RCMP only told of Lortie arrest four days later

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General George McIlraith told the Commons Wednesday the RCMP was not informed until Nov. 10 that other suspects had been hiding in a Montreal house where Quebec Provincial Police arrested a man Nov. 6 in connection with recent kidnappings.

Mr. McIlraith said the RCMP was "not informed until Tuesday evening (Nov. 10) of that week" that three other suspects had been hiding in a house where provincial police had arrested Bernard Lortie, 19, Friday, Nov. 6.

John Diefenbaker, former Conservative prime minister, read what he said were quotes from the QPP director, Maurice St. Pierre. He quoted the police director as saying that the RCMP had not been notified earlier because "we had no official notification that the RCMP was on duty Friday night."

Was the RCMP co-operating with other police forces, Mr. Diefenbaker asked, "or what does this nonsense by Mr. St. Pierre mean?"

Mr. McIlraith said he would not accept the statement as an accurate reflection of what Mr. St. Pierre said.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) asked why the RCMP had not been notified that three suspects had hidden in the house and later escaped.

Russians say Mars next stop

MOSCOW (CP) — The planet Mars will be the next testing ground for unmanned space wagons. Soviet scientists predicted Wednesday as the Soviet Union's robot space vehicle Lunokhod I completed its second day of operation on the moon.

Longpre asks new election

MAGOG (Special) — A court writ was served on Magog's Mayor Maurice Theroux Tuesday, Nov. 17, asking for a re-election for the senior magistrate's post in his community.

The writ, states that the Nov. 1 election was not fair, inasmuch that votes in 2 polls were not allowed because of essential irregularities. These were polls 3D where all votes were disallowed. This is the sector in which Gerard L. Longpre, who contested Mr. Theroux, resides, and where he originally held a majority. In 3B all but 14 votes were cast out, again effecting the change in count.

L. Denis Bouchard, legal counsel to Mr. Longpre, said some non-qualified votes were found during the recount.

LOOK OF CHRISTMAS — Although Christmas is still 35 days away, works crews were hard at work last week installing holiday decorations around the city. The days when the community church was the centre of activity on Christmas is no longer.

Police study latest note Must check over 6000 kidnap leads MONTREAL (CP) — Maurice St. Pierre, director of Quebec Provincial Police, said Wednesday that some 6,000 leads have had to be checked out so far in the search for the abductors of James (Jasper) Cross and the abductors and murderers of Pierre Laporte.

Mr. Cross, a 49-year-old British trade commissioner, was abducted from his home Oct. 5 by the Front de Liberation du Quebec terrorists Mr. Laporte, former Quebec labor minister was kidnapped five days later by the FLQ and his body was discovered in the trunk of a car Oct. 18.

Mr. St. Pierre denied that information was being withheld from the RCMP, outlining how the workload in the kidnapping investigation is being handled.

"This is the understanding... it's very plain." Asked the RCMP's role, Mr. St. Pierre said:

"They are working with us on both cases. If we need their help, they come in. It all depends on what it is."

He said he did not know of any communications gap among the Montreal Quebec and RCMP forces.

Meanwhile, the Gazette says Mr. Cross may have been held for a while in the apartment where accused terrorist Bernard Lortie was arrested Nov. 6 and where three other kidnap suspects hid in a false wall to successfully avoid capture.

An unnamed police officer is quoted as saying the hidden compartment in an apartment closet was "big enough to hold more than three persons."

Paul Rose, 27, his brother Jacques, 23 and Francis Simard, 23, apparently eluded police by hiding in the well-hidden compartment during the police raid which netted Lortie.

Police have confirmed that the secret hideaway yielded fingerprints of the three kidnap suspects, but they have not disclosed if any physical evidence of the British diplomat was also discovered there.

Mr. Cross is believed still alive and in the hands of the FLQ.

Meanwhile, Jean-Noel Lavoie, Speaker of the Quebec national assembly, said that Ombudsman Louis Marceau has received 63 written complaints or requests for investigation since the War Measures Act was invoked by the

"I can only sum the matter up by saying the combined operation of all three is known as the combined anti-terrorist squad—CATS.

"They're known as the CATS. The CATS are now out of the bag."

In Maine, Great Lakes Tells US to clean up streams

NEW YORK (CP) — Fisheries Minister Jack Davis of Canada called on the United States Wednesday to keep its pollutants on its side of the border, particularly in Lake Erie—a "big sluggish sump" the U.S. is using as its own.

The minister also mentioned in an address to a Canadian-American seminar that there is pollution in Canada resulting from operations of processing plants in northern Maine.

Military mandated in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — The military-backed government appeared Wednesday to have scored its expected triumph in Sunday's general election and the leader of the frequently-purged opposition said Brazil has become a de facto one-party state.

Estimates from partial returns indicated the opposition Brazilian Democratic Movement, many of whose members have been deprived of their political rights for 10 years, would lose seven of eight of their 19 Senate seats and suffer a drop of similar proportions in the House of Representatives.

Americans in regard to Lake Erie: "I wish you would clean up your outfalls as fast as we are cleaning up ours on the Ontario side."

"I wish, also that there was some way of offsetting your great size. You have been burdening Lake Erie four times as heavily as Canada has."

"You have been using all of the lake as if it was your own and you have been slow—relatively slow—in putting things right."

He asked when Americans are going to duplicate Canadian moves to remove phosphates in detergents?

SALMON DESTROYED He said processing plants in northern Maine are sending starch- and fibre-laden effluents down the St. John River into Canada. These effluents had helped destroy salmon runs in New Brunswick.

Davis was speaking at a seminar on Canadian-American relations sponsored by the University of Windsor, Ont., and Columbia University here. He was part of a panel discussion on the environment.

In another panel, Alastair Gillespie, Liberal member of Parliament for Etobicoke, Ont., and parliamentary secretary to the president of the treasury board, said Canadian governments have taken only an "ad hoc" approach to protecting the country from foreign economic dominance.

He said it is a "shocking fact of information we need."

If the government decides not to pursue the project there is little the committee could do except attempt to exert pressure, the mayor admitted.

he said that a little-known technical report on the most recent underground nuclear test in the Aleutians says that, using the worst set of assumptions, calculations indicate enormous quantities of radioactive hydrogen from the bomb cavity could reach the Pacific Ocean in six years.

The most concentrated discharge would continue for another 66 years. He said already the ocean has all the radioactivity it can stand.

Davis told the Americans their "expertise on the technical front has helped us no end," but "when it comes to the preservation of our environment we would have preferred a small neighbor at our side."

"We would have preferred a smaller neighbor with a smaller appetite for raw materials and smaller output of industrial and other pollutants along and across our international boundary line."

Gillespie said there is fear in Canada about the effects of economic domination from across the border and Canadian governments have been committed to building cultural fences. Their approach has been on an ad hoc or piecemeal basis. There has been legislation to assure Canadian control of newspapers, television, some mining and banking.

NO TEXTBOOK LAW But "no federal government has yet recognized the importance of the textbook publishing industry in terms of Canadian cultural development." The result was that 95 per cent of all textbooks used in Canada were or shortly would be controlled by non-Canadians.

Danville will do just that, the mayor said.

"We need something, and it has been promised, and we want it," he said.

Then came April, and an election campaign and a new government.

Ask preferred indictment for FLQ suspects here

By DAVID MAGIL. SHERBROOKE — Mr. Justice William Mitchell of Court of Queen's Bench yesterday postponed decision until Nov. 27 on a defence motion to quash a preferred indictment tendered by the attorney-general against four accused FLQ sympathizers.

At an assizes court session yesterday afternoon, defence counsel Denis Lanctot argued that the justice minister could not invoke a preferred indictment in criminal cases involving penalties of less than 5 years.

Under the War Measures Act, the maximum penalties are a combination of $5,000 fine and 5 years imprisonment.

Mr. Justice Mitchell reserved decision until Nov. 27 to enable counsel to appeal by writing and to submit jurisprudence and authorities.

The accused are Real Jodoin, 23, Janine Jodoin, 24, Maurice Gauthier, 22, and Jacynthe Gauthier, 21. They are charged with "favouring the acts principles and lines of conduct" of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec.

At sessions court in the morning, where the accused's preliminary hearing was to take place, crown prosecutor Michel Cote presented Judge Benoit Turmel with an order from the attorney-general to proceed through preferred indictment.

"The law concerning preferred indictments permits the attorney-general to send an accused directly to trial before a judge and jury by way of a preferred indictment, without preliminary hearing being required to be held after such an indictment has been preferred," Justice Kenneth C. MacKay said in Montreal Tuesday.

Outside the court, Mr. Cote said the prosecution had proceeded originally with arraignment and preliminary hearing because it did not have any instructions to the contrary from the justice department. He said instructions to proceed through preferred indictment were received Tuesday.

Pending outcome of the defence motion, the accused are being held without bail at Sherbrooke Jail and Tanguay Institute in Montreal.

OTTAWA (CP) — John W. Braithwaite, 40, is a lean six-footer with gambler's boat sideburns and that Johnny Cash look. As new boss of the federal prison system, his appearance shouldn't hurt him any.

Mr. Braithwaite, billed by Solicitor-General George McIlraith as an innovator and "one of North America's leading penologists," Wednesday was appointed associate deputy commissioner of penitentiaries.

He will be responsible for prisoner programs in the 35 institutions in the federal system while Paul A. Faguy, the recently-appointed commissioner, will concentrate on administration matters such as budget and staff development.

Mr. Braithwaite said in an interview his job will be "re-integration" of the 7,000 federal offenders into society. He hopes to make the prisons more "normal," in the sense that they operate more like the everyday world, and establish more community involvement with offenders.

The Vancouver-born Mr. Braithwaite breaks a tradition of lawyers and colonels at the top of the prison system. He has a master's degree in social work from the University of British Columbia.

WORKED AT PRISON However, he isn't ivory tower. While at UBC, he worked evening shifts at the Oakalla prison farm in Burnaby, B.C.

At 28, he became the federal system's youngest warden, running the Haney Correctional Institution for young adult offenders.

While there, he built his reputation, developing a pilot program for young Indian offenders, a socialization program for narcotic addicts and a rehabilitation program for 200 young prisoners.

He set up honor camps as pre-release units and later helped to develop programs in which prisoners worked or studied in neighboring communities by day, while the community used the prison for classes at night.

Canada may join projected European space consortium

OTTAWA (CP) — Study is being given here to associate membership for Canada in the projected European Space Organization, expected to become a space giant ranking with the United States and the Soviet Union.

Among the space programs the European organization may undertake are a "space tug" for inter-orbital travel and a proposed traffic control satellite for regulating world airline flights.

Canada already is reviewing space policy. The United States recently invited this country and several others to share in the U.S. space program.

The U.S. is to provide rockets for Canada's first domestic communications satellite, to be launched toward the end of 1972. The government is studying possible participation in a United States resources satellite, also to go aloft in 1972.

These plans could go forward apparently unaffected by participation in the European organization.

Treasury Board President C. M. Drury, chairman of the cabinet's science committee, said in a recent speech: SEE POLITICAL BENEFIT "Association with the European Space Organization would offer both present and future political benefits as well as the option to participate in interesting and useful practical programs, and would not preclude beneficial arrangements with the United States."

Mr. Drury said ESO offers, at "tolerable cost" a chance to balance the dominant bilateral relationship with the United States. This is one of the stated aims of the government's foreign policy white paper.

Mr. Drury, questioned in the Commons Wednesday by former Conservative leader John Diefenbaker, said he was, in effect, just thinking out loud in giving that assessment of ESO membership at an aeronautics and space congress in Montreal earlier this week.

Kite-flying to test public and industry reaction was the way Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants) described it.

You see, Arnold's portable FM/AM radio has a pop-up TV in it.

We have succeeded in pulling a particularly interesting upstaging caper: A portable radio with a pop-up, honest-to-goodness television.

Goes anywhere. On battery or house current. And it delivers a great black and white picture, as well as great FM-AM music.

This innovation popped-up at our TV factory. Where we make TV's ranging from 1 1/2 inches to 20 inches in screen size. The 1 1/2-inch one is the world's smallest TV. Sort of like a wrist-watch.

You've got the idea now. We become very involved in making TV's.

And we make them in all kinds of combinations. Some with FM-AM radios. Some with clocks. Even portable TV's with batteries inside so you can take them anywhere.

And as features go... we don't skimp. Which explains our slide lever controls for precision adjusting. Speed-o-Vision for instant sound and picture — so the team doesn't score while your TV is warming up. And a few other goodies like dark-tinted screens and direct vision tubes for better viewing.

So go to any Panasonic dealer and ask to see our TV's.

Frank K. Perkins of Boston was for many years the dean of New England's bridge players and writers. He retired so completely a few years back that we made the mistake of referring to him as the late Frank Perkins. We are delighted to report that Frank is very much alive and looks as if he will be with us for many years.

Here is a hand from a 1943 article by Frank on the importance of spot cards.

West opened the king of hearts against South's four-spade contract. South noted that he had four potential losers in the red suits, but there was one ray of hope.

It West could be persuaded to continue hearts, South's queen would set up for an eventual diamond discard. So South dropped the five of hearts and prayed for help.

It was a long time coming. West looked at his partner's four and at South's five. He looked at the ceiling and the floor. He communed with nature and finally played out his ace of hearts. After this bit of help, South was able to discard one of dummy's diamonds on the good heart and score his game.

Frank pointed out that West really shouldn't have played his heart ace. West could well have afforded a shift to a trump. On the other hand, West could not be sure of the location of the deuce of hearts.

Weather wonder says no snow until Christmas at earliest SHERBROOKE (WT) — Mrs. Wilfred Beaucage, amateur weather predictor, has scored some rather amazing results in light of recent weather developments.

"I told my son not to buy a tractor for plowing snow because he wouldn't need it before Christmas," she said.

She forecasts some light snow between now and the New Year, but sees little hope for skiers and ski-doers before January.

in the meantime, Mrs. Beaucage predicts a continuation of the unseasonably warm, clear weather, a fact which she attributes to the fact that the moon changed five times in the month of August, to her, an indication of a mild season.

Referring to the snowfall predicted for today by the weather bureau, Mrs. Beaucage believes it will amount to nothing and probably disappear rapidly.

"Driving conditions will be extremely dangerous," she offers as a word of warning to area motorists.

Quebec spending $162M on winter roads program

By CLAUDE ADAMS
QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa Wednesday announced $162 million worth of winter road construction projects to fight unemployment.

The premier told the national assembly the projects will begin before January and will directly or indirectly provide about 12,000 jobs.

Opposition members demanded to know how the government would pay for the projects and what other steps are planned to fight winter unemployment.

Mr. Bourassa said projects to increase employment is outlying regions of the province will be announced soon.

Opposition leader Jean-Jacques Bertrand, premier of the previous Union Nationale government, asked whether the seven road construction projects now planned would be financed by government borrowing or by a tax increase.

Mr. Bourassa said the government had two choices: "Either taxes are increased or we must cut back on useless spending initiated by the previous government."

Amid an uproar from the Union Nationale benches he added "We have chosen the second measure."

REFERS TO FREEZE

Jean-Noel Tremblay (UN—Chicoutimi), cultural affairs minister in the previous government, responded to the premier's remark on spending cut-backs by rattling off a series of projects in the Chicoutimi-Lac St. Jean region which he felt had been frozen without justification.

While Speaker Jean-Noel Lavoie and several members of the assembly called for order, he began:

"Construction of the Chicoutimi hospital, $20 million ... enlarging the Talbot Boulevard $8 million ... North Shore highway $10 million, Chicoutimi Bridge $8 million ... completion of the Lac St. Jean highway $7 million ..."

Creditiste Leader Camil Samson said unemployment was rampant in under-developed areas of the province like the Gaspé, Lac St. Jean and Abitibi.

Fabien Roy (Cred—Beauce) got the floor after repeated interruption from the Liberal benches and asked why the government "has systematically refused to use the province's credit to finance public works," saying the federal government had made an interest-free, long-term loan at $20 million the day before. He did not elaborate.

The question was ruled out of order by Speaker Lavoie who said questions should be cut short to allow the resumption of an emergency debate into the Liberal government's handling of the Cross-Laporte crisis.

Detail of the roads projects planned was given in a statement issued by the Premier.

New regulations for snowmobiles

SHERBROOKE (CJ) — Tightened regulations for the operation of snowmobiles in the province have been announced by Hon. Georges E. Tremblay, Quebec Transportation Minister.

The purpose of the new laws, said Mr. Tremblay, are to cut down on the number of accidents involving these machines.

Perhaps the most important section of the regulations is that which strictly forbids snowmobiles travelling on the public roads in Quebec. However, it is permitted to cross at right angles all roads except autoroutes and limited access highways. But in this case, the driver of the snowmobile must have a valid driver's licence in his possession and this crossing must be made only at points indicated by appropriate signs.

Under the terms of an order-in-council adopted Oct. 7, the Minister explained, the law forbids all snowmobile travel on the public roads although it is permitted to cross certain of these highways under strict conditions.

Mr. Tremblay said the law defined public roads as being the space included between the limits of land occupied by a road and its dependencies open to public travel by vehicles and the maintenance of which is the responsibility of a municipality, a government or a government agency. It also included space reserved for the parking of automobiles where these lots were included within a highway system.

Fisher plant still affected

DETROIT (AP) — Return of 3,000 long-striking employees to a General Motors plant today was vetoed Wednesday by the United Auto Workers union.

But the UAW left undisturbed, at least for the time being, plans of 2,500 others to begin returning today to another plant.

A nationwide UAW strike against GM now in its 10th week will not normally end until union ratification of a new national contract on which voting winds up Friday.

There was no explanation from union headquarters in Detroit why workers had been ordered not to return immediately to a Fisher Body plant at Grand Blanc, Mich., but no such order had been given a similar plant at Kalamazoo, Mich.

Local unions representing employees of the two plants have approved overwhelmingly both the new national contract and at-the-plant working agreements which supplement it.

They also have agreed with local management to return to work without awaiting a formal end of the strike.

Don Ellis, UAW regional director of the Flint area, pointed out the union has not called off its GM strike and that it still isn't "absolutely certain" the new contract will be ratified.

General Motors said it would welcome any workers who return today either at Grand Blanc or Kalamazoo, but James Huffman, shop committee chairman at Grand Blanc, said "orders came down from the international" for none to go back before Monday.

REPORT THIS WEEK

The UAW local at Kalamazoo said it has received no such orders and that make-ready crews would begin reporting at midnight Wednesday night, skilled tradesmen today and production workers Friday.

There was a groundswell Wednesday in new contract approval, with 27 units voting to ratify and bringing to 53 the number thus far approving out of 155 separate GM-UAW bargaining units around the U.S.

Meanwhile, first disapproval was registered. It was by one of eight separate bargaining units representing workers at GM's technical centre in Warren, Mich., where local officers have been campaigning for rejection.

The engineering staff unit at the tech centre vote 44 to 27 against ratification, but the UAW said approval by all others reporting across the U.S. had been by "overwhelming margins." Most of the others have many times the membership of the rejecting unit.

First news of the plans of workers to return at Grand Blanc and Kalamazoo sparked GM hopes of being able to get back into at least partial operation by Dec. 1, with its 394,000 hourly-rated employees turning out 26,000 cars a day by mid-month.

Thetford police talks break down

THETFORD MINES (PG) — The policeman's union here has asked for the intervention of an arbitrator following the refusal of town council to negotiate the renewal of the union contract, which expires on Dec. 31.

In a press release yesterday, the union said town lawyer Christian Beaudoin had informed the negotiating committee on Nov. 17 that the town refused to negotiate the amendments proposed by the union.

The union said the statement was made to union representatives in the presence of Mayor Philippe Boucher and his entire council.

The union is studying other, unspecified methods against the town if arbitration fails, the release said.

Negotiations have been underway since Sept. 21.

At the same time, a provincial investigator is carrying out tests on the outskirts of the Bromo community where a number of wells have been reported to be polluted.

CHU public relations officer Guy Lefebvre said yesterday that after examination, attending physician Dr. Claude Paris has reported 7-year-old Angele Doucet to be suffering from a disease "similar to typhoid" which has been complicated by a previously undiagnosed blood disease.

"She has definitely been contaminated by the water," he said. He termed her condition "severe" and said he was "not sure what the result of treatment will be."

Philippe L. Allard, an investigator from the health unit in Farnham, told The Record Tuesday that he is carrying out tests on the wells in the Foster area.

He said that there were high coliform readings in some tests he had done previously and was not sure how many wells were affected.

Some affected wells in the area had been treated with disinfectant but did not react positively, he said.

Mr. Allard said that it will be 15 days before analysis of the water samples is complete.

System not all wrong

We live in a time of slogans, of labels and catch phrases designed to arouse our emotions but which do little to stimulate reflective thought.

Perhaps the most overworked of these words is the "system," sometimes used interchangeably with the "Establishment."

The "system" is rotten, we are told. The "system" stands in the way of all meaningful social reform, and not until the "system" is completely done away with or radically transformed can there be any hope of solving our problems.

When one gets down to examining specific cases, however, the "system" appears to be less often a conspiracy by a small group of evil men or a plot by selfish interests than something that is built into the very nature of things -- like Newton's Third Law of Motion, which states that for every action there is an equal and opposite reaction.

And sometimes the reaction is entirely unforeseen. There is a consumer group encouraging women to buy meat in paperboard trays at the supermarket because paperboard is more easily destroyed than plastic and contributes less to pollution.

But another consumer group in New York City has persuaded the city to pass a law requiring all fresh meat to be packaged in clear plastic trays so consumers can see both sides. Only a lobby by pulp manufacturers has so far prevented this from becoming a state law.

The two consumer groups, each with a worthy goal, are working against each other and the "system" is caught in the middle.

As another example, since glass can be recycled many times, its use is being urged by some ecology advocates in place of metal cans. But suppose all fruits and vegetables were packed in bottles instead of cans.

The extra cost for retooling, breakage and added shipping weight -- glass jars are heavier -- would have to be passed on to the customer and would fall most heavily on those who can afford it least -- the low-income person.

These are petty examples, of course, but they serve to illustrate how "solutions" can often create more problems than they solve.

Those who say we have to work within the "system" are speaking a truth with more universal application than we realize.

Opposition MPs also lax

Absenteeism in the Canadian House of Commons is nothing new. The habit of parliamentarians taking off on the days immediately preceding and following a weekend has been fully developed for years.

And the habit is not confined to one side of the House. The truants can be found in all parties, whether government or opposition.

It is a practice of which the Members of Parliament are not particularly proud and many of them display resentment when twitted by the public or the press for letting the problems of their constituencies or their personal business take precedence over the business of the nation as a whole.

But the Opposition made itself appear more than a little hypocritical last week when, in effect, it chided the government side because most of the members of the cabinet were not on hand for the daily question period.

The absence of so many ministers was undoubtedly annoying to the MPs, who have a right and duty to seek and obtain information on how the country is being managed or mismanaged. The absence of cabinet ministers in large numbers does nothing to assist the democratic process.

Apparently the Opposition had a wonderful opportunity to drive home a point that needs hammering home. However, it faced one important problem, more than half the Opposition members were absent from the Green Chamber.

The combined opposition could muster only 42 of their 108 members. The government did somewhat better by bringing in 79 members of their 159 total.

It was obvious the Opposition could not obtain a majority for their motion of censure, which was a good example of a pot calling the kettle black.

De Gaulle—Two views of a great leader

By LUBOR J. ZINK

OTTAWA — (TNS) — His dream was a European power bloc "from the Atlantic to the Urals" led by France. Through this "third force" concept, interposed between the two nuclear giants, Charles de Gaulle tried to elevate France to the status of a super-power -- a status his country is too small and too weak to achieve alone.

The dream, impractical and naive in the Cold War context, died before the man who conceived it. But unrealistic as it was, it managed to hinder other more down-to-earth political, economic and defence projects of partial European integration, particularly the expansion of the nucleus of a European Common Market and the efforts to transform NATO into a North Atlantic commonwealth of nations sharing the heritage of Western civilization.

What made de Gaulle oppose and even sabotage these projects which held a promise of rational, conceivably-attainable improvements of the shaky, fear-ridden structure of the postwar world?

There is no simple answer, and the question is likely to puzzle historians for a long time to come.

Some of the people who knew him well maintain that it was, in the final analysis, a deeply-ingrained personal bitterness over what de Gaulle interpreted as Roosevelt's and Churchill's patronizing, condescending, humiliating treatment during World War II.

Others maintain that he was too big a man to carry an indelible grudge and to seek revenge for what he might have felt as personal denigration or insult during the war. He acted the way he did, these readers of de Gaulle's mind and character say, out of his deep sense of historical mission fired by fierce nationalism.

Personal grudge or patriotic messianism, the fact remains that de Gaulle's postwar course was unwaveringly aimed at thwarting the Anglo-American effort to weld the Atlantic core of the free world into a defensive, economic and political unit as the main bulwark against the new threat of totalitarian expansion emanating from the Kremlin.

Right from the start of that effort in the late 1940s, de Gaulle left no doubt about his mistrust of British and American motives and about his ambition to mold Europe into a separate entity under French (i.e., his) leadership.

When political fractiousness and economic impotence of liberated France all but buried his dreams, de Gaulle retired in a huff from the political scene, convinced that his countrymen would call him back to lead them to the glory of his vision of France's new grandeur.

The call came in 1958 when France, tired of the perpetual succession of impotent governments and exhausted by futile colonial wars, was ready to give de Gaulle the near dictatorial powers he thought he needed for what he saw as his historical mission and France's destiny.

In short order, de Gaulle extricated France from the bloody mess in Algeria, crushed his remaining opponents at home, carried out a drastic monetary reform, and concentrated on his ambitious policy of France's leadership of Continental Europe and the French-speaking people around the world.

Starting from the illusory premise that Cold War tensions emanated primarily from the American military presence in Western Europe, de Gaulle's first imperative was to bring about withdrawal of U.S. troops from the Continent.

This happened to be, though for different reasons, also the aim of Soviet foreign policy. Moscow lost no time making a common cause with Paris and rejoiced when de Gaulle pulled France out of NATO's integrated command.

Since Western Europe continued to look for nuclear protection to the United States and to regard American troops along the dividing line as a guarantee (or perhaps hostage) of U.S. defence commitment, de Gaulle had to offer his own system of security for the uncertain period of negotiations with the Soviets. So he started building his force de frappe and re-equipping France's conventional forces.

At the same time, regarding Britain as an instrument of American "domination," he vetoed British entry into the Common Market and, thinking in terms of his "Europe from the Atlantic to the Urals" dream, thwarted all attempts at gradual conversion of the EEC into a political entity.

The whole chimeric vision (in which Quebec was to play a supporting role) came crashing down during the Maoist riots in France two years ago. Though de Gaulle recovered briefly from that blow, his policies did not.

While he lived, de Gaulle's successors had to look over their shoulders to pay lip service to the lingering political shadow of the old man. His death, in all probability, will remove these remaining inhibitions which still hinder France's co-operation in the promising revival of West European integration within the framework of the North Atlantic Alliance.

chair, looked down his nose in that strange way he had and uttered just two words: "J'écoute" -- "I am listening."

So Acheson explained what had happened and offered the proofs of the missiles in Cuba for his inspection. These De Gaulle brushed aside. "Great powers," he said, "do not lie about such matters." Whereupon he promised President Kennedy his fullest support, and so the conversation ended.

Or there is that story's pendant, concerning President Eisenhower's second visit to France. There had been a U.S. vote in the United Nations that had given great offense in Paris. The American President had been wisely advised to begin their talk by explaining the offending vote to the French President.

So Eisenhower did so, eagerly, confidently, and at first with his usual amiable loquacity. De Gaulle, however, answered not at all, sitting like a monument, listening with frozen quietness. Finally, the American President simply ran down, like an unbound clock. Whereupon the French President at length replied, again in just two words -- "I regret" -- and that ended that subject.

Or there is the third, somewhat related story of the faithful adjutant in the years of De Gaulle's exile who was a little given to the bottle. The two were working at opposite ends of the library at Colombey. The adjutant, who had lunched too genially, was infuriated by the correspondence and press comment he was handling for his chief. He kept muttering to himself, "Damn fools! I'd like to kill all the damn fools!"

"Ah monsieur, a vast program," the comment, dripping with irony, finally came from the other end of the room, and that, once again, was that.

Yet it was not only in these ways that Charles de Gaulle was unique. Twenty years ago, soon after he chose exile, I myself listened to him intoning prophecies of France's future for an hour and a half.

All that he prophesied then seemed almost insanely improbably. But all came true in the end. Ten years ago, when he was still settling the Algerian affair, I saw him show more cold courage, in the face of a viciously hostile mob, than I have ever seen any man show in war. In sum, whatever history's final verdict, we shall not see his like again.

COLUMN

WASHINGTON — Al Capp, who has become the sex symbol of the Daughters of the American Revolution, was in Washington last week as master of ceremonies at a $150-a-plate dinner given by the Republicans in honor of Vice President Spiro Agnew.

Mr. Capp was kind enough to mention me in his opening remarks. He said, "The people who should be here tonight saying 'Thank you, Mr. Vice President' are Art Buchwald, Herblock and Mary McGrory. The Vice President helps them keep their jobs. Never have so many columnists owed so much to one person, and never have so many showed so little decency to a man they owe so much."

Now, first of all, I would like to say that I would have loved to have attended the dinner for the Vice President, but I couldn't. I didn't have $150.

Secondly Mr. Capp should not have interpreted my absence at the dinner as a lack of gratitude toward the Vice President. I am well aware of the debt we all owe him for making Washington another Disneyland.

The subject I would like to address myself to is not whether Miss McGrory, Mr. Block or myself should or should not have attended the Republican dinner (it turns out Miss McGrory did), but a much larger question that concerns all American citizens, and that is: How many more fund-raising dinners can the Vice President of the United States stand?

It is no secret that, through no fault of his own, Spiro has been condemned by the Republican Party and the Nixon Administration to the fund-raising banquet circuit for his entire term in office.

Despite what Mr. Agnew thinks of the cartoonists, columnists and pundits, I can testify to the fact that he has only their sympathy and understanding. Only a sadist would not be moved by someone who was doomed for four years to eat his meals in a Sheraton or a Hilton hotel.

No cartoonist would do it. No columnist would do it. No Vice President of the United States would do it, except Mr. Agnew.

So far, the Vice President has shown he has the stomach for it. But medical science has proved that no human being, no matter how strong willed, can survive on chicken cacciatore for four years.

The question the American people have to decide is, do we want a Vice President with a bad liver?

The men responsible for sending Mr. Agnew out day after day and night after night have shown little concern for his welfare. The White House staff refer to Mr. Agnew as "the man who came to dinner." They are not worried about him getting indigestion. As one White House staffer put it not long ago, "What's a little heartburn if you can win Mississippi?"

To prove that we are not the heartless people Mr. Capp says we are, Miss McGrory, Mr. Block and I have formed an "Ad Hoc Committee to Save the Vice President's Liver." If need be, we will take it to the courts and prove that sentencing a man to the fund-raising banquet circuit for four years is not only unconstitutional but cruel and unusual punishment.

Surely, in this great country of ours, with so much opportunity and wealth, there is something the Nixon Administration can find for the Vice President of the United States to do other than force-feed him at the Biloxi Hilton Hotel.

Rescuers race against time to save victims of cyclone

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Relief officials are racing desperately against time to save thousands of men, women and children who survived the cyclone and tidal wave that hit a large area of East Pakistan last week.

Starvation and disease threatened to overwhelm the survivors but food, medicine and supplies of all kinds began pouring in Wednesday from all over the world.

The International Red Cross estimated that 2.5 million persons were homeless in the devastated Bay of Bengal region.

Pakistan Agricultural Minister Mahmood Haroon told the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, meeting in Rome, that the countryside will need four years for recovery. He said about 75 per cent of the persons affected were farmers and fishermen. The water thrown up by the tidal wave last Friday had turned once-arable land salty. Fishermen had lost their boats and nets.

The 34-country FAO called on all members to provide every possible aid.

In London, the British Red Cross said international charities had donated 1.39 million pounds ($3,475,000) for Pakistan relief up to Wednesday night.

Large stocks of supplies were being flown from London, the main relay point from European capitals. Some 33,000 pounds of supplies already had left in Pakistani airliners.

An airline spokesman said blankets and clothing were in plentiful supply but cholera vaccine, other medicines and baby food were scarce.

British aid, besides 50,000 pounds ($125,000) from the government and several charities, included 5 million water-purifying tablets donated by a drug manufacturer. The government also is flying 13 military landing craft from Singapore to the Bay of Bengal area.

In Washington, the state department said the first United States disaster relief shipment of 1,000 blankets and 10,000 tents arrived in East Pakistan Wednesday. The White House pledged up to $10 million and said it would send six helicopters to move the supplies.

The known death toll in the waterlogged disaster zone still stood at 34,000, but experienced observers have estimated the final toll may reach 500,000.

Pope Paul appealed from the Vatican for worldwide help and pledged money and relief supplies from Roman Catholic aid organizations.

China announced it would provide aid worth $1.2 million, one-third in cash.

In Geneva, the League of Red Cross Societies said liaison delegate Jurg Vittani had reported from East Pakistan that an estimated 2.5 million persons were homeless. He reported that the first relief teams of the Pakistan Red Cross had arrived in the disaster region and were distributing blankets, clothing, medicine and water purification tablets.

The French government announced it would send helicopters with blankets and medicines and would provide further help if necessary.

The five accused are: lawyer Robert Lemieux, labor leader Michel Chartrand, Jacques La-Rue-Langlois, a free-lance journalist, writer Pierre Vallieres and Charles Gagnon, a former teacher.

The accused said they wanted the public figures in court to prove there was really an "apprehended insurrection" in Quebec when the War Measures Act was invoked Oct. 16.

Mr. Justice Mackay of Court of Queen's Bench said the issue was irrelevant since the petition did not allege that an "apprehended insurrection" did not exist at that time.

He said he will consider the bail petition Friday.

The motion to have the FLQ membership charges dropped was only based on the accused's allegations that the War Measures Act had been invoked illegally, he said.

Mackay disallows Trudeausubpoena

MONTREAL (CP) - Mr. Justice Kenneth Mackay tuned down Wednesday a request that Prime Minister Trudeau and other government officials be called as witnesses on behalf of five well-known Quebecers being held under the War Measures Act.

The five, all charged with sedition conspiracy and with being members of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec, asked that subpoenas be used for the prime minister, Justice Minister John Turner, Premier Robert Bourassa and Justice Minister Jerome Choquette of Quebec, Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau and Lucien Saulnier, head of the Montreal Urban Community.

The request accompanied a bail petition delivered Tuesday by lawyer Pierre Cloutier. The petition also asked that the FLQ membership charges be dropped.

federal government Oct. 16. More than 50 of more than 450 persons arrested since the act was invoked are still being held. The act gave police wider powers in their fight against the FLQ.

Meanwhile, a team of experts was studying the second letter found in three days to determine if its author was actually the FLQ.

There was no word early today on the authenticity of a note, found Monday night, which contained a threat of further terrorism if 24 so-called political prisoners are not released Friday.

A third note was found Tuesday after a caller tipped French-language radio station CKAC. The station called police who found the note in a telephone booth.

PQ asks compensation for FLQ detainees

QUEBEC (CP) - Robert Burns, Parti Quebecois house leader in the Quebec national assembly, called Wednesday for government compensation of innocent individuals detained under the War Measures Act.

Mr. Burns, a lawyer, said a large number of Quebecers had suffered personally because they were detained under the act, invoked Oct. 16 to fight terrorism, and had been deprived of their normal legal rights while in custody.

These rights included being informed of the reasons for detention, being arraigned soon after arrest and having access to bail. The detained individuals had also been prevented from speaking with their families or legal counsel.

Mr. Burns told the national assembly during the continuing emergency debate on the kidnapping crisis in Quebec that most of the people detained had not been charged, but that some had still suffered as a result of their detention.

Some had lost their jobs. Others had also lost their reputation, their friends and family ties because they had been detained in the massive hunt for members of the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec.

Mr. Burns said the government should act as quickly as possible to compensate persons who had suffered economically, although "no amount of money" could wipe out the personal losses.

He suggested legislation providing that no one who was arrested under the War Measures Act and released without being brought to trial suffer from the fact.

Mr. Burns was among four speakers in the fourth day of the debate. Preceding him were Arthur Fortier (L-Gaspe-Sud) and Yvon Brochu (Cred Richmond), both of whom attacked the Parti Quebecois for its opposition to the Liberal government's actions since the Oct. 5 kidnapping of British diplomat James Cross.

Mr. Fortier described the PQ's attitude toward terrorism as "very timid" and called on members of the separatist party to expel from their ranks all those who are members of the FLQ.

He denounced Quebec labor leaders for not taking a strong stand in support of the government and against terrorism and blamed journalists and teachers for promoting political violence.

Mr. Brochu said Quebec is plagued by "dissatisfaction, fear and anxiety" arising from social, cultural and economic problems. Unemployment and the inadequacy of the educational system were two of the province's major problems.

However, most of Mr. Brochu's speech was devoted to an attack on union leaders, "left-wing movements," the PQ and its leader Rene Levesque, all of whom, he said had contributed to violence in Quebec.

possible to compensate persons who had suffered economically, although "no amount of money" could wipe out the personal losses.

He suggested legislation providing that no one who was arrested under the War Measures Act and released without being brought to trial suffer from the fact.

Mr. Burns was among four speakers in the fourth day of the debate. Preceding him were Arthur Fortier (L-Gaspe-Sud) and Yvon Brochu (Cred Richmond), both of whom attacked the Parti Quebecois for its opposition to the Liberal government's actions since the Oct. 5 kidnapping of British diplomat James Cross.

Mr. Fortier described the PQ's attitude toward terrorism as "very timid" and called on members of the separatist party to expel from their ranks all those who are members of the FLQ.

UEL semi-annual meeting

DUNHAM — The semi-annual meeting of Sir John Janson Branch of the United Empire Loyalists was held in the basement of the Anglican Church with 27 members present.

A flag was presented by Neil Creller followed by "O Canada". President Don McCallum opened the meeting. Applications for membership will be accepted from Miss Dara Brown of Stanbridge East and Mrs. David Carr of Montreal. Two honorary memberships were considered.

A letter from Sir John Johnson of England was read expressing regrets at being unable to attend the meeting as the invitation was several weeks in reaching him and did not give him time to make the necessary arrangements.

A bronze plaque to commemorate the entry of the UEL's to Canada was brought to the meeting by the president. Inscription on the plaque in both English and French reads as follows: One of the first United Empire Loyalist settlements was formed here during and after the American Revolution 1775-1783. Many soldiers and others were transported by the warship Maria.

This plaque is to be erected on the 1st Saturday in June in the park near the Anglican Church grounds at Noyan. It is also the date of the next annual meeting.

A vote of thanks was given to Mr. William Taylor, president of the Missisquoi County Historical Society, for his efforts with the Provincial Minister of Cultural Affairs and the Commission des Monuments Historiques in securing the plaque.

A satisfactory financial report was presented by treasurer Stuart Hawke, and a gift of $50 was gratefully acknowledged from Mrs. Geo. Tremblay to help pay for a plaque in honour of Sir John Johnson, whose gravestone is to be placed beside the wall of the museum in Stanbridge East.

A letter from Dominion Headquarters of the UEL was read asking for donations from our branch to secure a bona fide UEL crest from the College of Arms in England. As this is a rather costly project, a lively discussion followed and it was moved by R. D. Tree and seconded by Murray Mason that a more equitable plan would be for each branch to be assessed on a per capita basis.

Mrs. Bradshaw reported 150 regular, 10 associate and two honorary members. Members in arrears of two years will not receive their copies of The Gazette and their membership will be dropped. Another contentious issue was that of a Toronto based group known as "Canadian Loyalists" whose slogan seems to be "One Language for All of Canada" and is being confused by many as being the UEL. There is nothing in the by-laws to suggest that the group is unilingual in any way.

A letter from Mrs. Clifford Rihard and a copy of the new by-laws was presented. Mrs. Ruby Moore gave a very interesting talk on her research in the Archives in Concord, N.H. and Ottawa. She mentioned the fact that it is not necessary that one's ancestors had gone to war to be eligible for membership in the UEL.

Don McCallum pointed out that the Seignory Tax in Quebec ends this year and also thought that there must be several persons in the Ormstown Huntingdon area who would be eligible for membership. Several families who entered Canada through Noyan and Lacolle settled in that district.

A question period followed as a delicious lunch was being served by the ladies.

A vote of thanks was accorded Mrs. C. H. Riordan for securing the use of the basement in All Saints Church for the meeting which was brought to a close with the singing of God Save The Queen accompanied on the 1887 organ by Mr. A. W. Johnston of Hudson, Que.

Anglican Church Women meet in Granby today

GRANBY — The Anglican Church Women of the Diocese of Montreal has extended an invitation to fifty women from across Canada to hold one of two yearly board meetings in Granby from Nov. 19 to Nov. 22. The purpose in hosting these women from such faraway places as the Yukon and the North West Territories is to show them the bi-lingual and bi-cultural way of life we lead in Quebec. Although this invitation was extended last spring before the recent problems, we feel more than ever the need to show women who are actively involved in the Church work the positive and rewarding side of living and working with French-speaking people in and outside the Church.

The National Board of Anglican Church Women consists of the presidents of 29 dioceses in Canada as well as the national executive, and together — along with other work — they vote on an annual budget of approximately $450,000, which goes towards workers' salaries, leadership training, medical expenses and missions both in Canada and abroad.

Kay Childs (Mrs. H.S.) is the President of the Montreal Board of A.C.W., and it was through her enthusiasm that an extensive programme over and above their business sessions was planned. Some of the highlights include a civic reception by the Mayor of Granby, the Hon. Jean-Louis Tetreault; a visit to St. Benoit du Lac which includes attendance at Vespers; an invitation by members of L'Association Culturelle des Femmes de Granby to have dinner with their families at home, and afterwards to the local cinema for "Act of the Heart" with Genevieve Bajold. A visit to French schools and to industries is also planned. Sunday, our guests come to Montreal to attend the service at L'Eglise du Redempteur, the only French-speaking Anglican service in Canada.

The ladies of St. George's Church Anglican Church Women are selling tickets for the presentation of "Act of the Heart", which will be at La Plaza in English. The tickets are $2.00 each, and Mrs. Fred Pennington, 83 Lansdowne, Granby has them for sale now. Phone and reserve from her: 372-3487.

Bedford office staff adopts two youngsters

The Office Staff of the Torrington Co. Ltd., Bedford, have financially adopted Martha Patricia Alvarez, a six-year-old girl from Columbia and Chan Wing Por, a five-year-old Chinese boy living in Hong Kong through Foster Parents Plan, 1500 Stanley St., Montreal.

The Foster Parent's responsibility is financial, not legal and the child grows up within his own family. The objective is to help the child and family to become self-supporting through improved health, nutrition, and educational opportunities.

More than 11,000 children in ten of the world's developing countries now are being cared for through Foster Parents Plan by individuals and groups in Canada. They exchange letters with the children each month, receiving both the original and translations supplied by PLAN.

The $17 a month (or $204 a year) contributed by the Foster Parent through PLAN for a minimum of one year, provides a monthly cash grant, supplementary new clothing and household goods carefully selected to meet the needs in each area. In addition PLAN offers medical care when called for, primary school education and in some cases vocational training.

Despite the distance that separates Foster Parents from their children overseas, "adoption" is very personal. The monthly letters between them keep both parties in constant touch, and over the years they often develop fast and loving friendships.

The original case history and photograph of the child sent to the Foster Parent at the time of "adoption" are supplemented by regular reports and photographs to chart the progress of the child. In their monthly letters, the children share their sorrows and joys with their second Parents. They are touchingly eager to do well in school for their Foster

Parents' sake, but like children all over the world they are not always successful. One Hong Kong youngster ruefully confessed: "But I have hardships on arithmetic, geography, grammar and history."

The arrival of Foster Parents' letters, photographs and postcards, and, of course, gift packages are a cause for rejoicing—both letters and gifts shown proudly to all the neighbours, teachers and classmates. The letters are read and re-read until they are dog-eared. A little Korean girl

Mr. Genge thanked the members for their work and care of the altar and gave a very informative address regarding the Altar Guild work. He then took the chair for the election of officers.

Miss Hunt remained as directress and Mrs. Joseph Mackay was elected secretary-treasurer.

There being no further business, Mr. Genge read the closing prayers and tea was served, followed by a social hour.

Melbourne

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Fleming of Lennoxville were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Fleming and Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Booth in Upper Melbourne.

Friends of Mrs. L. A. Booth are sorry to learn that she is a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Snowmobiles

Legislation varies

Snowmobile deaths soared by 50 per cent last winter. Predicted high sales of the motorized snow vehicles make a further increase in casualties most likely this winter unless operators take more care.

In a national report prepared by the Canada Safety Council, public road collisions are singled out as by far the leading cause of snowmobile deaths.

Of the 93 snowmobile deaths last winter, 47 resulted from collisions with other motor vehicles. One of the victims was a nine-year-old boy whose snowmobile collided with a car on a main highway.

The Canada Safety Council recommends that snowmobilers using their vehicles for recreation stay off public roads. The Council also says that snowmobilers should tow their vehicles across public roads manually although driving them across under power is generally legal.

Driving snowmobiles at night proved to be the most hazardous practice of all. If the fatalities, 28 took place at night.

Broken down by location, 22 of the total number of deaths took place on municipal roads, 21 on secondary roads and four on main highways.

While legislation varies widely from province to province, snowmobiles are generally allowed on roads except on main highways. Where snowmobiles are allowed on roads, registration is compulsory.

There are more than 350,000 registered in Canada, about half of the snowmobiles in use. The unregistered vehicles are supposed to be used only on private property.

Apart from traffic deaths, 21 snowmobilers drowned of whom 11 were operating their machines at night. Eight died in collisions on private property. Five died when their vehicles were struck by trains. Another five died in collisions with wire of fences. Three died in accidents in trails or parks. One each was killed when hitting a tree and house steps. Another two died in accidents while repairing their machines.

Broken down by age categories, the 16-19 year olds suffered most fatalities. Twenty of the victims were in this bracket. Thirteen children under the age of 15 were killed, five of whom were drivers. One youngster was driving a snowmobile hit by a train.

Of the victims, only 17 were over the age of 44, a sharp decrease compared to the previous winter.

Seventy of the victims were drivers and 21 passengers. Seventy-eight were male and 15 female. (The apparent discrepancy in these figures is accounted for by the two victims of accidents while repairing their machines).

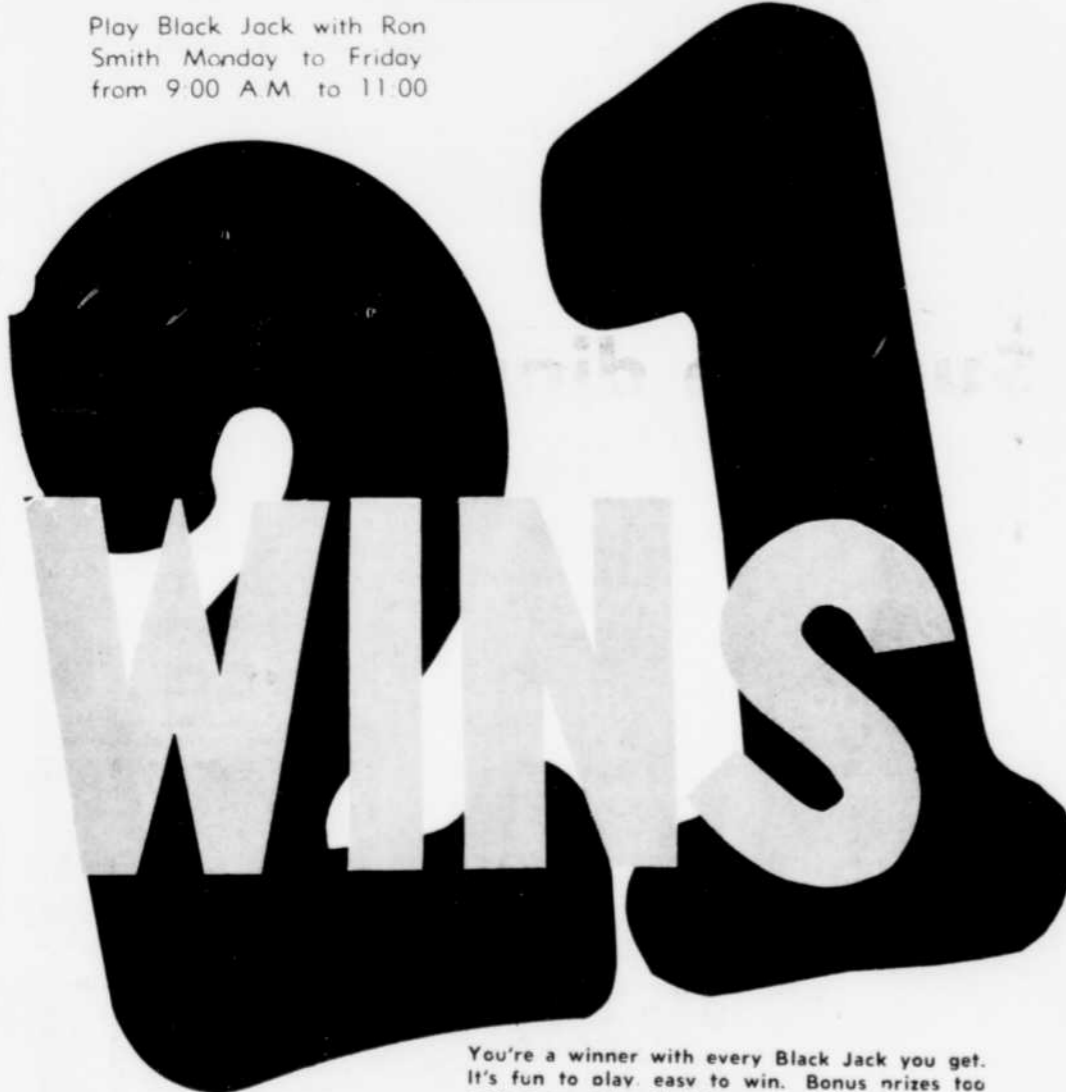

The Canada Safety Council reiterates its warning that snowmobilers using their machines for pleasure stay off public roads. The manufacturers state that the machines are not designed for highway use. The mounting casualty figures emphasize the urgency of this warning.

Hatley

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Stoddard and family were called to Sawyerville by the death of his brother, Mr. Raymond Stoddard. Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Bladon spent a few days with friends in Waterbury, Vt.

The Carry on Christmas Club met at the home of Mrs. Tom Williams on Oct. 30 with Mrs. Sally Laxson as co-hostess.

Games were enjoyed with prizes being won by Mrs. John Foley, Mrs. Gladys George and Mrs. Jennie Muldoon. Plans were made for the next meeting, which will be the usual Christmas Party.

Sympathy is extended to Mr. Jules Fortin, Richmond, at the death of Mrs. Fortin, which occurred at the Sherbrooke Hospital. Mrs. Fortin was well-known for her musical ability and she gave freely of her talent, having acted as accompanist on many occasions here in Danville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray McMorine drove to Oshawa for a weekend, where they were guests of their daughter, Janice McMorine. They were accompanied as far as Toronto by Mrs. R. F. Lockwood, who is spending some time there as guest of her many relatives who reside in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stevens have returned from a short vacation in the Maritimes.

On Oct. 26, the Golden Hand and Golden Bar brownie groups and their guiders, Mrs. Carson and Mrs. Frost went on a hike with a purpose. Two by two, armed with large brown shopping bags, they amassed an amazing amount of waste of various kinds, and brought it back to be disposed of with the garbage. The result will be a cleaner town, and a population that will be more conscientious of the proper use of garbage pails.

The Business Girl's Section of the Danville Curling Club held their first meeting of the Fall on Nov. 2. Mrs. John MacDonald was re-elected president, with Mrs. Robert Lodge as vice-president. Mrs. Elgin Rolfe secretary, Mrs. James Pye, treasurer, Mrs. Albert Gillim, match committee and Mrs. Francis Saffin, decorating committee.

A whist party was sponsored by the St. Michael's Council of the Catholic Women's League in the Parish Hall of St. Augustine's Church on Nov. 3 when winners were Mr. and Mrs. John Philbrick and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Collins. Mrs. Howard Wilson held the lucky ticket for the door prize.

Mrs. Raymond Smith and Mrs. W. A. Warner of London, Ont., were overnight guests of Mrs. Mabel Smith while en route to Moncton, N.B.

Roughies tie up playoffs

CALGARY (CP) — An 87-yard touchdown run in the last minute ensured Saskatchewan Roughriders an 11-3 win Wednesday night over Calgary Stampeders and tied the Western Football Conference playoff final at one game each.

McQuarters, Canada's lineman of the year in 1967, got the ball when Calgary quarterback Jerry Keeling was engulfed by a wave of tacklers. The ball popped loose. McQuarters grabbed it, and rambled to the goal-line followed by a horde of Saskatchewan blockers. The win, before 23,616 fans, forced a deciding game in Regina Sunday afternoon in the best-of-three final. Calgary won the first game 28-11 in Regina.

Before McQuarters' touchdown, it appeared Calgary was going to erase a 4-3 deficit. However, after a rushing play from Saskatchewan's 23, which netted no yards, Keeling attempted a second-down pass with less than 45 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter and McQuarters grabbed the ball.

The Roughriders, who finished in first place in the WFC with 14 wins and two defeats, led 1-0 after the first quarter. Calgary took a 3-1 lead in the second and Saskatchewan got the lead back with a field goal in the third quarter.

Saskatchewan's Jack Abend-schan, who won the WFC scoring title with 116 points, kicked a 22-yard field goal, a single and converted McQuarters' touchdown. Larry Robinson got Calgary's only points with a 23-yard field goal early in the second quarter.

The victory, however, could be costly for the Roughriders, who lost veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster early in the third quarter with an injured back muscle after he took a jolting tackle. The extent of the injury was not known.

Backup quarterback Gary Lane, from University of Missouri, turned in a strong performance during the second half, completing all three of the passes he attempted for 32 yards, and setting up Abend-schan's field goal late in the third quarter.

The Roughriders took six plays to move the ball from the Calgary 44 to the 15, enabling Abend-schan to kick the field goal. Lane kept the drive alive with a 19-yard run.

Saskatchewan also lost end Nolan Bailey, who was injured in the first half and did not appear in the final 30 minutes.

Besides Bailey and Lancaster, Gig Perez and Frank Andruski, both of the Stampeders, and Chuck Kyle of the Roughriders were helped off the field after making tackles in the hard-hitting game.

The Stampeders, who displayed strong quarterbacking and an outstanding defence in the first game in Regina, were outplayed offensively throughout the second contest.

Saskatchewan, with fullback George Reed leading a powerful rushing attack, collected 17 first downs to 14 for Calgary. The Roughriders, who got 115 of their 160 yards rushing in the first half, had a net offence of 306 yards.

returning after absences. Hebert was the backup man two years ago, and Campbell last donned the Gaiter purple three seasons ago.

Centres Erik Iversen, Ron Perowse and Ross Barrett, right winger Larry Smith, and defencemen Chris Barton played with the team last year when it compiled an 8-6-0 record in OSLAA competition and finished in fourth place.

BASKETBALL

While the hockey players take over the local scene, both Gaiter and Green and Gold basketballers will be on the road for OSLAA competition this week.

The Bishop's squad will be at Sir George Williams University to play the Georgians tomorrow evening and at Loyola Saturday. Sherbrooke's court performers have the opposite schedule, at Loyola tomorrow evening and at

Frazier punching machine engineers Foster knockout

DETROIT (AP) — Joe Frazier, a brutal punching machine, floored Bob Foster twice with vicious left hooks and scored a second-round knockout Wednesday night in successful defence of his world heavy-weight championship that set up a possible $10 million dream fight with Muhammad Ali. The time was 49 seconds of the second round.

Foster, the stringbean seeking to become the first light-heavy-weight champion in history to capture the heavier crown, took the final count flat on his back, his glazed eyes looking at the overhanging lights.

Only moments earlier, after a good first round in which both fighters landed with stinging jabs, Frazier sent the challenger reeling to the canvas with a hook that splattered against Foster's jaw.

Foster, 6 feet 3½ inches tall, rose to his feet, groggily, his legs rubbery under him, and after his gloves had been wiped clean of resin by referee Tom Brisco, he sought to continue the battle.

It was fruitless.

Frazier, an awesome man in a black beard and weighing 209 pounds against the frail-looking 188-pound frame of his opponent, bored in and made the end mercifully quick.

It was his 23rd knockout in 26 all-winning fights as a professional and his first title defence since he became the universally recognized champion by stopping Jimmy Ellis in five rounds last Feb. 16.

Shortly after that, he broke a bone above his right ankle while performing his nightclub act as a rock 'n' roll singer in Las Vegas and he grew fat and out of shape in the interim. He had to peel off 30 pounds to get in trim for Foster but showed little loss of his skill and fighting ferocity.

But before he can rest easy as the king of the heavyweights he must dispose of Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, the unbeaten champion who was stripped of his title for failure to go into military service.

Ali faces Argentina's Oscar Bonavena in New York Dec. 7. Promoters say an Ali-Frazier match could gross $10 million.

"I fought like I fight every day," Frazier said afterward, leaving the ring in the sparsely-filled Cobo Arena.

"He stumbled into a good right hand. Bob should never have come back after that first knockout. I saw him wavering. He had no business going on. When he tried to protect his body, I just went to his head."

The left-hand blow was a high one on the head. Foster was still groggy and reeling when he was led out of the ring by his white-haired handler, Bill Gore.

The gallery was estimated at 5,500 in a modern spacious arena which seats 12,500 and which had a larger crowd for a pro basketball game the evening before.

The 3,800 $10 seats in the upper gallery were filled but there were many vacancies in the red $50 seats and hardly anyone at all in the blue $100 seats, on which the revenue was supposed to come.

To get off the financial hook the fight had to depend on the closed circuit television, shown in 110 localities in the United States, and overseas TV via satellite to 27 countries.

Frazier, 26, from Philadelphia, a former Olympic champion, was guaranteed $150,000 against 40 per cent of the gate and Foster was assured 22½ per cent of the receipts.

OSLAA games at U of S, Bishop's bring end to local sports drought

SHERBROOKE (SA) — A full slate of college activity today and tomorrow will fill the void created by the Sherbrooke Beavers' extended road trip in Quebec Junior "A" Hockey League play.

Two Ottawa St. Lawrence Athletic Association contests are scheduled locally tonight, and two more are on top tomorrow evening.

Defending OSLAA champion Loyola College Warriors of Montreal meet University of Sherbrooke Green and Gold in a crucial early-season game at the Sports Palace here starting at 8:30 this evening, while MacDonald College Clansmen engage Bishop's University Gaiters in Lennoxville in an 8 p.m. affair.

Tomorrow night, the two visiting clubs switch locales. The Warriors will be in Lennoxville to meet the Gaiters, and the Clansmen will fill a Sports Palace date with the Green and Gold.

The Loyola-Sherbrooke game tonight should give some indication as to the Green and Gold's chances of supplanting the perennially powerful Warriors as OSLAA titlists.

Coach Tony Heffernan's Sherbrooke squad came up only barely short of the championship game by a 2-1 count.

Loyola indicated it will be a strong defending champion by punishing MacDonald 15-0 Tuesday night.

Coach Dave Draper should be able to call on three returning 1969-70 OSLAA First All-Star Team members this season. They comprise defencemen Bill Doyle and Larry Carriere and centre Chris Hayes, the Warrior captain.

Mike Lowe, Loyola's other First All-Star of last season, is currently playing with Kansas City Blues of the Central Professional Hockey League.

Hayes, however, currently has the flu while Carriere is sidelined pending resolution of an eligibility dispute.

Rearguard Doyle, a native of Richmond, attended the training camp of the then-Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League this fall.

Normand Delisle of the Second Team is the only Sherbrooke skater with 1969-70 All-Star credentials.

The Green and Gold have lost only three players from last year's club, however, and constitute a seasoned aggregation which should give the Warriors a run for OSLAA honors.

GAITERS ON VIEW TOO

Bishop's University Gaiters number only eight returnees, one of whom is still recovering from a football injury and two of whom did not see action last year.

Forward Charlie MacLean has not yet bounced all the way back from a hurt he picked up performing as an offensive end and place-kicker with the football Gaiters.

Goalenders Alain Hebert and Doug Campbell are both

Will poison Baldwin's Pond

AYER'S CLIFF (Special) — Baldwin's Pond at Baldwin's Mills is to be poisoned on Monday, Nov. 23, to rid the trout pond of undesired fish.

The work will be done by employees of the Department of Tourism, Fish and Game upon the recommendation of the Stanstead County Fish and Game Club Angus Patterson, a member of the Club and an employee of the department, said the work will probably start about 8 or 9 a.m.

President Philip Poaps said that last winter 330 persons took the hunter safety course.

He has the cards from the Wildlife Federation of those who took and passed the course. Plans are to have a meeting at a future date, and these people will receive this respective card, for which they will sign.

The department has issued a hunter safety crest which will be available with either French or English lettering and may be obtained for a small charge when the card is picked up. This is not obligatory, however.

Courses will continue this coming winter with the first lecture to be a general meeting. It is at this gathering that the cards may be picked up, as well as at classes that will follow the meeting. Announcement of dates will follow.

The representatives of the Department of Tourism, Fish and Game said that fish from Lake Memphremagog had been sent to laboratories in Montreal and Winnipeg, and only one species, bass, showed a dangerous mercury level. This is good news for anglers and fish-eaters.

Species sent for tests included brown and rainbow trout, perch, pickerel, and smelt in addition to bass.

Simple Daily Habits Promote Regularity

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

You can avoid the constipation problem by forming a regular bowel habit. This doesn't mean the bowels must move every day.

You should consume enough volume at breakfast to stimulate the normal reflex call to stool that follows eating. Then sit on the stool within an hour after your meal. Another meal can be chosen if it is more convenient. The meal needn't contain lots of calories. Two glasses of warm water help to fill the stomach. Two cups of a beverage may be enough to initiate the call for some people.

If you are already having the bowel problem, you can usually correct it. Of course, any significant hemorrhoids (piles) or local rectal problems should be corrected. Stop all laxatives of any type. You might as well choose breakfast as the meal to trigger your call to stool reflex. Eat a good breakfast containing bulk. This includes cereal, fruit, toast, fruit juice and other beverages. Immediately after breakfast, sit on the stool and read to distract attention from the bowels. Continue this practice daily.

Every three days, a small tap-water enema can be used—in the morning after sitting on the stool—if no movement has occurred. Some cases do require one to three tablespoonfuls of mineral oil. Taken at bedtime only.

Do not use this unless necessary and discontinue as soon as possible.

It usually takes one to four weeks to establish normal bowel function. The morning ritual establishes a natural reflex action and the vicious cycle—laxative, constipation, laxative—can be broken.

In some cases, deep-seated emotional problems require additional attention, usually by a psychiatrist.

An over-all effort should be made to increase the bulk in the diet. This means salads, vegetables, fruits and cereals. When physical inactivity is a factor, a simple exercise program like daily walking will help.

Avoid things that irritate the digestive tract, like tobacco, alcohol, coffee and highly seasoned foods. Mexican food is an example. Highly seasoned Mexican food irritates the entire digestive tract from mouth to rectum, sometimes called "Mexican heartburn."

The sudden onset of failure of the bowels to move requires immediate medical attention. But most constipation problems relate to poor diet, bad habits, inactivity, injudicious use of laxatives, enemas and failure to train the bowel. By following the simple procedure I have outlined, most people can avoid becoming "a bowel problem."
