballet, too. Not to mention the movies.

It's called The Grand Olympics, and it has just hit this country from Italy. Don't ask where it has been since 1960 because nobody seems to know. It could be that all the color film labs over there in Italy have been jammed with work for Cleopatra the last four years.

Anyway, the picture is here —in color.

For two hours it catches the sight and sound of the Olympics as no spectator since the days of Nero has ever seen. It also adds up to a show that tops a Broadway musical.

After they've seen this thing who's going to get them to pay $10 to watch the preliminary gmes in nine-man volleyball.

Or sit in the hot sun all day watching 39 guys from eastern Albania and Zanzibar miss at five feet, nine inches in the high jump.

Or get out of jail at dawn to bail out a friend who's had language misunderstanding with the local gendarmes?

Instead, they can follow the camera as it follows the slap-slap-slap of the bare feet of the Ethiopian who won the marathon in a flood-lit run down the ancient Appian Way, switch almost instantly to the duel in the 100 metres, catch the disputed finish at the swimming pool, ogle those yum-yum lassies in the gymnastics—and even catch the judges in a mistake.

NDG Monarchs pull upset, dump Marlies 6-4

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal NDG Monarchs, though they remain long - shot underdogs, showed that they are not to be discounted entirely as they edged the powerful Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Toronto Marlboros 6-4 Tuesday night.

The victory snapped Marlboros 22-game unbeaten streak and left the two teams tied with one apiece as they go into the third game of the best-of-five game Memorial Cup eastern final series in Toronto tonight.

Scotty Bowman, NDG coach, shouted, "This has got to be my biggest thrill in hockey," as he entered the dressing room packed with well-wishers.

Bowman added that "I think their coach's statement that they shouldn't even be playing us really got the boys worked up."

"And then (Peter) Stemkowski came over to me before the game and said it was going to be a high score tonight."

Bowman used Toronto's statement and attitude as psychological pressure but did not leave it at that, as he bolstered Monarchs with five players from other Metropolitan League clubs.

Billy Plager, Graham Bruder, Norman Ferguson and Craig Patrick were brought over from the Lachine (Que.) Maroons and Jocelyn Cote from Montreal's Rosemount Bombers.

Bowman was proved both a good psychologist and a sound strategist as Monarchs won the match and Patrick, son of Lynn Patrick, general manager of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, scored two goals.

Guy Dufour and Carol Vadnais both scored during the first period and this, combined with Patrick's first goal catapulted NDG into a 4-0 lead in the first 20 minutes.

Rifles won't bother Als, says Trimble

HULL, Que (CP) — Coach Jim Trimble of Montreal Alouettes said Tuesday night that the Als and the newly formed Quebec Rifles of the United Football League should do well financially next season.

He told a sportsmen's dinner here that the Rifles were neither opposition nor competition for the Alouettes.

"They play a different type of football and I think we'll both do well," said Trimble.

"I think too that Canadian fans like to see the American games on their TV sets but when they go to the parks, they want to see the Canadian game and Canadian teams," said Trimble.

Aldoria Coco Jarry, veteran Hull newspaper man, was named the city's Sportsman of the Year. He's the founder of the Hull Volants sports club which has produced some of the area's outstanding hockey and softball teams.

Horatio Luro not worrying over condition of track on Saturday for E. P. Taylor's Northern Dancer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Rain can pour on Churchill Downs the remainder of the week. Or the sun can turn the flower - bordered track into a Sahara Desert. It makes no difference to Horatio Luro.

Luro is the Argentine who trains the small but mighty Canadian - bred Northern Dancer for E. P. Taylor of Toronto.

And Northern Dancer, winner of Hialeah's Flamingo, the Florida Derby and Keeneland's Blue Grass Stakes in compiling a record of 12 victories in 15 career starts, is the 2-1 second choice to take Saturday's running of the 1¼ miles of the $125,000-added Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

The genial 61-year-old South American made his observations on the chances of his colt and others in the probable field of 15 as he awaited Tuesday's one-mile derby trial.

"My horse cares not whether it is muddy, sloppy or fast," says Luro.

"He runs on any kind of track. This morning I had him out in that sloppy going and he just plowed through it. He doesn't take long strides like Hill Rise and so is able to control himself better. You note he doesn't get mud all over him. He knows how to run in it. Not all horses do."

Luro expressed the opinion Hill Rise, the favorite, would have a difficult time handling an off track. The West Coast champion from George Pope's El Peco ranch never had raced or worked on an off track.

"But that Roman Brother, he is different," said Luro. "He is a small horse like mine and I look for him to move up if the going is muddy Saturday."

Luro also said he was doubtful if The Scoundrel, the 6-1 third choice, would be able to run well in the mud because of his size.

Rookie Richie Allen pounds out homer, triple and two singles to pace attack, Cards blank Mets

Ken Johnson, who lost a nohitter 1-0 in his last start, now has crossed home plate but he still hasn't scored.

There was Johnson perched on third base in the third inning of what was to become a 3-1 loss to Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night. He was trailing 1-0 and thinking how nice it would be if Houston Colts would score a run for him. It had been 13 innings and one no-hitter down the drain since he'd seen some batting support.

Al Spangler lifted a fly ball and Johnson anxiously tagged up. It looked like the hard-luck hurler was finally going to get a run and, in addition, he was going to score it himself.

But suddenly the Dodgers were all around umpire Vinnie Smith and he was noddin his head. The appeal had worked. Johnson, in his anxiety to get a run, had left third base too soon and was doubled up.

So the Colt pitcher still trailed 1-0. Dodger starter Joe Moeller protected the slim margin built on Maury Wills' first-inning single and Willie Davis' triple into the seventh inning, when the Colts finally scored.

Jerry Grote's triple and a squeeze bunt broke the scoreless spell which had stretched 17 innings for Johnson. But the shock of a run on the scoreboard must have proved too much.

Dick Tracewski led off the Dodger eighth with a triple. Tommy Davis battled for Moeller and flied out, then Wills delivered the go-ahead run with a double. Wally Moon's single made it 3-1 and knocked out Johnson, who now knows what it's like to get a run and lose.

In other National League games Tuesday night, St. Louis Cardinals blanked New York Mets 8-0, Philadelphia Phillies topped Cincinnati Reds 4-2 and Milwaukee Braves outlasted Pittsburgh Pirates 9 - 5. San Francisco Giants and Chicago Cubs were rained out.

Key Boyer and rookie second baseman Phil Gagliano each drove in two runs for the Cardinals as they unleashed a strong hitting attack that brought five New York pitchers parading to the mound. Boyer clouted one homer as St. Louis backed up Ernie Broglio's five-hit pitching.

Rookie Richie Allen belted a homer, a triple and two singles in five at-bats to lead the Phillies over the Reds. His homer tied it 2-2 in the sixth before the Phillies went ahead to stay in the seventh. Art Mahaffey contributed a double to his winning cause but needed help from Chris Short in the eighth inning.

Milwaukee spotted the Pirates a four-run lead but bounced back. Joe Torre clouted a homer in the Milwaukee second and Dennis Menke hit a fat bases-loaded single in the seventh that drove in two runs.

A's collect their first homer off "pennant porch" thump Tigers 5-1, Stuart bangs out grand-slammer

Charles O. Finley went one up on the American League Tuesday.

The "pennant porch" erected by the owner of Kansas City Athletics collected its first homer as the Athletics thumped Detroit Tigers 5-1.

The new bleacher section Finley had built at Municipal Stadium to shorten the right field to 325 feet—the same distance as at Yankee Stadium—from 338 feet was the target area for a lofty first - inning fly by Ed Charles. Finley maintains the short right field in Yankee Stadium has helped the New Yorkers dominate the American League through the years.

It was the first blow into Municipal Stadium's bleacher extension in five games.

Elsewhere, Dick Stuart's grand slam homer in the 11th inning gave Boston Red Sox a 6-4 victory over Baltimore Orioles, Jimmie Hall singled with the bases loaded in the 10th as Minnesota Twins outlasted Cleveland Indians 9-8 and Los Angeles Angels edged Washington Senators 2-1 behind the relief pitching of Don Lee and Dean Chance.

The Chicago - New York game was rained out.

Charles not only christened Finley's porch but also doubled home a run in the third and singled across a run in the fifth as the Athletics struck for three runs and drove Frank Lary from the mound.

Diego Segui, who walked four batters in the first two innings, settled down and stopped the Tigers on five hits for his first victory.

Robin Roberts had a four-hit shutout going for the Orioles until the Red Sox tied it in the ninth on a run - producing single by Carl Yastrzemski and Stuart's double. Then, after Baltimore scored two runs in the 11th, reliever Stu Miller suddenly lost his control.

Home runs are causing players to strike out more often than before, says Al Lopez, White Sox pilot

NEW YORK (AP)—The Association for the Prevention of Cheap Home Runs, headed by Detroit Tigers' manager Charlie Dressen, has a new member. He is Al Lopez, veteran pilot of Chicago White Sox.

"Players are striking out more than ever before," says Lopez, "and it's largely because of their lust for home runs. The combination of cheap home runs and alarming total of strikeouts is hurting the game."

A trend to parks with short fences and a penchant for light bats are the main causes for the rise in cheap home runs and strikeouts, Lopez maintains.

"I understand the minimum foul lines at new parks cannot measure less than 325 feet. They should make the minimum at least 350 feet. New ball parks should be designed to keep the ball in play, rather than out of play. Let's give the outfielders a chance to make a good catch once in a while.

"The most exciting play in baseball, in my opinion, is the three - base hit. That's when everybody is moving. But you don't see many triples hit these days. The parks are just too confined.

WANTS SOMETHING DONE

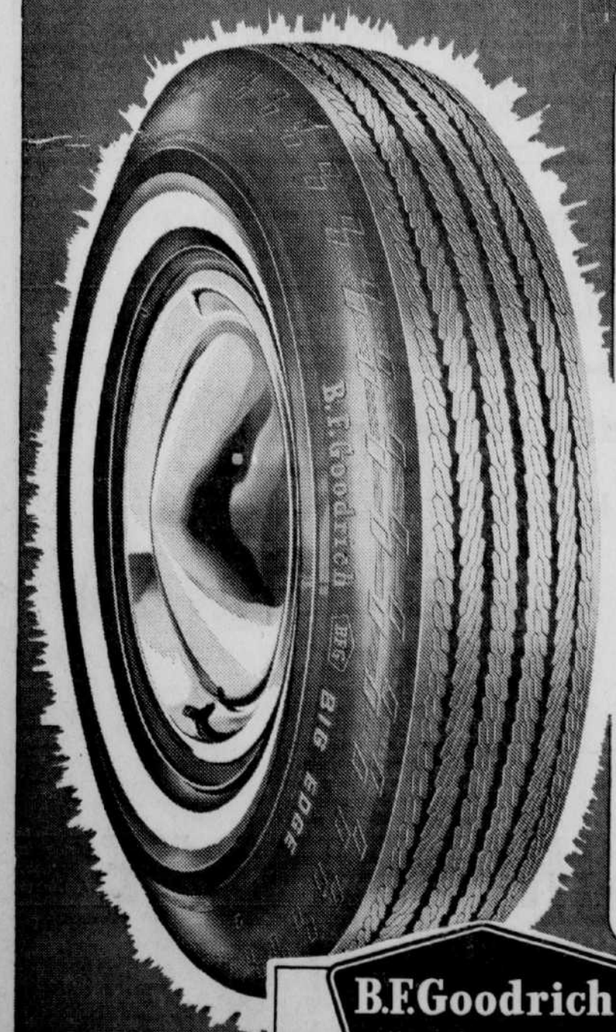

"I'm not opposed to the home run, when hit by a legitimate home-run hitter. But when little guys weighing 150 pounds began knocking them over the fences with regularity, something should be done about it. The tendency today is either home run or strikeout."

Lopez thinks players should return to the use of heavier bats, a belief Dressen voiced earlier this spring.

"The average bat today weighs 32 ounces," said Lopez. "Some guys are even swinging 29-ounce bats. In my day, players used bats ranging from 35 to 45 ounces.

Power from tides is hope for Passamaquoddy

UPS AND DOWNS ON PASSAMAQUODDY BAY — The 26-foot tides of Passamaquoddy Bay, which the Canadian and United States governments have long wanted to harness for power, are illustrated in these pictures showing high and low tides at Eastport, Me. U.S. Interior Secretary Stewart Udall says he is convinced the two governments will soon be able to start negotiating an agreement to harness the tides. (CP Photo from AP)

WASHINGTON (CP) — Interior Secretary Stewart Udall says he is convinced Canada and the United States will soon be able to start negotiating an agreement to harness the 26-foot Passamaquoddy Bay tides to produce 1,000,000 kilowatts of one-hour-a-day power to benefit the Maritimes and New England states.

And he says he believes that once current problems are cleared away, an agreement on the $1,000,000,000 Passamaquoddy project will be easier to put together than the one the two nations finally completed on harnessing the Columbia River.

"I'm optimistic, but the important thing is to get the fish problem resolved, once and for all," says the rugged 44-year-old outdoorsman who sees world leadership in the harnessing of massive power now shifting from the Soviet Union to North America.

"In Passamaquoddy we have more than a power project," Udall said in an interview. "We've got the pilot project of a unique experiment—the harnessing of tides in North America.

"If this proves a success, and we believe it will, all the technical data would be turned over to Canada so that even bigger and more profitable tidal areas in the Bay of Fundy may be brought into production."

Udall pursues the Passamaquoddy with vigilance. Since the Canadian constitution vests natural resources in the provinces, he also has been pursuing Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick, feeling that once he has Robichaud's firm support, it would be an easier matter to draw the Canadian government to the negotiating table.

At a meeting with Udall here, Robichaud said in fact that he is ready to endorse the project, but first he wants to be convinced the proposed seven miles of dams and gates won't cause major damage to the New Brunswick fishing industry.

"Our people are surprised that this issue should be raised at this time," Udall said. "Our early studies didn't show any major damage to resources. So I am hopeful that the technicians now making another study will soon bring in a satisfactory report, resolving the issue once and for all."

In 1961, the Canada-U.S. International Joint Commission concluded that the project would cause some fractional damage to Passamaquoddy fisheries, but would have "very little effect on the important sardine industry and only a minor effect on other fisheries." The U.S. project would include two fishways to allow fish to move freely from the Atlantic Ocean to the bays.

Under the American plan, now endorsed by President Lyndon Johnson, the U.S. would put up all the construction costs, including the gates and dams on the Canadian side of the boundary. At present, the U.S. concept includes offering some of the Passamaquoddy power to New Brunswick and Nova Scotia at cost, though this would be a matter for negotiation, Udall added.

He believes New Brunswick also would benefit from the proposed installation of a 250,000-kilowatt plant and dam at Dickey, Me., on the upper part of the Saint John River. Only about five per cent or 4,500 acres of this dam would spread into New Brunswick territory but by controlling the waters, New Brunswick's power potential on the lower parts of the river can be increased by one-third over the present estimate, Udall said.

CONCERN FOR FISHING — Boats loaded with sardines and baskets of herring scales lie by the dock in Eastport, Me., on Passamaquoddy Bay. U.S. Interior Secretary Stewart Udall says the International Joint Commission reported in 1961 that the proposed Passamaquoddy power project would have little effect on the important sardine industry. New Brunswick Premier Robichaud has expressed concern that the project might cause major damage to the province's fishing industry. (CP Photo from AP)

London's St. Paul's Cathedral survived blitz for obliteration

LONDON (CP)—Not since the Blitz have Londoners been so preoccupied with what is happening to St. Paul's.

When Nazi bombs rained around it, Sir Christopher Wren's mighty cathedral, and particularly its majestic dome, became a vivid symbol of the nation's survival.

Rebuilding of the battered area surrounding the cathedral began in 1957, based on a plan commissioned by the City of London Corporation and designed by Sir William Holford.

Now as the rebuilding nears completion, protectors of St. Paul's are bombarding newspaper editors with angry epistles directed at the architectural Philistines who allowed the plan to go through.

They are particularly offended by an eight-storey, 90-foot-high office block that will jut out into the cathedral's forecourt and partially obscure a view of the newly cleaned West Front.

'NATIONAL DISASTER'

So far the building has barely reached the second-floor level but trumpet-calls of public indignation are attempting to bring it tumbling down before it gets any higher.

"A national disaster," says The Daily Telegraph, editorially echoing such spluttering phrases in its letters column as: "A victory for mammon . . . shameless vandalism . . ., an outrage to history and good taste."

A city director has organized a protest meeting and circulated a petition; the Ancient Monuments Society and the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's have added their weighty objections; suggestions have been advanced to stop construction by a High Court injunction and some people even think the subject should become a general election issue.

As yet the forces of protest have made little impression on the governmental powers responsible. Housing Minister Sir Keith Joseph says he doesn't "contemplate taking any action" because "the new building is in accordance with the approved plan."

This is one of the several ironies embedded in the controversy.

Sir William, in a long letter to The Times defending his design, notes that a model of the project has been on public view for eight years. There was a series of public inquiries before the plan was approved and he cannot understand why objections are being raised so vociferously now.

His most important point — which is visibly true — is that the new block is actually farther back from the original building line. The angle of Ludgate Hill, the street approaching St. Paul's, allows only part of the West Front to be seen in any case.

The obstruction is only apparent from one viewpoint. None of the traditional prospects of St. Paul's will be affected at all.

Sir William adds that the roof of the new office block will e open to the public and on ceremonial occasions will afford an unprecedented vantage point for television cameras to view processions winding down Fleet Street and into the City.

A second irony is that the concept of a long vista of the cathedral is one which Wren himself proposed while rebuilding St. Paul's after the great fire of 1666.

His ideas were rejected at the time and in their place developed an esthetic theory known as "the unexpected glimpse" of the cathedral—caught from one of the maze of side streets that feed into the cathedral precincts. The Holford plan is in this tradition.

CONSTRUCTION STIRS CONTROVERSY — An eight-storey office block, under construction, that will jut out into the forecourt and partially obscure the view of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, England, has stirred controversy between protectors of the church and architects who allowed the plan to go through. The majestically domed cathedral became a symbol of the nation's survival when Nazi bombs rained around it in the Second World War. Rebuilding of the area started in 1957. (CP Photo)

Once portable by pickup truck, Calgary Zoo now would need a Noah's Ark for transport

CALGARY (CP)—Tom Baines remembers loading most of the Calgary zoo into a single pickup truck for an exhibit at the Calgary Poultry Show the year he became zoo curator in 1929.

Today, as Mr. Baines prepares to retire after 35 years as curator, the St. George's Island Zoo here would be portable only in a revival of Noah's ark.

"It ranks fifth in North America, largest in Canada, in the variety of species exhibited," says Mr. Baines.

The 1963 inventory listed 511 species of animals, birds, reptiles and fish in a total population of 1,275.

This tally excludes the 50 life-size models of prehistoric beasts —from Dinny the Brontosaurus, towering 32 feet between front toe and forehead, to sharp-toothed little creatures the size of lap dogs—in the popular natural history park associated with the zoo.

In addition, a new, $300,000 conservatory-aviary has more than 100 species of plants—tropical, alpine, desert and common house varieties.

The zoo got off to a sluggish start in 1918 when somebody gave the city a deer. A pen was built for the animal on St. George's Island, in the Bow River about a mile east of downtown Calgary.

But during the last decade the zoo outgrew the 20-acre island site and spilled onto 30 acres on the river's north bank known as Tom Campbell's Hill. The hillside area, taken over last year, gives mountain goats, deer and bison expansive enclosures in which to roam.

Mr. Baines estimates replacement value of the zoo's 32 buildings, exhibits and fencing at about $2,000,000—capital created by the Calgary Zoological Society with a substantial grant from the city and individual donations on money, exhibits and buildings.

STRESS VARIETY

Mr. Baines says the aim has been to display a wide range of species instead of creating mass displays of only a few types.

"When we started out we were going to restrict ourselves to Canadian mammals. Now we lack only two—the musk-ox and the caribou—and we will probably get those this year."

The zoo has all swan varieties but the Coscobora, all geese but kelp and bewick.

Most famous resident of the zoo is Cheta, a chimpanzee that appeared in Tarzan movies. Cheta's trainer donated him to the zoo when the chimp reached maturity and became too temperamental to continue as an actor.

Mr. Baines is particularly proud of the children's zoo, where "we emphasize contact between the animals and the children." Youngsters are encouraged to play in an indoor pen among guinea pigs, rabbits, piglets and other young animals.

"Zooperintendents," high school and college students hired part time, supervise the pens.

FLOPPED TO FREEDOM

The only notable escape was in 1939 when an adventurous sea lion squeezed out of its cage, flopped into the Bow and flippered 50 miles down an irrigation canal to the farming community of Rosebud.

"A housewife found the sea lion, wrapped him up in a blanket and called the zoo," Mr. Baines recalls.

CANADA'S LARGEST — The Calgary Zoo on St. George's Island in the Bow River is Canada's largest in the variety of species exhibited. Its 1963 inventory listed 511 species and a population of 1,275. Two of the younger inhabitants of the zoo, the gorillas Ruff and Tuff, are shown getting a toenail cut by keeper Norman Winnick. (CP Photo)

How do you shave when the bathroom is occupied?

☐ Go to the gas station on the corner

☐ Build another bathroom

☐ Use the sink in the living room or

☐ Get a cordless Lektronic II and shave wherever you want.

The Lektronic II is self-powered. It works upstairs, downstairs, in any room in the house. Even outdoors.

So forget about sinks, cords and outlets. With the Lektronic II you get a powerful shave anywhere.

Energy cells store up power for plenty of fast, comfortable shaves. To recharge, simply plug in the special cord overnight.

If you forget to recharge, just plug in the cord and shave. No waiting. No half-shaved face.

Like all Remingtons, the Lektronic II has adjustable roller combs for comfort. And a more powerful motor. And surgical steel cutters.

But the big feature is cordless convenience. Great for around the house, up at the cottage, the travelling man.

And it costs a lot less than building another bathroom.

GRANTED PRIVILEDGE

Franking, the privilege of sending or receiving mail free of postage, was first granted to the British sovereign and officers of state in 1660.

LIGHTNING DOES STRIKE TWICE

Quintuplets, the experts say, are born to one family in every hundred million. Once in every generation other pundits say, one family member will win a major prize like the sweepstakes or a trip 'round the world. Sherbrooke resident, Andre Labrecque, 165 Blvd. Jacques Cartier, this week won two major prizes in the current Coca-Cola Ltd. promotion — "WIN SOMETHING FIRE ENGINE RED." A few days ago, Mr. Labrecque was notified that he had won a new Honda Scooter in the weekly contest. Yesterday, he thought he was day-dreaming when he was officially notified that he had just won a new Triumph Spitfire sportscar. The dream was real enough and as he drove away after being presented with his second major prize within a week no one could really blame him if his thoughts centered around — what on earth he would do if he is to be lucky thrice in a row and win the 1914 Republic Fire Engine in the Coca-Cola Contest. ★★★

The Doctor Says

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT M. D.

Many persons have what appears to be appendicitis on the left side. This is not really appendicitis. It is diverticulitis.

A diverticulum is an outpouching about the size of a large pea. It may occur anywhere in the digestive tract, but is most common in the large bowel. Diverticula are more prevalent in persons who are over 40, and they increase in number with age. Thus many persons in their early 60s may have literally hundreds of them.

This is called diverticulosis, and is commonly seen on an X-ray examination of the colon. Fortunately, unless a diverticulum becomes inflamed, you don't know it's there.

Once it is inflamed, however, you have diverticulitis. As the proportions of persons reaching 60 and over is increasing so is diverticulitis. Anything that irritates the colon or anything that prevents the emptying of a diverticulum may cause diverticulitis and the symptoms are similar to those of appendicitis in every respect — except that the pain frequently occurs on the left side.

There may be nausea and vomiting and there is always soreness in the region of the trouble. The pain is aggravated by jouncing and by moving the bowels. If a person has this disease, the treatment first tried consists of bed rest, a bland diet and antibiotics. With this treatment an acute attack usually clears up in a few days.

Routine use of enemas, strong purgatives and such foods as corn, nuts, and raw unpeeled vegetables and fruit must be avoided because they irritate the bowel and may cause a recurrence. After a series of recurrences, a victim will develop chronic diverticulitis.

This is more difficult to treat. When it occurs, an operation may be necessary to prevent serious complications. Just as with an inflamed appendix, an inflamed diverticulum may rupture and cause peritonitis.

There is also some danger of hemorrhage from the inflamed area. An operation to remove this portion of the bowel often solves the problem. Yet, because of the large number of diverticula usually present, no attempt can be made to remove them all. Therefore, after the operation it is necessary to remain on a bland diet to prevent inflammation from developing in the diverticula that remain. A mild laxative or stool softener may be required to prevent the formation of hard stools.

Diverticulosis and diverticulitis are not cancerous, but they occur in an age group and in an anatomical location where cancer is common. For that reason your doctor must always be alert for signs of cancer in a person with diverticulitis.

Slides shown at W.A. meeting at Cookshire

COOKSHIRE — At the meeting of the W.A., of Trinity United Church, held at the manse, Mrs. Skuce showed slides of Ireland, Scotland and France, which she and Rev. Skuce had taken while there.

Prior to the social hour, a short meeting was held, with Mrs. H. V. Burns in the chair.

Mrs. Skuce and Mrs. N. D. McLeod were in charge of the devotional period. Final plans were made for the supper and sale in the church hall on May 2 and money was voted for music for the choir.

GENERAL NOTES

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. K. Currier were Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Currier, Nancy and Donnie, of Sherbrooke.

Mrs. A. J. Kirkpatrick, of Bury, has moved here and has rented the tenement of Mr. Arthur Lebourveau.

Mining has been important on Cyprus since the bronze age when the island was a prime source of copper for weapons.

UCW to sponsor sending child to summer camp

SAWYERVILLE — The regular meeting of the United Church Women of the United Church was held in the church on April 22.

The work committee reported receiving donations of work materials, with plenty of work on hand to be done.

The church had been decorated with flowers and plants at Easter, which were afterwards delivered to 18 sick and shutins.

Thirty visits were reported to have been made.

The members voted in favor of giving assistance to the new curriculum.

Supply and assistance committee would like to send a box of clothing to Korea.

It was decided that the U.C.W. would provide money for one child to go to camp. Rev. and Mrs. Sutherland, Mrs. Wallace Cathcart and Mrs. Volney Hurley as committee in choosing the child.

The nominating committee has named Mrs. Clinton Smith as christian citizenship convener for 1964.

Proceeds from the St. Patrick's supper were very gratifying.

The program consisted of a film shown by Mrs. Sutherland and Mrs. Erwin McBurney, followed by a devotional period in charge of Mrs. C. R. Sutherland with Mrs. Kenneth McBurney, Mrs. Percy Gray and Mrs. Volney Hurley, also taking part.

Supper was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Percy Gray, Mrs. C. R. Sutherland, Mrs. Elmer Dempsey and Mrs. John McBurney.

News flashes from around the world

OTTAWA (CP)—If Canada's banks had provided better services, they wouldn't have met so much competition from other financial institutions, Senator Donald Cameron (Ind-L — Alberta) said Tuesday night in the Senate.

He spoke in opening debate on a bill to charter a new bank, the Laurentide Bank of Canada —the second such measure to come before Parliament this session.

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence research board has had to rent trailers at its Suffield, Alta., experimental station to house all the visiting scientists who want to observe its 500-ton TNT blast on or about July 16.

Dr. A. H. Zimmerman, board chairman, said in an interview Tuesday that a great deal of interest has been shown in the experiment — in the planning stage for two years—since the cessation of nuclear testing above ground.

HULL, Que. (CP)—The body of Rejean St. Denis, 11, was found in a play area of a city park here Tuesday by two of his Grade 7 classmates.

He had been stabbed about 10 hours earlier—eight times in the back and once in the shoulder.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aldege St. Denis, had reported him missing Monday night after he failed to return from play in the park.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food and Drug Commissioner George P. Larrick testified Tuesday that mistakes by his agency and withholding of information by a drug company kept a harmful drug on the market for five years.

Physicians attributed a half dozen fatal cases of hepatitis to the drug, he said.

Larrick said the drug, Flexin, was finally suspended by the food and drug administration on Oct. 13, 1961.

OTTAWA (CP)—A bill which would give married women sole control over their own earnings and property, and free husbands from any liability for their wives' debts, was introduced in the Senate Tuesday night by Senator Jean-Francois Pouliot (L—Quebec).

He said it is identical to legislation which applied to the Northwest Territories from 1875 to 1952.

LONDON (AP)—Britain may soon close down Christmas Island, its H-bomb testing ground in the Pacific, which has been rocked by many of the huge nuclear blasts of the last decade.

A defence ministry spokesman confirmed Tuesday the future of the island—the largest atoll in the Pacific—is under review in the light of the limited nuclear test - ban accord signed with the Soviet Union last summer.

VICTORIA (CP)—Arnold Edinborough's suggestion for a better Canada: Bilingualism, oui; biculturalism, no.

The British - born editor of Saturday Night magazine, speaking Tuesday to the Canadian Club of Victoria, called for a "monoculturism" to strengthen the country's internal unity and a "competence" with the French language to improve economic prestige in the world.

The P. 1127s assigned to the squadron are supersonic vertical-takeoff fighters, capable of travelling about 70 m.p.h. sideways. (CP Wirephoto from British Information Services)

Indian goes to jail for his 'principles'

QUEBEC (CP) — Jules Sioui has strong eyes, silvery hair and a cause he says is worth many months in jail—an independent Indian nation embracing all the tribes of North America.

The 58-year-old former resident of the Huronia reserve near Quebec City has been in Quebec jail since last May for tearing down a list of voters posted in the 'ndian community before the 1963 federal election.

He was sentenced to one month last May and was ordered to sign a $500 bond to keep the peace for 18 months after his release. But he has refused to sign the bond and so his stay in jail has continued far beyond his original sentence.

"And I won't sign it in future either," Sioui said Tuesday, "because if I ever signed that thing it would be a betrayal of my people and my principles."

His prison pallor and the uniform of confinement—grey shirt and khaki trousers—symbolized the strength of his determination.

The son of a French-speaking mother and a Huron Indian father, the soft-speaking prisoner said he can't promise to keep the peace since that would mean refraining from the fight for "Indian treaty rights and Indian freedom."

'SELL THEIR SOULS'

He explained in an interview that he tore down the election notice because he felt it constituted an invitation for Indians on the reserve "to sell their souls."

"For us, to vote would mean that we acquiesce in the stripping of our rights. So I tore down that invitation to disaster."

Sioui could be kept in prison until he signs the bond, but a spokesman for the justice department in Ottawa said Tuesday his case is being looked into.

A grocer by trade, Sioui said he has sold his shop and other belongings since coming to jail.

"I have nothing now. My wife comes to see me and I tell her I have to do this because Indians deserve respect for their rights just as all nations and persons do."

He said he began working for this cause in 1940 when he staged a public protest against the extension to Indians of the law concerning national military conscription.

"In the Northwest Angle Treaty of 1873, made between the Canadian government and the Indians, we were made exempt from this kind of military service. So in 1940 I decided to fight for that right."

ARRESTED IN 1945

The fight continued throughout the Second World War, Sioui went on, and in 1948 he was arrested on a charge arising out of his proclamation of an "Indian national government."

He said he first was convicted of the charge, then acquitted on appeal to the Quebec Appeals Court. Before the case could go to the Supreme Court of Canada, the government abandoned the matter, he said.

"I went on a 72-day hunger strike, with only sugared water to keep me going, and the government backed down."

"Look, I'll be frank. Both the English and the French in Canada have been unjust to the Indians. Yes, even the French, who now fight for their rights.

"But we don't believe in destroying other nations. We believe in respect, mutual respect, one nation respecting another's right to exist. And that's all I ask."

He said his relations with the prison officials and his fellow prisoners have been good because "I respect them and they respect me.

"And that's how nations should be too."

GERARD LEMAY

MAURICE BRODEUR

THE SOUTHERN CANADA POWER COMPANY, a subsidiary of Hydro-Quebec, announces the following appointments: Gerard Lemay has been named Director of Branches and Auxiliary Services and Maurice Brodeur, Manager of Purchases and Stores. During the course of his 38 years with SCP, Mr. Lemay gained experience in such varied fields as operation, accounting, generation and transmission. Manager of Purchases and Stores since 1958, Mr. Lemay takes over from S. J. Atchison, vice-president, administration, who is retiring. Mr. Brodeur joined Southern Canada Power's Purchasing department 19 years ago. He has since carried out various functions in the department and was named assistant purchasing agent in 1961. He now succeeds Mr. Lemay as head of Purchasing.

"In every field there is one outstanding value to which all others are compared. In memorials, that one is Rock of Ages®."

Housewife is prize-winning weather observer

GOVERNMENT PRIZE — Mrs. Patrick St. Laurent of Garthby holds a barometer the federal department of transport awarded her for weather reporting. Takes daily readings

By DAVID WEBSTER
(Record staff reporter)

GARTHBY — A wife, (say husbands), needs some activity to keep her from getting bored with the housework and going out on a wild shopping spree.

One ET housewife takes daily weather readings — and recently won a prize from the federal department of transport for doing it.

Mrs. Patrick St. Laurent of this Wolfe County, centre showed her prize at a recent interview. It was (you guessed it), a large, expensive - looking wall barometer.

"The prize came in the mail this month", said Mrs. St. Laurent, "and we were quite surprised for I'd only been taking weather readings for a year."

Mrs. St. Laurent, wife of Patrick St. Laurent, fire warden for the provincial forestry department, lives on a farm two miles west of Garthby on Route 1.

Her children range in age from five to 10. Pierre, the youngest is the only one not yet of school age.

She was among 25 weather observers across Canada presented with awards for excellent weather reporting, the department of transport announced. There are some 2,200 weather stations in Canada, most of them staffed by volunteer observers, the department said.

Mrs. St. Laurent takes weather readings for temperature, relative humidity, precipitation, barometric pressure, and wind velocity and direction. The barometric pressure is recorded automatically on graph paper.

Wind velocity and direction can be read on a gauge from the comfort of the St. Laurent's back porch. But to take the temperatures and precipitation Mrs. St. Laurent must go outside the house to the front yard to the white, shuttered box that protects the thermometers.

The box contains dry and wet bulb thermometers from which the relative humidity is calculated, and thermometers for measuring the high and low temperatures for the day. Beside the box is a copper rain gauge.

Weather readings are taken for the provincial department of natural resources and the federal department transport, said Mrs. St. Laurent.

The department of natural resources takes information for six months of the year, from April to October, she said. Each week day one must take the temperature, precipitation, wind, and relative humidity and from this data calculate the burning index. This gives the danger of forest fire.

The burning index scale is graded from one to 16, she said. When the index is nine or more no permits to light fires in the bush will be issued.

The burning index must be telephoned long-distance to the department's headquarters in Quebec City every day during the April-to-October fire season, she said. Besides this, the weather readings are sent in weekly by mail.

The daily records of high and low temperatures, relative humidity, precipitation, and wind direction and velocity are sent at the end of each month to the transport department.

Kashmiri leader

Feels his moment in history is here

NEW DELHI (AP) — Sheik Mohammed Abdullah of Kashmir is a man who feels his moment in history has arrived. He is determined not to let it be wasted.

The fiercely nationalistic Kashmiri leader, whose goal is self-determination for his tiny India - ruled Himalayan state, spent 11 years in an Indian jail because of his agitation for independence.

Since his release recently Abdullah has demonstrated a powerful hold on the Kashmiris.

He can hit the heads of admirers with a cane and make them feel they have been touched by the hand of a saint.

Abdullah, who wants to lead the masses but not be mauled by them, cut a wide swath with his cane recently as he strode almost regally through tens of thousands of adoring Kashmiris.

One near-hysterical Kashmiri flung himself on Abdullah in a small town outside Srinagar, Kashmir, and got Abdullah's cane across his forehead in reply.

The admirer staggered, temporarily stunned. When he recovered he shouted "Abdullah zindabad"—long live Abdullah.

RAMROAD BEARING

Part of 59-year-old Abdullah's appeal is his extraordinary bearing. He stands a ramroad straight six-foot-six and alternates a stern countenance with engaging smile. His long white flowing robe and wool Moslem camp accentuate his height.

But more of Abdullah's appeal is due to his eloquent advocacy of Kashmiri desires for a say in their future, which probably would mean separation from the Indian union for independence or ties with Pakistan.

Since 1931, Abdullah has argued for self-determination in English, Urdu, Hindi, Persian and Arabic. He became the Kashmir state's premier in 1948 under Indian auspices and a prisoner of the Indian government in 1953 when he argued too loudly.

Symbol of new progress; Quebec House is bustling

By JOE MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Conversation crackles with industry at Quebec House — industry ranging from steel through such things as electronics, timber, peat moss and jewels.

Symbolic of Quebec's economic drive, this newest of Canada's provincial missions in London has undertaken manifold commercial, industrial and information tasks, including contact work in connection with the project for a big steel complex beside the St. Lawrence River.

But Agent - General Hugues Lapointe, schooled in the law, politics, diplomacy and the military, allowed himself a bit of British - type understatement when he described the job.

"We get in touch with people," said the former federal government minister and United Nations delegate.

Perhaps the most exciting liaison came in connection with the $250,000,000 plan to establish a steel industry at Becancour on the St. Lawrence below Trois-Rivieres, at a site accessible to ocean ships throughout the winter.

BRITISH INTERESTED

When Premier Jean Lesage set up a feasibility committee on the project two years ago, the United States, France and Belgium were the countries usually mentioned as likely participants.

Committee members also made several trips to Britain, however, and were "put in touch" with steel-makers and investment people here by Lapointe and his men.

The Quebec experts were interested in British steel techniques as well as investment money. The British, in turn, showed keenness to get in on the enterprise, to supplement other plants and to establish secondary industries.

"To what degree they will be involved in the actual project will depend on the committee's report and the government's decision," said Lapointe, interviewed on his 53rd birthday in his genteel office at Quebec House.

Despite the accent on industry and modern things, some of the atmosphere of Old Quebec can be savored—not by accident — at the four - storey Georgian - style building near Grosvenor Square, location of Canada's Sir John A. Macdonald Building and the United States Embassy.

Particularly charming is the reading room furnished in the old style, with Salamander armchairs from the early 18th century around a pine refectory table.

PLAN EXHIBIT

Nearby the receptionist is heard at the telephone murmuring "Quebec House—Maison du Quebec." An elevator is being installed with the idea of making the upper floors available for exhibits of Quebec artistry and industry.

Son of the late Ernest Lapointe, federal justice minister for many years, the agent-general has served as solicitor-general, veterans affairs minister and postmaster-general and also as vice-chairman of the Canadian delegation to the UN General Assembly. He rose to the rank of lieutenant-colonel and served overseas with Le Regiment de la Chaudiere in the Second World War.

In telling the British about the industrial advantages of Quebec, he is assisted by: Frank Turner, Montreal, English-educated counsellor on economic and industrial affairs; Fernand Renault, Quebec City, former newspaper man and broadcaster who is director of information; Ray Vaudry, Montreal, administration officer; and a five-member staff, including one British girl. Another counsellor is to be added.

Quebec's lack of business restrictions — as compared with Britain—was cited as a major magnet for industrialists. Another feature is the province's proximity to U.S. markets.

The issue of separatism in Quebec has grown since Lapointe was appointed agent-general in December, 1961, and even since Lesage formally opened the mission during his London visit last spring.

"They ask questions," was Lapointe's smiling reply when asked whether British businessmen who might go to Canada are disturbed by Quebec developments.

"Those who know, who are familiar with the Canadian scene, do not appear too disturbed. However, when you come across a person who knows very little about the country, you find yourself giving a course in Canadian history, constitutional and political.

"The average Britisher is just about as well informed about Canada as the average Canadian is about Britain."

Newspapers, television and radio have done little coverage in depth on the Quebec situation so that the occasional sensational report of violence tends to leave the British baffled.

Quebec House is becoming more active in the promotion of provincial products abroad in co-operation with the federal agencies. Quebec trade groups will begin arriving this summer.

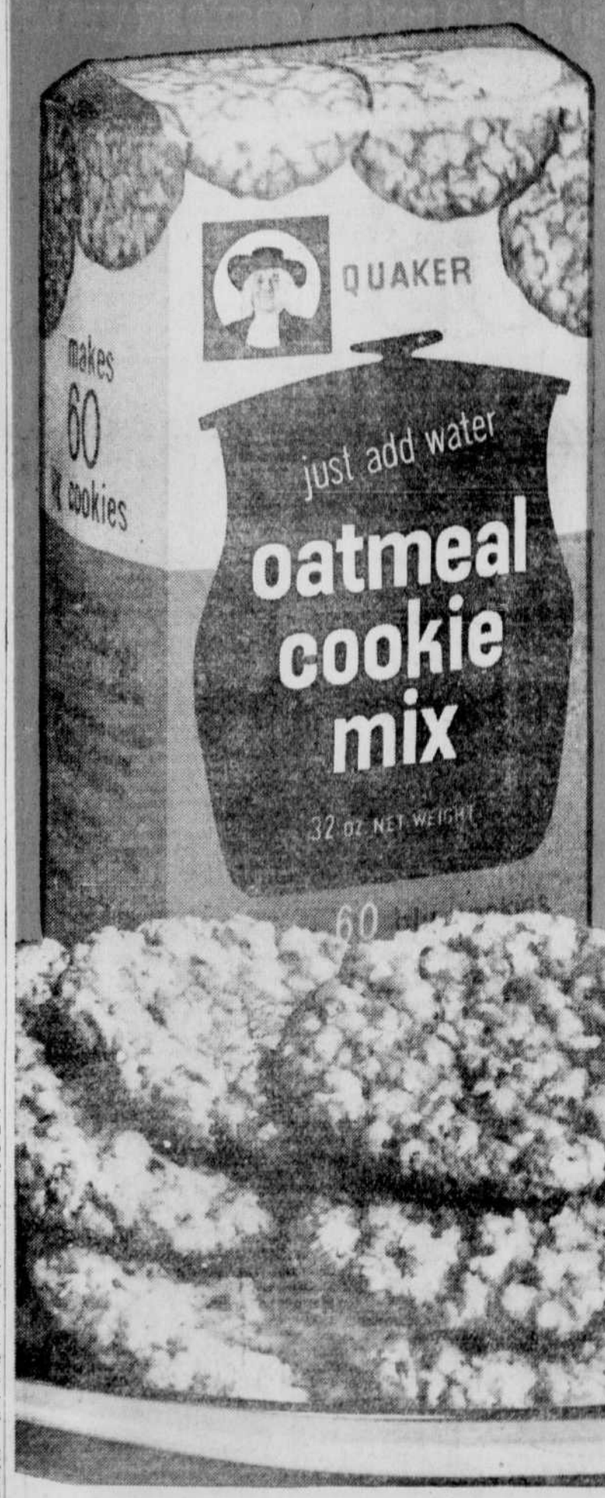

British attitudes toward language have been a pleasant surprise for the mission which has found that many industrialists here converse freely in French since that tongue has traditionally been regarded as an asset in business and banking circles.

"Some business people moving to Quebec may at first be concerned about language in schools, but since most of them plan on settling in bilingual areas, this raises no problem," said Lapointe.

Younger folk, particularly, "want to live in areas that are not French, not English, but somewhere in between, where they can get the benefit of both cultures."

WEDDING PLANS BROKEN — Lt. J. G. Bernard Rosenbach, shown holding hands last year with Lynda Byrd Johnson, the President's daughter, said last Saturday they had broken their engagement by mutual agreement. Rosenbach, reached aboard the Destroyer Ingram near Jacksonville, Fla., would give no reason. He had been engaged to the President's older daughter since last June.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY — To make a pretty and snug headband, take a small silk or chiffon neckerchief-size scarf and fold into a rectangle. Tie the ends to a rubber band. It will fit the head snugly and really stay in place. They are easy to put on. You can have several by using old scarves that are no longer used for their original purpose.

• When the weather is wet and sloppy, put a small cotton loop rug over the carpet or floor mats in your car. The rugs catch snow, rain water and dirt. Take them out occasionally, wash and dry and then put back again. Saves wear and tear and frequent cleaning of the permanent floor covering. Use old rugs that might otherwise be discarded. — D.M.

DEAR POLLY — A package of children's modeling clay is an important item in my emergency drawer. I use it often and for many things. It will temporarily stop a leak until help comes or you can fix it. A generous lump thrust on a pencil or toothpick will hold the note that you leave for your family when away. The same will hold place cards or favors at a child's party. If modeled in bird, animal or other chosen forms, the favors can be most attractive. — MRS. R. B.

DEAR POLLY — Cover the inside backs of louvered closet doors with clear plastic (the kind used on storm sash) to keep the dust out, let light in, and keep pesky moths away. — MRS. R. W.

FIRST SHERBROOKE BAPTIST CHURCH WOMEN'S MISSION CIRCLE

The April meeting of the First Sherbrooke Baptist Women's Mission Circle was held at the home of Mrs. N. Peveril, vice-president of the Circle. Mrs. Peveril extended a warm welcome to all the ladies attending the meeting.

Miss Thelma Graham chose Mark 1:1-8 for her devotional reading. The voice of one crying in the wilderness, prepare ye the way of the Lord. The title of her message was, Trail Blazers.

Mrs. Fred Bampton sang a solo entitled, Someday I'll Understand, accompanied by Mrs. Peveril at the piano. Mrs. Peveril and Miss Thelma Graham led in prayer.

The topic for the evening was taken by Mrs. Peveril, who read a very interesting article from the, Link and Visitor, about an active missionary in India, Miss Gertrude Bonner. A letter from her was also read to the group.

Mrs. H. Leech, Jr., read a letter from Miss Rowe who is stationed in La Paz, Bolivia. The Sunday School is helping to educate a child there. Her name is Felisidad.

Mrs. Fred Bampton read a letter from Douglas Beeman who is working with the Columbo Plan in India. He wrote of the great poverty in this country.

Mrs. Gordon Jaquith, chairman of the nominating committee, read the nominating report for the year 1963-1964, as follows: Honorary President, Mrs. John Dozois; president, Miss Thelma Graham; secretary Mrs. G. Jaquith; treasurer, Miss Jessie Hopkins; agent for the Link and Visitor and Card Sales representative, Miss Jessie Hopkins; pianist, Mrs. C. Wright; Cards to the sick and visiting committee, Mrs. G. Sunbury, Mrs. E. Holgate and Mrs. H. Mills; Social committee, Mrs. E. Wheeler and Mrs. H. Leech, Jr.

Mrs. Peveril, speaking on behalf of the group, thanked Miss Graham for her splendid leadership in the past and wished her God's continued blessing in the future. Miss Graham in turn thanked the group for their co-operation, support and prayers.

All who were present were encouraged to attend the Women's Missionary Conference to be held at the Grace Chapel, Saturday, May 2 at 7 o'clock. Mrs. Elizabeth Elliot, widow of the late Jim Elliot, one of the five martyrs of the Auca Indians in Ecuador in 1956 will be the guest speaker.

Miss Hazel Benner closed this part of the meeting with prayer.

Miss Graham, who is to be married in May was presented with crystal candelabra by Mrs. John Dozois from members and friends of the Circle. Miss Graham was surprised and pleased to receive such a lovely gift and expressed her grateful thanks to all present for their kindness to her.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. N. Peveril, Mrs. C. Wright and Miss Jessie Hopkins.

SHERBROOKE HOSPITAL ALUMNAE

The regular monthly meeting of the Sherbrooke Hospital Alumnae Association was held in the Norton Residence on Tuesday evening, April 21, with Mrs. R. Cathcart in the chair.

The Resolution which was drawn up by Mr. Grundy regarding the transfer of the Sick Benefit fund into an Endowment fund was passed.

A reminder to all members was made about the May 6, spring Bridge asking all members to make up their tables. Mrs. A. Morrison will take all reservations at 659-1877.

Miss Bailey and Mrs. Taylor are editing the new letter this year.

Two films were shown at the close of the meeting which were very instructive.

Refreshments were then served by the hostess, Mrs. G. Bryant, Mrs. G. Frost and Mrs. A. Savage for Mrs. B. Webster.

ST. PAUL'S LADIES' GUILD

A regular meeing of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild was held recently in the church hall, with 8 members present.

The vice-president, Mrs. D. Sangster, was in the chair and opened the meeting with prayer.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. H. Buckland and the treasurer, Mrs. F. Stanford, gave a report on the card party held on April 16, the proceeds of which were most gratifying.

A get-well card and several thank-you notes were to be sent to friends of the Guild.

Plans were made for another card-party to be held on April 30, the kitchen conveners will be Mrs. A. Fearon and Mrs. D. Sangster. All members are expected to make tables. Instead of having a food table each member is to contribute money.

There being no further business, the meeting closed with prayer.

The next meeting will be in the church hall on May 6.

ST. ANDREW'S GUILD

The regular meeting of St. Andrew's Guild was held in the church hall Monday evening, April 20, with Mrs. Wyatt Savage presiding and 12 members in attendance. The meeting opened with prayer with Mrs. Douglas Jones in charge of devotions

The secretary took the roll call and read the minutes, plus several thank-you cards from bereaved families. A newsletter from Maplemount Home was passed out for the members to read. The treasurer then gave her report including results from the Phantom Tea.

The president, representing the Centennial Committee, gave an outline of the celebration plans being made to date and several miscellaneous reports followed. It was decided to cater to the luncheon for the W.M.S. Presbyterian Rally being held on May 30.

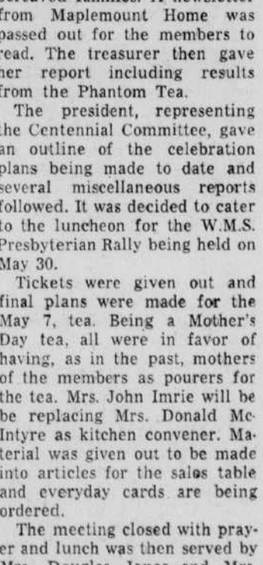

Tickets were given out and final plans were made for the May 7, tea. Being a Mother's Day tea, all were in favor of having, as in the past, mothers of the members as pourers for the tea. Mrs. John Imrie will be be replacing Mrs. Donald McIntyre as kitchen convener. Material was given out to be made into articles for the sales table and everyday cards are being ordered.

The meeting closed with prayer and lunch was then served by Mrs. Douglas Jones and Mrs. John Leckie. A food sale followed which proved most successful and enjoyable.

He went to sea in a sailing ship

HALIFAX (CP)—Niels Jannasch was eight years old when he decided that, more than anything, he wanted to go to sea in a sailing ship.

The Second World War intervened and service as a sub-lieutenant in the German navy delayed the realization of his dream.

But realize it he did, and today, at 39, he is never very far from the taste of salt water.

Mr. Jannasch lives with his wife and four children beside the sea at French Village, 25 miles south of Halifax. He is director of the Maritime Museum here and sails a 25-foot double-ended Norwegian sloop.

The sort of contentment he enjoys today has been matched on only a few occasions in the past.

His father, a Moravian missionary who spent most of his life in Labrador, used to take him on walks around the docks at Hamburg. It was there that young Niels began his romance with the sea.

When the war began he joined the navy and was assigned to armed German trawlers in the North Sea. He later was stationed in Norway as a wireless officer. In 1944 he spent three happy days aboard a small Finnish sailing coaster that visited German-occupied Norway.

UNDER ARREST

When he returned to his base near Trondheim he was arrested for being absent without leave. It was just after the attempt on Hitler's life by a group of dissatisfied generals and the German high command was cracking down on all misdemeanors. But an understanding commanding officer agreed to forget the incident.

A couple of years after the war found Jannasch on a German coaster. The Viking, a Finnish four-masted barque, was lying in Antwerp. Mr. Jannasch feigned sickness as an excuse to get off the German vessel and signed on Viking, but she didn't sail.

The owners, however, transferred Viking's crew to Port Talbot, Wales, where Passat, another four - masted barque, was preparing to sail for Australia in ballast.

Niels Jannasch signed on as a carpenter. He didn't particularly like being a ship's carpenter and, in fact, had little carpentering to do. But he was what he wanted to be—a sailor drinking the isolated contentment found aboard a sailing ship left over from another age.

HAD NO RADIO

The voyage was one of the high points of his life. There were only 32 men in the crew taking the 3,000 ton ship to Australia. He says he felt as much at home on the royal yards 170 feet above deck as if he had been there all his life.

While in Australia he spent some time hitch-hiking around the country with a Welshman who had served during the war on a motor torpedo boat that had exchanged shots with Jannasch's armed trawler.

The homeward voyage took 110 days—with no radio and no engine — but no one missed them.

Mr. Jannasch said goodbye to Passat. There followed a series of voyages in Swedish tankers and cargo ships, mainly to the Far East. Then someone wrote to tell him Passat was being outfitted as a combination freight and school ship by private Swiss interests.

"Don't go back," the captain of the Swedish cargo ship told him. "They're never the same when they have been converted to training ships."

But Mr. Jannasch was paid off in San Francisco and headed for Hamburg. On the way he got his first sight of Nova Scotia when he stopped here to visit relatives.

FELL IN LOVE

He says he fell in love with Nova Scotia—"I guess I decided unconsciously to settle here when I saw the sun rise out of a purple mist above Yarmouth from the deck of the old Boston-Yarmouth ferry."

He got back to Hamburg and signed on Passat as boatswain. She sailed for South America with a crew of 92, mostly cadets. An engine had been installed and the sails were unfurled only when the wireless operator learned another ship was nearby.

"It was disgusting," he says. He retired to his cabin, unwilling to take part in the sham.

SWEETIE PIE — By Nadine Seltzer

"The dog's harmless! It's the KID we're worried about!"

Crafty crows are a hunt challenge

TORONTO (CP) — The first shot will soon be heard in the annual war of wits between hunters and Canada's wiliest bird—the crow.

And with each year the war becomes more intense. The crow is increasing in numbers and nuisance factor, and hunters are going out in growing numbers to pit their skills against the "black plague," a bird considered by ornithologists to have the greatest brain development.

One of Canada's foremost crow hunters, Fred Lister, president of Hawthorn Press, says:

"I have always gone after crows but in the last few years more of the shooting fraternity have taken up the sport.

"Crows are a sporting target as they weave their way through the trees. They're smart, too. Once you have called them into a blind, that spot is finished. No matter how well you call they will not return. They seem to know where there is danger."

Crow hunters generally use shotguns but some experts go after their quarry with .22 rifles.

OUTFIT UNDER $20

Standard hunting equipment is a gun, camouflage similar to that used in jungle fighting and coloring for hands and face. A complete outfit for the novice may be bought for less than $50. Experts spend considerably more.

A must for the amateur is a crow caller. A good one can be purchased for as little as $20.

"I don't use a caller, I make my own calls," Lister says. "but for those who don't know how, records can be bought which teach the calls."

He has had as many as 50 crows respond to his calls from a blind at one time.

"Crows will not respond to a bad call, and they can spot a hunter whose hands and face are uncovered from about 100 yards."

Hunters obtain satisfaction from shooting crows, not only because of the sport, but because they are among the most destructive birds. They eat farmers' crops, kill game and song birds and generally make a nuisance of themselves. One estimate is that they kill more ducks in Canada in a year than all hunters in 20.

BEST IN SPRING

The best time to hunt crows, at least in southern Ontario, is May 24 to the middle of July. Crows don't respond in numbers to calls before May 24 because they're guarding their nests and caring for the young.

One annoyance for experts is the inexperienced hunters who use distress calls in an effort to attract crows. They don't get any results and also spoil that particular area for others.

Lister, who has bagged as many as 250 crows in two days, says they can provide a bonus for frustrated fishermen.

"If you're out fishing and nothing is biting, just grab your gun and go shoot some crows. I do this frequently, and it's great sport."

Reports given at P.N.G. night held by Maple Leaf Rebekahs at Danville

DANVILLE — On April 21, the Past Noble Grands Night was held at Maple Leaf Rebekah Lodge. Sis. Eileen Carson N.G. was in the chair with Sisters Ethel Baker V.G., Marilyn Purdon recording - secretary, Margaret Frost treasurer, Irene Monahan Financial - secretary, Dorothy Lockwood, P.N.G., Edith Stevens, Chaplain, Ethel Burns I.G., Barbara Barlow Warden, Frances Lodge conductor, Frances Hall F.B., Marion Williams and Mavis Mosher, S.S., also in attendance. Mrs. Anna Beliveau acted as musician in the absence of Sis. Joyce Knowles.

The charter was draped in memory of departed Sis., Florence Greer.

Favorable reports were heard from various committees among which was a report on the annual April bazaar, held last April 18, in the Anglican Church hall. The sale proved very successful and winners of the drawings held were: First, Miss Eurda Lodge, of Asbestos; second, Barrington Lodge, also of Asbestos; the door prize going to Mrs. Doris Gagnon, of Danville. The prizes were donated by merchants.

Following the reports, a brief talk was given by Sis. T. Anderson, D.D.P., who along with several others was a guest from Olive Branch, Richmond.

RICHMOND

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Boast accompanied by Mrs. Pearl Driver were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Boast, at Frelighsburg.

Dr. C. R. Boast has returned from Toronto, after spending a few days with his daughter, Miss Lois Boast.

Dr. C. R. Boast has returned from Toronto, after spending a few days with his daughter, Miss Lois Boast.

Foodless sales reported success by church Guild

MARBLETON — The regualr meeting of the Ladies' Guild of St. Paul's Church was held at the home of Mrs. Antoine Guillette April 21, two visitors welcomed.

The foodless food sales proved quite successful.

The question of cleaning the church hall was discussed and laid over for the next meeting.

It was decided to ask Mr. Worth Bishop to find out the date for the waste paper drive.

Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. James Mackay.

The next meeting will be on May 19, at the home of Mrs. Raymond Davidson.

It was announced that Sisters, Ella Hawthorne and Gladys Galbraith, are both hospitalized and it is hoped that they will receive cards from members.

The group has donated $100 to the Oddfellows to help with the renovation of the lodge rooms.

On May 1, the Oddfellows will hold a card party, to which Bro. Roy Monahan extends a welcome to all.

May 17, is the date set for the Oddfellow and Rebekah church parade, to be held in St. Augustine's Anglican Church. The Rebekahs will serve luncheon to all visiting Brothers and Sisters following the service.

Three candidates will be initiated on May 5.

Following the lodge closing, lunch was served by the junior members, in the newly renovated dining room.

EAST HEREFORD —

Mr. George Howe, of Montreal was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Ellingwood.

The Dormon children, of Beecher Falls, Vt., spent a vacation with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Munn Owen.

Mrs. Mae Bolton spent a week with friends, in Colebrook, N.H.

Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Pyne and family, of Stanstead, were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Owen.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Gray and Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Owen attended the funeral services for the late Hollis Owen, in Errol, N.H.

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — One exhibit that did not open at the New York world's fair last week was Reaching for the Stars, a production showing how two manned crafts will rendezvous in space.

There are two good reasons why: The building hasn't been completed; the exhibit still is being built in Hollywood.

The man putting it together is Frank Capra, one of the movies' great directors, and also a graduate of the California Institute of Technology, class of '21.

"This job is a challenge—and a helluva lot of work," said Capra. "The show will only run 17 or 18 minutes, but it will take me about five months to put it together."

The tardiness of the opening is no fault of his.

"Like a lot of things at the fair, it was started too late," said Capra. "The Martin Marietta Corp. people who are staging the show realized they were too far behind in January. That's when they yelled 'help!' They seemed to think I could help them."

MADE FILM CLASSICS

Capra has not only made film classics like Lost Horizon and Mr. Deeds Goes to Town, he also has had success in interpreting science to his fellow man.

"I started about 12 years ago," he said. "I was on the board of Caltech and the school asked me to help recruit students. It seems the educational system had been aimed at creating happy citizens, not scientists. So I made a film that pointed out the opportunities that could be had in scientific careers. It was highly successful. Then came Sputnik and the whole situation changed."

Then Bell Telephone wanted him to make some television specials on scientific subjects.

"I took five years to make four of them," Capra said. "I'm not even sure I made back my own expenses. But it was a challenge, and I like to tackle challenging things.

"Most of all, I wanted to show scientists in the universities what they could accomplish by using film."

Capra will use both film and live action for the world's fair exhibit. The show will also feature a pair of spacecraft models which will simulate a rendezvous. Capra expects to deliver the project June 15.

Stork shower is held at Beebe

BEEBE — Mrs. Arthur Lapenna, Jr., the former Vicki Flanders, was guest of honor at a stork shower held in the council room April 22, at which Miss Nora Lapenna and Mrs. A. Bertrand were hostesses.

The guest of honor had been invited by a friend to attend a bingo party, when upon arrival she was surprised on being greeted by 42 relatives and friends, who had gathered to shower her with gifts.

The hall was decorated in pink and blue, the special chair in which Mrs. Lapenna was seated being trimmed in the same colors.

The many gifts were placed on the table before the guest of honor, who was assisted in opening them by her mother, Mrs. Clarence Flanders, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Hugo Lapenna.

Lunch was served buffet style, the table being centered by a shower cake, iced in white and decorated in pink and blue stork motif, with an inscription written in the center. The cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Roland Sheldon.

Guests attended from Derby, Derby Line, Newport, Newport Center, Vt., and the Three Villages, as well as Beebe.

Annual banquet

Three hundred attend meeting of Derby Fish and Game Club

DERBY — Senator John Boylan, Essex County, candidate for Lt-Governor, from Island Pond, Vt., and Scott Rowden, District Supervisor Game Warden for the North Eastern division of Vermont, were guests speakers at the Derby Fish and Game annual banquet and meeting held on April 22, in the Academy gym.

Approximetely 300 persons attended, many coming from a distance. The women of Derby church, who have through the years made a reputation of their excellent turkey dinner, served. The women were thanked for their support to the club by Raymond Petelle.

Seated at the head table were Senator Boylan, Mr. Rowden, Walter Cabell, Chief Warden, Bill Wheelock, of Brattleboro, in charge of survey assistance, Jim Murphy, retiring club president, Paul Bedard, newly elected president, Don McNally, a member of the State Board five man committee, Ulsford Cargill, secretary, and Maurice Labor, director.

ANNUAL REPORT

Mr. Murphy, who presided for the opening business, extended a welcome to the large assembly which filled to capacity the large gym. Giving his annual report Mr. Murphy referred to the highlights of the past year. Executive meetings are held the third Monday of each month, excluding November and July, and are open to the public and any suggestions pertaining to conservation are welcome.

The club has membership in the Vermont Federation of Sportsman's clubs and sent delegates to their meetings. The purpose of the Federated club is group support at Legislation. Membership is also held in the National Wildlife association from which this club receives valuable imformation and reports of State activities. Contribution of money is made by the Derby Club to the Teachers Workshop, the Junior pool was stocked with trout.

A committee was set up, and is active, with Fred Murphy, as chairman, and upon recommendation of Scott Rowden, and a State Biologist, will remove trash dams from streams, deposit gravel in the streams for the purpose of encouraging natural spawning and any volunteers will be appreciated as there still remains much to be done along this line of work. The Derby Club hod membership in the N.R.A., the pay a sum of $120 for protective insurance at the range, and have made an investigation about the city of Sherbrooke drawing water from Lake Memphrmagog.

Paul Bedard spoke to the assembly about the 1963-64 hunters and safety program which had been most successful as 85 youngsters from points of Orleans County and Rock Island, Quebec, had participated and completed a course. Mr. Bedard paid tribute to the instructors of the course for their cooperation and to parents, who had brought children many miles to participate, to Mr. Barker, of Derby Academy and Sacred Heart School in Newport, the Lions Club, Derby, the cooperation of the newspapers and all who had given support otherwise. Mr. Bedard said plans are now in formation to have another course start after school finishes and to be completed before the hunting season starts in the fall.

AWARDS PRESENTED

Mr. Bedard also told his listeners about the adult D.C.M., course and presented awards to the champions and runners up, in the off-hand 16 rounds shooting, Francis Bullis scored 70 points of a possible 80 to place first, Paul Lalime 67, with B. Austin Sal Trackman tying with 65 marks. This same course will take place this summer, anyone who is a member of the Derby club may participate free of charge.

Mr. Bedard presented awards and told the group the ten weeks shooting course at the indoor range in the Derby Line Village hall where a total of over 100 men, women, boys and girls came for ten weeks and shot a total of 300 rounds. Of a possible 300 score, R. Boisvert scored 282:7 in the men's division for first place, with Francis Bullis 279, Pearce Wheeler, 278 and Leon Lacasse, 277:8.

In the women's division Mrs. Poots Kelley placed first, her score was 230 out of possible 300, Mrs. Paul Stratton scored second, and Mrs. Iola Wheeler, third, all being close runner ups to the high score.

In the junior boys section, Roger Routhier scored 232:7 out of 300, with Pat Murphy and Daniel Fortin not far behind him. In the Junior girls, C. Labor was first with a mark of 214:5 out of 300, Iola Smith and Janet Gray placed second and third.

Mr. Bedard said he hopes there will be another such course, he also thanked the Derby Line Village trustees for the use of the indoor range.

GOOD CONSERVATION

Senator Boylan congratulated Jim Murphy who has given a total of 17 years of devoted service as vice-president and president of the Club. He also wished every success to the new president, Paul Bedard. Speaking of the Derby Club, he paid tribute to the good conservation work program they are carrying out. He noted there are 89 access to lake areas in the State, plus perpetual leases for hunting grounds, much of this is brought about from the sale of hunting and fishing licences plus government grants.

Mr. Boylan offered suggestions to the five-man committee of which he was a member for over six years. He said the department is looking to the future of stream improvements in the State with old dams removed so not to deteriorate the waters. He noted the good work being done by Wardens, and of how fish and wildlife is involved with highways constructions, electric dams and so forth.

BROOKS STOCKED

Mr. Rowden, in his annual report, stated that the deer kill in the fall of 1963 had been down by 20 per cent, thought to have been due to weather conditions. More brooks had been stocked last year than previous and two accesses had been completed on Lake Memphremagog last summer a survey was begun of Lake Mempremagog and tributaries in Vermont, this is being continued and there is cooperation from the Canadian officials on fish life in this international lake.

Mr. McNally of the State Board said he had visited 70 State accesses last year and has hope of visiting the remainder this year. He said people in Vermont are proud of the work the Game Wardens are doing in their areas, club members also for what they are doing for conservation.

Another member of the Five Ma committee was present and introduced, G.W. Wright, with Game Warden of Orleans County, Norman Moreau, and Mr. Wheelock.

Mr. Murphy was elected director to replace the unexpired term of Mr. Bedard who was named president. Tribute was paid to Mr. Murphy for his excellent leadership and many hours of devotion over a period of the past 17 years. Maurice Labor was elected vice-president while Pearce Wheeler replaced Mr. Labor as a director. Mr. Cargill was re-elected as secretary and Fred Murphy treasurer. Directors elected were Julien Wheeler, Holland, William Armstrong, Derby, B. Austin, West Charleston and John Price, Derby Line.

Cross, pictures dedicated at church service

MELBOURNE RIDGE — At the regular service in the United Church on April 19, a brief, but impressive service took place, dedicating a cross, and three pictures, depicting scenes in the life of Jesus.

R. Morrison, on behalf of the congregation, welcomed a former resident and active church member, Mrs. Florence Roster, who now is residing in Richmond. He mentioned that when two and one half years ago Dale, only son of Mrs. Roster and the late George Roster, was accidentally killed while serving with Canadian troops in Egypt, the community, made a gift of money to Mrs. Roster, which she used as tribute to the memory of Dale. The remaining $25 Mrs. Roster donated to the church.

By erecting the cross and hanging the pictures there remains a reminder of a lasting friendship and at the same time beautify the sanctuary.

Mr. Morrison presented the cross and pictures to the minister, Mr. John Stokoe, who dedicated them with prayer.

Prior to the dedication service, Mrs. Gerald Fowler and Mr. Ernest Wilkins rendered a duet, with Mrs. Cecil Johnston at the organ.

Three Villages happenings

Mr. Roy Lennon, Mrs. Marie Begoir and son, George, and Mrs. Clarke, all of Sherbrooke, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Walsh, Derby Line, and not Mr. and Mrs. Leo Lord as was erroneously stated.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Paiement, Rock Island, were in Montreal, called there by the death and to attend the funeral, of her mother Mrs. G. H. LeDuc.

Mrs. Ora Gill, Rock Island, has been spending a few days with Miss Lena Gustin at, Ayer's Cliff, who has recently returned home from the Youville Hospital.

Mr. Frank Haskell, Rock Island, is a patient at the Sherbrooke Hospital. Mr. Archie Grady, Rock Island, also entered the same hospital on April 23, for eye surgery, Mrs. Grady remainding in Sherbrooke for two days, to be near him.

Mr. and Mrs. Erle Pocock, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Pocock, and son, Leslie, Meredith, N.H., were recent visitors of Mrs. Hazel Smith and all were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Smith, Sr., Derby Line.

Miss Ruth Aldrich, Braintree, Mass., spent the weekend with relatives in Derby Line.

Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, Stanstead, were called to Danville, by the death of Mr. Smith's brother, Mr. Roy Smith, and a few days later by the death of his sister, Florence, Mrs. William Greer.

Mr. Joseph Maheux, president of the Butterfield Company Quarter Century Club, has announced that the annual banquet and get together will take place at the Newport House on May 16. Another 20 men, of which 14 are from the Canadian and six from the American plant, will be welcomed into membership.

Guests of Mrs. John Webster, Sr., and family, Derby Line, have been Mr. and Mrs. Alex McEwen, Yonkers, N.Y., Mr. and Mrs. John Fraser, and Mrs. Linnie McEwen, Georgeville, Mrs. Helen Clayton, Banff, Scotland.

Social Service, speaker's topic at GA meeting

WATERLOO — As part of the badge work for this year, the 15 members of St. Luke's Girls Auxiliary held a Social Service Evening, on April 22, with Mrs. Katherine Snow, of Waterloo, as guest speaker.

There were 29 present, including 14 members of the G. A. 12 members from St. Hilda's Guild and the Woman's Auxiliary, the guest speaker, Mrs. Snow and two surprise visitors, Mrs. Wagner, Diocesan Deanery secretary, of Lachine and Mrs. Snowden, Diocesan Dorcas secretary, of Pointe Claire, both of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Mrs. Snow, who began her address by explaining the meaning of Social Service work in its many unprofessional aspects, gave the girls some original and helpful ideas for carrying on the work in a small way here at home. Her suggestions tuned to their age group, of 12 - 17 years, mainly concerned ways in which they could help elderly people, shut-ins, mothers of young children, and younger children at school.

The speaker reminded the girls that anything done in this line requires self-sacrifice and must be done, above all, with love and kindness, not as a good deed. She urged the girls never to make charity obvious, and always to keep strict confidence about anything they many see or hear in any of the homes they visit. It was also suggested that setting an example is a good way of helping and guiding the younger children, that Love Thy Neighbor, is perhaps the best guide-rule.

Mrs. Snow whose talk left the girls inspired and thoughtful, was thanked by Miss Helen Streeter. Groups of six were formed for discussion, each group being given a quotation to debate, relating to the idea of Social Service. After 10 minutes, a report of the findings was made by each group.

Mrs. O. T. Pickford introduced the speaker to everyone. The evening ended pleasantly with refreshments.
