RECORD/GRANT SIMEON

Mickey Rooney going strong after 50 years on showbiz

By Michael Miller

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Mickey Rooney is preparing to celebrate his 70th birthday by putting 35 candles on the cake.

"On Sept. 23 I'll be 70," says the veteran entertainer, "but I feel like I'm 35."

"What's the difference? Age is nothing but experience, and some of us are more experienced than others."

There are two words the diminutive Rooney avoids; "age" and "work." Not that he has an aversion to either, far from it. It's just that "experience" and "fun" are more appropriate as far as he is concerned.

Rooney's roller-coaster career has seen him as the hottest star in Hollywood at age 19, an out of work actor at 40 and a re-born star at 58 after making a fairy tale comeback.

Along the way he has been married eight times and bankrupt once.

Now, the man who once said, "I've been through four publics. I've been coming back like a rubber ball for years," is busier than ever.

But, despite making 26 episodes of a new television series this year in British Columbia — with 52 on tap for next year — Rooney insists he is not working.

"I love what I'm doing, so I'm not working. I'm having fun," he says.

He is also having fun producing a Broadway play, writing several detective novels and running two businesses.

Rooney was Hollywood's biggest box office draw between 1939 and 1941, when he played the impetuous son of a smalltown judge in the Andy Hardy film series.

With another child star, Judy Garland, he made such box office blockbusters as Strike Up the Band and Babes in Arms.

And, although he insists that "it doesn't do to dwell on the past, you have to look forward to the future," he has recently taken several trips down memory lane, including writing his biography, Me, by Mickey Rooney, which will be published next year.

He has also written a show called Mickey and Judy that he hopes to produce on Broadway in the next 18 months, with all the showstopping numbers from the shows the two did together.

"We'll open with I've Got Rhythm, and we'll have numbers like Strike Up The Band, A Love Affair, and How About You."

The show ends with a special tribute Rooney wrote for Garland, which he has titled Judy.

Rooney, who will not appear in the production, is still casting the characters. He also intends to have a number of touring companies perform the show in Europe, Japan and Australia.

"It'll be an evening of wonderful entertainment," he said.

Rooney credits his eighth, and current, wife, Jan Chamberlin, for his latest success.

In 1983, when he received an honorary Oscar for "50 years of versatility in a variety of memorable film performances," Rooney said, "When I was 19, I was the No. 1 star of the world. When I was 40, nobody wanted me. I couldn't get a job."

"For seven years (Jan) kept saying 'You can do it, Mick. Get up off the canvas.'"

RETURNED TO STAGE

Rooney did, and became a knock-out success in the stage show Sugar Babies, with Anne Miller, which ran for nine years until 1988.

In his new TV series, The Adventures of the Black Stallion, Rooney reprises the role of horse trainer Henry Dailey, which he played in the 1979 movie The Black Stallion and for which he received an Academy Award nomination.

Rooney's new role will take him around the world. B.C. is the venue for 19 of this year's shows, with the other seven being made in France.

Next year he will be on location in Ireland, Scotland, England, Belgium, Hong Kong, Australia, New Zealand, and Tokyo.

Rooney also owns a discount travel club for people over 40 called Mickey Rooney's Fun Time Family, and is a partner in a medical insurance company for pets called the International Preferred Pet Plan.

In addition, he's working on a set of books about a sleuth called Professor Crime.

When Rooney does take time off from his various pursuits he can often be found at the Delmar race track in Los Angeles, watching his horses run.

"I breed thoroughbreds," he says. "My horses are running at Delmar right now."

Ann Miller, legendary screen star, hoofs on

By Bob Thomas

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Thirty years ago, the joke circulating MGM studio went like this:

"Too bad about Ann Miller."

"Why? What happened to her?"

"She fell down and broke her hair."

Sophisticates derided Miller, with her lacquered hair, powdered face and sunshiny verve.

But most of her detractors are dead or at the Motion Picture Country House, and Miller goes on. The gams are great, and the toes can still tap a mile a minute.

She remains a Hollywood landmark at age — well, it's best to let her tell it.

"I was discovered dancing up at Bal Tabarin, a theatre-restaurant in San Francisco, when I was not quite 13 years old. I was very tall, and I had eyelashes and long fingernails, the whole thing. Lucille Ball and (radio comic) Benny Rubin saw me dancing one night. That was when Eleanor Powell was at her height."

"RKO was looking for another dancer, and Lucy and Benny saw me doing this little machine-gun tap thing. They asked me if I'd like to take a test at RKO. Of course, my mother and I just jumped at the chance. They asked me how old I was, and I said 18. I had to say that; I was working at almost a night club in San Francisco," she said. "STAYED 18"

"I stayed 18, literally, for five years. Unfortunately, RKO found out and they demanded that I produce a birth certificate. My mother and father were divorced, and about the only good thing he did for me was to get a birth certificate — he was an attorney — that said I was the age I was supposed to be. That tacked five years on my age."

"So now people say, 'My, she's got to be 70 years of age.' I'm 67. I wish I wasn't, but I am. But people say, 'She made her first film at RKO in 1936; she's gotta be 70-75.' I just say, 'OK, I'm 108. And I still dance.'"

Indeed she does. Miller is considering a tour of Call Me Madam, in which she'll do her trademark tapping as well as belt out the Irving Berlin songs.

In recent weeks, she has been on the book-selling circuit, hawking the tome she wrote with Maxine Asher, Tapping Into the Force.

At her comfortable house in Beverly Hills, she talked about her second book (the first was a 1972 autobiography, Miller's High Life).

"I decided to write it since Shirley MacLaine had such huge success with her books and her videos," Miller said.

SHIRLEY NOT

"I thought, she's opened the door and I might as well walk through it. My book is different from hers. I'm very clairvoyant. Shirley is not clairvoyant; she was just involved with meeting clairvoyants and getting from them the experiences that made her books so wonderful. I've had some amazing clairvoyant experiences."

She related a few. When her father came home late one night, he claimed a business meeting. Ann, then three or four years old, corrected him: "Dad, you were having dinner with that pretty blond lady." End of marriage.

About her psychic sense: "I can't turn it on, like professional clairvoyants. Mine is an inner voice that comes to me — unlike the audible voice in Field of Dreams. When that voice comes to me, I always listen, because it will save me from something dangerous."

Miller married three millionaires. All were unhappy experiences. Didn't her voice warn her?

'Crayin' the Blues at a Crossroads

By Bill Anderson

CP Music Writer

Midnight Stroll, the new album by Robert Cray, finds the young blues star at a pivotal point in his career.

After three Grammy-winning records in the late '80s, he is no longer the hot new thing to discover.

So the question is: can he hold his place in the pop limelight, or will he slip into the shadows with the blues and soul fans?

For blues music, there's also something at stake.

Cray, 37, has been one of the most popular blues players in recent memory, and he has brought the music a level of exposure it rarely achieves.

In 1986, for instance, Cray's breakthrough album Strong Persuader hit No. 13 on the Billboard pop chart — the highest position for a blues record since Bobby Blue Bland hit No. 11 in 1963.

Now — with Stevie Ray Vaughan killed last month in a helicopter crash — the blues has suddenly lost its most dynamic messenger to the rock mainstream.

WORKING MAN

Yet in an interview, Cray seems determined to avoid any larger-than-life role for himself, or to portray his new record — due in stores this week — as anything more than the latest effort of a working musician.

"Stevie laid down his own groundwork, man," Cray said by telephone from New York. "We do what we do, and he did what he did."

As most music fans know, Vaughan and Cray played together in the finale of Vaughan's last concert, a superstar blues event Aug. 26 near Milwaukee.

After the show, Vaughan boarded a helicopter bound for Chicago. Cray said he drove to a nearby hotel and learned of the crash next morning.

"We were good friends, and we had watched one another's careers grow," Cray said. "He created himself to be a rock hero — a rock and blues hero — but I don't know about me being anything like that."

Cray also avoids any talk that he is riding comfortably on top, saying "we're successful and everything — but the top? I don't know what the top is."

"It's a struggle every day." As if to prove the point, Cray says he became dissatisfied with his band during the tour that followed his 1988 album Don't Be Afraid of the Dark.

'MORE SPARK'

"We needed some more spark," Cray says — so he sacked two longtime members of the group and added three new players.

Kevin Hayes now is on drums, with Jimmy Pugh the new keyboard player and Tim Kaihatsu as a second guitar.

The most significant change, however, is the inclusion of the legendary Memphis Horns duo. After playing as hired guns on the last two Cray albums, the Horns — Wayne Jackson on trumpet and trombone, Andrew Love on tenor sax — now are full-time members of the group.

"They asked us if they could join the band," Cray said, "and we had no problem with that."

Indeed, the addition of the Horns completes a musical journey Cray began in 1974, when he began leading a band in the U.S. Northwest that blended the old Memphis sound with Albert Collins-style blues.

Over the years, Cray developed his own unique style — one that brought rock and pop into the mix without alienating the purists — and a new star was born.

BENIGHTED

Midnight Stroll, alas, may not be the record to keep Cray's career on greased rails.

The first track on the album — and the first single — is a song called The Forecast (Calls For Pain), a rather tedious lyrical stretch that puts love trouble in the context of a weather report.

After a couple of plodding downers, the pace picks up a bit, but too many songs fail to catch fire and a few are outright clunkers.

Still, for the faithful, Cray's guitar playing is as impeccable as ever, the bigger band offers a meatier sound, and there are some sharp turns of phrase.

At the very end of the record, Cray manages to neatly capture the two worlds he straddles — the grit of the blues, and the pleasure of rock.

Over a swampy backbeat, Cray describes a guy "in a long black Caddy" cruising over to his lover's house at midnight.

"I got the top down," Cray sings, "got Howlin' Wolf on the radio ... let's ride awhile."

The Tadeusz Memoirs, chapter one: I Sing For My Life

It wasn't raining.

I pulled the brim of my hat down over my eyes anyway and turned up the collar of my trenchcoat because you can never be too careful in my game.

Then I drew the curtains and sat down at my desk to roll a sheet of virgin bond into the typewriter. It was an Underwood upright, the kind archeologists will dig up a couple of hundred years from now and find still in working order. I'd bought it at a roadside marché aux puces for ten bucks cash so it will never be traced.

I thumbed the shift lock home and pecked out "EVERY INCH A CISSY: Shocking Memoirs of a CSIS Agent by Tadeusz Letarte."

The spy-and-tell racket was hot. First there was Peter Wright's Spycatcher which Maggie Thatcher tried very hard to have banned. That told a tale of the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa, bugged as it was built by Wright and the RCMP so that all the walls had ears.

Next came Courting Disaster, a spy-and-tell from backstairs at Buckingham Palace, which a British judge banned from publication everywhere in the world so that sales improved enormously. And just last week By Way of Deception was temporarily banned in both the U.S. and Canada because it suggested Israeli intelligence knew of the plot to bomb marines in Lebanon but kept it quiet to turn Americans against Arabs.

Victor Ostrovsky, its author, claimed he was visited in Ottawa two weeks ago by Mossad agents who strongly suggested he stop publication and last weekend his publisher's offices were broken into and its files ransacked. It may have been the same silent men in raincoats who waited for Gerald Bull to return to his Brussels apartment last March.

Who's who

By TADEUSZ LETARTE

But getting your memoirs banned is the surest way to the bestseller list and so I planned to name names, spill beans, pull no punches and blow the lid off CSIC. What really caused our first director, Thomas D'Arcy Quinn, to resign so suddenly in December 1987?

Who erased the wiretap evidence in the Air-India case?

What's the real source of friction between our sister agencies, the RCMP's Security Intelligence Directorate and the super secret Communications Security Establishment?

How did an agency of such colossal incompetence get a 25% increase in its budget this year when the Cold War had collapsed and other budgets were slashed to the bone?

Where to begin?

On the back of a matchbook somewhere I'd read that good writers start by hooking the reader's attention with a bit of excitement and so I thought of my first hairbreadth escape and typed Chapter One: I Sing for my Life.

"One of the most dangerous assignments in my perilous career was to infiltrate an organization whose avowed intent was nothing less than to seize power in every field of endeavor — politics, communications, business, academics, finance, the church and even the military. They planned to take over the world."

It had been fairly easy to penetrate one of these feminist chapters, the Stanstead County Women's Institute, with a careful shave and a dashing disguise but back in my furnished room that night, a message waited on my answering machine.

"Please, Mr. Letarte," cried a frightened female voice. "You must help me! May I call you Tadeusz? Meet me at midnight in the parking lot of The Maples."

That was all. A cry for help in the night. A damsel in distress. A young, slim, helpless blonde needing a big strong man to protect her and how could I refuse?

It was raining again when I parked across the street and walked carefully through the night, the streetlights like gangrenous wounds. Business wasn't as good as it used to be because there were only a couple of pick-up trucks and four cars in the lot, three with Vermont plates. No sign of the blonde. I took shelter from the rain in the lee of a tractor trailer parked in the rear and prepared to watch and to wait.

But the door of the cab opened and a pair of the longest legs I'd ever seen unfolded like carpenter's rules and stepped down beside me. I calculated she was close to nine feet tall but realized some of that was made up by the Stetson on the one end and the high-heeled boots (skins of endangered reptiles) on the other.

Then I remembered the truck had sported a Confederate flag over the grill and a plastic bugcatcher with the single word MANEATER in big black letters, and a briefing film unrolled in my memory. I was face-to-face with the dreaded Becky Shapiro, alias Tex, feminist enforcer, seven feet one inch of tobacco-chewing vengeance.

Her knees were registered as lethal weapons.

I snatched off my hat and tried to smile.

"Wal," she drawled, making it into three syllables, "yew Letarte?" She made it sound so cheap!

Mother, however, had always taught her children that honesty was the best policy and so I hung my head and answered "No'm."

(Mother had a warm heart but was never too bright.)

Tex shoved her Stetson to the back of her head with one thumb, hooked both into her belt and chewed thoughtfully while she looked me up and down. Her big silver buckle, decorated with a longhorned Texas steer, was just about eye-level and her favorite snack, they had told us at the briefing, was prairie oysters.

"Yew the fella writes for the newspaper?"

"No'm," said I, covering my crotch with my hat. "I'er, drive truck."

On the back of her left hand was the tattoo of a rattlesnake, fangs bared, coiled round a heart. "Mom", it said.

Then with a motion so sudden and skilled it was impossible for the eye to follow, she twitched back the right corner of her mouth and — dzzt! — fired a squirt of tobacco juice fifteen feet to make a stop sign ring like a gong.

"Yew the fella been writin' nasty things about Shere Hite?"

"No'm," said I and wondered miserably whatever had happened to my New Year's resolution to take up botany full time.

Dzdt! The stop sign rang again.

"Yew plan on having kids someday?"

It was a mild and gentle question but the implications turned my sweat to ice and robbed the night air of its oxygen.

"Yes'm."

"Then sing me a song."

"Pardon?"

"Yew know what a song is, don't you?"

Back at training school, they'd taught us to beware the innocent question because that was the one most likely to trip you up.

"What would you like to hear?"

"You choose."

It was a trap all right. My mind raced. "I Got You, Babe," wouldn't do. Neither would anything about "paper dolls" or "my little honey-bun" or "pink and white as a nursery". Auntie Mame, perhaps? A rousing aria from Gottterdammerung? And then I had it.

"Thar's a tear in mah beer 'cos ah'm crying' for you, dear..."

My voice cracked but this was a "hurtin' song" and I finished with a genuine lump in my throat.

Tex chewed slowly and said nothing for some time, then turned and swung herself back into the cab of her truck.

"Ef'n yew write no better'n yew sing," she said as she started the motor, "ah reckon we'll sleep sound."

I watched her skillfully whip that eighteen-wheeler onto the street and then I put my hat back on my head.

It was still raining.

National Arts Centre will film Le Dortoir

OTTAWA (CP) — A year after the National Arts Centre's controversial television production department was opened, the NAC plans to shoot its first major program.

It won't be on high-definition television, which was the purpose of the three-year, $1-million test project, and it won't be transmitted to electronic cinemas across the country, as once envisaged by Yvon DesRochers, director general of the centre.

That plan became an issue in the 1989 strike by NAC Orchestra members who said it was an inappropriate use of scarce arts centre funds.

The program is, however, a full-scale, $700,000 TV adaptation of Gilles Maheu's acclaimed dance piece Le Dortoir which wouldn't have been made without the contribution of the centre, said David Langer, head of the TV project.

It will be broadcast later this year on CBC's Adrienne Clarkson Presents and Radio-Canada's Beaux Dimanches.

"I am delighted that this is happening. We needed a big production to launch the program," Langer said. "It's not HDTV, but things have evolved a lot since the program began, and it became clear that this department has to produce programs in any way shape or form it can."

HDTV is an advanced form of television with sharper, brighter pictures and top quality sound.

The NAC has provided about 20 per cent of the film's budget with the rest coming from Telefilm (the federal film investment agency), the Ontario Film Development Corp., and pre-sales to CBC and Radio-Canada.

Filming started this week at the centre by Toronto's Rhombus Media, producer of such award-winning arts programming as For The Whales and Blue Snake.

L.A. Law wins Best Drama Series Emmy for third time

From AP-CP

PASADENA, Calif. (CP) — L.A. Law won the Emmy for best drama series for the third time in four years. Murphy Brown was named best comedy and the acclaimed Twin Peaks, nominated 14 times, managed only two technical trophies.

Candice Bergen of CBS's Murphy Brown won best actress as the acid-tongued reporter for a second consecutive year. And Ted Danson, the skirt-chasing bartender Sam Malone on Cheers, finally won as best comedy series actor Sunday night after being nominated eight times — every year the show has been on the air.

In a big signoff for The Tracey Ullman Show, the British comedian's program won the most awards at the 42nd annual Emmys with six. Ullman, who pulled the plug on the little watched show last spring, won Fox Broadcasting Co. its first Emmys last year.

"Oh, blimey, this brings it all full circle," said Ullman, honored with a pair of Emmys in the music-variety category for her work as star and a writer. "I miss the show a whole lot."

Peter Falk's bumbling but brilliant Columbo earned him the dramatic actor award. Patricia Wettig, who plays a cancer-stricken young mother on ABC's thirtysomething, won the best dramatic actress trophy.

"I would really like to thank all the women with cancer who have shared their stories with me," a teary Wettig said. "I shared their insights and their fears. I truly salute their courage."

CRONYM TOPS

Hume Cronyn, a native of London, Ont., who starred in Home Box Office's Age-Old Friends, took the prize for best actor in a miniseries or special. Barbara Hershey, who played the lead in CBS's A Killing in a Small Town, won the Emmy for best actress in a miniseries or special.

Canadian skater Brian Orser won an individual achievement Emmy in classical music-dance for his performance as Escamillo in HBO's Carmen on Ice. Orser, of Penetanguishene, Ont., appeared in Carmen on Ice with the world's two other top skaters, Katarina Witt of East Germany and Brian Boitano of the United States — both also won Emmys in the same category.

The three awards for Carmen on Ice were presented Saturday night and announced Sunday before the televised portion of the ceremony.

Despite 14 nominations, CBS's Twin Peaks, the strange new series about murder in a Northwest logging town, captured only two technical trophies — for editing and costuming. Both were given in a non-televised ceremony Saturday.

Instead, NBC's L.A. Law went home with the best drama Emmy — an honor it also received in 1987 and 1989 — won a writing award and also a best supporting actor Emmy for Jimmy Smits, who plays lawyer Victor Sifuentes.

In a reversal of the order last year, ABC finished first with 22 awards, NBC won 18 and CBS, which topped the Big Three networks with 27 Emmys in 1989, managed only 14 this year. Fox won nine Emmys, the most in its four-year history. Cable's Home Box Office collected eight.

Best miniseries went to NBC's Drug Wars: The Camarena Story, an account of the torture-slavery of U.S. drug agent Enrique Camarena.

ONE FOR MOM

Keenan Ivory Wayans, whose irreverent Fox comedy sketch series In Living Color won the variety, music or comedy category, said "This is for you, Mom."

Scott Winant of thirtysomething, who tied with Thomas Carter of Equal Justice for best drama series director, became choked up, too. "I'm afraid I'm not really going to be able to express myself," he said.

Danson's award was presented by the animated family from Fox's The Simpsons. Obnoxious 10-year-old son Bart Simpson shredded the envelope containing Danson's name and pronounced himself the winner.

During Saturday's technical awards, Fox's The Simpsons was selected top animated program.

Joseph Sargent was named best director in a miniseries or special for his work on CBS's Caroline?

Vincent Gardenia won for supporting actor in a miniseries or special, given for Age-Old Friends.

Eva Marie Saint took the trophy for supporting actress in a miniseries or special, co-starring in NBC's People Like Us.

A special recognition was given to puppeteer Jim Henson, who died earlier this year.

Alex Rocco won outstanding supporting actor in a comedy for his portrayal of sleazy talent agent Al Floss in The Famous Teddy Z, which was cancelled this year. The supporting actress award went to Bebe Neuwirth, the cold-as-ice psychoanalyst on Cheers.

ABC's The Wonder Years collected trophies for best directing (Michael Dinner) and writing (Bob Brush) in a comedy series.

Barry White: The Man is Back a mix of new songs & old tunes

By Peter Ramjug

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Barry White, whose songs topped the hit charts of the '70s, has been called everything from the "Maestro of Love" to the "King of Sheet Music."

But the deep-voiced singer dismisses labels. "Names are not important. It's the being behind the name that's important."

White, now 45, had his first hit in 1972 with Walking In the Rain With the One I Love. That launched a string of successes with sales topping 100 million records, and, unfortunately for White, an unwanted reputation as a ladies man.

"I never wanted to give that image of me; to this day, everybody knew who I was married to," said White, referring to Glodean, his wife of 15 years and mother of their eight children.

But after years in the music business performing hit songs like Never, Never Gonna Give You Up (1973); It's Ecstasy When You Lay Down Next to Me (1977); and Your Sweetness is My Weakness (1978); it's hard to shed that image.

NOT PARTY GUY

Female fans at White's concerts, he says, have been known to "throw hotel keys, house keys, on the stage ... one lady took her brassiere off in front of the public" in Pittsburgh.

But White says, "I'm not interested in grouping and I'm not interest-ted in parties."

Instead, he regards himself only as a catalyst in the "boy gets girl" scheme of love.

"My image of me is that Barry White is a friend to the guys who use his music to catch the girl."

While his booming baritone voice on ballads has become a trademark of sorts, White chose not to rely as heavily on slow songs on his latest album, Barry White: The Man is Back. It is his first LP since 1987's The Right Night and Barry White.

On the new album, White has gone with the flow of the fast-paced times and included a fair amount of up-tempo beats and dance grooves.

"I had to capture that young-sounding thing plus the traditional Barry White thing. I'm getting the old and the new, everywhere. On this album, I tried to merge the old wisdom with the new knowledge."

NEW AUDIENCES

When asked if he was afraid he might lose one audience to satisfy another, he acknowledged "those audiences are going to move on, but there's always a new audience. If you're serious about your craft, they will come to you."

With that in mind, The Man is Back is a nine-song smorgasbord of violins, flutes, and computerized drum machines.

The first side has a youthful, contemporary appeal in the tunes Responsible, Super Lover, and Wanna Do It Good To Ya.

The second side mellows the listener with White's voice cooing on such ballads as It's Getting Harder All the Time, Don't Let Go, and a remake of the classic Good Night My Love.

JAILED IN YOUTH

Barry Eugene White was born in Galveston, Tex., on Sept. 12, 1944. Raised in Los Angeles, he eventually became a member of a gang called The Businessmen during his early teens and was once arrested for stealing almost $30,000 worth of tires.

After seven months in jail, he performed his first show in 1960. He considers himself lucky to have gotten out of the L.A. gang wars, unlike his brother, Darryl, who was shot to death in 1983.

White had his first million-seller at age 27 with Walking in the Rain With the One I Love. Next came I'm Gonna Love You Just a Little More Baby from the 1973 album, 've Got So Much to Give.

From 1984 through 1986, he took a much-needed respite. Having entered the music business at 16, White says, this coming December will mark his 30th anniversary in the business.

KEEPS CONTROL

And in those three decades, White, who owns nine publishing companies, several production companies and his own record label, has learned much in an industry he likens to an animal.

"I own things because I understand the animal that I'm dealing with. When you hit that (age) 45, and that 50, that's when artists start to get scared. What am I going to do now?"

"I work in Hollywood, I'm not of Hollywood."

No matter what style Barry White chooses to follow, his voice is the thing.

This was exemplified by a young female security guard who opened a stage door, recognized the bearded figure dressed in black, and said shyly: "Mr. White, I just love your voice."

Centennial Theatre announces an exciting new program

By Claudia Villemare

LENNOXVILLE — Entertainment has come of age in the Eastern Townships.

At least it seems that way as various organizations launch their fall and winter programs with an unbelievable variety of events that will keep the entertainment fiend running in circles all season long.

One prime example of programming that shows a flair for entertainment of quality and variety is the recently unveiled Centennial Theatre Program Series.

Luce Couture, ably assisted by Vera Ménard, has probably come up with what can be viewed as a stroke of genius.

As program director, Couture must first come up with ideas about events, shop through a maze of agencies and public relations people, keep a sharp eye on budgets and prices, and present theatre-goers with the widest possible variety of events.

"We feel we've really come up lucky this year," she says with just a hint of a smile on her face.

There are four different series scheduled. The interesting facet of three of them is the association which links up Centennial Theatre with the University of Sherbrooke's Centre Culturel.

"We have the Big Sound Series, one which can use to full advantage the size and scope of the Centre Culturel," says Couture. Performers include the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra and the Woody Herman band. Tickets for the series are available through subscriptions which incorporates services of the Centre Culturel box office and Ticketron.

"By teaming up this way, we both get the advantage of television advertising as well as more publicity on radio and in the printed media. That means quite a bit to us because publicity is always so expensive," Couture says.

There's a Dance Series, also in association with the Centre, two children's concerts and, of course, specialty groups featuring the finest in classical music.

Many famous artists are part of the new program, more so than they have ever been in the past.

There will be meet-the-artist receptions on stage following each concert in the Classical series. This extra touch to an already pleasant evening of entertainment has won great favor since the receptions began last year. Actually stepping onto the stage to meet the musician who has held your rapt attention for two hours is really quite a thrill.

The Children's Series is particularly interesting: it features the adorable Potato People, and famous mime artist Bob Berk who gets a laugh out of the most somber spectator.

And of course the younger set, mainly students and lovers of rock and roll, will not be disappointed this year. October 18, great sounds will be bouncing off the walls when Vancouver's Spirit of the West appears on Centennial's stage. This will be the first of many rock concerts presented over the course of the season.

Then again, what better way to start a season than with the down-to-earth country sounds of Stompin' Tom Connors! He comes to Centennial Oct. 1 complete with his Canadian flag backdrop and his plywood stompin' square.

Just before Christmas, l'Orchestre de chambre de l'Estrie will star as accompanists in the pit when the Centennial presents a silent movie in the grand old style. The showing will even feature live sound effects. The event is a benefit concert. And there'll be a reception on stage for this one, too!

That's not all. Centennial Theatre has taken the bull by the horns, so to speak.

English-speaking movie fans in the Townships now have their very own theatre where English movies, first-runs whenever possible, will be presented on the most high tech screening facility outside of Montreal.

A 42-foot screen, requiring reels of film that stand over three feet tall, puts the viewer in the midst of the action whether it's a torrid love scene or the scariest horror. Just having such a theatre is a compliment to the region — bringing back memories of yesteryear when going to movies was a major outing.

And, oh yes. The new movie facility comes complete with lots of popcorn and refreshments — the way it's supposed to be.

"So, this year, we have more series, more shows and a program that we hope will delight people of all ages from every corner of society," says Couture.

Subscriptions are reasonably priced: for example, the Big Sound Series is $40 and includes three $20-concerts; the Dance Series is $50 and includes four events.

Single tickets are also available at the box offices of both theatres, which also take reservations anytime. Box office hours are Monday to Friday from 9 to 4:30, and all day on performance days.

Call (819) 822-9692 for one or more series subscriptions. Visa is accepted.

Ian Gaskell and Luce Couture are pleased with the final line—up of events at Centennial Theatre this year. Gaskell is the theatre's technical wizard, and instigated the new big-screen facility which puts the viewer right in the middle of the action.

New PBS season — everything from a cappella to zoos

By Stephen Nicholls

CP Television Writer

Three little letters have been known to send shudders up the spine of the diehard couch potato: PBS.

Imagine, television without commercials. Not only that, it's actually good for you.

But, as they say in those breakfast-cereal ads on commercial TV, just because it's good for you doesn't mean it has to taste bad.

The Public Broadcasting System, available from U.S. stations on cable to more than five million Canadian households and by antenna in border areas, serves up a menu that's enlightening, provocative and, believe it or not, entertaining.

The offerings range from the superb dramas of Masterpiece Theatre and the intriguing suspense of Mystery! to the in-depth reporting of Frontline and the MacNeil-Lehrer Newshour and the stunning photographic studies of Nature.

If you're game to do yourself some good, consider sampling some of the fare that PBS is showcasing in the next couple of weeks.

Here's a look at the highlights:

How does a modern film-maker chronicle a war that happened in the pre-camcorder age, before newsreels and without any veterans around to interview?

How does Ken Burns do it? Magnificently.

The Civil War, an 11-hour documentary starting Sunday night on PBS, tells the story of the war that split and eventually forged the United States.

The series begins in 1861 with the events that led up to the war, and ends four nights later with the assassination of Abraham Lincoln.

Burns skilfully blends fact and commentary, sound and picture.

The comprehensive historical narrative is vividly illustrated with archival photographs and paintings. These come alive with background sound effects — thundering horses, battle cries, cannon blasts — and music ranging from the Battle Hymn of the Republic to Appalachian fiddling.

But what really breathes life into the series is the dramatic reading of excerpts from newspapers, speeches, letters and diaries of participants and observers — from politicians and society matrons to generals and soldiers in the field.

Sam Waterston provides the voice of Lincoln, with Julie Harris as the president's wife and Jason Robards as Gen. Ulysses S. Grant. Others lending their voices include Jeremy Irons, Kurt Vonnegut, Hoyt Axton and Colleen Dewhurst.

Rising 30 metres from the ocean floor along the California coast, a dense forest of kelp teems with the likes of horn sharks and bat rays.

PBS's Nature series, dedicated to revealing "the beautiful and the hidden in the natural world," kicks off its season Sept. 30 with Seasons in the Sea, a study of the kelp forest through which some 18,000 grey whales migrate each year on their way to mating grounds.

Later that night, Masterpiece Theatre features Michael York, Patricia Hodge and Michael Gambon in an adaptation of Elizabeth Bowen's novel The Heat of the Day.

In the 19th century, zoos were often regarded as animal museums, or even furry freak shows. Today's zoos are playing an urgent role in saving endangered wildlife.

That's the angle explored by the Oct. 1 instalment of The Infinite Voyage, a PBS series of periodic specials examining new directions in science.

On the leading edge, today's zookeepers are experimenting with domestic cats and cows as surrogate mothers of more exotic species.

PBS's science show Nova kicks off Oct. 2 with a comedy-thriller re-enactment of a true incident in which an astronomer tracks down a computer hacker who is selling sensitive information to the KGB. Clifford Stoll, the astronomer who wrote the best-seller The Cuckoo's Egg based on his experiences, plays himself.

Later that night, Frontline, with Bill Moyers, takes a look at the export of toxic waste, focusing on two brothers who, one investigator says, "are to hazardous waste what the James brothers were to bank robbery."

Race to Save the Planet, a 10-part series on the environment, starts Oct. 4 on PBS. With Meryl Streep as host and Roy Scheider as narrator, the first episode looks at the evolving relationship between man and nature.

Mystery! opens later that night with a new case for Hercule Poirot, Agatha Christie's Belgian detective. Poirot tracks down the theft of plans for a new British fighter plane.

Great Performances starts a new season on PBS on Oct. 5 with a show on a cappella singing groups.

Hosts Spike Lee (Mo' Better Blues) and Debbie Allen (Fame) present a range of a cappella sounds that includes Take Six, Ladysmith Black Mambazo, Rockapella, the Mint Juleps, True Image and the Persuasions.

Where the Heart Is — a video hit

By Christopher Johnston

The Canadian Press

The bittersweet comedy Where the Heart Is (Touchstone), which spotlights a group of spoiled young adults trying to make it on their own, is a high-spirited combination of satire and silliness.

Although the main message of John Boorman's film — to get on in life you must co-operate with others — is one taught to toddlers by Sesame Street, getting it here is a whole lot of fun.

Much credit lies with Dabney Coleman who plays demolition expert Stewart McBain with great wit. McBain behaves just like one of his bulldozers when he decides his grown kids should start coping for themselves. He boots them out of his house and into a dilapidated tenement.

But when a takeover deal goes sour it's his world that comes tumbling down.

Thanks to the creativity of his artist daughter Chloe (Suzy Amis) who specializes in bizarre body-painting, and the striking fashion designs of her friend Lionel (Crispin Glover), the grim building the kids occupy is transformed into a blaze of colors and warmth. Adding to the joyous mood are some oddball folk — including Canadian Christopher Plummer as a seedy out-of-work magician.

Music Box (Caroleco) — This timely drama about a modern war-crimes trial is riveting. Much of its power comes from a flawless performance by Jessica Lange as a defence lawyer bidding to clear her elderly father's name.

Although mainly a courtroom drama, director Costa-Gavras

(Missing) widens its scope by concentrating on the turbulent father-daughter relationship. The drama includes a trip to Budapest where the key to the case awaits.

A fine story smartly told, this release is not to be missed.

House Party (RCA-Columbia) — At last: a Hollywood teen comedy with a rap beat. This black Saturday Night Fever has the latest in music, dance and street talk.

But this raw-edged comedy is not for everyone. Its loud music, raunchy language and occasional unsociable behavior will concern some parents. Still, it addresses three important teen issues — drinking, sexual responsibility and family values — by providing sane advice without preaching.

Christopher Reid plays Kid, a would-be rapper who sneaks out of his home to attend a party hosted by Play, Christopher Martin. It's a wild affair, but a group of brain-dead high school hoodlums intends to spoil things.

Joe Versus the Volcano (Warner) — This quirky comedy, about a "dying" man who agrees to go out in style by jumping into a volcano, has loads of potential. And with Tom Hanks and Meg Ryan as the leading players you'd imagine the romantic sparks would fly.

But after a promising opening sequence set in a desperately grim workplace, things degenerate. And once the script stops attempting to be funny we get more moralizing than on an average Cosby show.

Hanks looked far more comfortable teamed up with a slobbering canine in Turner and Hooch than he seems with Ryan, who is too busy switching roles (she has three) to come to his rescue.

John Patrick Shanley, making his major film directing debut, can take heart that this comic-strip story at least looks good on screen. The zany sets provide most of the fun.

Sniper (Xenon-Arena) — If you think Kurt Russell looks remarkably youthful on the box of this new release, you're right. This made-for-TV docu-drama, about the 1966 killing spree of ex-marine Charles Whitman, is 15 years old.

Whitman killed 13 and injured dozens by shooting from the top of a campus tower in Austin, Tex., on Aug. 1, 1966. He also killed his mother and wife.

Russell, who plays Whitman, speaks hardly more than a sentence in the entire film. The unheralded star is Richard Yniguez, who plays cop Ramiro Martinez, the man credited with ending the terror.

Jerry Jameson's film is a reasonably suspenseful effort, although hampered by wooden acting and some infuriating TV fadeouts.

New on video: Walt Disney's Peter Pan zooms into stores Sept. 21 with a suggested retail price of $24.99; civil war epic Glory features Denzel Washington and Morgan Freeman (RCA-Columbia, Sept. 19); Lesley Ann Warren stars in Beulah Land (RCA-Columbia, Sept. 19, a two-cassette set); Morgan Fairchild and Eddie Deezen star in the comedy Mob Boss (Vidmark, Sept. 26); James Brolin and Canadian model Isabelle Truchon are featured in the thriller Backstab (Malofilm, Sept. 25); and Krista Erickson plays a bad, bad girl in the psychological thriller Mortal Passions (CBS-Fox, Sept. 27).

This week's top movies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A comedy about drug-rehabilitation, Postcards From the Edge, delivered first-place North American box-office sales, mailing home $7.9 million US in its premiere weekend.

Ghost materialized in second. Postcards, based on the loosely autobiographical novel by actress Carrie Fisher and starring Shirley MacLaine and Meryl Streep, had a robust per-screen average of $7,771, figures compiled Monday by Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc. showed.

It opened Wednesday in New York, Los Angeles and Toronto, and made about $100,000 before weekend tabulation began with its general release.

Ghost, the summer's top money-maker added another $5.9 million. It has earned $141.4 million in 10 weeks.

Third was Death Warrant, starring kickboxer Jean-Claude Van Damme, registering $5 million in its debut weekend. Presumed Innocent was fourth with sales of $2.7 million. Flatliners was fifth with $2.6 million.

The techno-thriller Hardware, once rated X by the Motion Picture Association of America, opened in sixth with $2.3 million. Seventh was Darkman, with $2.1 million.

Emilio Estevez's garbage-man drama Men at Work collected $1.4 million. The Western sequel Young Guns II was ninth with $1.2 million and Problem Child was 10th with $1.1 million.

Russell Bank's Affliction — overpowering, memorable

Affliction by Russell Banks (McCLELLAND & STEWART): $24.95, 355 pp.

While it would be totally unfair to prejudge the chances that Canadian writer Alice Munro's short story collection Friend Of My Youth will have in competition with Russell Bank's novel Affliction, the winner of the second annual international Irish Times-Aer Lingus Fiction Prize may well be Banks, author of Continental Drift. The other books nominated include United Kingdom novelist A.S. Byatt's Possession, and Irish writer John McGahern's Amongst Women.

Certainly assessing the merits of only one entrant in often meaningless contests — the laughable Whale Music chosen over Mordecai Richler's Solomon Gursky Was Here rendering the Governor General's Award a meaningless farce — is no way to pass impartial judgment, but Russell Bank's book is such an overpowering, memorable reading experience that its admirers can only wish the other contestants well!

Affliction, set not much more than an hour's drive south of the Eastern Townships, in the outback of northern New Hampshire, begins with a straightforward prospectus of what is to follow: "This is the story of my older brother's strange criminal behavior and his disappearance". What Banks does not include in this stark opening is the information that his profile of Wade Whitehouse, as written by his brother Rolfe, is also an anatomical dissection of smalltown New England, handled with expert care and precision by a master novelist.

We are swept along by Bank's plain prose as Rolfe goes about piecing together the strange train of events that result in the ominously hinted at violence perpetrated by his brother — it's as if Banks is showing us the background to the often puzzling short newspaper accounts of domestic violence that erupts in our society, attempting to reveal how insignificant minor irritants can converge to force often brutal results.

Not that Wade Whitehouse is the kind of man that the neighbours living next door to a home shattered by violence would identify as "he was the quietest, kindest soul, how could this have happened?"

Kaleidoscope

By RICHARD LONEY

Whitehouse, as his brother recalls, suffered from some totally brutal childhood bearings at the hands of his father, was shipped off to Korea when his elder brothers were winning honour in Vietnam, and fell prey to the number one killer of families in North America, divorce. Banks leads us through this complex domestic drama with skills that are never obtrusive and always subtle, allowing Rolfe to selectively peel back the layers of the onion skin that is a perfect metaphor for the complexity of social, domestic and traditional patterns of behavior that govern the citizens of Lawford, New Hampshire.

As Affliction moves along with the inevitability of a glacial onslaught, we come to know Wade Whitehouse intimately — his daily routine as Lawford's part-time law officer and children's crossing guard, and his mundane job of keeping the roads plowed in winter; his ongoing battle with his ex-wife Lillian to gain short hours of custody of his daughter Jill; his agonizing decisions about his now aged and hopelessly alcoholic father, Glenn; and his awkward relationship with his younger brother Rolfe, the narrator, who has escaped Lawford, to become a high school teacher and writer, and for whom he holds a grudging respect.

All of the details about Wade's life have come from Rolfe's memories of their childhood, interviews he has conducted with Lawford residents who were aware of his routines, and such details police reports that attempted to account for the last two or three eventful days leading up to Wade's violent behavior and disappearance.

Wade Whitehouse's disintegration is total, with Banks revealing that the affliction that finally brought about the climax of the book had its roots in many disparate causes, although Rolfe does not attempt to absolve his ill-fated brother of any wrongdoing.

What he tries to do is to account for the erratic behavior of an individual by analyzing all of the available information, physical and psychic, about that individual with the added gifts of an exceptionally astute novelist.

Russell Banks turns elemental sociology into the stuff of fine fiction with a power that is scarcely every realized by his peers. It would be hard to bet against Affliction in any kind of contest!

RECORDINGS REVIEWED

Jellyfish Bellybutton (CHARISMA-VIRGIN — A&M)

Once you get by the psychedelic cover art — a nude girl's figure with strategically placed gobs of blue gorp splayed across it, while miniatures of the quartet frolic thereon — and the resultant album title — Bellybutton — Jellyfish delivers what has to be one of the most astounding releases of 1990.

From a host of back-to-school recordings, including Los Lobos, Living Colour, 2 Live Crew, Aerosmith, or Dylan, this set from Jellyfish would likely be the last one to be selected, at least by merit of artwork and band name. This stunning collection just happens to contain more pure gems of sound than all of the aforementioned, super-hyped pretenders combined!

Jellyfish's songs are written by Andy Starmer and Roger Manning, who offer a creative tandem that is much like the inspired work of World Party's Karl Wallinger, only doubled.

Songs like "The King Is Half-Undressed", with its enigmatic lyrics and tribute to Brian Wilson dramatic-voicing at its conclusion; or "I Wanna Stay Home", with its light, acoustic feel and "Penny Lane" style of layered horns; or "She Still Loves Him", with Elton John piano intro, which segues into a tune that could have been performed by Badfinger or Queen, offer the listener a fresh challenge with each passing track. Queen fans may think its Brian May playing the insistent lead guitar lines on this one, but in reality its Jason Falkner, who with Chris Manning rounds out this talented quartet.

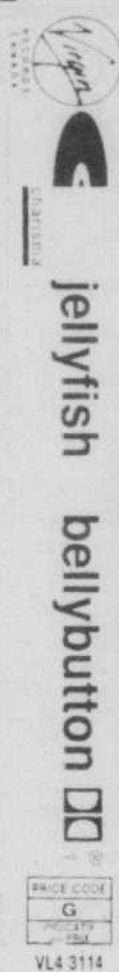

Gliding from stylized to style with the ease of seasoned veterans, Jellyfish do a Cheap Trick take-off on the raucous "All I Want Is Everything", saving the most tantalizing trio of songs for the end of the second side, with "Bedspring Kiss", "Baby's Coming Back" and "Calling Sarah" all vying for nearest song honours.

"Bedspring" may have a heroin shoot-up for its likely subject, but the song begins with a torchy trumpet opening that leads into a complex ditty that is at times mad-deningly obtuse, even as it is swinging along gracefully; "Baby's Coming Back" appears to be Jellyfish's tribute to songs by Sam Cooke or Jackie Wilson, with a Motownish feel that is given the same kind of interpretation the Beatles gave to Shirelles material, with background choruses, accented hand-claps on the off-beats, and the good-timey feel of early Beatles' performances.

"Calling Sarah", although it closes Jellyfish's debut, features a cool, insistent electric piano, Andy Starmer's youthful baritone, and some delicious backing vocals that make you wish every tape-deck had auto-reverse. Given the way that this recording moves so blithely from great song to greater song, Jellyfish should have no trouble in attracting a large audience for their blend of vocals, stylish songs and exciting performances. Not to be missed in 1990!

Dan Fogelberg The Wild Places (EPIC-COLUMBIA)

Dan Fogelberg aficionados — and they are a select, fiercely loyal crew — may have to grudgingly admit that two of the best tracks on his three-years-in-the-making recordings are songs from Bruce Cockburn and The Cascades.

Fogelberg's slowed down the tempo of "Rhythm of The Rain," the song that peaked at Number One the week of March 9, 1963, for the one-hit wonder Cascades, and manages to add a soulful quality to a tune that is usually interpreted as lightweight pop fluff.

The Cockburn interpretation of "Lovers In A Dangerous Time" works, by grace of the Canadian songwriter's superior lyrics — in fact, when compared to lines from "Anastasia's Eyes", Cockburn's text wins hands down: "There's thorns on the cactus tree/There's thorns on the rose/There's thorns in the heart of me/That nobody knows", is hardly a match for "These fragile bodies of touch and taste/This vibrant skin, this hair like lace/Spirits open to thrust of grace/Never a breath you can afford to waste".

Fogelberg has never been known for his lyric writing, but the sentiment of songs like "Leader of The Band", or "Same Old Lang Syne" always won him accolades. Here there's a song similar in theme to the former, with "Forefathers", and a couple that skirt around the sentiments of the latter in "Song Of The Sea" or "Ever On". One decidedly new wrinkle in Fogelberg's worldview is his stinging social satire in "Blind To The Truth", which takes on city craziness, Brazilian deforestation and ecological suicide in one bitter diatribe.

A concern for American native people comes through in the title track and in a song dedicated to Georgia O'Keefe, "Bones In The Sky", and while the multi-layered songwriting technique of Dan Fogelberg has been emulated by everyone from Kurt Wallinger to Stevie Wonder, it's ironic that even the record company concedes that "Rhythm Of The Rain" will be the song to watch from The Wild Places — it is scheduled to be the first single and video release from an artist who has won his laurels on the strength of his recorded albums.

Around-the-world air fares can one of the best bargains

By Felicity Munn
CP Travel Writer

In 1873 it was considered an incredible feat when Jules Verne's fictional Phileas Fogg won a bet by circling the globe in 80 days.

The same thing can now be done in something like two days. But who would want to?

Nowadays, around-the-world air tickets appeal mainly to those with wanderlust and some time on their hands.

Money is necessary too, of course — but around-the-world fares are actually one of the best travel bargains.

In fact, for those travelling business or first class, the savings are staggering. One of British Airways' around-the-world tickets costs $5,039 in first class — versus $5,566 for a return Toronto-London trip in first class.

The bargains aren't bad in economy class either. The lowest round-the-world fare out of Canada is currently $2,667, compared with about $2,000 for the lowest return fare to India from Toronto or about $1,800 for the lowest return fare to Australia.

(Fares were valid as of early September, when many air fares had just been hiked by five to six per cent because of rising fuel costs. The airlines said round-the-world fares would likely also rise soon.)

Round-the-world passengers help fill seats that might otherwise be empty, and despite the relatively low prices, the airlines make money on the tickets.

TWO CATEGORIES

The routes fall into two basic categories — Northern Hemisphere and Southern Hemisphere. But beyond that, the choices are dizzying.

When consulting a travel agent or airlines, expect to be asked numerous questions: Do you want to go to Bombay or Bahrain after Hong Kong? Between London and Sydney, do you want Manila or Singapore? Do you want to get to Australia from Africa, which will cost more, or Manila, which is included in the basic fare? Do you want to stop in Fiji, Hawaii or Tahiti?

It takes time and research to find the right route at the right price, although technically the tickets need be booked only three weeks in advance.

Any around-the-world itinerary involves two or more airlines that have so-called interline agreements, and the traveller is limited to those carriers.

Travel can be either east to west or west to east, but it must always be in the same direction — no backtracking allowed unless it's in the form of side trips included in the fare.

Most tickets are valid for a year, although some have a six-month limit. Normally there's no limit on stopovers.

BACK TO HOME

A sample Northern Hemisphere route might be from Montreal to Milan to Rome to Delhi to Hong Kong to Tokyo to Vancouver and back to Montreal.

That's from Canadian Airlines International plus Alitalia and would cost $2,667 in economy, $3,810 in business and $4,827 in first class. An optional side trip to South America would cost $800 extra.

Going the other direction on Air Canada and Singapore Airlines, a globetrotter could travel from Calgary to San Francisco to Honolulu to Hong Kong to Singapore to Bombay to London to Toronto to Calgary. Prices are identical to the Canadian-Alitalia fares.

The so-called Southern Hemisphere routes also generally go through Europe and Asia; the difference is they include Australia, New Zealand and some South Pacific islands and tend to cost more.

One such trip would be Toronto to London, followed by a side trip to Paris or just about anywhere else on the Continent. Then the passenger could choose one of five cities in Africa — Harare in Zimbabwe, for example — and continue from there to Perth to Auckland to Fiji to Hawaii to San Francisco to Chicago to Toronto.

That would be aboard British Airways, Qantas and United Airlines and would cost $3,371 in economy, $5,135 in business and $7,256 in first class, plus, for the optional Africa segment, an extra $160 US, $285 US and $350 US respectively.

CAN BE CHANGED

Only the first flight segment of these tickets must be confirmed, but it's a good idea to book all the way through and then make changes later, particularly if travel will be during peak periods.

Travel dates can be changed at no charge. Depending on the airline, however, changing the routing may cost about $30 each time.

Using American carriers out of the United States, there are naturally many more options.

There are also "bucket shops" — discount travel agencies — in the United States that offer circle-the-globe tickets at extremely low prices.

Ads for these discounters in the travel pages of American newspapers offer prices of, say, $1,399 US for New York to Hong Kong to Bangkok to Cairo to Paris to New York.

The agencies buy seats at big discounts by negotiating directly with airlines. They put together the routing themselves and once the ticket is issued, no routing changes can be made.

Canadian Airlines International and Air New Zealand have forged a commercial alliance to launch joint services between Auckland, Vancouver and Toronto.

Beginning Dec. 2, the airlines will operate four weekly Canada-New Zealand flights. The service will likely increase next year to daily flights.

Air New Zealand also becomes a partner in Canadian's frequent flyer plan, Canadian Plus.

First- and business-class passengers on selected Air Canada flights between Toronto and London can now use a free chauffeur service to and from Heathrow airport in London.

The limousine service is offered within a 60-kilometre radius of Heathrow with 1990 Ford Scorpios equipped with air conditioning and telephone.

It's available to passengers on flight 856, which departs Toronto for London at 7:45 p.m. daily, and flight 857, departing Heathrow for Toronto at 1:15 p.m.

If customer reaction is positive, the airline may extend the service. In the meantime, it's offered on a trial basis until Dec. 3.

Tour operator Canadian Holidays is offering savings of $50 per adult for departures between Dec. 15 and May 12 if the holiday is paid for in full by Oct. 31.

Early bookers can opt for a four-piece set of luggage instead of the $50 discount. One set of luggage is offered for every two full-paying adults.

Seniors aged 55 and over who reserve by Dec. 7 receive a five per cent discount off any Canadian Holidays vacation package, except for the fully escorted seniors' tours to Orlando.

The Michelin travel guidebook people have introduced their first world map, depicting the Earth "in all its major facets," according to a news release.

It's available in English or French, in folded or rolled format. The recommended price for the folded map is $7.95, and for the rolled map in a tube it's $14.95.

The Ritz in London is promoting what it calls the ultimate Christmas vacation, featuring in-room Christmas trees, Yuletide choirs, gifts and elaborate holiday meals.

The five-day, four-night package begins Dec. 23 with cocktails in the hotel's Palm Court, followed by an informal dinner.

Christmas Eve activities include afternoon tea and midnight mass at St. James's church, followed by hot mulled wine and roasted chestnuts in the Stafford Cellars.

Christmas Day features a four-course dinner with all the trimmings. The next day, guests watch a traditional Boxing Day football match, highlighted by a champagne lunch.

The package price is in pound sterling but translates to about $1,350 US per person.

If that seems steep, The Ritz also has two-night New Year's packages, offering a choice on New Year's Eve between the gala dinner dance in the Ritz Restaurant (about $945 US per person for the package) or big-band dancing in the Palm Court (about $780 US per person.)

Shops specializing in travel accessories have gadgets ranging from the purely practical to the wildly expensive and esoteric.

There's only a handful of these emporiums in Canada, mainly in large cities. Luggage and department stores also sell basic travel accessories, like money belts or inflatable travel pillows.

Usually, however, people looking for that special water filter, travel-size first-aid kit or portable lock for a hotel room door have to shop around.

To make finding such items easier, Magellan's, a mail-order firm based in Santa Barbara, Calif., was founded a year ago.

IN ONE PLACE

John McManus, a travel industry veteran and president of Magellan's, says the aim was to pull together useful items for travellers.

"All of our people here have been in the travel industry," he said in a telephone interview, "and it's funny how many of us have always been fascinated with what people really swear by when they go travelling."

"We've always made little notes about those things that some people think are gadgets and other people think are just exactly what they need."

"We just thought it was a ripe idea to put them all into a catalogue and put them into the hands of travellers."

NEW CATALOGUE

The second annual Magellan's catalogue, titled Essentials for the International Traveller, is just out and features a solid selection of nuts-and-bolts accessories.

They include currency converters, travel alarm clocks, a travel iron, electric converters and adapters, money belts and pouches, compact magnetic board games, several styles of organizers and a door-stop-style burglar alarm.

Other items, like Le Scent or the Travel Trainer, are simple but ingenious.

McManus said Le Scent was added to the latest catalogue because of complaints from women customers about bottles of perfume leaking, spilling or breaking in transit. It looks like a fountain pen and works much the same way, with perfume drawn up the barrel.

The Travel Trainer is for people who like to work out with weights on their wrists or ankles. The vinyl bands have Velcro ends and weigh next to nothing until they are filled with water. Then they become weights of more than a kilogram apiece. SAFE IN VIEW

There are also "diversion safes" — empty containers of foot powder, shaving cream or hair spray that look like the real thing but are really insulated "safes" in which valuables can be hidden.

One of the most expensive items in the catalogue is a $99 US short-wave radio that is about the size of a thick passport and has a built-in alarm clock.

Another higher-ticket item is an electronic interpreter that can translate 12,500 words among five languages — German, French, Italian, Spanish and English. It could just about fit into a shirt pocket and sells for $89 US.

Most of the other items are much cheaper — the diversion safes are $16.95 US, Le Scent $12.85 US, the training weights $28.50 US a pair.

BEST SELLER

The top-selling item so far? The distinctly utilitarian Le Funelle, a device that permits women to urinate while standing up.

Billed as "the perfect answer to unsanitary toilets all over the world," the scoop-shaped device is made of biodegradable paper, so it can be tossed into the toilet after use, and sells for $4.99 US for a packet of 10.

"Not very glamorous, to say the least," noted McManus, "but obviously a much needed item."

For a free copy of the catalogue, write Magellan's, P.O. Box 5485, Santa Barbara, CA 93150-5485; or telephone (805) 969-5235, Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. EST.

WHAT'S ON

Notes

Entertainment in its many forms is blossoming into never-before variety and excellence in the Eastern Townships. ZNews comes to us this week about the new Children's Movie Series which begins this Saturday at Centennial Theatre. They are not only presenting something new and especially geared for the youngsters but they're doing it in grand style using new movie projection facilities that feature a 42-foot screen and reels that stand as tall as I do. The whole affair is made possible by the generous support of MacDonald Restaurants in Sherbrooke and Magog. Joe Scott, head man from the area's restaurants presented Bishop's University Dean Dr. Hugh Scott with a 'fat cheque' this week, ensuring the series would really happen and at a more-than-reasonable price of $2 per youngster. So we're back to Saturday matinées — remember — complete with popcorn and soft drinks. Feature this week at 2 on Saturday — The Little Mermaid. Bet there'll be lots of big kids out for this one too.

Bishop's University Singers have started rehearsals for the 90-91 concert season. They are on every Tuesday evening from 7 to 9. For more information call the music department at (819) 822-9642.

After an overwhelmingly successful first season, the Orchestre de Chambre de l'Estrie, formerly the Orchestre de Chambre de Sherbrooke, under the direction of Marc David will present three subscription series concerts. The program will be highlighted by superb soloists from the region in the four gala events already well past the planning stages. The first concert is coming right up — September 29 at St. Andrew's Church on Frontenac Street in Sherbrooke — with trumpeter Claude Berger performing works by Albini and Purcell. Season's subscription is $40, tickets are $15 at the door. Student fee is $30 or $12 at the door. Send payments to Orchestre de Chambre de l'Estrie, P.O. 305, Sherbrooke, Que., J1H 5J1 or call (819) 821-4101.

CBC SPOTLIGHT

A brand new music special, George Fox's New Country, starring Canada's newest country singing sensation and winner of the 1990 Juno Award for Male Country Vocalist, George Fox, will air Saturday, Sept. 22 at 8.

Is Satan for real? Or do sensational stories of Satanism conceal more serious problems in our communities. On the season Première of Man Alive, host Peter Downie raises this question in the Devil's Principles — Tuesday, Sept. 25 at 9:30.

The Nature of Things with David Suzuki moves to a new time slot this fall. Beginning Wednesday, Sept. 26, the series will telecast at 9. The new season will debut with The Green Quiz on Oct. 3. In the meantime to help viewers get accustomed to the new time, the last summer repeat program will be seen next Wednesday at 9.

CTV HIGHLIGHTS

A CTV Special Presentation — Lawrence of Arabia — the epic saga detailing the rise and fall of the great Lawrence of Arabia, and his lost dream of a united Arab-Turk empire airs Sunday, Sept. 23 at 8:30. The conclusion of this two-part series begins at 9 on Monday.

WCFC — Plattsburgh

The Civil War, an epic 11-hour major television event, produced and directed by award-winning documentary filmmaker Ken Burns begins a five consecutive night broadcast Sunday, Sept. 23 at 8 on Channel 57. The Civil War was five years in the making, utilizing archival images of thousands of photographs, taken from a total of one million pictures and includes period paintings, lithographs and headlines. Producer Ken Burns says, "The Civil War has history running on all cylinders."

VERMONT ETV HIGHLIGHTS

The Civil War also premieres on ETV on Sunday at 8. This long-awaited documentary series continues all week beginning each night at 8.

On Friday at 9, an encore presentation of Bernstein in East Berlin recalls conductor Leonard Bernstein's historic Christmas Day 1989 performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.

Exhibitions

The Memphremagog Library continues their outstanding display of photographs taken by Pierre Morency. Morency was at Tiananmen Square, China in May '89 at the time of the student revolt and the consequent massacre and brutal repression. The exhibition continues until the end of the month and is well worth a visit.

At Bishop's University Art Gallery — False Icons and the Absurd — a collaborative exhibition by Eudice Garmaise, painter and Anne Kahane, sculptor.

To produce this series of works in oil on large panels of laminated wood, Kahane invented shapes which she cut through the wood, and the sinuous edges that shape the panels. Garmaise conceived and executed the surfaces painted in oil around the cutout shapes. If each work in the series has been titled by the allusion envisaged, each panel stands on its own strength as a work of art.

In the library at Collège du Sacré Coeur, 155 Belvédère Nord, Sherbrooke, there will be an exhibition titled Mirals, wooden tableaux created by Hughes Mercier. The display continues till Oct. 30. It may be viewed during regular library hours, every day from 8:30 to 4. The public is welcome.

Musée des Beaux Arts de Sherbrooke began their fall-winter season September 15 with an exhibition featuring the 6th edition of Musée de nos Maisons, a display of art works and artifacts kindly loaned by local people to the museum.

New fall hours at the Louis St-Laurent Historic Site — to October 14 — From Wednesday to Sunday from 10 to 5.

Equipax Gallery in Newport, Vermont will open an exhibition entitled International Autumn Show August 31, continuing until October 27. The Canadian artist featured is René Durocher from Magog with Vermont artists Nancy Bandy, Curtis Hempt and Frank Wallace. The gallery is located in the Hood Building, 30 Coventry Street, Newport. Telephone (802) 334-8054.

At the Uplands Museum in Lennoxville, an exhibit entitled Threads of Our Past continues. It's a display on textiles from the museum's own collection. There is also an exhibit entitled "Lennoxville past, present and future". Uplands is open from 1 to 5 weekdays (except Mondays). You'll find the museum at 50 Park St. in Lennoxville.

The wildlife photography exhibit continues at Centre d'Exposition Léon-Marcotte on Frontenac Street. The centre is open from 12:30 to 5 every day except Monday. The centre has new admission rates: $2 for adults and $1 for children, students and seniors. There is also a subscription rate of $15 for adults and $20 for families. Tickets gain access to the exhibition centre and the Musée du Séminaire. The museum is situated at 195 Marquette in Sherbrooke.

The Stanstead Historical Society presents an exhibition titled From Past to Present featuring old quilts from the Colby Curtis Collection, modern quilts by Adaïre Chown Schlatter and pottery by Richard Surette. The show continues until September 30.

At the Musée des Beaux Arts on rue Palais in Sherbrooke a display of nearly 500 works from their permanent collection. The museum is open every day except Monday. For info call 821-2115.

Arts Sutton, located at 7 Academy Street, opened a new exhibition September 1 featuring artists Bonnie Baxter, Monique Charbonneau, Réal Dumais and Bernice Sorge. Also on display are sculptures by Mark Latzmann. The exhibition continues till Sept. 23. The gallery is open Thursday through Sunday from 1 to 5.

Coming to Arts Sutton next week, Sept. 29 is an exhibition of sculpture and drawing by David Moore. The vernissage is Saturday, Sept. 29 from 2 to 5 at the gallery, Sutton, Quebec. For info call Anne Lalonde Thursday or Friday between 1 and 5.

The Galerie d'Art de la Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke Est continues an exhibition of works titled Le Monde Bizarre by Michel Pimparé until September 28. The artist claims his work is an expression of three main themes — self-taught expression which does not recognize the usual rules; fantasy, which carries the artist beyond reality and surrealism. The gallery is open Monday to Friday between 10 and 5, on Wednesday till 5:45 and Thursday till 8.

Galerie Horace began its first new-season exhibitions September 7 featuring the works of Michèle Tremblay-Gillon in Hall 1 and Yvon Lessard, printmaker, in Hall 2. The gallery is located at 906 King St. West in Sherbrooke and is open Wednesday to Friday from 12 to 5, Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 5.

Until Oct. 30, Carrefour de solidarité internationale will present a tremendous exhibition of photographs and visual art-works at Galerie d'art de la Caisse Populaire Ste-Famille in Fleurimont. Titled Realités et Mythes Africains, the display is a collection of Sherbrooke-photographer Richard Grenier's work as well as photos taken in Africa by Denis Marchand. The collections take the viewer on a trip that visits Africa, Mali and Sénégal. The gallery is open during regular banking hours. For more info call Denis Marchand at (819) 566-8595.

In the lobby of Raymond, Chabot, Martin, Paré, a new exhibition takes over the spotlight starting with the opening vernissage Wednesday, Sept. 26 in the company headquarters, 455 King West, Sherbrooke. This display is a very special feature this fall as it highlights the work of Association Entraide Cancer du Québec, Madelyn Allard. The association is dedicated to giving and promoting moral support for young people afflicted with this dreaded disease. Allard has just returned from a European tour accompanied by a dozen young cancer patients who are working toward establishing a similar group in Europe. The exhibition, which will help raise funds for this project, also includes works by several members of the Eastern Townships chapter of the association including Madeleine Guillemette, Daniel Harvey and Vincent Laflamme. The exhibition continues until Oct. 12.

Galerie Jeannine Blais opens a new exhibition on Sept. 29 featuring the recent work of Luce Fourmaux. The vernissage is from 5 to 7. The gallery, at 100 Main, North Hatley, is open everyday from 10 to 5.

Music

On Saturday, Sept. 29 at 8, the Orchestre de chambre de l'Estrie will present the first concert of its 1990-91 season at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Sherbrooke. Directed by Marc David, featured soloist Claude Berger will perform works by Albinoni and Handel. This concert will be repeated at Collège Mont Notre-Dame on Sunday, Sept. 30 at 3 featuring talented oboist, Maryse Fredette as soloist. Tickets at $15/$12 for both performances are now on sale at the following locations: Le Gramophone (Les Promendades King), La Trouvaille (Carrefour de l'Estrie), Essaim Pharmacy in Lennoxville and at 14 Alexander Street in Sherbrooke. Tickets and series subscriptions will also be available just prior to the Saturday and Sunday concerts. For info or re-

The Children's Movie Series, gets a helping hand from regional MacDonald restaurants' Joe Scott. Dr. Hugh Scott, dean of Bishop's University accepted the MacDonald donation this week, just in time for the opening day film — The Little Mermaid — this Saturday. See NOTES.

Now in its eighth consecutive season, the Music Chez Nous Series continues to offer the best regional and national performers in an informal and informative atmosphere. This year, the program grows even more intimate with an accent on Chamber music. The season open with the first area performance by the Musica Tabja Quintet, an ensemble of young musicians formed at the University of Toronto where they met. This concert at Centennial Theatre tonight, Friday, Sept. 21 at 8:30 will provide music lovers of the region with an opportunity to hear the quintet's delightful repertoire for winds and piano. Tickets for all concerts are $5 ($3 for students and seniors), available through the box office at Centennial Theatre. For info call the department of music at (819) 822-9642.

News from the Yamaska Ecumenical Choir announces they are back at work with practices each Thursday at 7:30 in St. John's Anglican Church in Bromont. Although the choir is only two years old, it is succeeding in their goal of promoting sacred music, contributing to ecumenical action and encouraging vocal skills for young and old. A warm welcome is extended to all who would enjoy blending their voice with this promising group of singers. For info call H. Carrière — (514) 372-3956 or G. Lortie — (514) 534-2012.

ROCKIN' COUNTRY

Popular singer Céline Dion will do feature performances in Drummondville and Sherbrooke as she tours Quebec extensively. Dion will be at Centre Culturel, Drummondville on Oct. 10 and 11 — and Salle Maurice O'Bready, University of Sherbrooke Oct. 12 and 13. Tickets are on sale now and available either at the box offices or by reserving at (819) 477-5412 for Drummondville or (819) 821-7744 at University of Sherbrooke. They can also be ordered by phone on the Télétron network by calling (514) 288-2525.

Now we have some astounding news!! You remember Stompin' Tom Connors? Well, you guessed it. This returned from the mists of semi-retirement down-to-earth country music song writer and singer, recently a sell-out at The Clog in Gatineau, will actually be appearing in 'these-hyar-parts' on October 1. And where else but at Centennial Theatre, in the heart of the Eastern Townships hills. Tickets are on sale NOW at Centennial Theatre Box Office on Bishop's University campus and they're going like wildfire. Call (819) 826-9692 to get yours and we'll have lots more to tell you about this legendary plywood-stomping singer next week.

The Richmond Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion have started their month-long country-music Saturday nights. The Rhythm Boys featuring well-known fiddler Roger Desrochers will be entertaining September 15 and 22, (not Sept. 29) with more of their great down-home country music. This group features the singing fiddle of Roger along with some great traditional country-music sounds. Admission is $3 and music begins around 9:30.

The Good Ole Boys Band with owners-entertainers Ray St. Laurent and Linda Sparks have an added attraction at their popular country bar — The Wildwood, out on Belvedere South. A new feature Sunday afternoons will be a regular dart tournament beginning around 1 every week. Of course the great music they're famous for is still the main attraction Friday and Saturday nights. Music is from 9:30 till 2, Friday and Saturday and on Sunday afternoon from 4 till 9.

Rocky River Band has settled into the Hotel d'en Haut in Cookshire for the month. They play every Friday and Saturday.

The Suttonaires are at the Hut for the month of September. Music begins around 9 and don't forget, they stop early — at 1:30 or so. Better get out to see them soon in Lennoxville as they move on to the Dunham Hotel during October.

At Manoir Renaissance in Waterville the Concordes with Sidney Aulis play up a storm for the month of September. Their specialty is country rock and they play their best Friday and Saturday nights from 10 till 2:30.

Country Fever returns to Le Bar Théâtre de la Gorge September 21 and 22 in Coaticook at 135 Michaud St. Steve and Jessie will be joined by guitarist-singer Steve Powers (not Bauer, guess I was thinking about hockey), and country music is their specialty. Dancing from 9:30 to 1:30.

At the Golden Lion Saturday night — The Mick Hall Band returns, with great rock beginning at 10:30. Admission is $2.

At Hotel Scotstown in Scotstown, the Mosquito Bay Band, experts in the field of country music, rock & roll and retro play up a storm Friday and Saturday, Sept. 21 and 22. Next Thursday, Sept. 27 they turn up at Auberge Lakeview in Knowlton. Music goes on at 9:30 till 2:30.

Events

The weekend for the Richmond Quebec Farmers Association market has rolled around once again. This weekend these folks will be displaying their wares including all kinds of fresh vegetables, fruit and lots of artsy-craftsy things you might find are just right for a Christmas gift.

They'll have oil paintings, engraved glass, ceramics, and a host of interesting things. The market opens Friday at 2 till 10, Saturday from 10 till 8 and Sunday from 11 till 4. That's in the Richmond Community Centre, near the arena on Gouin Street.

There's a parade coming up in Richmond on Sept. 30. This one is to help folks get better acquainted with Free Masonry, so the local Masonic Lodge has invited the Shriners Karnak Pipes and Drums to come out and strut their stuff for one and all. The parade gets under way from Lodge 15, (at the Radio Shack building corner of Main and Adam), proceeds up Adam to College as far as the United Church. Everybody is invited to join in Divine Service and then enjoy the parade back to its departure point, this time via Main Street. Organisers hope the event will help promote more awareness in Free Masonry, in particular in the Richmond area.

Panoramaduodlacte which began Labor Day weekend in Sutton, will last until October 8, and includes recreational, educational and sports activities for family and friends, including animation for children, pantomime evenings for adults, excursions and outings on the well-marked network of trails, and arts and crafts workshops. Special lodging packages are also offered during the six weekends. For more information, call, during office hours — (514) 538-2339.

And while we're on the subject of the fall festival in Sutton, news has arrived of a very unusual event, planned as part of the festival program. Believe it or not — It's all in your MIME, an evening of pantomime by Ben Labarouette Productions is scheduled every Friday and Saturday night until October 6. Mime, the mirror of society in constant evolution is ably handled by a classical yet contemporary duo — Ben Labarouette and Mimosa.

With the use of just a few gestures, the duo conjures up visions ranging from the immense to the most intimate. The whole affair takes place at Auberge La Paimpolaise, 615 Maple, Sutton. The price is $27 per person including full course dinner, tax and service not included. You can call for reservations — (514) 538-3213.

The Eastern Townships Trail Association will be taking a walk around Pic de l'Ours at Orford this Sunday, Sept. 23. This one is rated 1 — that is — moderately difficult. You really should let them know you're going on these jaunts the Thursday before each event. For all the details call Réne Pomerleau at (819) 843-0242.

The Ladies Auxiliary 'Br. 56' of the Royal Canadian Legion, Granby, will hold another Sunday Breakfast on Sept. 30, (the last one was so good) from 9 to 1:30. That's in the Legion Hall, 172 Court St., Granby. Price is $3.25.

The 3rd Annual Fall Foliage Festival is scheduled for Sat., Sept. 29 in the village of East Burke, Vt. The day-long event will offer fine arts and crafts exhibits, antiques, a flea market, Christmas bazaar, lunch at the church, a chicken barbecue, food concessions, hay rides, games, face painting and a parade. If that's not enough there'll be continuous live entertainment at the village gazebo too. The fun begins at 9 and the village is located on route 114. For info write The Burke Business Association, P.O. 247, East Burke, Vt., 05832 or call (802) 626-3161, 8329, 8568.

There'll be a public information meeting about the inter-ministerial report concerning judicial archives. Recommendations in the report will improve the accessibility of this invaluable documentation which, to date, has been almost impossible to consult. The meeting, scheduled at Archives Nationales du Québec, Centre d'Archives de l'Estrie, 740 Galt West, Rez-de-chaussée, Porte 11, Sherbrooke, Que., will last about 3 hours — guest speaker is Evelyn Kolish from the National Archives in Quebec. It all begins at 7 on October 1.

And out at Bar Country Bretagne they have started up weekly dart tournaments. That's right, every Saturday afternoon at 2, a dart tournament gets underway and the prizes are cold cash, up to $150 guaranteed. But you have to take the luck of the draw, (with a smile of course). You'll find the bar at 6270 on Route 143, (the old road to Standstead from Lennoxville). Or call (819) 837-2323 if you don't believe me.

The St. Johnsbury Lions Club will sponsor a Lion's Fall Holiday, September 29 & 30 on the grounds of the Farmer's Daughter Gift Barn, Route 2, St. Johnsbury, Vt., 05819. Just a few of the events — and there's a bundle of things to do and see — include spit roasted beef dinner, (all you can eat — lumberjack style), fall foliage train ride, antique engine and implement show, live entertainment both days, Vermont arts and crafts sale, horse-drawn hay ride, on site cider-making and glass-blowing. The train ride will cost you $11.95 — $9.95 for the kids; dinner is $8.95 — $6.95 for the kids and a combined ticket is $18.95 — $14.95 for the youngsters. Reservations are requested for the train ride and dinner. Call James or Meredyth Young — (802) 748-3994.

They have another story-telling evening coming up at Sherbrooke Municipal Library, Dufferin Street, on Sept. 25 from 7:30 on. Invited guest is famous raconteur of tall tales weird and wonderful — François Bourbeau. A limited number of tickets are now available during regular library hours. Admission is $3.

Galerie Horace tells us of a trip organised by Regroupement des artistes des Cantons de l'Est (RACE) which will give their guests a first hand view of the fall foliage plus a three-day visit to New York City. Accommodation is at the Washington Square Hotel and the cost includes transport and two nights accommodation. Cost is $169 — double occupancy, $149 for quadruple occupancy and information is only a phone call away. Call Nathalie Dupuis at the gallery — (819) 821-2326.

There's another trip coming up for members and friends of the Club des Grands Voyageurs. This time they'll head south to the White Mountains, on to the Conway Scenic Railway. Departure is October 10 from the Centre récréatif communautaire, 400 rue Galt ouest, Sherbrooke. But early registration is a must, so call (819) 564-7485.

Theatre

The next workshop presented by Théâtre du Double Signe is especially for adolescents presided over by Lilie Bergeron. This session begins Sept. 24, cost is $85 per person and there's room for 12 persons. To register call the theatre, Mario Trépanier, (819) 565-5536.

Movies

This Saturday, all kids, any age, are notified. The first of the Children's Movie Series begins at Centennial Theatre in Lennoxville where the screen is 42 feet wide and they have movies scheduled every week for adults and children too. The first feature is The Little Mermaid, animation at its best. All films for adults and students will be presented on Tuesdays at 7 and 9:30. Children's films are a Saturday feature at 2. For info call (819) 822-9691.

For the adults on Tuesday it's Glory, a historical drama with Matthew Broderick and Denzel Washington. A stunning page of history — a great story of courage.

Coming to La Maison du Cinéma, located at 63 King West in Sherbrooke, starting Friday — Problem Child starts Friday. Curtain rises every day at 7:10 and 9 with matinées Sunday at 1:10 and 3.

Also showing this week is Darkman showing every day at 7 and 9, Sundays at 1:05 and 3:10.

At Cowansville's Princess Theatre — Pretty Woman at 7 and Wild at Heart at 9:15.

On for another week at Merrill's Showplace in Newport is Men at Work, with Charlie Sheen and Emilio Estevez. Curtain rises at 7:10 and 9:25 every evening.

Ghost stays on one more time. Rated PG. It's on every day at 6:45 and 9:15 with matinées at 1:40 on the weekend.

Flatliners opens this week showing every evening at 7 and 9:20 — matinées Saturday and Sunday at 1:50.

Gremlins II hits Newport this week as well. Another one about those pointy-eared rascals with sharp teeth and claws. Matinées only at 1:30 Saturday and Sunday. Special news tells us about the Super-Saver Matinée Saturday and Sunday — admissions $2.50 all seats — all films.

Leonard Bernstein's Christmas Day comes to Vermont ETV. See NOTES.

The Civil War premieres on Vermont ETV this Sunday. See NOTES.

ASK TONI

Campbell got his start as a session musician

By Toni Reinhold

What can you tell me about Glen Campbell's career? How did he get his start in show business? — A.F., St. Peters, Nova Scotia, Canada

Glen Campbell

Most sources say that Campbell's birthday is April 22, 1935. He was born in Delight, Ark., and started to play the guitar before he began school. By the age of 6, he was considered a prodigy. He joined a traveling Western band when he was a teen-ager and later formed his own group in New Mexico. He moved to California in 1960 and became a well-known session musician. In 1961, Campbell had his first hit, "Turn Around, and Look at Me." In 1969, he co-starred with John Wayne in the film "True Grit." During the heyday of the variety show, Campbell was a familiar face on TV, not only as a guest performer, but on his own show, "The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour" (1969-72).

I am mystified by Yul Brynner, and can find little information about his life. Can you tell me something about him? — A.B., Woodstock, N.Y.

The fabulous actor was born Yul Brynner on July 11, 1915 (although some sources say 1917, 1920 or 1922) on Sakhalin Island, north of Japan and now part of the Soviet Union. Brynner lived in Paris as a teen-ager and was a musician and trapeze artist. In 1940, he moved to the United States. He made his first movie, "Port of New York," in 1949, and two years later found himself on Broadway in his most famous role, as the monarch in "The King and I." He reprised that role in the film version in 1956. Brynner made many films, such as "The Ten Commandments" (1956), "Invitation to a Gunfight" (1964) and "The Magnificent Seven" (1960). He wrote his memoirs, "Bring Forth the Children," several years before lung cancer claimed his life on Oct. 10, 1985.

Did Mary McDonnell, who played Dr. Eve Sheridan on "E/R," also play Erin on "The Waltons"? — B.A., Augusta, Ga.

"E/R" (1984-85) was Mary McDonnell's only series. Mary Elizabeth McDonough played Erin on "The Waltons."

To Hamel, the difficulty was playing a rape victim

By Wendy Wallace

For advertising executive Elizabeth Early, an innocent drink and a brief stop at the office of her date, attorney Martin Knappek, would soon change the course of her life. For once inside his office, Knappek immediately expected — then demanded to have sex. Early resisted, but he overpowered her. Her nightmare had just begun.

Veronica Hamel

"Martin Knappek is a respected attorney who is well-known in his community," says Veronica Hamel, who stars in the NBC movie "She Said No," airing Sunday, Sept. 23. "But what he did to Elizabeth was a criminal act. It's one of the toughest ones to take to court, because with acquaintance rape, it's harder to people to understand. When a woman says no to a man, it's no. If he starts physically attacking her, he's in the wrong immediately. No is no. And that's what we're saying in the film."

In the drama, Early undergoes a second trauma when Knappek is acquitted on a technicality and brings a multi-million dollar slander suit against her. It forces her to face him again in cross-examination.

"He sues her for defamation of character," says Hamel. "So her back is up against the wall. He's going to break her in every way possible. She's being raped twice — once physically and then through the system."

"There are laws and there is social behavior. But he turned it around by breaking the rules. Elizabeth is a grown woman. Somehow, this had to be her fault. So she's exposed and does not wish to be."

Born in Philadelphia, Hamel was a five-time Emmy nominee for her portrayal of Joyce Davenport on the NBC series "Hill Street Blues." Her other TV credits include the miniseries "79 Park Avenue," "Kane and Abel" and "Twist of Fate." Her film credits include "When Time Ran Out," "A New Life" and "Taking Care of Business."

In real life, Hamel works at a rape treatment center, and her interviews with victims helped in her portrayal of a rape victim. "It's not an exploitive film in any sense of the word," says Hamel. "And I'm glad we've honored the sensibilities of the victims. The victimization that this woman goes through is extraordinary. But I think people are made of pretty big stuff. You find in this warehouse of strengths that people are rather remarkable. It's a bit of an education for all of us."

FAME

Gago takes her role as DEA agent very seriously

By Andrew BeDell

For someone who de- tests guns and violence it would seem that Jenny Gago is on the wrong TV show. The program is "DEA," airing Fridays on Fox. Gago plays Teresa Robles, a DEA agent. And the show is violent, though unique in approach.

Jenny Gago

The stories are based on actual Drug Enforcement Agency cases and use real video footage of DEA agents in action. And many of the shots are done using hand-held cameras, giving a cinema-verite feel to "DEA."

"I hate guns, but fortunately I hate drugs just as much," says Gago. That's why I think this is a great role, given my beliefs."

Gago plays Teresa as a no-nonsense woman who is proud of her Hispanic heritage. First and foremost, she hates drugs and how they destroy lives. "Teresa is tired of seeing South American drug lords abusing people and running down the image of Hispanics," explains Gago. "And she loves the DEA for giving her the chance to fight drugs."

In addition to telling the story of particular drug cases, "DEA" gets into the personal lives of the agents. The cast includes Tom Mason, who plays Bill Stadler, the chief of the DEA task force; David Wohl as Phil Jacobs, whose previous beat was Southeast Asia; Byron Keith Mimms as Jimmy Sanders, who saw his two brothers destroyed by drugs; and Chris Stanley as Nick Biaggi, an idealistic college graduate.

"I think the show really captures the aliveness of what the DEA does," says Gago. "A big part of the appeal to me is that the agents are shown as real people."

"And I guess if you look at it that way, Teresa and I are a lot alike, we feel the same way. Teresa hates the violence and guns and everything, but she realizes that they are necessary to get to the problem."

Gago adds that, yes, as Teresa, she does have to shoot people. "If Teresa has to kill someone, we show that she has to deal with that."

"DEA" also raises some important philosophical issues that can't be ignored. And Gago agrees. "Which came first, the drug lords and the dealers or the people with the need to do drugs?" she says. "It's a huge problem."

In "Going Places," the new ABC series airing FRIDAY, SEPT. 28, four young and talented people (from left: Heather Locklear, Alan Ruck, Jerry Levine and Hallie Todd) move to Hollywood to work on a hidden-camera television series.
