Norstad bomb

Stokes nuclear fires

Gen. Lauris Norstad

OTTAWA (CP)—Gen. Lauris Norstad has stoked the fires of the nuclear issue by saying that Canada won't fulfil its commitments to NATO unless it accepts nuclear weapons for its forces in Europe.

The 55-year-old American general, who retired Tuesday as NATO's military commander in Europe, said at a press conference here Thursday that Canada in 1959 agreed to provide a nuclear strike capability for the RCAF air division in Europe.

NATO was depending on Canada to meet this commitment, particularly because of the high quality of the air division.

Gen. Norstad said Canada can't provide this nuclear capability until it signs a bilateral agreement with the U.S. Even after such an agreement was signed, it would take three to six months to train the crews in the handling of nuclear weapons.

The RCAF air division formed its first of eight CF-104 low-level jet bomber squadrons in West Germany Dec. 17. All squadrons, totalling 200 planes, are expected to be formed by early summer.

CONTRADICTION GREEN?

Gen. Norstad's remarks appeared to contradict a statement made by External Affairs Minister Green in the Commons Dec. 17 on his return from the NATO council meeting in Paris, Mr. Green said:

"We were very pleased to have it pointed out, not by ourselves but by the (NATO) military authorities and the United States, that Canada had lived up to her commitments. . . . There was not a word of criticism of Canada's military efforts in NATO."

Defence Minister Harkness told reporters in Paris Dec. 14 that delegates to the NATO council were not urging Canada to accept nuclear weapons.

Gen. Norstad said he was advocating that Canada and the U.S. sign a bilateral nuclear agreement now. The air division and the Canadian Army brigade group in Germany "must have atomic capability."

These forces "could have" conventional capability but Canada "should not downgrade their deterrent value by making them conventional."

Pilot spends night in the wilderness

GAGNON, Que. (CP)—A student pilot rescued Thursday after spending a night in the wilderness south of this northern Quebec mining centre says he is mainly concerned about retrieving the plane.

Robert Lacroix, 28, was picked up by a ski-equipped rescue plane in mid-afternoon and brought to his home here 375 miles northeast of Quebec City.

He was forced down Wednesday afternoon after heavy ice formed on the windshield of a single-engine Cessna 172 he had chartered from the Lac Jeanne flying club in Gagnon.

"My plane didn't get a scratch during the landing," he said. "We had to leave it in the bush, however, because it will take about a day of snow-shovelling to clear a take-off strip."

Lacroix had to open the cabin window and stick his hand on the windshield to melt a hole big enough to see where he was landing.

As troops close in

Tshombe making renewed bid for UN negotiations

LEO POLDVILLE, The Congo (AP) — President Moise Tshombe of Katanga was reported today making a new bid for negotiations as UN combat forces prepared to close in on the remnants of his resistance forces at Kolwezi.

But if there are no negotiations and UN troops continue advancing, Tshombe said in an interview, "we shall fight to the end."

"If Kolwezi falls, then we will fight in the bush."

Tshombe was interviewed in Kolwezi by Adrian Porter of The Associated Press and a Belgian newspaper man as UN Indian, Irish and Ethiopian troops chased dwindling Katangan forces out of Jadotville without a fight Thursday.

A rearguard of Tshombe's gendarmes, and white mercenaries fled in automobiles seized from civilians, yielding the important copper and cobalt producing centre which they had threatened to defend street by street.

The victory left UN forces in control of up to three-quarters of the ore-producing facilities in the secessionist Congo province.

Tshombe left Jadotville earlier with the main body of Katangans and set up the remnants of his government in Kolwezi, 150 miles northwest of his former capital of Elisabethville and 80 miles beyond Jadotville.

"I hear that (UN Secretary-General) U Thant wants me to start negotiations," Tshombe said. "I am disposed to do so."

He said he had been waiting in vain for a UN plane to pick him up to return to Elisabethville for talks and also for word from the American and British consultants in Elisabethville guaranteeing his safety.

There was no indication here on what Tshombe based his statement that Thant wished negotiations. The secretary-general on Wednesday rejected Tshombe's condition for talks—a cease-fire on the Jadotville road and the consular escort—and said the time was past for negotiations. He said Tshombe must now indicate by actions, not words, willingness to cooperate in UN plans for the Congo's unification.

Viet Nam battle continues

Government, rebels in heavy fighting

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Heavy fighting between government forces and the Viet Cong Communists was reported today from the area of a bloody government defeat on Wednesday.

Two government dead and 12 wounded were evacuated from the Mekong River delta sector about six miles northwest of Tan Hiep. But there was no immediate indication of how the renewed battle was going.

Reports earlier said government forces flushed out an estimated 200 Communist guerrillas from the deep scene of Wednesday's battle. U.S. sources said all south Vietnamese forces in the area were being committed to the battle.

Apparently all U.S. advisers in the area moved in with the Vietnamese units to assist in trapping the guerrillas who Wednesday smashed attacking government forces and killed 65 Vietnamese troops and three Americans in an ambush.

The guerrillas had slipped away in the rice fields Thursday morning after their victory. Government troops searched for them all day but found no sign of them. Apparently they came upon the Communists suddenly today and called in reinforcements.

The government claimed that 101 guerrillas had been killed in the battle Wednesday. This figure could not be confirmed. U.S. officers had counted only three Communist dead.

35 are killed in train wreck

LUCKNOW, India (Reuters)—Thirty-five persons were killed and 61 injured early today in a head-on collision between two passenger trains in northern India, it was reported here.

The reports said three coaches were overturned, two were derailed and one caught fire when the trains collided at Umeshnagar in Uttar Pradesh.

SECURITY A PROBLEM

In Washington, U.S. military authorities said the ambush indicates intelligence security—one of the basic problems of the war—still is unsolved.

Holiday recess too long?

Liberals predict spring vote; think Dief muffed opportunity

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberals consider Prime Minister Diefenbaker muffed an opportunity to bail himself out of an impending parliamentary crisis. As a result, they predict a March or April election.

The crisis involves money and the chance to avert it centered on the length of the Christmas-New Year's recess of Parliament which began Dec. 20 and ends Jan. 21.

Senior Liberals contend that it now is virtually impossible for the government either to get temporary spending authority beyond Feb. 28 or to get parliamentary approval for all of the hundreds of individual spending items in the interim.

This might have been possible if Mr. Diefenbaker had proposed a shorter holiday recess, having Parliament resume the session Jan. 7.

By the time the MPs get back to work the government will be faced with the need to obtain more money within a period of a week or two to meet current expenses. Before recessing, Parliament granted the government interim spending authority to the end of January.

This interim authority brought the total such temporary spending up to five-sixths of the planned expenditures for the 1962-63 fiscal year which ends March 31. A further grant of one month's interim supply would bring the total to eleven-twelfths.

Find pilot

VANCOUVER (CP)—A pilot missing since Monday was found safe Thursday on an island on the rugged northern British Columbia coastline. Air-search headquarters said Frank Johnston, 27, was found by a Terrace pilot on Gill Island, 60 miles south of Kitimat.

Such interim grants of money are made by Parliament on the basis of the government giving a constitutional guarantee that the temporary grant does not interfere with Parliament's right to debate each separate spending item later.

The 1962-63 spending program was never approved by Parliament before the June 18 election last year. In the period since Parliament reassembled Sept. 27, only one of the required six two-day supply debates has been held.

Therein, say the Liberals, lies Mr. Diefenbaker's problem. For it would be impossible to offer the Commons the constitutional guarantee on more than eleven-twelfths of the spending program.

To attempt to do so would amount, in effect, to saying "approve all our spending program and you can debate it later."

The melting snows brought hope of relief to scores of communities isolated by deep drifts for several days and short of food.

The state-owned British Railways said services would be back to normal after more than a week of disrupted schedules. A milk shortage was being experienced in some parts of Britain because of blocked roads.

In London, some dairies rationed families to a half-pint a head daily.

The fresh blizzards which hit England Thursday also caused suspension of an airlift of feed to snowbound cattle. An RAF helicopter crashed in southwest England while dropping fodder, but the five persons aboard were unhurt.

There was a grim outlook on another front. The prospect of widespread power blackouts arose following the breakdown of pay talks between London electricity generating workers and management.

BLACKOUTS HIT LONDON

The talks collapsed early today, Thursday night a work-to-rule pact - station slowdown, not sanctioned by union leaders, backed out parts of London for nearly three hours.

Blizzards hit England's West Country Thursday night. Devon came to a standstill and the big port city of Bristol was paralyzed for several hours.

At least 19 Britons died due to the weather in the last five days and the toll was expected to go higher.

The storm also claimed the lives of thousands of animals. In Ireland, huge drifts cut off villages in Wicklow Hills, south of Dublin. Ballyknocken, with 100 population, has received no food, fuel or mail for five days.

CLAIMED PERSECUTION

The Siberians—six men, 12 women and 14 children—pushed aside Soviet police guards Thursday morning and invaded the embassy. They tearfully told U.S. officials they were being persecuted for their religious beliefs and asked the Americans to help them get out of the Soviet Union.

The Americans explained they were powerless to help. The Siberians, from peasant families, refused to budge, so Soviet authorities were notified.

Authorities arrived with a bus and finally, after arguing and pleading, got them all aboard the bus.

The peasants came from Chernogorsk, about 2,100 miles east of Moscow in a coal mining region. They described themselves as Evangelical Christians, a small sect, which they said does not recognize state authority.

Dripping thaw spreads

Floods threaten UK

LONDON (CP)—A dripping thaw spread across southern England today, promising relief from the deep freeze engulfing the country since Christmas but bringing a new threat of severe flooding.

As the great waste of deep snow began to melt in the south an old enemy, fog, blanketed wide areas of Surrey, Kent and Sussex.

London was shrouded in fog and street gutters ran with melting snow and slush. At London Airport visibility was cut to 100 yards and flights, already delayed by snow and ice, were hit by more holdups.

Freezing temperatures still gripped parts of western and northern Britain. More snow fell early today in Herefordshire and Scotland.

But for the first time since the century's worst snow began Dec. 26, several counties in the south and in the Midlands reported all highways were passable.

Over job classification

Asbestos men out on strike in Thetford Mines

THETFORD MINES — (Staff) — About 150 workers of the National Asbestos mine here have walked out the job in a dispute with the company over job classifications for 12 employees.

The strike follows a wage agreement between the company and the Confederation of National Trade Unions only 15 days ago.

The agreement gave the miners a nine per cent increase spread over the period from 1962 to 1964, but the union says the company has since dropped 12 men into a lower-paid apprentice classification.

Daniel Lessard, president of the CNTU in Thetford, says the last contact between company and union was a meeting yesterday morning at which the union refused to accept the company's condition that the men go back to work before talks began.

"We're not taking the initiative for a new meeting with the company," Mr. Lessard told The Record today.

Neither provincial nor municipal police in the town reported being called to the scene. Picketing has continued calmly at the National Asbestos site just outside town.

Company spokesmen have said that the classification policy they have followed is in keeping with the verbal agreement between company and union.

No written contract has yet been signed covering the December wage agreement.

Mine manager Robert Coleman is ill, and this has been another reason for delays in negotiations.

Thetford Mines, 50 miles northeast of Sherbrooke, was the scene of another mine strike today, when King Beaver asbestos miners stopped work for an hour to protest staff dismissals.

There was a grim outlook on another front. The prospect of widespread power blackouts arose following the breakdown of pay talks between London electricity generating workers and management.

Newspaper talks are recessed

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal mediator has recessed indefinitely negotiations between the striking International Typographical Union's Local 6 and publishers of the city's nine major newspapers.

William E. Simkin, director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, said Thursday that "there has been no tangible movement" by either party.

He recessed the talks after two joint meetings on the grounds that representatives of the printers' union and the publishers were "substantially at the same position they were at the time the strike began" 28 days ago.

"We suggested that it was time for the union to move—a substantial move—but, as is their right, the union said they were not prepared."

He said the publishers had indicated they were ready to move beyond their $9.20-a-week total offer, "but at an appropriate time." The New York publishers have offered the printers a package of $9.20 spread over two years.

Local 6 has demanded a weekly wage increase of $18.45 spread over two years. The pre-strike average basic wage was $141 a week on the day shift.

Postal slowdown voting results seen next week

OTTAWA (CP)—Results of a 90 per cent in favor of the work-by-rule slowdown. About 3,500 of 7,200 member employees had voted so far, he said Thursday.

In Toronto, however, 1,200 postmen rejected the slowdown. William Dawson, president of the Toronto branch of the association, said mailmen in Greater Toronto felt the public would suffer from a slowdown.

APPROVE PLAN But Mr. Strandring said branches in Hamilton, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver voted overwhelmingly for the work-by-rule procedure.

The mailmen have not had a salary adjustment in three years. The Civil Service Commission is conducting a review of pay rates but is not expected to make its recommendations to cabinet before late April.

Results of the voting are to be returned here from association branch offices by Jan. 7. They will then be tallied and announced.

Frank Strandring, secretary-treasurer of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers, said the vote was running about

De Gaulle reply leaves door open

NATO force talks seen

WASHINGTON (CP - AP)—President de Gaulle's message to President Kennedy—taking a wait-and-see attitude toward U.S. offers to provide France with submarine-based Polaris missiles—appears to open the way for exploratory talks on formation of a NATO nuclear striking force.

Official sources in Paris Thursday said de Gaulle had replied to Kennedy, neither accepting nor rejecting the U.S. offer, made on the same terms already accepted by Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain. Britain accepted the Polaris offer as a substitute for the abandoned Skybolt airborne missile on the understanding British Polaris forces would become part of a multilateral NATO nuclear force.

U.S. officials said that de Gaulle's message at least was not discouraging and the NATO nuclear project was over its first hurdle.

De Gaulle's answer is expected to be discussed Saturday at Palm Beach, Fla., when Kennedy confers with State Secretary Rusk and Thomas K. Finletter, the president's representative to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said Thursday night they would talk about "NATO problems."

The president is vacationing at Palm Beach.

Last month Kennedy and Macmillan at their meeting in Nassau, agreed that the United States would furnish the Polaris to Britain as a substitute for the Skybolt, which Britain was promised several years ago. But they agreed that the British force, and a matching U.S. force, would be placed under NATO control or made available to NATO.

Macmillan reserved the right of Britain to use its nuclear weapons when supreme national interests were at stake.

Kennedy's aim is the eventual formation of an international NATO nuclear striking force as an alternative to the continued development of national nuclear forces such as Britain has. France is building, and other allies may undertake in the future.

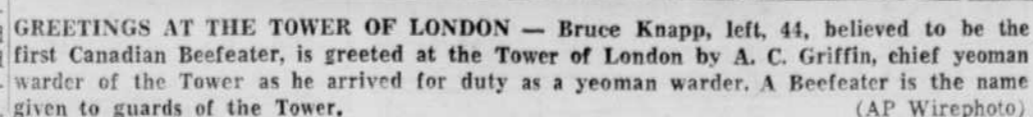

De Gaulle is reported to have told Kennedy that the Nassau plan raised many questions which will take considerable time to study. He reaffirmed France's policy of developing a national nuclear striking force.

In Paris, the newspaper Paris-Prese says de Gaulle wants to determine "in what circumstances could France alone take the decision to fire a Polaris missile in the supreme interest of the nation?"

The newspaper adds "it does not appear that the United States is ready to give a carte blanche to France and Britain for the use of these missiles."

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

BIDDING NICE IF CONTRACT IS
North's club opening was one of those third hand bids designed to show partner what to lead against an anticipated enemy contract.

South's one heart response was normal and when the bidding got back to North he decided to make another bid. Not that North expected to get to game, but he was afraid of the spade suit and felt certain that if he passed East would be able to back into the bidding.

South could not tell that his partner was defending against the East and West passes and, with 10 points including two aces, South jumped to game.

There is a moral to this story. The moral is that nothing succeeds like success. West opened a trump although he could have opened any card in his hand for all it would have

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Look who's back in movies — Arline Judge.

It's enough to take you back to the rah-rah days when Richard Arlen and Jack Oakie were playing for the Paramount variety. Arline was the perennial co-ed in those movies, as well as appearing in dozens of other films in the golden 1930s.

Absent from the screen for 20 years—except for a brief return in Mad Wednesday with Harold Lloyd in 1950—she is making a return to two new movies, Tomorrow You Die and 'A Swingin' Affair.

"They were both fast jobs, but it was a chance to get my feet wet," she says. "You know something—I like it."

At 50 she is no longer a juuqhomore, but the Judge beauty is still there. And she's having a ball with the attention she has been getting.

About Television
By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The camera—or at least the man behind it—can be as guilty of the cliché as the writer. Thus, producer Gerald Green (a novelist and expert cliché-spotter) recently issued a list of tired news shots he wishes could be banned forever from the television screens.

Green, who produces NBC's Chet Huntley Reporting, started his list with the familiar shot of people looking in shop windows.

Other cliché scenes—most of which are short cuts to making a point—are closeups of price tags, film showing slums quickly followed by pictures showing life among the rich, and new apartment buildings going up on the outskirts of the town.

Green's cliché list was directed toward network correspondents charged with producing foreign news reports. He expressed strong feelings about the most inevitable shots of "the minister of security explaining, in unintelligible English, that here is a Communist threat."

All these have a familiar look to the television viewer. Green, however, neglected to mention my favorite—if that's the right word—news show cliché. That is the "correspondent-on-the-scene" shot. The intrepid reporter is shown, usually hatless but bundled up in overcoat or trenchcoat, standing smack in front of a familiar landmark—the Arc de Triomphe or 10 Downing Street—usually in a strong wind, reading his off-camera notes.

Yule tableau and community tree feature festive season at Hatley

HATLEY — On Sunday, Dec. 24, the evening service at St. James Anglican Church took the form of a Christmas tableau.

The Christmas story, taken from many parts of the Bible, was read by the lay reader, James Townshend, and the story enacted by the young people of the church with special carols and singing by the choir.

The church was appropriately decorated for the occasion with Rev. H. C. Denton preached the sermon.

On Christmas eve a large congregation attended the communion service.

The town hall was filled to capacity on Dec. 21, for the community Christmas tree and entertainment.

Several recitations, songs and plays were enjoyed and a short religious film shown, after which Santa arrived to distribute the gifts from the well laden tree and to give candy boxes and apples to every child in the community.

The Junior Auxiliary members held their Christmas party in the school lunch room on Dec. 18.

Games and singing were enjoyed and gifts distributed under the leadership of Miss L. MacDougall and B. Cutler.

EAST FARNHAM —
Mrs. D. W. Collins and Miss A. E. Collins had as guests for Christmas, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Comeau Arthur and Beverly, of Magog.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Webb and Cheryl, of Pincourt, spent Christmas weekend and holiday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Thomas, and Mr. and Mrs. Marion Webb. Mrs. Webb and Cheryl will remain until after New Year's Day, when they will accompany Mr. Webb home to Pincourt.

Building law violation

Sherbrooke plans action against local contractor

By JAMES DAVIES
(Record staff reporter)

The City of Sherbrooke will take court action against a local contractor who, according to a building inspector, violated the city's building bylaws.

Council decided Thursday evening it will take action in municipal court against Robert Laffleur for not complying with the building regulations while working on a house at 1118 Bienville Street.

Building Inspector Aime Gagnon reported to council that Mr. Laffleur had obtained a building permit to rebuild a roof at the house. Mr. Gagnon said the contractor also erected another floor on the house without checking with city.

The inspector noted that the walls of the additional floor were built of redwood rather than brick as required by law.

After considering the matter, council decided that Mr. Laffleur should pay the maximum fine of $40 and be compelled to comply with building regulations.

Said Charles Langlois, ex-

vice director, "Mr. Laffleur was given a permit to make the roof only, but he proceeded to put on an extra storey." Said Alderman Marcel Savard, "There are only two or three people in the city who keep breaking their agreements with the city," to which Alderman J. M. Jeanson added "He (Mr. Laffleur) is laughing at us."

Alderman Everett Nicol said that either Mr. Laffleur should be fined or forced to tear his new storey down.

The suggestion of Alderman Carl Camirand that the walls of the additional storey should be converted into brick and that Mr. Laffleur be fined was accepted by the council.

While discussing the matter Mayor Armand Nadeau said that he believes that there is an insufficient number of employees in the department of building inspectors to perform the work required of them.

Said the mayor, "the department of building inspectors needs more people because the city of Sherbrooke is expanding at a rapid rate and we still have the same personnel that we had 10 years ago."

"We should have other members of the department whose specific duty is to circulate and examine the houses in the city" to see that they conform to the various legal specifications.

John Brown

Funeral to be held tomorrow

A funeral service will be held for John Brown of Sherbrooke January 5 at the Johnston's Funeral Chapel, 530 Prospect Street.

Mr. Brown died suddenly January 3 at his home, 2281 Barchand Street.

Born in Belfast, Northern Ireland, the son of John Brown and the late Janet Barclay, Mr. Brown retired for health reasons in 1962. He was a pioneer of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, Sherbrooke branch. He was an employee at the Bell for 36 years.

Mr. Brown came to Canada in 1923. In 1925 he married at Montreal the former Margaret Hill, also of Belfast, North Ireland.

During his lifetime Mr. Brown belonged to the Craft T. Club of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada.

Mr. Brown is survived by his father, John Brown of Belfast, Northern Ireland; one brother, Robert Barclay Brown, also of Belfast; his wife and two children William John, 18, and Mary Margaret, 16.

Rev. Graham Barr will officiate at the service to begin at 2 p.m.

Burial will be in the Malvern Cemetery.

Lose doctors

SASKATOON (CP)—The Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons Thursday reported a net loss of 25 doctors from the province in 1962. The college's figures showed there were 996 doctors at the end of 1961 and 881 at the end of last year. Among 228 new registrations there were 223 general practitioners and five specialists. Of the 256 whose names were dropped from the college list, 226 were general practitioners and 30 were specialists, the college reported.

Water projects

Jan. 14 tentative date of television broadcast

The probable date of the program dedicated to informing the Sherbrooke citizens about the merits of the two systems of supplying the city with water will, according to Alderman J. M. Jeanson, be January 14.

The participants in the program as mentioned by the council Thursday night will be Alderman J. M. Jeanson, Leopold Fontaine, chief engineer of the Quebec department of health and Robert Carrier assistant chief engineer of the Quebec department of health.

The two systems that will be discussed by those on the panel-type question and answer show will be (a) the drawing of water, as at present, from the Magog River to be filtered in a municipally built filtration plant and (b) the pumping of water from Lake Memphremagog into the city reservoirs.

The questionnaire cards have been printed and will be mailed, according to Alderman J. M. Jeanson, between the 7 and 14 of January.

Council decided Thursday night that the report of the engineers on the two systems will be published in the newspapers the day preceding the telecast on Channel 7.

The length of the program had originally been 15 minutes, but, on the suggestion of Mayor Nadeau, council decided that more benefit would be gained by the public if it were prolonged to 30 minutes.

The program will also be scheduled during "prime time" so that a larger viewing audience will be assured. The time for the program has not been arranged yet.

Fined $100 for beating QPP officer

A 29-year-old Sherbrooke man was fined $100 and told to pay $100 damage to the clothing of a Quebec Provincial Police officer, Thursday in Sherbrooke Court of Sessions after he pleaded guilty to assaulting the officer.

Judge Evender Veilleux told Rene Hebert, he had a choice of paying the $100 fine and $100 damage, or spend the next 30 days in jail.

Hebert pleaded guilty of beating up Cpl. Raymond Bellemare, officer in charge of the Cookshire detachment of Quebec Provincial Police New Year's Eve, on Alexander Street, in Sherbrooke.

Marcel Robert Therrien, 36 of Sherbrooke was sentenced to 15 days in jail by Judge Evender Veilleux in Sherbrooke Court of Sessions Thursday after he pleaded guilty of stealing $150 from his employer.

Guy Rodrigue, 31, of 2 Winter Street, Lennoxville, who appeared Thursday on roll call in Sherbrooke Court of Sessions Thursday was ordered to reappear Jan. 10 to answer to a charge of theft and break-in.

Rodrigue is accused of stealing $92 from the Hunting Dairy in Lennoxville on Dec. 24.

He told The Record his men entered the Sherbrooke Hotel and the Sherbrooke Country Club, a private club, where liquor was being sold after the midnight closing hour.

"We have completed our part of the job and it is now up to Montreal to decide whether or not any charges will be laid," he said.

New garage

To replace toll cashier with device

Sherbrooke council decided Thursday night to experiment with a new system of control in the projected Wellington Street South garage which should, according to city treasurer Olivier Routhier's report, save the city $6,000 a year.

The saving will result from the fact that a cashier will not be employed as at present in the Webster garage.

According to Mr. Routhier, the cost of parking at the Wellington Street South garage will be 25 cents for a maximum of 24 hours.

Under the new system, the customer will have his card punched making his payment at the exit of the garage and the gate will operate electronically.

Ticket subscriptions will also be available. Three month subscriptions will cost $21.

If the Wellington Street South system proves workable, it will be implemented at the Webster garage at a later date.

Two outlets remained open New Year's Eve

Cpl. Robert Roy, officer in charge of the Sherbrooke detachment of the Quebec Provincial Police said Friday he has sent to Montreal headquarters reports of raids by QPP officers on two Sherbrooke liquor outlets which remained open after hours New Year's Eve.

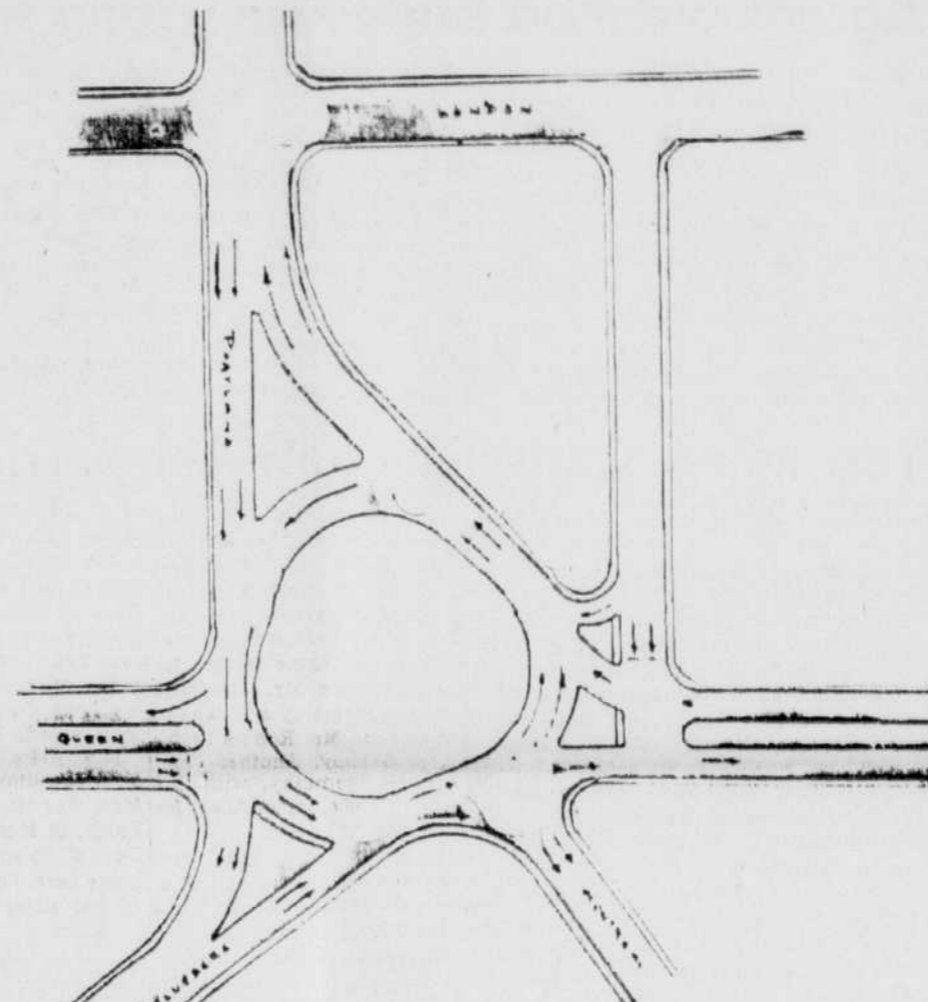

"They were all warned of the closing hours and that we intended to enforce the closing hour laws," Cpl. Roy said. The names of the persons found in the establishments were reported, Cpl. Roy said.

He told The Record his men entered the Sherbrooke Hotel and the Sherbrooke Country Club, a private club, where liquor was being sold after the midnight closing hour.

"We have completed our part of the job and it is now up to Montreal to decide whether or not any charges will be laid," he said.

Attack missions

JERUSALEM (AP)—A band of religious zealots attacked two Christian missions in Jerusalem Thursday, smashing windows and overturning a missionary's car parked outside. Israel police dispersed them and arrested seven teen-age students of the Yeshiva, an ultra-orthodox Talmudic academy.

REVISED PLANS — Sherbrooke municipal authorities Thursday released a revised plan of the projected bridge and connecting roads which would be located at the foot of Montreal Street in the North Ward. The new plans top includes an extension of the projected riverside road, running parallel to the CNR tracks and linking Big Forks Street with a new bridge across the Magog River, to the Brompton Road. The extension, civic authorities believe, would force heavy traffic to bypass the downtown area. Council members said the hook-up with the Brompton Road would be built at the same time as the bridge across the St. Francis River from Montreal to Terrill Streets. As part of the overall bridge scheme, city council plans eventually to revamp the intersection of Queen Boulevard and Montreal Street, below, by replacing traffic lights with a traffic circle. According to the aldermen, the city would be obliged to change the pattern of traffic flow to tie-in with the planned bridge, roads and traffic circles at Montreal-Dufferin Streets. There was no estimate given nor date set for the construction of the Queen-Montreal traffic circle.

At East Angus

Mayor won't seek re-election, Alderman Marcoux resigns post

EAST ANGUS — (Staff) — East Angus electors will go to the polls February 4 to elect a new mayor and three aldermen.

Mayor Roland Brousseau announced at a council meeting here Thursday night that he would not seek re-election next month.

Two other aldermen's three-year terms expire next month. Seeking re-election are W. F. Clifford for the south ward and Adelard Coriveau for the center ward. Mayor Brousseau said in a telephone interview with The Record this morning that he believes that Mr. Marcoux will run for mayor.

Asked this morning by The Record if he plans to run for mayorship, Mr. Marcoux's only comment was, "Let the chips fall where they may. I am available. I had to resign to become available," he said.

Spend New Year's Day at farm

Boy Scouts isolated by storm

WARWICK — (Special) — Seventeen Boy Scouts from the Montcalm troupe in Warwick were isolated at the Three Lakes over the past weekend. The boys left their home town last Friday, on a three day outing, which took them from Warwick by way of St. Remi de Tingwick and to a camp site and summer home of Maurice Carignan situated at the Three Lakes, four miles from Danville.

Because of the blinding snow storm which came over the district, all roads were blocked and the boys were unable to return to their homes. Provisions were running low and the summer home was no protection against the bitter cold.

Gordon Morrill, whose farmhouse is nearby, seeing the plight of the group, took the boys into his home, Sunday evening, and kept them all day Monday, furnishing "room and board" and the warmth of a wood fire.

Meanwhile the parents, worried about the safety of the Scouts, contacted the Asbestos Police Department for aid. Chief Adrien Larri-ve immediately organized volunteers to reach the snow bound group.

Constables Nelson Raymond and Robert Maurice set out by snowmobile and after plowing through heavy snow drifts and crossing country snow bound fields, reached their destination, at the Morrill farm.

Upon the arrival of the troop at the Asbestos police station the boys were greeted by the local Notre Dame troupe and taken by a fellow member to his home for supper.

Rev. Herman Payer, padre, who was with the group, said the boys' morale was good. The only thought in their minds was missing being at home for New Year's Day. High words of praise were given Mr. Morrill for the generosity and hospitality which he extended.

Mayor Roland Boulanger of Warwick was on hand at the police station to welcome the scouts. He expressed his gratitude and thanks to those who helped.

Two vehicles, driven by Benoit Jutras and Bernard Tardif collided at the intersection of Bourbeau and St. Jean Baptiste Streets, causing an estimated $50,000 damage.

A truck driven by Adrien Levesque and the property of the Town of Asbestos collided with a vehicle driven by Ludwig Nault of Asbestos, on St. John Street, causing $30,000 damage.

Asbestos news

Six members are honored by firm's foremen's club

The Canadian Johns-Manville foremen's club honored six of their members when they were appointed life memberships, the recipients being Richard (Dick) Hull, Stanley Sears, Joe Brodie, Frank Smith, Arthur Mailhot and Lucien Gagnier, who retired from the company service this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd O'Connor and their 13-month-old daughter formerly of Asbestos, and Paul Jolicoeur and Raymond Leclerc, were accidentally drowned when the car driven by Mr. O'Connor went out of control and plunged into a river near Chibougamau, December 23.

By Wm. H. LUNAN
(Special to The Record)

A service was held here, Thursday, and the O'Connors were buried in the St. Aime Cemetery.

The Social Welfare offices, directed by Yvon Hamel, registered a record year with a total distribution of $57,347.22 for the fiscal year. This amount is $5,000 less than 1961. 2,787 persons benefitted by the department. The money paid out by the town is reimbursed by the provincial government which receives 50 per cent of the total from the federal government funds. Since the founding of the local offices, in October 1960, $129,000 has been allocated to needy persons.

The local Post Office showed a record entry for the period, December 1st to 24th, when 2,609 bags of mail were received during this time; 381,586 pieces of mail were handled by nine employees while 163,313 pieces were stamped by automatic machines. December 10th to 24th, 114,700 letters were delivered by carriers in the Town. In addition there were several thousand pieces which included, COD parcels, registered articles, newspapers, etc. Students were employed over the holiday period and received in total $594, in salaries.

Ninety needy families were given baskets of food and presents, over the holiday season. These donations were made possible by the various church and organization groups.

On New Year's day, fire broke out in the residence of Paul-Emile Piche, 314 St. Edmond Street. Firemen fought the blaze for an hour before bringing it under control. The blaze was confined to a wall near the fireplace. No estimate of the damage was given.

Armand Proulx, assistant secretary of the Town, with a 25 year service record and Alphonse Provencher a long time municipal works department laborer who is being pensioned, were honored, recently, and presented with souvenir gifts from their fellow workers.

Numerous accidents were reported over the holiday week-end:

A vehicle driven by Benoit Jutras and Bernard Tardif collided at the intersection of Bourbeau and St. Jean Baptiste Streets, causing an estimated $50,000 damage.

A truck driven by Adrien Levesque and the property of the Town of Asbestos collided with a vehicle driven by Ludwig Nault of Asbestos, on St. John Street, causing $30,000 damage.

An automobile, the property of Paul Precourt and driven by Claude Vincent of Asbestos, collided with a truck driven by Rene Boissonette of Wotton, estimated damage, $100. The accident occurred at the intersection of Blvd. St. Luc and Notre Dame Street.

Two vehicles, driven by Jean Guy Laroche of St. Adrien and Onil Giguere of Danville collided on Bourbeau Street. Damage was slight.

A Smith Transport Company truck, collided with a vehicle driven by Edmond Perreault of Asbestos. No estimate of damage.

Father Florian Labbee of Asbestos was in a collision with a truck driven by Thomas Poudrier of St. George de Windsor.

Two automobiles collided on Du Roi Street, the property of Edmond Perreault of Asbestos and that of Paul Emile Fafard of Three Lakes. Damage was estimated at $250.

our jails should have been overloaded with people during the holiday season who visited relatives or friends and had a sociable drink," Mr. Savoie said.

He added that his client had taken the three or four glasses in a five hour period only to keep himself going until he would be able to get home to bed.

Defence lawyer Georges Savoie, told the court his client, Lionel Beaulieu, had not slept for three days and nights and he had taken three or four glasses of cognac during the night. He was arrested by Asbestos police.

Police constables testified they arrested Beaulieu in his car after following him for some time during which he was going back and forth from one side of the road to the other, the night of July 21.

Judge Evender Veilleux, who found Beaulieu guilty, said the accused admitted drinking three or four glasses of cognac and then starting home after going three days without sleep.

"The fact that he was going home without three days sleep is enough to convict him on a dangerous driving charge. However, the charge we have here is driving under the influence of alcohol," Judge Veilleux said.

"Even if he had taken only one glass of cognac and driven his car, he is driving under the influence of alcohol," Judge Veilleux said.

Man is fined $50 on driving charge, cognac not medicine

A 43-year-old Asbestos restaurant owner was found guilty in Sherbrooke Court of Sessions Thursday of driving while under the influence of alcohol and fined $50 and costs, despite efforts by his lawyer to convince the court that the cognac his client had drunk was for medicinal purposes.

Dear Sir:

This proposed route would not cost as much for expropriation as it is pretty much through country properties. Trust that the suggestions will strengthen your proposal.

Too many Canadian political parties

Dear Sir:
Have we not too many political parties? The question is certainly pertinent. In 1957, we had Federal elections, the Conservatives went into power but too feeble to govern, in 1958, other elections were necessary.

Pretty near, each member of each opposition wants to talk on every discussed subject, with consequence that there is more talking than legislation. Problems of importance are not solved, the economic growth of Canada.

To elect a stable government, adherents to any of the four parties will have to put aside their traditional preference, in order to choose the strongest party able to form a majority government.

Strike weapon is becoming obsolete

Are strikes becoming as obsolete as the crossbow and the Spitfire? Reports from the United States appear to indicate that many people there are beginning to think so. Three major strikes are currently disrupting the lives of millions of people beyond the parties immediately concerned in the U.S.

ultimate weapon, is often seized in haste in an attempt to force negotiations out of stalemant.

In Canada, the threat of strike has become so commonplace in the railroad industry that it has now become almost meaningless as a tactic.

Automation, whatever problems it may entail, is part of modern progress. It cannot be halted indefinitely. And the old concept of labor and management being enemies should have long since been laid to rest.

Under these circumstances, continued indiscriminate use of the strike weapon may force governments both in Canada and the United States to pass stricter laws to protect the public from serious shut-downs in key industries, and the effects of these laws are bound to be restrictive on labor.

And only in the last dispute does there appear to be an issue of real bed-rock importance to the strikers—the threat of automation which could throw thousands of dock workers out of jobs.

There was a time when the strike was an effective, and sometimes necessary weapon. But, generally speaking, that time is gone. The principles of "right" and "wrong" which used to apply in most strikes situation are no longer clear cut.

It's better to be fired with your own ambition than with somebody else's angry words.

Fanaticism wastes university price

University administrators, hard pressed to raise the cash required to meet their day-to-day bills, can be excused if they display aggravation with the University of Mississippi where the cost of providing one student with an education cost nearly five million dollars in a single term.

tional Guardsmen to the university to convoy the would-be student right into the classroom, where he sat at a desk some distance from the whites; and to maintain order and protect the young man.

When the college term suspended for the holidays the military forces were still there. A statement issued by the General Accounting Office in Washington shows that the cost of maintaining the Guard and other units, without counting their ordinary pay, was $4,522,964 to the end of November with the cost mounting daily.

Thus the stupidity and fanaticism of a few individuals caused a wastage of public funds sufficient to finance the establishment of a completely new university of modest proportions.

Admittedly the student was an unusual one, for Old Miss, and the average cost does not run at this rate. The student in question was a Negro who decided he wanted to take a special course at the University. The course was available but some members of the college administration and some of his prospective fellow student did not believe he was a suitable candidate because of his color.

After he had been turned away on several occasions, the United States Government decided to intervene. It sent a large force of federal marshals and Na-

Do suicides raise traffic deaths?

Indications that many traffic deaths are not accidental have led safety officials to the conclusion that despondent citizens and attention seekers have turned the motor vehicle into a new weapon for suicide.

trend is there. The suspicion is getting stronger and stronger in their minds, the investigators say.

Investigations in several communities have proven that in many fatal accidents the victims were despondent prior to the crashes which claimed their lives.

If the automobile is not a medium for premeditated suicide in many instances, certainly it is an instrument for self-destruction in a moment of mental aberration. A person under deep nervous or emotional stress tends to lose his sense of judgment with the result that he fails to take many of the precautions used by the normal motorist in the operation of his vehicle.

The result may be a fatality which would be difficult to classify as an accident or a suicide.

In Canada and the United States police have noted an increase in single car accidents where the driver, the lone occupant, is killed when his car leaves the road and smashes into an abutment, pole or tree for no apparent reason. In other cases, witnesses have told police that a pedestrian has deliberately strolled into the middle of the road into the path of a moving car.

Studies conducted in a number of U.S. and Canadian communities lead safety officials to the belief that a lot of traffic accidents are just suicides. They admit they cannot prove their point, but the

And there were many more: The milkmen who kept at it because they knew people depended on them, the postmen and newspaperboys who trudged their routes with collars turned a little higher and hands deeper in pockets; the taxi drivers, the clerks who refused to be late for work.

the transportation drivers and engineers and crews who kept things running; the policemen and firemen who turned to with dogged determination and skill when trouble struck; the doctors who fought the storm to ease pain and suffering, the nurses and others who carried on the work of mercy in blacked-out hospitals.

Ordinary people all—men and women, boys and girls who had a job to do and did it in spite of acute discomfort and even danger. Aren't they wonderful neighbors?

Affected by the moon?

We're at whim of the weather

By RON POULTON

The husband said: "My wife never gets up to get my breakfast when it rains. On wet mornings we've got a firm agreement to hate each other."

The doctor said: "When the weather turns nasty for a few days my office will be packed with people with all sorts of imaginary complaints. Cancer, skin rashes and headaches are the most popular."

Ever since man first got up on the wrong side of the cave and envied the hibernating bear, his spirits have gone up and down with the barometer.

Yet the science of bio-climatology—concerning the weather's effect on the human body and mind—is probably the most neglected in North America. Everybody talks about it, but nobody does very much.

No one knows how many diseases may be borne upon the fluctuating air, or how much business gurgles down the drain when the skies cry and man gets the sulks.

Or what strange moods, leading to suicide, murder or mayhem, may follow fogs and icy winds.

Or whether the droughts which course across the hemispheres bear the seeds of ideologies, suspicion, hate and war.

When the novelist sends his killer roaming on nights when the moon is full, is he writing poppycock or touching the truth?

The moon affects rainfall in areas as wide apart as the United States and New Zealand. Its phases urge growing plants. Its pull creates tides in the upper atmosphere and in the oceans below.

TIDES IN PERSONALITY
But science hasn't got around to finding out whether it also causes tides in the personality of man; and most medical experts will skirt the question.

But the Compendium of Meteorology—the weatherman's Bible—says: "The number of deaths from heart failure and suicide and the ratio of births to deaths reveal a weekly as well as a lunar period."

It cites a relationship between sunspot activity and mental diseases and suicides—and even cholera outbreaks in Russia. It suggests man may even get some of his humors all the way from outer space.

Meteorologists have been nudging medical men about this for years, but they've never got together long enough to do much about it, at least, not in North America.

When the World Meteorological Association met in Toronto back in 1953, Dr. F. W. Reichelderfer, then president, claimed: "The weather can have a lot to do with the world situation because it affects personalities. The climate in Washington and Moscow is different in more ways than one."

It was that way in 1960 when Helmut Landsberg, chief of the climatology division of the U.S. Weather Bureau, took off for Europe to do a survey because "in the States hardly anything is being done and government backing is inadequate."

It was that way right up until recently when Eli Mukamal, head of the government's micro-climatology section said, regretfully: "We haven't been doing any organized studies in bio-climatology, but we hope to get started very soon."

Landsberg found that a lot was being done in Europe. He surveyed 50 research workers in seven universities, and came home convinced that atmospheric environment does have a powerful influence on people.

When he left, more than 100,000 clinical studies had already been made in West German hospitals alone. Meteorologists and doctors were working so closely together that even medical dosages were being governed by mutual charts.

The test patients had complaints ranging from heart and circulatory troubles to kidney and gall bladder colics, allergies, suicidal tendencies, mental depression, epilepsy, accident proneness and amputation scar pains.

Girl Scouts and Brownies enjoy Yuletide parties

DERBY LINE — The Derby Line Village hall was beautifully decorated by the senior girl scouts for the Christmas party of the Brownies, held Friday, Dec. 21, from four to six o'clock, followed by the Girl Scouts party at 6:30 p.m.

There were 36 Brownies and their guests present. Under supervision of a group of Girl Scouts, assisted by Mrs. Robert Murray, all had fun playing games.

A supper was served, the place mats, being made earlier by the Brownies. On leaving, each was given a stocking filled with candies.

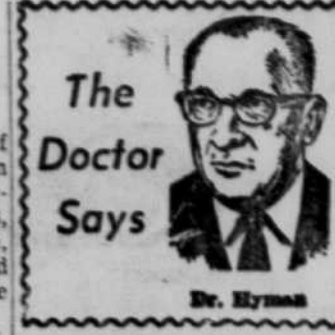

At the Girl Scout party, the program of games and dancing was arranged by Grades 5 and 6 girls. Later lunch was served, convoked by Grade 8 girls, with Ruthie Darby, the chairman.

Afterwards the girls divided into groups and went around the village to homes of the sick and elders and sang carols, which gave pleasure to the listeners as the clear young voices filled the air. After returning to the hall each girl was given a stocking filled with candies.

At both parties there was an exchange of gifts from a gaily decorated tree.

VISIT HOSPITALS Saturday afternoon, Dec. 22, Mrs. Ann Aldrich, Scout and Brownie leader in her car, drove three little Brownies, Barbara, Beverly and Linda Hovey to the Patenaude Rest Home at Derby, where the girls walked from room to room and sang a carol for the patients, had a chat with the men and women and left with them a Christmas stocking filled with candies.

Afterward they continued on to Newport, to Broadview and Orleans County Memorial Hos-

The Doctor Says

DON'T LET FROSTBITE NIP YOU THIS WINTER

If you live in the northern part of the country you may be exposed to frostbite on some of our coldest days. If you live in Florida you may want to go up North to visit the grandchildren. If you have any impairment of the circulation, such as hardening of the arteries or varicose veins of hands or feet, exposure to temperatures below 10 degrees Fahrenheit can be hazardous.

The feet are especially vulnerable because the blood can get down to them all right, but has a hard time making the return trip. For this reason you should never stand still on a very cold day while waiting for the bus. Keep the circulation going by pacing back and forth, or, if you're afraid you'll lose your place in line, you can at least rock back and forth on your heels and toes.

If your feet actually become frozen, the picture changes. In that case walking aggravates the damage and the quicker you can get off your feet and be transported to a warm place the better.

Some people can stand the cold better than others. Even at the same person, the ability to tolerate cold may vary from time to time. The factors that determine how much damage is done are the temperature of the part (toes, fingers, nose or ears), the humidity, the wind velocity, and the health condition of the person exposed. Having had a previous case of frostbite increases the risk of a return attack.

Warning sensations include a stinging pain and numbness in the part. Sometimes a person whose foot has become numb due to frostbite has a thought that the foot was asleep and has hopped up and down to get the circulation going.

This causes the tiny ice crystals that have formed in the tissues to act as needles and increase the damage. It is also a great mistake to remove a shoe and massage the foot. The massage will add to the injury and the injured foot will swell so that the shoe cannot be put on again.

The old ideas of treatment which included slowly rewarmed a frostbitten part have been shown to be wrong. The part should be put in a warm bath (100-108 degrees Fahrenheit). Once the part has been rewarmed it should be left exposed to the air at a temperature of 70 to 79. Bandaging is not necessary.

The best treatment of frostbite is not to get it in the first place. When the thermometer approaches zero don't stay out any longer than is necessary. If you must walk a great distance in the city, pop in and out of stores along the way. Protect the feet, hands, and face and do as many errands as possible over the telephone. When you do go out, keep moving.

Card of Thanks CAMERON — As organist at Holy Trinity Church, South Bolton, I wish to extend my very sincere thanks to all who contributed to the generous sum of money given me on Christmas Sunday, which had been collected by Mrs. Matthew Barnes and her daughter Miss Valerie Barnes. EDITH H. CAMERON

GREENLAY — I would like to sincerely thank all my friends and relatives who sent me flowers, fruit and cards and the St. Andrew's Women's Association for the Christmas plant on my 90th birthday. Also Mr. A. J. Philip for his kindness. WILLIAM S. GREENLAY, Greenlay, Que.

REED — I wish to thank all the nurses and doctors of the Sherbrooke Hospital, the church groups, the friends and neighbors who have been so kind, thoughtful and generous during my illness and long convalescence. Their cards, gifts and visits have been very much appreciated. Most sincerely, RUTH M. REED

ROBINSON — I wish to thank all those who did so much for me during my stay in the Sherbrooke Hospital. Especially Dr. Kinick, and the other doctors, nurses and staff of the third floor. Also ministers and other visitors for cards, flowers, plants etc. All are deeply appreciated. MR. DEAN ROBINSON, Dixville, Que.

"Of course, I was just a youngster at the time but Dad took me along to the new bank soon after it opened. I opened my first savings account... so it was a pretty important occasion for me. It's difficult to realize that I opened my account 50 years ago... and that the Bank of Montreal is marking its 50th anniversary in Cowansville.

"There wasn't much of an office at the beginning, as I recall. The first manager couldn't fit in suitable premises and set up for business with a couple of barrels and a board! Sure have been big changes since those days!

"Well, the bank was originally an office of the Moisons Bank. But it merged with the Bank of Montreal soon afterwards and we've all come to know the office as the B of M.

"About 1915, the bank moved into its permanent building on Main Street. The old 'Cowansville Observer' office was on the site before the bank bought the property. And we all know the Bank of Montreal office... although there have been changes there, too, through the years. You'll remember that big modernization project a couple of years ago... fine new facilities and lots of space all round now.

"Yes, 50 years is a long time... and you and I and a lot of the rest of us in Cowansville have good reason to have been dealing with the Bank of Montreal for a good many of those years. We've seen a lot of progress at the bank and in Cowansville."

Yes, here and throughout the length and breadth of the nation, the Bank of Montreal has grown with the community, sharing in its growing pains as well as in its achievements.

And, in hamlets and villages, towns and cities, the B of M is still pioneering with the men and women who are building the Canada of tomorrow.

Federal poultry division is active in grading, production and marketing

It would take a mighty big basket to hold all the eggs marketed through federally registered egg grading stations last year—2.5 billion of them.

And a somewhat oversized oven would be needed to cope with the 430.7 million pounds of poultry handled by processing plants in the same period.

The fact that this voluminous output was consistent in grade and quality is the result of federal regulations and programs administered by the Production, Grading and Inspection, and Markets and Merchandising sections of Canada Department of Agriculture's Poultry Division.

Yolk color, governed by the hen's diet, has no effect on the food value of the egg but is a factor in grading.

The yolk color may also spark a mild disagreement in a household. A survey some time ago showed that women preferred lighter colored yolks than did men. And city dwellers of both sexes favored lighter yolks than did their country counterparts.

The high quality of Canada's poultry products did not "just happen."

It is the result of production programs and policies carefully mapped out to improve poultry and the production and sale of chicks. Responsibility here is with the division's Production section.

Canada is a pioneer in this field and its National Poultry Breeding Program, inaugurated in 1919, is the oldest of its kind in the world. Under it, breeders are assisted in developing lines of poultry for greater efficiency in meat and egg production.

Thirty-five breeders are now participating in the program which is carried out in three phases—the pedigreed selection program on the breeders' plants, on-the-farm random sample tests by the breeders, and the central testing program at Ottawa.

Also in the domain of the Production section is the administration of the Hatchery Registration Policy which this year involves 456 chicken and turkey hatcheries with a total capacity of 35,023,115 eggs.

This policy aims at the dissemination of breeding stock through the poultry industry; control of the spread of disease through hatcheries and into commercial chicks, and the supply of statistics concerning the numbers and types of chicks being sold.

Registered hatcheries are subject to federal regulations that demand a high standard of cleanliness and adequate fumigation of eggs and incubators. They also set out measures for inspection of hatchery premises and methods of distribution of checks and turkey poulters.

Supporting the federal regulations is the Provincial Hatchery Supply Flock Policy which is primarily concerned with the eradication of Salmonella pullorum disease. Under this measure, blood tests for pullorum are required for hatchery supply flocks.

Federal regulations stipulate that only chicks produced in registered hatcheries may be shipped interprovincially.

Opening new avenues of sales for Canadian poultry products is only one of the essential services performed by the division's Markets and Merchandising section.

Responsible for poultry marketing and the merchandising program, it is continually seeking to expand existing overseas and domestic markets and to find new ones.

Its broad front of operations includes provision of up-to-the-minute information on domestic and foreign markets, daily market reports and, in collaboration with the Marketing and Merchandising Section, publication of a weekly market report which has a circulation of 7,000 and serves all segments of the poultry industry.

The section is responsible also for developing ways to improve marketing methods.

Still another facet of its operation is the implementation of programs of the Agricultural Stabilization Board which apply to poultry. These involve deficiency payments for eggs and floor-price purchasing of turkeys.

Easily grown house plants

By MARGARET E. DOVE

From a selection of easily grown house plants the grower will find the following very reliable and most interesting to grow. All propagate readily and thrive with ordinary attention.

Pick-a-back or piggy-back plant (tolmiea menziesii), a native of the Pacific coast, is our favorite. For some reason this plant is not often seen in homes.

The decorative plant grown for its interesting fresh green foliage, has a unique feature of propagating itself. Young plants develop and sit on the tips of the parent plant's leaves, hence the common name, pick-a-back.

TRAILING RUNNERS

Strawberry begonia (saxifraga sarmentosa) is a trailing plant, each runner carrying one or more plantlets. It grows well in an east or west window, requires moderate supply of water and is attractive to grow in a hanging basket or on a wall bracket.

Spider plant (chlorophytum) has green and white striped leaves. Long, slender stems bear young tiny plants perched on their tips.

Given a general purpose soil mixture, partial shade and moisture, the plant will flourish.

To start another plant snip off the runner at the tip and anchor firmly in a pot of soil.

Bryophyllum, a succulent, is a rapid grower. It produces young plants around the edges of the leaves. These drop off into the soil and as they root are easily picked out and repotted.

ROOT EASILY

When well developed, these little clusters of plantlets with a parent leaf attached, may be potted up in light rich humusy soil.

They root easily, grow quickly and soon in turn become attractive little plants. The leaves will also root readily in a jar with the water barely touching the leaf and new plants soon develop.

Cultural requirements are simple. Keep moist at all times, provide good drainage, give good light but not direct hot sun.

WOOD BOLT

For wood you will use either a carriage bolt or a machine bolt. Machine screws and stove bolts are for use in metal and general fastening. Machine screws are often used without nuts, with the hole being threaded instead. Stove bolts are smaller than carriage bolts, have slotted heads for screwdriver tightening and take a square nut.

Carriage bolts have oval heads. The shank below the head is square for a very short distance. This keeps the head from turning in the wood as the bolts is tightened. Carriage bolts range in diameter 3/16 inch to 3/4 inch and in length from 3/4 inch to 39 inches.

Stove bolts range in diameter from 1/8 to 3/8 inch and lengths up to 6 inches.

There are special bolts for special jobs. A stud bolt is threaded at each end, or along its entire length and it is tightened with a nut at each end.

Threaded steel rods can be had in a variety of sizes and can be cut to length with a hack saw.

There are also U-bolts and eye bolts that can be used on special jobs. A hook bolt is used to anchor a framing plate to a foundation. The hook end it put in place and concrete poured around it. The threaded end is then left sticking up. The hook prevents the bolt from coming loose when the nut is tightened down.

Don't overtighten a bolt and nut. Making the nut too tight will strip the threads. Tighten until it's snug, then give it another quarter turn.

Lock washers will assure a tight nut and bolt even though there may be tension or vibration. If you have trouble tightening a nut and bolt, use some light machine oil on the threads. Difficulty in loosening can be cured with penetrating oil (NEA).

Do-it-yourself

Use nuts and bolts for job they were designed to do

You will have greater convenience and greater strength in wood joints that have been joined with nuts and bolts rather than screws or nails. Such joints will stand up under heavier loads or greater strains. Should you wish to take an object apart, the joints can be disassembled without damage to the wood.

One job you will have to undertake using bolts that you might not with screws or nails is the drilling of holes. (But even with screws and nails it's wise to drill pilot holes when going through hardwood.)

VALLETTA, Malta (Reuters) A section of a prehistoric village has been unearthed in a field some 15 miles from here. Its stone and mud-brick huts date back to about 2,400 BC or earlier.

Confined chickens equal to range-reared birds

Many poultrymen are now raising their chickens in confinement, rather than on the range.

Leonard Griesbach of the Canada Department of Agriculture research station at Fredericton, N.B., says the feeds now available make it possible to raise good birds this way.

Usually less labor is involved and there are fewer losses from predators than would be the case when raising the chickens on the range, he explains.

The cost of housing for confinement rearing need not be higher than that of maintaining good range conditions. Unused brooder houses or other occupied buildings can often be used with very little remodeling. Suitable protection can be provided with a pole-type barn at no higher cost than predator-proof fencing, shelters and other equipment required on range.

Tests have shown that there need be no difference in egg production, egg quality or bird mortality in the laying house, between flocks raised in confinement and those raised on range. The latter are lighter when housed but catch up in body weight in the laying house.

Broiler strains have been raised in confinement at Fredericton for two years. The floor space per bird during the rearing period was a little more than three square feet, yet the pullets developed well and had better bloom than most range-raised birds. Debeaking to control cannibalism was not necessary until the pullets were in the laying pens but it may be necessary to perform this operation earlier under some conditions.

Knowing more of the nutritional requirements of chickens has facilitated the successful rearing of chickens indoors.

For instance, disorders sometimes arise from nervous excitability among pullets raised indoors when moving them to the laying houses. These have been overcome by giving them a feed fortified with an antibiotic for a few days after moving.

Confinement rearing is not recommended where farm grains are cheap and good grass range free from predators is available. When part of the flock has to be hatched too early or too late to take full advantage of range rearing, full confinement rearing might be the answer.

Gay setting for Way's Mills S.S. Christmas party

WAY'S MILLS — A gayly decorated church was the setting for the annual Sunday School Christmas tree held Dec. 19, in the United Church, Rev. H. C. Denton, of Hatley, acted as master of ceremonies for the evening, with remarks and thanks expressed by Rev. G. Joyce, pastor, of Ayer's Cliff.

The welcoming recitation, given by Gail Ashman, was followed by recitations given by Ruby Smith, Charlie C. Ass, Timmy Clark, Brenda Ashman, Margaret Loke, Debbie Clark, Russell Smith, Linda Walsh, Sharon Pederson, Pat Maloney, Valerie Ashman, Roy Lyonnais and Eleanor Clark.

Two accordion solos were rendered the first by Meta Smith, and the second by Beverly Davis. Community singing of carols was enjoyed and the entire school group sang Away in a Manger and Silent Night. Two skits were presented by the senior pupils.

Mrs. C. Mayhew made a few remarks in which she thanked those taking part and the donors for their generous help.

More carols were sung until the arrival of Santa Claus who was assisted in dismantling the loaded tree by several members of the class.

Much credit goes to the two teachers, Mrs. Maloney and Mrs. Mayhew, as well as to all the youngsters taking part, whose numbers reflected careful planning and training.

KINNEAR'S MILLS

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney White and daughter, Tammy, Vile la Salle were in town, en route to the home of Mrs. White's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Nugent, when they spent Christmas and a few days. Mr. Arnold Nugent, Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, is also a guest of his parents.

Spanish influence seen in Spring collection

The influence of Spain, from its larger hats to its striking and exotic colours and combinations, is seen in the spring collection of millinery designed by Jerry Yates of Montreal.

New and modified shapes such as the Gaucho, Sombrino and Flamenco, are introduced in both major and minor stripes and solid shades, while the traditional chades, pill-boxes and bretons are shown with new treatments.

Mr. Yates concentrates on a more tailored look with emphasis on severity of line. Completely stitched and stitched trim hats continue as an important concept in headwear and the possibility of maintained popularity for leathers and suedes is seen in keeping with the continued trend toward these materials in sportswear and casual clothes.

Colour provides additional fashion news with the revival of pastels — this year newly-hued — peony pink, surf blue and citron. White and black retain their importance while beige is seen less frequently. Navy blue, long a dormant spring colour, marches back into significance to co-ordinate with navy blue spring footwear, and red achieves a position of some authority.

Particularly interesting is the imaginative use of combined colours in stripes — red with beige, mint and navy, coffee and pink, grey with white. A whole range of these largely and narrowly-striped hats are seen and each is also available in a solid tone.

Straws, from Renaissance and Milan to the Swiss and Italian novelties and Raffia straw braid, are included in the collection, as are floral and printed silks, antique crepes and moire taffetas. Flower hats are of less note but a small group is included for traditionalists.

Among the styles shown in the current collection is a large-brimmed Sombrino in citron and black narrowly-striped Milan straw, banded in grosgrain; a sophisticated alpine in Renaissance straw, combining white with brown and trimmed with couterine-treated stitched ribbon; a red and white striped Las Palmas high-crowned straw and a silk print floral large-brimmed cloche with a pleated crown.

The influence of Spain is noted in this "Sombrino" design for spring by Jerry Yates of Montreal. Fashioned in a striking combination of lemon with black milan straw, it is widely circled in grosgrain.

Polly's pointers

by Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — Ladies who wear bifocal glasses often find it hard to tweeze their eyebrows. Put them on upside down and you can see better. The shape of the glasses give more room around the eyes for plucking the eyebrows.

GEORGA
Georga's letter brought to mind a trick I picked up. Seated under a beauty shop dryer, I was struggling to get my glasses on without disturbing rollers over each ear. A woman next to me pulled hers out of her purse and held them backwards with one hand as she held a magazine in the other hand. Looks pretty silly but you can see to read without disturbing a fresh set.

POLLY
DEAR POLLY — I broke the shank on a coat button and could not find one to match. Rather than buy another expensive set, I filled the broken place with wood plastic (leaving a hole for needle and thread to go through) and let it set for two days to harden. Now I have the matching button back on my coat.

A.M.H.
DEAR POLLY — We are a game-playing family but do not own a card or poker table. It is inconvenient when cards or dominoes slide across our laminated plastic tabletop.

Deciding we needed a cover, I found felt too expensive so brought dark green corduroy. The piece was several inches larger than the tabletop. I made a narrow hem through which I ran a string, tied to a safety pin, down one side and across one end. I did the same for the other two sides and pulled the strings up to the size of the table. We love our improvised game table.

MRS. R. V.
DEAR POLLY — Those who have teen-agers who give coin parties: just turn to the old washing machine, especially if it is a top loader. Arrange the cans or bottles in the washer and cover with chopped ice. Close the lid and it will be ready when you are. When the party is over, remove the remaining bottles, turn machine on spin and your job of tidying up is done. Caution: don't absently turn the washer on while loaded with bottles.

ART
GIRLS — I think I would pull that washer connection out of the socket before I turned the boys loose to use it for a cold drink cooler.

POLLY
DEAR POLLY — I tape an empty plastic toothbrush holder to the inside of a kitchen cabinet door to hold a pencil. Much handier than a pencil in a drawer.

Senator's wife likes to knit for grandchildren

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. George White, wife of the new Speaker of the Senate, is a white-haired grandmother who likes to knit for her four grandchildren.

For more than 20 years she has commuted between Ottawa and the family home at Madoc, 125 miles west of here. But now that Senator White is Speaker of the upper house, she expects to spend most of her time in Ottawa.

"This is going to be much different from the quiet life at Madoc." Her husband represented the Eastern Ontario riding of Hastings-Frontenac in the House of Commons from 1940 until 1957, when he was the first Conservative senator appointed by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

"He went to the Commons at the same time as Mr. Diefenbaker and they have been friends ever since," she said. Mrs. White, the former Irene McBride, was born in Montreal and lived in Napanee, Ont., before her family settled at Brockville, Ont.

After high school and business college, she became secretary to the superintendent at the School for the Deaf and remained there for 10 years. She was 17 when she started working.

She met her future husband when he was a law student. They were married at Belleville, Ont., in 1922 and have four children, two boys and two girls.

Mrs. White has helped with the housework in their Madoc bungalow but she enjoys doing her own cooking and makes her own jam, marmalade and pickles.

Her favorite pastimes include knitting and needlework. She says she's "an indifferent bridge player."

Mrs. White has not actively helped in any of her husband's political campaigns "but I was always there—a silent partner." Her one regret in her new role is that she does not speak French. She thinks it would be helpful in her contact with various people in the diplomatic set here.

Ma Heller re-opens restaurant

MONTREAL (CP)—Ma Heller, whose newsy letters helped keep Montreal alive in the minds of hundreds of Second World War soldiers, has reopened her restaurant.

More than 100 old-time friends attended the opening. Most of them were veterans with whom Ma used to correspond.

The west-end soda shop she and her husband opened more than 30 years ago became a favorite with teen-agers in the district. When war broke out she continued to keep in touch with her "boys" by mail.

She recalls they had a standard closing to their letters—"Kiss all the girls for me, I'll take over when I get back."

The walls of the new restaurant bear covers medals for bravery given to Ma Heller by the men awarded them. And an honor roll with nearly 600 names is beside it. It was given to her by the defence department and has the names of all the servicemen who visited the soda shop.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Ivar Lemmon, Stanstead, announce the engagement of their daughter, Anna, to Mr. Wendle Mosher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Mosher, of Ayer's Cliff. A spring wedding is planned.

Personals

Friends of Mr. Fred Sinclair, High Street, Sherbrooke, will be sorry to learn he is a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Holiday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Worster, Prospect Street, Lennoxville, were Mr. and Mrs. Archie Kinnear of Theford Mines, Mr. and Mrs. Keith MacAllister and family of Napanee, Ont., Mrs. Mary Worster and Mr. Bert Worster of Sherbrooke.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McKeage and family, Debby Anne, Kevin Thomas and Brenda of Richmond Hill, Ont., were holiday guests of Mrs. Melissa McKeage, McKeage Rest Home, Sherbrooke. They were also guests of Mr. and Mrs. David Turnbull of Argyle Street, Sherbrooke.

Mr. Wayne Lynn Patrick of Feller College (School), Grande Ligne, Que., is spending his Christmas holidays with his grandmother, Mrs. Melissa McKeage of Sherbrooke.

Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson McKelvey of Magog announce the marriage of their daughter, Judith Ann, to Barry Gordon Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald A. Smith of Sherbrooke, December 21, 1962 at Saint James Anglican Church, Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are residing in Montreal.

From male to female

MONTREAL (CP)—The male doctor treating the female patient is as old as the medical profession itself.

But how about the female doctor treating the male patient. Embarrassing?

Maybe, says Dr. Edith Newell, a Sudbury, Ont. general practitioner. But once a patient, the men will remain patients "as long as they're sure that we are not going to embarrass them in any way."

A woman doctor, says Dr. Milly Halberstadt of Malone, N.Y., has to maintain "a stricter professional relationship with male patients." But this was not unusual because "male doctors must act the same way with their female patients."

The two were among four women doctors attending a convention here of 90 general practitioners. The others were Dr. Dorothy McManus of Northfield, Vt., and Dr. Sarah Saunders of Toronto. Of the four, only Dr. Halberstadt is married.

Dr. Newell spoke about the experience the four had in common. "At the beginning of our practices, we had predominantly women and children as patients. But eventually, we got the wife or the mother, through the wife or the mother, to get the male members of the family."

Dish in a dash, party fare

Chicken Kiev, despite its name, is not a Russian recipe. Since chicken is high on the list of favorites in practically every country in the world, it might be termed an international dish.

This recipe would make ideal party fare during the festive season. And the ease with which it can be prepared is a bonus no busy holiday hostess can afford to overlook. Boned chicken breasts are seasoned and wrapped around pats of sweet or salted butter or margarine, then dipped in egg and coated with fine dry bread crumbs. Although Chicken Kiev is traditionally deep fried, this particular version is baked, emerging from the oven with a delicate golden crust.

BAKED CHICKEN KIEV
Yield — 4 servings
4 large single chicken breasts, 2 tablespoons hard sweet or salted butter or margarine, salt and pepper, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon cold water, ¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs, melted butter or margarine.

Remove skin and bones from each breast of chicken, trying not to tear the chicken. Pound each chicken fillet as thin as possible with a rolling pin. Shape the 2 tablespoons hard butter or margarine into 4 egg-shaped pieces and place one piece in centre of each chicken breast; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Roll up each fillet to encase butter or margarine completely. Beat eggs and water together until mingled. Dip rolls into egg and then coat with bread crumbs and arrange them on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Preheat oven to 350 deg. F. (moderate). Drizzle melted butter or margarine over the rolls. Bake them in preheated oven until chicken is tender — 50 to 60 minutes

Winter eating pleasure, colorful, gay

Bring the tropics into your home anytime of the year with a luncheon laden with fruits. The star of the menu is Sun Burst Salad. Slices of golden pineapple are nestled on crisp greens with rays of sliced peaches and avocado arranged alternately around them. A sweet 'n' tart Poppy Seed Dressing is served over the fruits.

Bowls of piping hot Creamy Tomato Oyster Stew and miniature orange muffins made quickly and easily with a packaged mix are tasty foods to round out the menu.

SUN BURST SALAD
1 small head lettuce, 1 can (8 oz.) sliced pineapple, 1 can (1 lb.) sliced peaches, 1 avocado, Poppy Seed Dressing.

Line individual salad bowls with outer leaves of lettuce. Shred remaining lettuce to fill the bottoms of the bowls. Arrange drained chilled pineapple and peaches with slices of avocado in each bowl. Pass Poppy Seed Dressing. Four large salads.

POPPY SEED DRESSING:
Combine ½ cup sugar, ¼ tea spoon each of salt and dry mustard and ¼ cup wine vinegar in a saucepan; heat to boiling, stirring. Cool. Add 1 cup salad oil slowly to the vinegar mixture, beating constantly with a rotary beater or electric mixer. Stir in 1 teaspoon poppy seed. Chill.

Moose muffle soup

HALIFAX (CP) — Interested in off-beat dishes? Here's a soup that ought to spark the curiosity of any guest.

It's moose muffle soup and calls for veal, onion, thyme, marjoram, cloves, cayenne, salt, meat balls fried in butter, tomato catsup, yolks of 12 hard-boiled eggs, a bottle of port and a moose muffle.

The recipe appeared in The Mail-Star letters column, sent by a woman who disagreed with a letter saying it was difficult to find genuine Nova Scotian, or Canadian, dishes.

A muffle is the thick part of the upper lip of certain animals, in this case a moose. It would be difficult to get in Nova Scotia these days since there has been no open season on moose for 30 years.

The woman says the ingredients must be cooked over a cordwood fire and suggests the skin of the nostrils be shaved with a sharp knife.

In another letter on moose muffle soup, the writer said he used an electric razor to get the whiskers off the muffle. He also used a bottle of rum instead of port.

- Cold Sliced Roast Beef or Turkey
- Chutney Relishes
- Scalloped Potatoes
- Buttered Broccoli
- Enriched Bread
- Butter or Margarine
- Raspberry Bavarian
- Coffee Tea Milk

Food Tips

A continental flair with seasonings and simple vegetables transforms frozen fish sticks into a quick, satisfying dinner dish that's quite sophisticated. Fish Sticks Scalloped can be prepared and completely cooked in about fifteen minutes. In a heavy frying pan melt about one-third of a cup of butter, then add two medium onions cut into rings and four medium green peppers cut into large strips. Cover the pan and cook vegetables about five minutes over low to medium heat. Then stir in a quarter of a cup of sherry or dry white wine. Season with salt and pepper. Arrange the contents of one package of fish sticks on top. Cover; cook about three to five minutes or until the fish sticks are heated through.

Anyone having items of interest for the Social Column please phone Mrs. P. Pickford, LO. 9-3636, Local 38.

Hearts are trump in giving not electronic brain

Have you seen or heard about the electronic gift picker that is said to be able to suggest just the right present for any one you want to give a gift to?

It seems you feed information into this brain—such as the recipient's state of health, age, sex, hobby interests and so on, and—click, click, click—but comes a variety of gift suggestions.

On first thought, this might sound like the perfect solution to the gift-giving problem everybody faces from time to time.

There's just one drawback, but it's an important one: The best gifts don't come from the brain (even from an electronic one). The best of all gifts come from the heart. It's the heart that picks the gifts that are long cherished and remembered, because it is the heart and not the brain that prompts us not to be too sensible when we go to buy a gift. The brain, for instance (and this probably includes the electronic brain, too), would probably say that an old, old lady who seldom gets out of the house would be pleased with a nice warm dressing gown or bedroom slippers or a knitted shawl.

But the heart would quickly remind you that those are probably the kind of gifts the old, old lady has been receiving for years and, that while they are useful they are also a reminder that she is old—and that comfort is the one thing that is left to her.

The heart would say, "Get her something nobody else will think of giving her—a bottle of perfume with a glamorous name, a dozen red roses that won't last long except in memory."

The heart chooses the perfect gifts—and electronic brains, however clever, don't have hearts to guide them.

LIKES KNITTING — Favorite pastimes of Mrs. George White, wife of the new Senate speaker, are knitting and needlework. Although she has spent most of her time in the quiet of her home at Madoc, 125 miles from Ottawa, Mrs. White now expects to be in the capital more often as a result of her husband's appointment. ## Be a watchdog

Save hubby's heart, supervise his diet

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. H. R. Malkin believes mothers should be the watchdogs of the hearts of husband and children.

The first woman president of the Canadian Heart Foundation, she describes as shocking the fact that half the annual death toll in Canada is due to heart disease.

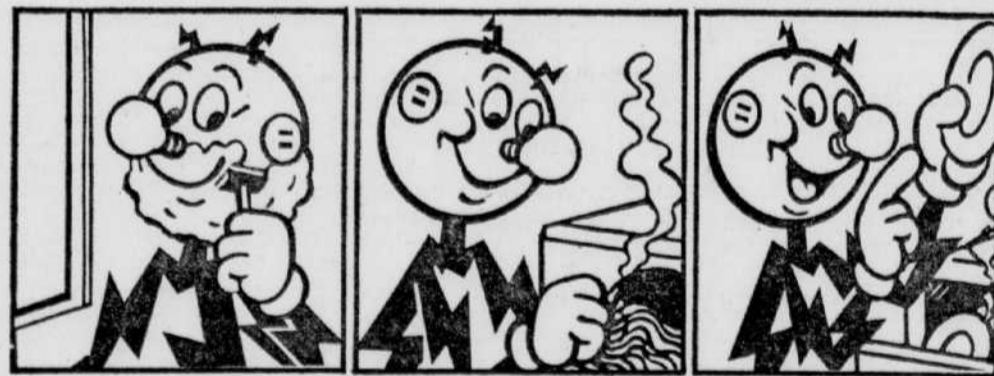

She has this advice for mothers:

Know the warning signs of heart disease. Watch family diets, particularly your husband's. If he spends most of his day at a desk, don't let him climb the roof to fix the TV antenna or push the car when it's stuck in snow.

Watch the children for signs of the disease and keep an eye out for signs that anyone's heart is not acting as it should.

Canadian radio and television had an extremely unsettled year

OTTAWA (CP) —

The 1962 Grey Cup fog dropped like a curtain on one of the most controversial years in Canadian broadcasting history.

As the Toronto mist shrouded the players on the football field and television screens across Canada, it seemed to symbolize the unsettled state of Canadian radio and TV.

The outlook for 1963 remained clouded.

The Grey Cup TV controversy appeared as a symptom of problems stemming from the growing pains of "second" television stations and an alternate network.

The squabble, which at its height hit the floor of the House of Commons, was brought to a head by the intervention of the Board of Broadcast Governors, regulatory body for Canadian broadcasting.

The BBG contended that the Grey Cup was of national public interest and should have the widest possible TV audience.

This could be achieved only if both the rights-holders, the privately owned CTV network with basic stations in nine cities, and the publicly owned CBC with 14 CBC-owned and 46 private affiliate stations, carried the Grey Cup telecast.

WOULDN'T CARRY ADS

On July 19 the BBG proposed a regulation requiring all network TV stations, including the CBC's, to carry the CTV telecast "in its entirety . . . and not omit or increase any portion of the entertainment or advertising content." It sparked one of the great debates of Canadian broadcasting — between CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet and CTV President Spencer Caldwell — at a special BBG hearing.

The controversial regulation was passed Nov. 7 but it was not put into force because a few days before the Dec. 1 game an agreement was reached under which the CBC would carry the CTV telecast with only courtesy credits instead of regular commercials. The CBC had declared its intention to defy the ruling on the grounds that it went beyond the board's authority with respect to the advertising stipulation.

Meanwhile, the two networks were approaching a long-term, co-operative arrangement for sharing coverage of Canadian football, including the Grey Cup. The rights for 1963 are held by Toronto television station CFTO-TV in the East and by CTV in Western Canada.

Enjoy Skiing

By ANNE HEGGVEIT

Today's article is the last directed specifically at beginners.

New skiers have to be prepared to do a certain amount of falling at first. After a fall, get up right away and don't lie in the snow. You never know if an expert or someone just plain out of control will come scussing through the novices' area and run into you.

POLES TOGETHER

After a tumble, swing both skis across the hill. Free your hands and put both poles together, holding them with one hand on the grips and the other above the rings. Place them on the snow just above your body and pull yourself up.

Learning how to turn is the next basic step for the beginner. Until this point, he has probably been able to manage quite well on his own or with the help of a book. Now is the time to have some lessons from a professional.

This would cut his learning time considerably. The following articles, although directed towards the intermediate to expert, will have hints that can be of help to the beginner.

Miss Heggveit will answer questions from skiers as space permits. Address Enjoying Skiing, in care of the Sherbrooke Daily Record. (TNS)

NCAA opens 57th annual convention, dispute to be main topic on agenda

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association opens its 57th annual convention today with its dispute with the Amateur Athletic Union sure to occupy most of the attention.

The tussle between the two powerful amateur athletic bodies threatens to ruin the make-up of United States teams for international competition, including the Pan-American Games in Brazil this spring and the Olympics in Tokyo next year.

An apparent "truce" less than two months ago has been shattered in a maze of confusion, charges and counter-charges over what was agreed upon. The main question is whether agreement was reached on a coalition in track and field that would replace the AAU as the U.S. governing body in the sport after the Tokyo games. The NCAA-supported track and field federation says yes; the AAU says no, and adds never.

With the break between the groups as wide as ever, President Kennedy has stepped in, naming Gen. Douglas MacArthur as mediator. Although both sides have accepted the president's appeal for arbitration, the AAU will arbitrate only with the NCAA. It has insisted it will not sit down with the year-old U.S. Track and Field Federation, which it calls a puppet of the NCAA.

The NCAA, which considers itself only a part of the federation structure, says it will not arbitrate individually with the AAU.

On the eve of the week-long convention here, the situation flared again with the disclosure that the NCAA is proposing legislation to back recommendations that could all but eliminate collegiate participation in the AAU-sanctioned indoor track season.

On the agenda for a business session next Wednesday is an amendment to the NCAA bylaws that, in effect, would knock a collegian out of the NCAA track and field championships if he enters an open event not sanctioned by the Track and Field Federation.

The AAU already has suspended more than 50 athletes who competed last fall in three open meets sanctioned by the federation but not by the AAU. Although the NCAA's eligibility proposal is relatively mild, affecting only championship events and not other college competition, it could be sufficient to limit—if not eliminate—collegiate participation in open indoor meets, starting with the Knights of Columbus Games at Boston Jan. 12.

The NCAA already is on record with a series of recommendations, that its more than 50 member schools withdraw from AAU membership, refuse to enter athletes or teams in AAU competition not sanctioned by the federation, withdraw personnel from AAU committees and limit their facilities and equipment to federation-approved events.

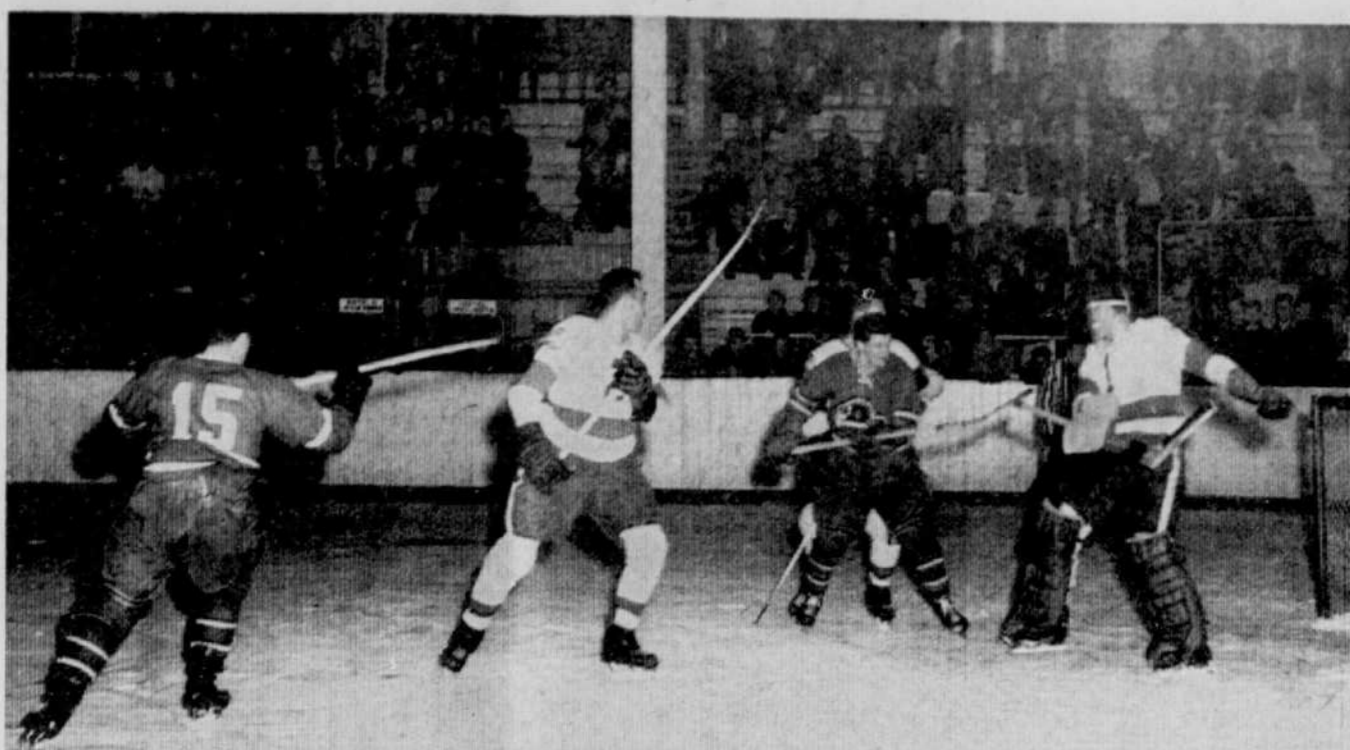

This latter is particularly significant, since the colleges have 90 per cent of the gymnasiums and playing fields in the U.S. along with almost all the athletic equipment.

Vics halt Beavers' winning streak

Andy Payette standout for Vics, Cardin draws match penalty while fans jump officials after game

The bubble finally burst. Sherbrooke Beavers who held the longest winning streak of the current season in the Provincial Hockey League ran into a fired-up Granby club and went down to a crushing 6-2 defeat last night at the Arena. The loss left the locals in a two-way tie with the Drummondville Rockets for second place.

It was the first setback for the Beavers since Dec. 4th, when they went down to a 3-2 defeat at the hands of the Granby club. Since then the Beavers had compiled an impressive winning streak. They had posted six straight victories and seemed headed for higher heights until last night when they clashed with the league-leaders.

The game was marked by several incidents with players and fans taking part. Claude Cardin was tagged with a misconduct for voicing his opinion and when he charged the referee he drew a match penalty for grabbing the official. This will prove costly to the Beavers as they will be without his services for sometime.

Following the game some fans took matters in their own hands and as the officials left the ice three individuals jumped them striking and kicking them. Extra police were called and finally the hallway was cleared. The three persons are known to the club and measures will be taken to cancel their season tickets.

The Vics held the upper hand the whole way through the game and at no time did the Beavers come close to emerging with the decision. Andy Payette demonstrated why he is rated as the top goalie in the league. He played an outstanding part in his team's victory as time after time he came up with the key saves.

The Beavers were outplayed in all departments although they managed to fire a total of 36 shots at Payette but the majority of them were from long distance. On the other hand Joe Lacoursiere stopped 21 but six got by him and he couldn't be blamed for them all as he was left alone several times.

The Vics jumped into an early lead when Boudreau teamed up right after the face-off. Following this the Beavers tried their luck and battered away at Payette firing a total of 17 shots with one getting by, a goal by Rene Pepin.

Payette was terrific at this stage. In the second period Boudreau registered his second marker when Claude Cardin was in the sinbin. Larry Drouin got Beavers' second and last tally on the nicest goal of the evening on a three-way passing play.

In the final frame the Beavers were still unable to dent Payette's armour as he kept coming up with the key saves. Andre Bergeron potted two while Andre Samson got the other.

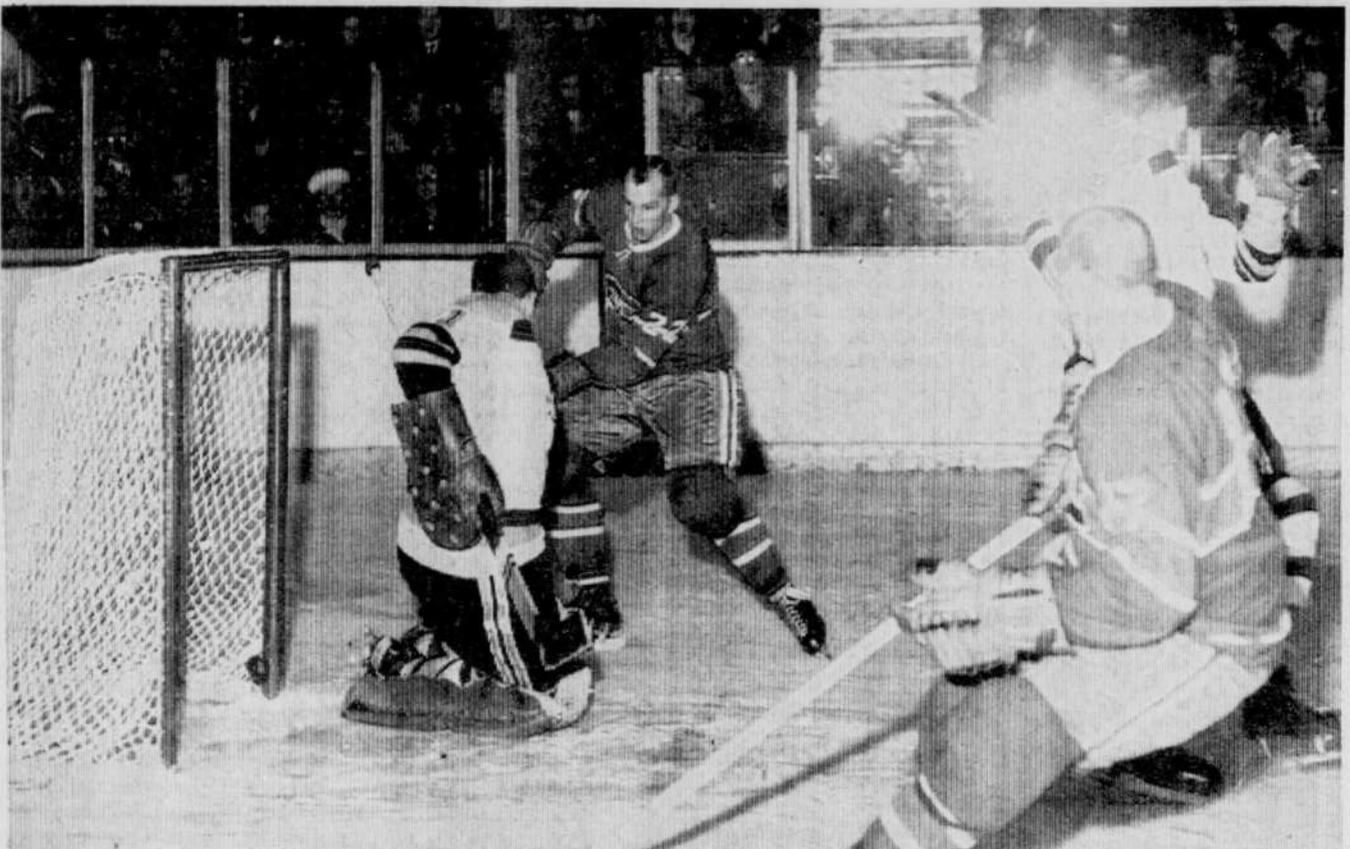

It was Samson's goal which caused Cardin to get tossed out of the game. He staged a verbal discussion with the referee after being warned to keep quiet but he kept it up and he drew a misconduct and then when he charged the referee he got tossed out of the game. His case will be dealt with by the QAHA.

First Period
1—Granby: Boudreau, (Samson) ..... 1:09

Canadiens down Bruins, tie Leafs for second

If Montreal Canadiens improve as much in the last half of the season. He is tied with New York's Andy Bathgate for second place in goal-scoring, five behind Toronto's Frank Mahovlich, who has 23.

Geoffrion's centre, big, easy-skating Beliveau, was in top form. He was passing with precision and backchecking ferociously. His goal came on a low blazing shot that squeezed between the legs of Boston's rookie goalie Ed Johnston.

It was his first goal since Nov. 18 and the 297th of his career. Only five players in NHL history have scored more than 300 goals — Maurice Richard with 544, Gordie Howe with 515, Ted Lindsay with 365, Geoffrion with 345 and Nels Stewart with 324.

JEAN-GUY SHINES
Talbot, an all-star defenceman last season but slightly off form this year, played his best home game of the season, to the delight of the 13,528 fans. His goal, a backhand on a clear scoring thrust set up by Dickie Moore's leading pass, was his first of the season, while his assist was his 18th.

Johnston, born in Montreal, appeared nervous in the first period when Canadiens took a 3-0 lead. But he tightened up in the last two periods, handling 17 shots without error in the final period.

He made 38 saves in the game, compared with 26 by Jacques Plante in the Montreal nets.

Canadiens had a wide edge in the play, as their intricate passing patterns gave them good scoring chances on almost every shot.

In Saturday's NHL games, New York is at Montreal and Boston is at Toronto. Sunday Canadiens are in New York, Leafs visit Chicago and the Bruins are at Detroit.

Rangers' captain Andy Bathgate will be the centre of attention, as he will be trying to break the record for scoring in consecutive games. The 30-year-old right winger has scored a goal in each of his last nine games, tying a league record held jointly by Geoffrion and Maurice Richard of Montreal and Bobby Hull of Chicago.

NHL LEADERS

Standings: Chicago, won 18, lost 10, tied 9, points 45.
Points: Bathgate, New York, 40.
Goals: Mahovlich, Toronto, 23.
Assists: Beliveau, Montreal, 25.
Shutouts: Plante, Montreal; Hall, Chicago; Sawchuk, Detroit, 3.

Quakers end tour edging Slovan 4-3

GENEVA (CP) — Saskatoon Quakers wound up their European exhibition hockey tour Thursday night with a hard-earned 4-3 victory over Slovan of Bratislava, Czechoslovakia.

More than 7,000 fans in Geneva's Vernets indoor stadium saw the Canadians score all their goals in the second period.

Goalie Don Campbell nipped a Czech rally in the third period with a performance described by the newspaper Tribune de Geneve as "stupifying and sensational."

The Quakers played 13 games in the tour, finishing with seven wins and six losses. The Saskatchewan Senior League club played 11 games against Czech teams, winning seven and losing four. The two other defeats were by Swedish teams.

After a scoreless first period, the Czechs went ahead 1-0 early in the second period. Bill Lindsay and Charlie Goodwin followed with goals to put the Quakers in front 2-1, but the Czechs came back to knot the count 2-2. Then George Senick broke loose for two goals in 20 seconds to provide the victory margin.

The Czechs got another in the third period but Campbell's stand balked at a desperate last-minute effort to get the equalizer.

Donnie Marshall scored the other Montreal goal. Boston's U.S.-born Tom Williams scored his team's only goal early in the third period after Canadiens had taken a 4-0 lead.

The only cloud in the overall picture was a wrist injury suffered by Geoffrion midway through the third period when he was checked by Boston defenceman Ed Westfall.

Geoffrion said after the game the injury to the right wrist was in the same place and seemed to be of the same nature as one he received in a game against Toronto Dec. 5.

The 31-year-old right winger collided with Leaf goalie Johnny Bower on that occasion, and sat out the next two games with a sprained wrist.

MAY BE SERIOUS

But team physiotherapist Bill Head said the injury could be more serious than the earlier one. He said a thorough examination will be made today. "At present, it seems to be torn ligaments, with the possibility of a fracture," said Head of the swelling between Geoffrion's thumb joint and wrist.

Football's post-season bowl games continue this weekend, two on tap Saturday with NFL fixture on Sunday

NEW YORK (AP)—Football's far-flung post-season extravaganzas continue this weekend with professional and college stars in five games from Florida to Hawaii.

Two games are set for Saturday—the 14th annual Senior Bowl at Mobile, Ala., between North and South all-star teams, and the first Challenge Bowl at Corpus Christi, Tex., matching stars from the Southwest Conference against players from other college squads.

On Sunday's schedule are the National Football League playoff bowl at Miami, Fla., between the runners-up in the eastern and western conferences, Pittsburgh Steelers and Detroit Lions; the 17th Hula Bowl at Honolulu, matching two college all-star teams, and the first Crusade Bowl at Baltimore, which pairs off two teams made up mostly of NFL draft choices.

Fifty collegians join the pay-for-play ranks in the Senior Bowl. Those on the winning side will receive $800 each. The losers get $500 apiece.

MANLY STANDOUTS

Southern standouts include all-America center Lee Roy Jordan of Alabama, quarterback Glynn Griffing of Mississippi and full-back Danny Brabham of Arkansas. Passing ace Jerry Gross of Detroit is expected to lead the North club.

Players in the Challenge Bowl also turn pro, with $800 going to each member of the winning team and $600 to each loser. The Steelers will be trying to even a score in their playoff bowl date with the Lions, who swamped Pittsburgh 45-7 in the regular-season opener. This one pits Detroit's ferocious defence against Pittsburgh's battering attack, led by John Henry Johnson, the onetime Calgary Stampeder.

The post-season madness ends a week from Sunday, on Jan. 13, with two pro affairs—the NFL Pro Bowl at Los Angeles between stars of East and West, and the American Football League all-star game at San Diego, Calif.

1963 golf campaign opens at Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 1963 tournament campaign of golf got under way today with the usual star-studded field—and a small army of unknowns—swinging away in the $50,000 Los Angeles open.

Traditionally the mid-winter kickoff of a new year for the professionals, the 37th annual tournament winds up Monday. Among the more famous pros in the 72-hole event were U.S. open champion Jack Nicklaus, Masters and British open champion Arnold Palmer, the American PGA champion, Gary Player of South Africa, and the young man who won the $9,000 top money a year ago, Phil Rodgers.

The setting was the Rancho Park Golf course in West Los Angeles, a 7,100-yard yard layout with par 36-35-71. For some of the best, Rancho has been misery. Palmer in seven attempts has finished no better than 10th.
