SOVIET ULTIMATUM AROUSES MARSHALL'S ANGER

World News In Brief

Three deaths from traffic accidents—two in Ontario and one in Nova Scotia—were recorded this week-end in one of the shortest lists of Eastern Canada fatalities compiled by The Canadian Press in recent years.

Redvers McCaul, 30, died Saturday in a Halifax hospital from injuries suffered last Thursday in a motorcycle accident.

At Kingston, Ont., 22-year-old Fred Williams succumbed to head and body injuries Sunday. While driving a car on the highway at his home village of Cataraqui, near Kingston, Williams was struck by a truck trailer. The trailer was damaged and the car destroyed.

Mrs. William A. Linn, 54, of Lyndoch, near London, Ont., was drowned Saturday when the automobile in which she was a passenger plunged over the bank into Big Creek, a few miles from her home.

Toronto, March 31.—(C.P.)—Armed bandits, in three successful sorties Saturday collected a total of $4,536 and a fourth attempt ended in the arrest of Peter Quon, 22, Sunday night. Police said there was no link between the robberies.

Most lucrative of the hold-ups was one at Acme Dairy Company's Danforth Avenue plant in the east end when a man asked Cashier Herb McCarty, 21, to change a dollar bill. When he complied he was faced with a revolver and handed a brown paper shopping bag, and told to "fill it up fast."

When Mrs. Mabel Partridge, an employee, entered the room from a washroom, the bandit fired a shot into the floor and escaped with $4,200.

Centralla, Ill., March 31.—(P)—A black Monday of mourning was proclaimed today as Centralla and four nearby communities resumed burial service for their 111 victims of the worst mine disaster in the United States since 1928.

Stores, offices and schools were closed in compliance with the mayors of Centralla, Wamac, Central City, Sandoval and Glen Ridge where most of the victims of last Tuesday's explosion in the Centralla Coal Company's No. 5 mine lived.

New Delhi, March 31.—(Reuters)—Ran Admiral Viscount Mountbatten was to meet Mohandas K. Gandhi today for the first of the major political talks which are expected to follow the appointment of the new Viceroy.

Gandhi arrived here today and had a long talk with Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, vice-president of the Indian Inter-Government. He also saw other members of the government.

42 Killed In Disorders In Bombay Area

Similar Hindu - Moslem Disturbances in Calcutta and Cawnpore Caused Nine Deaths and Fifty Wounded Yesterday.

Bombay, March 31.—(P)—Fresh outbreaks of Hindu - Moslem violence today raised to 42 killed and 144 wounded the number of casualties recorded in this city in the last 80 hours. Similar disturbances in Calcutta and Cawnpore caused nine deaths and 50 wounded.

Most of the casualties in Bombay were recorded yesterday, 40 being killed and 137 wounded during the widespread disorders which were quelled only after police fired repeatedly into rioting mobs. One of the two men killed today was burned to death when a crowd set his home afire.

British troops joined police in patrolling the streets today in an effort to keep order, and public gatherings of more than four persons were rigidly prohibited.

A maze of unconfirmed rumors spread throughout the city as to the cause of the disorders, which resulted in fierce gang fighting, stabbings and arson, including firing of a cotton mill.

Fighting was the heaviest in areas where Hindu and Moslem districts converged and in sections of mixed population. Pistols and the hurling of soda water bottles added to the confusion.

A government communique said that in Calcutta five persons were killed yesterday, some of them by police fire, and 42 wounded. Ten arson cases were reported during the day. More than 50 persons have been killed and over 400 wounded in Calcutta since the clashes began Wednesday. Transportation is at a virtual standstill in the city.

In Cawnpore three persons have been killed and 32 injured as the result of communal disorders. Yesterday military authorities arrested 80 persons in the area. In Cawnpore one man was killed and there were a number of casualties. Some senior civil officials were injured by stone throwing. A curfew has been imposed in the city, and troops are patrolling the streets.

Real Agreement Can Never Be Reached on Basis of Ultimatum or Immovable Positions, Marshall Declares in Blunt Speech—British Proposal for Unification of Germany by July 1 Unacceptable to Russians.

Moscow, March 31.—(P)—State Secretary Marshall, in his bluntest speech of the conference, denounced Soviet Russia today for delivering "an ultimatum" to the Foreign Ministers Council.

"Unless we can have a real meeting of minds and a real desire to carry out both the spirit and letter of our agreements it would be better if none were reached," Marshall said.

"We can never reach real agreement on the basis of ultimatum or immovable positions," Marshall declared in commenting on the Soviet position that unless Russia received reparations from current German production no settlements could be reached.

He spoke just after the British delegation had circulated a proposal for Foreign Secretary Bevin to the Council for the unification of Germany by July 1, this year, a unification which he said should be made effective by abolishing all restrictions on movement of goods between the zones.

This proposal, obviously unacceptable to the Russians, provided that before any reparations could be paid the Germans would have to pay back sums advanced for Germany's maintenance by the occupying powers and meet the cost of occupation.

Man Is Held In Detroit Murder Case

Police Endeavor to Trace Movements of Victim Whose Mutilated Body Was Found in Street Gutter.

Detroit, March 31.—(P)—Police had one man under arrest today as they pieced together stories of some 800 wedding guests in an effort to trace the movements of Mrs. Margaret Chmiel, 42, whose brutally mutilated body was found early Sunday in a street gutter.

Inspector George Branton of the homicide squad said Mrs. Chmiel, the mother of three children, had attended the wedding reception. He said she was last seen leaving the party with Arthur Depoorter, 21, who was being held for questioning.

Branton said stains found on Depoorter's clothing and on the upholstery of his automobile were to be examined to determine whether they were made by blood. There was no charge against the youth.

Mrs. Chmiel's beaten and bruised body was found along a dirt side street near Van Dyke in Macomb County, a short distance

Bevin's comprehensive 10-page proposal, in the form of an order of the Council, would supplement and where necessary revise the Potsdam agreement.

At the same time, highly-placed sources predicted that State Secretary Marshall would reject outright this afternoon Russian demands that the Soviet Union must have absolute assurance of current reparations from Germany as a price for any agreement on German economic unity.

However, the proposal, which became available for publication while the council still was in session, obviously will be unacceptable to the Russians in its main provision, both economic and political. Among other things it would have the effect of prohibiting immediate reparations from current German production, as the Russians demand, and it calls for a federalized form of government which the Russians oppose.

In addition to calling for Germany to be made self-sufficient, the Bevin plan provides for payment of sums advanced to Germany by the controlling powers. "Repayment of sums advanced by the controlling powers on account of imposed requirements of the population of Germany shall be the first charge on Germany's foreign exchange resources after her essential needs have been met," Bevin's proposal set forth.

"The controlling powers will furnish the appropriate German central administration with an agreed statement as of June 30, 1947, of any sums owing to them under this head."

Votes Being Cast Today In Cartier

300 Special Police Guard Against Disturbances in Riding Where Trouble Occurred Three Years Ago.

Montreal, March 31.—(P)—Cartier constituency, a pot-pourri of factories, convents, schools, homes of the laboring class and a slice of the city's "underworld," cast ballots today to decide after a hectic and verbose campaign whether it would turn its back on Communism or stay with the Labor Progressive Party.

In a 1943 by-election and again in the general election of 1945, Cartier voters sent Fred Rose to the Commons where he sat as the nation's only Communist member. But the seat held by Rose was declared open, necessitating today's by-election in Cartier, after he was jailed for aiding espionage activities.

In the voting which began at 8 a.m. and lasts until 6 p.m., Cartier electors—there are close to 38,000 names on the electoral list—had a choice of six candidates.

LACHINE SCHOOLBOY WINS $40,000

Montreal, March 31.—(C.P.)—A 12-year-old schoolboy from nearby Lachine was declared last night to be the holder of a ticket on the second-place horse in Saturday's Irish sweepstakes. The ticket, worth $40,000, was taken out for him by his father.

The youngster is Claude Roussel, a seventh grade student at Academie Provost in Lachine. The father, Max Roussel, is a foreman at the Lachine Gage plant in Montreal. The ticket—MV-94964 and drawn on Lough-Conn was signed with non-de-plume of "Bill."

The parents, who said that they had "no particular plans" about what to do with the money, declined to reveal the name of the person who had sold the father the ticket. Mr. Roussel said that he had been taking sweep tickets "for about 17 years." There is one other member of the family, a 15-year-old daughter.

Bohozuk Is Acquitted Of Torso Murder

Hamilton, March 31.—(P)—William Bohozuk, 28-year-old Hamilton steelworker acquitted Saturday of murder in the death of an infant, today was freed of murder charge in connection with the torso slaying a year ago of John Dick. The Crown withdrew the charge after Dick's widow refused to testify against Bohozuk, who had been in jail since early April, 1946.

The Crown announced that it would proceed with the murder charge against Donald McLean, Mrs. Dick's father who had been accused jointly with Bohozuk of killing Dick. McLean, too, has been in jail since shortly after the headless, limbless body of the 40-year-old Hamilton street-car motorman was found on Hamilton Mountain.

Dick's 27-year-old widow, Evelyn, was tried on a murder charge in the torso slaying, convicted and sentenced to be hanged but on appeal won a new trial. The second trial ended last month with her acquittal, a verdict against which the crown has

6-Day Period Of Mourning In Mine Pits

Lewis Said to Be Trying to Show His Complete Control Over Actions and Lives of 400,000 Union Members.

Washington, March 31.—(P)—Some 400,000 coal miners in the United States entered the pits for the last time today before beginning a six-day work stoppage in memory of the Centralla, Ill., mine explosion victims—but American industry generally appeared to face the prospect of curtailed fuel supplies with few qualms.

At regular noon-end meetings of United Mine Workers Union (A.F.L.) locals, the coal diggers received orders passed down from President John L. Lewis to stop work at midnight tonight for six days to honor the 111 Centralla dead. There were no reports of protests and one large group called

Improvements In Canadian Defence Force Said Needed

Ottawa, March 31.—(P)—Improvements in Canadian defence force establishments, adoption of a selective immigration policy and widespread changes in domestic government policies were urged in resolutions adopted by the fifth annual meeting of the Progressive Conservative Association for Canada.

One resolution, adopted Saturday and released yesterday, said Canada defence forces as now maintained and organized met neither Canada's need for her own defence in an emergency nor her obligations to the United Nations.

"Canada should establish and maintain a realistically designed and integrated, active and reserve defence force, consisting of naval, army and air force components," said a resolution.

The immigration resolution said there were many persons in Europe who were fit for assimilation into Canada and for that reason a selective immigration policy under the control of the government should be adopted.

This would aid in the development of Canada's natural resources, would create a more substantial domestic market and would provide relief for displaced persons and others in Europe.

The association "condemned" the government for "its failure to enunciate a clear and definite policy with respect to the position Canada should occupy in international affairs and for vacating Europe at a time when such withdrawal (of the occupation force) materially reduced our influence at the peace conference."

Verdict In Boyer Trial Likely Today

Accused Declares Information He Gave Fred Rose Was Already Public Knowledge.

Montreal, March 31.—(P)—A French-speaking jury today will hear addresses by counsel and the presiding judge in the trial of Dr. Raymond Boyer, Montreal scientist charged with conspiracy to communicate information unlawfully to Russia, with the likelihood a verdict will be reached late in the day.

Testimony stretching over 14 days of court sessions was concluded Saturday. Dr. Boyer, who helped develop a new wartime method for mass production of the super-explosive RDX, declared in his second day of evidence that data he gave Fred Rose about it already was public knowledge and not contrary to his oath of secrecy.

Dr. Boyer has told the King's Bench Court jury that he disclosed to Rose, former Labor-Progressive member of Parliament now serving a six-year penitentiary sentence for espionage activities, four of the five ingredients in the Canadian process. In his deposition last year before a Royal Commission investigating espionage he testified that he told Rose all the chemical components.

His declaration that the information he gave was known before came in response to a question from Mr. Justice Wilfrid Lazure.

Dr. Boyer said he was "in the midst of a mystery" and had been under detention for about three weeks when he appeared before the commission.

An attempt by the Crown to introduce as evidence Dr. Boyer's deposition in the Rose trial of last June was rejected by the judge, who ruled after lively argument that the accused then had testified under protection of the court.

The prosecution's effort came after Dr. Boyer, in reply to a question by defence counsel, testified that he was a crown witness in the Rose hearing.

Mr. Justice Lazure declared that Dr. Boyer's evidence there could not be used for or against him in any case except one in which he was charged with perjury.

The defence question was withdrawn and struck from the record. Dr. Boyer gave his testimony in the French language.

In cross-examination by special Federal Prosecutor F. Philippe Brias, K.C., he replied in the negative when asked whether he ever had heard of two spies signing an affidavit before a notary and giving their occupation as such before engaging in a conversation.

Asked during re-examination by Lucien Gendron, K.C., of defence counsel, whether he knew when talking to Rose that the latter was "doing Russian espionage," Dr. Boyer said he did not.

1,500 Jewish Immigrants Rescued From Sinking Ship

Jerusalem, March 31.—(P)—Black smoke towered thousands of feet over Haifa today from oil fires set by explosions last night while British sailors were rescuing 1,500 Jewish refugees from a rotten, floundering schooner built 70 years ago.

Company technicians estimated the damage at around $4,000,000, but said the fires in the oil installations along the Haifa waterfront might continue several days. Earlier unofficial estimates were that the damage might approximate $16,000,000.

Nearby buildings were damaged severely. The Shell Oil Company alone said its loss was $1,000,000. The underground Irgun Zvai Leumi had claimed responsibility for sabotaging the oil installations earlier.

The fires, blazing along a quarter mile of the waterfront, were described by British authorities as "the biggest ever in Haifa." Eight storage tanks were demolished and six others were burning out.

Two miles offshore, the unauthorized Jewish immigrants saved from the 700-ton schooner San Felipe, renamed the Moledeh (fatherland) were transferred to the British transports, Empire Rival and Ocean Vigour, and headed detention camps on Cyprus.

Troops carried some Jews off the San Felipe and threw tear gas bombs to dislodge others who refused to leave.

Some 80,000 Jews in Haifa were placed under technical house arrest at 7 a.m., but the curfew was lifted at noon.

The fire was the second in four days at the Haifa terminus of the Iraq petroleum company's 800-mile pipeline. The destroyed tanks mostly were of 9,000-ton capacity.

British casualties resulted from the Holy Land strife rose meanwhile with the death of a police inspector shot from ambush near the Ramle military cantonment Saturday. The British Army said he was riding horseback with two other persons when Jews opened fire, killing an army officer on the spot.

An official announcement today reported a British police constable had been shot to death in Haifa by the accidental discharge of a Bren gun on a passing armoured car shortly before the oil fire broke out.

The oil fire was reported still raging in late morning and to have burned out eight of the Shell Oil Company's 119,000-ton storage tanks in an area about two miles from the business district. British officials described it as "the biggest ever in Haifa." It destroyed Arab dwellings and stores and, damaging power lines, cut off electricity to the Iraq Petroleum Company's storage area.

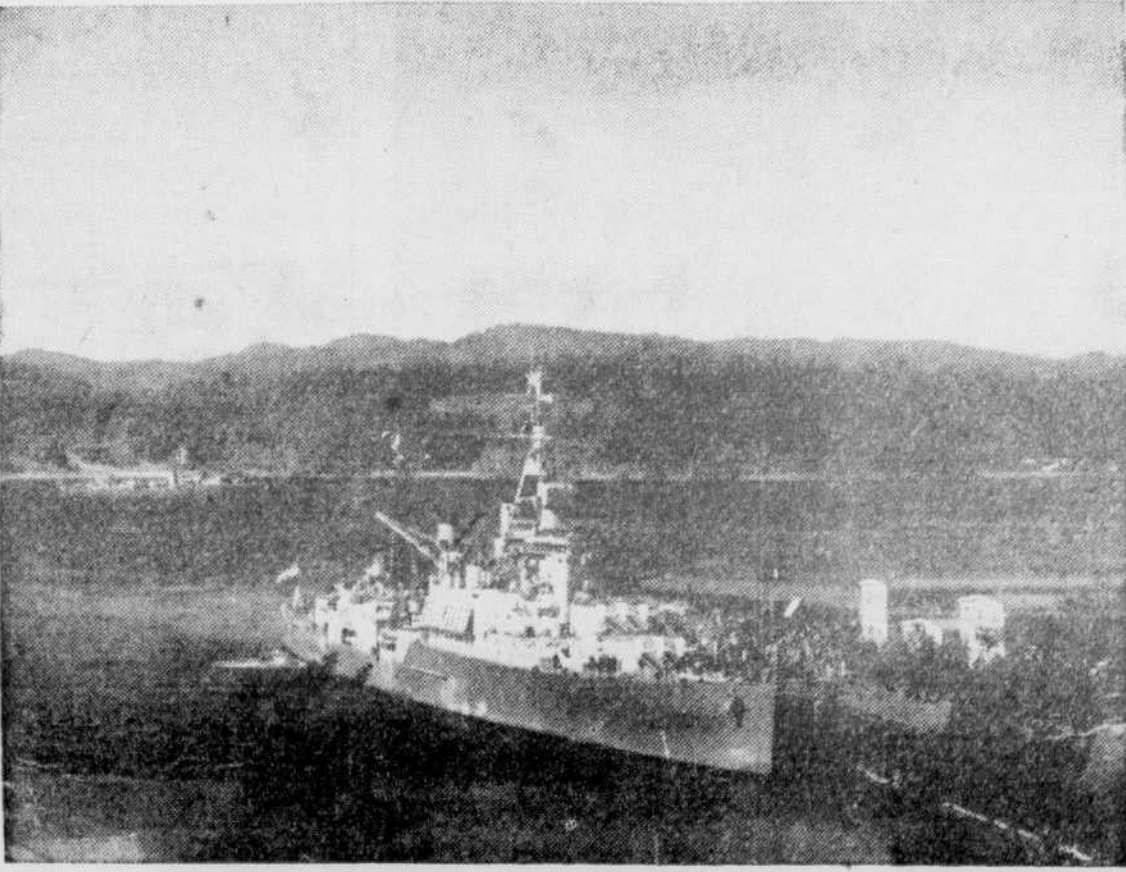

Officials put some 80,000 Haifa Jews under house arrest effective at 7 a.m. in an investigation of the explosions.

Meantime the Moledeh refugees, saved from the menace of death aboard the hull, all were put aboard the transport Ocean Vigour and Empire Rival and the transport sailed for Cyprus.

British destroyers went to the aid of the old schooner yesterday when the vessel, 30 miles off the

Seen here is the 8,800-ton cruiser, H.M.C.S. "Uganda," which will leave tomorrow on a 27-day cruise in northern B. C. waters. The ship is shown on arrival following a 5-week training cruise to the Panama Canal zone and return, coming alongside her berth at Esquimalt Naval Base. Hundreds of relatives and friends were on hand to greet "Uganda" and the destroyer, H.M.C.S. "Crescent," seen in the background. Crescent and Uganda accompanied the aircraft carrier H.M.C.S. Hollywood, March 31.—Maria Montez was Hollywood's most excited bride in 12 years.

A ton of fruit was once used for outdoor decorations at a big Hollywood party.

Sonja Henie once gave a party for 200 guests and hired only one bartender. (150 people nearly died of thirst.)

TIME OUT FOR LAUGHS

Beistel has been arranging expensive weddings and parties in Hollywood for 12 years.

"Maria Montez," he said, "was the most excited bride I'd ever seen. It was an emotional strain for Maria and I." Irene Manning, he said, was the calmest, and Shirley Temple the most worried about her father.

"Shirley," he said, "was deathly afraid that her father was going to trip while walking down the aisle."

A Hollywood glamor doll and a Los Angeles socialite gave Beistel his biggest laughs. She wanted red, white, and blue polka-dot wedding with the organist playing "Little Gypsy, Are There Any More Like You at Home" while Eleanor picked up my pencil and broke it.

"It's Spring outside, Mr. Hemmingsway," she caroled. "How about playing hockey today and devoting a little time to Mama?"

I opened the window and stuck my head out. A sweet-smelling breeze was playing tag with the would-be trees on Beekman place.

"Don't tell the truant officer, I flipped, 'but you've got yourself a playmate. How would you like to spend the day?'"

"Poetry, art and music," chirped the fire captain's daughter.

Eleanor put on a hat which looked like the last word in eggplants, and we hit the street. As we got to Third Avenue, a man was sticking up a circus poster of a lady in pink tights making twinkletons on the back of a horse.

We passed a bookshop. "Buy me a bag of poems," said my misanthrope. "You can read them to me at the Fountain of Prometheus in Radio City."

On a bench near the fountain, I opened the slim volume of modern poems by T. S. Eliot which the bookstore lady had assured me were "the greatest of our time."

I began reading:

"April is the cruelest month, June, July, and August, bring the Sown."

The moon shines bright on Mrs. Pover.

And on her daughter;

They wash their feet in soda water."

I pitched the Eliot book into the fountain, and opened the next one. The first poem was titled, "These Futile Anchovies."

"Blood! (but yes) blood!" Backdrop squishing endless. Consolidated off ten points. Blood!

"Are you sure you aren't reading it upside down?" asked my fiancé. "It sounds like a triumph of mind over meter."

"Don't brood about it, honey," I said. "The whole thing is probably a typographical error. Let's go down to Greenwich Village and look at some paintings. I know an artist highly regarded in the intellectual hash-house."

We walked up four flights of cabbie smells and cracked paint to Gerald Brommey's studio. The painter was at work, a brush between his teeth and one behind each ear. I could tell from the look in his eyes and the pretzel crumbs on his smock he, too, was under the spell of Spring.

"Show me something gay and green," I said.

He put a still-wet canvas up on the easel. It was a picture of a pile driver hammering a nude into an omelet. "There," he said proudly. "Doesn't that give you the feeling of April?"

"April must have changed since I was a girl," dead-panned Eleanor.

"The Whitney Museum is interested in this one," said the artist, switching canvases. On a background of steel springs and gray fuzz, he had painted a sardine with a fig newton in its mouth, leering at a chemical formula.

"I call it 'Serenade to a Pussy Willow,'" he gloved. "You won't believe it, but when I started I had no idea what the picture was going to be."

"When you finished, how did you find out what it was?" I asked.

Eleanor, poking around in a corner of the studio, found something with green on it. "This is more like it," she enthused.

"That," snarled the artist, "is where I clean my brushes!"

We left. As we went down the stairs, I thought I heard Brommey mutter something about "Updown Philistines."

"Well, there's still the concert," I said to Eleanor. We taxied up to Town Hall where the Friends of Modern Music were sponsoring a program of Milhaud, Anthel and Honnegger.

As we took seats, I whispered to my wife, "We're just in time. The orchestra's still tuning up."

A lady with a hairdo like a sheep-dog shushed me and snapped, "The concert has been on for half an hour!"

There were some unusual musical instruments on the platform—a typewriter, an African zanze, a riveting hammer, and a pussycat that meowed on cue. The violinists kept rapping their knuckles on the backs of the fiddles, and every so often an intense musician hit a sheet of tin with a bag of marbles.

The music sounded like a truck full of milk cans colliding with a truck full of live chickens.

I looked at my program. "Springtime in Springfield," it read.

Suddenly a musician in the rear of the orchestra pointed a revolver at the conductor.

I sprang to my feet. "Grab that gun," I shouted. "He has a gun!"

Eleanor, poking around in a corner of the studio, found something with green on it. "This is more like it," she enthused.

"That," snarled the artist, "is where I clean my brushes!"

We left. As we went down the stairs, I thought I heard Brommey mutter something about "Updown Philistines."

"Well, there's still the concert," I said to Eleanor. We taxied up to Town Hall where the Friends of Modern Music were sponsoring a program of Milhaud, Anthel and Honnegger.

As we took seats, I whispered to my wife, "We're just in time. The orchestra's still tuning up."

A lady with a hairdo like a sheep-dog shushed me and snapped, "The concert has been on for half an hour!"

There were some unusual musical instruments on the platform—a typewriter, an African zanze, a riveting hammer, and a pussycat that meowed on cue. The violinists kept rapping their knuckles on the backs of the fiddles, and every so often an intense musician hit a sheet of tin with a bag of marbles.

The music sounded like a truck full of milk cans colliding with a truck full of live chickens.

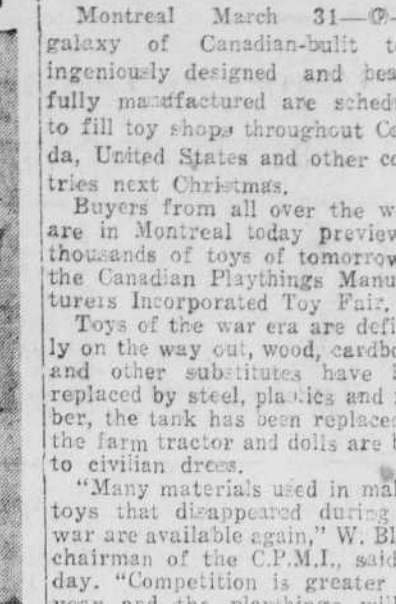

I looked at my program. "Springtime in Springfield," it read.

Suddenly a musician in the rear of the orchestra pointed a revolver at the conductor.

I sprang to my feet. "Grab that gun," I shouted. "He has a gun!"

CANADIAN TOY VARIETY FOR '47 YULETIDE

Montreal, March 31.—A galaxy of Canadian-built toys, ingeniously designed and beautifully manufactured are scheduled to fill toy shops throughout Canada, United States and other countries next Christmas.

Buyers from all over the world are in Montreal today previewing thousands of toys of tomorrow at the Canadian Playthings Manufacturers Incorporated Toy Fair.

Toys of the war era are definitely on the way out, wood, cardboard and other substitutes have been replaced by steel, plastics and rubber, the tank has been replaced by the farm tractor and dolls are back to civilian dress.

"Many materials used in making toys that disappeared during the war are available again," W. Bland, chairman of the C.P.M.I., said today. "Competition is greater this year and the playthings will be cheaper in price, but better looking and better constructed than before."

The electric train is back, but now junior doesn't have to worry about electric sockets and wiring, the miniature vehicles which come in heavy plastic or aluminum are powered by compact dry-cell batteries. Prices are moderate, the heavy plastic will retail for about $13.95 while the aluminum train will sell for $9.95—an all time low for this type of toy.

Girls will have dolls of all sizes and prices to choose from. The modern doll is made of latex, the nearest thing to human skin, natural hair which can be washed, realistic plastic eyes, and of course the time-honored "wet um" facilities.

For children at the beach, the all-aluminum "run-a-pit" should be just the thing. This miniature life raft measures four feet by three, weighs 20 pounds, and will support two children weighing 75 pounds. A buoyancy chamber prevents it from sinking even when filled with water.

A pistol which operates under a pressure arrangement and fires 200 rounds of water will delight junior, while baby sister will want Panda bears and walking seals.

A game which will appeal to grown-ups as well as children is the latest edition of indoor hockey. The rink is a board a yard long and two feet wide, magnetized players, moved by participants holding another magnet underneath the board, battle for the puck.

A big export market for Canadian toys was prophesied by a prominent buyer for large Canadian stores who returned recently from Europe and the United States.

"Canadian merchandise rates 100 per cent," he said. "Our values cannot be compared anywhere else in the world. We not only equal the merchandise offered by the United States but in many cases our prices are lower for better quality goods."

tapped me on the shoulder. "You're making an ass of yourself," she barked. "The third movement calls for three pistol shots."

The ushers didn't have to throw me out.

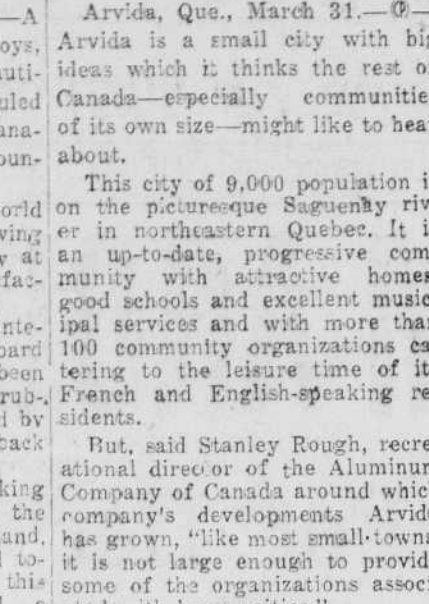

As Eleanor and I fled up Sixth Avenue, something wet, bounced off my cheek. "Looks like we're going to have some snow tonight," I said.

"Oh boy!" said my misanthrope enthusiastically. "That's for me!"

ALUMINUM TOWN ARTS DISPLAY DRAWS THROGS

Arvida, Que., March 31.—Arvida is a small city with big ideas which it thinks the rest of Canada—especially communities of its own size—might like to hear about.

This city of 9,000 population is on the picturesque Saguenay river in northeastern Quebec. It is an up-to-date, progressive community with attractive homes, good schools and excellent municipal services and with more than 100 community organizations catering to the leisure time of its French and English-speaking residents.

But, said Stanley Rough, recreational director of the Aluminum Company of Canada around which company's developments Arvida has grown, "like most small towns, it is not large enough to provide some of the organizations associated with larger cities."

There is no grand opera or art gallery, but the concert association has made available outstanding musical talent and Arvida has discovered, too, that big art collections can be brought right to the front door.

The association's Arts and Crafts committee approached authorities at the provincial museum in Quebec, the National Gallery at Ottawa, the Art Association of Montreal and the Canadian Handicrafts Guild. The response was prompt and encouraging.

"The first exhibition was supplied by the Canadian Handicrafts Guild," Mr. Rough said. "It consisted of samplers made by women from six of Canada's nine provinces, various types of European needlework and a display of wood carving."

H. O. Curry, director of the National Gallery, provided the next display—"what an art centre can do for your community" and a silk screen exhibition of famous Canadian paintings. The art centre display consisted of a series of panels with excellent pictures and a text showing development of art in its many forms throughout the ages, its expression in community life and how the interest in drawing, painting, decorating and designing could be stimulated.

People came from 30 miles away to see the exhibition—2,000 adults and 1,500 school children in three days.

Next, the National Gallery sent up 37 water colors by the Canadian Society of Painters, including four oils by Rene Richard of Baie St. Paul, a town in this district. The response was just as enthusiastic.

The final 1946 exhibition came from the Quebec government and was entitled "One hundred years of art in the province of Quebec." It consisted of 57 oils, valued at $35,000, and contained the works of many famous artists.

The 10-day exhibit attracted 4,000 adults and 1,500 school children, many of whom came with their teachers who prepared short talks for their classes.

This year's plans include a display of hooked rugs, an oil exhibition by Quebec artists and a display of the paintings of some prominent Canadians.

Richard Routley, five, is a happy boy. He's going home to Sydney, Australia, and for the first time in his life he can walk. He has to use crutches now, but he hopes the operation performed on his spine at a Boston, Mass., hospital will be a complete success and eventually he can throw the crutches away. He posed for this picture in San Francisco.

2nd Annual Biology Exhibition At Bishop's Is Well Attended

Hundreds of students from Eastern Townships schools visited the second annual biology exhibition sponsored by the Biology Club of Bishop's University on Friday and Saturday. Exhibits were well correlated and included demonstrations, microscopic slides, exhibits and moving pictures. The central theme of the show were microorganisms, heredity, plant physiology, soil conservation and animal life.

Pupils from King's Hall, Compton, Lennoxville, Sherbrooke, Bulwer, Sawyerville, Theford Mines, Magog and Ascut were among schools represented. On Saturday morning Dr. J. D. Jeffers, professor of education, addressed a group on the place of higher education in the life of the community and dealt with secondary and college education in particular. The Rev. Dr. H. H. McGee, principal of the University, gave a short address in the college chapel to the visiting students following which Miss Connie Oakley, University Librarian, conducted them on a tour of the library.

The demonstrations on human heredity attracted wide attention of students and other visitors. Animal cells and chromosomes and genes exhibits, which showed the transmission of such sex-linked characteristics as color blindness, eye colors and blood incompatibilities were of particular interest. In the same section of the cultures of fruit flies and models of fruit fly chromosomes with genes corresponding to the characters of the flies kept in culture was shown, as well as demonstrations of the transmission of such sex-linked characteristics as color blindness, eye colors and blood incompatibilities were of particular interest. 80 p.c. Of Objective In Local Red Cross Drive Said Reached

The establishment of contact between thousands of unaccompanied children from Germany and any possible relatives in Canada will be done by the Canadian Red Cross Society as one of its many peace-time services.

The work will be financed by the national campaign which winds up in Sherbrooke officially tonight. This morning the local campaign headquarters reported eighty per cent of the $10,000 objective received.

Red Cross national headquarters has received a list of 3,968 names of unaccompanied children from Germany whose parents are missing and whose relatives have not been located.

The largest group on the list gives the names of 1,758 non-Jewish Polish children and the next largest is 1,083 Jewish Polish children. Most countries in Europe outside of Germany are represented by these "lost" children. There are among them 296 who are recorded as being "stateless."

The list was sent to the Canadian Red Cross by the Child Tracing Branch of the Central Tracing Bureau for Germany of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration and it covers children now under the care of U.N.R.R.A. More lists will be forwarded from Germany to the Canadian Red Cross as checking is completed. The children range in age from four to their late teens.

If relatives are found in Canada, the Canadian Red Cross will put them in touch with the Tracing Bureau in Germany. Persons who had relatives with children and from whom they have not heard should contact the Red Cross, to see if the names of the children are on the list.

The tracing project is one of the many peacetime activities of the Canadian Red Cross for which $5,000,000 is sought from the people of Canada in the national appeal. In the Province of Quebec the objective is $1,000,000.

Among children listed are Swedish 2, Danish 2, Austrian 2, English 5, Italian 7, Belgians 8, Czechoslovakians 9, Rumanians 10, Dutch 22, French 25, Ukrainians 36, Hungarians 47, Russians 40, Americans 12, Yugoslavians 147, Latvians 233, Lithuanians 122, and Estonians 50.

DEDICATION OF MEMORIAL WINDOW HELD

Wright at the morning service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church yesterday. Entitled "The Light of the World," the window was unveiled by Mrs. Claude Turner and James Shaw.

On Sunday, April 13th, two memorial windows in memory of servicemen and women of the church will be unveiled and dedicated, the first in memory of those who did not return from the war, and the second in honor of those men and women of the congregation who served in His Majesty's forces in the past war.

Rev. Donald MacKay, of Quebec, will officiate at this service which will mark the completion of memorial windows in the church.

Mankind To Get "The Hotfoot" Tomorrow On April Fool Day

By EDWARD CHANTLER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Don't tap that egg! Don't snatch that purse! Oh, no! put that stogie down! Instead, make for the hills, men!

It's April Fool Day tomorrow—the day when poker-faced wags, gagsters and cards, urchins and sardonic characters the world over give mankind the hot-foot.

And while screams of anguish, howls of disappointment and silly giggles echo through the house, just remember folks, this day of ribald ribbing has been going on for a long time—too long, you say?

Although April Fool Day is not a holiday in any legal sense, from the time Zeus, that Olympian jester, pulled a dilly on the Greeks it has been a field-day for pranks.

Legend has it that the jovial god bumped into his pookish son Hermes one dull day. Hermes agreed with his immediate superior to let earthbound citizens hear it was going to rain buckets—but only fools would get wet. Everybody got soaked, except one sly ancient who had sense enough to sneak into a doorway.

Leaving the Olympians behind, we find that several centuries ago in the land of the tartan, the day was given over to hunting the gowk—or "cuckoo."

The idea was that the gullible had chosen as the gowk was sent on a merry roundabout chase for an unobtainable item. Weakened, famished and minus shoe leather, the poor "cuckoo" would return empty-handed to be the butt of Scottish guffaws.

In France the victims of Latin waggery are charmingly referred to as "poisson d'avril"—April fish!

An inventive chap named Bell gave April Fool sports a new spurt with the telephone. Dog pounds, butchers, undertakers and aquariums on this day will agree that Alexander Graham Bell should have left well enough alone. "Is A. Stiff there?" "No? then what are you in the undertaking business for?" See what we mean?

Therefore, a timely tip: Beware dribble glasses, hand buzzers, explosive flags, elastic chewing gum, "lost" wallets—and don't kick any brick-mind hairs left on sidewalks.

Excellent Performance Staged By Local Winter Club Members

Proud mothers and fathers beamed and the balance of the audience of three thousand cheered as local skaters, members of the Sherbrooke Winter Club, went through their paces in their annual colorful carnival held at the Arena on Saturday. There was a matinee performance in the afternoon, with the evening performance officially opened by Mayor Guy Bryant.

The show was given the professional touch with gaily-painted ice and fine costumes in the various numbers.

Opened by seven tiny-tot members in heralds' costume, the show got under way with an Alice in Wonderland fantasy. Effective costumes coupled with a splendid display of co-ordinated skating made this number a success.

Brilliant performances given by veterans like Hugh Pope and Dick Nutter highlighted the carnival while young club members showed great promise. The group numbers performed by the youngsters were particularly well received by the crowd.

Among the splendid numbers particularly outstanding were the exhibition of free skating given by club instructor Joseph Pope, Guy Longpre's gracefulness in a solo and a smooth and faultlessly performed waltz duet by Monique Metivier and Oscar Dussault.

All the members of the cast showed by their performances that they had spent long hours in practice.

Solo numbers were executed by Joan Chivers, Maureen Kenalty, Yvan Thibault, Therese Steben, Guy Longpre, Rita Therrien, Oscar Dussault, Claribel Allport, Anne Goode, Elaine Holt and Mary McDonough. Betty Perry and Tom Purdy and Monique Metivier and Oscar Dussault did two double routines.

During the evening members of the club gave exhibitions of the waltz and fourteen-step.

Taking part in the finale, the club ballet, were the following: Rita Therrien, Anne Goode, Elaine Holt, Maureen Kenalty, Claribel Allport, Joan Chivers, Monique Metivier, Marguerite Cotton, Germaine Elizabeth, Sally Hume, Barbara Larrabee, Gladys Muir, Patty Giroux, Bridget McDonough, Betty Perry and F. Poulin.

Characters in Alice in Wonderland were Elizabeth Muir, Sally Hume, Elaine Holt, Barbara Young, Muriel Gaudet, Bridget McDonough, Monique Noel, Jacqueline Gingras, Rita Therrien, Anne Goode, Barbara Larrabee, Stella Veilleux, Jane Quintin, U. Desautels, Betty Burgess, L. Gaudet, L. Metivier, M. Desjardins, Pauline Gingras, Sue Ann Bryce, L. Chevalier, Sylvia Riley, Susanne Pelquin, M. Chevalier, Andree Genest, G. Donald, L. Desmarais, V. The amendment stipulates that the City of Sherbrooke will pay the sum of $800 in two yearly payments, as compensation to the Orford Municipality. This amendment was made because part of the annexed territory had previously been the object of a litigation.

Trade Learned In Local P.O.W. Camp Is Now Put To Good Use

Putting a trade learned during internment days at Sherbrooke to good use, a former Dutch refugee today heads a Montreal firm supplying a nation-wide market in nets. It is revealed in the March issue of the Bulletin of the Canadian National Committee on Refugees, "Beginning Anew." Through this industry, L. Levy, president of the Hollandia Net Manufacturers of 300, James Street West, in Montreal, provides work for many Canadians. Farmers, disabled persons and veterans, who wish to supplement their income by work they can do at home have helped to solve Mr. Levy's manpower problem.

Much of the technical work at the Montreal plant is done by an ex-sailor who has turned his splicing experience to good use.

During the war, Mr. Levy made rats for the army, especially for the Canadian Legion overseas. A number of refugees who had learned the work in the camp together with Mr. Levy worked evenings and spare time with him on this auxiliary war work.

Today the company turns out fish landing nets which are used both on the Atlantic and Pacific coast, and nets for various games including badminton, volleyball, soccer, tennis, basketball, cricket and ice hockey. He recently made special nets to protect the audiences at a large ice hockey stadium and at a basketball stadium. Another of his unusual jobs was the making of bird-cages for pheasants at the Rockhill Bird Farms.

Back in Germany, Mr. Levy was in the textile business in a small fishing village, in Schleswig-Holstein. By 1938, Nazi persecution was so severe that he fled with his family to Holland. When the Germans invaded the Lowlands, he set out, with other refugees, in a small fishing boat for England. It was a three-days trip and they took no food with them, but they were picked up in mid-Channel by a Dutch steamer, and reached Britain safely.

Mrs. Levy, her aged mother, and a brother-in-law were not able to accompany Mr. Levy on this hazardous trip. They were hidden in a cellar by friendly Dutch farmers of the Roman Catholic faith, and managed to survive the entire period of the Nazi occupation. By the time the war ended, Mr. Levy was fairly well-established in Canada, and he was able to bring Mrs. Levy to this Dominion. She was one of the first of the refugees to reach this country since the war.

His mother-in-law also recently arrived in the United States. Mr. Levy's only son reached Palestine in 1938, and is on the land at Kfar Noar.

FIRE CAUSES MINOR DAMAGES

Only slight damage was caused by fire last night at the home of J. H. Corieau, 285 King Street West. The blaze started at 7:30 and is believed to have been caused by a lighted cigarette dropped in a clothes closet. The fire spread to an adjoining bedroom and hallway. Firemen from No. 1 Station subdued the flames in less than an hour.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHN'S-MANVILLE CAN'T BE SEEN BUT IT'S THERE

Inside every one of the radiator shut-off valves in your home is a material called packing. Its job is to keep the steam or hot water from leaking out around the valve handle.

Seventy-five years ago, when John's-Manville started making packing, it was known as "stuffing." Today, precision made John's-Manville packings serve industry in many ways. You'll find them in giant industrial pumps, in air compressors, in airplane propellers—in fact, wherever a seal is needed to prevent leakage of steam, air, oil, water or other liquids.

In addition to many standard forms of sealing materials, John's-Manville also specializes in "tailor-made" packings for special jobs. Years of research and development enable J-M to supply a packing for every application.

NO SUBSIDIES FOR RUSSIA

The determination of the Western Democracies that Germany be restored to a reasonable level of economic self-sufficiency before any substantial drain is made upon the Eastern section of the country for Russian reparations is based upon the solid ground that until such a condition is achieved any payments made to Russia in reality come from the United States and Great Britain.

At the present time the Russian-occupied section of the country has substantial surpluses of foodstuffs and other raw materials badly needed by the industrialized sections under the control of the democracies. Russia, however, refuses to permit the transfer of this surplus to the Western zone, with the result that Great Britain and the United States are compelled to spend large sums of money in feeding the population of their occupied areas. Even with this expenditure, the ration scale in this area is far from sufficient to support a healthy people and already there have been signs that the country is near a state of revolt. This will only add to the difficulty of the western powers.

The justice of the Russian demand for reparations need not be questioned. Russia suffered severely from the German invasion and is no doubt entitled to compensation, which should be provided by Germany when conditions approach something like normal in the economic field. But there can be no accepting the theory that Great Britain, which also suffered severely from German attacks, and the United States should be compelled to provide these reparations indirectly.

Determined that there shall be no policy of appeasement, State Secretary Marshall has made it clear his country cannot accept the Russian demands. In justice to all concerned, German production should be restored to the point where the nation is self-sustaining. Then everything above this subsistence level should be channelled into reparations account, from which all sufferers from German depredations can draw their share.

THE RADIO PROBE

One of the most important committees named by Parliament at the present session is that which will inquire into the general position of broadcasting in the Dominion. With the Government forces dominating the body it is unlikely that the actual majority report will be very critical of the activities of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, but undoubtedly much interesting information will be forthcoming during the examination of the witnesses.

The existing set-up in Canada leaves much to be desired. The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation holds a virtual monopoly of the networks and at the same time it holds the power of life and death over the private stations which compete with its various outlets. That it is willing to use this power to extend its grip upon the more profitable services has been apparent from several incidents, one of which concerns the annexation of a wavelength long held by a Toronto station which was rendering valuable service to the community, the private broadcaster being assigned another frequency which was far from suitable to its needs.

One matter which the committee will undoubtedly study with deep interest is the relationship of a number of so-called news broadcasters and commentators. Some of these appear to be spokesmen for the government of the day, their comments being designed to promote the interests of the party in power rather than to give a factual analysis of current events. In other cases, there is a distinct socialist tinge, men in the employ of this government body devoting most of their remarks to the benefits of socialist rule in other parts of the world and tending to cast unfavorable light upon the existing economic system.

The public will follow with keen interest the deliberations of the House of Commons Committee in the hope that the evidence adduced will be so strong that the Government will be forced to take some action to reform the whole administration despite the usefulness which the present set-up provides to their propaganda machine.

UNEXPECTED HELP

The investigation of the newspaper distribution industry in the United States ordered by governmental agencies has brought forward some interesting disclosures despite the fact that the probe itself is barely yet underway. Due to local conditions, the Daily Worker, the organ of the Communist party in the United States, ran short of paper and was threatened with suspension. But help came from an unexpected source. The New York Times, which is vigorously anti-Communist, loaned it sixteen tons of newsprint so that it could continue uninterrupted publication.

As might have been expected, this generous action of the Times brought forward criticism from some of its readers, but the management of the Times replied that it wholeheartedly subscribed to the immortal utterance of the French philosopher, Voltaire: "I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." The paper added: "We are not afraid of free discussion in the United States. We believe democracy can withstand any blows administered to it by the Daily Worker."

This is an example of free speech and freedom of the press. But one may well wonder if the Communist organ is duly grateful for the gesture made by one of the "capitalist controlled" newspapers.

Washington Column

BY PETER EDSON

BOILING DOWN THE GREEK ISSUE

Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg, in submitting to Undersecretary of State Dean Acheson his 110 congressional questions on the Greek aid issue, explained that he had "boiled down" some 400 queries submitted to him in order to make the State Department's response easier.

Fearful that nobody would understand what "boiled down" meant, the editor of the neat little 16-page pamphlet containing the questions explained in a scholarly footnote that, "Boiled down means the consolidation of similar enquiries in order to avoid duplication and the elimination of a few questions with no bearing on the pending legislation."

With this momentous matter made so understandable there were high hopes that the whole Greek issue would be "spelled out" with equal clarity, but no such luck. (Note: "Spelled out" means to explain in detail, as one letter or one syllable at a time.)

Present plans of the State Department do not contemplate issuing answers to each question "all in a bunch." (Note: like bananas.) Instead, the department will issue an index, telling where the answers may be found. This will make everything "clear as mud." (Note: "Clear as mud" means obscure, confused, or obfuscated.)

Speaking seriously, when Vandenberg's 110 questions are boiled down still further, they can all be summarized in one question to which everyone would like to know the answer. It is, "Just where is this leading us?"

Senators Elbert D. Thomas of Utah and Bourke Hickenlooper of Iowa addressed themselves to this point when Acheson made his opening statement to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

FROM DARDANELLES TO CHINA SEA

In Acheson's prepared statement he had said, "It is not too much to say that the outcome in Greece and Turkey will be watched with deep concern throughout the vast area from the Dardanelles to the China Sea."

Thomas asked Acheson to expand on that, and the undersecretary tried to comply. All countries in that area, he said, are faced with accumulated problems of the past and outgrowths of war. He ran through the list, Iran, which has already been before the United Nations, requiring a higher standard of living and improvement of government. Iraq is the same. Palestine has familiar problems. Saudi Arabia just started a development full of promise. India has many internal difficulties as it emerges into statehood.

Burma, Indonesia, Malaya, and Indo-China the secretary described as seething with nationalism and desiring independence. China was torn with civil war. Korea would need American help over the next three years.

A failure in the key countries would also echo in the west, Acheson declared. In Hungary, Austria, Italy and France it would be heartening to all the people trying to maintain freedom to see Greece and Turkey emerge from their problems.

"BUT WE PROPOSE TO REACT"

When Senator Hickenlooper took up the questioning, it was to ask if it could be assumed that the United States was establishing a pattern for American participation in the affairs of all countries.

Acheson replied that while the United States would want to aid all countries, he did not believe any one would want to propel itself into difficulties in order to be extirpated.

But wasn't the problem broader than a purely localized situation, Chairman Vandenberg wanted to know. Wouldn't the United States have to defend itself against chain reactions anywhere in the world?

Acheson replied that President Truman's concern was over the coercion being used to take away the institutions of free people. This was not an ideological principle and it did not mean that the United States would be bound to react in the same way wherever this situation occurred. For instance, the United States was protesting against coercion in Hungary, but what was done in that case might be different from what was done in Turkey.

"In other words," said Vandenberg, "we may not react in the same way, but we do propose to react." It was the day's boil-down.

"That," said Acheson slowly, "I think, is correct."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Surely every man walketh in a vain shew; surely they are disquieted in vain: he heapech up riches, and knoweth not who shall gather them.—Psalms 39:6.

Thou bear'st thy heavy riches but a journey.

Letters To The Editor

ENDORSES UNION JACK

The Editor.
Sir:—May I send in a word of commendation on the mastery way in which Mr. C. W. McVetty replied to L. L. Smith's letter re "Canada having no flag."

When I read the latter I wondered where Mr. Smith had been all his life not to know that we have such a world-renowned flag as the Union Jack. Many of us count ourselves very fortunate to have the right to fly that particular flag and wish no other, for it may be:

"Only an old piece of bunting,
Only an old colored rag,
Yet thousands have died for its honor
And shed their best blood for that flag."

Certainly, should one be forced upon us which does not show that same Union Jack, I can name some places where it will never be seen flying.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,
SHERBROOKE, QUE.,

DISAGREES WITH C. W. McVETTY

The Editor.
Sir:—I disagree with Mr. C. W. McVetty's opinion as expressed in yours of March 26th that Canada should be satisfied to still accept the Union Jack as her national flag. This with every respect for all that the crosses of St. George, St. Andrew and St. Patrick stand for, Canada, as a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations, is a self-governing Dominion. Why, therefore, should she not have, as Mr. Smith suggests, her individual flag to supplement the full Union Jack which is a symbol of the whole Empire. The Canadian Red Ensign is a beautiful combination of the Union Jack and the official insignia of the British Crown, viz., the Royal Standard. The fleur-de-lis is added in appreciation of our large French-Canadian population, while the triple maple-leaves add the stamp of Canada generally. This flag has done duty for a long while; it satisfies the majority of patriotic Canadian citizens; it is only a noisy minority who want something different; some wish the Union Jack to be reduced in size or eliminated. If it is desired to allow the Canadian Merchant Marine the exclusive right to this color flag, then let us have the above emblem on a brown background.

URGES AID TO BRITAIN

The Editor.
Sir:—May I, through the medium of your valuable paper, make an appeal to any of your readers who are interested in helping the unfortunate people of Great Britain who have been through so much hardship through the extreme weather, and who now are suffering so much from floods. This week I heard from the chairman of The Women's Voluntary Services, 150 Sun Life Building, Montreal, which organization is working to relieve the distress in Great Britain and I would appeal to any who are interested to contact with this organization so that the necessary relief in food and clothing may be available. I have received many letters telling of the untold suffering which these gallant people have endured through lack of food and clothing, and the fuel shortage has added considerably to their discomfort.

Thanking you for kindly publishing this appeal,
Yours very truly,

By Wm. E. McKenney, America's Card Authority

FOUR SPADES LOOKS IMPOSSIBLE, BUT

When I saw today's hand played at the Masters individual tournament, four of the country's outstanding players were at the table. The bidding was a little optimistic, but as the declarer said later, you cannot score a game unless you bid it.

Looking the hand over, it does not seem possible for South to make four spades, but he did make it.

He won the opening lead with the ace of hearts, took three rounds of trumps, then led a small heart. West correctly played low and dummy's ten held the trick.

Now declarer led the jack of diamonds, and you can see East's predicament. He won with the queen of diamonds, but if he led a small club, declarer would win with the queen; if he cashed the ace of diamonds, the diamond suit would be set for a couple of valuable discards.

Now let us see what would happen if West opened the singleton diamond. East would win with the

TWO DANGEROUS TRENDS

Toronto Mail and Globe.
Mr. John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member for Lake Centre, made two major points in his powerful speech on the Government's "omnibus" control bill. One is that the Government, through Justice Minister Isley, has now clearly asserted the doctrine that the Dominion may at will invade the legislative field of the Provinces. The other is that the "omnibus" bill is a measure of precisely the kind which would be needed to introduce socialism in Canada. Both these assertions were challenged, but neither of the challenges was successful.

Mr. Isley interjected the words "utter nonsense" and "mischievous tripe" at points in Mr. Diefenbaker's remarks on the constitutional question. Admittedly, Mr. Isley was not in a position to reply in greater detail since he had already spoken in the debate. But he is on record in Hansard with this opinion:

It appears to me that the true effect of the decision in the Canada Temperance Act case is that there does not have to be an emergency to justify legislation on the part of the Dominion; that the Dominion may have the power even when there is no emergency to legislate for

MORE ON A FAMOUS WALKER

The Editor.
Sir:—Will you allow me space in your columns for a reference to one of my articles in your Annual Review?

In writing a sketch about Edward Payson Weston, the well remembered walker, I had difficulty in obtaining dates and figures. A few days after publication of the Anniversary Edition, I received a letter containing information as to dates and walking distances of Mr. Weston, being sent by Mr. Charles Abbott, of North Hatley. These are duly appreciated and will be given herein so that they may be added to the printed sketch, if so desired.

Edward Payson Weston, born 1839, died 1929. In 1867 he walked from Portland to Chicago, in 1909 from New York to San Francisco (104 days, 7 hours) and the return from Los Angeles to New York (76 days, 23 hours, average of 15 1/2 miles daily) in 1910. His first long walk was from Boston to Washington for Lincoln's inauguration—443 miles in 208 hours.

THE MYSTERIOUS METHODS OF GOVERNMENTS?
The Editor.
Sir:—In reviewing an article in the Reader's Digest of April, 1947, "The Truth About Soviet Russia's 14,000,000 Slaves," the writer wonders, what is the truth, and if the democracies, which profess to hold such high and lofty ideals, are really sincere.

The above article pictures conditions, which appear to be crimes against humanity, but no one seems to take these conditions in Russia seriously.

It would be interesting to know the truth about our ally-in-arms, but unfortunately, our free and truthful democratic press does not tell a story that is water tight.

Many articles published about Russia, praise the political set-up as wonderful and just, other articles tell a different story.

The Reader's Digest professes to be a great believer in free speech and prides itself as an organ of righteousness. What the writer wishes to know is, why England and the United States still maintain diplomatic relations with such a government?

Perhaps our Members of Parliament can answer this question.

Certainly, governments move in a mysterious way.

Yours truly,
SHERBROOKE,

PRESS COMMENTS

TWO DANGEROUS TRENDS

Toronto Mail and Globe.
Mr. John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member for Lake Centre, made two major points in his powerful speech on the Government's "omnibus" control bill. One is that the Government, through Justice Minister Isley, has now clearly asserted the doctrine that the Dominion may at will invade the legislative field of the Provinces. The other is that the "omnibus" bill is a measure of precisely the kind which would be needed to introduce socialism in Canada. Both these assertions were challenged, but neither of the challenges was successful.

Mr. Isley interjected the words "utter nonsense" and "mischievous tripe" at points in Mr. Diefenbaker's remarks on the constitutional question. Admittedly, Mr. Isley was not in a position to reply in greater detail since he had already spoken in the debate. But he is on record in Hansard with this opinion:

It appears to me that the true effect of the decision in the Canada Temperance Act case is that there does not have to be an emergency to justify legislation on the part of the Dominion; that the Dominion may have the power even when there is no emergency to legislate for

The Editor.
Sir:—Will you allow me space in your columns for a reference to one of my articles in your Annual Review?

In writing a sketch about Edward Payson Weston, the well remembered walker, I had difficulty in obtaining dates and figures. A few days after publication of the Anniversary Edition, I received a letter containing information as to dates and walking distances of Mr. Weston, being sent by Mr. Charles Abbott, of North Hatley. These are duly appreciated and will be given herein so that they may be added to the printed sketch, if so desired.

Edward Payson Weston, born 1839, died 1929. In 1867 he walked from Portland to Chicago, in 1909 from New York to San Francisco (104 days, 7 hours) and the return from Los Angeles to New York (76 days, 23 hours, average of 15 1/2 miles daily) in 1910. His first long walk was from Boston to Washington for Lincoln's inauguration—443 miles in 208 hours.

BERTHA WESTON PRICE.

THE MYSTERIOUS METHODS OF GOVERNMENTS?
The Editor.
Sir:—In reviewing an article in the Reader's Digest of April, 1947, "The Truth About Soviet Russia's 14,000,000 Slaves," the writer wonders, what is the truth, and if the democracies, which profess to hold such high and lofty ideals, are really sincere.

The above article pictures conditions, which appear to be crimes against humanity, but no one seems to take these conditions in Russia seriously.

It would be interesting to know the truth about our ally-in-arms, but unfortunately, our free and truthful democratic press does not tell a story that is water tight.

From The Record Files

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Among those taking part in a play presented in East Sherbrooke were: R. Mitchell, H. R. Unsworth, S. MacCallum, Miss R. Price, Miss M. Mahood, Miss B. Hayes, Miss M. Pitts and Miss E. Robinson.

High waters are menacing a number of bridges in the Cowansville area, one comparatively small stream having risen fifteen feet above flood levels due to the spring thaws.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

At the annual meeting of the East Sherbrooke Lacrosse Club the following officers were elected: L. J. Rouleau, Charles Price, C. C. Campbell, N. Fletcher, J. Hall, Jack Price, P. Plamondon, Eddie Wolfe, and W. Peak.

Hopes for averting a nation-wide strike in the United States bituminous coal fields have been virtually abandoned with neither party showing any willingness to compromise their demands.

Eastern Townships farmers, through their Members of Parliament, are protesting the embargo placed on milk and cream from this district by the United States authorities. A typhoid epidemic in Montreal is blamed for the ban.

TEN YEARS AGO

The Quebec Legislature has approved a government measure providing pensions for needy mothers in the Province, although the Opposition fought the means of financing the plan.

Sweeping tariff changes on furniture, car parts and felt hats are proposed by the Federal Government as the result of a recent report by the Tariff Board.

The following staff has been engaged by the Ulverton Intermediate school for the coming year: Melvin Butler, Miss Mary Gillies, Miss Christina Simms and Miss Vivian Rick.

Those taking part in a cantata presented at the Cowansville United Church included: Miss Ella Jones, Miss Evelyn Funk, Walter Mandigo, John McClure and Clifford Johnston.

FIVE YEARS AGO

Native acts of treachery are adding to the difficulties of the Allied forces in Burma and Japanese troops are approaching the anchor of the British lines.

At the annual meeting of the Lennoxville Ladies' Curling Club the following officers were elected: Mrs. Henry Downs, Jr., Mrs. Ross Healy, Mrs. N. Hunting, Mrs. N. Smith, Mrs. W. S. Richardson, Mrs. R. Clarke and Mrs. C. L. Hall.

Political observers in New Delhi are convinced that the Hindu Congress party will reject the home rule proposals being submitted by Sir Stafford Cripps, thereby preventing any agreement on this controversial subject.

the peace, order and good government of Canada even though its legislation touches upon matters ordinarily regarded as solely within Provincial jurisdiction.

This statement by the Justice Minister falls short of saying in so many words that a majority in the Dominion Parliament may whenever it pleases abolish the Federal Constitution and turn Canada into a unitary state. If Mr. Isley did not quite say that, he said next thing to it.

It was Mr. Coldwell, Leader of the CCF, who questioned Mr. Diefenbaker's statement that a bill just like the "omnibus" control bill would be the necessary prelude to socialism. "Ridiculous," said Mr. Coldwell, but Mr. Diefenbaker was ready with an appropriate quotation from Sir Stafford Cripps. According to Sir Stafford in 1933, an "emergency powers bill" enabling the Government to rule by Order-in-Council would be the very first act of a Socialist Administration in Britain.

The "omnibus" control bill exemplifies two dangerous tendencies: centralization of power at Ottawa and government by executive order. By these methods carried to a logical limit, it would be possible to make Canada a totalitarian state overnight. Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Power and others who attacked the bill were justified in the strenuous language they used. When a Dominion Government claims authority to ignore the rights of both Parliament and the Provinces, it is a duty to protest. It is to be hoped that the protests of those members who did speak may yet bring their colleagues to a full realization of what duty demands of them.

Why, it will be asked, did I ignore the rights of both Parliament and the Provinces, it is a duty to protest. It is to be hoped that the protests of those members who did speak may yet bring their colleagues to a full realization of what duty demands of them.

As matters stand, they have voted only for a resolution declaring it expedient to introduce the "omnibus" bill. They have retained full freedom to criticize in detail and to offer amendments when the bill reaches the committee stage. They should exercise this right to the limit.

CARD PARTY AT BEEBE PROVED FINE SUCCESS

Beebe, March 31.—The annual meeting of the Beebe Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Edward Lee with Mrs. G. W. Dyson and Mrs. G. Boisvert, the assisting hostesses.

Several articles of clothing were brought in for the two Establian children sponsored by the Institute and it was decided to have another card party in order that the Institute might make a cash donation toward their support for this year. The sum of $32 has been cleared on two card parties since the last meeting.

The annual reports showed that each convener had been busy, and a good report was given by each one.

A box of clothing had been packed and sent to Italy to a lady, who asked for assistance. This box was packed and mailed by Mr. and Mrs. Bortolot to whom the members extend their thanks.

Eleven meetings were held during the year, with an average attendance of seventeen members.

In May, a British war bride, Mrs. Eric Dessaint, was entertained at a meeting, and presented with a gift, and Miss C. MacKenzie, of Stanstead, spoke on the International situation.

In June, a large basket of new and used clothing was bought for the "Save The Children Fund," and a committee was named to decorate a float for the Veterans' celebration parade on June 29. Mr. Galbraith, physical director of the Border community center, spoke on "What Physical Education Means To Our Children." On June 18 a number of Girl Guides and their leader, Mrs. Cass, were privileged to meet Lady Baden Powell, when she visited King's Hall, Compton.

Mrs. Ida Haselton was the local delegate to the provincial convention, at MacDonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue.

In September cash donations were made to the Wales Home, and the Catholic Old Folks' Home. Earlier in the year, donations were made to the Sherbrooke Hospital and the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, from proceeds of the sale of mother's day flowers, made by Mrs. Turner. The secretary, was asked to obtain one name and address of a lady in England to whom we would send a personal parcel each month.

Two speakers were present at this meeting, Mr. T. Lee Quimby, of Boynton, who spoke on the "History of Beebe," and Mr. Orson Wheeler, who displayed his collection of miniature models of famous buildings.

In October, the members sponsored a waste paper drive. Mr. Jack Henriksen, of Ayer's Cliff, spoke on "The Care And Planting of Bulbs."

A dance was held in November. The net proceeds of ninety dollars were donated to the New Sherbrooke Hospital Fund.

The guest speaker at the November meeting was Miss C. MacKenzie, who spoke on "Modern Methods of Teaching History and Geography."

In December, several shut-ins were remembered with cards and four boxes of Christmas cheer were distributed.

Mrs. Ann Aldrich was our guest speaker in February. Her subject was "Swimming."

Music has played an important part in nearly all the programs. The Institute is fortunate in having some very fine musicians, both vocal and instrumental, who are always willing to give of their time and talent.

The treasurer's report showed that $252.13 had been raised during the year with expenditures of $246.43, leaving a balance of $38.66.

Mrs. T. Lee read the new slate of officers, which is as follows: President, Mrs. Ida Haselton; vice-president, Mrs. A. Braut; secretary, Mrs. Ruth House, treasurer, Mrs. Lee Brown.

Conveners: Agriculture, Mrs. H. Beane; education and better schools, Mrs. H. Stubbs; home economics, Mrs. Ezra Woodard; national and international relations, Mrs. G. Boisvert; welfare and health, Mrs. H. Cass; publicity, Mrs. L. Miller; visiting committee, Mrs. LeFlore, Mrs. Turner and Miss E. Miller. Mrs. P. Howe States Big Economic Year Likely Reconstruction Minister Declares Volume of Anticipated Business Expansion 50 Per Cent Higher Than in 1946.

Ottawa, March 31.—(C)—With the proper co-operation, 1947 should be the biggest economic year Canada has ever seen, Reconstruction Minister Howe told a delegation representing the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

The volume of anticipated business expansion was 50 per cent higher than in 1946, Mr. Howe said, but even a 30 per cent greater supply of materials than last year would be unable to meet demands.

He was one of a cabinet group which met Percy Bengough of Ottawa, T.L.C. president, and a large delegation to hear their annual brief. The brief asked:

1. Reconsideration of the lifting of price controls because they were necessary "if the evils of inflation are to be avoided."

2. Company unions be prohibited, that the forthcoming national labor code provide that no lawyer be entitled to appear before the National Labor Board except with the consent of parties to the dispute and that the board even then be entitled to decline them a hearing.

3. Unemployment insurance be applicable to all workers and that its benefits be "substantially increased."

4. National health insurance be instituted and the system of old age pensions be revamped to give an adequate income, a minimum age of 60 and no means test.

5. Income tax exemptions be raised to $2,400 for married persons and $1,000 for single persons.

6. The 40-hour week and holidays with pay be extended to include all government employees.

7. The Canadian Shipping Act be reviewed by Parliament and a Maritime Commission be established.

8. Use of private detective agencies by anti-union concerns be prohibited.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, in a brief appearance, pledged full consideration of all points raised. He, Mr. Howe, External Affairs Minister St. Laurent and Labor Minister Mitchell praised the union for the unselfish attitude manifested by their brief.

Mr. Howe said certain government branches already had the 40-hour week and estimated that the federal service was keeping pace in this regard with private enterprise.

Mr. St. Laurent approved of the note of co-operation raised by the Congress and contrasted it to statements of those who insist that class struggle is inevitable. "As long as there is co-operation and an absence of class struggle we'll get along together."

Mr. Mitchell predicted that the national labor code would satisfy the great bulk of public opinion. He maintained that Canada's progress from a wartime economy had ranked with that of any democracy.

CHAPTER XXVII.

Sherry got her car and drove slowly home.

Marcia was stretched out on the living room davenport.

She said, "Hi, toots. Good of you to come."

Sherry said, "I'm much gladder to see you than you deserve. Did you close your deal?"

"He made his mark on the dotted line," Marcia told her. "I don't know if it's business acumen or sex appeal." She yawned. "How's the new story?"

Sherry said, "Sticky. The girl told him she loved him too soon. Now I haven't anything to build to."

She went into the bedroom to take off her hat. Marcia got up and followed lazily.

"Why not give it a twist?" she wanted to know. "End it with her deciding she wouldn't have him if he were the last man on earth."

She lay down on Sherry's bed. "That expression's idiotic," Marcia went on. "It should be 'unless he were the last man on earth.'"

Sherry said, "Maybe I'll use it and take all the credit." She sat down and took off her shoes. "It's stuck to my stocking, of course."

Marcia said, "Doesn't make sense," and yawned again.

Sherry said, "My blister."

Marcia made an effort to turn her head.

"That's what comes of wearing cheap, $12.50 shoes," she told her.

Sherry said, "Seventeen-fifty, you piker."

She eased off her stockings and wriggled her hot toes and sighed.

Then she hung her coat over the back of a chair and lay down on the chaise longue.

She said, "Seventeen-fifty for a pair of shoes and I've got a blister. Everything's like that, Marcia. I could have bought a hundred things on the boulevard, but there wasn't any reason to buy them. Who'd I wear a new dress for?"

Marcia said, "Wake me up when you're finished, baby. Your intropections lull me."

They both lay quiet for a while and watched the dusk deepen.

Sherry was thinking it would be fun not to have any principles at all. Just to take what you wanted and never think about it.

She decided she would have a dozen men on the string, each for just one thing she liked about him. At least there would be telephones ringing and flowers coming, and you'd have to think about how you looked every minute. You'd wear red for Tom, and yellow for Dick, and blue for Harry. And they'd flatter and fight with you and love you.

She sighed and said, "Oh, why can't I really be like that?" under her breath. Then she thought, "Well, that's a silly question, and got up and turned on the light."

Marcia said, "Nice to see you again. Have you got the world straightened out yet?"

Sherry said, "Go to the devil. I might as well dress, might as well!" and the telephone rang. It was Elsie Hilary. She was sobbing.

She said, "Oh, my God, Sherry! Isn't it terrible?"

Sherry said, "What?" and her heart moved horribly.

"Jack and Peter and Stein and the others!" Elsie sobbed. "Haven't they told you?"

Sherry said, "No. Tell me," but she knew already.

Marcia was sitting up now. Elsie's hysterical voice could be heard across the room. She went wildly as she talked. Sherry sat still and listened.

Peter had been shooting a parachute jump from a plane into the ocean, and he and his assistant and Stein and Hilary were flying close behind the jumper's ship. Another camera-plane had been beside their own, and somehow the two had crashed into each other. They had burst into flames in the air and blazed the hundreds of feet into the ocean.

"They're searching for the bodies now," Elsie sobbed, "and Jack and I had quarreled terribly."

Sherry said things somehow, and after a while she hung up.

Marcia was silent. Sherry dialed the studio.

She said, "This is Mrs. Peter Barton," very quietly. "From whom can I get the information about the accident?"

The girl did not answer right away.

Then she said, "Just a minute, please."

Sherry thought she waited a long time. Then another girl spoke to her.

She said, "Hello? Mrs. Barton? Mr. Felt wants to speak to you."

Sherry waited again. She could hear people whispering.

The girl came back.

She said, "Are you at home Mrs. Barton? Mr. Felt is coming out to see you."

So it was true then. There was no doubt about it.

Sherry said, "Please thank Mr. Felt, but tell him not to come—I know," and hung up.

Marcia said, "You'd rather I went, wouldn't you?"

Sherry nodded.

"I'll be home whenever you call," Marcia told her, and got her hat; and after a while Sherry heard the hall door close.

She simply sat.

Peter was gone. She did not want to cry. Her stomach felt queer instead.

There were long spaces of time when she did not seem to think at all. Her brain was numb and she felt a little sick.

She said, "This is worse than if you were madly in love with him. Then you could sob and cry and feel very sorry for yourself."

And then she knew that she had never forgiven him.

"You've got to," Sherry told herself.

She folded her hands and sat very still, and after a long while her bitterness was gone.

ABERCORN

The annual meeting of the Abercorn Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. P. Teasdale. The meeting was opened in the usual manner. The roll call was answered by the payment of dues and the correspondence was read. The reports of the various convayers were heard, which reported that hot lunches had been served to the school children and parcels had been sent to the needy in England. The president thanked the members for their loyal support. The following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. D. Sherrer, first vice-president, Mrs. P. Teasdale; second vice-president, Mrs. E. McGrath; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. L. Ingalls.

The convayers appointed are: agriculture, Mrs. Grace Righton; home economics, Mrs. E. McGrath; education, Mrs. P. Teasdale; publicity, Mrs. J. Foley; welfare and health, Mrs. D. Sherrer; National and International relations, Mrs. F. Ingalls. At the close of the meeting delicious refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed.

Let's keep abreast of the times! Soapless VEL is the new, modern cleanser for use on washday. But its use must be understood to be appreciated. Letters from satisfied users are enthusiastic in praise of VEL for the family wash. One such letter says, "I poured in the VEL, put the clothes in the tub to soak as usual, and went about my other work for an hour or so, then came back all ready for a tussle with the washing. To my surprise the water was already filled with dirt, and with very little elbow grease the clothes washed clean as never before."

VEL LIFTS OUT DIRT

VEL is quite different from soap. It literally lifts out the dirt which can be seen, through the darkened water, deposited at the bottom of your wash tub or machine. For this reason, and because VEL is equally good for all kinds of materials, the same water can often be used for the entire wash. A little dry VEL sprinkled on stains or extra-soiled spots will help to remove them. For extra soiled clothes—try soaking overnight with VEL.

NO SUDS NEEDED

Because VEL is light in weight, you use less of it. For instance, if 1 cup of soap will do the job in your washing machine, use about $\frac{1}{2}$ cup VEL instead. Experience will soon teach you the amount you need. Put VEL in first then add the water, which need not be hot. The foamy suds will subside but no matter! Unlike soap, the washing power of VEL is right there in the solution and it keeps on cleaning clothes long after the suds disappear.

NO SOAP SCUM

VEL forms no soap scum on clothes to make them gray and dingy so much less rinsing is usually sufficient. Nor does it leave any hard-to-remove ring around the tub. VEL is well when used correctly.

Stranger In Town

Lonely Girl Must Become Adjusted to New Home In New Town

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am in my early teens and am very lonely and miserable because just recently our family moved from a town we loved to one in which we are perfect strangers. But we had to do it because my father was offered a wonderful job and we needed the money. In my old home town, I was popular with the kids and was always doing things with the group, but here, although I have tried very hard, I can't get in with the crowd.

I don't seem to be able to get along very well with my parents and they are always picking on me and blaming me for things I don't understand. I cry very easily and when I go to explain something, I get all broken up and can hardly talk, and I am confused, even to myself. I feel I can't take much more of this being ragged continually. What shall I do?

CARMEN.

Answer: Sometimes it is easier for youngsters to tell their troubles to strangers than it is to their parents, so perhaps when your mother reads this letter in print she will realize how unhappy you are and will do something to cheer you up and to help you fit into your new home.

It is a very real hardship to have to leave the place in which you have grown up, where even the very streets are endeared to you by association, and where you have hosts of friends and are one of the gang. In the old home town, you were a person of importance, but in the new home, you are of no interest to anyone, and you are as lone-ome, homesick and forlorn as if you were shipwrecked on a desert island.

CURE FOR LONELINESS

It takes courage to meet that situation with a smile and to set yourself to the task of adjusting yourself to new conditions and to making new friends, but that is the cure for your loneliness and homesickness. And it is something that you owe to your parents, for the change is hard on them, too. They also hated to break the ties of a lifetime.

Try to realize that your parents made the move because it would enable them to give you better opportunities than you could have had in the old home, and that it is your duty to co-operate with them in making the venture a success, as it will not be if you go about weeping, waiting and bemoaning your fate. So dry your eyes and adjust yourself cheer

The Doctor Says

SKIN IRRITATIONS DUE TO SUN EXPOSURE

By William A. O'Brien, M.D.

Now that spring is here and summer on the way, freckles and skin irritations which result from exposure to the sun will begin to appear.

Dr. O'Brien.

Freckles tend to fade during the winter and in some cases completely disappear only to return in the summer. Freckles also disappear in certain types of skin as some individuals grow older, while in others they appear for the first time in advanced years.

The best "treatment" of freckles is to avoid excessive exposure to sunlight. Harmless preparations sold at cosmetic counters produce uniform tanning of the skin which covers the spots. Freckle creams remove the outer skin layers temporarily, but in sensitive individuals they can produce marked skin reactions.

Skin redness which starts a few hours after excessive exposure to sunlight reaches its peak of intensity in about 24 hours. If skin has been injured, peeling and itching occurs. Severe sunburn is followed by blistering, severe pain, swelling, and shock-like symptoms.

Protective Tanning

Skin should be exposed gradually to sunlight, especially if it is the sensitive type. When skin reacts properly to this method, the outer layers become thicker and tanning occurs. Tanning is essentially a protective device to ward off the effect of ultra-violet rays on the skin, and it does not have any health value.

Many greasy remedies for preventing sunburn causes boils and skin infections to develop. There are many harmless protective creams and lotions which will help the average case, but in severe types of skin sensitivity extreme measures may be necessary.

SHERBROOKE WINS PROVINCIAL HOCKEY LEAGUE CROWN

Locals Edge Out Lachine 7-5 To Win First Senior Crown Since '40

Herbie Carnegie, Sherbrooke's star pivot man, paced a fighting band of hockey players from Sherbrooke with two goals and an assist, to come from behind twice Saturday to edge out the Rapides of Lachine 7-5 and win the best-of-seven series 4-2, and the Provincial Hockey League championship with the Horace Boivin Trophy.

Sherbrooke, showing fight right from the start of the tilt to the finish, coupled with a "never-say-die" spirit, over a three-goal lead on talks by Bernie Lauzon, Red Goupille and Ossie Carnegie to tie up the game and when Lachine forged out in the front again, the locals were short-handed and ran in two markers, the Sherbrooke crew came back strong, and when the Rapides' blueline defender, Leclerc, got the nod for the cooler, Coach Dugre threw on five forwards, which paid dividends. Adj. Cote got the first marker, and 35 seconds later Herbie Carnegie got the equalizer, with a few minutes later Herbie Carnegie nothing the winning goal, after receiving a pass from Manny McIntyre.

The locals were still fighting and in the dying seconds of the tilt, Rolfe Denault, who had played a standout game on the blueline for the locals, broke from his own zone, skated down the left side of the arena, crossed Lachine's blueline and let go with an ankle-high shot to beat Leclerc for Sherbrooke's seventh goal of the fixture. Thirty seconds later the gong sounded announcing the end of the game and the championship for Sherbrooke.

In the initial frame the Rapides started off by carrying the play deep into Sherbrooke's territory and kept hammering away at Harry Barefoot. Finally after five minutes, Bob Morin tipped in Andy Perron's pass for Lachine's first tally. It was the only goal scored in the first period.

Play moved from one zone to the other at a fast clip, and both goals were called upon to extend themselves in protecting their citadels. In the dying minutes of the frame Perron received a penalty and Coach Dugre sent on five forwards to work the power play. They drove shots at Leclerc from all angles but just could not beat him. He turned everything aside and kept the locals off the score sheet until his team was back to full strength. Sherbrooke was still forcing the play as the bell sounded.

In the middle session the colored boys forced the play from not faceoff, but still they could not defeat Lachine's armor. The locals' defense was stepping into the Rapides, and they were staying shy of them. Smiley Meronek broke in on Rolfe Denault, who stepped into him with one of his old-time body-checks, and Meronek was carried off the ice. He did not seek any more action for the balance of the game.

The Rapides were flying at this point, and were buzzing in around Sherbrooke's net. Jimmy McCurry drove a screened shot from a scramble, to put the Rapides further out in front.

Lachine came right back from the faceoff, and in fifteen seconds got their third goal to lead 3-0. At this point it looked bad for Coach Dugre's boys. The locals still fighting got their first marker when Bernie Lauzon tipped in Tony Demers' rebound. Sticks were high, as well as tempers, and it looked as though the game might get out of control, but the referees held on to it and made the boys play hockey.

Sherbrooke as still on the offensive and kept plugging right along, finally after a ganging play, Red Goupille drove the rubber through a maze of legs to reduce the Rapides' lead. Both clubs were rolling along in high gear by now with Sherbrooke having slight advantage, and kept Leclerc busy kicking out rubber. Denault received the lone penalty of the middle period, but Barefoot and company kept the Rapides at bay until he returned. Cote, Herbie Carnegie and McIntyre were in on Leclerc, but still could not break him down.

Sherbrooke started the final stanza trailing Lachine by one goal but the boys were determined to even matters, finally, they received one of the breaks of the game, when Jimmy McCurry got the nod for the cooler, for holding H. Carnegie. Sherbrooke's power play went into action but still the stumbling block, Leclerc, was in the way. Demers was in on him twice, but could not outguess him, finally the Carnegie Brothers took the matter in hand, and Ossie drove home his brother's pass to tie the game.

The pressure was applied again by Lachine when Mush Morehouse received a penalty.

ROYALS SWAMP SENATORS 6-1 IN PLAYDOWNS

Montreal, March 31.—(C)—Little Pete Morin with three assists sparked Montreal Royals to a 6-1 victory over Ottawa Senators here yesterday in the fourth game of the Quebec Senior Hockey League final, which they now lead 2-1. First game of the playoff was tied 3-3.

Morin, a 140-pound pivot man, proved the stumbling block for the visitors as his brilliant back-checking and three assists for Montreal goals were the deciding factors in the final result.

Norman Dave, Quebec Amateur Hockey Association president, announced after the game that Frank Stahan, Ottawa rearguard, and Jacques Locas of Royals are suspended from Thursday night's game at Ottawa, Stahan and Locas engaged in a high-sticking duel in the last five minutes of play which seconds later developed into a slugging match.

Locas scored the only first period marker and counted again in the stretch drive. Other markers for the Royals were Bobby Pepin, Ernie Laforte and Ted Campeau.

Senators, minus the services of defenceman Frank Mathers and forward Eddie Slowinski who are both sidelined with injuries, gave Montreal a close fight until the final period when their defence fell apart. Royals held a 2-0 lead at the outset of the period but Frank Turk chopped the margin to one goal as he put the invaders back into the game after five minutes of play. From here on it was Royals all the way.

Locas earned the first tally midway through the initial stanza after a passing bout with Laforte and Campeau to sink a 10-footer. Ottawa were two men short at the time with Stahan and Irvine in the penalty box.

Montreal took a two-goal lead at the 17-minute mark of the middle session when Bobby Pepin grabbed Morin's goal-mouth pass and dipped the disc behind Legs Fraser in the Ottawa cage.

Tension ran high among the players going into the finale, and after Turk had spoiled goalie Gerry McNeil's goose-egg, rearguards Doug Harvey and Charlie Trainor threw a few punches at each other, resulting in their banishment to the "cooler." Harvey received a misconduct rap. Royals then took command and poured four goals past Fraser, two of which came within six seconds.

With four minutes remaining Stahan and Locas were benched with match penalties for fighting.

Yankee Gerry McNeil turned in a good performance, saving 19 tries on his cage while Fraser at the other end of the rink turned away 37 shots. A total of 15 penalties were handed out by the officials. Royal received six and Ottawa nine. Stahan was the top offender with three minors and one match penalty.

Barbara Ann Scott And Dick Button Win North American Skating Crowns

Ottawa, March 31.—King and queen of North American Senior Amateur Figure Skating today were, Dick Button, 17-year-old Englewood, N.J., entry of the Philadelphia Skating Club, and Barbara Ann Scott, 18, already a world champion and now in her second term as Continental titleholder.

Both held a clear margin of points throughout the two-day competitions which concluded here Saturday. Miss Scott scored 2385.5 points and her nearest rival, pretty Janice Ahrens of St. Paul, Minn., 2672.4. Button's 2773.8 points kept him well in front of runner-up Jimmy Groen, 15-year-old Berkeley, Calif., skater who scored 2584.6.

Surprise winners of the International Pairs Championship were swift, smooth Suzanne Morrow and Wallace Diestelmeyer of Toronto. The newly-established continental dance crown went to Lois Waring and Walter Bain, bridge of the Baltimore and Washington Skating Club.

Performing before some 8,000 Ottawans, including the Dominion's Governor-General, Viscount Alexander, the 30-odd competitors from Canada and the United States were as promising a group of skaters as has appeared at any North American meet.

For Jimmy (Pee-Wee) Groen, whom expert observers termed a future world champion, the event was his first senior competition.

Injury Jinx Pursues Canadiens Who Lose Reardon For Ten Days

Boston, March 31.—(C)—Montreal Canadiens, badly weakened by the loss of sparkling Kenny Reardon and holding a 2-1 edge in the series over Boston Bruins in the semi-final series "A" for the National Hockey League Stanley Cup, are wondering whether the fourth game here Tuesday night will be a repetition of Saturday night's game in which delays and penalties played a bigger part than hockey.

Smarting from the 3-2 defeat handed them after a subbing Bruins changed their tactics from the first two games when they took the lead and then played defensive hockey with disastrous results.

Saturday they allowed Canadiens a two-goal lead within the first six minutes of play and then turned on the heat.

They bumped hard and often and Met Schmidt, pivot-man of the Kitchen line with Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart, slammed two ladies by Bill Durnan in the Montreal net.

As far as Hayes' refereeing is concerned, Selke was evasive with "I will leave it to the discretion of the league" when asked whether Canadiens would protest if Hayes officiated at any future games in which they were involved.

Reardon's injury is particularly serious to Montreal as the fighting defenceman is considered the type of player who can rally the club.

Around The Dressing Room

By Len O'Donnell

The old dressing room was some place Saturday evening in Lachine, after the boys had come back fighting to copy the Crown after trailing 3-0 and 5-3. The power play made it possible for the 5-5 tie, but previous to that it was just plain determination and hearts that would not admit defeat.

The whole team played their heads off. Shifty Herbie Carnegie paced the local win with two goals and an assist. He got the tying goal and the winning marker after being set up by Tony Demers and Manny McIntyre.

Two of the saddest looking players in Lachine Saturday were Mush Morehouse and Ossie Carnegie when they were sitting in the penalty box just after their club had tied the game at 3-3 and saw the Rapides slam in two goals to go ahead. They were costly penalties at the time, but when they returned to the puck when I drove both goals into the lower hand corner just about a foot off the ice."

Big Red Goupille and Rolfe Denault, both turned in a wonderful job on the defence. The only time that they had a rest was when the power play was working. They were out there a good fifty minutes of the time.

All the boys went to see the Senior Group at the Forum yesterday afternoon when the Royals and the Senators were in action and Harry Barefoot, after watching the play for a while, said: "I would like to see Legs Fraser stopping one of Tony Demers' shots with his pads the way they are. Tony would swing them completely around facing the other way."

Herbie Carnegie said, "I had Leclerc outguessed the whole way on that tying goal, as well as the winning marker, and I made sure that he did not get his hands on the puck when I drove both goals into the lower hand corner just about a foot off the ice."

Montreal Wallops Richmond To Take Provincial Women's Titular Honors

An older looking Mansfield Olympic Athletic Club team from Montreal showed too much power for St. Francis College High School cagerettes of Richmond in the last part of the game at the William Street Armory Saturday night to wallopp the Richmond outfit 42-15 in the second encounter of a final two-game home-and-home total points series for the Provincial Women's Intermediate Basketball Championship, take the round by a score of 58-23, and win the title.

The Mansfield crew had bagged the first contest in Montreal, 18-8. They are the Montreal Women's Intermediate League champions. The series triumph puts the Montreal team in the Eastern Canada Intermediate Final with Toronto, the Ontario representative. This round will also be a two-game affair. Total points will count, and both games will take place in Toronto. The fixtures are tentatively scheduled for Thursday and Friday, April 10 and 11. This series will be the end of line for 1946-47 in Canadian Women's Intermediate Basketball.

Montreal took an early lead in the game Saturday night, and were ahead 8-3 by quarter time. In the second quarter Richmond outscored Montreal 6-2. At halftime the score was Montreal 10, Richmond 9. These were game scores. To be close to Montreal in the round score, Richmond had to take over the lead in Saturday night's engagement and really go places in the scoring. That never happened. After the first game, the 16-8 score of the tilt was the closest Richmond ever came to Montreal.

In the last half Montreal shot ahead and ran away, with the game. The Mansfield scored 19 points in the third quarter and 13 to Richmond's 3 in the last chukker. The final game score was Montreal 42, Richmond 15; series, Montreal 58, Richmond 23. After the fixture, Ash Hunting, president of the Eastern Townships Amateur Basketball Association, presented crests to the Montreal players at the center of the court. They received these for winning the provincial championship.

One should note that with one exception, all the Richmond players are 18 or under. This means they were eligible for junior competition. They wanted to enter the junior playoffs, but found it was too late. Under the circumstances they did well. In Montreal they led 4-0 at one point, and then 4-2. At the Armory Saturday night they were at first behind and then made the game rather close by shaving down Montreal's lead. Even when Montreal was going away ahead in points in the last part of the game and it seemed just a matter of points and time, Richmond kept returning the play and back-checking. They were in the act of counter-attacking on the last play of the tilt.

The Mansfield on the whole are more experienced team than Richmond. They are coached by Joe Richmond, a former Montreal Big Four rugby star and also a former basketball player.

Doreen Clough and Enid Shepherd, Montreal forwards, captured the top scoring honors. Miss Clough arned nineteen points, nine field goals and one foul goal, while Miss Shepherd collected five field markers and two foul goals for twelve points.

Helen Fee led the Richmond team with six points, two field goals and two foul markers. The teams and individual points are as follows: Mansfield Olympic Athletic Club: L. Ward, E. Shepherd 4, S. D. Crane 0, D. Clough 5-14, E. Ward 0-1, R. Gordon 0-3, S. Griffin 0-3, D. Brimacombe, G. Gibbs, E. J. Bockus. St. Francis College High School: E. Harrington 1-0, H. Fee 4-2, J. Harrington 1-0, V. Gunter 2-2, D. Perkins, M. McManis, 0-3, M. Pope, M. Smith, J. A. Pye, S. Irwin 1-0. Referee: Steve Armstrong, Montreal; umpire, Bill Cohoon.

Detroit Vastly Superior To Leafs In Tying Up Stanley Cup Semi-Finals

Toronto, March 31.—(C)—Toronto fans are sure of at least one more Stanley Cup playoff contest next Saturday but unless their favorite Maple Leafs give their blue stockings a decided upward tug, that one will ring down the curtain on big-time hockey hereabouts this win winter.

Detroit's red-hot Red Wings were so vastly superior when they thumped Leafs 9-1 Saturday night to even the semi-final series at one game apiece, that it was difficult to figure how Leafs finished second and Wings fourth in the National League standings.

Odds which established Leafs as 1 to 2 favorites on the best-of-seven game round, dropped to even money and when the teams clashed in the third contest in Detroit Tuesday Wings will be favorites to move ahead.

Even word from Detroit that the Wings' regular goalie, Harry Lumley, will undergo a serious groin operation today that will bench him for the season failed to shake the betting. His replacement rookie Ralph (Red) Almas, has proved a bulwark in both games.

Wings left for Detroit immediately after their triumph but Leafs will drift here today for a shake-up, parting at the time that will bench him for the season failed to shake the betting. His replacement rookie Ralph (Red) Almas, has proved a bulwark in both games.
