FACTORY FIRE IN DANVILLE — Fire broke out in the roof of the AM-CAN Woodcraft Limited plant on Queen Street, at 1:00 o'clock Wednesday afternoon causing some $1,000 damage to the building. Chief of police Leo Gagnon, while on a routine patrol saw smoke emerging from around the eaves. Fire chief, Gilles Petit and volunteer firemen fought the outbreak for an hour. They opened the roof in the area of the smoke stack from the boiler which had burnt out around the pipe capping, causing the fire to spread between the ceiling. The damage was confined to the immediate area around the stack. In the photo, the firemen can be seen fighting the outbreak.

Nixon studies plans for early troop withdrawal

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The United States cabinet and National Security Council meet today in joint session to review President Nixon's eight-point Vietnam peace plan that includes a phased pull-out of foreign troops from South Vietnam.

Nixon, in a 22-minute television address Wednesday night, outlined a plan beginning with a gradual reduction of all foreign troops in South Vietnam and followed by an internationally-supervised ceasefire and free and fair elections embracing all political elements in the South.

Nixon described his plan as a "generous and reasonable peace offer."

Henry Cabot Lodge, chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris talks, was among those called to the joint meeting to review the plan. Lodge is scheduled to fly back to the French capital tonight to submit the new American formula to North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

In his first major report on the war to the American people, Nixon gave the broadest hint to date about his reported plan to reduce U.S. troop strength—with or without an agreement with Hanoi—as soon as the South Vietnamese could carry a bigger burden of the fighting.

BRING TROOPS HOME
White House sources later said Nixon plans to bring home some of the 550,000 American troops in Vietnam when he judges it could be done with safety.

The sources implied that a unilateral troop withdrawal—probably modest at first—will start soon.

Reaction in Washington was initially favorable to Nixon's address although one somewhat critical note was sounded by Averell Harriman, Lodge's predecessor as chief peace negotiator.

Harriman described the speech as constructive but added that the "all-important question was not touched on—how to reduce the level of violence."

"I think that should be the No. 1 business," he said.

Senator J. William Fulbright (Dem. Ark.), chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee and a leading war critic, said he could not imagine Nixon delivering the speech without advance indication of some response from the Communists.

"Personally I would go further," he said, "but I do not fault him for not going as far as I would—it is his first effort and a contribution."

NOT INFLEXIBLE

The eight points, which Nixon said were offered not on a take-it-or-leave-it basis but to get the Paris negotiations off dead centre, are:

—As soon as agreement can be reached, all non-South Vietnamese would start to withdraw from South Vietnam;

—Over a period of 12 months the majority of all U.S. combined forces, and other non-South Vietnamese forces would be withdrawn by agreed stages. At the end of this period, the remaining forces would move into designated base areas and not engage in combat operations;

—The remaining U.S. and combined forces troops would complete their withdrawals as the remaining North Vietnamese forces were withdrawn and returned to North Vietnam;

—An international supervisory body—acceptable to both sides—would be created to verify withdrawals.

—The international body would begin operating in accordance with an agreed timetable and participate in arranging supervised ceasefires;

—As soon as possible after the supervisory body is functioning, elections would be held under agreed procedures and under the supervision of the international body.

—Arrangements would be made for the earliest possible release of prisoners-of-war on both sides.

—All parties would agree to observe the Geneva accords of 1954 regarding Vietnam and Cambodia and the Laos accords of 1962.

WON'T HAMPER PULLOUT

White House sources emphasized that the mutual withdrawal plan would not prevent the U.S. from starting its own unilateral but limited pull-out of troops.

Nixon has established three criteria for such a troop reduction: Progress at the Paris talks, readiness of South Vietnamese units to take over more of the fighting from Americans, and a lessening in Communist military action.

Nixon said he welcomes a 10-point program introduced by the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front at the Paris peace talks last week as a basis for negotiation. But he stressed that several of its proposals are unacceptable to the U.S.

He also said the U.S. "cannot ignore the fact that immediately after the offer, the scale of enemy attacks stepped up and American casualties increased."

"If the enemy wants peace with the United States, that is not the way to get it. If the needless suffering continues, this will affect other decisions."

NLF cool to Nixon proposal

PARIS (Reuters) — The National Liberation Front of South Vietnam said today President Nixon is still insisting on the mutual withdrawal of troops from South Vietnam—"a proposal which we have repeatedly rejected."

A spokesman for the front delegation to the peace talks here said President Nixon is "feigning goodwill" in his eight-point peace plan outlined in Washington Wednesday night.

"In fact, the United States is still clinging to its old, unjust and unreasonable proposal for the mutual withdrawal of troops," he said.

The North Vietnamese delegation would not comment on the proposals today, but the Communists were believed to be giving high priority to studying Nixon's speech.

SAIGON (Reuters) — High-ranking South Vietnamese officials today cautiously welcomed President Nixon's latest Vietnam peace initiatives but were worried about references to new elections, neutrality and Viet Cong participation in the government.

Nguyen Ba Luong, Speaker of the lower house of the National Assembly said: "The withdrawal of foreign troops from South Vietnam is a necessary condition for ending the war here. President Nixon's proposal that foreign troops be withdrawn is a good thing."

"I believe the South Vietnamese forces will be strong enough to take over the whole war effort when the allied forces are withdrawn," Luong said in answer to questions.

But Luong added: "In President Nixon's eight-point proposal, there are points which I am suspicious of—like those pertaining to neutrality, elections, and the NLF's participation in the nation's political life."

"I wonder what type of neutrality Mr. Nixon meant—a Switzerland-type neutrality?" the Speaker asked.

NLF MUST CONFORM

"As for elections, every step should conform with the Republic of Vietnam's constitution. The NLF's participation in national political life must be in line with the constitution.

"The right of self-determination and sovereignty of the South Vietnamese people must be respected by all, including our enemy."

Some foreign ministry sources privately expressed doubts about the American proposals.

"The issue of elections raises some worries, as it is difficult to see how the NLF can be accommodated in elections supervised by our government," one ministry official said.

Another said: "Mr. Nixon took a tough line, which is encouraging for us. But the question of supervising a North Vietnamese withdrawal raises many problems."

"Mr. Nixon has shown us where the United States stands, and will not let us down."

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters) — Prime Minister Keith Holyoake of New Zealand today described President Nixon's proposals for scaling down the Vietnam war as "fair, reasonable and statesmanlike."

Criminal code amendments receive approval

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner quelled a mutinous Liberal backbench and rode out an opposition talkathon Wednesday to bring the government's contentious Criminal Code amendments to passage in the Commons.

Now he must pilot the official languages bill through the Commons with the Prairie provinces already threatening to test it in the Supreme Court of Canada.

The Criminal Code amendments, which change the law on abortion, homosexuality, impaired driving, lotteries and a host of other matters, were introduced in December, 1967, by Prime Minister Trudeau, then justice minister.

They were redrafted last year, given a month-long scrutiny in March by the Commons justice committee, then subjected to 44 attempts at amendment before winning House passage on third reading Wednesday.

The controversial abortion clause emerged unscathed despite 32 attempts to amend it, most of them from the Creditists.

BLOCKS AMENDMENT

Warren Allmand (L—Montreal Notre-Dame-de-Grace) also proposed a change that won substantial Liberal support but was fought off by Mr. Turner, who also quelled other Liberal qualms.

The bill was given third reading by a vote of 149 to 55, with 43 Conservatives, 11 Creditists and a single Liberal voting against it. The Liberal was Gordon Sullivan (Hamilton Mountain), who expressed reservations about the abortion clause.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker, who blasted the homosexuality clause in a public speech recently, voted against the whole bill while Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield supported it.

A motion by Creditiste Rene Matte (Champlain) to withhold third reading for six months—in effect, to kill it—was defeated 151 to 53.

The Criminal Code bill now must go through the Senate, where it has priority, and receive royal assent before being proclaimed law.

It will:

"This was an apparent reference to the 'wired city' concept held by many cable operators, who see their systems in future providing all sorts of services such as distribution of electronic newspapers, shopping by closed-circuit TV and links with computers for data processing or transmission. The common communications carriers such as Bell Canada and C.N.C.P. Telecommunications consider this sort of point-to-point communication their exclusive bailiwick."

Mr. Juneau said the immediate policy would be to "open as many doors as possible immediately" for cable TV development while avoiding actions that might jeopardize regular broadcast operations.

The policy statement said the CRTC will issue cable licences with specific geographic boundaries. It would not issue licences "which would result in overwiring"

Also passed Wednesday, almost unnoticed, was a Senate bill to expand the list of federally-restricted drugs and remove the Criminal Code prohibition on sale and advertising of contraceptives.

BANS PROSECUTION

The bill adds LSD to the restricted list of drugs, meaning that it will be an offence—it isn't now—to possess LSD.

The government also has indicated that marijuana may be shifted from the Narcotics Control Act to the restricted list to ease the impact on first offenders.

Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) said the Senate bill will free Canada's hand to contribute to population control in developing countries. Canada hasn't been able to issue external aid in the form of contraceptives while they were illegal here.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) urged that the records of those convicted of marijuana possession be expunged if a drug study under way by the health department shows the drug is non-addictive. About 2,700 convictions were registered last year.

Also given third reading was a bill to regulate products used for the control of pests and the organic functions of plants and animals. Like the drug and contraceptives bill, it now requires royal assent before becoming law.

News in brief

Five killed

EDMONTON (CP) — A twin-engine Piper Aztec on a scheduled flight to Regina crashed minutes after takeoff Wednesday in a field 10 miles east of here killing the pilot and four passengers.

Leased by Mel Air Ltd. of Swift Current, Sask., from Trans Aircraft Co. of Calgary, the aircraft left Industrial Airport on a regular service by strike-bound Air Canada. All five occupants were dead when police reached the crash scene.

Bitter clash

SAIGON (AP) — Thousands of United States troops battled the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese today in two widely-separated sections of South Vietnam.

Paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division fought for a hill called Don Ap Via along the rugged Laotian frontier and just to the west of the A Shau Valley.

After six days of heavy fighting, the Americans had not been able to drive the North Vietnamese from bunkers honeycombing the 3,000-foot peak.

Caouette views

MONTREAL (CP) — Creditiste leader Rene Caouette said Wednesday night he will "encourage" candidates to enter the next Quebec elections under his party's banner.

His party would provide a "clear alternative" to the policies of separatist leader Rene Levesque and Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, Mr. Caouette said in an interview prior to addressing his first general meeting of the Pro-Canada Association.

Workless drop below average

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment declined to 432,000 at mid-April from 448,000 in March, a smaller-than-usual decline for this time of year, the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

There were 436,000 unemployed at mid-April last year.

The figures are estimates based on a sample survey of 35,000 households across the country in the week ended April 19.

The report said there was a more-than-seasonal increase in employment between March and April, climbing 158,000 to 7,529,000. There was an above-average increase in the size of the total labor force, up 142,000 at 8,061,000.

Compared with a year earlier, the labor force at mid-April this year was up 349,000 or 4.5 per cent larger. The number employed was up 353,000 or 4.9 per cent.

SHOWS LITTLE CHANGE

But the number of unemployed in April showed little change in the year, and represented 5.4 per cent of the labor force. This was down from a recent peak of six per cent reached at mid-February, and an improvement over the 5.7 per cent unemployment rate which prevailed in April last year.

Friends, foes laud Dief

OTTAWA (CP) — Old friends and cherished enemies threw a testimonial dinner Wednesday night for John Diefenbaker, who made it clear it was too early to wish him goodbye.

The former Conservative prime minister, full of fun although "approaching 74," told the crowd of 700, including a handful of Liberal cabinet ministers, he was glad that none of the 11 preceding speechmakers had said retirement is under consideration.

"That isn't in my mind at all," said the MP for the Saskatchewan riding of Prince Albert who has sat in the Commons since May 14, 1940. The arctic char and duckling meal marked his 29th anniversary as an MP.

He praised the "feeling for forgiveness" of the Commons where he passed his greatest days. In this mood he lauded—sometimes lightly—the political enemies from his past and present, some of whom were at the $10-a-plate banquet.

Tommy Douglas, the New Democratic Party leader, at the head table with Mr. Diefenbaker, was one of the parliamentary greats. There were many others, he said.

He talked of Liberal prime ministers. Mackenzie King, he said facetiously, "was always wrestling with the powers of evil." Louis St. Laurent "was a man of his word."

James Gardiner, the oldtime Liberal agriculture minister, "was a great fighter. We never agreed, but he made Parliament live." Col. J. L. Ralston, a Liberal defence minister, "stood for principle regardless of the condemnation that came to him."

Mr. Diefenbaker had a special kind word for C. D. Howe, the Liberal cabinet strongman ousted from public life in the 1957 election that made Mr. Diefenbaker prime minister.

Although the two "did not see eye to eye" in Parliament, Mr. Howe sent a post-election letter to the new prime minister pledging help if asked. This is the spirit of Parliament, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he was touched by taped greetings from two political opponents, Prime Minister Trudeau and Paul Martin.

These two sides of the coin were set out Wednesday in a policy statement by the CRTC.

At the same time, CRTC Chairman Pierre Juneau, in a speech to cable operators in Quebec City, said the aim of the policy is to "allow the cable operator to move into a new, large role... while not putting into jeopardy the freedoms and responsibilities of the other elements of the broadcasting system."

FORMULATING VIEW

Mr. Juneau said in Quebec that the CRTC has been formulating "both a long-term and intermediate view of what cable television could and should be-

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jack Warner's gift last week of $1,500,000 to the University of Southern California's Division of Cinema marked a giant step forward for the oldest film school in the United States.

The longtime boss of Warner Brothers made the donation for the building of the Ann and Jack Warner Hall of Cinema, which will be part of the university's $4,400,000 Centre for the Performing Arts. It will replace the barracks-like buildings that have housed the Cinema school since the Second World War. Despite its ramshackle headquarters, the USC cinema department has produced 5,000 graduates, many of them important figures in the film industries of Hollywood and foreign countries.

The Cinema School has come a long way from its beginnings 40 years ago. During the early years there was much snickering in academic circles over the fact that a university would design to offer courses in the study of movies. That attitude has changed.

FILM COURSES GROW
The extent of the change is illustrated in a new survey by the American Film Institute.

George Stevens Jr., institute director, says: "The report reveals that 219 higher learning institutions now have courses in film, an 84-per-cent growth in the last five years. Some 5,300 students are preparing for a career in film production, scholarship or teaching; 4,144 are undergraduates majoring in film and 1,191 are graduate students."

"In addition, there are tens of thousands of other students taking elective courses in film history, appreciation or production."

For several years USC was the only university offering degrees in film. Now there are 51.

About television

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS's 60 Minutes wound up its excellent hour Tuesday night with a report on the life and thoughts of some of the young draft dodgers and deserters who have established themselves in the Kitchener-Waterloo area of southern Ontario.

One young man who fled to Canada several months ago has changed his mind about the method of protest and now plans to return to the United States in time to go into service on schedule.

Others—all very serious and vocal—said they were content with their decisions.

Reporter Mike Wallace, sympathetic to a degree with their evident idealism, called them "the saddest, most subdued young Americans I have ever seen."

PACIFIC WAR THEME

The program probably will cause some waves in the U.S. defence department with its report on the use of 10 navy ships, including the carrier Yorktown, by a Hollywood film company making a movie.

The film is being made in Pearl Harbor and is a story about the fighting in the Pacific in the Second World War. It uses not only ships but also servicemen. The primary question raised was whether, at a time of Vietnam conflict and of high taxation, the navy should lend equipment and men. Wallace quoted an anonymous defence source as calling the film "a $25,000,000 commercial for a carrier navy."

Darryl Zanuck, head of the company shooting Tora Tora Tora, said the film could not have been made without navy co-operation.

The co-operation cost was never made clear, but Zanuck did concede that a number of obsolete planes to be used in the film were transported from San Diego to Hawaii on the deck of the carrier Yorktown.

Spring show opens today with psychedelics and industries

The Salon du Printemps opens today at the Sports Palace and the arena with over 100 exhibits to cultivate, educate and blow your mind.

The exhibition this year has everything for everyone, from trade exhibits to a mind-expanding experience room where a fantastic array of lights combined with music will be sending even the most stable on a sensory trip.

For the first time the show will fill both the Sports Palace and the arena.

Students from St. Francois and LeBer schools have arranged a series of entertainment exhibits called Infernum 69.

After passing through halls painted and decorated by the students the visitors enter the first room where for 15 minutes they will be surrounded by whirling lights which with piped in music will serve to warm them up for the second room.

Bands will be playing continuously in the second stage and the visitors will hear a 15-minute show. Afterwards they will be able to buy a coffee or some other refreshment in the third room, Le Cafe LeBer. The visitors can slowly tune in and come down into the regular world while listening to soft relaxing music.

Students have arranged other exhibits including one where for the first time in Quebec film from Apollo 8 moon trip will be shown.

The Quebec government has set up its much-talked-about Jomez Quebec exhibit in the arena. Visitors will be able to see film on the walls around them, at l'Expo, in three minutes of all the products manufactured in Quebec.

For the children, the roads department has set up a driving course complete with pedal operated cars, roads, signs, and electric signals to give the youngsters education in road safety.

Top notch entertainers will be performing every night of the fair. They will include Les Jorolas and Marthe Fleurant.

On the Sports Palace floor alone there will be more than 70 trade booths exhibiting the most up-to-date developments in manufacturing and design.

The exposition is being sponsored by the Sherbrooke Tourist Committee to raise money to develop the Eastern Townships' tourist industry.

Clean up day

The North Hatley Village Improvement Society is holding its spring clean up day, Saturday, May 17.

Assisted by Girl Guides, Boy Scouts, school children, and the town of North Hatley, the Improvement Society asks that people clean their properties Saturday, cleaning the town at the same time.

Garbage placed at the roadside by noon is guaranteed to be collected the same day. The society hopes to make Saturday's clean-up day a successful event, and a worthwhile measure to keep the town of North Hatley clean and beautiful.

Had no permit

A man was fined $100 and sentenced to one day in jail yesterday, by Sessions Court Judge Benoit Turmel, for having driven without a permit. He is Cyrille Giguere, of Rock Forest, who was arrested for driving after his permit had been suspended.

Judge Turmel warned the accused that another appearance would mean a longer jail term, should it occur.

A 57-year-old Richmond resident, Roger Turcotte, pleaded not guilty to charges of breaking and entering yesterday, as he appeared before Sessions Court Judge Benoit

Attends seminar

MAGOG — (Special) — J. M. Bessette attended the annual children's foot health seminar held at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, May 1, and returned to Magog with valuable information on developments in the designing and fitting of footwear for boys and girls.

Explaining his trip and the seminar, Mr. Bessette said many troubles now common among children, and regarded as usual, can be easily corrected or improved with new types of footwear.

U of S psychomathematician an international teacher-host

Dr. Zoltan P. Dienes has been awarded a quarter of a million dollar grant by the National Research Council, it was confirmed this morning. The money will be allocated over a four year period to finance his continuing research in psychomathematics.

Mr. Dienes is director of the research centre of psychomathematics at the University of Sherbrooke.

An unprecedented three Canada Council grants have been received in the past few years for the same purpose, the last in 1968, $64,000, was the highest single amount awarded that year.

"What attracts me most to Dr. Dienes' approach to teaching is his insight into a child's mind. He has an indefinable quality that enables him to commune instantly with any children, in any country in the world. That and the proven success of his concepts."

These are the words of Terence Durnin, mathematician, from Leicestershire, England. He and his wife, Eileen, are in Sherbrooke for a month to study under Dr. Zoltan P. Dienes, director of the research centre of psychomathematics at the University of Sherbrooke, and alma mater of a dozen schools in as many countries.

In September, Mr. Durnin will become principal and Mrs. Durnin will teach at Le Verseau, a school that is being built just outside Brussels.

Le Verseau was conceived and endowed by the Count and Countess Van der Straten Ponthoz, who have eight children of their own and a vital interest in changing the methods of teaching.

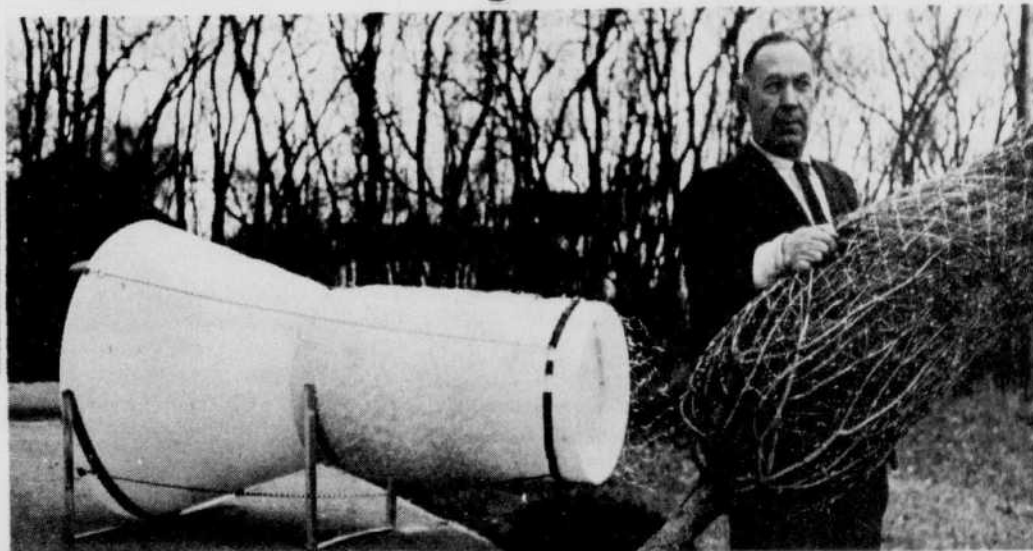

Their aim is to offer a bilingual education with an international flavor, intended to reflect and develop the existing climate. With Brussels the headquarters of NATO and centre of the European Common Market, it is rapidly becoming the capital of Western Europe.

A search for the best available in teaching concepts, led them to Dr. Dienes.

Dr. Dienes' work has been in theoretical and practical research in psychomathematics. But once implemented in a school, it gradually permeates the whole system. Mr. Durnin said. Neither teachers or students are willing Classes at Le Verseau will be conducted in both English and French, with a third language (possibly Flemish or German) introduced when a child is considered bilingual.

Yes, Mr. Durnin said, modern maths, structural grammar, science, history etc. will be taught, but not as the statement implies. Any one project might naturally involve two or three subjects. Latitude and flexibility are intrinsic to the philosophy and the kind of group teaching that will be practised.

Initially, the private school will accommodate 100 co-educational children, from three to 14. Applicants were accepted with the idea of diversity — in nationality, social background and age. Grants are available for those who cannot afford the $80 yearly tuition, which will be abolished when the school becomes part of the public educational system.

These changes will not be as radical as they might appear, Mr. Durnin said, since the Belgian system of education has been comparatively liberal, tending to sug-

Rock Island's council paycheque proposals bounce

ROCK ISLAND — (Special) — The May Rock Island town meeting learned that the proposed salaries for mayor and alderman have failed to gain approval.

At the April meeting the proposal was made that the mayor receive an annual remuneration of $500 and each alderman, $300. However, this was not approved by Quebec.

There are two ways of dealing with this, per capita on population which would give the mayor $335 and the alderman each $135. The other is to place a notice of motion on the books to pay according to the April proposal and in 30 days to meet again, which will be the regular council meeting in June, after which a public meeting will be held. If there is no opposition on the part of the rate payers the resolution of the council can be adopted. The latter was the action taken.

In view of the fact that the Fregeau family has contributed much to Rock Island, the council felt there should be some recognition, and it was suggested that Phelps street be renamed to Fregeau street, which will be from the Main street, eastward to the Boundary. It was noted the late Samuel Fregeau had been mayor of the village, his sons, the late Maurice Fregeau, as secretary treasurer for many years, the late Albert Fregeau was a mayor, and Raymond Fregeau had served as mayor.

A public notice is to be printed to explore the opinion of the public especially the families residing on Phelps street, and if no opposition the street will be officially named Fregeau street.

Oriental compromise essential in Vietnam

The renewed fighting in South Vietnam and the deadlocked negotiations in Paris point up what is perhaps the grimmest truth about this drawn-out conflict. It is a complete stalemate, politically and militarily.

This year's Communist push, which came about 12 months after the beginning of the costly 1968 offensive, obviously was designed mainly as a reminder to President Nixon that the battle is far from won.

In their very understandable wish to cling to power, the military leaders of South Vietnam are spreading the word that with a little more determination by U.S. forces, the Viet Cong can be defeated.

But this is what President Ngo Dinh Diem told the late John F. Kennedy in the 1960's. And it is what Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh told President Lyndon Johnson after seizing power in Saigon in 1964. And it is still the same story today.

President Nguyen Van Thieu and his hawkish vice-president, Nguyen Cao Ky, keep stressing that the Communists are on the run. And yet, if this is true, how do the Viet Cong manage to mount their regular attacks against U.S. and South Vietnamese military installations, as well as against urban centers, which are supposed to be so carefully defended?

Obviously, Saigon's claims about the weakness of the Communists are nonsense, and dangerous nonsense at that.

For by persuading the United States to keep trying for military victory, Saigon is dragging out the war. It is crystal clear that only an intricate oriental compromise, involving some form of coalition in which the Communists have at least some slight say, will bring the barbarous Vietnam conflict to an end.

More than half-a-million men, and possibly as many as a million, have been killed already. The U.S. combat toll alone is climbing toward 33,000 dead. During the grim periods of fighting, as many as 10,000 die on both sides in a single week.

Must the blood-letting continue indefinitely, or will Washington persuade Saigon's military men to step down in favor of a more moderate administration that can bring peace to this tortured land?

The boss says that some of our employees haven't worked for the firm very long, but that they've been here for 20 years.

Sauce for the goose

Indispensable as each of the sexes is to the other, there is also plenty of tension between them, from the embattled aggressiveness of a Judy La Marsh to the lady who won't go near a woman doctor or lawyer, no matter how impressive their qualifications.

Thanks to the publicity attending on hearings of the Royal Commission to investigate inequalities, many will be remedied, but one area has not been explored at all — a gross imbalance in recreation.

All day, during the pre-school years and for an even longer period afterward at night, the responsible parent cannot leave children alone. Baby sitters are expensive; many couples therefore rarely use them. One adult must stay at home, and in the process the person whose social and cultural life goes down the drain, is usually mother.

From the time the household awakens until evening dinner it is not unreasonable to expect her to give full-time to home-making and child-raising. During most of these hours her husband is busy selling shoes, repairing cars or keeping ledgers straight. Each partner is carrying a necessary part of the family load.

The evenings are a different matter; here the inequality is glaring.

Curling, bowling, lodges, service clubs beckon father. They absorb him night after night. His wife would also like to participate in something that would commit her regularly once or twice a month.

Does she manage it? Too often, not at all.

When their activities conflict it is she who waives recreational rights. Yet she is in most need of adult contacts, since her working time is spent with children. Often — in this era of youthful marrying — she is very young. Her single friends are free as air. Understandably, she resents her ties.

Those who lament the increasing exodus of wives and mothers from the domestic milieu to the marketplace, should do a little soul-searching at this point. So should social workers and pastors who are constantly uncovering marital problems.

A division of labor should mean a division of pleasures too.

Battle of Nations

The engagement referred to as the "battle of nations" was the Battle of Leipzig, Saxony, fought in 1813 when Russia, Prussia and Austria joined forces to defeat Napoleon.

H. G. Espert, director of the music department of Stansfeld College since 1957, has been appointed organist and choir director of Trinity United Church. He will begin his duties the first Sunday in August.

Born in Karlsruhe, Baden, Germany, he became permanent conductor at the age of 16 of the Accordion Orchestra with 80 members. He studied at the Munz conservatory and Seminary, the Conservatory of the State of Baden, and music science at the Institute of Technology, Bade.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

The Huntingville Women's Christian Temperance Union met at the home of the president, Mrs. W. A. Henderson, Prospect Street, Lennoxville. The meeting was opened with the pledge, followed by a reading and prayer from the White Ribbon Tidings.

The president and members welcomed several visiting friends and the meeting closed with the Mizpah.

A salad tea was served by the hostesses, Mrs. W. A. Henderson and Mrs. G. Sutherland.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Jean Marie Ethier, of Victoriaville, won the third annual oratorical contest sponsored by the Quebec Federation of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at the finals held in Montreal today.

Ethier, representing the Eastern Townships Chambers at the finals, defeated Robert Levesque of Rimouski, Que., and Alphonse Rivest of Chicoutimi, Que.

Ethier will participate in the Dominion championship at Toronto.

Forced Diets

In 1336, King Edward II of England ruled that certain servants, merchants and artisans could eat only one meal of meat or fish a day. In 1443, in Scotland, pies and baked meats could be eaten only by a baron or higher-ranking nobleman.

There has been a limit to how long Canadians and Canadian businesses could put up with the sort of Post Office service they have been receiving. That limit has been reached. While many have complained, they have been hoping that the dislocation, the delays and the losses of mail were somehow temporary. But bad service has by now settled down into a bad pattern. It has become the expected thing. And this is not tolerable in a modern industrial nation.

A letter from Montreal to Fredericton may take a week to arrive. A young student, waiting for information about his examination sent to him by his college, never gets it at all. Mail from the Government itself, sent on Her Majesty's Service from Ottawa by the Department of Manpower and Immigration, is postmarked in Ottawa on April 30 and is delivered in Montreal on May 9.

This is the sort of service with regard to the first class mail. As to mail of other classes, hope wits. A parcel of xeroxed documents sent from one address in downtown Montreal to another downtown address only a few blocks away never arrives. Newspapers mailed on Friday are often delivered on Wednesday or even on Thursday.

As for magazines, the irregularity has to be experienced to be believed. Those citizens who have been accustomed over the years to receive their magazines with regularity, never know now when they will arrive. There may be long delays, then two issues of the magazine arrive on the same day.

One Montrealer has had this strange experience. He has subscribed to a certain magazine for the last 15 years. It is a weekly. Until the Post Office became random and whimsical, he had never missed a single copy in all that time. The magazine is carefully wrapped; not one issue had ever arrived with the wrapper torn. But for the month of March he has received only one copy — that for March 27; he is lacking the issues for March 6, March 13 and March 20. He has received no issues at all for April. And he has so far had none in May.

In years gone by citizens may have had some reason, now and again, to complain about the postal service. But these were, generally speaking, occasional complaints. And if investigated, the matter was often cleared up.

Now, however, the mail is being delivered with such fits and starts, with such a want of system and dependability, that committing a letter, or anything else, to the mail involves an unprecedented hazard. In Montreal there are cases where mail has to be delivered by hand, if it must arrive with certainty and promptly.

The trouble is certainly not local; it is not peculiar to Montreal. On the prairies The Winnipeg Free Press describes Canadian postal services as "the scandal of the century." In its editorial, it said:

"Since Mr. Kierans' reforms, it has become almost impossible to send a letter within Canada's main centres and have it delivered the following day. Where periodicals are concerned, it's nothing but disaster. Second-class mail is obviously left to accumulate . . .

"One is almost back in the days of Jalna, when a month's supply of the Times arrived by the mail boat to be read at breakfast each day, with exactly one month's delay . . . Mr. Kierans can be proud."

Fortunately the steady pressure of complaints is reaching the members of the cabinet. They are well aware of the situation; after all, their own mail is affected. The matter has gone beyond making complaints to the Post Office itself, or to members of Parliament. Prime Minister Trudeau himself has to take seriously the exasperation of the people he is in office to serve.

It is just not good enough to charge more for mail services than ever before, and then to provide the worst service the people have ever known. Since the postal service has been brought to this disintegration, it is now Mr. Trudeau's responsibility to restore order. And it will have to be done soon; for the disintegration is becoming a national disgrace.

COMMENT

Lubor J. Zink

OTTAWA — (TNS) — Prime Minister Trudeau's re-orientation of our foreign and defence policy is based on the belief that the democracies no longer face a serious threat from what was once a monolithic Communist bloc.

People who share this belief (which is particularly strong in left-wing academic circles) argue that the Sino-Soviet split and the "liberalization" trends in Eastern Europe have blunted the aggressiveness and messianic zeal of totalitarian Marxism to the point where it is ceasing to be a menace to the pluralistic society of the West.

Hence their advocacy of a drastic revision of the postwar system of collective defence which they deem to be not only a wasteful anachronism in the allegedly changed international conditions but an obstacle blocking enlightened efforts to improve East-West relations.

Readers of this column are familiar with my reasons for rejecting the ivory tower assessment of the world scene. Some of them keep on telling me in their letters to give up struggling against the current, not because they disagree with my views but because, as one of them put it recently, "you are so obviously alone."

While it may be that I am often out of tune with much of the comment in our mass media, there are scores of knowledgeable students of international affairs around the world whose views do not essentially differ from mine.

Apart from innumerable articles in countless periodicals there are now hundreds of scholarly books dealing with the nature of the totalitarian threat. One of the recent additions to this serious study of the strategy and tactics of international Communism I have come across is Ian Greig's The Assault on the West, which was published last year in England by the Foreign Affairs Publishing Company.

The book deals specifically with Communist political warfare techniques and should be read by anyone who wants to understand the Marxist onslaught on the democracies.

In his foreword, former British prime minister Alec Douglas-Home writes: "The reader will find revealed the whole alarming and sordid story with its infinite ramifications, and the way in which every medium of publicity and propaganda is exploited. Mr. Greig has been wise to illustrate with chapter and verse, for otherwise the length to which the Communists will go to subvert and destroy the morale of organizations and individuals would be incredible to anyone brought up on a tradition of tolerance."

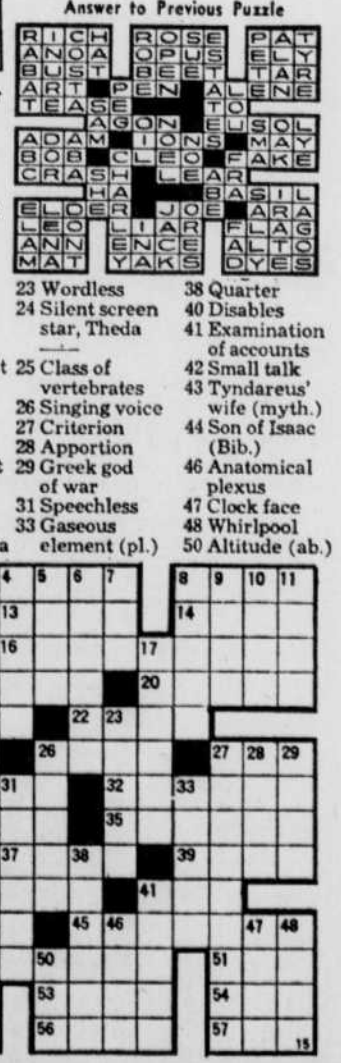

The following is a brief summary of the author's introductory chapter which outlines the character of the assault on the incredulous West.

Despite "peaceful co-existence" the Communist parties of the world seek by all means short of nuclear war to undermine the strategic and economic position of the West and its allies. Contrary to popular belief that the world conspiracy of Communism is dying its natural death, the opportunities for the Communist-ruled countries to step up their nibbling strategy have greatly increased in recent years.

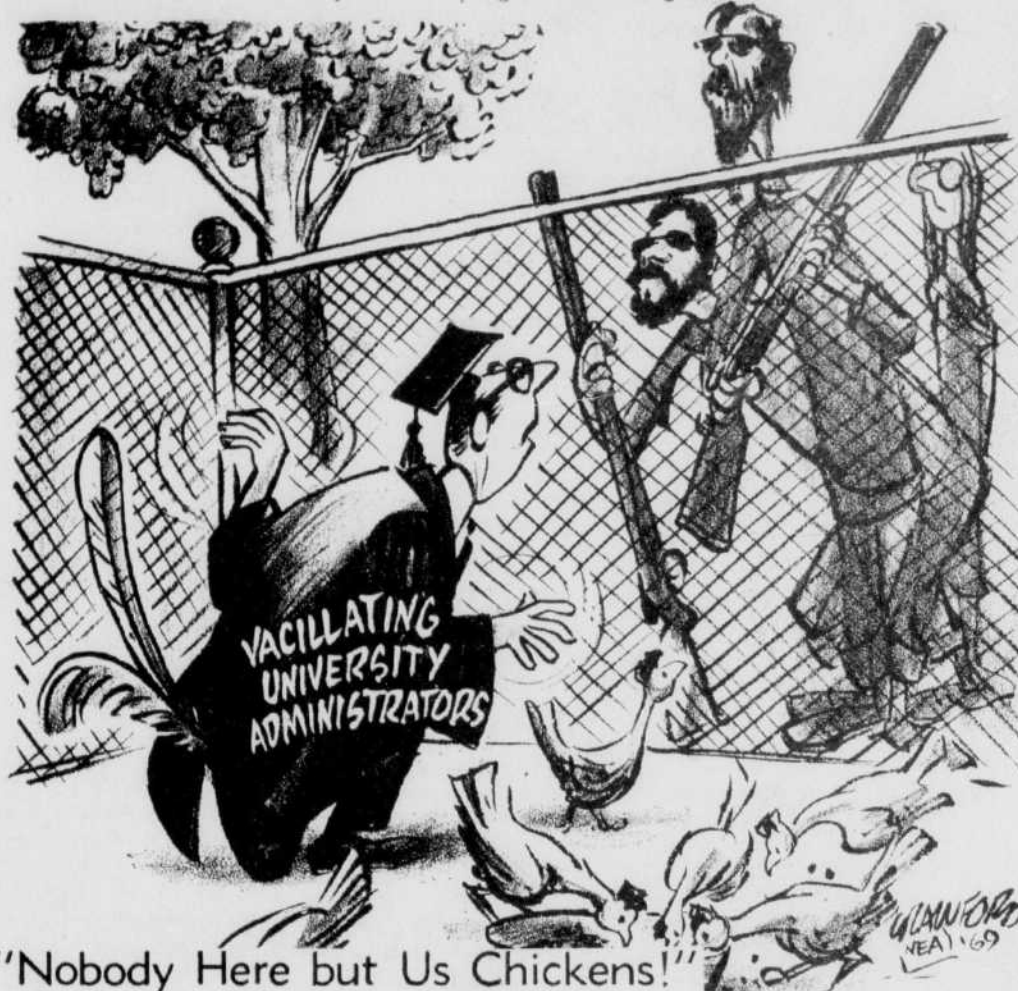

The problems with which the West is faced include many far more insidious threats than overt military aggression, chief among them being the incessant campaign of political warfare, propaganda and subversion waged on a global scale. It is a campaign the aim of which is not so much to win converts for the Communist cause outright but to weaken the will of the peoples of the free world to resist the spread of Communism and to confuse Western public opinion as to the aims of the Communist states.

Chevrolet Pacesetter Values

This year's cars at less than last year's prices.

You already know where most prices are going. Up. So you'd naturally expect the brand-new '69 cars shown here to cost a lot more than last year. Fact is, many cars in this year's line-up from Chevrolet cost less, much less, than last year's models. For instance, the 2-door Impala, equipped with power disc brakes, Turbo Hydra-matic transmission, whitewalls, wheel covers and head restraints, plus a bigger motor than last year, is yours for $120.50* less than last year's figure. And comparable savings are waiting for you on many Nova, Chevelle and Camaro models. In other words, you can buy many of this year's cars at less than last year's prices. Which is what putting you first is all about. From the top, Chevy Nova, Chevelle Malibu, Camaro and Impala.

Plans for the annual spring flower show are set at Bedford Horticultural meeting

BEDFORD — An executive meeting of the Bedford Horticultural Society was held at the home of the president, Ronald Martin, on May 8.

Minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. George Harland. Report of the treasurer, Miss Margaret Beauvais, showed expenditures of $13 and a bank balance of $547.11. A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. Harry Jones, for a gift from the Society. She was one of the judges in the Christmas decorations contest.

Mrs. Yates, Stanbridge East, is chairman of the spring flower show, which will be held on May 23 in the St. James Church Hall, both afternoon and evening. Tea will be served in the afternoon with Mrs. Clayton Campbell in charge from 3 to 5:30 p.m. Tea will be served until 9 p.m. in the evening. Exhibitors are requested to bring flowers on Thursday evening. There will be no fee for children's entries. Judging will be completed prior to the serving of tea.

The theme will be A Salute to Yesterday, the mid- and late-Victorian era of our grandmothers and great-grandmothers. Exhibitors, whenever possible are to arrange flowers in old-fashioned containers and to use antique accessories as well. Accessories are permitted in all classes.

With imagination the simplest of items can be turned into a distinctive accessory, for example, a bit of cross-stitched linen can be placed under an arrangement, or even an old bread pan, sprayed black and flanked by a black iron sad iron can vividly suggest the days of yesteryear. The following are the novice classes, open to those who have not exhibited before.

Class 1, Nostalgia, a small basket suitable for hanging on a door, not to exceed 15 inches. The custom of hanging a basket of flowers on a favorite neighbor's door on May Day was one of the old charming and sentimental gestures.

Class 2, Minuet, a nosegay type arrangement for dining table center, to be 12 to 14 inches in height.

Class 3, Lavender and Old Lace, a delicate arrangement in pastel tones not to exceed 12 inches, suitable for living room or dressing table.

Class 4, Tea and Sympathy, 12 inches, small arrangement for tea table.

Class 5, Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree, not to exceed 20 inches, in rather heavy container.

Class 6, God Bless Our Home, a vertical arrangement for an entrance hall, not more than 18 inches, accessory could be a piece of cross stitch.

Class 7, Tiptoe Through the Tulips, an arrangement, using tulips only, in combination with distinctive foliage or branches, i.e., pussy willows, not more than 18 inches.

Class 8, The Heart of the Home, an arrangement to be viewed from one side only, suitable for the mantel, not more than 20 inches.

Class 9, Family Reunion, table center not more than 15 inches.

Class 10, The What Not, an arrangement to be viewed from one side only, suitable for table or what not, not to exceed 12 inches.

Class 11, Mother's Day, a living room bouquet, not more than 18 inches.

Class 12, Get-well Wishes, for a bedside table, not more than 10 inches.

Children, the two above classes to be divided into two age groups, under 7, and 8 to 12.

An additional class will be judged on quality of bloom, arrangements not be considered. Ninety-one dollars was spent last year on prizes at the spring flower show.

Mrs. Riel, membership convener, reported 123 members.

An excellent donation of vegetable and flower seeds has been received from a seed house. Mrs. Clayton Campbell is in charge of the children's gardens, the prizes for which will be awarded at the Missisquoi County Agricultural Society in August. The gardens are in two categories, vegetable and flowers, four vegetables, corn, carrots, beets and beans; flowers, phlox, zinnias, petunias and marigolds. Age groups 7 to 9 and 10 to 12. There will be no charge for entries for the children. Mr. McIntyre, who addressed the society in March, asked that his fee for the evening be given towards the children's prizes at the fair.

The president reported that Mrs. Lloyd Elliott, who is looking after obtaining flower prizes for the fair, was meeting with excellent success.

The matter of again placing flower containers about the town, as has been done during previous years by the Society, was discussed. The chairman of the project is D. Rhicard.

Following the business meeting, refreshments were served by Mrs. Martin.

Father held responsible

FARNHAM (CP) — A coroner's inquest Tuesday held Philippe Mercier, of this community 45 miles southeast of Montreal, criminally responsible in the death of his three-year-old son last March.

Mercier, who faces arraignment Friday, allegedly shot his son with a .22 calibre rifle and then tried to shoot himself.

MOTHER'S DAY — The Waterloo Kiwanis Club featured Miss Francine Lemay of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada in Sherbrooke, as

Mother of the year is honored by Kiwanis

WATERLOO — (Special) — The Mother's Day meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Waterloo May 6 was highlighted by the announcement of Mrs. Alice Buckland as Mother of the Year, and by a charming speaker from Bell Telephone.

Mrs. Buckland was chosen by a committee of Kiwanians, and was presented with a lovely bouquet of talisman roses by Mrs. Henry Snow. Mrs. Snow told of Mrs. Buckland's six sons, and of her interest in community life, and of her marvelous personality. The event was a complete surprise to Mrs. Buckland, who was thrilled to be so honored.

The guest speaker, Miss Francine Lemay, from Bell

Canada in Sherbrooke, spoke on what's happening in Bell Telephone's world. Miss Lemay's position is to train switchboard operators and receptionists for any companies wishing for this service from the Bell. She also showed a film entitled Plans for Pleasant Living, concerning interior decorating and color schemes.

Miss Lemay also demonstrated the right and the wrong ways to use the telephone. Other information she passed along was that station to station calls were much cheaper than person-to-person, as three of the former calls to reach a number would still cost less than a person-to-person call. She also mentioned that there is a twenty-cent surcharge on any collect calls. The speaker also told about conference calls, whereby three or more persons in different parts of the country could be connected via telephone simultaneously. The Bell pre-arranges these calls which are especially popular at Christmas time. She was thanked by Mrs. John Chapman.

For and about Women

Blank mind, trembling voice, dry throat and shaky knees.

MONTREAL (CP) — Any one who quakes at the prospect of having to address an audience—large or small—may glean some comfort from the knowledge that about 95 of every 100 persons share his fear.

The fear varies in intensity and manifests itself in different ways—blank mind, trembling voice, dry throat or shaky knees. But it is still basically a fear of the unknown, says a man who has taught courses in human relations for the last 10 years.

Edward Glowka, president of E. J. Glowka and Associates Inc., which holds the Quebec franchise for Dale Carnegie courses, said he encounters between 800 and 1,500 "introverted" persons annually.

They may approach him on the eve of a big speech, needing instantaneous advice and support. Or they might call him right after a disastrous public appearance because they have vowed never to let such a traumatic experience repeat itself.

CAN'T COUNTER FEAR

"Telling such people not to be afraid is a useless tactic," he says. "A rational approach can never counter an irrational fear."

"The only key to self-confidence in public speaking, as in learning to swim or drive a car, is to experience several consecutively successful talks."

"In the process of achieving this success, a person begins to relax and finds time to probe within himself. He examines his personal attitudes and feelings, and often he comes up with startling discoveries."

"You can't change a person, but you can use all his abilities and assets—help him to throw off his self-imposed constrictions and express what he feels."

A psychologist named William James had a theory that most humans function at only 10 per cent of their capacity.

"So, although I can't give anyone any qualities they don't already possess, I can make him aware of his own. Everyone has something unusual, even rare, about his character and personality."

"Once he loses his fear of himself, of exposure—once he feels secure in himself—he can shrug off his facade and start paying attention to others."

Mr. Glowka stressed that several factors can contribute to a successful public talk, but of major importance is the simple phrase, "Earn the right to speak."

BETA SIGMA PHI

The regular meeting of Xi Beta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held Monday, May 5, at the home of Mrs. Stewart Hansford.

Following the opening ritual and roll call, Mrs. Kenneth Herring reported on the success of the rummage sale held recently.

Mrs. Stewart Hansford reported on progress of plans for the 25th anniversary celebration to be held May 24 and 25.

Mrs. Hansford is general convener with Mrs. John Lacroix convener of social events; Mrs. Guy Blanchette, program and entertainment; Mrs. William Richardson, favors and Mrs. Philippe Lagasse, in charge of the tour of the University of Sherbrooke and Medical Center.

QUEBEC PRESBYTERIAL WMS

The Quebec Presbyterian WMS annual rally was held on May 10 at St. Paul's Church, Scotstown. Representatives from Auxiliaries in Milan, Scotstown, Asbestos-Danville, Upper Melbourn, l'Eglise des Cantons de l'Est (Melbourn) and Sherbrooke participated in the event which had as its theme "Onward and Forward".

Presbyterian president Mrs. H. Mayhew, Lennoxville, brought greetings from the Rev. E. Bragg, of Quebec City, from the Rev. G. Doran, of Melbourn, and from Mrs. P. W. Murray, Synodical president.

Mrs. R. LaRoche, representing l'Eglise des Cantons de l'Est, conducted the opening devotions, with Mrs. G. Doran reading the service of remembrance. Mrs. K. A. MacDonald welcomed the visitors on behalf of the Scotstown Auxiliaries.

Following the reading of the minutes of the 1968 Rally, Auxiliary members reported on the policy of recruitment instituted at that time.

During the year, attempts were made to bring the work of the WMS to the attention of the local congregations, by participating in church services, visiting shut-ins, and home helpers and by inviting other members of the congregation to share in Thankoffering Services. Members of the Presbyterian executive visited l'Eglise St. Mark and St. Andrew's Church in Quebec City recently.

An interesting resume of the recent Synodical meetings held in Vernon, Ontario, was given by the five delegates from this area.

A spirited discussion of the foregoing reports followed. During this period, it was decided that attempts should be made to tailor children's programs to meet the needs of the children involved, that individual Auxiliaries be asked to consider the use of dime cards to help in meeting allocations. It was also suggested that groups consider featuring a bread and cheese meal at one event during the year, with proceeds to go to the general fund.

The aim for the coming year is co-operation with other auxiliaries.

Mrs. William Fitch gave a most interesting summary of literature available.

After the closing prayer, all present enjoyed a bountiful dinner served in the Church Hall by the members of the Scotstown Auxiliaries.

The afternoon session opened with prayer by Mrs. George D. A. MacDonald, of Milan. Miss Margaret Boyd, regional secretary, directed an interesting workshop during which three committee members outlined the duties of officers at the Synodical, Presbyterian and local levels. Mrs. D. Campbell, Sherbrooke, presented a filmstrip entitled, "Do You Care?" which stressed the importance of one aspect of WMS work, which is to provide leadership in children's and girls' organizations.

On the lighter side, Mrs. Burns MacDonald, Scotstown, gave a delightful skit illustrating the difficulties encountered in preparing for a WMS meeting.

Speaking for historian Mrs. P. Boy, Scotstown, Mrs. J. E. MacDonald paid tribute to the members of the Sherbrooke afternoon Auxiliary which was forced to disband during the previous year.

The 1970 rally will be held at St. Andrew's Church, Sherbrooke. The closing prayer was read by Mrs. Mayhew in the absence of Mrs. W. Laurison, Lennoxville.

The Rev. Donald Gillis gave the benediction. Before returning to their homes, those present enjoyed a delicious tea in the Church Hall.

Refinery project launched

ST. ROMUALD, Que. (CP) — Construction of a multi-million-dollar oil refinery in this community across the St. Lawrence River from Quebec City began Wednesday with Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand turning the first sod.

After the ceremony, Paul Boyd, president of Golden Eagle (Canada) Ltd., which is building the refinery, announced plans for a $6,000,000 gasoline station building program over a three-year period in Quebec.

The new refinery, expected to cost $70,000,000, is scheduled to begin operations in 1971 with a capacity of 100,000 barrels a day.

The construction is being handled by Procon (Great Britain) Ltd. for Golden Eagle, currently the second largest importer of refined petroleum products in Eastern Canada.

Also on hand for the ceremony were Jean Marchand, federal minister of regional development, Arnold Lorber, chairman of the board of Golden Eagle, and Marc Bisson, mayor of St. Romuald.

"We are proud of our place in the expanding economy of your province and we hope that today's ceremony will clearly indicate our confidence in the future of this great province and its people," Mr. Lorber said. Construction will get underway at the site in early June and about 1,000 local construction workers will be employed until the end of 1970.

Golden Eagle owns the only oil refinery in Newfoundland where it also has 175 gas stations. The company owns 275 stations in Quebec and expects a significant increase over the next three years.

Wreck report

MONTREAL (CP) — CNR officials said Wednesday the derailment of a passenger train at St. Bruno, 20 miles east of Montreal, was caused by "a deviation of the track which resulted from activities unrelated to railway operation."

Twenty-seven passengers on the four-coach train headed for Montreal from Campbellton, N.B., were injured Monday when three of the cars jumped the tracks as the train passed over a level crossing near the St. Bruno station at 75 miles an hour.

A statement issued after a CNR investigation said there is positive evidence that the track at the level crossing was pushed out of alignment by a heavy vehicle and that this could not have been by railway operation or equipment.

It said the stretch of track where the accident occurred had been inspected earlier in the day and that the inspecting crew had reported the track in good condition.

Plan statement

QUEBEC (CP) — Education Minister Jean - Guy Cardinal said Wednesday a meeting on the St. Leonard school problem is planned for next Wednesday.

He was replying in the national assembly to a question from William Tetley (L-Notre-Dame-de-Grace).

Mr. Tetley asked Mr. Cardinal if he had any news about a meeting with parents in the Montreal suburb.

More than 200 Grade 1 children at St. Leonard have been denied English-language instruction in the public schools.

A program of French-only instruction was begun by St. Leonard's Roman Catholic School board last September.

Robert Beale, president of the St. Leonard Parents Association which operates English-language private schools for about 200 Grade 1 children, said Tuesday the operation is running heavily into debt and that he would not be averse to asking U.S. sources for financial aid if all else fails.

Finance record

MONTREAL (CP) — A host of international financiers Wednesday witnessed the signing of agreements for the sale of $590,000,000 worth of Churchill Falls Labrador Corp. first mortgage bonds.

William Mulholland Jr., partner in Morgan Stanley and Co. of New York, whose firm was largely responsible for concluding the financing arrangements, said:

"The fact that we are meeting here today in connection with this very large financial transaction attests to the confidence with which Quebec's long-term future is viewed — justifiably so in my opinion."

In the consumption of energy from the project to the "staggering quantity of 32,000,000 kilowatt hours a year, one could hardly ask for a more persuasive indication of what lies ahead in terms of economic growth in Quebec."

The signatures brought to a close a series of agreements for the sale of the bulk of the company's bonds.

The entire project in central Labrador will cost about $950,000,000 and will produce 7,000,000 horsepower when it is completed by 1976. Initial power will become available in 1972.

Municipal vote

QUEBEC (CP) — A report tabled in the national assembly Wednesday recommends that municipal elections be held once every four years everywhere in Quebec province.

Municipal Affairs Minister Robert Lussier said the government will present legislation to reform municipal electoral laws after consultation with municipalities.

The study, prepared under the direction of Francois Drouin, Quebec's chief returning officer, amounts to 466-article proposition for new legislation.

It recommends that:

—The mandate for mayors and councillors be fixed at four years.

—The chief returning officer distribute and control special paper used for printing of ballots in all municipalities with a population of 10,000 or more.

—Municipalities over 10,000 population pay 50 per cent of the election expenses of successful candidates and those who get 20 per cent of the vote. The minister told Rene Levesque, leader of the Parti Quebecois, that the voting age will remain 21 in municipal elections even though the voting age in provincial elections is 18.

Twits Bertrand

Mr. Lesage rose in the national assembly to say that nine other premiers have endorsed the Canada - boosting event.

Quebec teachers march

QUEBEC (CP) — Thousands of elementary and secondary public school teachers marched through the streets of the provincial capital Wednesday to demonstrate in front of the legislative building against delays in settling their contract dispute.

They were joined by other teachers who moved into the city by train, bus and car, swelling the crowd on the lawn before the legislature to nearly 20,000.

After a generally orderly half-hour demonstration, watched by about 100 rain-coated policemen from behind wooden barricades, the teachers set off on a three-mile walk to a huge arena for a massive teach-in organized by the Quebec Teachers' Corporation, which represents 60,000 of the province's 70,000 teachers.

In front of the legislature a trumpet played the Last Post and the demonstrators symbolically buried a black coffin labelled "education reform." Small groups repeatedly chanted "on veut Masse!" — We want (Mause) Marcel Masse, minister without portfolio in charge of the teacher negotiations.

Some of the marchers carried an effigy of Mr. Masse and of government negotiators in the contract dispute that has dragged on for nearly two years.

WALK FIVE MILES About 5,000 placard-carrying teachers walked five miles to legislature from a field outside the suburban Ste. Foy headquarters of the predominantly French-speaking teachers' corporation.

Wednesday's walk was the windup of eight days of symbolic relay marches by teacher groups converging on the capital from various points across the province.

About 2,000 English-speaking Protestant teachers arrived from Montreal to join in the demonstration. All Protestant schools in the Montreal area were closed Wednesday.

The province's 70,000 teachers have been without a work contract since last June. Working conditions were fixed to that date by legislation which ended a series of teacher strikes in early 1967.

Negotiations for a new contract, to extend to 1971, have been going on at intervals for about 23 months.

TEACHERS

gest rather than direct. Eventually the plans will include students up to 19 years of age. Graduates will be prepared to write state examinations as well as the UNESCO International Baccalaureate.

Architects were sent to Sherbrooke to familiarize themselves with the Dienes philosophy. They also studied school design in Canada, the United States and England. Of the one hundred schools they have designed, this one gave them the greatest satisfaction, they told Mr. Durnin.

Located on a five-acre site, the school is a single storied building, regarded as simpler for circulation. With no staircases and few corridors, the classrooms are grouped in twos and fours around the gym, administrative offices and kitchens. Libraries are included in the classroom groupings.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Durnin were born and educated in London, attending some of the same schools. Mr. Durnin graduated from Goldsmith College, University of London in 1963. He once failed maths, blamed the teacher, and proceeded to write another math exam three months later, passing handsly.

Mrs. Durnin graduated from Avery Hill Training College and continued to teach after her marriage. She has taught in many of the same schools as her husband, with no resulting problems, she said. She will not, however, be his assistant at Le Verseau, because of the possibility of creating disharmony with other members of the staff. Mr. Durnin says she has submerged her career to some extent, in deference to his, but is one of the few women who becomes "involved" in teaching.

Their first exposure to Dr. Dienes' approach to the teaching of mathematics was in Leicestershire, where he started a modern math program in 1957.

Mr. Durnin was the first to become involved, and gradually converted his wife. Since her students continued in his classes, the need seemed evident to him.

Teachers learn the concept in the same manner as children. Many, he says, grasping the fundamentals of mathematics for the first time. He likes the comprehensive approach, the continuity and the natural adaptability of all types of children with different learning abilities, to it.

In 1968, Mr. Durnin, accepted a post as educational director of a boarding school in Normandy, his wife as teacher.

In a special school of exceptionally bright children with emotional problems, he was invited to implement Dr. Dienes' theories, on the premise that the children were disturbed as a result of the rigidity of the educational system.

Classroom teaching, already rejected by the children, was abolished. Instead, Mr. Durnin organized 12 "clubs". Subject matter was presented in a variety of ways, inside and outside the school, with the students entirely free to partake or not to, in any one, and at any level that interested them. Attendance soared.

Co-ordinating his work with that of psychiatrists and psychologists, 50 per cent of the students have been streamed back into the public school system yearly.

Mr. and Mrs. Durnin arrived in Normandy in January of 1968, speaking only school French. They left in March of this year with a complete command of the language. A bilingual secretary, patient colleagues and children who, surprisingly, didn't take advantage, helped, but the experience was not a difficult one.

While he remains a consultant and director of the school, a staff, steeped in his methods, continues the work. He was approached by Dr. Dienes' publisher in France, to become principal of Le Verseau. Two hundred teachers applied for positions at the school. Four of a potential staff of eight have been accepted.

Collaborating with colleagues, the applications were narrowed to 25, who were interviewed personally. Motivation, love of children and the ability to teach, not for instance, teach history, were some of the qualifications considered mandatory.

He met Dr. Dienes, personally, for the first time this year, and worked with him at a training session in London at Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. Durnin were working with Dr. Dienes at Ecole Ste. Famille on Tuesday, one of the six city schools in which Dr. Dienes is involved.

Mr. Durnin doesn't know much about the university of Sherbrooke, but he is impressed with any university able to attract and keep a man of Dr. Dienes' stature. As far as he is concerned the name Dienes is synonymous with psychomathematics.

No doubt you've heard the term "grey matter" used as a reference to people's intelligence, and their ability to reason. The people who write for our newspaper have a lot of "grey matter", in fact, Le Progrès' editors and reporters write the facts as they see them, and a lot of "grey matter" is credited with the articles prepared for this French weekly. You can gain a lot by reading Le Progrès... gain an insight into events from the French population's side of the fence. You'll enjoy seeing what is attributed to our writers' "grey matter"!

"Magog is on the Move" is new merchants' slogan

"Magog is on the Move," is a new slogan being used by merchants in this community, who believe in the future of this community.

"We've seen hard times, and there'll probably be rough days ahead, but surely Magog will come out of the slump that has hit everyone, not only in this centre," one Main Street retailer said this week.

The answer is progressive thinking, and determination, and this calls for a united front to get things rolling in the city. "Magog on the Move," or as it is translated into French, "Magog de l'Avant," is little more than a motto, but a good reminder that a lot can be accomplished, and people here, especially the retailers are

Study explains value of site

A special survey, conducted by a Montreal team of economists, has outlined the various financial, social and municipal development aspects associated with the present building owned by the City of Magog, the former federal building and post office here. The translated resume written from this survey takes many factors into consideration, and because of their technical nature, your Record will publish the findings over a four-week period on a Magog page.

This week's story deals with the economic and social aspects that the sale of the city owned property could have on Magog.

Purchased from the Government of Canada by Magog for $20,000, an additional $24,000 has been spent on the building for renovations, making the actual cost $44,000. Present income from the building amounts to $4,363.80 annually, however, cost of maintenance, heating, and the minimum of 6 per cent that Magog is losing from its investment amounts to an estimated $9,756.55 a year.

Looking to the future, the city has estimated a possible loss of $7,700 for the present year, while noting that the loss in 1968 was $4,800. The cost of keeping the building, according to the resume, could amount to between $5,000 and $8,000 annually, besides addition of the accumulated deficit.

The team studying the feasibility of maintaining, or selling the former post office building points out that there could be a saving yearly from five to eight thousand dollars by selling the property, then to this could be added the taxes realized from the site, plus the interest derived from the funds.

The proposal to demolish the old post office building, and to establish a display centre, could, the survey team notes, net the city somewhere in the vicinity of $1,000 a year in added taxes.

Further details included in the survey will be published over the next three weeks.

From the City of Magog's point of view, Mayor Theroux and his aldermen are open to suggestions, and while they haven't taken a stand, as to what they'll do with the property in question, they say the matter deserves careful study and consideration of the community's interest.

$35,000 OFFERED FOR MAGOG BUILDING — At a recent Magog council meeting, the municipality read a letter from J. Aime Choquette, offering $35,000 for the former post office building, now owned by the community. The site was sold to Magog by the federal government for $20,000. A decision on the offer is still pending. (Record photo: Charles Catchpaugh)

FALSE BUT TRUE — Some Magog citizens still argue that the signs at the three principal entrances to Magog are misleading, and should be corrected because they show the city's population as 16,000 instead of being in the vicinity of 13,500. Business people in Magog, and those associated with the tourist industry, insist the walking population of Magog, during the busy days of the week even tops

16,000, and they are taking into account the large influx of shoppers from miles around. The city's own list of residents, augmented by cottage residents in this vicinity quite likely tip the roster over 16,000, but who actually knows? Given a chance, city officials say, and they'll boost Magog's population to 16,000, and this figure is based on the projected hopes for new industry. (Record photo: Charles Catchpaugh)

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Take These Precautions
If a Tornado Strikes

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

A tornado is a violent storm characterized by a twisting wind which may reach a velocity of 300 miles per hour and usually travels in a northeasterly direction. Although it may strike at any time it is most likely to occur when the weather is changing from cold to warm and chiefly in the late afternoon. Over 840 tornadoes occur in the United States every year.

These tornadoes may uproot trees and hurl other objects through the air with lethal force. Typically a tornado starts on a hot humid afternoon when dark clouds appear in the sky accompanied by thunder, lightning and a loud hissing or roaring sound.

During a heavy storm, you should keep your radio or television set on and listen for official Weather Bureau warnings. Mere rumors should be disregarded. If a tornado warning is received and you are in a building, you should go at once to the southwest corner of the cellar. In a house with no basement you should take cover under a bed or heavy table.

Open the windows that do not face the approaching storm, then stay away from them. If you have time you should turn off all gas and electric appliances and keep a flashlight with fresh batteries handy.

If you are in open country, move away from the tornado at right angles to its path. If it is nearly on you do not get into or stay in a car. Jump into the nearest ditch or ravine and lie flat until the twister has passed. Don't touch any fallen wires but report them promptly to the power company, the police or the fire department. Above all you should keep calm.

Q—My wife is a great believer in nutrition books and has the whole family taking brewer's yeast, lecithin, calcium and vitamin C. Is there any harm in taking the above every day?

A—There is no harm in taking them but for most persons they are not necessary. Brewer's yeast is an excellent source of the vitamin B complex. A well-balanced diet, however, should give you all the vitamins B and C you need. Milk and milk products will supply your calcium requirements. Lecithin will lower your cholesterol level if it is high but for this purpose other preparations are better.

Gordon Keel writes from Vancouver, British Columbia: "My partner might well have dropped the bidding at two hearts and I should have stopped at three, but I tried a three-spade call, whereupon he put me in the spade game. It was a mighty poor contract but with trumps breaking 3-2, the heart finesse on and the king of clubs in back of the ace I had no trouble making my contract and winning the rubber."

The interesting feature of the hand lies in what might have been. If I had bid four hearts I would have had a chance to make a smother play. I have never seen one in my 40 years at the table and there it was if only I had bid differently. Of course, I might have failed to make it."

The smother play is the rarest of plays in bridge. Let's show this one.

East wins the first trick with the ace of diamonds and leads a club to his partner's ace. A second club is won in dummy and hearts led and finessed twice. South stops when he finds that trumps are divided 4-1. It does not look as if he has any other play for his contract except to find some very favorable spade situation but the smother play is still there. South must cash the ace and king of spades and ruff the last club. Then he cashes dummy's two good diamonds and then throws West in with the last spade.

Dummy holds the jack-nine of hearts, East the king-small and South the ace of hearts and a spade. West must lead a club or diamond. Dummy ruffs and East's king of trumps is smothered. If he plays it now South overruffs him in turn, if he ruffs low South simply chucks his last spade.

Expos defeated again by Astros

Camper grows to rolling tide

Juan Marichal of San Francisco Giants says he's worked out the problem of the lower pitching mound and that spells trouble for the rest of the National League.

"I would have to say that was my best game of the year," Marichal said Wednesday night after he pitched the Giants to a 3-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. It was his fifth victory in seven decisions.

Marichal, 26-9 with a 2.43 earned run average last year, started off slowly this year. The trouble, he says, was the lowering of the pitching mound.

"I found out that I had to bend my left knee a little more so I could put the ball where I wanted to," he said. "I always want to keep it low."

"When you keep it low they'll get their hits, but you can do better."

"I kept it low this time and I had good control."

In other National League games, New York Mets defeated Atlanta Braves 9-3, Chicago Cubs edged San Diego Padres 3-2 for their fourth straight victory; St. Louis Cardinals nipped Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1; Cincinnati Reds topped Philadelphia Phillies 4-2 and San Francisco Giants beat Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0.

CAP BIG INNING

Cleon Jones' grand slam homer, J. C. Martin's triple and George Stone's wild pitch capped the Mets' biggest inning in five years and sent the Braves reeling to their first setback in five games.

Marichal scattered four Pittsburgh hits and delivered the only run he needed with a fifth inning single.

Dick Dietz tripled off Jim Bunning in the fifth before the Giants' ace singled to break a scoreless tie.

The Cubs trailed 2-1 when Ernie Banks led off the ninth inning with his fifth homer. Nate Oliver followed with a double and, after an intentional walk, Willie Smith's pinch single knocked in the winning run, sending the first place Cubs five games ahead of Pittsburgh in the Eastern Division.

St. Louis managed only two hits off Bill Singer and Jim Brewer, but made two fourth-innings runs stand up behind the clutch relief pitching of Joe Hoerner.

Joe Torre's single and Vada Pinson's sacrifice fly drove in the runs and Hoerner rescued winner Nelson Briles from a first-and-third jam with one out in the seventh.

Homers by Alex Johnson and Lee May, plus George Culver's tight ninth-inning relief pitching, carried the Reds past Philadelphia, pinning the Phils with their sixth consecutive loss.

Culver replaced Jim Merritt with two on in the ninth, filled the bases with a walk and then stopped the Phillies cold.

Denny Lemaster fired a five-hitter for his first victory after five losses as the Astros topped Montreal on Jesus Alou's two-run homer in the eighth. Alou connected off Jim Grant following a two-out throwing error by Maury Wills.

Long shots paying off are not rare or unusual events in sport, but every time they happen a ripple of excitement sweeps through the fans.

Camper is a long-shot dark horse only starting to pay off, and the ripples he caused last year by being named Canada's harness horse of the year now threaten to grow into a rolling tide.

Camper is a four-year-old with only one full racing season under his harness for owners John Harris and Harold Swartzentruber of Kitchener, Ont.

But already he's returned $51,334 on their investment of $325 with every indication that nothing but success is in the future for him.

The immediate target for the small—151 hands—trotter is the $100,000 Roosevelt International Aug. 16. But to get there, Camper has to pass a checkpoint called the Civic Holiday Stakes at Toronto's Greenwood track Aug. 4.

Until recently this appeared simply a matter of showing up to accept the invitation from Roosevelt, which has stipulated the Civic Holiday trot as the test race for Canadian aspirants to the International.

But in a race Camper was supposed to win in early May without even sweating, he broke at the start and finished a fading third after having to make up 25 lengths in a gallant bid to overtake the surprised leaders.

Nevertheless, the drive to make up lost track by Camper and driver Bill Habbirk of Aylmer, Ont., showed the spirit and stamina of the horse as much as his break at the start showed there's no sure thing in horse racing.

Habbirk, whose wife Sadie trains Camper, said after the race his horse was simply too eager to get going, and mentioned that it wasn't the first time by a long shot that Camper had broken.

He did it a few times last year, when he won $43,774 with 13 wins in 19 starts, but had settled down to be one of the steady horses on Ontario tracks.

When Harris first saw him as a weanling, and took Camper off Habbirk's hands for $325, there was little to recommend him but a nice face.

"He was terribly thin and weak looking," Harris recalls. "Seems the entire stock where he had been foaled had suffered from the same virus."

"But Bill liked him and said it was just the equivalent of a bad cold in a human. That was enough for me."

TURNTOWN TO PASTURE

The horse was turned out to pasture and soon lost his look of emaciation. But his debut as a two-year-old was delayed when he kicked himself in his stall and got a further six months' rest.

Since then, though, Camper has lost little time in securing a place among Canadian bettors. So strong a favorite is he that, after winning his first two races this year, he was backed down to 1-9 odds for the third race in which he broke.

Then, instead of showing their disappointment, his backers gave him a standing ovation for his gallant attempt to recoup.

Now all they're waiting for is another chance to cheer him for a victory in the International as they did Canadian horses Tie Silk in 1962 and Armbrø Flight in 1966.

Angels scrape 1-0 win over Senators

Baseball managers Ted Williams and Billy Martin are wondering today about the big one that got away.

Williams watched Wednesday night as his Washington Senators outslug California Angels eight hits to three and lost 1-0, while Martin of Minnesota Twins saw Paul Blair of Baltimore Orioles climb the centre field wall to rob Rod Carew of a game-winning homer.

The Angels scored the game's only run on a bases-loaded walk to Bubba Morton.

Blair had just about wrecked Minnesota with his bat, driving in five runs with a pair of homers and a single as Baltimore built up a 9-2 lead against Minnesota. Then the Twins closed to 9-8 and with a man on in the ninth, Carew hit what looked like a game-winning homer until Blair's leaping catch.

Elsewhere, Boston Red Sox

nipped Oakland Athletics 2-1. New York Yankees tripped Seattle Pilots 5-4, Cleveland Indians edged Kansas City Royals 3-2 in 11 innings and Chicago White Sox shut out St. Louis Cardinals 6-0.

EXPECTED BAD NIGHT

Williams knew it wasn't Washington's night in the sixth after Frank Howard and Bernie Allen opened with singles. Ken McMullen flied out, but Ed Brinkman singled.

Howard zoomed around third, but the throw cut him down at home plate. Catcher Tom Egan was bowled over by the big man, but bounced up and fired to third, catching Allen to complete a double play and take the Angels out of the inning.

In the bottom half, walks to Jim Fregosi and Roger Repoz sandwiched around a single by Jay Johnstone loaded the bases and Morton walked, forcing in the game's only run.

Tony Conigliaro drove in both Boston runs with a pair of timely singles and Ray Culp hurled a six-hitter, striking out 11 Athletics. The victory was Boston's ninth in the last 10 games and the loss ended a seven-game winning streak for Oakland.

Flamboyant Frank Shaughnessy dies

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank (Shag) Shaughnessy, well-known sports personality and one-time president of the International Baseball League, died early today in a Montreal hospital. He was 86.

A tall, grey-haired native of Amboy, Ill., Shaughnessy's life in both baseball and football was marked by flamboyance and success.

He coached in the International League before assuming its presidency in 1936. He was constantly on the lookout for methods of improving rules for the benefit of players and spectators.

He headed the league until 1960 when he retired at the age of 77.

After a spotty career in American League farm clubs in his youth and occasional stints as a football coach in small American colleges, Shaughnessy went to Montreal's McGill University to accept a coaching job on a football team.

Sportsmen continue to respond

The majority of Canadian athletes and sports officials seem pleased with recommendations of the study group on sport, but Bunny Ahearne and Avery Brundage are unimpressed.

The group's report, tabled Monday in the House of Commons by Health Minister John Munro, was greeted unfavorably by the two international sports officials.

Brundage, 81-year-old president of the International Olympic Committee, said in a telephone interview with The Telegram in Toronto Tuesday that Canada should abide by Olympic rules or withdraw from competition.

He was referring to a section of the report which says "the prevailing Olympic rules are unrealistic" and suggests Canada establish its own Olympic rules "according to our situation."

"Olympic rules are written by the representatives of 125 different countries throughout the world," said Brundage. "Until they're changed, they should be respected."

AHEARNE CRITICIZED

Ahearne, czar of world amateur hockey, was angered that the report called him a "shrewd, garrulous and controversial gentleman," and said it was "odd that so much leadership direction rests in a man who has no real base beneath him in his own country Britain in terms of players and leagues."

"It is strange that I'm being attacked by a country I did a big favor for in Stockholm, when I helped push through the idea of allowing six pros to play in next year's tournament in Canada," said Ahearne in London, England.

Physical fitness expert Lloyd Percival of Toronto was one of many Canadians, however, who applauded recommendations in the report.

"I think the report in general is realistic and practical," he said. "With proper implementation it will be what we've been waiting for."

He was especially enthusiastic about the recommendation to allow contributions to amateur sport by individuals or corporations to be tax deductible.

AFFECTS FUND RAISING

Middle distance runner Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., agreed with Percival.

"That donations for sport are not tax deductible has hurt fund-raising drives in the past," he said.

"Jim Worrall, Canada's permanent representative on the International Olympic Committee, said in Ottawa that criticism of the Olympic organization was 'entirely justified.'"

Sprinter Harry Jerome of Vancouver, who is now working for the government in a sport advisory capacity, called the report "a tremendous step forward."

Jake Gaudaur, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, said in Hamilton he thought the report would have little effect on his league.

Jim Mossman, coach of Canada's paddlers at the 1968 Olympics, said the idea of forming a central sports administration was a good one "if the centre is handled intelligently."

HOCKEY PLAYERS PLEASED

Representatives of professional hockey players were elated with recommendation that the reserve clause in National Hockey League player contracts be replaced with an option clause.

The reserve clause binds a player to a team once a contract is signed. Under an option clause, a player may elect to play the final year of his contract at a 10-per-cent pay reduction and then become a free agent to negotiate with any other team.

Al Eagleson, a Toronto lawyer and legal advisor to the NHL Players' Association, said in a telephone interview from Frankfurt, Germany, it will "be good for hockey that the players have the right to play out their option."

"It will give the player an additional bargaining point."

NHL President Clarence Campbell told a news conference that government intervention in the reserve clause would be disastrous. He said that reserve clause is the keystone of the entire structure of organized pro team sports.

DISAGREES WITH CLAIM

Campbell disagreed with the report's claim that it is unfair for the league president to be sole arbitrator in any salary dispute between a player and the club management.

He said the league's existing arbitration provision is "something less than ideal" but no practical alternative has been suggested.

In the 13 salary arbitrations in the last two years, satisfaction has been expressed in all cases by the players' legal representatives.

The NHL president added that the league agrees with the report's claim that the low draft age of 20 years can interfere with the player's education.

The league was studying a system under which university students would not be drafted until their graduating years.

Campbell said the "task force" was mistaken when it said a player can be fined for "indifferent play."

No club had the authority to fine a player, although a player could be suspended.

WANTS HELP ENDED?

The league president said he does not think the "task force" wants the NHL to stop assisting the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association financially.

In May, 1967, the NHL, at the request of the CAHA, had agreed to terminate the sponsorship of all amateur teams and abolish all forms of agreement with amateur players.

No amateur player would be "turned professional" until he had exhausted his eligibility as a junior—under 20 years of age.

The "task force" report recommended that the NHL discontinue annual payments of $75,000 to the CAHA "to provide expanded administrative facilities of all kinds."

Campbell said the NHL is prepared to comply with the request as soon as an alternative source of income for the CAHA is available.

The "task force" recommended federal government grants as an alternative.

The new tough beauties

A new breed of motor cars, with the sleekness of a siamese kitten and the strength of a jungle lion, has burst upon the Canadian scene. Meet the Peugeot 204's, featuring a front wheel drive which laughs at Canadian winters, without needing snow tires. But, f.w.d., gives something more, space. You will find the 204 bigger on the inside where it counts and smaller on the outside where it costs. Through the use of a light alloy overhead camshaft engine, Peugeot engineers have seen to it that this fine motor car offers the optimum in staying power. You will find the 204 will endure even the longest trips at maximum speed. And because it has the sophisticated and unique Peugeot patented suspension, it will withstand continuous punishment even under the most adverse driving conditions. Perhaps these are some of the reasons why the Canadian Motorist called the Peugeot 204 'one of the most interesting vehicles on the North American Market.'
