Newfoundland Joins Canada

World News In Brief

Boston, April 1.—(AP)—Firemen rescued more than 20 persons down ladders this morning when a three-alarm fire swept the hotel Windemere apartments in the back bay.

Over 100 occupants escaped to safety from the six-story building. One woman, overcome by smoke, was taken to hospital.

Heavy smoke and flames breaking through the roof led to earlier fears that numerous casualties might result and three alarms were sounded in quick succession.

London, April 1.—(AP)—The United States is urging other countries to remove discriminatory tariffs on Japanese goods have been heard on the eve of an important international trade conference at Anney, France.

It is understood the subject of Japan may be discussed this week by a meeting here of Commonwealth trade representatives gathered to agree on a policy for the Anney conference.

New York, April 1.—(AP)—Radio officers today went on strike against Pan American World Airways, and a union spokesman said the stoppage would tie up world-wide operations of the airline.

Picket lines formed at La Guardia field international terminal after fruitless, all-night negotiations session ended.

Damascus, April 1.—(AP)—Brig. Husni Zayim, new dictator of Syria, told interviewers last night he overthrew the old government because it was "rotten" and too weak to "face Communism" and other problems.

Zayim said he intends to restore civil government as soon as possible, but that if his efforts to form a cabinet fail he will proclaim military rule.

London, April 1.—(Reuters)—Six ships, including a Danish freighter and two Swedish vessels, were involved in collisions during the night in one of the worst Channel forays in years.

One British coaster was believed sunk and two British fishermen were known to have lost their lives. A third was missing.

Montreal, April 1.—(AP)—A spokesman for Trans-Canada Airlines said today the 15 per cent increase in its passenger fares, approved by the Board of Transport, will go into effect today. Application for the increase followed announcement in the Federal budget two weeks ago that the 15 per cent tax on passenger transportation tickets was rescinded.

F. Gordon Bradley Becomes New Secretary Of State

Ottawa, April 1.—(AP)—Appointment of F. Gordon Bradley of St. John's as Canadian Secretary of State and as Newfoundland's first representative in the Federal Cabinet was announced today by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The Prime Minister made the announcement during ceremonies on Parliament Hill to mark Newfoundland's entry into Confederation last night as a 10th province.

Mr. Bradley, attorney-general in the last Liberal government in Newfoundland, succeeds Hon. Colin Gibson as Secretary of State.

Mr. St. Laurent made no reference to a new post for Mr. Gibson, who is in St. John's attending union ceremonies there.

However, before the announcement was made there was speculation that Resources Minister MacKinnon will retire from that portfolio and be succeeded by Mr. Gibson. Mr. MacKinnon announced a short time ago that he plans to retire from the cabinet and from Parliament at the end of this session for reasons of health.

Mr. Bradley, in his early 50's, has a reputation as one of Newfoundland's top criminal lawyers. He was attorney-general of Newfoundland from 1928 to 1932 when the Island still had responsible government.

He was one of the two Liberal members re-elected in the 1932 general election in Newfoundland and from then until 1934 he served as leader of the opposition. In 1934, responsible government was suspended in Newfoundland then in

Debate On Budget Opens In Commons

Ottawa, April 1.—(AP)—The C. C. F. and Progressive Conservative parties, belaboring the 1949-50 budget, called on the Commons yesterday to declare non-confidence in the government.

As the budget debate swung open, they both placed want-of-confidence motions on the record.

The Social Credit group joined in criticizing the government for alleged failure to provide tax relief for the farmer and the poor and declared its intention of supporting the C. C. F. motion.

The two motions are traditional opposition thrusts moved on the government's main motion to go into committee of ways and means to study the budget resolution. They will not come up for decision until the debate ends, probably after the Easter recess.

The Progressive Conservative motion came from J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Muskoka-Ontario), official opposition financial critic. It asked the Chamber simply to declare that "this government does not possess the confidence of the country."

The C. C. F. appended an amendment, more intricate in its terms, which was moved by M. J. Coldwell, the party's chief. The amendment asked the Chamber to declare non-confidence for three specific reasons:

"Failure to remove the sales tax; removal of the subsidy on flour, which added to the high cost of living; and 'failure,' despite high living costs, to improve the living standards of the millions who live on income below the income tax exemption level."

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, criticized the government because it did not lift the eight-per-cent sales tax and said he would support the C.C.F. motion because it was the one which he would have moved had he been able to at this stage of the debate.

In the opening stages, External Affairs Minister Pearson said he is studying a report from the Canadian embassy at Washington on the election of three Canadians by United States officials from the so-called world peace conference in

The Canadian family is bigger today and its members, in a great variety of ways, are taking happy note of the fact.

From cities, service clubs, government and individuals throughout nine provinces the message of welcome have been rolling in on Newfoundland, now the nation's tenth province.

From the far west a planeload of daffodils winged its way to St. John's, the province's capital, with best wishes from Victoria and from Mayor Percy E. George.

A Toronto meeting of the Newfoundland Association of Canada last night marked the final hours of the Old Colony.

And in the east, three Cape Breton members of the Nova Scotia legislature were pleased about the new province but let it be known that they put no stock in the claim that explorer John Cabot made his first landfall at Newfoundland.

In good humor they claimed Cabot first landfall at Newfoundland. In good humor they claimed Cabot first came ashore in their own Cape Breton.

School children across the land took part in special ceremonies—and got their first taste of the island's history and geography that will be added to their teaching.

Meetings of various organizations and service clubs are taking time out to send resolutions of greeting—the Toronto branch of the Empire club noted that the islanders have always been "outstandingly British in sentiment."

Newfoundland's name appeared countless times in the country's newspapers. Some of them, notably the Montreal Gazette, devoted special pages or sections to the province. The Toronto Globe and Mail printed a special pictorial that covered most of the page.

Its name will appear more often in the future—Newfoundland's two daily newspapers now are linked with The Canadian Press news service and the province's news will be spread across Canada.

The Saskatchewan legislature named an island in the northwest part of the province Newfoundland island and in the Ontario legislature members stood and sang "O Canada" and "God Save the King."

Toronto's 75,000 school children did the law-makers one better by meeting in assemblies to sing Newfoundland's former national anthem, "Ode to Newfoundland."

Prime Minister St. Laurent welcomed the new province before the union became final. The welcome was contained in "Canada 1949," an official handbook published by the trade department and issued yesterday to the press.

The message said in part: "The people of Canada will, I am sure, welcome the new partner in confederation. The peoples of Newfoundland and Canada are in many ways already one people. For the most part they have sprung from kindred stock; they have behind them the same great traditions of liberty and democracy; of respect for the rights of individuals and minorities; and observance of the rule of law."

"Moreover, Canada and Newfoundland have co-operated closely in their common defence in war and lived side by side as friendly neighbors in peace."

"Together, we may look forward to building an even greater nation, to preserving more effectively the liberties and institutions which we both cherish, and to providing our children with a greater measure of welfare and happiness."

Called by the C. S. U. when the Seafarers' group took over its contracts with the deep-sea operators, the tie-up became effective late yesterday on every Canadian ship sailing out of eastern ports.

For the moment, it hit about eight ships in Halifax and Saint John. But C. S. U. officials said it would extend to others on the high seas or in foreign ports, manned by some 3,000 C. S. U. members.

Few Celebrations Mark Historic Moment—Guns Boom Across Canada—Flags, Some Of Them Black, Fly In Newfoundland.

By Joseph MacSweeney
Canadian Press Staff Writer
St. John's, April 1.—(AP)—

Newfoundland, land of wave-battered shore, misty fen and untramped forest, fell into step with nine other provinces today as a partner in the Canadian confederation.

After 400 years as a British colony, Dominion and then colony again, Newfoundland cast her lot with her big neighbor to the west. Newfoundlanders yesterday, the islanders were Canadians today—though they would probably always regard themselves as Newfoundlanders.

The change came at 11:59 p.m. last night. As the deadline came and went, there were few celebrations. In the capital, which had opposed union two-to-one, there were a few bitter comments but generally the occasion passed with a shrug of the shoulders.

A few flags—some of them black—were flown at half mast. For the most part, the difference between a confederate and an anti-confederate was a black tie, worn as a silent expression of displeasure.

In the outports, which had favored union by a big majority, there were scattered celebrations and the occasional firing of an old whaling gun. But most fishermen had to be up too early to wait for the midnight deadline.

The main ceremony—and a one-came today as Hon. Colin Gibson, Canada's secretary of state, presented a certificate of Canadian citizenship to Sir Albert J. Walsh, Newfoundland's first Lieutenant-Governor.

Sir Albert accepted the certificate for all Newfoundlanders, deeming that they now were Canadians.

Everywhere, the new step was discussed in a quiet manner and the event left most persons unmoved. There was no holiday today.

For a time, the arrival of the season's first sealer from the northern icefields stole the spotlight. Staggering under 15,000 pelts, Terra Nova sailed into port here, her decks bloody from the hunt.

Comments were non-committal. Near Briggs, a reporter suggested

Control Of Sea-Going Labor
At Stake In C.S.U. Strike

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Ottawa, April 1.—(AP)—A rough battle for control of sea-going labor on the east coast shaped up today in the wake of a strike called by the Canadian Seamen's Union (T. L. C.) against all Canadian-flag deep-sea ships on that coast.

The strike, aimed at tying up almost 90 ships, pitted the 6,000-man C. S. U. against the Seafarers' International Union, an A. F. L.-affiliated group with 50,000 members in the United States which has stepped into the Canadian field in a move sponsored by anti-Communist union forces.

Immediate reaction from both sides was that a tough scrap was in prospect between the two unions.

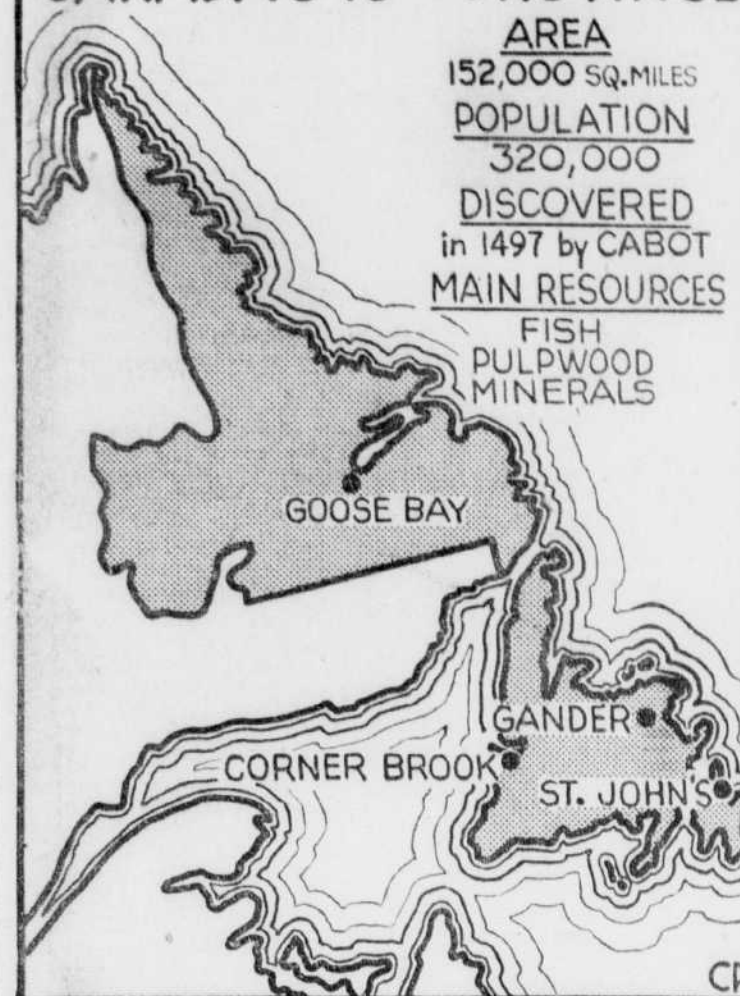

Called by the C. S. U. when the Seafarers' group took over its contracts with the deep-sea operators, the tie-up became effective late yesterday on every Canadian ship sailing out of eastern ports.

For the moment, it hit about eight ships in Halifax and Saint John. But C. S. U. officials said it would extend to others on the high seas or in foreign ports, manned by some 3,000 C. S. U. members.

However, yesterday's strike call

CANADA'S 10TH PROVINCE

From today Canadian students will be taught the Dominion comprises 10 provinces. Ceremonies at Ottawa and St. John's mark the entry into confederation of Newfoundland, Canada's oldest colony. Canada's area will be extended by 152,000 square miles and 320,000 people will be added to the role of Canadian citizens. Discovered in 1497 by John Cabot, the main resources of the island are fish, pulpwood and minerals. St. John's, the capital, is the oldest city in North America. Corner Brook, major pulp centre, is the largest settlement on the west coast. Two of the world's largest airfields, Goose Bay in Labrador and Gander in Newfoundland are two more assets Canada will gain from the union. (AP Photo)

Governor-General Delivers King's Message Of Welcome

Carnation Co. May Lose Its B.W.I. Trade

Ottawa, April 1.—(AP)—The King, in a message conveyed by Viscount Alexander, today gave his blessing to confederation between Canada and Newfoundland.

"May the union that is now complete continue, under God's guidance, to grow in strength, prosperity, happiness, and may it bring new benefits to its people from sea to sea," His Majesty said.

The message was read by the Governor-General before the throng that gathered on Parliament Hill to witness ceremonies marking the historic union between the old British colony and Canada.

A composite guard of honor, made up of navy, army and air force personnel lined up on the opposite side of the roadway as the Governor-General appeared on a platform in front of the Peace Tower.

Some distance away at Nepean point a detachment of the 30th Field Regiment of the Royal Canadian Artillery prepared to fire two artillery salutes of 19 guns each.

It was a special pleasure for him, said Viscount Alexander, to be able to convey the King's message "on so historic an occasion."

"Please convey to the government and people of Canada on behalf of the Queen and myself our appreciation for the message of loyalty and good wishes which you sent me."

"On this historic occasion I am glad to send my good wishes to the people of greater Canada—to those of the old provinces and to those of the new province of Newfoundland—who will now go forward together to the high destiny that awaits them."

"Today marks the fulfilment of the union into one great nation of all peoples of the British Commonwealth in the northern part of North America. May the union that is now complete continue, under God's guidance, to grow in strength, prosperity, happiness, and may it bring new benefits to its people from sea to sea."

The Governor-General, after completing the reading of the message, then turned to the ceremony started previously, that of carrying the arms of Newfoundland on the arch of the peace tower.

"It is a perfect symbol of the event we celebrate today," the Governor-General said. "When the union of the British colonies in North America was discussed at Quebec in 1946, Newfoundland was represented."

"At that time, it was expected that Newfoundland would form a part of the proposed union. When the confederation that is now Canada was established, and Newfoundland was not included, the

Churchill Says Atom Bomb Prevented Communization Of Europe, London Bombing

By CORNELIUS F. HURLEY

Boston, April 1.—(AP)—Doughty old Winston Churchill last night thrust out his bulldog jaw and told the world that:

"Europe would have been communized, like Czechoslovakia, and London under bombardment some time ago but for the deterrent of the atomic bomb in the hands of the United States."

But, he said, "war is not inevitable."

Speaking of the "war of nerves" he advised the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's mid-century convocation:

"If we preserve steadfastly together, and allow no appeasement of tyranny and wrong-doing in any form, it may not be our nerve or the structure of our civilization which will break—something else will break, and peace may yet be preserved."

Reaction from aboard was slow, but the first British newspapers to comment called the speech as "recipe for peace" and "remarkable."

These comments came from three Conservative British newspapers, the Yorkshire Post, the London Daily Mail, and the Daily Telegraph.

In a letter expressing his regret at being unable to fulfill his own engagement to speak at the convocation, President Truman said: "Mr. Churchill, I'm sure, will give you something that will be historical for this period."

Harold E. Stassen replaces the President as tonight's speaker.

Churchill rolled out in sonorous tones a blunt accusation that "thirteen men in the Kremlin... aiming at the rule of the world" had "self-preservation" as the root of their "sinister and malignant policy."

Repeating the phrase, "these thirteen men in the Kremlin," Churchill said their "missionaries are in every country as a fifth column, awaiting the day when they hope to be the absolute masters of their fellow-countrymen and pay off old scores."

"The largest army in the world," Churchill said, "is in the hands of a government pursuing imperialist expansion, as no Czar or Kaiser had ever done."

At one point he referred to the relationship between the British Commonwealth and the United States as the most precious to him of the associations of free countries.

Churchill repeatedly asserted that "we have no hostility to the Russian people," adding: "We seek nothing from Russia but goodwill and fair play."

He hailed the Marshall Plan, the "new unity in western Europe, and the Atlantic pact as demonstrating a 'tremendous change in our outlook and policy toward the future of the world.'"

"Three years ago," Churchill said, "I spoke at Fulton, Missouri, under the auspices of President Truman."

"Many people here and in my

Russia Calls North Atlantic Pact Offensive Instrument

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, April 1.—(AP)—Russia today assailed the North Atlantic pact as an offensive instrument designed to daunt those countries which refuse to accept Anglo-American world domination.

An acid Soviet memorandum to the seven countries, including Canada, which originally sponsored the pact, charged it violates international agreements and undermines "the very foundations" of the United Nations.

Flatly the note described the pact as being "directed against the Soviet Union" and "openly aggressive" in character.

It has "nothing in common either with the talks of self-defence of the parties to the treaty or with the real recognition of the aims and principles of the United Nations organization," the memorandum charged.

The pact, the note asserted, violates existing treaties between Britain and Russia, France and the United States, and the Potsdam and Yalta agreements.

Transmission of the memorandum was announced by the official Soviet news agency, Tass. It went to the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, Canada, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, the original sponsors. Soviet ambassadors in the seven countries handed the memorandum to each government.

The text was published on inside pages of Moscow's morning news-

Residents Of Ralston Fight Bacteria

Suffield, Alta., April 1.—(AP)—A tiny hamlet, home of scientists and soldiers, just two miles from defence laboratories here, had its christening today, and the name hammered to its walls was Ralston.

Ralston, named after Canada's wartime defence minister, the late Col. J. L. Ralston, has a crucial task before it.

Its residents, about 100 or so well-trained civilians and army officers, are charged with finding the means of protecting Canada's 13,000,000 people should the country be attacked by life-destroying bacteria or deadly gas in another world war.

The people of Ralston are all employed in this defence research board experimental station, 30 miles northwest of Medicine Hat. A variety of experiments go on here day after day to perfect weapons to help keep the peace.

Suffield sprang into prominence in 1941, the defence department recalls. It was a time when Canada's enemies were preparing to use gas.

To offset this threat, this station was established for the development of deadly gas as a counter-offensive weapon. It was a joint effort between Canada and the United Kingdom.

Its success, says the defence department, may be judged by the fact that even in their most desperate hours the axis powers did not resort to chemical warfare. They knew the allies were prepared.

With the end of the war, this station was placed under the jurisdiction of the defence research board.

As during the war, when Suffield was barricaded with secrecy, little is known of experiments Canada is conducting here. Some poison gases are being developed, it is known, for use in fighting grasshopper and other plagues.

Defence sources believe, however, spraying equipment developed and the insecticides employed are the first phases of a defence program which can be speedily enlarged to check any designs by an enemy force to attack the country by either gas or life-destroying bacteria.

Ralston was built for the sole purpose of providing housing for Suffield experimenters.

PANCHO VILLA—THE BEST CABALLERO IN ALL MEXICO

It was in 1913, we were sitting in the Sheldon Hotel dining room in El Paso, Texas, when I said I would like to get General Villa's life story. He was then a slightly reformed bandit who would not hesitate to cut the throat of an enemy, but still a kind of a Robin Hood or F.D.R. claiming to fight for the poor against the rich.

"If you really want to go," challenged Gunther Lessing, his El Paso attorney, "I will get you a passport and transportation. It won't cost you a cent."

"No," I answered, "I don't want to ride on those dirty Mexican trains by myself for a couple of weeks with no one to talk to."

Being an expansive man, Mr. Lessing came up with another proposition.

"If you want to organize a party of newspapermen," he suggested, "I'll get a private car."

Several refused, thinking there was a catch in it some place. We finally wound up with Bud Fisher, draws Mutt and Jeff, Floyd Gibson who was starting out to cover his first war, Sam Dreben, a soldier of fortune who had fought in most of the revolutions south of the border, Gunther Lessing, and yours truly.

It happened there was a cattleman's convention in the town at the same time, so El Paso was appropriately decorated with flags and streamers, and we met some of our guests at the station with Tex O'Reilly, a big lanky guy wearing a ten gallon hat, acting as the mayor of the city and giving each one a key, and Sam Dreben, a swarthy type, pretending to be the Mexican consul and speaking only Spanish. It was a good show.

Following a banquet that night, we crossed the Rio Grande into Juarez which was a wide open town run by Villa's brother, Hipolito. We were his guests. The party got off to a good start because a careless Mexican, not knowing our standing as V.I.P.'s, (designation not then invented, began to play with Bud Fisher's chips whereupon an argument broke out which wound up with Fisher hitting the Mexican in the nose. This attracted the attention of an alert cop who promptly arrested Bud, so then Sam Dreben hit the general in the schmozzle and both were thrown into the sneezer. We had to wake up Hipolito to get them out which he did promptly with apologies to us and a stream of Spanish, abusing the police for not knowing better.

Harry Stevens was then the caterer at the old Juarez race track as he stocked the car with refreshments in great plenty, and the Villa people started up their printing presses and turned out $8,000 in nice new money to finance our trip. Talk about "every man a king." We were all wearing crowns as we shoved off.

We had a genial colored cook named Tom who used the smoking compartment for the kitchen as the car was an ordinary Pullman. Before starting, he had bought a couple of eating chickens which were tied by the legs on the platform, being fed and watered until such time as Tom decided they were ripe. We stopped in Chihuahua, so I tried to see whether our printing press money was any good by attempting to buy one of those silly-looking skinny little hairless dogs women carry around with them in a sweater, even in summer, named after the town, but either none of the natives had ever heard of the breed or my pronunciation was bad.

Then I met a peon with a tough-looking rooster under his arm and asked him how much. He answered something so I gave him a ten dollar bill which he kept and handed me the bird. He was tied on the platform with the two Villa neithers. Since we had been told the town, but either none of the natives had ever heard of the breed or my pronunciation was bad.

After explaining my brilliant plan to the rest, a half hour later I went out to see how my prize was getting along when a sad scene met my eyes. The cock was on his back, dead—one of the eating chickens had killed him in fair fight. This incident furnished a good deal of material for the trip to ride me all evening about what a great judge of roosters I had turned out to be.

The next morning we were due in Torreon, there to meet the great man, himself, Pancho Villa. (To be concluded in the next installment.)

Waterloo Kiwanians Enjoyed Graphic Description Of A Trip To Jamaica

Waterloo, April 1.—The Waterloo Kiwanians met at their weekly meeting on Tuesday at the Legion Hall, when a very large number of members were on hand to hear two guest speakers, members of the Waterloo Club, give an account of their recent trip to Jamaica.

Before the speakers were presented, Kiwanian Robert McKerron gave the results of last week's quiz on "Waterloo's Town" and the prize of a Ronson cigarette lighter was won by Past President Fred St. Denis, who was one point ahead of Kiwanian Charlie Slack.

The first speaker was Kiwanian Charlie Slack, who gave a vivid description of the train ride down to Halifax, N. S., and of their stay at the beautiful Nova Scotia Hotel. It was here that the two travellers boarded the Canadian steamer, and enjoyed a beautiful water trip to Nassau. However they fought head winds all the way, and were a day late in arriving at this famous port, but the company on board ship was so friendly and the trip so enjoyable that neither of the two speakers complained about the extra day at sea.

From Nassau they went to Kingston, and here they were not so well thrilled with things, as it was very hot, the vegetation was dried considerably and the usual profusion of flowers was somewhat missing due to the heat and dryness of the climate. But their stay was most enjoyable and every minute was well taken up until such time as they boarded the boat for home.

There was a surprise for them when they found that there was to be a stop-over at Bermuda, and on their short stay, both speakers agreed that this was the most beautiful spot of all. The weather, between 60 and 70 degrees under a blazing sun was perfect, and the conditions, the food and the service here beat anything they had experienced elsewhere, except while on board the boat.

Their boat trip home was uneventful until their last day when, when things began to get lively. Mr. Slack awoke about two o'clock in the morning to find all the furniture in the room chasing itself round and the drawers from the bureau were right in there with the rest of the things. He arose to salvage what he could from the debris, and found himself hurtling through the air and landing full force against the wall, and it was then that he realized that the only thing to do under these circumstances was self preservation, so he got back into his bed, which was tied fast, and battled out the rest of the storm there.

Mr. Norman Slack, who accompanied the first speaker on the trip south a few weeks ago, spoke briefly, and stated that they had the pleasure of attending the Kiwanis Club meeting in Halifax, N. S., before sailing.

He mentioned the beautiful museums they visited while in Jamaica, and different places of great interest. They visited a perfume factory.

One thing that struck those that listened to both speakers was that the fruit found in these islands is mostly pulpy, sweet and without much character. They are sickish, and the only fruit that was found to be really enjoyable was the small banana, which we do not get here. Both gentlemen spoke very interestingly and amusingly.

Kiwanian Bob Flood thanked them both heartily for their efforts.

Next week, Kiwanian Walter Legge, of the Granby Club, will give his illustrated lecture, which should be most interesting and instructive. A big attendance is expected at this meeting.

St. Hilda's Guild.

The monthly meeting of St. Hilda's Guild was held on Monday evening, March 21, at the home of Mrs. Arthur Reed.

The president, Mrs. Alan McKerron, presided at the meeting, when plans were made for a Military Tasty party to be held in May. The Sewing course, which will begin on April 18, was discussed.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. W. A. Williams, Mrs. Duncan Dalton and Mrs. A. Reed.

The chairman of the local Red Cross Drive, Mr. Allan Grainger, stated that the results of the local canvass are progressing most satisfactorily and to date $1,307.30 has been deposited in the bank, with an additional $500.00 having been canvassed but not yet turned in. Estimated returns are $75.00 which gives over $2,000.00 to date.

Employees of Macdonald Metal and Plastics Ltd., donated a total of $230.25, with the company donating $100. The employees of the S. M. Cycle donated $7.35, with the company giving $5; Cliffords Ltd.,

However they fought head winds all the way, and were a day late in arriving at this famous port, but the company on board ship was so friendly and the trip so enjoyable that neither of the two speakers complained about the extra day at sea.

From Nassau they went to Kingston, and here they were not so well thrilled with things, as it was very hot, the vegetation was dried considerably and the usual profusion of flowers was somewhat missing due to the heat and dryness of the climate. But their stay was most enjoyable and every minute was well taken up until such time as they boarded the boat for home.

There was a surprise for them when they found that there was to be a stop-over at Bermuda, and on their short stay, both speakers agreed that this was the most beautiful spot of all. The weather, between 60 and 70 degrees under a blazing sun was perfect, and the conditions, the food and the service here beat anything they had experienced elsewhere, except while on board the boat.

Their boat trip home was uneventful until their last day when, when things began to get lively. Mr. Slack awoke about two o'clock in the morning to find all the furniture in the room chasing itself round and the drawers from the bureau were right in there with the rest of the things. He arose to salvage what he could from the debris, and found himself hurtling through the air and landing full force against the wall, and it was then that he realized that the only thing to do under these circumstances was self preservation, so he got back into his bed, which was tied fast, and battled out the rest of the storm there.

Mr. Norman Slack, who accompanied the first speaker on the trip south a few weeks ago, spoke briefly, and stated that they had the pleasure of attending the Kiwanis Club meeting in Halifax, N. S., before sailing.

He mentioned the beautiful museums they visited while in Jamaica, and different places of great interest. They visited a perfume factory.

One thing that struck those that listened to both speakers was that the fruit found in these islands is mostly pulpy, sweet and without much character. They are sickish, and the only fruit that was found to be really enjoyable was the small banana, which we do not get here. Both gentlemen spoke very interestingly and amusingly.

Kiwanian Bob Flood thanked them both heartily for their efforts.

Next week, Kiwanian Walter Legge, of the Granby Club, will give his illustrated lecture, which should be most interesting and instructive. A big attendance is expected at this meeting.

St. Hilda's Guild.

The monthly meeting of St. Hilda's Guild was held on Monday evening, March 21, at the home of Mrs. Arthur Reed.

The president, Mrs. Alan McKerron, presided at the meeting, when plans were made for a Military Tasty party to be held in May. The Sewing course, which will begin on April 18, was discussed.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. W. A. Williams, Mrs. Duncan Dalton and Mrs. A. Reed.

The chairman of the local Red Cross Drive, Mr. Allan Grainger, stated that the results of the local canvass are progressing most satisfactorily and to date $1,307.30 has been deposited in the bank, with an additional $500.00 having been canvassed but not yet turned in. Estimated returns are $75.00 which gives over $2,000.00 to date.

Employees of Macdonald Metal and Plastics Ltd., donated a total of $230.25, with the company donating $100. The employees of the S. M. Cycle donated $7.35, with the company giving $5; Cliffords Ltd.,

BURY

The monthly meeting of St. Paul's Guild was held with Mrs. W. Rowe at the "Rectory" with Mrs. Hannah Morrow, the joint hostess. There were twenty members present and three visitors. The meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. Rowe. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary and adopted, also letters of appreciation from those who had received fruit from the Guild when sick. The receipts from the card party and sale table held in February were very satisfactory. It was voted that the necessary repairs be made to the "Rectory." At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostesses. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Asker.

Mrs. Herman Parsons and little daughter, Susan, of Waterloo, spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. W. Buchanan. While here she also was a guest of Mrs. Ronald Stokes and Mrs. Robert Mayhew, one afternoon.

The Women's Association of the United Church held a St. Patrick's Day supper in the Town Hall on March 17. The hall was tastefully decorated in appropriate colors for the occasion. The proceeds from the bazaar table and "fish pond" were very satisfactory. The receipts at the door also were satisfactory.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Smith, of Bulwer, spent a day with her sister, Mrs. Celia Crawford.

Mrs. Gladys Potter, of Sherbrooke, was visiting relatives here over the week-end.

Master Donald Harrison was a week-end guest of Master Robert Stokes.

Mrs. A. J. Hunt is visiting friends in Boston, Mass.

Mr. J. E. Johnson, of Sherbrooke, was replacing Mr. L. Bourquin in the Bank of Montreal, while Mr. Bourquin was in St. Petersburg, Fla. for his holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Mayhew and Master Jimmie Mayhew were guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Webster, at Magog.

Miss Jeanne Bedard spent a week-end with her parents, in Waterloo.

Mr. Elwin Herring was in Sherbrooke visiting his wife in the Hotel Dieu Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stoddard, of Sawyerville and Mrs. John Winstlow, of Eaton Corner, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Wootton.

Dr. Gillander, of Henniker, N. H., was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Adam Ross, and other relatives and friends in town.

Miss Jeannette Lapointe, of Coaticook, is visiting her brother, Mr. Macdonald Lapointe.

Rise Stevens Began Music Career Early

Rise Stevens, lovely young American star of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who will be heard here next fall, under the auspices of Community Concert Association, was born in New York, of Norwegian and American parentage. She began her career at the age of 10, as a youthful prima donna on a children's radio program.

At 17 she was engaged as leading lady with the Opera-Comique at the Heckscher Theatre in New York, where she was heard by the noted teacher, Madame Schoen-Rene. Impressed by Miss Stevens she offered to teach her. Two years later she began private study with Madame Schoen-Rene and during the same period obtained a three-year scholarship at the Juillard School of Music.

In 1936 she shattered tradition by declining a Metropolitan Opera contract on the grounds of insufficient experience. She went abroad instead for study and training and made her operatic debut at the Prague Opera House in the title role of "Mignon." Success in other roles as well brought her an invitation from the Vienna State Opera House, to sing leading roles in the Austrian capital.

Appearances in Cairo, Egypt, followed and in the summer of 1938 she made her debut in the Teatro Colon, Buenos Aires, in "Der Rosenkavalier." The following winter she was signed by the Metropolitan Opera as leading mezzo-soprano and appeared for first time with the company in Philadelphia, November 22. A month later she made her New York debut at the Metropolitan in Mignon.

Besides the opera and the movies, numerous radio appearances and nationwide concert tours have made the name Rise Stevens a familiar one throughout the United States and Canada.

During 1945-46 she scored the greatest success of her career as Carmen, at the Metropolitan Opera House. Her most recent screen appearance is in "Carnegie Hall."

Judge Refuses To Allow Alleged
Statement Entered In Abbott Trial

Mr. Justice Gervais today refused to allow a verbal statement Charles Abbott allegedly gave to two Provincial Police detectives to be admitted as evidence at Abbott's trial on a charge of murdering his wife.

The prosecution sought yesterday to have the statement, said to have been given on Oct. 14, the day of Abbott's preliminary hearing, entered as evidence. The detectives were Jules Arseneault and Sgt. Uld Legault.

Following the judge's ruling, Crown Prosecutor Roland Dugre, K.C., announced that the prosecution's case was finished. A defence motion for non-suit then was rejected.

Mr. Justice Gervais, announcing his ruling on the statement, said it is well-established by law that before statements can be introduced the Crown must prove they were given freely and voluntarily by the accused.

If such a statement is not definitely proved to have been given freely and voluntarily the benefit of the doubt must be given to the accused, the judge said.

Mr. Justice Gervais reviewed testimony given yesterday by two doctors relating to Abbott's mental state following the operation he underwent for the head injury he received at the time his wife was shot last July 11. The Crown has charged Abbott's head wounds were self-inflicted.

In view of this testimony, the judge said, it was impossible for the court not to entertain a doubt as to the possibility Abbott was not entirely sane, when the alleged statement, given in Montreal following Abbott's return there from the preliminary hearing, was made.

Redmond Hayes, K.C., acting with Mr. Dugre, took exception, but Mr. Justice Gervais maintained his ruling.

Mr. Dugre then stated that the prosecution was resting its case but defence counsel M. H. Franklin, K.C., asked that crown witness Allan Deacon be recalled because, he said, he wished to correct certain testimony.

This request led to lengthy argument as the prosecution objected to the recall of the youth who had been on the stand twice before. Deacon did chores about the Abbott's North Hatley farm house where Mrs. Abbott was shot.

The judge granted the motion by Mr. Franklin and the jury, which had been out of the court room during the argument over admission of the statement, was recalled.

Deacon stated that he didn't think Abbott was nervous when he saw him on the night of the shooting. He had previously stated Abbott was not nervous.

The youth declared he did not think he had ever seen a gun around the Abbott household. His previous evidence was that he had seen a gun on Abbott's dresser.

There was further argument as to whether Deacon had approached Mr. Franklin today concerning this change in his testimony or whether Mr. Franklin had come to Deacon.

After this, the judge declared the incident closed and Mr. Franklin entered his motion for non-suit.

Two Montreal psychiatrists were called yesterday to testify about Abbott's mental condition.

Dr. Emile Legrand said he began his mental examination of Abbott on Nov. 3, some time after the preliminary hearing. Dr. Jacques Beaubien said he saw Abbott on July 27 but not again until November.

Dr. Beaubien testified that an injury such as the one Abbott received would cause loss of memory for a period of from 32 to 36 hours before the wounding to about 15 days after. There would be periods of lucidity after that.

By the end of November, he testified, Abbott was mentally fit.

Neither doctor was able to say what Abbott's mental state was at the time of the preliminary hearing and interview with the provincial policemen but both said it could be presumed he had made progress.

Dr. Legrand said he questioned Abbott several times, starting Nov. 3, told him he was examining him mentally and advised him he would have to speak freely to him. He told Abbott that everything he might tell him about events on the day of the shooting would be kept confidential between the two of them.

Prosecution counsel questioned Dr. Legrand concerning his conversations with Abbott but the doctor declined to give details and the judge ruled that he did not need to repeat anything that had been given him in confidence by a patient.

Jim McCrea, special constable from North Hatley, testified that he did not remember seeing a car coming from the driveway of the Abbott home on the night of the shooting. Had he seen it, he said, he would have remembered it and reported it to the police, especially as this was a homicide case.

Mr. McCrea's testimony followed that of Simon Kezar, another North Hatley special constable, who had stated that when he and Mr. McCrea were driving to the Abbott's they met a car with a Massachusetts licence plate, and were told by the driver that he was looking for Hatley Acres.

Christopher Carman, 18, of Montreal testified he had known Abbott for several years and worked for him during the two summers previous to the shooting. Last year he had boarded with Abbott from June 19.

On the night of the shooting, he said, he had supper at 6 p.m., left the house at about 7:15 and spent the evening in North Hatley with a girl friend. He said he returned to the farm at about 1 a.m.

During the day, he said, Abbott had seemed as usual and there had

Many Townships
Residents Born
In Newfoundland

Newfoundland Day was observed in Eastern Townships schools today but there was special significance for many grown-ups as well as for the children because there are scores of Newfoundlanders living in this district.

No special ceremonies were planned here but a message welcoming Newfoundland into partnership with Canada was sent to Mayor Andrew G. Carnell, of St. John's by the local Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"May God bless this union of our two peoples," said the message which was sent under the signature of Lucien Bedard, president of the Junior Chamber's National Relations Committee.

While it was impossible to find all the Townships' people who call Newfoundland their birthplace, it is evident that there is a cross-section of Island natives in many E. T. centres.

C. F. Pyke, manager of the

C. F. PYKE

United Store here, came to Canada from St. John's in 1924. Dr. T. J. Quintin of Sherbrooke is a member of the medical profession who calls Newfoundland his native home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Simms of 85 Queen Street both came from St. John's in 1909. Mr. Simms is a general insurance broker here.

Mrs. Harold Winston Rolfe of 22

DR. T. J. QUINTIN

Armstrong Street came to Canada in 1921 from her Newfoundland village home. She was married in 1926 and lived in Marbleton before moving with her husband to Sherbrooke.

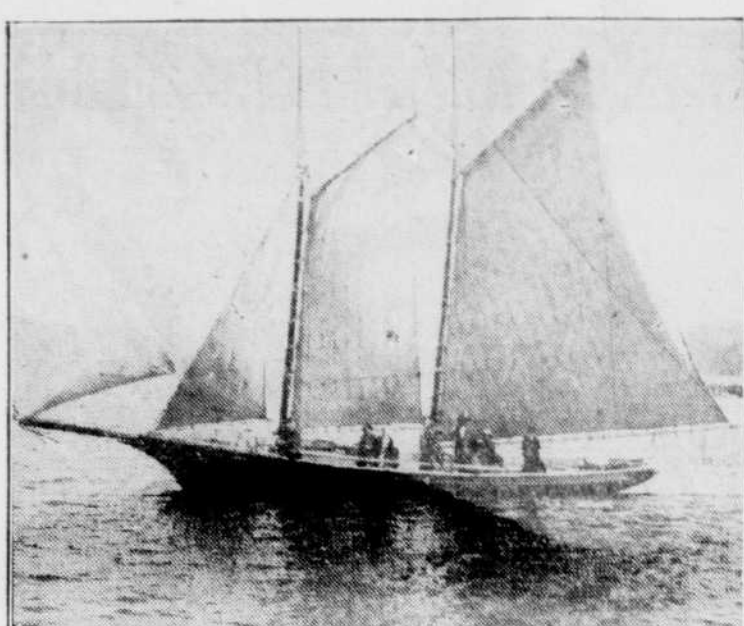

Mrs. Leonard Gilbert of Lennoxville and Raymond Halford of the Bell Telephone Company here are other Newfoundlanders. Other Sherbrooke persons with close ties with the Island, although they were not born there, are Rev. R. C. Tait and Mrs. Sam Eichenberg, both of whom spent some years in the old Colony.

The clergy are well represented among the list of Newfoundlanders in the Townships and include Rev. A. E. Tulk of Magog, Rev. W. J. Rowe of Bury, Rev. George Robins of East Angus and Rev. F. W. Mitchell of Stanstead.

Lawrence Bray said he was with Carman between 7:45 and 8 a.m. the night of the shooting and that during that time the Abbotts went by in their car and spoke to Carman, who met his girl at 8 o'clock and left.

The girl, Susie Blewing, of Melbourne, who works in Lennoxville, was called and corroborated Carman's evidence that they had spent the evening together in North Hatley. She said Carman took her home between 11 and 12 and did not leave her during the evening.

Schooner Used By Rev. A. E. Tulk
To Reach Newfoundland Parishes

The union of Canada and Newfoundland is of particular interest to Rev. Arthur E. Tulk of Magog. Born at Portugal Cove, Newfoundland, near Saint John's, Rev. Tulk spent many years in the old island colony that today became the 10th Canadian Province.

He trained for the ministry at Queen's Theological College in St. John's, and was ordained in 1903 at the St. John's Cathedral by the Bishop of Newfoundland, Rt. Rev. Llewellyn Jones, who had been ordained in the same cathedral 23 years before.

With four years in the Newfoundland mission field, under his belt Mr. Tulk entered Durham University in England from where he matriculated with a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1909.

While at the University, the young minister walked out with many awards in debating, football and tennis. The hardening qualities of the latter sports were to serve him well in later years on his missionary work.

Following graduation, Mr. Tulk returned to Newfoundland and once more took up his labors in the missionary field. The territory assigned him was the Belknap district, 100 miles of rugged, wind-swept coastline with a population of 2,500 souls living in some 25 widely scattered fishing stations.

In order to reach these outlying communities, Mr. Tulk travelled by ship up and down the coast from cove to cove. The vessel, an 11-ton, two-masted schooner, carried a crew of two—Mr. Tulk and his mate. The ship had no other power but her sails and the missionary and his helper put to sea in some of the worst storms on the coast in order to reach the settlements on schedule.

The dangers and hardships encountered in sailing the Newfoundland coasts have been told again and again in tales of sea and old maritime legends. Each of these stories can be retold in the experiences of Rev. Tulk the sailing minister.

In 1926 he came to Canada and worked for a time in the diocese of Quebec at the mission in Kinross. There he studied for his Bachelor of Divinity degree and in time accepted it at the University of Bishop's College in Lennoxville.

He took charge of Cookshire parish in 1932 and remained there for ten years until his appointment to Magog in 1942.

Today Mr. Tulk looks forward to rest and peaceful retirement after many years of serving his God and his church on land and on sea. He is not one who served by only standing and waiting.

After his transfer to another post, the schooner that had sailed him so well was lost in a heavy gale at sea. Today, motor vessels carry on with the work.

Mr. Tulk continued his mission labors for three years in the town of Salvage, where he was raised as a boy, and nine years in Pouch Cove, near Torbay, where the U.S. airfield is situated today.

Today Mr. Tulk looks forward to rest and peaceful retirement after many years of serving his God and his church on land and on sea. He is not one who served by only standing and waiting.

Is Outlined By Samuel Moskovitch

In an address to the local lodge of B'nai B'rith at the Montreal Street Synagogue Hall last evening, Samuel Moskovitch, K.C., prominent Montreal attorney and Jewish leader, outlined the work of the B'nai B'rith organization.

Mr. Moskovitch, vice-president of the District Grand Lodge of the B'nai B'rith noted that in parts of Europe, "almost every nerve centre of Jewish life has been smashed"—centres that had been looked to for leadership and the maintaining of the traditions of Jewish heritage.

In stressing the need for competent and balanced leadership, Mr. Moskovitch noted that leaders must have moral stamina, must have a knowledge of what is right and what is wrong. "It must," he said, "be a type of leadership that will understand that to lead is more than just philanthropy and social service."

The B'nai B'rith celebrated its 100th anniversary six years ago, and, it was noted, "the beliefs that B'nai B'rith has consistently followed for over 100 years are made up of truth, justice and those things that make for better living between people of all faiths and creeds."

In relating the history of the B'nai B'rith, Mr. Moskovitch first noted the year 1885. This marked the beginnings of Jewish settlement in Palestine which was of vital concern to the B'nai B'rith leaders. In American history, Mr. Moskovitch said, the work of B'nai B'rith was aimed toward aid to those suffering during disaster, such as floods and epidemics.

Mr. Moskovitch emphasized the effectiveness of the Anti-Defamation League of the B'nai B'rith, which was founded in 1914, and recounted how, during the early years of the thirties when subversive movements developed in the United States, the Federal Bureau of Investigation worked in harmony with the Anti-Defamation League's office in Chicago.

Mr. Moskovitch was the chairman of the first national committee for the establishment of the McGill University Hillel Foundation and told his audience of the development of this national organization in 1923 by Dr. Baldwin, a professor of the University of Illinois, and of its approach to the B'nai B'rith for support.

The Youth Movement of B'nai B'rith, the speaker noted, worked toward the development of young boys and girls, the prevention of juvenile delinquency, and toward vocational guidance.

Mr. Moskovitch told of the experiences of Rabbi Philip Bernstein, who, in 1945, was appointed advisor of Jewish affairs to Lt. General Lucius Clay, and of the conditions he found on his arrival in Germany. In speaking of displaced persons, he noted that the International Refugee Organization allowed 45 cents per day for displaced persons. To supplement this, he said, a committee was formed by the B'nai B'rith to offer whatever aid they could. In speaking of these conditions, Mr. Moskovitch said, "It is only by the Grace of God and by the foresight of your parents and mine that we find ourselves here and not there."

It was to be expected, he noted, that Americans and Canadians would indulge in sacrificial generosity, would literally thank God for having been spared some of the things they had to go through.

In speaking of the establishment of the State of Israel, Mr. Moskovitch termed it as one of the greatest events in Jewish history. "Already," he said, "Jews in displaced persons' camps are being transported to Israel at the rate of 20,000 per month."

"The State of Israel," Mr. Moskovitch said, "is ready to take its rightful place at the council of nations."

In speaking of the peace of tomorrow, Mr. Moskovitch said: "I would like to have them feel that peace of tomorrow should be a type of peace that recognizes the brotherhood of man and kinship of our fellow being. I would like to have those men know that the type of peace of tomorrow must recognize that all men are

WELCOME TO NEWFOUNDLAND

Canadians today welcome as citizens of this country 325,000 hardy individuals who have been added to our population through the entry of Newfoundland into the Dominion as the tenth province of Confederation. Grouping the British territories of the Northern part of the continent into a single nation, the Union of Canada and Newfoundland more than proves the truth of the motto of the Canadian coat-of-arms which describes a dominion which reaches from sea to sea. For it means that Canada now extends more than from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Now, rather, its eastern limit extends into the very heart of the Atlantic.

Newfoundland itself has been a historic stepping stone between the Old World and the New, its chief port being almost as close to Liverpool as it is to Montreal. Under such circumstances it was inevitable that Newfoundland become a vital link in the development of the North American continent and that it feel acutely all the changes and disturbances of the two continents. The first British attempts at colonization were made in this island, while the early fishermen of Western Europe made their trip headquarters along its rugged shores.

The part played by Newfoundland in strengthening communications is traditional. In the middle years of the nineteenth century the first trans-Atlantic cable was laid between the Island and Great Britain. As the twentieth century dawned, Marconi made his first successful wireless tests from this island. When the first attempts at trans-Atlantic air flights were made in the days following the First Great War, Newfoundland provided their base of operations and the air-mindedness of its people was strengthened during the last conflict when it became the focal point of the great Ferry Command service which so speeded up the delivery of North American built planes to the Allied forces overseas.

The fusion of Canada and Newfoundland has long been mooted and such a move was envisaged by the Fathers of Confederation. But the fight was long and previous attempts to bring this rugged people into Confederation met with failure. However after many difficulties union is now effected. It is to be hoped sincerely that such union shall prove a fulfilment and not a loss to either Newfoundland or the older provinces of Canada. Those precious traditions and distinctive qualities which Newfoundlanders have cherished through the years can be preserved within the larger union, just as other groups and districts have preserved and promoted their ideals in other parts of the Dominion.

Canada, under the confederate system, has become a nation of diversities, by which the possessions of all are enriched and tolerance forms unity.

POLITICS STILL A NOBLE CALLING

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of former President Franklin Roosevelt, is quoted as saying that she cannot imagine why her son, Franklin, Jr., or anyone else wants to get into politics. This may seem a strange remark from a person whose name is associated with political distinction and who takes an active interest in politics herself.

It is not hard to imagine, however, that when she made it she had in mind the pressure and bitter criticism and exhausting responsibility that a political career sometimes brings. Yet, many will feel that on reflection Mrs. Roosevelt might be willing to modify the statement.

As it now stands she sounds as if she were subscribing to the familiar blanket of criticism which the thoughtless are fond of spreading over all politics and politicians. But the fact that there are hypocrites and dishonest men in the profession does not mean that politics cannot be the highest form of public service a citizen can render. If no one wanted to go into politics we should have dictatorship. We believe Mrs. Roosevelt would agree to that.

CENSORING THE CLASSICS

One New York citizen has threatened to sue the New York City Board of Education unless it removes Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice," and Dickens' "Oliver Twist" from public schools, his contention being that the characters in each arouse "bitter hatred and malice" towards Jews in the pupils' minds and hearts.

It seems to us that this charge might be handled as most judges now handle similar charges against "obscene" books. The test is whether the authors have written with deliberate intent to arouse hatred and malice in the one case, or criminal lust in the other. We doubt if a charge of deliberate anti-Semitism can be made against either Shakespeare or Dickens.

An attempt to censor the classics on racial or religious grounds is still censorship and it is just as potentially dangerous as any other kind.

Press Comments

"YOU CAN'T FOOL ALL THE PEOPLE..."

Ottawa Journal
"You can fool some of the people all the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time," Mr. Abbott, his first flush of complacent self-approval over (his open gloating about "tim-ing") was ugly cynicism as well, must now be musing those lines by Lincoln. For the public, judging by wide-spread comment, remain wholly unimpressed with Mr. Abbott's performance. Never as glib as some politicians imagine it to be, and far more realistic than the uncritical enthusiasts who exhausted all the adjectives of acclaim, the public is appraising the budget for what it is: An attempt to buy votes with the public's money.

Illustrative of this technique, which fools nobody, is the decision to pay back to more than a million Canadians money which the Government took from them needlessly over the past months. If this money was taken rightfully in the first place, why pay it back? If it wasn't taken rightfully, why pay it back without interest? Pay it back without interest and expect the recipients to be humbly grateful? As the Toronto Globe and Mail well puts it:

"If a merchant knowingly overcharges a customer a dollar, suffers a twinge of conscience and returns the dollar at the next opportunity, the customer will perhaps give the merchant credit for honesty. He is, however, likely to refrain from throwing his hat in the air and hiring a band to serenade the shop. It will probably occur to him that the merchant is anxious not to lose his business."

Mr. Abbott and his colleagues, handing back to the public money taken wrongfully from the public in the first place, are merely anxious not to lose their business—and the public knows it. Knowing it, they will not "serenade the shop."

Nor will there be serenading from those tens of thousands of other Canadians who also had money taken from them wrongfully and who are not getting it back, with or without interest. It was money which those Canadians needed—money which they could have spent on the education of their children, to help pay off a mortgage, or perhaps to add to their savings. It was taken from them by a Government which wanted to keep taxes high so that it could "slash" them on the eve of an election, but which was pretending dishonestly that the thing the country needed was "cyclical" budgeting.

We used to talk of "the bad old day" when Governments bought votes by wharves and post offices and patronage, and when parties bought votes for $2. The new way is more brazen. As the Globe and Mail concludes:

"In the bad old days the price of a vote was $2, but the politicians who paid it used their own money."

TALLULAH'S FEELINGS ARE HURT

Ottawa Journal
Miss Tallulah Bankhead says her feelings have been hurt, and to the extent of a million dollars. It appears that "singing commercials" advertising a brand of shampoo refer to this preparation as a "Tallulah," and the lady of the same name, who had it first, says this use of it is offensive and humiliating to her. So she is suing a soap company, an advertising agency, and a couple of radio networks.

Whether Miss Bankhead has a case in law we do not know, of course, but she might be interested in proving the general proposition that radio jingles are one of the minor plagues brought upon us for our sins. She could assert, with a considerable amount of public support, that the singing commercial represents radio's lowest approach to imbecility—perhaps it was designed by Providence to test the endurance and fortitude of the radio listener.

Happily nobody is compelled to listen to singing commercials but enough do listen to cause Miss Bankhead acute distress at the thought of them associating her lovely name with something so commonplace as a preparation for the hair. She could endure, we gather, for a million dollars—for that sum, too, we would agree to listen regularly.

BUT IT'S SPRING

Wall Street Journal
Things have been considerably enlivened around a certain office building lately by the employment of several attractive and charming elevator girls. One of their number, the prettiest one, seems to find it necessary to pause frequently at the fourth floor to consult a young male receptionist there.

Two of the building's regular tenants were riding in this charmer's chariot the other day, when she brought the conveyance to a halt on the fourth floor.

"That girl's really got it bad," one of the passengers remarked, as he watched her furtively consulting the boy friend.

"Oh, I don't know," the other rejoined. "Maybe you're taking too much for granted."

"Wait and see," warned the first.

Returning to her post, the young woman blushed prettily, and inquired: "Pardon me, but was I going up—or down?"

MISSING TRUMP KING OVERTRUMPED TO WIN

Today's hand was sent to me by G. Gordon McLeod of Ottawa, Canada, with a compliment which I appreciated. He said that he enjoys the articles because I outline reasons for certain plays.

Mr. McLeod is attempting to write a small book on bridge for beginners, though he admits he is just an average player himself. Perhaps in that case he will have a better understanding of the problems of the beginner.

In today's hand it looked as if declarer would have some trouble in trumping out all of his losers, and still pick up the king of trumps. West made the tricky opening of the four of hearts, which East won with the king. He returned the eight of hearts, and when Mr. McLeod in the South played the queen, West won.

West now shifted to the six of clubs and East's ten was captured by declarer's ace. Mr. McLeod then played the four of diamonds to dummy's king. East won the trick with the ace of diamonds and returned the deuce of clubs to dummy's king.

The opponents now had their book. True, if declarer could finesse the queen of spades and pick up the trumps, he still could make his contract. He led the jack of spades from dummy, and when East did not cover, declarer let it ride. Next the three of spades was London, April 1.—The sartorial times have changed along the historic streets of the City of London.

Time was when the city worker was a man of distinctive attire. He could be picked out of the rush-hour crowds by his back bowler, striped pants, starched collar and cuffs. An umbrella—rolled even in a rainstorm—accompanied him everywhere.

Now only Threadneedle Street Bank messengers with top hats and morning clothes can be picked out.

with surety. For business men, particularly the younger set, the trend is to suede shoes, loud check lounge suits and shirts of a bright hue. Things never before seen in the streets of the city.

The change even invaded the Temple, traditional centre of London's legal fraternity where the silk topper was the order of the day.

The staid Times of London recently commented that the "purist will condemn as bad taste the flaunting of sportswear in the City precincts; others will hail it as a new advance in the emancipation of man."

But the Times was concerned about those who wish to be both correct and up to date, asking: "Will the policeman on duty salute us respectfully if we wear a silk hat with corduroy trousers or sandals with morning dress?"

The Record Short Story

SPRINGFLOOD

By WARD MICHAELS

I'm a salesman. Drive a car from town to town. Sit around a hotel lobby after supper. Talk to strangers. Go to the movies. Nothing much ever happens. I've just come back from a trip to Vermont. Drove up there from Boston to see a man. I got there in the morning, but he was out of town. Nothing to do but wait until he got back in the evening.

It was a nice little city with several mills and I strolled along the main street staring in at all the store windows. It got a look at the public library, the movie theatre, the hotel and the police station. I walked into a two-chair barber shop where a little man in a white coat sat reading a paper.

"Nice day," he said. I pulled off my coat. I relaxed in the chair and I dozed. The phone rang and the barber picked up the receiver.

"Hello... yeah, what? ... when? Good Lord Almighty, I'll be right there..."

He still held the razor in his hand and the hand shook. "Just as well I almost finished shavin' you... I gotta go..."

"What's the matter?"

"My youngest kid just fell in the river. I'm down' the shop. He practically pushed me out to the sidewalk, locked the door and started to run down the street before I remembered I hadn't paid for the shave."

I recalled crossing a bridge after I parked the car, so I walked in that direction. As I neared the bridge I could hear the heavy rumble of the water and, in the distance, a siren.

A small crowd gathered at the rail. The wall of the siren grew louder and a police car pulled up. Following was a truck with a lifeboat on a trailer. Finally the boat slid into the yellow flood with a splash and spun sharply as the taut bow painter snapped it. Two policemen climbed into the boat and two others worked the bow painter around to the river bank and secured it to a tree 50 feet or so from the bridge. There was a small inlet there protected by the bank from the rushing water.

The backwash was quiet and the boat bobbed easily. Looking at the bow painter like a race horse. The two policemen steadied themselves and started working with grappling hooks.

The old man next to me had the snuffles. "That kid ain't there," he said. "His body's downstream five miles by this time with the river's high as 'tis."

"What happened?" I said. A woman in slacks, pushing a market basket on wheels, said: "Little Jamie McHenry's fell in the river, that's what happened. You'd think Flossie McHenry'd keep an eye on him. Lettin' a 4-year-old go near the river, my heaven..."

A photographer took a few pictures of the crowd, the boat, and the policemen. An ambulance came tearing up to the curb, unloaded a pulmotor; the driver and the attendant sat on the rear step and smoked cigarettes. I went across the street to a lunch counter and ordered a sandwich.

"Too bad about the McHenry kid," said the counterman. "He was a smart little snooker. They found anything?" I shook my head.

dress in the city is said to be but a sign of the times—clothes-rationing times. All over Britain the sartorial state of the male is said to have sunk to a low ebb.

London tailors say clothes rationing had a lot to do with this state of affairs. Women members of the family were accused of using the coupons of male members. Besides, all the best suitings were being exported.

But women dress designers had other ideas on the low state of male dress. "Men don't dress so well today because they have an excuse to be shabby and they like it."

Men haven't that excuse any more if they ever used it. Clothes rationing recently was lifted on most types of suitings. It remains to be seen if it will bring back morning dress to the City worker and nattier male attire generally.

"I'll buy you a felder's glove." I was panting, but I recalled the newspaper story about the little excursions to the ballpark.

"Genuine leather?"

"Genuine leather," I said, putting him down.

The sergeant with the gold badge and gold chevrons was seated at the desk. "What do you want?" said the sergeant. I held the kid up. "Tell the nice man your name."

The boy looked at the sergeant and then at me. I nodded. He told us his name. The sergeant rang for the matron and shouted at the man on the switchboard.

"Where were you all afternoon, you little devil," said the sergeant. "To the movies," said the kid, trying on the sergeant's cap. They took him home in a cruise car and the last thing he said as he left the station was: "Don't forget the felder's glove."

You're probably wondering how I knew the boy on the bridge rail was Jamie McHenry. I didn't, but I was willing to gamble that he was the only red-headed kid in town with a blue patch on the seat of his red corduroy overalls. As I say, I'm a salesman. Drive a car from town to town. Sit around hotel lobbies. Nothing much ever happens. I want to look at some felder's gloves, please...

B.C. BY SHIP
—Word that an all-water transportation service between Montreal and Vancouver will start around the end of April is welcome news in this port.

Up until the end of 1940 ships travelling via Panama Canal brought us a wide variety of goods from the East and carried our lumber and canned salmon back with them. But the war brought the canal traffic to a standstill.

Now it is proposed to inaugurate a monthly service between here and Montreal with vessels of A1 Canadian registry. The approximate transit time will be 28 days.

The canal trade can be developed into a healthy, competitive traffic Vancouver will benefit tremendously.

to one old lady that confederation would be a good thing. She did not disagree, but merely said: "I hope your tongue won't be a liar to your mouth."

Said a resident of Spaniards Bay: "Once we get used to it we will like being joined up with Canada."

"I voted for responsible government, but I guess this will work out in the long run," was the comment of one black-haired youth.

The road to union had been a long and bumpy one. The decision to link with Canada had been a hard one for 325,000 Newfoundlanders, including 5,000 in Labrador.

Newfoundland was a colony until 1855 when it gained responsible government. It took part in confederation discussions at Quebec in 1864, but like Prince Edward Island, was not represented at Westminster when the British North America Act was drawn up. But the way was left open for Newfoundland to become a province if she ever changed her mind.

A confederation, with Canada government was defeated in 1869 and in 1895 Canada turned down Newfoundland proposals for union—Canada would not assume the island's $16,000,000 debt.

After the First World War, Newfoundland's economy collapsed in the world depression. She could not sell her few staple products that she has to sell on a world market to make ends meet.

This time, Newfoundland went to Britain and not Canada for help. A seven-man commission government took over in 1934 to rule until Newfoundland's finances were back in order. Commission government ended last night.

In 1946 a national convention was elected to discuss and recommend possible future forms of government. It decided on a return to responsible government or retention of commission government. The British government placed confederation with Canada on the referendum ballot as a third choice.

The first vote—90 per cent of those eligible participated in the ballot—was inconclusive. Newfoundlanders said they did not want commission government any longer but neither confederation nor responsible government could win a clear verdict.

On July 22, 1948, in a two-way fight, confederation won by about 7,000 votes.

That decision had been translated into fact today.

Prime Minister St. Laurent promised to refer to Mr. Pearson a request by E. G. McCullough (C.C.F. Assiniboia) that Canada protest to the United Nations against religious persecution in Spain.

In the Commons, Mr. Macdonnell said the Progressive Conservative party did not object to the budgetary tax cuts as such but it did object that the government withheld the tax relief until the eve of an election "and for a most improper purpose."

But there were "big" gaps in the budget which brought no benefit whatever for the farmer or for the non-taxed portion of the population which had to go on paying a high cost of living.

The needs of those single persons who earned between $1,000 and $1,250 a year and the married people whose income ranged from $2,000 to $2,500 had been ignored. The exemptions for children should have been boosted by $200 instead of $50.

includes both the Rodney and her sister ship, the Lady Nelson, due in Halifax shortly from the West Indies.

(In Halifax yesterday, an injunction was granted in supreme court ordering "sit-in" strikers off the Lady Rodney. A C.S.U. official there said the 118 seamen on the ship would be taken off forcibly.)

President Davis said last night he did not know whether or not the tie-ups of the other ships would be of the "sit-in" variety.

Also, he said, it had not yet been decided whether Canadian-flag ships on the high seas would be tied up at the first port in which they arrived or whether the union would wait until they hit Canada to call out the members.

Meanwhile, the Seafarers group was reported preparing to move into the eastern Canadian ports in some strength to back the signing of its contract with the Shipping Federation of Canada.

One informed source said the S.I.U. was planning to bring east some of its "on the beach" members from the west coast. Another said it would bring in seagoing personnel from the United States.

Mr. Davies, with his union battling now for its life, said last night's violence on the Great Lakes could well be duplicated.

Mr. Davies said the first word of the S.I.U.-owners agreement was relayed to him by Arthur Macnamara, deputy labor minister, from R. C. Vaughan, president of the C.N.R. and the Canadian National Steamships, who had told Mr. Macnamara that the eastern operators had signed with the S.I.U. At the time, Mr. Davies said, the C.S.U.'s contract with the deep-sea operators was still in effect, having been extended from Oct. 15 to row by mutual consent.

"We charge that such actions are illegal and violation of the federal labor code," Mr. Davies said. "It is not surprising that industrial outlaws like some Great Lakes companies are breaking the labor laws when a government-operated company line like the C.N.S. can brazenly adopt the same tactics."

OBITUARIES

MRS. CAROLINE MARY KEZAR, OF MASSAWIPPI
Massawippi, Que., April 1.—The shadow of death touched the hearts of the entire community when on Thursday morning, March 10, it was learned that Mrs. Caroline Mary Kazar, wife of the late Alexander Kazar, a life-long and highly respected resident of this community, had suddenly passed to her reward.

The deceased was the daughter of the late Mr. S. S. Fisk, and his wife, Rachel Lord.

Two sons came to bless the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kazar, one lived fifteen years, and the other died when only three days old.

Mrs. Kazar was actively devoted to her church, and was interested in the welfare of the community.

The funeral was held on March 12, at 2:30 p. m. from her late residence, Rev. Mr. Wilcox officiating.

Interment took place in the Massawippi Cemetery beside her late husband.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral were from Montreal, Richmond, Magog, Ayer's Cliff, Sherbrooke, Hatley, Beebe and Cookshire.

MR. JAMES WILLIAMS, OF TINGWICK
Tingwick, Que., April 1.—The death of Mr. James Williams, occurred at his home on March 29, after a lingering illness.

A life-long resident of Tingwick, he lived his entire life on the home farm, where he was born on June 8, 1875.

Mr. Williams was survived by his wife, Henrietta Murphy, and five sons, Denis, Michael, James, Albert and Thomas, and one daughter, Mary Ellen.

Also surviving are two brothers, Thomas, of St. Johnsbury, Vt., and William, of Tingwick; two brothers-in-law, G. Jennings, of Concord, N. H., and A. Laughlin, of Grand Forks, B. C.; and two sisters-in-law, Mrs. William Williams and Mrs. Thomas Williams.

The funeral service was held at St. Patrick's Church, in Tingwick, on March 29. A requiem High Mass was chanted by Rev. Father Roux, assisted by Deacon and Sub-deacon.

The funeral was largely attended by relatives and friends, showing the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

The bearers were B. Jennings, Michael Murphy, Harold Purcell, Edmond Perreault, Albert Simon, and Denis Gleason.

MR. LEONARD MARTIN LORIMER, OF DIXVILLE
Dixville, April 1.—The funeral service for Leonard M. Lorimer, who passed away at the "Parsonage" on Wednesday, March 16, was held from the Baptist Church on Saturday afternoon, March 19.

Rev. Dr. Johnson, pastor of the Centennial Baptist Church, officiated, and spoke from the words, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." The hymns rendered by the choir were, "Jesus, Saviour Pilot Me" and "Face To Face." Mrs. Kenneth Norris presided at the organ.

The beautiful floral offerings were tokens of love and sympathy.

The bearers were Messrs. Clayton and Orie Thomas, Addison W. Cushing and Harry A. Baldwin.

Burial was made in the family lot in the Waterville Cemetery.

The deceased was born in Beebe, on October 24, 1862, and was the son of the late William and Sarah (Martin) Lorimer. He was of Scotch descent, his grandparents, John Lorimer and Isabella Brodie, came from Scotland in 1830, and settled at Beebe.

On June 5, 1894, he was united in marriage to Sylvia, second daughter of the late Daniel and Ann Mayhew Gilson, of this place. Mrs. Lorimer passed away on August 26, 1939. Three children were born to them all of whom are living. Olive (Mrs. J. U. McIntosh), of Ottawa, Rev. E. Albert Lorimer, pastor of Dixville Baptist Church, and Ellsworth, of Chilliwick, B. C. Also surviving are children, grandchildren, two brothers, Rev. Dr. Addison B. Lorimer, of Burlington, Vt., and Rev. Albert Lorimer, of Jamaica Plain, Mass.; a sister, Miss Belle Lorimer, who had shared his home and been his companion during the ten years following the death of his wife.

In spite of his advanced age, Mr. Lorimer had until recently enjoyed good health, and during the past summer had the care of a fine vegetable garden. He was a life-long and devoted member of the Baptist Church, taking a real interest in all departments of its work at home and abroad.

Among out-of-town friends attending the funeral were Mrs. J. U. McIntosh, of Ottawa; Rev. Dr. A. B. Lorimer, of Burlington, Vt.; and Mrs. E. E. Gilson, of Sherbrooke; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gall of Bulwer; Messrs. L. M. Thomas and George Cunningham, of Coaticook.

MRS. WILLIAM H. THOMAS, OF DETROIT, MICH., FORMERLY OF GOULD
Gould, April 1.—Funeral services for Mrs. W. H. Thomas, who passed away in her sleep at the home of her daughter, Doris, Mrs. W. A. Irwin, at Detroit, Mich., on March 14, took place on March 16, at Chalmers' United Church, Gould.

Mrs. Thomas, nee Florence Nightingale Bickmore, was born in England, in 1883. She was the widow of the late Rev. William Henry Thomas, who served in this community as minister of Chalmers' United Church for several years, where they both made many friends, who were deeply saddened to hear of her passing.

She is survived by her two daughters, Doris, Mrs. W. A. Irwin, of Detroit, Mich., and Joyce, Mrs. J. W. Halpin, of London, Ont.; one son, Ivor, of Montreal; Dr. W. A. Irwin, a son-in-law; Mr. J. W. Halpin, a son-in-law; and three grandchildren. All except the

Truman Visit Is April 1 Joke

Frankfurt, Germany, April 1.—(AP)—The Frankfurt Rundschau today printed a photograph of President Truman and said:

"Shortly before deadline, we learned from our special correspondent that President Truman made a short stop in Frankfurt on his completely surprising visit to Europe."

"As the President continued his flight in an easterly direction, political circles speculated wildly on his objectives."

In accordance with German customs of the day, the story was up to the reader to remember that.

own country were startled and even shocked by what I said. "But events have vindicated and fulfilled in much detail the warnings which I deemed it my duty to give at that time."

(At Fulton, in March, 1946, Churchill launched the lowering of an "iron curtain" across Europe, assailed Soviet Russian expansion, and made his call for the fraternal association of the British Commonwealth of nations and the United States.)

"Today," Churchill said, "there is a very different climate of opinion. "No one could, however, have brought about these immense changes in the feelings of the United States, Great Britain and Europe but for the astounding policy of the Russian Soviet government."

"We may well ask: 'Why have they deliberately acted for three long years so as to unite the free world against them?' "It is because they fear the friendship of the west more than its hostility."

"They cannot afford to allow free and friendly intercourse to grow up between the vast areas they control and the civilization of the west."

"The Russian people must not see what goes on outside, and the world must not see what goes on inside the Soviet domain."

Churchill said that because of the Kremlin policies, relations between Soviet Russia and the rest of the world were "without precedent in history."

"Measures and counter-measures have been taken on many occasions which in any previous period could only have meant armed conflict," he added.

Now, the United Nations "remains a key of deliverance."

union was incomplete. It has remained incomplete until today. He likened the peace tower arch to a union. When the arch was constructed, "the sense of proportion of the architect confirmed the judgment of the fathers who had planned confederation."

"With only nine shields, no balance could be achieved that would satisfy the requirements of beauty and symmetry. And so the arch, like the union, was unfinished in history."

"The people of Newfoundland have now so decided. The arch and the union will now be complete."

with Canadian manufacturers led him to believe that without removal of the high prices they could not compete with Dutch suppliers.

Nanking, April 1.—(AP)—The Chinese government's peace delegation landed in Communist Peiping this afternoon.

The Communists immediately clamped a ban on the publication of all news concerning the activities of the nationalist negotiators. Peiping newspapers were forbidden even to mention the arrival of the government delegation. There was no indication the Communists will consent to a joint issuance of communiques on the progress of negotiations.

The delegation took off from Nanking after consulting with acting President, Li Tsung-Jen, and leaders of the Kuomintang (government) party.

grandchildren accompanied the remains here from Detroit, Mich. The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. F. R. Matthews, a close friend of the family.

Two hymns, "Unto The Hills Around" and "We Cannot Think of Them As Dead," were sung by the choir at the request of the family.

Beautiful flowers, bearing silent testimony to the esteem in which the deceased was held, covered the casket, which was borne to its last resting place, beside her late husband in the Lingwick Cemetery, by Messrs. Allan Matheson, Henry Nicholson, Gerald MacKay, William MacDonald, Kenneth MacIver and Malcolm Martin.

born the same way, all live the same way, and all pass on the same way." The speaker noted that the sanctity of the human being must be recognized in order to give victory to the United Nations, forged out of the blood of every race and creed who fought and died side by side in order that we might live.

"In social service and in human relationships," the speaker said, "let all creeds and religions realize that we have much more in common than we have apart." Our nation is a sample of what real democracy stands for, we recognize the rights of the minority and respect their views and thoughts, it was noted.

In closing, Mr. Moskovitch said, "We envision on the horizon the rising of a new sun, let us hope that that sun brings a new pattern of a type of world that will recognize common brotherhood of men and common fatherhood of God."

The meeting was presided over by A. J. Wener, Mr. Moskovitch was introduced by H. L. Echenberg, B.A., B.C.L., and thanked by A. D. Echenberg.

6-YEAR-OLD BOY SAVES CHUM FROM DROWNING

1. Jean-Pierre didn't hesitate when he saw the plight of the two youngsters. Reaching the edge of the river, he began to crawl slowly and carefully across the thin ice.

2. One of the boys had managed to scramble out by himself, but the other was in real trouble. Jean-Pierre finally managed to grab his coat collar and drag him out of the water.

3. To the young hero, the fact that his rescue efforts were successful was nothing compared to the thrill of riding home in a police car after everything was over.

WINS DOW AWARD

JEAN-PIERRE FRADETTE
of Verdun, Que.
shows amazing coolness in rescue of 7-year-old friend

Playing on Verdun's boardwalk one winter day, little Jean-Pierre saw two small boys struggling desperately in the water. One of them managed to get out, but the other was being carried away by the current. Lying flat on his stomach, the plucky 6-year-old crawled out on the sagging ice and pulled the soaked, almost frozen boy in to shore. He then ran a quarter mile to the police station and summoned help. We are recognizing this youngster's courage with The Dow Award.

DOROTHY DIX

Silly Woman

Wife Annoyed Because Husband Doesn't Get Jealous

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have a husband who is so sure of me that it gets on my nerves. When I go to parties and flirt a little bit, he doesn't seem to even notice it. He just takes my affection for granted and I would like to see a fiery look in his eye occasionally. Don't you think I should try to find a way to make him a little jealous?

Answer: I think any woman who sets out deliberately to rouse jealousy in her husband is such an idiot that she should not be permitted out alone. She is going out to hunt for trouble and, believe me, she will find it a-plenty. With her own hands she is laying the ax to the foundation of her house of happiness, and before she knows it she will find herself crushed under its ruins.

There are a lot of silly women who think that the way to keep their husbands interested in them is to keep them guessing. Never to let their husbands be sure of them. Always to intimate that there is some other man in the offing. Perhaps they tried these tactics in the courtship days and they worked, and they brought their husbands to the proposing point by playing up other men against them.

But with marriage the situation is completely changed. Then the woman has made her decision and her husband must trust her absolutely if there is to be any happiness in the family. He doesn't want to have a watch her, or spy upon her, or question her motives. He must have faith in her integrity and her goodness. He must believe in her love so implicitly that he feels that all the wolves in the world wouldn't turn her heart away from him, and that she simply could not be tempted to betray him.

So don't be peeved at your husband's taking your affection for granted. Get down on your knees and thank Heaven for it. It is the finest compliment he could pay you.

Dear Miss Dix: Do you think that girls from the ages of 14 to 16 can love as much as those who are older?

Answer: No, my child, they can't really love at all. All they can know is a kind of sickly little calf love that they outgrow in a few years, and that is no more like the deep and abiding love of a grown woman than skimmed milk is like cream.

Of course, girls at that age think they are in love, because they have never experienced any real love and so have no standard of comparison. They think they are in love because they get a kick out of meeting a boy and they fill their thoughts full of him, and they have a good time when he is around and miss him when he is absent.

But this is just because they are feeling the first thrill of adolescence, and it flatters them to death to realize that they have sex attraction, and they are so much in love with the idea of being in love that they can imagine themselves in love with any boy who happens along.

But, in reality, what they feel is only a passing fancy. They outgrow it as they do their taste for all-day suckers. Their ideas change from day to day. So don't take seriously what you feel now, little girl. They are just growing pains that you will get over.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a woman 30 years old and have lived with a very dear friend for years. Now this pal of mine is going to be married and has asked me to make by home with her. I love her dearly, but I am afraid if I go to live with her it might interfere with her happiness. What is your advice?

Answer: Don't think of such a thing, because her husband would be more than human if he were not jealous of you. No man wants to have some other woman tagging along every time he takes his wife out of an evening and listening in on every conversation they have.

Don't go to live with your friend. Don't even visit her too often. Any third party in a home is a menace to it, and it is especially dangerous to the newlyweds.

The Record will be pleased to receive any letters to this Dorothy Dix column. These will be forwarded to Miss Dix who will answer them as quickly as possible.

MODERN MARRIAGE

VALE PERKINS

The United Church Women's Association met at the home of Mrs. Fred Jewett on March 23. Due to weather conditions and sickness, only five members were present, but work and plans for a summer sale went ahead, and quite a bit of finished work was turned in. It was decided to send the "adopted" family in England a parcel of used clothing this month, as a parcel of food and an Easter parcel have been sent during the past month. Anyone wishing to donate used clothing to this parcel may give it to Mrs. Howard Jewett, who will send this parcel. This group also met at the home of Mrs. Vernon George, on March 9, and with Mrs. Ray Jones, on February 23. All three ladies served refreshments. Mrs. Ray Jones packed the overseas food parcel for March. A beautiful "Sunshine" basket made and donated by Mrs. Leverett Jewett was filled with gifts from the members and presented by Mrs. D. Brown to Mrs. Martha Challes, a member of the W. A. who has been a patient in the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal. There was an attendance of eight at Mrs. George's meeting and six at Mrs. Jones'. Mrs. D. Brown and Mrs. E. Mossa packed the "food" parcel for February. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Howard Jewett, on April 6. It is hoped more members will attend. A "ship" quilt (for sale) will be started at this meeting. Come and spend a pleasant afternoon. Visitors are welcome.

Mr. John Jones visited his sister, Mrs. Charles Moore in Keene, N. H. Mrs. Moore, nee Elva Jones, was a former resident of this place. Mr. Jones also called on Mr. Myron Bowen, an old friend, and former resident of Mansenville, and Mrs. Claude Wright, in Beloeux Falls, Vt., whose mother, Mrs. B. George, resides here.

Visitors at "Georgedale Farm" were Professor Eva Younge, of McGill University, Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, of St. Laurent.

Mr. Charles Jones visited his son, Eric, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Bell, at East Farnham, and accompanied him to the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, where he remained for a few days, to have the cast removed from his leg, which he had the misfortune to break, while working in the woods with Mr. Levett Jewett.

Mrs. Claude George and Mr. Ben. George were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Orin Gardner, in North Hatley. They were accompanied by Mrs. Vernon George, who visited her mother, Mrs. J. Murray, in Lennoxville.

Mrs. K. N. MacIver and Mr. Kenneth MacIver motored to Montreal on Saturday, March 26, to attend the funeral services of Mrs. A. K. MacKay.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Gilbert and three sons, of Beebe, and Miss Jean McCormick, of Moffat Lake, and Mr. William MacArthur, of Stornoway, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Neil MacArthur and Mr. John MacArthur.

Mr. Ross MacDonald was in Sherbrooke on Sunday to visit his wife, who is a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Mr. Clarence MacCaskill was called to Sherbrooke on Monday, March 28, where he is serving as a jurymen.

The Ladies' Aid of Chalmers' United Church had a "quilting bee" in the Town Hall. A large number were present and two pretty quilts were completed. Dainty refreshments were served during the afternoon.

The remains of Mrs. A. K. MacKay, who passed away in Montreal on Thursday, March 24, were brought here for burial beside her late husband, Alexander K. MacKay, who died in 1913. Mrs. MacKay, nee Mary Ann MacIver, was born here and was the last surviving member of the family of Kenneth A. MacIver and his wife, Ann Nicholson MacIver, of Gould. She is survived by her three children, one daughter, Christine; and two sons, Kenneth and Billy, of Montreal. They were accompanied by Miss Connie Sandreth, of Montreal, Miss Anna MacIver, of Isle Maligne, Col. and Mrs. George Logie, and son, Ian, of Sherbrooke, Mrs. K. N. MacIver and Mrs. Kenneth MacIver, of Gould, who came with the remains from Montreal and Sherbrooke. Friends from Scottstown who came to pay their final tribute to one who had lived in their midst for many years before going to make her home in Montreal were Mrs. W. Taylor, Misses Jennie and Clara Hanright, Mrs. J. Penoyer, Mrs. Charles M. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Angus MacKenzie, Mr. Angus MacLennan, Mr. Robert Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth MacLeod, Miss Katie Morrison, Mr. Fred Goodin, Mrs. Malcolm Nicholson, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stokes, of Bury, and Mr. John MacMillan, of Gould Station.

DRAPER'S CORNER

Master Billy Campbell is visiting his grandparents here, while his mother, Mrs. Lynwood Campbell, has gone to Hamilton, Ont., for a few days with her husband, Mr. Lynwood Campbell.

Misses Pearl Allison and Violet Skuse have returned to their duties at King's Hall, Compton, after the Easter holidays, at their respective homes here.

Miss Cecile Charland has returned home from some time spent in Sherbrooke.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hamel and daughter, of Sherbrooke, were week-end guests at the Charland home.

Mr. John Campbell conveyed by double team the Farm Forum members from this neighborhood to Mr. J. Cowan's on Monday night, for their final meeting for this season.

Mr. John Clark, who has been at Mr. John Campbell's since returning from England, has purchased the Lazanba property and has taken possession of same.

RULES

Opposite each Jumbled Word, list your solution. For example, the first Jumbled Word, when the letters are rearranged properly, will form the word, SHERBROOKE. Don't be discouraged if you fail to solve every name. Perhaps no entrant will get them all correct. Failure to enter your list, even if it is incomplete may cost you a cash prize that you would have otherwise won.

Each of the Jumbled Words will, when the letters are re-arranged in their proper sequence, form the name of a town or village which may be found on any complete map of the Dominion of Canada.

The contest is open to any resident of the Eastern Townships except (a. Employees of the Sherbrooke Daily Record or their immediate families, b. Record correspondents or carriers.) No mail subscriptions will be accepted for delivery within the City of Sherbrooke. Subscribers receiving home delivery in Sherbrooke or any town within the Eastern Townships may complete by sending in mail subscriptions for delivery outside of Sherbrooke or by sending a remittance of $3.25 (covering 13 weeks home delivery at regular delivery rates), the carrier being allowed his usual credit on all subscriptions paid in advance. Not more than 1 year's advance payment will be accepted on any one subscription. All new subscriptions start as soon as they are received.

In the event of more than one person having the most words jumbled correctly, and tied with the amount of money for new subscriptions, The Record will run one tie-breaker. Only those tied in the first contest will be permitted to solve the second contest. No subscriptions will be necessary on the second puzzle.

Prizes will be awarded according to the list with the largest number of correct names, and the amount of subscription money sent in; new subscriptions earning twice as much as renewal. That is if you sent in $3.25 for a 6 months renewal subscription and won first prize you would receive $50.00. If you sent in one new subscription for six months you would receive $100.00. In the event of a tie with the same amount of correct names then the contestant sending in the most money for new subscriptions will be declared the winner as money for new subscriptions counts twice as much as money sent in for renewals. It's up to you.

At least $3.25 must be sent in with each entry. That would pay a six months mail subscription to The Record.

No Prizes are offered for lists without a subscription enclosed.

Participants, by sending in an answer, agree to accept the decision of the judges as final. No controversy can possibly be entered into with any entrant.

ALL ANSWERS AND MONEY MUST be sent direct to The Record and addressed "Jumbled Word Contest", Sherbrooke Daily Record, Sherbrooke, Que.

Different solutions may be sent in by any contestant but each must be accompanied by at least a six-months new or renewal order to the Sherbrooke Daily Record.

Ayer's Cliff Pupils Are Attending Classes In Their Modern, New School

Ayer's Cliff, April 1.—Though not "officially" opened, the Consolidated High School is now finished so that on Monday, March 21st classes were held for the first time under one roof, since the burning of the school Dec. 8, 1945.

Miss Annie Howse, who was Principal at that time has carried on under the most trying conditions, and despite the handicaps has kept Ayer's Cliff High School in good standing.

None of the 180 to 190 pupils at the school was happy about the opening, then, of the new school, who so faithfully had "stood by" and her staff, Miss Edith Hastings, Mr. Orvus Aldrich, Miss Elizabeth Hastings, Mrs. Mildred Wheeler, and Miss Gwen Pitman.

Today the make-shift classrooms are bygone, and the steel frame, concrete block, red brick building is admired by every student, every parent, and every payer, for it is a very practical building 110 by 60 feet. At the same time it is an addition to our town, as it is a consolidation of educational resources in this District, taking in a part of Stanstead East, Earneston, Wray's Mills, St. Catherine de Hatley, Brown's Hill, and Boynton.

It is expected that other municipalities will enter now that the building is finished.

The Central School Board, with Dr. C. L. Brown as chairman, was formed as an advisory and financial body with board members, James Walker, R. G. McHarg, R. J. Stafford and Elwin Chadsey, and Cecil Tyler as secretary. These gentlemen brought this project to the point of construction in June, 1948.

The builders were the R. E. Stewart Construction Corp., of Sherbrooke. The contract price $129,600 and with expenditures, including some equipment, the cost has been $142,000 to date. An appeal for bonds for $127,000 was made and that is how it was financed. Provincial Government grants should cover this outlay within three years.

At the present time the board is comprised of two Consolidated members Leon Parnell, of St. Catherine de Hatley, and John Potter, of Stanstead East. These gentlemen replaced Elwin Chadsey and James Walker, who retired.

The architects leaned on modern design in the building although there is a plain exterior. There are three full floors, with only the top one as conventional class-rooms.

The large gymnasium auditorium, with stage, has a seating capacity of four hundred. Wash rooms, and the steam boiler-room are all on the sub-basement floor.

On the first floor up are the domestic science room, physics and chemistry laboratories, principals and teachers' room. There is also a large lunch room, which will have

Newfoundland Has 72,000 School Students

By C. E. A. JEFFERY
Canadian Press Correspondent
St. John's, Nfld. April 1.—(C)—Newfoundland's union with Canada brings into the Dominion some 72,000 school students, many of whom get their education the hard way in outports and villages.

Under a law passed by the commission government that has ruled Newfoundland since 1931, education is free and attendance compulsory. Especially in winter, however, it is often impossible for children to maintain regular attendance because of their distance from school. There also are such obstacles to contend with as arctic conditions across which the children must be ferried.

The system—administered by a body known as the council of education—operates on a denominational basis. All schools are controlled by religious bodies except this capital's memorial University College, where a two-year university course is available, and a few public schools. The island's population of 325,000 is divided fairly equally into Roman Catholic, Anglican and United Church members.

BUGBEE BUSINESS COLLEGE

The B. B. C. Literary Society did not hold its usual meeting on Friday last. Instead, Mr. and Mrs. McFadyen invited all the members to a "Sugaring Off," at the same hour. As snow is an essential element at such an event we were lucky to choose this date as snow almost entirely disappeared the following day. The event was in every respect a very pleasant one. There was an abundance of sugar and a good quantity of doughnuts. To add to the pleasure, Mrs. McFadyen invited all the boys of the nearby "Anex" and their matron, Mrs. Wallace, to join the party and partake of the "sugar on snow." They, too, gave ample evidence of enjoying the treat and all the guests, on departing, expressed their gratitude for a very pleasant hour together.

Maurice Genest and Ralph Connor were invited guests at the "Sugaring Off" party at B. B. C.

Mr. and Mrs. McFadyen were asked on Monday last by the editors of the Sunday paper of Mr. McFadyen's nephew, Irvine Heron, of Toronto, Ont., a representative of the Underwood Co. of Toronto, Ont., had been making annual calls on the College. For the past few years he was accompanied by his wife, and as each possessed a winsome personality their visit was looked forward to with joyful anticipation. To date, no word has come through as to the cause of his sudden death. They have no married son, "Billy."

The B. B. C. students are now busy with their Easter examinations. A few are taking their final exam to graduate at the end of the term.

Legislature Page Boys Like Their Positions

By The Canadian Press.
Ever wonder about the working lives of those neat-looking youngsters scurrying about the provincial legislatures?

The legislators couldn't get along without them. When a member needs a drink of water, a page boy is there to replenish his glass. If he needs a document from his office down the hall, a boy is quick to obtain it. It's all designed to save an M. P.'s energy and speed public business.

The Ontario legislature got to wondering the other night about the working conditions of the industrious page boy. And some harsh words were voiced in the Ontario House about allegedly bad conditions for the boys.

It was a young man who "went to bat" for the boys—22-year-old Reid Scott, C. C. F. member for Toronto Beaches. He contended that the fifth-floor room used as a page boys' lunch room was a veritable "Fagin's den in Oliver Twist." Other members raised questions of pay and working conditions generally.

But Dana Porter, minister of education, thought the boys' life in legislative halls wasn't too strenuous and that they were paid reasonably well.

The boys in the Ontario legislature—eight of them—are aged from 11 to 13 years. They receive $4 a day for a normal work day from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m., six days a week.

That prompted a Canadian Press survey of page boys' working conditions in some other provincial legislatures and in Parliament. At Ottawa the boys, aged between 12 and 18, receive $2 a day for a five-day week. Their normal work-day is from 3 p. m. to 10:30 p. m. They have to be well advanced in their school work before getting the job.

That requirement also goes for other legislatures. Alberta employs high school boys who take morning classes and receive individual tuition from teacher-members during lulls in the session. They get $2.50 a day.

Two boys sit beside the Speaker's throne in the Manitoba legislature. They receive $100 for each session which averages eight weeks, $1 for each night sitting.

British Columbia goes in for regimental groupings. The nine boys at Victoria, all in grade VIII or higher, are divided into a sergeant at $15 a week; a corporal at $12.50 and "privates" at $10. They work a six-hour day and receive a 20 per cent cost-of-living bonus.

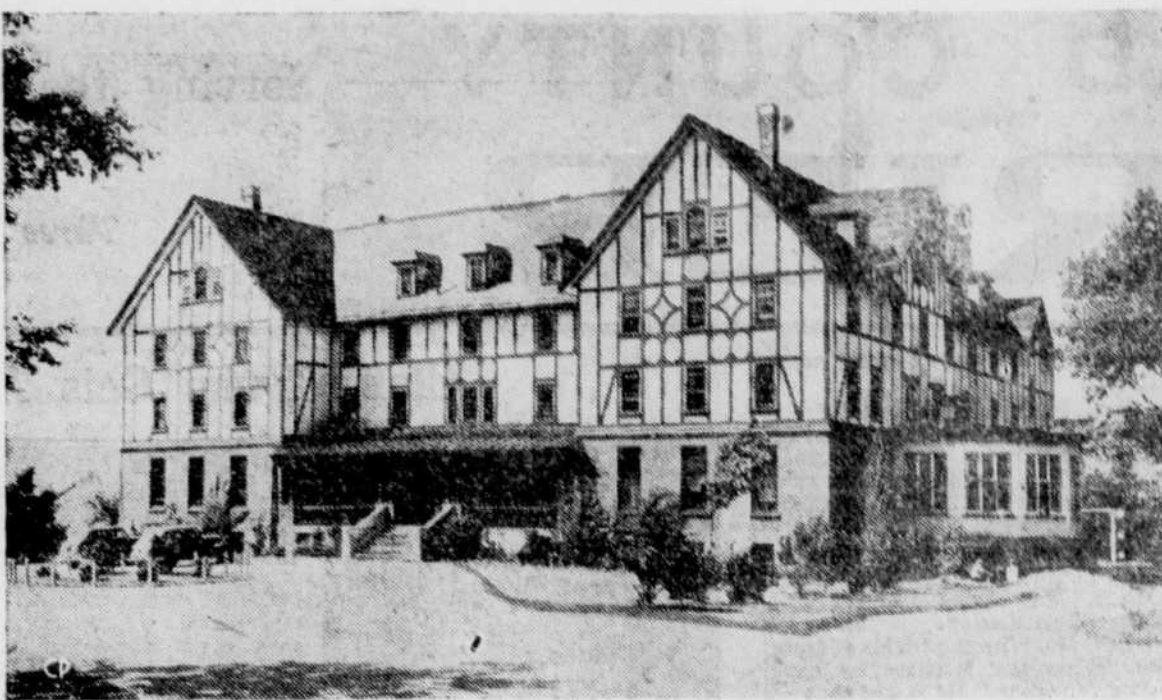

Similar working conditions and pay rates were reported from other provinces. All reports agreed: the boys like it.

Canadian province March 31 provide that the provincial legislature will have exclusive authority to make laws affecting any right or privilege of education. It is but "will not have authority to make laws prejudicial with respect to denominational schools."

There are more than 1,200 schools in the charge of 2,300 teachers, whose salaries vary between $300 and $3,000 and over. Current government grant to education is $4,000,000. This represents an increase since the inception of commission government from $500,000—an amount to which it had been reduced from $1,000,000 during the years when as the result of the economic blizzard drastic retrenchment was put into operation.

One of the main causes of the heavy cost is the widely distributed settlements, some of which may comprise only a handful of families. Fortunately, the people in such places are for the most part of the same creed and one school serves. However, there may be three schools when the same staff and building could take care of all the students.

Tourists' Haven

As Newfoundland enters confederation as the 10th province Canadians will have a new area to explore. In addition it is expected many United States citizens will visit the country as tourists when the abundance of wild game and fish is publicized. The tourist industry is not a large industry now but the country has some first class facilities. This photo is of Glynn Inn, located at Corner Brook, one of the finest hotels on the island. The Advent Christian Church Observed The World Day Of Prayer For China

Magog, April 1.—Rev. Benish to be advanced in China; 2. That Rediker, a recently returned missionary from China, notified Mrs. W. McKenna, Sr., that a world-wide day of prayer for China would be held on Friday, March 25, 1949. She asked all Missionary Societies to take part in this.

The objectives for prayer were 1. That the Gospel may continue.

private missionary hymns were sung.

Mrs. Hedley Nicholl read from the Gospel of St. John, Chapter XIV: 1-21, which is a missionary chapter. Mrs. Nicholl read this, substituting for Mrs. William McKenna, who was ill.

The special prayers were said by Mrs. Lettie Crothers, Mrs. Daisy Minor, Miss Irene Phaneuf and Miss Diana Ensley.

Rev. Mr. Wilcox gave his address on "What the Missionaries have done for China." He stated that he had frequently been asked, "why send missionaries to China?" and throughout his address he continued to convince the listeners that these missionaries were a great help, both physically as well as morally. One of the examples given as to the proof of their help to the Chinese, was their faithful teachings, which eventually abolished many cruel Chinese customs, such as drowning babies and binding the feet of youngsters. Rev. Mr. Wilcox closed his address by asking for prayers for the missionaries in China regardless of denomination.

The silver collection taken will be used for missionary work in China. This World's Day of Prayer for China held in the Advent Christian Church was sponsored by the Women's Home and Foreign Mission Society of the same church.

Club Champ Gets Award

Jeff Lowther, of Magog, is seen above receiving the Manoir Orford Trophy from Claude Charest, the proprietor of the ski resort. Lowther won the combined club championship. The meet was open only to club members. In order to retain permanent possession of the trophy a skier must win the title three years in succession.

ST. FAITH'S GUILD'S ANNUAL SUPPER

The annual Irish stew supper sponsored by St. Faith's Guild was held in St. Luke's Church Hall on Saturday, March 19.

The tables were appropriately decorated with green paper shamrocks and green candles.

The convivers of tables with their able helpers were as follows: (1) Mrs. Edith Renaud with Mrs. Pink and Mrs. Kirby; (2) Mrs. John Chadsey with Mrs. George Fields; (3) Mrs. P. Catchpaw with Mrs. R. Malcolm, Mrs. R. Urwick and Mrs. O. Holt; (4) Mrs. Ewart with Mrs. J. Trew, Jr., and Mrs. Clifford Goulding as helpers.

Much credit is also due to all those who helped in the kitchen, including Mrs. A. Catterell, who made the tea and coffee and Mrs. Dufresne, who made the stew. The donations of food were collected and delivered by a group of boys with the splendid help of a truck and driver loaned for the occasion by the Industrial Specialty, Ltd.

All who helped in any way to make this annual event the decided success it proved to be, (both socially and financially) are extended a hearty vote of thanks.

MAGOG TEAMS WIN BADMINTON GAMES IN BEEBE

Members of St. Luke's Anglican Young People's Association and the Social and Recreational Association of St. Paul's United Church journeyed by bus to Beebe to play badminton, on March 24.

The matches were keenly contested, but resulted in a final score of Magog 12, Beebe 8.

Following the games delicious refreshments and sugar-on-snow were served to the players.

IVES HILL

The final meeting for the winter of the Ives Hill and Draper's Corner Farm Forum Group took place on March 28, the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cowan. The broadcast of provincial reports was listened to with much interest. So many of the Forums had promoted to improve the communities. Many people found it of an educational nature. One point was that the Federation of Agriculture had been strengthened by the Farm Forum meeting. Mr. J. R. Cowan was chairman for the evening. Mr. Fred Green read the minutes of the previous meeting which were approved. He also read the "Greenleaf." There were two thank-you letters received. The questionnaire was then filled out and the meeting adjourned. Then a meeting of the Ives Hill and Draper's Corner Improvement Society took place, to organize for the summer months. This was followed by refreshments served by Mrs. J. R. Cowan and Mrs. R. Matthews.

Mrs. R. Matthews and son, Bob, by, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. Burroughs, at Richmond.

Colorful Places

Newfoundland has one of the finest collections of odd place names one is liable to find anywhere in the world. Joe Batts Arm, Heart's Desire, and Horse Chops are all names of places. Here is the SS. Northern Ranger unloading freight at a place called Jackson's Arm. (CP PHOTO)

Scenic Beauty

With the entry of Newfoundland into confederation as the 10th province, many odd place names will be added to Canadian geographies. School children will find they now have such places as Cape White Handkerchief, Come-By-Chance and Ireland's Eye to remember. Piquant Flavor To Names, Slang In Newfoundland

By DAVE McINTOSH

Canadian Press Staff Writer
St. John's, Nfld., April 1.—(C)—Newfoundland's entry into Canada gives the Dominion some of its most colorful names and picturesque speech.

It will probably take Canadians some time to get used to names like Horse Chops, Cape White Handkerchief, Ireland's Eye and Joe Batts Arm even though no eyebrows are raised now at Moose Jaw, Sask., Medicine Hat, Alta., or Skir Dhn, N. S.

Fishermen of Britain, France, Portugal and Spain, gave the coasts and points around Newfoundland's coast the names that now are addresses for the hardy people living in far-flung outposts.

Horse Chops gets its name from white waves that dash on shore during a storm and that are often called "white horses." It is only one step then, from choppy white horses to Horse Chops.

Vascelonow, a group of rocks on the coast, seems to be a corruption of "la vache et le taureau." The outline of these rocks gives the impression of a cow and bull.

Isle aux Morts, Point Enragée, Cul de Sac and Cinq Cerf come, of course, from the French. Mosquito is believed to come from the Spanish, Caplin from the Portuguese. Tossolo probably got its name from its resemblance to a silver cup, tasse de l'argent.

Sources of many names are lost in time; they are related to a person, happening or emotion that prompted a name that has stuck through the decades.

Picturesque Names.
Some of these would be Breakheart Point, Exploits, Godfather, Island, Happy Adventure, Seldom-Come-By, Come-By-Chance, Wreck Point and Heart's Delight. Near the last named are Heart's Desire, Heart's Content and Little Heart's East. All on Conception Bay, the hamlets are sheltered from the main brunt of the sea.

Who knows what might have happened to Joe Batt long ago for a fishing village on Fogo Island to be called Joe Batts Arm? Did Joe lose an arm in an accident on a ship? Most likely not. He probably found or fished in an arm of sea and thus the name.

In the days of the "fishing admirals," Devon and Dorset fishermen escaped and many hid on a rocky hill under Conception Bay until their ships had sailed for home. Newfoundlanders still have their Runaway Rock.

There are at least 1,000 terms of speech peculiar to Newfoundland. Most of them had to do with the sea and ships originally and have been carried over into common usage.

A braggart, for instance, is an "October Guller." This nickname was given to the garrulous fishermen arriving home from Labrador in October, a month later than most of his neighbors. He could thus spin wild tales that no one could contradict.

A grave is a "long-home," grumbling is "mullygrubs," and sick is "mops and brooms." Scared is "pig before thunder" and flattery is "plawmshankin'." A good man is "as fine a man as ever hove," galus over his shoulder and a thief of "an honest man when there's only anchors on the shore."

Cod Fisheries Newfoundland's Basic Industry

By DAVE McINTOSH

Canadian Press Staff Writer
St. John's, Nfld., April 1.—(C)—Joe Moore, 26, bronzed and tough, is a cod fisherman. As such, he is a working part of Newfoundland's basic industry.

Joe's shanty lies at the foot of Signal Hill, the towering rock that comes over this ancient port and the Narrows through which ships pass to and from the sea.

At night, from the door of his shanty one can see the little fishing boats bobbing in the swell below, the flashing light on Chain Rock near the Narrows, the big revolving beam on the far side, the riding beacons of freighters docked in the harbor and the thousand twinkling lights of the city itself.

One can smell the salt drying on the flakes—or stagings—around Joe's shanty and the scores of other shanties that twine around the foot of the hill. Always, there is the lap of the sea at the pilings.

Joe is owner and skipper of his own boat and has a crew of five. Some of them have their tiny homes behind the stagings but those who are not married spend most of their time, when not fishing, in the shanty.

The shanty is on the second storey, so to speak. Below it is the heavily-planked wharf where the cod is salted down and stacked to dry. Under that again is the water. The fish are thrown out of the boats at the end of the wharf and cleaned and hosed down on rough wooden tables.

Home and Workshop

The shanty consists of three rooms, one of them open to the weather. Fish are stacked in one, gear is kept in another and the crew makes its home in a third. In this last room are two double bunks, a small table and bench and a stove and cupboard. The men do their own cooking and are partial to bacon and eggs.

When working the cod traps Joe and his men roll out about 5 a. m. for their first trip of the day. The boat is about 25 feet long and carries an eight-horsepower engine.

In the summer Joe and his crew trap fish. The traps are square and buoyed at the four corners. A "leader" is used to guide the cod into the nets.

Hauling the nets in, dumping their contents and setting them out again is back-breaking work. Joe's nets are about four miles outside the harbor near Blackhead. A trip may take three or four hours and the second is made about nightfall. After that comes the cleaning and salting. One day's work may be as short as 10 hours. Usually, however, a working day runs to 16 or 18 hours.

Joe Moore began to fish when he was 11 after his father was drowned. Before the war he could make only $800 a year (in 1938, 25 per cent of the working population made less than $100 a year) but he's doing about five times better than that now.

Dried cod brings Newfoundland around $17,000,000 a year and fresh and frozen cod more than $6,000,000. This represents about one quarter of Newfoundland's total exports.

The cod industry can be classified into three groups—inshore, deep-sea and the Labrador.

Inshore Fishermen
Most fishermen in Newfoundland—there are about 30,000—work inshore. They use trawls lined early in the season and switch to cod traps later on. One of Joe Moore's cod nets may bring up 60,000 pounds in a single haul so that fish slop over the sides of the boat. The traps usually are set on shoals near headlands and the take is big when the cod is "running."

Deep-sea fishing is done almost exclusively from the south coast by schooners up to 150 tons. They fish the banks, great shoals lying far off the southeast coast. In winter schooners sometimes ice up so badly that they turn turtle.

Two groups operate in Labrador waters—"stationers" who have their fishing "rooms" based on shore and schooners that carry their crews and gear with them from Newfoundland. They move about with the runs and split and salt their cod on board.

In recent years, particularly since the war, development of refrigeration plants for production of cod fillets and processed fish has gone ahead by leaps and bounds.

These plants now have a daily capacity of about 700,000 pounds and a holding capacity of more than 10,000,000 pounds. Commission government poured more than $4,000,000 into new plants and set up about 20 small bait refrigeration plants which distribute bait to fishermen.

This has meant a new deal for Newfoundland fishermen. It is taking the emphasis off dried cod and boosting production of fresh and frozen cod fillets.

This diversifies fishing. Joe Moore, for instance, now spends about as much time cleaning and salting his cod as he does catching it. But if he sells it to a processing plant he has more time for fishing. Besides, he gets cash instead of kind. For it is usually the

Old Fishing Settlement

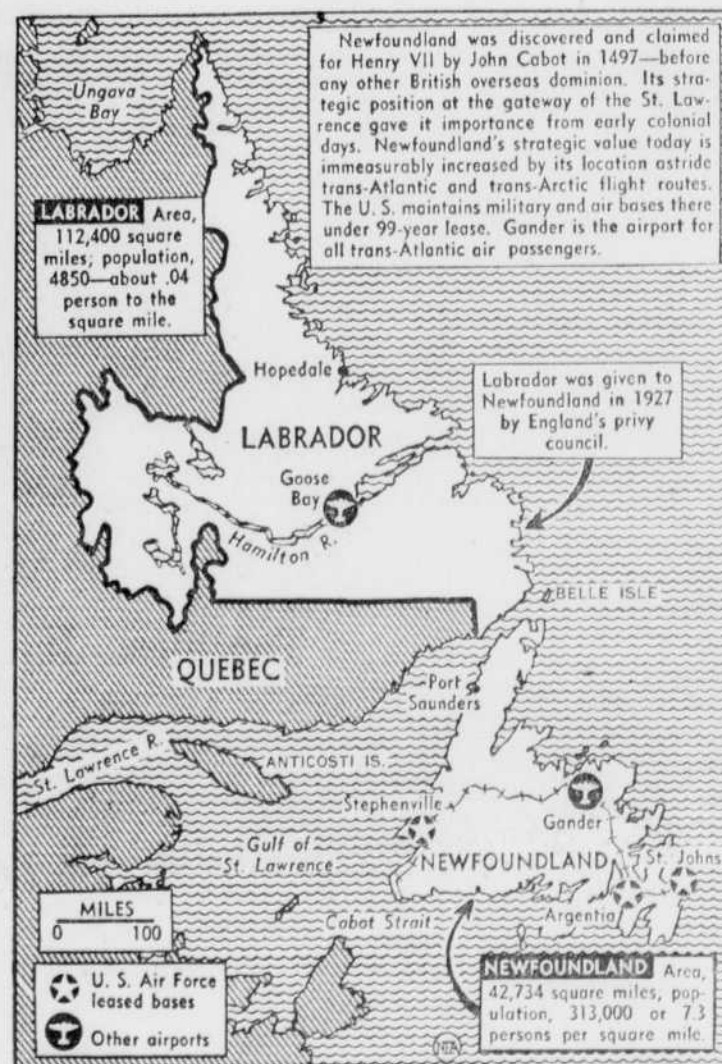

Down through the years fishing has remained the chief industry of Newfoundland. One of the oldest fishing settlements and still the largest inshore fishing centre is Bonaville. With a population of 4,000 this centre is located on the east coast. This is a general view of the community. It is here the first school on the island was established. (CP PHOTO)

Drying Cod

A familiar site at any fishing centre in Newfoundland is the cod fish being dried and "made" on the "flakes" or stagings. For more than four centuries cod from Grand Banks has been the island's prime export. In at least one area some experimenting has been done with artificial fish dryers but the bulk of fish is dried as shown here. (CP PHOTO)

LET'S LEARN MORE about NEWFOUNDLAND!

On March 31, Newfoundland's historic role as Britain's "senior colony" ends and the island, plus its continental possession, Labrador, becomes Canada's tenth province. As such, it will have full local self-government and its own legislature for local matters. As part of the Dominion, Newfoundland will now be represented in the Canadian Parliament at Ottawa by six senators and seven members of the House of Commons.

Now that Newfoundland has joined Canada, it behooves us, as Canadian citizens, to know more about our new province.

Mutual understanding between our peoples will do much to make this alliance of free peoples more than a mere "union on paper." Newfoundland, with her tremendous resources, was England's first colony, discovered by John Cabot in 1497. Newfoundland has a long and proud history as a member of the British Empire and will have full local self-government as Canada's tenth province.

TONY DEMERS TALLIES FIVE AS SAINTS WHITEWASH ROYALS 7-0

Paul Leclerc Turns In Wonderful Job Registering Second Shutout; Senators Here Sunday Afternoon

By LEN O'DONNELL
Sherbrooke Record Sports Editor

Montreal, April 1.—A well-oiled Sherbrooke hockey machine, sparked by Tony "Bullet Shot" Demers, who notched five goals, and Paul Leclerc, who turned in a wonderful job in the nets in blanking the Royals 7-0 for the second consecutive time this week, carried their way into the finals of Quebec Senior Hockey League against Ottawa Senators as they outplayed, outshot and outmaneuvered the highly-rated Montreal Royals here last night to cap the semi-final playoff in two straight games.

The Royals, who were rated 6-5 favorites previous to last night's tilt, were no match for the local squad, as they notched two goals in the opening frame, added one more in the middle session and finished up a good evening's work with four in the final stanza.

Tony Demers, the lad who possesses the bullet shot, returned to the Forum where he made his debut in professional hockey, and proved to the Montreal fans that he can still score goals as he ran wild and single handed beat the Royals as he tallied five goals on Gerry McNeill. The whole Sherbrooke club turned in a wonderful job and played real heads-up hockey to out smart the highly rated Montreal team. The Royals failed to cope with the fast travelling Saints, and their plays. It seemed that Little Gerry McNeill was at times left to his lone self to stop the Saints' heavy barrage as the locals kept driving in on him for the better part of the game.

Adj Cote and Marcel Fillion accounted for the other Sherbrooke tallies while the Royals were held at bay by Paul Leclerc and company. The rearguards gave the local net boy wonderful support and their hard bodychecks had a telling effect on the little Royal forwards. The colored boys were given special attention, but this failed to stop them as they were in time after time on McNeill's doorstep and only good work stopped them from scoring.

The opening frame had no sooner got underway when Bobby Fryday got the nod to the sin bin to start a continuous parade. Dugger McNeill broke from a Saints' ranging play and Leclerc was forced to step lively to save.

Fryday returned and Husky Ivan Irwin got the nod. He was joined by Fryday and Goupille for roughing. Irwin returned and Bill Heindl took his place but Dube, Irwin and Cote, with Leclerc, saved the day for the locals as the Royals failed to produce anything. When everybody had returned the Ponies moved into action, and things pepped up for a while. Crawford then got the nod for using his elbows.

DEMERS TALLIES
The big runs took over and Tony Demers rifled the first disc by Gerry McNeill when his hard shot caromed into the net off of Jimmy Orlando's leg on a power play.

Burnet
After a few more changes with the Ponies driving all out, Tony Demers came up with his second marker as he broke away and, rounding Ernie Laforce, drove the rubber by McNeill.

Malone and Irwin then got a double penalty for roughing each other. Fryday had a real chance, when he coasted in on Leclerc alone, but the agile net boy outguessed him. Bill Heindl then got the nod to the cooler as the bell sounded. The second period opened with Bill Heindl in the penalty box for the first few seconds. When he returned Tony Demers got away, forcing McNeill to come out of his nets to save. Georges Roy then took a high-sticking penalty and this was the sign for the Royals to jump to the attack but they failed to get any where as the boys held the fort until Roy returned.

Bobby Pepin was the next to visit the cooler for his second penalty of the year, when he tripped Dube. Demers completed his hat-trick when he drove the disc by McNeill, who had no chance on the bullet shot.

The parade to the box kept up with McIntyre and Lepine following each other to the box. Cote and his mates took over, when McIntyre returned, and Gilles Dube hit the goal post from close range. The colored line then moved into the limelight, but failed to connect. The Ponies then moved in, but they failed to do anything before the bell sounded for the end.

of the middle frame.
At the start of the final frame Ivan Irwin got the nod for using his elbows but Dube made things hot for the Royals as he was all over the ice and Carlin's squad couldn't get organized.

Demers Gets Number Four
Tony Demers, still on the rampage, came up with his fourth marker of the evening when he broke in on Gerry McNeill, after accepting a long pass from Gilles Dube, to sink the disc in the mesh. As on Demers' previous sallies into the Royals' territory McNeill had no chance whatsoever on the shot.

The Saints were really on the warpath and were running wild. The Royals seemed incapable of matching strides with the smooth running Sherbrooke team. The Ponies were right in, with Burnett forcing McNeill to his knees to save. Fillion then came close as the locals were riding high. Dugger McNeill came up with a solo but Paul Leclerc turned him aside at point blank range.

Adj Cote Comes Through
The next local player to notch a goal was Adj Cote when he broke out from his own zone, catching the complete Royal team flat-footed, and raved in on McNeill to score the fifth tally of the night. A few minutes later Tony Demers got his fifth goal when he broke into the clear after accepting a long pass from Georges Roy. The Saints were functioning like a well oiled machine and at this stage of the game it seemed to be a matter of just how many more they would tally before the end of the game.

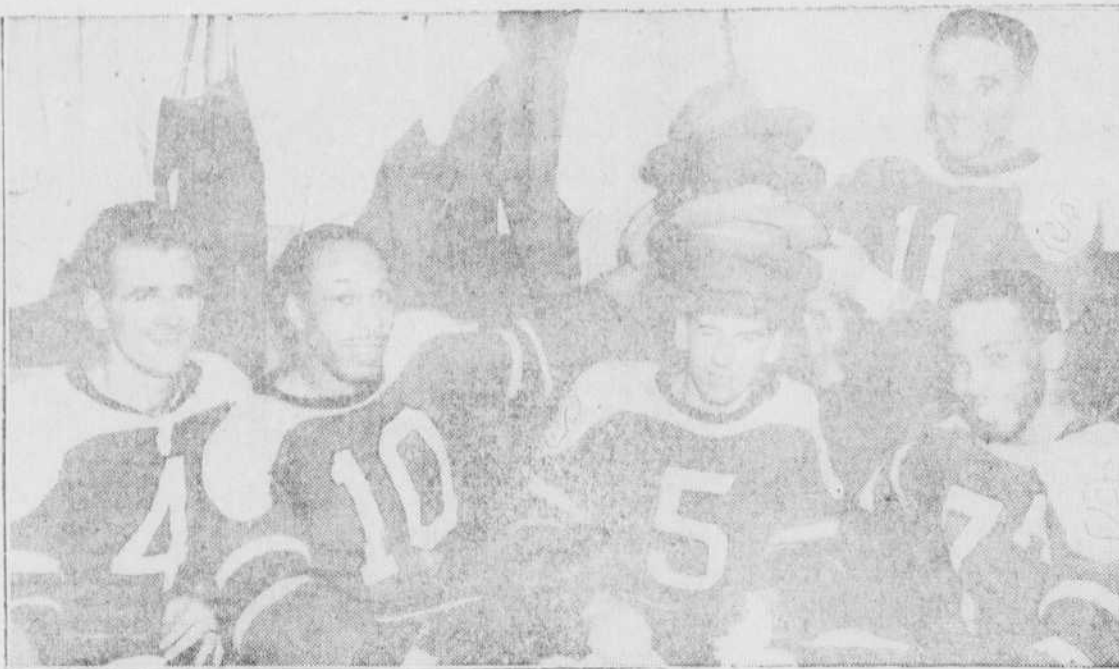

FILLION NOTCHES FINAL TALLY
Marcel Fillion, after being turned back on numerous occasions, finally hit the jack pot from close range after being set up by his mates. The Barry kid had a wonderful performance, and were repeatedly patted on McNeill's doorstep, and gave Frank Carlin's Golden Boy plenty of trouble.

Barry

Matters had cooled off a little, regarding penalties, as only one had been handed out in the first ten minutes, but the cooler parade commenced again. Joe Lepine got the nod to start matters. Red Goupille moved in and then his side-

Sherbrooke's Big Red Team Rolls On

The above pictures were taken last night in Montreal following the final game of the semi-finals when the Saints whitewashed the Royals 7-0 to take the series in two straight games. The top photo shows Coach Ivan Dube with his arms around Tony Demers, who tallied five goals, and Paul Leclerc, who held the Royals at bay for one hundred and twenty minutes. The expressions leave nothing in doubt about the boys' feelings regarding the result of the game. The next picture shows the boys decorating Demers with five hats to denote his scoring feat of the evening. Adj Cote, left, Ossie Carnegie, Tony Demers, and Herbie Carnegie. Toothless Irwin

Husky Ivan Irwin, the local's hard-working rearguard, is seen showing his mouth to Forest Keene, business manager, and Dr. A. N. Dupuis, president of the Sherbrooke team. Irwin received Pete Morin's stick in the mouth knocking out some teeth but this failed to dampen his spirit and he finished the game handing out some more bruising bodychecks to make up for his loss.

JACK STEWART SUES
ANDY O'BRIEN

Detroit, April 1.—(AP)—A $250,000 libel suit was filed in Wayne County Circuit Court today by a Detroit Red Wing hockey player, Jack Stewart, against Andy O'Brien, a newspaper columnist from Montreal.

Stewart charged that O'Brien, sports editor of the Montreal Standard, made false statements regarding the Detroit player's conduct in early games of the current Stanley-Cup series between the Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens.

Informed of Stewart's suit, O'Brien was quoted last night by the Detroit Free Press as saying: "I'll say this, the Detroit club isn't a piker. It does things in a big way."

Hershey Bears Move Into A.H.L. Finals

Hershey Bears last night jumped into the finals of the American Hockey League's Calder Cup playoffs, and now are waiting the outcome of the battle between divisional winners to see who their title foe will be.

The Bears, unbeaten in post-season play, completed a sweep through two lower series by humbling the defending champions, Cleveland Barons, 5-1.

This gave them two straight over the Barons—the same sort of hurry-out treatment they earlier had accorded Indianapolis.

Meanwhile, the "A" series between Providence, the Eastern winner, and St. Louis, the Western pace-setter, continued hot with indications it might go the full seven games.

Providence Reds were forced into 28½ minutes overtime last night to gain a 5-4 victory over the Flyers at Providence. The Reds now lead three games to two.

The series now shifts to St. Louis where the Flyers will try to get even Sunday night. A seventh game, if necessary, will be played at Providence.

Barrie Downs Porcupine For Third Win In Series

Timmins, Ont., April 1.—(AP)—Defeat, if and when it comes to Barrie Flyers, will probably look strange.

Last night Barrie turned in a 4-1 victory over Porcupine. Combines to take their 11th victory in almost six weeks. The win gave them a stranglehold, three games to none, on the best-of-seven series for the Ontario Junior Hockey Championship.

Next, and possibly final, game in the series will be played here Saturday.

Ben Hegan Heads For Home After Hard Pull

El Paso, Tex., April 1.—(AP)—Plucky little Ben Hegan was on a train today heading for home.

He'll be back on the links again some day, he says.

The National Golf pace-setter until an automobile accident last Feb. 2 laid him low, Hegan walked the length of a pullman car last night when he boarded the train here.

He is due to arrive late this afternoon in Fort Worth.

Red Wings Hold Whip Hand In Stanley Cup Semi-Finals As They Edged Out Canadiens 3-1 Last Night

Detroit, April 1.—(AP)—Harry Lumley, agile Detroit netminder, today was receiving congratulations from team-mates and fans for his stirring performance between the pipes last night when Detroit blasted Montreal Canadiens 3-1 to take a 3-2 lead in the National Hockey League best-of-seven semi-final playoffs.

The Detroit team, however, was unsure of the victory until the last four minutes of play. Jerry Couture and Gordon Howe notched the markers 32 seconds apart to break a 1-1 tie.

The victory put the Red Wings within a single game of a berth in the Stanley Cup finals against the defending champion Toronto Maple Leafs. The loss means Canadiens will have to win the next two games.

Lumley, repulsing attack after attack, was only fooled once. Rip Riepelle fired a backhand shot as he sprawled tumbling past the Detroit goal and caught Lumley by surprise for the first goal of the game.

Riepelle's score came just after the second period opened.

The slim one-point margin loomed bigger as the game progressed and the Montreal team held onto it until 5:10 of the third period when Sid Abel took Red Kelly's pass and ripped in an angle shot. Kelly had swept wide around the Montreal defence to issue the pass.

In the third session, Joe Carveth intercepted a pass and broke into the clear, but Lumley knocked it aside. Carveth had come in close and shot for the corner.

Detroit tucked the game away soon after with two unassisted quick goals.

After slipping between the Montreal defence team of Doug Harvey and Butch Bouchard, Couture slid a 10-foot shot along the ice that goalie Bill Durnan didn't even make a move to stop.

That was the straw that broke Montreal's back, but Howe wasn't satisfied. He intercepted a Montreal pass at the blue line, moved one stride in and let fly from 55 feet to score on a shot that had Durnan screened.

The teams move to Montreal Saturday night, where a Detroit victory will give them the series. If Montreal wins the teams will be back here for the deciding game Tuesday.

Ike Williams And Kid Gavilan Clash Tonight In "Rubber Bout"; Lil Arthur King In Semi-Finals

New York, April 1.—(AP)—Lightweight champion Ike Williams and Kid Gavilan, the slick fighting machine from Cuba, will clash tonight in a 10-round non-title "Rubber" bout in Madison Square Garden.

Ike is 5-to-8 favorite. It's a heavy betting affair.

A sell-out crowd of 18,000 is expected to contribute to a $60,000 gate for the boxing finale of the Garden's winter season.

Lil Arthur King of Toronto, the British Empire and Canadian lightweight champion, and Williams' stablemate, meets Johnny La Russo of the Bronx in the eight-round semi-final bout.

Williams, his right shoulder, fully cured of the injury which forced a postponement of match, figures to come in at 138 pounds. Gavilan has been aiming to hit 140. The Cuban flash outweighted the Trenton, N.J., negro champion in two previous bouts.

Hard-punching Ike won the first bout by unanimous decision, but Gavilan evened the count on a split decision.

The two fights were so close that Williams and Gavilan were only two rounds apart in the official tally for the 20 rounds. Williams received a total of 28 rounds, Gavilan 26 and six were marked even.

The winner will be in line for a possible outdoor title bout with welterweight champion Ray Robinson.

New York — Beppe Colasanti, 131, Italy, outpointed George LaFalco, 161½, New York (8).
Rochester, N.Y.—Ross Virgo, 148½, Rochester, outpointed Dave Andrews, 144, Boston (8).
