

Anti-Cambodia protests may spark student strike

The threat of a country-wide strike by U.S. college students loomed today as protests against the expansion of the war in South Vietnam into Cambodia continued.

No one group has emerged to lead the protest movement, but anti-war demonstrations and strike calls have sprung up spontaneously on scores of campuses across the United States.

The editors of 11 college newspapers in the East have joined to run a common editorial calling for the "entire academic community" to close classrooms to protest the expansion of the war.

Columbia University's administration approved a "classroom moratorium" to discuss the Indochina war. Strike plans also were announced at Georgetown University in Washington, the University of Notre Dame in Southbend, Ind., Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., and Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif.

The weekend-long rally at Yale

University in New Haven, Conn., called originally to support Black Panthers on trial for murder there, ended with a call for a strike to protest the war.

FIRST FOR CALTECH

Some colleges, such as the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, which never had anti-war demonstrations, had them this weekend following President Nixon's announcement that U.S. and South Vietnamese troops had entered neutral Cambodia and the resumption of bombing raids against North Vietnam this weekend.

In a 600-word statement, eastern college editors, whose newspapers have a readership of about 50,000, said Nixon acted unconstitutionally in sending the troops into Cambodia without congressional approval.

"The strike is necessary to free the academic community from activities of secondary importance and open them up to the primary task of building renewed opposition to the war."

Editors involved are from Columbia, Cornell, Rutgers, Bryn Mawr, Sarah Lawrence, the University of Pennsylvania, Harvard, Princeton, Dartmouth, Brown and Havertford.

STUDENTS STAGE SIT-IN

At Kent State University, National Guard troops with bayonets on their rifles herded 1,200 students back to the campus Sunday night after they staged a sit-in at a downtown Kent, Ohio, intersection.

It was the third straight night of anti-war protests at Kent. A student was injured in the back by a bayonet and at least one guardsman was hurt by a thrown rock.

Guardsmen were ordered into the city Saturday night after a demonstration by 1,000 students during which the army Reserve Officers Training Corps building was burned and demonstrators took away firemen's hoses. About 50 persons were arrested Sunday night, raising the approximate total of arrested since Friday to 100.

Meanwhile, federal troops were being withdrawn from New England where they had been standing by in case of violence at the New Haven rally in support of Black Panthers.

Yale University President Kingman Brewster Jr., called for a resumption of classes Tuesday. Yale has been shut down for 2½ weeks and has just completed a weekend of rallies in support of the Panthers.

QUEBEC IN FOCUS

Confident of capital return

SOREL, Que. (CP) — Premier-elect Robert Bourassa says he is certain capital is returning to Quebec.

Speaking at Marine Industries Ltd. Saturday, the 36-year-old leader of the newly-elected Liberal party pointed to rising stock market trends on April 30, the day following the election, as evidence.

"Look at the stock market after the election—it jumped up," he said.

"This shows the confidence of the business community. New York continued to go down, but the stock market in Montreal went up."

Mr. Bourassa was speaking at the christening of the Ludger Simard, a 7,000-ton tanker.

Canadian veteran honored

THE HAGUE (CP) — At Delft 25 years ago, Capt. Luc Turcotte in a troop carrier of the Royal 22nd Regiment was the first Canadian into that city as the Canadian forces fanned out into western Holland after the German capitulation.

Delft did not forget.

Now Lt.-Col. Turcotte and his wife, who live in Quebec City, are spending 10 days in the city as its guests.

The burgomaster drove them Sunday to the remembrance ceremonies at Groesbeek.

Recreation group founded

SHAWINIGAN, Que. (CP) — Eighteen associations of recreation directors founded the Quebec Confederation of Leisure Enterprises Saturday to inform the public and encourage it to make a more fruitful use of recreation facilities.

The confederation also aims to join all recreation and leisure organizations in the province to eliminate duplication of goals and establish a more equitable return on financial investments.

The QCLE will also initiate steps to arrange for full utilization of private and public recreation facilities.

Rev. Marcel de La Sablonniere of Montreal was elected president of the confederation.

Delegates at the weekend conference included directors of arenas, cinemas and hotels.

Flood threatens communities

ST. MICHEL DES SAINTS, Que. (CP) — Residents of this community 100 miles north of Montreal watched anxiously Sunday as two dams on the Mattawin River threatened to give away under rising waters fed by melting snow.

So far, only a few families have had to evacuate the area south of the town where the water was about three feet above street level.

A Quebec Provincial Police spokesman said the situation will remain critical as long as both the Duvasseur and Boisvert dams are endangered by the heavy thaw.

"We just don't know what will happen," he said. "We never do."

Officials were especially worried Saturday night as water rose to the tops of the dams and sand bags had to be used. But the swell lessened and the water was rising at a slower pace Sunday.

Doubtful Levesque will run

MONTREAL (CP) — It is unlikely Rene Levesque will ask any of his elected Parti Quebecois members to resign and pave the way for a by-election that could assure the defeated separatist leader a seat in Quebec's national assembly, a party spokesman said Sunday.

He said after a closed-door meeting of the party executives that Mr. Levesque, defeated in Montreal Laurier in last Wednesday's general election, "doesn't want to hear any suggestions of resignations."

The spokesman said Mr. Levesque considers it "undemocratic" that duly-elected members should step down for anyone.

"The only thing we are really positive about now, however, is that Mr. Levesque will take a vacation for about one week."

The Parti Quebecois was expected to make public today exactly what role it will play in the 108-seat national assembly. The party won seven seats in the election.

Michaud asks recount

MONTREAL (CP) — Yves Michaud, defeated incumbent Liberal in Montreal Gouin riding, has asked for a judicial recount of last Wednesday night's election results.

Following a recount of ballots Thursday, Guy Joron, Parti Quebecois candidate, still came out on top with a majority of 121 votes.

Mr. Michaud had asked for a recount before the deputy returning officer when the results Wednesday night showed him only 64 votes behind Mr. Joron.

Counting had ended election night with the results of three polls unknown because the ballot boxes had been locked in error.

LOOKING FOR ICE — The United States supertanker Manhattan leaves a path of broken ice in its wake as it heads into the Northwest Passage. The tanker, on its second trip into the Arctic, is testing the feasibility of shipping oil from Alaska's North Slope to the eastern seaboard. (CP Photo)

Tanker in Canadian waters

ABOARD ST. LAURENT (CP) — The United States supertanker Manhattan entered Canadian territorial waters Sunday night for the first time since the beginning of its voyage.

The Manhattan, accompanied by the Canadian icebreaker Louis S. St. Laurent passed inside the 12-mile territorial border off Devon Island about 8 p.m. EDT.

It was previously estimated the U.S. tanker would enter Canadian waters within two days, but the two ships took advantage of light ice conditions to travel nearly 105 miles during the day.

The Manhattan entered the Canadian Arctic archipelago southeast of Cape Sherard. She was expected to turn south when opposite the entrance to Navy Board Inlet.

The giant tanker, capable of carrying 28,000,000 gallons from the Alaska Oilfields, is attempting her second voyage through the Northwest Passage.

This is the Manhattan's second voyage through the North West passage after a successful trip through the ice-laden channel last summer.

The ship's journeys as well as the implications for oil shipments through the northern passage from Alaska's rich oil fields to east coast refineries have sparked considerable controversy over territorial sovereignty in the north as well as the dangers of massive oil pollution of northern waters.

Kennedy declines presidential bid

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator Edward M. Kennedy insisted anew Sunday that he will not seek the Democratic nomination for United States president in 1972, and "I would not accept a draft." But he left the door open beyond that year.

"Beyond that I have ... thought very little about any future political activity" except seeking re-election to the Senate this year.

The Massachusetts Democrat made his comments in a radio interview.

He said he had not planned to run for the presidency or vice-presidency before the accident at Chappaquiddick Island in which Mary Jo Kopechne died in the car which he was driving.

As to Judge James A. Boyie's statement that he did not believe the senator and secretary were headed for the island ferry when Kennedy's car plunged from a narrow bridge, Kennedy would offer no new comment.

Kennedy repeated his expression of serious reservations about President Nixon's order sending American troops into Cambodia.

He forecast that the Senate will reject funds for phase two expansion of the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system "because there is an increasing realization that this ... is an extraordinarily expensive system" which cannot provide additional security. It "will only increase the arms race and there will be counter reaction within the Soviet Union," he added.

Queen gets warm cheers in stopover

VANCOUVER (CP) — Queen Elizabeth, Prince Philip and Princess Anne were warmly cheered by about 1,500 people Sunday as their jet made a brief fueling stop before taking them home after a nine-week South Pacific tour.

Their British Overseas Airways V-10 jetliner touched down at 4:07 p.m. Pacific time, and took off 53 minutes later. Another fueling stop was planned at Gander, Nfld., before the royal family arrives home today.

The three royal visitors left Australia earlier Sunday after the Queen opened a new airport at Sydney.

They were greeted here by Premier W. A. C. Bennett, Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson and their wives. Also in the receiving line were deputy provincial secretary Laurie Wallace and local dignitaries.

The public saw the royal visitors as they walked from the plane to a private lounge in the airport terminal.

Air strikes intensified in Cambodia

WASHINGTON (CP) — Intensified United States air strikes in North Vietnam and a second blunt U.S. warning to Hanoi today increased uneasiness and alarm in Congress over President Nixon's decision to extend the Southeast Asian war to Cambodia.

But the Nixon administration maintains that the new air raids against North Vietnam, like the attack by U.S. ground forces into Cambodia, are not an escalation of the war.

While U.S. officials stressed the strikes in North Vietnam were confined to military targets, Defence Secretary Laird repeated a weekend threat to recommend wider bombing of the North, if necessary.

Laird said Saturday he would recommend a resumption of the bombing if Hanoi launched any major action across the demilitarized zone separating North and South Vietnam in retaliation for the president's dispatch of U.S. troops last Thursday into Cambodia.

REPEATS WARNING

Laird reiterated this warning in an interview published today in the U.S. News and World Report. His threats coincided with official U.S. disclosure that U.S. fighter-bombers have been striking during the last few days at missile and anti-aircraft sites in North Vietnam in retaliation for attacks on American reconnaissance planes, which are unarmed but are accompanied by armed fighter support.

The attacks were not connected, officials said, with Laird's warning of a possible resumption of bombing of the North, halted by President Johnson in November, 1968, as part of "an understanding" with Hanoi.

Laird said in the interview:

"The (November, 1968) understanding provided that there would be no bombing north of the demilitarized zone if the other side did not shell population centres or infiltrate through the zone, or did not interfere with the reconnaissance activities of the U.S. in North Vietnam ...

"If the understandings are broken—if there is massive infiltration, or if there are other actions taken by the other side—I certainly wouldn't hesitate to recommend to the president that he pursue a different policy."

BOMBINGS PROTECTIVE

Sunday, Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew called the weekend bombings on North Vietnam "protective reaction."

State Secretary William Rogers, saying much the same thing, called the bombings "suppressive fire."

Agnew asserted that the air attacks and the Cambodia incursion are moves designed to protect the security of American units in South Vietnam—the position set by President Nixon Thursday.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese are attempting to extend their supply and sanctuary areas used by their troops fighting in South Vietnam to the Gulf of Siam which, Agnew said, seriously threatens the security of American forces and the president's policy of withdrawing U.S. troops from the war zone.

"We know we can't win a land war in Southeast Asia, that's perfectly obvious," he said in explaining what he termed the limited objectives of the Cambodian action.

Miles for millions attracts thousands

Thousands of Canadians swarmed along highways, country roads and city streets across the country this weekend to demonstrate their love for mankind in what has become a peculiarly-Canadian ritual, Miles for Millions.

Predictions that the annual walks were losing their appeal fell flat. They are aimed at raising funds to feed the hungry of the world and to help underprivileged groups at home.

Toronto organizers believe that for the first time their march Saturday, the biggest in the country, went over the $1,000,000 mark.

Despite dull weather, an estimated 75,000 to 100,000 turned out for a 32-mile hike. They formed a column up to 10 miles long and walked a collective distance equal to 40 times round the world. Last year 52,000 marchers raised $672,000.

Although their numbers were greater and their march longer, the Toronto walkers' spirits were no higher than those of the thousands who walked 10 to 30 miles in a dozen or so Canadian communities—and more marches are to come.

As officials spent Sunday tabulating results of Saturday walks in Saint John, N.B., at one end of the country, Chilliwack, B.C., at the other and at Saskatoon, Sask., the Ontario communities of Oshawa, Guelph and Brampton in between, other marches were just getting under way.

SETS EXAMPLE AT 67

In Edmonton, Alta., sunny skies and mid-50s temperatures accompanied about 30,000 walkers Sunday on a 25-mile hike led by Lt.-Gov. Grant McEwan, 67. At the 12-mile mark he was still going strong.

Vancouver's walk Sunday was expected to draw 50,000, headed by federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis who completed the course in two previous marches. He has Prime Minister Trudeau and five cabinet ministers signed as sponsors.

Another local luminary who hit the roads Saturday was Sherbrooke Archbishop Msgr. Jean-Marie Fortier.

Bury Institute makes plans for antique show on June 20

BURY — The April meeting of the Women's Institute was held recently in the Legion Hall. Due to the inclement weather, only 11 members were present. Mrs. Rowell read correspondence consisting of thank-you notes from those remembered with Easter gifts, one of which contained a donation of $1.

Further plans were made for the antique display to be held in the Pope Memorial School on June 20. A suggestion was given for the float to be made for the annual Dominion Day celebration. The new program was brought in and discussed.

Mrs. J. Laroque, convener of health and welfare, read an article on a new anesthetic; Mrs. Arthur Olson, convener of citizenship, read an article. No reports were given in agriculture or education.

As topic for the meeting was home economics, the program was in charge of the convener, Mrs. Gerald Peblemann, who gave a reading on spices, followed by a jumbled word contest featuring spices. The contest was won by Mrs. Claude Morrill, with Mrs. Garnet Morrison receiving the consolation. The prizes awarded were cans of spice.

Each member was given a cookbook explanatory of the use of various spices in cooking. A drawing was held for the spice rack, with Mrs. Herbert Rowell holding the winning ticket. The spice rack, spices and cookbooks were given with the compliments of a spice company.

Mrs. R. N. Mayhew, president, commended Mrs. Peblemann for a most interesting program. Pot luck refreshments were served by the members.

Bedford

Rev. L. Squires, Rawdon, has been the guest of Rev. W. Reed Lake and Mrs. Lake at the Manse.

The weekly meeting of the St. James Church Bridge Club was held at the home of Mrs. F. E. Draper, when the prize-winner was Mrs. Bruce Kirwin.

Mrs. Sadie Veysie, Stanbridge Station, who spent the winter with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. Welch, in Farnham, is a patient in Hospital Lagace.

Mrs. Edith Darroch and Mr. John Wright, Montreal, were recent guests of Miss Nettie Lovering.

Mrs. L. Desjardins and four children, Connecticut, are visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kyling, Dutch Street.

Leaders and guests entertained at enrolment program of Bury Guides

BURY — On April 18, the 1st Bury Girl Guides held its enrolment program in the auditorium of the Pope Memorial School, at which time the mothers and several guests were present.

The program opened with an address by their leader, Mrs. Robert Fitzsimmons, who commended the girls on their diligence in passing the Tenderfoot test, enabling them to be enrolled as Guides and thanked the mothers who helped the girls raise money to buy uniforms and other items necessary to run a Guide Company. The girls are now working to earn their Hostess Badges. Thanks were also extended to the Commissioner, Mrs. Kenneth Herring, Lennoxville, for coming.

Several games followed in which all took part: First, Kim's game, organized by Doris Ellis and won by Carol McLeod and Miss Gloria McDonald; second, Who Am I? in charge of Sandra Bennett. The personality chosen was Robert Fitzsimmons, guessed by Mrs. Church; three puppet shows, announced by Andrea Gauthier, winners were Joanne Chapman, Cathy Jean Morrison; Marjorie Kirkpatrick, Cindy LaRouque; Jeannie's Good Turn, by Nancy Olson and Melanie Wintle.

Several Scotstown guides present as guests, were Lorraine MacLeod, Patricia MacAuley, Joanne and Mary Lou Irving. The company fell smartly into Roll call formation then into Horseshoe formation for inspection by Mrs. Kenneth Herring, District Commissioner. Enrolment followed with each Guide brought before Mrs. Herring to receive the Guide Tenderfoot pin, and be enrolled. They were, Doris Ellis, Patrol leader of Pansy patrol; Cath

Jean Morrison, Second patrol; Wanda Sylvestre, Jo Anne Chapman and Patricia Dougherty.

Andrea Gauthier, Patrol Leader of Shamrock Patrol; Marjorie Kirkpatrick, Patrol Second; Cindy Laroque, Gayle Wintle, and Cathy Lawrence.

Sandra Bennett, Patrol leader, Lily of the Valley Patrol; Carol MacLeod, Second Patrol; Nancy Olson, Sheryl Laroque, and Melanie Wintle.

Mrs. Herring gave a brief address, commending the girls on their work followed by a song by Doris Ellis, Carol MacLeod, Sandra Bennett, Nancy Olson and Marjorie Kirkpatrick.

Refreshments including a cake made by Mrs. Fitzsimmons, was prepared and served by the Guides to their guests, who included Mrs. Kenneth Herring, District Commissioner of Lennoxville, Mrs. Church, Guide

Captain and Mrs. Irving Ringer, both of Scotstown, the Scotstown Guides, mothers and several grandmothers.

After lunch several Camp fire songs were sung by the Guides. Taps brought a most enjoyable afternoon to a close.

Stanbridge East

A miscellaneous bridal shower was held at the United Church hall on April 16, in honor of Miss Nancy Brown, whose marriage to Mr. Roger TenEyck takes place shortly.

Mrs. Bruce Phelps was hostess at a stork shower on April 18, in honor of Mrs. Denis Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Brown are the happy parents of a daughter.

Congratulations were extended to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tomkinson, who on April 28, celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary.

Canterbury

Mr. W. G. MacLeod has now returned home, following surgery in the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Chapman were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Majury, Rock Island.

The third card party, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Groom, was in aid of the Ladies' Guild. First prizes were won by Mrs. Everett Wootten and Mr. Wilbert Buchanan. Consolation prizes went to Mrs. D. Mayhew and Mr. H. Redden.

Floating prize was won by Thos. Chapman.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Groom and Larry, accompanied by Mr. Wilbert Buchanan, motored to Lancaster, N.H., for the wedding of Elizabeth Louise Groom to Thomas Haver. The wedding ceremony took place on Apr. 25, in Christ Methodist Church, with reception following in the Church Hall.

Mrs. Leslie Edwards spent a week in Montreal, guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. E. C. Fallow. She was also a dinner guest of Miss Marjorie Kerr.

TO THE ELECTORS In Stanstead County

"Money Is Not A Divine Institution"

Most of the people know that the burden of taxes and debts is too heavy, particularly for the working class. SOCIAL CREDIT would have brought them a relief. I rejoice over the fact that 13 of our candidates have been elected.

I wish to thank my organizers, who with little assets, have accomplished a tremendous job in recruiting 5,000 votes. I wish to thank loyal up to the end. Our message has not reached certain elements of the Stanstead population who have remained with the traditional parties.

To my friend Georges Vailancourt, my congratulations and best wishes of good luck, and I hope particularly that he will remedy the educational system, and will work to give Quebec a government as sound as in Alberta and British Columbia.

Sincerely,

Jean Loshier

WMS holds rally

SHERBROOKE — The Sherbrooke branch of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church Saturday held a rally at St. Andrew's Church on Frontenac St.

The highlight of the rally, attended by about 40 ladies, was an address by Miss Louise Gamble, a young missionary just returned from Taiwan who informed the group of the church's efforts in the far east as well as some interesting insights into the problems encountered during field work.

Besides the regular business, the rally also featured a discussion on education for mission led by Mrs. H. Mayhew and a talk entitled Synodical Under Fire by Mrs. D. H. Campbell.

Plan truce in Vietnam for May 19

SAIGON (AP) — A 24-hour truce in the Vietnam war will be declared by South Vietnam May 19 on the occasion of the anniversary of Buddha's birth, foreign minister sources said today.

The truce will be for "religious and humanitarian reasons," the sources said.

INSPECTION TIME — It's that time of the year again when cadet organizations all over the land put on the spit and polish for the annual inspection after a long winter of practicing military skills. It's no different in Sherbrooke where the Sherbrooke High School Cadet Corps held its annual inspection of the ranks Saturday. The inspection officer was Capt. Girard who took careful note of the proceedings at the Sherbrooke Hussars' William St. Armory. The program also featured a march-past, rifle demonstration, foot drill and wrestling.

From brass spittoons to apple pies

Knick knacks galore at new flea market

LENNOXVILLE — When someone mentions the term "flea market" it usually evokes visions of Latin quarters, the left bank of Paris or even the exotic byways of a North African casbah.

Now there's a flea market operating in Lennoxville which opened its doors yesterday, but cobbles are hardly part of the decor.

But the universal appeal of the flea market is still there and it's even exotic in a style that's ingeniously ET.

It's held in Nick Dean's monstrous red barn out on the Coaticook highway. More precisely it's located upstairs in the dance hall which usually echoes to the good-time down-home sounds of Albert Nubrown, so right away you're aware of the inimitable townships atmosphere which clings to the rafters and is worn into the floorboards.

In all it's a delight for handicraft bugs, souvenir hunters, serious as well as occasional antique collectors and just plain browsers.

Among the treasures to be found in the stalls which line the walls of the hall are cowbells, grandfather clocks, sleigh bells, pocket watches, crockery, glasses, quilts, articles of furniture, earthenware jugs, pots and a myriad of other knick knacks which have lost their everyday usefulness in the march of time, but are still fun to have around the house.

A stroll around reveals such things as a 1915 Hammond's Atlas of the World, a silver-plated military bugle whose inscription clearly shows it was made at 40J Rue Lafayette in Paris, and a squat brass spittoon moderately priced at $3.00.

Obviously no home should be without one.

Also among the oddities are a meat fibre breaker whose patent was taken out in 1915, a mirror framed by a horse's harness, an old ice cream maker and a miniature steam engine.

In another corner, the good ladies of the St. Mary's Guild sell an assortment of homemade bread, cakes, pies and tarts to tease the palate at teatime.

W. A. Blair, from Asbestos, has an interesting display of handmade lamps and decorations made of stained glass and lead as well as a charming collection of copper Tiffany-type candle lamps.

The whole affair was conceived and midwifed by Hartley Graham and sponsored by the Lennoxville Optimists Club.

Mr. Graham was involved in a somewhat similar enterprise in Ayer's Cliff last year, but that was an outdoors affair and subject to the fickle moods of the weatherman. This year's operation, he said, allows for much greater scope, and despite the fact that he still considers himself a greenhorn in the flea market business, he is optimistic of the Lennoxville show's future.

He is proud of the unique Eastern Townships flavor of his market since all the dealers are from the local area.

He expects more people to participate once the summer wears on and sees yesterday as only a beginning to a growing thing.

The market will open every second Sunday from now until Oct. 4.

10,000 at cemetery Observe liberation of Netherlands

GROESBEEK (CP) — Between 10,000 and 12,000 persons were present at the Canadian war cemetery Sunday for a ceremony in connection with the liberation of The Netherlands, 25 years ago next Tuesday.

They included the Canadian veterans affairs minister, Jean-Eudes Dube, The Netherlands defence minister, Willem den Toom, the ambassadors of Canada, Alfred Pick, Britain, France, Belgium and Poland, as well as a number of Canadian and Dutch generals.

Among the visitors from abroad also were 80 British and Canadian soldiers.

The Canadian and Dutch national anthems were played by the Royal Canadian Regiment which is stationed in London.

Fifteen wreaths were placed at the foot of the war monument, the first by Princess Margriet and her husband Pieter van Vollenhoven.

Groesbeek school children then put bunches of spring flowers near the 2,335 Canadian war graves.

During the ceremony eight Canadian fighter planes streaked over the area.

TROOPS ATTEND

Today is a national day of mourning and remembrance starting with a state church service in Amsterdam's Oude Lutherse Kerk followed by a noon-hour ceremony on the Damsquare in front of the royal palace. A detachment of 100 Canadian troops from West Germany and the Royal Canadian Regiment band are to attend, symbolic of the army that liberated Holland a quarter century ago.

Later today another state ceremony will take place in the Ridderzaal, the ancient hall of the knights now used as the upper house of The Netherlands parliament.

Meanwhile, by relays of runners a flame of remembrance will be carried throughout Monday from Maastricht to Wageningen, downstream on the lower Rhine from Arnhem, where the Germans formally surrendered.

A torchlight procession kindled from the Maastricht flame will weave through the streets of Wageningen this evening and thence disperse by foot carrying the flame to more than 100 cities, towns and villages throughout Holland. Its arrival in each some time the next day is to start the local celebration of the liberation anniversary.

Thousands of school children will be involved as flower and torch bearers in the observances which have been held every five years since 1945. It is being said that this year's observances will be the last.

The Canadian delegation will split up Tuesday so that Canada may be represented at the local ceremonies in Rotterdam, Deventer, Zutphen and Holten where the second-largest Canadian war cemetery in Holland is located.

Union leaders skeptical over inflation fighter's charges

OTTAWA (CP) — Union members gave a polite but skeptical reception Saturday to a message from inflation-fighter John Young that they are probably seeking too big a piece of the national economic pie.

Dr. Young, chairman of the federal prices and incomes commission, has offered similar warnings in recent months to union leaders across the country and been almost uniformly rebuffed for his efforts.

His address Saturday at the 25th annual convention of the Ontario federation of printing trades unions was the first time he has carried the word directly to union members themselves.

When he had finished he was given credit for sincerity but, as federation president Thomas Osborne said, his speech was "a little controversial in view of our line of thinking."

Industrial labor costs, Dr. Young said, have increased in recent years at a rate several times that of the increase in productivity.

"It should not be surprising that producers, faced with such increases in labor costs, are not able to absorb them indefinitely and are forced to raise prices where market conditions permit."

HAS BIGGER SHARE

At the moment, he said, labor is taking a bigger share of the national income than it has for many years in the past. He warned "this is associated with a profit squeeze for many firms which is most unlikely to be acceptable to business for any extended period."

He said that in the "vicious circle" of inflation, businessmen will be reluctant to moderate price increases so long as they can expect no moderation in the rate at which their labor costs increase. Labor, meanwhile, is unready to accept more moderate pay increases if it feels there is no check on the cost of living.

Dr. Young said direct government controls on the economy to break the cycle would hit hardest at young workers looking for their first job and older workers whose skills would be least in demand.

Another response to the problem would be simply to give up the effort to halt inflation.

Neither solution was satisfactory to him, however.

"I believe there is still to be found and mobilized in ordinary people from all ranks in the community, the good sense and desire to co-operate that alone can make possible a constructive solution to the dilemma posed by inflation," he said.

realized a team victory. In particular, one must appreciate the work of the chief organizer. Now that we have been elected, we must give certain priorities to agriculture to meet the demands of the farmers.

Finally, the Liberal Party and myself will battle against unemployment to give Quebec once again economic stability. Also, I wish to congratulate my opponents who fought a good fight although not coming out as the winners.

Federalism was the number 1 extremely important issue in Compton where we should explain the English element almost entirely supported the Liberal Party in Compton.

Windsor mill joins new group

SHERBROOKE — Domtar Pulp and Paper Products Ltd. announced Friday that its paper mill at Windsor, Que., is, as of today, a part of the Domtar Fine Papers group. J. H. Robertson is Vice-President and General Manager of Domtar Fine Papers Ltd.

The mill at Windsor produces both fine and kraft papers. Fine paper production began about ten years ago and now represents more than half the mill's volume.

The pulp and paper mill at Windsor, with J.A.J. Meyers as Resident Manager, employs 850 people, has an annual payroll in excess of $5,500,000 and generates another $10,000,000 of economic activity in the region.

who had confidence in my ability and the integrity of my party to represent you, I shall serve my fourth term as your elected member of parliament at Quebec!

With an election victory, such as I experienced, there goes numerous calls for appreciation visits, talks and letters of thanks. I know, even if I were to make an unrestricted attempt at thanking all those who helped me, I would never be able to reach everyone to whom I owe gratitude. I realize however, while a thank you of this nature is general in nature, it is sincere, and helps express my true appreciation. Believe me, when I say I am grateful. Thank you all, who helped me, supported me during my campaign, and especially you who voted for me!

In voicing this message of appreciation, I do not want to overlook my worthy opponents, who with their supporters, I hope shall also back me during my term in office. I will be working for the good of Stanstead County, and need all of your enthusiastic help!

Reversing brain drain

The fabric of international co-operation in recent years has been strained by the attraction exerted by the United States on foreign scientists, the so-called "brain drain."

Advanced and undeveloped countries alike have been disturbed by the outflow of their best engineering and research minds to the United States. The problem has been most serious for Great Britain, which, thanks to language and cultural similarities, has been a natural and major source of United States talent imports.

But coincident with the current descalation in American advanced research and the sharp employment cutback in the space program, something is happening to the talent flow. It is slowing and possibly even reversing.

The National Science Foundation reports a significant drop in scientific immigration.

Meanwhile, Britain finds repatriates from the United States climbing into the thousands and, after years of unsuccessful efforts to stem the outflow, presenting it with a new problem.

There just are not enough jobs. Scientific skills are, for the moment at least, a drug on the market, which indicates that the brain drain may never have been as serious as pictured and that we still have a lot to learn about efficient management of man's most important resource -- human talent.

Hypocrisy of Communism

Over the years the Communists have shown a great capacity for indulging in the big lie and the recent statement by Soviet Premier Kosygin in calling for a world-wide struggle against imperialism indicates they have lost little of this ability.

Without any direct statement to this effect by the Soviet Premier it still may be assumed that his cliché-ridden remarks were directed against the Western nations and especially against the United States as leader of the democratic world. It is a basic principle of the Kremlin's distorted view of the international scene that any Western action which seeks to thwart Communist aggression is imperialism.

It would be nice, although obviously impossible, if Russian Communists were prepared to acknowledge where the real imperialism exists and would proceed to do something about it.

Their preliminary step should be to get out of Czechoslovakia and let that country determine its own destiny. Then, in rapid order, they could unchain Bulgaria, Poland and East Germany. Next should come the liberation of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania -- three tiny, inoffensive but proud nations that were gobbled up by the Soviet Union during the Second World War.

And to show their goodwill, the Communists could stop their imperialistic meddling in the Arab states and in the war-torn lands of Southeast Asia.

In brief, they should stop being hypocrites, and admit the Soviet Union is the most imperialistic power of the present century.

Protest

It is high time we, the property owners did something drastic via the protest method or unanimously withhold payment on our outrageous assessment of 19 mills on our school taxes.

If we would stick together 100 percent and refuse to pay they neither can sell all our properties out or put us all in jail.

We were given no choice or voice when they inaugurated the Galt Regional School complex that was just stuffed down our throats. The township re-evaluated our properties out of all proportions compared with previous valuations but reduced the mills to compensate, then they based the school taxes on this excessive valuation. When and where is this ridiculous situation going to end?

Those who concur with this line of thought, let's start a committee and all sign a protest list and send it or better still have the committee deliver it in person to the school board. This is urgent.

When they don't get the required tax money to finance their elaborate school system they may just realize they have gone too far and be more realistic and not bleed the property owners like they are doing at present and come out with a sensible mill rate.

Trudeau strategy on trial

What was your first reaction to the Ottawa rumor that a Federal election lies ahead if Rene Levesque does well in the Quebec election today? Mine? Shock. Disbelief. A crude denial. He couldn't do it.

Well, one doesn't linger long in that position. A prime minister can call an election when he wishes. The restraints on him are likely these: Has he excuse enough to get into the campaign without infuriating the electorate; and, can he win? Mr. Trudeau is not a timorous chap. Technically, his mandate stretches 37 months ahead; traditionally, it stands up well for at least another 20 to 24 months.

Once you turn from the simplicity of an election call to possible reasons for one very soon, then the shock dissipates. Take these alternatives: Mr. Levesque as Premier-elect; or Mr. Levesque as leader of the official Opposition in a minority government situation.

Surely, the first would have to be considered as a later — and countermandate — to what Quebec (and Canada) gave Mr. Trudeau two years ago. The second possibility opens the likelihood of a chaotic period leading to a PQ victory next time.

In either case, Mr. Trudeau would have to consider both a grand strategy, then tactics to flow from it. An election call could be one of the tactical measures to contain or throw back the Separatists. We should all review the emergence of Mr. Trudeau, first as a didate, then in gaining confirmation from the people of his leadership. A number of alternative policies regarding Quebec have been kicking around in both Federal and Quebec politics:

Separatism; Associate state status linked with a nation-state of English Canadians;

A "special status" within a redrawn Confederation;

"Co-operative federalism" which seemed to suggest a flexible negotiation between the central and provincial governments, redressing balances and needs with the times; and Maintenance, essentially, of the status quo.

Mr. Trudeau swung the Liberals away from co-operative federalism. He knocked back Liberal advocates of associate status and special status (yes, there were some). He stood for one Canada, Quebec a province like the others. The constitution of 1867 had served Canada well. It could be reformed.

No one can be absolute about what won him the election of '68. I felt as a losing candidate that no other issue was so effective for Mr. Trudeau as his "One Canada" theme. Few would disagree with this, at least as the big factor in English Canada.

Mr. Trudeau did not win a simple majority of the total vote in 1968. (Neither will Mr. Levesque or Mr. Bourassa today.) But only a few political scientists quibble over such an inequity in our electoral system. He won a handsome majority of all the seats in Canada and of those in Quebec. Since then, Mr. Trudeau has presided at a number of constitutional conferences. He has been consistent there to his "One Canada" theme.

Before he became a politician, Mr. Trudeau argued that the 1867 arrangement was useful to French Canadians. It gave them, he wrote, "all the power they need to make Quebec a political society affording due respect for nationalist aspirations." He saw the trends: "Natural forces are presently favoring provincial autonomy."

"It is the centralizers," he argued, "who should be pressing for the constitutional change."

Since April, 1968, the Pepins and Lamontagnes and Hellyers and Kierans of the Liberal Party who had constitutional perceptions which differed from Mr. Trudeau's have kept quiet. More significantly, the Progressive Conservatives and the New Democrats have not been busy nor intent upon either challenging Mr. Trudeau in this area or, more importantly, advocating their former program positions (which arguably hinged on "Deux Nations" or "special status" or "co-operative federalism.")

From the composition of his Cabinet to the official appointments he has made to the extension of language and cultural rights to his constitutional position at conferences, Mr. Trudeau has been true to his 1968 line and to his similar stances when he was just an academic.

Only the rare skeptic and doom-sayer would argue that Mr. Trudeau has lost his "One Canada" mandate in English Canada. The French Canadians of Quebec, his people, may be different.

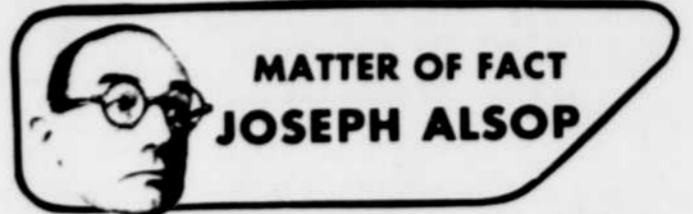

We shall soon know the present dimension of their discontent. If Mr. Levesque wins or almost wins, Mr. Trudeau surely won't assume that it is all over, that Quebec leaves.

There is no ready procedure on how Confederation may be dismembered. Even the Separatists argue about special referendums. It seems a fair judgment that separation would ensue peacefully if it were clear that it was the choice of most Quebecers.

Obviously, this provincial campaign is not producing a clear choice, although it may be the step before, or the step before the step, of such a choice.

Perhaps too optimistically, many of us outside Quebec think there's more emotional protest than any final decision being registered now in Quebec; that even a Levesque upsurge today would not contradict the likelihood that in another balloting, in a Federal election, Quebecers would give federalism a sweeping mandate.

Certainly, the response of the rest of Canada would be overwhelming. . . . It is easy to imagine Mr. Trudeau back as Prime Minister in late summer with perhaps 220 Liberal seats behind him and a mandate to knock separatism on the head in almost any

MATTER OF FACT
JOSEPH ALSOP

JERUSALEM — Israel is now in deadly peril—not immediately, to be sure, but for the long pull. That is by far the most probable meaning of the introduction of Soviet SAM-3 missiles into Egypt, complete with Russian crews masquerading in Egyptian uniforms.

This is no personal alarmist judgment, either. Instead, it is the bleakly down-to-earth reading of the new situation by Israel's great prime minister, Golda Meir, by the brilliant defense minister, Gen. Moshe Dayan, and by almost every other responsible Israeli leader this reporter has talked to.

The source of concern, it must be understood, is not the appearance in Egypt of this new type of Soviet anti-aircraft missile. The source of concern is, rather, the unprecedented use of Soviet troops to man the SAM-3s.

In sum, the new departure in Soviet behavior is seemingly much too radical to be an isolated development. If it is not isolated, in turn, you then have to think very carefully about what sort of broader intention the new departure indicates. And this, of course, is precisely what the Israeli leaders have been doing, with such disturbing results.

On the darkest but most likely assumption, the Soviet soldiers manning the SAM-3 missiles are no more than a first slice of salami. In the old days, when people in America used to give serious study to the Kremlin's methods, everyone knew the phrase "salami-slicing tactics."

It means that the Kremlin has a way of taking a thin first slice, too small to upset anyone (just as the Soviet troops manning SAM-3s have been accepted with fat-headed complacency in Washington). Then comes the second slice, and the third, and the fourth. And finally, by such slow stages, always without provoking opposition, the Kremlin characteristically reaches a result that would have aroused a typhoon of shocked opposition in the first instance.

The threat, in this case, is deeper and deeper Soviet involvement in the Arab-Israeli war. Then next step—perhaps many months later—could be the Soviets taking over the whole Egyptian ground-air defense system.

The third step—perhaps again much later—would then be Soviet pilots flying MIG-21s, no doubt in Egyptian uniform, "to defend" Egyptian territory against the wicked Israeli aggressors. And the final step might be the same Soviet pilots in the same MIGs turning up over Sinai in a "forward defensive role."

So described, this sort of progressive Soviet involvement may not sound very serious. For Israel, however, it would be a life-and-death matter.

Israel today, in truth, is like a thin-shelled egg, seemingly impervious but inwardly fragile. The defensive shell is in fact mainly composed of the incomparable skill and courage of the Israeli people; and at some stage in the process above-outlined Israel's defensive shell would surely be broken. Or else the Israelis would be driven to launch a desperate counterattack, regardless of the increasing Soviet involvement in the war.

These are the hideous perspectives you now hear the most responsible Israeli leaders discussing, with a kind of naked courage that no longer seems to exist anywhere else in the Free World. They are by no means sure, any more than this reporter is sure, that the future will unavoidably bring the kind of progressive Soviet involvement that has been described.

They are very sure, however, as any sensible man must be sure, that more and more direct Soviet participation in the war has suddenly become a strong possibility. If the United States goes on weakly standing aside, moreover, it will even be a strong probability. Hence the contrast is frightening between the President refusing to guarantee Israel the planes on which Israel's survival depends and the Kremlin simultaneously pouring out arms for the Arabs and sending in Soviet troops in a combat role.

"Until recently, we thought there were two deterrents to another full-scale war," Golda Meir told me somberly. "The first was our own success in ending Nasser's 'war of attrition.' The second was the feeling in the Kremlin that at a certain point the United States would say 'This exceeds the limit.' But the second deterrent has already been greatly impaired."

This woman like an Old Testament prophet reflected briefly, and then continued: "So what are we to do, if worst comes to worst? Shall we lie down and die? I tell you, we shall never do that. We shall fight!"

DR. MARGARET SMART hopes Hospital, where she has been for new equipment to administer practising since 1953. anaesthetic at the Sherbrooke (Photo: Len Koraeen)

And space costs money

By MARGUERITE BLADON

The lady hiding behind the mask is Doctor Margaret Smart ... and she is doing a very special, and interesting job, at the Sherbrooke Hospital. We aren't hiding her face on purpose, it's part of her job to be thusly attired because she's an anaesthetist, no less!

And lady anaesthetists are a very rare breed. Doctor Smart was born in Invergardon, Ross-Shire, Scotland. She studied medicine at the University of Edinburgh. Then a most interesting event took place. She married Hamish Smart in 1952, and they had five children, all girls, and TWO sets of twins... It would seem that it isn't only her medical work that's different!

When the Smart family came to Canada, they lived with an aunt in Foster, and one day Hamish decided to apply for work at the Sherbrooke Hospital. He started in July, 1953, and was followed shortly after by Margaret, who began as an intern... When her five years had elapsed and she was a Canadian citizen, she began as a general practitioner and anaesthetist.

We have a husband and wife team, and this is a rarity, so we think that we are very fortunate to have this unit at the hospital, and a close-knit unit they are too.

When asked the all-important question, what does she think the hospital needs desperately... Doctor Smart had three words to say, "Another anaesthetic machine!" Well, machines, no matter how small or large they may be, take space, and space costs money. The Sherbrooke hospital cares enough to keep up with changing times, and new equipment is part of this change. Do you care enough to help during our annual campaign? We like to think so, because it's your hospital!

POLLY'S POINTERS
Wheelchair Confinees
Can Still Be Productive

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I read Mrs. K. F.'s letter about the mental tasks her brother did while confined to a wheelchair. My mother spent much of her married life in one and yet raised nine children. My son has been in such a chair for 18 years but has not been denied a productive life. He is 6 feet 3 and his paralysis begins under his arms, which gives him no balance, but he alone maintains his own home. He does his own cleaning, scrubbing, waxing floors, cleaning rugs, walls and his own laundry. When he has time, he does much of his own cooking and entertains beautifully at dinner parties.

He maintains a complete metal and machinery shop, manufactures furniture and makes many metal appliances, including hand controls for cars and airplanes, one of which he owns and flies. This he does mostly alone.

Please, Polly, let people confined to wheelchairs know that life holds much more for them than small, menial tasks. I know each case is different and all cannot do the same things but let handicapped people dignify their lives by recognizing that they can be useful and productive.—MRS. C. S. M.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—My snow boots are beginning to mildew, smell musty and have grayish streaks on the sides. Can someone tell me what to do to keep them from rotting?—MISS A. D.

DEAR POLLY—I am answering Mrs. H. K., who has trouble keeping two-section, asbestos pads on her dining table. My table pad has a felt backing, so I suggest that she paste felt on the back of her pads. I think she will find that works fine.—MRS. H. R. B.

DEAR POLLY—Do tell Mrs. H. K. to use some thin art foam material under her sliding table pads. Place a square of this at several places on the table and then put the pads on top of this. It will not budge. The size of the table will determine the number of squares needed but one on each corner and two or three placed in the center should be sufficient. I also use this method to keep scatter rugs in place on my waxed hardwood floors and to keep my bread board from "creeping" on the smooth counter top when rolling out pie crusts, etc.—GLADYS

Fashion

The long way around

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal-born Hugh Garber took a long, circuitous route to get into fashion designing in his native city. But he's already well embarked on his career at the age of 25.

When he finished high school he went to London, where he studied two years at Hornsey College of Art, which has a dress design department.

Then he took off for Israel for what he intended to be a three-week holiday. But once there he felt he couldn't face another London winter, so he worked for six months on a kibbutz, or co-operative farm. From there he took a boat to Turkey and Greece before returning to London.

Strapped for money, he started washing dishes in a pub from 8 p.m. to midnight for about $3 a night. During the day he became a part-time book-keeper for a wholesale meat market at $60 a week, and managed the odd modelling job. He saved up enough to get him home and bring gifts for his family as well.

After this rather unusual approach to fashion, Hugh attended the Fashion Arts Academy in Montreal. That was in 1965. But he wanted to get back to Europe again, so he wrote ahead to nine top designers for interviews and landed in Italy with a portfolio of sketches.

DIDN'T LIKE ROME

"I was sure they'd set the fashion world on fire," says Hugh. He did get a job with Patrick de Barentzen of Rome, where he remained for nearly two years. He was even sent to Paris to buy fabrics and finally entrusted with taking a de Barentzen collection to show to buyers in New York.

Then he designed for a ready-to-wear firm for four months for experience before he came home. He'd had enough of Rome. "There's only so far I could go there professionally, and the pay is poor."

He decided to canvass wholesale houses in Montreal, and the second one he visited was Margo Dress, where he was hired on the spot. For two years now he has been doing collections for them under the Hugh Garber label, and his 1970 summer collection numbers 125 garments.

"I like to dress ladies," says Hugh. "I like them to wear feminine makeup and hair styling."

For these feminine customers of Margo Dress he has included a lot of tucking and embroidery. For late spring there is an ensemble in a semi-paisley cotton voile. The sleeveless dress has a tucked bodice, and the shirt-sleeved-style coat is open-fronted. A black synthetic liner dress in the new wrap style is edged in white and has frog closings.

For summer one of his full-skirted dresses is black-dotted white organza with black Schiffl embroidery down the front and on the deep cuffs. Another is a grey-on-grey paisley pattern with pink-tucked bodice, full skirt and white leather belt.

THE CHEMINI — It's brief, it's semi-sheer, but it's skillfully cut and shaped to provide the perfect outline under mini dresses and skirts. Named the "chemini" because it's a mini-length chemise, it comes in all-over lace in white, black or nude.

Scanlon-Watkins

Scanlon — Watkins

BEDFORD — The marriage of Linda Dale Watkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Brown, to Danny James Scanlon, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James W. Scanlon, took place on April 25th at St. James Church, The Rev. Wallace Sparling officiated at the ceremony.

White and yellow mums were used as church decorations while the guest pews were marked with bows of white satin ribbon. The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Brown wore a floor length gown of white organza, trimmed with Chantilly lace. A long train fell from the shoulders. Her veil of tufted tulle illusion fell from a crown of pearls. She carried a bridal bouquet of yellow roses and white mums.

The attendants were Miss Candice Blodeau of St. Albans, Vt., who wore a gown of yellow organza over yellow crepe with a matching picture hat. As maid of honor, she carried a bouquet of yellow mums. The bridesmaids were Miss Janet Mason and Miss Joanne Crandall who were gowned in mint green organza over mint green crepe with yellow picture hats. Their bouquets were yellow mums.

Mr. Allan Scanlon acted as best man for the bridegroom. The ushers were Mr. Clifford Britch and Mr. Robert Scanlon all of St. Albans.

Mrs. Brown, mother of the bride was in a gown of beige lace. Her corsage was of apricot carnations.

The reception was held in St.

James Church Hall where there were a hundred guests. The bride's table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake and red roses.

The bride wore a mint green ensemble for the wedding trip, which will be spent on a motoring trip through the Maritimes. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Scanlon will take up residence in St. Albans, Vt.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. John Scanlon, Jr.; Mr. John Scanlon, Sr.; Mrs. James Scanlon, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blodeau; Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Guay; Mrs. Michel McGovern.

Mrs. Edna Allen; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Smart; Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Birch, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Smart; Mrs. Doris Guay, all of St. Albans, Vt.; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Almonte; Providence R.I.; Mr. and Mrs. Harden Whiting, Manchester, N.H.; Mr. and Mrs. J. F. McCarthy, Melrose, Mass.; Allen Scanlon, Keiser Air Force Base, Mississippi; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vigneaux, Shrewsbury, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. James Watkins, Sault Ste Marie, Ont.; Mrs. John Wootton, Sudbury, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. John Watkins, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Andre Verreault, Montreal; Miss Patricia Watkins, Florida; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Lefebvre Bolton Center; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brown, Stanbridge East; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Phelps Greenfield Park; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gallagher and Mrs. Ma; Gallagher, Waterloo and Mrs. Violet Fortin, Rhode Island.

Is it a he or a she?

NEW YORK (AP) — Can you tell the sexes apart? Invariably? Sometimes? Never?

Woman, in her quest to be equal to man, has come to dress, act and look so much like him that it would be a brash person indeed who claimed he could always tell one from the other.

Here's a handy little guide to help you in a dilemma all of us seem to be facing more and more often:

If it lifts its hands palms upward to express shocked dismay, it is feminine. If it pounds a fist into a palm and turns red in the face, it is masculine.

Does it wipe the sweat off its forehead with a finger? That's a man. Does it pat its perspiring brow with a piece of crumpled paper tissue? That's a woman.

If it can spell puce correctly, it is a she. If it can't spell or pronounce puce and doesn't even know what the word means, it is a he.

Would it rather wear rain-skirts than look at them? Put it down as a Miss. Would it rather look at a miniskirt than a maxiskirt? Put it down as a Mister.

think about sex all the time—and hope for the best? You know it's a him.

Melbourne Ridge

The Melbourne Ridge United Church Women held its April meeting at the home of Mrs. R. Morrison with Mrs. K. Johnston as assistant hostess. Devotional period conducted by Mrs. S. Johnston, was taken from the clip sheet, the theme being, A sense of Belonging.

The May tea, to be held on May 23 is Buffet Style this year. One hundred new Creeds are to be ordered to put in the Church Hymn Books. Community Friendship reported 28 cards, nine calls and 25 Hospital calls.

The U.C.W. will participate in giving of the Least Coin, each member is to donate five cents a month, which will be collected in October to be sent to headquarters and used for the needy.

Mrs. G. Beers gave an interesting report of the annual meeting which she attended in Sherbrooke. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. N. Fowler and Mrs. J. Wood will be in charge of the devotional period. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostesses.

PAPA WALKS BABY

If it walks a yowling baby at 3 a.m., it's the papa. If it takes the baby out in the stroller at 3 p.m., it's the mama.

Does it always say exactly what is on its mind? That's a him. Does it talk for hours and still leave you wondering what in the world is really on its mind? That's a her.

Does it cheat on its diet by sneaking a chocolate marshmallow sundae now and then? That's a fat girl. Does it cheat on its diet by sneaking a double dollop of mashed potatoes at lunch? That's a fat fellow.

Is it late because it takes it so long to dress? That's the mistress of the house. Is it late getting home because it missed three trains after stopping off to have just one with the boys? That's the master of the house.

Does it like to talk about sex all the time and discuss its significance? You can bet it's a her. Would it rather just Exiled Sihanouk promises revenge against U.S.A.

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's deposed head of state, has declared that an Indo-Chinese alliance of leftist forces will bury the United States and its lackeys. Radio Peking said today.

In his second statement in three days, the prince said President Nixon's dispatch of U.S. troops into Cambodia was utterly unreasonable and was aimed only at saving the present Cambodian government.

In the statement, Sihanouk said the peoples of Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos were forming a united front against U.S. imperialism and its lackeys "and in the coming months will deal them heavy blows and finally bury them."

Sihanouk appealed Sunday to the world for aid to Cambodian guerrillas struggling against the new Phnom Penh government and "foreign invaders."

In a statement quoted by New China news agency, the prince accused the United States of open intervention in Cambodia by sending American ground and air forces and South Vietnamese government troops into the kingdom.

Survivors say Caribbean jet liner accident was avoidable

MONTREAL (CP) — One of two Montreal residents who escaped death in Saturday's ditching of a jetliner near a Caribbean island said Sunday the incident could have been avoided.

Winston Evans, vacationing with his wife Wilma, said the aircraft had clearance to land at St. Croix in the Virgin Islands, but the pilot apparently chose not to land.

Mr. Evans said the jetliner also had an option to refuel in Bermuda, but did not stop over.

And he criticized the rescue equipment as inadequate.

"The lifejackets were only flotation collars ... and mine kept on deflating ..."

Mr. Evans said only one life raft was available for rescue of the 63 persons on board the DC9, on lease from Overseas National Airways, a Dutch line based in Curacao.

Mr. Evans, 28, interviewed from a St. Croix hospital said: "We had one life raft for the whole plane. It was big enough for two people to lie on their sides—the size of a double bed."

"There were 28 people hanging on to the sides ..."

21 MISSING

The U.S. coast guard said at least one person died but 21 others were still missing Sunday.

Mr. Evans said their flight was to have landed in St. Martin at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, but a tropical storm ended any such move.

"We were still going at twenty to four," he said. "We had approached the runway five times, but always at right angles because of the storm."

"We saw a fire truck on one of our passes and we knew something was wrong."

"Still there was no announcement. At about 17 or 18 minutes to four, we were told to put on our life jackets as a precautionary measure because we were running low on fuel. We hit the water at 12 minutes to four."

"Some people never had a chance—they were still standing."

Mr. Evans said the plane "seemed to burst apart." Passengers at the front were in seats that "just took off."

"There was water in our cabin right away. One unconscious man had water up to his neck before he was revived."

He said "a lot of people" perished, including "two little girls" and a stewardess.

"The storm was getting worse all the time. There were 30-foot waves and they felt like a roller coaster ride. ... I was picked up after three hours, my wife after two."

Film stars snap up souvenirs

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (Reuters) — Hollywood film stars rushed to snap up souvenirs of their own parts Sunday as some of the most poignant memories of 56 years of moviemaking went on the auction block at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

Actor Stephen Boyd, there to buy the Roman chariots from his film Ben Hur, was among the crowd of about 5,000 which pushed into the sound stage to hear the machine-gun fast bidding.

Walter Pidgeon, Barbra Streisand, Barbara Stanwyck and Mickey Rooney were among the stars who browsed through the costumes and effects from such historical films as Camille. Metro, feeling the effect of the modern film crisis, decided earlier this year to sell part of its studio in nearby Culver City and to auction off the warehouses full of costumes, furniture and other movie trappings.

Cannons, cars, gaudy costumes, chandeliers, valuable furniture antiques, chariots—even Tarzan's loincloth—were put on the auction block.

Trinidad still in emergency

PORT OF SPAIN (Reuters) — Prime Minister Eric Williams warned Sunday that the emergency in Trinidad is not over.

In his first nationwide radio and television speech to the people since a state of emergency was declared April 21, Williams said:

"No democratically elected government can, after the challenge of armed revolution that we have passed through, evade its responsibility for seeking to protect citizens of the country against a recurrence of this threat."

In his 10-minute speech, Williams called for an urgent review of the role and function of the 760-man defence force. He said he would appoint a committee to consider the army's role and report to him in 14 days.

He also called for an examination of the constructive aspects of the Black Power movement which, for two months, held virtually unchecked demonstrations that led to arson and terrorism throughout the country.

Said Williams: "Let us make no bones about it. I identify myself fully with its constructive aspect."

The Black Power movement called on the government to tackle the serious unemployment problem in the country, share the wealth of the country's natural resources, curb spiralling prices and the economic power wielded by foreign firms.

Stanstead Masons entertain at sugar on snow party

STANSTEAD — About 40 members of Golden Rule Masonic Lodge, A.F. & A.M. Stanstead, and their guests gathered recently in the banquet hall of the Masonic hall for a sugar on snow party and social evening.

The group was welcomed by the Worshipful Master, Norman Chamberlain, Jr. While chief cook of the sugar, Bert Hill, was doing his job, two films were shown, one was of Jay Peak and the other about Vermont history, both much enjoyed by the group.

Appreciation was expressed to Mr. Chamberlain and those who had assisted him.

Jordanian King Hussein predicts power struggle

King Hussein of Jordan said Sunday the Middle East is moving toward a big-power conflict because of what he called U.S. indifference and a one-sided policy favoring Israel.

The young monarch, often described as the most West-leaning of Arab leaders, asserted in an interview broadcast by an American television network in effect, that the United States has let him down.

He said Jordan has received no Soviet arms as yet but is considering acceptance of such aid. And he deplored the cancellation of a special U.S. envoy's visit to Amman, calling the action an insult. The visit was cancelled because of anti-American demonstrations by Palestine guerrillas there.

Hussein said his government's aim has been not only to restore peace between Arabs and Israelis but to prevent the Middle East conflict from growing into a conflict between the great powers.

Meanwhile, a Palestine Arab organization charged that Jordanian forces were locked in battle with Arab commandos and 14 persons had died so far.

A spokesman for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine said Jordanian troops started Saturday to surround bases of the front and other commando organizations in the northern Jordan Valley and started to shell them and attempt to occupy the bases.

Arab commandos battled with Israeli forces for 15 hours Saturday 10 miles inside Israeli territory, the Palestinian Armed Struggle Command said in Amman.

A command spokesman said there were heavy losses among Israeli troops.

An Egyptian commando force crossed the Gulf of Suez early Sunday and attacked an Israeli military camp and command post in the El Tor area in southern Sinai, the Middle East news agency reported. But an Israeli military spokesman denied the report.

Doc Spock arrested again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Benjamin Spock, war critic and pediatrician, was arrested with at least 76 other persons Sunday when they conducted a religious service in a park across from the White House to protest the movement of U.S. troops into Cambodia.

National park police moved in and told the 100 persons gathered for the service that it was being conducted illegally. The service was near its end when the officers arrived.

A police officer attempted to draw aside one of the participants, Rev. David Hunter, secretary-general of the National Council of Churches. But Hunter knelt down and the others followed suit.

Police then arrested them. There was no violence.

Spock forfeited a $25 fine and was released a short time after the demonstration, which had begun at 4 p.m. Many others decided to spend the night in a jail before a court appearance today.

Those arrested with Spock and Hunter included Rev. John Bennett, president of Union Theological Seminary, and his wife; Rev. Malcolm Boyd, Episcopal priest and author and three members of the recently disbanded Vietnam Moratorium Committee.

Ladies Guild of Windsor meets at Greenlay Home

WINDSOR — The St. George's Ladies Guild met on April 21 at the home of Mrs. Eva Strew, Greenlay. Mrs. Strew had offered her home for the meeting, which the Windsor Ladies much appreciated, as expressed by the president, Mrs. A. Oakley, during the lunch hour. Opening prayers were conducted by the president, Mrs. G. Watson, who read the minutes of the previous meeting. It was decided that a group of four would go to clean the basement of the church.

A drawing was held on a table cloth, donated by Mrs. G. MacLeod and won by Mrs. T. Sundborg. Remnants of cloth were also auctioned off by Mrs. M. Halliday. Guests included Mrs. H. Perkins, Richmond, Mrs. G. Robinson, Mrs. W. Halliday, Greenlay and Mrs. G. MacLeod, Windsor.

THE WELL CHILD® New Treatment Concept Used on Child's Deafness

Practically all children with a hearing disorder have some residual hearing. In order to develop this to the greatest extent, Dr. John H. Gaeth of Detroit uses a new concept of treatment. He found that audiovisual training of partially deaf children, far from helping them, interferes with their ability to hear because, following the line of least resistance, the child will concentrate on the visual at the expense of the auditory. Teaching lip reading or sign language has the same disadvantage. Even fitting these children with hearing aids early did not result in as much improvement as was expected.

What Dr. Gaeth set out to do was to get these children of kindergarten age to use the hearing they had to the fullest extent so that it would not suffer an atrophy of disuse. In his department at the Wayne State Rehabilitation Institute, the child is first taught visually without any use of spoken language, then he is taught auditorily. He compares this approach with that used by a mother with a normal child. The child playing with a cup forms a visual concept, then he hears his mother say, "Cup."

At the Institute they do not forcibly turn the child's head toward the teacher and mouth the word as is done in teaching lip reading nor do they finger-spell as is done in teaching sign language. The children who started out at the Institute and transferred to a regular school did not do well. But those who transferred to a school for the deaf and were fitted with hearing aids after their preliminary training spoke more clearly and were better able to communicate with others than those who had not had the special training.

Q—Our doctor says our year-old has William's disease. What is it? He is underweight and not very active. Is there any cure for it?

A—The nearest I can find to William's disease is Wilms' tumor. This is a surgical emergency inasmuch as the involved kidney should be removed as soon as possible after the diagnosis is made. X-ray treatment is usually given after the operation to prevent a recurrence. A recent study shows that giving the child dactinomycin following the operation gives a better chance for a permanent cure than radiotherapy.

Tuesday, May 5
PRESENT—FOR YOU AND YOURS... Good cycle for domestic matters. Disagreements can be quickly ironed out since people are in a forgiving mood and willing to go more than half way. Telephone calls may take up more of the day than you wish to spend just gabbing.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19) — Although tempted, do not speak sharply to sensitive person who displeases you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) — Don't shift responsibility unless you are certain job will not suffer.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Irritability of those around you starts the day off wrong. Try to remain cheerful.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21) — A little pressure in the money department. You may have to defer purchase.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Much activity in Leo charts. You should be able to cope with whatever arises.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Be grateful to friend who takes a chore off your hands. Return favor later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Although not your usual procedure, it may be wise to back down for the time being.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Consistent performance will impress higher-ups—perhaps to the point of a reward for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — You'll get cooperation provided you request it in a diplomatic manner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Try to avoid confusion, although it is a little hard to do today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Take a second look at idea which you recently discarded as impractical.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — Idle remark may give you a clue as to how to proceed from here on.

Oswald: "The important letter in the code word ARCH is the H. As declarer, you ask How can I make my contract? As defender, you ask How can I beat this contract?"

Jim: "When there is a trump suit, the first question is: What should you do about the trump suit? Should you draw all the trumps, or none of the trumps?"

Oswald: "South wins the first heart. There is no reason to hold off. Then, if he draws trumps before attacking diamonds and East is unkind enough to hold up his ace of diamonds just once, South is going to wind up losing two hearts, two clubs and a diamond for down two."

Jim: "If South draws two rounds of trumps, leaving the queen in dummy, he can then go after diamonds. East can bother him by ducking three times. In this case, South must discard a heart from his hand. West will ruff in, but South will lose just that one trump, one heart and one club since dummy's queen of trumps will be there to ruff the last club."

Oswald: "Another line of play is for South to leave trumps entirely alone and start after diamonds right away. In case East ducks twice, South abandons diamonds and plays ace and another club. This way, he loses two hearts and just one club."

Jim: "Both these lines are essentially the same and based on the idea that, in order to get real value out of dummy's diamond suit, South must go after it while he still has an entry to dummy."

Superstar trades: many have paid off

NEW YORK (NEA)—Oscar Robertson is not the first superstar to have been peddled when he still was effective enough to make a difference.

Babe Ruth, for one, was traded from the Boston Red Sox to the New York Yankees in 1920 and then began to construct home run records and the House that Ruth Built. Jim Thorpe, for another, sold himself around as a football player from the Canton Bulldogs to the Orangethrough Indians, among many others. "And," wrote one biographer, scratching around in sketchy background, "he didn't play every game, but when he did play his team usually won."

Robertson was recently traded from the Cincinnati Royals to the Milwaukee Bucks. The Bucks also possess 7-3 Lew Alcindor. The combination of Alcindor, who may become the best big man in NBA history, and Robertson, the best all-around player in NBA history, has excited people who cherish dynasties such as the New York Yankees, Green Bay Packers, Boston Celtics, U.S. Steel and the Plantagenets.

The Bucks, without Robertson, recently lost the Eastern Division final play-off series, four games to one, to the New York Knicks.

Similarly, the Los Angeles Lakers of the past few years had been playing the Celtics in the NBA finals, year after year, and losing. All they needed, it was supposed, was a good big man.

In the summer of 1968, Philadelphia traded Wilt Chamberlain to Los Angeles. The Lakers already had superstars Elgin Baylor and Jerry West. "With those three guys," wrote a Philadelphia writer, "the Lakers will win the championship even if they round out the starting five with Ronald Reagan and Doris Day."

Maybe Reagan and Day would have made the difference after all. The Lakers again lost to Boston, four games to two, with Chamberlain sitting out much of the final quarter of the sixth game.

Interestingly, Chamberlain had been traded once before, and again his team did not immediately win the championship. Midway during the 1964-65 season, the San Francisco Warriors sent Wilt to Philadelphia. It took two seasons for the 76ers to win the NBA title.

The most important recent trade for a star NBA player was the one in which Dave DeBusschere came to the Knicks in December, 1968. From that time on, the Knicks have been a strong, well-balanced, contending team.

Jerry Lucas, a star forward who had teamed with Robertson on the Royals since 1965, was traded last fall to San Francisco. The Warriors did not make the play-offs.

There have been memorable deals involving superstars in baseball and football through the years. Following are some of the major ones, with a note on the immediate results, inspired by the speculation of how the Milwaukee Bucks will do next season with the acquisition of Oscar Robertson:

In 1886, "King" Kelly of "Slide, Kelly, Slide!" fame, led the National League in hitting with a .388 average. He played for the Chicago Cubs, who incidentally won the pennant. The next season he was sold to Boston for the then phenomenal sum of $10,000 (he was called the $10,000 beauty"). With Kelly batting .394 Boston moved from fifth place to fourth in 1887. The Cubs dropped to third.

After the 1926 season, two future Hall of Famers were traded for each other. The World Champion St. Louis Cardinals sent Rogers Hornsby, their second baseman and manager, to the New York Giants for Frank Frisch, second baseman. Hornsby's average went from .317 to .361, and the Giants went from fifth to third. Frisch's average went from .314 to .337, but the Cards dropped to second place.

The next season Hornsby was sent to Boston, where he became playing-manager again. He hit .387, but the team remained in seventh place. The next season (1929) he went to the Cubs, became manager, hit .380, and led the team from third place to the pennant.

Depression days accounted for some astounding deals. In 1933, Clark Griffith created headlines by dealing off his manager-best player-shortstop-son-in-law, Joe Cronin, to the Red Sox for a quarter of a million dollars. Thirteen years later the Red Sox, with Cronin still manager but no longer the shortstop, won a pennant.

For money alone, Philadelphia A's manager-owner Connie Mack sold several of his stars. After the 1933 season, Mickey Cochrane was sent to Detroit, where he became the manager and star catcher. The Tigers won two successive pennants. Also after '33, Mack sold Lefty Grove to the Red Sox, and the pitcher helped Boston move up from seventh to fourth. After 1935, slugger Jimmy Foxx was sold to Boston, too. The A's were now an eighth-place club.

In 1938, the Cards sent Dizzy Dean, whose toe injury had affected his pitching, to the Cubs. Dean still won seven of his eight decisions and the Cubs won the pennant, after finishing second the season before.

In more recent times, trades for Orlando Cepeda and Frank Robinson have made big changes.

Cepeda, traded to St. Louis from the Giants in 1966, was Most Valuable Player the following season. He helped the Cardinals become World Champions.

Robinson, traded from Cincinnati to Baltimore in 1966, immediately converted the Orioles to World Champions, as he became the Triple Crown winner and World Series hero.

One of the most spectacular trades in any sport was the one the Los Angeles Rams made in March, 1959, for half-back Ollie Matson. Coincidentally, the team that traded him was the Chicago Cardinals. The Rams gave up 11 players for Matson.

Sometimes, as they say, 11 heads are better than one. The Rams were 8-4-0 in 1958. With Matson the following season, they won two of 12 games.

Three of football's finest quarterbacks have been traded: Bobby Layne, Norm Van Brocklin and Y. A. Tittle.

After the first two games in 1958, Layne (who earlier in his career was sent from Chicago to Detroit and helped the Lions become champions) was traded from Detroit to Pittsburgh. He helped Pittsburgh climb to third place (7-4-1) after starting the season 1-4.

Also in 1958, the Rams traded Van Brocklin to Philadelphia. The Eagles dropped from fifth to last. But they tied for second in 1959 and won the championship in 1960. And Van Brocklin figured that was a good time to retire.

Bruins win 6-1 over tenacious squad

Third period splurge ousts Blues

By CHUCK SVOBODA

ST. LOUIS (CP) — Johnny Bucyk and others on the Boston Bruins' forward lines could enjoy some easy scoring in the Stanley Cup finals as long as team-mate Bobby Orr can continue to attract a live shadow.

In the first game of the best-of-seven series Sunday, St. Louis Blues' coach Scotty Bowman sent his left wingers to follow the high-scoring Boston defenceman and stop his often spectacular rushes.

"When they shadow Bobby, it takes one of their forwards out of the game, as far as I'm concerned," said Bucyk after he scored three goals to lead the Bruins to a 6-1 victory.

Bowman switched Jim Roberts, normally a right winger or right defenceman, to left wing where he was the most effective in sticking with Orr, who works at right defence. When Roberts was off the ice, left wingers Tim Ecclestone and Terry Crisp kept an eye on Orr but stayed closer to the play.

"Roberts did a bang of a job," said Bowman. "The others didn't do so well. Roberts is the best at it because he wants to do it."

But while Orr was being watched, he dumped the puck out to his forwards, who had one less opposing forward to face in their attack. And Orr said with indifference: "I could have had lunch out there—no bother at all."

WILL KEEP WATCH

The teams meet again here Tuesday in the second game, and Bowman said he will continue to send a forward in to watch Orr.

"Sure it's still good strategy," Bowman said. "When he's on the ice, he controls the game."

"We're going to try it more," said Bowman, pointing out that the shadowing forwards were given no offensive responsibilities.

Still, Roberts managed the only St. Louis goal when he and Bill McCreary broke into the Boston zone with Orr the only defencer back. Orr followed McCreary as he carried the puck in and Roberts took the pass to fire a quick shot past Boston goalie Gerry Cheevers.

The Blues outshot the Bruins 11-9 in the first period, but Bucyk got the first goal with just 15 seconds left when he fired a screened shot from directly in front of goaltender Jacques Plante.

Roberts' goal tied the game early in the second period, but Bucyk scored the winner less than four minutes later when he parked at the corner of the net and converted a quick pass from Johnny McKenzie.

Bucyk's third goal in the third period along with one each from Wayne Carleton, Derek Sanderson and Phil Esposito completed the rout.

KNOCKED OUT

The Blues suffered a hard blow early in the second period when Plante was knocked unconscious by a slapshot from the point by Fred Stanfield.

The 41-year-old goalie lay prone on the ice for about three minutes before being helped to his feet by his team-mates. His face mask was cracked by the deflected shot but it kept him from suffering any laceration.

He was taken to hospital where he was later listed as "satisfactory." Doctors said x-ray results were not immediately available. He was kept overnight for observation.

The Blues also lost defenceman Barclay Plager in the third period after he suffered bruised ribs. He sat out the rest of the game and it was not immediately known if he would be in action Tuesday.

After the 16,715 fans gave Plante a standing ovation on his way to the dressing room, rookie Ernie Wakely took over in the St. Louis nets with 16:03 left in the second period.

Plante had made 13 saves to that point but Wakely faced 21 more Boston drives as the Bruins outshot the Blues 35-29 throughout the game.

Cheevers worked hard stopping the 28 shots to win the praise of coach Harry Sinden, who complained the Blues placed "too much emphasis" on Orr.

"Heck, we've got a goaltender too," said Sinden, "with a little help from a crossbar and a post."

The Blues, who had seven power-play opportunities in the game, always posed a threat to Cheevers but several of their shots went wide or bounced off the goalposts.

Cheevers was particularly sharp in stopping centre Red Berenson.

"He's the most dangerous," said Cheevers. "I always look for him."

Esposito's goal late in the game, which came after he skated easily around defenceman Noel Picard, gave him a total of 12 for the playoffs to tie the record set by Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal Canadiens in 1944 and tied by Jean Beliveau of Montreal in 1956.

And Esposito's assist on Bucyk's second goal gave him nine for a total of 21 points to tie the record set by Stan Mikita

JOHN BUCYK

SPORTS IN BRIEF

In satisfactory condition

ST. LOUIS (CP) — Veteran goalie Jacques Plante was listed in satisfactory condition in hospital Sunday night after he was knocked unconscious during the first game of the Stanley Cup Final series.

The 41-year-old St. Louis Blues netminder was felled by a shot from Boston Bruins' centre Fred Stanfield early in the second period of the afternoon game.

He lay on the ice about three minutes before recovering and was helped to the dressing room by his team-mates.

The shot cracked the face mask in the area of the forehead. Doctors said Plante was being kept in hospital overnight for observation until results of x-rays are available.

Coach Harry Sinden, whose Bruins went on to win the game 6-1, said the shot from the point by Stanfield travelled along the ice but deflected up into Plante's face off Phil Esposito's stick.

Rookie goalie Ernie Wakely completed the game for St. Louis.

Stewart captures another

GOTEMBA, Japan (AP) — Jackie Stewart of Scotland, reigning world auto racing champion, led all the way at an average 120.2 miles an hour to win the Japan Automobile Federation Grand Prix by 50 seconds Sunday.

Stewart, driving a Brabham BT-30, covered the 186 miles—50 laps around the 3.72-mile Fuji speedway—in one hour, 33 minutes.

Maxwell Stewart of Australia, in a Mildren-Wagott, trailed him across the finish line of the track near the foot of Mt. Fuji. Stewart took a winning purse of $5,555 and Maxwell Stewart received $1,389.

Third was Japan's Kunimi Nagamatsu and fourth was New Zealand's Graeme Lawrence.

Voyageurs eliminated

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Buffalo Bisons scored twice in the final period Sunday night to defeat Montreal Voyageurs 4-2 and eliminate the American Hockey League regular-season champions from the Calder Cup playoffs.

The Bisons, Western Division champions, now will play a best-of-seven series against Springfield Kings, runners-up in the Eastern Division, for the playoff title. Buffalo won three games in the three-game semi-final round-robin. Springfield won two and Montreal lost all three of its games.

Gary Veneruzzo put the Bisons ahead in the second minute of play with a shot from just beyond the blue line that skipped past goalie Jack Norris. Guy Charron tied the score less than three minutes later on a 35-foot shot.

The Bisons again went ahead on a goal by Bob Ash at the 12:07 mark of the second period but Mark Tardif tied the score again at 14:20.

Jim Krulicki scored the go-ahead goal midway through the final period, poking in a rebound after Norris blocked a sizzling shot by Wayne Maki, and Guy Trotter closed the scoring with a 30-footer.

Norris had 35 saves to 26 for Buffalo's Gil Villemure. A standing-room crowd of 10,602 saw the game.

Orioles' Weaver shakes heavy head in disbelief

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore Orioles couldn't believe it when they lost the World Series to New York Mets last year and they couldn't believe Sunday's 4-3 ninth-inning loss to Minnesota Twins.

"Our whole club has the feeling that we're not supposed to lose to anyone when we come to the park," said manager Earl Weaver after Harmon Killebrew's two-run homer lifted the Twins to victory and gave them the weekend series two games to one. "When something like this happens, we can't understand it."

Those were the only untainted runs off Jim Palmer. The Twins scored twice in the sixth on a double error by second baseman Dave Johnson. Merv Rettenmund's eight-inning homer gave the Orioles a temporary 3-2 lead.

"It's unbelievable Palmer could lose," said catcher Andy Etchebarren, another non-believer. "I've never seen him throw any better."

Elsewhere in the AL, Detroit Tigers shaded Chicago White Sox 6-5. New York Yankees rallied twice to sweep Milwaukee Brewers 8-7 and 4-2. Oakland Athletics beat Washington Senators 3-1 before losing 6-4 and Cleveland Indians dined Kansas City Royals 6-3.

In Saturday's action, Oakland downed Washington 6-3. Kansas City edged Cleveland 4-3. Chicago beat Detroit 3-2. Minnesota defeated Baltimore 4-2. New York beat Milwaukee 7-6 and Boston Red Sox defeated California Angels 8-4 before their Sunday match was rained out.

ERROR-FILLED GAME

Home runs by Willie Horton and Al Kaline powered the Tigers past the White Sox in a sloppy game with the teams committing seven errors. Detroit fumbled away three runs and the Sox two before Fred

EARL WEAVER

Lasher, the third Tiger pitcher in the ninth, closed out the game with the bases loaded and one run in.

Roy White's two-run double brought the Yankees behind in the seventh inning of their nightcap after Gerry McNertney's pinch two-run homer gave Milwaukee a 2-1 lead in the top of the inning.

The Yanks trailed 5-0 in the opener but Bobby Murcer triggered a pair of three-run rallies with a homer and then a bunt single and Gene Michael slashed three hits, each good for an RBI.

New York won the opener with three runs in the sixth on Murcer's bunt, consecutive triples by Danny Cater and Thurman Munson and Michael's double.

Ed Stroud and Mike Epstein crashed two-run homers in the Senators' nightcap triumph, with Epstein's snapping a 4-4 tie in the seventh. Reggie Jackson's homer and run-scoring doubles by Don Mincher and Felipe Alou accounted for the Athletics runs in the first game.

Oakland starter Blue Moon Odom reinjured his ailing right elbow while warming up before the first inning of the opener but the umpires made him pitch to one batter. Odom retired Ed Brinkman on a grounder, then Roland Finger took over and hurled five-hit ball the rest of the way.

Graig Nettles, batting a meagre .125 at game time, slammed a three-run homer in the sixth inning to wipe out a 3-2 Kansas City lead and spark the Indians' victory. Lou Piniella hit a two-run shot for the Royals.

Dust Commander captures Derby run

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Derby cup will join those mounted animal heads in the trophy room of big-game hunter Robert E. Lehmann, thanks to Dust Commander, who shot down 16 other three-year-olds and the odds by winning America's premier horse race.

Now Dust Commander, trained by 31-year-old Don Combs and ridden by Mike Manganello, is expected to go hunting for more of racing's big prizes—the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes, the other legs of the Triple Crown.

After Dust Commander's smashing five-length victory over Raymond M. Curtis' favored My Dad George in the 96th Derby at Churchill Downs, Lehmann said he plans to send the Bold Commander colt after the Preakness and the Belmont.

No three-year-old has won the Derby, Preakness and Belmont since Calumet Farm's Citation in 1948.

Dust Commander, who Lehmann said he purchased as "a cheap $6,500 yearling to go with our expensive ones," was not nominated for the Preakness or Belmont and will have to be supplemented at $10,000 for the former and $5,000 for the latter.

Asked why he had nominated Dust Commander for the Derby, Lehmann, a 49-year-old retired contractor from Lexington, Ky., said, "What's $100?"—the Derby nominating fee. A horse must be nominated to run in the Derby.

In fact, Lehmann was following his hobby—big game hunting—and not the progress of Dust Commander when the colt won the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland nine days before the Derby.

That win prompted Lehmann to have a shot at the Derby and so he returned from India, but not until about noon Saturday.

About five hours and 40 minutes later, he watched Manganello shoot Dust Commander through on the rail for his victory and a Derby record first prize of $128,000 from a record purse of $171,300.

CONVINCING WIN

Dust Commander paid $32.60 and ran the 1 1/4-mile in 2:03.2-5 on a good track for his convincing triumph over My Dad George, with Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' High Echelon third, a half length back of My Dad George and a head in front of Her-Jac Stable's Naska.

My Dad George, High Echelon and Naska also are expected to run in the Preakness. Other Derby starters who are solid Preakness probabilities are Sonny Werblin's Silent Screen, fifth in the Derby; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Gary's Corn off the Cob, seventh, and Mrs. Jacobs' Personality, eighth.

Jr. Habs waltz into Memorial final

By GLENN COLE

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Junior Canadiens open defence of the Memorial Cup championship Wednesday night against Wayne Red Wings in the best-of-seven final series.

The Junior Canadiens completed a three-game sweep of their best-of-five eastern final against Quebec Ramparts Sunday night with a convincing 7-1 triumph before 18,571 fans.

Richard Martin led Montreal with three goals with singles goals going to Jocelyn Guevremont, Gilbert Perreault, Richard Lemieux and Robert Guindon. Michel Archambault scored for the Ramparts, Quebec Junior A Hockey League titlists.

The highly-touted Ramparts were simply no match for the Junior Canadiens, Ontario Hockey Association Junior A champions. Except for the second period in Saturday night's game won by Montreal 9-7 in Quebec City, the Canadiens forechecked and outskated Quebec consistently.

"They are a very nice team for their league," commented Phil Wimmer, general manager of the Junior Canadiens. "There was a lot of talk about how they were going to beat us before the series started, but we showed them."

"My guys played as well as they had to against Quebec," added Roger Bedard, coach of the Montreal team. "On Saturday night, they were leading us 6-3 going into the final period and you saw us come back, they couldn't hold us."

Martin added: "They're just not of our calibre. They have no endurance. They couldn't skate with us and their defence was very weak."

CALLED IN GOALIE

Canadiens goaltender John Garrett, called up from Peterborough Petes for the playoffs, said:

"They have a few good players. Guy Lafleur doesn't waste his shots, he knows what he's doing with the puck. But I don't think they would finish higher than seventh in the OHA."

Quebec coach Maurice Filion still managed to smile despite the loss.

"They were just too strong for us."
