Graduating Class Huntingdon High School Honored

Dinner-Dance Held at Rod and Gun Club, Port Lewis

On Thursday evening, June 25, the graduating class of Huntingdon High was honoured at a dinner-dance held at the Rod and Gun Club, Port Lewis, and sponsored by the Students' Council of the Academy. Approximately sixty people attended, among them — the graduating class and their guests; parents of the graduates; Dr. Cook and the members of the teaching staff; the School Board commissioners and their wives; and students of Grade Ten and their guests. David Rankin, Grade Ten, acted as Master of Ceremonies and introduced Evelyn Macfarlane of the graduating class who said Grace before the dinner. The after-dinner speeches commenced with a toast to Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth, proposed by Bobby Boisseau. Then, all rose to join in a toast proposed by Beverly McCracken, Grade Ten, to the graduating class. In a style definitely all his own, Peter Fox thanked Grade Ten for the honour bestowed upon him and his classmates. (Everyone commented on Peter's impromptu speech and he was voted the after-dinner speaker most likely to succeed). In a Class Prophecy, charmingly given and delightfully amusing, Joyce Pope, Class President, visualized a 1975 edition of The Huntingdon Gleaner in which her classmates made the headlines — Dr. Peter Fox, an amazing scientist who had discovered a rocket route to the planets; Allan Martin, class Secretary of '53, as President of Rocketship Lines advising summer vacationers to visit the planets; Evelyn Macfarlane as a qualified baby nurse; Ellen de Jonge, as a brilliant surgeon whose experience as an administrator to the medical needs of the yardstick duelists and chalk hurlers of the Class of '53 had proved a benefit; Betty Phillips, as a famed novelist, whose last year in high school was spent in coining the phrase, "I hate you, I despise you, I dislike you, I abhor you, Bobby." Ellen Gordon, as secretary to Betty, proudly displaying a Hope-sized diamond on the ring finger of her left hand; and Bobby Boisseau, as the owner of an amusement park, having benefitted from the slapstick days of his year as his almo mater. Betty Phillips then delivered the valedictory speech:

"My valediction is a farewell address to a life that has been, at times, both difficult and pleasant. We have laboured cheerfully throughout eleven short years, and tonight we achieve the ultimate goal — to attend our graduation banquet. And it is with mingled pride and delight that we, the chosen few, are honoured to be feted tonight.

"We bid a fond farewell to our almo mater, Huntingdon High, which has housed us for a varying number of years. The sensation of fierce pride and devout loyalty towards the good old red and black will never wane or falter. To the members of the School Boards of yesterday and today, we extend our appreciation for the modern up-to-date building our school is today. The neat and grandiose appearance of the tall brick edifice, sheathed in a golden burst of sunlight or a feathery blanket of snow, always imparted a feeling of homeliness and friendliness. In a brief moment of reflection, we may recall the many happy hours spent around and about and within its four strong walls, and now we are gathered to express our good-byes.

"We bid a fond farewell to all the teachers of Huntingdon High — the teachers who not only acted as instructors and advisors, but as chaperones and coaches, and above all, as real friends. We thank these teachers for the wisdom, thoughtfulness, perseverence, understanding, and perhaps even courage they have displayed throughout the years.

"We bid a fond farewell to each member of the graduating class. It may be the last time we will be assembled thus. But friendships like the ones we have formed and moulded in our latter years will never die. Each one of us will go his own separate ways, but will never forget his classmates.

"Relatively independent, we face the world — only a few short years separate us from adolescence and adulthood. Perhaps it is significant that we are setting forth into the world the very same year that a radiant young Queen was crowned in Westminster Abbey. Sir Winston Churchill once observed, "Famous have been the reigns of our Queens" — and he had ample proof to support his statement, for who has not heard of the glorious Elizabethan Age and the progressive Victorian Era? The second Elizabethan Age promises much — a new era — full of discoveries and invention. With this goal in mind — to do our best — we'll put our best foot forward and conquer the world.

"Thus it is with nostalgia for the bygone days and hope and faith in the future, we bid a fond farewell to Huntingdon High School, its staff, board members, and students. To the graduating class, I quote the following words of advice: "Resolve to be thyself, and know that he who finds himself, loses his misery"."

Dr. Cook presented her with a Certificate of Award given by the Reader's Digest Association, Pleasantville, New York. Allan Martin, President of the Students' Council, gave a report on the activities of the Students' Council throughout the year, mentioning the organization, principal officers, and work accomplished. Ellen Gordon then proposed a toast to Dr. Cook, who replied with words of gratitude, and advice for the graduating class. To close this part of the program, Ellen de Jonge thanked the Students' Council with the following words:

"On this momentous occasion, I wish to express the gratitude of the graduating class to the Huntingdon Academy Students' Council who sponsored and organized this wonderful dinner-dance in our honour. I want to thank all the classes who worked so hard all year to make this "Our Graduation" an occasion that shall forever be a cherished memory to every member of our graduating class."

The inclement weather afiled to dampen the spirits of those attending and dancing to the music of Jimmy Thompson and his Orchestra was enjoyed until midnight. It was unanimously agreed that a good time was had by all.

House at Herdman's Corners Burned to Ground

About 1.30 Thursday morning, lightning struck the wiring in a house at Herdman's Corners owned by Mr. Dorian Allen and leased to Mr. Ildege Daoust. Mrs. Daoust and her three children were the only occupants of the house at the time, as Mr. Daoust was working. Mr. Daoust, who had noticed the flames, managed to save herself and the children, but the fire spread so quickly that nothing else could be salvaged. The house burned to the ground before 2:00. At present the Daoust family are staying with his father, Mr. V. Daoust.

Valleyfield Regatta Draws Record Entry

Over 200 Drivers In All Classes Entered in 2-Day Meet

The Valleyfield Regatta, scheduled to take place Saturday and Sunday, July 18-19, will be the biggest in North America according to officials of the Valleyfield Boating Club, which sponsors the event annually.

More than 200 drivers in all classes are expected to compete this year before an audience of more than 60,000 spectators. Entries have already been received from Canadian and American points.

A full racing program has been scheduled, with outboards competing on Saturday afternoon, and inboards on Sunday. A total of $2,000 in cash prizes, plus trophies, is being offered.

The Schenley Trophy is the top award being offered.

The course over which the races are run at Valleyfield is one of the finest and most attractive either in Canada or south of the border. The sloping shores of St. Francis Bay afford the spectators a clear view of the races, and the quiet waters of the bay itself provide ideal conditions for racing.

The Valleyfield Boating Club is affiliated with the Canadian Boating Federation. All boats and motors competing in sanctioned events at this regatta must be registered CBF or APBA, and all owners and drivers must be members of association affiliated with CBF or APBA.

Second Train Malone, N.Y.-Montreal Run

Transport Board Issues Order to N.Y. Central After Citizens' Appeal

The Board of Transport Commissioners issued an order on Thursday, June 25th, calling upon the New York Central Railway to put a second train into operation on the Malone, N.Y.-Montreal run.

At present a single train runs in both directions, leaving Malone at 6 a.m., arriving in Montreal at 8.20 a.m.; and leaving Montreal at 5.30 p.m. the same day.

To Start July 6

The second train starting July 6, on a three months' experimental basis, will arrive in Montreal at 7.30 a.m., and depart about 6.30 p.m.

Representations were made to the board sitting at Valleyfield, after unsuccessful appeals had been made to the railway company by a Chateauguay citizens' committee headed by S. G. Modeland, chairman of a group called "The joint committee for improved suburban passenger service, Montreal - Beauharnois." Other members of the delegation were Mrs. John Cooper, Norman Brady, Clarence McCully and Gordon Conquergood.

Mr. Modeland told the board that 800 residents of the Chateauguay district had signed a questionaire which urged a service of two trains each way daily.

On the question of operating costs, he said that 1953 was reported to be "another good year for the railroads." Revenues of the New York Central for the period January to April showed an increase of 3.5 per cent over the same period of 1952, he said.

Trains Discontinued

He added that since 1937, 12 out of the 14 trains then running daily between Beauharnois and Montreal, had been discontinued, though the population of the various municipalities affected, had largely increased.

"Taking into consideration all forms of transportation, including bus service and private motor cars, an irreducible minimum service of passenger trains between Montreal and Beauharnois" should be not less than four (two in each direction), he said. "The bus service is considered inadequate by more than 500 people interviewed for the survey," he told the board.

As a public utility, the New York Central "has a moral responsibility to provide transportation services commensurate with the needs of the district contiguous to it," he added.

COSTLY COLLISION

DEEP RIVER, Ont., (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. E. Chennette were injured and $600 damage was done to their car when it collided with a bull moose on the highway in this Pembroke district.

Successful Bible School At St. Andrew's This Year

Presentation Made to Rev. T. Knowles at Closing Session Sunday

St. Andrew's Summer Bible School ended its sixth and most successful season with a Demonstration Program on Sunday evening when a large congregation was given a glimpse of the extensive work covered and the knowledge assimilated in the two weeks of study. Bible Memory Work, hymns and choruses, outlines of courses studied and the dramatizing of an Old Testament incident made up the program, revealing painstaking work by teachers and pupils. A new feature of the School this year was a Bible Detective contest in which the children were given a question a day to be answered from the Bible. Eleven were awarded prizes for having all the answers correct. One hundred and seventeen pupils were enrolled with the attendance reaching 110 several days and averaging 108 for the whole period. Ninety-two pupils received awards for perfect attendance, which is in sharp contrast with the first year of the School when thirteen attendance prizes were earned. Prizes were also given for excellence in each class.

The Director of the School, Rev. R. D. MacLean, expressed appreciation of the enthusiasm of the pupils, the co-operation of the parents and the splendid services of the teachers and the generosity of all who contributed in any way to the carrying on of this important work. The teaching staff included Mrs. I. Laberge, Mrs. H. McCaffrey, Mrs. J. McCoy, Mrs. A. McEwen, Mrs. G. McLean, Mrs. R. D. MacLean, Mrs. H. Purcell, Mrs. F. Ross, Mrs. S. Ruddock and Mrs. W. Shearer.

Advantage was taken of the occasion to present to Rev. Thomas Knowles, minister of the Huntingdon United Church, presently retiring, a gift of a substantial check on behalf of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Mr. MacLean on behalf of the Session and Mr. L. M. Kelly on behalf of the Board of Managers each spoke of the services rendered by Mr. Knowles to Church and community and of his willing co-operation in all good things and indicated that the good wishes of St. Andrew's would follow Mr. and Mrs. Knowles in their removal from Huntingdon. Mr. Knowles though taken completely by surprise replied that he had found so much joy in what he had been able to do that any further reward seemed unnecessary but that he appreciated very much the gift and the sentiment behind it.

St. Agnes Man Commits Suicide

Only meagre details are to hand on Suicide case which occurred Sunday morning. The victim is Eusebe Richer, age 65, St. Agnes de Dundee, Que., who it is reported committed suicide by shooting himself with a 12 gauge shotgun. The body was brought to Huntingdon and later released for burial. Det. J. M. Rheault, Valleyfield and Gaston Archambault of the Homicide Squad, Montreal, investigated. The coroner's verdict was suicide while of unsound mind.

A few months ago a similar attempt was made by the same man trying to gas himself in a car, but this was foiled.

WINNER OF CAR IN CONTEST HAS OFFICIAL PRESENTATION

The above shows Mrs. E. E. Campbell of Elgin, Que., as she received the keys to the new 1953 Chevrolet car which she won in a jingle contest in a recent "Tide Contest". The presentation was made on Friday afternoon at the showroom of Huntingdon Motors Reg'd. Mrs. Campbell had to complete a jingle in 25 words or less and her offering was the winning one. She was advised of her good fortune on Coronation Day, June 2nd. As well as the car, which was equipped ready to drive away, she also received 1,000 gallons of gasoline. Mr. A. C. Bedard, representative of the company sponsoring the contest, is shown at right presenting Mrs. Campbell with the keys. Mr. C. Audette, Empire Garage Ltd., is shown at the left handing Mrs. Campbell the credit card for the gasoline. Mr. R. J. Smythe, son of Mr. James F. Smythe, proprietor of Huntingdon Motors Reg'd., who supplied the car, is shown at the extreme left. Mr. Romeo Robidoux is next and is being handed a cheque for $100 by Mr. A. Bleau, a representative of the company sponsoring the contest. Mr. Robidoux received the cheque as being the one who sold the soap product to Mrs. Campbell. It was a happy moment for Mrs. Campbell and she was thrilled with her good fortune.

St. Chrysostome

ST. CHRYSOSTOME—Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Charette motored to St. Zenon, Co. Berthier on Wednesday, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Joseph Charette. The sympathy of the community goes to them in their bereavement.

The Sewing Course under the capable direction of Miss R. Gagnon, instructress from Quebec City, has been completed. Most of the 20 fermieres who attended regularly, completed lovely dresses — other instructions were given as asked for — and the last two days smocking and other fancy stitches were demonstrated. The course was immensely appreciated, and proved a wealth of information and sewing secrets helpful to all.

There took place on Wednesday at the Parochial Hall, the monthly meeting of "Les Fermieres" with Mrs. Atkinson presiding. Miss Gagnon from Quebec as guest of the evening, gave a most interesting talk on her work. Rev. Father Julien gave a short, but enlightening talk on co-operatives and the benefits derived from them. The work of the day called for was hand trimmed pillow cases — several pairs very pretty and varied were on the table, with Mrs. Armand Boileau as prize winner. The door prize went to Mrs. Arthur Charland. The minutes of the last meeting were read. 50 members answered the roll call. The evening closed by a demonstration of Pfoff machines by Miss Gibeau and Mr. Savard. On Wednesday, June 17, forty Fermieres boarded a bus for a trip to Granby, arriving there at 10.30 —to be greeted by a cousin of the president, Mr. J. P. Provencher, who graciously guided the tour of that prosperous industrial centre.

Picnic lunch was enjoyed in the park there, a tour of the park was enjoyed by all. Such a glorious day was perfect for visiting this enchanting site with its rock gardens, shrubs, artificial lake with ducks and swans and peacocks. Then came a visit to the zoo, where a varied number of animals are to be seen—six beautiful churches are to be seen in Granby. A visit to Nordic Hosiery shop proved most interesting, as well as a tour of the court house where a beautiful gallery of paintings is to be seen as well as exhibits of the various which number 105 in Granby. At 3.30 visitors were allowed time off till 5 p.m. to visit friends and tour the stores. At five, a happy group boarded the bus homeward bound to arrive safely at 8.20. Pleasant memories of this nice outing will long linger.

Dr. Barton Honoured

A few years ago this writer, as Editor of Canadian Ayrshire Review, derived considerable pleasure in reproducing in that Ayrshire organ, an Editorial which had appeared in The Farming News and North British Agriculturist (of Scotland) and which was titled "Let's Honour Barton Now!" That article recalled that Professor Barton, then a comparatively youthful man had acted as judge at the First Ayr Show. That is the Ayrshire Breed Show which was organized in an effort to stabilize or to fix, so to speak, a definite Ayrshire type. And, said the editorial, that is just what Dr. Barton did. At that time G. H. S. Barton (the Doctorate came later) was Professor of Animal Husbandry at Macdonald College and it was therefore quite a high honour when the "Powers that were" in the Ayrshire Cattle Herd Book Society of Great Britain selected him for that task. However, he acquitted himself with distinction, and in further support of same was the editorial referred to, written some two decades after the First Ayr Show.

Dr. Barton C.M.G., as he now is, was born at Vankleek Hill, Ont., and after graduation from the Ontario Agricultural College, he went to Macdonald as the first Assistant Professor of Animal Husbandry there. In fact, during his initial years at Macdonald he was concerned with establishing that College's livestock herds, flocks and studs. The first to be so established being the Ayrshire herd.

He was successively Professor, then head of the Animal Husbandry Department, and, finally, Dean of Agriculture. During which time he had established an enviable, top rating as a judge of not only Ayrshires but of other breeds as well.

In the early 1930's he was drafted by the late Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, to fill the position of Deputy Minister of Agriculture of Canada, which position he filled with considerable distinction. In fact, after he reached the statutory retiral age, and a few more years, as Deputy Minister, he was appointed as a sort of special advisory assistant to the Rt. Hon. James G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture. During most of the time he held the latter position, he was also a Canadian representative to a United Nation's Committee concerned with Agriculture; was also chairman of same. Following that appointment he went on the United Nations' Mission to Finland, which we mentioned in this column a few weeks ago.

Last fall a number of Dr. Barton's former Colleagues at Macdonald College and former students got together and decided to have a portrait painted of him, for presentation to Macdonald. Later on a number of others who had been associated with Dr. Barton in one way or another were also invited to contribute to the necessary fund. It therefore was that a week ago the painting, by Dr. J. G. de Grise, was unveiled in Macdonald College Library, in the presence of a number of the donors who had made same possible.

The unveiling was done by Professor Alex R. Ness, one of Dr. Barton's first students and who finally succeeded him as Head of the Animal Husbandry Department. Dr. W. H. Brittain, Vice Principal of Macdonald College presented a testimonial book to Dr. Barton. It contains the names of those who had made the presentation possible and a reproduction of the painting.

Foot and Mouth Disease in Mexico

Mexico, which is Canada's rival insofar as United States cattle purchases are concerned, is still on the United States embargo list.

A serious outbreak of Foot and Mouth disease in Mexico, in 1946, resulted in an immediate embargo on Mexican cattle by the United States Bureau of Animal Industry. However, at the same time a co-operative programme on the part of both the United States and Mexico was initiated and carried out in a very thorough manner. This resulted in the slaughter of a very large number of Mexican herds in which there were infected or exposed animals; vaccination in the case of a large number of other herds. In that respect the United States was partly actuated by "good neighbourly" sentiments, partly by that if the disease was not retarded it would constitute a continued menace to U.S. herds, across the long border between the two countries. For a time it appeared that these joint efforts had been eminently successful. However last May 23, a new outbreak was discovered near Vera Cruz, Mexico, and the U.S. border was again closed to Mexican cattle.

No Slaughter!

Again, however a joint U.S.-Mexican Commission went to work in an effort to clean up the Mexican situation, using the slaughter-vaccination methods. But the Mexican Minister of Agriculture quickly ordered a stop to the slaughter phase of the programme. It is reported that the differences arose largely over the U.S. contention that the only way to eliminate the disease is to slaughter infected and exposed animals, while Mexican officials argue that vaccination is enough.

Holstein Sales

Several very good Holstein sales, including the following, have been reported during the past week or so by the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada.

The 34 head sold in the Avonbrae dispersal sale of M. O. Johnson, Mosley, Ont., brought a total of $16,485.00 or a general average of $484.00. Eighteen milking females averaged $583.00; 5 bred-heifers, $415.00; 6 heifer calves $253.00; 4 young bulls $216.00. The top price of the sale was $1,250.00 for the 6 year old cow Twilight Dorliska Brenda Mercedes. That cow had been classified "Very Good" and was milking up to 96 pounds daily on twice-a-day milking. Her 3 year old daughter sold at $775.00 and her 3 months old heifer calf sold for $300.00.

Twilight Vale Posh, six years old, classified "Very Good" and with a 3 year old record of 22,691 lbs. milk, 951 lbs. fat, sold for $1,035.00. Her 4 year old daughter sold for $700.00.

The Brownholme herd of the late Clark Brown, Woodstock, Ont., was dispersed for a total of $18,452.00 or a general average of $376.00 on the 49 head sold.

The top seller was the *Excellent cow Raymondale Susie, who brought $2,200.00 while her 6 months old heifer calf sold for $600.00. A yearling daughter also sold for $450.00 while "Susie's" two year old son, Brownholme Rag Apple Ajax, sold for $1,000.00.

Bell Service Meets the Challenge of the Tornado

When the tornado hit, window glass, dust and debris blasted into the room where operators were working at the long distance and information switchboards. Some of the girls were cut by the flying glass; all were ordered to another floor where it was safer. Even before they were asked to go back, Marna Levan (left above) and Pearl Roberts (right) returned on their own to their switchboards.

Toronto Telegram Photo

Chief Operator Alice Edwards (shown here directing an off-duty volunteer to her post at the switchboard) found all but those more seriously cut anxious to go back to their switchboards, and when the room was made safe by plant men, they did. In addition, girls off duty came in without being called, and rendered first aid, gathered food, cooked meals, and refused to leave until they were no longer required. One girl from Quebec on vacation in Sarnia came in to help. As one newspaper columnist wrote, "the Bell operators were the heroines of the Sarnia disaster".

through SARNIA'S worst night...

Truly there are times when no price can measure the value of your telephone service — ready when you want it most. Such a time came to Sarnia on May 21st when the tornado ripped through the downtown area. That night, Bell equipment — the telephone building itself — built to stand up in emergencies, came through one of the toughest tests.

An emergency power unit kept building and equipment alive. Dial mechanism, properly housed, remained undamaged. Light from the Bell — shown above streaming through the building's shattered doorway—was for hours the only electric light in downtown Sarnia. It became a beacon that told of service working for nearly all of Sarnia's 12,000 customers. Less than 1200 telephones were put out of action and by the end of the next day all but a few of these were back in service—thanks to telephone men from Sarnia, Windsor and Chatham. Outside wires suffered little damage because they were either underground out of harm's way or overhead in rear-lane areas, safer from falling trees.

THE MORNING AFTER — the Bell building stands as a symbol of continuing telephone service.

Editorial Notes...

Dominion Day

TODAY is Dominion Day (July 1st) and all Canadians will celebrate it by taking the day as a holiday and holding various forms of entertainment. It is the birthday of the Dominion of Canada. It is natural on this day that most gatherings have speeches which tell something of the history of Canada and the significance of July 1st to all Canadians. Principally the holiday is to keep in mind the fact that it is Canada's Birthday, the date on which all provinces came under the one head of Dominion.

There are those who would want to lose this identity and who prefer "Dominion Day" to be known as "Canada Day." While Canada has made great strides and has forged ahead in the world, we should still be proud of that word "Dominion," it was the founding we might say of Canada as we know it today, it is a historical fact and therefore this identity should never be lost. It is right that the reason for celebrating July 1st should always be brought to mind on this day, for it is an important day in the history of Canada.

What do we find on this particular "Dominion Day?" We are in the midst of an election campaign for the Federal Government. In a few short weeks we shall be called upon to mark our ballots in favor of the candidates we wish to represent us in the Parliament of Canada. We shall again be deciding the destinies of Canada and entrusting such to the men we elect. In the past we have been most fortunate in selecting men who have so guided the destinies of our country that on this July 1st it holds a most prominent place in world affairs. We have cause to feel proud of the place that Canada holds today. One of our Cabinet Members. Mr. Pearson holds a very high rank with the United Nations, which society is probably one of the most important in the world today. This goes to show the importance of Canada in world affairs and the voice of Canada is listened to by other nations. We have come a long way on this Dominion Day since that first birthday. With proper leadership we are destined to go still further. We should all dedicate ourselves this July 1st to do all we can to keep Canada in the lead.

The Federal Election Campaign

THE leaders of the various parties in the Federal Election Campaign have already started on their speaking tours. Some of the members have made addresses too, but we all look to the leader to really quote the platforms for the various parties. The Progressive-Conservative Party is standing firm on a platform calling for reduced taxes; The C.C.F. Party is making its bid on a National Health policy: The Liberal Party is taking its platform on past record.

Charges of extravagance are levelled at the Liberal government and the P.Cc. are confident they can run the country along cheaper line and return the savings to the taxpayer through a reduction in income tax by means of raising the exemptions. They have other ideas of reducing taxation also, but this is a main point. The Liberals on the other hand cannot see how this can be done and brand the P.Cs. platform as one the empty promises.

Local fields are just beginning to warm up and conventions are being called to choose candidates. Just how many will be chosen is yet to be learned, but if the past is to serve, then there will probably be only two, one from the Liberals and one from the P.Cs. The C.C.F. has never been a strong contender in this Province, but it could develop. If we are to keep Canada strong and out in front, then we must choose candidates who will belong to a party which can give the best support.

Interest should not lag in the election, but we should all follow with close attention what the various candidates have to tell us. At question period time, ask the questions that are in your minds, you are entitled to the answers. Maybe misunderstandings can be cleared up more this way than just listening to lot of talk from a number of speakers. People at this time are not greatly interested in long lists of figures, they want to know how their member is going to serve them when he is elected. Will he study their interests and see that their way of life is protected and preserved. If he has been previously serving, has he always looked after the people of his constituency and so forth. If a party has some concrete proposals and really intend to carry them out, that is what the people want to know. One good speaker with the information at his fingertips which the people require, will do more good for any party or candidate than a half-dozen speakers saying a lot which has no real meaning. People do not go to meetings to hear praise heaped upon anyone, they go to hear the facts and from these they will make their decision as to how they will vote on voting day. People are busy today and have no time to waste attending long winded meetings which convey no more information than they already possessed.

School Is Out

ONCE again that anxious time has arrived when parents and children all over the country scan the reports on the final examinations that have been issued and await the results of those which have not. In the lower grades the pupils already know if they have been passed to the next grade, but those in some of the higher grades must await this knowledge. There are in the graduating classes those who are already making decisions as to what they will do. Some will go on to higher schools for further education, others will seek employment and perhaps start out on their life's work. Even those who start out in employment, may only do so with the idea of earning sufficient to carry them through to a higher education in the future. Some young people definitely set a goal for themselves and strive to that end even if it takes many years to do it.

Every boy or girl who is nearing the time when the first phase of their education is nearing its end, should make plans as to what they intend to do in their after life. In other words they should form some sort of program they intend to follow. It may be an ambition and it may take plenty of grit and stamina to achieve, but it is better that way.

Some may be able to afford the higher education which will help them to achieve success in less time, others may have to start at the bottom rung of the ladder and work up by sheer ability and hard work. In any case, a goal should be set and thought given as to the best means of reaching it. Life is too important to treat it in a careless manner, the way we plan our lives can make of them success or failure. Ambition is a requisite and an important one, lacking ambition we are not likely to make much in the way of success. The student has reached graduation through dint of attention to studies and hard work. The ambition was there to pass the examination and this helped in no small way to achieve the objective. So this ambition must continue through our lives or failure, rather than success, will be our reward. We therefore urge all those boys and girls who have reached the graduation stage, to take thought and heed as to what they want to do in the future. Big paid jobs at the beginning, do not always spell success. Oftentimes the smaller paid job will turn out to be the biggest paid one in the end. When taking a job, what the future of that job holds, is the important part of it. If there is a future in it, then it is worth trying. If it is just a big paid one with no future, it is only temporary at best. Unfortunately, the lure today to day is to the big paid job regardless of what it may hold for the future. Many costly mistakes are made by decisions of this kind. Much valuable time is lost collecting the big pay when a person could be learning something far more beneficial to the future. When you go seeking employment, the thing to remember is that you are a salesman, you must sell yourself to your prospective employer. By this we mean that you must present your best qualities and convince the employer that, you can live up to them. To do this you must also have confidence in yourself and your abilities. In school you have been urged to do your best, when you are employed you will be expected to do your best without urging. Upon the attitude you take, will depend your chances of remaining employed and climbing the ladder to success.

The Academy made a fairly good showing at the Provincial Academy Field Day at Bishop's College on Saturday. Ernest Thomas and Charles Copland were the two representatives from here. Copland was in the half-mile race and was obtaining a good lead when an unexpected accident to his clothing put him out of the race.

Where Is Canada?

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

Driving through Indiana about twenty years ago in a car with an Ontario licence plate, we were parked on the main street of Fort Wayne. Several passers-by stopped to look over the car and one the them asked, "Where is Ontario?" To us, as proud Ontarians, that was like asking, "Where is Canada?" On another occasion a small town hotelkeeper refused to accept my Canadian money, which he said was "No good." I immediately went to the local bank and was referred to the manager. He was a courteous young man and he smilingly asked, "Where do you come from?" I told him, Toronto. "So do I," he said and gripped my hand with a brotherly greeting. He exchanged all my Canadian money at par. While on that trip I was told of a Canadian visitor who was having his hair cut, and when the barber learned that his customer was from Canada he said, "You speak pretty good English for a Canadian."

Such cases were no doubt exceptional even at that time, but when an American senator recently suggested that Canada should be turned over to the United States in payment for British war and other debts, it does seem as if ignorance of the status and people of Canada is still pretty widespread. This form of isolationism has, however, been broken down to some extent of late by elaborately illustrated articles in American magazines. That enlightenment was recently added to by Mr. H. G. Hilton, President of the Steel Company of Canada, in an address before the American Iron and Steel Institute, in which he presented a graphic picture of Canada's political and industrial development against its historical background. The title of Mr. Hilton's address was, "Canada — Your Dynamic Neighbour," and when he was through he left his audience in no doubt as to where Canada is — and was. Reviewing the past, he said that most Americans had taken their ideas about Canada from the movies, or from highly coloured stories about our Mounted Police. This amused Canadians generally and they were "often surprised to see the sort of country in which they were supposed to live — a barren land of perpetual snow where wolves and huskies, and Eskimos and Indians were about the only signs of life."

Some of the facts about Canada presented by Mr. Hilton to his American audience may come as a revelation to many Canadians. Here is a resume of them: The area of Canada is exceeded only by that of China and Russia. We are the world's largest producers of newsprint, nickel, asbestos and platinum. We are the world's second largest producers of aluminum, gold, uranium and electric power; and important producers of cobalt, lead, zinc, copper, oil and gas. Almost daily we are finding new and hitherto unsuspected mineral wealth. Steel consumption per capita is second highest in the world, and we rank seventh in output amongst steel-producing countries. In additon to these spectacular developments of natural resources there has been widely diversified expansion of manufacturing industries.

Canada has been greatly assisted in these developments by United States' venture capital, but Mr. Hilton pointed out that by far the major part of our capital expansion in the past five years has been financed from Canadian resources. "It seems probable," he said, "that the amount of our national production we have ploughed back into the economy in the past five years constitutes something of a world record." Canada's agricultural exports last year were valued at one and a quarter billion, out of a total export of goods valued at four and one-third billion.

"What worries some of us in Canada," said Mr. Hilton, "is the degree to which our costs of production are being loaded with costs of welfare and other government expenditures," and he wondered "what will happen to our economy, which derives 24 per cent of its national income from export goods, if we succeed in pricing ourselves out of foreign markets." Above all, he said, Canada needs more people to secure a domestic market large enough to employ mass production and distribution methods on a very substantial scale.

Chateauguay

St. Jean Baptiste Celebration

CHATEAUGUAY — Neighbouring municipalities were invited to join with the residents of Chateauguay Village on Wednesday night, June 24th, to honour French Canada's patron saint, St. Jean Baptiste. It was estimated that 2,000 people attended this event.

The celebrations, in charge of Mr. Louis Bourcier, President of the local St. Jean Baptiste Society, started off with a colourful parade, the Valleyfield Band furnished the music and five-year-old André Masse, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. J. Georges Desparois, represented St. Jean Baptiste.

The floats included Cercle de Fermières depicting home handicrafts; Caisse Populaire's float representing Apple Picking Time, complete with apple trees and winsome young ladies in white blouses and blue jeans; and The Farmers Co-operative displaying a huge Horn of Plenty.

A typical farmer of the good old days (le bon vieux temps), in the person of Mr. Arthur Napoleon Laberge, sitting on a float with his little granddaughter represented the Quebec Federation of Bee Keepers.

Another float, Two Boys Camping in the Bush, was the work of Mr. Alphonse L'Ecuyer.

Mr. Vervais of Ste. Philomene, who took the part of Seraphim Poudrier, well known to local radio fans, drew rounds of applause.

Following the Benediction in the Church, various speakers, who included Mr. Arthur Laberge, M.L.A., Mr. Gerard Bourdon, Mr. Georges Soyez, mayor of the Town of Chateauguay, Mr. Jean Lacoste, representing the Mayor of Ste. Philomene, and M. Curé Mailloux, were heard and were introduced and thanked in turn, by Mr Louis Bourcier.

A fireworks display and the playing of O Canada by the Band brought another St. Jean Baptiste Day to a close.

St. Andrew's W.A. Notes

The past two weeks have been busy ones for the Woman's Association. The members were hostesses at a Farewell on June 11th to Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Brooker, and on the 13th, the annual Bazaar was held in the Church Hall, opened by Mr. John Dickson of Ormstown. It proved a great success and it is expected that over $600. will be cleared.

The monthly meeting was advanced a week and held in the Hall on June 15th, with Mrs. G. S. Adams presiding and Mrs. James Webster and Miss Hazel Hardisty, hostesses.

The Snack Bar, under the auspices of Group I, which has proved so popular at the Annual Regatta for the past three years, was held again this year on June 20th, on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Adams, at the riverside, under the convenership of Mrs. A. Cartwright. It was well patronized by paddlers and visitors. The net amount realized was $72.

The next undertaking was to get the Manse ready for its new occupants.

A committee comprised of Mrs. G. S. Adams, Mrs. Eric Smith and Mrs. J. R. Dickenson, had been appointed to supervise the re-decorating of the Manse and to buy the essential furniture and furnishings.

How busy they had been and how well they had done their work was evident on Wednesday, June 24th, when the Manse was open for inspection.

Everyone expressed pleasure and voiced appreciation of the results accomplished in such a short time.

The men, not to be outdone by the women folk, got busy with power mower, scythe and shears to make the grounds a fitting setting for the tastefully decorated Manse.

In order that Minister and his wife would not, like Mother Hubbard, find the cupboard bare, members stocked the pantry shelves with a variety of articles on Wednesday night.

The Week At Ottawa...

OTTAWA, (CP) — Canada's political leaders unlimbered their big guns last week, aimed them carefully, and fired off the first salvoes of the campaign which will culminate in the Aug. 10 general election.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, in a speech broadcast in English and French over CBC networks, warned Canadians that they risk a return to the depression-ridden 30s if his Liberal government is not returned to power. He repeated the speech, with some elaboration, at Windsor, Ont.

Progressive Conservative leader George Drew told a CBC audience that taxes in Canada can be reduced by $500,000,000 a year by increasing the efficiency of government.

He repeated his party's 16-plank election platform, announced the previous week at Guelph, Ont., and charged the Liberal government with extravagance and with policies of over-taxation.

CCF leader M. J. Coldwell in seven speeches delivered at points in Saskatchewan, discussed his party's manifesto which was announced the previous week.

He pledged his party, if elected, to an immediate national health insurance program and a program to construct 100,000 new homes a year. Income taxes would be reduced for low-income groups but corporation taxes would be increased and taxes on excess profits and capital gains instituted.

Social Credit leader Solon Low in a speech over a national radio network presented a platform of tax reductions and financial reform. He said his party's tax proposals would effect "an immediate reduction in the cost-of-living of no less than 15 per cent." Taxes found to be restrictive in their effect on productive enterprise would either be abolished or reduced. Social Credit would abolish all present sales taxes except the two-per-cent portion which finances old age pensions.

Low said his party if elected to power would establish a national monetary authority to exercise full control over issue of money and credit, at a rate necessary "to insure continued expansion of production and consumption." But he opposed "state socialism, totalitarianism and regimentation." His party advocated "free competitive individual enterprise," and "the highest standard of Christian morality in politics and government."

Mr. St. Laurent's keynote speech summarized accomplishments of the Liberal party during his four years in office and posed two problems for the government which is successful in the election—the threat of communism to world peace and Canada's dependence on a high level of international trade.

Every chance of better relations with ths Communists must be explored, he said, but in the meantime the build-up of Canada's defences should continue. Maintenance of a high trade level would need vigilance and skill on the part of Canadians.

Mr. Drew's keynote speech pledged his party if elected to call a dominion-provincial conference to reduce property taxes for education, health and other services, to restore and expand world markets for farm products and to establish prices related to farm costs.

Mr. St. Laurent hit back at Mr. Drew in a later speech delivered at the progressive conservative leader's home town of Guelph. He declared the Progressive Conservative party couldn't deliver on the tax cut promises because too much national revenue is committed to defence and other large amounts had been committed by Progressive Conservative promises.

Mr. Coldwell attacked the Liberal government for allegedly making promises just before elections and breaking them just after. He said the Liberal party has been promising a national health insurance scheme since 1919. A CCF government would set up such a scheme immediately it got in power.

CBC

The CBC came up last week with announcements on two widely-discussed subjects—private television and specific time allotment to Canadian programs.

The corporation announced tentative agreement on plans for developing a national TV network with both private and public stations serving as links. Three committees were chosen to study programming and the technical and commercial questions involved in connection with private stations planning to begin operations in Windsor, London, Hamilton and Sudbury in Ontario; at Quebec City and Rimouski, Que.; Regina, Saint John, N.B., and Sydney, N.S.

The CBC currently operates a regional TV network, linking Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa.

Ormstown

Barrie Memorial Women's Auxiliary

ORMSTOWN — The regular quarterly open meeting of the Barrie Memorial Women's Auxiliary was held in the Board Room of the Hospital, on Monday evening, with some seventy members present.

Mrs. Cecil Bryson, president and Mrs. Eugene Sauvé second vice president welcomed the ladies and thanked the various committees for their work in making the food sale, service work, publicity and membership drive such successes. Mrs. A. McCormick and Mrs. A. Beaulieu reported a profit of $12.75 for the service work and asked for more donations of magazines.

Mrs. G. Roy Howick reported an increase in membership over last year.

Mrs. H. Parkinson and Mrs. E. Sauvé gave treasurer's report showing a balance of $1,117.05, total receipts being $1,222.04 and expenditure $44.99, the membership drive alone brought in $1,065.50 with $365.65 of this from Howick.

Miss Decker, superintendent of the Hospital, suggested the need of a 100 inch steam mangle ironer. It was unanimously decided that the Auxiliary pay $1,000 down on same and pledge the remainder over a period of time — the ironer to cost in the neighbourhood of $4,000.

Mrs. Stalker reminded all that the big money-making project would come again in September in the form of supper, draw and bazaar. Last year was a huge success and it is hoped to make this one even bigger so it's not too early to start planning what can be sold at the Bazaar.

Mrs. Sauvé and Mrs. Bryson thanked Miss Decker for her courtesies and helpfulness with the meetings.

Following the business came the treat of the evening in the form of special speakers — Mrs. E. Forrester introduced Miss M. Welch, who spoke on the History of the Montreal General Hospital which really had its origin in 1818 in a house containing four beds. By 1819 there was a new accommodation for 24 beds and in 1823 the present building was begun. It was not until 1874 that there was even a suggestion of a training school for nurses. These nurses first came from England. It was not until 1893 that infectious diseases were isolated.

Besides the history of the Hospital Miss Welch added a number of interesting and amusing events which occurred when she herself was a nurse there.

Mrs. J. Davidson graciously thanked Miss Welch, for her fine address.

Mrs. J. Lapointe introduced the second speaker of the evening, Miss Belisle, who is the Public Health Nurse for the County. Miss Belisle spoke on the foundation of the Montreal Hotel Dieu Hospital and its training course for nurses. This Hospital had its origin in 1642 as a 31-bed Hospital. Since that time 3 new buildings have been added with an accommodation for 587 beds.

Mrs. Parent graciously thanked Miss Belisle for her address.

Following the speakers came a social hour in the dining room where Mrs. Earl Forrester convener of the Social Committee and her assistants served delicious refreshments in the form of strawberry shortcake and coffee.

41,000 Canadians Visited Florida Resort in Winter

More than 41,000 Canadians visited St. Petersburg, Florida, the past winter, according to an estimate based on Chamber of Commerce hotel and apartment registrations. Toronto led Canadian cities with more than 7,000 visitors, followed by Montreal and Ottawa with more than 2,000 each.

Among the Canadian cities with more than 500 visitors to the Sunshine City were, Hamilton, London, Winnipeg and Windsor.

Canada's flourishing Tourist Society, one of the most active in St. Petersburg, had a membership of 730 this winter.

The Canadian Society meets in the immense Tourist Center building adjacent to the Chamber of Commerce for business sessions, card parties, songfests and the like. Other activities include picnics to Lake Maggiore Park, fishing, cruising, swimming and shell gathering excursions, dances and sports tournaments of many kinds.

The Tent Caterpillar Outbreak

The oaks, wild apples and a few other favored trees are almost completely defoliated around Macdonald College as the forest tent caterpillars prepare to go into cocoons for 1953. Dr. Morrison says that before anyone can say what next year will bring it will be necessary to make a large collection of cocoons and record the number parasitized then later on in the fall to make a survey of the egg masses which spend the winter on the twigs and branches of the trees. General observations, however, show considerable disease among the larvae and numerous parasitic flies about on the foliage. Since healthy deciduous trees will survive defoliation for two or even three successive years it seems probable that nature will take care of this pest before much damage more serious than temporary unsightliness and personal inconvenience has been caused in this area.

Aubrey-Riverfield

AUBREY-RIVERFIELD — Mrs. Wallace Craig and Mrs. Findlay Milne recently attended a W.I. Convention at Macdonald College.

The annual picnic of the Riverfield Presbyterian Church Sunday School was held on Wednesday, June 24. The scene of the picnic was the farm of Mr. Carmen Goundrey. About 110 children, their parents and friends were present. Those present enjoyed a picnic lunch under the trees. An afternoon of games and sports followed. Rev. and Mrs. MacGregor treated all the children to chocolate bars. Mr. Wm. Rorison offered the thanks of the Sunday School to the Goundreys.

Miss Norma Robertson recently spent a few days with Miss Nancy Ness of Howick.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Tanner and their children, Lorne and Loraine, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Robertson.

Oddfellows Hold Annual Decoration Service

On Sunday, June 28, members of the Excelsior Lodge No. 17 I.O.O.F., assisted by the Rebekahs, participated in their annual Decoration Service. The parade, consisting of about twenty members, left the Lodge Room on Chateauguay Street, led by The Huntingdon Citizens' Band. The procession followed a route to the cemetery where the ceremony of decorating the graves of former Oddfellows and Rebekahs unfolded. An inspiring address was delivered by Reverend Hatcher. From the cemetery, the parade proceeded to Prince Arthur Square where a wreath was placed at the foot of the war memorial and the Last Post was sounded.

Strawberry Social

A very successful evening was enjoyed by all who attended the Strawberry Social on Friday, June 26. The Social was sponsored by the Evening Auxiliary of the Huntingdon United Church and held in Grove Hall. A good attendance was in evidence and after eating, the guests sat on the lawn and listened to selections played by Huntingdon Citizens' Band. A fish pond, candy table and novelty table attracted many visitors. Rather sceptical of the weather, the members of the Auxiliary were happy that the evening turned out to be so pleasant.

Howick

HOWICK—A happy precedent, set some forty-seven years ago, was continued last Thursday, June 25, when over two hundred members of the Howick United Church Sunday School, their parents and friends, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Templeton, Riverfield, for the annual Sunday School picnic.

Such gatherings have been an annual event at the Templeton Farm ever since 1906, and only on two occasions since then has the event not been held there. Fine weather and one of the biggest crowds ever, particularly of children, combined to make this year's picnic a great success. Youngsters and their elders, still young in spirit, enjoyed an almost overwhelming picnic lunch, followed by an afternoon of races and games. Sports events were arranged to accommodate everyone, with races for children under three years of age right through to a race for married ladies. In between these extremes there were events of all descriptions to satisfy the most ambitious track and field adherents. Those who felt a little beyond the stage of strenuous sport found ample exercise in conversation with old friends and acquaintances, a factor which contributed further to the success of the day.

Conditions were ideal for such an event. The weather warm and fresh, the location by the Templeton sugar bush, green and lovely in the June sunshine, and the high spirits of the children, all combined to make the day one of relaxation and fun.

Congratulations are due those upon whom falls the burden of organizing such an event. Without their splendid efforts, so often unrecognized, such a day would fall far short of the happy picnic this turned out to be.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Turner, of Lachine, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Turner.

Mrs. John W. Stewart, of Valleyfield, was a visitor for a few days of her sister, Mrs. R. R. Ness and her sisters from Regina, Mrs. Jas. McKell and Mrs. Jas. McClenaghan.. Mrs. Alex. Gebbie from Winnipeg was a caller at the same home.

Mrs. Alex. Gebbie of Winnipeg, visited at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. T. T. Gebbie.

Mrs. W. M. Wilson, Jr., and Mrs. Arthur Kerr attended the three day Convention as delegates for the Women's Institute held at Macdonald College on June 23, 24 and 25.

The Knox W.M.S. met on Tuesday evening, June 23, for their regular monthly meeting, at the home of Mrs. Math. Orr, with the president presiding. The meeting began by the singing of a hymn, then the Bible lesson was read by Mrs. Orr, followed by prayer by Miss Jean Ritchie. Six members and one visitor were present and answered the roll-call by repeating a verse containing the word "Hope." The president read an invitation she had received inviting all members to be present at the Georgetown W.M.S. meeting on July 21st, at 8.30 p.m. when a special speaker will be heard. The Glad Tidings item, "Children on the Roof," read by Mrs. Carmichael, told of the many amusements achieved by hospitalized crippled children, who are allowed to play on the roof of the hospital, the writer, being a weekly visitor, notices how these little folks learn to accept their own physial weaknesses and to help others who cannot do as much. Mrs. Wm. Brown was the special speaker of the evening and gave a very interesting account of her work, as social worker, helping and guiding passengers as they embarked from the ships which come from overseas. Many and varied are the experiences she encounters. The president thanked her for her splendid talk. The temperance item then followed, read by Mrs. W. Stewart. The meeting closed by repeating together the Auxiliary prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Henderson spent a few days at St. Jerome visiting at the home of their son, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Henderson.

Georgetown Evening Auxiliary

The regular meeting of the Georgetown Evening Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. David Silliman on Wednesday evening, June 17. The president, Mrs. Raymond Anderson conducted the meeting. The meeting opened by singing Psalm 12, "Lord, hear the right, attend my cry." Mrs. Gordon Dunn gave the Scripture reading, St. John, chapter 14, followed with prayer by Mrs. Peter Peddie. Hymn 553, "Jesus Calls Us" was then sung. Sixteen members answered to the roll call by repeating a verse from the Bible containing the word "Love." Three visitors were present. The minutes were read by the secretary and it was moved by Mrs. Arthur Buchanan and seconded by Miss Laura Robertson that these minutes be adopted as read. The treasurer reported $7.20 on hand. The collection at this meeting amounted to $8.10. The card convener reported $2.95 on hand. The Supply Fund treasurer reported $32.67 on hand.

It was moved by Miss Laura Robertson, seconded by Mrs. Garnet Barrington to take $15.00 from the Supply Fund to be added to the General Fund and that $30.00 be sent to the Treasurer of the Montreal Presbyterial bringing the total to $75.00 paid towards our allocation.

The Auxiliary received an invitation from the Georgetown W.M.S. to be present at their meeting, on Tuesday evening, July 21 at 8.30 p.m. at Georgetown Church.

The study, "Is it nothing to you?" by Miss Laura Pelton from the June Glad Tidings was read by Mrs. Jas. Wilson. Hymn 599, "O God of Bethel" was sung, followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison.

The meeting was adjourned by Mrs. Murray McCartney. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and food committee.

Frozen Foods Demonstration

A very interesting and instructive demonstration on the proper method of preparing and freezing foods was held under the auspices of Mr. L. M. Kelly, local I.H.C. dealer. The meeting was held at the Huntingdon High School auditorium, on Thursday evening, with approximately 125 persons present.

It is felt that much knowledge was gained from Mrs. Benoit, who is one of the most highly recognized authorities on frozen foods in Canada and who was in charge of the demonstration.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Douglas Moore, Mrs. A. A. McCormick, Mrs. Grant Whyte, Mrs. Roy Moore, Mrs. Wilfred Kelly, Mrs. Wm. Wood, Mr. Chas. Brown, Mr. Alex Robb and Mr. J. Willock.

W.M.A. Meeting

Devotional period was taken by Mrs. Sutherland who read a few verses from John 16: 22-33, and this was followed by prayer. Roll call was answered by 20 ladies repeating a verse with the text word "honour." Four visitors were also present. Reports were given by the different secretaries, namely treasurer, supply, Christian stewardship and citizenship. Mrs. Melville Brown donated $5.00 as an "In Memoriam" for her mother who was an interested member and worker in the W.M.A. This to be inscribed in the minute book. Mrs. Brown also mentioned that two of the S.S. children who had written the Temperance questions were winners in the provincial prizes, and five were winners in the county prizes.

Literature secretary is to send for two new Study Books, "Missionary Windows." Mrs. Ewart Orr reported on Cradle Roll work. Current events were given by Mrs. Fred Allen. The study chapter entitled "The African Church" was reviewed by Mrs. Math. McKell who gave a very vivid description of the work carried on, particular mention being made of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Collins. She closed by reading a poem. Mrs. Tolhurst mentioned that the school for leaders will be held at L'Original from August 17-21.

Mrs. Edwards closed the meeting with prayer.

"The three River boys were like the Three Rivers" for they held their own in all three classes, particularly in the juvenile. Chateauguay which has been a tail-end contender for years certainly didn't get any help from the referee and starter, as they were forced out of two events that looked to be sure winners in pre-practice.

Franklin Centre

FRANKLIN CENTRE — Two important property sales have taken place recently at Franklin Centre. The old Congregational Church, which was purchased by the Franklin Fruit Growers for a packing house, has been sold to Mr. Ray McMillan and Mr. Wm. Whitehead has sold his home, orginally the Congregational Parsonage, to Mrs. Essie Smith. Mr. Whitehead is now boarding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Bruce.

There was no service in the Anglican Church on Sunday, June 21st owing to the absence of the pastor, Rev. W. T. Payne of Ormstown, who had been called to St. John, N.B., to attend the funeral service of his son-in-law, whose remains were being brought back home from the Coast where he had died suddenly on a trip to the West. It is uncertain when Rev. W. T. Payne will return to take charge of his services here.

Congratulations to Miss Molly Pawluk who has been attending Rosemount High the past year. She passed her grade successfully and won a scholarhip for Grade XI.

Mr. and Mr. Willard Dunn spent a few days recently with Mr. and Mrs. Preston Nussey and family at Ormstown. Mr. Dunn returned home on the Wednesday and Mrs. Dunn went to St. Lambert to visit her sisters, Mrs. Gladys Parham and Mrs. Howard Farley, for a few days. On her return to Ormstown, Saturday, June 20th, she found her granddaughter, little Susan Nussey, quite ill in the Hospital, so remained a few days longer with her daughter, Mrs. Nussey. Latest reports are that Susan is showing some improvement.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Brooks and Beverly of Malone, N.Y., were Sunday, June 21st dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Blair. Mr. and Mrs. John Barr and Mr. and Mrs. John Angell of Montreal were supper guests at the same home.

He will leave for England in July where he will spend six weeks getting instruction on his work.

tions announced by the CBC eased some restrictions on advertising content of programs; dropped the CBC proposal to boost Canadian talent by requiring minimum amounts of Canadian broadcasts and banned "reconstructed" radio broadcasts of sports events.

Food Surplus

An external affairs official who didn't want his name used declared himself "unhappy" about current United States proposals to give away between $1,000,000,000 and $2,000,000,000 surplus agricultural products to needy countries.

He was commenting on bills now before the U.S. Congress which would give some importing countries the chance to get free American foodstuffs supplemental to their normal purchases.

Since this may lead to widespread reluctance on the part of importing countries to buy foodstuffs from any country just as long as there is a chance of getting them free from the U.S., the measures may hit Canada. New Zealand, which depends heavily on its food exports for its prosperity, already has protested to Washington.

The external affairs official would not amplify his use of the word "unhappy." He said Canada had as yet made no official protest to Washington over the U.S. proposals.

Queen of Valleyfield Regatta Crowned

Of Many Things

By Ambrose Hills

I am a lazy fellow but I work hard. I work so hard that friends don't believe it when I tell them I'm bone lazy at heart. I hate to start a job. Once I get started, I enjoy work as much as the next fellow. So over the years I've learned many tricks to get myself started.

One of these tricks is a picture. It hangs on the wall above my typewriter. A friend came into my office the other day and saw it. He laughted and said, "My gosh, they're cute. Are they your own?"

They are. They're my twin daughters. And in this picture they seem to be looking down at me, with a real expression of concern in their big eyes. As if they were saying, "How about us, Dad? Are we going to make out all right in this cruel world?"

I can't look up at that picture and then loaf. So I get cracking. Once started, I enjoy myself. I suppose that is what is called incentive. If it is, I have three more incentives at home, gathered around the dining room table every meal.

I told my friend that the picture always prompted me to get busy. He said, "But you shouldn't worry about the kids these days. The government looks after that. They get the baby bonus, don't they?"

He was only kidding, of course. He knows very well that if they grow up and go to work, which I hope they will do, they'll have to pay for the bonus. It will be taken out of their pay cheques. Anyway, I have very little faith in governments. I'd rather the twins grew up with the idea of looking out for themselves and having a little over to help someone else along the way. I don't want them to grow up with their hands out begging. I hope they prefer to help rather than to receive help.

And if the twins inherit some of my laziness, I hope they also find a few incentives to make them work. Because work is really fun once you get started. It is best fun when we forget about the fact that we'll be paid for it . . . when we quit wondering how it will be accepted.

I read the other day that a man, hoeing a row of beans, should try to enjoy the job while he is at it. Most men, however, get only the thrill of looking at the finished job. The lucky ones are those who learn to enjoy each inch of the way. The others get their reward only when they call out, "Come out to the garden and see how it looks now, dear!"

Perhaps it is old-fashioned to enjoy work. But it is healthy. Psychologists have a name for those who hate the work but love the reward. They call them "dependent neurotics." That's very modern, maybe, but it is an unhappy state of mind. I'd rather be old-fashioned. So I'll keep on dreaming up incentives for myself. I hope you find a few incentives, too. The world needs workers to look after those who foolishly think the government will one day make the porridge every morning!

Kilbain

KILBAIN — Bill Bannon, who has been employed with Braithwaite Bros., for over four years, has accepted a position as Custom Officer at Blackpool.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bannon were entertained Saturday evening, June 20th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emmet McDonagh, the occasion being their 35th wedding anniversary. A delicious supper was served by their children, a three tiered wedding cake, beautifully decorated, ornamented the table. The bride and groom of 35 years were presented with two lovely hostess chairs. Although taken much by surprise, Mr. and Mrs. Bannon fittingly thanked all and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed by everyone.

Aubrey-Riverfield

AUBREY-RIVERFIELD — Saturday, June 20th guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Carmichael were Mrs. Mary Fisher and Mr. Ken Fisher.

Mrs. Wall, Glenda, Gloria and Freddie Wall, Mr. Schwer and Mr. Bruce Clelland called Sunday afternoon, June 21st at Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Craig's home. Glenda and Gloria will stay with Mr. and Mrs. Craig for the summer holiday.

Luncheon for Bride-to-Be

Mrs. E. M. Wood Powerscourt, entertained at a luncheon on Saturday, June 20th, in honour of Miss Margaret Anne Ness, of Howick. The bride-to-be received a number of useful gadgets and utensils for the house, for which she thanked everyone. Those attending were Mrs. R. Bruce Ness, Miss Marjorie Ness, Mrs. W. F. Welch, Mrs. Annie Gruer, Mrs. Florence Mattice, Mrs. Russel Stewart, Mrs. R. W. Templeton and Mrs. Richard Bunbury.

LAUGHED IT OFF

MONTREAL, (CP) — When two bandits who had hidden on the premises all night confronted a dozen employees in a bank on Gouin Boulevard, their hold-up plan failed. The employees laughed at the masked, armed men, who became unnerved and fled.

Barbara Brent's BUYS AND WHYS A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

MONTREAL—Just like a party! . . . That's why this colourful fruit salad is so nice to serve when you have luncheon guests. Here's how it's made:- Pour lime gelatine into small, individual moulds. When they are cool and firm, turn them out on crisp lettuce. Then put luscious, crimson strawberries all around them. And—the final touch of perfection . . . MIRACLE WHIP SALAD DRESSING. When you taste it, you'll make a delicious discovery. Miracle Whip has the lively flavour of boiled dressing and the smoo-oth texture of mayonnaise. You'll love it! Ask for Miracle Whip Salad Dressing at your grocer's now. It's the "one and only" Miracle Whip—made by Kraft.

A Tip For June Brides (and all their wedding guests!). You should be walking on air at your wedding — so be very sure your days of trousseau - shopping won't leave you with painful corns. Get BLUE-JAY Corn Plasters right now! They contain a new medication called Phenylium that gets right down under your corn and helps push it out from underneath . . . the first really new medication for corns and calluses in over seventy years! In actual tests, Phenylium went to work 33% faster and worked 35% more surely than other leading remedies. So hurry, all you lovely brides . . . ask for Blue-Jays with Phenylium at your favourite drug counter today.

My Family Wouldn't Give A Fig for anything but my own home-made strawberry and raspberry jam. I guess they must be prejudiced. And I am, too. I wouldn't "do down" any way but the CERTO FRUIT PECTIN way. That's the only way I can be sure of results. I don't like risking my time, money and fruit on anything but certainties. The true fruit flavor is retained . . . . not boiled away as so much of it was in the old-fashioned method. And I find I get up to 50% more jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit. Have you tried Certo Fruit Pectin? You'll save 2/3 the time of the former long-boil way of jam and jelly-making. There are grand recipes in the booklet under the label of each bottle of Certo.

Sign Your Own Money! . . . Look at any dollar bill and you'll see two signatures. Without those signatures, the dollar would be worthless. It's the same with BANK OF MONTREAL Travellers Cheques — but both the signatures are yours. You sign once at the bank when you buy them and they can't be cashed until you sign them a second time. If you do lose them or they are stolen, their replacement can be arranged without difficulty. So why take chances with your holiday funds? Change them into B of M Travellers Cheques. . . . They're only good when you sign them.

Keep Artificial Respiration Going For At Least Four Hours Says M.D.

"It is now more than ten years since some very definite conclusions were reached by the Committee on Artificial Respiration of the Health League of Canada as to the possibilities and limitations of artificial respiration especially in cases of drowning," writes Dr. Gordon Bates, general director of the Health League." It is surprising that the lessons learned at that time seem too frequently to have been forgotten and, that, time after time, one reads newspaper reports of artificial respiration having been stopped too early."

Dr. Bates summarizes some of the chief points which should be generally known as follows:—

1) There is hope of reviving persons apparently drowned even though the duration of immersion has been up to half an hour.

2) The fact that most of the usual signs of life are often entirely absent in an apparently drowned person is not a final indication of death. Persons have been revived by artificial respiration after hours of apparent death from various causes. Until some indication of life apparent to everyone appeared, there was no pulse, no heart sound audible by stethoscope examination, no reflex of any kind.

3) Artificial respiration should be commenced immediately in all cases under water for less than half an hour and should be continued without an instant intermission until all hope is lost.

4) The rule laid down by the Health League of Canada's committee was that it should be continued for a minimum of four hours or until rigor mortis has set in; and there should be no exception to this rule.

5) Additional rules have to do with keeping the patient warm by all means possible and seeing to it that the air passages are clear.

"This last suggestion is very important," the Health League director emphasizes. "In many cases it has been found that a laryngeal spasm exists. This condition, while it effectively prevents water from getting into the lungs, also prevents the entry of air. At the moment, no more effective means of opening the larynx is known other than seeing that the tongue is pulled out during artificial respiration."

MEAT SALADS AND PICNIC LUNCHES

Between the years of 1935-39, Canadians ate just about two pounds of canned meat per person per year. But in 1952, each Canadian ate almost seven and a half pound of canned meat. There are of course several reasons to account for the increase in the consumption of canned meats. One reason is that there are more types of canned meats available and another reason is that more and more people want food which is quick and easy to prepare. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture feel that the main reasons for this increase is that more and more homemakers are using canned meats because they are always of good quality, are reasonable in price, and are ready to serve at a moment's notice.

Salads are the foods we enjoy most on hot sultry summer days and you can make literally hundreds of different kinds from all sorts of ingredients. The home economists feel that the tossed salad is by far the most popular member of the salad family. For a hearty substantial tossed salad, why not add thinly cut Julienne strips of canned pork luncheon meat to the greens. It is easy to make the Julienne meat strips by simply cutting the meat with the kitchen scissors. If you do not have a pair of scissors, you can grate the meat on a coarse grater. When this tossed salad is served with a spicy French dressing, the family will be completely satisfied. The second place favourite in the salad family is probably the potato salad. Meat can be added to the potato salad too. It does not matter whether the salad is made with diced or mashed potatoes, if pork luncheon meat is added, it will improve the appearance and flavour as well as the food value of the salad. To add a slight "nip" to the flavour of this meat-potato salad, mix a little extra mustard into the salad dressing which is used.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture are the greatest people to go on picnics. As soon as summer week-ends roll around, each one of them is planning what she will put in the picnic basket.

On Monday morning, the home economists exchange stories on how good this was or how easy that was to prepare or perhaps what happened to something else. The short discussions which they have are very good because so often one of them has a new idea or some information which is of use to Canadian consumers. The latest information from the home economists is that canned pork luncheon meat is ideal for picnics. It is an excellent buy right now, it is quick to prepare and the can packs easily into a picnic basket. Often we take sandwiches on a picnic. Luncheon meat makes a perfect sandwich spread if it is mashed and moistened with mayonnaise and mixed with chopped hard cooked egg and a little onion, or with minced olives or pickles or even with apple sauce. meat to meat fillings in sandwiches. If this is the type of sandwiches that you take on picnics, then just pack a can or two of pork luncheon meatmeat in your basket and take along such things as lettuce, tomatoes, dill pickles and cucumbers. At lunch time, all that has to be done is to slice the luncheon meat and put it on a plate. Everyone can then make their own sandwiches.

Picnic-style meals are served at every summer camp and in many homes. The latest thing to serve at these meals is pork-cheese burgers. To make them, panfry slices of canned pork luncheon meat and place them on half of a heated hamburger bun. Put a thin slice of cheese on top of the meat and heat until the cheese has melted into the meat. If hamburger buns are not available, the meat can be cut into fingers, thin slices of cheese placed over the top and the meat and cheese put into a weiner bun. The weiner buns should be heated in the oven the same as hamburger buns. From recent Monday morning discussions in the Consumer Section, it would be a good idea for each Canadian homemaker to buy several cans of pork luncheon meat for it is the answer to many meat time problems.

Civic-Mindedness and Baseball

Once upon a time there was a little boy who loved playing baseball on vacant lots. And since he was quite a good slugger for his age he sometimes poled out long ones that smashed a window — the usual catastrophe so often besetting our younger sandlot baseball generation.

Now this little boy's mother happened to be a widow and had precious little money for broken panes on her budget. So, Mummy had to forbid the game altogether. Even when he sneaked one, the boy never dared hit out for fear he might break another window and get in serious trouble with his mother.

The little boy's name was Frank C. Russell and he lived to become a successful Cleveland businessman. Recalling his youth he remembered he had vowed that some day he'd have enough money to pay for all the windows kids broke and two years ago he set out to do just that. Mr. Russell's campaign is to eliminate that "window fear" by personally guaranteeing that any windows smashed by sandlot players will be paid for by him.

The scheme is worked through schools, Scout organizations, YM CA's and other boys' groups who distribute cards to their baseball-playing members. When a pane is broken, the boy responsible presents his card and the damage is repaid at no cost to the householder or the boy. Mr. Russell said last year this pledge cost him $18,000 paying for some 10,000 broken windows.

More Careful As Result

Actually, the knowledge that the windows will be paid for makes the kids more careful, he stated while in Montreal recently, adding that kids are very honest too since he didn't think he had had to pay one phoney claim yet.

Plastic Fabrics Now Becoming Popular

Plastic fabrics have passed their adolescent stage. If you don't believe it's so, just take a peek at the true fabric textures that are being reproduced in this versatile material.

To a top designer goes credit for the luxurious appearance and texture. One of the country's foremost color authorities selected the decorator colors and plastic itself can take a bow for the almost marproof surface in which beauty and durability go hand-in-hand.

The true fabric texture is duplicated in patterns and shades that may be applied to either contemporary or traditional furniture. Brocatelles, damasks and matelasses in three dimensional relief patterns will soon be appearing in chairs, headboards and even such items as window cornices and wall panels. The designs are so outstanding that they were awarded a coveted gold medal for its practicality.

Mending Hint

When mending holes in knitted garments such as socks or underwear always sew on the bias, your work will last longer, look neater, and give more satisfaction. Sewing on the bias allows the article to be stretched either way without breaking the stitches.—B. C.

Telephone Call

When the telephone rings, the usual instinct is to drop everything and run to answer that peremptory ring. The ensuing conversation may be short or it may be one of those long-drawn-out affairs that run on for an hour. Before going to the phone in the home it's a good idea to make a quick check-up on what was being done when the phone rang. The cigarette should be put out, the iron disconnected, the gas turned out under the saucepan if it is filled with liquid which could boil over and put out the flame. If there is a small child around, there should be no vessels of scalding water around into which he could fall. It sounds like a long list of things to be done but, actually, it is likely to entail only one of them. But any might cause a serious accident in the home. A minute's care is worthwhile insurance.

R.N.

Many young girls have a great ambition to qualify for those important letters after her name that indicate a registered or professional nurse. All to often, however, the ambition must be foregone if her education is not up to the required standards or if she cannot afford the long period of training without salary For these girls there is an excellent compromise by becoming a trained assistant to the nurse, which requires a much shorter training period. With the great shortage of nuses, the nursing assistant can become a valuable member of the nursing team.

A Chimney — The Symbol of Home

Down through the centuries men have thought of chimneys as something more than brick and mortar. For, whether it rises from mansion or cottage, breathes oil fumes or hickory smoke, a chimney symbolizes home.

So strong is the chimney's claim on sentiment that many a man uses one as the focus in his home's architectural theme. He pour imagination into design and even lavishes materials beyond requirements. Only in matters of chimney size and location need he feel confined by practical considerations.

After all, a chimney is functional in purpose. However decorative it may be, a chimney will prove unsatisfactory unless it provides proper draft for all the the fires it serves. Long ago, chimney builders had to rely on common sense and Now, a good chimney is usually the product of mathematical calculation.

This should not discourage the man who wants a hand in designing a chimney for his home-to-be. freely as did designers of chimneys Within easy reach are architects and heating engineers who can assume responsibility for figuring flue capacity, while the home owner creates the ornamental shell of brick, plaster or good native stone.

Garden Needs Protection Before Insects Ravage

While the post-war insecticide D.D.T. still kills more garden insects than any one prewar preparation, new formulations are now available which experts say do better on some pests than D.D.T.

Aphids, or plant lice, which drink plant juices, are a weak spot for D.D.T. It kills some, but misses most of them. Lindane, one of the new ones, kills aphids plus all beetles, worms, leaf hoppers and flea beetles which D.D.T. destroys.

Lindane is a chemical refinement of a German material imported when the war ended, which was handicapped by a bad odor. This has been removed. Like D.D.T. lindane kills insects which it hits, and leaves a residue on the plant which is fatal to pests that eat or walk on it. It also produces a vapor which is fatal to insects that breathe it.

Chlordane, which is also a triple threat to plant pests, is now recommended for destroying insects that are in the soil or crawl about on it. It is the best ant destroyer, and kills cut worms, chiggers, wire worms, and the like.

While thousands of new insecticides have been registered with the government, it was never before so easy for an amateur gardener to learn how to protect his plants from insects and disease. This is because of all-around pesticides now available, which will destroy all plant enemies that attack gardens. Formerly it was necessary to keep on hand one material to kill leaf eaters — and this was usually arsenic — one to kill aphids, usually nicotine, and a fungicide to keep disease from spreading. Before either was used, a diagnosis was necessary to see what the trouble might be.

But now the gardener can keep a duster filled with an all-around combination, and use it to protect his plants at the first sign of trouble, without trying to decide exactly what the trouble might be.

The time to act is before the damage is done, since nothing can repair a plant that insects have ruined.

Pests that may be expected in the vegetable garden include aphids and cabbage worms on all cabbage, kohlrabi, cauliflower and broccoli; cucumber beetles on cucumbers, melons and squash; leaf hoppers on beans and potatoes; and flea beetles on egg plant. Protection against these should begin before they arrive, as soon as the plants have begun to grow vigorously.

Dusting and spraying are both effective. Dusting has many advantages for the amateur. Equipment may be economical, and the dust come ready for use, whereas sprays usually have to be mixed with water before each application.

Since their object is to protect the plant from enemies, and this is done by spreading a film of liquid, or a coating of dust over the leaves and stems, care must be taken to allow no surface to escape. The plant should be enveloped by a cloud of dust which leaves a coating of dust about as heavy as face powder over all parts.

Plants should be drenched with sprays, if this method is used, so there is a heavy runoff to the ground. For spraying a sunny, windless day is required, and for dusting there should be no wind.

Canning Is Supervised

Probably few Canadian housewives, as they look at the plentiful supplies of canned fruits and vegetables in their favourite store, realize the care taken to see that they get a first-class product.

Last year Canadian farmers grew 137,460 acres of the main crops—beans, corn, peas, and tomatoes—especially for commercial canning. Additional acreage was devoted to other canning crops of many kinds, both vegetables and fruits. But growing the crops is only half the story; processing, grading and inspection is the other. This was done last year in 526 processing plants distributed over every province in Canada. All these plants are registered by the Canning Division, Canada Department of Agriculture and operate under the Meat and Canned Foods Act.

The Regulations under this Act state the conditions under which processing must be done. Naturally strict sanitation is called for and the product must be good and wholesome. But further than this the product must be graded correctly, packed in satisfactory containers and labelled so that contents, weight and grade can be ascertained by the purchaser.

Canadian canners work in close harmony with the Canning Division as they are anxious to turn out a product that will satisfy the purchaser and sell readily. But the task of the Division is quite a big one. In the last fifteen months for example, 12,044 visits were made by inspectors to canning plants and 45,950 samples were graded for the domestic market at the plants. In addition 8,890 samples of canned products were tested at laboratories in Ottawa, Kentville, N.S., Toronto, Ont., and Summerland, B.C.

Just as much care is taken over canned fruits and vegetables which are imported into Canada and in the same period 3,831 samples of these products were laboratory tested. The labelling of imported produce must conform to Canadian standards so that the housewife knows exactly what she is buying.

Canada exports canned fruits and vegetables quite extensively and as these are subject to the same strict regulations which apply to the domestic pack, the products have won a high reputation in world markets.

The quality of last year's fruit for canning was particularly good and the vegetable pack was also above average for quality. So taking everything into account, Canadian housewives can be assured that their canned fruits and vegetables will live up to expectations.

Gold, Silver, Adorned Ancient Embroideries

In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, it was the fashion in Europe to wear richly embroidered garments, and to use elaborate needlework for household decoration. There are contemporary lists and inventories extant which reveal the enormous popularity of embroidery. Needlework was executed by professional embroiderers, or by women who were taught the craft as an appropriate pastime.

In 1927 an embroidered valance of the early 17th century was presented to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York. The valance consisted of an applied design on a ground of white and silver ribbed silk. It was executed in silk, silver and silver-gilt thread, and bullion. The embroidery was worked chiefly in varieties of couching, chain, braid, and various knot stitches.

Gold and silver were used in ancient embroidery as well as medieval. But embroideries of the earlier epoch were worked with pure metal. It was beaten into thin plates, divided into small slips, rounded by a hammer and filed so as to form threads of wire. Bullion consists of "a fine wire so exquisitely twisted, that it forms a smooth, round, elastic tube, which may be cut with the scissors into the Lengths required."

Bees Change Method In Foraging Alfalfa

The foraging behavior of honeybees on alfalfa is different from that of other legumes such as sweet, red, and white clover, because of the more complex mechanism involved in the process of the fertilization of the floret. The staminal column, containing the stigma and anthers of an alfalfa flower, is enclosed by two petals forming a "keel", he says. Unlike other legumes, tripping or release of the staminal column is necessary before cross-pollination can take place.

Native bees such as bumblebees and leaf-cutter bees are efficient trippers of alfalfa as they insert their mouth parts through the "throat" of the flower and the percentage of tripping is high. Honeybees, however, dislike being struck on the head by the staminal column. They usually withdraw the nectar from the side of the floret without tripping it by inserting their mouth parts between the standard and the wings. Pollen gatherers, however, trip to florets to obtain pollen and nectar.

Studies are being conducted by the apiculture division at the Regina Sub-station to determine the factors which influence the behavior of honeybees in gathering nectar and pollen from alfalfa and to ascertain the possibility of inducing the bees to trip the flowers.

The population of honeybees on the fields was influenced by competing plants, such as mustard, gumweed, and sweet clover, which diverted a large percentage of the bees.

Pollen collected throughout the blooming period from colonies on six locations, was analysed for plant source. Less than one per cent of the pollen was derived from alfalfa. Because of the availability of more easily obtainable pollens, the importance of pollen gatherers in tripping alfalfa was negligible.

Nectar gatherers were observed to work the lower florets of racemes (flower clusters) through the side and the percentage of tripping was exceedingly low. The upper florets of the raceme were more compact and the bees had difficulty in withdrawing nector through the side. More florets were worked through the throat with resultant tripping.

The flowers were more easily tripped during hot dry weather and on these days a higher percentage of florets were tripped. The greatest amount of tripping on each field during the entire season was observed on hot, dry and calm days when available sources of competing nectar were low.

The desirable factors in obtaining increased pollination with honeybees are: absence of competing crops, large populations of honeybees, and hot dry weather during period of bloom.

Skin Specialist Gives Facts About Sunburn And Its Care

Sunburn is every bit as much a real burn as one you might get by touching something that is too hot, warns Dr. R. Kanee Schachter, Toronto skin specialist. The sun is good for people, both in producing vitamin D (which prevents rickets) and as a general tonic combined with summertime relaxation, but it must be taken in moderation.

In the latest issue of HEALTH magazine, Dr. Schachter gives brief answers to a list of questions people most often ask about sunburn. Here are her answers:

Can sunburn lead to serious consequences, or is it simply a temporary uncomfortable experience? — Yes, it can be serious. With each burn there is damage produced, depending upon the severity of exposure. One may end up with atrophy or scar pigment, depigmentation, and freckle-like lesions, so-called "sailors' skin".

Can sunburn produce skin cancer? — Repeated and chronic damage may eventually lead to skin cancer.

When is sunburn serious enough to warrant visiting a physician? — If there are bad blisters and/or if the person has such symptomatic complaints as headache, nausea and vomiting.

What is the best way to give first aid to a badly burned back? — A simple jelly will help if there are no blisters. If there are blisters use a cold compress and a jelly such as vaseline.

Is there such a thing as a commercial preparation that can be applied to the skin to prevent burning? — A preparation containing paraaminibenzoic acid or esters to screen out the short burning rays of the sun and allow the longer tanning rays through is the most satisfactory to date.

Are some parts of the body more susceptible to sunburn than others? — Yes. Prominent parts, such as the nose, and mucous membranes, such as the lips, are particularly susceptible.

Does overexposure to the sun affect the hair and the eyes as well as the skin? — Hair becomes dry and brittle, and the glare of the sun may produce eyestrain and even a conjunctivitis.

Are children's skins more sensitive to the burning rays of the sun than adult's? — Yes. Their bodies have not the protective layers of pigment, and their heat-regulating mechanisms are more sensitive than adults'.

How much exposure to the sun is too much? — Any amount producing redness or swelling — the so-called "erythema dose."

Is it true that fair people burn more readily than those of darker complexion when exposed to the sun? — Yes, because they have not a protective layer of pigment.

Does one burn more or less if the skin is dry or if one is continually in and out of the water as when swimming? — One burns more if in and out of water. In the water there are the added reflected rays of the sun in addition to the direct rays.

Can one stand longer exposure at the end of the summer than first thing in the spring? — One may stand longer exposure at the end of summer because one is more prepared and the sun's rays are less direct.

Frog Farming Seen As Business Risk

Replying to numerous correspondents, visitors and telephone inquirers, the Department of Game and Fisheries wishes to inform the public that persons undertaking to raise frogs artificially are taking on serious business risk.

This follows an informal survey in which it has been established that residents of the province of Quebec have become so intrigued with the possibilities of making money by frog farming that they have invested a total of around half a million dollars.

Since publication of the original warning, by the Department of Game and Fisheries, many persons have come forward for advice and information. Some have either made or contemplate making, considerable investments of money. Some have formed small companies to undertake frog raising for profit. Also, some have undertaken excavation and other work in order to prepare ponds, etc., for their proposed industry.

The Minister of Game and Fisheries, Hon. Doctor Camille-E. Pouliot, wishes to say that nobody in the province of Quebec or elsewhere has been able to show to the satisfaction of the Department of Game and Fisheries that the artificial raising of frogs could be commercially successful; on the contrary, only failures have resulted.

An investigation carried out in Canada and the United States by the Biological Bureau of the Department of Game and Fisheries reveals that the authorities consulted all agree that there are no methods known to them whereby frog farming can become a paying proposition. By this is meant the actual rearing of frogs, not the practice of hunting them in their natural habitats.

The findings of the investigation as carried out on behalf of the Department by Mr. Gustave Prevost, chief of the Quebec Biological Bureau, emphasize that even the government biologists and equivalent officers of Louisiana and California disclaim any knowledge of methods of making frog farming pay.

It is noteworthy that, out of long experience, the State of Louisiana answers inquiries with a circular letter prepared by the late Doctor James Nelson Gowanloch, and which is concluded as follows: "Broadly stated, the answer is that after some 25 years of personal familiarity with the bullfrog throughout its natural range from Northern Nova Scotia to the Gulf of Mexico, the writer has yet to be convinced that any money can be made in the operation of frog farming."

Use Paint Brush To Improve Porch

When summer is here, our world suddenly widens. Even our households seem larger because we can extend the scene of our daily activities to the garden, terrace and porch. While some of us are fingering fascinating travel tickets, there are others whose activities keep them close to home base and who are, of necessity or choice, "armchair travelers." Our indoor armchairs can now, of course, be swapped for gaily colored porch chairs and porches may be painted and decorated to simulate the inviting outdoor recreation areas of fashionable summer resorts.

Naturally, you've got to keep without bounds. Your color scheme for your porch must be in harmony with the exterior of your house. But there is always latitude for an air of frivolity that induces relaxation and gay, good spirits.

The Humble Scuttle

Some hardware shops still carry galvanized coal scuttles, though there's much less use for them in these days of more convenient oil heat. However, like many another article of an earlier day, they are being put to uses far removed from their original function, says a reader.

Some young friends of mine, starting housekeeping on the proverbial shoestring, needed a kindling container for their fireplace but couldn't afford to pay much for it. Then one day, while making other purchases in a hardware store, they chanced to spy a coal scuttle. "Why not paint it and use it for the fireplace," said they. So they bought it, washed it with vinegar and painted it a warm yellow to harmonize with the other furnishings of the room.

And, not long ago, I saw one of these coal scuttles serving another useful purpose—as a magazine holder in an informal living room. In this case, it had been painted a dull black and decorated with a simple stenciled design in gold and dull red and, believe it or not, it added a smart note to the room.

In case a new one isn't available, these scuttles can usually be picked up at country auctions and in secondhand shops anywhere. When cleaned and painted, they serve their purpose as well as new ones.

Cooking Quality of Potatoes Trellises Suggested For Shade in Summer

With the exception of wheat, the potato constitutes the largest single item of plant food in the Canadian diet. Much importance has been attached to the desirability of marketing potatoes which are clean, smooth, uniform in size, and which have shallow eyes and an attractive general appearance. The cooking and nutritional quality, though subject to wide variations, has received little emphasis.

It is generally agreed that the most important factor governing the cooking quality of potatoes is mealiness, says A. L. Shewfelt, Morden Experimental Station, Man. Mealiness is related, in part, to the dry matter content, which in turn is composed largely of starch. Dry matter of a single tuber or given lot of tubers can be quickly approximated in experimnetation by determining the specific gravity. While potatoes with a high dry matter content are generally preferred for all types of cooking, the tolerance varies according to whether they are baked, boiled, or fried. Those having a high dry matter are often referred to as "bakers"; intermediate types as "boilers"; and low dry matter tubers as "friers". Varieties are sometimes classified in this manner, and even within varieties attempts have been made recently, through brine flotation, to market potatoes with predetermined levels of dry matter.

It has been found that consumers are willing to pay a premium for potatoes thus segregated, but it is still questionable if the premium obtainable is sufficient to warrant the added cost of separation and handling. To introduce further complication, it is becoming increasingly evident that many other factors have an important bearing on texture characteristics, including maturity of tubers, cell structure and stability, type of starch, size of starch granule, type of water used in cooking, duration and temperature of storage, and prevailing climatic conditions during growth.

Colour and flavour of cooked potatoes are important also. A creamy whiteness with no yellow, grey, or black pigments is most desirable. The cooked product should be free from bitter and earthy flavours as well as excessive sweetness. The sweetness often occurs in potatoes which have been stored at a temperature between 32 and 38 degrees F. The sweetness can be reduced or eliminated in sound tubers by holding them at 50 to 70 degrees F. for a few days before cooking.

Motion Picture Records Of Coronation

Sir Laurence Olivier will speak a commentary for "A Queen is Crowned", a Technicolor feature on the Coronation which Castleton Knight is directing for the Rank Organization. This will cover scenes on the Coronation route as well as the Westminster Abbey service. Sir Malcolm Sargent is musical adviser and will conduct the score.

"Elizabeth is Queen", which Howard Thomas is producing for Associated British-Pathe Limited, will last about an hour and is being filmed in the new Warnercolor. This process is a development of the Eastman colour process used for "Royal Journey", the Canadian Film Board's record of the Royal visit to Canada.

Linen Closet Straps

Fabric straps to go around the piles of sheets and towels in the linen closet are easy to make, and so useful. They keep the piles so neat. All women like them but they seldom have time to make them for themselves.

To make these straps, you will need: White cotton belting, 1¾ inches wide; white bias tape; white elastic, ¼ to ½ inch wide; colored embroidery cotton.

Cut belting about 14 inches long. This is the average length, but you can make it longer or shorter, according to the size of the pile it is to go around. Cut the ends to a "V" shape so they will not ravel, or bind them with bias tape. Two inches in from one end of the tape, sew a piece of elastic tape around the belting, attaching it on one side. This makes it form a kind of loop to hold the opposite end securely.

Bells Ring Again

London — The bells of Saint Bride's, London's oldest church rang again on May 28 for the first time since Hitler's bombs sent them crashing to the earth in the great blitz in 1940.

But the music came from no ordinary bells. It was provided by a new electro-mechanical carillon — first of its kind to be installed in a church anywhere in the world.

It is a unique musical instrument which can ring all the possible permutations of any number of bells up to 12. If allowed to run on unchecked it could, theoretically, ring 419,000,000 changes and go on for about 37 years without a halt.

When Saint Bride's was burned out in 1940 the steeple was left intact, but the famous peal of 12 bells — most churches have only about six — was destroyed.

GASPE, Que., (CP)—One of the oldest inhabitants of Gaspe, Mrs. James Miller died recently at Port Daniel, aged 102. She is survived by six of her 11 children and by many grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Insulation Saves On Heating Bills

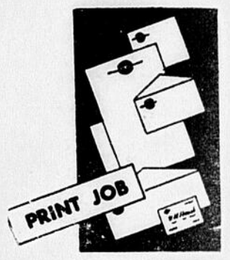

Most everyone would consider an annual return of from 10 to 30 percent as a highly profitable dividend on stocks or bonds, especially if no risk were involved. Yet such a dividend is available to the average home-owner who considers a saving in fuel, fire protection and comfort as a cash dividend.

It has been estimated by heating authorities that once a house is properly insulated with mineral wool the home-owner can save under certain conditions, up to 30 per cent on fuel bills over a heating season. This is one of the main reasons why contractors say mineral wool insulation pays for itself in a very short period of time.

A Class Outing

As a fitting climax to a scholastic year of work well done, Miss Marjorie Simpson organized a trip by bus for Grade V pupils of the Julius Richardson School, on Thursday afternoon, to the Aquarium and Museum at Lachine, Que. Mrs. Harold D. Smith accompanied Miss Simpson and the class.

The Aquarium visited first was found to contain a great variety of fish native to Canada. Inside the museum were stuffed animals and birds.

There were many articles of interest, among them being the first fire engine used in Lachine, antique furniture including an old wooden cradle, a French Provincial cupboard, a spinning-wheel and candle moulds.

The LaSalle Bedroom, containing relics of Robert Cavelier, Sieur de La Salle, attracted the children's attention.

Before boarding the bus for the return trip, Miss Simpson treated the group to ice-cream. The outing was thoroughly enjoyed.

Dessert Bridge

St. George's Woman's Auxiliary was favoured with fine weather for the Dessert Bridge, which was held on Tuesday, June 23rd, in the Church Hall. Baskets of beautiful peonies in various colours on the platform lent a festive air to the Hall.

Delicious strawberry shortcake and tea were served. Cards were played at nine tables.

There was a table of home-cooked food and a Talent Table.

The general convener, Mrs. A. S. Friedlander, welcomed the guests and explained the rules of the game. First prize for bridge was won by Mrs. Percy Varley, 2nd prize Mrs. M. L. Marlow, and for Whist: 1st prize Mrs. W. J. Clarke, 2nd prize Mrs. George Airlie. The lucky chair prize was won by Miss Anne Smith. The prizes were presented by Mrs. J. Johnson, W.A. president.

The ladies in charge of refreshments were Mrs. M. C. Kenney, Mrs. Oswald Bradley, Mrs. James Lang and Mrs. B. Clayton; Home-Cooked Food Table — Mrs. Joseph Varley and Mrs. Percy Varley; Talent Table — Mrs. A. S. Friedlander and Mrs. J. Christo. Approximately $70 was realized from this event.

Correction

Mrs. William Wright celebrated her 84th birthday on June 21, 1953, which was inadvertently reported in last week's Gleaner as her 4th birthday.

Huntingdon Takes 2 from Chateaugay by Scores of 7-5 and 9-4

On Wednesday evening, June 24, at Cluff's field, the Huntingdon Merchants had to come from behind a 5-3 deficit to beat the Chateaugay Ponies 7-5, in a close fought ball game. Behind by a 5-3 count, the Merchants came up with 4 runs in the fifth inning to take the lead and the ball game. Proudfoot led off the fifth with a double and scored when Senecal singled, Watson singled to put runners on first and third, then big Bill Bernhardt came through with a single to score Senecal and tie up the ball game. Monk Monique, who seems to hit when it counts most, belted a long single to score Watson and Bernhardt. Huntingdon threatened again in the eighth, when McCallum and Proudfoot singled in succession and were left stranded when their mates failed to push them around. Joe Terry led the Chateaugay batters with three for five, Pat Bessette and Owen Murray both collected two hits. Rosie Lacompte turned in a good pitching job for Huntingdon, allowing nine hits and striking out twelve. Lacompte has yet to lose a game pitching for Huntingdon. W. McCallum, Robert and Senecal, each had three hits. Proudfoot and Hannah collected two a piece. In Sunday's game Rosie Lacompte came up with his fourth win against no losses this year. Lacompte struck out eleven, walked three and gave up twelve hits. Chateaugay had plenty of chances to score but Lacompte always held up when the pressure was on. Walter McCallum led the Merchants at bat with four hits in six trips to the plate. Bill Bernhardt and Lacompte each had two hits. Tiney Robert playing his first game for the locals this year, hit a home run in the seventh inning to spark a five run Huntingdon rally. Bill Bernhardt and Norm Hannah batted in the other Huntingdon runs in this big inning. Hannah also caught his usual fine game. Hannah is one of the reasons why Huntingdon is on top of the St. Lawrence Valley Baseball League. His fine catching and knowledge of the batters in this league helps his pitchers out of many a tight spot. Huntingdon has now won seven games and lost one to lead Burke Bears who have a five and three record by two full games. This Sunday, Burke will pay a visit to Huntingdon. In a game played earlier this season, Huntingdon won by a score of 5-4. This Sunday's game should be a thriller so plan to be there. Rosie Lacompte is now the leading pitcher in the St. Lawrence Valley League with four wins and no losses. Rosie has struck out forty-seven men and walked eight while allowing thirty-one hits in the thirty-four innings he has pitched this season. Rene Senecal leads the team at bat with a .592 average, followed by Walter McCallum, .425, Watson, .414, and Proudfoot with .406.

Bridal Customs

These are busy days for the June bride and her family. Time's aflittin' and there are still a-hundredéand-one things to be done. All sorts of people have to be seen — among them, the florist, the photographer, the caterer, the soloist and the organist.

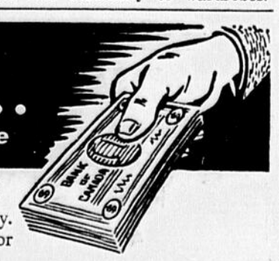

Did you ever stop to think of the origins of modern bridal customs? Many of them go back centuries. For example, the engagement ring is the oldest of these customs — even older than cake and bouquet and veil and the wedding ring itself. Ancient tribes used to make use of a pledge ring, even though they had no wedding ceremonial as such.

The importance of the "third finger, left hand" lies in a belief by the ancients that this finger held the important vein of love. They believed that it ran direct from here to the heart. Hence, the ring when the troth was pledged; it was supposed to bind the finger, preventing the affections from running out the tips.

And rice! It symbolizes good harvest and a full larder. Showering it on the happy couple is a way of wishing them well. Incidentally, in China bride and groom eat from the same rice bowl as a symbol of their unity.

In fabrics, there has been a vast change underway — in even the last 10 years. The introduction of nylon and its application to countless items wear has given a whole new look, feel and durability to wardrobes.

FRANKLIN CENTRE — The pupils of Grade VI and VII and their teacher Mrs. A. Reid held their school picnic in Mr. Norman Town's grove near the Swimming Pool on Thursday. A picnic lunch was enjoyed and bathing was the principle sport of the afternoon.

On Friday morning the pupils all met in their class rooms for their final dismissal from school. At this time each grade presented their teacher with a gift or gifts. Miss Rexford received individual gifts. Mrs. Reid a bedspread, pair of pillow cases and writing paper. Mrs. Reid treated her class to ice-cream. Mrs. Bruce McCracken received a table lamp and shade and Mrs. Harold Frier received a sandwich plate and individual gifts.

The official closing took place in the afternoon at the United Church which was well attended by parents and friends.

This part of the closing opened by the pupils singing "From Ocean Unto Ocean" (tune Morning Light). The Principal, Miss Rexford gave the yearly report of the pupils, followed by the singing of "O Canada".

The guest speaker, Mr. T. G. S. Brash M.A., Head of the Dept. of English of the Dept of Education, Que., gave an interesting and instructive address on the value of Education. The school then sang "The Maple Leaf Forever", after which the teachers presented their pupils with their reports. The presentation of prizes by those who gave them followed. Mrs. J. Manning, on behalf of the School Board, presented the pupil who came first in each grade with a dollar.

Mrs. E. Lindsay presented the prizes given to each grade by the W.I. for the pupil who had made the most improvement during the year. She also presented those who had won a prize in the Public Speaking Contest with their certificates, their prizes having been given before.

The teachers, each in turn, presented prizes to the pupils who came 2nd in their grade. Attendance and Spelling, also other different subjects in the highest grades. The prizes given in the lower grades, were money and gifts in the Principal's room.

The two closing prayers were taken from Hymns and Prayers For Schools, the one used for the close of the term and the Lords Prayer, these were followed by singing the National Anthem, God Save The Queen.

Beauharnois

BEAUHARNOIS—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Turnbull, Jr. and family, Janet, Joan, Dorothy and Jimmy, motored to their cottage at Muskoka, where, with the exception of Mr. Turnbull, they will spend the month of July.

Mrs. J. E. Sullivan joined Mrs. Sullivan and John for the week-end at the summer home of Mrs. J. A. Parker.

Evening Auxiliary Picnic

The Evening Department of the Women's Missionary Society joined the senior group at a picnic held at the home of Mrs. J. C. Muir, Canal Road. The weather was too blustery for a lawn picnic, but the conditions did little to mar the spirits of those attending. Supper was graciously provided by generous donors. Mrs. H. Graham, President of the Evening Department welcomed the members and friends present for the meeting. Miss Alice Holmes was in charge of the devotional period, and chose Psalm 19 for her reading, and prayer followed. Mrs. A. Coburn, secretary-treasurer of the Women's Missionary Society, read two letters carrying thanks to that group from Tyndale House and the Chinese Mission, Montreal. Beautifully knit and sewn articles had been sent to these two societies. Mrs. Bill Monovan introduced the speaker of the evening, Miss Daisy McNeill, National Church Council representative, and enthusiastic promoter of Christian work in youth groups. Miss McNeill has received a degree and much acclaim in this department, and is well known in this district because of her sincerity in her work, accomplished with a charming graciousness. Miss McNeill brought a graphic illustration of the close association of Jesus with His disciples, so vividly portrayed that everyone could interpret the love and devotion which was so profound in its entirety. Mrs. R. B. Calhoun thanked the speaker. The meeting was closed with a prayer from the president.

Rev. W. H. Brown and Mrs. Brown left by car for Prince Edward Island where they will spend their summer vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Brown, Jr. left Quebec City Saturday evening on the S.S. Atlantis for Britain where they will spend two months on a cycling tour of points of interest. Mr. Brown is also a delegate to a Teachers' Convention to be held at Oxford University.

Our most sincere congratulations to Miss M. Tietghen, and Miss Sandra Currie, both of whom won scholarships from Montreal West High School, competing in a group of 150 students. The girls really did a fine job.

Mrs. Owen Smith and sons spent the week-end with Mrs. Wm. E. Kilgour and Billy at their Lakeside cottage.

Mrs. M. R. Reany and daughters, Judy and Joan, left for a month's stay at Magog.

Basements Can Be Made Dry, "Sweet Smelling"

If your basement is damp and smelly, don't abandon ideas of turning it into useful storage or recreation space. With a dehumidifier to dry the air, and a germicidal lamp to get rid of odors, you can make your basement completely livable all the year around.

In a discussion of "How to make your basement dry and sweet smelling," the May issue of House Beautiful magazine points out that possessions stored in a damp basement can be attacked by rust, rot, or mildew.

A dehumidifier, the article explains, eliminates only 20 to 30 per cent of the water vapor in the air. But that's enough. The remainder won't condense out on your walls and floor. The drier room air also make you feel more comfortable and discourages the growth of mildew.

The germicidal lamp of the odor-eliminating type supplements the work of the dehumidifier by killing the air-borne spores of mildew as well as other organisms that cause smells. It does this by means of ultraviolet rays and with ozone gas that's a by-product of the ultraviolet.

According to the article, dehumidifiers cost as little as $20 for chemical types, or $145 on an average for electrical units. Germicidal lamp fixtures for odor removal are priced at about $10. There's no installation charge for any of this equipment, servicing is rare, and operating costs are low. Of course, you'll have to, keep the basement windows closed if you use a dehumidifier.

"If you use both these devices," say the editors, "they won't be costly in terms of the comfort and living space you'll gain in the basement."

Susan is now quite recovered from her recent illness.

Shortcut For Cuttings

There's an easy and improved method of starting roots on branch cuttings from ordinary plants. Horticulturists who have tried it are keen on the results.

All you do is take a small sheet of polythene film about seven inches square. You can buy sheet polythene in dry-goods stores or, easier still, use that which is appearing more and more these days as wrapping for fruits and vegetables.

Squeeze a handful of wet sphagnum moss lightly to remove water and place it on the polythene film. Make your cutting in the usual manner and nestle the base nearly to the bottom of the moss. Bring up the side of polythene and place a rubber band around them so as to enclose the ball of moss. The upper portion of the branch and the leaves are not covered by the polythene, of course.

Now place the wrapped plant in high humidity and keep the temperature about an even 70 degrees Fahrenheit. No watering will be needed during the two or three weeks required for foot formation.

Major advantages of this method are these: The time of rooting and quality of the roots can be seen easily through the polythene and the cuttings will root a little faster than bench cuttings made at the same time. Another is that disease is less likely to occur in the plants.

Here is another use of polythene in horticulture: Before you go away on vacation this summer, wrap a sheet of polythene around a flower pot and bring the ends together, securing them with an elastic band at the base of the plant. This way, the plant can go for more than two weeks without watering.

Save That Protein

OTTAWA, June 9 1953 — Hay is the most important feed in the winter ration of farm animals. The quality, or feeding value of hay is governed by the most expensive food nutrient it contains, namely, protein.

Results of experiments have shown that the greatest amount of protein will be harvested if hay is cut early, that is to say in the blossoming stage of growth. In early bloom the percentage of protein is still quite high and that of fibre relatively low. These conditions change quite rapidly as the plant continues to mature.

At the Experimental Farm, Nappan, N.S., clover cut early in July was found to contain 15.2 per cent protein and 31 per cent fibre. When cut a month later the protein content had dropped to 12.7 per cent and fibre had increased to 39 per cent. Timothy hay cut in early July as compared to that cut a month later showed a decrease in protein content from 5.2 per cent to 3.9 per cent. In both cases a costly and essential food element was reduced in hay cut at the later date.

A loss of one per cent of protein due to the later cutting means a loss of 20 pounds per ton. In this trial the losses per ton of hay were 50 pounds in the clover crop and 26 pounds in the timothy crop.

L. P. Jackson, research officer at the Farm points out that the cost of protein when purchased in a concentrate is about .13 cents per lb. This means a loss of $6.50 a ton with clover hay or $8.38 with timothy, not to mention the lowered digestibility due to higher fibre content. Farmers can cut dollars from feed bills by cutting hay early.

When Cutworms Threaten Garden

Practically all field and garden crops are subject to attack by cutworms in the spring.

Spring cutworms are fleshy, soft-bodied, dull-colored, hairless caterpillars that usually curl up and remain motionless when disturbed. When full grown they are about 1½ to 2 inches long. The upper half of the body is generally a darker shade than the under half and may vary with the different species from nearly colorless to almost black.

Most damage is caused by cutworms feeding on the stems or shoots at or just below the soil surface.

Poisoned bran bait is the common material used in controlling most spring cutworms that come to the surface at night to feed. The bait is easy to prepare and apply, and when properly used is very effective.

A satisfactory bait is prepared as follows:

Bran, 1 gallon; Paris Green, 2 tablespoons; Water, to moisten, about 1½ to 2 pints.

Mix the dry bran and paris green thoroughly. Then while stirring the poisoned bran, slowly add water until moisture will ooze between the fingers when a handful of the bran is squeezed.

Experiments indicate that chlordane and chlorinated camphene are better poisons than paris green for the red-backed cutworm, and baits are easier to prepare. Dr. McDonald believes they should be just as satisfactory in other parts of Canada, and probably for any species for which the paris green bait is recommended.

With this bait, paris green is replaced with chlordane, 40 per cent emulsion, not less than 3 tablespoons or 1½ fluid ounces. Or, if chlorinated camphene is used, the quantity is 4½ tablespoons or 2¼ fluid ounces of a 50 per cent emulsion. Mix the water and liquid poison together thoroughly and then stir into the bran as described above.

The fresh bait should be spread just before dark on a warm evening when the temperature is 60 degrees F. or higher. If temperatures are suitable, baiting soon after a rain or an artificial watering has soaked in is especially satisfactory. Cutworms come to the surface more readily when it is damp than when the soil is loose and dry.

Bait should be broadcast thinly and uniformly over the area. The quantity given will cover about 400 square yards of garden. When spread in this way and without lumps, there is no danger to livestock, poultry or pets.

BABY SWANS

VICTORIA, B.C. (CP)—Three baby swans, or cygnets, were hatched at Goodacre Lake in Beacon Hill Park.

Controlling Chick Vices Necessary

Along about the fourth week after hatching, some strains of chicks stop being agreeable little characters and develop a fancy for each other's toes and tails. Sometimes the inclination leads to considerable trouble and loss.

It has been found that quick action at the start means much in controlling chick vices. First of all, the raw parts should be given a dressing of pint tar or some commercial anti-pick preparation. The possibilities of overheating, overcrowding, too much light and too little ventilation should also be looked into. Feeding and drinking space would be provided in proper proportions as the chicks grow.

Chicks have an inquisitive nature and any contrast made by one bit of color against another calls for investigation apparently to see if the object is good to eat. Such a condition occurs at the time when the first feathers are not quite fully formed and the new quill shows up against the pink skin. Starting with a speck of blood, the injury becomes progressively worse with the attention it attracts. In cases where picking appears to be getting out of hand it can often be checked by tacking red tissue paper over the windows. The reddish glow within the building neutralizes other red colors and the contrast made by blood or wounds against feathers is greatly reduced. Newspapers over the windows and red electric blubs produce the same effect. After a few days of this treatment ordinary light may be gradually admitted.

An important point in the control of picking among chicks is a readiness to apply remedies promptly. It is also advisable, even after an outbreak ha sbeen stopped, to look in on the flock a little more frequently in order to prevent further outbreaks from getting started.
