Cordes à Vent ready to blow you away

Music ensemble composed of amateurs and professionals, strings and wind instruments consist of the usual violins, violas, cellos, and now a double bass, while the "vent" has returned after several years as flute, clarinette and penny-whistle. Last but not least are the faithful guitar and piano.

A PREMIÈRE!

Directed by Françoise Turcotte, the Cordes à Vent will play a widely varied programme - from Baroque to the movies! - Folk music, Handel, Bach, Mozart, Brahms, and tunes from the "Titanic". A highlight will be the first public performance of a Suite of French Children's Songs, arranged by Anne Lauber. Ms. Lauber is a composer, and teaches music at UQAM in Montreal. The Suite contains nine delightful songs, arranged for strings, clarinette, flute and percussion.

Anne Lauber also plays the violin in the orchestra in consonance with her daughter, Salomé, on the cello. Like several pairs in the orchestra, mother and daughter have a good musical rapport. "Part of the explanation for this 'family feeling' for music is often that parents participate in their children's lessons, and become interested themselves," explains Françoise Turcotte, music teacher and Director of the orchestra. "They then decide to take courses, either out of interest or in order to work more closely with their children."

Ms. Turcotte pointed out that in the group the students, especially the new recruits, gain confidence from playing along with adults and, of course, from performing in public. "To play in an orchestra is a most enriching experience," adds Ms. Turcotte "What they learn about music is only one of the many benefits, both for the young and the not-so young!"

There are five professional musicians in the group: Iona Corber, Héléne Dion, Serge Lavertu, David McAdam, and Françoise Turcotte. Guest soloists will be Héléne Lavoie, Charles Maheu and Elisabeth Lauffer. The accompanist will be Ms. Michele St-Hilaire.

Tickets for an afternoon of culture, music and good-fellowship can be had from the Book Nook in Sutton, the Confriserie in Bromont, or at the door. $2.00 for children and $8.00 for adults, or $15.00 for the family.

Poet gets immortalized in publication

PERRY BEATON/CORRESPONDENT

Dave Donnachie writes poetry as a hobby, but, he says, 'My biggest hobby is singing in seniors' homes.'

Two of Dave Donnachie's poems to appear in 'Serenity at Daybreak' collection

By Matthew Shepherd
RECORD CORRESPONDENT

Some poets struggle their whole lives to get published. In Dave Donnachie's case, poetry has come late, and success early.

Donnachie, an infrequent contributor of poetry to the Record, has had two of his poems published by the International Library of Poetry in their newest hardcover, 'Serenity at Daybreak.'

"This has been a wonderful situation," Donnachie says. "I just started again two years ago. I wrote a little when I went to school, but nothing serious. A couple of years ago, I sent some things in to The Record and they were published."

Donnachie decided to follow his local success by sending some work to the International Library. He soon received word that not one, but two of his poems had been accepted for publication.

"They printed 'The Closed Door' and 'The Pioneer's Spirit,'" Donnachie says.

"There was no fee to enter the contest," he continues. "The books of poetry sell for $77, but if your poem is published in one of them, they only cost $50. I bought one since my two poems were in it."

Donnachie suspected a rip-off, fearing he'd get a small paperback, "but I didn't expect a book like this!" he says.

HARDOVER BOOK

'Serenity at Daybreak' turned out to be a 250-page hardcover containing the work of Donnachie and hundreds of other poets.

"I was very impressed," he says.

Donnachie doesn't consider poetry his chief pastime. "I don't make a habit of it. My biggest hobby is singing in seniors' homes."

Another of his hobbies has led to a perhaps even more prestigious publication, as Donnachie's poem 'The Pioneer Spirit' will also be gracing a plaque being put up at McIntosh Cemetery at its rededication on June 27; a cemetery that Donnachie helped clean and restore to its original state.

Donnachie plans to keep writing and will continue to come up with poems when the spirit moves him.

"You have to feel poetry," he explains, adding it's hard to just sit down and churn something out unless he gets the urge to write on a certain topic. "It has to be something that moves you."

Linda Wand found starting a singing career rather hectic. In four days, she had to complete her demo tape and promotional package while working her regular job.

A star is almost born

Local vocalist selected to compete in "World's Largest Country Showcase"

By Caroline Kehne
RECORD CORRESPONDENT
HENRYVILLE

When Henryville vocalist Linda Wand heard the call for musical talent to compete in the True Value Jimmy Dean Country Showdown '99, she didn't think that she had much of a chance to be selected for the show billed as the "World's Largest Country Showcase". The 45-year old singer, a veteran of Hemmingford's Shoestring Theatre and the local coffee-house circuits, scrambled to put together a promotional package of tapes and photos for the deadline only a few days away. Less than a week later, she was notified by WLFE disk jockey Matt Henry of St. Albans, VT that she had been chosen to compete in the showcase to be held as part of the Vermont Dairy Festival on June 5 in Enosburg, VT.

"I heard the ad on the radio and had four days to pull the whole thing together," said Wand, who said she is thrilled to have been chosen to perform.

"It's been crazy," she said, referring to her race to complete a demo tape and promotional materials on short notice while working a full-time job as a secretary at Iberville Fiberglass. Wand will be backed up by South Bound, the Northern Vermont touring band that have performed and recorded in Nashville. The vocalist, who describes her style as "country/cabaret" will perform country classics with vocal backup from her 8-year old daughter, Samantha Sullivan.

According to promotional literature supplied by the Showdown, winners of the June 5 competition will advance to state contests where they vie for a $1,000 prizes and the opportunity to go to regional competitions.

Winners of the six regional competitions travel all-expenses paid to the televised National Final in Nashville where they will compete for the $50,000 Grand Prize and the National Title.

Sherbrooke musicians selected for youth orchestra

Seventeen musicians from Quebec including three from Sherbrooke will be among 84 of Canada's finest young classical musicians convening at Queen's University campus in southern Ontario, for the 39th season of the National Youth Orchestra of Canada.

Jean-Francois Marquis cellist and Marie-Violain Ponte, flutist and Sandrine Royer cellist all of Sherbrooke were selected from among 500 young talented players in 32 centres across the country who competed for these positions at the TD Bank National Auditions. The students will participate in an intensive eight-week program, which includes instruction from an internationally acclaimed faculty, and culminates with concert tour of Ontario and Quebec, all conducted by Maestro Mario Bernardi.

The National Youth Orchestra is a non-profit organization that has been recognized internationally for its high standards and the exceptional achievements of its members. Over the past 39 years more than 2,000 musicians have received formal training in the NYO, and presently, more than one-third of the symphony musicians performing in Canada are alumni of the Orchestra.

Sunshine Theatre is all about character-building

By Sylvia Warden

KNOWLTON

With just five days left until her theatrical debut in Sunshine Theatre Productions' You Can't Take It With You, Rose Highfield is intent on not just acting her part, but becoming the character.

That character is Penny Sycamore, the matriarch of the wacky yet sweet Sycamore family, in the Pulitzer Prize-winning play by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman.

A self-described perfectionist, Highfield, a Grade 2 teacher at Heroes' Memorial Elementary School in Cowansville, says she is unsure where Penny begins and Rose ends.

"So much of her character seems frighteningly like my own. She's one of these people who takes up causes and takes up crafts. It just reminded me of myself. I'm a painter, a teacher, I have a greenhouse, it's one sort of all-consuming interest at a time."

Highfield says teaching and acting don't make for such strange bedfellows.

"I've always said a good teacher is a ham actor and I just never took the opportunity to get involved in acting."

If teaching is Highfield's dress rehearsal, You Can't Take It With You is her curtain call on the Great White Way.

After years of toying with the idea of getting involved in theatre, Highfield took Kate Wisdom, a founding partner in Sunshine Theatre Productions, up on her challenge to try out for a role. In essence, Highfield lives the meaning of the play: We have but one life to lead so live it to the fullest.

The show's director, Sunil Mahtani, puts it succinctly: "Don't live in such a way that in 20 years you're going to look back and regret what you've done because you haven't taken the time for family or to do what you really want."

In that respect, each cast member is a Sycamore. All theatre is difficult but community theatre is especially demanding. Commitment, tenacity and a sense of humour are all needed to see a production through its run.

As Mahtani prepares for his sophomore effort as Sunshine Theatre's artistic director, the struggle is worth the sweat. Each member of the cast, 18 in all, playing 19 roles, has a full-time job and life outside the theatre. That's in addition to the work each is putting into the show.

Bill Jarand, who plays Tony Kirby, the romantic lead, is also the show's set designer. Kate Wisdom is Mrs. Kirby on-stage and the costume designer behind the scenes.

Jarand welcomes the exhilaration performing brings. He says acting is about finding yourself in each role.

"I think all characters are a piece of

DAVID ANDERSON/CORRESPONDENT

Greetings... Bill Jarand, Rose Highfield, Darleen Bell, Arthur Kilkelly and Chrisopher Freeman in Sunshine Theatre Productions' You Can't Take It With You, playing at the Knowlton Pub Playhouse June 9-20.

ourselves and we just bring that piece forward, examine it and then magnify it," says Jarand. "So, if Tony is a romantic with a sense of adventure, it's definitely part of me and I just have to emphasize it."

Jarand, who was last seen as Tito Mirelli in Sunshine Theatre's debut, Lend Me A Tenor, has thoughts of turning professional.

"Doesn't everybody," he says as a smile envelops his face.

He auditioned for this summer's Theatre Lac Brome season and has done some television work. "You're an adult and you're allowed to play, and in professional theatre, you get paid."

A veteran, Jarand possesses the calmness and quiet confidence that Highfield is in the process of developing.

"For anyone who might have this concept of stage fright, I think a lot of that washes away because of the rehearsal process," he says. "You have all these other people who are nervous or who are experienced and they bond together to create a safe environment."

Highfield got her first taste of performing for an audience during the '20 Years of Talented Townshippers' show at Massey-Vanier High School last month. The cast performed a pivotal scene in the play.

"The audience laughed and clapped," says Highfield in a whisper. "It's like I started to tingle and glow and almost shake inside. It was the audience's reaction. It gave me such a charge. It really did, like 'Wow this is really neat.'"

Now, it's feedback from those she shares the stage with and her director that keep her going through this last week of rehearsals.

Mahtani has spent time with each actor, developing a vision of the characters. Wisdom says her character, Mrs. Kirby, is repressed.

Highfield is less exact in her description of Penny but she has a definite sense of the woman, helping select her wardrobe.

"Like Rose will say to me, 'I feel Pennyish with this or Penny wouldn't like that,'" says Wisdom, who is charged with finding signature pieces for each character.

No small feat. With 18 in the cast and almost half of them requiring three full costume changes, Wisdom has been busy sewing and buying.

"I think I've been to every rummage sale in the village," she says with a laugh.

Wisdom smiles easily and is quick to chat. Whereas Highfield sees similarities between herself and Penny, Wisdom says she has had to really study herself to find Mrs. Kirby within her psyche.

"It's very hard to stop this smile," she says as she raises her hands to her lips. "I have this wig I put on and I put on make-up and I wear this grey satin dress that's really cold-looking. She looks dead by the time I got this clothing on. So then I did my lines in the mirror. Then I'm watching myself in the mirror and every time my muscles moved, I'd get them under control because staring at myself in the mirror I could tell when Mrs. Kirby was there and when it was me."

In a few days everyone else will get to see Mrs. Kirby and the rest of the cast in You Can't Take It With You. Until then, Highfield is practicing her lines and, in the process, becoming Penny Sycamore.

"It's kind of crazy but I think I'm going to get a lot of satisfaction out of it."

Jessica Andrews might be only fifteen, but her credentials are impressive. She made her debut on the soundtrack to the Disney movie The Prince of Egypt.

Hats off to Brome Fair organizers for the excellent shows they're getting for country fans around here and watch for our upcoming Paul Brandt contest.

Now let's talk about new albums and here's my pick for this week: Jessica Andrews, Heart Shaped World.

(Dream Works).

This is one impressive debut album from a 15-year-old talent sure to climb the ladder of success in no time at all. Andrews already turned lots of heads when she debuted on The Prince of Egypt soundtrack as the only newcomer in a field that featured big names such as Reba McEntire, Faith Hill, Vince Gill, Clint Black and Alison Krauss.

Now that Andrews of Huntingdon, Tennessee has her own album, she should get a lot of attention from the industry as well as from the fans.

She's dynamic, self-assured, mature and has an incomparable vocal talent for her years.

Byron Gallimore, who's produced such country stars as Tim McGraw and Jo Dee Messina, has taken the young singer under his wing carefully selecting a dozen songs to showcase her range and diversity.

The collection includes of course, her contribution to the Prince of Egypt soundtrack, "I Will Be There For You," and the maturity of her interpretation shines throughout the album starting with the up beat rebel rouser "James Dean In Tennessee."

The message is very sober on the John Scott Sherill/ Cathy Majeski love song "The Riverside," while there's a wistful feel to "Unbreakable Heart."

After LeAnn Rimes and Amanda Wilkinson, this teenager proves time and again that artistic maturity can be obtained at a fairly young age. Her self-confidence along with her talent make her sound extremely convincing on anything she does.

Set to a strong beat and strumming acoustic guitar, "Whatever" is a joyful declaration of independence as the young singer reproaches a friend who has the bad habit of making too many promises.

Andrews sings about grabbing the opportunity and having the stamina to go for it when the chance presents itself. She also excels in the Delta-flavored "Hungry Love," and is rather sassy on "Ruby Shoes."

On the beautiful and tender "I Do Now," she's all emotions and she will melt your heart in a jiffy. Watch out!

You can't ask for a better debut album and Jessica Andrews has everything it takes to become a superstar.

Chely Wright, Single White Female, (MCA Nashville)

This is Chely Wright's fourth album and her best effort so far as she has reached a new emotional maturity that shines in her voice.

The title cut, "Single White Female," is currently working its way up the Billboard charts. This is an aggressive number as the singer gives notice that she will find a man and put an end to her single life.

Wright is very tender on her rendition of "She Went Out For Cigarettes," a song about a woman who has decided she's had enough of a stale relationship. The emotion is genuine and Wright is very convincing on this number.

This new album is co-produced by Tony Brown, Buddy Cannon and Norro Wilson and it seems like the combination of all that experience added, serves the young woman pretty well.

The collection offers 10 songs and they're all winners, no fillers on this album. Every number has been carefully selected for her. There's a nice ballad with a lyrical twist on the self-penned "Picket Fences," in which a woman is wondering about the fuss over having a husband, a house and 2.5 kids - at the same time you can feel her loneliness.

There's passion and more passion in "The Fire," while she gives all she's got vocally on "The Love That We Lost."

There's also a few good up-tempo numbers such as "Some Kind of Something," "Rubbin' It In" and the title track. She has been working very hard in studio and it shows on this album. She has honed her craft as an interpreter and her efforts should have a direct impact on her success as a mainstream entertainer.

Have a nice week and keep your country state of mind!

Great Pretender

TVDATA

Patrick Bauchau (The Pretender), 60, was born in Brussels, Belgium, where his father, Flemish writer Henry Bauchau, was a member of the Belgian underground during World War II. His mother, Russian emigre Mary Kozyrev, ran a Swiss boarding school and a publishing house with her husband. Educated at Oxford, Bauchau got his acting start in a 1967 film by French New Wave director Eric Rohmer. During a '70s sabbatical from acting, he created stuffed-animal pillows for surrealist Salvador Dali. His diverse credits since returning to acting in the '80s include both European art films and such mainstream movies as A View to a Kill and Clear and Present Danger. He and Pretender castmate Jon Gries both appear in a new independent film called Twin Falls Idaho. Bauchau and his wife, Mijanou, divide their time between homes in Los Angeles and Louveciennes, France. They have an adult daughter, Camille. You can find much more information at the Web site www.bauchau.com.
