Imprisoned Canadians released Saturday

SAIGON (CP) — The Viet Cong says two Canadian peacekeepers will be released Saturday.

The Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) delegation said today that Maj.-Gen. Duncan McAlpine, head of the Canadian military delegation, had informed it that the South Vietnamese government has pledged to guarantee safety for the flight of Viet Cong envoys to pick up the Canadians and return them to Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base.

A second meeting was underway at mid-afternoon today to discuss the schedule for Saturday's flight.

Earlier, McAlpine met with Col. Bui Thanh Khiet, deputy chief of the Viet Cong delegation. Khiet briefed McAlpine on tentative plans for the release.

Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvain said: "We hope to see our two men out tomorrow (Saturday) but we won't know for certain until the recovery mission begins."

Capt. Ian Patten of Toronto and Capt. Fletcher Thomson of Ottawa have been in Viet Cong custody for just over two weeks. They were detained on suspicion they were "sham officers" of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS).

They were last seen June 28 in their black and white ICCS jeep surrounded by Communist troops on a rubber plantation about 35 miles east of Saigon after entering the Viet Cong-controlled territory on what was described as a mission to show the ICCS flag.

A possible snag in release of the men came to light when it was noted that the PRG statement today did not mention the two Vietnamese ICCS employees who disappeared with the Canadians.

Asked about this, the PRG spokesman would only say: "We have another specific schedule for the Vietnamese. I don't know whether they are to be released at the same time as the Canadians."

Canada has always mentioned the release of these two men, an interpreter and a driver, as it negotiated for the release of the two officers.

The question is whether Canada can accept the release of the two officers when ICCS officials are not sure of the fate of the Vietnamese.

Canadian officials said today that the Viet Cong had proposed two possible air corridors and was prepared to offer safe passage for a rescue team of Canadians and Hungarians to pick up the detained men.

The officials said Gen. McAlpine was told the operation could begin Saturday if the South Vietnamese government gave its safety assurances for the rescue mission and ordered its forces in the pickup area to halt military operations.

CANADA CAUTIOUS

Despite today's breakthrough in the protracted negotiations to free the two ICCS officers, the Canadian delegation approached the news with caution.

Ambassador Gauvain said: "As far as the Canadian delegation is concerned we find these latest steps advantageous but as we have said before we will not be happy until we find the two men and they are back with us."

Only a week ago a "search" for the two officers was started with high hopes. But the PRG called it off after making charges that the South Vietnamese were conducting military operations in the search area.

It is believed that the PRG has told the ICCS that the Canadians could be in one or two locations in the large area under Viet Cong control.

But the statement did not say what kind of safety guarantees the PRG is demanding.

Earlier this week Ambassador Gauvain told ICCS commissioners that the PRG had requested no military operations be conducted in an area involving 1,700 square kilometres.

If the PRG is making a similar request now, negotiations for the release of the men could be delayed.

Judge rules Indian Act inoperative

TORONTO (CP) — The thorny issue of Indian rights was thrown wide open Thursday by a Supreme Court of Ontario ruling that the Indian Act is inoperative and that the Six Nations Indian reserve near Brantford has no legal basis for being a reserve.

As a consequence, one lawyer said, the legal title to much of the land on which the city of Brantford is built is questionable.

And Mr. Justice John Osler in his 24-page judgment also came down heavily in favor of the historic Council of Hereditary Chiefs as rightful controllers of the reserve instead of the elected Indian council imposed by the federal government in 1924.

His judgment was based on precedents established in some of the first official land dealings between colonial administrators and Indians in what is now Canada.

The case arose from an injunction brought by the elected council against the hereditary chiefs seeking to bar them from the 87-year-old reserve council house. The application was dismissed and the injunction, which has continued since 1970 on an interim basis, was dissolved by Mr. Justice Osler.

Reaction to the ruling was swift and mixed.

Some older Indians on the Six Nations reserve, traditionalists supporting the hereditary chiefs, hailed the judgment as a victory.

GOVERNMENT SURPRISED

A spokesman for the federal Indian affairs department in Ottawa expressed surprise at the decision and said the department would study the judgment before deciding what action, if any, to take.

John Gasson, executive director of the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada, said in Toronto that although the ruling came in a provincial supreme court, it might have repercussions across the country.

"Most Indians feel that they have rights far beyond whatever the Indian Act grants them, but many will still view with apprehension the removal of protection, however great or small, afforded under the act," he said.

Mr. Justice Osler said that in his opinion the Indian Act "is inoperative by virtue of its discrimination by reason of race."

He cited a Supreme Court of Canada ruling that declared invalid, because of discrimination, a section of the act relating to liquor, and to a judgment pending in the same court on another section by which a woman loses her Indian status upon marriage to a non-Indian.

"For all practical purposes the entire act must now be held to be inoperative," said Mr. Justice Osler.

LAND GRANT UNAFFECTED

He also said that the Indian Act and other legislation had not, in his opinion, affected "the quality" of an 18th-century land grant to the Six Nations Indians "or the title held under it."

He referred to a 1784 land grant by which Sir Frederick Haldimand, governor of what was then known as Quebec, gave permission to the Mohawk Nation and such other of the Six Nations Indians as wish to settle in that quarter to take possession of and settle upon the banks of the river commonly called Ours (Ouse) or Grand River — which them and their posterity are to enjoy forever.

In 1793 this grant was confirmed by John Graves Simcoe, governor of what had become Upper Canada, in what became known as the Simcoe patent.

The document, in the name of King George III, granted the land to the "chiefs, warriors, women and people of the Six Nations," and their heirs forever.

Mr. Justice Osler said that the effect of the Haldimand grant and Simcoe patent was to give the Indians title to the land in fee simple, as opposed to other reserves in which title is vested with the Crown in trust for the Indians.

PADLOCK COUNCIL HOUSE

The injunction brought against the hereditary chiefs developed from incidents in June and July, 1970, during which the chiefs seized and padlocked the Six Nations council house.

After years of disgruntled acquiescence the chiefs were giving militant voice to their opposition to the elected council, imposed by an order-in-council by the federal government in 1924. At that time the government had directed the RCMP to forcibly evict the chiefs from the council hall.

Mr. Justice Osler pointed out that the order-in-council provided that "this band" (the Six Nations Indians) was "considered fit" to have the elected council.

The Indian Act also defined what it meant by "band" and "reserve."

As a result of this examination, Ziegler said, Tkach advised the president he should enter the hospital for medical treatment.

This is the first major illness for the president.

The doctor said Nixon, 60, has been in good health and he estimated he would not need to be in the hospital longer than about a week "and recovery should be rapid."

INSISTS ON X-RAY

Although he had been feeling discomfort since early morning, the decision to send the president to the hospital was not made until early this evening, Ziegler said. It came after Tkach insisted that the president have an x-ray of his chest.

THE CRUSHER — What is believed to be the biggest ore crusher in the world has entered production in the new Canadian Johns-Manville crusher-dryer-concentrator complex in Asbestos, part of the company's $75 million, three-year program to relocate surface facilities at the Jeffrey Mine. Trucks of up to 200 tons capacity will dump as much as 3,000 tons of ore hourly into the manganese-steel-lined crusher pit, filled with rock at a

45-degree slope to bear the impact. Powered by a 700-horsepower electric motor, the entire 105-ton crusher shaft rotates in its cone at 100 r.p.m. with a slight eccentric motion to provide the crushing action. This new 72-inch gyratory crusher replaces the skipway and primary jaw crushers which were located on the pit edge. For more on new facilities, see p. 3

Peron to return

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Hector Campora said he would resign today in preparation for an election to return Juan Peron to the Argentine presidency he lost 18 years ago in a bloody military coup.

Campora was the victim of a revolt by moderate leaders within the Peronist movement who charged that he was unable to cope with leftists threatening to take over the movement.

Vice-president Vicente Solano Lima said he would resign with Campora and the president of the lower house of Congress, Raul Lastiri, would become interim president.

There was no indication whether the military would oppose the return to office of the 77-year-old former dictator. But Campora since his inauguration 49 days ago has put younger officers at the head of the armed services, retiring some of the leading anti-Peronist generals and admirals.

Campora, a 64-year-old dentist and protégé of Peron, said early today in announcing his intention to resign that a presidential election would be held within 40 days.

BALBIN MAY JOIN TICKET

Campora said Peron will be a candidate and his vice-presidential running mate might be Ricardo Balbin, head of the Radical Civic Union, the country's second-largest party.

Balbin, 68, was jailed for a year during Peron's 1946-55 dictatorship and ran second to Campora in the presidential election last March. His presence on the ticket with Peron would increase public opposition to any attempt to block the election.

Campora, although picked by Peron for the presidency, had been unable since his inauguration May 25 to suppress feuding among the diverse factions in the Peronist movement. The deepest split has been between the middle-of-the-road unions, Peronism's backbone, and the leftist radicals. The radicals, spearheaded by the youth movement, demand a sharp swing to socialism.

The bitterness of their rivalry was demonstrated when at least 25 persons were killed and hundreds were wounded in gun battles during the huge rally that welcomed Peron home from Spain June 20.

The traditional Peronists launched their surprise offensive against the government Thursday afternoon.

UNIONS BACK MOVE

Peronist congressmen, politicians and party officials demanded that Peron assume the presidency. The General Labor Confederation threatened a strike to demand "power to Peron."

The leftists appeared to have been caught off guard but quickly mobilized for a fight.

Students from the Peronist youth movement and from Communist and Socialist groups occupied the university medicine, law and philosophy schools in Buenos Aires. They daubed the walls with such signs as "We repudiate this right-wing coup."

Student leaders said universities in some provincial cities also were being occupied.

Major battles between the Peronist factions could increase the possibility of military intervention, but this appeared unlikely.

Peron held lengthy conversations with the new commanders of the army, air force and navy this week. With their consent, Campora signed a decree Thursday restoring the rank of lieutenant-general to Peron. It had been stripped from him when the military kicked him out.

Foreign commercials may be banned

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Juneau announced Thursday that the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) is seeking regulations that would, in effect, ban foreign commercials from Canadian airwaves.

At a meeting of the Senate transport and communications committee, Mr. Juneau said the CRTC feels that regulations governing commercials are necessary. He is CRTC chairman.

He said the regulations will call for 100 per cent Canadian production of radio commercials, and Canadian content in television advertising will be "as close to 100 per cent as possible."

The Senate committee was considering a motion by Senator Sydney Buckwold (L-Saskatchewan) to ban foreign advertising in broadcasting. Mr. Juneau estimated it will be a year, at least, before the measures could be brought into effect. Public hearings and consultation with the industry would be required.

He said the regulations will be modeled on those now covering programming. Television and radio program content must be at least 60 per cent Canadian over a set period and never less than 50 per cent during any part of that period.

A commercial produced domestically by a Canadian for a Canadian outlet would meet the proposed content rules, but common sense must play a part, he said.

Hazy Moore says Nixon not involved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential aide Richard Moore swears he was not involved in the cover-up and doesn't believe President Nixon knew about it.

Moore's testimony began Thursday following that of former attorney-general John Mitchell, who stuck to his story through three days of questioning despite suggestions that he had lied under oath to keep the lid on the scandal.

While they testified, the Senate panel's chairman, Senator Sam Ervin, arranged to meet with Nixon to discuss the president's refusal to surrender White House papers to the committee.

Hours later the President was admitted to Bethesda Naval Hospital with what the White House described as viral pneumonia.

SAYS DEAN WRONG TWICE

Moore, a special counsel to the president, read a 20-page statement that contradicted on two key points the previous testimony of former White House counsel John Dean.

Moore admitted that he attended a meeting in La Costa, Calif., in February and that Dean mentioned "he had been told by the lawyers ... that they may be needing some more money."

Moore went to New York to suggest that Mitchell raise the necessary funds, a request which Mitchell rejected, but denied he was told the money was for the original Watergate defendants, as Dean has testified.

—Dean swore he was convinced the president knew of the cover-up because parts of it were discussed in Nixon's presence by Dean and other White House aides. But Moore said nothing he heard in four meetings he and Dean had with the president or in his own talks with Dean indicated the president knew the "critical facts" until the March 21 meeting at which Dean said he told the president all he knew of White House involvement in the coverup.

On those two points, Moore indicated he was sure of his facts and confident in his conclusions. But under rapid-fire questioning by assistant chief counsel Terry Lenzner he repeatedly said he was unable to recall dates, the contents of specific meetings or the people with whom he met.

MITCHELL GRILLED

Mitchell, who faced some of his toughest questioning in the closing hour of his lengthy interrogation, defended himself against suggestions he couldn't be believed under oath. He said the senators will have to decide whether to believe him or those who contradicted him.

The former attorney-general had testified that he didn't want anything to interfere with the President's re-election and thus didn't volunteer any information about the Watergate break-in or "White House horror stories" before the election.

Committee chief counsel Samuel Dash asked whether he would commit perjury in order to ensure the re-election, and Mitchell said that would be a subject "I would have to give very long and very hard thought to."

Dash then noted that Mitchell had made a sworn statement last Sept. 5 and pointed out apparent contradictions between his testimony then, that he was not told of Gordon Liddy's involvement in Watergate, and his testimony before the Senate committee that he had been briefed about Liddy's role four days after the break-in.

Mitchell also denied Sept. 5 knowing the circumstances of how Liddy had been hired by the Committee to Re-elect the President, but later told the Watergate panel he had interviewed Liddy and approved his hiring.

WHY BELIEVE HIM?

"Since you may have given false testimony under oath on prior occasions, is there really any reason for this committee to believe your testimony before this committee?" Dash asked.

Mitchell replied that he disagreed with Dash's interpretations of his prior answers.

In the White House papers dispute, Nixon said he is willing to meet with Ervin but has no intention of backing off from his stated position that the committee can't have the documents it says are needed for its investigation.

Nixon to enter hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was reported Thursday night by his doctors to be ill with viral pneumonia. They said he will enter Bethesda Naval Medical Centre for treatment.

Dr. Walter Tkach said the president has "no complications" and is expected to remain in the hospital for at least a week for rest and medication.

The president, complaining of discomfort in his right chest, summoned Dr. Tkach at 5:30 a.m. Thursday and a preliminary diagnosis indicated the viral pneumonia.

Presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Nixon was running a fever of between 101 and 102 degrees, but was in "excellent spirits even though somewhat weak."

In response to a question from reporters, who were summoned to the White House this evening, Dr. Tkach said the viral pneumonia is all that is wrong.

Nixon was given an electrocardiogram and it was "entirely normal," the doctor said.

INSISTS ON X-RAY

Although he had been feeling discomfort since early morning, the decision to send the president to the hospital was not made until early this evening, Ziegler said. It came after Tkach insisted that the president have an x-ray of his chest.

By Ann Landers

Astrology explains erratic behavior

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing about the letter by "Janus" who was bewildered and hurt by the man she loved because he seemed to be "two people." One day he was the dearest and most considerate of lovers. The next day, for no apparent reason, he was remote and brooding.

I would be willing to bet this man is a Pisces, born around February 20 to March 20. These radical personality changes are characteristic of a Piscean and anyone who has had the misfortune to love someone born under this sign of the zodiac must be willing to understand and accept his unpredictable behavior or get out of his life.

I can tell you from experience that Pisceans are fascinating but they are not worth the wear and tear on the nervous system. You were right when you told her, "Fight it with your hat. Take it and run."—Aries In Anchorage

Dear Ann: Several people wrote and offered the same explanation for the man's erratic behavior. Schizophrenics behave that way, too, no matter when they were born. Thanks for your letter.

Dear Ann Landers: Please excuse the writing paper. As you can see it's a grocery store bag but it's all I have in the house and I want to get this letter off to you while I am still mad enough to express myself properly.

Why are people such selfish, inconsiderate slob? I had an appointment with the doctor this afternoon and while I was waiting to see him I picked up The National Geographic magazine. There was a beautiful spread on the goldfish. It had lovely color photographs and some fascinating text. In the middle of the story it said "turn to page 533." Well, Ann, that page and two others had been ripped out. I was so furious I said a dirty word right out loud. (This is very unlike me.)

Don't people realize those magazines are there for everyone? What kind of a person would tear pages out of a magazine that is placed in a waiting room for the enjoyment of everyone?—Still Fuming

Dear Ann: You provided the answer. They are selfish, inconsiderate slob.

Dear Ann Landers: My best friend received an engagement ring last week. She was awfully disappointed. This girl had some definite ideas about what she wanted but the ring was a surprise so she had to act excited and pleased.

I don't want that to happen to me, so I am planning ahead. I called the jewelry store and asked if it's proper for the girl to go with her fiancé to pick out the ring. The man said, "Certainly. Most girls do and we recommend it."

So, Ann, I am going with my boy friend to pick out my ring in September. I need to know the following:

- Do we kiss in the store? Is this considered the official moment of engagement? Would it be O.K. to have a friend present, with a camera? Thank you—Well Organized Miss

Dear Miss: A ring is only a symbol of the engagement. You were "officially" engaged when your beloved asked you to marry him and you said, "Yes."

After you select the ring and have it sized to fit your finger, take it home and get kissed there. If you want a friend to take pictures, I suggest the privacy of your living room.

Social Evening

DITCHFIELD — A very successful social evening and sale sponsored by the Guild of St. John's Anglican Church was held at the home of Mr. Nelson Fletcher on June 30. In spite of the rainy weather there was a large turnout of people, principally visitors here for the Dominion Day weekend.

A doll, complete with a large wardrobe of clothes made by Mrs. Stanley Rider, was raffled, in the sum of $180.65.

Mrs. Richard Allaire being the holder of the lucky number drawn by Mr. David Simpson. The second prize, a pair of hand-embroidered pillowcases, was won by little Miss Laura Veary of Sault Ste-Marie, Ont., her grandmother, Mrs. Earl Veary, having bought the ticket in her name. The sale of handwork and the raffle, together with donations to the cause, brought in the sum of $180.65.

Youth move to country to escape grind, raise cash

EDMONTON (CP) — "When I get older, I want to be able to sit on the front porch of my farmhouse and watch the seasons change and know that I did something here," says Winston Gereluk, a graduate teaching assistant at the University of Alberta.

He lives in the city in a small house near the university. But all his spare time is spent on a quarter-section of land his father owns 45 miles east.

"In the city," he says, "they tear things up so quickly that you can't go back and look at the places you knew before. Suddenly you're an old man and don't know how or when it happened. It's different on a farm."

The farm he works now has only an old granary and a boarded-up community hall. The farm doesn't interfere with his city job and he explains that seeding his rape-seed crop comes right after the end of the term and is finished by the time the spring session starts.

The crop is harvested before the winter session gets under way.

"I don't think I could survive the academic grind without the farm," he says. "After a hard day's farm work there's nothing better than going out and sitting in the local bar with the people on neighboring farms—complaining about the government."

He says he does not make enough as a lecturer to feed himself, his wife Cynthia and their three young children and "I'd rather break my back on the farm than work part-time in the city." His crop earns him $1,500 profit annually.

Mr. Gereluk is thinking of becoming a farmer full-time though his wife is less enthusiastic. She says she would demand hot running water and a bathtub.

The Gerelucks are among several young people who have taken to farming part-time as both a diversion and a method of raising extra cash.

Twenty-two-year-old Susan Hosford raises sheep on her father's farm, 10 miles east of the city.

With only five acres her operation is small—24 ewes, 14 yearlings and 40 lambs.

She says she will be looking for more land, probably five years from now.

PREFERS SHEEP
She has almost finished her degree in education and says, "I can teach temporarily in the country, but I'm not sold on the teaching profession. I'm sold on sheep."

While the sheep are paying for her education, they also conflict with study periods. Most of March and April was taken up with lambing. To pay the cost of keeping her sheep, Susan helps her father, a dairy farmer, with his cattle and breeding records.

Political science graduate Chris Gould is raising 100 lambs on two pieces of land, one of which he occupies south of Hastings Lake, east of the city.

The bank owns the sheep, he admits.

"I did a prospectus and worked out a three-year cash flow to prove the economics of it were sound, and persuaded the bank to lend me the money."

Chris looks at the sheep as both a business and a way to live in the country.

"There's no question that I would have got into farming. I'm happiest when I'm out there and can do whatever I feel like doing."

"If I had a full-time job I could afford to make improvements that would mean less work in the operation but this way, the sheep have to pay for their own improvements," he said.

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Outlook improves and you may well realize the fulfillment of a long-time dream at this moment.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Creative abilities are accentuated. Try out one of the crafts outlined in a newspaper or magazine.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): There may be a temporary scarcity of what you're looking for, but it is available. Keep searching.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22): Don't let your disgust evidence itself. You're entitled to your opinion, but don't be too vocal.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 23): You have reason to be as proud as a peacock, but try to at least appear modest about achievements.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Don't give up too easily. Obstacles can be overcome if you're willing to make some sacrifices.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Relationships between relatives are a little better now. Make your request while the air is clear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Revenge may be sweet, as the old saying goes, but it works to your disadvantage in the long run. Be forgiving.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Although you may feel heartsick at the news, try to maintain your composure in the presence of others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You'll enjoy an informal gathering of the clan. Relatives you haven't seen for years may turn up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't reveal too much too soon. The longer you can keep your secret, the better off you'll be.

Writing on wall has higher tone

LONDON (AP) — The writing on the wall is getting more high-toned at one of London's busiest subway stations, Notting Hill Gate.

Author David Coxhead has a new chapter of his serialized novel Aunt Burt pasted in poster form on the station's tiled wall each week. It is believed to be the first time a subway station poster has been used to publish a novel.

Free-lance writers in London have used station walls before, but their efforts were less formal and tended toward lavatory humor.

Coxhead, 33, got his idea by thinking big. He already has two novels published in the conventional way. Speed King, and Run Come See Jerusalem.

"I wanted a big public space for words," he told a reporter. "Writers can usually only produce things which go in people's pockets."

Alive, well and 131

BARTOW, Fla. (AP) — A former slave, Charlie Smith says he is 131 years old.

"He gets a card from the president every year," said Social Security official John Kimak. "He looks forward to that and other birthday greetings. He also likes to mark the occasion by having his photograph taken."

Last year, his friends threw a big birthday bash for Smith July 4. There won't be any party this year, explained Kimak, because "we don't want to get him too excited."

Completes five-year expansion program

Johns-Manville opens $75 million mining operation

By CROSBIE COTTON
Record Reporter
ASBESTOS — Canadian Johns Manville Corp. officially dedicated one of the most advanced, computerized, environmentally-controlled asbestos mining and milling operations in the world yesterday at its Jeffrey Mine in Asbestos.

The ceremonies, attended by numerous company and government officials and members of the world press, marked the completion of the company's five-year expansion and modernization program which required an investment of more than $75 million. All costs were assumed by the company.

The modernization program and the dedication of the new facilities should bring many aspects of mining operations in Quebec back into the limelight. Quebec Natural Resources minister Gilles Masse, who replaced Premier Bourassa at the ceremonies, warned in an interview that the Quebec government would be undertaking a serious review of mining operations in Quebec in the near future. He said that Quebec needed foreign investment but that the whole issue of "the exploitation and exportation of our natural resources" must be examined.

He noted that foreign investors must assume the responsibility of being in Quebec and look towards Quebec workers to fill blue-collar as well as white-collar posts.

"Ten years ago you wouldn't have heard must French spoken in the management posts," he said. "However, times are changing and companies will have to adjust to the change."

Masse was not the only one to speak of the future. Mine union president Leo Boucher said "you can't be against progress" but he hoped that the company would consider the workers before moving towards excessive modernization and automation programs.

He still hopes the company will sway towards manufacturing products in Asbestos rather than continually exporting the asbestos fibers.

The company began the modernization program in 1969. The Mill Six complex dedicated yesterday entailed the relocation and reconstruction of all production facilities except for a 12-storey mill.

It meant the purchase of larger equipment, the acquisition of properties around the perimeter of the pit, the displacement of houses, commerce and businesses, the moving of hundreds of families, the relocation of two stretches of provincial highways and the replacement of various pieces of machinery, J.R.M. Hutcheson, Chairman of the Board of the Canadian corporation said.

One of the largest portions of the mines expanded facilities is what is reported to be the world's largest ore crusher, designed to crush 3,000 tons of ore hourly.

Ore to be crushed and processed into fibre is dumped by 200-ton-capacity trucks into dump pockets which feed into the giant 350-ton manganese-steel lines crusher.

"The latest in environmental health control equipment is being utilized throughout the new facility to further improve working conditions and the environment in and around the community of Asbestos," Mr. Hutcheson said.

Other major installations unveiled yesterday include a concentration drying complex, dry rock storage facilities, an additional fiber storage building and an extensive new conveying network.

Also being added to maintain high levels of production which should continue to yield in excess of 600,000 tons of asbestos annually are 13 new 100-ton-capacity ore hauling trucks.

The company expects to begin operating the new facility within a week. At present, work is still continuing at the old mill situated nearer the pit.

Approximately 325 men will be transferred from the mill to the mine. Despite the new system, which is operated by a computer instead of manually, the company and the union hopes that no layoffs will occur. Nearly 500 men worked in the old crushing mill while only 175 are needed under the new system.

The $75 million program is designed to take the company up to the year 2,000. Mr. Hutcheson said yesterday the mine had ore deposits well into the 21st century and company officials haven't yet determined how much ore really exists.

"Aimed at improving production efficiency and controlling costs, this program enables the mine to increase and maintain level annual production capacity and by doing so, provides stable and rewarding jobs for many years to come," Mr. Hutcheson said.

"For us today we are opening a new door in Quebec's economy and the future of Canadian Johns Manville," he added.

Weathermen end seminar today

LENNOXVILLE (MI) — The Stanstead Seminar, a biennial meeting ground for meteorological scientists, ends today after five days on the Bishop's University campus.

Jacques Derome, associate professor at McGill University and organizer of the seminar asserted yesterday that this year's theme is "the predictability of the atmosphere."

Explaining, he said, "We are attempting to determine how far ahead of time, ideally, weather can be predicted. This means, of course, that we have to know what the atmosphere is now."

"One has to know what types of observation must be made in the present to predict what the atmosphere will be in the future."

According to Derome, the series of seminars is the most important of its kind in Canada. Proof of the success of the series is evidenced by the fact that the 75 persons participating this year constitute the largest number ever. Scientists from Canada, the United States, and France are taking advantage of the event.

In Canada, the largest number hail from the Atmospheric Environment Service of Canada which is a service within the Department of Environment. Those from the States are from their equivalent department, the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration.

The seminar usually includes invited speakers of large stature in the field and others of somewhat lesser importance.

The major speakers this year have been Doctors Edward Lorenz from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Richard C.J. Somerville from the Goddard Institute for Space Studies, David Williamson from the National Center for Atmospheric Research and Tony Gordon of the Geophysical Fluid Dynamics Laboratory at Princeton.

Derome, elaborating on McGill's interest in the Seminar it organizes every two years, said McGill is excited because "it gives the members of the university an opportunity to meet and communicate with members of other institutions."

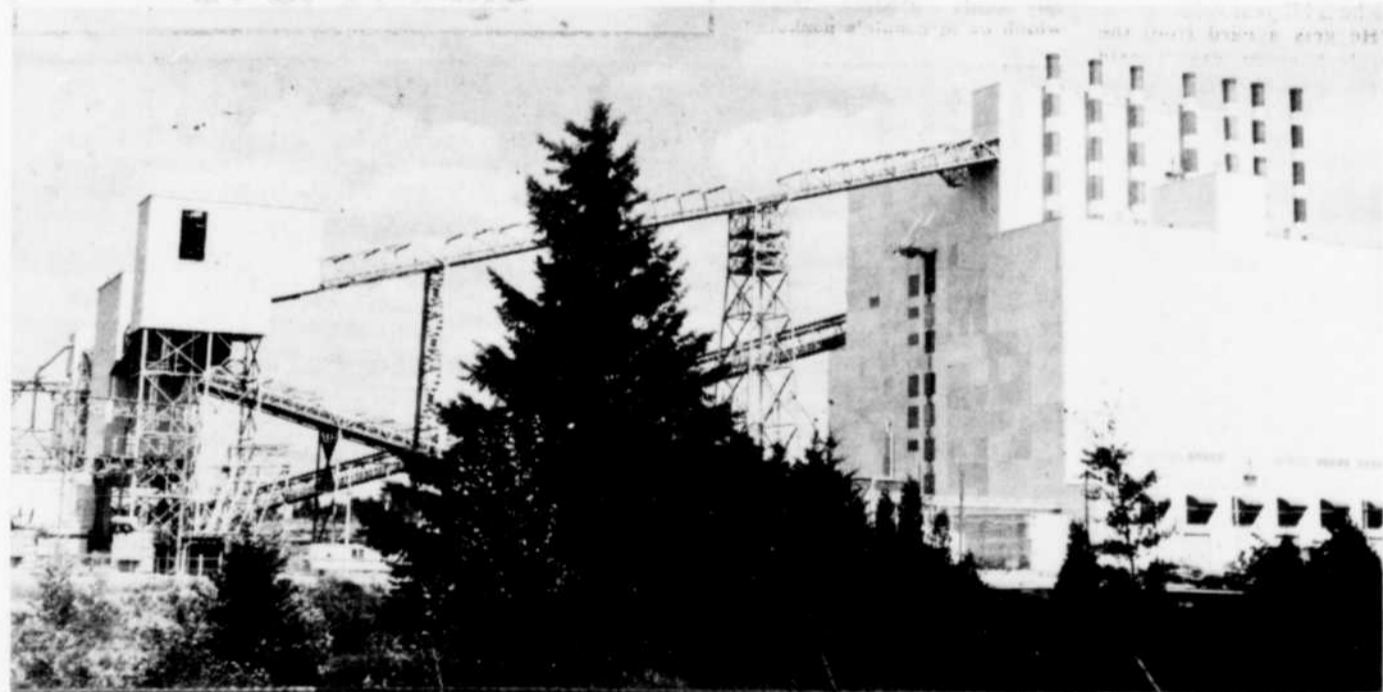

As well, the seminar gives graduate students a chance to meet very famous scientists and to get a feeling for research being carried out in major centers of research.

The seminar adopted its name from Stanstead College where earlier seminars were held. The present meeting is the 10th of the series.

TRUCKS AND SHOVELS — Main mobile equipment in the open pit at the Johns-Manville mine includes 200-ton diesel-electric trucks; 100- and 120-ton diesel-electric trucks, 40-ton diesel trucks, electric shovels (4,160 volts) 6 to 15 cubic yards buckets and auxiliary equipment.

THREE BUILDINGS IN ONE — Mill 6 at the Johns-Manville mine houses the secondary crusher plant, the dryer plant and the concentrator plant. The above complex also includes some 100 conveyors ranging in size from 24 inches to 60 inches, as well as 50 cyclone collectors and rotary valves for fibre aspiration and dust control purposes. This 700,000 CFM dryer collector is probably one of the largest of its kind. It is a fully computerized process control provided by a Foxboro 402 digital computer control system with 20 K of core store and a 410 K drum.

Thomas Bishop's new food director

LENNOXVILLE (MI) — Don Thomas is the new food director at Bishop's University.

Saga Foods has decided to promote former director Andy Belanger to the Sir George Williams University operation, on July 22 although he has already assumed his administrative functions.

Thomas comes to Bishop's from St. Mary's, Mount St. Vincent, and Acadia Universities. He will be appointed to the post officially on July 22 although he has already assumed his administrative functions.

Wajax acquires Coaticook firm

COATICOOK (MI) — According to a release from Bob Edwards, plant superintendent, Wajax Limited has acquired for cash a controlling interest in the business of Chas. Niedner's Sons Limited, with offices and plant at Coaticook.

Formerly U.S. owned, Niedner's is an old established manufacturer of linen fire hose, supplying all branches of fire control.

Participating as a minority interest will be A. Haberkorn and Co. KG, a well-known Austrian fire hose manufacturer. With the technical cooperation of Haberkorn, Niedner's intends to expand and develop its business by the introduction of new machinery to produce synthetic hoses of the most modern type, and will enjoy marketing rights throughout the Americas and the Pacific rim.

By 1974, Niedner's expects to offer a full range of Canadian-made natura' and synthetic hose meeting the needs of building and municipal fire protection, as well as forest fire fighting.

Both Niedner's and Haberkorn have been major suppliers of Wajax forestry hose for many years.

Edwards will be travelling to Austria for a two-week period in order to study the method of production employed by the Haberkorn plant in that country.

Father believes daughter murdered

OTTAWA (CP) — Oscar Drijber, retired Rockwood, Ont., teacher, said Thursday he has unpublished facts showing that his daughter and another Canadian died by "deliberate murder" at the hands of Zambian border guards May 15.

But, after a two-hour meeting he and his wife had with External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, he said he did not reveal the facts to Mr. Sharp because their disclosure could imperil the lives of his sources in Zambia.

The Drijbers recently returned from a six-week visit to Zambia, South Africa and Rhodesia where they sought information on their daughter's death.

Marjan Drijber and Christine Sinclair of Guelph, Ont., both 19, were shot by Zambian soldiers on the Rhodesian side of the Zambezi River.

Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda, who Mr. Drijber met, has offered condolences and money to the two families and admitted to fault of his troops.

GOT NO HELP
Mr. Drijber complained Thursday that the Canadian embassy in South Africa had not aided him and his wife during their stay, and suggested the external affairs department had not pressed its investigation adequately.

But he added: "They have done as much as they can. I think."

Mr. Sharp told reporters he shares the Drijbers' dissatisfaction with the explanation supplied by Zambia for the incident.

20 students in voyageur program

LENNOXVILLE — For the third year 20 students from the two English regional schools, Richmond Regional High School and Alexander Galt Regional High School, are participating in the Young Voyageur Program. The escorts are Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Belden of Lennoxville.

The program began this year on Tuesday, July 3, when 20 students from Chatham, Ontario, escorted by Mr. and Mrs. John Cass arrived for an eight-day visit.

Thursday and Friday, July 5 and 6, were spent in Quebec City where the students of both groups visited many places of interest — the Quebec Zoo, Montmorency Falls, Old Quebec and the Citadel, as well as the Parliament Buildings.

While at the Parliament Buildings they had the honour of meeting the Honourable Robert Bourassa.

Saturday and Sunday, July 7 and 8, the students had free days to visit the local area.

Monday, July 9, the groups visited Montreal to see such historical points as the Notre Dame Cathedral, Old Montreal, Mount Royal and the newer part of the city — Place du Canada, Place Ville Marie and Place Bonaventure.

Tuesday, July 10, they spent a social day at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. A. Sanborn at Brome Lake.

Wednesday, July 11, the groups all gathered at the Bus Terminal, where a great eight days ended with sad farewells and fond memories.

For the next few days the Sherbrooke group is preparing for their trip on Saturday, July 14, to Regina, Saskatchewan, spending two days and nights in Ottawa on their way. They return on July 26, bringing to an end the Young Voyageur Program for 1973.

Following is a list of students taking part in the Program:

CHATHAM
Girls — Kathryn E. Spence, Rosemary P. Kubilanski, Tracy L. Letts, Deborah Ann Clark, Margo L. Beggs, Gloria J. Dunn, Cindy A. Palajac, Jill D. Jackson, Melissa I. Grant, Sandra McLean.

Boys — Ronald V. Demers, Glen A. Johnson, David B. Campbell, John C. Smith, Timothy D.P. Mathany, Larry A. Blair, Ralph C. Billingsley, Zoley Banka, Dennis S. Rekuta, Mario Carnevale.

The painful choice

Probably the Trudeau government has not made up its mind yet, but obviously it is preparing for an autumn election, if necessary. The cunning bilingual resolution successfully designed to split the Conservative party, with John Diefenbaker's predictable co-operation; the last-minute rush of legislation through Parliament; the prime minister's ardent wooing of the West; the postponement of all major economic decisions; the official axiom that Canada never had it so good — these familiar signs are easily read.

It does not follow, of course, that the government will voluntarily go to the country this year, or even next year. It does not mean, either, that the government feels sure of victory. It only means that the government intends to be ready for any promising opportunity, or accident, and above all, to avoid an election, if possible, in a season of business slow-down. Since a slow-down, throughout North America, is now foreseen by most economists and the big boom may be already past its peak, the argument for a sudden autumn plunge is undoubtedly persuasive, lest the climate turn cold before spring.

In any case, the government is unlikely to repeat last year's fatal mistake of fighting an election on vague philosophical musings, or what the prime minister called a "conversation" with the people. As the results showed, the people are not much interested in philosophy at the moment but mainly in practical issues. The primary issue in Canada today is the price of bread and butter but, unlike its counterpart in Washington, the government is avoiding that issue and pretending that nothing can be done about it.

How long will such a flimsy pretence be maintained while prices soar upward? How long will the government refuse to face the truth of inflation while the United States government is facing it squarely, despite all its other troubles, and the Canadian consumer (also a voter) is becoming desperate? How long can the government endure without a credible economic policy or a real public mandate?

An unofficial and dubious answer of sorts has come from a group of distinguished Canadian economists assembled for joint meditation by the editors of Time magazine. Since they included Andre Raynaud, chairman of the Economic Council, their views deserve serious consideration, especially their unanimous view that economic growth will soon moderate, though they disagree on the timing and depth of the approaching readjustment. Their public advice to the government (and presumably Mr. Raynaud's private advice as well) is that plans should be made now to restimulate the economy, even at a time of record-breaking boom.

In other words, a new wave of inflation is required before the present one has subsided. To the noneconomists of the cabinet, who hear the protests of angry consumers outside the door, this advice is surely baffling. Hence the argument in favor of an election before things get worse, or before the United States proves that price controls, boldly applied, can work, contrary to the government's solemn warning.

While the government rejects controls and offers no substitute but perpetual inflation, the Conservative party has groped its way to a definite policy at last. In his recent speeches, clearly with an autumn election in view, Robert Stanfield definitely committed himself to a 90-day wage-price freeze, followed by some two years of mandatory and "more selective controls," the precise policy now under way, as Phase Four, in the United States.

Mr. Stanfield's final commitment puts the government on the defensive and, in comic irony, if forcing the New Democratic Party to recant some of its most basic doctrines. The socialists, who propose to control every thing permanently, if they are given the chance, now suddenly doubt that even temporary controls can succeed. David Lewis, his electoral strength falling in the latest Gallup poll, has heard from the labor unions, which want no controls, and he is more afraid of an election than ever.

Opinion from the French press

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Ottawa Le Droit: China's last nuclear test was a serious sin against humanity. However, it has always carried out its scientific experiments at home. France is more audacious and less concerned and carries out its dirty deeds in the Pacific, greatly annoying Australia and New Zealand who feel the Mururoa Atoll is too close to their shores.

Although the two countries are exaggerating the danger which threatens them, their protests are justified. The World Court has upheld their protests but France, in a gesture of complete irresponsibility, has chosen to ignore the court's opinion.

We would have understood this if the court was encroaching on the vital interests of France, but it was the interests of humanity as a whole which the court wished to protect by recommending to France that it refrain from carrying out the project.

By means of tests, France hopes to give herself a deterrent against all aggressors. She has no need to carry out a test in order to do this, her nuclear power is known to all.

Also, in the event of a conflict which daily seems less and less probable, it would not be just France that would be in danger.

Her traditional allies would also be menaced and one of them, our neighbor to the south, has 20 times demonstrated her nuclear power. Why should there be any need to continue tests and endanger the health of humanity as a whole?

The French test will be nothing more than a gesture of criminal folly one would have believed impossible after the death of General de Gaulle whose senility resulted in some memorable blunders.

Although the general is gone, it seems he has left his teachings behind. —Marcel Gingras (July 4).

Quebec Le Soleil: Who would have believed that when the Jean-Jacques Sauinier affair began it would have such repercussions? Ever since the story came out about the television set given to Mr. Sauinier, who later became the Montreal police chief, a whole series of facts, each one more disturbing than the last, have been brought to light.

These facts have implicated the government itself as the existence of relationships between a former member of the current government and members of the underworld has been established.

Meanwhile, several events have taken place, the most important being the inquiry into organized crime, during which the names of politicians have been mentioned as well as statements indicating links between the underworld and the party in power.

Question by question, more facts have come to light until at last, it has been established that the former Quebec labor minister, Pierre Laporte, and two Liberal party members met with two supposedly influential members of the Montreal underworld a few days before the elections which brought Mr. Bourassa to power in April, 1970.

Should the inquiry go any further? This is for the government to decide. It could use the resumption of the inquiry into organized crime in the fall to bring before the inquiry Mr. Laporte's two companions and the men they spoke with.

In what way would this serve the interests of justice and public interest? Must the debate be extended and an inquiry launched to scrutinize the actions of all members of the government?

If any one is in a position to bring precise charges, this should be done and the government could not object to this.

If this is not the case, then starting a further inquiry would involve a witch hunt which could lead to political exploitation of a situation against which we must defend ourselves but which it is unrealistic to believe will ever be totally eliminated.

On the other hand, what has been just as troubling in this whole affair is the ease with which one has had access to documents considered highly secret and confidential and the great scope allowed police forces with regard to wire-tapping.

When one thinks that ministers, the mayor of Montreal and other influential persons cannot speak on the telephone without risking being overheard, it is time to question ourselves about our degree of liberty.

This situation is even more serious in that it will be possible to destroy the best reputations by spying on persons of good faith. These are two other lessons which we must retain, otherwise the situation will become intolerable for all those in society who accept their responsibilities. —Raymond Dube (July 10).

Montreal Le Devoir: Justice Minister Jerome Choquette has amply fulfilled his responsibilities throughout the Sauinier affair.

If it is true, as Mr. Choquette contends, that he left it up to Yvan Bisailon to determine the value of information contained on the tape recordings, it is hard to see how Mr.

Choquette could be held responsible for the decisions made by Mr. Bisailon—the prosecutor at the police commission inquiry into Montreal Police Chief Jean-Jacques Sauinier's conduct.

If Mr. Choquette cannot be reproached for his actions regarding the Sauinier inquiry, he can hardly be condemned for his administrative acts in relation to the appointment of a Montreal police chief or a chief for the Montreal Urban Community police force.

Let us not forget that it was Mayor Drapeau who named Mr. Sauinier to head the Montreal force. If it had been up to him, Mr. Sauinier would probably have been named to head the MUC force as well.

One would have to be excessively hypocritical to claim to be scandalized by the fact that Mr. Choquette, forestalled by an extremely wily and determined mayor, was in power for a year before he was able to correct the situation.

As justice minister, Mr. Choquette has committed several errors, not the least of which were some haphazard appointments with regard to the inquiry into organized crime and excessive recourse to publicity.

In the Sauinier affair, on the other hand, he showed an excessive sense of public interest. If it had not been for him, Mayor Drapeau's protégé would still hold his position. And is it for this that they want him to resign? —Claude Ryan (July 7).

Can't ignore sounds—Cayer

ST. RAYMOND, Que. (CP) — Marc Cayer's smile suddenly froze and he glanced quickly at the cloudy sky, gripping the verandah railing.

A jet plane was passing high over his parent's peaceful farm in this community 30 miles west of Quebec City.

"I still can't ignore the sound of a big plane," said the 27-year-old agronomist who was held captive by the North Vietnamese for five years before being released last February.

"I remember the bombing. I was involved in only one bombing and my foot was injured but in the prison camps we saw planes almost every day and were always afraid it would start again."

Mr. Cayer was captured at Hue, South Vietnam, during the 1968 Tet offensive and was marched north to five years of captivity in three prison camps including one where he spent six months in solitary confinement.

At the time he was taken prisoner, Mr. Cayer was an agricultural teacher for the Washington-based International Voluntary Services, a non-government organization similar to the U.S. Peace Corps.

TROOPS SHOULD STAY

Mr. Cayer said in a recent interview that he hopes Canada waits "another three or four months" before pulling out of the International Commission of Control and Supervision in South Vietnam.

Canadian truce observers are to leave Saigon July 31 because of the Canadian government's expressed frustration over the commission's lack of effectiveness in observing the South Vietnamese truce.

"Canadians are well respected in Vietnam and their presence on the commission is very valuable," he said.

Mr. Cayer said that while it is up to the Vietnamese to decide their own future, the presence of a peace-keeping force is "vital" to prevent "bitter" fighting from overwhelming moves to rebuild the country.

He said he has no plans to return to Vietnam himself except "maybe as a tourist four or five years from now—I don't want to take a second chance."

Further volunteer work interests him, perhaps in Morocco, but for the next few years he is content to stay in Quebec.

WROTE A BOOK

Since his return to Canada, last February, Mr. Cayer has visited former fellow captives in the U.S. and written a book on his experiences in Vietnam. The book now is in its second printing after selling 5,000 copies in Quebec a month after publication.

His summer will be taken up with agricultural conferences and talks to groups interested in his Vietnam adventure, leaving at least three or four days a week to relax on the family farm.

He plans to resume full-time work in the fall as an agronomist specializing in farm management, either with the Quebec government, where he has applied for a job, or with one of several private agencies which have offered him jobs.

Readjusting to a society he left in 1967 had its problems, minor ones like balking at buying brightly-colored underwear and more unsettling ones like recurring dreams of bombing and inability to watch violence or suffering on television.

Mr. Cayer said he understands the frustrations that led two POW's in the United States to commit suicide after returning home from Vietnam.

WANTS TO DO MORE

"When you come back from an experience like that you have a great desire to give more of yourself and to accomplish more," he said.

"One of the things you want to do is to try to show people how to live but people want to swamp you, to absorb you too quickly into a society that has changed too much and that you think is rushing too fast."

Mr. Cayer said the interest of "so many people" who sent letters and telegrams following his release and still stop him in the street, eased his transition and turned him from someone who was "too shy" to talk to more than two or three people at once into someone who now frankly enjoys the limelight and new friends.

"Talking to groups also gives me a chance to thank everyone who has been so kind," he said. "I never expected such a reception."

He has, however, some complaints about his reception from the Canadian government.

"The Canadian government did a lot for my release but since I landed on Canadian soil nothing has been done except to send me a telegram," he said. "While the government is under no obligation to help me, surely they could do something."

STUCK IN MIDDLE

"I guess I'm really between two boats because the Canadians feel they are not obligated to me because I was working for a private agency which received some funding from the American government because I'm a Canadian citizen."

Mr. Cayer said POW's returning to the United States received funds for education from the government and gifts from cars to electrical appliances from private companies.

He wrote to several such companies to see if he qualified for a car and when told he did not, he bought one himself.

"I did receive things like electric razors though."

He received about $17,300 from the IVS as back pay and compensation and the U.S. State Department is taking care of a bill for $1,275 owed the Canadian government for expenses incurred following his release.

The Canadian government suggested last May that the agronomist approach the IVS concerning his expenses.

Mr. Cayer said he does not feel the years he spent in captivity were wasted.

"I appreciate life more now and even if some small thing is lacking, I'm happy."

"They call this living?"

Milking the public

WASHINGTON — Dairy price supports were increased, as we have previously reported, the day after dairy leaders delivered their first big contribution to President Nixon's 1972 campaign.

In a letter explaining the deal, dairyman William Powell noted: "Whether we like it or not, this is the way the system works."

The system has been working again, if somewhat differently, to benefit the dairy industry. Last month, the Department of Agriculture turned down an offer by the Associated Milk Producers for nonfat milk. Officials claimed that 50 cents a pound was too high.

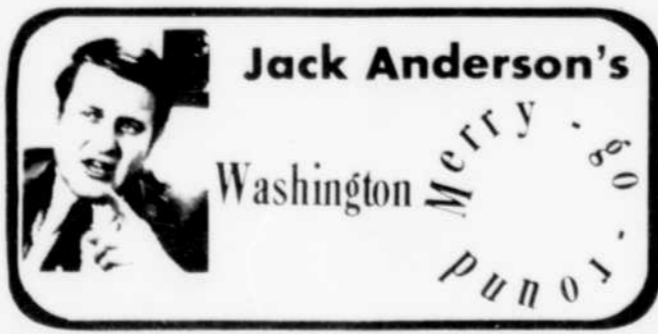

But because dry milk was needed for various poverty programs, the Agriculture Department decided to buy on the open market rather than through the subsidiary program.

A week later, the department purchased 6.6 million pounds of dry milk at prices ranging from 52 to 56 cents a pound — two to six cents higher than the offer that was rejected.

FBI WATCH: Although the late J. Edgar Hoover refused to go along with President Nixon's illegal scheme to combat subversives, the FBI was ready to spy on the most obscure protest groups.

Three summers ago, for example, a women's antiwar group, calling themselves the "Concerned American Mothers," arrived at the White House to picket Tricia Nixon's dinner dance for Prince Charles and Princess Ann of England.

The FBI, ever on the alert for subversives and saboteurs, kept them under surveillance. "On the evening of July 17, 1970," solemnly states a confidential FBI memo, "special agents of the FBI, at approximately 8 p.m., observed 34 middle-aged white women in front of the White House carrying signs...."

"At 8:30 p.m.," continues the memo, "a group of 17 Indians arrived in front of the White House, apparently to protest that no Indians were invited to the affair."

They were joined, apparently on the spur of the moment, by "six hippie type individuals" who "proceeded to seat themselves on the sidewalk in front of the White House."

The FBI agents, in other words, spent the long evening watching 34 middle-aged women, 17 Indians and "six hippie type individuals." Elsewhere in Washington, the crime rate was going up.

Footnote: The evening according to the FBI report passed without incident.

BLOOD REPORT: Hemo Caribbean, the controversial blood plasma firm, has raised a howl over our report on its operations in Haiti.

We told how the firm, closed down for exploiting undernourished Haitians, is now pulling political strings in Washington so it can return to Haiti and once again extract plasma from the poorest people in the Western hemisphere.

The firm's lawyer, Joseph Sharlitt, denied Hemo Caribbean ever took commercial advantage of the poor Haitian people. Haitian donors were "carefully protected," he claimed. They risked "nothing more than an hour and a half from work" to donate plasma for a four dollar fee.

Sharlitt said we had told "roughly 50 per cent of the truth." Unfortunately for Hemo Caribbean, the other half of the story is even more sordid than our original account.

Two weeks before the blood operation was stopped, a team of six Haitian physicians investigated the firm's two small blood clinics. Their report to Haitian Health Minister Dr. Alex Theard, translated from the French, tells of brutality, serious accidents and even death during the daily blood letting that went on for 18 months.

Accidents "occur often among individuals with empty stomachs or physical disabilities," wrote the doctors. They referred to at least one case "of the registered death at Hemo Caribbean after a plasmapheresis."

The family

Rick-Grainger wed

Baskets of white mums, pink daisies and peonies formed a beautiful setting for the marriage of Wilma Ellison Rick and Gardner Roger Grainger which took place in Trinity United Church, Danville on June 23 at 3 p.m.
The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white eyelet embroidery, ending in a slight train and having long sleeves. Her veil of tulle was held in place by an embroidered head-dress and she carried white mums, pink daisies and baby's breath, gathered together with pink ribbons. A necklace and matching earrings of carnelians was a gift of the groom.
The maid-of-honor, Miss Kathryn Stammers and the bridesmaid, Miss Linda Grainger, wore dresses of patterned blue and mauve flowers, with pink cummerbunds, and carried colonial bouquets of blue and pink carnations with baby's breath, and tied with pink ribbons.
Mr. Brian Ross of Toronto was best man for Mr. Grainger. The ushers were Messrs Michael Ross and David Keeler. John Rick presented each guest with the marriage ceremony pamphlet as they entered the church.

Mrs. Rick, mother of the bride, chose a two-piece ensemble of pale blue with white accessories and wore an orchid corsage. Mrs. R. Grainger, the groom's mother, wore a gown of pale pink, with pink accessories and a pink corsage.
During the signing of the register, Mrs. N.E. McNiff, organist, played Ode to Joy and Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring. The Rev. George Crowthers officiated at the wedding.
Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Prince Albert street for the immediate members of the families and a few close friends.
Later Mr. and Mrs. Grainger left for a honeymoon in Quebec City. For travelling Mrs. Grainger chose a two-piece white knit suit with white accessories. They will reside on Crown street, Danville.

MOELLER-COX WED — The marriage of Jannette Moeller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K.D. Gallant of Montreal, and Donald Cox, son of Mrs. Betty Cox and the late Mr. Walter Cox of Lennoxville, took place May 19, 1973, at 2 p.m. in the Mount Royal United Church, Montreal.

Bazaar discussed at IODE meeting

STANSTEAD — Members of Stanstead Chapter IODE executive and bazaar conveners met on Monday morning, July 9 at the home of Mrs. Simone DuBois in Stanstead.
In the absence of the regent, the vice-regent, Mrs. Agnes Myers presided. Mrs. DuBois, the secretary read a note of appreciation from Her Excellency, Mrs. Roland Michener, for the white orchid corsage presented her in June, when she and Honorable Mr. Michener were in Stanstead for the College closing.
Mention was also made of the IODE float in Beebe's Centennial parade and announcement made that the semi-annual provincial session will be held at Quebec in September.
The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. DuBois and Mrs. W.T. Greer, conveners for the September 29 bazaar which will be held between 3 and 5:30 p.m. at the Sunnyside School.
Booths will include aprons and kitchen, attic treasures, books, boutique, candy, Christmas table, home made food table, garden center and new shoppe.
There are also committees on dining room, decorations, publicity and tea. All committees represented discussed their plans to make this 1973 bazaar another outstanding success.
The money raised from the bazaar is used to promote better relations in many sections of the world and the local area through its donations and assistance in many ways.
Tickets to the bazaar are now on sale from members.

Couple fete silver anniversary

BOUNDARY — Raoul and Viola Villeneuve, residents of Rock Island, were on Saturday evening, July 7, the guests of honor for a reception to honor their silver wedding anniversary at the Bavaros Club in Beebe.
Mrs. Gerard Roy met some 300 guests, relatives and friends of the couple and pinned on each a white satin souvenir ribbon, engraved with silver to mark the occasion.
Mrs. Paul Bouchard and Mrs. Gerard Garneau, a sister of Mr. Villeneuve and a niece of Mrs. Villeneuve also greeted the guests. Miss Elaine Roy was in charge of the guest book.
Upon arrival of the bride and groom of the silver years they were greeted by standing applause of the assembly and the strains of the anniversary waltz played by Mrs. Sydney Flanders on the organ.
Mrs. Roy pinned a corsage of deep red sweetheart roses on the blue gown of Mrs. Villeneuve and a white carnation on Mr. Villeneuve's jacket lapel.
They were escorted to the front of the large hall and seated in two special chairs beside a table having an arrangement of carnations, mums and greenery in various colors and centered with a silver anniversary year candle.
Mr. Guy Moquin, a nephew of Mrs. Villeneuve read a beautiful tribute to his uncle and aunt. The composition was of their courtship and their married life and concluded by wishing them many more happy years together in good health.
Mr. Villeneuve, in both French and English voiced their appreciation for this memorable occasion.
Dancing and chatting was enjoyed for many of the guests present had not seen each other for some time. Buffet refreshments were served. The reception was planned by Mrs. Paul Bouchard, Mrs. Gerard Roy and Mrs. Gerard Garneau assisted by others.

MR. AND MRS. RAOUL VILLENEUVE
At 4 p.m. Saturday, July 7 the anniversary mass was celebrated by Father Lajeunesse at Our Lady of Mercy church in Rock Island and the couple exchanged their renewed vows.

ACW Guild lawn party

STANSTEAD — On Thursday afternoon, July 5, a very successful lawn supper took place on the lawns of Christ Anglican Church in Stanstead. This was under the convenship of Mrs. Edward Hyatt, Mrs. Alfred Middleton, Mrs. George Millet, Mrs. Nellie Kezar, Mrs. R.W. Peirce and Mrs. Miriam Osborne.
Assisted by members of the organization and friends in the church a buffet supper was served consisting of baked ham, potato and green salads, home made bread and cakes, ice cream with strawberries and beverages.
After 4 p.m., there were sales tables of crafts, foods, and attic treasures on the grounds with women of the church as sales ladies.
Several girls of the church assisted as waitresses. This project was an outstanding success. Over $600.00 was realized. From this there are expenses to be paid which leaves approximately $535.00 profit.

Gagnon-Garneau wed

DERBY LINE — A pretty wedding took place at St. Edward's Church, Derby Line, on Saturday, June 23, at 11 a.m., when Eugenie Dorothy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Gagnon, became the bride of Marcel A. Garneau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andre Gagnon, all of Derby Line.
Father Ronald Benoit, parish priest officiated for the doubling nuptials and was celebrant of the mass. Mrs. John Gaudreau played the wedding march and accompanied the soloist, Miss Christine Leblanc who sang Love Story and Softly Love. The chancel was decorated with arrangements of gladioli.
The bride was escorted down the aisle on the arm of her father to meet the groom at the chancel steps. She was wearing a gown of white rose point lace over peau de soie fashioned on Victorian lines with a high ruffle neckline, a yoke of sheer and bishop sleeves having ruffles to edge the wide cuffs.
A peau de soie sash at the high-rise waist was centered with pearl clusters of lace rosettes. The full bouffant skirt featured a wide ruffle at the hemline. A peau de soie Juliette cap dotted with lace and pearl rosettes held in place her cathedral-length train of silk illusion edged with lace to match her gown. She carried a colonial of multicolor sweetheart roses with white baby's breath and white satin ribbon streamers.
Mrs. Paul (Helen) Gagnon of Derby, was matron-of-honor for her sister-in-law. She was in a gown of soft blue crepe with Irish lace inset in the long sleeves full to the elbows and edged with lace ruffles. Lace ruffles edged the high neckline and trimmed the high-rise bodice.
Miss Collette Beauchesne, cousin of the bride, Miss Carole Garneau and Miss Giselle Garneau, sisters of the groom were bridesmaids. They wore gowns of rose pink styled identical to the matron-of-honor. They carried crescents of pink sweetheart roses and lighter pink carnations with blue baby's breath and streamers.
Miss Carmen Garneau, sister of the groom, was flower girl. She wore a gown of white jewel polyester having leg-o-mutton long sleeves with blue lace trim at the neck of the princess style.

Stork shower

ROCK ISLAND — Mrs. Mackey Chamberlain of Rock Island was the guest of honor at a stork shower held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chamberlain at West Park.
Mrs. Chamberlain, the expectant mother, arrived at the home of her sister-in-law on an errand. On entering, she was completely surprised to find some 35 relatives and friends gathered and awaiting her.
As she recovered from the surprise, she was presented with a stork novelty corsage.
On a table having a stork cover were arranged the prettily wrapped and ribboned stork gifts from those attending and others unable to attend.
Seated with the honored guest was her elder daughter, Gracie and her mother, Mrs. Eugene Harvey. The trio opened the gifts to reveal many lovely and useful items. After all were admired, Mrs. Chamberlain voiced her appreciation.
A door prize was claimed by Mrs. Bertha Corbett. Refreshments were served buffet style from the dining table.
The table had a stork cover and matching serviettes. The stork cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Horace Doyon, centered the table. This was in the design of a baby on a stork's back.
The hostesses were Mrs. Roy Chamberlain and Mrs. Kendall Clowery. They were assisted by Mrs. Lawrence Dubois.
Guests attended from Fitch Bay, Magog and the Border communities.

Couple fete silver anniversary

Guests attended from Longueuil, Victoriaville, Drummondville, Sherbrooke, East Angus, Magog, St. Hubert, Charlevoix, Fitch Bay, Valcourt, Boucherville, Brossard, St. Jean, Magog, Jericho, Newport, Lisbon, Vt., Bristol, Conn., Labattie, Lewiston, Greene, Winthray and Auburn, Maine, Granby and the Boundary Villages.
At 11 p.m. the couple were in for a grand surprise when their son, Gilles arrived by car from Clearwater, Florida. Their other son, Michel, from Paris, France, is with them for the summer. Having the two boys with them "has made our day complete" they said.
The guest-book fly-leaf was featured with a wedding picture of the couple in 1948 and with a drawing by their son, Michel. This was of the Sacred Heart, Viola and Raoul and the dates, to make it a choice gift indeed.
Sunday, July 9 Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Villeneuve were host and hostess for a catered dinner at their cottage at Lake Park, on Lake Memphremagog. This was attended by some 100 relatives and a few close friends.
The buffet dinner included the anniversary cake, a gift of Mrs. Gerard Garneau and her family of Magog which was cut and served.
A presentation of money from gifts of the Saturday evening was made by Mrs. Paul Bouchard to the couple. They had also received a gift of a silver plaque with their names and marriage date and it was edged with $25.00 in bills.
Mr. Villeneuve and Viola Pratt were united in marriage on August 7, 1948. Their marriage has been blessed with two sons, Michel and Gilles and with a host of friends as was testified by the attendance at the reception.
Their many relatives and friends join to wish them many more happy years together.

His dream come true

Flamboyant Frederic opens Scotstown centre

By MRS. F.B. MAYHEW

SCOTSTOWN — The inauguration opening of the Community Centre was held here Sunday afternoon July 8 at 4 p.m. with a cheese and wine party given by Frederic, Scotstown's painter and artist. The party was given in appreciation for all those who helped in any way to make the project a success.

After the invited guests assembled in front of the former high school, Frederic welcomed all the guests. He introduced Irene Pelletier, Sherbrooke County, M.P.; Omer Dionne, Compton County, M.P.; Oscar Primeau, president of Benson and Hedges, Quebec Maritimes, and Mayor Hormidas Martel of Scotstown.

At this time the members of the town council presented Mrs. Doyon, Frederic's mother, with a corsage of Red Roses; Miss Yvette Gaudet, manageress, with a corsage of sweetheart roses, and Miss Denise Dolbec, Frederic's friend, with a hair piece of small yellow roses.

The wives of the councillors pinned on the corsages and Mrs. Real Boulanger, secretary-treasurer of the town pinned on Frederic's boutonniere; a yellow rose. Frederic then asked Mr. Pelletier to cut the ribbon at the front door, officially opening the Scotstown Cultural center.

All then went into the building. The main entrance is carpeted from wall to wall with red carpet up the stairs to the second floor. The drapes in all the rooms were woven by some Scotstown ladies.

The designs for the drapes were drawn up by Frederic, each room with colors in keeping with the colours of the room. In each room were beautiful bouquets of flowers given by the different organizations.

The first room to be opened was Victoria Hall and the keys were presented to Mayor Martel. This room is painted in autumn colours, on one wall is a painting of Queen Victoria and on the opposite wall is the Mayor Tree 1892-1973. This is a trunk of a tree with the names of the mayors on the branches.

The wall-to-wall carpet is a cocoa color. One each side of the room are long benches covered with the carpet — like the floor — for spectators to use at meetings. In the center of the room is a round council table with white sand-blasted captain chairs. The flowers on the table were autumn-colored.

The second room visited was the IOOF room. The keys were presented to Dannie Morrison, Grandmaster of the IOOF. This room is painted in red and white with a white wall-to-wall carpet on the floor.

The third room opened was the Guide and Brownies room next to the IOOF room. It is done in grey, yellow and white with white rubber tile floor. Mrs. Les Irving, Guide Captain, was presented with the keys to this room.

The English organizations will be able to use these rooms as both the IOOF and Guide and Brownies have cupboards for their things.

The fourth room visited is for the French organizations and it is in purple, turquoise and royal blue with a purple wall-to-wall carpet. The keys were presented to Mrs. Germain Pelletier.

Before going up stairs to the cultural centre, Mr. Primeau, president of Benson and Hedges, opened the beautiful black-wrought iron gates that separate the first floor and the second floor at the stairs. These gates were made by Lionel Langlois of Scotstown.

The cultural centre is one big room the whole length of the building. There is a kitchen on one side, with two new electric stoves, plenty of cupboards on the wall and two rest rooms.

The walls are painted in autumn colors with shutters on the windows in the same colours as the walls. Frederic painted on the walls, All Seeing Eye, pair of hands, symbolizing, 'He Has the Whole World in His Hands.'

On another wall is the painted profile of a Snow Woman. There are three pillows from ceiling to floor with four side seats, covered with green carpet. There are lights and flowers suspended from the ceiling around the pillows. The floor is covered with white rubber tile.

At this time donations and speeches were made. Oscar Primeau presented Frederic a beautiful plaque on behalf of Benson and Hedges and congratulated him on using his time and talent in making this cultural centre possible in Scotstown.

Mr. Pelletier in his remarks said he had never before seen anything so beautiful. It was too hard for him to try to describe the beauty of it, he said. Mr. Omer Dionne, M.P. said that he was thankful for the Cultural Center being in his County and took this occasion to tell the people of Scotstown that the town dam is now being studied by Mr. Gilles Masse, Minister of Natural Resources and that definite word should be received before the fall.

Mayor Martel presented Frederic with a wooden artist easel made by councillor Bertrand Bergeron. Engraved on a golden moustache was the sincere thanks of the municipality of Scotstown for his wonderful presentation to the town.

The Guides and Brownies presented Frederic with a Butane Lighter.

Frederic was so overwhelmed with all these gifts that he could not say much but thank every one for the lovely things and their thoughtfulness in giving him these things. He thanked all who worked in any way to help create his center.

During the festivities in the cultural center Mrs. Edna Derobert of Sherbrooke, a friend of Frederic's, played music on an electric organ. She was dressed in a flying nun outfit. Mrs. Lois Godin and Miss Lorraine Dumas were the hostesses and the guests helped themselves to the hors-d'oeuvres and different drinks.

The townspeople are grateful to Frederic for all he had done and the cultural center will be open to the public when the Summer festival is held July 20-21-22.

DEDICATES MEMORIAL — Rev. Canon R.H.L. Slater dedicated memorial gifts at a special service at St. George's Anglican church on July 8. Members of the Georgeville-Fitch Bay branch of the legion attended the service.

Special service takes place

By IVY HATCH

GEORGEVILLE — Sunday, July 8, at 9:30 a.m. at St. George's Anglican Church, built in 1868, a special service of dedication took place.

It was attended by the general congregation and by the Georgeville-Fitch Bay branch of the Royal Canadian Legion and friends.

Rev. Canon R.H.L. Slater officiated for the service and the dedication of gifts. These were a Communion Missal and a red leather-bound Memorial book, both given in memory of the late Volney Godden Rexford, who had been a former resident of the Village, a war veteran and a communicant of St. George's church.

The Legion colors were brought into the church by color parties from the Georgeville-Fitch Bay Branch and Stanstead Frontiers Branch.

After the service, the legionnaires led by the music of the Eastern Townships Highland Band and followed by St. George's Church robed choir, paraded around the 'square' and the cenotaph in the park.

At the cenotaph the March Past was taken by District Commander Eric Flanders, from Coaticook; by the Branch president, Archie Juby and by a charter member of the Branch, Major James Rutledge and a good many people from the church service and the communities.

The Legion Branch entertained the band and guests for a buffet luncheon at the Murray Memorial Hall.

Mr. Flanders, Commander of Memphremagog District No. 7, presented to Archie Juby, President of Georgeville-Fitch Bay Branch 180, a charter issued by the Dominion Command under the Provincial Command of the Royal Canadian Legion.

This charter was a copy of the Branch original charter. In his remarks Mr. Flanders spoke of the work by the Georgeville-Fitch Bay branch over a period of many years. It ceased to function and the charter was lost.

Two years ago the branch was revised under the efficient leadership of Mr. Juby as president. It is now going very well.

Mr. Flanders paid high tribute to Mr. Juby and said "it is seldom a fallen branch will make a come back."

He also paid tribute to the Comrades in the Branch who give their support and cooperation to their leader.

Mr. Juby responded with words of appreciation for the charter, to Mr. Flanders for coming and to everyone else who had made the day a successful one.

Harry Atkins, president of the Murray Memorial, gave his permission for the charter to be hung in the hall after being so requested by Mr. Juby.

Low score keeps Weiskopf happy

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Tom Weiskopf definitely wasn't blowing his top at the start of the third round of the British Open golf championship today.

"I feel better now," Weiskopf said Thursday. "I'm just going out there to play."

The often temperamental star from Columbus, Ohio, kept his cool and dazzled the huge gallery on the Troon championship layout alongside Scotland's western seashore.

His massive nine-under-par two-round total of 135 over the heather-clad 7,064-yard course helped to maintain his happy disposition. Weiskopf was three shots clear of his nearest rivals, U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller and Bert Yancey, who shared second place.

Weiskopf had a 68 Thursday, four under par, while Miller checked in with a 70 and Yancey another 69.

Jack Nicklaus with a 69, filled fourth spot, one more shot off the pace. Weiskopf conceded "temperamental reactions have beaten me many times."

when things go wrong it hurts. "It's the easiest thing in the world to be a loser. Only when you win is it worth all the hours of effort and frustration which turn you inside out."

The lanky 30-year-old said he had "a better feel, a better imagination, more determination and sharper concentration" to help him through the final two rounds of the tournament.

With three wins under his belt from the last six starts and $171,027, third on the U.S. PGA money-winners charts, Weiskopf said he still wasn't satisfied.

"I won't consider myself a great player until I have won one of the great tournaments," Weiskopf said. "That's what the game is all about."

Weiskopf said he thought it was a mistake that he was compared early in his career with Nicklaus, favorite for the British crown.

"I couldn't afford to play as an amateur and it took me three years to learn the pro game," Weiskopf explained. Even defending champion Lee Trevino was tipping Weiskopf as the winner.

F and G club meets

STANSTEAD (IH) — The Stanstead County Fish and Game Club have acquired another three rearing ponds. These were turned over to the club by the Lake Lester Club, now inactive.

The ponds are on the Morin farm and one has been stocked by the department with 8,000 rainbow trout, another with 10,000 speckled trout and the third is holding stockings for lakes this fall.

At the meeting of the club on Monday evening, July 9 at Bernie's Chalet in Stanstead, it was agreed that the majority of the rainbows will be deposited into Lake Memphremagog.

James Belknap, the president, was in the chair. He gave reports of various committees since the last meeting.

Considerable repairs will have to be done at the Hatley Pond dam this year. With this in mind and with bills presented totaling close to $500 for fish foods to feed rearing pond stockings and for other items, the club resolved to negotiate a bank loan.

Alvah Patterson offered to feed the fish at the Morin farm ponds and this was gratefully approved by the members at the meeting. Mr. Patterson has had considerable experience in this field at the Baldwin's Mills Hatchery and he was given full authority to purchase what is required.

The Club membership is the best it has been in the past several years. Mrs. Bernard Laberee reported 316 adults and 15 juniors with many more outstanding tickets some of which have been sold.

It was noted that the price of fish food the past two years has doubled in price. To help make ends meet the directors were urged "to get out and sell memberships." An autumn project was also discussed.

Gravel is needed to repair the road at the Baldwin's Pond. Fenton Lothrop offered to donate a load if the club would pay for a load.

This was agreed upon and appreciation given Mr. Lothrop.

W.I. meeting

GORE — The July meeting of the Gore Women's Institute was held on July 5 at the home of Mrs. Merlin Griffith.

The meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. N. Mountain and the members repeating the collect. Fourteen members answered the roll call by giving a cooking hint learned recently.

The treasurer reported $11 received as a rebate from the pooling of fares to Convention. Money was handed in from the sale of a pair of socks and seven cutters. More Kwik-Kut choppers have been ordered so a good supply is now on hand.

Six members had attended a meeting with the Cleveland branch and enjoyed the get-together.

A wedding gift had been purchased for a member's daughter. A donation was made to the Heart Fund in memory of a member's father recently deceased.

Each member handed in a 25 cents surprise package and Bingo was played to determine the winners of these.

Convener of Health and Welfare, Miss A. Millar reported 165 cancer dressings made. Miss M. Watt read excerpts from the report of the Convention at Macdonald, including Mrs. Beattie's farewell address as retiring Provincial President. She also read an article on the F.W.I.C. Conference at Banff.

Agricultural convener Mrs. R. Duffy read two articles - Down on the Farm taken from the Toronto Star and Farm Accidents - A Mother's Concern. She asked for volunteers to help in the W.I. booth at the Richmond Fair.

Reporting for publicity - Mrs. Muriel Griffith read articles entitled Price changing - concerning the marking up of prices several times as shown by the layers of stickers to be found on some packages in stores and Complaints - on the high cost of food.

The drawing donated by Mrs. S. Husk was won by Mrs. U. Gee. The next meeting will be on Aug. 9 at the home of Mrs. N. Mountain when each member will bring a guest and a Surprise Tour will be the program. Lunch will be provided by the first half of the members.

Following the adjournment of the meeting, lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Wayne Griffith and Mrs. L. Newell. Guests at the tea hour were Mrs. C. Nixon of Richmond and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hastings of Oakville, Conn.

W.I. meetings in the Townships

SPOONER POND — The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the evening of July, at the Wales Home, where several members are in residence.

Twenty members answered the roll call by telling of a law they would like to make or one that they would like to see enforced. One guest was present.

Only one member is entering a shawl in the inter-branch competition. Mrs. W. Lancaster, who was given a prize for her work on the shawl.

In the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. Parkes, that chair was taken by Mrs. D. Biggs, who reported a satisfactory bank balance.

Correspondence was read, consisting of a note of thanks, and also reports on the recently held Board meeting and Convention.

Reports of standing committees were given. Mrs. R. Hughes, Convener of Citizenship, read an article on Safety, and said that any hazard in road or water safety should be reported to the proper authorities.

Education Convener, Mrs. J. Walker, conducted a spelling contest, which was won by Mrs. D. Goodfellow.

Home Ec. Convener, Mrs. H. Blanchard, had an article from Contact, showing different codes used in the care of various fabrics. Mrs. Blanchard also had the tickets for the drawing for the quilt, and this was won by Mrs. R. Lampron.

Publicity Convener, Mrs. D. Oakley, read a poem entitled Tomorrow, by Edgar Guest.

Sunshine Convener, Mrs. B. Rodgers, had sent one sunshine box and four cards since last meeting. Mrs. Biggs, Buying Convener, had bought prizes for the contest and for the regular drawing, which was won by Mrs. Lampron.

The Hymn of All Nations was sung, and the usual Pennies for Friendship and Birthday money handed in.

Mrs. Hughes, speaking for the Ways and Means Committee, said that they are planning a card party for late in August. Further plans will be made later concerning this.

The usual picnic will be held in August. Mrs. Parkes has again kindly offered the use of their grounds for this. The program and prizes will be looked after by Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Biggs. Each member is asked to bring a grandmother or a friend. Lunches will be pooled as usual. It is hoped that the weather will be favorable on the regular date of August 2nd.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Armstrong, Matron of the Home by Mrs. Orvis Taylor. All appreciated having the use of the reception room for the meeting.

After the meeting was adjourned, lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. R. Lampron and Mrs. E. Lyster.

MELBOURNE RIDGE — The July meeting of the W.I. was held at the church hall with Noreen Wilkins, Shirley Fowler and Dianna Taber as hostesses.

The meeting was opened by the first vice-president, Shirley Nelson with all repeating the Collect in unison.

The roll call was answered by nine members giving their favorite salad recipe. A tossed green salad was the favorite with many variations.

The motto was, "Happiness grows at our firesides and is not to be picked from a stranger's garden."

The minutes were read and approved. Correspondence was thanks from Carrie Ward for her birthday gift on her 80th birthday and from Guy Frank for a sunshine basket after his stay in the hospital. Reports on the annual board meeting and convention as well as the financial report were circulated among the members.

The treasurer's report was given. Conventions reports were: Home Economics - Edna Frank read Special caution to people with food allergies; Health and Welfare - Dianna Taber read an article that was of interest to us all because we were acquainted with the subject, titled The recycling of Clarence Coskey.

Cheer committee - Mary Dalton reported sending three sunshine baskets and was asked to send one to some of the children who have been sick.

A picnic was planned for the next meeting. Agriculture convener Ruby Hawker will buy the ice cream and drinks and will appoint a committee to look after races and games. Everyone will try to bring a friend and everyone will bring lunch. The meeting will be at 11 o'clock in the morning at the church hall.

Edna Frank gave her report on the Wales Home birthday party that was held in June. There were 19 people having birthdays. A rose was pinned on each guest and each received a gift. Bingo was played and prizes won. A lunch of homemade bread and cheese with birthday cake was served.

She suggested that we have something special during the year to raise funds for this party and have gifts ahead of time so as not to make so much last minute preparations. It will be discussed further when there are more members present.

Noreen Wilkins moved we have a food sale at the Wales Home. It was seconded by Mary Dalton. Edna Frank will phone Mrs. Armstrong to get a convenient date. Plans will be completed at the next meeting.

One member will take a few hours at the fair when needed. Pennies for friendship were collected. The meeting was adjourned and lunch served by the hostesses.

GRANBY HILL — The July meeting of the Granby Hill Women's Institute was held on July 4 at the home of Mrs. Earl McCutcheon with twelve members attending.

The president Mrs. Reg Robinson opened the meeting by all repeating the creed. The motto was Destiny may shape our ends but diet molds our middle.

The roll call - every member was to bring her favorite recipe to exchange with a member, also item of cooking for silent auction.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Ossington in the absence of secretary Mrs. G. Neil. All the members said they had enjoyed the day's outing to the Knowlton Museum, Mrs. Benoit's farm and Peg's Restaurant for dinner.

The annual picnic was held at Mr. Reg Robinson's farm on June 23 with attendance of 56.

Two members visited a couple of ladies in the Notre Dame Hospital and took them cookies. Some of the members were in Waterloo to see slides of Spain and Italy which were put on by one of the member's daughter-in-law.

Clippings of interest were read from the different convenors. It was decided to give up our picnic area as the first two tables were burnt when we stored for the winter; a member's husband made two more and soon after they were put out, one was stolen. This summer we put out the other one and someone took it.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. McCutcheon and daughters served a salad lunch.

The August 1st meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Normand Coupland.

SOUTH BOLTON — The July meeting of the South Bolton Women's Institute was held at the Club room on July 4 with Mrs. Iva Wightman, President, conducting the meeting. Eight members answered the roll call, by exhibiting a cartoon that tickled your fancy or pay a dime.

Minutes of the May meeting were read, as there was no June meeting.

A donation of books were received for the W.I. library also a cash donation, for which thank-you notes will be sent.

Instead of the usual Bake Sale in August it was decided to have a supper at a later date.

The treasurer will send a donation to the District of Bedford Association for the Mentally Retarded Inc., to sponsor a child 10 days at Camp Garagona in Frelighsburg.

Hostess for this meeting was Mrs. Lincoln Davis.

WATERLOO-WARDEN — The Women's Institute met on July 4 at the home of Mrs. G. Emmett, 1st vice-president, Mrs. Clayton Bowker, chaired the meeting; she welcomed the members and one visitor, then led the singing of the Ode and the recitation of the Collect. The July roll-call brought a variety of Cures for the Blues.

Mrs. C. Thompson, secretary, read the minutes of the June meeting and Mrs. Mary Sicard, treasurer, presented the financial report.

It was decided that our membership in the United Nations Association be renewed again this year. The Care package, donated by Mrs. Hilliker, was won by Mrs. Emmett.

A gift was forwarded to Mrs. Shirley Sicard in appreciation of her kindness in showing her slides of Italy and Spain at our social evening which was held on June 21 and making the event such a success.

Mrs. A. Bazinet, Agriculture Convener, read an article on the increase of food prices and the deceiving of farmers and consumers by the Middleman.

Citizenship convener, Mrs. G. George, read a variety of short items of Canadian interest selected from a recent edition of the Montreal Daily Star.

Miss A. Ashton, Education, told of the 100th birthday celebration of the former waiter, Larry Lewis of San Francisco; she also read an article on the recently issued eight cent Canadian postage stamp which commemorated the memory of a famous nurse, Jeanne Mance, who came to Canada from France and founded the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Montreal in 1645.

Mrs. H. Smith, Home Economics, read an article on the return of glass jars and bottles for recycling.

Publicity convener, Mrs. W. Copping, read a clipping entitled The Mails: Just how Bad? which compared today's inefficient mail delivery with the service enjoyed when the cost to deliver a letter was just three cents.

Welfare and Health, Mrs. M. Hilliker, read an article telling of the recent implantation of the first nuclear-powered heart pacemaker which weighs only three and one-half ounces.

It has been decided that a card party will be held again this Fall and details discussed at a later date.

Mrs. Bowker thanked Mrs. Emmett for her hospitality, and the meeting was adjourned.

Miss Ashton conducted a game with playing cards for Mrs. R. Benoit who was unable to attend this meeting and prizes were won by several members. The hostesses, Mrs. Bowker and Mrs. Emmett, then served a delicious jellied salad plate.

In August the group is planning on having a dinner, followed by a tour of a local plant; members will be advised more fully when the arrangements have been completed.

STANBRIDGE EAST — The Women's Institute met the afternoon of July 5 in the Masonic Hall with 23 members and four visitors present.

The president, Mrs. Tait, opened the meeting with all repeating the Collect and Salute to the Flag, followed by thanks to the hostesses Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Symington and Mrs. TenEyck. The roll call was to name a place one would like to visit, or something one had always wanted to do.

The secretary's report was read and approved with one correction. Treasurer's report accepted. It was moved by Mrs. Symington, seconded by Mrs. Riordan to reimburse Mrs. Stote for express on boxes sent to Unitarian Relief, Carried. The postal code number of the different members were noted for reference.

Convenors' reports: Agriculture - Mrs. Harvey read an article on the mixed blessings of pesticides. The key is properly controlled use. Also remarks on the complaints of high food prices. People tend to forget the producer and his problems, and that farming is our most important industry.

Citizenship - Mrs. Shepardson was absent, but reported 16 ditty bags had been filled, sent in and acknowledged with thanks.

Education - Mrs. Riordan reported on the recent CEJEP troubles, also remarked on the poor turnout in Montreal for election of school board directors. She also mentioned the school children's get-together held in Stanbridge East on May 24 when about 600 children took part in church service and sports.

Home Economics - Mrs. Corey read an article on the poor quality of workmanship on children's clothing.

Publicity - Mrs. Short asked for suggestions regarding the article to be sent to the County Convener for the Macdonald Journal for September.

Welfare & Health - Mrs. Symington reported that about 150,000 electronic heart pacemakers are in use around the world.

It was moved by Mrs. Rhicard, seconded by Mrs. Hayes that the semi-annual meeting of the County be held on September 12, Stanbridge East being hostess. It was decided to join Cowansville branch for the August picnic meeting at the Missisquoi Museum on August 7.

Mrs. Rhicard had charge of the program and conducted a contest entitled "Canada, Our Country." Mrs. B. Fortin and Mrs. A. Riordan were team captains. Purpose to identify province where a certain person, place or thing had its origin or location. This was an instructive and interesting program. Winning team was Mrs. Fortin's. Mrs. Rhicard presented her with a box of maple sugar leaves to be shared with her team.

A delicious lunch followed bringing a pleasant afternoon to a close.

Publicity - Mrs. Clarence Pease read from the outline on Publicity.

Citizenship convener, Mrs. Gordon Healy, read an item from the Sherbrooke Record.

Education - Mrs. Royce Taylor reported on the Antique Show at North Hatley.

Welfare and Health convener, Mrs. F. Healy, read hints on the care of car crash victims.

The floating prize was won by Mrs. L. Eastman Tea fees were collected and papers sold for Pennies for Friendship.

Various money-making plans were discussed and it was planned to hold a food sale at the Wales Home the latter part of next month.

The August meeting will be held August 4 at the home of Mrs. D. Johnston, when there will be a guest speaker.

At the close of the meeting the hostess served refreshments.

INVERNESS - A meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the evening of the regular date, July 6 at the home of the hostess, Mrs. Lorne Kelso. The roll call was answered by seven members and two visitors.

The President, Mrs. W. Graham, opened the meeting with the Salute to the Flag and repeating the Creed. Due to the absence of the Secretary, Mrs. A. Muir, no minutes were read but Mrs. Graham gave a good resume of that meeting.

Several books entitled Fresh Canadian Vegetables received from the Canadian Dept. of Agriculture were distributed to the ladies.

The treasurer, Mrs. B. Robinson, reported that all bills were paid and a good balance remains. The President presented her bill for her expenses to attend the W.I. Convention in May. $5.25 was turned in by the Home Ec. Convener, Mrs. Margaret Dempsey, for work sold.

The President reported that the Kinross's Mills Branch are interested in visiting the Beauce Ceramic Plant in St. Joseph de Beauce in August. The members here felt they weren't interested as many have been there before.

The President had been approached by a member of the financial assistance in having to place heavier electrical wiring in their hall. It was agreed by all the members that a donation be given to help with this project.

Due to the absence of the Health and Welfare Convener Mrs. A. Little, the President gave her report.

A short discussion was held on the minutes of the Provincial Board meeting. Provincial convener outline papers were distributed to the Branch convenors.

A Quiz on Alcoholism was held, which the members found quite interesting.

There being no further business the meeting was adjourned and delicious refreshments served by the hostess.

Misused pitchers

The Expos may be dragging their feet in the National League pennant race, but they're probably leading the pack in the misuse of some of their personnel.

In the five years during which the 'Jarry Juggernaut' has done its thing, I don't know of any two ballplayers who have been so pitifully mishandled as Pat Jarvis and Joe Gilbert have been in the 1973 season.

Unfortunately, what makes the situation even sadder is that the aggravating stubbornness by management in each case has probably cost the ballclub a couple of precious games in the standings, not to mention the respect of the individuals involved.

Take Pat Jarvis as a starter. Come to think of it practically any club in the majors would take him as a starter, but the Expos have inexplicably found other uses for his services. These range from keeping the bench warm on cold nights to an occasional whirl as mop-up man when the team is six or more runs behind.

If you don't think such impressive roles give a pitcher's morale a shot in the arm, neither did Pat Jarvis, and after seeing service in a mere one-third of an inning as the season stretched well into its second month, the tall righthander produced the 'play me or trade me' ultimatum.

Gene Mauch compiled by bringing Jarvis on in a tight game against the Reds back on May 5, and the Atlanta Braves castoff hurled one perfect inning of relief, and was well on his way to setting them down in the ninth when a muscle popped in his shoulder. Exit Pat Jarvis to the 21 day disabled list.

Strangely, the Expos didn't see fit to install Jarvis on the active roster even after his injury had completely healed. This despite the fact that GM Jim Fanning and manager Gene Mauch both agreed they had never seen Pat throwing so well, as he worked out on the sidelines one evening.

Finally, after leaving their off-season acquisition in limbo for more than a week, the Expos' placed Jarvis on the active list and everyone, including Jarvis, expected that he'd now figure prominently in the team's plans, particularly since the Expos were faced with an avalanche of double-headers.

During the following three weeks Jarvis' amount of innings pitched more than tripled - all the way from four to 13 - meaning simply that Pat was not exactly considered as the Expos' Number 1 stopper. Instead, he had to be content with a brief relief stint against the Giants, a mop-up job against the Phillies and a longer stint in Chicago during the 18-inning marathon only because the club was near the bottom of the pitching barrel.

Meanwhile, during the same stretch of ballgames, Expo starters were being pounded unmercifully with increasing frequency. In a double-header with the Pirates, John Strohmayr left after five innings trailing 3-1, seemingly a perfect spot to give Jarvis some much-needed work.

Instead, Mauch called on Balor Moore, who was scheduled to start in Wrigley Field only two days later, thus subjecting his young and very precious arm to uncalculated and unnecessary risks. In addition, Balor had been struggling so miserably to reach last season's form, he was hardly a logical choice to use in this situation.

Then, as the Expos moved on to Pittsburgh for a weekend series, Mike Torrez was mauled in the second game of Sunday's twin bill, hurling a mere three innings. So who do you suppose trots in from the bullpen to take up the slack from the departing starter? John Strohmayr, Joe Gilbert, and Mike Marshall, that's who?

By now, most of you are wondering why Expo management is treating Pat Jarvis so shabbily, and it's a question so many would like answered.

Often accused of carrying excess fat, Jarvis reported in the finest physical shape of his career this spring, so it's definitely not a case of getting in Mauch's doghouse over his prescribed training camp weight.

Similarly, it cannot be a case of arm miseries because Jarvis, when he does receive a rare opportunity to pitch, has shown a complete command of his pitches. And, as further proof, you have the above-mentioned appraisal of Jarvis' stuff during a pre-game workout.

One would also be led to think that the Expos would be more than willing to give Jarvis every opportunity on the mound, if only to show that they weren't badly beaten on the Carl Morton exchange, particularly since the latter is enjoying a productive campaign.

It has to be a personality conflict with either Gene Mauch or pitching coach Cal McLish which has caused the Expos to keep Jarvis in storage during the first half of the season, and if his infrequent appearances continue after the all-star break, you can rest assured that the Expos will exercise the second half of the "play or trade" ultimatum.

Ironically, Jarvis' chances of more mound work are probably being hindered by the Expos' decision to retain Joe Gilbert, their 21-year-old lefthander, whom they've force-fed to the major league roster.

Gilbert made the jump from Double A ball at Quebec last season after hurling just seven innings at this level and he went on to pitch in a mere 33 innings with the big team. This year, he'll be lucky just to equal that figure, yet the club brass stubbornly refuses to send him out for further seasoning.

Instead, they insist that he's acquiring much-needed experience with the Expos, ignoring the fact that Gilbert is losing valuable playing time every day that he could easily have if only he was shipped to Peninsula, where he could be used as a starter.

My guess is that the Expos are allowing Gilbert to remain on the major league roster only to show their farm system is yielding some talent, since the well has been almost dry in this regard.

But by doing so, the club is making ballplayers like Pat Jarvis and Joe Gilbert suffer a gross injustice, because one is already a proven major leaguer while the other hasn't even served a minor league apprenticeship.

As a result, the Expos' adamant tactics may just cost them their best shot at 500 baseball.

Clemente's plane was death trap

WASHINGTON (AP) — The plane that carried baseball star Roberto Clemente to his death last New Year's Eve was overloaded, had two bad engines and had not been flown in four months, the National Transportation Safety Board said today.

The flight engineer was unqualified for his position and the co-pilot had a total of six hours in the type of plane being flown, the board added.

Clemente, an all-star outfielder for Pittsburgh Pirates, and four others died when the four-engine DC-7 crashed shortly after takeoff from Puerto Rico on a mercy flight to Managua, Nicaragua. The plane, owned by a Puerto Rico charter operator, was loaded with relief supplies for survivors of the Managua earthquake.

The safety board said its investigation of the accident showed: —The four-engine, propeller-driven plane was 4,200 pounds overweight when it took off. —There was extensive internal failure in the inboard left engine during the takeoff. The board said the failure was traced to previous engine damage caused during a ground accident. —The inboard right engine was so badly worn that it could not develop full power.

The aircraft had not been flown in approximately four months. —The flight engineer was a mechanic unqualified for his position in the crew. The co-pilot had six hours of DC-7 flight time. The board said the previous accident that damaged the left engine occurred on Dec. 2 when the plane ran into a drainage ditch during taxiing. It said the left and right inboard engine propellers struck concrete and stopped abruptly.

TAKEOFF ABORTED
 The first attempt of the airplane to take off was aborted, the board said. The plane was returned to its ramp for work on both right engines. It said the plane attempted a second takeoff three hours later. The plane took 8,000 feet to get off the ground and gained altitude slowly before turning left to head back toward the airport.

It continued to lose altitude during the turn and crashed into the ocean, about 1 1/2 miles from San Juan's luxury hotels. The board said an eyewitness told Clemente the plane was improperly loaded and unsafe but that Clemente replied he didn't know anything about this.

'FAITH NOT ENOUGH'
 "Mr. Clemente presumed the flight was being conducted safely. This was understandable. But faith in a safe operation is not enough."

The board said persons chartering an airplane should determine themselves the airworthiness of the craft and the operational ability of the pilot.

The 38-year-old Clemente was one of 11 baseball players to get 3,000 hits during his career. He compiled a lifetime batting average of over .300, won four National League batting titles and hit over 300 in 13 seasons. He was named the outstanding player in the 1971 World Series when he batted 414 and led Pittsburgh to the world championship.

Clemente was the National League's most valuable player in 1966 and was selected to the league's all-star team 12 times.

Mira leads Als

By GLENN COLE
 MONTREAL (CP) — Quarterback George Mira came off the bench in the second half to throw a 34-yard touchdown pass and score one himself on a five-yard run to lead Montreal Alouettes to a 21-10 victory over Calgary Stampeders in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Thursday night.

Mira watched from the bench in the first half as the Als' offence sputtered under quarterback Sonny Wade.

Mira had his problems moving the club early in the third quarter but found John Harvey all alone in the end zone on the final play. It came 41 seconds after Fritz Seyferth caught Jerry Keeling's 34-yard pass to put Calgary ahead for the first time in the game.

The Alouettes led 4-0 at the end of the first quarter as Gene Gaines intercepted a Keeling toss on the opening play from scrimmage and ran it in from 38 yards out. Don Sweet kicked his first of three convert.

The Stampeders got three points in the second quarter on Larry Robinson's field goal. Robinson also converted Seyferth's TD.

QUARTER DULL
 Aside from the pass interception by Gaines, the first quarter was hopelessly dull as neither team could mount anything resembling a downfield march.

The Stampeders got a break at the end of the quarter when a punt by Wade travelled 22 yards and bounced out of bounds on the Montreal 46.

Calgary strated moving as quarterback Jim Lindsey completed passes of 21 and 15 yards to Silas McKinnie to put the ball on the Montreal 10.

Brooks still hits when it counts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Brooks Robinson may be one of the steadiest glove men in baseball, but he's driving Earl Weaver nuts with his roller coaster act at the plate.

"Every time I want to bench Brooks, I don't," the manager of Baltimore Orioles said Thursday night. "I put him in the lineup and look what happens."

What happened was that Robinson, who's been having his woes at bat this season, smacked a pair of run-scoring singles, the second one a tiebreaker in the eighth inning to lift the Orioles to a 4-3 victory over Chicago White Sox.

In the rest of the American League, Boston Red Sox beat Texas Rangers 5-2, New York Yankees clouted Kansas City Royals 10-3, Detroit Tigers edged California Angels 7-6, Oakland A's swatted Milwaukee Brewers 8-4 and, in a two-night doubleheader, Minnesota Twins beat Cleveland 8-4 before the Indians came back to gain a split with a 7-4 victory in the second game.

A full slate of single games tonight includes Kansas City at New York, Texas at Boston, California at Detroit, Oakland at Milwaukee, Cleveland at Minnesota and Baltimore at Chicago N.

STRUGGLE OVER?
 "I've been struggling with my hitting most of the early part of the season," Robinson said, "but I'm happy I'm coming out of it. It'll be nice to go into the all-star game and be playing well."

Robinson, despite his weak .227 average, will be the starting third baseman for the annual mid-season classic later this month.

Boston's Luis Aparicio became the eighth player in the history of the game to bat 10,000 times. And his 10,000th was a single that helped build a run against Ranger bonus baby David Clyde. The big run, though, was Tommy Harper's tie-breaking homer in the fifth.

CALLISON CONNECTS
 "Surprise, surprise!" cracked Johnny Callison after hitting his first home run of season to help the Yanks down Kansas City. Gene Michael drove in three runs and Matty Alou, Bobby Murcer and Graig Nettles each had three of New York's 17 hits. Dick Sharon and Duke Sims drew ninth-inning walks and Dick McAuliffe ripped a two-out tie-breaking single in the bottom of the ninth for Detroit against the Angels. Willie Horton had a three-run homer and Eddie Brinkman hit a two-run shot for the Tigers.

Ray Fosse's ninth-inning homer triggered a four-run Oakland rally that sent the Brewers down to defeat.

George Mitterwald drove in four runs with a three-run homer in the second inning and a single in the fourth—but it was Jim Holt's tie-breaking single in the sixth that carried Minnesota to its first-game victory over Cleveland.

The Twins blew a 4-2 eighth-inning lead in the second game when the Indians scored five in the ninth, climaxed by George Hendrick's second two-run homer of the game.

George Mitterwald drove in four runs with a three-run homer in the second inning and a single in the fourth—but it was Jim Holt's tie-breaking single in the sixth that carried Minnesota to its first-game victory over Cleveland.

The Twins blew a 4-2 eighth-inning lead in the second game when the Indians scored five in the ninth, climaxed by George Hendrick's second two-run homer of the game.

Canadians stop peace work in attempt to pressure release

SAIGON (CP) — The possibility was seen today that Canada will virtually tie up all operations of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) as it seeks to apply pressure on the Viet Cong to release two Canadian officers held for two weeks.

Informed sources said Canada, which already has stopped routine work by ICCS commissioners in Saigon, may move to stop work in the seven ICCS regions throughout South Vietnam.

Canadians are awaiting word from the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) on the location of Capt. Ian Patten of Toronto and Fletcher Thomson of Ottawa so they can be rescued.

The PRG admitted for the first time Monday that the men are in Viet Cong hands. It said in a statement Tuesday that when it receives a message from the Viet Cong in the general area of Xuan Loc, 35 miles northeast of here, that there are no military operations, it will send liaison officers there.

These "envoys" would "confirm information" and "conduct necessary activities with regard to the two Canadian officers" who disappeared in the region June 28.

NO WORD RECEIVED

Neither Canadian nor ICCS officials had heard early today from the PRG on the situation in the area or where they could go to pick up the officers.

Informed sources said that a search team is standing by to fly to the area at 30 minutes notice as soon as word is received from the PRG.

"We have completed a schedule with the Canadians, and we are just awaiting word from our local units," a Viet Cong spokesman said.

An ICCS commissioners' meeting was adjourned without any work being done Monday when Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin said no routine business should be conducted until the Canadians are released.

The same thing was expected to happen at a meeting later today.

Gauvin may tell the meeting that Canadians will cease working in the regions until the officers are returned. With Hungary and Poland believing that no investigations can be made without the unanimous approval of all four ICCS delegations, such Canadian action would have the effect of virtually strangling the commission.

At present, while no requests for investigation of alleged ceasefire violations are being processed by the commissioners here, the regions are continuing to function.

Complaints of alleged ceasefire violations can be filed with the ICCS either here or in any of the regions.

News briefs

COMEDIAN BURIED

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — About 150 persons attended the burial Monday of comedian Joe E. Brown. The burial was restricted to family and close friends. Brown died at his home in Brentwood Friday of pneumonia and hardening of the arteries. He was 80.

HELD BY EAST

WEST BERLIN (Reuter) — East German border guards Monday arrested a West Berlin man during a demonstration against the use of firearms against people attempting to flee to the West. West German police said the man passed through a crossing-point and shouted "murderers" at the approaching East German guards.

BLAST KILLS FOUR

CLEBURNE, Tex. (CP) — Three large explosions ripped through a munitions plant near here Tuesday, killing four persons and injuring at least 30 others. The plant manufactures ammunition, hand-grenade detonators and explosives for use in oil fields. Cleburne Fire Chief Lloyd McVicker said the cause of the explosions was not yet known.

SIGN AGREEMENT

MOSCOW (Reuter) — France and the Soviet Union signed a 10-year economic and trade exchange agreement Tuesday. The agreement was signed by French Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing and Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev.

SOVIET TEST DETECTED

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Seismic signals from a presumed underground Soviet nuclear test were detected early Tuesday by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission (AEC). A spokesman said the signals, originating from the Soviet Union's Semipalatinsk test area were equivalent to a nuclear blast equal to 20 to 200 kilotons.

300th birthday party reaches climax today

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A giant birthday party, replete with all the trimmings, is setting the pace these days in this historic city.

The pageantry, which has been gaining momentum since the beginning of the year, reaches its climax today with the re-enactment of the arrival here 300 years ago of Governor Frontenac to establish a military stronghold and trading post.

Flanked by Indians and voyageurs, a modern-day Frontenac will journey up the St. Lawrence River and present Mayor George Speal with the original deed for the property on which Kingston now stands.

The location of the present city was chosen by La Salle in 1673 for a peaceful meeting between Frontenac and area Iroquois. Frontenac took possession of the land in the name of King Louis XIV of France and constructed the fort.

La Salle, the first commandant, named the area Fort Frontenac, the name used interchangeably with Catarauq until the 1780s. Then, under British rule after the Seven Years War, it was renamed Kingston, apparently in honor of King George III.

LOYALISTS ARRIVE

At about that time, the site was recaptured for settlement by United Empire Loyalists from what now is New York State. And within the next decade Kingston was selected as the chief naval base for Lake Ontario and a dockyard was built on neighboring Point Frederick, later an important base in the War of 1812.

Rich with history, the city, now with a population of more than 75,000, was the site of the first session of the executive council for Upper Canada in 1792, marking the beginning of civil government in what now is the province of Ontario.

Kingston, incorporated as a town in 1838 and as a city in 1846, was the capital of the "Province of Canada" from 1841 until 1844. The capital then was moved to Montreal.

It was also in Kingston, in 1867, that Confederation was proclaimed in the famous Market Square. The home of Confederation's chief architect, Sir John A. Macdonald, is a historic site here.

FIRST PAPER LAUNCHED

Other memorable dates: 1810—Kingston Gazette newspaper was inaugurated; 1816—The Frontenac, first steamer on Lake Ontario, was launched; 1820—Curling was introduced here, first place in Upper Canada; 1830—Rideau Canal was opened; 1836—Fort Henry, later replaced by another fort which still stands, was completed; 1839—Lord Sydenham, Governor-General of Canada, initiated legislation to unite Lower and Upper Canada; 1841—Act of Union brought together Canada East and Canada West; Kingston was the seat of the first meeting of the Parliament of Canada; 1842—Queen's College was opened; 1849—British Whig became a daily paper, first in Kingston; 1856—Grand Trunk Railway completed, with first passenger train leaving for Montreal; 1870—Imperial troops were withdrawn, having been here since 1783; 1876—Royal Military College was opened; 1891—Sir John A. Macdonald died.

But officials say the major 20th-century reliving of the past focuses on Frontenac's famous river journey, highlighting the homecoming week July 9-15.

Among other events planned are the Whole World Celebration Aug. 4-5, with crafts, theatre, music, film and dance; a Canada-United States goodwill day Aug. 18.

Tests near 1,000 mark

GENEVA (AP) — Sweden advised the 15-national Geneva disarmament conference Tuesday that the number of nuclear tests ever held throughout the world is approaching the 1,000 mark. A Swedish working paper said that up to last June 6, Swedish Armed Forces Research Institute registered a total of 925 tests by the world's five atomic powers, including 425 since the signing of the partial test ban treaty barring explosions in the atmosphere and under water. China and France have not signed the treaty and are still testing in the atmosphere.

RAZZLE DAZZLE ON KING STREET — Great Canadian news stories were not only reported, but often embellished during the early days of the Toronto Daily Star. When a story was worth it, the Star would send out platoons of reporters to write up every conceivable angle in a razzle-dazzle style no other Canadian newspaper could match. Fred Griffin and Greg

Confused tourists often look for Eiffel Tower in Britain

LONDON (CP) — The information staff of the London Tourist Board patiently deals with about 250,000 travellers who troop in every year to ask questions such as: "How do I get to the Eiffel Tower?"

It's the eight-countries-in-seven days class of tourist who is most often confused and this disorientation explains one of the most common questions: "Do you speak English?"

But even the unhurried visitor comes up with some that cause the staff to chuckle.

"How long does the Tube take to get to Edinburgh?" was asked by an American who didn't realize the Scottish capital is 350 miles from here and well beyond the reach of London's subway system.

Then there was the woman who wanted to know: "Where is the market where you can buy fleas?" The girl behind the counter told her that such a bizarre bazaar did not exist but there was Petticoat Lane, a Sunday sale of mixed goods often called the flea market.

Perhaps the most amusing incident recalled by the staff occurred last year when a man telephoned to ask how long was the flight from London to Manchester, a city more than 200 miles away. The receptionist reached for her airline schedule and told the caller, "Just a minute."

"Oh, that's quite quick," he said and then hung up.

The Canadian High Commission on Trafalgar Square receives about two letters a week from Canadians wanting to reserve rooms there. They apparently think Canada House is a special hotel for Canadians instead of the offices of the diplomatic delegation.

Customs officials at Heathrow Airport have seen some strange sights which could be interpreted as somewhat insulting to Britain.

One of the first Canadian arrivals of the spring tourist rush walked off the aircraft carrying four boxes and a shopping bag stuffed full of soft toilet paper because, she said, someone had told her it was unavailable here.

Payola for prostitution

LONDON (AP) — A call girl testified Tuesday that a singer charged in a payola scandal persuaded her to participate in sexual orgies.

The call girl, identified in court only as Miss B, testified at a preliminary hearing that the singer, Janie Jones, led her to believe radio and television producers would give her a job if she co-operated in the bedroom antics.

Miss Jones, 34, and others are charged with offering the services of prostitutes to employees of the BBC as inducement to plug records.

Others charged are the blonde singer's former husband, songwriter John Dee, 34, and a former county court official, Eric Gilbert, 42, described by detectives as Miss Jones' lover.

The three also are charged with perverting the course of justice, and Miss Jones is charged with soliciting a man to kill her former husband.

The call girl testified that she was told to participate in sexual acts with men and women at parties in Miss Jones' home and at fashionable London hotels.

The call girl said she stopped participating in the orgies because "I did not wish to live that sort of existence" and because she no longer believed she would really get a job in television.

The court hearing is being conducted to determine if investigators have enough evidence to bring the defendants to trial.

2nd SEASON

Festival Lennoxville

Bishop's Centennial Theatre Lennoxville, P.Q.
 JULY 14th to AUGUST 25th, 1973

OPENS SATURDAY

george ryga's
Sunrise On Sara

Sunrise on Sara: The work of Canada's leading new playwright, George Ryga, has enjoyed major production throughout Canada and the United States. His controversial Captives was a critical success during Festival Lennoxville's premiere summer and Sara his most recent and most powerful play, will open the new season. First produced at Banff, the script has been extensively revised for Lennoxville, its first professional presentation. Sara's central interest is a stunning and moving portrait of a sensitive teacher trapped by circumstance, who struggles to define her role as woman and to achieve self-fulfillment. William Davis, Lennoxville's Artistic Director, will stage Sara and Dana Ivey, well known to Montreal audiences, will present the challenging title role.

robertson davies'
A Jig For The Gypsy

A Jig for the Gypsy is thorough engaging comedy by one of Canada's most imaginative and successful writers, Robertson Davies, known to most through his brilliant recent novels. Jig was first produced in 1954, at Toronto's Crest Theatre, and Festival Lennoxville will bring two of the original company together for this summer's revival.

Barbara Chilcott will again play the lead role of Benoni Richards, and Donald Davis will direct this wry little tale of political chicanery. Tory and Liberal get out the vote in a Welsh border village, and use every method known to man and magician. A whimsical comedy, beautifully designed by Michael Eagan. Don't miss it.

david freeman's
Battering Ram

Battering Ram is an extraordinary new play by Canada's most fascinating playwright, David Freeman, whose first play, Creeps, has enjoyed phenomenal success in Canadian theatres, and recently won the Chalmers Award for the most outstanding Canadian Play in 1972.

Battering Ram, Freeman's second play, has been critically acclaimed at Toronto's Tarragon Theatre: "Battering Ram is often funny, sometimes brutal and always compelling." As with Creeps, Freeman explores, with ferocious humour and devastating force, the feelings and frustrations of the handicapped.

Patricia Hamilton will recreate her brilliant portrayal of a hospital volunteer, when Director William Glasco brings his production of Battering Ram to Festival Lennoxville. His sensitive and realistic staging of this powerful play is not to be missed.

Over 12,000 people visited the FESTIVAL in its first season.
DON'T MISS IT THIS SUMMER!

UNIVERSITÉ DE SHERBROOKE

Sherbrooke, Qué.

CALL FOR TENDERS

The "Université de Sherbrooke", the owner, requests tenders for the construction of an OVERPASS on the Ste Catherine Road, in the City of Sherbrooke.

Only people acting as general contractors and having their main business office in the Eastern Township region, are authorized to bid by obtaining tendering documents directly from the owner.

The plans, estimates, contractual documents and other informations may be obtained after fourteen hours, the twelfth day of July 1973 at the office of the owner against a deposit of one hundred ($100.00) dollars by certified cheque payable to the owner. All those tendering documents being prepared by the consulting engineers St-Pierre, Bertrand, Charron and Savoie, 2702, Galt Street West, Sherbrooke, Que. This deposit will be delivered to the bidders who will return the documents in very good condition within fifteen (15) days following the receipt of tenders by the owner.

All tenders shall be made in conformity with the order in council no. 2380 on the official tender forms supplied by the owner and be valid for a period of ninety (90) days of the date of tenders opening.

The tenders shall be accompanied by a certified cheque of twelve thousand ($12,000.00) dollars payable to the owner, or a bid bond set at the same amount, valid for a period of sixty (60) days of the date of tenders opening. The tenders shall also be accompanied by an "intention letter" from an insurance company authorized to issue performance bonds, and promising the owner to exchange this intention letter for a performance bond and a bond for labor, materials and services, each equal to fifty per cent of the amount of the contract, and valid for a period of one year after the completion of work.

The tenders in sealed envelope and addressed to the undersigned will be received by the owner "Université de Sherbrooke", until fourteen (14) hours EDAT on Wednesday, August fifteenth, 1973, to be opened publicly at the same place and the same hour.

The owner does not bind himself to accept the lowest or any of the tenders.

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Galahad the pure in spirit seldom got into the bridge games at the square table. He felt that card playing did not go well with the search for the Holy Grail.

At the same time, Galahad was too much of a gentleman to refuse to make up a game when he was needed and we find him sitting West in the "Siege Perilous."

The wily Mordred knew that Gawain's four-spade bid denied possession of an ace or king. They didn't use artificial two-club bids in the days of King Arthur but they did follow the precepts of the sage Merlin Culbertson.

Mordred should have passed at four spades, but he had little respect for Galahad's bridge game and decided on a spot of deception. Hence, his five-diamond call.

The deception boomeranged right back in Mordred's face.

Galahad thought a while. After all you should always consider the lead against a slam as carefully as possible. He was familiar with Mordred's reputation for trickery and deceit and came to the conclusion that the five-diamond call was intended to stop a diamond lead.

Then he played his king of diamonds and another bit of Mordred villainy had been foiled.

What do you do now?

A - Bid seven spades. Your partner's five no-trump is the grand slam force. He asked you to bid seven if you hold two of the three top honors in spades.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding five no-trump your partner has bid six spades over your five spades. What do you do now?

UCW meeting

M.E. Thompson

SUTTON - The regular meeting of the U.C.W. of Calvary United Church was held in the Church Hall on Wednesday afternoon, June 27.

The president, Miss E. Harvey called the meeting at 2 p.m. with all repeating the Church Purpose. She welcomed all, especially those who had not been with us for some time.

The devotional was the singing of two verses of What a Friend We Have in Jesus with Mrs. Pergau at the piano. A story in four parts of Friendship Road was read by Mrs. J. Flanagan, Mrs. L. Sherrer, Mrs. G. Forgrave and Mrs. S. Pergau followed by a prayer by Miss Harvey.

The minutes were read and bills paid. The treasurer's report showed a balance of $510.00 in the bank, proceeds from the May rummage sale were $251.00.

The correspondence was several thank-you notes for gifts, and cards, also a thank-you for the use of the hall at the Bromo County Women's Institute dinner, and from Roddy Jean Lewis for the magazine donation for the English population of the Cowansville institution. A thank-you from our forgotten patient at the Douglas Hospital.

A special mention of our sick patients at the Wales Home and here at home, a donation of money was made to the Memorial Fund in memory of the late Ernest Jenne and also the U.C.W. served lunch to the family and friends after the funeral service. The forgotten Patients will be remembered by Mrs. Righton and Mrs. Campbell in July.

The fall rally is to be held in Cowansville.

Final plans were also made for the Sweet Anniversary. Some of the ladies packed a Mission parcel while others set up tables.

Cards were signed for Mrs. Fryer and Mrs. Bartholomew. Pamphlets and articles were read of the Montreal-Ottawa Conference taking place August 20-22.

Miss Harvey introduced Mr. S. Pergau who spoke of the Conference he and Rev. B. Purdon attended, bringing to us the highlights of that conference. He was thanked by Mrs. C. Douglas for the very interesting talk of Unity of the Anglican and United Churches.

We were pleased to welcome Mrs. K. Thomson, also Mrs. B. Purdon and Mrs. J. Lupton joined us at the tea hour, when a delicious lunch was served by the hostesses Mrs. L. Sherrer and Mrs. G. Forgrave.

At this time Miss Harvey presented Mrs. Lupton and Mrs. Forgrave with going away gifts from the U.C.W. saying how much each one was going to be missed in the U.C.W. and the work of the church.

Students discover outdoor classroom adventure site

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. - Local high school students have discovered an "outdoor classroom" and adventure site on the west coast of Vancouver Island which would be the envy of Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn.

It's a remote promontory, stretching into Pacific Ocean waters, which becomes an island at high tide. Kennedy River enters the ocean at this point and the ocean and fresh water fishing is excellent. There's canoeing and a mountain range for climbing.

Bald eagles soar overhead, other wildlife abounds, and—as a bonus for the young explorer—nearby is a well hidden cave used many years ago by Indians as a burial chamber.

Although the site at Kennedy Cove is located within MacMillan Bloedel's Kennedy Lake Logging Division, there are few traces of man.

A small abandoned fish cannery is nearby and there are traces of early Indian settlements and European visitors, for these are waters once sailed by Captain Cook, Spaniards, Russians and other explorers and fur traders.

Discovered by students and the staff of A.W. Neill Junior Secondary School in Port Alberni, the site was recognized immediately as an ideal location for an "outdoor classroom" for environmental education for all senior school students in the area.

School District authorities approached MacMillan Bloedel with the proposal and the forest industry company arranged a lease of the 65-acre promontory.

Kennedy Cove is accessible over the public highway which runs from Port Alberni to the new Pacific Rim Park and over 13 miles of logging roads.

A group from the A.W. Neill school established the "outdoor classroom." Accompanied on a recent visit by teacher assistant Jim Moncur, an experienced outdoorsman and canoeist, the boys travelled in two pick-up trucks and a car, loaded with supplies, four canoes and an aluminum boat.

At the end of the logging road the supplies were loaded into the canoes and the boat, which were manhandled down to the water, and the party paddled a few hundred yards to the camp.

Principal Jim Cavers and Vice-Principal Bob Hastie are fully behind the project.

"The boys and girls are learning to work as a group and as individuals," said the principal.

"We consider the camp an extension of the school where students carry out assignments of a academic nature, as well as learning such things as survival training and water safety.

"They learn to use the environment — not abuse it."

Cavers pointed out the site is ideal for sailing, canoeing, fishing and fresh and salt water studies. The students comb the large tidal flats for shellfish and other inter-tidal marine life and study wildlife and migratory birds.

"In addition," says Cavers, "the McKenzie (mountain) Range and the Klitsa Wilderness area are not far away and they provide studies in flora and fauna as well as having great potential for survival training, camping and climbing."

Last year the school sent about 30 boys and girls to the developing campsite. The youngsters live in school tents, do all their own cooking, bring fresh water by canoe from a creek about a quarter of a mile away on the Kennedy River. Trout, readily taken in a pool above the Kennedy River rapids, are frequently on the menu.

A special adventure is a canoe trip across adjacent Tofino Inlet to outer islands where new picnic and study locations are charted for future use.

And if you were wondering about the old Indian burial cave, relocated by a group of the boys, it still contains the mummified body of a young Indian in a broken cedar chest. Respecting Indian traditions, the students are careful never to tamper with it.

TOM SAWYER COUNTRY - On west coast of Vancouver Island is explored in canoes by students from Port Alberni, B.C. Canoes sweep through waters of Tofino Inlet, which is sheltered from open Pacific Ocean by outlying islands. Students have established "outdoor classroom" on tidal island on left shore, out of picture. Good fishing, wildlife and historic relics abound in area. These waters once were sailed by Captain Cook, Spaniards, Russians and other early explorers and fur traders.
