LOSS OF THE "WILD HUNTER."

Burned Near Halifax Harbor—The Captain's Story—The Crew Saved.

HALIFAX, N.S., June 26.—The fishing schooner "Colorado," of Gloucester, Mass., Capt. Stevens, arrived here this morning with the crew of the barque "Wild Hunter," Capt. W. J. Treat, from Boston, bound to Revel, Russia, with a cargo of cotton, which was abandoned ninety miles off the harbor on Saturday afternoon in a burning condition. Capt. Treat on being questioned concerning the destruction of his ship, gave the following account of the disaster :—"The 'Wild Hunter' sailed from Boston on the morning of the 18th inst., with 3,300 bales of cotton consigned to order, in Revel, and at noon, having a head wind, anchored in Lighthouse Channel. On the morning of the 19th she got under way in clear weather, with a south-west wind ; nothing unusual happened until last Thursday night, at ten o'clock, when the first mate discovered that smoke was issuing from the hold through the main hatch and every moment increasing in volume. All hands were at once set to work and holes were cut through the deck, and water, in as great a quantity as possible, sent into the hold with the force pump to quench the fire. At six o'clock next morning the smoke had ceased to issue from the holds, and it was thought by the Captain that he had succeeded in extinguishing the fire, but at intervals during the day, fearing that a few sparks might still remain in the cotton and cause a fresh outbreak, water was forced in between decks, and a sharp watch kept by the men the whole time. On Saturday morning at 4 o'clock smoke was discovered in a new quarter, coming from under the starboard mizzen-channel. A hole was cut through and water was poured into the farthest point that could be reached. This had apparently done its work, as the smoke went nearly down and everything looked favorable to the fire being kept under control until the ship could reach Halifax, for which place she was now headed. At 10 o'clock the schooner 'Colorado' hove in sight, and, being signalled by the 'Wild Hunter,' bore down, and was requested by Capt. Treat to keep alongside. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon a boat's crew from the 'Colorado' boarded the barque, and four of the schooner's men remained to assist the crew of the burning ship in their efforts to keep down the flames. Shortly afterwards, however, fire broke out in another place through the cabin floor, and gained a headway so quickly that it soon became beyond the power of the men to extinguish it, and at four o'clock, seeing it was useless to work longer in their endeavor to save the barque, the crew abandoned her and were taken on board the 'Colorado.' The fire, before they left, had broken out in several places in the after part of the ship, and, when the 'Colorado' left the vicinity, at eight o'clock, having laid to until that hour, the whole vessel was a mass of flames, illuminating the ocean all round making a magnificent sight. The 'Wild Hunter' was abandoned ninety miles south-east-by-east from Sambro Light, during foggy weather, which had set in at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon, an hour before the crew left her, and still prevailed when the 'Colorado' sailed away." Captain Treat saved all his papers and nautical instruments, and the men, fifteen in number, and all their personal effects. The "Wild Hunter" was a ship of 1,000 tons register, built at East Dennis, Mass., in 1853, and was owned by Messrs. Geo. C. Lord & Co., of Boston. Captain Treat will leave for Boston by the steamer next Saturday, and the men will probably be forwarded to the same city or to New York by the United States Consul-General.

Dear Sir,—I can testify to the good effects of your medicine. For several years I was afflicted with a severe cough and weakness, and was perfectly prostrated; but after taking three bottles of your Vegetine, made from the Powder, I was entirely relieved.

Very respectfully,

TUESDAY JUNE 27, 1882.

The school tax in the city of Montreal is less per head of the population than it is in any other city of the North American Continent, Kingston alone excepted. If Montreal is to be the leading city of this portion of the Continent it must not allow itself to be outstripped in the educational advantages offered to its youth.

HON. DAVID MILLS' return for Bothwell is matter for congratulation, in view of the already large Government majority in the Dominion House. Mr. Mills has had a narrow squeak for it, however, and ought to take the lesson to heart and consider whether his free trade doctrines are too ultra or not.

THE Road Committee should see that St. Bonaventure street is properly watered. It is probably the greatest thoroughfare in the city, and instead of visitors to our city being enveloped in clouds of dust, the roadway should be sprinkled every hour or so during the day. This morning at 9 o'clock it was hardly possible to see for dust.

YESTERDAY morning the opinion was expressed that the Turks were abetting Arabi Pasha in his revolt in Egypt. Later in the day a despatch brought the significant information that Arabi threatens, in case the Porte does not sustain him, to prove that every step he has taken since the beginning of the insurrection has been at Turkish instigation.

AN exchange of Tory proclivities remarks that "The foolish people who voted against the National Policy will share in its benefits to as great an extent as its more ardent supporters. It is thus we heap coals of fire on our enemies' heads." It naturally occurs to one that the Tory papers heaped a good deal of other material also upon the heads of their enemies. In fact, it would be natural to infer from the results, that they used more coal dust than coals of fire. However, it is very kind of them now to allow their opponents to share in the benefits of the N.P.

LOTTERIES have never proved beneficial to the health of a community, and the French Government is not displaying its usual common sense in endorsing their origination throughout that country. Lotteries are among the concerns in which a Government can help those who have the sense but not the will to help themselves. Many good people recognize the moral smallness of attempting to make money by a lottery ticket, but yet they will buy it when they get the chance. It answers all useful purposes, therefore, not to give them the chance. The best shares in lotteries in this life are those secured by honest, hard work. For those who invest in this kind of lottery, there will be many prizes and few blanks.

INTERESTING reminiscences are called up by the presence in the city of the Rev. Mr. Brown, minister of the Bunyan Congregational Church, Bedford, England. A contemporary is somewhat out in announcing that "the church of which Mr. Brown is pastor was founded in 1611, during the Commonwealth," inasmuch as the Commonwealth did exist until over thirty years after the date mentioned; but Mr. Brown's church is nevertheless of sufficiently ancient standing, and of sufficient interest to us, with whom John Bunyan's name is a household word. Mr. Brown is only the sixth minister since Bunyan's time. In this, as well as by the name of his congregation, his presence invites curious comparison between the old order of things across the ocean, and the new things and increasing restlessness of life on this side.

ANOTHER twenty-fourth of June has passed, celebrated generally as usual in Canada and the New England States by all of French Canadian birth and language. The tenacity with which ties of race hold among our French speaking people augurs well for the future of Canada when the French Canadian element comes to permeate the population of the Dominion and to transfuse into alien veins the love of country which the French Canadian possesses. The industries of New England draw off our surplus population at present, the modern French Canadian apparently preferring town to farm, but Quebec has all the essentials for a manufacturing Province, and as the policy to which the country has committed itself takes fuller effect, those who now produce much of the manufacture of Massachusetts will prove to have the will to stay at home.

THE shortening of the distance between London and Montreal by two days, according to the scheme of the company whose representative is now in Ottawa interviewing Sir Charles Tupper, will involve six transhipments or changes of service. At Holyhead, Wales, the traveller will leave rail for water; return to rail to cross Ireland; take steamer from Ireland to Newfoundland; cross Newfoundland by rail; steamer again to Cape Breton, and finally take rail again into the heart of the continent. These transhipments will go far towards rendering the shortness of the route unpopular among people of leisure, so that although it will be utilized by business men, the easy-going portion of the population on either side of the ocean will probably continue to give preference to the magnificently appointed lines of steamships, which at present monopolize the passenger traffic between Europe and America.

High Schools.

Among the questions that continue to press for solution as the school system of Montreal is presented to the review of parents and taxpayers, not the least important is this, which has already been touched on—what is the relation of intermediate education to the education of the people at large? We may again state the question for all immediately practical purposes thus:—Has the public at large any duty in relation to the education of the children of those who are raised above the position of dependents on public bounty? But the question really is embraced in the following:—Is state provision for education to be general, or is it to be an eleemosynary institution, doling out to paupers so much education as shall save society from an uprising of the lower classes?

Thus stated the universal voice declares in all civilized countries that state education cannot be a mere charitable provision for the poor. The experience of England is decisive on this point. That great and irrepressible movement in the direction of popular participation in Government, which has marked the last half century, has demonstrated the need of universal popular education. The Imperial Government, which fifty years ago granted only £20,000 sterling in aid of education, awoke to the need of the hour, and groping somewhat blindly onward has improved step by step its system, and has so increased its expenditure that in 1881 the vote of the Imperial Parliament in aid of education amounted to upwards of $19,000,000. Most pertinent to the question before us is the result of Mr. Lowe's attempt to restrict all state aid to the teaching of the three Rs. In the words of high educational authority, "This plan was followed by evil consequences. The higher branches were neglected, the profession of teaching was lowered, and the instruction became mechanical and passed into mere cram for the purpose of the passes." So mischievous indeed was the attempt to restrict the scope of national education, that the result assumed the proportions of national calamity, and the successive Acts of 1870, 1873 and 1876 hastened to widen the field of popular instruction by making it reach higher grades in society, and recognize advanced subjects of study.

In many cities and states of the American Union secondary as well as primary education is free, and the proud boast of the people has been, that irrespective of pecuniary circumstances and social position, all avenues to the highest attainable culture are open to the children of every citizen.

The Protestant Board of School Commissioners of this city has held a middle course between the extreme views of those who, on the one hand, say that nothing but reading, writing and arithmetic, should be taught at the public charge, and those who, on the other hand, say, "throw all education, even the highest, wide open to the thronging footsteps of the whole people." In 1876 the Board thus announced the principle to which it has steadfastly adhered. "Every Protestant child in the City of Montreal has an equitable and legal claim to an expenditure on his education of an equal share of the amount provided by taxation for the maintenance of schools." Accordingly its common schools have been provided from which none are by poverty excluded. Again, it has provided High Schools, where parents who desire a costlier and a higher education may if they please send their children, paying, not the whole cost, but the higher cost of such an education themselves. An analysis of the last published returns of the Board shows that the whole cost of educating a child in the common schools was $14.56 of which amount the parents paid $3.14 and the community at large $11.42. In the High Schools the average cost, account being taken of 45 common school children educated free, was $50; of this amount the parents of the pupils bore all but $10.86, which was the amount per pupil contributed to the education of High School children from the public chest.

In judging this question another point must be considered. Every community annually produces its quota of children of superior character and talent. Some of them in the homes of the rich, some in the cottages of the poor, appear endowed with those gifts of nature which constitute them the natural leaders of men. If the constitution of society be such that any of these are separated by class distinctions and the grinding exactions of poverty from all hope of satisfying their laudable ambition and fulfilling their appropriate career, they become centres of discontent and disintegration in the community. But if in schools they may mingle in the manly rivalry of learning with those whose adventitious position is superior if they find open to them all opportunities of culture, if by a liberal education their manners be softened and their minds ennobled, they will consecrate their extraordinary talents and influence to establishing those institutions on which the general well-being of a people depends.

The cost of the High School to the community is somewhat enhanced by the free education they give to deserving pupils from the common schools. But in the interest of the city we cannot but congratulate the taxpayers that the few hundreds of dollars this costs is invested so securely and so profitably for their own interest as citizens.

The Uses of an Opposition.

Now that it is clear that the Liberal Conservative party, as it calls itself, is to control the Government of the country for another term, the question arises what will be the policy and the course of the Opposition. If the claims which the two political parties make for themselves were sincere, it would make very little difference to either whether it was in or out of power; the defeated party would simply regret that the country had not been sufficiently well-advised to accept its services; while the successful party would rejoice, not in the possession of offices and emoluments, but in the opportunity it had obtained of conducting the public business satisfactorily and earning a claim to the country's gratitude. We know, of course, only too well that no such ideal disinterestedness prevails on either side, and that it is vain to look for it; though if one could believe the professions of the two parties no amount of lofty self-abnegation would be too much to credit them with. However, as the Opposition have to content themselves with being an Opposition for some time to come, it is a practical question of no small importance how they may best bear themselves in the station to which it has pleased Providence to call them. Now, how stands the matter? The country, by a large majority, has declared itself in favor of the present Government, and above all of the National Policy. That is a fact which there is no gainsaying, and which the Opposition should make a point of understanding and realizing in all its length and breadth and thickness. We do not ask the Opposition to convert themselves to the National Policy, or to inflict any injurious strain upon their intellects or consciences. We only ask them to settle in their minds that a decisive majority of the people of Canada believe in the N. P. and desire its continuance. That point settled, there will, we trust, be no more silly talk, such as the Globe was indulging in up to the very day of the election, about the N. P. having been imposed upon the country by fraud. That point settled, there should be no more appealing to the people to take "vengeance" on the authors of the N.P., seeing that the true authors of the N.P., as two successive elections have now shown, are the people themselves. The last election may also be taken as proof that the people in general are satisfied with the Railway policy of the Government. They may not approve it in all respects; but, having had ample time to think over it, they approve it in its general outlines. The people have confidence, too, it is perfectly clear, in the general management of public affairs by the present administration; they think that the men in power are the men who ought to be in power, and that the men out of power are the men who ought to stay out of power—for the present. Well, now, if the Opposition will take all this to heart like sensible men, there is no reason why, even with their present scanty numbers, they should not exercise a very important and useful influence in public affairs, and gratify a reasonable and disinterested political ambition. An Opposition weakens itself materially by simply pitting itself against the Government of the day, and passionately pronouncing everything wrong which the Government pronounces right. The object then is too manifestly to discredit opponents whose places they would fain seize; and the country takes a heavy discount off the denunciations indulged in by the Opposition orators. The Opposition members should look upon themselves primarily as sent to Parliament to represent certain views and interests not represented by the dominant party, and not to waste their strength in factious warfare against that party. They may have confidence that these views and interests will yet assert themselves more powerfully, and that the balance of power in the State will yet shift over to their side. Well and good; but let them not try and discount the future by violent assertions, which they are wholly unable to prove, as to the real state of feeling in the country, as opposed to the state of feeling indicated in the only way known to the constitution, i. e., by the ballot-box. Let them manfully uphold their own principles, without betraying too eager an appetite for the reward of office, which the country as yet withholds. After all they are not responsible for the determinations of the country, so why not discharge the duties intrusted to them as representatives of the people, and rest content for the present with that?

The fact is that, rightly understood, the function of an Opposition under our present system is a very honorable and dignified one. Their opinions in the first place are entitled to respect, as being those of at least a portion of the community. They are as fully representative of the people as if they belonged to the dominant party. It is theirs to watch the course of affairs in the interest not only of those who may have elected them, but of the whole people, to whom they may thus render invaluable service. Then, while others have the gratifications which come from the holding and dispensing of offices, the Opposition are serving the country without any reward, other than the honor which comes of the people's confidence. For the exertion of a moral influence this is a position of great advantage, provided only there is not too visible a greed for office, too conspicuous a rancor against opponents on the simple ground of their success. What every opposition needs chiefly to learn is self-restraint and, to a certain degree, self-denial. The country will quickly take note of the men who are serving it in an unselfish spirit, and their day will come. We should strongly advise our friends of the Opposition to pass the sponge over a great many old scores, and especially to give up scandal-mongering as a means of attack upon the Government. Even supposing that certain accusations heretofore made are true, it would be well to drop them, if, as would seem to be the case, the country at large takes no interest in them. Let the issue lie between opposite principles and policies. It is for these the country cares; for it is on these that the public welfare depends. An opposition faithful to its duties and caring more for these than for office is really a second Government and an unpaid one. A high minded politician, superior to all mercenary views, might well find a seat on the Opposition benches as dignified and as satisfactory a position in every respect as one upon the Government side of the House, even though it were immediately upon the Speaker's right.

GLEANINGS.

"Castle Garden," for years famous as the landing place in New York for immigrants, is a huge shed on the Battery. More people probably have been in it than in any other structure in the world.

The old Puritan spirit dies out slowly. Mrs. Thoreau, mother of the well-known New England essayist, and not long dead, called in her 70th year upon her friend, Miss Emerson, who was then 84 years old. Mrs. Thoreau wore gaudy bonnet ribbons. All through the conversation Miss Emerson kept her eyes closed. When her guests were leaving, she said:—"Perhaps you noticed, Mrs. Thoreau, that I closed my eyes during your call. I did so because I did not wish to look on the ribbons you are wearing, so unsuitable for a child of God and a person of your years."

Herbert Spencer will sail for this country on the 15th August by the "Servia," and upon his first arrival will be the guest of Dr. Youmans of New York. Among his fellow-passengers, who are also London friends of his, will be Louis Sterne, brother of Simon Sterne, of New York, and Dr. Morrell Mackenzie, the leading English practitioner in throat diseases. Mr. Spencer will remain about three months in the country and will avoid public appearances and lionizing as much as possible, but he is expected to be present at the meeting of the American association for the advancement of science at Montreal.

In the House of Representatives at Washington, on June the 12th, Mr. Parker, of New York, introduced a joint resolution authorizing the construction of a bridge across the St. Lawrence River, near Waddington, by the New York and Canada Bridge Company, which, for this purpose, is permitted to unite with the Ottawa, Waddington and New York Railway and Bridge Company. The resolution directs that the location and construction of the bridge be under the supervision of the Secretary of War, to whom all plans and specifications must be submitted for approval.

Under the heading "The Protective Regime in Canada," Textile Manufacturer, an English journal, says:—"The English people are mistaken in supposing that Canada has adopted protection because she doubts the soundness of the principles of Free Trade. Her course has been due to the exercise of a little common sense. The Canadians found themselves next door to a country of great natural wealth that puts a premium on industry, and they were at a disadvantage. Protection was a necessity, and the people of the Dominion have found its benefits in a rapid increase of manufactures, and greater contentment and prosperity throughout the country. The population is no longer emigrating, and there are inducements enough to keep it at home, and to render it loyal."

ANOTHER FIRE.

The Old Barracks on Fire This Morning.

Fire was discovered shortly after one o'clock this morning in the stone buildings known as the Old Barracks, corner of Barrack and Commissioners streets, in this city. A large quantity of hay, owned by Messrs. Robillard and Lamarche, was stored in the centre building, and the flames are supposed to have originated in that. Immense volumes of smoke issued from the burning hay, and conveyed an idea that the fire was much more serious than was really the case. The entire brigade were called out, and after about two hours' hard work succeeded in extinguishing the flames. The loss is placed by some in the neighborhood of $20,000, and is fully covered by insurance.

Summer Resort Notes.

An enthusiastic visitor at Bass Rocks, Cape Ann, Mass., writes:—"Surely, one could ask no better fate than to be lounging here at the Bass Rock House to-day. The sun has moved southward now, and the sails of the fishing fleet, scattering seaward, gleam white against the blue. To the left, beyond the cottages, the breakers are curling up over the smoothest, cleanest little beach you will anywhere see, where a few early bathers are already playing in the surf. The beach is inclosed on the north by low hills that terminate in a rocky island, and on the south by the highest group of the Bass Rocks, and it slopes inland to a lovely green meadow, through which runs a little creek that skirts the beach, and empties into the sea close by the rocks. The Bass Rocks are great masses of red granite piled up in infinite confusion for a space of half a mile upon the shore; and against these, during the last few days, the waves have beaten furiously, dashing their foam and spray high above the rocks, and thundering and swirling among them. A drive runs by the shore and some cottages near, but the hotel is high above the second range of rocks, upon the spine of the promontory, where every breeze blows cool."

Fatal Accident at Lachine.

A telegram from Lachine says:—The tug "Mink," with twelve barges of lumber and cordwood in tow, was caught in a storm of wind while rounding number one light ship at the entrance to the Lachine Canal, and drifted outside the Government pier. A young man, about seventeen years of age, named Briere, while in the act of casting a line so as to make fast to the pier, lost his balance and fell between the barge and the pier and was drowned. His body has not yet been recovered.

THE SITUATION AT ALEXANDRIA.—ALEXANDRIA, June 27.—Sir Auckland Colvin has protested to Arabi Bey against his sending large numbers of Arabs of the lowest class every night into the Place des Consuls in order that he might receive an ovation. Sir A. Colvin said that possibly a row would ensue some night, in which case the responsibility would be Arabi's. Sir Edward Malet's health is no better. He will probably have to go away for a short sea cruise. Mr. Cookson had an attack of fever on Saturday and has gone aboard a vessel in the harbor. Rogers Bey, an Englishman, being asked to give evidence against the rioters of the 11th, refused, saying that it was impossible to recognize the criminals. There is some apprehension here of renewed troubles when the result of the conference shall be made known. The English are making preparations.

LAND LEAGUERS FALL OUT.—NEW YORK, June 27.—The Herald's special says: With reference to the despatch from us alleging that Davitt called O'Connor Power a traitor to the Irish cause, Mr. Power says: Davitt having ignominiously failed in his attempt to overturn Parnell and the original programme of the Land League, wants to distract public attention by attacking me. Davitt evidently thinks the cause of Ireland is whatever for the time being suits his capricious policy. I could say a good deal about this individual who wants to pose as the apostle of humanity, but who in reality is the propagator of falsehood and the agent of disunion; but the feeling his conduct chiefly inspired is profound contempt, and the meanness of his attacks upon me are only equalled by their black ingratitude. I defy Davitt to point out a single word or act of mine capable of supporting his accusations.

A NEW MEXICAN TRAGEDY.—RATON, N.M., June 27.—Yesterday, Deputy Sheriff Dolmann attempted to arrest a gambler, Gus Mentzel. Mentzel fired two shots at Dolmann, slightly wounding him, also Chas. Latimer and Deputy Sheriff Bergan, the latter dying. The enraged citizens hanged Mentzel. The citizens are greatly excited, and it is thought a raid will be made upon the gamblers.

ON SPELLING.

BY F. MAX MULLER, PROFESSOR OF PHILOLOGY IN THE UNIVERSITY, OXFORD.

PART VI.

What took place thousands of years ago, we can see taking place, if we like, at the present moment. A missionary from the Island of Mangaia, the Rev. W. Gill, first introduced the art of writing among his converts. He learned their language, at least one dialect of it, he translated part of the Bible into it, and adopted, of necessity, a phonetic spelling. That dialect is generally becoming the recognized literary language of the whole island, and his spelling is taught at school. Other dialects, however, continue to be spoken, and they may in time influence the literary dialect. For the present, however, the missionary dialect, as it is called by the natives themselves, and the missionary spelling, rule supreme, and it will be some time before a spelling reform is wanted out there.

Among the more ancient nations of Europe, not only does the pronunciation of a language maintain its inherent dialetic variety, and fluctuate through the prevalence of provincial speakers, but the whole body of a language changes, while yet the spelling, once adopted in public documents, and taught to children, remains for a long time the same. In early times, when literature was in its infancy, when copies of books could easily be counted, and when the scribendi was in the hands of a few persons, the difficulty of adapting the writing to the ever-varying pronunciation of a language was comparatively small. We see it when we compare the Latin of early Roman inscriptions with the Latin of Cicero. We know from Cicero himself that when he settled among the patricians of Rome, he had on some small points to change both his pronunciation and his spelling of Latin. The reform of spelling was a favorite subject with Roman scholars, and even Emperors were not too proud to dabble in inventing new letters and diacritical signs. The difficulty, however, never assumed serious proportions. The small minority of people who were able to read and write, pleased themselves as best they could; and, by timely concessions prevented a complete estrangement between the written and the spoken language.

A CRUEL ASSAULT.

Brutal Attack Upon a Mother-in-Law—The Assailant Arrested—Critical Condition of his Victim.

Another of those brutal assaults, which happily for the credit of Montreal, are not of frequent occurrence, was perpetrated last evening in Griffintown. A little before seven o'clock, one Kelly, rushed to the corner of Murray and Ottawa streets, where Sergeant Dineen, of Young street station, was standing, and informed him that a man had just murdered his mother-in-law. Calling Sub-Constable Wallace, a start was at once made for the scene of the supposed tragedy, on Murray street, where Maria Harrington, was found lying in a large pool of blood, and apparently dying. The unfortunate woman had been kicked and beaten about the head and neck in a terrible manner, and was quite unable to speak. Having sent for medical assistance, the police hastened in pursuit of the culprit, who was attempting to escape. After a hard chase he was caught on Common street, in his shirt-sleeves and without a hat. His name is Michael Kearns; he is 35 years of age, and has a wife and family. The police described him as habitually drunk and idle. When asked to explain the affair, he stated that a quarrel had arisen about a small sum of money. Prisoner's wife, who was present during the attack, says that Kearns, in spite of her interference, repeatedly struck his victim. The woman was conveyed to Notre Dame Hospital, where her condition was considered very serious, and the last rites of the Church have been administered to her.

THE CLARE ESTATE.

One of the heirs of the Clare estate, concerning which something was published some months ago, has, it seems, been found in this city. The estate, which is situate in the county of Carlow, Ireland, is worth £80,000, and there are five heirs who, if found, share it equally. The lucky heir in Montreal is a cook in a private family, aged some fifty years, widowed, with five children. The search for her here was prosecuted by a private detective, and when the above woman was discovered she wrote an account of her family to Mr. Kavanagh, M.P. for Carlow, who took an interest in the matter. Mr. Kavanagh has just written back that she is one of the heirs. The property was last held by her uncle, who died in Jamaica.

River and Shipping.

SS. "State of Nebraska" has arrived at Larne.

The SS. "Tancarville," of the Societe Postale Francaise d'Atlantique, arrived in port last evening from Brazil, being the first steamer from the Platte River direct to arrive here. Her cargo consisted of 256 bags of caffee, 12,240 bags of sugar, 203 bundles of hides and 20 bags of castor oil seed.

Beans Galore.

One of the amusing incidents of the St. Jean Baptiste celebration was the counting of the black and white beans in Brazeau's window, St. Lawrence street. A large crowd had gathered there. Five prizes were awarded to those who came nearest guessing the number of beans in a certain glass vessel in the window. The whole was found to be 19,866. First prize, A Wray, 19,891; 2nd prize, Ferdinand Bourgouin, 19,830; 3rd prize, John McKarem, 19,700; The judges were Messrs. L S Goughier, John Walker and Renaud, of the Minerve office. The counting occupied one hour and ten minutes.

A Mother's Appeal.

Michael Latimer, aged 17, was up before the Recorder this morning charged with lying drunk in the street. The youth's mother was on hand, and as usual made out that Michael was a child of spotless purity. He never drank, oh, no! but yesterday he had taken some medicine, and after that, by the merest chance, took a glass or two of beer. The malt beverage failing to assimilate with the narcotics previously taken, caused him to wander out of the house, and fall asleep on the sidewalk. Here His Honor cut short her panegyric with—"$5 or fifteen days."

Too Much Procession.

A good looking and stylishly dressed young lady, named Josephine Charron, aged 16, took up a position in the dock this morning to await the Recorder's decision as to the exact fine she should pay for the luxury of having been extremely inebriated on Craig street, yesterday afternoon. His Honor thought that $20 or three months would reconcile an outraged public.

DETERMINED SUICIDE.—BELLEVILLE, June 27.—Stephen Matthews, aged 40, son of Wm. Matthews, florist, and a resident of this city, committed suicide at Ferry Point yesterday, by taking Paris green. Deceased was a cripple, having had one of his legs cut off on the Grand Trunk about twenty years ago. He had of late become a habitual drunkard, and having been on a prolonged spree, on Sunday told his mother she would see no more of him. Yesterday morning he crossed the Bay on the ferry steamer to Ferry Point, and after vainly trying to get liquor, either fell into or threw himself into the water, from which he was rescued at about 1 p.m. He was placed in a small shed on the Point where it was found after his death that he had taken a large dose of Paris green, the greater part of which he had vomited, but sufficient remained in his stomach to kill him. After taking the poison he made his way to a tavern a few yards away, and was refused liquor again. The symptoms shown by Matthews so alarmed the woman in charge that she called assistance, but it was too late, the unfortunate man expiring between five and six o'clock.

THE GUITEAU CASE.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The opinion of the Attorney-General in reference to the case of Guitean, submitted to the Cabinet, is comparatively brief, but is spoken of by a Cabinet officer as a very strong and pointed review of the trial. It is stated the opinion points out very forcibly that the issue of insanity was, in fact, the only matter that occupied much time of the Court. The murder was practically admitted, and there was no room for doubt as to all the facts connected with its commission. The fullest discussion was given to every feature of inquiry upon the subject of insanity, and the largest latitude allowed the prisoner, and Counsel's opinion holds that the petitioners failed to furnish the least reason to justify the President in interfering in the most unusual and extraordinary manner proposed. The views of the few who petitioned for a respite ought not to prevail against the preponderance of opinion on the part of the medical profession that Guiteau was legally responsible. It is said the Cabinet fully and unanimously approved of the opinion. The President was the first to express his views. He gave the most emphatic assent to the positions taken by Mr. Brewster.

THE GREAT STRIKE IN NEW YORK

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE STAR.]

NEW YORK, June 27.—The freight handlers strike continues, and the railroad companies are at their wits' end to know what to do with the immense amount of freight that blockades all avenues leading to the different depots. The strikers remain firm, and reiterate the statement that they will not return to work till the companies accede to their demands. Meanwhile some of the companies are looking around for the best means of protecting themselves from prospective damages, through losses on freight. A notice from the general freight agent of the Erie Railroad was posted at Produce Exchange to-day, stating that shippers must provide their own means of loading or unloading cars, or in other words handle their own freight.

Sir Alex. T. Galt will be present at the Conservative picnic at Bell's Corners, in Carleton county, on the 29th. The opinion gains ground that he will be nominated for the county when Sir John resigns, as he will, to sit for Lennox.

The Unbroken Vow;

"I was even about to do so," continued Ethelston, "but Nina, such a heart I have not to give. For many months and years, before I ever saw or knew you, I have loved, and still am betrothed to another."

A cold shudder seemed to pass through Nina's frame while these few words were spoken, as if in a moment the health, the hope the blossom of her youth were blighted. Not a tear, not even a sob gave relief to her agony; her bloodless lip trembled in a vain attempt to speak she knew not what, and a burning chill sat upon her heart. These words may appear to some strange and contradictory; happy, thrice happy ye to whom they so appear! If you have never known what it is to feel at once a scorching heat parching the tongue and drying up all the well-springs of life within, while a leaden weight of ice seems to benumb the heart, then have you never known the sharpest, extreme pangs of disappointed love.

Ethelston was prepared for some sudden and violent expression on the part of Nina, but this death-like, motionless silence almost overpowered him. He attempted, by the gentlest and the kindest words, to arouse her from this stupor of grief. He took her hand; its touch was cold. Again and again he called her name; but her ear was insensible even to his voice. At length, unable to bear the sight of her distress, and fearful that he might no longer restrain his tongue from uttering words which would be treason to his first and faithful love, he rushed into the house, and hastily informing Nina's governess that her pupil had been suddenly taken ill in the orange-grove, he locked himself into his room, and gave vent to contending emotions by which he was oppressed.

It was in vain that he strove to calm himself by the reflection that he had intentionally transgressed none of the demands of truth and honor; it was in vain that he called up all the long-cherished recollections of his Lucy and his home; still the image of Nina would not be banished; now presenting itself as he had seen her yesterday, in the full glow of passion, and in the full bloom of youthful beauty—and now, as he had just left her, in the deadly paleness and fixed apathy of despair. The terrible thought that, whether guiltily or innocently, he had been the cause of all this suffering in one to whom he owed protection and gratitude, wrung his heart with pain that he could not repress; and he found relief only in falling on his knees, and praying to the Almighty that the sin might not be laid to his charge, and that Nina's sorrow might be soothed and comforted by Him who is the God of consolation.

Meanwhile the governess had, with the assistance of two of the negro attendants, brought Nina into the house. The poor girl continued in the same state of insensibility to all that was passing around; her eyes were open, but she seemed to recognize no one, and a few vague indistinct words still trembled on her lips.

The doctor was instantly summoned, who pronounced, as soon as he had seen his patient, that she was in a dangerous fit, using sundry mysterious expression about "febrile symptoms," and "pressure on the brain," to which the worthy leech added shakings of the head yet more mysterious.

For many days her condition continued alarming; the threatened fever came, and with it a protracted state of delirium. During this period Ethelston's anxiety and agitation were extreme; and proportionate was the relief that he experienced, when he learned that the crisis was past, and that the youthful strength of her constitution promised speedy recovery.

Meanwhile he had to endure the oft-repeated inquiries of the governess, "How he happened to find Mademoiselle just as the fit came on?" and of Madame L'Estrange, "How it was possible for Nina to be attacked by so sudden an illness, while walking in the orange-grove?"

When she was at length pronounced out of danger, Ethelston again began to consider various projects for his meditated escape from the island. He had more than once held communication with his faithful Cupid on the subject, who was ready to brave all risks in the service of his master; but the distance which must be traversed, before they could expect to find a friendly ship or coast, seemed to exclude all reasonable hope of success.

It would be impossible to follow and portray the thousand changes that came over Nina's spirit during her recovery. She remembered but too well the words that Ethelston had last spoken; at one moment she called him perfidious, ungrateful, heartless; then she chid herself for railing at him, and loaded his name with every blessing, and the expression of the fondest affection; now she resolved that she would never see or speak to him more; then she thought that she must see him, if it were only to show how she had conquered her weakness. Amidst all these contending resolutions, she worked herself into the belief that Ethelston had deceived her, and that, because he thought her a child, and did not love her, he had invented the tale of his previous engagement to lessen her mortification. This soon became her settled conviction; and when it crossed her mind, she would start with passion and exclaim, "He shall yet love me, and me alone!"

The only confidant of her love was a young negress who waited upon her, and who was indeed so devoted to her that she would have braved the Commodore's utmost wrath, or periled her life to execute her mistress's commands.

It happened one evening that this girl whose name was Fanchette, went out to gather some fruit in the orange-grove; and while thus employed she heard the voice of some one speaking. On drawing nearer to the spot whence the sound proceeded, she saw Ethelston sitting under the deep shade of a tree, with what appeared a book before him.

Knowing that Nina was still confined to her room, he had resorted hither to consider his schemes without interruption, and was so busily employed in comparing distances, and calculating possibilities, on the map before him, that Fanchette easily crept to a place whence she could, unperceived, overhear and observe him. "I must and will attempt it," he muttered to himself, "we must steal a boat. Cupid and I can manage it between us; my duty and my love both forbid my staying longer here; with a fishing-boat we might reach Antigua or Dominica, or at all events chance to fall in with an American or a neutral vessel. Poor dear Nina," he added, in a lower tone, "Would to God I had never visited this shore! this," he continued drawing a locket from his breast, "this treasured remembrance of one far distant has made me proof against thy charms, cold to thy love, but not, as Heaven is my witness, unmoved or insensible to thy sufferings." So saying he relapsed into silent musing, and as he replaced the locket, Fanchette crept noiselessly from her concealment, and ran to communicate to her young mistress her version of what she had seen. Being very imperfectly skilled in English, she put her own construction upon those few words which she had caught, and thought to serve Nina best by telling her what she would most like to hear. Thus she described to her how Ethelston had spoken to himself over a map; how he had mentioned islands to which he would sail; how he had named her name with tenderness, and had taken something from his vest to press it to his lips.

Poor Nina listened in a tumult of joy; her passionate heart would admit no doubting suggestion of her reason. She was too happy to bear even the presence of Fanchette, and rewarding her for her good news by the present of a beautiful shawl which she wore at the moment, pushed the delighted little negress out of the room, and threw herself on a couch where she repeated a hundred times that he had been to her orange-grove, where they had last parted, had named her name with tenderness, had pressed some token to his lips—what could that be? It might be a flower, a book, anything—it mattered not—so long as she only knew he loved her! Having long wept with impassioned joy, she determined to show herself worthy of his love, and the schemes which she formed and resolved to carry into effect, evinced the wild force and energy of her romantic character. Among her father's slaves was one who, being a steady and skilful seaman, had the charge of a schooner (originally an American prize) which lay in the harbor, and which the Commodore sometimes used as a pleasure-yacht, or for short trips to other parts of the islands; this man (whose name was Jacques) was not only a great favorite with the young lady, but was also smitten with the black eyes and plump charms of M'amselle Fanchette, who thus exercised over him a sway little short of absolute. Nina having held a conference with her abigail, sent for Jacques, who was also admitted to a confidential consultation, the result of which, after occurrences will explain to the reader. When this was over, she acquired rather than assumed a sudden composure and cheerfulness; the delights of a plot seemed at once to restore her to health; and on the following day she sent to request that Ethelston would come to see her in her boudoir, where she received him with a calmness and self-possession for which he was altogether unprepared. "Mr. Ethelston," said she, as soon as he was seated, "I believe you still desire to escape from your prison, and that you are devising various plans for effecting that object, you will never succeed unless you call me into your counsel."

"I keep that wonderful medicine, St. Jacobs Oil, both at my home and office, and esteem it, without any exception, the most efficacious remedy in the world for rheumatism, etc.," says Supt. O'Neill, of the Dominion Police, Ottawa, Canada."

His Lordship Bishop Bond announced the receipt of letters from Rev. Canon Davidson and Ven. Archdeacon Leach, regretting inability to attend.

On motion of Rev. Dr. Sullivan, the Rev. Canon Curran, of St. Thomas Church, Hamilton, was invited to a seat in the Synod.

APPOINTMENTS.

The Rev. John Empson was re-elected clerical secretary and Dr. A. Johnston, lay secretary. Mr. James Hutton was elected treasurer in the room of Mr. C. J. Bridges, resigned. With reference to Mr. Bridges' resignation it was moved, seconded and resolved that the present Synod do place upon record its high sense of the efficiency displayed by that gentleman in his discharge of the duties of treasurer.

It was moved, seconded and resolved that Messrs. Simpson and Whitney be re-elected auditors. His Lordship, Bishop Bond, named Edward Carter, Q.C., as Church advocate. He then named the various standing committees of the Synod.

THE BISHOP'S ADDRESS.

His Lordship delivered a very lengthy address, congratulating all present on the fact that the Church during the year just concluded, had been fairly prosperous, and that peace and plenty reigned alike in city and country. He had visited during the year 102 missions and stations independent of the city, and had confirmed 758 persons; two had been ordained to the deaconate and four to the priesthood, and two clergymen had been received to work in the diocese. Of Church buildings five had been consecrated, also a chancel and burying place, one church made ready for Divine service and opened, and foundations for two new ones had been laid. Reference was then made to insurance of church property which appeared to be greatly neglected. His Lordship announced that he had received without reservation the noble gift of the church building erected at Adamsville by Mr. Adams. (Applause).

TRINITY CHURCH.

The announcement that the affairs of Trinity Church had reached a favorable crisis and that the edifice had been saved at a cost of $38,000, contributed by a number of gentlemen, was received with great satisfaction.

FRENCH MISSION WORK.

The moving of the schools into Montreal had been very satisfactory. His Lordship spoke highly of the excellent order maintained in the Sabrevois School on Chatham street. The Diocesan Theological College had made great progress during the year, it was a matter of regret that one of its lecturers, Rev. Dr. Sullivan, was about to leave, otherwise the condition of the college was entirely satisfactory.

His Lordship made feeling reference to the demise of the Right Rev. Frederick D. Fauquier, first Bishop of Algoma. The election of the Rev. Dr. Sullivan to the vacant Bishopric, was a matter of congratulation so far as Algoma was concerned, but all would regret his enforced departure from Montreal.

Two veteran clergymen had fallen since the last meeting of Synod, the Rev. J. C. Davidson and the Rev. W. C. Merrick, missionaries full of knowledge and zeal. In concluding His Lordship addressed himself particularly to the clerical brethren present, on the subject of catechising the young, urging its importance.

THE SCHOOLS.

The closing exercises at the Sherbrooke street Protestant school took place this forenoon. The large school room was beautifully decorated with flags, banners and flowers. Rev. Canon Norman, Chairman of the Board of School Commissioners, presided, and on the platform were the Hon. Gedeon Ouimet, Superintendent of Education; Rev. Dr. Stevenson and Mr. William Lunn, School Commissioners; Dr. Robins, Secretary of the Board; Rev. Prof. Coussirat and Prof. F. W. Hicks. There was quite a large attendance of the parents and friends of the scholars. The Chairman made a few opening remarks, after which, the prizes were presented, according to the list which appears on the first page of this paper. During the forenoon a number of songs—including "Hearts of Oak," Rubenstein's Spring song, "Children's Hurrahs," and "Cherry Ripe"—were rendered by the pupils in a very pleasing and praiseworthy manner.

Mr. Pearson, head master of the school, read a report stating that the whole number of pupils in attendance during the past year was 737. He stated that during the Winter the attractions of evening parties and skating rinks had proved too powerful in keeping some of the scholars from their studies. Several deaths had occurred in the school during the year. The teachers had been overworked, with the very large number of scholars in attendance, some of them having charge of classes numbering 58 or 60 scholars, and this for the small pay of $25 per month during the school session.

Hon. G. Ouimet being called upon to address the audience, spoke in both English and French. He complimented the Protestant School Commissioners on having erected a building so fine in outward appearance and so comfortable inside. He did not think it was at all too costly. He would like to have those who had been grumbling too much of late, study the report just presented by the headmaster of this school. The very large number of scholars who had been in attendance was a compliment, not only to the head master and his assistants, but also to the School Commissioners. He believed that the complaints which had been made came from but a small portion of the community, and that before long the Commissioners would receive the public gratitude for their labors. He proceeded to congratulate the scholars who had won rewards, advising them to keep their prizes as a remembrance of the happy days they had spent in this school, under the care of those who had taught them, not only science, but also Christian virtue, which he hoped they would follow in their future life. Referring to Mr. Pearson's remarks concerning absences during the Winter, he said he hoped they would be a warning to both the children and their parents. He especially impressed upon parents their duty as regarded this matter, and spoke of the unwholesome influence upon the rest of school caused by some of the scholars absenting themselves for such reasons.

Rev. Canon Dumoulin was next called upon. He said he believed the recent movement had done a great deal of good. In not one of the public meetings which had been held, had a single word been said against the teachers, and the verdict had been that they were underpaid. He thought, however, that the Commissioners had not received justice at these meetings. They had been required to make bricks without straw; onerous duties were laid upon them, and he considered that their services were worth to the city, at a moderate estimate, $10,000 per year. Regarding the only person who had ventured to say anything against the Commissioners, he said he had much respect for the office he held, but he did not think that his remarks would have the weight of a feather in influence upon the Protestant community.

Rev. Dr. Norman complimented the scholars very highly on their excellent singing. For the Commissioners he said it would take a long time to kill them; he thought they would neither be "hanged" nor die by poison.

At the request of the headmaster, the school gave three rousing cheers for the chairman, and three more for Hon. Mr. Ouimet, and the proceedings closed with the benediction.

THE TOURNAI CASE.

Return of Mr. Doutre, Q.C.

Mr. Doutre, Q.C., accompanied by Mrs. Doutre and Miss Doutre, arrived in town last evening from New York, having arrived from Liverpool by the "Republic" of the White Star Line. The learned Queen's Counsel looks exceedingly well and is in the best of spirits after his sojourn in Belgium. He states that the action of the Belgian Government in arresting Mr. Goodhue was most arbitrary, as there was absolutely not a shadow of suspicion in connection with his conduct. "Were all the facts of the case known," remarked Mr. Doutre, "they would redound to the shame of the Belgian Government, whose evident desire was to obtain the money, hoping that it might be proved to be escheate, or not the legal property of any one, thereby reverting to the State."

St. Jean Baptiste Day.

An old English resident, who has seen 35 celebrations of St. Jean Baptiste Day, declares that yesterday's was certainly the grandest of them all.

A person, who is an adept at calculating a crowd and gauging numbers, estimates that there were 20,000 people walking in the procession. It takes an army of 15,000 men, 6 deep, one hour to pass a given point. Yesterday the procession was one hour and forty-five seconds rounding St. Lambert Hill.

There is authority for stating that $25,000 were spent in decorations and allegorical cars alone, and horses, irrespective of personal expenses.

"A foolish expense," says the utilitarian.

Not at all. That money goes into circulation, and every cent of it remains in the city.

An enthusiastic Conservative exclaimed:

"If we had had that procession ten days before the election, we should have needed neither speeches nor editorial articles. A grander tribute to the N.P. could not be devised."

One subject of regret in connection with the event is the terrible destruction of young maples for ornamental purposes.

Police News.

The Internal Revenue Department have taken out twenty actions for selling liquor without license since yesterday.

Matthew Sullivan, fireman SS. "Oxenholme," pleaded guilty this morning at the Police Court to an assault on another sailor, and was fined $5.

John Perry, aged 23, got drunk on the wharf yesterday, and began to kick up a fearful row. He resisted violently when arrested by one of the water police. A bystander, named John Halley, aged 21, clerk, endeavored to incite the mob, which had gathered to rescue the prisoner. He was arrested himself instead. At the Police Court this morning Perry was fined $10, while Halley, who brought some powerful influence to bear on the authorities, managed to get clear.

South Shore Railway and Tunnel Company.

A meeting of shareholders of the South Shore Railway and Tunnel Company was held this morning. Present, Messrs. Senecal (presiding), Renaud, Roberge, Watson, Globensky, Simard, DeMartigny and Wurtele. The President was authorized to go on with the construction of the road, and to enter into negotiations for the sale of the line.

Negotiations have been opened for disposing of the railway, to the Canadian Pacific Company who, it is said, will co-operate with the Tunnel Company.

CITY ITEMS.

—The young men of the East End Methodist Church have completed arrangements for a moonlight excursion on 19th July.

—The earnings of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway for the third week of June were $194,300, showing an increase of $103,300 over the corresponding period of last year.

—During the progress of the procession yesterday up St. Lawrence street, a man who was watching the proceedings from an upper window, overbalanced and fell into the street. Fortunately a severe shaking was his worst injury.

—The remarkable poem on the Battle of Patay read at the reception to General Charette in the Academic Hall of the Gesu, on Friday last, is published in La Minerve of this morning. It is true poetry, not verse; inspiration, not manufacture. Nothing like it has yet appeared in the French papers of Canada.

—Whilst the procession was crossing Craig street yesterday a child named Turgeon was run over by a horse car and seriously injured.

—Magnan, the defeated candidate in Montcalm, is demanding a recount. It seems that a number of the ballots were marked with the returning officer's initials.

—The Thistle Society are to have a moonlight excursion to-morrow evening on board steamer "Filgate." Pipers of the Society and string band will be in attendance.

—It is reported that a lady who figured as defendant in a celebrated separation case here within a year past has just married in Chicago. Her new consort rejoices in the name of Smith.

—This morning, in Notre Dame Church, the son of Judge Tessier, of the Court of Queen's Bench, Quebec, was united in matrimony to the daughter of Mr. Edmund Barnard, Q.C., of Montreal.

THE EGYPTIAN CRISIS.

LONDON, June 27.—The Times says: "In view of information we have received from various quarters we cannot doubt that preparations for the protection of the Suez Canal are maturing on a considerable scale. We have reason to believe that the first army corps, and a considerable party of the second are at their full strength, and should it be necessary to strike a sudden blow there would be no difficulty in despatching twenty thousand men to Egypt in a few days.

In the House of Commons the alarming rumors of attempts on the fleet at Alexandria were formally denied. Sir Charles Dilke stated that he could not answer the questions concerning alleged warlike preparations in France.

Hudson Bay Company shares sold yesterday in London at £37½.

The semi-annual interest on the City of Montreal 5 per cent. stock (consolidated fund) will be paid to the shareholders on and after the 2nd of July.

The Bell Telephone Company of Canada and the Canadian Telephone Company have each declared a half-yearly dividend of 3 per cent. payable on the 15th July next.

This p.m. Montreal fell ½, Ontario ½ and Richelieu ½. Other stocks steady. The forgery on the Merchants bank did not affect the stock.

Afternoon sales.—75 Montreal 208, 50 Toronto 181, 10 Merchants 127½, 40 Montreal Telegraph 130½, 25 Gas 165½, 120 Richelieu 76.

The city money market to-day was steady at 5½ to 6 per cent. on call and time, the discount rate being 6 to 7 per cent. Sterling Exchange was dull and weak at 9 to 9⅛ prem. for bankers 60 day bills, 9⅛ to 9¼ prem. counter and 9⅞ to 9½ demand.

There was a dull stock market this morning and some stocks which have lately been speculated in were weaker. Others were steady and have apparently touched bottom. Merchants Bank stock was one of these. It is becoming evident now that the change in the Presidency of the bank is not going to affect this stock. Shareholders feel that under Mr. Hague's management the affairs of the bank will be wisely directed and that no change of President will injuriously affect their interests. Ontario this morning declined 2 per cent. in bid; Gas 1, and Commerce and St. Paul & Manitoba ½. Other stocks steady.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

SYSTEMATIC BANK SWINDLING.

A gang of the most expert American forgers have, for the last ten days, made Montreal their headquarters, and have been playing a bold game on some of our leading financial institutions, happily, however, with but partial success. The visitors, who are described as exceedingly gentlemanly fellows, dressed with the best of taste and so forth, arrived here last Thursday week, and leased an office from Mr. A. H. Plimsoll, 17 John street. The office furniture was of the plainest description, consisting merely of a table and two chairs, and no business ever appeared to be transacted. A boy named Jamieson was hired last Thursday, whose duty it was to present cheques at the various banks. Their first operation appears to have been at Ottawa, where they applied for a draft on Montreal at the Bank of Montreal, for $20. This draft appears only to have been used for the purpose of counterfeiting it, and a lithographed counterfeit for $4,800 was made. This was deposited yesterday with the Merchants' Bank here, where they had opened an account previously, and later on in the day a cheque for $2,500 was drawn against it, which was duly honored. Upon the draft being presented at the Bank of Montreal this morning it was refused and declared to be a forgery. The Manager of the Bank of Montreal declares it to be a most clever lithographed counterfeit, the paper, however, being of a lighter color than that used by the Bank, and the signature of Mr. A. Drummond the Manager at Ottawa, also not being at all similar to his genuine. Operation number two consisted in opening an account with the Banque Nationale on Saturday and depositing four hundred dollars, which on Saturday was augmented by a further deposit of $2,985 in the shape of a draft drawn at Ottawa on the Bank of British North America here. This draft proved to be one which had been issued at Ottawa for $20 in favor of H. J. McArthur, and which had been raised to $2,985. Yesterday morning at half-past nine two of the gang were already at the bank and drew $390 of the deposit. In the meantime, however, Mr. Roy, the teller, who was suspicious all was not right, with commendable foresight sent round to the British Bank to see if the draft was genuine, when of course it was declared to be a forgery. The services of Detective Fahey were now called in, and a trap was laid to catch the birds. This, however, proved a difficult job, as the forgers were evidently as well, if not better, acquainted with Fahey and his men than the detectives were with the Americans, and a game of cut-throat euchre ensued, the detectives shadowing the forgers and the forgers shadowing the detectives. At all events yesterday morning the boy Jamieson was despatched from the office on St. John street with a cheque for $2,500 on the Banque Nationale. The cheque was accepted by the ledger keeper, handed to the paying teller, who counted out the money, but instead of paying it to the boy, a decoy parcel, supposed to contain the notes, was given him, when he started for St. John street, shadowed by the detectives, the latter shadowed by some of the gang, who, seeing that their little game had been intercepted, switched off from the St. John street track, and never put in an appearance to claim the $2,500, and by this time are probably over the lines enjoying their ill-gotten gains. Some of the gang put up at the Windsor, and one of them was enjoying a game of billiards there late last evening. The boy Jamieson states that the forgers had a great number of pass books on various banks which would seem to indicate that extensive operations were contemplated. In the meantime all the city banks and their branches have been notified.

St. Jean Baptiste Day.

A noticeable feature in the procession of St. Jean Baptiste was that of the Williams Manufacturing Co., who displayed their machines in different stages of construction. There were five carriages in the line of march, all tastefully decorated, with canopies, flags and appropriate mottoes. The first van, drawn by four horses, bore this inscription:—"Hommage a L'Industrie Manufacturiere," and the men who occupied it represented the Iron Department of the business. The second carriage, likewise drawn by four horses, showed the processes employed in constructing the tables, covers, and other woodwork of the machines. This van displayed the motto:—"Encouragez les manufactures Canadiennes." In the next carriage were a number of finished machines, four of which were kept in motion by four handsome young ladies, dressed in white, who showed the different kinds of work which the machine is capable of doing. Around the dais of this vehicle were the words:—"Concorde et Fraternite." In the next carriage were some fine specimens of highly finished machines, surmounted by the motto:—"Religion, Science et Patrie," and around the base of the canopy were the words:—"Honneur au Commerce Canadien."

The credit of this display belongs entirely to the French employees of the Company, as the Manager gave them carte blanche in the matter, and the very tasteful display which they made shows that the confidence reposed in their ability was not misplaced.

Special Notice.

Would you entrust an inferior tailor to make a suit, when, for the same money, a first-class article can be got from a first-class man, such as L. Robinson? Surely not. a

The day and hour.—To-morrow, Wednesday 28th, is the day, and the hour 9 a.m. In order that the many thousand readers of THE STAR may have the pleasure of witnessing the grand Oriental street parade of the big U. S. Circus, we give the following official route of procession: Starting from lot west of Grand Trunk depot at 9 a.m., moving east along St. Joseph street to McGill street, through McGill to St. James, east along St. James to Notre Dame, thence to St. Mary to Montcalm, up Montcalm to Craig street, up Craig to St. Lawrence Main, up St. Lawrence Main to St. Catherine, along St. Catherine to Windsor, down Windsor to St. Antoine, along St. Antoine to Bonaventure, thence back to the lot. Reserved seat tickets can be got at Prince's.

Music, Fireworks and Illumination.

Saturday, 1st July, the Band of the 65th Battalion (City Band) will play from 8 to 10:30 p.m. at Mr. Jos. Bougie, Sault au Recollet road. There will be splendid fireworks and illumination. People in the city, desirous of making a nice trip, should not lose this opportunity. The object of the demonstration is to inaugurate the immense kiosk, which Mr. J. Bougie has erected at a great cost, and which is one of the finest in Canada, measuring 132 feet in length. It the event of bad weather, the celebration will be postponed to the following Monday.

Gilt Edged Investment.

The sale of the McKinnon property at Shaw & Gowdey's rooms, St. James street, to-morrow (Wednesday) morning, is expected to attract a very large audience.

The property has a splendid frontage on the best part of the street.

The old St. Stephen's Church, on Dalhousie street, fine stone building, over 9,000 feet of ground, will be sold immediately after the McKinnon property.

Testimony of an Eminent Physician.

The proofs which authenticated the claims of Northrop & Lyman's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites to be regarded as the finest pulmonic in use, emanate in many instances from physicians of eminence. Dr. J. Corlis, of St. Thomas, writes as follows:—

"During ten years of active service, I have had occasion to prescribe Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites. Since your preparation came under my notice I have tried it, and take great pleasure in saying that it has given great satisfaction, and it is to be preferred to any I have ever used or recommended. I have used it in my own family during heavy colds, and in every instance a happy result has followed. I cheerfully recommend its use in all cases of debility arising from weakness of the muscular or nervous system."

What can be more convincing than this? Here is a professional man of long practice and high reputation bearing direct and positive testimony to the value of a remedy which he has thoroughly tested. Who can read and doubt? Assuredly no one of common sense.

This matchless specific for throat and lung diseases is also most serviceable in scrofulous cases. Purchasers should be careful to observe that each wrapper has a fac simile of the firm's signature upon it. Prepared only by Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, Can.

THE untold miseries that result from indiscretion in early life may be alleviated and cured. Those who doubt this assertion should purchase the new medical work published by the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, Boston, entitled

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; OR SELF-PRESERVATION.

Exhausted Vitality, Nervous and Physical Debility, Premature Decline in Man, or Vitality Impaired by the Errors of Youth, or too close application to business, may be restored and manhood regained.

258th edition, revised and enlarged, just published. It is a standard medical work, the best in the English language, written by a physician of great experience, to whom was awarded a gold and jewelled medal by the National Medical Association. It contains beautiful and very expensive engravings. 300 pages, more than 125 valuable prescriptions for all forms of diseases, acute and chronic, the result of many years of extensive and successful practice, either one of which is worth ten times the price of the book. Bound in beautiful French cloth, embossed, full gilt. Price only $1.25; by mail post-paid, on receipt of price. Illustrated sample 6 cents. Send now!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; OR SELF-PRESERVATION,

Is beyond all comparison the most extraordinary work on Physiology ever published. There is nothing whatever that the married or single can either require or wish to know but what is fully explained.—(London Lancet.)

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE; OR SELF-PRESERVATION

Is a marvel of art and beauty, warranted to be a better medical book in every sense than can be obtained elsewhere for double the price, or the money will be refunded in every instance.—(Author.)
