

Above is the interior (a partial view) of the new pharmacy that has been built in Ormstown by Mr. Albert Chabot, the proprietor.

This is a modern Drug Store with self-service type and also prescription service for the residents of Ormstown. It provides the town with a modern and up-to-date pharmacy.

New, Modern Drug Store Will Be Added Asset To Ormstown

Every Canadian town likes to boast it has a really good drug store, for such a store is a great asset to any town. For many years in Ormstown, it has been a hit and miss affair, someone would open a drug store for a few months and then have to close it due to lack of business.

In 1954, Albert Chabot, owner of Ormstown and he decided to open a Drug Store which would provide full services. He opened his store on Bridge Street and has carried on business on this street ever since. However, now he has changed his location and has built an up-to-date and modern store just a little further down the street toward the Bridge. He can claim that this is the first Drug Store in Ormstown to really take the public and he has put a lot of hard work into gaining the confidence of the citizens, and has succeeded.

To really succeed, a drug store must have the cooperation of the medical profession and once it has been shown that Mr. Chabot could supply the services needed, the medical profession of Ormstown gave him their cooperation. The public found that here was a store which could supply their needs in the prescription and drug line and soon were patronizing the store. Thus having secured a measure of the goodwill of the community and become established, Mr. Chabot decided it was time Ormstown had a more up-to-date store with better facilities to supply the needs.

Huntingdon High School Armistice Assembly, 1960

Armistice Day, 1960, was fittingly observed by the students of Huntingdon High School in an assembly held by Mrs. F. G. McCrimmon, class 9A. Mrs. F. G. McCrimmon played suitable music while the pupils were entering the auditorium. The chairman, Fred Hutchings, gave the invocation, and announced the hymns.

The reading of Psalm 140 by Gail Godin who followed by prayer led by Anna Stark. Marsha Hooker recited the poem "High Flight", verses written by a teen-age airman who, at the age of 19, made the supreme sacrifice.

As the hour of 11 A.M. had now almost arrived, Mrs. McCrimmon played softly until the siren sounded for the two minutes silence. Following this was the "Last Post", sounded by Stephen Harrigan, Gerald Carrigan and Gary Thompson, youthful band students of Bandmaster Lindsay Cullen.

To Sandra Leggett fell the pleasant duty of introducing a well and favourably known graduate of our school, Mr. Raymond Rowat. For his topic, Mr. Rowat chose "Our National Holidays". He reminded his youthful audience that each of these holidays had their origin in a different set of emotions, e.g., Christmas, which has a strong religious background, emphasizes "Goodwill to men", and is a time of rejoicing. New Year's festivities, on the sidewalls, with display shelves of the movable type placed here and there in the centre of the floor. These can be rearranged to suit the mood of the proprietor and his plans of display. In the rear is a small counter for wrapping and paying for purchases. There is a full basement self-service type, that is customers may select their own purchases, but if they need advice there are assistants ready to help them. The stock carried by the store is of the variety usually found in almost any store of this type. The assistant, Miss Gladys Côté, is a cosmetic consultant with a certificate from Richard Hudnut, Mr. Chabot is a fully qualified dispenser for prescriptions of all kinds.

Mr. Chabot is also modernizing his store but all his plans in this connection are not yet complete. There is a full basement under the store and here extra stock is arranged on shelves in order and ready to be transferred to shelves in the store. This basement also acts as warehouse for storing clothing and other articles for the needy as may be required. One side of the basement is given over to this purpose.

Mr. Chabot has not done all his planning on the store, for at the back of the premises the river runs its course and provides a scenic view that makes for better living in off-business hours. The ground has been levelled and at the rear where the river flows by, a high cement wall has been built, with pillars and in between the pillars, an ornamental railing. In due time it is the intention to make a really nice garden with many flowers, trees and shrubs and along the sides there will be some kind of ornamental evergreen hedge. With a large window cut into the living room of the house, a truly magnificent view will be obtained during the summer months.

Mr. Chabot feels that the kind cooperation of the medical profession of Ormstown and the splendid spirit of goodwill shown on behalf of the citizens has given him courage to do all these things. In turn Ormstown has gained a drug store to be proud of and another asset in many improvements that have been made in business premises in this town.

Other hand, are entirely for pleasure, parties, dancing, fun.

Next comes Easter — again a religious holiday — a time of sorrow and remorse, based on Good Friday, and great and triumphant rejoicing on Easter morning, Easter, with its promise of the Resurrection, is a time of rebirth and new beginnings, as earth breaks free from the bonds of winter.

Quite in contrast to these three national holidays is Dominion Day, which, coming as it does, in the midst of summer, is characterized by picnics or other outdoor celebrations. Then on November 11th, usually a chill, bleak day, comes Armistice or Remembrance Day, a day of national mourning, mingled with our sadness, however, should be a strong feeling of gratitude to those men and women who sacrificed not only their youth, but in many cases, their lives, to preserve our freedom and heritage.

The speaker then threw out the challenge to the students: How does all this affect you, young people, or how should it affect you? His answer was that each boy and girl should determine to preserve this heritage, purchased at such a price. Every student should say to himself: "My contribution to carrying on the traditions of the past is to work diligently at my studies, and so prepare myself to do my share in the development and promotion of my heritage." On behalf of students and staff, Joanne Gardiner extended thanks to Mr. Rowat for his ex-

Howick Community Observes Remembrance Day

The Howick Community again observed Remembrance Day by attending Divine Worship in the Howick High School Auditorium. The service was very well attended, over 300 people being present. Owing to the inability of any other local cleric being able to attend, the Rev. C. R. Sutherland officiated.

There were many expressions of appreciation that the Community, as a whole, had been again able to pay this yearly tribute to the many who, from this community had made so great a sacrifice — the laying down of their life, that the world, as they then knew it, might be enabled to live without the fear of oppression. One feature of the service which was of particular interest was the exceptional congregational singing. It really seemed as though the whole assembly put their heart and soul into the singing of the Hymns of Remembrance. Major John Dougal, of the Salvation Army, gave the Address, and his inspiring remarks brought to the fore-front, in the thinking of those present, the necessity of a continued remembrance of the truth that Sacrifice was always the basis upon which continued National and International well-fare was erected. He took as his subject "Put on the whole armour of God" that as in the days when fighting men wore armour, the armour consisted of several parts, so, as the Armour of God was to protect from the fiery darts of the wicked, that armour consisted of different attitudes — beliefs — actions.

The Ceremony of Wreath laying at the Memorial was also very well attended and was made more inspiring by the assistance of the Ormstown Town Band and the attending of Delegations from the Legion Branches of Caughnawaga, Huntingdon and Ormstown. An innovation this year was the reading, by the President of the Howick Branch, of the names of those who were known to have the Supreme Sacrifice since 1914. This innovation received many expressions of approval.

On the return from the Memorial to the School, Comrade Horne, President of the Caughnawaga Branch, took the salute at the March Past.

The sale of Poppies this year were at least as good as at other years. The full amount will not be known until all collections have been counted.

Annual Adult Community School Closes Another Successful Session

The fifth annual Adult Community School of Huntingdon came to a close on Monday evening. Like its predecessors this adult school proved to be a beneficial social and educational event for the people of this community. 200 or more people participated, and all enjoyed their respective classes.

A great many of the adults have no reason to visit the Huntingdon High School, and as many of them are tax payers it is good for them to avail themselves of the opportunity to view the school during these seven evenings each fall. A questionnaire was submitted on Monday evening asking those present if they would like to participate in another such school next fall. In fact, either six or eight would like to do so. A long list of potential subjects asked for expressions as to what subject would be favoured. When the analysis is completed of these questionnaires it would seem natural to believe an even better programme will be the end result.

Following classes on Monday evening the adults assembled in the cafeteria where they had an opportunity to view the work done by the adults during the classes. Great interest was exemplified in viewing the exhibits, all of which were of quite a high order of perfection.

Mr. Philip Tinker as chairman, introduced the members of the executive; viz. Mrs. Gordon McLean, Co-Chairman, who presented gifts to the members; Mrs. Frank Wilnot, Registrar; Mrs. Gordon Grant, Secretary; Mr. George Thompson, Treasurer and Principal Maurice Melnyk looked after publicity matters.

She reviewed highlights of the annual board meeting held in Macdonald College in June. Although still a branch member, Dundee W.I. has lost an old and valued member from her meeting when Mrs. Chas. Smallman moved away a short time ago. As a citizenship report, Mrs. Earl Gardiner read about a Chinese Festival held in the fall. Gifts of fruit, vegetables grown are offered to the moon goddess. The education report was excerpted from Gordon Sinclair's column in a current magazine. Mrs. E. J. Cameron read that of a nation's men and women living in cities more than one half carry lunches to work. The homemaker is responsible for the contents of the box, which must be as appetizing and nutritious as possible. Mrs. A. H. At the last A.C.W.V. meeting a scholarship was formed in memory of Lady Aberdeen, who was one of the founders of this organization. Sixth Defeat For Valleyfield Braves This Season
 Rosemont 5, Braves Jr. 2
 Like in the games before, the Braves again were tired out by the third period and so saw their adversaries win by a count of 5 to 2. Roland Boyer's players had given a very good performance during the first two periods, but after the 40 minutes of play they were completely exhausted. This is not meant to be useless criticism but just pointing out that several players get tired out by their own fault, as some stick after one adversary without necessity or special purpose. Others will continue to perform on the ice, even when the period

The charming couple are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brown, who were married on November 5th, at St. Cyprian's Church, Barbados.

St. Cyprian's church, Barbados, was the scene of a very lovely wedding, on November 5th, 1960. A short veil of illusion tulle was held in place by a lace pillbox and she carried a bouquet of white cattleya orchids. The maid of honour, Miss Gloria Bourne and the bridesmaid Miss Anne George, of Montreal, were dressed alike in frocks of aqua embroidered swiss cotton made with short sleeves, scooped neckline and short bouffant skirts. Obituary

The Late Harold Bott
 A funeral service was held recently in the William Wray Chapel, Montreal, for Harold Bott, a retired teacher, who at one time lived at Ormstown, Que. Born near Stratford-on-Avon in England, Mr. Bott came to Canada as a boy of 14 and for some time worked on a farm in the Ormstown area. Working his way through High School, he enrolled as a student in the Montreal Diocesan Theological College. Later he switched to the arts course at McGill University, graduating with a B.A. degree. On Graduation he accepted a position as teacher at the High School of Montreal, where he taught a wide variety of subjects during his 34 years there. Mr. Bott was also closely associated with sport. He was in his 71st year and is survived by his wife, the former Ceclia Dube, three daughters and two sons. Mr. Bott was twice married, his first wife, the former Elizabeth Henthorn died some years ago.

 was left over to the regular meeting to be held shortly. The President then welcomed the guests, members from St. Andrews W.M.S., Huntingdon W.M.S., Athelstan, the Athelstan Evening Auxiliary, friends from Kensington United Auxiliary and Montreal. A solo "Speak Just a Word for Jesus" was sung by Miss Janet Arthur and was enjoyed by all present. A short informative article was read by the President telling of the origin of Thank Offering Meetings, how and when these were first held and the benefits derived from them. Following this the guest speakers were introduced. Miss Doris Blaise, President of the Montreal Presbyterial W.M.S. (W.D.) and Miss Margaret MacNaughton, corresponding secretary of the Montreal Presbyterial. Miss Blaise's topic was "Missions in our own Country", she spoke briefly on the work being done among the Indians, the French Protestants and the Chinese in Canada. Miss MacNaughton's topic was "Overseas Missions." She used a map of the world to show where our Mission fields were situated and took us on an "imaginary journey" to each one, meeting the workers there, and telling in brief of the work they have accomplished. She also had on display pictures of the mission workers, who were visited. Both talks were very informative and interesting and were enjoyed by all. A vote of thanks was tendered the guest speakers, also the soloist Miss Arthur, the pianist Mr. Chas. Mackenzie, and Miss Anna Rutherford who was instrumental in securing the guest speakers. At the close of the meeting a Social Hour was held, refreshments were served and all had an opportunity to meet the special guests and renew old friendships. Offering amounted to $37.25. We were very pleased that Mrs. Wm. Murray and Mrs. Wm. Steele were able to be with us again, and sorry that a few of our other members were not able to be present due to illness.

is over. In this way, no wonder they are tired out after the two first periods. Hockey is very popular in this area, again over 1800 persons came to encourage and applaud the Braves and for that the directors of the Braves are grateful to the population. Knowing their hockey, the leaders of the game are well aware that a young and newly established team will find some difficulties to become first of their league; however, they know also that Roland Boyer's players can do much better. If the sport friends realize that the players do their best to give a good performance and eagerly try to win the game.

United Church Activities

The Explorer Group of Huntingdon United Church visited the Fire Station last Friday afternoon. This was the second in their series of Community Explorations. Chief J. L'Heureux explained the work of the Fire Department in the community, described the equipment that is used and answered many questions that were asked by the girls. Appreciation was expressed to the Chief and his men for their kindness in inviting the girls to the Station and tribute was paid to their excellent community service through the year. The girls then returned to the Church for their closing business meeting and worship.

The C.G.I.T. Group of Huntingdon United Church welcomed one hundred and twenty five girls to their annual Fall District Rally held in the Church last Saturday. The program included Worship, recreation, discussion groups on various topics, Bible study and handwork.

"What is the Final Authority in our Christian Faith?" will be the theme of the sermon to be preached by the Rev. Robert Beal at the service of worship at Huntingdon United Church on Sunday. The Sacrament of Baptism will be administered during the service and the Sunday School will meet in all departments during the Church Hour.

W. M. S. Auxiliary
Members and friends of the afternoon W.M.S. aux. of the Huntingdon United Church met in the Church Hall, on Nov. 9th, on the occasion of the Autumn Thank Offering meeting.

The guest speaker of the afternoon was the W.M.S. Sectional Vice-President, Mrs. R. B. Tolhurst of Howick, who brought Mrs. C. R. Sutherland and Mrs. B. Chisholm both of Howick to assist her in the programme.

Mrs. Tolhurst spoke about the new organization, "United Church Women" and how it will affect the Woman's Missionary Society when it starts in January, 1962.

A New Board of World Missions to care for the Overseas work, now done by the "Board of Overseas Missions" and the W.M.S. Dominion Board.

A New Board of Home Missions to care for the Home Mission Work of our Church.

A New Board of Women under General Council. She said that it is important to ensure that our present work be carried forward through 1961, so that we shall be ready when the new women's organization begins in 1962.

Mrs. Tolhurst then called on Mrs. B. Chisholm to speak on the New Study course, "Into all the World Together".

Mrs. Chisholm spoke about togetherness in friendship and neighbourliness. She mentioned the word "Ecumenical" means togetherness.

The ecumenical sign of the Ship under the Cross was really an early Christian symbol found scratched on the walls of the Catacombs.

Today it symbolizes the Christian Church voyaging on the stormy sea of Christian Unity. There is no sail, no rudder, no smokestack. At the centre is the Cross of Christ, from which all power and direction must come.

The ecumenical movement means that Christians should express their love to one another, and to a divided world, in a way that will be less unworthy of God's love to us.

Love is the secret of effective mission that has raised a Cross over the Church and the World. Yes! into all the World together. Mrs. Tolhurst then called on Mrs. Sutherland to show a film strip "World in a Word" of thought inspiring drawings of the meaning of the word "Ecumenical".

After the close of the meeting a social hour with refreshments was enjoyed.

Teatime Topics

A Roman god has been the inspiration for a new hair style. The style, designed to look well from both the front and the rear view, was named after the god Janus who depicted two faces.

Originators of the design say the name was chosen because the style looks back to the 1930s and forward to the space age.

The hair style was demonstrated in Toronto recently when 700 Ontario hairdressers, members of the Guild of Hair Design, met to "brush up" on their technique.

The new style is closer to the head than styles in recent months and is a preview of even "smaller" heads next season.

"One of the demonstrators, Vicky Runge of Toronto, had some advice on care of the hair between settings.

"If women look after their hair the first couple of days after a setting they don't have problems before the next appointment," Mrs. Runge explained.

She advises using clips to hold the line of the setting for the first two nights, and protect the style with a net or cap.

"Then for the rest of the week you can forget about hair setting routine at bedtime," she said. Bulbs and Borders

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church "Ladies Aid"

A very enjoyable meeting was held in the Church Annex at which a "Pot Luck Supper" was held.

The President, Mrs. Russel Mvatt opened the meeting with all members repeating the Lord's Prayer after which Mrs. Paul took the Bible reading from St. Matthew Chap. 7.

During the absence of the Treasurer, Mrs. Bickford, the Rev. Mrs. J. Willock read the report.

Mrs. Willock reported that a new stove had been purchased for the Church kitchen at the cost of $200.00. A donation of $10.00 to the Salvation Army was also reported.

Miss Mable McMillan gave her Annual report of the Church members who had helped with the sewing at the Huntingdon County Hospital during the past year.

Miss Francis Walker reported having visited several members of the Hospital.

The President reported that Mrs. Napier and Mrs. McLeod had been chosen on the nomination committee for the officers for the coming year.

The December meeting will be held in the Church Annex on the first Wednesday of December instead of the second Wednesday. That is December 7th. Mrs. G. Paul, Mrs. Merson and Mrs. Bruce will be the hostesses.

The meeting closed with a Mizpah after which although a small gathering of members were present a very delightful social period followed.

Changeover In Government At Washington Already On

The complicated process of a changeover in government at Washington began as soon as it was known that John Fitzgerald Kennedy, Democrat, had defeated Richard Milhouse Nixon, Republican, in the U.S. presidential election.

Kennedy, 43, the first Roman Catholic to achieve the office, will not be inaugurated as president until Jan. 20, but between now and then cabinet appointments will be made and a host of lesser administrative officials selected.

Advisers to the new Democratic party government are already in various departments to see that the changeover is made as smoothly as possible.

Some officials will stay on. At his first conference as the president-elect, Kennedy said he had asked Allen Dulles, chief of the Central Intelligence Agency, and J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the FBI, to work with him, and both had agreed.

The winning presidential candidate needed a total of 269 electoral college votes, and as late returns trickled in Kennedy had taken 300, compared to 188 for Nixon. The electoral college total is 537 allocated among 50 states.

The popular vote total was a different matter. Republican advisers said they believe that Nixon may gain a lead over Kennedy in the final total of popular votes. This would not affect the result, but any such margin would be regarded as a boost for Nixon again in 1964.

The AP count last Saturday had Kennedy ahead in the popular vote by 33,567,212, to 33,288,935—giving Kennedy 50.2 per cent.

Kennedy's Aims
President-elect Kennedy, getting his first rest in weeks, is on vacation at Palm Beach, Fla., at the home of his father, Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to Britain. The new president's wife Jacqueline, expecting their second child in a few weeks, was at Washington with their three-year-old daughter Caroline.

The president-elect sent replies to congratulations he received from three Western alliance leaders. He assured Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain, President De Gaulle of France and Chancellor Adenauer of West Germany that he would work with them to defend freedom and achieve disarmament with proper controls.

De Gaulle and Adenauer sent their message by cable, but Prime Minister Macmillan sent a letter which was delivered to Kennedy by the British consul in Boston.

Macmillan wrote that he looked forward "to working in the causes which the people of this country and the United States both hold so dear."

Kennedy's reply noted that he "formed a warm affection for the British people when my father was ambassador to the court of St. James", and it has continued to this day.

Congo slayings
An 11-man detachment of Irish soldiers, part of the UN force, was ambushed at a damaged bridge in the Congo's Katanga province last week and only two survived. The Irish killed 10 of the attacking Baluba tribesmen and wounded 10 more before the fighting ended.

The chief of the Baluba tribe, Jason Sandwe, is exiled in Leopoldville because he opposes Katanga president Moïse Tshombe's independence policy.

From Leopoldville, Chief Sendwe expressed his regrets to the 33rd Irish Battalion for the "tragic misunderstanding." He said his tribesmen staged an ambush as part of their guerrilla war

The General Electric Company supplied a film, "The Great River" referring to the building of the St. Lawrence Deep Waterways. The film was shown to the Rotary Club on Monday. The film was truly very outstanding. In expressing thanks for the privilege of seeing the film, Rotarian F. E. Thanks are due Braithwaite Bros., the local representatives for General Electric for obtaining the use of the film.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Liddy of Montreal West were week-end guests at the home of Mrs. F. H. Hunter.

Revolt Fails

A 30-hour revolt in Viet Nam against pro-Western President Ngo Dinh Diem ended last Saturday with the president apparently firmly in control again, and rebel paratroopers fleeing before loyalist troops.

Diem made a radio broadcast from Saigon appealing to the people stay "calm and vigilant." He denounced "the perfidy of the coup leaders in fooling the paratroopers into joining their criminal acts."

The government said paratroopers who took part in the abortive coup had agreed to cooperate with the Diem regime. It was reported at the same time that two South Vietnamese fighter planes forced down an air force plane 200 miles north-east of Saigon that was carrying two being leaders of the revolt.

The pilot had been forced to take off by Lt. Col. Vuong Van Dong, deputy commander of a paratroop brigade, and Col. Nguyen Chanh Thi, who held as a hostage Gen. Thai Quang, commander of the Saigon region.

The rebel leaders abandoned their attempt to overthrow the 50-year-old strongman president when thousands of loyalist troops surrounded the paratroopers at Saigon.

There was no estimate of the number of casualties. At least four bodies were seen after an attack on the presidential palace, and many wounded persons were dragged away. A government broadcast said "we have captured and killed many insurgent troops."

Algiers Violence
The cry of "De Gaulle to the galleys" was heard again in Algeria as right-wing European demonstrators picked Armistice Day to show their anger at the French president's offer to allow Moslem Algerians to decide their own future.

Police were stoned, buses were wrecked and the American culture centre in the north African city was damaged. About 100 persons were injured and 70 arrested before calm was restored. The outbreak was the most serious in Algiers since the abortive white settlers' revolt 10 months ago.

Afraid To Stay Alone?

A woman's scream is still her best defence against the stranger who forces his way into her home, according to Paul Brock writing in the October issue of Chatelaine. He advised woman not to attempt to argue or fight with an intruder, but to get out as fast as possible—screaming.

A person bent on maliciousness or crime would not be reasoned out of his plans, the writer said, but he could be frightened away.

Should the exit be locked then the nearest window should be smashed. The sound of breaking glass combined with a woman's scream were a combination that could frighten away the intruder and bring help.

Mr. Brock felt that every apartment door and outside door should have either a peephole, or a chain lock that didn't permit the door to open more than a couple of inches. He warned that if the door opened much more than this, a hand could reach in and unlatch the chain.

Other precautions suggested were not opening the door to strangers until a satisfactory answer had been received as to who they were; careful examination of credentials of the person purporting to be an inspector from the electric, gas, telephone or water company; not pressing the apartment buzzer until certain of the identity of the caller; leaving extra lights burning in the house or apartment.

The cheapest and most effective protection against intruders was the old-fashioned whistle, Mr. Brock said, and recommended it for women who were alone at home.

SPECIAL PENCIL HELPS 'IDENTITY' CHILD'S CLOTHING

More children, more class rooms, more schools—that's the story every year at this time as more than 40,000 schools open their doors to more than one-fifth of Canada's population.

The back-to-school movement at the end of the two-month vacation period directly or indirectly affects almost everyone—children, teachers, parents, employers and shops of all kinds. And, as has been the rule for the last decade, enrolments will be higher.

This means, of course, that classroom facilities will be strained at the seams and confusion in the school cloakrooms will be especially chaotic.

You've probably had experience in the past when your children came home from school with only one rubber, or minus a rainhat, or even one rubber that belonged to them, another rubber that belonged to someone else. And they've told you this happened because of the scramble that customarily takes place in the cloakroom.

What's the solution? Well, a few cents spent to purchase a weather-resistant pencil can eliminate such confusion can spare you the bother of searching out your child's lost raincoat.

A weather-resistant pencil looks like an ordinary lead pencil—costs only a few cents more—but it makes a mark that's impervious to weather. This mark will last for weeks, even months, and the pencil will write on almost anything—cloth, rubber, cellophane.

Write your child's name under the collar of his raincoat, on the inside of his rubbers and other rainwear to make identification easy and fast. You'll find that the few cents spent on the weather-resistant pencil will more than pay for itself in money saved in purchasing replacements for lost—or strayed—clothing.

Howick
Remembrance Services at Georgetown and Riverfield
 HOWICK. — On Sunday, November 13th., at 11:00 A.M. an inspiring Remembrance Service was held in Georgetown Church. The theme of the service was "Imperishable Memories" and the Rev. W. M. Brown impressed "Memories" as a vitally potent factor in life and immortality.

Mr. Clifford McCaig, representing those who served, placed the Wreath of Remembrance on the Communion Table; the "Silence of Remembrance" followed, the congregation standing with bowed heads.

The choir sang the anthem "Keep on Believing, God will answer Prayer", and the service closed with the singing of "O God of Love, O King of Peace", one verse of "O Canada" and "God Save The Queen".

At Riverfield at 2:00 P.M. in the afternoon, another large congregation held their "Service of Remembrance" in Riverfield Church. The Rev. W. M. Brown followed the same theme: "Imperishable Memories" — and wreaths were laid on the Communion Table by Mrs. Evans, Mr. Carmen Goudrie, Mr. Finlay Milne, and Mr. Matthew McKell.

At the close of the church service, the Rev. W. M. Brown and the congregation proceeded to the memorial in Riverfield Cemetery, where the wreaths were placed at the base of the memorial. The choir sang — "O God our Help in Ages Past" — the Rev. W. M. Brown led in Scripture and Prayer, and the service was concluded by "God Save The Queen."

Friends of Mrs. A. M. (Ruth) Ness are glad to know she has received her French Specialist Diploma. This is an achievement, as it marks the highest French certificate offered by the Province of Quebec. Mrs. Ness is an enthusiastic and imaginative teacher, and works hard to give students the magic key that opens the door to a new world of bilingualism. The key that gives them more and better opportunities in the business world, and provides a wealth of new literature. Best of all it makes it possible to communicate, and have a friendly, understanding relationship with more people, both locally and abroad.

Out Of Hockey Now But Still Well Known "Battleship" Leduc

ALBERT "Battleship" LEDUC

His father was a ship captain. He played eight straight seasons for Canadiens before going to Ottawa on loan in 1933-34, but finished up the campaign in New York with Rangers, sent there by Dandurand who wanted to oblige his friend Lester Patrick. Rangers were handicapped on the back division, Ching Johnson side lined with a broken jaw.

Albert regards this as a memorable experience since he played alongside the giant "Tuffy" Abel, six-foot-one and 235 pounds. Back with Canadiens in 1934-35 Leduc terminated his career in the big league, and moved on to Quebec Beavers as playing-coach. Some stars of future magnitude came under his wing at Providence. He sent Toe Blake to Canadiens and the next season coached one of the all time illustrious forward lines, the Krauts — Babe Demart, Milt Schmidt — Bobby Bauer.

His business interests at home — in the paper business — led him to quit coaching too far from home. He returned to Valleyfield, but found time to pilot the Verdun Maple Leafs in the CSHL. Here he had players of note like Claude Bourque, Med Martel, Smiley Meronek and Ted Dandurand. He coached for two seasons at Lachine and Valleyfield where he became part owner of the arena for a number of years.

Today at 58, Leduc has many interests, a furniture factory, a hockeystick plant, in Valleyfield. In Montreal he is associated with lifetime friend Paul Berube in Consolidated Agencies, a wholesale beverage outlet, and he's connected with another firm of which Red Dutton, in Calgary, is vice-president.

He's a charter member of the Valleyfield Golf Club, shoots in the low 90s, a season subscriber to Forum hockey for more than 25 years; Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus; president of the Tourist Club in Valleyfield, a member of the Reform Club and Palestra Nationale in Montreal.

Besides his home in Valleyfield, he owns another place in Miami Beach, Fla., where he spends four months each winter with his wife the former Jeanne Lebeuf. They have a daughter married to a surgeon with five grandchildren in the Town of Mount Royal.

According to the latest crop report from the agricultural division of the Bureau of Statistics, this year's hay crop is likely to be of approximately normal size but its quality is expected to be affected by weeds. This is a serious warning which should prompt the many farmers who intend to harvest timothy seed, to take special care in choosing which of their fields they will set aside for the purpose.

Those who have had experience know that timothy seed is difficult to clean because of the fact that there is not much difference between the size and weight of the seeds and those of a number of noxious weeds such as white daisies, wintergrass and couch grass. They also know that it is almost impossible to get a good price for timothy seed which contains weed seeds of this kind.

Stands of timothy intended for seed should be cut so as to leave as high a stubble as possible. By this means, the inclusion of the shorter weeds with the crop will be aided. Mr. Paul Methot of the Quebec Department of Agriculture also recommends that seed crops of timothy be left standing until they are well matured and seeds drop off from the tips of a large proportion of the heads. This will reduce the proportion of seeds which get dehulled in the threshing. Timothy cut too early is difficult to thresh and the seeds are easily dehulled in the process. The loss of the hulls spoils the appearance of the seed and results in a greater and quicker loss of its power of germination.

If timothy is to be harvested with a combine, the operator, in order to be efficient, must be carried out when both crop and weather conditions are dry. For this reason, it is inadvisable to start combining too early in the morning or to continue too late in the day. Furthermore, timothy seed which has been harvested with a combine should be spread out in a thin layer on the floor of a well-ventilated building, otherwise there is a risk that it will heat and lose all commercial value. In some cases, it would even be better to clean timothy seed as soon as it has been threshed; firstly, in order to screen out green weed seeds (which are likely to cause heating) and secondly, because the current of air of the fanning mill dries the timothy seed while it removes impurities.

Experienced producers of seed always pay a great deal of attention to the handling of their harvest of timothy seed and, by doing so, reap substantial rewards.

CUPBOARD LOVE
 Anybody can be a good boy at home. That's where the grub comes from. I am trying to teach people that decent-minded citizens ought to be good to people they don't know.

Mr. Harold Sturge, London Magistrate.

The story is told of a cannibal standing over a huge cooking-pot, shaking powder in from a tin, and stirring briskly.

"What you got there?" asked another cannibal.

The first one replied "Instant missionary."

One elderly spinster sniffed when anyone suggested that it was too bad that she did not have a husband.

"I've a dog that growls, a parrot that swears, a chimney that smokes, a cat that stays out all night," she retorted. "Why should I want a husband?"

Humour Variety.

Who said you can't improve on nature? Rattlesnakes are bad enough, but in Knoxville, Tennessee, owing to the proximity of atomic waste, they are also radioactive.

Why Procrastinate?

Everyone in these days suffers under the feeling of being pressed for time. We do not seem to catch up with things as we used to do. We are afraid to sit down with only our thoughts for company, because those thoughts inevitably turn on something we should be doing.

Much of this feeling is due to procrastination, the habit of needlessly putting off things to which we should attend. The putting off is in turn caused by inertia and lack of planning.

This is a serious problem, because procrastination does more than almost any other habit to deprive us of satisfaction, success and happiness. It does not solve any problem when we toss it into the tray marked "pending."

More than two centuries ago Edward Young, disappointed in law, politics and in his thirty-five year rectorship of a small church, wrote the often-quoted line "Procrastination is the thief of time." In fact, procrastination is much more. It is the thief of our self-respect. It nags at us and spoils our fun. It deprives us of the fullest realization of our ambitions and hopes.

In business, a man who hesitates is lost. He seeks, quite rightly, to bring to bear on his decisions the mature judgment that is the outcome of thought directed toward solving a problem, but there is a deadline beyond which he must not prolong his deliberation. He must make decisions, and not postpone them, or his opportunity for profit and fulfillment disappear.

In our other life, the cultural part, procrastination is equally damaging. There is usually no want of desire on the part of most persons to arrive at the results of self-culture, but there is great temptation not to pay the necessary cost of it in time and work.

Even our leisure is eaten into by procrastination. So many people complain that they have no time for leisure. They are constantly driven. Life for them is a steady grind or a mad dream. These are people who do not organize their time and energy. They are of the sort that find themselves nervously unfit to deal with immediate things, to stand the pressure of an urgent job.

It is amusingly true that few of us really enjoy the sensation of putting things off. Our consciences prompt us from taking pleasure out of postponing our chores.

Menace to success Business men who are today at the heights of success are invariably men who were judicious enough to exert themselves at the proper time twenty or thirty years ago. They did not put off any of the things that were necessary to their advancement. Having their eye on tomorrow's opportunities they got today's business out of the way today.

As Samuel Smiles said pungently in his Self Help: "Men who are habitually behind in their work are as habitually behind success. You do not see listless or languid men at the top of the executive tree."

Many men may credit their success in life to looking just a little way ahead and so bringing the future up to the present. They say to themselves: "If I do that now..." instead of "If I find myself compelled to do that sometime..."

Young people particularly need to beware of putting off. Dante described the vice in this way: "Hesitating I remain at war 'twixt will and will not in my thoughts." Eventually, perhaps sooner than we think, it is too late. In maturity, the procrastinating man finds himself one of the many ordinary, dispensable workers, while his boyhood chum who busied himself sits at the mahogany desk.

When things are deferred till the last minute, and nothing prepared beforehand, every step finds an impediment. It becomes harder to do things. We are pushed into blundering through on hasty judgments.

Herein is a paradox. By trying to take things easy we do not make things easy. It is possible to spend more energy in figuring out ways to escape a task than is necessary to accomplish it. Our available energy is lowered by inward conflict between "do it now" and "put it off." We lose our poise, because we are always catching up, always in a hurry to do today what we should have done yesterday, always off balance.

Not only is procrastination a deadly blight on a man's life, but it is a nuisance to all his companions. Everybody with whom the procrastinator has to do in family, factory or office is thrown from time to time into a state of fever. Everyone else has to work harder to take up the slack he leaves.

Habit comes slyly The habit of putting off has a way of creeping upon us insidiously. What does it matter, we think, if we don't write that letter today or telephone that prospect for business, or make that dental appointment? Tomorrow is always another day, we say blithely but childishly.

Darwin put off publication of his theories from day to day and finally from year to year, despite the urging of his friends, until he was scooped by a fellow-scientist half a world away. And people today, even in the more enlightened countries, are killing themselves by putting off such simple, though vital things as seeing their doctors.

It is a salutary exercise to consider the successes we almost enjoyed but which escaped us because we put off decision or action. By doing things as they come along we entertain our great opportunities. But if we wait to opportunity, "I am young; there is plenty of time", then opportunity passes us by and we find that, as Francis Bacon remarked in one of his essays, "opportunity has a bald noodle behind her; there is nothing to grasp."

None of us needs to look beyond himself for examples. We postponed writing that report on Wednesday, found ourselves loaded with pressing jobs on Thursday and Friday, and now we have to work over the weekend without secretarial help and with no one to provide answers to unexpected questions. We put off visiting our ailing friend on our way East, saying that we could take time for the visit on our return journey, but by then it was too late. We put off our household or garden chores, perhaps trifling away our time in idle chat, and find ourselves overwhelmed by visitors or urgent duties.

The penalties of procrastination are heavy. Many a man has discovered after his house burned down that he had let his insurance lapse the previous month. Many a salesman has found business going to rivals because he put off deciding how to approach a difficult prospect.

What causes procrastination? It is all very well to admit that procrastination is a bad thing, but if we are to do anything effective toward its cure we must know something of what causes it.

It may be the product of indolence, a vice which rewards everyone's scurvily indolence may be the weak link in the chain of a business man's character. It may show itself in the dawdling of the workman, in the listlessness of the housewife, in the sloth of the panhandler. All these people are putting off something. They are reluctant to tackle a job, or are baffled by small difficulties, or are engrossed in spinning out some activity unnecessarily.

Procrastination may, in some instances, be attributed to ill health. Energy to tackle jobs and get them out of the way is the product of physical health and a purpose.

A child who cannot find his clothes in the morning may be unknowingly rebelling against school, and postponing his having to go there. A man who expounds in the midst of a business conference may be motivated by an inward irritation that follows a sense of putting off something that should have been given immediate attention.

If you are a chronic procrastinator it may be that your parents did more for you than they should have done. Perhaps they "picked up" after you, and did the things you left undone. You learned that by putting off duties nothing serious happened: someone else did the work.

But today you find that your habit leads to unending ills. You are actually putting off living to some fictional future date. You are making yourself unhappy because in deferring your life to the future you are missing the present and its golden opportunities for rich living. You are putting off until tomorrow not only duties and jobs but happiness and achievement.

Samuel Johnson called tomorrow "that fatal mistress of the young, the lazy, the coward and the fool."

The truth is that we are most inclined to postpone doing things that seem at the time to be unpleasant, distasteful or difficult. When we have something like that to do, we putter around with little things, trying to keep busy so that we have an excuse that will ease our conscience. Dreading and postponing a task may be more tiring than doing it, and apprehension over delayed unpleasantness may so preoccupy us that other things cannot be done effectively.

None of us escapes his quota of difficult or disagreeable tasks, and it would be well to learn from the experience of others rather than from our own that they do not fade away by being ignored. Eventually, we have to roll up our sleeves and wade into them. In the meantime, we suffer.

Dr. Ernest Jones, F.R.C.P., gives us a hamlet as an example in his book Hamlet and Oedipus (Doubleday Anchor, 1954). The reasons that Hamlet gives for his hesitancy will not stand serious consideration. Says Dr. Jones: "One moment he pretends he is too cowardly to perform the deed, at another he questions the truthfulness of the ghost, at another — when the opportunity presents itself in its naked form — he thinks the time is unsuited, it would be better to wait till the King was at some evil act and then to kill him, and so on. has mastered the habit of putting off. He has no unpleasant jobs hanging fire. He has realized the menace of procrastination and makes sure that it never touches him. He knows that it is the vote you don't cast that brings the wrong men into office, the kindness you think of but do not do that swells family unhappiness into misunderstandings, the phone call you don't make that loses the order, the lunch for which you are late that slights your prospects of a new job.

Waiting for inspiration An excuse sometimes made by writers, composers, business executives and other people engaged in creative work is that they are waiting for inspiration. But inspiration is a guest who does not visit the lazy or the procrastinator as often as he does the busy and diligent. Most writers find that the best way to win inspiration is to insert a blank sheet of paper in their typewriters.

Sir Arthur Sullivan, composer of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, oratorios and a score of other sorts of music, said this: "One day work is hard and another day it is easy, but if I had waited for inspiration I should have done nothing."

Many offices have people in them who sharpen pencils instead of getting down to solving the puzzles in a job. Other people shroud their actions in a maze of red tape, giving as the excuse for delay that they must consider the problem carefully from every angle and think of all the possibilities.

On the whole, it is wiser to make decisions promptly and crisply than to linger over them waiting for a flash of inspiration. In a competitive society it may be staying much too late to wait till precisely the proper time.

To put off a decision while gathering or awaiting pertinent information is not procrastination, but be sure that what is awaited is pertinent and necessary. All great leaders have deliberated with caution but acted with decision and promptness.

By debating every problem, awaiting the divine spark that will shine upon the right decision, we show ourselves to be timid and distrustful of our own judgments. The Hamlets among us must learn that it is better to make a wrong decision than none at all. At least an error teaches a lesson that need never be repeated. To stand indecisively midway between our duty and our task is calamitous.

Duty is not merely to do the thing we ought to do, but to do it when we should, whether we feel like it or not. When we make ourselves responsible for doing a job, making a plan, or directing others, we are duty and honour bound to do it at the time promised or expected.

So You're Going To Take Up Curling..?

Curling is an easy game to play but a challenge to the man or woman who wants to play it really well. If you're a beginner and belong to a club you will probably get some initial organized help. Most clubs have an instruction committee which takes tyros in hand for a couple of weeks before assigning them to a rink and fitting them into club competition.

One of the first things you will want to do is try one of the rocks for size. They weigh forty pounds and must not, by curling law, weigh more than forty-four complete with fittings. They used to come from Scotland, which seems proper since the game itself comes from there, but since the quarry on the island of Ailsa Craig played out, they have been made of Red Trevor Home granite from Wales. They cost about $65 a pair—but you're not likely to buy any because the club will provide both rocks and brooms.

All you have to supply is the kind of casual sports clothes that you'll play your first three wear sweaters coats. Some top wear with brightly-trimmed tams or Glangarrys. Suit yourself about footwear, too. There are special curling shoes to be had but more experienced players seem to favour fairly light shoes with low heels. The rubber of the sliding shoe for smoother action when delivering the stone.

Now let's inspect the playing surface: 126 feet of pebbled ice, down which you will be throwing that chunk of granite you just tested.

There are four players on a team—skip (he's the captain and the boss), vice skip, second and lead. The lead (that's what you'll play your first three years as a curler), is the junior member of the team. You will probably spend two more years as a second and another two or three as a vice skip before you become a skip. That is unless you are a natural curler like Phil Farley, the well-known Toronto golfer, who was skipping his own rink four years after he started the game.

Each player in the two competing teams throws two rocks alternately, starting with the lead. The object of the game is, in the words of the rulebook, to score one point for every stone which is nearer the tee than any stone of the opposing rink. With sixteen rocks being thrown at each end (club play is usually eight ends, competitions call for ten or twelve) the possible combination and complexities are boundless. That's why it takes about as long to produce a skip as it does to train a brain surgeon.

But now you're getting ready to throw a rock and your skip is down at the target end of the rink indicating with his broom and-energy schedule full of holes through which time is leaking; now that you have uncovered them, you have a chance to plug them.

Your effort may mean making of a new pattern of life, as you acquire skill in distinguishing between the better and the worse way of doing things. Why be a slave to conventional ways? Why must the mail be disposed of before you tackle the important business of the day? Why must routine housework be done before you turn to some major project? Try scheduling your time. Jot down the various jobs you must do or would like to do. Estimate the time needed for each. Number them in order of their importance to you. Then wade into them.

In The Vision of Mirza, time was a tide stretching from mist to mist, without limits. But our everyday time is not like that at all; it is the space between getting up in the morning and getting to bed at night. Into this space we must fit our various projects and the episode of routine living. Weak men will drift through the hours; strong men will steer from this point to that.

Whether you have a luxurious amount of free time, or are pinched for white space on your daily time chart, you will be happier when you make sure of getting the best value for every minute. The way to avoid the feeling of marking time, of beating with futility at an unseen barrier, is to schedule your time. This involves concentration on the job at hand so as to get it done, but it also necessitates looking ahead. Baden Powell had a game for his Boy Scouts called "Near and Far". A party of Scouts walking along a road would be halted at intervals and turned around. The boys were asked what they had noted at their feet and on the horizon. Seeing near and far is an essential part of planning our use of time.

where he would like you to place it. The idea may be, depending on the skip's strategy, to place a counter as close as possible to the button. If you are successful your team mates will try to protect it from the assaults of the opposition by screening it with guard rocks.

Let's get back to the hacks, those footholds in the ice where the curler positions himself for the delivery of the stone. Assuming you're right-handed, the right foot should go into the hack with the ball of the foot resting against the back of the hack. This right foot is important for it will not only balance the body during the backswing but will help to provide direction of momentum for the rock. The right toe should be pointing straight ahead. There's a little latitude for personal preference in the position of the left foot. The aim is to get a stance that is natural and relaxed. Most players place it flat on the ice. Slightly ahead of the right foot in a crouch which permits them to sit on their right heel contemplating their shot.

The right arm should be extended easily without strain. The thighs should be parallel to the centre line while the chest and shoulders are at right angles to the line of delivery. You get your line from the skip at the other end, who indicates it with his broom. Keep your eyes on that broom throughout the delivery. Your own broom should be held in the left hand to provide balance during the backswing and the important follow-through.

THE GRIP. Take the handle by the fingers, holding it lightly. The palm should not touch it. The index and thumb fingers provide the control during the backswing. The feel of the stone is something that will come only with practice. You will see the need for this sensitive control when you realize that most of the shots you will be called upon to make will not be straight but will curl or curve. Given an in or out turn, a rock reacts somewhat the same as a baseball does when a pitcher puts stuff on it. The handle should turn two or three revolutions on its way down the ice to its target. A rock that spins more than this will not curve effectively, will travel further than it is supposed to and consequently, will be harder to control.

To throw an in-turn the handle of the stone should point a little to the right—less than a quarter turn of the wrist is all that is needed. The out-turn grip requires the handling to be turned about sixty degrees to the left. When a right-handed player throws an in-turn shot, the rock turns clockwise, out-turns counter-clockwise.

THE BACKSWING. The backswing has been called the most important single action in the whole delivery. It should be grooved and, like a good golf swing, smooth and rhythmical. The player comes out of his crouch, straightens up, his knees, the back remains sloped and the eyes never waver from the skip's broom. The right arm acts as pendulum as the backswing begins. The back straightens and the left foot moves a little to the side to compensate for the weight on the stone. The left arm holding the broom is thrust out for balance and the whole motion should flow. This is a swing, not a push. The height of the backswing varies with the speed required in the shot. That important right foot is the key throughout.

THE FORWARD SWING. As the backswing reaches its highest point, the player leans his body forward. On the way down, the fingers give the handle the grip that will result in an in-turn or an out-turn shot. The left foot is the one on which you will slide as you follow through, still with your gaze glued on the skip's broom. The length of your slide is a matter of personal style, although this manoeuvre was once the storm centre of a controversy in Canadian Curling. Some players had such an exaggerated slide that they could drift the whole length of the ice, propelled by a vigorous thrust from their right leg, and deposit the rock on the button at the other end. Changes in the rules have made this sort of thing illegal. Now the player cannot slide past the hogline.

The follow-through is as important in curling as it is in golf. If the delivery is to be a smooth swinging motion, the shooter should end up with his right arm extended before him, his right leg extended behind him with his chest close to (if not touching) his left knee.

SWEEEPING. Once the rock leaves the shooter's hand its career is determined, if you accept one curling theory. But, there is a large body of expert opinion which believes sweeping can accomplish wonders. Once a player throws a rock his teammates may sweep ahead of it as it slides down the ice. If every player were a perfect judge of weight and line, there would be no need for sweeping, thereby causing one of the most colourful, and certainly the most energetic aspects of the game to disappear. Exponents of sweeping maintain that brooms administered in unison can add five or six feet to a shot, particularly at the end of a stone's run where and when sweeping seems to do the most good.

Record-News Smiths Falls.

Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto. Writing in the magazine HEALTH, official publication of the Health League of Canada, Dr. Fremes said in addition to being communicable, staph bacteria appears to be capable of resisting many drugs such as sulfa and penicillin. He advised that if a case occurs in your home make sure the patient uses separate wash cloths and towels. He also cautioned patients against swimming in public pools or using public showers or drinking fountains. The best advice is to consult your family doctor immediately.

According to information reaching the Health League of Canada, the old notion that waking a sleep-walker will cause a harmful shock is reported to be false. Experts now say that sleepwalkers should be awakened because they are apt to hurt themselves. This refutes another popular belief—that sleepwalkers are capable of doing things they would find impossible to do when awake. Surveys show that sleepwalkers frequently fall down stairs, trip over furniture and bump into things. Also if you are a sleep-walker and try to cure yourself by going yourself to the bed or setting booby traps to wake yourself up—forget it—they won't work. Your subconscious apparently retains memory of the booby traps after you are asleep and causes you to avoid them.

Hanging the suit over the bathroom rail in the steam from the shower will hasten the process. In the morning the original creases will be as sharp as ever.

A child-proof medicine chest is a necessity in any home where there is a young family. Enticing looking pills and colored cough mixtures must be out of reach of peering eyes and prying hands. If there is no locked cabinet the top shelf of the kitchen cupboard can safely take its place. Large cans (such as those for powdered milk) may hold bottles of medicine, bandages and pills. Bright colored enamel paint may be used for easy finding, and the contents listed on paper protected by pieces of plain polythene film. The colors can be keyed—red for poisons, yellow for pills and green for bandages.

For Your Information by the Health League of Canada

Cold weather is approaching, bringing with it the usual increase in the number of house fires. Be sure your family and your home are safe by following the Health League of Canada's fire safety rules. Check your electrical wiring, outlets and appliances periodically and make sure your stove and furnace are safe. Clean accumulated rubbish and trash out of cellar and attic—junk feeds fires. Never put mops, oily rags or cloth saturated with paints, furniture polish or wax into baskets or canisters as they may ignite through spontaneous combustion. If you use a portable oil or gas heater be sure there is fresh air in the room and turn it off before going to bed. Never smoke in bed. Remember that small grease fires in the kitchen stove may be extinguished by sprinkling with ordinary baking soda or salt. Do not leave an electric iron turned on when not in use. Don't try to burn dust—it is explosive. Don't use flammable cleaning fluids. Make sure every member of your family knows the procedure for turning in a fire alarm. Remember, fires can be prevented.

A radical treatment for burns has been recommended by a doctor in Los Angeles. Dr. Alex G. Shulman says ice water is the best first aid measure for any burn covering up to twenty per cent of the body. His method is to place the burned area immediately into a basin containing tap water, ice cubes and a disinfectant, hexachlorophene. If immersion of the area is impractical, apply towels chilled in a bucket of ice water. Dr. Shulman said his experience indicates that whatever the subsequent management may be, those patients who receive initial ice water treatment fare better than those who do not. His method was described in a release sent to the Health League of Canada by the American Medical Association.

If anyone in your family is suffering from a crop of boils, superficial abscesses, postules or styes, beware. They may have a contagious infection caused by staphylococcus, warns Dr. I. Arthur Fremes, of the

Ormstown High School Notes

Traffic Infractions:
Traffic infractions involving bus transportation has long been a source of concern to parents and teachers alike. A resolution was proposed at the conclusion of the joint meeting which would bring the problem to the attention of provincial officials. It is hoped that all who are interested in the safety of our boys and girls will co-operate in this crusade to dramatize the need for the utmost caution when school buses are stopped to unload passengers or when they are collecting them in the morning.

School Band:
The School Band under the capable direction of Lindsay Cullen has been operating for several years but like everything else it cannot operate on good will alone. Recently a committee was formed to assist this very worthy project. Members of the committee include Mr. Frank Anderson, President, Mr. Donald McEwen, Vice-president, Mr. Moore, Secretary and Mr. Donald Lang, Treasurer. A request for contributions was made in the form of letters to parents, but we understand that the results were disappointing. If anyone has not received such a letter or has forgotten about it, we know that the Band Committee would be most happy to receive your donation.

Cafeteria:
Mrs. Grant, our Home Economist, who is also in charge of cafeteria, wishes to express her thanks for the following contributions received recently: Beets; Ketchup; Finlayson; Canned peas; U. Etienne; Double boiler; Young Parents Club; Food; Dr. and Mrs. Sutton; Apples; Keith Dunn,

ROBSON LADS BAG DEER

A seventeenth birthday party and his first deer! That's how Bobby Houle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Houle, Robson, celebrated this week-end. On Friday night, November 11, Bobby's family and friends, including Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wray, Miss Margaret Stanford and Simone, who had been visiting in Altona for a week, gathered to congratulate him and share his birthday cake. During the evening, Bobby declared there were plenty of two-legged "deers" around but that he preferred to go after the four-legged kind and he intended getting a deer next morning. For this bold statement he received much teasing. Around 10 a.m. Saturday morning he called for his cousin Kenneth Bourdon and the two walked west through the bush. When they reached the back of Armand Maynard's farm, there Bobby saw and shot his deer. First this year on Covey Hill. Congratulations Bobby!

Benefit Dance
The 7-2-11 Club will hold a benefit dance in aid of their Scholarship Fund on November 18 with Wilson Westerners in attendance. Applications are coming in for assistance from various students and we feel that work of this kind is extremely worthy as an undertaking by parent-teacher groups. Come and bring your friends to the dance, and while you are enjoying yourself you will have the added satisfaction of knowing that you are helping some worthy student to further his education. Parents of High School students are asked to contribute one loaf of wrapped sandwiches per family.

Basketball.
The basketball season has already started in this area. While the girls have had two losses in two starts against Howick and Valleyfield with scores of 18-15 and 27-7 respectively, nevertheless, Mr. Spector, their Coach, feels that they will do better in future engagements.

The boys, however, split their games, losing their first game to Howick with a score of 40-37 and winning over Valleyfield by a very close score of 17-16. It should be noted that, this year, we are unable to use school buses for transportation due to a clause in the Motor Vehicles Act which states that no school bus may be used outside the School Municipality. Therefore, parents whose sons and daughters are participating in these activities, are urged to request to provide cars for transportation. It should be stressed that students cannot be used as drivers. Parents wishing to help in this direction are requested to call the principal at his office, telephone No. 829-2641.

The remainder of the schedule before Christmas is as follows: November 18th: Hemmingford at Ormstown. November 25th: Chateaugay at Ormstown. December 2nd: Ormstown at Howick. December 9th: Ormstown at Gault. December 16th: Huntingdon at Ormstown.

On Heating A House Electrically
What is the most efficient, yet most expensive kind of heating available in Canada today? Electric heating. How many Canadian homes now have it? About 10,000 to 12,000. Where is it available? In every province. These are some of the answers given about electric heating by James Baque in the November issue of a Canadian Magazine.

To answer the question, "Just how good... and what exactly is Electric Heating?", writer Baque gives a rundown on the advantages and disadvantages: Advantages: Electric heating burns with 100 per cent efficiency as contrasted to 85 per cent by gas, the next most efficient fuel. You can have precise temperature control in every room of your house — and most electrically-heated houses do. Also, there's no humidity problem. Electric heating does not dry out the air, other systems do.

The only disadvantage then is the cost. The best estimate is that if your present fuel bill is about $200 a year, it would become $300-$400 if you converted to electricity in the house you now have. If you also insulated your house to electric-heat standards — which with the installation of the system would both be big initial costs — your bills would probably be from $25 to $50 a year higher than before.

Why then do more than 10,000 Canadians have electric heat? Not all of them are millionaires. In Blossom Gardens, a subdivision at Cooksville near Toronto, all the houses are heated by electricity. When completed, there will be 30 split-levels and ranch-style bungalows in the $18,000-$25,000 range. According to the people living there now, electric heating is every bit as good as it is claimed to be.

Mrs. J. Quick of Edenhurst Drive says she never bothers to cold-draw her face at night anymore. Mrs. Gladys English says she doesn't have to worry getting an oil truck to come to fill her tank on a stormy night, or about the pilot light going out. And Mrs. Florence Franze says her family used to average seven colds per winter but last winter they had only one and it was probably caused by a late night and fatigue on the part of a teen-aged daughter.

Two important conditions are necessary today if electric heating isn't to be beyond your budget. One is that you live in Ontario, B.C., or Quebec, the three provinces where electric power is the cheapest — being one-and-a-half cents per kilowatt-hour, or less. The other is that your house must be specifically insulated to electric heating standards. In the case of the Blossom Gardens subdivision, each house was designed with this kind of heating in mind. And as for cost of installation in such a new house, contractors that writer Baque spoke to, said they could do it for the same price as other kinds of heating systems. There would be far more insulation (suggested requirements include six inches in the roof, four inches in outside wall, and two inches under floors over unheated cellars), but there would be no chimney. And it is easier to string wires through a house than run ductwork or pipes.

To convert an older house to electric heating, the best estimates suggest about $1,000 to $1,600 for a house of 1,400 square feet. This includes both the installation of the system and the added insulation.

Take Care With Your Painting Jobs
"The consumer must bear some of the responsibility when he paints" says the Association of Canadian Better Business Bureaux Inc. in a booklet just released to the general public.

Entitled "How to get Full Value for your Paint Dollar" it is available from any Better Business Bureau, and is one of a series of booklets dedicated to a fuller awareness by the general public of the practices and methods of operation of a wide range of business and manufacturing organizations.

Rapid advances in paint technology have produced high-quality finishes in recent years which are much easier to apply, are almost odor-free and dry in a fraction of the time required by old style paints. These features, the booklet points out, are of tremendous assistance to the professional painter today in meeting the demands of his customers for a quality paint job that will last, is produced in the shortest possible time and with the minimum amount of dislocation and discomfort to the householder.

However, these new synthetic based coatings combined with the versatile paint roller can occasionally produce trouble for the amateur "do-it-yourself" painter unless they are applied printed on the label. Not possessing the skill and knowledge of the professional painter, the amateur sometimes wrongly assumes that having purchased a high quality paint and the best roller coater he is automatically assured of professional looking results.

Unfortunately this is not always the case, and the "do-it-yourself" painter must remember that in the absence of professional skill he still has a responsibility in order that he may obtain the type of job he expects from first quality paint.

He must be sure that the surface is properly prepared before application of the paint. In this regard, proper description of the job to be done beforehand often enables the retailer to advise on the best methods of surface preparation for the particular job. Next, the manufacturer's directions for use on the label must be carefully read and followed.

The advances in paint technology in recent years have been so rapid that today's high-grade products do not necessarily follow in line with past methods of use and application. It is well to remember that when paint failures or unsatisfactory appearance are recorded with the use of high-grade finishes the cause is usually found in one of the following areas:

1. The product was not applied in accordance with the manufacturer's directions for use printed on the label.
2. The right type of paint was not used for the particular surface.
3. Failure to properly prepare the surface for painting or to correct construction defects or moisture conditions.
4. Attempting to spread the paint too thinly over too great an area.
5. Applying the paint under unfavourable weather or temperature conditions.
6. Using an inferior type of brush or roller coater to apply the paint.

Though modern high-grade paints still retain many of the ingredients used for years, it is strictly in accordance with the manufacturers' directions for the addition of the many new ingredients that enable today's high-grade paints to do a far better job than their predecessors — providing the manufacturers' directions for use and application are carefully followed.

Tulips require a well-drained site and should be planted in full sun.

Select the best bulbs from a reliable dealer. If last season's bulbs are to be re-used, throw away any diseased bulbs. Poor quality bulbs may fail to produce flower buds.

The bulbs should be set in the bed or border six to eight inches apart for a final setting. Plant them four inches deep normally but another inch or inch-and-a-half deeper if the soil is sandy.

Fall Vegetables
Want to do something special to turnip? Cut into cubes and cook in two tablespoons of water and 1 tsp. of sugar in a heavy saucepan. Cover tightly and cook over low heat for 15 to 20 minutes. When done, add salt and pepper and sprinkle with 2 tbsps. snipped fresh mint or 1 tsp. dried mint. Serve without draining.

Onions are delicious if sliced and placed in a buttered casserole with 2 tbsps. of water. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, cover and bake for 15 minutes in 350-degree oven. Remove from oven and drizzle with honey and dot with butter. Return to the oven for 10 minutes to glaze and brown slightly, basting at least once.

NO NEED For Continuous Advertising...

PREACHERS... should preach only one sermon or so a year. People are against sin anyway, so why harp on it.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS... should be turned off at dangerous intersections to save electricity. Everybody knows it's a dangerous spot and that is sufficient.

TEACHERS... No need to review lessons. Tell the children just once and they'll never forget.

HIGHWAY POLICE... stop driving up and down the highways. No need to caution drivers by patrolling highways. Drivers know the law and should obey.

OUT-OF-TOWNERS... that advertise in the local paper and mail order firms that send out catalogs are wasting their money. Everyone knows what is sold in the stores in town, and they'll all shop at home.

But if you are one of the foolish kind — like the Notre Dame Cathedral that has stood for six centuries but still rings the bell every day to let people know it is still there — and believe in continuous, profitable advertising, then you will want to advertise.

St. Andrew's Concert At Howick An Outstanding Success

The Georgetown and Riverfield Choirs put on their annual St. Andrew's Concert in Howick High School, on Saturday, November 12th, before a large and appreciative audience.

The school auditorium was filled to capacity with an audience of over four hundred, and extra chairs were in demand. At intermission the "Akiak" Group of C.G.I.T. under the leadership of Mrs. Clifford Craig and Mrs. Bruce Cairncross, Jr. sold six hundred and seventy five bags of candy.

The stage setting was appealing and colourful, a huge Scottish Thistle in blue and silver occupying the centre background, surrounded by Scottish clan shields and tartans. The ladies of the choir wore plaid skirts with white blouses, and had tartan sashes across from shoulder to waist. The men all had plaid ties.

A group from the Royal Scottish Country Dance Society in full highland dress, delighted the audience with their Scottish dances, and Mrs. John T. Bowie, a member of the Society, proved herself a singer of high quality with her rendering of several Scottish songs.

The other soloists were Mrs. Ronald Reddick, Mr. W. M. Brown, and, of course, Mr. John MacFarlane, who, as usual, captivated his audience with his humorous "Harry Lauder" songs. Mr. Matthew McKell added another touch of liveliness with a number of selections on his violin, which brought young feet into play — stamping to the beat.

The Choir sang throughout with assurance and obvious enjoyment, which found an enthusiastic response from a happy audience. The choir closed the programme with its lovely rendering of "Crimond", Mrs. Bowie singing the descant.

A one-act play, with its plot the capture of an elderly eight-bar farmer by a young servant girl, against the competition of two "old maids" in the same household, was well portrayed and well received. Those taking part in the play were — Mr. and Mrs. John McArthur, Miss Hazel Elliot, Mrs. Robert Barr, and Mr. Wallace W. Elliot.

Mrs. Wallace Logan was in her usual place at the piano, and accompanied the choir, the soloists, and the violinist in turn.

Mr. Brown organized his first St. Andrew's Concert in Richmond, Que. It was so successful that on coming to Howick, he felt that being amongst so many "old Scottish" families, that here too, an evening of Scotch songs and dances might be appreciated. Now for seven consecutive years he has devoted as great a deal of his time and labour to produce these excellent programmes. He has brought to these concerts talented artists from other places, often providing the transportation himself. The community wish to thank Mr. Brown for his untiring efforts and will look forward to next year's concert.

BUFFALO BILL ONCE A MAIL CARRIER

The famous Pony Express, a private enterprise formed to carry mail overland to California, was active 100 years ago. But completion of the telegraph diminished the need for the service. The Book of Knowledge mentions that it began with over 400 horses and 75 riders, amongst whom was "Buffalo Bill", Colonel William F. Cody.

Chiropractor To Open Business Here

Elsewhere in this issue appears an advertisement advising the public that Ernest J. Bilo-deau, D.C. (Doctor of Chiropractic) has opened an office in Huntingdon at 6 East St., near the Fina Service Station. An American by birth, the practitioner received his degree for the practice of chiropractic in California. Fluently bilingual, he is well known to some people in this area as they have visited his Montreal clinic which was opened two years ago; the Huntingdon office is being opened on the persuasion of local clients.

Editorial Notes

The U.S. Election Is Over

JOHN KENNEDY has been elected President of the United States by a small margin of votes. The election has also several firsts to the political history. John Kennedy is the first Roman Catholic to be President and he is the youngest man to be president in the history of the country.

We feel that much may be the outcome of this election and in the fact that Kennedy has been elected, it may bring about many world changes we cannot as yet imagine. In the case of foreign relations, we do not think that Kennedy is a man to be trifled with. He will be outspoken in his beliefs and policies and he will want to have done what he believes is best. Russia can look for a much harder policy in all matters to do with foreign trends. He will not be laid low by threats and there will be no pussy-footing around as there has been in the past. In the case of Russia we feel such a policy will pay off and result in less world tension. With Kennedy, we feel sure, that all matters whether domestic or foreign will be dealt with in quick precision. He is not the type of man to dilly-dally around and put things off — he will want fast decisions. His campaign has pointed in that direction and we shall indeed be surprised if it turns out otherwise.

With such a man at the helm of United States affairs, we look for some rapid changes in a number of directions. Foreign policy, we feel sure, will be the first to have an overhauling. The U.S. foreign policy in the past has been very weak, while decisions have been made, they have not been kept. This has caused dissension among the other nations of the world and been the cause of many near breaks within the ranks of the Western Allies. This has led Russia to believe that all the Western Allies are weak and cannot make up their minds. In consequence, many an opportunity has been given for the Russians to throw a monkey wrench into the works and so wreck the machinery of many important meetings. Kennedy is a man of action, or so we believe, and he will want things done and he will want them done his way.

His policies may bring about some tense moments during the next four years. He is young and being young has not the patience of the older person. This may lead him into difficulties, or it may make him a man to be feared. If Russia is faced with such a type of person, it could possibly be the means of bringing about great changes in present relations between the two large countries. Among the Western Allies, we feel there will be a greater assurance of getting things done and getting a quick solution to problems. Kennedy has warned the people of the United States that they face an era of sacrifice. The people of this country have not known what this means, so it could be that something new is in store for them.

All countries of the world today need men of courage and endurance at their head. In Kennedy, we believe the U.S. has found such a man. There are so many problems facing the world, that someone with endurance to stand up to the trial is needed.

Quebec Hospital Insurance

THE first session under the new Government of Quebec opened only last week in the Quebec Legislature, but already action has been taken on a number of pieces of legislation that had been promised by the Liberal Party if they were elected.

Notable in this is a Bill for Hospital Insurance in Quebec, something that has been awaited ever since the Federal Government first gave intention of sharing in such a scheme and it was put into effect by most other provinces. The Bill has been given first reading and it is timed to come into effect on January 1st, 1961. The populace has been awaiting such an announcement and the hospitals of the Province have been anxiously awaiting the provisions of such insurance insofar as they are concerned.

While a complete study of the bill has to be made as yet, it would seem that it will not have the scope that was generally expected. It was known that it would not cover several types of chronic ailments and those of a mental nature requiring hospitalization, it was expected it would cover general hospitalization as we have known it. It appears that it will be quite restricted as to lengths of stay of patients hospitalized under the plan. Under private hospital schemes, that is those carried by companies and private individuals, it has often been that a patient has stayed for the full term of the plan. Apparently under the Provincial Plan, patients will be required to leave the hospital as soon as possible after their case has been cleared up. Hospital authorities will be required to see that patients are sent home, or to become out patients, in the shortest possible time. This is due to the costs involved and even one day overtime per patient can mean millions of dollars overall in the course of a year.

In the case of those suffering from TB and those from mental diseases, plans of hospitalization are already in effect to take care of them and therefore there is no need for them to be covered by this later plan. Old people will not be able to stay in a hospital for lengthy periods under the scheme, only for the time it takes to cure their ailment and then they must go home if they just require rest. Cancer cases will not be allowed long periods in hospital. Cases which can be treated in the out-patient dept., will not be allowed hospital beds. All of this is being done to keep down the overall costs and keep the plan to a minimum of requirement.

It had been anticipated that once the scheme came into being, there would be a large call upon the hospitals and they would quickly be filled to overflowing. It would seem with the plan in mind, this will not be the case. The hospitals will have to exercise great care in admitting people to hospital and they will have to be certain patients are discharged in a minimum of time after treatment.

There is no doubt that the hospitals should have less deficits than formerly, but they will have to be more on their toes as to allowing costs to accrue unnecessarily. By this is meant, that a close watch will have to be maintained to see that all patients under the plan are discharged in the minimum of time.

While it is not clear yet, it would seem that the plan will go into operation without a premium. However, costs will have to be raised in some way and this may mean some new form of taxation. It seems it would be much better to have a premium levied on all persons able to come under the plan and have this deducted from wages, salaries, etc. The other way of doing it seems too close to charity and many people would not care for this. Most people are opposed to increased taxation to pay for the scheme, which would come close to a charity plan when the need arose to use it.

The Home and School Association

LAST week, a circular letter was sent to the parents of children attending Huntingdon High School, the main question being asked was, Do you want the Home and School Association to continue? This may not be the same wording, but it was in effect. Several other questions followed.

As far as we can understand, most people want the Home and School Association continued and some were aghast that the thought should even be entertained that it be discontinued. However, some of the other questions asked were quite pertinent and practically extracted a promise from every individual to take some active part. In these there was a sticker. We do not know how they have been answered, but several people have told us that while they want the Home and School continued, they did not feel they could answer the other questions and keep the promises made. These questions required the individual to be willing to serve in various ways in order to keep the Association functioning, both as to officials for organization and in assisting at various functions.

Herein, is the great difficulty facing the Association, it cannot get enough people to fill the offices of the organization and no society can operate unless it has the proper organization. In the last few years it has been left to the few — the few now do not feel capable of carrying on. In other words they need help and need it badly.

If we glance back and note the various projects that the Home and School has been responsible for in our school, then there is no doubt that the organization is a worthwhile part of the School. It is not meant to be a controversial thing, but to be the liaison between the home and the school. Functioning in this manner, it can be of great assistance to both. It has been of assistance to both and there are many projects to prove this to be true. It would be too bad after all the work that has been done, to see the Association drop out now. Even if the few can carry on, it would be better than not having an Association that has done noble work and can still do such work in the future. Perhaps this appeal will have the effect of recruiting more people to the cause, so that greater assistance is forthcoming.

A meeting is to be held this month, perhaps a good turnout would help to iron out the difficulties being encountered.

The Week In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) There was a little something for everyone in the Liberal government's first regular speech from the throne Thursday.

And perhaps trying to show it means business, the government next day postponed the throne speech debate and introduced its first bill — dealing with hospital insurance.

The bill passed first reading Friday. It calls for Quebec's participation in the Federal-Provincial Plan, a January 1 start and autonomy of hospitals under the plan.

There was a pair of noticeable differences in the Liberal Throne speech compared with those of the Union Nationale over the last 15 years.

There was no statement about Quebec standing up against the centralizers in Ottawa. But there was a plan to create a new department of Federal-Provincial Affairs.

There was no outright mention of the farmer being the cornerstone of the economy, but the government did say "vigorous steps must be taken to free agriculture from its present position."

In addition to the Federal-Provincial Affairs Department, two other new departments were outlined and a fourth would get a new name. The new departments are natural resources and cultural affairs, which would have jurisdiction over a bureau of linguistics, and a provincial arts council.

The government also plans to change the name of the social welfare department to social and family welfare, "to promote a well-conceived family policy and apply it in the field."

High up in the speech, read to a packed legislative council chamber under the heat of television lights, was education.

"The government will propose to you measures to promote all levels of education in the province," the legislature members were told. These would include first steps towards free schooling, improvement of secondary education and "to encourage more effective recruiting and better training of the teaching profession."

The 17,000 word speech said there would be laws dealing with a labor code, Mining, the Provincial Police, the Quebec Liquor Commission, the Civil Service Act, the Tourist Bureau, Water Pollution, Highway Safety, Rational Development of Quebec's Forests, Hunting and Fishing, Conservation, changes in the Economic Advisory Council, increased Social Welfare payments.

All in all, observers said, it looked like a long winter for the Legislature.

The Last Of The Big Spenders Embarks On Canadian Spree

By Larry Thompson,
The Miami Herald

There has been quite a bit in the papers lately about tension between the United States and Canada, or at least between some of the citizens, because of monetary policies.

It seems that the Canadian dollar now is worth more than the American dollar. How and why this happens is beyond me, because anything that says $1 looks like $1 to me, no matter what country the printing press was in.

I do not pretend, however, to be an expert in international finance. I do not even pretend to be an expert in domestic or personal finances, as my good wife can well attest.

I mention all this only because of the fact that I had a personal exposure to Canadian-American finances last summer. I think my troubles were in any way related to the value of the respective dollars, but I still got entangled in international complications.

We decided to drive into Canada, just so we could say we had been there. We were only a few miles across the border from northern New York, but we were in Canada, and felt like world travelers.

When we came to a pleasant town, we stopped to get postcards and soft drinks. I think the town was Huntingdon, but at this late date I wouldn't take an oath. We went into a drug store.

I ordered milk shakes all around and the children thought it was a very special occasion. Then, lacking change, I asked if they would take a traveler's check, which they did, but all my change was Canadian money.

That was, of course, entirely proper. I didn't notice, entirely don't think they even discounted my bills. I don't think that any of us in that drug store knew there was a monetary problem between our countries. But we were going right back into New York, and I was afraid I might have trouble using the Canadian money in the United States.

I asked if they could let me have American money, and the man looked through the cash register and his own pockets and came up with a few American dollar bills. He canvassed his customers, and got another one.

"What am I going to do with the rest of these Canadian bills?" I asked.

"I didn't know our money was that good," he said. "I didn't know it but their money actually was better than mine."

We stopped in another store and bought some post cards. Slightly, I paid with a Canadian bill. "It wasn't until I was outside that I realized I had received Canadian change. But at least I had reduced my Canadian stockpile somewhat."

The family was getting restless and wanted to go on, but I announced that we weren't leaving until I had converted all that money. The bank was closed, so that was out.

"Well, if I can't convert it, I can spend it," I announced. This is a typical Thompson theory when it comes to economics.

We went in a grocery store and loaded up on lunch meats, milk, pickles, potato chips, bread, and everything else we could carry and consume.

The Week At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) Uncertainty, and perhaps slim pickings in certain areas of farming, were the general forecast for 1961 at the Dominion-Provincial agricultural conference here last week.

The main problem is that the prairies produce too much wheat for available markets, said Alvin Hamilton, the new agriculture minister.

To counteract this paramount snag in farm economics he proposed a program of land diversification that would trim total Canadian wheat fields from the present yearly average of 23,000,000 acres, to around 17,000,000.

This would be done by pushing more marginal farmland into pastures, recreation, forestry and side crops such as rapeseed.

Legislation to this effect will be introduced at the coming session of Parliament, said Mr. Hamilton. But it may take years to bring about a real change in the farmer's financial position.

Provincial reaction to the proposal was generally favorable but the provinces — especially Manitoba and Ontario — were interested in knowing how much it would cost each government to put its farmers in a position where they will have more saleable goods.

Farmer's Life
Mr. Hamilton felt that one of the major problems in bringing the program about was misunderstanding by the rest of Canadians as to what the farmer's life was actually like.

He said the public image of the farmer as seen by the city dweller is that of a chronic complainer who works only a few months of the year and is forever dipping into the federal assistance pot.

Only with more understanding and co-operation from townsfolk would there ever be an end to subsidies and the creation of a healthy farm economy, he said. For 1961, he predicted the farmer would probably continue to be caught in the cost-price squeeze. He said this might mean a rise in income but also an increase in costs that would nullify the gains.

Generally, he said, the farm picture "isn't too bad" except

The Week At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) Uncertainty, and perhaps slim pickings in certain areas of farming, were the general forecast for 1961 at the Dominion-Provincial agricultural conference here last week.

Provincial reaction to the proposal was generally favorable but the provinces — especially Manitoba and Ontario — were interested in knowing how much it would cost each government to put its farmers in a position where they will have more saleable goods.

Farmer's Life
Mr. Hamilton felt that one of the major problems in bringing the program about was misunderstanding by the rest of Canadians as to what the farmer's life was actually like.

He said the public image of the farmer as seen by the city dweller is that of a chronic complainer who works only a few months of the year and is forever dipping into the federal assistance pot.

Only with more understanding and co-operation from townsfolk would there ever be an end to subsidies and the creation of a healthy farm economy, he said. For 1961, he predicted the farmer would probably continue to be caught in the cost-price squeeze. He said this might mean a rise in income but also an increase in costs that would nullify the gains.

Generally, he said, the farm picture "isn't too bad" except in cereals and dairying.

Lower livestock prices were also forecast and there was expected to be less of a cut in egg prices compared with 1960, when the government shifted its system of price support to the less costly deficiency payment system.

Urban Pleas
While rural representatives were airing their problems with the department of agriculture, the federal government was also being asked to take a stride into the field of municipal assistance and to bring along its cheque book.

In a brief to the prime minister by the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, the Country's urban areas asked for big new federal grants for slum clearance and urban development.

The federation's argument was that such a program would create jobs and be an investment in "an essential and productive" segment of the economy.

Municipal borrowing power is "limited and in many cases taxed to its limit," the brief said.

It recommended a federal fund for low-cost municipal loans, income tax exemption on interest earnings from municipal bonds and removal of the 15-per-cent withholding tax on interest payments to foreign holders of municipal bonds.

Mr. Diefenbaker was non-committal on the requests but said the brief contained "a challenge for us."

Connelly's Win
Chances of a possible economic pick-up as a result of John F. Kennedy's presidential victory in the U.S. were viewed here with some optimism.

Two favorable results for Canada from the first Democratic administration at Washington since 1952 were expected to be more Canadian exports to the U.S. and a more flexible foreign policy.

In the trade field, positive results are expected to be felt in Canada if Senator Kennedy succeeds in his declared policy of taking government action to lift the U.S. economy from its present doldrums. Those doldrums have appeared in Canada too, with slightly reduced exports to U.S. — Canada's biggest customer.

Authorities say that new expansionist policies at Washington with greater government spending and easier money, would be likely to have an almost immediate effect on Canadian sales, especially of industrial raw materials.

As for U.S. tariff policy, no basic difference is seen in the campaign positions taken by the two party leaders.

In foreign affairs, Canadians may be expecting a greater willingness by the U.S. to consult with its allies. In the last eight years, especially before the death of John Foster Dulles, it was sometimes felt here that the U.S. took a too-unyielding attitude on many aspects of foreign policy, for instance, policy toward Communist China.

Aid to Eskimos
Voluntary aid to northern native communities strikes deeper in a tangible form, the Indian Eskimo Association of Canada said.

Aid in the shape of libraries or books, buildings or other physical form tends to register better with Eskimos, said Dr. R. A. J. Philipps of the northern affairs department.

He spoke during discussion here about the ways in which volunteer groups in the south can assist Indian and Eskimo communities in the north, and "Indian peoples of the south."

Mr. Philipps said the day may come, in several years, when the first Eskimo is ready to tackle university, and thought should be given now to providing bursaries, friendship and other help for such students coming south to a strange land.

Cree lawyer William Wuttunee, 32, a Regina employee of the Saskatchewan government, criticized the Indian Act for retaining broad discretionary powers over Indians in the hands of the citizenship minister. He urged the joint parliamentary committee on Indian affairs to recommend more local responsibility for decisions on Indian reservations.

with tendencies to produce more and more milk. This breeding has given many good productive cows giving more milk in ten days than the primitive animal in one year.

A producer can be very successful if he follows these simple rules for setting up a good feeding program.

1. A nourishing fodder needs to be supplied in sufficient quantity to keep the cows in good condition.

2. Dried-up cows need to be supplied with special rations of grains and concentrates to replenish their bodies after the last lactation period.

3. Sufficient quantities of grains and concentrates has to be served to give the cow all the elements needed in the production of milk. In the formation of the calf and in the maintenance of its body when the fodder is scarce.

Not only is it important that the dairy cow should have all the nutritive elements it requires, but we must also understand the way she utilizes these elements. The food served to a cow in the morning does not all finish up as milk at night. The food which the cow needs to produce milk is not only digested and absorbed into the bloodstream, it is also stored in some parts of the body even if only for a short period of time.

A Dairy Farm Has To Be Operated As Efficiently As An Industrial Plant

The milk producer is a manufacturer. The product he makes is milk. His dairy farm is his factory and cows are his machines for producing milk.

As a common belief that the milk of the largest producer in a herd will have the lowest fat content. But studies show that there is practically no correlation between the quantity of milk produced by a cow and its fat content. As a matter of fact, the best producer in a herd often produces milk with one of the highest fat contents.

A dairy cow needs food for five important activities:

1. To grow and develop its body.
2. To produce the energy necessary to maintain its body temperature and muscular activity.
3. To maintain and repair its bodily tissues.
4. To produce milk.
5. To form the unborn calf.

In the space of a year a good dairy cow will use approximately half of its food for the first three activities (bodily maintenance). The other half is used for milk production and calf development.

A heavy breed cow will put about 24 lbs of food into the body of its calf, including the placenta. This is about as much as it gives in milk for three days at 50 lbs of milk a day.

One way of showing the work done by a cow in producing milk is to compare it with a bull. A growing bull will gain about 2 1/2 lbs a day. This consists mainly of proteins, fats, minerals and some animal sugar which is pretty much the same as the cow gives in milk. But whereas a bull puts on 2 1/2 lbs of flesh a day, the cow puts about 7 1/2 pounds of these elements into the milk pail. A cow of 1,200 lbs, producing 50 lbs of milk a day expends more energy than a man shovelling 10 tons of grain onto a truck five feet high. A cow stretched out in the shade chewing the cud seems to be doing absolutely nothing, but that is not so — she is working but in her own way.

The enormous amount of work the cow does to produce milk is not something that came about naturally. It is man's idea. For centuries, man has selected cows

It would have been just as well if Betty had had wings and could have flown home for Billy and Bobby were in the need of some good news. After some not too gentle persuasion from Billy, Bobby had very reluctantly gone out in search of some leaves. He had never paid much attention to anything that Billy had told him so he wasn't the least bit particular what he found. The willow was the first tree that he came to and catching a low branch by one hand he roughly tore the leaves off and into his water bag stuffing them in just to get the job done. He found some brown oak leaves at the foot of the tree and in they went all helping to fill up the bag. Something kept catching him when he walked in a most annoying fashion. Everywhere he went this thing seemed to be binding him tighter and tighter. Now it had got down right uncomfortable, it actually pricked him and made him want to roll over and over. Full or not his bag had all the leaves it was going to have for that day. Bobby was just going to toss the bag in and make for the sandy beach near their home but one glance told him there was not one at home. He was just turning on his one loose foot when around the tree trunk came Billy. One look at his dishevelled little brother and he knew as usual he was in trouble and would only make it worse if he tried to get out of it himself. Then too, Billy was really hungry and there was not anyone in sight neither was there any smell of anything to eat.

It is so hard to keep one's patience when everything goes wrong all at once and Billy was just in the act of sending his brother smashing into the dug out when around the old trunk Betty appeared holding some mushrooms she found in the field near the woods. This was a special treat for both brothers but especially Billy once he was sure that they were mushrooms and not toadstools. Betty saw at a glance that this was not the time to make any mention of the party nor where she had been, instead she went straight to the task of getting them something to eat all the while keeping a close eye on Bobby.

He was of all the three bears that you might have heard of, the most miserable. He could not move without being pricked in several places. He could not sit down, he couldn't lie down in any sort of comfort. Hardly could he eat a bite for wanting to get down and roll and yet something told him that would only drive those picking things in further. Betty knew what was wrong, so did Billy.

He had been told but had never listened, it is easier to stay out of the burrs than it is to get them out of your nice thick fur. How was she going to get them out? Betty wondered as she watched him and heard him squeal when they pricked him.

When the meal was over and before she cleared away the things she made him lie down at her feet after she had pulled out the ones clinging on his back. This was not easy for he would pull away from her and try to bite it with his own teeth until she had almost lost her patience. Now as she pulled them out from behind his ears, around his legs between his toes, he squirmed and squealed and fought her off with his long hind legs. He scolded away about what she was doing to his winter coat, just pulling holes in it, that's what. Billy took no part in this except to sit on his head when she had to pull one out that was lodged between his hind legs.

When it was all over he rolled up into a comfortable little ball that didn't itch or prick any more and just licked his paws with pleasure. Though she would never know it to listen to him, he knew he had a very nice sister who took the very best care of him and he was going to grow up and take care of her too, just you wait and see.

Hemmingford Municipal Council Meeting

A meeting of the Municipal Council was held in the Town Hall on Monday evening, November 7th, presided over by Mayor Joseph Perras. Councillors Florian Dauphinais, Willis Clark, Harold White, Arthur Derrick, Aylmer Hadley and Secretary William Haney were present.

Mr. Ernest Burton and Mr. Oumet attended to bring to the attention of the council the state of the ditch and the bridge on the Back-Bush Road.

Mr. Burton complained that the bridge was damaged by the floods every spring making it dangerous for travelling over. After some discussion it was resolved that the Secretary write the Roads Department asking for an inspection of the ditch and that the bridge be made safe.

A letter was read from the Secretary of the Hemmingford Women's Institute expressing growing concern at the number of buildings going up in the municipality which are unsightly, unsanitary or constitute a traffic hazard. The letter requested information on any by-laws or permits which the council might have concerning the erection of such buildings.

A lengthy discussion followed and Mrs. J. H. L'Esperance, a member of the W.I. who attended the meeting, explained more fully the points which had given rise to this concern on the part of the members.

Council Secretary explained there was no provision made in the Municipal Code for the passing of a by-law restricting building in the municipality although a restricting by-law could be enforced in the village.

All Councillors present agreed with the concern expressed by the members of the W.I. and it was resolved that a letter be sent to the Quebec Department of Municipal Affairs asking if measures could be taken regarding the erection of suitable dwellings within this Municipality.

A number of bills were passed for payment.

Parents Night
Thursday night, November 10th was 'open-house' at Hemmingford High School with all class-rooms brightly lit, the pupils' books and work on display on each desk and teachers ready to answer questions and discuss the children's work with the parents. Quite a number of parents availed themselves of the opportunity of a chat with 'Teacher', but a much larger number would have been welcomed by the staff.

Following the visits to classrooms parents and staff met in the Assembly Hall for a panel discussion arranged by Principal G. F. Matheson and Mrs. Edwin Keddy, Convenor of Education, Hemmingford W.I. The topic was 'Homework'. Moderator was Mr. Matheson, the three members from the teaching staff were Mrs. Florence Barr, Miss Ann Northrup and Mr. R. Bruce.

The parents were represented by Mrs. Aylmer Hadley, Mrs. J. Robertson and Mrs. Tom Cleland.

In opening the discussion Mrs. Barr spoke on the desirability of good study habits. Be fit for study by following health rules, have a set place for study, keep study aids handy, keep definite time-tables and have a programme of periodic and systematic review.

Miss Northrup presented ideas on the most suitable physical and psychological conditions for homework. By beginning early in school-life with a definite starting time and place for homework with comparative quiet for study the pupil forming a good habit which will last all through his life.

Parents should set their children an example by showing a continuing desire for knowledge themselves and should encourage the child to be confident of his ability.

Mr. Bruce spoke on the reasons for homework. It is given mainly to teach children to accept responsibility for independent study and in order that the curriculum set by the Department of Education might be covered.

Replying for the parents Mrs. Robertson questioned the desirability of absolute silence while studying, quoting cases where silence was a must for one child and yet another child had radio on full strength but was still able to learn her lessons well.

In reply Mr. Matheson said quite was most desirable for all children and essential for the higher grades. Replying to a question from Mrs. Tom Cleland concerning the neglect of oral work for written work Mr. Matheson suggested the pupils try to divide the two as equally as possible during the evening. Several other questions were

TWENTY-FIFTH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

On October 28th, friends, relatives and neighbours of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Milne gathered at the Grange Hall, Kensington, to honour them on their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

On entering, Mrs. Milne was presented with a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses, and a white carnation to Mr. Milne. Then they received congratulations from over two hundred guests.

Dancing was enjoyed to the music of the Wilson Westernaires until midnight.

Rev. R. S. Beal was called on to make the presentation. He congratulated the honoured couple asked and answered and in summing up Mr. Matheson stressed the fact that if a set time for study was commenced in Grade 2, the child would form an excellent habit which would be greatly appreciated and needed in the higher grades.

Commissioner Charles Barr thanked the panel participants and the parents for their attendance.

Light refreshments were then served by members of the W.I.

Hemmingford High School

The Annual Remembrance Day Service was held as usual on November 11th at the School. Pupils gathered in the Assembly Hall at 10:45 a.m. and the service commenced with the singing of "O Canada." Card Party

A card party is always well-attended in Hemmingford and the one held in St. Roman's High School on Thursday evening, November 10th was no exception. It was the social event put on by the newly-formed Student Council and they are to be complimented on their effort. Canon Paul Grondin, Mayor and Mrs. Leo Fortin, the President and Commissioners of the School Board were among the large number of players who filled, approximately, thirty tables for cards. During the interval, refreshments were sold, then followed an hour of Bingo. The sixteen prizes for the Card Party were donated by the merchants of the village and well-wishers and were won by Mrs. Dalma Gervais, Mrs. Delphis Duteau, Mrs. Roman Priest, Mrs. Maurice Sabourin, Miss Kathleen Perras, Mrs. Albert Akener, Miss Pauline Girard, Mr. Jean Yves Dumouchel, Miss Yvonne Stringer, Mrs. Roger Prieur, Mrs. Florence Ellerton, Mr. Maurice Prieur, Mrs. Hilda Berthiaume, Mrs. Eugene Duquette, Mrs. Dan Kavanagh, Miss Jean Kilsdonk, Mrs. E. Brouillette won the door prize.

Mr. Walter Smith was a very able C.C. and members of the teaching staff in the Athletic Association assisted in various ways. In conversation later with members of the Student Council they were loud in their appreciation of the help and guidance given them by Principal Girard in organizing this event and they hope to make their next party, which will be held mid-December, an even greater success.

Birthday Party

On Monday evening, November 7th, a surprise party was held for Mrs. William Marlin on the occasion of her 85th birthday. Twenty-five relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Marlin and enjoyed a delicious dinner complete with birthday cake made and decorated by granddaughter Mary.

Mrs. Marlin thoroughly enjoyed her evening and was delighted with the many gifts which she received. She has been staying at her son's home for the past two weeks following a three-week spell in hospital with acute arthritis but now is well recovered and back in her own home.

Poppy Fund Drive

The Hemmingford section of the Poppy Fund campaign organized by the Lacolle No. 11 Branch of the Canadian Legion was an outstanding success this year. Mr. Stan O'Connor was responsible for the collection of the Hemmingford Troop, however they are very much in existence and quite active. Mr. James Lauria, Scoutmaster for several years, was compelled to resign this summer through pressure of work. He has not, however, severed his connection entirely with the Scout movement, having been made one of the District Scout-Masters. Mr. Peter Pederson, Jr. is now Scoutmaster and brings with him much experience gained in his work with troops in Montreal. A Rifle Club was formed in September (to which only Scouts may belong) about which the boys are very keen. Mr. Jim Robertson, an ex-navy man, teaches the row-work, knots, sailing, etc., and on October 28th six proud young Cubs took part in the 'going-up' ceremony.

On November 4th a very successful Dance was held in the High School the proceeds of which will be used to further Scout and Cub activities in the district and to purchase necessary equipment.

Church Bazaar

The ladies of St. Luke's Anglican Church held their Annual bazaar on Saturday afternoon November 12th, in the Church Hall. Visitors were greeted at the door by Mrs. Norman Shaw President of the W.A. and the Rev. and Mrs. David Rogers.

Around three sides of the Hall were tables loaded with all manner of attractive articles and as usual the buyers at the home-baked food table were three deep. Very soon the tables were almost bare and tea was served. There is such a friendly atmosphere at this event it brings visitors from quite a distance. Mrs. Ben Russell and Mrs. G. Brooks with friend from Moores, N.Y., were there. Several came from Montreal among them, two who will shortly be very much missed by the entire congregation. Since the departure four years ago of the previous Rector, the Rev. F. L. Rice, a retired minister from Montreal, (well up in his eighties) has faithfully journeyed out to Hemmingford and Havelock once every month to take the Communion Service. His son, Mr. Robert Rice, acting as his chauffeur. Very soon the Rev. David Rogers will be a fully ordained minister of the Anglican Church and the services of Mr. Rice will no longer be necessary in an 'official' capacity. It is sincerely hoped he will continue his visits in the 'friendly' capacity.

Lacolle Legion
The Canadian Legion Branch No. 11 of Lacolle, held an Armistice Service in front of their new quarters in the center of the town. It was attended by the President, Ralph Smith; 1st Vice-Pres., Pat Ryan, and 2nd Vice-Pres., Allan Helm. Also Comrades Major Hewson, W. Grant, J. Scanlan, N. VanVliet, K. Struthers, W. Fewster, F. McGill, H. Douglas, J. Feeny, K. Mosher, Happy Lanctot, A. Robert and M. Patterson.

The parade formed in a formation facing the hall. Major Hewson took command of the parade and Comrade Grant handled the Red Ensign on the flagpole on top of the hall.

At one minute to eleven Major Hewson called the parade to attention, the flag was lowered to half-mast by Comrade Grant and the President, Comrade Smith handled the phonograph, which played a record of the Last Post, during the two minutes silence. After the Last Post, Revellie was sounded. The Queen's Colours and the Legion Colours were held by two Comrades, Fewster and Robert, stood at the end of the V, the colours were dipped at the two minutes silence. Then the President instead of saying a prayer, read a poem entitled, "The Ladies Who're Paying Still" by R. O. Spreckley.
He first addressed the parade, saying that he wished that all the town's people could be there to hear the poem for today many feel secure in their homes and would like to forget the sacrifices that many a serviceman gave to serve their country, Canada. But we the veterans cannot and will not forget our comrades who failed to return or returned disabled.
After the reading of the poem the parade broke off and went to their cars and drove to the Catholic Cemetery to pay respect to our Comrades, Surprenant, L. Laport, M. Renier and J. Pinsonneault. A small Union Jack was placed at each grave, then the Comrades filed past and saluted and reformed their ranks at the foot of the grave. The President read the Benediction and the Legion Ritual in English. Comrade Happy Lanctot recited the prayers in French.

The cavalcade then moved on to the Protestant Cemetery where the same ritual was carried out at the graves of Comrade Grant's son, Gordon, and Comrade Killeck's son, Ronald, both boys killed in action in World War II, then to the graves of Comrade Gerald Hill and Commander Levenson-Gower.
The parade then returned to the newly purchased hall, many of the Comrades commenting on how much more comfortable the new hall is compared to the old one.

New Building In Huntingdon During The Past Summer
After a lapse of several years, Huntingdon saw a rash of new building this summer, that showed a flurry of expansion. A number of houses have been built and for the most part residential building has formed the greatest amount of improvement. Nearly all the vacant lots within the town limits have now been filled and in consequence there have been a number of new developments in the way of subdivisions. Some of these are now before the Dept. at Quebec for acceptance and ratification.

When these have been accepted, they will open up a new number of lots for building purposes. Together with this building rash, a number of older properties have been purchased and made over into two or more apartments which will provide homes for smaller families needing such accommodation. Here are a few of the new homes that have been built in Huntingdon during the summer months.

Above is the new house built by Earl Fournier Lumber and Construction Inc. for Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Grant. It is situated on Chateaugay Street, just down the Hospital, and is of the bungalow type with five main rooms.

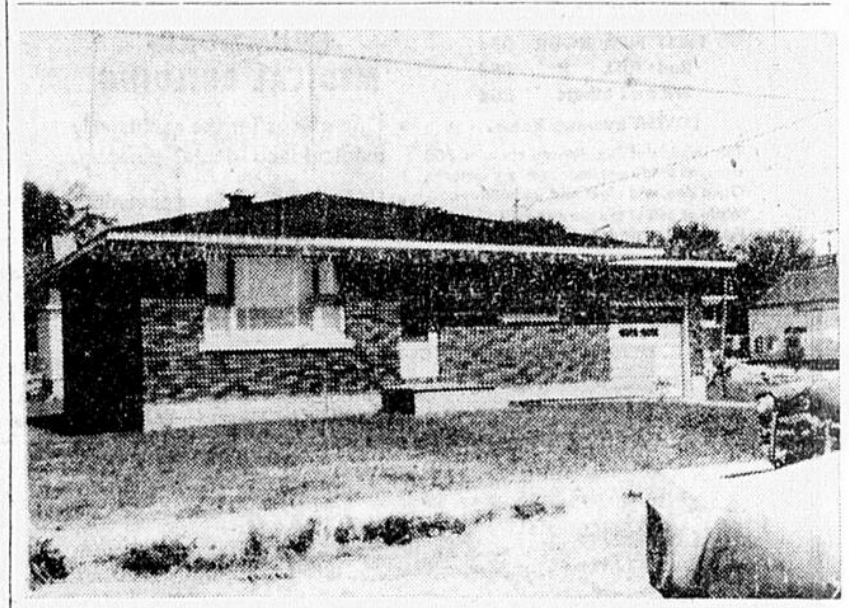

This is another bungalow, a little larger, built for Mr. and Mrs. Leon Robidoux and family, on Prince Street. The same contractor built this house.

This one was built for Mr. and Mrs. Tom Vine, on Church Hill Street, by Earl Fournier Lumber and Construction Inc. It is also a bungalow with five main rooms.

The above is another bungalow built by Earl Fournier Lumber and Construction Inc. for Mr. D. Leboeuf. This is situated on Roosevelt Street and has seven main rooms. It is the most recently completed.

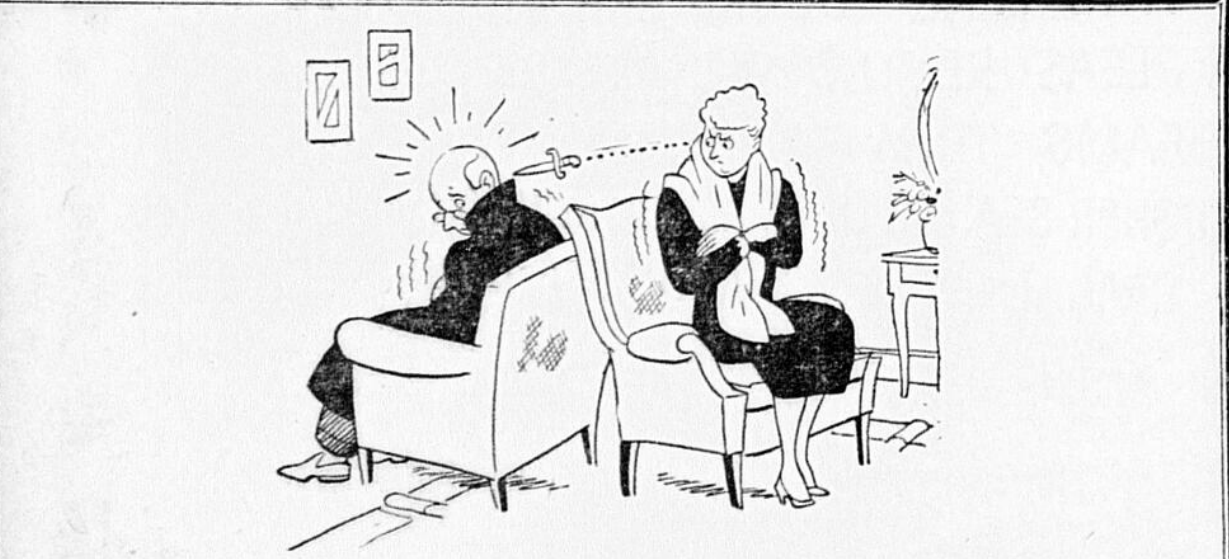

Still another bungalow built on Roosevelt Street for Mr. and Mrs. G. Dumochel, by Mr. Daoust, contractor. This was completed in the early part of the summer.

Obituary

The Late Mrs. A. H. Dawson.

Mrs. A. H. Dawson passed away very suddenly on Thursday, November 10th, 1960.

Mrs. Dawson, the former Ethyle Margaret Ann Cameron was born in Dewittville on September 26th, 1892, and moved to Huntingdon in 1909.

Married to Allan H. Dawson in 1914, residence was taken up on Wellington Street until they moved to the present house on Prince Street, in 1919.

Mrs. Dawson was very active in the work of St. John's Anglican Church and acted as Vestry Clerk for over thirty years. Social work consisted of the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion and the I.O.O.F. In both these organizations she worked tirelessly, especially in the I.O.O.F., of which she was a member for over forty years.

The funeral was held in St. John's Anglican Church, on Saturday, November 12th, and burial took place in the Cameron family plot in the Protestant Cemetery.

She is survived by her husband Allan, her son Birmie, daughter-in-law Joan, three grandchildren, John Carolyn and Peter, and one remaining sister Myrtle, Mrs. H. A. Paquette.

For example, the glycogen of animal sugar, which is later transformed into lactose or milk sugar is stored temporarily in the blood, the pancreas and the liver. It may stay there for days or only for a few minutes. Calcium, phosphorous and other minerals reach the body through the circulation of the blood but only a certain concentration of these can be carried in the blood. This means that the cow has to store a certain percentage of these elements in the bones or in other bodily organs so that she will have 1/2 lb ready to put into the next day's schedule. Fats can be stored for long periods. To know how the cow makes use of these things helps us to understand why it is so important for her to pick up 50 to 100 lbs during the sixty days she is dry.

Insufficient preparation

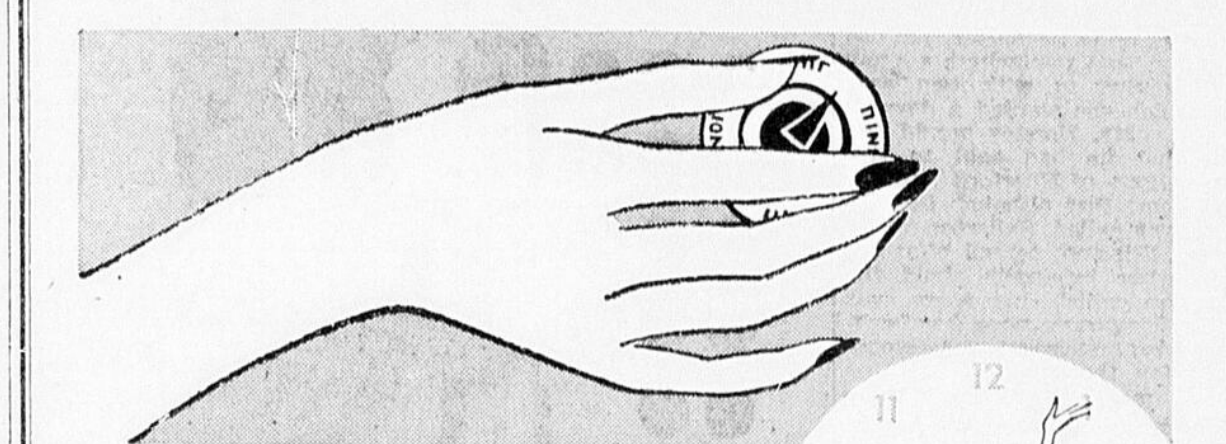

If the 50 to 100 lbs are taken on in the form of fat, the cow will be very badly prepared for the next lactation. On the other hand, if she receives well-balanced rations she will replace the matter taken out of her body. This will give her plenty of milk for the next time she calves. Experiments have shown that if the cow is in good condition during the period of dryness, she will produce 15 to 25 lbs milk more for each extra pound she will have put on.

The milk producer has to realize that when a cow loses one pound, she will produce between 15 and 25 lbs of milk less than she would have at her normal weight. Evidently her production will not go down the same day, but each day she will give a little less milk and finally she will dry up too soon. In this way, the producer loses between 15 and 25 pounds of milk for each pound of body weight he allows the cow to lose. — "Contact"

Hemmingford

A little Hemmingford History
 With the closing of Kenney's Store and the sale of the contents on November 2nd and 3rd one of Hemmingford's oldest businesses passes into oblivion. Charles Ellerton got his farm under a Crown Grant and around 1860 he sold a corner of it to Alex McCrea and Store-keeper, cabinet and coffin maker. The first store Alex built burned down in 1862 and neighbours helped him build the present buildings in 1863. McCrea sold to a Mr. Blair in 1870 who employed a young man by name of Edward Kenny to clerk for him. On New Year's day 1882 Blair sold the Store to young Edward's father Thomas Kenney. Then Willie and George Kenney took over and operated the Store from 1896 to 1902. Willie retired and went to live in Fort Erie and brother Charles came to help George. Charles died in 1909 and George carried on the Store with his wife and family until he too passed away on September 10th, 1960.

There was a Post Office there until 1911 and if one wanted something a little unusual the general advice given was "try Kenney's he's likely got it". He stocked all kinds of farm machinery, bugles and cutters, harness and seeds, groceries and dry goods and during depression days much of the trading was done by barter. Mr. Ed Ellerton well remembers a small girl coming in with two eggs for which she wanted a darning needle. Mr. Kenney would tell you that he had sold to five generations of Ellertons and did you know that although the district was called Hallerton really it was Ellerton, named after the man who originally held the land on which his store was built. Someone's poor handwriting or pronunciation was responsible for the change.

Mrs. Kenney's daughter, Mrs. P. Porter of Montreal was supervising the sale and the Auctioneer was Mr. Lyle Graham who went quickly through the entire contents of the store and house in two afternoons with the help of his new microphone which is a great improvement.

Mrs. Porter remarked that an enthusiastic lover of old Canadiana, who was building a replica of a country store to serve as a kind of museum, had purchased several of the old fixtures including the well-worn old hitching rail. Mrs. Kenney will be dividing her time between her daughter in Montreal and her daughter, Mrs. McCabe in Toronto but before she went she gave souvenirs to many of her friends and relatives. Mr. Ed Ellerton has the old brass bell which hung inside the door for over 90 years.

Sincere sympathy to Mrs. E. J. Denman in the loss of her sister, Mrs. Florence Job of Greenfield Park, who passed away very suddenly on Tuesday evening, November 8th, and was buried in Montreal on Friday. Mrs. Job was very well known here particularly among the ladies of St. Luke's W.A. and being an excellent needlewoman always had some interesting articles to donate to the Bazaar. She will be sadly missed.

Mr. and Mrs. Kyle Smiley and son Peter of Avimor, Quebec and Mrs. T. Weldon, Montreal, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Alan Fisher and visited with Mrs. T. Jackson who had the misfortune to fall two weeks ago and break three ribs. As Mrs. Jackson is 85 years old this could have been serious, however she is now able to sit up a while and is gradually improving.

Mrs. Ethel Barr has gone to Chateaugay to spend a week with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lang and baby.

The Three M. Club of Hemmingford sponsored a visit from the Free Lance Players of Verdun who brought the Play "Peg O'My Heart" to the United Church Hall on Saturday night, November 12th. There was a good attendance for this amusing play and the excellent acting of the girl who played "Peg" drew much favourable comment.

Powerscourt

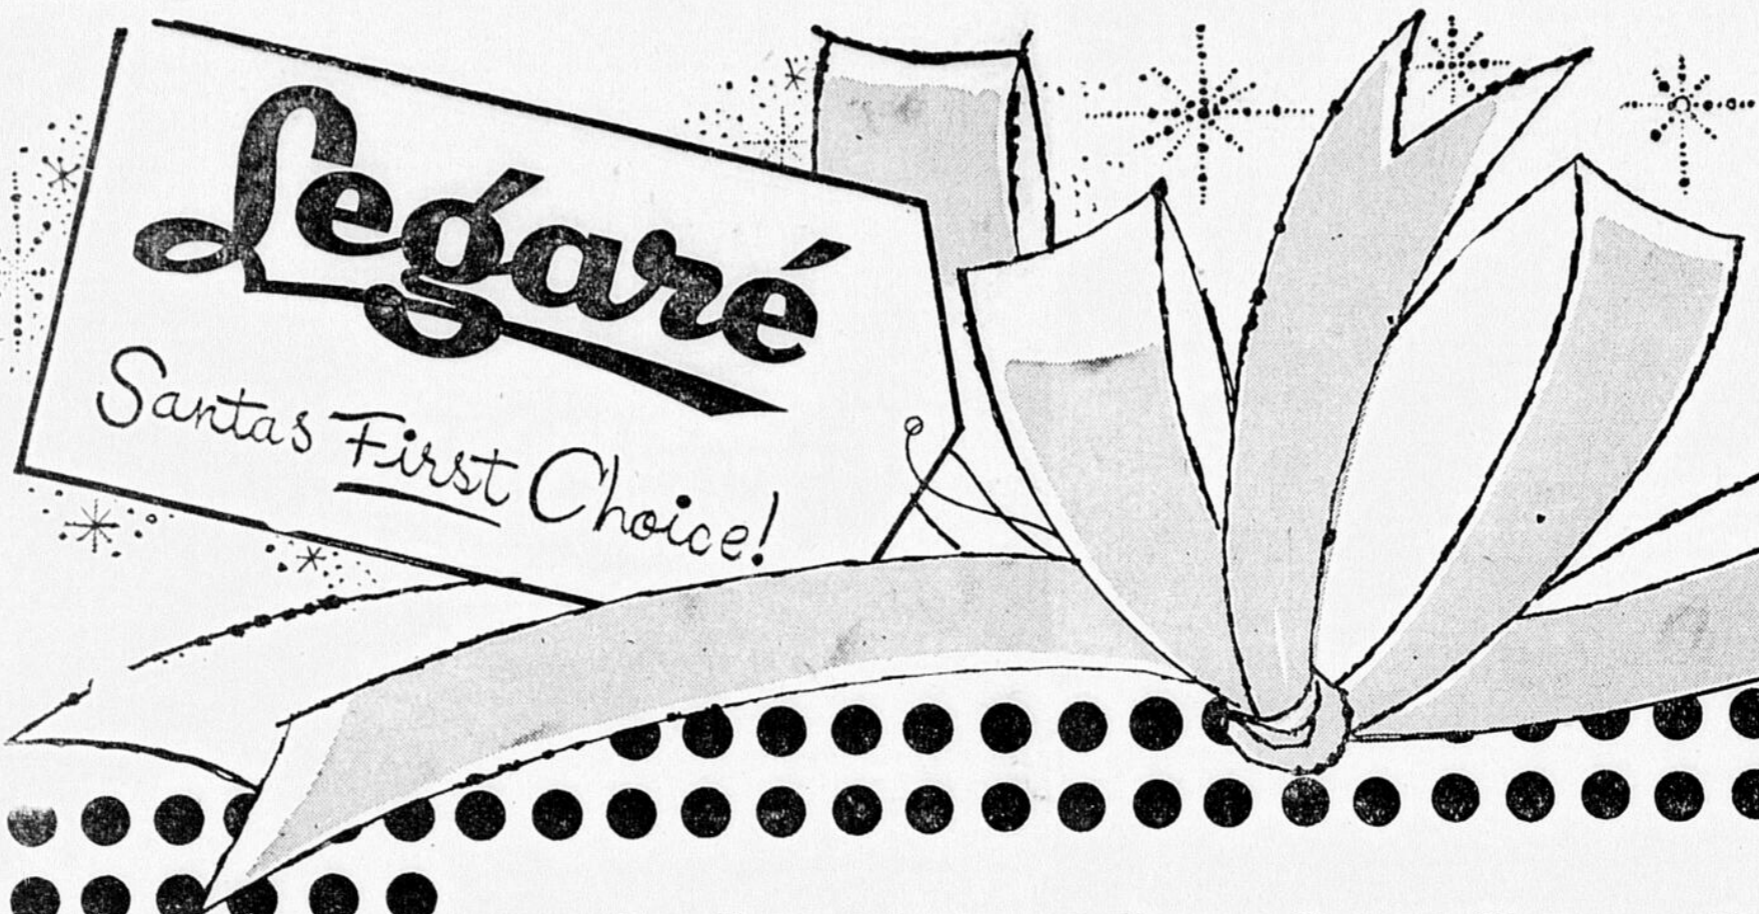

POWERSCOURT—Recent guests of Mrs. Ewing were Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and twin daughters of Vancouver, B.C.

Jackie Taylor who has spent some time at the home of his uncle, Mr. George Taylor, has left to reside in Calgary, Alta.

Mr. John Koski had a phone call from his daughter, Mrs. W. Starr of Sault Ste Marie, on Sunday eve. Jean called to wish her Dad birthday greetings. The friends join in these wishes.

Mrs. E. M. Wood attended the County W.I. Board meeting at Riverfield on Tuesday, and was over night guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Crawford at Howick.

In these days when so many farms are lying idle it does not take long for the land to grow up in brush and weeds, with the consequent neglected look. The George Platt farm was just such a place. But Mr. Matt Wallace recently purchased this farm and has had the bull dozer working on it. The removal of some trees and brush and the breaking up of some of the land is a decided improvement. Ditching operations along the front of the E. M. Wood farms have also been done and all these things make for an improvement.

Cenotaph Ceremony Honors Fallen

M. McCutcheon

Following the Annual Memorial Church Parade at St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday, November 13th, an impressive ceremony was held at the Cenotaph, Chateaugay Station at 3 p.m. Special detachments had visited Roman Catholic and Protestant Cemeteries during the morning to place a cross of Remembrance in each, following which the Pipers sounded the Last Post and Reveille. A brief religious service at the Cenotaph, with prayers by the Rev. Douglas Brooker and Comrade Jean Paul Bourcier was conducted with the Choir of St. Andrew's United Church led by Director Elaine Rowell in attendance. The laying of wreaths and the dedication by Rev. Brooker followed. Pipers of the Black Watch Regiment then sounded the Last Post and Reveille. Following the singing of "God Save the Queen", Parade Marshal George Oliver marched his units past the Saluting Base where Brig. A. T. James, D.S.O. South African War Veteran took the salute. Dignitaries on the base included: John Ross, Honorary President Branch 108, Louis Smith, Honorary Vice-President, Branch 108, Maurice Laberge, M. P. E., Mayor of Chateaugay Centre, David M. Currie, Mayor of Chateaugay Heights, Joseph Laberge, Mayor of Town of Chateaugay, Rev. Douglas Brooker, Padre of Canadian Legion Branch 108.

Groups attending the Cenotaph ceremonies were Chateaugay Legion Branch 108 South African War Veterans, Caughnawaga Branch 219, Remembrance Branch 75, Chateaugay Scouts, Girl Guides, Wolf Cubs, Brownies and a representative group from the various Church and local organizations.

A reception for visitors, Legionnaires and friends was held at the Legion Hall following the service.

Chateaugay Man Killed

Mr. John Beattie, 37, a resident of Chateaugay Parkway at 123 Sheridan, was killed Saturday, November 12, in Ville Lasalle. Mr. Beattie was working on the motor of his car which had stalled at the corner of Newman Boulevard and Labatt St., when the car was hit from behind, pushing it over him.

Mrs. Beattie, wife of the deceased, was a passenger in the car at the time of the accident, but was uninjured.

Council Approves Police Car

The meeting of Council for the Town of Chateaugay was very quiet Tuesday night and only two matters came up of much interest.

Police Chief Denis Rousseau submitted tenders received for a new Police car. After lengthy discussion, it was decided to accept the lowest tender.

First of Chateaugay Shopping Centers Opens This Week

The stores of the Beau-Chateaugay shopping center to-day opened their doors to the public for the first time. This is the first shopping center in the Chateaugay district and is made up of 7 stores, situated on Highway 3, in Chateaugay Centre.

Those stores due to open today are I.G.A. Super and Save-Jassars Department Store and "The Hub" Hardware.

The Bank of Montreal opened Monday morning under the management of Mr. Pierre Tarte and a staff of 5. Mr. Tarte comes here from the North End branch of St. Jerome, where he has been manager since 1958.

"The Hub" is managed by Mr. Conway, a man with considerable experience in the hardware business. His store will deal in such articles as tiles, wall coverings and most other household necessities.

The entire Center was built and is owned by Louis Magli and Company of Montreal.

The P.T.A. of Chateaugay has taken the initial step in trying to have enforced, a law that has been flagrantly violated in the Province of Quebec for many years.

Aware that recently, two Chateaugay children were hit after leaving a School bus, parents want a petition sent to the Rt. Hon. George LaPalme, Attorney General of the Province of Quebec, asking him for more strict enforcement of the law which few motorists are aware of. The law states that a driver must not pass a parked autobus on a road or highway, from either direction. School buses are supposed to be marked, both front and back, "DO NOT PASS WHEN STOPPED."

It is hoped that enough parents of children who ride school buses will sign this petition to bring about some action from authorities. If you wish your name added to the list, phone OX 2-9814. If more information is requested a phone call to a member of the P.T.A. might enlighten you.

Missionary Visits St. Willibrord's

The pupils of St. Willibrord School had the pleasure of a visit from Reverend Mother General and her Council of the Order of Missionary Franciscan of the Immaculate Conception, from Rome.

Reverend Mother General spoke to the children on her Missionary work and of an audience she had had with the Pope, from which she brought the Devotio Magna to all of them.

The senior pupils of grades 7, 8 and 9 gathered in the entrance hall of the school and sang a "Welcome Song" to greet the distinguished visitors.

After visiting all the classes from grades 1 to 9, the visitors expressed their admiration for the children of Chateaugay.

Early Darkness Cause Of Many Accidents

Since reverting to Standard time, this area has been plagued by a rash of minor accidents. Fog which shroud low lying areas is also blamed.

During the dense fog which covered Chateaugay, Monday, a GMC 5 ton truck, slid on the greasy pavement of route 4, outside Prudential, hit another automobile, and went into the ditch. It was late afternoon when the load of dirt in the truck was unloaded and it could be towed from the ditch.

The driver of the truck, Marcel Briere, 23 of St. Philomene, was taken to Lachine St. Joseph Hospital with an eye injury. Damage to the truck was estimated at $400.

Damage to the 1955 Pontiac, driven by James Mayo 63, of Caughnawaga, was $600.

At 1:30 p.m., November 6th, a Dodge sedan, 1957, driven by Robert Mercier, 19, of St. Philomene, collided on Marcel Bridge with a 1959 Ford Coach driven by Martin Hardy, 31, of 55 St. Leo Street, Chateaugay. Damage to both cars was light.

Cecil A. Collier, 43, of Ormstown, was killed, November 9th, when his car left the road around 9:30 p.m. near St. Stanislas de Kostka, and struck a tree.

A 1958 Chrysler Sedan, owned by Marcel Grenier, 27, of Beauharnois, was a total loss after a fire which originated in the dashboard, swept through the car. Mr. Grenier was driving the automobile when he noticed the fire, went for help and returned too late to save the car.

George Marshall of 148 St. Louis St., West End, was backing his car from a driveway, November 15th, when he hit the side of a 1956 International 5 ton truck driven by Paul Emile Dolland, 44, of 110 Bissonnette St., Beauharnois. No damage was caused to the truck while damage to the car was estimated at $300.

Historical Notes Gleaned From "Seller's" History

Up to 1829 the only government aid towards education was extended through the royal institution, which was badly managed by an irresponsible body of placemen. The Williamstown school was the only one in this district that derived a yearly grant from it, and Norman McLeod received $120 from 1825 until his death. An occasional grant was made to the Huntingdon school. In 1829 a law came into force by which a small allowance was allotted each school, ranging from $10 to $80, the average being $40. This was followed by another, making grants towards the building of schoolhouses of from $40 to $100 each in proportion to their cost, and under this stimulus nearly every settlement erected one. By subsequent acts, small subsidies were given to keep up the schools, but they were paltry and irregularly paid. In 1833 it was enacted that $16 additional be paid English schools that taught French, and vice versa. It is superfluous to state, that every English school was returned as teaching French, and every French school as teaching English, so that the act was annulled. The grants were distributed by county visitors, who were supposed to examine them once a year. Charles Archambault, one of its representatives, was visitor for this district, and discharged his duties in an easy manner. He would listen to a scholar read a few sentences and, with the words, "Good scholar; good scholar," pass on to the next. The $180 allotted as prizes for each school he seldom had, and excusing himself by saying he would pay the best scholars 4¢ apiece at his next visit, passed on to the next school. Like many others in similar positions, he embezzled the school grants. Having no power to levy a rate to sustain them, the maintenance of the schools depended on the few zealous settlers who took the lead in their management and on the small fees paid by the scholars. The salary of the master never exceeded $200 and often fell under one hundred. Up to 1828 there were only 6 schools in the present district; in 1829 there were 13, with 650 scholars, all English. In 1833 the number rose to 41, with 1300 in attendance, of whom about one-fourth were unable to pay fees. Bouchette writing of his visit to the district in 1828, states that the French had no public schools. "Among the few French Canadians," he says, "who have any wish to give education to their children, the practice prevails of taking a teacher into the house of one individual and collecting there the children of as many parents as are desirous of this benefit, each paying his quota of the expense. Of these private schools there are not more than 4 or 5. Their benefit is very limited, and little else than the catechism is taught." The first French schools were two opened in the seigniory of Chateauguy in 1830, followed

How Far Amalgamation?

In the recent aldermanic elections in Chateauguy Center, the question was put to one of the candidates, "How do you feel about amalgamating the three municipalities in the Chateauguy Area?" His answer was that he could foresee such a move in the future, and possibly not too far off as some people thought. He ventured a guess at 10 years possibly. This is the usual reaction from people who are asked this question. Nobody seems to know too much about the matter but everybody feels that it should and will occur before too long. One excuse given as holding up such an amalgamation is that one of the municipalities has too great a debt and the other towns do not want to take over such a debt. Inquiries have shown, that the Town of Chateauguy is $2,500,000 in debt. This is $1,900,000 less than Mayor Maurice Laberge of Chateauguy Center quoted two weeks ago. This places the size of the two towns' debts not so far apart as was before assumed. The third municipality, Chateauguy Heights, is assumed out of debt, but they lack many of the services which the other municipalities have, water, sewage and a police force being the main items. If as many people are in favour of joining the three municipalities as say so, then it is time for officials from each to meet and lay their cards on the table, find out where each stands and form a plan, possibly a long term plan over a period of years, which will eventually bring the three municipalities into one.

Keep Party Politics From Municipal Meetings

Accusations of Party Politics have been tossed about in connection with the recent aldermanic election in Chateauguy Center. A group of citizens, who admit being affiliated with the Liberal party, have had two of their candidates elected aldermen. Their claim is that up until now, the Town Council has been run by members of another party, presumably Union Nationale. These new men say that they do not want to mix Party Politics with municipal affairs. Members of the present council say that they have not, and will not mix politics with municipal affairs. It is hard to believe that men, backed by a political party to attain election, will not follow that party's policy in his voting at Council. It will be very hard for him to bear in mind that he is in municipal office, thanks to the voters, who put him there as a man who they wanted to represent them, not for his Party affiliation. At the first evidence of Party Politics in Town Council, the people will know that they have been used. Perhaps they will remember this when the next election comes up. The question each representative must ask himself before voting on a municipal matter in Council is, "Am I voting this way because it will benefit my constituents?" or "Am I voting this way because it will benefit the Party?" The man who can answer "Yes" to the first question may rest assured that he is doing the job for which he has been elected.

Everyone Must Stop For School Bus

Elsewhere on these pages you will see notice of a petition sponsored by the P.T.A. in Chateauguy, denouncing drivers for not observing traffic rules pertaining to stopping when a school bus is taking on or letting off children. The complaint is that few drivers obey the law and many buses do not have signs painted on them telling drivers to stop. These laws, it is stated, are strictly enforced throughout the United States and the other provinces of Canada. Many people in Quebec do follow the common sense rule and do not pass a parked school bus, but only driver education will teach the rest. The school boards can do their bit by informing the School Bus drivers of one rule which they are seen breaking daily on Quebec's highways. It is the bus drivers responsibility to see that the child is safely across the highway before he closes his doors and proceeds. Some do, but the majority, not only in Chateauguy but in municipalities between here and Huntingdon, let the children out the bus door and drive off, to let them cross the highway as best they can. Quebec's drivers are just as much bound by law that they must not pass a parked School Bus from either direction, and Bus drivers must learn to wait until all charges are on the side of the road to which they belong, then parents can feel reasonably safe that their children will go and return to school with less danger.

It could be had at Malone for 20 cents the gallon, was worth 80 cents at Franklin, and $1 at St. Remi. The business of smuggling was followed systematically and immense quantities of liquor brought in. About 1830 a schoolhouse was built on the site of the existing one, large enough for meetings on week days and Sundays, and within its walls, eventually destroyed by fire, the Rev. Townsend and others held service. Some time after the war an American physician, Dr. Wabridge, took up his abode on lot 18, 2nd range. He was found dead in his bush, having been killed

 They say that anything can happen in our league and generally does. Last week Flash-in-the-Pan Downing, with a general average of about 70, took the high single and high triple with 136 and 328 respectively. Welcome Home
 Everyone is happy to have a familiar face back in our midst. Mrs. D. Shaw of Ross St. returned yast Thursday after spending the past six months in England. Mrs. Shaw looks very well and says she had a wonderful time, and whereas she is glad to be home she is also sorry her trip is over. Mrs. R. Pratten of Edward Street entertained on Monday night at a welcome-home party for Mrs. Shaw. Chateauguy Home Owners Association
 Where were all the executives at the meeting at Tom Allman's last Tuesday? We hear that one of the top executives is resigning due to other pressing commitments. It has been decided to mail a newsletter to all members after an executive meeting and before a general meeting, so that the business part will not take so long and more time can be spent at the general meeting on a more social vein. There will be a general meeting on November 29th at the Chateau-Gai motel. Hope everyone will circle their calendar and make a good showing this time. The boys of the rink committee did a very good job on Saturday putting up the boards, and everything seems to be in readiness for the coming winter. Hockey teams are being formed and the Garden boys will be playing other developments. How about someone to teach our girls figure-skating? or run a girls' hockey-team? Is there any woman in the district who knows how to figure skate, who wouldn't mind giving the girls some lessons? New Baby

 Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lang were happy to announce the arrival of a new son last Thursday November 10th. Can't you just see how proud grandfather Ross is these days? Chattens Club
 Saturday was not Halloween but Chattens night. The boys and girls were ringing door bells, looking for some mighty curious things. They were having a scavenger hunt, and apparently lots of fun. Prizes were won by Bruce Appelton, Diane Colley and Ann Black. Many thanks to Mrs. H. Thornburg for her novel idea. Next week's party will be decided later. Visiting
 Mr. and Mrs. Aimé Dufort and their family spent this past week-end in Sherbrooke, Que., visiting Connie's brother, Mr. J. E. Leclair and his family. The Duforts have been quite busy these days. A few weeks ago, Aimé's brother, Rev. Father Camille Dufort, P. B. an African missionary spent some time in Chateauguy before embarking for Ghana. At the present time a younger brother is a guest before leaving for Winnipeg.

of the Children's Christmas Party is to take place in the basement of Joe Lebrun's home, 83 St. Patrick Sq., starting at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 19th. All Prudential Home Owners Association members are asked to support this cause. Please contact your writer at OX. 2-2818 or Nancy Sales at OX. 2-9217 for information regarding contributions. Bowling
 On Wednesday, Nov. 9th. St. George's Anglican Church held their Annual Church dinner for parishioners. Ground has been broken and construction will start soon on the Regional Shopping Center. Friends and neighbours of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hunter, Prince St., wish to extend their sympathy to the couple in their recent loss. Accident on Monday
 7.30 A.M. Monday, Nov. 14th, a serious accident occurred on route 4 involving two cars and two trucks. The two cars, belonging to Prudential Construction workers, were about to make the turn into the development, when a truck collided with them. Mr. Pellier, driver of the truck got out to direct traffic and in the process of doing so, was hit by a second truck and was seriously injured. Provincial Police arrived on the scene and an ambulance was called and took Mr. Pellier to St. Joseph's Hospital in Lachine. CANADA'S HIGHEST PEAKS
 The three highest mountains in Canada are all in Yukon territory. The Book of Knowledge has them as Mount Logan, 19,850 feet; Mount St. Elias, 18,008 feet; and Mount Lucania, 17,150 feet.

Coleman Blend-Air Oil Heating System

You'll never believe the difference between ordinary systems... and Blend-Air... until you actually feel it yourself! Blend-Air conditions your home for health as well as comfort! In winter, it spreads a carpet of warmth on the floor... "curtains" the outer walls so that even large window areas are warm. Temperatures stay uniform from floor to ceiling! And for summer cooling there's never a draft, with uniform cooling from room to room.

- EASY TERMS
- 3 1/4% INTEREST, 5 YEARS TO PAY
- FREE ESTIMATES

We are exclusive Coleman Dealers for the Counties of Beauharnois - Chateauguy - Huntingdon

CHECK THESE EXCLUSIVE FEATURES

- Exclusive blending principle is the secret—and ONLY Coleman Blend-Air has it! It keeps temperatures more uniform than any other system ever developed.
- Blenders take the place of ordinary registers. Ordinary outlets blow hot air directly at you but Coleman blenders MIX room air with heated air. Then BLENDED air flows out gently, at perfect comfort temperatures. The DOUBLE action of the blenders creates a separate circulation system in every room!
- Every 7 1/2 minutes, fresh warm air is circulated, re-circulated into every corner of every room. You aren't even aware of it, but the air is moving. Result: NO cold, dead spots... NO heat stacked on the ceiling. Temperatures at floor and ceiling are virtually the same at all times.
- You can regulate the temperature of each room individually. It's like having a separate heating or cooling system in every room!
- It's true perimeter heating — not only the best, but the most versatile ever developed. Because of the DOUBLE action of the blenders, they can be installed almost anywhere. Five types fit every need for both old and new homes.
- For summer cooling the same blending principle provides crisp, dry-cool comfort. Since air from the cooling unit is blended with room air, it can be "super-chilled" to a much lower temperature. This in turn means that up to twice as much moisture can be removed!

Strongest Guarantee for ANY System

Blend-Air is a new way of circulating warmth. It's the most modern, most healthful way ever devised to circulate comfort in your home. That's why it carries the strongest guarantee in the industry, the exclusive $1,000 Comfort Bond — backed by The Travelers Indemnity Co., Hartford, Conn. Your present home, or a new home, can have Blend-Air easily!

Home and School Association News

Realizing how interested parents are in meeting with their children's teachers, the Home and School Association has arranged with the cooperation of the staff of the Julius Richardson School to give more such opportunities. For the November 16th meeting the following program has been arranged:

Demonstrations

In Room 3: — Primary Level, Grades 1, 2 & 3—Subject—Reading conducted by Miss G. Harkness, teacher Grade 2A. This demonstration will feature samples of classroom reading from good, average and poor students, as well as methods of teaching reading. Most of this will be illustrated through use of the tape recorder. Parents are asked not to neglect the display of reading aids, charts and supplementary reading.

In Room 11, — Grade 4 and 5 level — Subject arithmetic — conducted by Mrs. V. Campbell, teacher of Grade 4B. This demonstration will consist of the methods used in teaching arithmetic, with particular emphasis on solving word problems.

In Room 10 — Grade 6 and 7 level — Subject Science — conducted by Mr. R. Eaman, teacher of Grade 6B. This demonstration will attempt to indicate the purpose of teaching science — the inter-relationship with everyday life and other subjects taught in school. An attempt will be made to show how one subject may be able to motivate improvement in another subject and how parents must be willing to "fan" the spark.

The three demonstrations will be carried on simultaneously and parents are asked to select the one most interesting to them and proceed to that room. A question and discussion period will follow each demonstration. Timetable for the evening is as follows:

8.00 p.m. — All parents meet in the gym for introductions.

8.05 p.m. — Parents disperse to the demonstration they have selected to attend.

9.15 p.m. — Adjournment to the cafeteria for coffee.

A while ago you must have read in the papers an item pertaining to "Goof Balls" and as you can see this is no minor matter since the School Board has seen fit to issue a notice to pupils and parents to this effect.

As one teenager to another, I beg you to read the notice and absorb the information contained. If you see or hear of anyone distributing these pills in this area, you will report the person to the proper authorities immediately.

By doing this we can repay those persons who have worked so hard to make Chateaugay a decent place to live in.

These people may be your own parents, school teachers, members of your church, or may be someone you don't even know. If we fall to the temptation of these "goof balls", we are letting down the people who are trying so hard to help us, and we are also gaining a bad name for the teenagers. So let's all band together and wipe out this terrible threat to our community.

Basketball:
On Friday night, Hemmingford played host to our Chateaugay teams from Maple and we're sorry to say that both our teams went down to defeat. The boys lost by a score of 39-16. The point getters for the boys were Bill Davies, Kent Mitchell and Gerry Kezar. Our girls did somewhat better and only lost by 15-11. We hope our teams will keep up the good work.

Aquatic Club News:
Any boy who has tickets for the raffle had better get them in because the raffle is to be held soon.

The Aquatic Club will be open during the winter but only on the following nights: Friday, Saturday and Sunday. But remember, members only.

Cha-Teen Club
A party was held for the Cha-Teen club at the home of Ricky Thornburg. A scavenger hunt was held and the winner was Bruce Appleton and the winner of the Booby Prize was Ann Black.

Scout News
A parade was held on Sunday, November 13 to the Cenotaph in Chateaugay Station. Representatives of the Boy Scouts, Sea Scouts, and Girl Guides were in attendance. The Honour Guard were two Boys Scouts, Norman Gray and Al Barnett and two Sea Scouts, Francois Scall and Glenn Fare.

Birthday
Birthdays wishes are in store for Lois Dunn who celebrated her sixteenth birthday on Friday. Glad to see Brian Archer around again after a long sickness.

A party was held at the home of Carol Morgan. About 23 people attended and we hear that some of the boys got white faces.

Chatter
Kent and Karen were arguing again on Sunday but all's well again.

Norm has been seeing a lot of a girl from Point St. Charles. Really getting around, eh Norm?

On Thursday night, Rex and Al went to visit some of Al's old friends in N.D.G. You guys really like to travel.

Andre Berzler was the guest of Al Barnett on Friday night. How did you enjoy your stay, Andre?

Bill Lokkan and Gerry Kezar went to see a hockey game on Saturday and they say the game was great. Hope you enjoyed yourself, boys.

M.G. and R.L. have been seeing a lot of each other lately. Boy, is R.L. ever hooked, but good.

G.T. finally landed his fish. Good catch, Gerry.

G.P. still has a crush on a boy in the Station. Can't you take a hint J.K.?

Sorry to say that W.N. lost his girlfriend. Better luck next time Willy.

D.R. still has a crush on M.G. even though she is stuck on R.L. A certain girl in Colonia has been dying to see a certain boy from the Basin. Wonder who, C.R.?

A "Timely" Tip to Chateauguay Hairdressers

A letter in an English magazine tells of the experience of a visitor to Europe while in a Beauty Salon. Unaware of the fact that the hair dryer was equipped with a timing device, she was startled when an alarm went off in the dryer, but on discovering that it was a timer she agreed that it was a wonderful idea — anyone who has ever been "forgotten" under the dryer will appreciate this.

A Note of Humor
What gets wet drying? — A towel.

Girl Guide Meeting
