Inmate blamed in prison murder

COWANSVILLE (JM) — Coroner Noel Etienne Monast held Mario Gauthier criminally responsible in the hammer slaying of Georges Nadeau following an inquest here Friday night. Mr. Nadeau, 34, the chief painting instructor at the Cowansville Penitentiary was killed at 10:30 a.m. April 8 when he was alone with 10 inmates in the prison paint shop.

Gauthier, 19, a journalist of Montreal, refused to answer questions concerning the events in the paint shop April 8. Coroner Monast told him he could be detained indefinitely if he refused to answer any questions. Gauthier retained his silence after a short consultation with his lawyer, Frank Shoofey.

Mr. Nadeau's death was confirmed by coroner Monast who is also the prison physician. He said Mr. Nadeau died from a severe frontal skull fracture.

Dr. Claude Pottel, a pathologist attached to the Medical-Legal Institute, Montreal, said there were up to 23 traces of massive skull fractures on the person of Mr. Nadeau. Under questioning by Crown Prosecutor Claude Noisieux he said death would have been almost instantaneous.

Corporal Medard Cyr, Quebec Police Homicide Squad said Gauthier made a voluntary declaration to himself and Constable Jacques Guerin. His testimony was corroborated by Mr. Guerin and the declaration was placed in evidence although it was not read in the jam-packed town council chamber.

Four inmates who were present at Mr. Nadeau's death were allowed to testify in camera. Dr. Monast allowed the closed door hearing after Mr. Noisieux told him the inmates feared for their lives if they testified in public.

Pierre Belanger, chief chemist at the Medical-Legal Institute told the inquest blood-stains found on the shirt of the accused, the hammer, various walls and the floor of the paint shop all corresponded with Mr. Nadeau's blood type.

He told the coroner certain articles of hair had not yet been identified nor had fingerprints on the hammer handle.

Constable Jean-Claude Boisard, homicide squad, said the shirt described by Mr. Belanger was found in a

Remains in critical condition

SHERBROOKE (BS) — France Desmarais, 15, of 1075 Genest St., Sherbrooke, remains in critical condition today and is still unconscious, CHU Medical Director Dr. Gosselin reports.

She was taken to the CHU Medical Centre Thursday night after being the only survivor in a two-car head-on collision on Route 143 12 miles south of Sherbrooke between the Waterville and North Hatley turns.

All others involved in the accident, totalling five, were killed.

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam went on national television last night to announce his resignation in hopes it will lead to a peaceful political settlement and preclude a military takeover of Saigon by the North Vietnamese.

The 52-year-old president, who has headed the Saigon regime for 10 years, finally bowed to the inevitable with 10 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong divisions threatening Saigon, radio contact lost with South Vietnamese forces fighting a losing battle at Xuan Loc 40 miles east of Saigon, and the apparently imminent loss of still another province on the coast 35 miles farther east. Thieu's government had lost three-fourths of South Vietnam's territory since the first of the year.

U.S. officials say a Communist takeover means the methodical, systematic execution of officials and officers who worked for the Saigon government.

"There are a million South Vietnamese on the blood debt list," one American said. "They are marked for certain death."

Much of the embassy's case is based on killings in the columns of refugees who fled from the central highlands. Communist shelling of these people was common, and reporters on the scene wrote about it.

Other embassy reports include the beheading of a moderate political leader in Da Nang, and the killing of Vietnamese-American babies in Nha Trang. But U.S. officials were unable to produce witnesses to either of these alleged atrocities. The embassy source for the story of the mass execution in Ban Me Thuot was a Vietnamese army lieutenant who said he heard the story from a Buddhist monk. The monk could not be located.

One U.S. official said he located a farmer in Quang

Ngai who found the body of his policeman son amid piles of bodies on a roadside. The American said the farmer told him his son had been executed. But the farmer could not be located for an interview.

Reports of policemen and soldiers killed are numerous enough, even though unverified, to indicate that the Communist takeover has not all been a love feast.

But it still cannot be said with certainty whether the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese are engaged in the methodical eradication of Saigon officials or whether they are trying to bring a spirit of reconciliation and normalcy to the cities and villages they have captured.

Nationalization of asbestos is PQ aim

BLACK LAKE, Que. (CP) — Parti Quebecois leader Rene Levesque said Sunday the Quebec asbestos industry would be nationalized if his party was in power.

Mr. Levesque told a meeting of about 500 party supporters, including striking asbestos workers, he thought it "inconceivable" that multinational companies could exploit Quebec's manpower and natural resources.

Party vice-president Jacques Parizeau said it would cost the government approximately $150 million to take control of all asbestos operations in the province.

An additional 7,000 asbestos-related jobs could be created if 20 per cent of the production was transformed into finished products, Mr. Parizeau said.

Black Lake is about 10 miles north of Thetford Mines, where 3,500 asbestos workers have been on strike since March 18 over wage, health and safety issues.

The USA in focus

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The human jaw is getting smaller, its chin is receding and its teeth are getting more crooked, says a University of Michigan scientist.

"Our whole facial structure below the eyes is falling to pieces," says Dr. James Harris, chairman of the department of orthodontics. "When we see a person with perfect teeth, it's so rare that we take pictures."

Harris has spent the last decade studying the teeth of ancient and present-day Nubians, a genetically distinct tribe who lived along the banks of the Nile River for thousands of years.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia is urging the United States to put economic, political and diplomatic pressure on South Africa and Rhodesia to end white supremacist policies and accept black majority rule in Southwest Africa.

The visiting Zambian leader said that private talks with President Ford and State Secretary Henry Kissinger were encouraging and that he believes "the administration is ready to move."

But he declined to spell out what understanding had been reached. "They listened with sympathy. That is as far as I can go," Kaunda said in a news conference Sunday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — An assortment of handmade weapons was seized by guards after a 17-hour prisoner uprising in which a dozen persons were taken hostage and later released unharmed at the District of Columbia jail.

Corrections director Delbert Jackson said a shakedown of prisoner cells Sunday yielded several hand-fashioned metal and wooden clubs but no guns or knives.

Prisoners complaining of conditions at the jail took control of a cellblock at about 1 a.m. Saturday and seized 12 hostages, including 11 guards and a male nurse. One of the guards was freed about noon and the remainder were released Saturday evening after a negotiated end to the uprising.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, having let President Ford's deadline for Vietnam aid pass, is expected to make key decisions this week on aid to beleaguered South Vietnam and the possible use of United States troops in evacuations from that country.

The Senate takes up today a $200-million humanitarian-evacuation package, with a final vote expected Tuesday. The House of Representatives considers Tuesday a $327-million relief-evacuation plan with less restrictions on the use of U.S. armed forces, compared to the Senate bill.

President Ford had asked Congress to approve $722 million in emergency military aid and $250 million in humanitarian aid for South Vietnam by last Saturday. Not only did Congress let the requested deadline pass, but it appears unlikely that Ford's request for more military aid will win approval.

Aid assured milk producers

OTTAWA (CP) — Milk producers were assured Friday that new federal dairy policy will cover their increased costs, but the government plans to put more and more of the price load on consumers' shoulders.

This policy statement by Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan in the Commons came less than three weeks after other policy changes boosted the retail price of butter.

The announcement drew immediate criticism from the NDP's T.C. Douglas who described it as "a bitter pill very thinly sugar-coated."

Producers' rising costs will be covered, effective immediately, by a formula based on the consumer price index, labor information, and producers' cash inputs and capital costs, said Mr. Whelan.

The new policy provides for price increases as frequently as every three months for industrial milk, which is used to make butter, cheese and other such products.

The government's target support price, the minimum guaranteed to the farmers through the Canadian Dairy Commission, is $11.02 a hundredweight.

CONSUMERS PAY — Mr. Whelan said any increase in costs, however, will not be covered fully by an increase in federal subsidies on industrial milk. The consumer would have to bear the burden directly rather than indirectly through taxes.

"It is the aim of the government to progressively increase the share of producer returns coming from the market place," Mr. Whelan said.

He warned producers, however, that production must be based on market demands because "unmanageable and costly surpluses cannot be tolerated."

Mr. Whelan's statement came on the heels of a demand from Quebec dairy farmers for an increase that would bring the retail price of whole milk to a minimum 55 cents a quart from the current 51-cent minimum.

In a meeting at St. Hyacinthe earlier this week, members of the Quebec Federation of Milk Producers said they must seek a new increase because of rising costs.

The policy changes drew a lot of criticism, including some from farmers.

Conservative James McGrath joined Mr. Douglas in slamming the changes, saying it was "a complete cop-out."

The Food Prices Review Board was "disappointed" that the announcement failed to justify the most recent increase in industrial milk prices.

FARMERS WARN — Dairy Farmers of Canada, an arm of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, the largest farm-pressure group, said some parts of the new policy are inadequate.

The dairy farmers' group, to which Mr. Whelan presented his program early yesterday, said the initiative of the minister "is very welcome and a real step forward."

But that was about as far as it would go in support of the proposal.

"The adequacy of the index adjustment system is what must be given the closest scrutiny," the group said.

"Even at first glance, it is clear it provides only a guarantee of minimum protection — a minimum which may fall short of a really adequate level of forward assurance for farmers investing their capital and labor in milk production."

Whelan did not think, for his part, that consumers will necessarily face regular increases in the future.

"We're hoping that inflation has hit the bottom, that it has levelled off. There may not be a necessity for increased prices."

But Mr. McGrath was skeptical.

He said the price of fluid milk has increased by 37.7 per cent so far this year and said Mr. Whelan plans "to rescue the dairy industry on the already hard-pressed backs of the consumers."

"We consider this nothing short of a complete cop-out, not only for the dairy industry, but also for the consumer."

Conservationists fight plan for chalets in park

MAGOG—A 55 acre area in the Mount Orford Park will soon be turned into a home for 50 chalets, unless a group of conservationists can persuade the provincial government to modify their plans.

The land in question, lot 925 in the Municipality of Orford Township wasn't taken off the list of those lots which would be expropriated until the late fall of 1974, though it now is destined to be. The announcement for the enlargement of the park was made public March 29 by Orford MNA Georges Vaillancourt.

The site of the projected building is in an area where deer presently make their winter habitat, the last such area in the park. Biologist Denis Choquette said Tuesday that in this ravaged area, the 40 or so deer currently living in the section would face certain death sooner or later as a result of the move.

A well-informed source revealed that the initial changes to the enlargement plans excluded the land in question following a meeting between the provincial representative, Mr. Vaillancourt, and promoters of the project, the proprietors of Auberge Cherbourg.

PROS AND CONS

The arguments against outweigh the ones for the expropriation of the land. Ronald Champagne, deputy minister for Tourism, Fish and Game, said he favored the plan because the promoters were planning to build 100 more chalets on the land in the future, greatly increasing the value of the project.

Dr. Gaston Moisan, also associated with the Tourism, Fish and Game department, launched a battle to prevent lot 925 from being put on the expropriation list. Last October, Dr. Moisan underlined the importance of the wilderness for the deer, which have been labelled a species endangered of disappearing in Quebec.

Construction is slated to begin in the next two or three weeks, though Orford Township revealed Wednesday that no building permits had been issued for the project. It appears that the fight will be lost though, because few people are willing to go to the defence of the remaining deer in the Mount Orford Park.

Craft show planned

KNOWLTON—As a result of the tremendous success of the November Craft Show where the public was delighted with the variety and quality of the varied hand-crafted articles for sale, a Spring Craft Show is being held. This show will be especially interesting as new crafts created by the artisans during the winter months will be on display and for sale. Everyone is welcome to attend this show to browse for interest's sake and perhaps find that "something special" that would solve a Mother's Day gift problem.

The Spring Crafts Show will be held at the Brome Lake Country Inn in Knowlton, Quebec (exit 52 on the Eastern Townships Autoroute) on Sunday, April 27, 1975 from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. with no admission charged.

Among the craftsmen's work will be Tiffany lamps, wood crafts, weaving, rugs, paintings, pottery, crochet and a large variety of gift items to name a few. The aim of this craft show is not only to provide reasonably priced original articles for shoppers, but also to renew the rapport established at former shows between craftsmen and the public. As the show provides the opportunity for the craftsman to sell directly to the customer, the craftsmen are able to price their articles lower as there is no commission involved.

The Inn's well known smorgasbord dinner, catering to all tastes, will again be served from 6 p.m. on at special rates.

The aims of craft show organizers are:

1. Encourage artisans to develop their skills and preserve the culture and heritage of Quebec.

2. Provide an outlet whereby craftsmen do not have to pay a percentage to the middleman.

3. Give consumers, in this day of synthetics and mass production, the opportunity to purchase articles which are hand made, original and reasonably priced.

Fire department sponsors event

DERBY LINE (IH)—Sunday morning, April 13, the Derby Line Fire Department sponsored a pancake breakfast held at St. Edward's Parish hall in Derby Line. It was a second annual event and a success. The firemen their ladies and friends kept the griddle hot as people came in support of the project. The proceeds were very satisfactory and will be used towards the ambulance fund to reduce debts. The ambulance serves the Town of Derby, Town of Holland and Town of Morgan and accepts calls on the Canadian Border.

Fire Chief Ben Blais, and his men say "Thank You" to everyone who supported this.

undertaken to assist the Derby Line Fire Department ambulance service.

Her last contribution was a cheque for $35. It is people like this that give encouragement to the fire department to continue their untiring efforts to give service to their communities. The stamps turned in for cash came from trading stamps and coupons from both sides of the Border for Mrs. Davis uses Canadian stamps as well as American.

 The Fire Department had a busy Monday evening, making two trips to Holland, Vt. The first call came about 8 p.m. American time, the second about an hour later. The first call was a tractor which caught fire in a shed. The tractor had been pulled out and the firemen quickly had the blaze out and returned home. The second call was for a small shed or chicken coop. With everything under control they returned home.

Sweetsburg Court

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM)—Judge Bernard Legare sentenced Michel Therrien to one year, consecutive to any term he is currently serving, in sessions court Wednesday. Therrien, an inmate at the Cowansville Institution, pleaded guilty to having been illegally at large after having received a pass, when he failed to return on his due date of February 15.

 Judge Bernard Legare reserved judgment in the case of Conrad Brochu to May 28. The crown completed its portion of the trial earlier and his defence lawyer, Claude Leveille, tried to provide an alibi defence.

Mr. Brochu, of Montreal, was tried on four counts of breaking and entering commercial establishments, thefts, and receiving stolen goods.

Mr. Leveille produced clerks from two different Granby hotels who said the accused was a registered guest on February 23 and 25, 1974. Brochu maintained he could not recall when he checked into either hotel as he was under the influence of a combination of drugs and alcohol.

He said he reported his car stolen to the Granby municipal police and when he went to obtain information concerning the vehicle he was placed under arrest.

Under cross-examination by Crown prosecutor Claude Noisieux Mr. Brochu admitted to a lengthy record dating back to 1959 including convictions on charges of armed robbery and possession of offensive weapons. "I have paid for all that," he said.

Mr. Leveille argued the crown's case was strictly based on circumstantial evidence, and at no time was the accused directly linked with the crimes he was accused of having committed.

Mr. Noisieux produced three witnesses in counter-proof. Cowansville detective Real Oumet said he arrested the accused at approximately 9:30 on the morning of January 24, and he was eventually booked in the Cowansville cells at 10:50 a.m. January 25 to be released at 3:45 p.m. the same day. Two provincial policemen said they were with Mr. Oumet and the accused appeared to be tired. However, he did not smell of alcohol. One of the QPF witnesses said a key found in Mr. Brunet's possession opened the trunk of the car of the accused, and that goods stolen in Granby were found in the trunk, while effects stolen in Cowansville were found on the rear seat.

Mr. Noisieux said the crown had completed all the elements necessary on the count of receiving stolen goods through use of circumstantial evidence. He cited a recent judgement whereby the judge is not obligated to accept all or part of an alibi defence if he cannot believe the testimony offered by the accused.

"The proof he wasn't in the Windsor Hotel when he Serge Villeneuve, 20, and Jean-Louis Pierre, 20, both of Laval, pleaded guilty to two counts of breaking and entering at Clarenceville, March 10.

Gilles Mercure, Legal Aid Office, opted for immediate trial before a magistrate.

Mr. Noisieux said the prime reason the young men were apprehended so quickly was they ran into a QPF road block when the stolen goods were located in the car. He said although they had no prior records he had to ask for a prison term at the leave of the bench. "Our rate of breaking and entries has diminished greatly since the courts have imposed stiffer sentences."

Mr. Mercure said it was an isolated act and the young men even went to the trouble of returning an air-pellet gun they had stolen to the police at a later date. "They have potential employment in the St. Jovite area, and I suggest sentences be remanded pending preparation of probation reports."

Judge Legare made Mr. Mercure determine they would be employed. Mr. Mercure determined Villeneuve had been hired by the provincial department of lands and forests and was to commence a tree spraying operation at La Macaza within two days. "I was told Pierre would also get a job if he shows up with Villeneuve," Mr. Mercure said.

"Mr. Villeneuve's parents are apparently well known in St. Jovite and young Pierre can rent a room from them."

Judge Legare remanded sentence to July 7. Both men must report to the local probation office, and must advise the court of any change of address within 48 hours. "If you as much as disturb the peace you'll land up in jail," Judge Legare said.

 Rolland Boucher, St. Armand, was cited to the next term of the local assizes following preliminary hearing on possession of 40 rolls of carpeting valued at approximately $20,000, which he knew had been obtained through the commission of a crime, in Farnham, November 29, 1974.

 Crown prosecutor Claude Noisieux produced five witnesses in the hearing of Real Reigner, Reigner, of Sherbrooke was then cited to the next term of the assizes on a charge of qualified robbery at the Cadieux Pharmacy, Granby, March 8, 1975.

 Claude Laroche, Eastman, stood mute at voluntary statement and was cited to the next term of the local assizes on counts of breaking, entering and possession of stolen goods. Crown attorney Noisieux produced three witnesses for purposes of the hearing, including the victim, Bernard Labelle, whose cottage was broken into near Austin during November 1974. Mr. Labelle identified six firearms and a stereo set as being his property. He then told the court his summer home had been broken into a total of three times.

Comments on periodicals

MANSONVILLE—Record correspondent Maria Bray was recently written to by D.S. Loftus, director of policy planning and program development for the arts and culture branch of the federal Secretary of State. The letter was sent to acknowledge

Mrs. Bray's previous letter to the Canadian government expressing her disagreement with the decision to remove special tax advantages for two Canadian publications.

The magazines in question, Time and Reader's Digest, had previously been given special advantages for tax purposes. The letter stated that in the government's view, it is necessary to remove the 'inconsistency' in the application of the Income Tax Act. The removal would also cancel a provision which works to the disadvantage of Canadian periodicals, the letter said.

It also said the government is acting in keeping

YOUTH ORCHESTRA—Peter Brown, Director of the Vermont Youth Orchestra is seen above. The orchestra spent a day with the elementary school students at Derby Line recently.

Music Day held at Border school

DERBY LINE (IH)— "And there shall be music..." and there is music, more and more in the Vermont schools. In September a full-time music teacher joined the staff at the Derby Elementary school, Derby Line. She is Ms. Joan Kirchoff, who is doing an outstanding job with the youngsters of the school.

Wednesday, April 15 was music day at the school when 86 young musicians that make up the Vermont Youth orchestra, under the direction of Peter Brown and manager, Mrs. Long, came to spend the day in the classrooms and give a concert after lunch.

The instruments included clarinet, flute, oboe, bassoon, violin, (first and second), trumpet, trombone, French horn, percussion, tuba and saxophone.

The musicians made the rounds, playing a tune, telling about their musical instrument and answering the many questions asked by the student body. The Junior High from Derby had also come for the day and joined in the action. The musicians even let the youngsters "play" their musical instrument. Even the little first graders tried to handle the base viol that was over twice as tall as them!

After lunch, all assembled in the multipurpose room.

Mr. Brown directed the orchestra and all heard some beautiful music. Mexican Dance was a demonstration of how an orchestra is composed. One section played the bass, then the oboes joined for the harmony. The second violins and percussions brought in the rhythm, then all these were joined by first violins and the other musical instruments to make up the orchestra.

The concert, an hour long, included marches, waltz and other arrangements by famous composers.

Mr. Brown, the director, is a solo cellist with the Vermont State Symphony. He plays with several groups upon invitation. He is professor of music at Lyndon State College. He has directed the Vermont Youth Orchestra the past six years and certainly his training was reflected with the quality of music played at this concert.

The orchestra is made up of junior and senior high school students, also two grade six and two UVM students that come from within two hours drive to Burlington, Vt. They gather every Saturday in Burlington for music and instruction under Mr. Brown.

The orchestra is supported by music friends of Burlington, and sponsored by the Vermont Council of the Arts. Seven years ago a summer camp was established at Lyndon State College and Lyndon Institute. This is the 12th year the orchestra has been active.

At the concert on Monday, Mr. Brown, said if one thinks he or she is good enough to play in the orchestra to contact him. He noted auditions will start in about a month from now and added, "you are needed in the group."

The day at the Derby Line School was made possible through the arrangements of Ms. Kirchoff and among the orchestra were nine of her former students.

Ms. Kirchoff was warmly congratulated on her efforts.

TODAY'S TREASURES

Imperfections give old trunk character

By Jean Barnes
(Last of Two Columns)

"You're better off if you don't strive for perfection," Carol Gawthrop said as she explained the processes involved in refinishing an old trunk.

She and Fran Thompson have worked together for several years refinishing and restoring trunks in their Kansas community.

In a previous column, they discussed repairing and cleaning of an old trunk. Now, they offer advice on finishing.

They recommend you start with the slats first. "We've always felt that wooden slats should be finished naturally but that's just our preference," Carol explained. If the trunk has wooden handles you will want to do these in the same finish. Metal slats or binding should be covered with a rust resistant paint. And, the two women prefer a finish with a dull sheen instead of a high gloss.

Metal trim and ornaments must be handled separately. Some of these may be brass but the chances for all of it to be brass are small, they said. Since you want the trunk to appear uniform, they recommend painting such things as cornerbraces, rosettes, strap guides, the lock and handle hardware in the same color of metallic paint.

The body of the trunk, whether canvas or tin, can be antiqued in your color preference. Start with the bottom of the trunk first and when dry do the sides and the top. This same color should be used to paint the inside, down about an inch below the lip of the lid. Before starting on the lining, replace the handles. If they are badly worn, you probably can find replacements at a leather goods shop or use a heavy leather belt to fashion new ones.

When the paint is dry, you are ready to start on the lining.

"Our favorite is a corduroy which looks like velvet and is easy to work with." However, they continued, any cotton material is usable. It doesn't have to be heavy or fadeproof.

You can either cover cardboard cut to fit each side and then slip it in place or you can work directly with the fabric on the bare surface. Use white glue. Make sure all raw edges are creased and turned under and glued tightly.

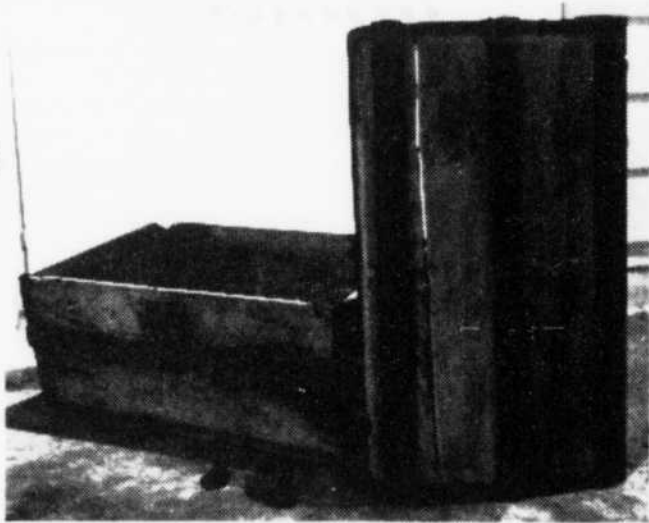

If the stay or stop is missing from the lid you can make one by attaching a small chain on the edges of the lid and the base.

They both recommend the use of either cotton or foam padding under the lining of the lid and giving it the look of tufting with upholstery tacks. If the trunk has a curved top "you will just have to work with the fabric to get it to fit and it will eventually smooth out," they said.

The tray or till of the trunk should never be covered, they cautioned. It could make the till fit too tightly against the sides. Painting of the till is best.

And as you work, remember their advice, don't strive for perfection. A trunk should show its age and wear.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Wooden trunk is almost ready for lining with iron bands coated with a rust resistant paint, wood sanded and varnished. Large crack in lid is left to retain antique personality of the trunk.

Mood-altering drugs often go to women

TORONTO (CP) — Pharmacist Ruth Cooperstock of the Ontario Addiction Research Foundation said Wednesday her studies show that physicians prescribe twice as many mood-altering drugs to women as they do to men.

Mrs. Cooperstock said her study, started three years ago, shows that the tranquilizer Valium, sleeping pills and other such drugs are prescribed mainly to women.

She said one physician said this is because "females are more emotional and more prone to acting out."

"It is about time we woke up and started questioning the pill pushing and unnecessary surgery we've been buying," she told a meeting of the Ontario Status of Women Council.

Mrs. Cooperstock said that the Ontario Medical Federation agreed at a recent conference that tranquilizers should be prescribed for no more than two weeks at a time and only in extreme emotional circumstances.

"My studies indicate that tranquilizers are being taken for an average of 23 days or more and sleeping pills 33 days..."

PROFITS HIGH

Mrs. Cooperstock said the pharmaceutical industry is "one of the second most profitable in the world today with an annual profit of 10 to 12 per cent" because of the heavy use of mood-altering drugs.

She said $5 million was spent on "just one strength" of Valium in Ontario in 1972.

Dr. Marion Powell, director of the Population Centre, University of Toronto, said women are subjected to more unnecessary surgery than men.

"But I don't think it is a deliberate male thing," she said. "Both men and women practising medicine are equally responsible."

Status of women conference topic

A panel discussion of great interest to all women was the highlight of the International Conference sponsored recently by the Sherbrooke and District University Women's Club. The President, Mrs. Rhoda Matson, opened the conference by welcoming the delegates to this special event marking International Women's Year. The panelists were introduced by Ms. Irene Lambert, CFUW International Relations Chairman from Winnipeg, Manitoba. They included university graduates from Quebec, Ontario, Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire and Sweden, with Mrs. Amy Williams and Mlle. Cecile Rochefort, Provincial Directors of the CFUW acting as coordinators.

The theme of the discussion was Women in Education, Politics and Community Service, and the speakers stressed both the problems and accomplishments in these areas. Mrs. Marion Turner, Maine President of the American Association of University Women, listed among the latter the implementation of a Learning Resources Project set up to introduce young people to special educational situation not ordinarily available to them. High school students in many parts of the state are given the opportunity to visit a tidal marsh, talk to a lobster fisherman about his work, attend a town meeting, etc.

According to Mrs. Ann Case, the women of Vermont play a very active role in the government of their state. The 30 women legislators have introduced some important bills, and in addition are especially conscientious about keeping the voters informed on issued and upcoming legislation. As in Maine, the efforts of concerned women have made possible the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment. In the area of community service, groups have been formed to fill special needs, e.g. an organization called Women Against Rape, and a Woman's Health Centre where doctors counsel women on abortion and other problems.

Another valuable community service was described by Mrs. Shirley Ganem, AAUW North Atlantic Regional Vice-President. New Hampshire university women in 1971 set up the Women's Information Service (WISE) to provide teams of women trained to supply information and counsel, especially to mature women, on the problems of getting a better education or a job, dealing with many types of family difficulties.

Mrs. Ganem noted also that New Hampshire school boards have many women members, and there are 138 women legislators out of a total of 400.

Swedish journalist Ulla Linton explained that in her country the status of women is quite similar to that of Canadian women. Their jobs are usually in the traditional fields and they are often underpaid and do not fill executive positions. She felt, however, that working women do not face community disapproval and can take advantage of better day-care facilities for their children. The Swedish Agency for Equal Rights for Men and Women exerts considerable influence, and has tried to stress the necessity for changing both male and female roles, since they are interdependent, e.g. either mothers or fathers may take paid leave following the birth of a baby.

There are several interesting projects underway in Ontario, according to Cynthia Thompson, Executive Secretary of the CFUW. These are in the fields of career counseling, a Personnel Resources File and active participation in local and provincial politics, and were described in more detail by Mrs. Ruth Bell in her keynote speech following the closing banquet.

The final speaker, Mme. Laurette Robillard, President de Conseil du Statut de la Femme, gave an account of some of the accomplishments and future plans of the Council. An equal opportunity program has been accepted though not yet implemented by the Government of Quebec, and an Information Service, with a toll-free telephone, is available to answer women's questions on their legal and economic rights. The Council hopes to introduce further labour legislation dealing with maternity benefits, and will urge the Minister of Education to eliminate role stereotyping in textbooks. Equal access to credit and insurance plans for men and women is an important issue, as is the necessity for sex education at the Secondary School level.

To mark International Women's Year, an American delegate described a plan whereby qualified women would be sent to underdeveloped countries for special projects, e.g., teaching nutrition and family care to women in the villages of Ghana. In conjunction with the International Federation of University Women, a project has been instituted to inform women throughout the world of ways in which they are being discriminated against.

Several other questions were put to the panelists, after which Mrs. Eileen Clark, Vice-President of the CFUW, undertook the difficult task of summing up the far-ranging discussion. Among other points she mentioned the importance of sensitizing women to their needs before taking action, and solving the universal problem of the stereotyping of women's roles. Several delegates also described the formation of career counseling services and lists of women qualified to fill various responsible jobs. Apparently women in the USA are ahead of Canadians as regards political action, and it is most important that we become more knowledgeable and active in this field.

The program for the following day included visits to the CHU, the Law Faculty of Sherbrooke University and a luncheon at Bishop's College School.

where the delegates were welcomed by the Headmaster. The tour ended with a visit to Alexander Galt Regional School; the Principal, Frank Boushel, described some aspects of the school house system, and a number of students took advantage of the opportunity to discuss careers for women with the delegates.

In the evening sherry was served in MacKinnon Hall, and the Conference closed with a banquet at which Mrs. Ruth Bell, President of the CFUW, spoke on The subject of the International Women's Year and the CFUW. Our goal should be to promote a spirit of truth, of unity and of sisterhood among all women. CFUW efforts must be directed towards encouraging younger women to develop qualities of leadership, and to increasing cooperation in local and regional projects. On a national level Mrs. Bell described the formation of the Personnel Resources File and plans for family property law reform, as well as the elimination of sex stereotyping in textbooks, etc. Reforms can only be accomplished by individuals and clubs actively urging their legislators to take action.

Mrs. Bell was introduced by Mrs. Irene Lambert and thanked by Mrs. Geraldine Smith, Vice-President of the Sherbrooke and District Club. The general consensus among delegates was that they had participated in an intensive and exciting conference, and had exchanged much valuable information on women's problems and accomplishments.

Shades create sewing-storage space

By Joanne Schreiber

No extra space for a sewing room? Here's an ingenious and inexpensive way to get full sewing and storage space — using just the corner of a dining room, bedroom or family room.

Interior designer Shirley Regendahl created this efficient and charming spot with a simple framework of struts dividing the wall into four equal sections. Each section is covered by a decorative, roll-down shade made of easy-to-clean fiberglass yarns by PPG Industries.

Behind each shade, there's storage space for sewing essentials. The first section is full-length to accommodate a dress form and the ironing board. The other three are made with shelves above and drawers below to store fabrics, notions, patterns and even the sewing machine.

The end of the storage section is finished with a full-length mirror — a must for any dressmaking action. Wicker baskets atop the installation hold knitting yarns and unfinished projects.

The wooden sections are painted a cheerful Dutch scarlet to match the tone of the pebbly vinyl floor.

The shades were chosen because they do not require the swing-out space of cabinet doors and they may be rolled all the way up to reveal the entire collection of sewing paraphernalia. Between sewing sessions, they hide and clutter and show off the delightful fashion sketches, which were adapted by Miss Regendahl from the Golden Hands Complete Book of Dressmaking.

"Moving murals" traced onto fiberglass window shades conceal a lot of sewing storage space.

The sketches were projected onto the screens and the designs were traced from the projected images, to make imaginative "moving murals." The yarn basket on the window shade was painted directly onto the shade. As a final touch — shade pulls are spools, painted to match the color scheme.

Note that the simple white Parsons table has a felt sheath tacked to the right-hand leg — a convenient place to keep the scissors.

Sewing rooms need not be large or fancy — but they must be workable and attractive. With a corner setup like this you really can enjoy sewing and saving on your family's clothing.

Ann Landers Eyebrow shaver needs help

Dear Ann Landers: Several years ago, when I was in high school, I took a razor and shaved off my eyebrows. It was a crazy thing to do, but I always admired girls with thin, pretty eyebrows and mine were heavy, so I decided to remove my own and paint new ones on.

They didn't grow back completely, but through the years the lack of eyebrows never bothered me. Now, at the age of 33 I find myself obsessed with this flaw in my looks. My left eyebrow isn't bad. With a few strokes of a pencil, I can make it look fairly decent. But my right eyebrow is a disaster. I have exactly ten hairs over the eye and I just can't pencil in a natural-looking brow to save my soul.

I've tried hiding it behind glasses. I've worn an eyepatch. Once I even tried gluing strands of hair from my head. Nothing works. Do you have any ideas? I am — Mizzereable

Dear Mizz: Your problem is in your head, not over your right eye. People don't pay THAT much attention to your eyebrows. Honest they don't.

Go to a professional makeup salon and take a lesson or two on how to use the eyebrow pencil. Follow the instructions and resolve to live with the results.

Dear Ann Landers: While waiting for a bus one day about two years ago, I became involved in a friendly conversation with a pleasant-looking woman. We met there quite often and spoke of our mutual interests, husbands, work and we showed one another pictures of our children. She was especially impressed with my son.

Several months ago the boy was killed in an auto accident. Needless to say I was very depressed and I couldn't speak of it to anyone outside the family. On several occasions since the boy's death I have encountered this woman at the bus stop and she always asks about him. Of course she has no idea he died and I haven't been able to tell her.

It hurts me when she brings up his name but I don't know how to tell her he is gone. How can I, without making her feel terrible? Please give me some advice. — Speechless

Dear Friend: Write down these two simple sentences and rehearse them. "I'm sorry to tell you that my son was killed in an auto accident several months ago. I should have told you sooner, but I couldn't bring myself to speak of it."

The next time the woman mentions the boy's name, repeat those two sentences and get that difficult chore behind you.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I were both 41 when we married six years ago. I have never done anything to keep from becoming pregnant but it just hasn't happened. Ralph loves children and he's driving me crazy because he wants to become a father so badly.

I have a grown son by my first marriage. Ralph has never been married before.

He is making me feel as if my inability to produce a child for him is ruining his life. Now I feel guilty about something that is not my fault. What can I say to him? — Indianapolis Woman

Dear In: You can tell Ralph that if he was so crazy to become a father, he should have married a younger woman.

Have you considered adoption? If not, I suggest you do.

Dear Ann Landers: We are asking you to settle this dispute. The other party says he will accept your verdict.

My friend and I had a small wager going. I bet him he couldn't quit smoking cigars. Being a smoker myself, I knew how difficult it would be to quit cold turkey, so I agreed to let him smoke a pipe.

One day, after two months of no cigars, he ran out of pipe tobacco. He unrolled a cigar and put the tobacco in his pipe and smoked it.

I contend that by so doing he lost the wager because he DID smoke a cigar — even though it was in his pipe.

The encyclopedia says there is a difference between the curing of cigar tobacco and pipe tobacco, but your word will hold more water than the book. How about it? Did he lose the bet or not? — Burned

Dear B: In my opinion he did not smoke a cigar. He smoked a pipe filled with cigar tobacco. If, for example, he had taken pipe tobacco and rolled it in cigar paper, I would then say he had smoked a cigar. Sorry if I let you down, but I call 'em as I see 'em. (Did I hear somebody yell, "Kill the Ump"?)

Canusa Unit meets

DERBY LINE — The Stanstead South Church Canusa Unit meeting of April 9 was held that evening at the home of Mrs. John Flood in Derby Line.

Mrs. Ted Jewett, the president and members welcomed three guests. Mrs. Terrence Walsh conducted the devotional period and reports were heard.

Deeply concerned about the Vietnam situation, a sum of $50.00 was voted to support the Vietnam Relief Air Lift in Saigon.

Mrs. Flood read a letter from their foster child in Hong Kong, noting his school progress, he is top in his class. Mrs. Urban Flynn, Jr. volunteered to write the monthly letter for April.

The Unit had agreed to serve a luncheon for Senior Citizens in May. A second letter came asking them to serve a luncheon again on June 5 to a group of Seniors from Dorval. They have agreed to do both.

After the adjournment, a social period was enjoyed as were the delicious cream puffs with chocolate sauce and beverages served by the hostesses, Mrs. Flood, Mrs. Robert Darby and Mrs. A.S. Judd, Jr.

The May meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Jewett.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Jim: "I watched a young, up-and-coming good bridge player chuck the defense of today's hand. He signalled with his ten of spades at trick one. Declarer let West's queen hold the trick. West didn't have a second spade to lead and declarer had time to set up dummy's diamonds and secure ten tricks."

Oswald: "I'm sure he was young, but I can't go for that up-and-coming good bridge player designation. Didn't he see that it was up to him to put his king of spades right on his partner's queen?"

Jim: "He did see it. The moment his partner shifted to a club, he turned to me and said, 'I guess you think I'm a trifle worse than a normal halfwit.' Oswald: "If he saw it himself and was ready to blame himself that quickly, there is plenty of hope for him. Young players as well as some old players tend to play carelessly. If this hand teaches him to be particularly careful in the early play there is plenty of hope for him to get into the expert class."

Jim: "I think he will. I remember you taught me to be as hard on myself as possible."

FIRST IN SERIES — Marc Tessier (white helmet) is shown congratulating Claude Larose after he opened the scoring in the first game in the Quebec Major Junior

Sauve, Serge Gougeon and Richard Dutton. Beavers' Fern Leblanc (7) and Sid Veysey in the background watch proceedings. Sherbrooke didn't really need any extra help, as they downed Laval 5-2.

Rod Gilbert is free-agent, available to highest bidder

NEW YORK (AP) — Is there a pro hockey team interested in an all-star right winger? If so, Rod Gilbert is available.

Gilbert, the 33-year-old veteran who collected 97 points for New York Rangers this season, has become a free agent and is available to the highest bidder, it was learned Sunday.

"Yes, Rod Gilbert is a free agent," admitted Rangers president William Jennings. "He is a free agent because of the 'consent decree' signed with the World Hockey Association 1½ years ago." The so-called consent agreement in effect did away with the option year of a pro hockey player's contract.

Jennings would not confirm that the Rangers had made an offer to Gilbert, who has played with New York for the last 13 seasons and was their first player to score 800 career points. Gilbert is said to be after a four-year contract with a raise from his reported $175,000 annual salary. Sources said, however, that the Rangers' response was an offer of a three-year agreement and no raise.

"That information should come from general manager vice-president Emile Francis," Jennings said. Jennings did not refer to Francis as coach, a job he has held for the last nine seasons—during which the Rangers have got into the Stanley Cup championship playoffs and been eliminated each time.

There has been speculation that Francis would be relieved of either the coaching role or the general manager's position, but Jennings would not comment on whether a decision already has been made.

Gilbert, meanwhile, has been receptive to feelers from other clubs. One source said discussions had been held with New England Whalers of the WHA. Another report has Gilbert going to Atlanta Flames as part of a deal that would bring goaltender Phil Myre to the Rangers.

"I know he's talking around," said one former team-mate.

Gilbert finished the third year of a three-year contract with the Rangers this season, when the club finished second in the Patrick Division and was eliminated from the playoffs by New York Islanders.

Gilbert was not available for comment Sunday night, nor was Francis, who was out of town.

Jerry McGee wins Pensacola Open 13-under, qualifies for Tournament of Champions

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Jerry McGee figured this was his lucky week before the first shot was fired in the $125,000 Pensacola Open golf tournament.

"Wednesday night, I ate oysters on the half shell and the first oyster I ate, I got a pearl," an elated McGee said Sunday after ending more than eight years of frustration on the pro golf tour by capturing his first victory.

"I told Jill (his wife) this may be the week," he said. "I didn't want to mention it before today because it

Snowmobile Club holds closing

BOUNDARY (H) — The Three Villages Snowmobile club held at the Rediker School in Beebe on Saturday, April 12, was a decided success.

It was attended by over 250 people consisting of snowmobilers, curlers and friends of the Snowmobile Club. It was like one big family party and no one was a stranger.

The Down Beat Trio, plus one, Johnny Sciotte was up to their usual high standards and played music geared to the enjoyment with vocal selections.

Shortly before midnight, members of the Snowmobile Club served buffet refreshments supplied by the members, more dancing until 1:30 a.m. and everyone reported they "had a ball."

This spring project to raise money for club work and trails is under the chairmanship of Ramsay Williams assisted by a working committee of directors and their ladies.

The directors deeply appreciate the co-operation of club members and all who came to support the club in their undertaking.

Gary Carter is given green light to play

MONTREAL (CP) — Rookie right fielder Gary Carter of Montreal Expos was in hospital Sunday with a cracked left rib suffered in the Expos' 3-0 loss to Philadelphia Phillies in National League baseball play Saturday.

Carter suffered the injury when he slammed into the right centre field fence while chasing a fly ball off the bat of the Phillies' Dave Cash.

A Montreal club spokesman said doctors did not consider the injury serious and felt Carter could play.

The Expos game Sunday against the Phillies was postponed due to cold weather. Montreal will work out today and will open a two-game series here against Pittsburgh Pirates Tuesday afternoon.

Kansas City Royals have the best won-lost record in major league baseball and manager Jack McKeon says pitching is the reason.

The Royals won their fifth game in a row Sunday when they blanked Texas Rangers 2-0 in an American League baseball game, improving their record to nine wins and two losses, the best start in the club's seven-year history.

Despite Sunday's win, the Royals' lead in the West Division was cut to 1½

Wind and cold weather stop Expos

Dave Kingman is giving New York Mets the kind of consistency at the plate that they had hoped for.

And he's giving them the kind of inconsistency in the field that they'd prayed against.

The erratic Kingman, acquired this past winter from San Francisco Giants, won one game for New York with his bat but almost lost it with his glove as the Mets took a 4-3 decision Sunday to sweep a National League baseball doubleheader from Chicago Cubs.

After the Mets took an 8-6 victory in the opener, Kingman hit his fourth home run of the season in the second game to help New York take a 4-0 lead.

Then in the ninth Kingman let a bases-loaded single get him for an error and all three runs scored to cut the Mets' margin to one run.

WIN STREAK ENDS — Relief pitcher Rick Baldwin reverted to the sparkling form he showed earlier in the game to save the victory and enabled the Mets to win their first doubleheader at home since Aug. 31, 1973 and stop a seven-game Chicago winning streak.

In Sunday's other National League games, San Francisco Giants beat Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3 in 13 innings, Atlanta Braves edged San Diego Padres 4-3, Pittsburgh Pirates blanked St. Louis Cardinals 5-0 and Cincinnati Reds trimmed Houston Astros 5-3 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second 7-6. Cold forced postponement of a game at Montreal between the Expos and Philadelphia Phillies.

Royals pitching big factor in their winning streak, Red Sox wallop Orioles

As Kansas City Royals swept a doubleheader from Minnesota Twins, 4-1 and 5-1.

In Sunday's other games, California Angels trounced Chicago White Sox 8-4, Boston Red Sox walloped Baltimore Orioles 10-2, Cleveland Indians downed Milwaukee Brewers 7-4 and New York Yankees whipped Detroit Tigers 7-1.

In Saturday's games, Milwaukee shut out Cleveland 3-0, California edged Chicago 6-5, Detroit topped New York 8-3, Oakland stopped Minnesota 4-1 and Kansas City overcame Texas 5-2.

STOPPED BY RAIN — A game at Boston between the Red Sox and Orioles was postponed because of rain.

"Nobody can match our five starters," said McKeon after Sunday's game. "They might match us 1 and 2, but not five deep."

"We're winning with good pitching and that's 80 per cent of the game. We're not tearing the cover off the ball. We're just playing solid, consistent, aggressive baseball."

The Royals' starters are Steve Busby, Paul Splittorff, Fitzmorris, Nelson Briles and Bruce Dal Canton.

Kansas City got its runs in the second inning against Texas' Steve Hargan, who matched Fitzmorris' six-hitter. Hal McRae doubled, George Brett walked and Fred Patek, hitting only .179 entering the game, tripled.

HURTS ELBOW

Dave Hamilton, brought into the game in the first inning when starter Mike Norris hurt his elbow, combined with Jim Todd on a seven-hitter and pitched Oakland to a doubleheader sweep. Glenn Abbott stopped the Twins with a sixhitter in the opener.

Bruce Bochte and Dave Chalk drove in three runs each, helping unbeaten Nolan Ryan post his fourth win. Ryan allowed five hits, including home runs by Ken Henderson and Jorge Orta, but walked nine and struck out only six.

Luis Tiant allowed four hits, including home runs by Bobby Grich and Lee May, and the Red Sox capitalized on Mike Torrez' wildness. Torrez gave up five hits, walked eight, threw two wild pitches and balked home a run before giving way to Wayne Garland in the fourth. He was charged with seven runs.

Home runs by Tom McCraw and Rico Carty and Frank Duffy's two-run single sparked the Indians, who scored five times in the second inning.

New York scored six runs in the seventh inning against rookie Vern Ruhle, two on Ed Herrmann's tie-breaking pinch double and three on a homer by Ron Blomberg, and defeated Detroit behind Rudy May's three-hit pitching. Bobby Bonds homered for the Yankees' first run.

Court

Trial in the case of John Davis was remanded to April 30. Davis, of Bolton Centre, was to have stood trial on a charge of simple assault on the person of George Norton in Bolton Centre around Christmas 1974.

Mr. Norton failed to appear and his wife told the court he was suffering from asthma. Mr. Noisieux told Judge Legare: "I've suffered from asthma for 15 years and I still get to court."

Judge Legare ordered Mrs. Norton and her two daughters to appear April 30 without further notice, and failure to appear would call for the issuance of arrest warrants. He then told the crown he had ordered Davis detained until August 1975 on a National Parole Board warrant.

Rene Campbell, Irberville, pleaded not guilty to counts of possession of eight $100 counterfeit bills in Phillipsburg, March 14, and to distribution of two false $100 bills the same day, one in Phillipsburg and the other in Bedford.

His lawyer, Claude Denault, opted for jury trial and preliminary hearing was fixed to May 26. Special prosecutor Andre Bachand made no objection to Campbell maintaining his freedom pending the hearing.

THE RUNNING OF THE BEEF

Big John Truden, tipping the farm scales at 486 lbs., and skiing for Mt. Snow, Vt., blazes through the race course in the World Heavyweight Championships held at Sugarloaf-USA in Kingfield, Me., on Sunday. John, a winner in earlier competitions, had trouble on the long, grueling and powdery course and failed to place in the top three. Top honors was taken by 395 lb. Peter Fields of Caribou, Me.

SUGARLOAF-USA — The big boys gathered again at Sugarloaf-USA for the 7th annual World Heavyweight Championships, otherwise known as the "Running Of The Beef." Big Peter Fields from Caribou, Me., tipping the scales at 395 lbs., returned to defend his title from 35 other heavies, including past winner John Truden of Mt. Snow, Vt. and Terry Tyler of West Dummerston, Vt., both 450 lbs. plus.

The competition is held annually to benefit the Pine State Easter Society. For each pound over 225, the contestant is charged 3 cents, with all proceeds going to the fund. The Pine State Easter Seal Child, Angela Horton of Greenville, Me. was at the area for the race and to receive the donation. Contestants are awarded a one second handicap for every 10 lbs. over 225, in order to really encourage the fat boys to come out and race. However, some competitors boost their weights with non-organic objects. John Parker, a thin 180 pounder from Falmouth, Me. tipped the scales at 325, with the addition of 10 window weights and heavy chains. However, the race officials and purveyors of weights and measures Drs. Hall and Jones detected the odd shape of Mr. Parker's stomach and after a discussion with the "heavy committee" ruled his time in the race unacceptable.

All competitors gathered Sat. night at the Red Stallion for a good stuff to gain an extra 10 pounds. Sunday morning dawned cool and the bountiful snow cover at Sugarloaf pointed towards a fast race. After the weigh-in, which saw John Truden tip the scales at 486 lbs., the racers rode the lift to the top of the race course, stretching under the Double Runner Chair onto the Novice slope for the finish.

After the 35 big boys "skied" through the course, and the snow had settled in the finish area as many found stopping difficult, big Peter Fields emerged the winner, followed by Terry Tyler, and a newcomer, John Brophy, a 395 lb. ski instructor from Vt.

First prize was an oversized Captain's chair (an undersized love seat?), second prize was a slate clock, and third prize was a pint of cottage cheese.

Sayer's 'clown' was skin deep

By Stephen Ford

NEW YORK — (NEA) — It wasn't easy for British rock singer Leo Sayer to abandon the only trademark a handful of American fans had come to recognize him by. Initially the wispy, curly-haired performer had adopted the distinctive white make-up of a Pierrot clown as a gimmick, something to draw the attention of a jaded record-buying public bored with one nondescript singer after another. But what was a simple gimmick for Sayer eventually became a prison.

Sayer, the 26-year-old Englishman whose Warner Bros. album "Just A Boy" has made him one of the earliest and brightest stars of 1975, has wiped off the make-up.

Sayer developed a considerable following in Britain a little over a year ago after Roger Daltrey, lead singer of The Who, recorded two of his songs on a solo album. Then Sayer cut his own debut, "Silverbird," whose cover presented him in white face. During a personal tour and a subsequent television appearance, he again applied the grease paint and from that point on, he was dubbed "Silverbird, the clown."

"It was a good idea, then," he says these days. "It was a drastically break away from all that catchiness and did reflect that with a new name, a new how I felt at the time: this sort of pathetic little fellow singing out his soul and panted in white face like some French mime. It guaranteed instant sympathy from an audience and evoked a lot of pathos — which is where I was at then."

"Physically, it was excruciating. My wife applied the make-up and usually put on several layers which was very sticky and uncomfortable for me. Also, I wore a very tight-fitting cap that covered my hair. Sometimes I had to wear this gook up to 11 hours if we were doing a few shows in one day."

"More important, I became fed up with being a walking gimmick. I feared people wouldn't recognize me on stage or off unless I was in make-up. My ego rebelled. I knew I had to try another approach."

Part of that new approach was accepting a change of name. He had changed his first name, Gerard, to Leo because, "I was known mostly as 'Gerry,'

the harp player," he reminisces about his earlier days as a harmonica player for an obscure band. "I wanted to be a drastically break away from all that catchiness and did reflect that with a new name, a new how I felt at the time: this sort of pathetic little fellow singing out his soul and panted in white face like some French mime. It guaranteed instant sympathy from an audience and evoked a lot of pathos — which is where I was at then."

"Physically, it was excruciating. My wife applied the make-up and usually put on several layers which was very sticky and uncomfortable for me. Also, I wore a very tight-fitting cap that covered my hair. Sometimes I had to wear this gook up to 11 hours if we were doing a few shows in one day."

that featured local bands. But he's so enamored of this country that he is considering moving here permanently.

That may depend heavily on how his current band feels about it, however. Sayer is more than somewhat sensitive when it comes to handling backup personnel since this is his fifth or sixth band ("I'm not sure myself," he says.)

"The earlier bands and me didn't hit it off so well," he adds neither sheepish or proud. "Either they had little respect for my music, preferring to do mainly heavy blues material, or we had personal conflicts," he reveals.

His present band was gathered with the guidance of Chris Stainton, former member of Joe Cocker's now-defunct Grease Band and himself a well-known fixture in Britain's music circles.

"I consider myself ever so fortunate having Chris with me," Sayer says bursting with excitement.

"I love what I'm doing," he continues. "I was first known as a songwriter with Daltrey then Three Dog Night recorded The Show Must Go On. That's very flattering but I felt I could best reflect what I wanted to put across in my music. After Daltrey's version of 'One Man Band' skyrocketed, I felt the confidence to do it myself."

He adds that he has no objections to anyone recording his songs. "In fact, there are a couple I've written but never recorded that I think would be great for some artists. I have a song just crying to be recorded by Rod Stewart. And there's another that, believe it or not, I think perfect for someone like Andy Williams."

Sayer's music is intensely personal — lyrical autobiographies that make a pitiful point entertainingly and wittily. The title track from his second album "Just A Boy," is moving up the charts nicely, a searing, emotional plaint my band is happy and best of all, I'm doing the sort of music I've always wanted to do. I've dressed the way I want and without fans asking, "Where's your make-up, Leo?" I had to make it clear I was not part of the glitter trip — lots of theatrical props instead of ability."

Sayer and his wife reside in a village he raised in and the envy of contemporary briefly managed a small bistro

Andre "Moose" Dupont tallies in overtime as Flyers knock off Leafs, Habs blank Canucks

Defenceman Andre (Moose) Dupont of Philadelphia Flyers can't see any reason for playing hockey games for which he won't be paid.

Anxious to save the Flyers from expending any extra effort in the Stanley Cup playoffs, Dupont scored in the second minute of overtime Saturday night to give the Flyers a 4-3 win over Toronto Maple Leafs and a sweep of their best-of-seven quarter-final series.

"We don't get paid playoff money by the game," said Dupont. "So why take this thing back to Philadelphia. They tell me we can win the Stanley Cup in 12 games too. That's all right with me."

Toronto's elimination left seven teams in the National Hockey League playoffs, but New York Islanders, Vancouver Canucks and Chicago Black Hawks all trail 3-1 in their series and could be eliminated Tuesday.

GET PEP TALK

The Islanders, inspired by a pre-game pep talk by coach Al Arbour, beat Pittsburgh Penguins 3-1 Sunday afternoon to keep their hopes alive.

Buffalo Sabres crushed Chicago Black Hawks 6-2 Sunday night at Chicago and Montreal Canadiens blanked Vancouver Canucks 4-0 at Vancouver on Saturday night.

Toronto held the lead twice in the first period but needed a third-period goal by Ron Ellis to send the game into overtime.

The goal was the second of the night for Ellis. Blaine Stoughton was Toronto's other scorer while Reggie Leach added two goals and Bill Barber one for the Flyers.

For Dupont, who rarely scores in any situation, it was the second winning goal of the playoffs. Dave Schultz, booed by the Toronto fans all night because of his reputation as a bully, set up the goal after a Toronto passing play misfired.

Fighting Saints dump Whalers to move into WHA semi-finals

Give Minnesota Fighting Saints a set of matching luggage and some plane tickets and they'll conquer the world.

"We've played better away from home most of the year," said Minnesota coach Harry Neale, whose club advanced to the World Hockey Association semi-finals by beating New England Whalers 6-1 Saturday night.

The win gave the Saints, who barely made the playoffs, a 4-2 edge in their best-of-seven quarter-final series. They picked up two of those wins in the three games they played at the Whalers' Hartford, Conn., home base.

"We seem to be in a daze at home with everybody yelling for us, but when you get 10,000 or 12,000 people yelling like crazy for the other team and the officials sticking it to us we get riled up and play better," said Neale.

The Saints will need that ability to win on the road in the rest of the playoffs. With the worst record among the playoff survivors, they'll be scheduled for only three home games in the semi-finals and in the final, if they make it. All series are best-of-seven.

PLAY NORDIQUES

They open their semi-final series with Quebec Nordiques on Tuesday night at Quebec City.

Houston Aeros will meet the winner of the quarter-final series between San Diego Mariners and Toronto Toros, which continues tonight at Toronto with the Mariners leading 3-2.

Saturday's game between the Saints and the injury-riddled Whalers at St. Paul was the only weekend contest in the WHA.

Mike Walton scored three goals and goalie John Garrett narrowly missed a second consecutive playoff

Some of the Islanders may have had doubts about their playoff futures before Sunday's game, but nobody left after Arbour's pre-game lecture, reported by Islander veteran J. P. Parise.

"He said, 'If anybody here doesn't think we can win this series, please just take your stuff off and go now,'" Parise recounted.

Billy Harris set up the winning goal for the Islanders in the third period. He got the puck to defenceman Gerry Hart in the corner, then Hart spied Clark Gillies streaking for the net to the left of Penguins' goalie Gary Innes.

Hart threaded a pass through two Pittsburgh defencemen and Gillies nudged the puck into the net for a 2-1 Islanders lead.

Rick Martin, Gil Perreault and Rene Robert scored third-period goals for the Sabres to break open a tight game at Chicago.

"I'd say we're in the driver's seat now," said Buffalo coach Floyd Smith. "And we'll be sky high Tuesday night at home."

GOT NEEDED BREAK

An abortive Montreal line change gave the Canadiens the chance they needed to break a scoreless tie early in the second period at Vancouver.

Guy Lafleur was supposed to go to the Montreal bench with his linemates but turned around and went in to score.

"I was going to the bench when I saw Yvan (Cournoyer) and he had the puck, so I just went behind the defenceman," Lafleur said. "I was all alone."

He waited for Vancouver goalie Gary Smith to make a move and went the other way and tucked the puck into the vacant goal.

Cournoyer, Peter Mahovlich and Serge Savard scored later goals for the Canadiens, who were outshot 37-24.

Quarter-final action resumes Tuesday with games at Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Montreal.

Richmond club cops Provincial Dart Tournament

LENNOXVILLE (H)—The Provincial Dart Tournament was held at the Army, Navy and Air Force Hut here with ten teams from around the Townships taking part.

The competition was keen and the Richmond squad finished first with a total of 16 points. Montreal placed second with 15, just one in rear of the winners, followed by the Border Club with 14 points. The Richmond team was presented the trophy for coping first place.

Other teams in the tournament were: Richmond, Vermont, Sherbrooke Men's, Sherbrooke Ladies, Sherbrooke Bonne Etienne, Richmond Locals, Coaticook and Massawippi.

The tournament was under the direction of George Berwick, president of S.E.T.D.L. and Tarz Eilam, vice-president of the Border League.

Goaltending battle foreseen

Beavers take first match against Laval 5-2

READY FOR THE BLOCK — Half of the goaltending battle will be fought by Sherbrooke's Nick Sanza, shown ready to pounce on the puck during Friday's contest against Laval Nationals. Nick was beaten only twice during the game to aid his team's cause 5-2.

SHERBROOKE — After just one game in the Sherbrooke-Laval final series, the goaltenders will have the biggest say in the outcome of each game and the series.

Nick Sanza of the Beavers and Nationals' Robert Sauve came up with excellent performances Friday and more of the same is expected in the next three encounters, though Sherbrooke took a 5-3 victory in the opening game.

"We played at Laval's tempo tonight," said Sherbrooke coach Ghislain Delage after Friday's match, "and the guys were disappointed after the game about the low score."

Though the players as a whole could feel disappointment, Claude Larose probably didn't quite feel as badly after netting three goals on the way to the win in front of 5,536 fans. Claude's hat-trick came entirely in the first period, two of them unassisted, and paced the locals to their ninth straight playoff victory.

Sherbrooke held a four goal advantage until early in the third period, when, according to coach Delage, "Laval surprised us." He backed his statement by saying the Nationals slowed the play down so much in the second period that the Beavers were lured into a sense of false security and began to fall asleep. The Laval goals came just under a minute and a half apart. But Delage vowed that "future games will be better" and judging from past performances in Laval, tonight's tilt on the Nationals' home territory will be exciting.

Laval started the game with a lot of hustle, causing Sherbrooke netminder Sanza to come to the rescue several times early in the period. End-to-end rushes followed but then the Beavers got on track and put on a sustained drive which resulted in the first two goals.

Larose hit the mark at 5:59 from the open side of the net after Marc Tessier hit the post and the rebound came out to Claude. Richard Mulhern also assisted. The second goal, accredited to Larose, actually entered the net off Laval defenceman Daniel Noonan's stick. Claude ended up at the side of the Nationals' goal after a good drive into the zone and tried to pass out in front of the net. His pass was inadvertently directed by Sauve's skate across the goal line at 6:31.

By BRUCE PORTER

The home-ice and power-play advantage may have had something to do with Claude's third tally. His shot to the corner boards bounced back in a straight line and he picked it up after skating by the Nationals' defence team. A startled Sauve tried to cut the angle down but the puck was behind him low to his glove side before he had any real chance. That score held good until part-way through the middle period, but the outcome showed those goals to be the most important.

Michel Brisebois capped the four goal unanswered streak at 5:03 in the second period. Disputed by the Laval players that the high shot hit the crossbar and didn't enter the net, referee Tom Keeble refused to yield an alternate decision and awarded the goal to Michel.

Having controlled play in the second period, Sherbrooke came into the third with an easy attitude but the Nats quickly changed that. A marker at 3:03 by Yves Preston and another, a powerplay effort by Yvon Vautour at 4:31 got the Sherbrooke club back on their skates and made sure no more Laval outbursts occurred.

Jere Gillis wound up the scoring at 19:23 by shooting a loose rebound in front of the net past Sauve for the fifth Sherbrooke goal. Sid Veysey and Peter Marsh combined to set up the play, but it was Peter's sharp angle shot which Sauve kicked out in front that put him out of position and gave Jere the open net to work with.

Sherbrooke more than doubled Laval shots on net but only superb netminding on the part of both teams kept the score to its low manner. Sauve turned out 41 shots, while Sanza stopped Laval 20 times. Laval's defence (or lack of it) attributed to the majority of Sherbrooke goals in the game, while the Beavers' blue line group back-checked throughout the match, moving any unwanted bodies away from the net.

It was a low hitting game as well. Sherbrooke's Delage would like to see that aspect changed in the next few games also. "We haven't hit those guys the way we want," he said, adding that the rougher style of hockey is more accustomed to his team. Perhaps the infrequent hits were caused by Laval players side-stepping or backing-off from Sherbrooke counterparts when a stiff check looked upcoming. Only 20 minutes of infractions were called, Sherbrooke getting tagged for 11 of the total.

Delage hasn't made any predictions yet as to how many games the series will go, but a comment to the effect of "it won't be any easy series now" may lead us to think that the Beavers will have a harder time with Laval than they did in the last two playoff efforts.

Tonight's game in Laval starts at 8 p.m., as does the third match in the series in Sherbrooke on Wednesday, Friday night, the teams will battle it out in Laval for game number four.
