PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

Toronto, August 3.

The Council carried the vote of want of confidence last night, by 16 to 8.

To-day, Mr. Patton gave notice that he would, to-morrow, move a resolution to declare, in effect, that this House regrets the defeat of the late Administration, in the other House, on a motion which could not but be regarded as an insult to her Majesty.

Routine business having been transacted, the Council then, on the motion of Mr. Dessaulles, adjourned until to-morrow.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Toronto, Aug. 3.

After a debate [illegible] ...ment was carried, on the following division:—

YEAS—Alleyn, Archambault, Beaubien, Bellingham, Benjamin, Buchanan, Burton, J. Cameron, M. Cameron, Campbell, Carling, Cayley, Carter, Chapais, Cimon, Coutlee, Daly, Daoust, Desaulniers, Dionne, Dubord, Duchesne, Dunkl, Fellowes, Ferguson, Ferres, Fortier, Fourier, Gait, Gander, Gauvreau, Gowan, Harwood, Heath, Hogan, Labelle Lacoste, Lacroix, Laporte, LeBoutillier, Loranger, McDonell, A. A., Macdonell, J. Matheson, Mc-Donell, A. A., Macdonell, J. Ouimet, Panet, Pelletier, Poulin, Rose, R. W. Scott, Sicotte, Simard, Simpson, Sincennes, S. Smith, Starnes, Talbot, Tasse, Terrill, Tett, Turcotte, Webb and Whitney—71.

NAYS—Aikens, Bell, Biggar, Burwell, Christie, Clark, Cook, Dorland, Gould, Hebert, Holmes, Howland, Jobin, Laframboise, D. A. Macdonald, Mackenzie, Mattice, Merritt, Munro, Notman, Papineau, Patrick, Walker Powell, Ross, Rymall, Short, Somerville, Stirton, Waldbridge, White and Wright—31.

The main motion for a Writ for a new election in Montreal, as amended, was agreed to on a division.

To-day, an adjournment until to-morrow at 3 p.m., was asked on behalf of the new Ministry in consequence of the state of public affairs.

Mr. Macdonald stated that, in his belief, the House ought at once to accede to the request made on behalf of the Government.

There was no further discussion, and the motion was carried unanimously.

The Political Position.—The ex-Ministerialists have done what they threatened. They have, in the absence from the House of the men whom the representative of the sovereign has thought worthy to be his advisers, and of course without hearing them, declared that they have no confidence in them. Such a course proves how much sincerity there was in the pretensions of those men, who have for four years past been daily whining for fair play; for a fair trial; and against fiction;—how much they respect the Sovereign, of whom they forsooth have set themselves up as the protectors, in place of her legitimate representative, when they will not grant the ordinary delay to hear her counsellors before judgment. It shows how just have been our diatribes against the [illegible] ing for office of the late [illegible] they cannot endure [illegible] from the [illegible] g the modes of effecting the change from rough masses of organic and inorganic matter, to the beautiful automata, by which we and our merchandise are so rapidly transported from place to place. Nor is it tractable materials, which form the staples, which are worked up at Point St. Charles. Large weights of iron and other materials have to be dealt with, some in positions in which ductility is chiefly required, in others where intense hardness is the necessary quality. And when the cars and the locomotives are at last put together, in spite of their ponderousness, they have to be handled with as much ease as a watch in the hands of the repairer.

In some parts of the premises there are machines for planing the wood-work required chiefly for the cars; for sawing the squared frames of the tracks on which they run; for preparing the cabinet work of their windows and internal fittings. In other places, ranges of forges enable the operations of the smithy to be carried on by many hands at once; and from the ponderous crank axle to the smallest bolt required to be forged by our modern vulcans, all the necessary appliances are on hand.

The most beautiful part of the works, however, in our estimation, is that in which the machines for cutting metals are placed. Here, a piece of copper, brass or hardened iron, is pared like cheese, in some cases the shaving coming off the lathe in a long curled strip; in others, falling in small chips below the tool. Here a piece of boiler plate is punched into holes without any jar by the descent of a pin, whose motions are as gentle as they are irresistible; and here the same kind of material, brought out of a heated furnace, is placed upon a mould and doubled up into a fit form for any required purpose. The minute accuracy of the motion of every tool used, the freedom of its movements from any apparent violence, and yet the wonderful effect on the most uncompromising substances, suggest the idea of gigantic force [illegible] ...ring an idea of the extent of the means for performing work at Point St. Charles, is the fact that they have turned out two complete cars per day for some weeks together. Hitherto the Company has not made locomotives; but is about to commence that branch of construction immediately.

The repairing of the engines when once placed upon the track is a matter of the most constant and minute attention. The slightest defect, must, if possible, be discovered. The driver, after each trip, reports in writing whatever he has seen or suspected to be amiss, and whether he has noticed defects or not, the locomotive is placed in the repairing shop and thoroughly overhauled, and again reported in writing by the foreman of that department. This important functionary, on whose attention to his duties so many lives may depend, after every repair, runs the engine on a trial trip, in which the boilers and all other parts are tested. If some trifling accident reported by the driver is not deemed to require immediate attention, he enters in his report the fact that a repair has not been made, with the reason why he has deemed it proper to allow her to proceed without it.

The whole of the machinery for the construction and repairs of the rolling stock, and the rolling stock itself, is under the able superintendence of Mr. Mackenzie, whose post, it may well be beleived, involves many qualifications. He must see that the drawings on which the patterns are to be constructed are correct; must keep a vigilant watch over the men employed in the various branches, so that each workmanship shall be as solid and [illegible] as is requisite for the rough wo[illegible] through; and, finally, he mu[illegible] engines and cars do not [illegible] working order. THE MASSACRE AT DJIDDA.

Interesting Statement in the House of Lords.

On the 19th instant, in the House of Lords, Lord Stratford de Redcliffe rose and said: Before your Lordships proceed to the regular business of the day I wish to put a question or two to the noble Lord at the Head of the Foreign Department, whom I have the advantage of seeing in his place. The few sentences by which I propose to explain the object of my inquiries will occupy a very short time, and I feel confident that my noble friend will reply not only with his usual conciseness, but with his characteristic courtesy. The matter to which I think it right to call attention is the late atrocious and, to all appearance, unprovoked massacre of Christians at Djidda. [Hear, hear.] Judging from what has appeared on this subject in the public journals, the circumstances which accompanied the commission of the crime are better known than those from which it sprang, or those in which it terminated. There is no small reason to apprehend that the assault was premeditated, and no satisfactory reason for believing that the Turkish authorities were either active in protecting the victims or in punishing their assailants. At all events whether we look to the relentless fury of the fanatics, or the number and character of those who fell under their blows, the massacre perpetrated in Arabia is no less important than afflicting. [Hear, hear.] I cannot for a moment suppose that any remissness exhibited by the local Pasha, or his lieutenant, is attributable to the Turkish Government. No doubt, the Sultan and his Ministers were deeply and sincerely distressed when the horrible intelligence reached Constantinople, nor do I entertain the least apprehension of their hesitating to proclaim an immediate and complete satisfaction. But there is no denying that justice in Turkey is apt to move at a slow pace, and that whether the object be punishment or compensation, the promise given to a foreign representative is but too often unnecessarily delayed and inadequately fulfilled. [Hear, hear.] It may be urged in the present instance that her Majesty's Government have [illegible] ...ing an idea of the means for enforce, in concert, if necessary, with the French Government, that exemplary action which may produce a wholesome and lasting effect throughout the Ottoman Empire. [Hear, hear.] Considering the great interests which call for a continual progress in friendly communications and mutual good will between the nations of Christendom and the inhabitants of Turkey, we are bound to follow up the aid given in time of war to the Sultan by that encouragement to the repression of fanatical outbreaks, that we are [illegible] ...quented by pilgrims from all parts of the Mussulman world; these pilgrims are naturally among the most zealous and intolerant of the sons of Islam; they bring the news of each Mussulman region and the contests with the Christians which come within their respective experiences. The dweller in Delhi or Hyderabad tells of the great struggle against the English, and prophesies their approaching downfall; the Afghan and Persian relates the events of our wars with them after their own manner; the pilgrim from European Turkey tells of the insolence of Slavic and Greek Rayahs, and how the Western nations were forced to support the Sultan against his enemies. Even if, as individuals, they know the truth, yet as pious men in a holy place, and moreover, as travelers within an eager audience and none to contradict them, they are tempted to color, every event so as to excite the pride, the indignation, the zeal, or the jealousy of the population they come among. What wonder, then, if at any time the [illegible] Djidda mob should again slake its [illegible] blood of the Christian communi[illegible]

There is something [illegible] such a disp[illegible] made in [illegible] fanatic[illegible] rage[illegible] present. It is impossible, after having once appealed to the Sultan's Government to take the law into our own hands, unless we have proof that the Porte is acting with negligence or bad faith. If the Ottoman State is really independent, it must be treated with respect; if we recognize the Red Sea coast as within its dominions, we must not act as against the natives of an island in the Pacific. The Porte seems to be moving as fast as it can, and, having once called on Turkish authority to avenge us, we must wait until it be seen whether the new Pasha has the will and power to punish, or whether his appointment is a mere fraudulent evasion of a just demand. This is, in fact, the reasoning of Lord Malmesbury, and is sufficiently sound. But the points indicated by Lord Stratford are worthy of notice, and in his general view of the matter we are inclined to concur.

It seems undoubted that the outrage was the work of a population sunk in ignorance and barbarous self-conceit, cherishing the bitterest hatred of the few Christians with whom they are brought in contact, and full of the belief that the English and other European nations are in some way the vassals of their own chief, the Sultan. Strange as it may appear, there exist regions of the globe, at no great distance from Europe, and from the scenes of late events, situated, too, on the shores of a sea continually traversed by British vessels and visited by travelers who may dilate on the greatness of Western civilization, where so monstrous a perversion of history and politics can still prevail. Yet not only do multitudes on the Arabian coast fancy their own race superior to the infidels but they actually believe that we are so weak, so little regarded by the Sultan, that the most flagrant outrages against us may be enacted with impunity. We do not, indeed, mean to say that these reflections pass consciously and logically through the minds of the fanatical half-naked ruffians, who loll about in an Eastern town always ready for mischief; but roughly, and after their manner, they come to the conclusion that we may be injured, and that, though the Pasha allows a few of us to settle in the place for the sake of the money we bring, there is no chance of true believers being mulcted with for having slaughtered a few such dogs. It is with this dangerous and insolent spirit [illegible] ...ny is concerned. The [illegible]

English system—the Crown, as represented by a governor, and two chambers, one elected and the other ninated. That, in his opinion, was the best institution with which a colony could begi but in the case of New Caledonia there we peculiar and exceptional circumstances that could have rendered it the height of imprudet to establish free institutions at the outset The population of the colony would consist some time almost exclusively of gold diggers, the outpourings of California, and it is of the greatest importance that they shou be held in check by the strong hand of the perial Government, and that by the same mea peace should be preserved between them and the Indians. He objected, however, to th provision in the third clause, giving the Qen in Council power to establish a permane constitution in New Caledonia. He contend that the sanction of Parliament should be nec sary to the establishment of a permanen constitution in any colony.

Mr. Roebuck thought that a mistaken notion was entertained respecing the peculiar power of the Crown. The Crown had authority by charter to give what power it pleased with respect to Government, so will also the Crown, without the aid of any act of Parliament, could give any institutions it pleased to the colony. The present bill would expire in four years, and therefore the Colonial Secretary would be bound to provide for the expiration of the bill. It was probable that by that time New-Caledonia would contain a large population. In 1849 he proposed to frame a bill with the view of laying down general principles as a guidance in respect to colonial Government. That proposition was rejected by the House, but he thought that they would have done well to lay down some general principle beforehand. In the present bill there was nothing that might not be done without it, and he, therefore, thought that the house was spending time to no purpose in discussing it. The bill stated that certain institutions might be given to the colony, but he conceived that it would have been better to make it imperative that at the end of three years representative institutions should be given, so that nothing might be left to the Colonial Office. Not having done that, the bill did nothing. It would be much better to give the colony free institutio[illegible] than to leave a doubt as to when [illegible] them. NEW YORK MARKETS.

REVIEW OF THE NEW YORK MAKETS—Aug. 2.

CANDLES—Generally have been dull, and the sales light, at prices within our range.

COFFEE—There is a firm steady feeling in the market, and prices are supported. Sales 5407 bags Rio, per kilds, at 10½ cents; 650 do, 10@11; 386 Bahia, 9@9¾; 100 Java, 15; 1057 do to arrive, 15, (6 mos); 1130 Maracaibo, 11¼@12; 250 Triage Laguayra, 7½, 4 mos; 235 St Domingo, 9¾@9¾ cash; and 8 tcs, 12 bids and 342 bags Jamaica, on terms we did not learn. At Boston, 309 bags St. Domingo sold at 9½ cents, 6 mos.

FRUIT—We notice sales of 24 cases Canton Dry Ginger at $25, 6 mos; 2000 bxs bunch raisins, $2.37½@2.50; 500 do layer $3.25; 20,000 lbs and 225 bls currants 7@8c; 40 bls and 100 bxs shelled almonds 21@22; 100 bales hard shell 4½; 30 cases sardines, ½ bxs, 21; 4 mos; 1200 bags Brazil nuts, 100 cases Canton ginger, 25 cases Leghorn citron, on private terms; 10,000 Bahama pine apples, $7; and 10,000 do second cuttings, $4, cash. Late advices from the Ionian Isles state that the currant crop will be large; but of inferior quality. By auction 1720 bxs Palermo lemons sold at $2.25@2.85; and 300 do oranges $2.00@2.70; and 28 bales damaged Languedoc almonds, 12½@12½ cts, cash.

IRON—The price of Scotch pig being somewhat lower, there has been more doing; and we have to note sales of 500 ton at $23.25, 6 mos, from this, and $24, 6 mos, for lots out of yard. We hear of nothing doing in bars, except 100 tons Swedes, retail sizes, sold on private terms, and 120 do ditto at [illegible] ...ton; and extra qualities at $[illegible] 100, 6 mos. Russia sheet iron may be quoted 12@13 cents for heavy, and 13@14 for light numbers—latter scarce. We quote singles and doubles English sheet 3½@3¾ cents, and trebles 4@4¼, 6 mos.

LIVERPOOL, July 17.—Our metal market continues very quiet. It is expected that the reduction of 10s conceded by some of the leading makers in Staffordshire will bring out larger orders, and give confidence to buyers. Pig iron is neglected, and the prices remain almost stationary.

LEATHER—The demand for both hemlock and oak sole continues moderate, without change in prices. The receipts have been to a moderate extent, and the accumulating—prime middle and heavy weights and good damaged continues scarce and wanted. The demand for French calf skins, although not so large as last week, has been good—buyers are mostly from the west and skins of 60@70 lbs are selling at an improvement of 3@5 cents per lb, on previous notations; other weights are unchanged. We quote 30 lb, 90@95 cents; 40 lbs, 80@85, 50 lbs, 75@80; 60 lbs, 70@75; and 80 lbs, 65@70, 6 mos.

MOLASSES—Partakes of the activity that exists in the Sugar market, and with a good demand for home use, prices have further advanced 1@2 cents per gal, with sales of 80 hhds [illegible] ...Porto Rico at 31@33 cents, the higher rate for [illegible] ...; 200 hhds [illegible] ...the lower rate for sour; and 50 bbls New-Orleans, 4 mos. At Boston, says the Shipping List of Wednesday, the market is very firm, and prices rapidly rising—sales 300 hhds Cuba Muscovado, to arrive [illegible] ...29 cents; 100 sour Cuba, 27; and 20 bbls do, on private, Salem, 25.6 mos.

OILS—In Crude Whale, we have [illegible] ...and 300 bbls selected, in New-Bedford at 72@73 cents, cash, vate terms. The sales of refined prices, 85; 15 casks [illegible] ...much 309 bbls at 84@85 cents; 200 Marseilles $2.87½; [illegible] ...isdull and lower, with sales of [illegible] ...Olive has arrived, and 300 boxes[illegible] Red brought; sales of 100 bbls at [illegible] ...gallons City [illegible] Whale, 60@63; [illegible] ...Menton, 61 cash and 4 mos.; [illegible] ...our last, with sales of [illegible] ...$3, 4 mos; [illegible] ...and 50 bbls [illegible] ...about [illegible] ...without change [illegible] ...latter price for strictly [illegible] ...sperm, which is scarce [illegible] ...$2.87½@[illegible] ...lots at $2.82½@2.85; and 200 do

GOOD NEWS.

From the Boston Daily Mail, Feb. 9, 1846.

Ladies and gentlemen who have heretofore experienced trouble and inconvenience from diseases of the hair, caused either by nature or by the use of deleterious nostrums, may now clap their hands and jump for joy, for the days of their mourning are nearly over. William Bogle has invented, and not only invented, but perfected, an "Hyperion Fluid"—happy name—which will speedily put an end to all their woes. Ye, who cherish the crowning honors of the head, look out for this stream from the fountains of El Dorado. For sale by all Druggists. r DW 182

A CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA.

From the Hon. Solomon Foote, from Vermont.

Washington, D.C., June 1.

DR. GEO. B. GREEN,—Dear Sir: In your note of this morning, you ask "for an expression of my opinion in regard to your medicine, called Oxygenated Bitters." It affords me pleasure to state, that from the experience I have had, in curing a severe attack of Dyspepsia in my own family, and from the wonderful effects which it has produced in other and more severe cases, arising in families of Members of Congress with whom I am acquainted, I think it an invaluable medicine, and hope that such circulation will be given to it as will place it within the reach of all who are still living it that distressing malady.

Respectfully yours,

S. FOOTE.

Most everybody has heard of "Wood's Restorative." That the word "Restorative" in this case, is no misnomer, we have the testimony of individuals whose elevated position in the country, as well as their acknowledged honorable character as gentlemen, whatever they publicly assert in the papers is reliable. Several of these have personally, the hair preparation we are speaking of, and certify to its amazing effects in the most public manner possible. The certificates can be seen at the proprietor's store, 312 Broadway, New York, and once tried and properly appreciated, we have no doubt in saying they will impress convictions on the most sceptical mind. Wood's Hair Restorative is, doubtless, the best article of its every yet produced.

It does not dye, but gives life, health and activity to the decaying, falling and dead, reviving, as if by magic, that which was supposed to be irrecoverably lost. Heads nearly bald with others nearly white, are daily being changed to their pristine beauty, and faces covered with pimples are rendered as smooth as an infant's, and blushing as a rose, all by the use of Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative. For sale 114 Market Street, and by all druggists.—Chicago Times.

NEW LIGHT.

THE COLUMBIAN OIL produces the CHEAPEST LIGHT for general purposes of all materials hitherto in use. It is distilled from a peculiar kind of Coal—is not inflamable, but burns freely, giving a strong, steady and brilliant light, equal-to four or five candles, at a cos of one Copper per Hour.

After months of tedious experimenting, it has been brough to such perfection, that the Subscriber can recommend it with confidence. Numbers in his city, who have used it for some months, can vouch for the truth of these statements. The Lamps for burning it are Cheap, simple in construction and easily managed.

All interested are invited to a inspection of both the OIL and LAMPS, at the LAMP DEPOT, 161 St. Paul Street.
