Time to recruit federalists — Parizeau

By Daniel Sanger

HULL (CP) — It's time for the Parti Quebecois to become warm and friendly. Leader Jacques Parizeau told a gathering of party faithful Sunday, urging them to go out and recruit disenchanted federalists.

Appearing to heed a call from some disgruntled members, Parizeau said that with an epic constitutional battle looming, party militants can't afford to sit around in smoky rooms talking amongst themselves.

Rather they must embark on a crusade of conversion to sell their message to federalists who have lost hope.

"They are out there, they're out there all over," Parizeau said in a speech closing a two-day national council meeting.

"It's time not just to extend the hand but to go and get them where they live, in big cities and small villages. Go get them and meet with them, talk with them, bring them to the party."

It won't necessarily be easy, he suggested.

"It will require us to do things that we have not always been good at, show a little human warmth and understanding, a little less of what some of us are sometimes guilty of: arrogance."

Parizeau's call for a kinder, gentler party came just a day after one of his 30 caucus members spoke out against the PQ's "defeatist" attitude and the leadership's passive approach to selling its vision.

DECLINING SUPPORT

It also arrives at a time when the party is trying to come to grips with stalled support for its platform's main plank — Quebec sovereignty — and its own declining place in the polls.

Parizeau downplayed suggestions that his call for activists to go forth and convert was an acknowledgment that the party has been performing badly recently and said it is just a slightly altered strategy for changing times.

"There are lots of disappointed federalists out there who see the collapse of their dreams approaching. They're perfectly ripe to become sovereign-

Being green in Richmond

Townshippers Association members Francine Bieber and Lyla Beattie learned more than they ever wanted to know about selling T-shirts Saturday as they staffed one of several kiosks at Environment Day in Richmond. Turn the page for more.

Is deal still possible?

TORONTO (CP) — Having allowed their self-imposed Sunday deadline to slide by, the engineers behind the overhaul of the Constitution will now take a 10-day break to consider their options.

The decision is a good one because it avoids the pressure-cooker, deal-at-all-costs atmosphere that many recall from the Meech Lake negotiations that began in Ottawa almost exactly two years ago.

But with delay comes risk. Risk that agreements now in place could unravel, risk that momentum toward waking Canada from its constitutional nightmare could be lost.

"I think that's on all of our minds," said Ontario Premier Bob Rae.

In the absence of a complete deal on Saturday when talks that were supposed to complete a preliminary package concluded, there has been progress in a range of areas, notably natives issues, recognition of Quebec as a distinct society, and a new power-sharing deal between Ottawa and the provinces.

But Constitutional Affairs Minister Joe Clark, ministers from nine provinces and two territories plus native leaders have a lot to think about before they meet again June 9 in Ottawa.

Topping the agenda is Senate reform and debate of equal provincial representation versus some regional configuration.

Linked to this is Quebec's demand for a veto over future changes to federal institutions. Also unresolved are more division of powers questions and the proposed economic union.

CP News Analysis

By Gerry Arnold

Since Quebec is continuing its boycott of this process, negotiations have been frustrating as officials draft proposals they hope can achieve consensus in the room while appealing Quebec. Quebec says it won't return until there is a complete package to consider.

Clark has three options for Senate reform — one based on a virtually powerless model with equal representation from the provinces, the others with more powers and based on regional equality, or equitability.

It's no surprise that Alberta, leading a group of five provinces demanding provincial equality in the upper house, was not impressed by the offer. "It's an empty vessel that's being offered by the federal government," said Jim Horsman, the Alberta intergovernmental affairs minister.

But Clark has been adamant he won't support an equal Senate where a majority of six small provinces representing less than 17 per cent of the population could block the will of the Commons.

A meeting of first ministers may have to sort this issue out and Ottawa could turn up the heat up for a national referendum to get Triple-E advocates to reconsider their options.

As for what's already been achieved, the jury is still out.

Native leaders hailed an agreement Saturday to entrench in the Constitution a commitment by other governments to give broad and fair interpretation to native treaties.

"This is really an historic breakthrough," said Ovide Mercredi, leader of the Assembly of First Nations.

The agreement could lead to resolution of dozens of native land claims, without infringing on the property ownership of others, Mercredi suggested.

But the wildcard is that no one really knows how much land is involved and some provinces — especially from the West — may return to the table with a less enthusiastic endorsement once their lawyers spell things out.

The other major native deal last week was agreement that if provinces and native groups can't define self-government after three years of talks, the issue automatically goes to the courts.

Quebec has stated flatly that entrusting such an issue to the courts is not acceptable.

Time for anglophones to commit themselves to Quebec — Keaton

MONTREAL (CP) — Franco-phone Quebec is becoming more open to its English-speaking minority and anglophones should respond by changing their gloomy rhetoric, the president of Alliance Quebec said Sunday.

Robert Keaton, acclaimed Sunday to another term as president of the anglophone-rights lobby group, said he is encouraged by a recent shift in the mood in Quebec.

"There are openings where things were closed before," he told reporters outside the group's annual convention. "We haven't heard any anglobashing in the last while, none of this spoiled community bit."

As an example of the opening, he pointed to Education Minister Michel Pagé's commitment to implementing 23 of the 29 recommendations of a recent government task force on English education.

On Saturday, Pagé told convention delegates he will recommend the government change its language law to allow children of immigrants to attend English schools.

"Now the minister of education ... is ready to consider changing Bill 101. There appears to be a new consensus brewing," Keaton said in the text of his closing speech.

In return, anglophones should stop "gripping and complaining" and stress the positive aspects of living in Quebec, Keaton said.

"We have to start changing our rhetoric a little bit, instead of the gloomy side of things, (we should) say, 'Look, we're here to stay.'"

"Now is the time to commit ourselves to staying in Quebec, to fighting for our rights. Now is the time to tell our children and their children and our friends that Quebec is a good place to live and a good place to build. Let's build our future here in Quebec."

He expressed optimism that the current round of constitutional negotiations will end successfully.

In Hull, attending a two-day party national council, Parti Quebecois Leader Jacques Parizeau said his party will fight any attempt to broaden admission criteria to English schools.

Parizeau said that both the Liberals and the PQ agreed with most of the recommendations in the task force report.

But he said the proposal to broaden school admission criteria for children of anglophone immigrants is the one part of the report that his party could not condone.

Schoolbus inquest expanded

MONTREAL (CP) — Three ministers from Premier Robert Bourassa's cabinet will be called to testify at a coroner's inquest into the death of two children killed by school buses.

Marc-André Boulianne has subpoenaed the head of every school board in Quebec. In all 163 people are expected to testify at the inquest, which began in April and continues July 6 in Alymer, just outside Hull.

Boulianne wants Public Safety Minister Claude Ryan, Education Minister Michel Pagé and Transport Minister Sam Elkas to testify on school bus safety policies within their respective departments.

After the death of 4-year-old Christopher Charby in Cowansville last week Boulianne also said he would urge parents to keep their children out of schools come September if nothing is done to improve school bus safety.

In Quebec since 1986 22 children have died in accidents involving school buses. Boulianne has investigated eight of those deaths.

"I find it disgusting that our children are still dying under school buses when we know what the solutions are," he said.

Chrétien: There's still hope

QUEBEC (CP) — Liberal Leader Jean Chrétien said Sunday he's confident that the current constitutional debate will be brought to a successful conclusion.

"I am convinced that Canada will solve its problems in the coming weeks because it's in everyone's interest to resolve these problems," Chrétien told about 400 party faithful attending a $150-a-plate fundraiser.

Speaking to journalists afterward, Chrétien called on Alberta to be realistic and renounce its desire to have a Senate with equal representation from each province.

He said he didn't think the efficiency of the upper chamber would be improved under such a system.

Chrétien repeated comments made last week that a Senate made up of equal numbers of members from each province could be at the expense of the body's effectiveness.

"I hope that good sense will prevail," he said.

He also reiterated his preference for a national referendum on a constitutional deal when and if one is struck.

Chrétien said a resolution to the country's constitutional wrangling would not come too soon for Canadians who he said want politicians to address other matters.

"We need a result," he said. "The Canadian people are absolutely fed up with the Constitution. There is a fantastic fatigue in the nation and we want to discuss the real problems of the country."

He said that he felt that Canadians believed politicians were concentrating on the Constitution so they could duck handling the country's unemployment problems and finding ways to improve Canada's place among competitive countries.

Stanstead merchants slam highway detour on 55

By Dan Hawaleshka

STANSTEAD — It was supposed to be what the news business calls a "photo opportunity": Transport Minister Sam Elkas and Orford MNA Robert Benoit posing for the cameras while inaugurating construction of an underpass at the junction of Route 143 and Autoroute 55 in Stanstead.

It didn't turn out that way. Instead, the Quebec politicians and their entourage were greeted Friday by angry Stanstead merchants toting protest signs, complaining a detour caused by construction was hurting their business.

"We want an entrance and an exit so that during construction motorists don't have to detour eight miles," said Lynn Deguire, whose father owns Motel Imperial at the corner of the intersection.

CAN'T AFFORD LOSS
Stanstead general store co-owner Jacques Demers said the protestors favor the underpass, but the detour is keeping tourists and truckers away. In tough economic times, a business owner can't afford to lose customers during peak season, Demers said.

Benoit defended the traffic disruption by trying to turn the tables on protestors, saying that in the 1970s, area residents petitioned against the underpass and now the government was doing something about improving safety.

"You have to say things the way they are," said Benoit, raising his voice to match that of an upset gas station owner.

Elkas said he answered recent calls from residents to improve the area's safety.

"What could you possibly add to this solution to get the job done?" the transport minister asked.

A detour sign indicating a road into Stanstead for local traffic only discourages motorists from entering the area, Deguire said.

"We'll see what we can do," Elkas said when a reporter pointed out the concern.

A transport ministry statement issued after the confrontation made no mention of the incident.

Lynn Deguire voices her disapproval to Orford MNA Robert Benoit and Transport Minister Sam Elkas.

"Mr. Benoit and Mr. Elkas said they were happy to learn that work will probably be completed this year, and they added they will be relieved when this intersection becomes safe," the statement said. Coaticook-based Couillard Construction Inc. heads the $4.4 million project. Including land expropriation, the project is expected to total $6.5 million.

Part of the detour which Stanstead merchants say is killing business.

All for a good cause: Lennoxville volunteer firemen Terry Beattie, Wendell Beattie and Gerry McNab served up hotdogs and chicken wings Saturday and Sunday at the department's fifth annual garage sale. About $5000 was raised to help pay for a rescue truck. "We're just under halfway to our goal," said co-organizer Brent Sutton, 23. Co-organizer Les Beaulieu, 24, said area residents were to thank. "We can't raise the money without them," Beaulieu said. Among many contributors to the event's success were the Lady Firefighters Auxiliary and Champlain College, which donated 50 beds.

RECORD/DAN HAWALESHKA

Dollars: Tourism Minister André Vallérard was in Sherbrooke Friday to announce his department's $30,000 contribution to the city's tourism campaign. The money will go toward an advertising campaign geared toward encouraging Eastern Townshippers to buy and vacation close to home.

No jury for Whittier trial

COWANSVILLE — Kelly Whittier will stand trial before a judge alone December 27 on a charge of obstructing police during the course of an investigation.

The Cowansville man allegedly lied to police about his whereabouts on February 22, the night his girlfriend, 21-year-old Nathalie Champigny, disappeared.

Whittier will go to trial January 12 on a second charge, counselling someone to commit perjury, for allegedly asking a friend to provide him with an alibi on the night of Champigny's disappearance. Both offences are punishable by a maximum of two years.

Meanwhile police are continuing their search for Champigny, presumed dead, and her family has offered a reward for information leading to the discovery of her body.

SHERBROOKE (DH) — An environmental watchdog group for seven regional municipalities in the Eastern Townships announced its schedule for public hearings aimed at redefining its responsibilities Friday.

The Conseil régional de l'environnement de l'Estrie (CREE) said it plans to hold a meeting in each member MRC between June 15 and June 22.

"The objective is to put the new council to work in the fall," CREE president Louise Paquet said at a press conference in Sherbrooke.

CREE has issued 350 invitations to various interested organizations. Hearings are planned for Haut Saint-François June 15; Coaticook June 15; Sherbrooke, June 16; Memphremagog, June 17; Asbestos, June 18; Val Saint-François, June 18 and Granit, June 22.

Also up for discussion is the council's membership, which environmental groups criticize for being too heavily weighted in favor of municipal employees. Right now representatives from environmental groups make up a tiny minority on the CREE.

CREE has no power over municipalities other than to make suggestions on sound environmental practices.

Anyone who has not been invited to the public hearings and wishes to attend should call CREE offices at (819) 821-4357.

City wins silver prize for communications

SHERBROOKE — The Association of Municipal Communicators will present the city of Sherbrooke's communications department a Silver Quill award Tuesday for outstanding work.

The Sherbrooke public relations department earned the award for its information campaign last year on the city's new recycling program.

Sherbrooke residents "responded with enthusiasm to the city's call to protect the environment," a department statement said Friday.

The association hands out one Gold Quill award and four silver quills to municipalities each year.

Department representatives will accept the award in Quebec City Tuesday.

PARIZEAU:

But he admitted that the party has sometimes lost touch with the people and occasionally suffers from what he called "intellectual arrogance."

"It's sort of our fatal flaw, our sin, and I'm guilty of it from time to time. We've worked so much to put together our program for a sovereign Quebec that we have the tendency to just say, 'We know!'"

Parizeau's speech to 250 riding presidents and other PQ militants concluded a weekend meeting which doubled as a show of unity for the party.

Earlier in the day, a motion to "unanimously reiterate confidence in (Parizeau) and congratulate him for his tireless work and unconditional devotion" was not even voted on after it was greeted with a two-minute standing ovation.

The PQ leader also used the occasion to inspire his troops for what he said will be the mother of all constitutional battles.

"We've never worked as hard as we are going to in the coming months," he said.

"Some of us have been in this fight for years. Others are more recent arrivals. But all of us, old and new, must understand that it will be the most thrilling and extraordinary of all the battles we have fought."

And for the second day in a row, he pronounced the constitutional negotiations — which adjourned for 10 days on Saturday — as good as dead.

"The rest of Canada was ready to make some nice noises with respect to Quebec but they didn't have much of a margin of manoeuvre with respect to their own public opinion. So we have a very confused situation and gradually the impression is that anything that will come out over the next few days will be unacceptable to Quebec."

"I know it will unacceptable to Quebec."

Burglary suspect flees Capelton crash scene

By Dan Hawaleshka

ASCOT — Two Sherbrooke men suspected of burglarizing an Ascot home flipped their pickup truck in a sharp corner of Capelton Road on Saturday night.

"We got here and it was full of smoke," said witness André Gagné, who arrived at the scene seconds after the crash.

The 61-year-old driver of the green Datsun pickup truck was taken to hospital. He was released Sunday. Lennoxville-Ascot police are searching for a passenger who left the scene before police arrived.

"He said he didn't live far," Gagné said. "He asked for a lift."

The man, in his 30s, eventually got a ride with another motorist, said Gagné, who later spotted the same man at the corner of Queen and College streets in Lennoxville.

Lennoxville-Ascot police Cst. Nicole Lévesque said she was filling in a burglary report at an Ascot home on Route 143 when she received a call about the crash at 8:20 p.m.

Stereo equipment was scattered on the road when police arrived.

"We recognized some of the items," Lévesque said.

North Hatley volunteer firefighters arrived at the scene, then called Sherbrooke firefighters for help in freeing the trapped motorist. North Hatley is under contract with Sherbrooke for use of their hydraulic shears. In the meantime, someone called the Quebec Police Force, which called in the Lennoxville volunteer fire department. Lennoxville firemen were freeing the victims when the Sherbrooke department arrived.

Saturday's crash took place in front of the Eustis Christ Church. The road narrows quickly there and drops off into a sharp curve.

'DEADMAN'S CORNER'

Nearby resident Robert Harris has long lobbied local and provincial governments to fix the road.

"I want a follow-up on this," Harris said. "I want this road fixed."

In January 1991 he sent an 1188-name petition to several local and provincial politicians — including Transport Minister Sam Elkas — calling for road improvements in the area some residents call deadman's corner.

Harris has another name for it: "Call it the government's death point."

Construction on Capelton Road about three years ago straightened some curves and widened the road. But a section between Eustis Christ Church and Route 143 kept its narrow and twisting turns.

"This is the 69th accident in three years," said Harris, who has lived on Capelton Road for 32 years.

No one has died yet, he added, but Saturday's spectacular accident "is the worst one of any one."

A large crowd gathered at the scene.

Police believe much of the debris left after a crash on Capelton Road Saturday night was the fruits of a burglary nearby.

Three hurt as driver falls asleep

HUNTINGVILLE — A 72-year-old Sherbrooke man fell asleep behind the wheel of his car Sunday, causing a head-on collision on Route 143 near Macdonald Road south of Lennoxville.

The elderly man, who police declined to name, was taken to hospital with serious injuries after his Chrysler New Yorker slammed into a Pontiac Bonneville carrying a Sherbrooke couple in their early 50s. Both were hurt, the woman seriously. None of the injuries are life-threatening, Lennoxville-Ascot police Const. Alain Préfontaine said.

A blood test later showed no signs of alcohol impairment, said Préfontaine, adding the crash was caused by "fatigue".

Elizabeth Cooper and her 4-year-old daughter Ashley were in the car behind the one driven by the 72-year-old man when crash occurred shortly before 3 p.m.

Cooper said the man's car, heading toward Lennoxville, drifted onto the gravel shoulder once and half way into the other lane another time.

"I assumed he was looking to see if he could pass," Cooper said. Then the car drifted into the oncoming lane for the second and last time.

"He went all four wheels on the other side," she said. "I knew there was no way they were going to miss each other."

Traffic on Route 143 was blocked for about 45 minutes while Lennoxville volunteer firefighters freed victims using hydraulic shears.

Two die on highways

SHERBROOKE — Eastern Townships road accidents claimed two lives early Saturday.

Ghislain Roy, 17, of East Angus died when he lost control of the car he was driving in a curve on Route 112 near Paré Road in Weedon.

Roy was alone when he crashed around 4:20 a.m. Saturday, police said. No other cars were involved.

"The cause of the accident is probably speed," said Quebec Police Force Sgt. Yvon Rodrigue, that adding an investigation is under way.

In a second crash, Sawyerville resident Robert Lasemba, 43, died when he was thrown from his four-wheel drive truck near Cookshire.

The accident took place shortly before 6 a.m. on Route 214 near Route 108.

I never heard the word 'pollution' when I was young

RICHMOND (DH) — Talk about the sad state of our environment is often cluttered with scientific jargon which to many adds up to a bunch of meaningless numbers.

To find out just how bad things have gotten, you sometimes have to talk to those who have lived through better times.

"I never heard the word 'pollution' when I was young," said 73-year-old Melbourne resident Melvin Wentworth, who attended Environment Day in Richmond's Gouin Park Saturday.

While children played in the sun and adults bought composters, Wentworth remembered the days when the St. Francis River was clean and teeming with life.

"I used to catch fish out of there," Wentworth said. "I used to go swimming in there. Now you don't see anyone swim there."

The awareness-raising event was hosted by the Comité d'orientation pour la protection de l'environnement régional, a Richmond-based environmental group.

Participants browsed through booths filled with environmentally-friendly household products and books on organic gardening. Two composters and several cotton shopping bags were given away.

Music filled the air.

And then there was Roger "Rouge" Despatie, a juggler with a sense of humor who managed to coax crowd member Sylvie Allard into becoming his assistant.

Allard did well, losing her composure only briefly — to the crowd's delight.

Philippe St-Laurent, 10, from Richmond makes friends with two Romanoff lambs.

Richmond gardener busted

RICHMOND — Police seized 162 marijuana plants and arrested a 38-year-old Richmond man Friday morning.

The Quebec Police Force organized crime squad and Richmond police, armed with a search warrant, made the arrest after searching an apartment at 79 Main Street.

Police also found 141 grams of marijuana, QPF Sgt. Yvon Rodrigue said.

The suspect will be summoned to court in the coming weeks to be charged with trafficking.

Rodrigue could not say how big the plants were.

"Normally at this time of the year, they're ready to be planted outside," he said.

Time for the wounds to heal

Rarely has a mountain received such devoted attention.

Conservationists on the losing side of last week's court judgment, which upheld the recreational zoning designation of Pinnacle Mountain, have no reason to hang their heads.

This small but determined group has found itself at the bottom of the mountain looking up more than once in the last five years as they struggled to keep the Pinnacle from becoming yet another ski slope. In spite of set-backs — and there were many — each new challenge was met with renewed vigor drawn from some well of energy.

Conservationists eloquently pleaded their case before Frelighsburg municipal council, the Brome-Missisquoi regional municipality (MRC), the provincial farmland protection board (CPTAQ), Environment Quebec and premier Robert Bourassa himself. They formed alliances with conservationists in neighboring municipalities as well as leading environmentalists in Quebec, Canada and the United States. They launched massive media campaigns, and earned the support and respect of Quebec's largest farm group and various national and international associations.

At times, support for the cause came from unlikely sources. Well-known writers, academics and entertainers, injected with the group's contagious enthusiasm, joined the fight to conserve one of the last natural mountains in proximity to Montreal. Volumes of studies and documentation outlining reasons to protect this beautiful landmark were produced.

In her ruling, it's obvious that even Justice Hélène LeBel was affected by the passionate efforts of the group to save the Pinnacle. But her job was to determine the legality, not morality of zoning by-laws.

Although defeated in court, the group has provided a great public service by reminding those who decide such things to think twice before calling in the bulldozers. The great paradox is, now that the court has ruled the mountain can be exploited for recreational purposes, council plans to enact by-laws to restrict any development which might compromise the mountain's natural characteristics.

A new thinking seems to be emerging among decision-makers who now believe recreation and conservation need not be incompatible. There appears to be a recognition that it's easier to revise the definition of recreation than it is to revitalize a ravished mountain.

Finally, as in any battle, the struggle to save Pinnacle Mountain has not been without its casualties, notably a community divided. There are wounds to heal. Hopefully, the process can begin.

Canada at war...

50 Years Ago This Week
May 31-June 6, 1942

By The Canadian Press

War Front: — German aircraft launch a night raid on the British cathedral city of Canterbury just days after a combined British-Canadian air bombardment of the Ruhr Valley, Germany's industrial heart. Nine Royal Canadian Air Force squadrons took part in the Ruhr attack. The Canadian fliers, reporting light losses, tell reporters in Britain luck was on their side. One pilot — Flight Sgt. Norman Jeffries of Montreal — felt especially lucky. "I'm sure glad to be rid of that one," said Jeffries of Montreal after returning safely from his 13th mission over Germany.

Home Front: — The population of wartime Halifax had risen sharply — and the crime rate along with it. Police Chief Judson Conrad, reporting a 333 per cent rise in the number of crimes since the start of the war, blamed a combination of seamen and liquor. "The government sells it to them," said Conrad, "but where are they when they ... drink it."

In Ottawa, the federal government officially blesses Canadians' efforts to save gasoline by riding bicycles. Canadian manufacturers are to be allowed to make 150,000 bikes in 1942, up 50,000 from 1941.

Today in history

June 1, 1992

By The Canadian Press

Jesuit priest Charles Albanel set out from Lake Chicoutimi to explore northward to Hudson Bay 320 years ago today — in 1672. Sent by Jean Talon, the intendant of New France, to find evidence of French-speaking Europeans in the Hudson Bay area, he was probably the first European to reach Hudson Bay overland. He reached the mouth of the Rupert River on June 28 and claimed the territory for France.

Earth Summit to pit North vs South?

OTTAWA (CP) — It used to be the East against the West, but when Earth Summit opens in Rio de Janeiro on Wednesday, it may well be the North against the South.

Some 175 countries are expected to be represented at the June 3-14 conference, many by their heads of state.

The list of issues is daunting, ranging from population growth to western lifestyles.

But the central question is whether the rich North and the poor South can build a common alliance to save the planet.

As a confidential federal report put it last year, "East-West confrontation involving political and military ideologies is slowly being replaced by a North-South dialogue with the environment as the key."

Optimists and pessimists agree that the shape of the new world order will depend in good part on the process that is to be initiated at Rio.

Negotiations leading up to the summit have not come close to bridging the gap.

CP News Analysis

By Dennis Bueckert

The North talks about ozone depletion, climate change, the burning of tropical rainforests and the population explosion.

For the South, those problems are eclipsed by one overriding issue: poverty. It's estimated that 30,000 children in the Third World die annually from diseases associated with poverty, overcrowding and malnutrition.

POVERTY IS ENEMY

Earth Summit will be the first summit to consider the economy and the environment at the same time. The links are many and complex.

"Poverty may be the greatest single enemy of our environment," says Canadian author Warner Troyer in his book Preserving Our World.

"The poor and the hungry destroy their own environment and another fraction of the globe's capacity for survival in efforts to stay alive one more day or year."

If world leaders fail at Rio, "there will be more ecological catastrophes, more poverty, disease and death and more conflict," says Jim MacNeill of the Institute for Research on Public Policy.

"By the time voter awareness and outrage reach levels high enough to force recalcitrant governments to act, it could be too late for many people and nations."

Rich countries can't save the planet alone.

Without the Third World's involvement, rainforests will continue to burn, species will continue to disappear, population will continue to explode and emissions of greenhouse gases and ozone-depleting substances will continue to rise.

Can the Earth Summit succeed?

"It's a question of how you measure success," says veteran diplomat John Bell, who has led the Canadian delegation in preparatory negotiations. "A lot of people have such high expectations."

"There's this feeling that Rio is going to solve all the problems, because 100 of the world's leaders are there."

It won't, but Bell predicts it will set up a process that will become increasingly important in coming years.

"That is the key thing. The importance to me is not what happens in Rio, but what happens afterwards."

Major players have agendas of their own

By Dennis Bueckert

OTTAWA (CP) — Almost every country in the world will be represented at Earth Summit when it opens in Rio de Janeiro on Wednesday. Here is a summary of what is expected from the major players.

JAPAN

Japan could emerge as a leader at Rio, despite its spotty record on whaling and deforestation in Asia.

The Japanese are said to be a decade ahead of the rest of the world in technologies that are clean and energy-efficient. Initiatives at Rio could greatly increase the market for such technologies.

Equally important is the fact Japan is casting about for a world role proportionate to its economic stature.

Many expect Japanese Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa to announce a big financial contribution to an environmental fund. Former prime minister Noburu Takeshita has suggested $13 billion.

EUROPE

The European Community is a strong proponent of global environmental reform with Holland, Denmark and Germany in the vanguard.

But there is no common front.

France and Britain are less green and southern EC members like Spain and Greece are considered somewhat "brown."

EC Environment Commissioner Carlo Ripa di Meana has indicated he won't go to Rio because the EC position is so weak.

France and Germany were the original proponents of a world environmental fund known as the Global Environmental Facility (GEF) set up about a year ago under the World Bank.

The fund is worth about $1.3 billion and German Chancellor Helmut Kohl has proposed tripling it.

UNITED STATES

President George Bush risks being the bad boy at Rio. He threatened not to attend unless the global-warming treaty was watered down. He got his way.

The Americans have also been cool towards the biodiversity treaty, which aims to save species from extinction while setting rules for their exploitation.

For example, a pharmaceutical company seeking plant compounds in a tropical jungle would need permission from the country in question. If it found a valuable drug, it would have to share benefits with that country.

During final negotiations in mid-May, the U.S. delegation indicated Bush might not sign the biodiversity treaty, which could hamper its biotechnology industry.

Washington has announced $50 million for a global environmental fund — but that's considered a pittance by most.

Paradoxically, much of the leading environmental research is done in the United States, and many of the most effective environmental groups are based there.

G-77

The G-77 represents developing countries. It originally had 77 members but now has 128, including China, India and Brazil.

Many G-77 countries see the western environmental agenda as part of a new "ecological imperialism."

As Egyptian scientist Mostafa Tolba put it, industrial countries "are more interested in making the Third World a museum of natural history than in feeding its people."

Despite such reservations, Tolba is a leading force at Rio due to his role as head of the UN Environment Program.

The top priority for G-77 members is the eradication of poverty. They see attempts to protect rainforests as an infringement on their sovereignty, and they blame industrial peers for creating global environmental problems.

They are deeply suspicious of the Global Environmental Facility because it is administered by the World Bank, which they see as an instrument of First World imperialism. They want a fund administered separately.

They want western technology, more financial assistance, greater access to western markets, and more say in world institutions.

CANADA

Skeptics say Canada is not a major player but has established a leadership role in some areas. Its delegation has been one of the largest in preparatory negotiations and has helped poorer countries prepare their positions.

Conference organizer Maurice Strong is a Canadian, and he has won almost universal admiration for his work.

Prime Minister Brian Mulroney will try to draw attention to the problem of overfishing on the Grand Banks, an issue that pits Canada against EC countries Spain and Portugal.

If rumors that Mulroney wants a job as head of the Organization of American States are true, he will likely work hard to build bridges between the First World and poor Latin American countries.

A big question is how much money Canada will put on the table. Jim MacNeill, the respected environmentalist who wrote much of the Brundtland Report, says it should be at least $100 million for the first year of post-Rio programs.

Anything less would leave Canada without credibility, says MacNeill. The National Round Table on the Environment, created by Mulroney as an advisory agency, endorses the $100-million figure.

EASTERN EUROPE

The countries of the former East Bloc have been largely sidelined because of their internal problems. As "economies in transition," they have much in common with the Third World. They are strong supporters of the Rio process in principle, and want western technology and financial help to clean up pollution in their territories.

Canadians honored at Normandy memorial

CAEN, France (CP) — The 100,000 Canadian soldiers who died in Europe during the first and second world wars are being honored in an exhibition which opened Saturday at the Caen Memorial peace museum in Normandy.

The Canadians to Europe's Rescue, marking the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Vimy Ridge in 1917, and the disastrous Dieppe Raid in 1942, was opened by Defence Minister Marcel Masse in a special ceremony at the museum.

"This exhibit is dedicated to the renewal of the historic ties between Canada and France in the framework of the new Europe which has, at last, left the quarrels of the Second World War behind," he said.

"However the exhibition and this museum are a reminder that we must remain vigilant now in the new world order, where regional conflicts are multiplying."

The half-million-dollar exhibition of photos, newsreel footage, newspaper clippings and artifacts traces Canadian participation at Vimy Ridge, the raid on Dieppe, the landing in Sicily, Italy, in July 1943 and the subsequent 20-month Italian campaign, as well as the landing on Juno beach in Normandy in June 1944.

One of the special guests at the opening was Bill Stewart, 78, a correspondent with The Canadian Press during the Second World War and the first Canadian newspaperman to land on the beaches of Normandy on D-Day.

Stewart, from Riviere-du-Loup, Que., arrived on the beach from HMS Hilary with the headquarters of the Seventh Canadian Infantry Brigade, shortly after the first troops had attacked and moved on, successfully pushing back the German army.

"There was this spectacle before us," he recalled Saturday.

"It was an incredible military machine, with hundreds of boats. The wounded lay on the beach, shivering from shock, others were dead."

"I saw a line of soldiers from Winnipeg, lying there in positions of arrested action," he said.

"One was doubled over a piece of barbed wire, another was lying there, with his helmet next to him where it had rolled off. It was all like some kind of a cinema shot."

After wandering the beach, Stewart dug a trench for himself in the sand, set up his waterproof typewriter and began sending home accounts of what he was seeing.

What he remembers most today, is how impressed he was by the calibre of the Canadian soldiers, and their cheerfulness despite the hardships they were facing.

"I wasn't a soldier, I was a reporter," he said.

"And the courage those young volunteers had, the dignity of their actions was really something quite extraordinary."

Caen Mayor Jean-Marie Girault expressed his respect at the exhibition opening for the young Canadians who lost their lives in the liberation of Europe.

"They were just kids, volunteers, but they knew why they were there. They knew that freedom and human rights were worth the risk of losing their lives."

"And it's thanks to them we are here today, as free people," he said during the opening ceremonies.

"We hold on to the memory of these young people. In the cemetery their silence sends us a message about peace and freedom."

Canadian beef tough sell in Japan

CALGARY (CP) — In the hopes of targeting Japanese tastebuds, the Canadian beef industry has evoked images of cattle grazing on gently rolling rangeland under clear blue skies.

But less than two years into the campaign, a major importer of Canadian beef has declared defeat at the hands of two keen rivals — Australia and the United States.

Mitsubishi Corp. is one of Japan's largest and well-known companies. But Takatoshi Miyamoto, deputy general manager of its meat and livestock department, said the competition over beef imports is too tough.

"It's too hard to continue," Miyamoto said in an interview with the Calgary Herald in Tokyo. Miyamoto said almost all the 340,000 tonnes of beef imported by Japan last year came from the U.S. and Australia. Only 4,400 tonnes originated in Canada.

Mitsubishi became convinced in 1990 that it could carve out a market in Japan for custom-fed Canadian beef. The Tokyo conglomerate, whose assets includes a 15 per cent stake in the Lakeside Farm Industries Ltd., meat-packing plant about 100 kilometres east of Calgary, began importing about 2,000 head of Canadian cattle annually.

But it was forced to go up against U.S. and Australian producers who, taking a page from Japan's manual of aggressive trade tactics, are sacrificing profits to secure a bigger share of the market.

They are pricing their beef so low that Miyamoto said Mitsubishi was losing about $250 on each custom-fed butchered cow it brought into Japan.

"It's not feasible to continue," he said, explaining why his firm stopped importing Canadian beef in late February.

Mitsubishi's Takeshi Nomaguchi said the biggest factor working against more Canadian sales is consumers' familiarity with U.S. and Australian beef.

Canada's meat-grading system was also a problem, in that it differed from the one used in Japan and the U.S., but that changed last month.

Canada is still exporting beef to Japan from firms such as Premier Meats Ltd. of Calgary, said Dennis Laycraft, general manager of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association. But he said most exports are aimed at Japanese restaurants and hotels, rather than the retail stores that Mitsubishi went after.

"The retail market in Japan is really tough," Laycraft said. "It means going head-to-head with the U.S. and Australia, and hardly anyone is doing that."

Ted Haney, director of Canadian operations for the Calgary-based Canada Beef Export Federation, said the 340,000 tonnes exported to Japan last year represented a 12 per cent increase from the year before.

"We're really quite encouraged," Haney said.

Steinberg's deal nears completion

MONTREAL (CP) — The sale of the Steinberg supermarket chain to Provigo Inc. and Metro-Richelieu Inc. cleared another hurdle on the weekend as lending institutions that had financed Steinberg's approved the $275-million deal.

The Caisse de depot — Quebec's pension fund — the Quebec industrial development society and Steinberg's banking syndicate accepted late Saturday the joint offer made May 19 that divides the 107-store empire, selling 59 to Provigo and the remaining 48 to Metro-Richelieu.

Although the directors of the three supermarket chains jointly cut the deal, the banks and financiers, which have $200 million tied up in Steinberg's, had to approve the accord.

Metro-Richelieu and Provigo will pay about $275 million to Steinberg parent Socanav Inc., a shipping and school-bus concern controlled by entrepreneur Michel Gaucher.

Provigo will immediately sell 24 of its newly acquired stores for about $65 million to Hudon and Deaudelin, a unit of Toronto-based Oshawa Group Ltd., which owns IGA stores.

The Caisse, which sunk $90 million into Steinberg's, threatened to veto the sale last Monday if too many jobs were to be lost from the transaction. But on Thursday, the two buyers agreed to limit job losses to 800, out of 9,100 employees on payroll.

The 800 employees to be laid off will come under a $15-million compensation package paid by Provigo and Metro-Richelieu. That comes to an average of $18,750 for each laid-off worker.

The federal Bureau of Competition still must approve the deal.

Women need access to skilled trades

By Eoin Kenny
OTTAWA (CP) — Pride fairly sparkles in Andrea Kupplhuber's voice as she tells of helping to shift a pair of 2½-tonne electrical generators across a construction site floor.

"There's none of the work I can't do," says Kupplhuber, a second-year electrician's apprentice, describing life in a male-dominated construction trade where she's learning to install conduits, wiring, fixtures and electrical motors.

"There were three of us moving the generators and I was just as capable as a guy that weighs 250 pounds."

Kupplhuber said there were far more threats to her self-esteem — including sexual harassment — during a previous apprenticeship as a cook in a private club in Calgary. On her Ottawa job site, she puts up with no more guff than any other apprentice.

What's harder for her to stomach is the ingrained attitudes of parents, teachers and women which she blames for the low numbers of female apprentices in the non-traditional areas of construction and technical trades.

A recent visit to a Grade 8 career day left her saddened and feeling "the education system is really letting down the girls."

"None of the girls was interested (in a non-traditional career)."

TAKE SHOP
She said girls should be required to take shop classes in high school "at least for one semester to see what it's like."

"Girls have to break down the barriers in their own heads. Moms and dads believe in equality but they still don't teach their kids that. A lot of teachers are still very set in their ways."

Of 741,000 people who listed their occupation as a construction tradesman in Canada in 1990, only 17,000 were women. That's up from 8,500 in 1980.

In January 1992, there were nearly 57,000 active apprentices in Ontario. Just 1,661 of those were women in skilled trades other than cooking and hairdressing.

It takes a lot of perseverance for women to overcome barriers to employment in skilled trades, says Ruth Charron, coordinator of the Women's Access to Apprenticeship program at Algonquin College in Ottawa.

"They have to be very sure of what they want. The women that we get usually always wanted to do the career they end up selecting. They were just never allowed the opportunity in high school. A lot of the barriers are systemic — in the way employers hire, in the way unions hire."

But that's changing. Charron says there has been a 65 per cent increase in the number of construction trades apprentices since the Ontario-wide project was founded in 1989.

The program involves 20 weeks of pre-apprentice training in such areas as plumbing, sheet-metal working, carpentry and auto trades. Kupplhuber is one of the more than 60 registered apprentices working in Ottawa who have taken the program.

"It just gives them enough theory to make employers more interested so the they can compete fairly for apprenticeship opportunities. They have time to catch up to the traditional applicants who are generally white males," Charron said.

The number of women in skilled trades will have to rise. By the year 2000, it's estimated 80 per cent of entrants to the workforce will be women, visible minorities, natives or the disabled.

"You're not going to be able to hire 18-year-old males anymore straight out of high school. The competition is going to be too fierce."

John DeVries, director of human resources for the Canadian Construction Association, says those shortages are already being felt.

DeVries wants society to place a greater emphasis on skilled trades training — for males and females.

"We're already having trouble attracting even the young white males."

New bulb glows 20 years

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A new type of light bulb that developers say uses a fraction of the energy of traditional varieties and can last up to 20 years, makes its debut today.

The new bulb, hailed by some as the biggest improvement in light bulbs since Thomas Edison invented them in 1879, was to be unveiled at the Edison Electric Institute's annual meeting.

The lamps use a magnetic coil that generates a radio signal, which mixes with the same gas used in conventional fluorescent lamps. A plasma is formed, which makes a phosphorus coating on the inside of the glass glow.

But skeptics point to the so-called E-lamp's high cost and use of radio waves as potential drawbacks.

The bulbs, which don't have filaments, can fit most sockets, generate up to 150 watts of power and last 10 to 20 years, developers said. They are scheduled to be sold early next year for $10 US to $20 each.

The invention uses one-fourth of the energy of incandescent bulbs because it produces less heat. It also is billed as a money saver because consumers would have to buy fewer bulbs.

"We feel this can be as significant an invention as the CD or the fax machine or the cellular telephone was in the 1980s," said Pierre Villere, president of co-developer Intersource Technologies of California.

Observers in the energy industry said the announcement is a significant one, but some expressed concern about the cost and the possibility that the bulbs could interfere with reception of radio broadcasts.

Intersource, started in 1989, said the bulb lasts from 15,000 hours to 20,000 hours. The typical incandescent bulb lasts from 750 to 1,500 hours.

Intersource plans to market a bulb for 75-watt flood lamps in stores, offices and factories, then bulbs for home use later in 1993. Negotiations for production are under way.

Catherine and Wilder Hatch celebrate 40th Wedding anniversary 92nd birthday celebrated

FITCH BAY — Ruby red and white garlands, balloons and wedding bells were used to decorate the Canon Gustin Hall here for the 40th wedding anniversary of Wilder and Catherine Hatch of Tomifobia. The couple were evening dinner guests of his brother George and Ivy Hatch at King Chow in Rock Forest. The party had been arranged by the couple's family as a surprise.

Entering the hall everyone started singing, "For They are Jolly Good Fellows", and applause. A corsage of red roses was pinned on Catherine's dress by son-in-law Norman Kerwin, with a rose bud boutonniere to Wilder by his daughter-in-law Micheline Hatch.

Corsages of white roses were presented to the bridesmaid of 1952, Joyce (Hatch) Probert, and to the flower girl, Bonnie Stuart, also a boutonniere to John Stuart who had been the best man at the wedding. The receiving line of these five people was formed and the couple were congratulated and wished many more happy and healthy years together.

After being seated at a table, Gordon Stuart, the MC, spoke a gracious welcome to all who had come to this celebration and made a few comments relative to the past 40 years.

Flower presentations were made, roses from the children and carnations from the grandchildren, they were: David, his wife Micheline, and children, Melissa, Jessico and Scott; Judy and husband Norman Kerwin, Trevor, Brian and Mark; Daughter Brenda and her friend Ron; Stuart and wife Angela, Megan, Greg and Monica; Cindy and husband Dan Bennett, and 8-months old son, Stephen; Shelly and husband Willie Brus, Ashley and week-old baby, Billy, Jr.; Daughter Pamela, and son Christopher.

The flowers placed in vases flanked the beautiful triple tier anniversary cake, made and decorated by a friend of the family. It was iced in white with shells, ruby red roses and green leaves with pillars and topped with the numeral "40" nestled in tulle. The table was covered with a white lace cover over ruby red. All the tables had ruby red candles in glass holders. Later in the evening the cake was cut by the couple and served.

Gordon spoke the Grace and Prayer of thanksgiving, then proposed a toast to Wilder and Catherine. A buffet supper was served in the downstairs hall.

Live music was played for dancing by Brian Phaneuf and his band, that kept Wilder and Catherine "on the floor" most of the time.

A ruby red wishing well containing many congratulatory cards and currency was presented to them by his elder sister, Ruth (Hatch) Putney; other gifts from family and friends all prettily wrapped and ribboned were presented by her brother John and sister-in-law Vivian Stuart.

Then came the presentation of gifts by their children, two by two's, the first three were fun things but the last by Judy and David were Air Canada flight tickets for a second honeymoon to Vancouver, B.C., and Alberta. The trip will be in August.

Wilder spoke a "thank-you" to their kids, and their family, and the many who had come to the party and for the gifts. He reminisced about the 40 happy, busy years they have lived at Maple Hill farm; Catherine added her remarks of appreciation.

The evening continued with dancing and conversation for family and friends who had come from points of Ontario and Quebec, and Boundary Villages.

"As the couple said, "It was a night to remember".

Wilder and Catherine were united in marriage on June 7, 1952, the ceremony took place in Beebe. Their married life has been lived on their farm in Tomifobia where they raised their eight children.

Enlarged photos in (paper) carnation frames of the 1952 wedding were hung on the walls.

Ethel White, Inverness, quietly celebrated her 92nd birthday on May 6th at home with family members. Mid-morning, granddaughter Debra Stafford, Ayer's Cliff arrived and was accompanied by Mildred and Gerald Derusha (daughter and son-in-law), Beebe, and Vic. White (son), Tomifobia. Ethel, all smiles, greeted everyone and after hugs and birthday wishes, she enjoyed having read to her the many lovely cards she received from family and friends from afar.

A delicious noon meal was enjoyed being brought by the above family members, which included a lovely birthday cake inscribed "Happy Birthday Mother", a large basket of fruit and cut spring flowers. Daughter Winnifred Trepanier arrived with more goodies to join the family meal.

Following, pictures were taken which included four generations present, those being Ethel, her eldest son Alger who is with Mother at the home farm, his daughter Ciny Martineau (granddaughter) and her three children Steve, Michelle and Stacy (great-grandchildren). The latter group arrived in time to sing along in the birthday song and watch Grammie White blow out the candles. Phone calls and flowers were received from other children and grandchildren unable to attend. Following the initial cut by Mother, cake, ice cream and tea was served and enjoyed by all present.

Daughter Verna and Rejean Chainey Pontbriand visited later and youngest son Winston, wife Joan and daughter Kim of Thetford Mines were evening guests. Another son Sidney of Ottawa enjoying a holiday out of the country, had visited previously. Canon Harold Brazel, Thetford Mines, visited May 5th bringing a special gift of food and at this time Mother received Communion. Mother is recovering from a stroke and is able to move comfortably around her home with the help of a walker. She also received chocolates and currency of which she expressed her appreciation to all who remembered her on this day. "God Bless you all", were her words.

Five Generations

Healthy, normal activity

Dear Ann: Thank you for that terrific response to "Zero Self-Esteem." You have done more good than you will ever know. It would be impossible to count the millions of adults who have suffered a lifetime of shame because their religious leaders made them feel guilty about the normal act of self-discovery. Stand by your guns on this issue. A lot of people need your advocacy. -- NEW YORK MOM

From San Diego: I'm a Navy wife who knows only too well what it is to be separated for long periods of time from a loving husband. Your advice to "satisfy yourself" was perfect. How wonderful that you had the nerve to print it.

Seattle: Bravo! You are sure to get a ton of mail from the Bible Belt denouncing your advice to the woman whose husband has not approached her sexually for two years. Ignore them, please. Millions of others will applaud your courage. These days when there is so much sexually transmitted disease, especially AIDS, it's the ideal solution. I could not respect you more.

Denver: I'm a 43-year-old man and have not had sex with my wife for six years. Since 1982, she has had three miscarriages and a hysterectomy. Sex, to her, is a burden and makes her feel inadequate. "Mary" is a marvelous person and I love her dearly. We have a fine relationship and get along beautifully. I would never look for a sex partner outside of marriage and she has told me that counseling is out. So, the answer for me is self-gratification. I'm sure it's the answer for millions of other males, even though they would never admit it.

Fort Dodge, Iowa: "The Mayo Clinic Family Health Book" (1990) backs you all the way. Here's the passage: "Masturbation is normal and healthy. It is a way to release sexual tension, give yourself pleasure, savor sexual fantasies and curb impulses to engage in sexual activity that may not be appropriate."

Newport Women's Club meeting

NEWPORT — A good number of members and guests of the Newport Women's Club gathered at the Heermansmith Farm in Coventry, Vt. for a luncheon and meeting.

Helena Loux, the president welcomed the assembly then all recited the Mary Stewart Women's Creed.

The president spoke relative to the Vermont Federation Women's Club held on May 7 and 8 in Rutland pertaining to resolutions and so forth.

Isabel Newell, chairlady of the nominations committee presented the second hearing of the slate. This was approved by all members who will take office at the June meeting.

For the past number of years this club has raised funds by having a House Tour with peoples in the North East area opening their homes.

Each in the past has been very successful, both socially and financially.

This year it will take place on July 15 in the Jay-Troy-North Troy communities. The hours will be as usual from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. with refreshments at one of these places.

Members signed their volunteer hours to serve as hostesses at six or possibly seven homes that will be open to visitors. Final plans to be made on June 10 when a luncheon meeting will take place at the Fisherman's Platter.

William Farrell was guest speaker. Bill is a retired person, greatly interested in helping people. His theme was "You and Some Future Concerns".

He said, "I have come here to ask for volunteers in the Guardian of Life program".

What he needs are people willing to volunteer time to spend with people in need, young people and adults who are in trouble. The only time anyone is paid is if they must travel a distance to a court hearing, or some similar need. Bill told of some of the work he and others are doing for "people in trouble". His talk, although brief was very meaningful and several questions were asked.

Lois Noon was also a speaker. She spoke about her rugs and workshop, and displayed a few of her beautiful creations and how she creates her patterns, some from quilt patterns.

Both speakers were thanked for their interesting and informative talk.

Women's Institute holds meet

ASCOT—The May W.I. meeting was held in the Sandhill Church hall with 15 ladies from Bury and Bookbury W.I. who were invited guests.

The President, Marion Annesley, welcomed members and guests and asked them to sing O Canada and salute the Flag, repeat the Oath of Citizenship and the Collect. She then asked the visitors to stand and introduce themselves. The Roll Call was answered by 20 members was — Tell of something you've always wanted to grow. Motto — Life is like a garden, it bears the fruit we sow. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Orma Kinglsey and approved as read. Hilda Little read the Treasurer's report which showed a good balance.

A poem, "The Month of May", was read by Rita Nugent. Orma read a letter on legal information. Energy saving tips — ask for Hydro Quebec brochure. Smoke detectors and seat belts are very important. If in business it would be a good idea to hire a student.

Agriculture: Linda Hoy said Milkweed is one of the best butterfly attractions. Herbs with a strong aroma are a good natural insecticide. Hang a bouquet of dried tomato leaves in each room and banish spiders, mosquitoes and flies. Linda also read "A Farm House Is", by Wendy Fielder.

Canadian Industries: Elaine Hatcher read "Trade deal is possible by June." Minister Michael Wilson said it could be settled in three or four weeks. He hasn't received an adequate response from Mexico. We're only speculating. She also read "Slow me down Lord." (Prayer).

Citizenship and Legislation: Pearl Custeau mentioned that Nichol's Butcher shop is now closed and then read a poem, "Who was There? Our Mothers", by Marge Montgomery.

International Affairs: Isabel Butter, Conference registration will take place at the Conference Centre, The Hague. Registration will be at the desk in the hall of the Congress building in The Hague on Saturday, June 20, and Sunday, June 21. Registration will also take place on June 22 for those not attending the Pre-Conference Council.

Home and Economics and Health: Fran Pharo read about a lady who wanted to give something different for a silver wedding anniversary. She took 1 1/2 yds. of silver ribbon and 25 looneys covered with aluminum foil, stuck them to the ribbon with scotch tape — a little distance between each one, and then run a ribbon across the top of them, then glued them to the upper inside of the card. Use a glue stick when wrapping parcels, it makes neater closure, then glue the card to the parcel. Use a pant hanger to hang your panty hose in the cupboard. Nutrition — Breakfast cereal is just good for kids is just a myth, four grams or more of fiber per serving is good and choose a cereal without a lot of sugar. Pasta with tomato sauce is often lower in calories than pasta with cheese sauce, etc.

Environment: Fran said the Great Lakes aren't healthy. The bald eagle and gulls are trying to survive in that area.

Education and Cultural Activities: Brenda Lyons said the English school system needs help now. The exchange students have returned home to Germany. They were visiting Galt students. Galt students are now preparing for their trip to Europe.

Publicity: Wilmoth Rothney had sent a report of the April meeting to the f3Record, also to the County convener.

Safety: Dorothy said never leave a motor running unattended and never leave a key in a tractor or vehicle as a child might climb onto it or start it. Linda said seeds have been received for children to grow for the School Fair. Dorothy gave a good report of the County meeting which was held at Ives Hill.

It was voted to pay a bill for programmes also to give our delegate to convention money for expenses.

It was decided to serve the same type of supper as last year at our next meeting at Grace Christian Home on June 4th. All members will be hostesses.

Friendship Days are June 6 and 7 in Lennoxville. There will be a 22 ft. inflatable sign on the school grounds to proclaim Canada's 125th birthday. Ascot W.I. will hold Canada Day Bake Sale from noon until 2 p.m. Birthday cake will be served. The drawing for the quilt will be held at 1 o'clock on Sunday.

Anyone who wishes to order cook books may do so and they will be brought out from convention by a member who attends.

Tea monies and Pennies for Friendship were collected. Articles for the sales table at Convention were brought in by several ladies. The floating prize was put in by Mildred Learmonth and was won by a guest, Sue Schmidt. A prize for a marked chair was also won by a guest, somebody's mother. A poem was read by Rita.

Linda Hoy, convener of Agriculture, introduced the guest speaker, Kathy Neville of Lennoxville, who gave a very informative talk on the Ozone layer. She is a member of Friends of the Earth group. CFT's leak out slowly and it takes eight to ten years to reach the ozone layer, once there it stays for 80 or more years. One out of seven Canadians will have Melanoma in their lifetime. The ultra violet radiation is good only in small quantities. The human eye can be damaged. Young children should wear sunglasses. There is a six per cent increase in cataracts. Kathy was warmly thanked by Linda and presented with a small gift and she asked her to join us for lunch. The hostesses Elaine Hatcher and Evelyn Sims were helped by their sister Norma. Some members helped with food and serving. After a social time together we returned to our homes.

Obituaries

JOHN HAZEN FRASER
of Coaticook, Quebec

John (Johnnie) Hazen Fraser passed away suddenly the morning of April 19, 1992 at his residence in Coaticook. He had been in failing health for several months.

John was born December 1, 1913 in Coaticook, the son of the late John Fraser and his wife Gertrude Dresser.

He was married September 6, 1941 to Verian Norris, who survives. He was a devoted husband, a good friend and neighbour.

John was predeceased by a daughter Janice at the age of 4 years and 11 months in 1949, and by his brother Roland in 1976.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a sister-in-law Mrs. Mary Fraser of Huntsville, Ont., a niece Marleen and nephew Grant and their families, several cousins and friends.

John was employed by Canadian Immigration from 1939 until his retirement in Mon-treau on December 8, 1975. He held positions at Rock Island, Sherbrooke, Stanhope and Montreal. Due to his mother's illness, Mr. and Mrs. Fraser retired in Coaticook.

Following cremation, a graveside committal service was held at Crooker Cemetery, Dixville, with Rev. Kent Chown, Rev. Curtis Patterson and Mr. Stanley Beerworth officiating.

Later, friends met at L'Epervier Hall in Coaticook where lunch was served.

Those who came from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Barber, Manchester, N.H., Mr. and Mrs. Arthur St. Onge, Lachute, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thompson, Pointe Claire, Mr. and Mrs. Winston Kelly, Derby, Vt., Mrs. K. Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. L. Smith, Rock Island, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Maurice, Lennoxville, and others from the surrounding area.

In Memoriam

BOOTH — In loving memory of Eric V. Booth who passed away June 1, 1984.

Card of Thanks

FRASER — I wish to express my heartfelt thanks to all friends for the many acts of kindness shown me at the time of the sudden passing of my husband, the late John H. Fraser, April 19, 1992. I thank Dr. Richard Germaine and the staff of the Coaticook Hospital. To those who sent cards, memorial donations, food, phone calls or in any other way expressed sympathy. To the clergy, Rev. Kent Chown, Rev. Curtis Patterson and Mr. Stanley Beerworth who officiated at the graveside service at the Crooker Cemetery, Dixville, April 22. I especially thank my friends who came from afar to sustain me in my time of sorrow. Your thoughtfulness is much appreciated.

VERIAN FRASER

GRAINGER — We wish to express our thanks to everyone who sent us a card for our 70th Anniversary card shower. Your thoughtfulness is appreciated, it means so much to us.

JAMES & JANIS GRAINGER

SPAULDING — We wish to thank all the friends and relatives for the phone calls during the illness of our dear brother, Gordon. Also, since his death, for the messages of sympathy by phone and by mail, and for the donations given in his memory. All is greatly appreciated.

SISTERS & BROTHERS

WILLIAM HUDSON

Suddenly at his home on Fulford Road on Saturday, May 2nd, 1992 at the age of 67 years and 24 days. He was taken to the Brome Missisquoi-Perkins Hospital, Cowansville, where he was pronounced dead upon arrival.

William was the last son of James Hudson and Alice Boles-tridge. He was born April 8, 1925. In October 1955, he married Violet Dingman. He enjoyed fishing and hunting in the fall with his relatives and friends.

He worked for Floods in Foster making pallets, then later he worked for Mr. Tuxson taking care of lawns, etc.

He is predeceased by brothers Arthur in 1937, Jack in 1947; his Father in 1960; sisters

KEITH SMITH

Keith Smith passed away suddenly after several years of failing health at the Sherbrooke Hospital on Saturday, April 25, 1992 in his 68th year.

He was born in Bury on October 5, 1924, the son of the late Dane Smith and his wife, the late Gertie Lintott.

On September 30, 1950, he married June Hooker and of this union one son, Garry, was born, who lives in Ottawa.

Keith always worked on the home farm in Herringville with his father until his mother passed away in 1948. Shortly after they sold the farm and moved to Bury for a short time, then bought the farm where he lived until he passed away. Besides farm work, he also worked for A.J. Hunt and at Anderson's mill until poor health forced him to retire.

He was a quiet man, who loved to have company come and enjoyed a good game of cards. He loved animals, especially his horses, and was very kind to them. He was always there for us whenever we needed to talk, and so will be sadly missed by all who loved him.

His first wife passed away in 1973.

Keith leaves to mourn his passing, his son, Garry of Ottawa, Ont., and dear wife Judy, and his daughter Lillian and granddaughter Vanessa. Also two sisters, Mary Winget of Lennoxville and Audrey Lowe of Bury, and many nieces, nephews and cousins.

The remains rested at the Bury Funeral Home where the funeral service was held on Tuesday, April 28 at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Blair Ross officiating. The bearers were Darcey Harrison, Robert Lasenba, Spencer Berwick, Orvil Anderson, Larry Everett, and Everett Boynton.

Interment was in Grace United Cemetery in Brookbury, Que.

Motorcycles flew through the air with the greatest of ease Sunday afternoon in Coaticook, during the Buttes à Nolin motocross race. Carl Vaillancourt of Drummondville took the 250 cc and 500 cc events, as 260 riders battled the mud and rain.

Bike-riders smile through the mud

By Shawn Apel
BROMONT—Here's mud in your eye. And on your face, and on every other body part. And on your bike, too.

But persistent rain and some soup-like bike trails didn't stop about 1,000 people from pedaling and slogging their way through the 25 kilometres of Tour de la Montagne Sunday afternoon.

"I was very surprised that the turnout was as much as last year," said co-organizer Michèle Jolin.

Most of the 1,300 people who had pre-registered for the mountain-bike tour around Bromont showed up, Jolin said. Another surprise was that 100 people showed up on the spur of the moment Sunday morning and registered to participate despite the rain.

The constant precipitation turned much of the course into mush, but there were no accidents or injuries apart from a few bruised knees.

TRIAL BY RAIN

Jolin said the fourth annual tour has now been through the worst possible situation, its trial by rain.

"They were saying on the radio this morning there was a 60 per cent chance of rain, and I said it could be worse. Well, it turned out to be 100 per cent."

"But it wasn't serious. All it meant was we used a lot of water to wash the bikes."

Mud-caked riders were smiling as they finished the sloppy course.

Marie-Claude Denault came from LaSalle, near Montreal, to take part, and she had no regrets.

"It was fun," she said. That's not what you said a minute ago," her friend Gilbert Laplante commented.

Denault's friend Fred Bouchard said he finished the Tour despite some second-thoughts around the 17-kilometre mark. "You say to yourself there's only about five kilometres left, and besides, there's nowhere else to go," Bouchard said.

After the finish line, there was only one logical place to go: the shower.

Guy Martin, Marie-Claude Denault, Gilbert Laplante and Fred Bouchard were tired and filthy, but happy after completing the Tour de la Montagne at Bromont.

Expos brass walking on eggshells

By Terry Scott
MONTREAL (CP)—Claude Brochu's face carried a look of anguish as he peered out from his private box above the field at Olympic Stadium one night last month.

The Montreal Expos, of which he is the president and general partner, seemed on the verge of losing another baseball game.

The stands were a sea of yellow—the color of empty seats—with just under 10,000 people watching.

And some of them were demonstrating their exasperation by derisively calling out the name of manager Tom Runnells.

It wasn't the sort of scene that a club president would enjoy, especially one who had painstakingly cobbled together a consortium last year to buy the club from Charles Bronfman.

Brochu accomplished the deal by rounding up $56 million from the private sector and $33 million in provincial and municipal government backing.

By the end of that week, Runnells would be replaced by Felipe Alou, a seasoned baseball man who had 12 years of teaching apprenticeship in Montreal's farm system.

"We simply didn't have time to wait any longer," explained

Brochu, referring to Runnells's firing with the team only three games below .500 and five games out of first place in the East Division.

NOT AS FRAGILE

Most major league clubs might have been more patient, but they aren't as fragile as the Montreal franchise where each losing streak invites speculation about the survival of the 24-year-old organization.

Despite its infusion of new talent, its fairly respectable showing in the standings and improvements to the stadium, average attendance at Expo games this season is just under 13,000.

That is 10,000 less per game than the league average and slightly under the 14,598 the club averaged last year.

The Expos' current attendance projects to a season total of about 1.1 million, almost certainly the lowest in the National League.

That type of gloomy outlook prompts Mel Yass, a season-ticket holder since 1969 to declare, "In three years, there won't be baseball here. It would be a dumb financial move to remain here."

It also spawns headlines, such as the one recently on the front page of a weekly baseball publication in the United States: "Au Revoir, Montréal?" While Brochu expressed disappointment with the early fan support this season, he and his group of 13 investors promise to double their efforts "to rebuild public confidence toward baseball in this city."

But how long can a franchise survive drawing about half the attendance of the 25 other major-league teams?

"I think a lot of the talk in terms of our survival is overdone," stated Expos general manager Dan Duquette. "As long as you can gear your expenditures to your income, you can keep going for a long time, even with 1.1 million fans."

LOST MILLIONS

Last season, the new ownership projected a $4.5-million profit based on attendance of 1.6 million. But an abysmal team and the loss of 13 home dates when a concrete beam fell from Olympic Stadium caused attendance to fall to 978,076. It also resulted in an operating loss of about $4 million.

Heading into this season, the team's player payroll was slashed by $7 million to $16 million, which ranks near the bottom of the league. Conceivably, the Expos could probably break even with an attendance of 1.2 million.

The challenge for Duquette is to assemble a contending team with limited resources. Eighteen of 25 players on the roster have three years or less of big-league experience.

That's a plus economically. But it means having to endure growing pains as the young players develop, a stickler in a city where ticket sales are so directly related to performance.

With a season-ticket base of just under 9,000, the Expos are at the mercy of the fan who buys tickets on impulse, usually the day of a game.

"And people stop buying when the team starts to go into a losing streak," noted Brochu. Many factors have been cited to explain the attitude of Montrealers toward their baseball club: a general recession; an especially high unemployment rate in the city; other diversions for discretionary income; boredom with baseball; and lingering doubts about the safety of the stadium.

BEST TOOL

But attendance figures in recent years clearly show that winning baseball is the best marketing tool to sell the game in Montreal.

The highest average monthly attendance at the stadium for any of the last five years was 30,243 in July of 1989. The Expos, who had acquired pitcher Mark Langston, spent most of that summer in first place before an amazing collapse in August.

The Expos averaged 22,000 fans in June 1990 when they were on the fringe of contending status. The average fell to 16,000 last June when the team was mired in last place.

Curiously, the team's average attendance for both April and May of 1992—11,950 and just over 12,000 respectively—is almost identical to what it has drawn in any of the previous four years.

"I think the Expos are doing everything they could possibly do to guarantee their future here," remarked Roger Landry, who was the club's marketing director in the halcyon years when the club routinely attracted two million fans annually in the early 1980s.

"In the four years I was with the club, I can honestly say that I didn't have a club as exciting as the one this year," added Landry, now the publisher of Montreal La Presse newspaper.

Duquette smiled when told of Landry's comments. He endorsed Landry's view that the best form of marketing is a winning product.

Duquette added: "I think when Roger was here the club was winning 90 or more ball games a year."

Mucha snags her second LPGA win

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—It was a green homecoming Sunday for former Michigan State golfer Barb Mucha.

Mucha, fighting off a challenge by Dottie Mochrie, earned the second win of her six-year LPGA career in the Oldsmobile Classic with a one-shot victory over the LPGA Tour's leading money-winner.

"That was no walk in the park," Mucha said. "I was just hanging on. I dodged so many bullets. But, I guess when it's your time to win, it's your time to win."

Mochrie still jumped to the top of the LPGA money list with her second-place finish, closing with a 5-under-par 67. But Mucha's closing 71 left her one-stroke ahead at 276 and 12-under for the $500,000 tournament at Walnut Hills Golf and Country Club.

"I was trying to make as many birdies as I could," Mochrie said. "I missed some golden opportunities."

Mucha earned $75,000 for her first victory since the 1990 Boston Five Classic. The win pushes her to 22nd on the money list with $109,377 in earnings this year.

Beth Daniel closed with a 67 for 279; both Nancy Lopez and Chris Johnson closed with 72 and tied at 280 over the tight, rolling 6,166-yard course.

Lisa Walters of Prince Rupert, B.C., shot 70 and finished at 284 and won $7,142. Tara Fleming of Toronto earned $5,700 for her 74-285 while Gai Graham of Kelowna, B.C., won $4,085 for her 72-287. Nancy Harvey of Swift Current, Sask., won $1,752 for her 74-290 while Nancy White of Montague, P.E.I., earned $714 after her 81-297.

Canadian women improve in hoops

VIGO, Spain (CP)—Cynthia Johnstone of Rothesay, N.B., and Anna Stammberger of Kensington, P.E.I., scored 15 points each as Canada took another step towards Barcelona by defeating Korea 87-76 Sunday, improving its record to 2-1 in the women's Summer Olympics qualifying tournament.

Canada is tied for first place in its seven-country group with Bulgaria, which was upset 105-00 by Japan. Canada's next game is Wednesday against Italy, a 68-48 winner over Mexico.

"We played with a lot of heart," said coach Wayne Hussey. "We fought hard." Canada led Korea 49-35 at halftime, but had only a six-point edge with three minutes left in the game.

"They were slowly eating away at us and, fortunately, we got back into our game," said Johnstone.

Hussey complained often to the Spanish and Chinese referees about uncalled fouls.

"I've never seen female players sacrifice their bodies to counteract the fact that they don't play good defence or that they are small," Hussey said of the rough Koreans.

But Hussey said his players didn't let it bother them.

"I think we showed some signs of maturity because there have been times in the past where that would have affected us negatively and we wouldn't have gotten the same results," said Hussey.

Karla Karch of Calgary suffered a deep cut over her left eye. Shawna Molcak of Cardston, Alta., replaced Karch briefly and hit several key foul shots. Molcak had been on crutches for two days after spraining her ankle in a game against Japan.

"The ankle was stiff and sore but just before the game the doctor put some freezing on the sore side," said Molcak.

The Canadians took away Korea's main offensive threat: the three-point shot.

"We were focused on that shot," said Calgary's Jodi Evans, whose 14 first-half points helped Canada assume the early lead. "We were always prepared to put a hand up in their face and, given our height advantage, I think it made a difference."

Glasson gets out of Kemper hole

POTOMAC, Md. (AP)—Bill Glasson and John Daly put themselves in deep trouble Sunday on the final hole of the Kemper Open. Glasson found a way out of it and Daly didn't—although he sure came close.

Glasson, whose nine-year career has been marred by knee and back injuries, shot a bogey-free 68 to finish with an 8-under-par 276 after four trips over the PC at Avenel course. That was one shot better than Daly, Ken Green, Mike Springer and Howard Twitty.

Payne Stewart, Mark Calcavecchia, Greg Kraft, Mark Brooks and Australian Wayne

Riley finished at 278.

Glasson won $198,000 with his fifth victory on the tour. His first victory was in the 1985 Kemper, when he dropped in a 50-foot putt on the final hole at the nearby Congressional Golf Course.

This victory was nearly as exciting. Glasson, Daly and Springer were all 8-under after 17 holes on Sunday. Springer was the first to play the 444-yard par-4 18th hole, and he struggled to a bogey.

Then came Glasson, who hit a sensational shot to salvage the pivotal par.

Galt sweeps team honors at annual track meet

By Shawn Apel

SHERBROOKE — Alexander Galt High School made the most of home-field advantage Saturday as its athletes ran away with the overall honors at a track meet between the region's five English high schools.

But despite the sweep, only a Richmond athlete will see his name written in the record books.

About 170 students from

Galt, Massey-Vanier, Richmond Regional, Bishop's College School and Stanstead College competed in 56 events at the annual Eastern Townships Interscholastic Athletic Conference meet.

Galt took the Skinner Trophy for overall boys' points, and the Elkas Trophy for total points on the girls' side.

But Ricky Côté of Richmond Regional was the day's sole record-breaker. He set a new mark of 14 metres 60 in the midget boys' shot-put. The 15-year-old's throw eclipsed the old record of 14 metres 36, set by Richmond's Trevor Coote in 1985.

Records are falling less often these days, according to one of the event's organizers.

"They're hard to break because the track meet is so old," said Brian Heath of Galt.

Eastern Townships high schools have been meeting in the annual event since the early 1940s.

TROPHIES AWARDED

Galt's team, with about 55 members, had the depth to take the team trophies, Heath said.

Trophies were also awarded for the best male and female midget, bantam and senior teams, and Galt swept those six divisional honors:

- The Y's Mens Trophy for senior girls.
  - The M.W. Mitchell Trophy for midget girls.
  - The Ralph Gosselin Trophy for bantam girls.
  - The W.W. Lynch Trophy for senior boys.
  - The C.A. Connors Trophy for midget boys.
  - The B.P. Canada Trophy for bantam boys.
- Individual awards, to the athlete with the highest point totals in each category, were more evenly divided between the schools.
- Senior girls — Stanstead's Verona Sorensen.
  - Midget girls — Galt's Cindy Bryant.
  - Bantam girls — Galt's France Nadeau.
  - Senior boys — Stanstead's François Paradis.
  - Midget boys — Steven Bugyi of Massey Vanier.
  - Bantam boys — Samir Jaffarelli of B.C.S.

Mayco Quiroz of B.C.S. also took two of three individual running awards.

Richmond's Christine Edwards in the senior girls' high jump.

Quiroz topped the field in the boys' 3000-metres and 1500-metres races, the two longest events. Juile Marquis of Galt took the girls' 3000-metres race.

Carter makes 2000th game count

Stairs gets RBIs with first hit as Expos drop Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — Gary Carter homered in his 2,000th game as a catcher and Matt Stairs of Stanley, N.B., drove in two runs with his first major-league hit as the Montreal Expos beat Cincinnati 6-2 Sunday to end the Reds' six-game winning streak.

Carter's solo homer off Jose Rijo (1-4) tied the score at 1 and launched a four-run second inning. Stairs, called up Tuesday from Class AAA Indianapolis, singled home the final two runs.

Darren Reed added a two-run homer in the eighth off Scott Bankhead.

Chris Nabholz (3-4) got his first win since May 9, allowing five hits and two runs over six-plus innings. Mel Rojas got Barry Larkin to ground out with runners on second and third in the seventh inning, preserving the lead.

Carter, 38, extended his hitting streak to eight games while completing an eventful weekend. He's only the third to catch 2,000 major-league games, joining Bob Boone and Carlton Fisk.

On Saturday, Carter was ejected for fighting Hal Morris after a home-plate collision. Morris didn't start Sunday, getting the day off against a left-handed pitcher. There were no incidents in the series finale, but Carter was booed loudly every at-bat.

He started the decisive second inning with his third homer off the left-field foul screen for the only earned run of the inning.

Right fielder Glenn Braggs dropped Archi Cianfrocco's liner for an error, Nabholz singled with two out, and Marquis Grissom singled for the go-ahead run. Rijo walked Delino DeShields, and Stairs ended an 0-for-3 major-league start with a single to right.

The Reds scored an unearned run in the first on Carter's throwing error. Billy Hatcher singled, Reggie Sanders walked, and Carter threw into centre field while trying to pick Hatcher off second, letting the runners advance. Larkin's grounder scored Hatcher. Sanders grounded into a fielder's choice to drive in another run in the seventh, cutting it to 4-2. But Reed followed with his second homer in the eighth.

Manager Lou Piniella wasn't on hand to watch the end of the Reds' longest winning streak in two years. He was in Massachusetts for his daughter's graduation, leaving coach Jackie Moore in charge.

Blue Jays 3 White Sox 2

TORONTO (CP) — Dave Winfield homered with one out in the ninth to tie it and pinch-hitter Greg Myers knocked in Kelly Gruber with two out as the Toronto Blue Jays rallied to beat the Chicago White Sox 3-2 Sunday.

Winfield's ninth homer came on a 2-2 pitch from reliever Bobby Thigpen (0-2).

Thigpen walked John Olerud intentionally and Myers, hitting for Rob Ducey, lined a single into left field. Tim Raines throw was right on the mark, but Gruber's headfirst slide just beat the tag of catcher Ron Karkovice.

Toronto starter Jack Morris (5-3) rebounded from a dismal effort in Chicago last weekend when he allowed six runs over 2 2-3 innings. He threw a complete-game three-hitter with one walk and six strikeouts.

Jays notes — Toronto is 3-1 in extra innings. . . Sunday marked Cito Gaston's third anniversary as the Blue Jays' full-time manager. His record is 265-200 for a winning percentage of .570, the highest of any Blue Jay manager.

Phillies 6 Astros 3

HOUSTON (AP) — Kim Bachtiste's bases-loaded infield single scored the go-ahead run in the 11th inning and Lenny Dykstra added a two-run single as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Houston Astros 6-3 Sunday.

The Phillies have won nine of their last 14 road games, and took a series at the Astrodome for the first time since 1987.

Dodgers 6 Cubs 2

CHICAGO (AP) — Kevin Gross broke a personal seven-game losing streak against Chicago with seven strong innings as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Cubs 6-2 Sunday to complete a three-game sweep.

Gross (3-4) last defeated the Cubs on June 24, 1989, when he was with Montreal. Gross, 7-15 lifetime against Chicago, gave up two runs and four hits. The right-hander had a two-hit shutout going until the seventh when Derrick May singled and Sammy Sosa hit his second homer. Roger McDowell pitched two innings.

Dave Anderson homered off loser Danny Jackson (0-7) and Todd Benzinger and Brett Butler each hit a sacrifice fly to help Los Angeles win its fifth straight game. Two other runs were unearned as the Cubs committed four errors.

Jackson has lost 10 straight decisions since his only win for the Cubs on June 14, 1991, against San Diego. He is 1-12 with the Cubs in 25 starts.

Padres 10 Cardinals 0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Darrin Jackson homered and drove in four runs and Tony Gwynn singled, tripled and doubled his first three at-bats as the San Diego Padres routed the St. Louis Cardinals 10-0 Sunday.

Greg Harris (2-4) and three relievers combined to hold St. Louis to two hits. Harris threw five scoreless innings to win for the first time since April 30, allowing two hits and striking out four.

The Padres scored a season-high seven runs in the second inning, getting five hits in a row at one point. San Diego got a two-run homer from Jackson, who's hit in 13 straight games, a triple and three doubles among seven hits in the inning.

Fred McGriff added RBI doubles in his first two at-bats and Gwynn drove in two runs for the Padres, who scored a total of nine runs in the first five games against the Cardinals. San Diego has won five of its last six games.

Giants 5 Pirates 3

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Willie McGee had three hits and the San Francisco Giants overcame a three-run deficit and two Pittsburgh homers with the help of two errors and a variety of infield hits to beat the Pirates 5-3 Sunday.

It's the first time since April 1990 that the Pirates ended a month without being first in the National League East.

With both teams wearing old-style uniforms from 1939, the Giants tied the score on third baseman Steve Buechele's throwing error in the sixth, then went ahead in a two-un seventh after first baseman Orlando Merced booted a ground ball.

Bud Black (2-1) withstood Buechele's two-run homer and Jeff King's solo shot for the victory, allowing seven hits in seven-plus innings — four in the first two innings. Jeff Brantley pitched two innings for his sixth save.

By winning, the Giants averted a three-game weekend sweep and dealt the Pirates their 12th loss in 15 games. The Pirates had lost 11 of 12 before beating the Giants on Friday and Saturday.

Trottier awaits sixth cup

By Chris Cariou

CHICAGO (CP) — Bryan Trottier was rehashing the old days of battered Stanley Cups on Sunday, reflecting on the five times he has been an NHL champion and only very cautiously awaiting a sixth.

"There's a lot of neat memories, a lot of real neat memories," said the 35-year-old from Val Marie, Sask., who can become only the 12th player in NHL history to win a half-dozen Stanley Cups tonight.

After four straight titles with the New York Islanders as one of the best centres of the 1980s, Trottier was an unwanted free agent two years ago.

Today, his Pittsburgh Penguins lead the Chicago Blackhawks 3-0 in the best-of-seven final, a victory away from their 11th consecutive win and their second straight Stanley Cup.

The word dynasty was making the rounds even before tonight's Game 4 at Chicago Stadium (8:35 p.m. EDT, CBC-TV). Trottier was having none of that, but said there are key components to any cup winner.

"You can draw parallels to every championship team," Trottier said after the Penguins held a brief team meeting. They didn't practise after Saturday's 1-0 win.

WERE SIMILAR

"This one's no different. You look at the (Montreal) Canadiens, you look at the (Edmonton) Oilers, you look at the Islanders, you look at us of last year and there's a lot of similarities in all those teams.

"The ingredients are there, it just seems like the names change."

Guy Lafleur, Ken Dryden and Larry Robinson were some of the names to lead the Canadiens to four straight cups in the late 1970s.

The Islanders had Trottier, Mike Bossy, Billy Smith and Clark Gillies when they won from 1980-83. The Oilers won four cups in five years with Wayne Gretzky, Grant Fuhr, Mark Messier, Glenn Anderson and Jari Kurri.

Now the Penguins lead the way with Mario Lemieux, Kevin Stevens, Jaromir Jagr, Larry Murphy, Tom Barrasso — and Trottier.

But on Sunday, Trottier didn't want to speculate what it would be like to win a sixth cup. It hasn't happened yet, although only one team — the 1942 Toronto Maple Leafs — has ever overcome a 3-0 series deficit to win.

"I've been thinking about that since the playoffs started," he said. "Oh yeah, you think about it all the time. It's not something you spend a lot of time thinking about, but you tend to think about it."

For him, winning one Stanley Cup was an honor and a blessing. Winning five or six. "It's a lot of great memories, a lot of great moments.

"You just cherish it."

Town of Rock Island celebrates its Centennial this year

ROCK ISLAND (IH)—As the Town of Rock Island celebrates its Centennial this year one thinks back and turns to the pages of history.

A hundred years is a long time but the actual history, the beginning goes back to 1798.

The first settlers were the Pomeroy brothers who had come up from Massachusetts. They built a log cabin. The first three that fell to the axe was pine and it roofed the dwelling.

The Tomifobia river played its part in the industries of the community. This river more or less divides Rock Island and Derby Line in Vermont. In 1802 a bridge was built of wood over the rushing waters, later replaced by other crossings. That included a covered bridge, the Bissonet bridge replaced that and was constructed of wood and metal. A few years ago that one was replaced by the present concrete and steel bridge and with the Canadian Customs-Immigration office at the north end there is considerable traffic, many motorists will attest to this for there are time the traffic is backed south awaiting entry into Canada. For a number of years Rock Island was known as Stanstead and north the community as Stanstead Plain.

In 1803 Charles Kilborn and Andrew Young cleared a piece of land of about two acres in size on the north side of the Tomifobia River and operated a saw mill and a grist mill using water power.

However, to achieve the water for the mills they built a dam at the top of the Falls and cut a canal. This cut off the curves of the river and it was then and thereafter known as Rock Island.

Other industries were built along the river. One of the last was probably Goodhue's factory which made men's work clothing. In the latter years electricity took the place of the water powered wheels of industry. The old canal is gone but as it had flowed just south of the Royal Bank here it recalled the location as seniors walk by.

The Tomifobia river rises in Holland, Vt., and flows onward to Lake Massawippi as described by this poem composed by Mrs. Boynton. In those early days with forest all around it there was an abundance of water. Through the years the forests have been cut down and so there was less and less water flowing.

In the summer season often there is very little water, but in spring with the snow run offs and rain it becomes swollen. Many wish it could keep level year round.

Politically Rock Island remained a village until a few years ago when a portion of Stanstead East was joined to the village and it was then eligible to become a town.

THE TOMIFOBIA RIVER

This poem was written several years ago by Mrs. M.F. Boynton, a resident in the Village of Boynton.

We have a mighty river
That flows down through our land.
But we have to give some credit
To good Uncle Sam.
It started out in Holland (Vermont)
A place not hard to find
And keeps right on flowing Down through Derby Line.
It enters into grand Old Canada
Through Rock Island it does flow
And Beebe is the next town
The rushing river goes.
It has added lots of beauty
And riches to our land
The Tomifobia river
Is something pretty grand.
It flows through Tomifobia
And down the countryside
It enters into Boynton
The place where I reside.
Ayer's Cliff is another place
This river stretches past:
The Niger river joins it here
And keeps on flowing fast.
It fades into Massawippi,
A lake that is so grand
And only God can follow it,
Let's hope he always can.
I have often heard the stories
And the tales that were told.
Of how the early settlers
Panned this bed for gold.
It has seen a lot of changes
The autoroute has done;
But still this lovely river
Has kept a flowing on.
They can talk about pollution
And the changes that they plan,
But the Tomifobia river
Will remain upon our land.

Mrs. Dorne Davis entertained the Ladies Guild on May 18 with an attendance of six members present.

Routine business was conducted. A contribution of twenty dollars was given to the Sherbrooke Hospital campaign. A Strawberry supper is planned for July 12.

Lunch was served by the hostess. A video tape was played during lunch. At the close of the meeting the president gave two readings, "Count your Blessings and A Friends Prayer".

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bennett were Bruce and Shelley Gilbert of British Columbia and Mrs. Belle Judge of Cookshire.

Miss Irene Harrison, Mrs. Clara Herring and Mrs. Ferne McConnell were in Lennoxville on Sunday, May 17 to attend the christening of Emily, infant daughter of David and Debra Harrison of Fenwick, Ont. This was held in the Chapel at Bishop's College and was followed by a reception for family and friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brian Heath.

Mrs. Anne Martel, Erick and Sandra of Gatineau, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Harrison.

A difference of two tricks

By Phillip Alder

The mathematics of bridge favors bidding vulnerable games. Assuming duplicate scoring, if you can win 10 tricks in a major, you score either 170 or 620, depending on whether you bid the game. If you can win only nine tricks, your result is plus 140 or minus 100. If the game makes half the time, you will be, on average, 105 points per deal better off if you always bid game rather than stop in a part score.

North had this in mind when he raised his partner's wafer-thin opening bid all the way to game on today's deal from a tournament. Let's see how three declarers handled the play.

After West led a low club, the first South rose with dummy's king and took an immediate spade finesse. It lost. East received a club ruff and the defenders cashed three red-suit tricks: two down.

The second declarer won trick one in hand with the club jack and led a diamond toward the dummy. He paid an equally heavy price. West went in with the ace and led the club eight. East ruffed and, reading the eight as a suit-preference signal, returned the heart four. West won with the ace and played a heart back to East's king. A third heart allowed West to score his spade king for two down.

The last declarer won trick one with the club jack and laid down the spade ace. Bingo—the king appeared. South played a spade to dummy's queen, a club to the ace and a spade to dummy's jack. He then discarded a diamond on the club king. He conceded three red-suit tricks and claimed his contract. Sometimes it pays to be a little lucky.

Constructive changes could be in the offing in the year ahead where your social life is concerned. Your involvements may yield a number of valuable new contacts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Stimulating companions will help bring out your more attractive qualities today. Plan to do something with friends who are optimistic. Major changes are ahead for Gemini in the coming year. Send for Gemini's Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Talking about your intentions prematurely could prove counterproductive today. Do what you want done and let the results speak for themselves.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have a gift today for expressing ideas in a manner that captures the imagination of potential allies, especially when it comes to discussing your latest interest.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Critical achievements are possible today, once you've specified your objectives. Later, be sure to acknowledge those who helped you fulfill your aims.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're a good team player, and today you may form an alliance that will grow more valuable with time. This arrangement could produce something worthwhile for all concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A substantial portion of your time and effort today may be expended helping others sort out their problems. However, you won't resent it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Business and pleasure can be blended successfully today. If there's something you want to work out with an important client, do so in a convivial environment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your greatest successes today are likely to be with important matters you've been anxious to finalize. Several can be done simultaneously—even if they aren't interrelated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your energies may be devoted today to pleasurable pursuits rather than to that which is industrious. However, the change could do you good.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could be luckier than usual today where your material affairs are concerned, provided you're not hampered by a partnership. If possible, operate independently.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you truly believe your plans are superior to those you're involved with today, don't be reluctant to press forward. You're probably right.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your material aspects look encouraging today, provided you're enterprising. If you have something you think can enhance your earnings or add to your resources, give it a try.
