Hunter Show Windows Win Prize—

For the finest dressed windows in a country electrical store during the Christmas season, Frank Levasseur offered a prize for such window dressing. The prize was awarded Mr. J. M. Hunter, who shares the honors with Mr. A. E. Hunter, who dressed one of the two windows. May other stores in the Chateaugay Valley follow in line and take a keener interest in dressing up their windows. Every retail store has a variety of goods to sell, and when well displayed make an attractive window and tend to make sales. To Messrs. Hunter we extend our congratulations.

Sudden Death Mrs. Cappiello—

The many friends of the Cappiello families were shocked to hear of the very sudden death of Mrs. J. M. Cappiello on Tuesday morning. Death was due to a severe heart attack. Mrs. Cappiello had been in fairly good health, having attended Mass on Sunday. She was Angela Maria Amoruso, a native of Italy. Her husband died on December 19th. The funeral will be held at St. Joseph's Church tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Sincere sympathy is extended to the bereaved families who have been twice stricken within three weeks.

An error was printed in last week's Gleaner that is deserving of correction. In the notice given by Mr. Chalmers reference was made to the lawsuit between Mr. Chalmers and the town, whereby the town was obliged to bring water and sewage to the line of the proprietor. The notice should have read that the sewage but water only. The law still holds good, and Huntingdon still brings the water to the lot of the occupant, but the sewage is a service accorded by the town and is not charged for.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rankin entertained at dinner on Sunday the following guests, the Misses Ann and Jennie Rankin, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hampson, Mr. and Mrs. M. I. Rankin, and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Smith. The occasion was Mr. Rankin's birthday.

Miss M. McMillan was the Sunday evening guest of her cousin, Mrs. Fernie Beattie.

Miss Eleda Stewart has been confined to the house with the mumps.

Mr. Walter Sample and Mr. Henry Stewart motored to Huntingdon on Sunday.

Mrs. Walter Sample spent a couple of days in Valcour with her daughters Mrs. Perrault and Mrs. Gale.

Mr. Norman Perrault of Johnstown, N. Y., visited his brother, Mr. Fred Perrault last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Barr spent Friday and Saturday in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Blair motored to Plattsburg and spent Sunday.

Athelstan

Monday morning the community was shocked to hear of the sudden passing of Miss Charlotte (Lottie) Munro, who for some time has sign her home with Mrs. Tena Cairns. The service was held Wednesday afternoon in the Presbyterian Church. Rev. J. H. Woodside her pastor, having charge of the service, preaching a very simple and comforting sermon from the following text: 1 Cor. 2: 9. Rev. P. Sampson assisted. Interment was made in the family plot in the Huntingdon cemetery. She leaves several nieces and nephews to mourn her loss.

The January meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. H. Gardner. The program of the day was in keeping with the week of prayer. Satisfactory reports were given by the Secretary and Treasurer. Plans were made for another year's work. Election of officers resulted in the re-election of all the officers with some changes in the Superintendent's office.

The Wide Awake Club was hospitably entertained at the home of Morris Taylor last Friday evening. The vice-president, Allan Mack presided over the meeting. The committee in charge of the games had several "trix" games prepared which were well entered into by those present. Delicious refreshments were served and the singing of Auld Lang Syne brought the evening to a close.

Destitute Children Clothed—

During the past week a number of ladies in town interested in the welfare of poverty stricken families arranged to clothe five children in one household that were destitute. The home, if such it can be called, was lacking of everything even to bed clothing. These necessities were supplied and the children are now comfortably clad, each one with a pair of new boots and new stockings. The Christmas Tree League will require further assistance in the form of clothing of all kinds and money with which to buy milk and bread for the month of February.

Man Injures Hand—

Felling a tree one day last week Martin Curran, Jr. had the misfortune to injure his left hand. In attempting to direct the fall of a tree by making a wedge the axe slipped and cut his left hand. Plymouth Brethren

The sect known as Plymouth Brethren was founded by an Irish clergyman, Dr. John Darby, in 1827. The headquarters were made at Plymouth, England, whence the name. Missionary efforts were highly successful in Switzerland, Germany, Italy, France and the United States. The doctrine, besides being evangelical, believes in predestinarianism and millenarianism, and the body does not believe in a ministry set apart, believing all men are equal in matters of faith and doctrine.

Chateaugay Basin

By Sally Forth
We are sorry to report that Mrs. Charles Laberge has had to go to a hospital in Montreal where she is under observation.

Mr. Jack Jennings has returned from Peterborough where he was visiting friends.

The first meeting of St. Andrew's Society since the Christmas holidays was held in the church hall on Monday evening at 8.15 o'clock. The sum of $15 was voted to the managers of the church after the reading of a letter of appeal by the secretary, this money to be used to aid the church in closing the year without a debt.

Arrangements were made for a programme for the rest of the year. The next event to be a "Sports Night" on Friday, January 20th. After the business meeting the members joined in a game of carpet bowling.

Mr. John Lockhart of Montreal was a guest of Mrs. A. C. Lockhart during the past week.

Fire broke out last Tuesday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. McNair. The entire house was badly damaged by smoke and water but the worst damage was in the kitchen where the fire started.

The Cotton Mill at Valleyfield

When the magic letters "B.S.A." are mentioned, the typical bustling English city of Birmingham is envisioned, when the name of Krupp is spoken, of the compact spaces of Essen, Germany are called to mind, when the romance of steel is conjured up, the smoke-laden, foggy hills of Pittsburgh, America, loom in the distance and when Canadians think of Valleyfield, Quebec—or for that matter any Britisher or even an American—the Montreal Cottons Limited becomes at out Canada as he has spent a quarter of a century in acquiring experience in the manufacture of cotton textiles while Mr. Wilson and Mr. Gurnham have between them given more than two generations of loyal service to this firm. The sales offices are in Montreal in charge of Mr. E. A. Robertson. The president of the corporation is F. G. Daniels who is supported by an able and representative board of directors who are all prominent in Canadian business and life.

With this brief statement of bold facts and figures, the impression is rightly gained that this business venture has become part and parcel of not only the stability of the community of Valleyfield which it directly serves, but that its millions of capital have made it a part of the growing financial life of Canada. But assets of buildings, money, machinery and material things are not all that contribute to the well-being of a business firm. The early days of industry, in their relation to its workmen, especially that of cotton manufacture, constitutes one of the most sordid chapters in history. The long hours of work, extreme child labour, the cruelties of the capital system make one shudder at the barbarities of that age not so long passed and there is rejoicing at the new attitude which considers labour as more than serf and chattel. Big business is finding out gradually that it is big business to consider those who weave and spin and build more than mere robots who are impersonal units.

For years—and more recently this spirit has been intensified—the Montreal Cottons has been doing its share in this pioneer work. Houses have been built, and improved upon from time to time, a dairy of modern type is operated, there is a clubhouse which includes lounge rooms, billiard tables, a circulating library and a curling rink. There are also once synonymous with the manufacture of cotton on a large scale. This plant, the largest of its kind in Canada, was founded in 1874 by a group of foresighted men who built more wisely than they knew; all those who were active in the building of these mills have passed on. In 1934, this great enterprise will have reached its diamond jubilee which fact alone testifies to the solidity of its business foundations.

Whether a visitor enter Valleyfield by motor, by train or by air, the distant horizon is filled with a view of this mammoth plant which is built almost entirely of stone, in a style of architecture, which, with its massive walls, battlemented towers and heavy doors, suggests rather a feudal castle than a modern industrial plant. The original promoters of this scheme foresaw the value of electric and water power. They planned big, they built big and in their planning and building, with power in view, they changed the whole topography of the waterways in the immediate district.

They built a dam across Lake St. Francis, securing from the Dominion Government a century's rights to the power that they might wrest from Nature. They constructed a flume through which the lake flowed at the rate of three feet a second and they transformed the arm which connected Lake St. Francis with Lake St. Louis into a tail-race that is known today as the "Lost Channel." But with other days came other ways and nearly sixty years later the imposing dream of tiling Lake St. Lawrence, the field where thrilling matches are seen in season. A well-equipped hospital, with the services of three physicians and a nurse ministered to 8500 injured and sick during the past year.

Along with the general trend of the times, with financial problems, the collapse of world markets, the economic unrest that is prevalent, the unemployment distress, the Montreal Cottons has dutifully carried on, trying to solve its own peculiar problems and tending to the weight of its position and morale in assisting to alleviate the difficulties of Valleyfield in difficult times and looks steadily forward to 1933 for a brighter and more prosperous year.

The plant is a small city in itself, employing from two thousand to two thousand five hundred operatives. It is one of the most complete cotton manufacturing units in existence and is equipped with every appliance required for the production of a wide range of finished cotton textiles. When one considers the yearly output on a basis of nearly 40,000,000 yards of cloth, it is difficult to realize that the daily production approaches 100,000 yards, and the payroll is commensurately staggering as $1,350,204.00 was the sum paid out for the year 1932. In this enormous amount of finished cotton there is a wide enough range in variety to please the most exacting and fastidious housewife, for every fabric is found including satins, poplins, sautees, table-cloths, towels, maincoats, linings and even shirtings of all kinds for her husband and sons.

BEGIN MAKING BRIDGE STEEL

To Help Relieve Unemployment Contractors Have Agreed to Start Steel Manufacturing

Making of steel for the new LaSalle-Cauchon bridge will commence immediately and the Dominion Bridge Company, Limited, will employ at least 50 men at its Lachine plant for this purpose, a delegation of four Lachine aldermen was assured in an interview with members of the Lake St. Louis Bridge Corporation.

As a result of pressure brought to bear by Premier L. A. Taschereau, Hon. Honoré Mercier, Minister of Lands and Forests, and Hon. R. O. Grohé, M.L.C., the contractors have agreed to start the steel manufacturing at once in order to help relieve unemployment. The corporation informed the Lachine delegation.

While everything possible will be done to see that Lachine residents are given a fair share of the work, the delegation was told that the contractors could not be forced to employ Lachine labor only and it is likely that some Ville LaSalle citizens will be among those employed, although the final decision rests with the company itself.

The Lake St. Louis Corporation has taken all the necessary precautions to assure that preference will be given to Canadian materials and that a reasonable salary and wage scale will be maintained, an officer of the corporation stated.

After the meeting a spokesman for the Lachine delegation, which was made up of Aldermen John H. Pilon, E. Leduc, A. St. Onge, Raoul Grohé, M.L.C., president; J. A. Trudeau, vice-president; Louis Chatelet, secretary-treasurer; Robert R. Ness, and Joseph Dupont, commissioners.

The Shoplifter Menace

Every community has a certain number of people who cannot resist shoplifting, which in plain English is nothing short of stealing. It has happened in many stores, and on many occasions in Huntingdon. This winter is no exception, for only a few days ago shoplifters were caught in two Huntingdon stores. In both cases the guilty parties paid the price demanded by the merchant, so that the matter might drop at that point. In Dunville, Ont., during the Christmas season, a woman, considered respectable, and in comfortable circumstances, was caught taking merchandise worth about $1.00. She was taken to court and by the time she got through with it it cost her $20. She gladly paid the amount. No names were mentioned in connection with the case but the merchants of the town agreed that the next case caught be prosecuted and names printed in the local press. Not a bad idea for the merchants of the Chateauguay Valley to copy. The Gleaner will do the publishing if the storekeepers make the prosecution and get a conviction. The sneak thief in a store deserves no better treatment than being scorned and despised by all people in the neighbourhood. If the shoplifter were prosecuted, she or he would certainly be looked down upon by everyone, and what is more, shoplifting would become a thing of the past.

Curling—"The Roarin' Game"

Saturday saw high 800 men participate in curling at Montreal in competition for the Edinburgh Trophy. In the Province of Quebec it is estimated that there are 5,800 curlers, so Saturday saw the 800 enthusiasts a Montreal. Why such a gathering one might well question. Well, the Province of Quebec and a portion of Ontario have for some reason or other varied the game from the accustomed rule throughout all countries, where the game is played, and in place of playing with granite stones we have been using iron blocks. Mr. T. Howard Stewart of Montreal is a real curling enthusiast and has spent a very considerable sum of money towards the introduction of granite curling in Quebec. It must be a great deal of satisfaction to Mr. Stewart to see how his efforts have materialized, or today granite curling is nearly as much played in Quebec province as is the iron game. Saturday's bonspiel was the big granite day for 1933 in Montreal.

Curling is looked upon as a Scotchman's national game. It is true he credit is so placed today, but in reality it belongs to the Dutchman. Dutch stones are known to date back to 1511, and what is more they were perfected that it is reasonable to believe the game was played on the canals in Holland for many years, or perhaps generations. However, it is the Scotchman who is credited with having carried the game through the generations and centuries that have followed, and have made the winter sport so popular where climate permits of its being played. As far as records go it appears that curling was introduced to Canada in 1759. In his instance it was a case of the British soldiers who were here for the conquest of Canada that played the game.

In the District of Beauharnois we have six curling clubs, the first being established at English River in 1823, the next, 59 years later at Ormstown in 1884. In 1891 the Huntingdon Club was organized and in 1900 the Valleyfield Club came into being. Howick and Aubrey were organized in 1907 and 1908 respectively.

Curling continues to spread and will so long continue. It is a wholesome game for both men and women. Today there are thirty or more clubs in our province and over fifty for men. The oldest club amongst the ladies of this District is that of Ormstown which was started in 1900.

To our readers who have not become members of a local curling club we urge them to do so. You will enjoy the game, the good fellowship that follows, and besides curling is a purely amateur game which makes it all the more commendable.

The Quiet Hour

One thing which the Oxford Group demands of its followers is the quiet hour of meditation. Whether one agrees with their religious conceptions or not, he must thank them for bringing more people to realize the importance of inward questioning, thought, and contemplation. Everyone here one hears this "quiet hour" discussed. Some laugh and say it is impossible. They loathe to be alone even to think; that their mind is a blank; that they go to sleep. Others can appreciate its value.

Whether the "quiet hour" is a meditation on religion, or a purely contemplative hour, it is to be commended. People can improve themselves by it, find company in their thoughts, and learn about themselves. They have never explored their own minds. Some have never known the quiet and pleasure of day dreaming. Try the quiet hour and see if it does not bring a reward.

Rebuilding Your Trade and Income

Close upon four hundred years ago, out of the harbour of the ancient port of St. Malo, sailed Jacques Cartier—master pilot in the service of Francis the First of France—sworn to explore the perilous coasts that return fishing vessels had long since sighted. Planting a cross at Gaspé, he returned to France and reported to his master, "It is the fairest land that may possibly be seen."

Years passed by, and another grim-eyed representative of his King came out over the virgin wilderness that was then New France, and, seeing his vision, wrote, "I am convinced that in the future this country will become something great."

And now, as that future becomes our past, another representative of another king speaks, this time of a greater Canada than our fathers ever dreamed of—

"Our troubles are very real, and to overcome them will test the very foundations, the very genius of our civilization. But if we lose the one thing that no man need ever lose, that is, FAITH, then indeed the fault will not be in the stars, but in ourselves. I refuse to entertain for one moment any doubt as to the ultimate future of Canada."

Through the grace of God and the courage of our fathers in Canada hunter, trapper, pioneer, missionary, and gentleman adventurer—we have lived better than we knew. We have behind us a vast heritage of vision, have before us boundless natural wealth—most of it still untouched.

In this lies the most hopeful thought possible, a new vision for ourselves at the start of another year. In the past few years much of our parent wealth has been swept away, our troubles have been real, but our foundations, being tested, have stood the strain. It is ours to rebuild on our foundations, to utilize the sources which we have proven a thousandfold beyond what our fathers ever hoped—shall we, then, start our task in a lesser faith than theirs?

Therefore let one and all look forward, and work for mutual betterment. If you are a merchant you must sell goods, and if a farmer, you must produce. If the farmer is to prosper he will have to produce at a fair cost and if the merchant is to be successful he also must reduce his selling costs. The merchant who advertises liberally sells more merchandise, and thereby reduces his costs. As the merchant sells goods the farmer correspondingly profits by greater consumption of the things they grow, here in this land or elsewhere.

Now They're Yoking Turkeys

Raising turkeys on a large scale in Pawnee county, Kansas, Mrs. Emma Schope's most difficult problem was to keep her fowls from jumping the fence and being run down by motor cars. Every trick and scheme that gave any promise of curbing the birds' flight was tried without results until she devised a little wooden yoke after the fashion of yokes put on fence-breaking cattle. Now there is no more fence-jumping and so unique is the sight of the flock, each bird with its yoke on, that motorists frequently stop to "oh" and "ah" in wonderment.

Paris Yo-Yo Mad

Yo-yo, the toy which is now experiencing a vogue of almost incredible popularity in France, may be only a diversion to Parisians, but to the woodworkers of the Jura district it means work once more. Many of the wood-turning factories which constitute one of the principal industries of the region had closed down. Since the advent of the yo-yo in France this summer, however, large orders have been placed with the turners of the Jura. As a result, factories and workshops are re-opening and the price of the dry wood used has already risen considerably.

Gold in Bear Pelts

A new gold discovery is claimed by University of Michigan scientists. The gold, according to Dr. Dow V. Baxter, professor of civics and forest pathology, was found in the pelts of four silver tipped grizzly bears, shot in Alaska. As a result of the find, Doctor Baxter has written to Alaska in an effort to learn something of the habits of bears. He believes the grizzlies "picked up" the gold while rolling in a Yukon stream.

Cow Goes on Rampage

A cow went on a rampage in Bristol, England, recently and before it was caught it had climbed a narrow flight of stairs in a house in Bedminster, Bristol, walked into the bedroom of an invalid woman, aged 64; charged a parrot, which squawked; got its head under the bed and nearly threw the invalid, Mrs. Minnie Morgan, out of bed; broke some crockery and got its head wedged in a cupboard. It was eventually caught and pushed downstairs.

Was it a Lucky Break?

Mrs. Marie Antiebuch, of Chicago, awoke from a nap to see an automobile standing beside a Christmas tree in her parlor and for a moment she wondered why. John H. Smale, a dean of the Lewis Institute, who was at the wheel, explained that his machine had come right through the wall of the Antiebuch home after he had swerved to avoid hitting another car in the street. While he reasoned it wasn't his fault, he agreed to pay the damage, which was doubly satisfactory to Mrs. Antiebuch, because her husband, Tony, a carpenter, will get the job.

'Twas a Rare Gift

A distinguished Canadian statesman has a $100 American bill as a New Year's gift, but its value is nil. With the "greenback" came a commentary note in the mail. Why, the statesman's friends ask, should the United States insist on full payment of war debts? Why should the Canadian dollar be at a discount in New York? The bill was issued by the Confederate States during the American Civil War. After the defeat of the South the Confederate bills, which had been issued largely for war purposes, became worthless. They have not been redeemed. Ten years ago, $500 worth of these bills could be purchased in New York for 10 cents.

Stork Fails Mussolini

Premier Mussolini, of Italy, has had his way in just about everything so far as the welfare of his nation is concerned. One exception is the activity of the stork. It Duce had hoped Italy would show 300,000 surplus births over deaths. Instead, there was a surplus of only 186,000 births, as against 224,000 during the same period of 1931 and 270,000 during the first half of 1930. In fact, Italy, along with every other country except possibly Russia, is showing a decline in birthrate. In 1884, 39 babies were born annually for every 1,000 of Italy's population. By 1900 the number had fallen to 35. Now it is about 25.

Church-Going Chicken

Chickens in that section of Cornwallville, Pa., are mighty lazy birds or Mrs. F. W. Jones is a mighty careful driver. Her car attracted much attention as she drove up to a local church. And no wonder for there on the rear bumper was a chicken—sound asleep.

Skier Saved His Dog

A shaggy Newfoundland dog that has saved human lives in the past had the debt repaid recently in the vicinity of Gracefield, P. Q., through the gallantry of J. S. W. Thompson, of Toronto. The dog, who is owned by Herbert Merleau, of Gracefield, was with a party of skiers in the Gracefield district. It was in a frisky mood and suddenly dashed out on to the ice of the Blue Sea river. The thin ice gave way under the weight of the animal and it was plunged into the swift current. Mr. Thompson, noticing its plight, stretched out at full length on the water-covered ice, and, with the assistance of his friends, who obtained a firm hold on his feet, managed to grasp the canine, after which both were dragged to safety. The dog had been in the icy water for approximately five minutes, breaking the thin ice with its paws in attempting to save itself, before Mr. Thompson was able to rescue it. Neither rescuer nor rescued suffered any ill effects from the experience.

A Wolf's Fate

Edwin Berg of Leavenworth, Kansas, kept the wolf from the door by grabbing it by the throat. The wolf, pursued by a tiring hound, dashed through a field where the 19-year-old Berg was husking corn. Berg gave chase and as the animal cut back through a hedge, seized it. He held it until his father arrived to kill it with a pocket knife.

Giving a Castle Away

Generous gift was made to Forbes, Scotland, by Sir Alexander Grant, a widely-known philanthropist. It is a property known as Castlehill, one of the most historical landmarks in Scotland. From it can be seen the ruins of the old Castle of Forbes, which was razed to the ground in the seventeenth century. It was the scene of a great deal of Shakespeare's "Macbeth." In its career, the castle, which was once a royal palace in the days of William the Lion, in 1170, was several times demolished, and two of Scotland's early kings met their deaths in it.

Naughty Police Mans

If there's one thing Abe Leider of Philadelphia, is fussy about it's the technique of policemen who arrest him. Explaining why he punched Patrolman Miller who took him into custody for selling paper bags without a permit, Abe declared: "Captain, I've been arrested by a lot of cops, but this guy that just grabbed me has absolutely no style. He made me mad, so I swung on him."

Common Dye to Revive

A 54-year-old man, who emergency hospital attendants declared lay for an hour as if dead, from carbon monoxide poison, was revived at San Francisco by an injection of methylene blue—a common dye. The methylene blue treatment, developed by two University of California scientists, recently was used successfully in a case of cyanide poisoning. So far as is known, physicians said it is the first time it has been used on a person as a carbon monoxide treatment. The treatment was applied to Allen D. Mabry, who police said was found lying in his garage near the exhaust of his automobile, after efforts to revive him with artificial respiration failed. Physicians said he would live.

Fifty Years on Train

Back in 1880 Fred Maloney began firing one of the old wood-burning locomotives on the Central Vermont railway. He was soon advanced to engineer and is still at it. In his 52 years of service at the throttle, Maloney estimates he has driven trains over 2,000,000 miles. He has long been eligible to retirement but prefers to stay on the job in his engine cab.

$4800 in the Stove

Otta Laabs, of Wausau, Wis., did not have the money to pay funeral expenses of his sister, Martha, so he started selling her furniture Friday. He offered an old stove for $5, but decided he might get more if he cleaned it. In an oven compartment he found a roll of bills totalling $4,800.

Champion U. S. Liar

Twelve hundred self-admitted liars were in a state of expectancy as they waited the annual selection of the champion liar of the United States. O. W. Butts, of Bay City, Mich., was prepared to relinquish the title bestowed upon him last year. Before naming the new champion the three judges prepared to wade through the written lies of contestants from all over America. Anything that bordered on the truth would eliminate the contestant, they said. The contest began in 1929 when Captain Anton Delano told such a big fish story that his listeners had made a silver medal bearing his name and the following inscription: "Champion liar, U. S."

Rats Threaten Duncannon

Duncannon, Ireland, is threatened with a plague of rats, and the City Council has been considering methods of averting the menace. One is that the town dump be converted into a dog racing track. A councilman reported at a meeting that thousands of rats were in the dump, and were now spreading into the town. In houses at the lower end of the town residents were catching them 10 to 12 daily. The clerk said that the Surveyor had been appointed rat exterminator. The Surveyor said he would not deal with rats, and added that the police are shooting at them. It was decided to refer the matter to the Sanitary Committee, with a recommendation that poison be laid while the Council thinks up something better.

A Bare Bear Escape

With his shoulder in bandages as a result of his recent encounter with a grizzly bear, Hamilton P. Caldwell, Jr., Purdue University student, was at his home in Topeka, Kansas, and hesitated in narrating how he escaped from the large bear that dragged him from his camp in the Yellowstone National Park. Caldwell and his roommate at the university, Bud Judah, St. Louis, were encamped in one of the widest sections of the National Park. About 2 o'clock in the morning Caldwell was awakened rudely as the grizzly's teeth sank into his shoulder. Despite the youth's screams and struggle, the large bear dragged him out of the camp. Down a gulch, apparently toward his den, the grizzly dragged young Caldwell. Judah and others in the camp were shouting by that time and the bear released his grip and left the camp. Caldwell was taken to a hospital where his mangled shoulder was treated. After four days in the hospital, he and Judah started the automobile trip home. Rangers in the park reported that only once before in their knowledge had a man escaped from the teeth of a grizzly.

Kidder Was Kidder

Three women of a wandering gypsy tribe visited Jack Kidder, proprietor of a gasoline filling station, at Detroit, Michigan. They promised excitement if Kidder wrapped up six five-dollar bills in a handkerchief. Kidder followed their instructions. When he opened the handkerchief—after the gypsies were gone—the bills had vanished. Kidder called police, who arrested the gypsies. Unperturbed, the women pointed to Kidder's shirt front. Kidder opened his shirt. The six five-dollar bills fell out. "You wouldn't kid a Kidder?" he asked the women as police released them. "We would and we could," one gypsy replied.

Ancients Used Asphalt

If Nabopolassar, King of Babylon, could ride in an automobile along one of the modern asphalt pavements he would unquestionably be amazed at the horseless chariot, but would probably express little astonishment over the highway itself.

This can be gained from a resume of road building prepared by Thomas E. Stanton, Jr., California state research engineer. Although chemistry is perfecting "binders," the basic materials used in road construction today were used more than 5,000 years ago, he points out. About 95 per cent of the standard paving mixture consists of rock, sand and earth. The problem is to find the best cement to bind these materials into a strong wear-resisting mass.

The term "asphalt" may be traced back to Babylonian times, he shows. Its first use was as a cement for joining various objects. But Nabopolassar adopted it for a different purpose. He made, according to his son Nebuchadnezzar, "a road glistening with asphalt and burned brick. Nabu and Maruk, when you traverse these streets, may be benefits for me rest upon your lips."

What the taxpayers (if there were any) thought of the situation is not indicated, although they probably enjoyed the roads and complained about the costs later.

The Incas of Peru, about 1500, constructed an elaborate system of highways, some of which was paved with a composition not unlike modern bituminous macadam, Mr. Stanton states. It was not until 1858 that the first large area of asphalt roadway was constructed, in Paris.

While showing that the ancients had their asphalt roads, Mr. Stanton declares that the chemist and the concrete technologist are improving on them.

Maintaining
A Long-Established Position
in Canadian Banking

When the Dominion of Canada was established in 1867, the Bank of Montreal, then already half a century old, had nearly a fourth of the total paid-up banking capital of Quebec and Ontario, and more than a fourth of the banking assets of those two provinces.

Today it has the same proportion of the capital and assets of the banking structure of the entire Dominion.

Today, as yesterday, it employs its resources and facilities for the upbuilding of the soundest elements of Canadian business.

SKI-ING NOW PREDOMINATES AS POPULAR WINTER SPORT IN CANADA

Ottawa Recognized as Greatest Skiing Center in the World
—Many Hotels, Boarding Houses and Shelters in Gatineau Hills For Skiers—

By Alan Longstaff

Winter sports every week, is the slogan adopted by most of the clubs in Eastern Canada this year. This is in contrast to the practice of staging winter carnivals and winter sports events with the hope of attracting large numbers of people to the various cities between specified dates. While snow conditions are favorable, every week is winter sports week in the Eastern Canadian cities of Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec, and tens of thousands of young and old people make the most of the opportunities for enjoyment.

One of the striking features of winter sports development in Eastern Canada has been the growth in popularity of skiing during recent winters. Today the lure of the ski trail has pushed snowshoeing, formerly a major winter sport, very much into the background. It has superseded also tobogganing, once a popular thrill with the young men and women and it has seriously affected the attendance at skating rinks. It is not that young Canada is giving up the steel blades altogether, for the oncoming crop of speed skaters and hockey players proves that skating continues to be popular, but by far the most popular winter sport of the day is that which takes young men and women out on the hills on skis.

Twenty years ago there was hardly a score of ski enthusiasts in Eastern Canada. What few were found were principally young people of Scandinavian origin, who had inherited a love of this sport. And then, overnight, Eastern Canada became a ski-conscious. Clubs sprung up as though by magic. One Ottawa club today claims the largest membership of any ski club in the world. Certain it is that between two clubs in Ottawa there is a joint active membership of more than ten thousand people. Fifty miles of ski trails, with lodges scattered here and there along the trails which wind through the Gatineau Hills, within easy hiking distance of the Federal Parliament Buildings, entice the ski enthusiasts to spend their week-ends in the open air. It is not unusual for ten thousand young and old people to start from Ottawa for their week-end sport in the adjacent hills.

The other sports of skating and tobogganing thrive; numerous rinks, open-air and closed, maintained by the city and by skating and hockey clubs, testify to the continued interest, while toboggan slides rearing themselves here and there in city parks, are well patronized. But skiing has caught the popular favor and shows every sign of growing in favor.

Ottawa, well favored with its hilly terrain within easy reach and with splendid skiing grounds within a few minutes' distance of the centre of the city, may be regarded as the home of skiing in Eastern Canada, but of late years Montreal has seriously threatened its sister city in the number of ski enthusiasts. Within the City of Montreal lies Mount Royal park, a natural playground with splendid slopes for winter sports, and it is not unusual thing to find from five to ten thousand people enjoying themselves with ski and toboggan on those slopes on a fine Saturday or Sunday. In addition to these, several thousand more young people are out in the Laurentian Mountains, a few hours' train ride from the city, where again there is everything in the way of slopes and snow conditions to lure the enthusiast.

To accommodate the large numbers who spend their week-ends in the hills, it has been found necessary in recent years to operate ski specialists, coach trains which carry the skiers with their equipment from Montreal to the towns and villages along the railway line which winds through the Laurentian Valleys. Here small hotels and boarding houses cater to the visitors who are carried out in hundreds and thousands by the Canadian National Railways during the week-ends when conditions are favorable.

Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Quebec all have their ski clubs, organizations which foster not only the thrilling sport of ski jumping but which also encourage cross-country hiking and other features of the sport. Many of these clubs maintain lodges in the hills and in these the visitor is welcomed, as he is welcomed also to the well-kept trails which criss-cross through the hilly areas.

Winter sports weeks and winter carnivals, with their attendant excitement of dog derbies and other attractions, may be few and far between this winter, but in all the cities of Eastern Canada there will be no lack of interest in winter sports, and the visitor who chooses any week from January to March in which to visit the Dominion will find plenty of winter sports to thrill him, either as spectator or participant, for Young Canada has discovered that by taking to the hills one can find both health and enjoyment of worth-while sport while the blanket of snow precludes activities for which Canada in summer is famous all over the world.

Charcot Ranked Among "Pioneers of Medicine"

"The glamor surrounding Charcot in his lifetime obscured the true value of his work and of the man himself. . . . It is one of life's little ironies that it was his faulty work which, at the time, brought him world-wide fame and patients from every class of society, whereas his enduring, pioneer work was of such a highly technical character that none but specialists in his own field could appreciate its value." So writes Dr. Claude Lillingston in one of his word portraits of "Pioneers of Medicine" in Eyegia Magazine.

In his identification of a large group of nervous ailments with definite changes in the brain and spinal cord, Charcot attained scholarly achievement which assured him a permanent place in the ranks of great pioneers of medicine. In the Salpêtrière, a French hospital, Charcot was tossed more or less by chance to care for the insane, the epileptic and the subjects of hysteria. Such an ill-assorted crowd! Charcot had to forge new weapons, evolve new principles and new tests in an effort to do justice to his patients.

Democratic in principles, Charcot, on one occasion when a princess demanded preferential treatment, exclaimed: "This stranger does not seem to know that we have taken the bastille."

Sensitive Organs

Our sense organs are responsive to almost incredibly minute stimulations. The sensory surface of the nose is affected by vanillin, one part by weight in 10,000,000 parts of air, and by mercaptan 1/23,000,000 of a milligram in a litre of air. And as for sight, there is evidence that the eye is sensitive to 5/1,000,000,000,000 erg, an amount of energy which is 1/3,000 of that required to affect the most rapid photographic plate.

REFUSES TO EAT

How many mothers, at one time or another, have exclaimed: "He won't eat!" Any one of these mothers, if she has an audience, will likely go on to explain what it is that her child will not eat, and usually concludes her tirade by saying that she cannot understand her child's attitude and that she does not know what to do about it.

The complaint is so general that we may presume it is not unusual for a child to refuse to eat. There are several reasons and any of these may be responsible for the child's action. It is worth while to consider these reasons, as that is the only way to learn to meet the problem.

All of us, adults as well as children, prefer the foods to which we are accustomed. If a child refuses a new food, he should not be forced to eat it. If this is done, it is almost sure to create in the child an active dislike for that food. New foods should be given in small amounts; just a taste to begin with.

We do not feel like eating and we do not enjoy our meals if we are tired. The child should be rested when he sits down to eat. He should not come direct to the table from exciting play. A quiet period should precede and follow meals.

We are more hungry on some days than others. It is not to be expected that the child will eat the same amount of food each day. A developing cold, or other illness, causes loss of appetite. It is better for the child that he do not eat more than he needs, or to eat if illness is coming on.

The child is greatly influenced by the attitude of the grown-ups. When he takes his meals with the family, he will very likely refuse any food which he sees his father or mother refuse. This is not due to heredity; it is imitation.

Children desire attention; they enjoy being the centre of attraction. If they find they can attract attention by refusing to eat, they gain their objective. Care should be taken at all times to avoid showing the child, by word, look or action, that his failure to eat is causing any concern.

The child's eating habits should not be discussed or referred to in his presence. At a much more early age than most parents realize, children are aware of and pay attention to the conversation that is going on about them. It is the worrying mother who creates many feeding problems because the child knows he can gain her attention by not eating and thus causing his mother to worry.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

ADVERTISING for the MERCHANT TO-DAY

Conducted by HAROLD S. EDGAR
A series of weekly articles on advertising and merchandising prepared for the merchants of the Chateauguay Valley with the co-operation of the Huntingdon Gleaner.

The Advertising of Furniture

Here again, we face a situation very much like that in connection with Hardware lines in that owing to the fact that a piece of furniture, a carpet, a rug, beds and bedding, are not purchased for a household except at wide intervals; they do not quickly wear out and the margin of profit for the manufacturer does not enable him to advertise continuously in papers of the type carrying the advertising of the local merchant, his distributor. He therefore to a considerable measure must confine his advertising in these papers to a short run of reasonable copy with an overhanging covering in magazines and special display material for the dealer.

This then makes it imperative on the part of the dealer that he do very aggressive advertising on his account and that he keep his ear to the ground to know just what is happening inside the houses in his district.

The short lease habit and frequent changing of residence of city dwellers, is a boon to the furniture merchant in those cities, as furniture is wrecked and ruined with every move and do not fit the new rooms; carpets, linoleums and oil-cloths are the wrong shape or size and require to be cut. This is not the case in such territory as you have in this district where moves are infrequent and furniture, bought for a particular room or position, occupies the same place except for a resetting at the semi-annual house-cleaning. Carpets and floor coverings bought to fit a room, have a long life in that location, so that the merchant in the smaller districts must needs call other aids to his assistance if he is to keep things moving. His store must be attractive with good windows, and ample space inside the store so that individual pieces of furniture will show up well; he must get people into the shop, encourage them to walk around, following up interest as it is awakened, and preach the doctrine of better furniture and new household setting. It is worth a good deal to him to get a few pieces of new furniture into a home that has been established for a great many years, as the new furniture brightens up the particular room in which it is placed and makes the other look as bad as an old pair of shoes with a new suit. A merchant with a good memory and a close acquaintance with his customers, and better still, a set of books that shows the details of sales made years ago, is in a position to cash in on past history.

The Manufacturer today gives to you goods that have very excellent talking points and supports them with a considerable amount of publicity. We go into these in detail as follows:

DINING ROOM FURNITURE—Probably the best known furniture line, and certainly the first manufacturer to place advertising in the forefront of his sales force, is Gibbard of Napanee. We then have such names as Molagan, Malcolm, and Beach.

LIVING ROOM FURNITURE—Chesterfields, etc. The outstanding firms in this line are Snyder, with their Sani-Built Moth Proof line, and Kroehler, who have become so well identified with Canada that most people know them as a Canadian firm.

CEDAR CHESTS—Instead of a shelf in a linen closet, housing the gathered treasure of the future bride, manufacturers have catered to the future house-wife by building for her attractive 'Hope Chests' which occupy a place of honour in her own room. The Heirloom and Lane are the two that have been advertised most extensively.

Blind Find Protection in Sensation of Fear

Fear is the agency that prevents blind people from running into objects in their path, according to a bulletin of the Better Vision Institute. The researches of Dr. Valdimir Dolansky, a blind Polish scientist, published in the quarterly printed for the blind in braille, prove that a sensation akin to fear affects the thousands of hair follicles which cover the face and body, says the bulletin, and causes the feeling of tingling that a blind person has when he approaches an object unexpectedly. This reflex only occurs when the blind person is not consciously aware that he is in danger. The contracting of the hair follicles is something like the bristling of a cat attacked by a dog, or of a horse which has smelled a wolf.

"These who still have the use of their eyes are without this sixth sense," continues the bulletin. "Four out of ten of them do not even have the common sense to know that their eyes themselves need assistance."

Lilliputian City
A suburb of Berlin consists of a miniature city for miniature people. It is a town built and inhabited by Lilliputians. Everything is on a small scale, "small houses with small rooms filled with small furniture." The inhabitants are mostly stage folk. They like living together where they are not continually remarked by people of normal size. The midget citizens have planned their tiny homes not only for their own comfort, but to exclude persons of normal height.

They have recently received official recognition of their village by the postmaster general. He has given authority for the building of a small post office to be called Zwergerstadt, or Dwarf City.

St. Anicet

A. J. Saunier's Funeral—

For a second time within a week the new Roman Catholic Church at Noranda, Que., was, on Friday, December 29, filled by a more than capacity congregation, the occasion being the funeral of Alfred Saunier, a member of the Noranda Town Council, who had given his time and strength to the supervision of the building of the new church, a project in which he was most keenly interested. The interior of the church was draped in black and the impressive service inspired all present with the sadness of the loss that had been sustained by the family, Rev. Father Arsenault, the parish and the community at large in the passing of this active and keen-spirited public man.

Besides being a member of the Town Council, the deceased gentleman was a trustee of the church, an active member of the Knights of Columbus and of the Noranda Kiwanis Club, also president of the Conservative Association.

Following the recital of prayers at the home by Rev. Father Pelletier the body was taken into the church, where it was received by a congregation representative of all classes and activities in the community.

The funeral service was sung by Rev. Father Arsenault, with Rev. Father Quenneville, of Kirkland Lake, as deacon, and Rev. Father Cotes, chaplain of the hospital, as sub-deacon. The choir of the church was assisted by members of the Rouyn Roman Catholic Church choir. After the service, the funeral cortege, with groups representing the Knights of Columbus, the Kiwanis Club, the Town Council and members of the Noranda fire brigade in uniform, as escort, passed from the church through the towns of Noranda and Rouyn to the old hospital.

Mr. Saunier was born 53 years ago at St. Anicet in the County of Huntingdon.—(Northern News).

Finds Partridge Does Little Harm to Crops

The Hungarian, or European gray, partridge in the United States is not particularly harmful to crops, studies of 80 birds by the biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture, indicate.

In the fall and winter these birds feed largely on green leaves, grains of wheat, corn, oats, barley and seeds of ragweed, foxtail grass, and bindweed. The cultivated grains seem to be picked up mostly in stubble fields, and the investigators believe this indicates no injury to growing crops.

Contents of the crops and gizzards of the birds examined showed that animal food made up 6 per cent of their food. The young birds, in particular, displayed a liking for grasshoppers, beetles, and other injurious insects.

This partridge has been introduced into numerous North American localities and has become well established in some of them, particularly in southwestern Canada, Washington state, southwestern Wisconsin, southwestern Michigan, and northwestern Ohio. As it is a comparatively new bird in this country its habits are interesting to sportsmen, ornithologists, and farmers.

Office Boy: "Please, sir, can I have the afternoon off? My grandmother is dead."
Employer: "Why, this is the third grandmother that's dead since you've been here."
Boy: "Yes, sir; I know, sir; but I can't help it, grandfather will keep on getting married."

"You can telephone home for 30 Cents"

Marion always felt blue when the Christmas season was over.

"We see the family and our old friends," she told her husband, "and then we're out of touch for a year. I can't help feeling lonely."

"We'll fix that," her husband decided. "Call them on Long Distance now and then."

"But Jim, what does it cost?"

"Not very much — especially with night rates. You could telephone the folks at home for about 30 cents.* Why not arrange to call 'station-to-station' every Sunday night?"

"Oh Jim, you've no idea how much better that will make me feel!"

Talking on Long Distance now is as clear and easy as a local call. The service is prompt, dependable — and surprisingly inexpensive.

In Bedroom Furniture, the list of manufacturers parallels that covered in the Dining Room list.

MATTRESSES, BEDS AND BEDDING—The first advertised line of Mattresses was the Ostermoor, first manufactured under Royalty then absorbed into the Simmons line which covers not only mattresses and springs, but a very complete line of metal beds.

CARPETS AND LINOLEUMS—The most aggressive advertising is that of the Toronto Carpet Company, but there are other firms making a very high quality product which could well profit by trademarking them and placing their merits before the public.

Old fashioned Oilcloth, made in only a few standard patterns has, in a large measure, been replaced by a very fine line of products the equal even of those made in the big plants in the Old Land—in fact we have one firm in Canada, Barry-Staines, which is a Canadian organization. Patented by two parent houses in Great Britain, the names of which are combined in the title of the Canadian Company. Dominion and Congoleum products also are supporting the dealer with good advertising.

Hon. R. F. Stockwell, Provincial Treasurer announced today that he had been advised by the Minister of Finance at Ottawa that the federal subsidy for the Province of Quebec had been approved and that a cheque for the amount was on its way. Based on a per capita payment of 85 cents according to the last census for the Province of Quebec, the amount will be $2,464,583. The amount will remain fixed for ten years until the next Dominion census is taken.

Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States from August 3, 1923 to March 4, 1929, died suddenly today at his home in Northampton, Mass. He was 60 years old on July 4, 1932. Stricken with a heart attack as he was preparing to shave in a dressing room of his Northampton home, "The White House," he died alone. A few minutes later Mrs. Coolidge, returning from a shopping tour, found his body lying upon the floor. There was apparently no warning and he died without suffering. His face was calm and bore no sign of pain. A physician, Dr. E. W. Brown, was summoned immediately but Mr. Coolidge was dead. Dr. Brown said he apparently had died 15 minutes before. Mrs. Coolidge, though stunned by the shock, bore up bravely and joined her son, John, in arranging plans for the funeral. Mr. Coolidge became president on the death of President Harding, was once re-elected to that honored post and then retired in favor of Herbert Hoover in the 1928 elections.

The Week-end

Week-end electioneering in the Irish Free State left numerous persons nursing cuts and bruises as meetings were accompanied by fights. Police of Dublin, reinforced by 700 members of the Irish Comrades Association, battled with Republican partisans who sought to break up a meeting addressed by National party leaders including former President William T. Cosgrave, General Richard Mulcahy and Mrs. Collins O'Donnell, sister of the late Michael Collins. Three hundred police fought hand in hand with the Army Comrades to protect speakers and, despite their efforts, Republican sympathizers tore down loud speakers and hurled stones at the platform. General Mulcahy was hounded down and had to leave the platform. Revolver shots were fired but no one appeared to have been hit. Despite the violence campaigners managed to deliver a flood of oratory in open air demonstrations accompanied by torchlight processions. All party conventions were lively. The White Army of the National Party, as the Army Comrades Association is called, had numerous resolute-looking young men gathered in groups wherever there appeared likelihood of trouble from the Republicans. Before Mr. Cosgrave appeared to address a meeting last night in his own constituency at Cork, a body of the comrades marched in military formation to the scene and were posted by their leaders at strategic points among the crowd. Entrance to every side street was held by six-foot policemen. Police helmets could be seen rising about the sea of heads wherever an assembly element gathered.

Met on Tuesday, members all present except Coun. Kilgour. Mayor Alfred Greig presiding. On motion of Couns. Collum and Frappier the following accounts were ordered paid: County Council, County rate, $405.05; Atlantic liner France Sunday morning while she was lying at her dock at Havre, France, only the vigilance of night watchmen prevented a serious blaze. It is believed the fire was caused by shorts in the first class cabins. The France had been laid up for several months and only watchmen were on board. Both the ship's fire fighting force and apparatus from Havre were summoned. They succeeded in extinguishing the fire after two hours' work. The damage was slight, according to the Compagnie Generale Trans-Atlantique, owners of the France. Sunday's fire, following closely the disaster to the liner L'Atlantique, has reduced the demand for the fullest possible inquiry into the construction of French ships. It is urged especially that such details be studied as the protection of electrical installations, the type of varnish and the use of wood from the French colonies. A committee of experts, Access to the burned ship was granted to a few newspapermen, although the fire had not been completely extinguished. The ship's inspector, the liner report that the main above decks is complete, nothing being left of her elaborate furnishings. Her interior is said to be as mass of twisted and broken iron, good only as scrap. Only her engine rooms seem to have escaped destruction. It is regarded as remarkable that her oil tanks did not explode.

Oldest Royal Guard

Ye English King's Body Guard of the Yeomen of the Guard is not only the oldest royal body guard, but it is also the oldest military corps now existing in this or any other country. Though it can be traced back to the armed personal guards of the Saxon king, it was reserved for King Henry VII to make it a permanent institution in 1485 and give it the constitution, dress and equipment which has persisted during four and a half centuries.

Aubrey

Mr. Wm. Allen Passes Away at Aubrey.

Death has again visited this community taking away a highly respected citizen in the person of Mr. William Allen. Though confined to bed for the past four months and gradually growing weaker, Mr. Allen was always glad to see his friends and neighbors, always had a cheery smile and kindly word for them. For many years he was Superintendent of the Norton Creek Sunday School and it was mainly due to his efforts that so many young people attended this Sunday School after reaching maturity. He was Captain of the Aubrey Rifle Club and an excellent marksman. Only last summer an instance of his good marksmanship is recorded. A number of the younger generation were trying to hit a target they had set up, and failed to do so, when Mr. Allen, despite his then 83 years of age, took the rifle and struck the target straight in the centre. He was also an officer of the old Fifty-first Battalion, and a veteran of the Pen-ian Raid.

Mr. Allen was a great lover of sports of all kinds and always liked to see the young folk enjoying themselves. He travelled considerably, making several trips to the Northwest, his last trip being made by boat via the Panama Canal. He also made an aeroplane trip to New York some years ago. His wife pre-deceased him several years ago. He leaves to mourn his loss, two sons Andrew with whom he lived, Alfred on the adjoining farm, and one daughter, Mrs. Colin McMillan of High River, Alta., and several grandchildren, also two grandsons and one sister, Mrs. J. A. Ritchie of Dewittville, Que., to whom the sympathy of the community is extended. The funeral service which was held in Riverfield church was largely attended, and testified to the esteem in which Mr. Allen was held. The service was conducted by the Rev. A. B. Moore, pastor of Howick United. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful. Interment in Riverfield cemetery.

Why Not Drink and Drive a Car? Thirty-three States and the District of Columbia have laws which punish by fines from $50 to $1,000 and by imprisonment from thirty days to two years the person who is guilty of the offence of driving "while under the influence of intoxicants"—not for drunkenness, but for something rightly considered by well-informed people as much more dangerous. The courts at various times have interpreted this statement to mean that one is under the influence of intoxicants if one's faculties have been "disturbed, interfered with, or affected" by them.

Why do we state, such as New Jersey, Massachusetts, Maryland, Connecticut, and Rhode Island apparently enforce this traffic law just as strenuously as any dry state could possibly do?

Indeed, in New Jersey, even after fine or imprisonment is imposed, the defendant who is a second time proven guilty of this offense is kept from ever again driving a car in the state. The New Jersey commission of motor vehicles says: "The safe rule is to avoid drinking if you are expected to drive a motor vehicle." The commissioner of motor vehicles for Connecticut, R. B. Stoeckel says: "The really dangerous driver is the man who has had one or two drinks only, who still thinks he is in possession of his faculties, but whose driving judgment has been impaired." An automobile liability insurance company gives the warning: "The only safe way is not to drive, if you have taken even the smallest quantity of intoxicating liquor, opiates or narcotics.—(From the Union Signal official organ of the U. S. National W. C. T. U.)

A motorist was helping his victim, who happened to be extremely fat, to rise from the ground. "Couldn't you have gone round me?" he growled. "Sorry!" said the motorist, airily. "I was not sure whether I had enough petrol."

Falcons vs Rond Cadieux Hockey.

The Falcons played their sixth game of the season by a sweeping victory over Rond Cadieux, playing a remarkable defensive game. An outstanding victory because of the fact that only seven men were playing. Kirby, the goaler, making numerous sensational saves despite the fact that he has only played for the first time in three years. The defense of the team, Tom Waldron and Eddie Burgess, were very effective, stopping every man coming down the ice from the opponents territory. The forward line consisting of Romeo Gendron, Roy Sunstrom and Stanley Cook completing beautiful combinations and scoring. The first goal was scored by Burgess receiving the puck at his own blue line and going through the iron defence of the opponents, put a smashing shot to the corner of the net in the first five minutes of play. The puck was centered off and Kirby, being more defensive hockey until Joe May relieved Gendron, who made a good pass to Sunstrom in centre ice who scored again. The first period ended with the Falcons leading two goals ahead.

The second period was hard fought, both teams missing scoring chances and playing clean sportsman hockey. The third was fast, each team fighting for goals and Kirby, the goaler for the Falcons received a shot that bounced and rolled into the net, making the score two to one. The puck again centered off and as Joe May stepped out of the penalty box, got the puck and scored a goal. The game ended with the Falcons winning three to one.

The Falcons played their seventh game of the season. The score 0-0. Each team played for a win but despite the fact, both goalers made a shut-out. The line-up: Kirby, goaler; Waldron and Burgess, defence; Gendron, right wing; Sunstrom, centre; Joe May, left wing; subs, Seon, Wally and Cook.

W.C.T.U. Meeting.

The W.C.T.U. met at the home of the President Mrs. W. G. McGerrigle on Thursday afternoon, January 5th. The devotional exercises in charge of Miss M. Black were in keeping with the World's W.C.T.U. Day of Prayer. A special session of prayer following, having in mind the World's W.C.T.U. Day of Prayer. A special evening meeting will be held in February in honor of the great leader, Frances E. Willard. The topic for discussion was the insidiousness of the Government controlled liquor traffic. One question: How can a time of depression be avoided when one billion, one hundred and ninety-four million, seven hundred and sixty-two thousand dollars has been spent in Canada during 10 years of liquor sale? In 1920 when prohibition was in force in the provinces, but the Dominion still manufacturing on the plausible excuse of exportation, Canada had 4 distilleries and 57 breweries with a combined capital of forty-nine million, two hundred and sixty-seven thousand dollars after 10 years of Government liquor sale. It took 23 distilleries to supply the appetite and the breweries had jumped to 86 in number, having a joint capital of one hundred and twenty-eight million, three hundred and twenty-seven thousand dollars. Who can measure the ruined homes, the heartaches the debauchery this amount of money worse than wasted has caused. Sick visiting committee. Mrs. J. Peidle, Mrs. W. J. Roy, Mrs. M. E. Ross, Mrs. W. A. Ross Prayer-meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Jas. Winter, Sr.

Ormstown Defeats Quebec to Retain Challenge Trophy.

On Friday last, Quebec sent two risks of their experienced curlers to meet Ormstown stalwarts in an effort to lift the Quebec Challenge Cup and to take it back to its original home. Through the unkindness of the weatherman in not providing sufficient frost to make ice curable in the local rink, and through the generosity of the Ormstown team in having the game played while the Quebec teams were in Montreal for the Edinburgh Trophy play, which eliminated the necessity of them making a second trip, the local curlers met them in Montreal and played the game on the artificial ice at the Caledonia rink, retaining the famous Trophy by defeating them 37-23. This victory brought Ormstown totals of wins to 18 as compared with 19 wins by the Quebec team. The number of wins of any club since the inception of title series. The latter Club first put up the Cup for challenge competition between all the Clubs of iron playing Canada in 1874, and last held it in 1923, has had to wait its turn for a chance to regale ever since, owing to the fact that there is always a lengthy waiting list of challenging clubs, each club must await its turn which is about once in every six or seven years. Ormstown first won this coveted Trophy in 1899 from Royal Montreal and successfully defended through 16 games until 1903 when they lost it to Heathers of Montreal. Another stay here of the Cup for three or four years would be greatly appreciated.

The play entitled "Mrs. Briggs of the Poultry Yard," staged in Macdonald Hall last week by the Athelstan young people, was a decided success. It was an excellent comedy, full of good wholesome humor, and was excellently well presented. While all the players knew and acted their respective parts perfectly, special mention should be made of the leading lady, Mrs. W. R. Wilson, who was almost continuously on the platform, and who seemed to be perfectly at ease, in spite of the heavy part she played.

During intermission the audience enjoyed mandolin selections by Mr. N. W. Reese, accompanied by Mrs. Reese, solos by Mrs. Wood, accompanied by Miss Wilson, and a recitation by Miss Elizabeth Sadler. Rev. Mr. Woodside acted as chairman. Should the Athelstan young people ever decide to bring another play to Ormstown, they may be assured of a hearty welcome.

Mrs. A. C. Herdman and Miss Gladys Herdman of Huntingdon, spent a few days last week at the home of Mrs. G. T. Sadler.

Leap Year Bride

By Laura Lou Brookman

"Well, I declare! She's a pretty one, she is, though. And you've picked a good husband, too, ma'am. The old man assured Cherry. "One of the finest! I want to congratulate both of you. Yes, sir, indeed I do!"

Cherry. You'll be crazy about them all. Would it be too much of a favor to ask my wife if she'd have the next dance with me?"

She looked up at him through shining, tear-spangled lashes. "Why, darling! What's the matter?"

ing to change. "And do you have to write about all those things? I don't see how you could ever do it."

"Getting acquainted?" he asked, smiling. "They're a great bunch, ther-weight to touch. Exactly right in size. The price was $65.

She assured him she did not mind. Out on the street Cherry raised her head proudly. She wished the whole world could see her walking beside this tall young man who loved her and was so good to her.

He was smiling and Cherry knew that he had intended it as a joke. Still she didn't like to have Dan even suggest that there were differences in their social position.

CHAPTER XI

Cherry said "Oh—!" and then her voice dropped in disappointment. A boy in blue uniform stood at the door. He held a large cardboard box bearing in heavy lettering her name, "The Stanley Company."

Cherry was flushed and her eyes bright as she read the last words. So everyone knew! Her father and mother must have seen the paragraph. Well, they would understand now that she had meant what she said!

Cherry considered the package doubtfully. Ninety-three dollars and seventy cents spent for a simple garment. Suddenly she wished she had not gone shopping. It seemed a huge sum—$93.70. Why it was almost $100. In the store she had thought only that the dresses were becoming that she wanted Dan to see how well she looked in them.

Weather Readings of 1932

During the winter of 1931-32 the temperature did not go below zero. On January 14 a high temperature of 58 degrees was recorded. A violent hailstorm passed over Hemmingford on June 5 and caused heavy losses to apple growers, besides doing much harm to gardens. Hundreds of panes of glass were broken.

A rainfall of 3 1/4 inches was recorded on the first two days of the Fall show at Ormstown on Oct. 5 and 6. The summer was very cool. There were only two warm days, namely August 25 and 26, when the temperatures were 90 and 92 degrees respectively.

Howick

The Women's Institute met on Tuesday, Jan. 3rd, at the home of Mrs. J. D. Stewart. The Secretary, Mrs. A. Greig, read a letter from Miss Smith of the Friendly Home, giving a report of the work done there; also a letter of thanks from The Old People's Home for preserves, jellies, etc., contributed by W. I. members.

Miss Anna May Stewart made an appeal for cast off clothing of any kind, for the needy in Montreal. This will be distributed to those in great need by Dr. Snyder of Montreal. Parcels of clothing may be left in Howick at the home of Mrs. W. F. Welch.

Mr. Arch Craig was taken to the General Hospital on Tuesday morning last where he is receiving treatment. His many friends hope that he may have a speedy recovery.

Miss Belle Terrill of Stanstead, and Miss Mabel Fraser of Quebec, were holiday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Manning.

Mr. Merrill Crawford is at present in the General Hospital recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Manning entertained a few friends at bridge on Thursday evening.

Miss Emma Reid is spending a few days in Montreal. School re-opened on Tuesday morning, but many pupils are unable to attend as they have not yet recovered from la grippe.

Orders for trees sent to Pennsylvania state department of forests and waters showed some unusual coincidences in names. John Oakleaf applied to the department for pine tree seedlings; while John Acorn of Venango county sought spruce seedlings for plantings in Cherry Tree township.

The town of Falling Timber made application for tree seedlings, as did Hickory township in Forest county. Trees were shipped such places as Pine Grove, Woodside, Spruce Hill, Rockwood, Fleetwood, Beech Creek, Locust Gap, Drintwood, Cherry Tree and Forest City.

Some people want the friendship and respect of their fellow men, with as much worldly goods thrown in as is consistent with a life policy of giving everyone else the best of the bargain. Friendship and respect are the rarest treasures a man can have and the hardest to obtain.

With that command, pronounced in solemn tones of His Majesty King George V., a deserving subject, he touched on the shoulder by the King's sword. He is handed a newly made charter and he becomes a full-fledged knight.

Although a knighthood is the lowest title which the King bestows, that little ceremony costs the recipient of the honor $1,650.

I do not mean to imply that an English title can be obtained by money alone. There was a time, of course, when titles were openly bartered, and the more affluent the subject the greater was his title.

Today, however, the Court of St. James bestows titles only for public service beyond the ordinary. A committee of three men of the privy council decides just who deserves a title. The triumvir presents the name of the candidate to the prime minister, who in turn submits it to the King. The King seldom rejects it.

It is the cost of initiation which is so steep that the candidate is often obliged to default. There is the little matter of stamp duties and fees which are payable in the peer's letters of patent. In the case of a duke, these charges are as much as $5,545, and we already have seen how a mere knight must pay $1,650. The charges depend entirely on the rank of the titled one.

The graduations are: Knight, baronet, baron, viscount, earl, marquis, duke, prince and king.

With the exception of the two lowest titles of knight and baronet, every nobleman is a peer. The creation of a peer is no simple matter. If, for instance, the new peer is a baron, he is presented by the board of inland revenue with a bill for stamp duties, crown office fees, and home office fees for his letters of patent amounting to the sum already mentioned.

Strange Tree Orders

Ambition Gives Clew to Person's Character

If you can persuade a person to outline to you just what is his ambition in life you will have secured a good key to that person's character. Some people want to be rich. With diligence, thrift, and average intelligence, this is perhaps the easiest ambition to achieve, particularly if a little greed is mixed into the recipe.

Some people want power and recognition. If they are willing to pay the price, this ambition, too, can be achieved. Here, too, greed can assist the crafty climber.

Some people want the friendship and respect of their fellow men, with as much worldly goods thrown in as is consistent with a life policy of giving everyone else the best of the bargain.

With that command, pronounced in solemn tones of His Majesty King George V., a deserving subject, he touched on the shoulder by the King's sword. He is handed a newly made charter and he becomes a full-fledged knight.

Although a knighthood is the lowest title which the King bestows, that little ceremony costs the recipient of the honor $1,650.

I do not mean to imply that an English title can be obtained by money alone. There was a time, of course, when titles were openly bartered, and the more affluent the subject the greater was his title.

If, for instance, the new peer is a baron, he is presented by the board of inland revenue with a bill for stamp duties, crown office fees, and home office fees for his letters of patent amounting to the sum already mentioned.

Besides this, there are numerous accessories, such as armorial bearings or coat-of-arms, which every nobleman is expected to possess. Lately, many of them have done without them.

A baronet's coat of arms, complete with crest and motto, runs into a mere $380, but if he wants heraldic supporters on each side of the shield, he will have to pay out an additional $275. To become a baron in full style costs $2,306, while the costs of becoming a duke or a marquis is greater in proportion.

All this money is just so much created paper to foot these formidable bills. In such cases the peers are subsidized by the civil contingencies fund. In 1931, many thousands of dollars were expended in behalf of Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the British Boy Scouts, the late Lord Plumer, field marshal of the British army, who fought in the world war under General Haig, and Lord Passfield, while Justice Sankey was allotted a large sum to cover the cost of his magnificent judicial robes.

Knights of the Garter. But, if becoming an ordinary, garden variety peer is an expensive proposition, the privilege of becoming a Knight of the Garter requires the resources of a millionaire. The fees amount to $4,500.

The dazzling magnificence of the knights' regalia is responsible for this expense. Their collars, made of pure gold, weigh 20 ounces, and are studded with jewels. They are also charged for hanging their banners in St. George's chapel at Windsor, the country home of the royal family, where each knight has his stall. There is another charge for having their names inscribed on the roll of knights, and numerous other petty charges, which roll up into an enormous sum, a sum so large that Lord Palmerston and Lord Melbourne declined the honor.

Peers of all ranks are expected to furnish themselves with the trappings necessary for state occasions. A junior baronet, for instance, wears a gilt circlet with six silver balls on the rim; a viscount has 16 such balls; an earl, eight; and a marquis, four, alternated with strawberry leaves. The full dress of a peer consists of a mantle of crimson, edged with ermine and an ermine cape. The cost of these is $1,000, and it would be an unparadise breach of court etiquette to appear without them.

Brings Wonderful Vitality

I take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I find them a wonderful pick-me-up. So writes E. M. Ward, Saskatoon, Sask., who further states: "I would recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all sufferers from that rundown, listless feeling. I have taken the Pills on many occasions, and they seem to tone up my blood wonderfully. I have been anaemic for years, and find that, when I get run-down, after taking several boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the color comes back to my cheeks and I have wonderful vitality."

Early Canadian Steamboats

The first steamboat in Canada began to run in 1809. It was the Accommodation, and its route was on the St. Lawrence between Quebec and Montreal, says the Montreal Family Herald. In 20 years' time steam craft were fairly general, some of the earliest ventures being made in the Maritime provinces. The first railway train in Canada ran on the Champlain & St. Lawrence railway, a 14-mile line, between St. Johns on the Richelieu river, and Laprairie, near Montreal. It began to operate in 1836, only six years after the first steam train in North America.

National Anthem

"The Star Spangled Banner" was made the national anthem of the United States by act of congress, signed by the President, March 3, 1831. Prior to this its only official recognition occurred nearly a hundred years after it was written, when it was formally ordered to be played in the army and navy on occasions of ceremony. Its standing was undisturbed in other lands, and whenever America was honored in music this air was played.

Titled Privileges

A peer does not pay out all this money for nothing. He enjoys certain privileges. His personal honor is safeguarded by the state. If you spread scandal about a peer, even if it is a heavy fine, a peer cannot be arrested for debt. He need not do jury duty, and never has to give evidence under oath except in criminal court.

Once a peer is condemned to be hanged, he may demand the use of a silk-ent cord, instead of the usual hempen rope. On only two occasions has this demand been made—by the eighth Baron Stourton and the fourth Earl Ferrers. They were both hanged for committing exceptionally brutal murders.

The first son of a peer automatically is born into the title next lowest in rank. When his father dies, he inherits the original title. All other sons are given courtesy titles.

Of course, every peer has the privilege of sitting in the House of Lords. A Peer's Wife. Once a peer has been created, he cannot divest himself of his own title. He may relinquish it for a number of reasons, heavy expenses being a common one, and he does not have to maintain his rank. When a peer dies, his wife gets the title and privileges, with the exception of the seat in the House of Lords. If she marries a commoner, however, after the death of her first husband, she reverts to plain "Mrs." unless she is a peeress in her own right, that is—by inheritance.

It is this vast system of pageantry and tradition which is largely responsible for British national pride and innate respect for the law. The imposing spectacle of an English magistrate in full regalia is enough to strike awe and respect into the heart of the most obdurate criminal.

Nature Knows!

The stomach prevents itself from being dissolved by its own gastric juices because old Dame Nature wisely arranged that it should consist of a substance that is immune from such dissolution. In this nature is wiser than the amateur scientist who boasted long and loud that he had invented a liquid that would dissolve anything it touched. Tired of his boasting, a listener silenced him by asking him quickly: "What do you propose to keep it in?"

When the train stopped at the little Southern station the tourist from the North sauntered out and gazed curiously at a lean animal with scraggy bristles which was rubbing itself against a scrub oak. "What do you call that?" he asked, curiously, of a native. "Razorback hawg, suh." "What is he doing rubbing himself against the tree?" "He's stropping hisself, suh, just stropping hisself."

Dispossessed

Charles, age eight, had a baby sister of whom he was very proud. So great was his enthusiasm over the new arrival that he continued bringing great numbers of children to see the baby, until his mother was forced to call a halt. "How is your baby, Charles?" inquired one of the mother's friends, shortly after admittance had been refused a bevy of boy friends. "Huh, she's not my baby," snickered Charles. "I don't think she's even a third mine any more."

Oysters Cure Anemia

Oysters have been shown by Levine, Remington and Culp, scientific investigators to be capable of curing the nutritional anemia of milk-fed rats. The presence of copper in the oyster is not new knowledge. The studies indicate that the inorganic elements present in the oyster are responsible for its hemoglobin regenerating capacity and that the anti-anemic potency of the oyster can be accounted for on the basis of its content of the three elements, iron, copper, and manganese.

Injuries Fatal to Hugh McConville

Injuries received in an auto collision recently proved fatal to Hugh McConville, well known real estate broker of 5931 York boulevard, Highland Park, California. The accident occurred when a machine which G. Victor Allen of 1512 North Avenue 56 was driving collided with that driven by Mr. McConville at Stratford Road and North Avenue 53.

Mr. McConville had been a resident of Highland Park since 1912, having come here from Temecula, Calif. He was born in Huntingdon, Que., on August 12, 1867, and came west at the age of 21. By trade a blacksmith, he later engaged in the livery business in Riverside county. For years he was Republican central committeeman and also served as deputy sheriff of Riverside county for 12 years. His experiences in the old days when there was swift justice were many and varied.

Mr. McConville was always interested in the development and progress of Highland Park. He was a director of the York State Bank for many years and until his death. The widow, Laura E. The Farms of Canada

Quebec has a population of 2,874,255, of whom 1,060,649 are classed as rural and 1,813,606 are urban dwellers.

Of the rural population 744,429 live on farms, and 316,220 are retired farmers or dwellers, or residents of small villages, or engaged in forestry or mining.

The actual farm population of Ontario is 785,653, or 23 per cent of the total, though the rural dwellers represent 39 per cent and the urban population 61 per cent.

In the three Western Provinces the number of actual farm population is 1,186,500, in a total population of 2,352,000.

Saskatchewan has 361,047 of farmer population, Alberta has 370,899 and Manitoba 254,302.

The combined actual farm population of the three Western Provinces is 354,000 less than the total dwellers on farms in Quebec and Ontario.

The Western Provinces elect more farmer legislators than do the two old Eastern provinces, even though the total actual dwellers on the farms are but half the gross population. Actually there are but 728,623 separate and distinct farms in all nine provinces, and the three leaders are: Ontario, 192,174 farms; Saskatchewan, 136,472; Quebec, 135,987.

Government officers are trying to gather the number of radio sets in operation on the farms in Canada, with the idea that they can gather $2 out of each owner to help pay for the very latest departmental imposition at Ottawa. Since the tax was imposed on long distance telephones the usual result of government interference in business has accrued: a falling off in revenue and in the total telephone business—(Sherbrooke Record).

Make Apples Blush

By turning the ultra violet rays of a mercury lamp on green apples, using a filter of some special glass, the Boyd-Thompson institute of plant research has been able to speed up the action of the sun and turn the green fruit into a beautiful red color in 40 to 96 hours without burning or overheating. In other words, the fruit is colored quickly by improving on the sun's methods. If the peel is too old or crushed no color results, as Dr. John M. Arthur, in charge of this investigation, found that only living cells of the apple peel will respond to this treatment.

Frosh—Say, who is that beefy fellow over there with the remarkably broad shoulders?
Soph—That's the champion chess player of the college.
Frosh—And who is the midget with the red hair?

Your Customers, do they Observe your Bargains?

As the weather changes, the mercury in the thermometer either rises or lowers. In merchandising, the more sales made, the larger will be the bank account. To make more sales today, concentrated effort is essential. If your trading is done largely amongst 300 or 400 customers it is necessary to keep them informed on what you have to offer, and state the price. Keep persistently informing them of what you have in your store for sale. You may think everybody in your neighbourhood knows your store as well as you know it yourself. Perhaps they have gone to your store so often they unconsciously do not observe what you have on sale, even at a bargain price.

Command the attention of your customers and new friends by inserting an advertisement in the Gleaner each week. Concentrated effort in this respect will mean a greater number of sales and better profits.

The Map below showing the trading area of The Gleaner indicates that everyone of the 84 stores in this area could advertise to advantage in The Gleaner.
