Modifies attitude on Nato force reduction

BRUSSELS (CP) — Canada appeared today to be yielding moderately to strong pressure from allies to ease its planned "phased reduction" of its NATO forces in Europe.

After sessions with NATO colleagues disenchanted with the Canadian proposal, Defence Minister Cadieux indicated to reporters Wednesday night that both the size and the timing of the Canadian cuts now are negotiable.

This was a somewhat more pliant attitude than had been leaked out earlier in advance of Wednesday's meeting of the NATO defence planning committee. The advance billing was that the timing of the cuts might be flexible but the scope was not.

Cadieux's modified stand was made known after some diplomatically rough words had been issued by other delegations—notably the British and Americans—about the Canadian position.

DENIES CHARGE
British Defence Minister Denis Healey was reported to have accused Canada of "passing the buck"—a charge which Cadieux repudiated publicly after hearing that the Briton had used the phrase in a talk with British reporters.

Healey also was reported to have talked acrimoniously about the Canadian stand at a dinner of European defence ministers Tuesday night, saying that the reaction to it was unanimously hostile.

A high American source said that the United States hopes the Canadian government will review its proposals—the outcome of a long reappraisal of foreign and defence policy. He added: "This is not the time for reduction."

While Cadieux refused to disclose figures on the size of the proposed Canadian cut in European forces, this official said the U.S. impression was that Canada wanted to slice them by two-thirds of strength. He calculated that this would reduce Canadian efficiency by 80 per cent.

These figures, the first specific suggestion of the size of the Canadian reductions, purported to be the American impression of what Cadieux told U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird at a pre-meeting private session earlier this week.

REFUSES TO SAY
Cadieux told reporters, in a sparring session in which he declined to reveal much, that the man who issued them must know more than he did. However, he refused to deny or confirm them.

The minister was playing the cards close to the vest here because the Canadian procedure is not to make public the reduction proposals until Cadieux reports to Parliament on June 2.

However, he dropped these points:

1. Canada hopes to have its European "adjustment" completed by 1972.

2. The existing brigade group of 5,500 men in West Germany would be replaced by a smaller mobile unit transportable by air. The size was unspecified, but Cadieux said it would be bigger than a regiment.

3. There would have to be "some reduction" in the size of the air division in West Germany, though the minister said this would "not necessarily" be the 20-per-cent cut planned for last year but deferred through 1969 after the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia alarmed NATO.

4. There would be a "study of all naval services in the near future."

REDUCE NAVAL GROUP?
Earlier, a NATO spokesman said that Canadian discussions following the outlining of its plan in general terms would include talks with the NATO commander in the Atlantic, suggesting to reporters that the Canadian naval commitment to NATO was to be reduced. But the minister was non-committal on the point.

Discussions were opening today between a Canadian military group and alliance military experts as Cadieux left for Ottawa by Canadian government plane. It was expected these could last as long as December.

There is certain to be a long wrangle over the timing, Cadieux cited 1972 as Canada's hoped-for outside time limit for the reductions but said it could be earlier. Allies will want it stretched by perhaps several years.

On the question of the timing, Cadieux told reporters that "we are open for negotiation."

As to the extent of the cuts: "There's some element of flexibility."

When asked whether the quantity of the forces reduction was negotiable, he said: "I suppose, to a degree."

While generally playing it cautiously, Cadieux made no bones over the fact that he knows Canada's stand is unpopular with its friends.

"It's obvious that our move is not welcome, but I think we still have a chance of getting it accepted," he said. Actually, the allies have to accept any pull-out under the NATO constitution and can do no more than apply diplomatic pressure.

"It's unfortunate but it's not unheard of," a NATO spokesman said. "Anyway, it's too early yet to start crying over this spilled milk."

Freeze on public housing lifted

OTTAWA (CP) — The government displayed more of its housing policy Wednesday by removing the freeze on public housing projects and promising loans to provinces and municipalities to buy land for private homes.

Robert Andras, minister without portfolio given responsibility for housing after Paul Hellyer resigned from the cabinet last month, announced removal of the freeze as the Commons opened second-reading debate on the government's housing bill.

The bill removes interest ceilings on National Housing Act mortgages—now 9% per cent—and much of the cabinet's control over Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

Mr. Andras said public housing projects approved by CMHC but delayed for several months can go ahead.

He added that Ottawa will intensify discussions with the provinces to improve physical and social characteristics of public housing.

DIFFERENT APPROACH
Informants said the government now favors row housing and dispersed accommodation rather than the big high-rise projects.

Mr. Andras also said he will amend the bill to permit provincial and municipal governments to borrow from Ottawa to buy land for building private houses.

The National Housing Act now provides for 90-per-cent federal loans to provinces, municipalities or public housing agencies to buy and service land for public housing. The amendment would extend these loans to cover private housing as well.

While removing the freeze on public housing, Mr. Andras made no move to remove a freeze on urban renewal projects, imposed last fall because the government felt too many usable houses were being destroyed in big projects.

Mr. Andras' speech, along with replies from the housing critics of the three opposition parties and one from the Liberal back benches, took up all of Wednesday's short Commons sitting.

OFF-DAY DEBATE
Today the House turns to an "opposition day" debate pegged to an NDP motion on foreign ownership of Canadian industry. The housing debate resumes Friday.

Opposition criticism Wednesday focussed mainly on the housing problems of low-income workers, high interest rates and growing land costs.

Conservative Robert McCleave (Halifax-East Hants) said the government bill has many commendable features but does not solve the problem of half the people of Canada at the low end of the income scale.

He also regretted that the bill had not set up a full department of housing and urban affairs to deal with problems of the growing "megapolopolis" along the St. Lawrence and Great Lakes.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) said removal of the ceiling of NHAL interest rates is a capitulation to financial institutions which had played cat-and-mouse with the government by holding back from investments in housing.

On this point, Mr. Andras said earlier that he intends to hold discussions with approved lenders soon, but that preliminary indications on the flow of private mortgage funds are encouraging.

Mr. Gilbert also derided the extension of NHA mortgages to a maximum life of 40 rather than 25 years. He said it was not much of a gift for a young couple who bought at the age of 30 and were 70 before the mortgage was paid off.

Provision for renegotiating interest rates after five years also was a concession to the lending institutions, allowing them to "screw the financial vise that much tighter."

Expulsion likely for future PC dissidents

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MPs who persist in defying Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield over the government's official languages bill face the threat of being read out of the party, sources said Wednesday.

They said Mr. Stanfield, embarrassed when 17 party members voted against the bill contrary to Mr. Stanfield and 40 other Conservatives Tuesday, delivered his warning at a party caucus meeting earlier Wednesday.

"The name of the game is showdown," one source said. Former prime minister John Diefenbaker, from whom Mr. Stanfield wrested the party leadership in 1967, headed maverick MPs in their vote against second reading of the bill which would make English and French the official languages of Canada.

Although the bill easily passed second reading by 197 to 17 votes, it still has a long ride through a special Commons committee and back in the House itself when the report of that committee is debated prior to third reading.

Conservative party sources said Mr. Stanfield made it plain in caucus that any continuing rebels will be read out of the party.

ACTION DIFFICULT
It is extremely difficult to expel an MP from a political party, if not impossible, unless he is willing to depart. A party leader could announce that an MP is no longer a member of caucus.

Ralph Cowan, former Liberal MP for York Humber, was ordered out of that party's caucus but he maintained he was still a Liberal. He failed to win nomination as a candidate in the 1968 general election.

The sources said Mr. Stanfield told caucus the revolt by the 17 MPs—all but one from the Prairies—was a direct assault on his leadership.

Those of the 17 rebels that spoke in reply denied this, maintaining their opposition was to the languages bill, the sources said. Mr. Stanfield reportedly would not accept this argument.

Silence on stabbing incident

A Sherbrooke woman is reported in good condition today at St. Vincent de Paul Hospital after she was admitted earlier this morning following a stabbing.

The hospital declined further comment on the identity of the person, and the nature of the stab wounds.

Quebec Provincial Police are investigating the incident. It has not been possible to obtain any information, except that QPP received a phone call around 4:55 a.m. to answer a stabbing incident near the city limits on King Street East.

Support highway project

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — The Maine House of Representatives joined the Senate Wednesday in supporting a $30,000,000 bond issue to renovate State Route 6 as a trans-Maine highway between Quebec and the Maritime provinces.

Without debate, the House accepted the "ought to pass" report of a minority of the highways committee. The measure was scheduled for a final House reading today.

If it passed that hurdle, its hardest test would still be ahead, however. As a bond issue measure it would require the favorable vote of two-thirds majorities in both branches, and if it got that it would go to a voters referendum.

The purpose of the bill is to finance construction of a new section from the Quebec border at Chain of Ponds to join existing roads in west-central Maine. From there the route would travel on present roads some 200 miles east of Vanceboro on the New Brunswick border. Much of the money would be used to improve the existing route.

But under questioning, the Maintenant representatives did not provide any concrete examples to prove that the right of citizens to be informed had been abused by Power Corp.

The Maintenant brief also included scathing criticism of wire services providing news to the Quebec media.

Another brief by a spokesman for news media owners suggested that press freedom in the province can best be assured by "a gentlemen's agreement."

The Maintenant case was stated by three journalists, including Rev. Vincent Harvey, 45, a Dominican priest who has been managing editor since 1965.

Demand probe of press concentration

QUEBEC (CP) — The editors of a small French-language magazine Wednesday called for a "genuine commission of inquiry" into the influence of Power Corp. of Canada Ltd. on the Quebec press.

The recommendation by Editions Maintenant Inc. of Montreal was made in one of two briefs to the national assembly's committee on freedom of the press which sits again next Wednesday.

Power Corp. poses a "genuine threat to freedom of the press . . . to the right of citizens to be informed," said the brief from representatives of Maintenant, a monthly whose circulation was estimated at "between 9,000 and 10,000."

But under questioning, the Maintenant representatives did not provide any concrete examples to prove that the right of citizens to be informed had been abused by Power Corp.

Tables Magazine
Tabled with the Maintenant brief was the May issue of the magazine whose cover story is titled The Real Masters of Quebec: The Power Corporation Empire.

Also tabled was the April-May-June issue of a French-language review known as Socialisme 69, which includes an article by Jacques Guay entitled A Servile Press: The Facts.

In articles in both Maintenant and Socialisme, Mr. Guay, 32, writes that with few exceptions news media in Quebec "are in the hands of high finance."

In Socialisme, he says the most powerful group is "Desmarais-Power Corporation which controls newspapers, radio and television stations and movie houses."

Yves Michaud (L—Montreal Gouin), a former newspaper man, asked Mr. Guay for proof to support one of the points of the Maintenant brief.

Mr. Guay said the radio station and newspaper in Granby belong to the same group. So did the principal newspaper and television station in Sherbrooke.

Mr. Michaud said he knows that economic concentration is a danger in itself. He himself had told the house last Dec. 5 that the Desmarais group of Montreal is master of the Quebec press.

ASKS FOR FACTS
He added, however: "What is important to know from press outlets and especially from journalists is: Are there precise facts to demonstrate intrusion of economic powers in the mechanism of publication of facts?"

Mr. Guay said: "That's exactly why we ask for creation of a commission of inquiry. We feel that we are not capable of making this inquiry at this time."

Mr. Guay writes in Maintenant that Quebec's press "is under the yoke of news agencies."

He says: "UPI (United Press International) is quite simply rotten. Canadian Press is half rotten: The French part and at least half of the English part. The other agencies, Reuters, Associated Press, AFP (Agence France-Presse), each have their weaknesses."

He does not document his article with any examples of "rotten" news service copy.

Police state

QUEBEC (CP) — Liberal House leader Pierre Laporte Wednesday said provincial police searches in the homes of Quebec civil servants were creating a "reign of terror" and would result in a "police state" for the province.

Mr. Laporte told the national assembly two provincial police officers had recently searched the home of Real Simard, a former press officer attached to the Superior Council of Education and former employee of the government information office.

QUITO, Ecuador (Reuters) — A stringent security net blanketed Quito today for a visit by presidential envoy Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, arriving this morning from neighboring Colombia where tumultuous anti-American rioting punctuated his two-day stay here.

Foreign Minister Rogelio Valdivieso said tight security measures were in force to prevent hostile demonstrations against the millionaire New York governor during his 24-hour visit, which the minister earlier described as "a courtesy" call.

ROME (Reuters) — World wheat production for 1968 - 69 will reach a record 306,000,000 metric tons, or 11,230,200,000 bushels, says an estimate published Wednesday by the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

Quebec violence

QUEBEC (CP) — Violence continued Wednesday in connection with a two-week strike by 6,000 Quebec City-area construction workers but a meeting of all parties involved has been set for Saturday, May 31, by a government-appointed mediator in the labor conflict.

Raymond Lachapelle sent a telegram to representatives of the strikers, affiliated with the 225,000-member Confederation of National Trade Unions, and to construction industry spokesmen saying that "because of certain recent difficulties making mediation more arduous," both sides were asked to meet

Province must support satellite, says Bertrand

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said Wednesday Quebec must align itself with the rest of Canada to present a united front in the field of satellite telecommunications.

Speaking in the national assembly during debate on the budget of Radio-Quebec, Mr. Bertrand said the common front is necessary for Quebec to hold its own against the big powers in the satellite space race.

In reply to Opposition questions, the premier said Quebec is currently conducting negotiations with other governments over three educational satellite projects.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Course of Exercise May Cure Dizzy Spells

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—What causes me to feel dizzy or lightheaded when I get up suddenly after sitting for a long time?

A—The dizziness is caused by a sudden drop in blood pressure in your brain. In some persons the adjustment, which is automatic, takes several seconds. This type of dizziness is aggravated by a deficiency of adrenal hormone, general weakness or drugs taken for high blood pressure. If your doctor can find no reason to forbid it, a course of exercise and an hour or more of walking every day should help to condition you so you would not have these spells.

Q—My daughter, 41, has vertigo. What causes it? Can it be cured?

A—True vertigo is present when objects in the room seem to be swimming, and when the eyes are closed you feel as though you were floating in outer space. It is due to an irritation of the inner ear and may be associated with nausea. The underlying cause may be a low blood sugar, anemia, one drink too many or an overdose of a barbiturate, nine aspirin, meperidine or morphine. The only cure would be to find and remove the cause.

Q—I am 75 and have an unstable equilibrium for which I have taken niacin, Antivert and Bonine. They haven't helped. Have you any suggestions?

A—Antivert and Bonine are antihistamines widely used to allay vertigo. Niacin, a vitamin, is also helpful in many cases. Niapent, betahistine or thiethylperazine (Torecan) may help you.

Q—My husband is dizzy all the time. His doctor says he can't cure him because this is caused by hardening of the arteries. Do you agree?

A—The drugs mentioned in the preceding answer may help your husband but his doctor is right in saying that he cannot cure the underlying cause.

Q—About five weeks ago I awoke one morning feeling terribly dizzy. An ear specialist gave me some tests but they proved negative. He said the dizziness was caused by a virus. What can I do to relieve it?

A—Some virus infections involve the inner ear and cause dizziness. Most of them clear up gradually after three to eight weeks. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

lot of difference to the declarer who likes to make his slam contracts.

West opens the king of hearts and continues. South ruffs the second heart and it doesn't take much bridge intelligence for South to see that he needs three spade tricks to make his slam. The way to get those tricks is to pick up the queen by some means or other.

Any South player will start by running off several rounds of trumps and then cashing one top spade to see if there is a singleton queen.

The expert will follow this procedure with the lead of a third heart from dummy. Assuming that West has five hearts for his vulnerable overall there is a sound reason for this play. South has established dummy's 10 of hearts as a threat against West. South continues by cashing the rest of his clubs and the ace and king of diamonds to leave himself with two little spades. West must hold on to a high heart and therefore come down to one spade. Now South leads a spade. West follows with the 10 and since South knows that West's other card is a heart, South rises with the high spade, pickles East's queen and chalks up the slam.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

One of the more common squeeze situations is the one to avoid a finesse. Usually the finessable card is a queen. All the squeeze does is to make sure that the player in front of the 10-ace does not hold that card. This does you no good when the queen is guarded but sometimes it isn't and you are able to drop it.

It doesn't matter whether South is in six clubs, five clubs or a part score. That is, it doesn't matter to the man who is just interested in squeeze play. It makes a TOMIFOBIA — The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hatch, was on May 17 the scene of a pleasant occasion when a family gathering took place to mark the 75th birthday of their father and grandfather, Reginald Hatch. Planned as a surprise, Mr. Hatch, on entering the house was greeted by all singing, for He's a Jolly Good Fellow. The adults played 500 while the younger ones enjoyed music and dancing.

Refreshments served included a birthday cake, made and beautifully decorated in the design of a gay 90's shirt, by Mrs. Horace Doyon. It was quite a task for Mr. Hatch to extinguish the can't be blown out candles, amid much laughter Mr. Hatch cut and passed his cake, as everyone sang the Birthday song.

Tighter enforcement of liquor permit regulations announced

Judge Marc Lacoste, president of the Quebec Liquor Board, explained the workings of the liquor laws in Quebec yesterday, in Sherbrooke, during the hearing of new permit applications.

He said the renewal period always imposed a lot of extra work on the Board. Judge Lacoste continued that the situation had been made more difficult after the five-month-long strike last year.

He said the increasing number of new requests presented incompletely prevented the Board from being effective and efficient.

He warned owners of establishments to conform with existing regulations and added that all applications presented to the Board without the usual information would be returned immediately.

Judge Lacoste said that if businesses were worth an additional investment of five or ten thousand dollars, applicants should study the law and consider the economic situation of the surroundings before taking a definite decision.

He said when the public understood that the privilege of selling alcohol in some establishments involved certain requirements, one being proof of public utility, the Board could deal with incomplete applications flooding the files in Quebec and render its decision.

Judge Lacoste added that standards had been established to determine the standards required to obtain a grocer's permit. Every time the laws were changed, he said, so were the standards.

He said it was only fair that persons exploiting businesses under permit for a number of years should be subject to the same regulations as those required of new applicants.

Without wanting to take anybody by surprise, the Judge said that within a reasonable delay the establishment must become a real grocery store under the provisions of the law he added.

Recent holders have the right to operate a general store or a restaurant instead of a grocery store, but it is only in a grocery store that the Board allows the exploitation of a grocer's permit.

Requirements are the same for a bar permit, he said. To obtain a bar permit, the applicant must be holding a dining room permit. This means a bar permit holder must be exploiting a dining room in a reasonable way, he said.

"We will have to confirm to this aspect of the law," he concluded, "otherwise permits will be nullified."

French speaking children fewer in Beebe; school shut

BEEBE — (Special) — Between 250 and 275 school tax ratepayers from Rock Island, Stanstead, Beebe and area attended a meeting on Monday evening, May 26, in the school auditorium at Stanstead of St. Joseph's Regional Board. The chairman, Jean Louis Dupont presided.

After a great deal of discussion, the board decided to close the two small French schools in Beebe and to centralize the students in schools in Rock Island and Stanstead.

Mr. Dupont said this decision is based on the fact that the French population of students is declining, last year 490 students were registered with the St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Board, while this year the number is 460. It is anticipated that in another five to 10 years the decline will continue and one school will house the number of children to attend school.

The plan is that a half of the primary and elementary grades, one to seven inclusive, will attend Stanstead Sacred Heart

School, and Rock Island Notre Dame de Merci convent school. Possibly the teaching nuns from Beebe will come to Rock Island to reside in the teachers' quarters in the Rock Island building.

Through the effort of Mr. Dupont and the co-operation of the Ursuline Convent in Stanstead students from grades eight through twelve and commercial, will attend the convent.

The closing of the two French schools and the Beebe Elementary Protestant School in Beebe will bring to an end schools in this village.

It had been hoped that the overflow of students from the Orleans - Essex North Supervisory Union of Derby might rent one or more of the schools but a communication from John Barker, Jr., assistant superintendent, notes such will not be done.

Richmond board of trade elects 75th year officers

RICHMOND — (Special) — Michael O'Donnell, manager of the Canada Manpower Centre here, has been elected president of the Richmond - Melbourne Board of Trade.

Business matters discussed at the recent monthly supper meeting were the appointing of a committee to attend the regional Chamber meeting in June at Plessisville and to the Provincial meeting in September at Baie Comeau.

The Richmond group, this fall, will hold a special gathering to celebrate the 75th year of its founding, having been given its Charter, October 19, 1894. The Richmond Chamber is the oldest founded group in the Eastern Townships. There are 124 regular members and six honorary members.

The annual golf tournament will be June 16.

A discussion was held on the parking situation on Main Street, in Richmond. It was agreed that the public be approached for their opinions. The street, being very narrow, does not permit an easy flow of traffic, especially at peak periods. There is the consideration of parking on one side only or making the traffic direction one-way.

Private conversations have many advantages

Complaints are being aired in many quarters that the federal government and the provinces have a curious idea of democracy because of their decision to conduct the third federal-provincial constitutional conference next month behind closed doors.

The decision follows a reported dislike by several provincial premiers about discussing constitutional matters at an open meeting and reportedly the federal government went along with the request for a secret session.

Protesters claim that the decisions made at the conference will affect each and every Canadian and that it is impertinence to assume their discussions are none of the public's business. It is said they are giving the back of the hand to those citizens they were elected to represent.

This might be correct to a point but the strictly legalistic viewpoint must be weighed against some of the advantages that may come from closed-door discussions.

One of the difficulties with past constitutional conferences has been that there has been a tendency by the federal and provincial representatives to use the opening statements as the sounding board for their often conflicting views.

Too often the opposing spokesmen have created the impression that the situation was critical and that any agreement should be regarded as something of a miracle.

By meeting in private the spokesmen can present their views in a rational manner without the extreme statements resulting from public hearings.

At this time of the year, the most useless thing a man owns is his wallet.

Duty of rich nations

Canada and the United States, with their regular surpluses of foodstuffs, are not the only nations whose duty it is to help feed less fortunate countries. Any nation of affluence which finds it has more food than its people can eat must try to share the wealth.

Japan today has reached that situation, although its government is not quite willing to admit the country has joined the ranks of the affluent states. The Japanese government today holds vast quantities of surplus rice, some of which is in danger of rotting.

Thanks to favorable weather conditions and a policy of raising prices steadily to help the nation's farmers, Japan had two bumper rice crops of about 14,400,000 tons in 1967 and 1968.

But now old rice stocks are rising at a dangerous rate. They will be 5,500,000 tons by October this year, and are expected to be almost 8,000,000 tons within two years. The government is not sure what to do with all this extra food.

The most urgent problem is how to dispose of almost 2,000,000 tons of rice harvested in 1967. The quality of the grain deteriorates with each rainy season, and it is feared the 1967 rice crop will become unsuitable for human consumption after the rainy season next year.

In a world still afflicted by the evils of human starvation and malnutrition, the Japanese government's duty is clear: It must give the food away to the needier nations, or sell the rice on terms the poorer nations can afford. The developing states of Asia and Africa can afford long-term interest-free loans, and it is on this basis that Japan should dispose of its surplus food. To sell rotting rice as feed for animals would be a crime in a still hungry world.

You can get everything you might want on time — except a meal in our non-favorite restaurant.

Protests sweeping school board power

Sir:
It was with great interest I read the letter written by a disgruntled taxpayer.
This is supposed to be a free country yet a few School Board officials can decide to spend millions of dollars on Regional Schools without consulting the taxpayer or paying off the mortgages on the existing schools first.

Wait until you receive your new tax bill which will include new school buses and teachers raises, school equipment.
Within a few years the Protestant School Boards will be bankrupt and the Quebec Government will have to take them over and what happens to your Protestant Schools?

College students have sit-ins, paper mill employees have strikes, why can't the taxpayers in the Eastern Townships organize and refuse to pay taxes until we get a decent rate?

A fellow taxpayer who is fed up with Russian tactics.

The Editor:
Sir:

I hear they are organizing a motorcycle club in town called 'The Dirty Reichs' I think I remember seeing a few members of this club around town with their bikes, last summer.

I understand a priest is joining them, so I presume that he figures if they are not alright, he will leave, but the question arises, can one leave some of these clubs once he joins?

I think all young people, whether French or English, should be warned about any of these clubs. They have had a lot of trouble with motorcycle gangs in other cities.

The youth who joins may be getting into something worse than he realizes.

I have nothing in particular against motorcycles, in themselves, but anything which runs under the name Reichs and (or) a Swastika, is not to be trusted too far. After all Hitler had his S.S. guards organized before he gained power.

We should realize, that while older people remember Hitler and what he did, to anyone under twenty-five or thirty, these things are only history.

I have just read the article PUBLIC APATHY DEPLORABLE. One statement was—some observers interviewed said 'it is criminal that more people do not take an interest in water pollution.'

I would like to add that it is deplorable that more people don't take an interest. Period.

We can get very excited over something which happens in some other country, or at least a nice safe distance away, but not anything close like pollution in Lake Memphremagog, to this we can add the dirty books and movies which flood all our newsstands and movie houses. We could find an almost endless list of things which might become involved, if we weren't so apathetic. Perhaps we better wake up before it is too late.

Lack of good clean water is just one of the factors which could destroy our fine city, and fine country.

It was refreshing to read of the mayor of Niagara Falls "complaining" about an increase in his salary, saying that he was satisfied with his former salary as he enjoyed his work.

This is what is sorely needed, people who are not asking abnormal, unreasonable remuneration for service rendered, but render service from a sense of virtue and duty, which is its own reward.

This spirit exhibited by the Mayor of Niagara Falls is very commendable in view of the prevailing greedy, grasping spirit so evident everywhere — always asking for more and more. Governments of all levels are chief offenders in desiring exorbitant remuneration, and are also guilty of granting unreasonable demands by labour and others.

If the world is to be restored to any degree of sanity and integrity there will have to be more of this spirit as manifested by the mayor of Niagara Falls. Also, courage and strength must be exercised by those in authority to say "NO" to unjust, unreasonable demands by labour and others, which are burdening taxpayers beyond endurance. Squandering of the people's money by governments of all levels is responsible for the exorbitant taxation.

Quebec, the only province to do so, has declined to endorse Canada Week, a week dedicated to Canadian unity.

Premier Bertrand's letter to Mr. Trotter, executive director of the Canada Committee, declining the invitation said in part. I therefore fear that accepting your invitation would create a certain confusion as to the purpose of Quebec's exact stands.

Just what are Quebec's exact stands if it cannot subscribe to Canadian Unity?

"Quebec Knows How." It certainly does but how it confuses the people.

COMMENT

by Lubor J. Zink

OTTAWA — (TNS) — While there is no doubt that Bill C-120 (the Language Bill) will pass through Parliament, there is, and has been from the start, considerable doubt about the constitutionality of the measure.

The Government maintains that the Bill contains nothing that contravenes the British North America Act as it now stands and is therefore constitutional. Yet the Government is anxious to avoid having its contention tested before the Supreme Court.

Speaking in the Commons, Justice Minister John Turner said: "We hope a constitutional confrontation can be avoided; that is to say, that the province will not test the validity of this legislation either before a court of appeal or before the Supreme Court of Canada."

Why this anxiety to keep the Bill away from constitutional scrutiny?

If there is doubt about the authority of the Government to introduce such legislation—and Mr. Turner admits that "a number of provinces have raised constitutional issues in relation to it"—surely the only way to dispel those doubts is to have the validity of the Bill tested by the Supreme Court, which has a final say in these matters.

Assuming that the Government is certain about the constitutionality of the proposed legislation, it should be eager to silence the doubters by a court ruling before the processing of the Bill starts in earnest.

The reason the Justice Minister gives for shunning a court test is that "a discussion of languages, which is a sensitive subject historically and today, should remain in the political arena."

In other words, the Government seems to fear that arguments about the constitutionality of Bill C-120 would stir up emotional currents in the country and that the proceedings before the court would be used by bigots on both sides of the bilingual issue for inflaming divisive and destructive nationalistic passions.

"I would hope," Mr. Turner told the Commons, "the discussion of this Bill, the implementation of it and the debate on it will remain in the political arena and will not be subject to the scrutiny of the courts because I believe the dangers inherent in that procedure are very real indeed."

One cannot help asking whether there aren't even greater dangers in letting the constitutional doubts linger. For all the arguments that would be raised before the court are bound to be raised during the debate in the Commons without the benefit of an authoritative ruling on the matter.

Surely it would be far less damaging to clear the air before the debate of the Bill gets infected with constitutional uncertainty and the ever-present threat that at the end of the legislative process one or more of the provinces might still decide to challenge the legality of the measure.

With this in mind, the position taken by the Treasury Bench is hard to understand, unless the Government is indeed unsure about the constitutionality of the Language Bill.

While I am not a lawyer, my reading of the BNA Act leads me to the conclusion that this may be the real reason for shunning a court test, no matter how vehemently the Government denies it.

Section 133 of the BNA Act says quite clearly that either the English or French language may be used in the Houses of Legislature of Quebec and the courts of Quebec, and in the Federal Parliament courts. That is the extent of official bilingualism under our constitution as it stands today.

From that it would seem to follow that any extension of official bilingualism under our constitution as it stands today.

Even this, however, may be too flexible an interpretation of Section 133, for Section 91, as amended in 1949 at the request of the St. Laurent government, specifically rules out changes by Parliament in the extent of the official use of the two languages.

Magog traffic problems under consideration

Three major traffic problems in Magog are again under study, which if remedied by present estimates will cost the provincial government $438,356.31, and the city of Magog $122,736.56. The projects were outlined in a memo from E. Monette, deputy minister of transportation.

The first would be improvements to Merry Street North, which connects with the ET autoroute, described as far too narrow and congested. This project would entail street widening and paving.

The second is the widening of the Michigan bridge on Main Street East, and straightening of this river crossing.

Magog resume has social aspect

What is done with the former federal building in Magog, now owned by the city, could have an important bearing on this community's future, writers of a resume have noted.

The economists studying the advantages in maintaining the site as a city owned and rented building, have been weighed against the logic of selling the property, demolishing the building and turning the land into a display park. In their opinion, the authors of the resume believe it would benefit Magog to sell and use the present situation as one that has a social side effect. They believe an office building and library situated where the present building is, constitutes a detriment to the Main Street West business district.

To explain reasons for their evaluation, the writers state that any office building, library or other site without an attraction to retail traffic, in the midst of a predominantly business area, tends to detract from the general locality's attractiveness for the shopping public. They continue by explaining, that with stimulated traffic and more retail sales in Magog, Magog would gain in another way in the receipts from sales tax. And, in turn, added revenues for the community lessens the burden on the present taxpayers.

Little has been said at Magog's city hall on the resume, and the claims made to date, but official word is that the pros and cons shall be carefully weighed before any move is made.

The study and controversy started when J. A. Choquette offered Magog $35,000 for the present site. He said his intentions, if allowed to purchase the building, would be to demolish it, and turn the land into a commercial display lot, that could be a stimulus for retail trade on Main Street West.

To date the study has favored Mr. Choquette's proposal, and cited several glaring examples of how the transformation of this site could be beneficial to Magog.

The third project will be the extension of Belvedere street, which is on the east side of the Michigan bridge. The extension would run as far as route 50, the Magog - Ayer's Cliff road.

Providing a second access to Magog south follows, a five year battle, with the people of Magog South asking for a bridge over the Magog River at Sherbrooke Street.

A petition was presented to city council, consisting of some 500 names and ignored. Citizens asked that a second bridge over the Magog River be built from Sherbrooke Street to the south side of the river, allowing for a smoother flow of traffic off route 50 to highway No. 1, and also eliminate the C.P.R. railway now crossing the one street connecting north and south Magog.

Magog Chamber of Commerce to hear proposed project

MAGOG (Special) — The Magog-Orford Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual general meeting this evening, May 29 at the La Condesa Restaurant, 259 Main Street West, Magog, under the presidency of Dr. Leonard St. Pierre. Following the dinner and reports from the secretary, treasurer and retiring president, a new slate of officials will be named. A half hour will be devoted to discussing the proposed purchase of the former post office building, the two speakers being J. A. Choquette, who has attempted to buy the premises, and Jean-Paul Lange, secretary-treasurer for the City of Magog.

Magog moves on

MAGOG — (Special) — "Magog on the Move", or translated, "Magog va de l'Avant" are short and to the point slogans. They haven't yet caught on in this community, possibly because there hasn't been sufficient publicity given the catchy phrases, designed to spearhead a merchants drive to improve conditions in Magog. Regardless, the campaign goes on. One sure sign of progress this past week, was the arrival of a new store, in Laiterie Pierre at 319 Main St. West. A general seven days and nights a week operation that sells on the same style as a neighborhood corner store. And, although here only a week, the shop is doing splendidly.

Ski Club events

MAGOG — (Special) — Summer hasn't even made its debut, and the skiers of the Mt. Orford Ski Club have their sights on the 1969-70 season. They'll officially end the winter season this Sunday evening with a buffet dance at the Hotel Sherbrooke. On Wednesday, June 4, at the same site, they will hold an election of officers for the coming winter. The June 4 gathering is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m., and will be open to all members and prospective members of the club.

Notice of the meeting has gone out, signed by Ernest Fields, the vice-president. He replaced Mrs. Lavardure who served following the resignation of Henri Delorme.

This project would be a $260,000 undertaking, and still not comply with the basic needs of the people in South Magog. There is a public cry for better police and fire protection, amplified since the city hall was built a half mile further from the south side, Main Street West, a heavy traffic area.

The administration in Magog has called a meeting of the petitioners to discuss the bridge project further.

a framed picture of Mt. Orford and Mrs. Hodge receiving a bouquet from Donna May Catchpaugh, who represented the junior segment of the school. (Record photo: Dalton Catchpaugh)

Car wash planned

MAGOG — (Special) — Saturday June 7th, car owners getting their vehicles washed in the Magog Lions Club public car wash, will find out what a hard winter of skiing does for some thirty hardy ski patrolrollers. The patrollers, members of the nation's smallest service group will assist the Lions by doing the elbow work, and the Magog members of the world's largest, roaring service club, will handle the advance sale of tickets. Add it up and proceeds will go toward benevolent work all the way.

The Lions' share will be used to help Magog and district's underprivileged, and the patrollers' portion of the receipts will assist these skiers to go on helping the skiing public.

Boat trips start Sunday

MAGOG (Special) — This weekend "L'Adventure II" the Memphremagog cruise boat starts operation for the summer months, and will give scheduled tours beginning Sunday. The boat docks at the Magog government pier, and leaves at 2 p.m. Sundays during June, with regular trips Wednesdays and Sundays during July and August.

THREE INJURED — Three persons were injured last Thursday, when their car left the road on Bourque Boulevard between Magog and Deauville about 5:30 in the afternoon. The driver, Camille Therrien was taken to hospital with facial cuts, and his two Magog passengers, Denis Viens of 38 Stanley Street, and Miss France Besette, of Victoria Street, were able to return home afterwards. (Record photo: Charles Catchpaugh)

ST. PAUL'S GUILD

The closing meeting of the Guild was held in the church hall on May 21 with Rev. Donald Eustace opening with the Guild Prayer.

The president, Mrs. H. J. Drew was in the chair with 13 members present.

The report on the Chinese cooking school demonstration was given by Mrs. L. Staniford which was very successful.

The president thanked Mr. A. Raymond for donating the serving cabinet, also Mrs. F. Lord and Mrs. A. Peck for convening the banquet following a meeting attended by twenty members and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Dunn donated the turkey for the banquet which was greatly appreciated.

Card parties are to be held in the church hall October 16 and 30. Christmas sale and supper is planned for November 29.

The opening fall meeting will be on Sept. 10.

Mrs. H. J. Drew closed the meeting with the Guild prayer and wished the members a pleasant summer.

ASCOT WI

The May meeting of the Ascot WI was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Ingham. The president, Mrs. Ashley Hatcher, welcomed the members and guests. A request was received from the Lennoxville Recreation Association for a representative to attend their meetings.

The roll call was answered by green thumbs or green horns and many interesting suggestions were given.

Mrs. Wentworth S. Richardson reported on the Fall Fair plans. Mrs. Richardson read an article on the lack of fragrance in our most expensive flowers, due to forced growth.

Mrs. William T. Pearson had interesting clippings on amendments in the civil code and on the space craft landing.

Mrs. Camille Bernard spoke on the teacher's protest march in Quebec.

Mrs. Lorne Butler collected ditty bags and reminded those who had not brought them in to forward them to her as soon as possible.

Mrs. Elwood Marlin, welfare and health convener, told of a new vaccine for measles that may soon be available.

Mrs. Donald McElrea had remembered the sick and shut-ins with cards.

In reporting on the progress of the new addition of the Ascot History Mrs. William Pearson stated that it was nearing completion.

Mrs. Lorne Butler and Mrs. Arthur Coates were named as delegates to the annual county meeting.

The June meeting will be held at the Grace Christian Home in Huntingville.

At the close of the business meeting an auction of house and garden plants proved most satisfactory with Mrs. Austin Church acting as auctioneer.

The hostesses, Mrs. Frank Ingham, Mrs. Benjamin Ingham and Mrs. Herbert McLaughlin, served refreshments followed by a social hour.

Mudrooms built off the kitchen or in the basement divert the traffic pattern and trap dirt before it gets into the rest of the house. These have hooks for clothes and a place for boots. Some have a complete bathroom and many just a lavatory. These are great for children.

MONTREAL, May 29th — At last I've discovered a gift that increases in value, always fits, and is easy to mail. It's a Scotiabank Savings Certificate, ideal for office presentations, birthday gifts, wedding presents or anniversaries. It's personal, because each Scotiabank Savings Certificate is registered and can be cashed only by the owner. Best of all, when held six years, its value increases nearly 43%. Even when cashed before the six years are up, it's still worth more than when it was bought, whether it cost $7 or $700. I find Scotiabank Savings Certificates as pleasant to give as to receive. Available, of course, only at THE BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA.

IT DOESN'T SHOW in the bathroom — that's another reason I like SANI BLUE! I hang this new automatic toilet bowl cleaner in the tank, put back the lid, and the toilet keeps hygienic and fresh-smelling for about four months. I was glad to be able to tell my husband that Sani Blue is non-corrosive and non-toxic... amazing when you see how it cleans and deodorizes and does away with rust stains. Sani Blue costs only 98¢ at supermarkets, department stores, grocery hardware and drugstores everywhere. It does an unpleasant job for you so pleasantly.

JUST POP THE CORK of Brights Canadian President Champagne and your special occasion will be off to a sparkling start! Whether it's a June wedding, an anniversary or just a celebration, Brights PRESIDENT CHAMPAGNE will guarantee its success. Light and lively President Champagne is everything you want of a "celebration" wine — and because it's Canada's own prize champagne, its price is much less than those of comparable imported wines. You won't need to worry about counting the cost of any special occasion when President Champagne is the "star guest"!

The Sherbrooke Hussars RCAC turned out in strength Thursday evening for their annual inspection, conducted by Col. John J. Dunn, senior militia advisor to the Sherbrooke district. Complimenting the reservists for their excellence and their efficiency, Col. Dunn said it was encouraging to see so many young men taking an interest in the army, and that their hobby was far more rewarding than many of the activities endorsed today by so many youths. Regimental Sergeant-Major Garth A. Bishop received his Medal denoting 22 years of service. Two CDs were also awarded to Troopers George Duperron and Austin Cook for long service. Bandmaster John Pille received his Warrant Officer promotion.

Following the inspection, the annual pre-camp parade was held, when one of the militiamen's three parades was conducted.

Compton family burned out

COMPTON — (Special) — Eight persons were left homeless Saturday morning when a fire destroyed the house of Alphonse Letourneau. Mr. and Mrs. Theberge and family had only recently moved into Mr. Letourneau's house. The Compton fire fighting crew under the direction of Paul Veilleux was called but since the fire was far advanced, they concentrated on the house and barn nearby. Waterville fire truck and fighters under the direction of Andre Cote were called in for assistance.

MNA for Brome, Glen Brown, has asked the National Assembly to lower the tolls on the Eastern Townships Autoroute. The following is an excerpt of his motion.

By GLEN BROWN (MNA BROME)

It is apparent that the tolls on the Eastern Townships Autoroute are much too high to encourage the general use on this toll road from Sherbrooke to Montreal. This elimination of the ordinary driver who cannot afford to pay exorbitant tolls lays a hardship on many shoulders. The system of high level tolls gives a privilege to a minority of people who ride in luxury on the tax dollar of the average citizen who in turn cannot qualify and has to use second class highways to reach certain destinations.

The hardships are on: the taxpayer who supports vast deficits but cannot afford to use the super highway; the administration that has to arrange difficult financing to support a losing financial cause; communities within commuting distance of Montreal where citizens could live but cannot afford the extra cost of travelling; the suburban dwellers of Chambly and kindred localities that are forced to pay 58 cents to use a road of eleven miles and a bridge, if they have tokens, but if they deal in hard cash it is 75 cents; the recreation groups who participate in skiing, golf, fish and game, swim, see summer theatre, camp, have a silver wall raised against them if they travel to the Eastern Townships but have a cash bonus if they seek their recreation in some tourist centers of the province, the sales experts in housing and real estate and the centers of recreation are limited to those customers who can afford to pay or sacrifice their budget to progress to the Eastern Townships.

The hard facts of the centennial year were that the Eastern Townships Autoroute had a deficit of $3,367,521.34. Their total take was a startling $3,363,795.28 which was $3,726.06 less than the deficit. What a record! This is a year when traffic coming to Expo was routed directly over the Eastern Townships Autoroute.

Conversely, the Laurentian Autoroute with bargain tolls and increased use harvested a total of $7,208,291.06. Of course, due to the fact that their debt and interest obligations are higher, because they have accumulated deficits, they had a deficit also of $5,480,513.72, but their profit on the annual operations, not including payments for the debt and interest, was a whopping $4,474,487 compared to a minuscule $1,741,827 for the Eastern Townships Autoroute. This particularly in our Centennial and Expo year where major members of our country cousins from the United States used the toll road exclusively.

There is however another factor to be considered in comparing the use of the two super highways. Our Eastern Townships Autoroute is 72 miles long while the Laurentian Autoroute is 44.2. Therefore there is very nearly double the mileage to entice users than the Laurentian Autoroute. There is only the one great incentive and that is a bargain to the people using the road. Today, because of these high level and high-handed financial arrangements, we are driving traffic off the highway that we should be filling every possible hour of the day. There are multiple reasons why our traffic should be routed on this traffic artery. First of all it is the finest road we have in the province of Quebec with a bed of gravel four feet in depth that cannot move, regardless of climatic conditions. The highway is safe, is well controlled, and has its own maintenance crews. There is a series of radio substations in each toll booth where information is flashed between police cars, patrol trucks, ploughing equipment and maintenance trucks. Why should we reserve this for a privileged few instead of using it for the full potential that this super highway has.

We are infinitely better off to have six cars passing through a toll gate at 10 cents a car than we are to have one car throwing in 25 cents. At the Chambly gate, what a boon we would be extending to commuters in that area by eliminating the robber that clips the cars for 50 cents for 11 miles and substituting a 10-cent toll for work-hour travel.

Not only would we be offering a quick service to Montreal at a bargain of 20 cents a day, but the traffic jams currently fouling highway Number One with all the traffic hazards that go with it could be terminated. Can we afford to sit here as members of this assembly voiding our responsibilities while, due to our inertia, people may be maimed and killed! There is also another matter to consider that is most important. First of all the government of the province of Quebec, with credit acquired from the taxpayer of the province, has signed a note to raise a loan whereby the Autoroute Authorities were able to finance the construction of the toll roads. Therefore the people of the province of Quebec have to stand good for this loan. Supposedly, in 1967, the two toll roads i.e. the Laurentian and the Eastern Townships ran a deficit in their payments of $5,480,513.72 and $3,367,521.34 respectively, making a grand total of $8,848,035.06.

Brown calls for lower ET autoroute tolls

This deficit is paid out of the consolidated revenue fund to the Autoroute Authorities who in turn charge an interest rate, but the fact of the matter is that Mr. John Q. public, with their tax burden, have taken on the added weight of a deficit which they are guaranteeing, but they cannot drive their cars on an autoroute without again decorating the board; in the case of the Eastern Townships Autoroute, a 25-cent toll for every toll station except the last toll, where they are held up for a full half hour.

There is no parallel in democracy where the taxpayer guarantees the financing of a pseudo government agency, then refinances them, and only at that time is he allowed to use a public utility if and when he pays an exaggerated premium. In 1774 they started an armed revolution for less cause in the Boston area! I cannot explain to myself how

Three fires rage in Knowlton area over weekend

KNOWLTON — (Special) — The Knowlton Fire Department were kept on the hop, skip, and jump this past weekend, with three calls to attend to within a few hours.

The first call came in from Foster on Friday afternoon, when the two storey frame house, property of Mr. Robert Wilson, of Montreal, was totally destroyed, complete with all contents.

The entire structure was ablaze on the arrival of the Knowlton Fire Department, who travelled over six miles to the scene. Cause of this fire was not immediately known, and damage is estimated in excess of $15,000.

The second call came in from Cedar Bay, Brome Lake, at 1 a.m. on Saturday morning, when the upper storey of a two storey cottage caught fire, destroying the upper floor and contents. The main structure was saved, and damage is estimated at $1,500. Cause of the fire not known.

The third call came in on Saturday afternoon when the tired firemen were again called to a barn fire on the old Arthur Lefebvre Farm on Tibbits Hill, now the property of Mr. Baril. The barn was completely demolished. The firemen concentrated their efforts on preventing the spread of the fire to adjoining property. The barn was empty at the time, fortunately being no livestock involved.

Montreal Expos continue longest slump this season Whipped by LA Dodgers 6-0, in last night's action

MONTREAL (CP) — Don Sutton scattered five hits and Andy Kosco drove in two runs with a single and homer as Los Angeles Dodgers whipped Montreal Expos 6-0 Wednesday night, stretching the Expos' losing streak to 12 games.

Staked to a 2-0 first-inning lead on triples by Willie Davis and Tom Haller around Kosco's RBI single, Sutton breezed to his sixth victory in 10 decisions. He struck out five and walked one.

The Dodgers added a run in the third against loser Jerry Robertson, 0-1, on a walk and singles by Bill Sudakis and Ted Sizemore.

Kosco lined his seventh homer of the season into the left center field bleachers off reliever Don Shaw in the fifth.

Jim Lefebre's run-producing single, after an infield hit by Wed Parker and Kosco's sacrifice, sent the Dodgers ahead 5-0 in the seventh and Sudakis' sacrifice fly delivered another run in the ninth.

In other games, New York Mets ended a five-game losing streak with a 1-0 victory over San Diego Padres in 11 innings. St. Louis Cardinals bounced Atlanta 6-2 and Chicago Cubs tripped San Francisco Giants 9-8.

No matter how hard Jimmy Wynn hits and how fast Houston Astros run, they can't seem to catch Lee May and Cincinnati Reds, who stand one homer, one base and 1½ games ahead.

May got Cincinnati moving Wednesday night with a recording two home runs. Then Johnny Bench stole second and Tony Perez home on a delayed double steal in the eighth inning for the winning run in a 7-6 victory over Pittsburgh.

Close on their heels were Wynn and the red-hot Astros. Wynn's lone homer dropped him one behind May for the National League lead. The Astros only stole second and third on a double steal in the 10th before Doug Rader followed with his second straight game-winning hit as Houston edged Philadelphia 7-6.

NHL stars won't assist Nationals

TORONTO (CP) — The dream of seeing top National Hockey League stars playing for Canada in the world hockey championship died officially here Wednesday.

Hap Emms, managing director of Canada's national team, said "I don't think that we are in a position or should be in a position to touch the protected NHL professionals—that is the 20 players they protect."

John F. (Bunny) Ahearne, European president of the ruling International Ice Hockey Federation, had agreed to seek IIHF support for this plan.

Wednesday, Charles Hay, vice-president of Hockey Canada, announced his group would seek, in effect, to have the tournament declared "open," by asking the IIHF to delete the word "amateur" from its constitution.

"If we're turned down over three—in other words, if it's not an open tournament and they won't compromise and give us 12 or 14 players—then I think we'll go with the six National Leaguers."

"And I think we would do pretty well because we have a number of fellows who are playing professional now who are waiting and wanting to play with the national team."

Emms made the statement during a news conference following a day-long meeting of Hockey Canada, the government-supported group of sportsmen and businessmen charged with icing a strong team to represent the country during the world championships in Montreal and Winnipeg next spring.

At the same time, it was announced that Canada would send a strong delegation to Europe in July in an attempt to have the world amateur hockey championship declared an open tournament.

Originally, the plan had been for Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens to loan three stars each to the national team for the tournament.

"Mr. Ahearne has already offered to attempt to get the IIHF congress to okay six professionals for the Canadian team in 1970. We are going to press for the right to use more professionals. We would like the international federation to permit us to use at least 12 pros."

Emms, enlarging on his statement that the national team would not be able to touch NHL-protected players, said: "We would be able to select any player in North America who is not on an NHL protected list."

Emms said that first of all, Hockey Canada should press the IIHF to have the tournament declared open.

Canada's delegation to the IIHF meeting in Geneva July 5-12 will be Stafford Smythe, president of Toronto Maple Leafs; Douglas Fisher of Hockey Canada; Earl Dawson, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association; Gordon Juckes, executive-director of the CAHA, and Emms.

"I hope they will be backed up by government officials. We are hoping to get a prominent member of two of the government to go with us," Hay said.

Emms said of the proposal for an open tournament: "I doubt very much if we'll get it. I think they'll compromise and give us 12 or 14 players. If they give us 14, I don't think we'll worry."

Canadiens are granted AHL franchise

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League announced Wednesday they have been granted permission to operate an American Hockey League farm club here.

The new team will play its 36 home games out of the Forum.

The franchise was approved Wednesday by a special AHL board of governors meeting in Springfield, Mass.

The AHL team becomes the first minor professional club in Montreal since the Royals folded from the now-defunct Eastern Professional League eight years ago.

The farm club will be Montreal's No. 1 minor affiliate, replacing Houston Apollos of the Central League.

For the last several years, the Canadiens have also been affiliated with Cleveland Barons of the AHL, sending excess players there. It was uncertain how the new franchise will affect the agreement with Cleveland, but a news conference was scheduled today.

The Montreal entry has brought a realignment of teams in the American League, with Baltimore and Hershey shifting from the Eastern to the Western Division.

The new setup will see Montreal, Quebec Aces, Springfield Kings, and Providence Reds in the Eastern AHL division with Buffalo Bisons, Rochester Americans, Hershey Bears, Baltimore Clippers and Cleveland Barons in the Western Division.

Controversy is raging concerning Indy rules

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — With the start of the Indianapolis 500 only 24 hours away, controversy raged at the Speedway today over a rules interpretation that affects at least two of the contending cars.

Mario Andretti, who qualified his Brawner Hawk-Ford in the No. 2 spot in the 33-car lineup for Friday's noon start, threatened to pull out of the race unless a decision affecting him is rescinded.

Andretti was ordered Wednesday by chief steward Harlan Fongler to remove a special radiator that was installed on the car after it qualified last weekend.

Fongler also ordered a new oil cooler removed from the Wynn's Mongoose-Offenhauser to be driven by veteran Lloyd Ruby.

Fengler said the installations on the Andretti and Ruby cars violated a U.S. Auto Club rule that prohibits any change in the configuration of a car after it has qualified.

A spokesman for the STP Corp., which sponsors Andretti's car, said that Fengler had told Andretti Tuesday addition of the radiator would be permissible.

The STP spokesman said Fengler changed his mind—after the crew had worked most of Tuesday night installing the device.

Andretti and the other drivers were to meet with Fengler today in the annual pre-race session at which rules for the race are laid down.

Most observers predicted that cooler heads would prevail and that Andretti would be in the race.
