Fear of fallout growing

Soviet Union faced with plea to drop super bomb test plans

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Soviet Union was faced today with a solemn appeal from the United Nations General Assembly to drop plans for a monster-bomb test, but there was no indication that the Kremlin would heed the plea.

The assembly passed by overwhelming majorities two items regarding nuclear tests Friday night, with evidence that the fear of fallout is getting greater day by day.

But Soviet delegate Semyon Tsarapkin said in assembly debate that his government would not budge on its nuclear bomb test plans which he said were prompted only by a "mad arms race" by Western countries.

Canada took the lead in one resolution and was active in sponsoring the other which sought to avert Soviet Premier Khrushchev's announced plan to explode a 50 - megaton nuclear bomb by Tuesday.

Eighty - seven countries subscribed to the solemn appeal to the Soviet Union "to refrain from carrying out the intention to explode in the atmosphere a 50 - megaton bomb before the end of this month."

The tally was 87 to 11 with one abstention — Mali. Twelve countries had joined the campaign since the resolution was approved in the assembly's political committee Wednesday by a vote of 75 to 10 with Mali abstaining.

Tsarapkin charged that all the resolution's co - sponsors — Canada, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Iceland, Japan, Iran and Pakistan — are members of aggressive military blocs except Sweden, which served as a "cover-up."

On another issue Friday, the assembly admitted two new members — Communist Outer Mongolia and North Africa's Mauritania — making the total 103.

Historic landmark

Hotel at Brome Lake is destroyed by fire

BROME LAKE — (Staff) — A historic landmark in the Brome Lake area was gutted by fire Thursday night and then burned to the ground Friday.

Manoir Brome Lake which has stood on the same site since the late nineteenth century was empty when fire broke out there about 1 p.m. Thursday night.

The Knowlton Volunteer Fire Department fought the fire for two hours. When they left the scene at two a.m. the fire seemed to be completely out, a spokesman for the department said.

About 9 a.m. Friday morning passersby noticed that the fire had broken out again. The Knowlton Fire Department returned to the scene but this time the three story frame building was completely destroyed.

No estimate of the damage was given by the owner of the hotel, Harry Moll of Montreal.

Killed by gas
WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Two men died in a downtown Windsor apartment building Friday after their apartments were filled with carbon monoxide. They were James Robert Cecil Buck, 37, and Daniel Campbell, 59. Mr. Buck's son, Charles, 25, was taken to hospital for observation. Fire department officials said the deadly carbon monoxide probably escaped from a gas heating unit in the basement.

Police brutality report is sought

(Record Staff Reporter)
SWEETSBURG — District of Bedford Crown Prosecutor Claude Noiseux announced Friday that he will demand a full report from Quebec Provincial Police on allegations that a key witness in a bank robbery trial was beaten up by QPP officers so that he would testify "their way."

Mr. Noiseux made the announcement following the acquittal Friday of a second suspect charged with the armed holdup of Clarenceville branch of the Canadian Imperial bank of Commerce Dec. 9, 1960.

$30,000 still is uncovered

NOYAN — (Staff) — Five Montreal men will appear in Sweetburg Court of Sessions Tuesday to answer charges of running and possessing two stills located on the Georges Dufoir farm on Shore Road near here.

The men were arrested early Thursday morning by the RCMP detachment at Lacolle working in conjunction with RCMP officials from Montreal headed by Corp. R. Crevier.

During the raid the police seized two stills valued at $30,000, and two cars. They also seized 450 gallons of first run illicit alcohol and 4,000 gallons of mash.

The stills were connected with two 600 gallon cookers.

The names of the five men involved were not released by police.

Saturn test successful

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The successful flight of the first Saturn super-rocket is expected to lead to U.S. pursuit of "orbital rendezvous" instead of direct flight as a means of quickening manned landings on the moon.

The rendezvous method would employ Saturns to place a rocket and a space ship in separate orbits 300 miles high. The two would join in space and the rocket would boost the ship to the moon. In the vacuum of space the orbiting rocket would not require the immense power of ground - launched vehicles which must shoulder through the earth's heavy atmosphere.

Experts here discussed rendezvous following Friday's perfect test of the first Saturn, the world's largest known rocket. They theorized the approach could cut two years from the direct flight concept using the Nova rocket, which still is on the drawing board.

With its eight-engined powerplant pouring out 1,300,000 pounds of thrust, the 162-foot Saturn rocket 90 miles high, then fell as intended with two dummy upper stages into the Atlantic 200 miles away.

The entire flight lasted only eight minutes. But it provided tremendous impetus to the United States race to beat Russia to the moon. Few persons expected complete success on the maiden test. Pre-launch calculations had placed chances of success at only 30 per cent.

A huge atomic fireball blazed over the arctic Monday as Soviet scientists set off the largest man-made explosion in history.

For a time it was thought this might be the 50-megaton blast Premier Khrushchev had promised to cap the current series of more than a score of Soviet nuclear tests.

But in Washington the United States Atomic Energy Commission said its data indicated the blast was "more probably on the order of 30 megatons"—the equivalent of 30,000,000 tons of TNT.

Speculation that the "big one" was still to come was strengthened by two more Soviet tests, the first a small underwater detonation shortly after Monday's major test and the second, of less than one - megaton strength, Wednesday.

UN REACTION
The new testing coincided with a move in the United Nations to appeal to Russia to cancel the 50-megaton explosion, scheduled for the end of the month.

The resolution, sponsored for world - wide measurement of atomic radiation.

FALLOUT SCARE
Both resolutions were given added urgency by a radioactive cloud—the initial fallout from Monday's test—rolling steadily across the Pacific toward North America.

Although it contained only a tiny fraction of the big blast's fallout, its progress was watched with some apprehension in Ottawa and Washington.

Officials of the Canadian health department said Tuesday that a close check is being made on the radioactive iodine content of milk, adding that it has not yet reached a level considered harmful to health.

On Thursday the U.S. public health service, while saying the present fallout threat does not merit "undue concern," announced a step-up in

Anxious for Halloween

Man looks for ghost

HENNIKER, N.H. (AP)—Legend has it she was six feet tall with red hair and green eyes — a striking Irish beauty who set hearts aflutter in the mid - 18th century.

Not many people have seen her lately, and since there are no known pictures Louis Maurice Auguste Roy is having a medium come in Halloween night to try to get a good look.

From the medium's description he'll paint her portrait and as he slyly puts it: "Who can say she doesn't look like that?"

Roy, now nearing 79, uses the present tense in referring to the ghost, known as Ocean Born Mary, who haunts the house he has lived in more than 40 years.

To him she is not just a colorful legend and sometimes ghost. She is a benign spirit keeping him from injury because he is taking care of the house she loved.

"HERE ALL THE TIME"
"The psychics tell me Mary is here all the time, protecting the house and people in it," he says. "I've had 27 bad accidents — 27 — that I've heard on the radio had killed other people. And the fatal things I've been kept from doing — like the time I started to throw a paper bag of trash into the fire and something told me to look inside. It was several pounds of blasting powder."

His mother, who died at 90 in 1949, saw Mary three times, he says, but he never has. Since his mother's death he has lived alone, with five cats ranging in age up to 23.

Ocean Born Mary was born at sea in 1730 to the wife of a sea captain bringing a party of Scotch - Irish immigrants from Ireland to New Hampshire. Not far from Boston Harbor, a pirate crew boarded, and threatened all with death.

But the pirate chief, a captain Pedro who turned out to be a sentimental sort, spared their lives when it was promised the newborn baby would be named Mary after his mother.

Years later, when she became a widow with four sons, Captain Pedro, who had kept track of her through the years, invited her to keep house for him in a magnificent Georgian house he was building near here. She lived in it until she died at 94.

Supposedly, Captain Pedro hid a treasure and one story is that it lies under the huge eight foot long kitchen hearthstone beneath which Captain Pedro is said to be buried. The only man rash enough to make plans for the lifting three - ton hearthstone — supposed to have had a curse placed on it by the old pirate — was killed in a freak accident soon after.

If the medium doesn't see Mary next week, maybe some passerby will. Several over the years have reported seeing a tall woman in white drive down the road in the fancy coach the pirate gave Mary, throw a bundle in a nearby well and then disappear in the distance. It was probably just coincidence it usually happened on Halloween.

Gets off school bus

Boy, 12 hit by truck

WINDSOR — (Staff) — A 12-year-old Windsor boy is on the critical list at the Notre Dame Hospital in Montreal with a fractured skull and internal injuries received when he was hit by a truck here Friday afternoon as he got off a school bus.

The accident happened when Mark Couture, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Papineau Couture, 36 Fry Street, was walking across Main street after crossing in front of the school bus.

A truck passed the stopped bus and hit Mark, police said, throwing the child some 35 feet.

Police did not release the name of the driver. The truck belonged to the Goyette Gravel Company of Windsor. The accident occurred about 4 p.m.

The child was taken to the St. Louis Hospital and later taken by ambulance to the Notre Dame Hospital in Montreal.

DEALER PASSES.
MAKES BIG SLAM

There is nothing to the play of today's hand. It spreads for a grand slam in diamonds, spades and no-trump.

It also should be an easy one to bid, but when it was actually played in a New Jersey duplicate very few tables reached seven.

The bidding that produced top score for one pair looks simple, but is worthy of study. North's jump to three diamonds is a proper example of the jump shift by a passed hand. It shows a maximum pass and an excellent fit with partner.

South bid three spades to mark time and when North confirmed his spade support by going to four spades, South went into Blackwood.

His five no-trump bid both asked for kings and guaranteed that his side held all the aces.

North might have contented himself with showing his one king, but North had great confidence in South's bidding. North said to himself, "My partner is trying to get to seven in spite of the fact that I passed originally. He must have a good spade suit in addition to the necessary aces. I can count on seven diamond tricks, both red aces and at least four spades. We must have a grand slam. I will save time and worry and bid it myself and I will put the contract in no-trump so that no one will be able to set us by ruffing the opening lead."

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Each week the Hollywood trade papers print a production schedule of the TV industry. Nestled among the westerns and who-dunits is a ringer with the title, Sur Demande.

What is Sur Demande? Why, it's the French version of You Asked For It, the venerable series in which Art Baker and later Jack Smith fulfilled the heart's desire of viewers.

But what is a French TV show doing in Hollywood? I reached producer John Ettlinger to find out.

Sur Demande (literally, On Demand) turned out to be French-Canadian. It is produced by Etlinger's Medallion TV primarily for Canada's French-speaking population.

"We're also selling it in Switzerland and the Benelux countries," said the producer. "France is a problem. It seems there is a resistance to a Canadian accent on French TV. We hope to overcome it."

The French-Canadian accent is provided by Jean Coutu, a handsome actor from above the border who is also under contract to Walt Disney. He substitutes in narration scenes for Jack Smith in the American version, which is still seen in syndication in 75 cities.

SHOW AN ACCIDENT
How Sur Demande came into being is a lesson in resourcefulness. Medallion had been making a quiz show called View the Clue for the French-Canadian market. The sponsor pulled out when the Payola scandals struck.

She had never been in a Ziegfeld show, she had never met the fabulous Flo. But Joan has that elusive quality, glamor, notably lacking in the current crop of male and female stars.

"It does seem to have disappeared," Miss Crawford admitted. "Glamor takes preparation and hard work. It has to be started with the starlets, and they can't do it alone. The studios have to help and they just don't bother today."

"In television, they have to work so fast, the hours are so long and the contracts with the like Garbo—who is still a figure so different, that there of glamor, still aloof and just isn't time to prepare the unknown."

The deadline was reached, and Sur Demande went on the air Jan. 20, 1960—35 days after TV series, The Plouffe Family, it was first dreamed up. Etlinger was flown down from Montreal, liner reports that it is in the Bilingual writers were hastily 10 top-rated shows in Canada hired.

DISTINGUISHED GUEST — The University of Sherbrooke was host to Canadian scientist Dr. B. G. Scientists fail to participate in how their works are used Modern scientists have failed to participate in determining how their works are used by society, a leading Canadian scientist charged here yesterday.

"The situation has gone too far and, as I see it, the most important and urgent problem is the fact that the present international situation is partly the result of the scientists' failure to speak out," Dr. B. G.

Court

Copper, alcohol, cigarets

Passing of sentence against three Asbestos youths was remanded to November 2 by Judge Joseph Marier in Sherbrooke Court of Sessions Friday morning after they each pleaded guilty to a charge of theft.

Marcel Roux, 18, George Bedard, 19, and Claude Gregoire, 20, admitted stealing approximately $150 worth of copper from the Canadian John Mansville Co. between October 18 and 24.

Crown Attorney Benoit Turmel asked Judge Marier to remand passing of sentence to November 2. He noted that there may be other charges laid against the three youths.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul-Emile Fargues, of Sherbrooke, were found guilty by Judge Marier to a charge of illegally selling alcoholic beverages. They were fined a total of $200 plus costs, or in default, three months to be served by one or the other.

Two Provincial Police officers had previously testified at their trial that on June 4 last they had each been served six bottles of beer, while another officer had told the Court that he had seized, on June 11, 61 bottles of beer from the Fargues residence.

The Crown was represented by lawyer Dewey Zaor while Sherbrooke lawyer P. Lemieux was acting on behalf of the defendants.

A charge of smuggling American cigarets into Canada was dropped against a 40 year old Sherbrooke man in Sherbrooke Court of Sessions Friday morning after it was revealed that the Crown's main witness died suddenly last week.

Conrad Proulx was cleared of the charge when it was reported that Conrad Boisvert, about 34, had died. The latter was subpoenaed by the crown to present evidence. Crown dropped the charge.

Ballard, president of the Engineering Institute of Canada, said in an interview.

"An engineer or scientist just above all have a sense of integrity which he must be able to communicate to people," he noted.

"The man of science must be able to determine the implications his inventions or creations will have on society. The failure to see these implications could result in human tragedies such as the atomic bomb — the most striking and painful example of this."

Dr. Ballard, who is also vice-president of the National Research Council, said the lack of humanities on university engineering curriculums is an important problem. This "vacuum" is one of the reasons for the conflicts between science and the humanities groups.

One objective of the responsible leader in science is to find a common meeting ground to reconcile the two intellectual attitudes, he added.

Referring to Canada's technological know-how, Dr. Ballard said:

"Canadian technology. I am afraid, is not quite self-sufficient."

We still depend largely on foreign designs and technical production.

"However, I am sure — and I know for a fact — that Canadians are able to build and design goods much better than other countries."

"We are the only ones who know the needs of our markets and, therefore, we are the only ones who can meet and satisfy these demands," he declared.

The National Research Council is designed to give universities the proper guidance in the field of research and to distribute funds for this purpose. The council also co-ordinates the activities of various universities to avoid duplication of work, he noted.

Dr. Ballard was in Sherbrooke to visit the engineering facilities at the University of Sherbrooke and to meet members of the local chapter of the Engineering Institute.

DISASTROUS STORM

In 1913, during the most disastrous Great Lakes storm on record, a dozen ships were sunk, 24 driven ashore and 251 sailors drowned.

Funeral service for G. Witty on Monday

WINDSOR — A funeral service for a well-known Windsor resident, George Finley Witty, will be held Monday at the Windsor United Church at 2 p.m.

Mr. Witty died Thursday, October 26, at the Sherbrooke Hospital. He was in his 71st year.

Born in Windsor, the son of George Alfred Witty and Sarah Finley, he received his early education at the Windsor High School.

After graduating from high school, Mr. Witty worked with his father at the Canadian Explosives Company in Windsor and later worked at the Canada Paper Company where he was employed as superintendent for 35 years. He retired in 1955.

He was a member of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club for nearly ten years and of the Windsor School Board for 17 years. During six of those years he acted as chairman.

He was also on the executive committee of the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards and chairman for the

Time to snap the witches and goblins

Again it's Hallowe'en and it has all the potential of the Western world's latest secret weapon.

Goblins, bats, unearthly screams — this could very quickly discourage an enemy's military ambitions.

The camera, on the other hand, could capture these earth-shaking scenes with ease. Perhaps parties are the simplest place to operate as games are usually played which make interesting studies.

There is also not so much der the eyes and lower part of the face. To compute the exposure measures the distance from the flash to the ceiling and back down to the subject, the total of which is divided into the flash guide number.

There are no special cameras or film required. Color film in rolls, such as Ektachrome, which has an A.S.A.

rating of 160 which lends itself well to bounce light system. In fact it's faster than Verichrome pan black and white film of A.S.A. rating of 125.

Photographing Hallowe'en pranks and games, it is only a matter of being alert. There is no fear of falling asleep waiting for the next interesting picture.

So by keeping a watchful eye on the young gremlins you can also enjoy a little picture taking and don't forget U.N.I.C.E.F. A donation received will be much appreciated and the picture you take of a U.N.I.C.E.F. canvasser will be much admired. You can't lose either way.

Criticism of parole system labelled "archaic attitude"

Canadians who disapprove of the parole system for prisoners were criticised for having an "archaic attitude" by the only woman member of the Canadian Parole Board.

Miss Mary Louise Lynch, a lawyer who has just completed her first year with the board, said here following the monthly meeting of the Women's Canadian Club of the Eastern Townships Thursday that the new trend in the justice department is towards humanitarian treatment of criminals.

At one time, the attitude towards criminals was one of vengeance. More recently, it became one of punishment and now we are emphasizing rehabilitation, Miss Lynch said.

"We feel that there is only a small percentage of criminals who cannot be rehabilitated," she added.

"Those in that category will be left in a maximum security penitentiary while the others will be moved to medium security institutions where they can be taught a trade and readied for a normal lawabiding life. The institution which is to be built in Brome — Missisquoi will be modelled along these lines," Miss Lynch said.

"Since the age of the average criminal in Canadian penitentiaries at the present time is 20, we feel that there is still an excellent chance that they can be shown how to lead a decent life," Miss Lynch added.

Another problem which faces those concerned with criminals is drug addiction.

Drug addicts are never imprisoned simply because they are addicts, Miss Lynch pointed out, but because of the crimes they commit in order to support their habit.

"In paroling a drug addict, we know that we are taking a great chance because so many of them return to the habit even if they have been off it for eight or nine years," she said.

The new drug centre which the department of justice is planning will be most important in helping these people and ultimately reducing the crime rate, Miss Lynch added.

When asked about the British system of dealing with dope addicts, Miss Lynch said she did not think it would work in Canada.

In Britain, if you register as an addict, you will be supplied by a doctor with the drug you need.

Miss Lynch said she had studied this solution carefully and said the Canadian temperament was so different that she did not feel this would be a solution.

Miss Lynch went on to say that practically all of the 115 women confined in the federal penitentiary at Kingston are dope addicts and that partly as a result of this women have much greater difficulty than the men in staying away from crime once they are released on parole.

Miss Lynch had high praise for the Elizabeth Fry Society in Kingston which she said did a lot to help the girls both while they were in prison and once they were out on parole.

The system of gradual parole is being used more often in the case of women than with men, she added.

Career Night

Students hear experts talk

Over four hundred students from the Eastern Townships attended the annual Career Night held Friday evening at the Sherbrooke High School.

The event was sponsored by the Sherbrooke district council of the Quebec Federation of Protestant Home and School Associations. The president of the Sherbrooke council, A. H. Kyle acted as co-ordinator for the evening's events.

Students from schools in Waterville, Cookshire, Megantic, Bury, Sherbrooke, Scotts-town, Thetford Mines, Sawyerville and Lennoxville attended the session.

They were divided into groups and went from classroom to classroom listening to short speeches by representatives of different businesses and professionals describing the openings and advantages of various occupations.

Among the speakers who addressed the students were Ken Annett of Richmond who discussed teaching as a career and Norman Peveril of Sherbrooke who spoke on retailing.

Representatives of the armed forces were also present, and they included Lt. B. E. Derbille of Montreal who described a career in the navy, Lt. J. P. Desrosiers, of Sherbrooke and Sgt. Cormier who discussed the army, and Flight Lt. Jacques Verrault of Montreal who spoke on the air force. Lt. Derbille was accompanied by Lt. Commander Belanger.

The Trans Canada Air Lines sent two representatives, E. G. Dupuis, of the personnel department in Montreal and a stewardess also from Montreal, Miss Limoges.

Miss C. Aikenhead of Sherbrooke spoke on the possibilities opened up by a career in nursing and Mrs. G. Banks also of Sherbrooke discussed the work of a dietitian.

Hugh Doherty, editor of the Sherbrooke Record discussed careers in journalism and R. D. Rice described jobs in the banking field.

Technical training and mechanics were discussed by P. Camirand and L. Denoncourt of Sherbrooke. J. Cassar of Sherbrooke described a career as a lawyer.

A career in textiles was outlined by A. Laurin and the various openings in the Bell Telephone were described by Miss L. Blais of Sherbrooke.

Prior to the talks the group assembled in the auditorium where the film "You Can Go A Long Way" was shown.

Freedom of movement in Berlin

There is a curious air of unreality about the way the Americans in Berlin have been demonstrating their right of free access to all sectors of the divided city.

Over the past few days, U.S. military personnel in civilian clothes have been penetrating into the fringes of East Berlin without showing identification cards, which the East Berlin regime insists upon.

When the East Berlin authorities have barred these people from entering, a show of U.S. military force has been used to effect an entry.

There have been a number of such incidents, resulting in Russian troops and armament buildups on the East Berlin side of the border, and the United States has indicated it will continue to make symbolic drives into Berlin, under armed escort if necessary.

The American points are that the East German regime, which it does not recognize, has no legal right to control borders, and secondly that no power, either the East Germans or the Russians, has the right to deny U.S. access to any part of Berlin under the four power agreements that divided the city shortly after the Second World War.

An Illinois teen-ager told police he stole autos just for a joke. He now can laugh his head off for thirty days.

Liners victims of the speed age

The decision of the Cunard Company to defer, or perhaps abandon, plans for the construction of a new superliner to replace the aging Queen Mary may mark the beginning of the end of a great era in sea navigation — the age of the ocean greyhounds. Many observers believe the new luxury liner, the France, scheduled to enter the service of the French Line next January will be the last supership to come from the shipyards of the world.

The luxury liners were part of a way of life that is rapidly passing. They were one sign of an era when more people could afford the luxury of five to seven days at sea surrounded by conveniences equal or superior to anything they could find at home. But the liners are succumbing to the age of speed, to the competition of the airplane which will whisk the traveller across the Atlantic in five or seven hours. They are meeting a fate similar to that of their land counterparts, the long distance limited train with its palatial club cars and luxurious diners with multi-course meals which are rapidly disappearing on many lines.

It is admitted that both of these points are valid, but they have been valid for 15 years. Why have the Americans chosen this particular time in history to start demonstrating that validity? Why have they waited until after the Berlin wall was built? until after the East German border was sealed, until after, long after, the Communist regime in East Germany had established what amounts to a separate government—however unrecognized it may be to the West?

It wasn't so long ago that the big issue in Berlin was not the Allied right of access to the Soviet zone, but the right of civilians in the Soviet zone to travel freely to and from other zones.

It was this right that fell by default, and which now lies in the dust.

Proving that American military personnel in civilian clothes can cross borders unchallenged when escorted by armed might will be sorry compensation for the lost rights of thousands of East Germans now held prisoners in their own country.

Unless the Americans intend to make a strong attempt to extend whatever right they re-establish for themselves to those thousands, their demonstrations are empty gestures.

Debra and her older brother and sister attended the local school.

She was a healthy, impulsive, happy child, had many playmates and friends and was the idol of adoring parents.

When I reached the parlors I found a group of children gathered around the casket. They stood in silence. Pity, sorrow and questions were written on their young faces as they gazed at the still form of their silent playmate.

I watched them for a few seconds before they realize I was there. Lines from Wordsworth's poem "We Are Seven" flashed into my mind:

A simple child, that lightly draws its breath
And feels its life in every limb,
What should it know of death?

I pondered what I should say. Then came the thought:

There are only about 100 men in the teaching body of 950. And among the women, some 400 have returned to teaching after marriage.

Acadians feel that the island's normal school in Charlottetown should be training Acadian teachers in their own language.

At present, the provincial government sends Acadian teacher candidates who have completed Grade XII to normal schools in Quebec. The Quebec diplomas are recognized as equivalent to those issued by the Charlottetown normal school. Despite the contentious points between them, there is no overt hostility between the Acadian minority and the provincial government.

The Acadians also enjoy excellent relations with their English-speaking neighbors. The 1,500 members of their St. Thomas Aquinas Society concentrate on bursaries and loans to Acadian students and to school libraries.

Mr. Arsenault thinks Quebecers should know more about the problems of the island's Acadians.

"They don't even know us," he says. "But on the other hand, we Acadians should learn to know Quebecers better and actively seek their support."

In September there were 63,000 Canadians who had been without work for seven months or more. There were only 46,000 in this category a year ago. Among them must be men and women of all ages who will benefit from the technical training facilities being provided in larger measure by Dominion and provincial governments.

The statistics show the benefit of skills—13.1 per cent of laborers were unemployed in September and only 2.2 per cent of office and professional workers.

When every unemployed Canadian has a chance to train in new skills and when industry knows what training is most desirable to let Canada better compete in trade, the employment picture will be far brighter than it is.

Death gateway to eternal life free from sorrows of the world

Gerald Waring REPORTING

OTTAWA — Recruiting for the special six weeks' militia course in national survival gets into full swing right across the country today. The first of four classes of about 25,000 men each will start Nov. 6.

Fragmentary reports show spotty response. Recruiting in the Maritimes is described as good, but in Ottawa less than a third of the required number had signed up by mid-week. In some places, mainly in the west, the recruiting drive started only this morning.

Training will take place in local armories with army instructors. Recruits are being solicited by advertisements in publications and over radio and TV stations. Defence Minister Harkness wrote more than 8,000 employers during the last week or so, requesting them to give workers time off to take the course, and to make up to their employees the difference between their job pay and the militia pay of $173 a month.

The militia is accepting men between ages of 18 and 50 for the six weeks' courses. Last month there were close to 200,000 men in this age group out of work, and it seemed logical to assume that the militia would thus meet its recruiting requirements easily.

Army headquarters supplied recruiting posters to local offices of the National Employment Service. Employment officers have been instructed to call the attention of job applicants to the opportunity for six weeks' of instruction with pay in the militia. But if a man refuses to take the course, that fact will not be considered a refusal to accept suitable employment, in view of the unusual and temporary nature of the militia's offer.

However, on Oct. 10 the Unemployment Insurance Commission issued a ruling that persons receiving jobless benefits who sign up for the militia course would lose their benefits. They would be considered fully employed for the six weeks.

The army offers $43.25 a week. Jobless benefits run up to $27 a week for single men and $36 a week for men with dependents, plus the right to earn up to half the amount of the benefit in casual employment without sacrifice of any part of the benefit. Thus a "jobless" man might have an income of $53.99 a week.

It may work out that employers will have to hire men from the ranks of the unemployed to plug the production line holes when workers go on six weeks' leave to study national survival. However, the government could have gone about this differently, with less disruption to industry and a more attractive proposition for the jobless.

The government decreed that the 100,000 special CD recruits be trained in lots of 25,000 in four successive courses of six weeks each. It could have trained all 100,000 at the same time, making up three lots of 33,333 each, and giving each lot two days' training per week for 18 weeks. Then workers would lose no more than two days' work a week, and the jobless would continue to draw their unemployment benefits, while earning two days' army pay a week as allowable incidental earnings.

But maybe that wouldn't be good politics — it would not reduce those monthly unemployment figures that embarrass the government from December to March.

And he said: "But now he is dead, wherefore should I fast? Can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me."

Jesus confirmed David's hope, assuring us that He would come again and take us to be with Him in the many mansions.

"I am the resurrection and the life," He said, "he that believeth in Me, though he were dead yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die." John 11:25.

What should a child know of death?

These God-given, comforting words. There is hope and life beyond the grave and that hope and life is in Christ who loved dying men and gave His life a propitiation for our sins, that we might have eternal life.

And this is the hope with which we comfort one another when we stand together in the valley of the shadow of death.

Remember Them
I returned to the parlors in the evening hoping to comfort Debra's parents and to convey the sympathy and practical expressions of some of my readers. As I stood with the mother and grandmother beside the little girl, lines from Lawrence Binyon's lovely poem came to mind and I quoted them:

They shall not grow old as we that are left grow old,
Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun and in the morning,
We will remember them.

Already the divine promises were operating for Debra. The frustration of time and space had been suspended for her. The last childish tears had been wiped away.

The vibrant young spirit had "slipped the surly bonds of earth" and let her go free. And silently I thanked God not only for the hope set before us but for her escape from the tragedies left behind that weary and condemn us.

Who can know what God in His wisdom has saved the child from as well as to? Little Debra will always be without blame and shame and sorrow.

Words Of Comfort
As I walked home in the darkness, I thanked God that He has left a light shining over the valley of the shadow of death. I thanked Him for the Bible, "the lamp unto our path and the light unto our feet" which contains the words by which we may "comfort one another" and "comfort ourselves together" in

'BIG BROTHER' WATCHES TRAFFIC ON TV

(Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

In the heart of Munich, Germany, a sprawling, suburban city of 1,100,000 people, lies one of the busiest intersections in all of Europe, the Karlsplatz. It is crisscrossed by 62 different walking and driving lanes clogged daily by upwards of 85,000 motor vehicles, 3,000 street cars and more bicyclists and pedestrians than anyone has yet counted.

The city's traffic engineers have tried various means of bringing order to this moving chaos over the years, but none has been so successful as their latest device, a small television camera perched atop a 50-foot pole off in one corner of the square.

The man who operates the camera is an officer in police headquarters a half-mile away. He is the sole audience for the telecast and also, in a sense, the director of the real-life drama he photographs, for he is in charge of all the traffic signals at the intersection.

Actually, the officer is in command of traffic far beyond the view of his television eye. Rows of buttons on his desk permit him to control not only the 34 signal lights on the Karlsplatz but also 203 of the other 318 signals throughout the city.

Satisfied that their experience has demonstrated the potential of centralized traffic control through television, the police officials of Munich confidently predict that more and more cities will be turning to this electronic aid as an effective and economical way of untangling traffic knots.

With nary a dissenting vote, the Bishop's University Students' Association this week refused to support the Combined Universities Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament (CUCND).

The move came in the form of a motion supporting an identical stand by the Students' Executive Council two weeks ago. The vote was taken at Wednesday's regular monthly meeting of the Students' Association.

Student president Cliff Maclean outlined the reasons for council's non-support of CUCND. He said that the methods and actions of the organization were questionable, noting that a Bishop's placard had been carried without proper authorization in the CUCND Thanksgiving blitz of Parliament Hill.

Mr. Maclean also expressed the council's basic disagreement with the aims of CUCND. "If Canadians are going to continue to enjoy the benefits of democracy, they must be willing to accept the responsibility of defending them," he told the Students' Association.

The unanimous vote against CUCND does not mean it has no supporters on campus, however, for members of the minority element supporting the organization at Bishop's failed to attend the association meeting. "It might be noted that CUCND has been in the news on other Canadian university campuses recently. Articles and arguments pro and con have filled college publications in recent weeks."

Last week, the McGill student body overwhelmingly rejected the organization in a poll conducted by the McGill Daily.

Despite last-minute hitches, the inter-collegiate debating tournament began on schedule Friday night at Bishop's. It continues today.

As of last week, eight universities were slated to send teams to compete. Late withdrawals by the University of Western Ontario, Laval and Sherbrooke created unexpected holes, however, and a second Bishop's team was pressed into service to bring the number of entries to six.

Final debate will be held at 7 p.m. in Bishop Williams Hall. Hart's Jewelry will present a trophy to the winning debaters.

The soccer team — the Satans — also plays in the metropolis, against Sir George Williams. Satans are also winless in Ottawa-St. Lawrence play, although they have tied one game and lost a second by a 1-0 count.

The University's gruelling five-mile run ended up in a surprising dead heat this year. Dack Thomas and John Macaulay finished neck and neck in a pounding finish Tuesday.

Winning time was 34:18, well off the record.

Norm Webster came third and Doug Tees fourth.

Canterbury Club will feature a discussion on Faith and Reason this Sunday, with Dr. Forth, theologian, and Dr. Poole, philosopher, holding forth. This is the second in a Canterbury series on Christianity and the Student's Problems.

Lennoxville Red Cross was active

Dr. C. Bernard of the Lennoxville Experimental Farm, who was recently elected president of the Canadian Red Cross Society, said that committee reports showed that the branch had a very active year and showed definite progress, especially in the fund raising campaign.

Other members elected to the executive committee last Monday evening at the Lennoxville Town Hall are: honorary president, Miss E. Taylor; 1st vice-president, N. H. Welsh; 2nd vice-president, Dr. Viateur Gosselin; secretary, A. Monty; and treasurer, Howard Snow.

Although the president considered 1961 a very successful year for the society, he said that the blood donor clinics which were held throughout the Sherbrooke district did not receive any "overwhelming response."

Dr. Bernard also said that he hoped for a big turnout for the Red Cross blood donor clinic which is set for Friday November 17 at Bishop's University.

POLITICAL ROUNDUP

bring a change of heart by the leader would be a division in the Liberal ranks. And, according to the grapevine's "usually reliable sources," there might be a serious split in Chambly at least.

The electors of this riding reportedly feel that the county has "grown up" and is entitled to a representative all its own and should be regarded no longer as a pocket borough for some Montreal politician who cannot find a seat on the Island proper.

Robert Therberge, whose death made the seat open, was a resident of Montreal. And his Union Nationale predecessor, Redmond Roche, whom he defeated in 1956, also lived in the metropolis.

And, according to reports, the Liberal central organization has a handpicked man they desire as a candidate—also a Montrealer.

However, the county organization feels that with nearly 68,000 registered voters in the last general election, the county should be represented by a local resident.

There are a number of rapidly-growing cities in the constituency, including St. Lambert, LaFleche, Jacques Cartier and Longueuil, who have serious problems providing municipal services for their expanding populations and residents feel their interests can best be served by a man who lives in the riding and knows its problem first-hand.

So Mr. Johnson may decide to make a fight of it if the disagreement reaches the schism stage.

MAY SEEK FEDERATION PRESIDENCY — Jean-Louis Pelouquin, president of the Sherbrooke County Liberal Association, has indicated that he is available as candidate for the post of president of the Quebec Liberal Federation at the annual convention being held in Quebec City during November.

Addressing a group of students this week, Mr. Pelouquin said he would seek the position if the incumbent, Francois Nappert, of Three Rivers, did not seek re-election. If Mr. Nappert desired another term, Mr. Pelouquin would keep out of the race.

Scouting and Cubbing

BY DIANE DURRANT

Last Sunday, October 22nd, the 2nd Lennoxville Boy Scout Troop turned out in full uniform to hear Mr. Cyril Dendy, provincial executive commissioner, who was the speaker for Layman Sunday at St. Georges Church.

Saturday afternoon found the 2nd Lennoxville Boy Scouts making good use of an outing to practice the requirements for the many outdoor tests. An inter-patrol fire lighting competition was held and the patrols contested to see who would be the first to light a fire and boil a pot of water.

Martin Taylor, of St. Georges' Troop in Lennoxville, was presented the Gren and Gold Cord at their last meeting. To qualify for this award, a Scout must have passed all the first class tests and must have earned a minimum of six proficiency badges.

The 5th Sherbrooke Cub Pack awarded a Second Star to Steven Schofield and a First Star to Grant Blackmore at their meeting last Friday night.

Jeffrey Meggs of 2nd Lennoxville Cub Pack passed his test on natural things to complete the requirements for his Second Star. To pass this test, it is necessary to identify and know something of three birds, three trees, and three insects. Bruce Herring passed his skipping test last week, and Thrift and Telephone tests were passed by Rickey Elson and Arthur Hall.

A Halloween party will be held for 2nd Lennoxville Wolf Cubs on Monday and costumes are the order of the evening.

Last weekend found many of the Leaders at the Scouters Conference in North Hatley and each one of them brought back to their Packs and Troops, new ideas for their meetings.

How to overcome bondage to the mistakes of the past will be taken up at the services in the Christian Science churches this Sunday, in the reading of the week's Lesson-Sermon on the subject "Everlasting Punishment." Keynote from the Bible will be this verse from Lamentations: "Wherefore doth a living man complain, a man for the punishment of his sins? Let us search and try our ways, and turn again to the Lord."

Relevant selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include: "If mortals are not progressive, past failures will be repeated until all wrong work is effaced or rectified. If at present satisfied with wrong-doing, we must learn to loathe it. Remember that mankind must sooner or later, either by suffering or by Science, be convinced of the error that is to be overcome."

St. Peter's Guild

Harvest supper well attended

The ladies of the St. Peter's Guild held their annual Harvest Supper in the Memorial Hall, Wednesday evening, with a record attendance.

Autumn leaves in crystal vases adorned the stage, and in the windows were sprays of colored leaves. The long banquet tables were arranged with white linen cloths and at intervals were placed small centre-pieces consisting of colored leaves upon which were placed a menu of turkey, potatoes, salads, cole slaw and all the trimmings, along with two or three different kinds of pies was enjoyed by both men and women who once in a while enjoy a meal which is prepared for them, not to mention the dishes after.

The supper was convened by Mrs. J. Twyman and the cashier was Mrs. H. Barlow, assisted by Mrs. A. Spry.

The food was donated by the members of the St. Peter's Guild, with every member doing their part in preparing a wonderful supper.

Ghostly goodies

Hallowe'en will soon be here and woe betide the household who isn't well prepared with treats for young masqueraders. Since this celebration means so much to the small fry, the occasion should be marked in a special way. And what better way than to bake a batch of intriguing Hallowe'en Cookies for shell-outs or a party!

Youngsters will love these crisp, chocolate cookies accented with orange frosting to carry out the color theme of Hallowe'en. They're cut in the shape of pumpkins, cats and witches, then decorated with little "nummies" such as chocolate chips, currants and red cherry slivers. Of course, this recipe can be used at any time of the year, using conventional cookie cutters to shape the cookies.

Combine the remaining egg white with sufficient icing sugar to make a mixture of spreading consistency—about 1½ cups. Tint delicately with orange food coloring and flavor the icing with a few drops orange extract. Make faces on the icing with chocolate chips or currants for eyes—bits of red cherry for mouths.

Preheat oven to 350 deg. F. (moderate). Melt shortening and unsweetened chocolate together in a fairly large heat-proof bowl over hot water; cool to lukewarm. Sift the all-purpose or pastry flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt together 3 times. Blend the granulated sugar, brown sugar and vanilla into lukewarm chocolate mixture. Add 1 egg and beat it in well. Separate remaining egg; add yolk to chocolate mixture and beat it in well. Gradually work in flour mixture to make a stiff dough, adding a little milk, if

SHERBROOKE HOSPITAL LADIES AUXILIARY

Preceding the annual gift tea and shower for the Hospitality Shop, a short business meeting was conducted in the conference room with the president of the Auxiliary, Mrs. D. Bishop in the chair. She welcomed Mrs. G. Mitchell, Mrs. E. Little, Mrs. F. Hession, Mrs. P. Landry, Mrs. T. Verspyck, and Mrs. J. Beumer to the meeting.

Mrs. D. Bishop thanked Mrs. N. Dinning and Mrs. M. Armstrong for convening the very successful tag day recently. She also asked the meeting to approve the money voted for the linen requirements for 1961, and now covered by the government hospital plan, be given as a donation to the hospital for this year. This was unanimously approved.

A letter from Mr. H. C. Allnut was read requesting several items for consideration. As a 1962 project it was decided to purchase an air-conditioning unit for the second delivery room, and 12 sets of bedside units at a total cost of approximately $1,000. Approval was also granted for the purchase of a mobile x-ray unit at a cost of $5,650.

The meeting adjourned to the Residence where Mrs. D. Bishop and Miss C. Aitkenhead received the guests at tea. Mrs. A. Morrison was in charge of receiving the gifts, with Mrs. A. Wark and Mrs. H. Vine in charge of the sales table. Mrs. W. Houghton, Mrs. W. Gale, Mrs. E. B. Pilgrim, and Mrs. D. Lynn poured, with the student nurses assisting with the serving.

White gladioli, flanked by white tapers, adorned the Communion Table, while autumn flowers were used to decorate the Church. The guest pews were marked by white satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory brocade. The fitted lace bodice, with a square neckline, was trimmed with seed pearls, while the full skirt, which fell in a cathedral train, was overlaid with panels of guipure lace. Her veil of tulle illusion, was held in place by a pearl crown and she carried a bouquet of yellow Sweetheart roses.

Miss Ann Damon was maid of honor, and wore a street-length gown of American beauty taffeta, with fitted bodice and full skirt, having a pleated cummerbund, centered by a rose and fringed sash of self-material. Her head-dress was a braided taffeta coronet, to match her gown and she carried a small nosegay of white carnations.

The bridesmaids, Miss Patricia Outram and Miss Katherine Brook, wore dusty pink taffeta gowns and coronets, styled identically to that of the maid of honor, they carried white carnation nosegays.

Mr. Allan McKean acted as best man, and Mr. Edward Butler and Mr. John Batstone, brother of the bride, were the ushers.

Mrs. Batstone, mother of the bride, chose a gold satin sheath dress, with caramel velvet hat, brown accessories, and a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. King wore an afternoon dress of brown brocade, with beige feathered hat and accessories, and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Marlodge, where the bride's table was centered with a four-tier wedding-cake, flanked by white tapers in crystal holders, and decorated with fall flowers.

A brief honeymoon was spent in the New England States, the bride travelling in a dressmaker suit of brown silk, with beige coat and hat and brown accessories.

The couple have taken up residence in Smithtown, Long Island, N.Y.

This week I would like to commend to your attention two new Canadian magazines which are just beginning their struggle for a foothold in our generally not-too-cooperative Canadian soil. One of these magazines, PACIFIC PROFILE, I mentioned in this column several months ago when it was still just a thought in the minds of two enterprising young British Columbia women. The second magazine, CANADA MONTH, came to my attention only recently.

PACIFIC PROFILE is an attractively set-up literary-format type of magazine containing fiction, fiction, humor and poetry in addition to some clever illustrations. While its down-to-earth easily understood style of writing will lead to its being ignored by the purely arty set and its lack of "confess and shock" writing will delete it from the observation of the pulp magazine devotees it should still appeal to many of that large middle group of readers who prefer a nice balance of "think" and "amuse" items in their reading fare. PACIFIC PROFILE would make a particularly good gift for the would-be writer.

CANADA MONTH follows somewhat the format of NEWS-WEEK or TIME. Its avowed purpose is to "reflect... month by month, the struggle of self-respecting men to remain free." This magazine seems to have a progressive, even provocative tone and has enough of a prestige look to make it palatable to the status-conscious reading public. It could very well become the magazine of the Canadian businessman, touching as it does on a wide range of in-the-news subjects and dealing with them both reportorially and editorially. CANADA MONTH might be just the impersonal type of Christmas gift being sought by salesmen and businesses to give to their customers.

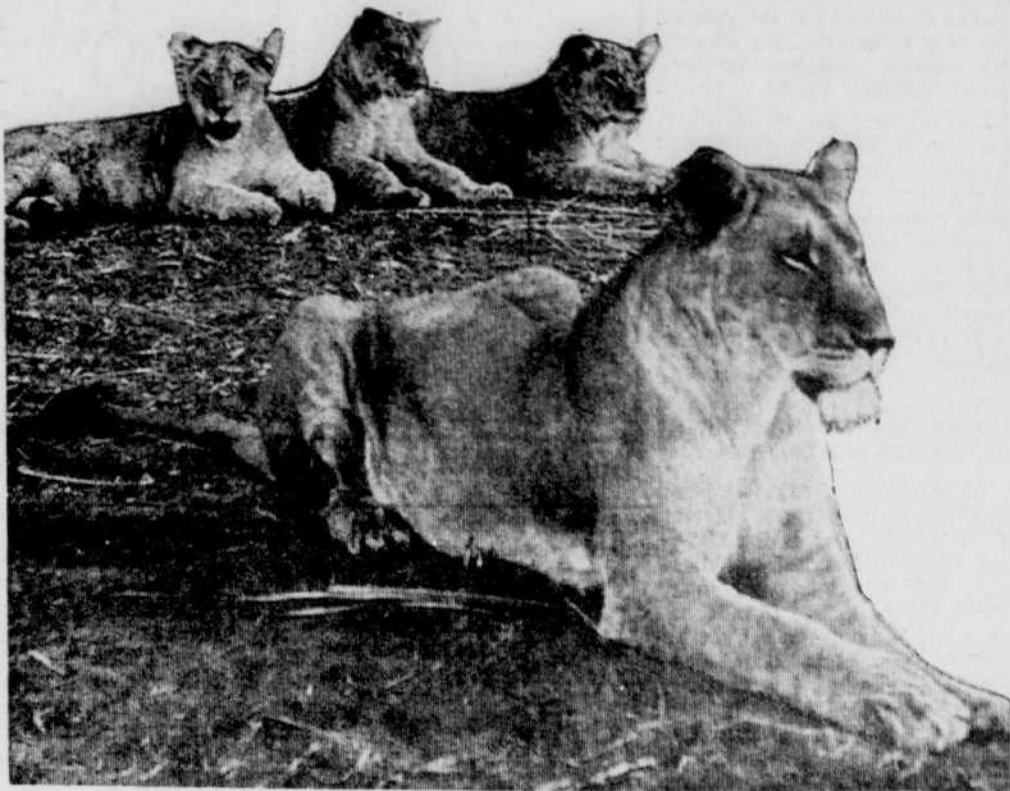

Longmans, Green & Co. Limited of London and Harcourt, Brace & World, Inc. of New York have concluded negotiations to form a publishing company in Canada, with its main office in Toronto, under the name LONGMANS CANADA LIMITED. The personnel and facilities of the present Longmans, Green Company in Canada will be included in the new company. It is expected that this expansion into a new company will in turn lead to considerable expansion in publishing books for Canadian trade, elementary schools, high schools and colleges as well as educational texts. The officers and directors of LONGMANS CANADA LIMITED will be William Jovanovich, President; J. H. McCullum, vice-president; M.F.K. Longman, Secretary and R. A. Browne, Managing Director and Treasurer.

Man's continuous rise, from the prehistoric moment when he crossed the threshold of thought to the advent of modern civilization, is the subject of an authoritative and handsome new book THE EPIC OF MAN, by the editors of LIFE which will be published in November by PRENTICE-HALL.

In November MUSSON'S will bring out a book entitled PORTRAIT OF HEMINGWAY by Lillian Ross. In 1950, Ernest and Mary Hemingway spent a few days in New York on their way to Europe and Lillian Ross who had first met the Hemingways in 1947, spent most of the time with them. Out of this grew her book.

GUARDED AREA

ALBERNI, B.C. (CP)—Fences will be built around an 80-acre stretch of Long Beach on the west coast of Vancouver Island because of fears of unexploded bombs. It was used as a practice range by the RCAF during the Second World War and low tides have exposed bomb fragments and possibly dangerous shells.

Magnificent illustrations, but disappointing literature

LIVING FREE... Joy Adamson... Collins & Harwill Press 145 pp... $3.95. This is a sequel to BORN FREE, which told how the Adamsons cared for Elsa the lioness from her infancy until her maturity; here we have the story of Elsa from the time her cubs were conceived until they were a year old. We read a day-to-day account of Elsa's activities, her comings and goings, her moods, appetites and so on. As literature the book ranks low, but as a documentary it has its own fascination. To anyone who is either fond of animals, or interested in them only mildly, LIVING FREE will provide a memorable two hours of reading. To me the most remarkable thing in the book was Elsa's reaction to the presence of Mr. Collins, the publisher of the books about her, when he arrived as a visitor at the Adamson's camp.

This bit of description is so good and so interesting that it makes the reader more than willing to forgive the repetition of much of the rest of the book, which seems to be perpetually following Elsa's spoor, or hanging up dead goats for her to eat, day after day after day!

There are magnificent illustrations throughout the book, charming pictures of Elsa with her family that speak so well for themselves that they make the text almost unnecessary. ELIZABETH CAMPBELL.

A sucker and his money

THE FABULOUS ROGUES edited by Alexander Klein Ballantine Books — 35c — The story of a sucker being separated from his money, especially if it is done with flair and a sense of humour, seems to fascinate the public. This is a collection of articles that have appeared, mainly in American magazines, recounting the exploits of some of the most bizarre and ingenious swindlers in comparatively recent history. D. G.

A second rate script not a first rate novel

THE WAY TO THE LANTERN—Audrey Erskine Lindop—Collins, 445 pp. $3.95. I suppose book reviewers like anybody else, must suffer their disappointments and take them in their stride but this historical novel proved such a major disappointment that it cannot be passed without some minor criticism.

Audrey Erskine Lindop is generally recognized as one of England's finest contemporary novelists; one has only to read "The Singer and the Song" or the "Details of Jeremy Stratton" to realize what a gifted craftsman she can be, but here she appears to have succumbed to the pressure of Arthur Rank studios, with whom she has a contract, and written a rather second rate movie script instead of her usual first rate novel.

"The Way to the Lantern" refers to the popular practice in early French revolutionary days, when Madame Guillotine was unavailable, of hanging the enemies of the Republic from the nearest lamp-post. It relates, sometimes with gusto but more often with tedium, the "adventures" of a rather charming, ne'er-do-well, English actor who seeking refuge in France from domestic misdemeanours, finds himself caught up in the intrigues and violence of those tortuous times.

The efforts made to effect his escape from execution, relying on his acting ability, while ingenious, are quite incredible, and so long drawn-out that one's sympathy soon shifts to his pursuers and a merciful end both to our hero and the book. But we are even denied this pleasure, for there is no satisfactory conclusion and we are left with the strong suspicion that we shall hear more about Mr. Roberts, alias Vicomte de Lambriere, alias Anthony Buckland, from the same pen for the same purpose— fodder for the films. Despite these drawbacks, there is much entertainment and humour in this novel, as well as a vivid portrait of the era for those whose meat is historical novels, but from Audrey Erskine Lindop one expects better things. IAN CAMPBELL

A concise and lucid report

INSIDE EUROPE TODAY by John Gunther — 376 pp. — MUSSON — $4.95 — Mr. Gunther's book reads something like a detail-filled guidebook. He begins with Germany, divided into East and West, and concentrates in particular on Berlin upon which so much hinges for

He then looks at France, her army, Algeria and all the changes and perplexities which beset that country. This is followed by brief descriptions of the changes and happenings to the Benelux countries, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Greece, Turkey, Austria and the Scandinavian countries.

Mr. Gunther next examines Britain and the enormous changes that have occurred in both the political and non political fields of this still important island.

He doesn't omit the military alliance N.A.T.O. and follows this by an explanation of the European Economic Community, the Inner Six, the European free trade association, the Outer Seven and other European instrumentalities such as the Council of Europe and the organization of European Economic Co-operation, all of which are leading closer towards European unification.

Finally Mr. Gunther gives some observations on Soviet policy and the satellite countries.

Mr. Gunther in all, has put together a concise, lucid and factual report on the changes and developments which have occurred since his INSIDE EUROPE written in 1936.

Each country has been examined and analyzed with the discerning mind of a master reporter who seems to bring, with so few words, the difficult and complex European situation into focus and reality for those people supposedly on the sidelines — though whose destiny depends on the questions Mr. Gunther has reported upon.

An extremely well written book, providing an excellent background to the understanding of the complex political manoeuvres now taking place in Europe. GEORGE RILEY

Every man will wince

WHAT EVERY BACHELOR KNOWS, by COREY FORD — Doubleday & Co. — $3.50 144 pages.

Every man will wince as Mr. Ford brings to light the apparent inability of the North American male to cope with the opposite sex, especially regarding the institution or state of matrimony.

Mr. Ford is a bachelor, of course, and, like the non-committed countries of the United Nations, he uses his position to make some barbed — but good-humored — remarks about those who are aligned.

Despite the title, the seven long essays that comprise the book are not specifically about bachelors. Mr. Ford is a member of that American school of writers which bases its humor on what can be roughly defined as the adult in a ridiculous position. He is in good company. James Thurber is the master of this style.

The collection is uneven. At times, Mr. Ford's light-heartedness is forced; elsewhere, he is pleasantly sardonic. The final essay, dealing with lonely life of the aging bachelor, breaks the mood set earlier. The tone is self-pitying.

The book still makes an excellent travelling companion. Highly readable, it can be dropped and picked up again without losing the thread of Mr. Ford's thoughts.

The cartoons of Robert Day who is well-known to magazine readers are an extra bonus. GERALD McDUFF

BURTON - ON - TRENT, England (CP)—Each week Harold Smith sits down to write a letter to himself, then writes the reply. He is education officer for both Burton-on-Trent and the county of Staffordshire, and all dealings between the two bodies must be recorded. "So far I haven't lost my temper with myself," he said.

Out of the artistic chaos of the Victorian era came what is probably the most beautiful coin pattern ever struck.

In honor of the ascension to the throne by Victoria in 1837 one Giuseppe Bonomi designed a crown piece in the finest tradition of classical purity. Bonomi was born in England in 1796, the son of the man largely responsible for the revival of the classical architecture in that period.

The effigy of Victoria he designed could not possibly less Minerva, with "Britt Minerva Victrix Fid Def" in four vertical lines. On the edges at opposite sides are the letters "T" indicating "test" and a numeral showing where in the sequence of striking any particular coin fits.

These crowns were struck, in all likelihood, at the Royal Mint London in silver from dies engraved by Pinches of London, and issued by J. Rochelle Thomas in 1887, rather too late for Bonomi who died in 1878.

Anyone with a collection of crowns or dollar size pieces of the world would be well advised to try to acquire one of these coins. Even though only 150 were struck, they are classed just "rare" and one was recently purchased in a London auction for one hundred dollars.

Music on Records

by Hugh Doherty

THE LENINGRAD PHILHARMONIC ORCHESTRA has just recorded three stereo discs of works by Russian masters Tchaikowsky and Khachaturian on DEUTSCHE GRAMMOPHON. These excellent recordings demonstrate that no one plays or interprets Russian music the way the Russians do.

TCHAIKOWSKY'S SYMPHONY No. 5 — Eugen Mravinsky cond. (DEUTSCHE GRAMMOPHON stereo SLPM 138 658) — As in the other works, the Leningrad Philharmonic treats this Tchaikowsky standard with fiery passion. This recording features a dramatic first movement, and an extraordinarily stirring final movement. The brasses are vibrantly evident — a characteristic of all the recordings. In the gentle second movement here, they intrude a bit too brightly, but elsewhere they do yeoman service.

TCHAIKOWSKY'S SYMPHONY No. 6 (Pathétique), Eugen Mravinsky cond. (DEUTSCHE GRAMMOPHON stereo SLPM 138 659) — Characteristically, the Leningrad Philharmonic comes up with a performance that is rougher and in places, wilder than our usual standards of smoothness. But it is a roughness and a wildness that excites by its sweeping grandeur. The Strings in this recording do not come through as dominantly as they might, especially in the first movement, but this sounds more like an engineering fault than anything else.

KHACHATURIAN — Gayaneh Ballet Suite; TCHAIKOWSKY — Francesca da Rimini, Gennadi Rozhdestvensky cond. (DEUTSCHE GRAMMOPHON stereo SLPM 138 673) — This recording is the most satisfying of the lot; the orchestra is full-throated, but also extremely nimble and light on its feet, and somehow more flexible than most North American orchestras. The exhilarating score of the Gayaneh suite is played with gay abandon and an obvious enjoyment of the folk song background from which the colorful music was drawn. Francesca da Rimini is a brooding piece, but the orchestra does not brood too much. Instead, it builds climax upon climax out of the swirling wind-like phrases of the composition.

Lawrence — an enigma

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (P) — What was Lawrence of Arabia—the apotheosis of public-school valor or a rabid masochist pushed by shame to feats of almost super-human endurance?

A film now being shot in Jordan, a forthcoming book and a play, all dealing with the legendary career of T. E. Lawrence, have revived interest in one of the most enigmatic personalities of 20th-century history.

Collecting in the E.T.

By IVOR WHITEHOUSE

The backs of postage stamps have been used for a number of purposes and the collecting of the stamps which were used for advertising or for money is quite interesting. There are stamps from Great Britain with advertisements for "Pears" soap printed on the backs. These are unused because the effort did not get beyond the experimental stage. New Zealand actually permitted companies to use the reverse side for advertising and you may find copies of these stamps in older collections, some of the advertisements are even illustrated. Italy also tried to raise additional revenues from this type of advertising but did not do so for long, the ads were at the bottom of the regular stamps, however, here we find the advertisers many times found their ads covered with a postmark of a rival firm. You have all seen the stamps from Belgium with the section at the bottom containing a message. It is worthy of note that the first stamps of Latvia were printed on the backs of German military maps owing to the paper shortage. Cigarette paper was used for one issue and Bolshevik bank notes with inscriptions calling on the people of the world to unite. Lithuania used the paper from War ration tickets and at one time Oaxaca, Mexico used post-office forms during a revolution. Nicaragua was short of stamps at one time and was forced to use some railway stamps, however, these had been surcharged for fiscal use, but the authorities simply added the postal surcharge to the back side, so we find the stamps served as railway stamps, fiscals and postage stamps. Russia was forced to use stamps in lieu of money between 1915 and 1917, there are printed on card paper and bear on inscription on the reverse side. Should you find any of these varieties you should draw the attention to the reverse side by turning the stamp up.

The new set of stamps from Bechuanaland will prove to be popular with topical collectors, and also with everyone who likes a beautiful set of stamps. The birds that are pictured are really lovely. The formation of a stamp club in Lennoxville is apparently well underway. The writer feels that clubs do contribute much to our hobby, but that the addition of others should not cause any embarrassment to existing clubs. I do believe that some of the difficulties supposedly experienced could be resolved at the Eastern Townships Club. However, all the best to all clubs in the Townships, and why not a club for junior collectors? The Europe issues are with us, and in the peculiar manner of continental stamp trade we find several issues being controlled by speculators. Ghana has come in for some criticism regarding the issue of souvenir sheets for the Founder's Day set. Here is your problem, pass up the sheets and collect only the set, but you may find that in several years the sheets have gone up in price and you haven't got them. First Day covers of the three commemorative issues from Great Britain are in short supply. The collectors over there are suddenly aware of the desirability of these covers and the demand far exceeds the supply. The Canadian stamp for the Natural Resources of our country has met with varied reception, but it is attractive to many. Would appreciate receiving some information about the postal services of the Townships, how about sending along anything you may have, the postage will be refunded to you.

Stamps for Collectors

We have a large supply of stamps, mint and used, just waiting to be added to your collection. Stamps from the Vatican, Ghana, United Nations, British Colonies, have a complete collection of West Germany and the Berlin issues to sell, also general foreign, flowers, birds, animals, space stamps, Canadian First Day Covers, Canada and Newfoundland as we obtain them. DAILY NEWSPAPERS

ARE NOW CARRYING MORE ADVERTISING TO MORE PEOPLE THAN EVER BEFORE

Daily newspaper circulation in the United States has now reached 60,283,114*—this is the highest figure in the history of our country. The combined newspaper circulation of the U.S. and Canada has also climbed to a new record—64,397,118.*

Steady vigorous growth such as this can come from only one thing: ever-increasing public and advertiser recognition of the newspaper's pre-eminence as a medium of communication. That's why advertisers also are investing more money in newspapers than ever before—$3,702,800,000 in 1960.

It is particularly important to advertisers—both national and local—that people are reading almost a million and a half more newspapers than a year ago, more than ever before. It means that advertisers' messages now have an even greater opportunity to be seen, absorbed, and acted upon.

More readers mean more prospects reached, more customers sold, more value for the advertising dollar. For a rising sales curve, use the daily newspaper to carry your advertising to the largest constant consumer audience in North America.
