Olympics Karen Magnussen wins silver

SAPPORO, Japan — (CP) — They massaged her cramped legs during the long wait for a chance at a medal. Then, coming on second to last, Karen Magnussen of Vancouver skated her show. It was a brilliant effort that won her a figure-skating silver medal at the Winter Olympics Monday night.

stationary bike to strengthen them, couldn't catch Beatrix Schuba of Austria, who beat the field again for the gold medal by piling up enough first placings in the compulsory figures to survive a poor performance in the free skating.

Miss Schuba, Julie Holmes of the United States, Miss Magnussen and Janet Lynn of the U.S. emerged from the six school figures in that order. The freestyle effort ended with Miss Lynn first, Karen second, and Miss Schuba seventh. Julie rated eighth.

Schuba, who had a lead of 141.3 points going into the final free-skating competition. "We went out for the warm-up and said to each other 'Good luck — and skate your best.'"

Before the performance, during her practice, Karen "stayed too long on the ice" and suffered a tightening of the legs, her coach said.

Volleyball comes alive at Massey-Vanier

COWANSVILLE (FA) — Massey-Vanier Regional High School will compete this year in an exhibition volleyball league involving five other schools.

Saturdays, leaving their regular practice days, Tuesdays and Thursdays, untouched. Wood went on to outline the structure of his group. "We had our first practice Dec. 21," he said, "when around 14 boys turned out. The team as a whole has had only a year of actual experience. There are only three people with any wealth of experience."

Counter-offer may be made

TORONTO — Reaction from Conn Smythe's family indicated that a counter-offer for Maple Leaf Gardens may be made to a planned $7,546,350 purchase of Gardens stock by Harold E. Ballard.

His longtime friend and business associate, former Gardens president C. Stafford Smythe, who died Oct. 13, 1971, and T. D. Jeffries were partners in CDDSTAN. Most of the stock held by Stafford Smythe, son of Conn, who built the Gardens in 1931, was in the name of that partnership.

made by the Smythe family which would allow them to retain the shares. Ballard and Dr. Hugh Smythe, a brother of Stafford, were involved recently in a dispute over control of Gardens' stock. Ballard also was critical of Stafford Smythe's son Tom, general manager of the Marlboro hockey team in the Junior A Series of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Canadians-Russians to resume hockey action

SAPPORO — The probability of Canada and Russia meeting in open hockey exhibitions by May 1972, was disclosed over the weekend by Fred Page, Canada's representative on the International Ice Hockey Federation.

Page said he had the Russian coach sign a proposed agreement, "and then I started to play their game." Rather than agree immediately to the proposal, Page said he'd take the document back to the CAHA for consideration. He said Gordon Juckes, executive-director of the CAHA, then sent a telegram to Tarasov before his return to Russia expressing the CAHA's interest and desire to continue negotiations.

This was confirmed later in the day by Jaroslav Pitner, coach of the powerful Czechoslovakian team, during an interview following the Czech's 14-1 win over Poland. Asked if he thought Canada would return to the world championship tournaments, Pitner said the Canadian problem appears to be resolved and he foresaw the country again entering world and Olympic hockey tournaments this year.

Sacair granted test contract

SHERBROOKE (LH) — A local airline, Sacair, has been granted the contract to provide a test plane for new equipment being tested by Canadian Marconi Inc., and officials of the company's Montreal office flew into Sherbrooke yesterday to display the new equipment.

The "Omega system" is a self-contained system which automatically informs pilots of necessary course changes, said Tom Logan, operations manager for Canadian Marconi.

The system, he explained, differs from other similar mechanisms in that the plane's course is programed into a computer before a flight departs and any alterations from the programed course due to wind or other factors are brought to the pilot's attention by the computer on board the plane.

The system, Mr. Logan said, is completely self-contained and does not rely on information sent from the ground to verify an airplane's course.

Canadian Marconi is testing the new equipment in an airplane belonging to Sacair and hope to have the Omega system ready for sale to commercial airlines in a few months.

Drapeau testifies

MONTREAL (CP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau told the Quebec Police Commission Tuesday he met with Lieut. Emile Ducharme and Constable Leo Villeneuve early in 1968 to discuss documents they had concerning Jean-Jacques Saulnier, who later became Montreal's police chief.

Mayor Drapeau, testifying at an inquiry into Mr. Saulnier's conduct as a captain in charge of the morality squad in the mid-1960s, said the documents did not include one which Lieut. Ducharme has testified incriminates Mr. Saulnier.

The mayor said the documents were examined closely before Mr. Saulnier was promoted to inspector. Mr. Saulnier became chief May 1, 1971.

Shown a document Lieut. Ducharme has described as a sworn statement he took from Martha Adams April 3, 1967, and which Lieut. Ducharme has said incriminates Mr. Saulnier, the mayor said he did not recall seeing it among documents discussed at meetings with Ducharme and Villeneuve in January and March, 1968.

"I have never seen this document," he testified.

He offered commission lawyer Ivan Bisailon the documents given to him by Ducharme and Villeneuve, but Mr. Bisailon said he already had them.

Mayor Drapeau also told of events leading to Mr. Saulnier's appointment as chief.

The courtroom, which holds about 300, was packed during Mayor Drapeau's appearance after being cleared Monday and Tuesday while Miss Adams testified.

She said both days she was warned on at least four occasions in 1964-65 of impending raids by the morality squad but had no idea who made the calls.

Miss Adams currently is awaiting trial on charges of living off the avails of prostitution and operating a bawdy house.

She also has said the document which Lieut. Ducharme claims she signed is "garbage." The signature appeared to be her's but she did not recognize the contents, she said.

The document has been admitted as evidence for identification purposes only but Judge Gosselin has banned its publication since Miss Adams disclaimed the authenticity of its contents.

The commission will be asked formally to broaden the scope of the inquiry to include Lieut. Ducharme's conduct, Miss Adams lawyer said Tuesday.

665,000 jobless in Canada
Unemployment increases

OTTAWA (CP) — The post-Christmas business slump and the onslaught of Canada's severe winter bounced the number of jobless up to 665,000 last month from 530,000 at mid-December.

The 25-per-cent increase in the number of unemployed workers, however, was about normal for the increase between December and January in the last four years, and down sharply from the high-increase rates of the mid-1960s.

Opposition political nonetheless leaders flayed the government for letting unemployment run so high. The level amounted to 7.7 per cent of the 8.58-million labor force last month, compared to 6.1 per cent of a somewhat larger labor force in December.

A year ago, there were 668,000 unemployed in January, eight per cent of the labor force which then numbered 8.34 million.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said the latest increase was "a clear indication of the ineffectiveness of the Trudeau government's measures against mass unemployment." The fact that unemployment in the Atlantic provinces shot up to 12.9 per cent of the labor force was "a bitter comment on the lack of success" of the government's attempts to lessen regional disparities, he said.

LEWIS CRITICAL

David Lewis, NDP Leader, said the January unemployment report made the government's winter works program "a total failure," and he accused the government of "reckless indifference."

Releasing the results of its employment survey for the week ended Jan. 15, Statistics Canada said there was a greater-than-usual employment drop in the service industry. Retail trade, flush with employment for the December Christmas season, is a prime part of the service industry.

Changes in other industries last month were close to their normal seasonal patterns, the statistics bureau said. Winter weather always cuts deeply into employment in such industries as construction and transportation.

The January employment survey was taken before air traffic controllers went on strike, forcing a shut-down in most airline operations and lay-offs of airline personnel. Strikers are not counted as unemployed, but those laid off as a result of strikes are.

STRIKES ARE FACTOR

There were less crippling walk-outs in the week of Jan. 15, including so-called "study sessions" by radio navigation technicians. With the air controllers strike later in the month, unemployment ran even higher than the mid-month figures reported by Statistics Canada.

June election is predicted

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament Hill's consensus is that there will be a general election in June.

That would be four years to the month since Canada gave Prime Minister Trudeau the country's first majority government in six years.

Liberal party strategists said Tuesday they are inclined to rule out a sudden election call when the new session of Parliament begins Feb. 17.

Some opposition MPs have been predicting Mr. Trudeau might dissolve Parliament for an April or May election immediately after the Feb. 17 speech from the throne, an outline of government legislation for the session.

One Liberal spokesman said the cabinet has been working too hard on new legislation to throw all the results away with a snap election call and there will be time at least for orderly presentation in the Commons.

WON'T CRAMP STYLE

Another political adviser to the Liberals said Mr. Trudeau will not deliberately cramp his campaign style by subjecting the country—and himself—to chill election stumping in February, March and April.

Trudeau tries flower-power

OTTAWA (CP) — Perhaps it's the flower power of Prime Minister Trudeau, but the "Red Carnation Fund" is a reversal of previous Liberal money-raising philosophy.

Creation of the fund was announced Tuesday by Mr. Trudeau and Senator Richard Stanbury, party president.

Although the announcement came in what is widely expected to be a federal election year, the fund's avowed aim is to raise money to, in Mr. Trudeau's words, "maintain the party's activities between elections."

The three-page news release, which never used the word "money" although it did say donations "up to $500" would be accepted, contrasted sharply with the last specific party money drive under former prime minister Lester Pearson.

In May, 1967, an appeal by Senator John L. Nichol, then party president, started this way:

"This is a frank appeal for money—for the Liberal Party of Canada."

"You will receive no pin, no membership card, no personalized billfold, in short no gimmicks."

The Trudeau-Stanbury news release did not say what the fund name implies, presumably that contributors will get a red carnation to mark donations.

Senator Nichol's letter asked specifically for $10 but, if that was too steep, contributors could send less because "every cent is welcome."

"Many good Liberals will want to help but will not be in a position to do so—and this is clearly understood."

CBC walkout spreads

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

CBC technicians in Winnipeg and Toronto walked off their jobs Tuesday night, joining fellow workers in Halifax, Windsor, Ont., Vancouver and across the far North.

The walkouts by the technicians, members of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians, are being held on a rotating basis to back demands for a new contract with the publicly-owned corporation.

Only radio technicians walked out in Toronto, with their counterparts in television remaining on the job. There was no indication how long they would be off the job.

The walkout in Winnipeg started at 6:30 p.m. EST, and a union spokesman said the technicians would be out until 8 a.m. today.

In Halifax, radio technicians left their jobs Tuesday night after television technicians said they were not permitted to return to work following a four-hour walkout.

A NABET spokesman said the technicians tried to get into the CBHT-TV station but were unsuccessful.

S. R. Kennedy, Maritimes regional director of the CBC, said there had been no lockout. The employees who left their jobs at 4 p.m. EST said they would return at 8 p.m., he said.

A new shift was scheduled to come on at 7:45 p.m. and "we told the new shift they were 15 minutes late for work, and we didn't need them."

"We told the others they had walked off their shifts at 4 p.m. and we didn't need them."

Earlier, a picket line set up by Halifax NABET members almost caused Nova Scotia Premier Gerald Regan to cancel the taping of a television interview.

The premier's office said Mr. Regan would not have crossed the NABET picket line had it been there when he went to the Halifax station for the taping. It was set up after he left.

In Vancouver, 116 technicians booked off at 8:30 a.m. and were joined by seven more members at north-coastal Prince Rupert, B.C.

Technicians balk at agreement

MONTREAL (CP) — Striking airport technicians in Montreal said Tuesday they consider an agreement with the federal treasury board to maintain vital services is no longer valid because it is being broken by the employer.

Lucien Garant, Montreal vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said his members are "fed up" with being asked to perform non-vital jobs not stipulated in the agreement.

The union was not asking the men to leave their jobs yet, he said, but if they did there would be no service at all of vital radar, navigational and communications equipment.

About 1,200 union members employed by the transport department walked out Sunday but a prior agreement with the government kept 486 technicians at work to service vital equipment across Canada.

Lucien Garant, Montreal union vice-president, Monday said his members were becoming restive under pressure from airport officials to handle tasks not covered under the agreement, changing magnetic tapes that record the conversations of pilots in the air and repairing the public address system.

BATTER UP: Ray Bloomquist (center) owner of Sherbrooke's new baseball franchise calls it safe as Keith Morgan, (right) the

Pirates come to Sherbrooke

SHERBROOKE (LH) — "There's no way I'd come into Sherbrooke cold," Ray Bloomquist said yesterday, and he wasn't referring to the temperature.

Mr. Bloomquist, owner of the Sherbrooke Pirates, Sherbrooke's new professional baseball franchise, met with members of the press yesterday and introduced several of the people who will be working for the new team. The franchise, which is being moved from Waterbury, Conn., to Sherbrooke this year was originally awarded in November to Sherbrooker Paul Thibault who, at that time was president of a company known as Les Amis de Baseball de Sherbrooke (ABS).

Several months and a few legal tangles later, the franchise was once again awarded to Sherbrooke only this time under the auspices of Mr. Bloomquist's New York based athletic promotions company. But Paul Thibault and the ABS will handle local ticket sales.

Mike Beauvais of Westport, New York, is the team's new director of operations and will be responsible for the team's travel arrangements, stadium condition and the day to day responsibilities of running the franchise.

Keith Morgan, an active member of the Sherbrooke community, is the team's new publicity and promotions director and will be responsible for running the team's promotions throughout the year.

Bloomquist described his staff as "truly professional" and said that double A baseball was the most entertaining brand of minor league baseball.

Bloomquist announced that ticket prices would be $2.00 for a reserved box seat, $1.50 for an adult general admission ticket and $1.00 for children.

The Sherbrooke Pirates are a "farm team" of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates and all players will be supplied by the Pittsburgh team.

The Sherbrooke team's 140 game schedule opens on April 22 in Elmira, New York with the Sherbrooke home opener tentatively scheduled for about a week later.

Sherbrooke joins Three Rivers and Quebec City in the Eastern League and the owners of the franchise are hoping that the natural rivalries between these cities in other sports will develop in baseball as well.

Sherbrooke, Three Rivers and Quebec City join Elmira, New York, as the four teams which make up one of the divisions of the eight-team Eastern League.

Minor league professional baseball is divided into three categories, "A," "Double A" and "Triple A."

Sherbrooke's Double A team is the second level below major league baseball but several players become stars in the major leagues only one year after competing in this league. Last year, Bruce Kison, one of the world series heroes of the Pittsburgh Pirates, pitched in the Eastern League.

Mr. Bloomquist promised that one of the Pittsburgh Pirates would be on hand at next week's Sports Celebrity Dinner but declined to name him.

The attendance at Three Rivers last year totalled over 100,000 and one of the determining factors in the Eastern League's decision to bring professional baseball to Sherbrooke was the high interest shown for baseball in Quebec, Bloomquist said yesterday.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Healthful tips to combat excess stomach acidity

Dear Dr. Lamb—For several years now, I have suffered from great stomach acidity. Everything I eat hurts me and gives me severe indigestion. I tried acidity pills and stomach coaters and consulted doctors. I have even had an X ray of my stomach and gallbladder. They found nothing and the tests proved nothing. Can you help me, Dr. Lamb? I have just about given up hope of being able to eat like other people. Very depressed.

I suggest using a few more tablets than the label recommends at two- or three-hour intervals and at bedtime take an extra dose.

Dear Reader—I can suggest a few things that may help.

1. Stop drinking coffee, tea, colas or anything else containing caffeine.

2. If you are smoking, stop.

3. Avoid acid foods, such as fruits and fruit juices. If you do this for long you will need to take vitamin C tablets to be sure you don't get a vitamin deficiency.

4. Avoid all spicy foods.

5. No alcoholic beverages.

6. Do eat good cereals like homecooked oatmeal, well-cooked vegetables of all varieties, which includes green beans, corn and most people can tolerate fried tomatoes. Do not season your vegetables with strong spices, however. Also include in your diet lean meat, fish and chicken.

7. Stop using all milk products. Many people have an intolerance for milk products. The way to find out is to stop it and if your symptoms disappear you have your own answer. If it is not a factor, use fortified skim milk, uncreamed cottage cheese and other healthy dairy products.

For antacids, go to the drugstore and get yourself some Gelusil or Malox, either one of these can be obtained in liquid or tablet form without a prescription.

If you will stick to this regime for a number of weeks, you can pretty well tell whether it is going to relieve your problem or not. If it doesn't, go back to your doctor and ask him to measure your stomach acidity and give you a prescription for medicine that blocks the action of the nerve which stimulates the stomach to produce acid pepsin juice. These are atropinelike drugs and they tend to make your mouth dry.

The above treatment program has nothing in it that can harm you, and it could very well solve most of your problems.

and had a hand with great attacking potential. His five-heart call was correct.

East plopped his ace of spades on the king and continued the suit. South ruffed and studied the hand carefully. Should clubs break 2-2 he would have no trouble making his contract. What could he do about a 3-1 break?

He decided to find out. He led a trump to dummy; ruffed a diamond; led another trump to dummy; cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed dummy's last diamond.

Then he led the deuce of clubs. West played the nine and dummy's 10 lost to East's queen. East was dead. He had to lead a spade or diamond to allow South to ruff in his own hand and discard dummy's losing six of clubs.

What would have happened if West stuck in the king of clubs on the first club lead? It would have been a beautiful play. South could still make the contract if he read the situation but he might conceivably have gone wrong. We'll never know.

The bad player slaps cards on the table and hopes for the best. The fair player studies the hand and looks for the main chance. The really good player looks for every possibility.

North would have liked to double four spades. Who can blame him? Actually he could only set that contract one trick, but North did not know that.

On the other hand good player South had no defense

Now's the time to order Garden seeds

For 1972, the glads in the limelight are Cameo and Miss America. Now, while planning for the coming season, is the time to reserve space in your planting for these new, sparkling introductions to the garden world.

Cameo is as feminine and distinguished as a ladies cameo. It has heavy substance, moderate ruffling, a large canary yellow throat with rose picotee edging, and a soft, luminous glow.

Miss America is the other top award winner for 1972. Each spike, like a Miss America contestant, is a potential winner. The fancy ruffling, heavy substance, fine attachment, stretchy 60 inch spikes with up to 12 open flowers make this a gladiolus of rare beauty. It will delight both the showman and the home gardener with its tall, formal spikes, ease of growth, and long ribbon of radiant color.

Rotary reports paint bleak picture

SHERBROOKE (LH) — Because the government now handles most welfare needs, attitudes on the need for individual service to the community have changed, the president of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club said last night.

"These people (government) may be doing a good job or a poor job but that's not really the point," said Hank St-Louis.

"Now that the government takes care of most welfare needs, attitudes seem to be why should I do it when I'm paying for someone else to," he explained.

The Sherbrooke Rotary Club last night received reports from Rotary committee chairmen on the progress of club projects over the past six months.

The reports, for the most part, painted a bleak picture, prompting a general discussion among the Rotarians on ways to renew interest in community service.

Though Earl Gould was thanked and complimented for the work his committee has done in bringing guest speakers to the weekly Rotary meeting, Rotarian Paul Nadeau wondered if the club "is aiming high enough" in selecting its speakers.

"If any club in Sherbrooke can get good speakers, we can," he said. "Let's not have a speaker just for the sake of having a speaker. Let's have a speaker because we're the Rotary club." He suggested that politicians and government officials would be more interesting as speakers at future Rotary meetings.

Herbert Simons, chairman of the finance committee, reported that it would be "inadvisable to hold a campaign drive this year... as it would be unfair to ask the community for money with no projects in hand."

"It is highly desirable that we find a project to enlist the support of all the club members," he added.

Though a number of small demands have been made on Mr. Simons' committee for individual welfare cases, the Rotary club has not as yet decided on its community project for 1972 and "no calls have been made on the finance and campaign committee" for help in budgeting a community project.

Rotary director Ken Stevenson noted that two weeks ago a "French-Canadian speaker was introduced by a French-Canadian Rotarian and thanked by French-Canadian and they all spoke English."

He noted that the English are a minority in Sherbrooke and that the Rotary Club should be more bilingual at its meetings. He asked the other Rotarians whether Rotary had "lost touch with the times."

Rotarian Alex Baptist suggested that some meetings be held entirely in French. "Even if someone knows only two words of French, I'm sure he won't be ridiculed here among his friends," Mr. Baptist explained.

He suggested that meetings held on alternate basis either exclusively in French or English would benefit Rotarians of either language adding "the French members seem to speak English quite well, but the English Rotarians aren't getting much help in learning French."

Though most of the committee reports were not favorable, the Rotarians were unanimous in their belief that the club can continue to be an important and useful part of the community if a new, updated role is defined for the club.

President Hank St-Louis pointed out that legislation to streamline some of the club's rules was on the agenda for the upcoming Rotary international congress in Houston.

Earlier in the evening, Charles Andre Beaudoin, a local newspaper reporter thanked the Rotary Club for "successfully putting my name forward" in a Rotary project which sees a total of five young business and professional men visit Australia for five months.

Mr. Beaudoin is the only Sherbrooker among the five who will visit Australia. The others come from the New England area of the United States and the Sherbrooke Rotary Club successfully supported Mr. Beaudoin's candidacy at Rotary district headquarters in New England last summer.

Mr. Beaudoin leaves in two weeks and last night promised to give a complete report to the Rotary club on his return.

E.T. Construction Association wants local interests guaranteed

SHERBROOKE (LH) — The Eastern Townships Construction Association wants Sherbrooke City Council to take "all the necessary steps to insure that local architects, engineers, suppliers and entrepreneurs" are used in the construction of Sherbrooke's planned regional shopping centre.

A letter from the Association to the city says, "considering that the future shopping centre will have Eastern Townshippers as its clients, considering that industry is on the decrease in the region, considering that we have in this region all the necessary resources to complete such a project, we ask that council take all the necessary steps to insure that the Eastern Townships construction industry is favored in the granting of contracts."

On Monday night Sherbrooke council passed a resolution giving moral support to the letter sent by the E.T.C.A. Mayor Bureau pointing out that city officials had a duty to represent local interests at all times.

Bakers sought

SHERBROOKE (LH) — Students in the University of Sherbrooke's technical administration department are sending out invitations to all bakeries and related industries in Quebec to attend a symposium on the theme "Have bakeries a chance to survive."

The symposium is being held on March 22 at the Wellington Hotel and the students are hoping that representatives from bakeries across the province will attend.

Pulp and paper industry asks government for relief

QUEBEC (CP) — The Council of Pulp and Paper Producers of Quebec asked the provincial government Tuesday for tax relief amounting to $24 million this year.

It also called for "a moratorium on the introduction of further social programs such as workmen's compensation, medicare, the Quebec pension plan and minimum wage legislation until the economy of Quebec is in a stronger position to afford new initiatives."

Paul Lachance, president of the council which groups the 14 largest pulp and paper companies in Quebec, revealed the contents of a brief, presented earlier to Premier Robert Bourassa, at a news conference.

He said the premier promised to give full attention to the industry's requests. The council president said the industry feels it is absolutely necessary to reduce its production costs by $10 a ton if the industry is to survive in Quebec.

He said the requests made to the government Tuesday would cut production costs by about $4 a ton. The industry would try to reduce costs by another $6 a ton through its own initiatives in order to remain competitive.

The council's requests were for a reduction or elimination of some of the "taxes, fees, dues and government regulations which add significantly to the cost of wood procurement in Quebec."

The social affairs minister said the temporary measures to replace regular mailing of cheques were being introduced to "control rising welfare expenditures." But he added that in-aid and the blind will continue to receive their cheques by mail.

The government feels the move will enable it to decide if the money is being distributed to people who really need it.

A similar experiment in New York state disclosed certain administrative errors and resulted in the retrieval of large amounts of money. The province spent $350 million in welfare payments during the 1971-72 financial year, he said.

Until now the cheques have been mailed each month. Mr. Castonguay said in Montreal Monday that welfare cheques would be mailed out every 14 days beginning in 1973 for most parts of the province but as early as next fall for some centres.

He said the extra mailings would eliminate "crisis months" in which welfare payments must stretch over five weeks instead of four.

Royal Trust assets up $565 million

SHERBROOKE — Assets under the administration of The Royal Trust Company at Dec. 31, 1971, totalled $11.2 billion, an increase of $565 million over the year before, it was announced today.

Financial statements for the year ended Dec. 31 sent shareholders today, together with notice of the annual meeting Feb. 23 in Montreal, showed that the company's consolidated assets increased by $224 million over 1970, to a total of $1.9 billion, and estates, trusts and agency assets increased by $340 million to $9.3 billion.

Gross income for 1971 amounted to $178 million, an increase of $24 million, or 16 per cent, while net operating profit after taxes totalled $101 million, an increase of $3.3 million or 48 per cent.

About 89 per cent of the increase in net operating profit came from the company's money services and other financial operations. Fees earned on Royal Trust's vastly expanded real estate sales operations increased by $4.9 million or 78 per cent.

A favorable outlook for Royal Trust in 1972 is seen by the company.

"Although the rate of increase in earnings for 1972 may not be as great as for 1971," the company comments, "we expect that with the present economic forecast, company earnings for 1972 should be satisfactory, provide a fair return on shareholders' equity and continue the long-term growth trend established some years ago."

The company said that United States approvals with respect to Royal Trust's proposed acquisition of Inter National Bank of Miami, Fla., were being sought, with completion expected in June. The purchase will involve the exchange of approximately 316,000 shares of Royal Trust for all the outstanding shares of Inter National Bank. The bank has assets of over $45 million and annual earnings of about $440,000.

Growth in a number of important fields during the year was reported. Royal Trust Managed Funds A, B, C and M increased by $145 million, to a year-end total of $296 million. Mortgage payouts totalled $318 million, an increase of $53 million over 1970's payouts, and mortgages under administration now exceed $1.6 billion.

During the year, additional trust or savings offices were opened in Dorval, Que., Windsor, Ont., and West Vancouver, and eight new real estate offices were also opened.

EDMONTON (CP) — There is a solid case for continued government financial support for agriculture, Charles Munro of Ottawa, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said Tuesday.

Minutes later, federal Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson told the federation's annual meeting that the government is doing just that.

Mr. Munro said in his annual report the exceptionally depressed situation of net farm income across the country provides an "unanswerable case for solid government support and assistance."

"We should and must have the generous and willing support of governments," he said, adding that it is essential the public be aware of agriculture's dismal financial situation compared with other segments of the economy.

Mr. Olson told the 150 delegates the Canadian government is "aggressively interested to see that those who are involved in this vital industry succeed in their work."

Mr. Olson defended federal programs which he said, some critics interpreted as measures to decrease the numbers of farmers.

MENTIONS PROGRAM

He discussed the $150-million small farms development program designed to provide funds and facilities to let less-viable farmers develop their businesses.

"Some people say that we're following the recommendations of the task force report on Canadian agriculture in the '70s to decrease the number of farmers."

But, Mr. Olson emphasized, the report is not "the bible for agricultural policy for Canada."

The minister said the government's thrust in agriculture is not telling farmers to "solve their own problems by cutting down production and then leaving the job at that."

He said it is in suggesting that farmers channel their production and energies in ways that "produce the maximum benefit."

"Expansionary agriculture is seeking out new markets and then ensuring that we can provide a steady supply of what our customers want, where they want it and when they want it."

To facilitate export needs for grain graded on a protein basis, Mr. Olson announced protein segregation will be provided in five new grades of grain starting in August. The new grades will replace the traditional grades. The move completes a conversion started last year.

Mr. Munro said there are real dangers that commodity organizations will see less advantage in working closely with general farm organizations at both provincial and national levels.

Since 1949, the farmer's share of the consumer dollar had dropped to 45 from 60 per cent. During the same period, consumers had to pay 58 per cent more for their food, Mr. Munro said.

"It means that the prices received by the farmer... have gone up something like 18.4 per cent while at the same time the cost of getting the food to the consumer after the farmers have produced it has gone up 115 per cent, or six times as fast."

The convention ends Thursday.

Union membership increases in Canada

OTTAWA — Union membership in Canada at the start of 1971 totalled 2,210,594, an increase of 1.7 per cent, according to the annual survey of labor organizations compiled by the Canada department of labor.

This compared with total membership of 2,173,107 at the start of 1970, an increase of 4.7 per cent over 1969.

At the time of the 1971 survey, the number of non-agricultural paid workers in Canada had increased by 2.7 per cent and the entire labor force by 4.4 per cent.

Union members comprised 33.3 per cent of the non-agricultural paid workers and 26.5 per cent of the total work force, a drop from the 1970 percentages of 33.6 and 27.2 respectively.

In general, the distribution of union membership in 1971 was not substantially different from that of the previous year.

Canadian Labor Congress affiliates, with 1,654,147 members reported, accounted for 74.8 per cent of total union membership in Canada. This compares with 75.1 per cent in 1970.

Of the 1971 total in CLC affiliates, 1,147,441 members were in unions that were also affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations in the United States.

Membership of unions affiliated with the Canadian Labor Congress but not holding affiliation with the AFL-CIO totalled 506,706, or 22.9 per cent of the total.

Another 9.6 per cent of total membership of unions in Canada, 212,065 members, belonged to federations affiliated with the Quebec-based Confederation of National Trade Unions, and 15.6 per cent were in various unaffiliated international and national unions and independent local organizations.

Although the membership of the CLC and the CNTU increased by 21,894 and 4,693 respectively over 1970, the distribution of union membership by affiliation in 1971 showed no substantial change.

only, made up 34.9 per cent of the 1971 total, up from 34.6 per cent in 1970.

Independent local organizations and local unions chartered by the two central labor congresses, the CLC and the CNTU, accounted for the remaining 3.1 per cent of the membership. In 1970 the percentage was 2.8.

Although 65 national and regional unions were recorded in 1971, one more than in the previous year, the number of their locals grew substantially, indicating continuing organizational activity.

In 1971, there were 20 unions as against 19 in 1970 reporting membership of 30,000 or more. The new member of the club was the Retail Clerks International Association. Nine unions reported 50,000 or more members and these accounted for 37 per cent of the total.

The largest union in terms of membership was again the Steelworkers with 156,000 members reported for 1971.

Next in size were two national affiliates of the CLC, the Canadian Union of Public Employees, with 138,088 members reported, and the Public Service Alliance of Canada with 121,571.

Two international unions, each with one local in Ontario, have ceased operations in Canada. These are the International Alliance of Bill Posters, Billers and Distributors of the United States and Canada, which reported 11 members in Canada in 1970, and the Coopers' International Union of North America, which reported 200 members.

Malraux offers insight into Nixon Peking trip

PARIS (AP) — Andre Malraux says United States President Nixon's visit to China could become meaningless if he answers "No" to Mao Tse-tung's first question.

The 70-year-old writer has known the Chinese Communist party chairman for three decades. He told of his misgivings at a luncheon with U.S. Senator Edward M. Kennedy (Dem. Mass.).

"In this situation Mao will have the first question," Malraux said. "And I can tell you it will be this: Are you, the richest country in the world, prepared to help one of the poorest countries in the world on the road to progress?"

"Unless Nixon answers affirmatively, that the United States will assist China, then the rest of the meeting will degenerate into an exchange of trivialities."

The comments were reported by friends of Kennedy, who joined him Saturday during

2 1/2 hours at Lassere, one of Paris' most elegant restaurants.

Malraux last saw Mao in 1965 in Peking. At that time, he told Kennedy, Mao gestured to him and said: "All I want is six atom bombs. With those six atom bombs I know neither side will attack me. With those six atom bombs I can guarantee the peace of the world."

The luncheon guests said Malraux considered that Nixon "had got himself invited to China" and that this would reduce his stature in Chinese eyes. "It makes a great difference if you are a guest or someone who invites yourself," he said.

In addition to his many literary works, Malraux is known for the active political role he has played in France. Under the late Gen. Charles de Gaulle, he served as minister of state responsible for culture from 1959 to 1969.

Tribute paid to John A. Irving

Following is the text of the address given by Rev. James Liles, of South River, Ont., at the funeral service in Grace United Church, Port Dover, for the late Mayor John A. Irving.

Today we gather to pay our final respect to a husband, father, a friend, citizen, mayor, relative - a good man.

Words are tools with which to fashion the appreciation all our hearts would like to express today. The floral display, the gifts to the Heart Fund - all of these have been ways in which we have tried to make tangible evidence to one who has served this community for over 20 years.

Each one of us leaves a testimony after our death, footsteps for all to see. For some it is footprints embedded in cement, others feed in mud, and the sun dries and preserves it for a season; others it's a print in snow which soon is lost. No matter where, we can assure ourselves that God sees the mark we leave.

This man, Jack Irving, has left the imprint of his character. His courage, and his vision will be embedded in the life of the community. He has been indefatigable in his energy as a servant. He indeed deserves the accolade: "well done, thou good and faithful servant" for this marks better than many words his life as a community servant.

In a prayer sometimes used at the graveside service are the words: "make us deeply sensitive to the shortness and uncertainty of human life."

These words flash through my mind, tragic death came to our home. We all live in arrogance that things such as this cannot and will not happen to me. We all live with the hope that tomorrow we'll do better. This man's tomorrows were always filled with things that he would do for others.

In any case my inadequate words may be misinterpreted. I am not making a Saint of Uncle Jack. He, like you and me, fell short of the character we would like to be. However, as we look back in the book of fond memories, we can overlook these human errors and weaknesses and look instead to the strength of character which brought from him every ounce of goodness and kindness these are the legacy Jack Irving would have us keep.

Relatives and friends, we are faced in the moment with the sunset of life, a moment when we ponder on those cherished matters. Tomorrow a new day dawns our life continues.

It is with faith in this God given life, it is with faith and God-given strength, that we face that tomorrow Jack was not a stranger to the church, to faith, or to prayer. Your spirits can be lifted by the God of love and you can be brought to an understanding of God's way, which surpasses many others.

When death comes, as it has to this loved one, it is of little importance where we lived, or when, how much we owned, or owed. Now the supreme significance is the nature of our living, playing, serving or dying.

The Apostle Paul wrote: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith."

I see this as applying to His Worship Mayor Jack Irving... his soul rests in God's peace... our hope lies in God's love.

Save yourself, not the married drinker

By Ann

for him once in a while in private, but not for guests. And let him post.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 16 but very mature for my age. My problem is one I can't talk to anybody about because my parents think it is already settled. I can't take a chance on them finding out that I'm still seeing Hank.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Fred and I have been married three years. When we met I was a student nurse.

He has a hangup about that uniform I used to wear, and has asked me to put it on at the craziest times. To please him I've worn it on occasions which I felt were most inappropriate, and I come out looking like a darned fool.

For example, we had his boss and his wife to dinner a few weeks ago. Fred insisted that I wear my student nurse uniform. When I greeted the guests — starched, bibbed, collared and cuffed — they were stunned. At first they didn't recognize me. They thought someone in the house was sick. My husband didn't bat an eye.

I don't enjoy this sort of thing and I'm uncomfortable about it. Fred says I'm childish. If I refuse to oblige him he pouts. What should I do? — CANADIAN WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: Your husband has no right to inflict his fetish on you in public. Tell him you'll put on the uniform

I'm in love with Hank and want to marry him. The problem is that he is already married and having trouble getting a divorce. Hank is 10 years older than I am but doesn't look it. He has a drinking problem but I'm sure after we are married it will be over because he won't have any reason to drink. He'll be happy with me. Now he is hurt inside because he is separated from his two little children and he has to drink to keep from going crazy.

My folks are very much against Hank and I promised I would stop seeing him. I haven't been able to keep my promise. Please tell me how to present my case to my parents so they will understand that I am saving a human being. I've always wanted to be a social worker and I wouldn't be able to make it. Thanks, Ann. — CORNING, N.Y.

DEAR CORNING: Find another project. A 16-year-old girl should not be doing social work on a married man with two children and a drinking problem. You are not going to save this guy. In fact, if you don't stop seeing him you'll be lucky if you save yourself. He has already made a liar and a sneak out of you. Call it quits. The sooner the better.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 42, married to a successful business executive and we have two children, 16 and 17. I earned a Bachelor of Arts degree before I was married and decided last fall to go back to school for a Master's in English Lit.

The children will be away at school within two years and I think I'd like to teach.

What bugs me is that several friends, when they heard I was back in school, asked, "Is everything all right with you and Charlie?" I can't tell you how this bugs me. Does a woman's marriage have to break up before she goes back to school?

If so happens that two of my friends who were divorced recently are now getting their degrees and another girl is already teaching. But to assume that every married woman who wants to teach is having marital problems is absurd. How do I respond to these needlers? I hate to be defensive or apologetic. — A.O.K. AT OUR HOME.

DEAR A.O.K.: Make light of it — simply say, "As far as I can determine things are all right at home. If you hear anything definite tell me. I'd like to be among the first to know."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I married at 17 I weighed 110 pounds. After ten years and five children I doubled my weight. My husband begged me to go on a diet but my answer was, "I am what I am. Take it or leave it." Well, he left it and moved in with a woman who worked for him. Not long after he asked for a divorce and I gave it to him.

I was hurt and heartach. I couldn't eat. The first 20 pounds fell off in two weeks, so I decided to keep going. Within nine months I lost 75 pounds. During that time I met a real gentleman. He is crazy about me, loves my children and pays a lot of attention to them, which their father never did. He wants me to marry him. Problem: The ex-husband saw me for the first time in seven months and wants me back. Should I give him another chance? You're going to decide.

ORANGE JUICE
DEAR O. J.: Sorry, but it's your life and you're going to decide. If you do decide to remarry the guy you can expect a return of the old movie.

Father Pare preaches at St. Luke's

MAGOG — On Sunday, January 23, being the Sunday in the Octave of Prayer for Christian Unity, a small piece of history was made in the 101-year-old Church of St. Luke. Father Pare, Cure of St. John Bosco Church in Magog, preached at the Sung Eucharist at 11:00 a.m. to a congregation about 75 per cent Anglican and 25 per cent Roman Catholic. It was an unforgettable experience and in no sense a stunt. In the words of Father Pare himself, he came to pray with the faithful of St. Luke's. For this ... Laus Deo.

TINA MAE — 8½ month daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, Mrs. Emma Dowd and Mrs. Frank Corriveau, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Roland Corriveau, great-granddaughter of Mrs. G. Price, and great-great-granddaughter of Mrs. E. Soper.

She is at present teaching in Kitchener. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Reed, Waterville, Que.

Spring Rite's Orange Fondue

SAY HELLO TO SPRING... with a refreshing Orange Fondue and Rites of Spring Citrus Punch. Florida orange juice gives both a refreshing, natural flavor.

Spring is a light, joyful time that beckons all to come outdoors again. It's a fresh time when sunshine, grass and nature become new discoveries to be celebrated as if for the first time. Happy occasions always call for parties so that joys can be shared. So, a "First Day of Spring" party is as natural as the season itself. It's a perfect occasion to celebrate the natural beauties of the earth and to call attention to the fact that everyone must help to keep the world beautiful. In keeping with the spring theme of natural freshness, the perfect party food to complement this idea is Orange Fondue, made with nutritious Florida orange juice.

This dessert fondue is brightly colored and has the lively tart taste of real oranges. Cloves — so added for a spicy accent and a little lime juice creates They're sweetened and blushed with grenadine syrup and mixed with sparkling ginger ale.

And for greater enjoyment, you can serve this zesty punch over strawberry ice cubes that are easily prepared by placing fresh strawberry halves into each cube while freezing.

Three new ways to serve carrots

Did you know that carrots top all major vegetables in vitamin "A"?

And what does vitamin "A" do for you? Its roles are not completely understood, but it is essential to the development and adequate functioning of all skin and other epithelial membranes; for normal functioning of the eye; for growth, including synthesis of proteins; and it interacts with other vitamins in complicated and essential ways.

One medium size carrot provides more than a day's recommended allowance of vitamin "A," according to the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association. It looks as if we should be serving carrots more often to take advantage of the remarkable nutrition that this tapered orange vegetable offers.

It's pretty sure that most cooks serve carrots sliced and cooked, or cut into strips and chilled in water for crispy carrot sticks to eat raw. But here are some brand new ways to serve carrots that will introduce you to this delightful vegetable in fresh, interesting styles.

Carrots and Mushrooms Tarragon is a delicious vegetable dish. Fresh mushrooms lend contrast in taste and texture to the carrots which are sliced and cooked in water with the herb called tarragon for this dish. The mushrooms are sauteed separately in butter or margarine, and mixed lightly with the cooked carrots to serve.

Here's an interesting idea — a variation of a potato dish that is a great favorite. It's Carrot-Potato Scallop in which sliced potatoes and carrots are baked together in alternating layers in a cream sauce seasoned with chives and caraway seeds. Wonderful eating with almost any meat you can name.

A third new way to serve crispy carrots is with a fresh orange glaze. Doesn't that sound delightful? It is, and here is how the dish is done. Carrots are cut lengthwise into slender sticks, and cooked in a small amount of water till tender. Then make a fresh orange glaze in a skillet using brown sugar and butter; add the carrots, and spoon the sauce over the carrots until they are glazed and heated.

To select carrots of good quality at your market, look for those that are firm, fresh, smooth, well-shaped and generally well-colored.

FRESH CARROTS AND MUSHROOMS TARRAGON

- 8 to 10 medium carrots (1 pound)
- 1 cup water
- 1 teaspoon dried leaf tarragon
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced

Pare carrots and cut into ¼-inch crosswise slices. Place in medium saucepan; add water, tarragon and salt. Cover and cook over medium heat 20 to 30 minutes, until tender. While carrots are cooking, heat butter in a small skillet; add mushrooms and cook until tender. While carrots are cooking, heat butter in a small skillet, add mushrooms and cook until tender. If there is much water left in the pan with the carrots, drain the carrots. Add mushrooms to carrots and mix lightly.

MAKES 4 TO 6 SERVINGS

CARROT-POTATO SCALLOP

- 8 to 10 medium carrots (1 pound)
- 2 medium baking potatoes
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1½ cups milk
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh chives
- 1½ teaspoons caraway seeds

Pare carrots and cut into ¼-inch diagonal slices. Pare potatoes and cut into ¼-inch crosswise slices. Place in alternating layers in lightly greased 1½-quart baking dish or casserole. Melt butter in saucepan; blend in flour and salt. Stir in milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add chives and caraway seeds; pour over carrots and potatoes in casserole. Cover and bake in 375 degrees F. oven 30 minutes. Remove cover and bake 30 minutes longer, until carrots and potatoes are tender.

MAKES 4 TO 6 SERVINGS

ORANGE GLAZED CARROT STICKS

- 8 to 10 medium carrots (1 pound)
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ¼ cup chopped fresh onion
- 1-3 cup packed light brown sugar
- ½ cup fresh orange juice
- ½ teaspoon salt

Pare carrots and cut into sticks by cutting in half lengthwise, then into lengthwise quarters and eighths. In a large skillet, cook the carrots, covered, in a small amount of water until tender. Remove carrots from skillet. Heat butter in same skillet; add onion and cook until tender. Stir in brown sugar and orange juice; simmer 5 minutes. Add cooked carrots, sprinkle with salt, and spoon sauce over carrots until glazed and heated.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Shopping in India is an adventure in temptation

By MARGARET NESS
NEW DELHI (CP)—Shopping in the capital of India is devastating to the budget. Not that things are expensive; just that you want to buy everything you see.

Take the beautiful saris, for example. You know you'll never wear one unless at an at-home party, as a conversation topic. But when a pretty Indian clerk in a colorful sari charmingly points out that you can make a dress, perhaps two, and certainly a dress and a blouse out of one sari—well, you're hooked. Saris vary in price from cheap cottons to pure silks and even jewel-embroidered ones costing hundreds of dollars. Of course you can also buy pure silk prints by the yard but there's something romantic and status-important in explaining to friends that your dress was made from a genuine Indian sari. In New Delhi, one Indian costume selling to the tourists is the gharara, with wide gored pants—some are 82 inches around each leg—and a tunic top. Once an old Mogul costume worn by the men, it's now been taken over by the women. You can have one made to order by one tailor in one day. For a long evening coat and classic dress, two tailors can complete the ensemble in one or two days.

WAS FASHION EDITOR

In Bombay we dropped in at Rukhmani, a fashion boutique owned by Mrs. Mani Gudden, who was for five years the fashion editor of Bombay's Eve's Weekly. Mostly her clothes are in western styles, in Indian fabrics, especially raw silk. One was a tunic and pants costume with gold and orange stones set in the embroidery, about $45.

You'll also find it impossible to resist Indian jewelry. All major cities have excellent jewelry shops where you can get good buys in precious and semi-precious gems. We particularly liked the smoky topaz. The Gem Palace in Jaipur is a good example. Both the Queen and Jackie Onassis bought bracelets here.

Another is Kohinoor Jewellers in Agra, home of the Taj Mahal. The firm has been in the same family for more than 100 years. They have more than 5,000 ring designs. Pins, too, are lovely. One peacock pin was in emeralds and pearls.

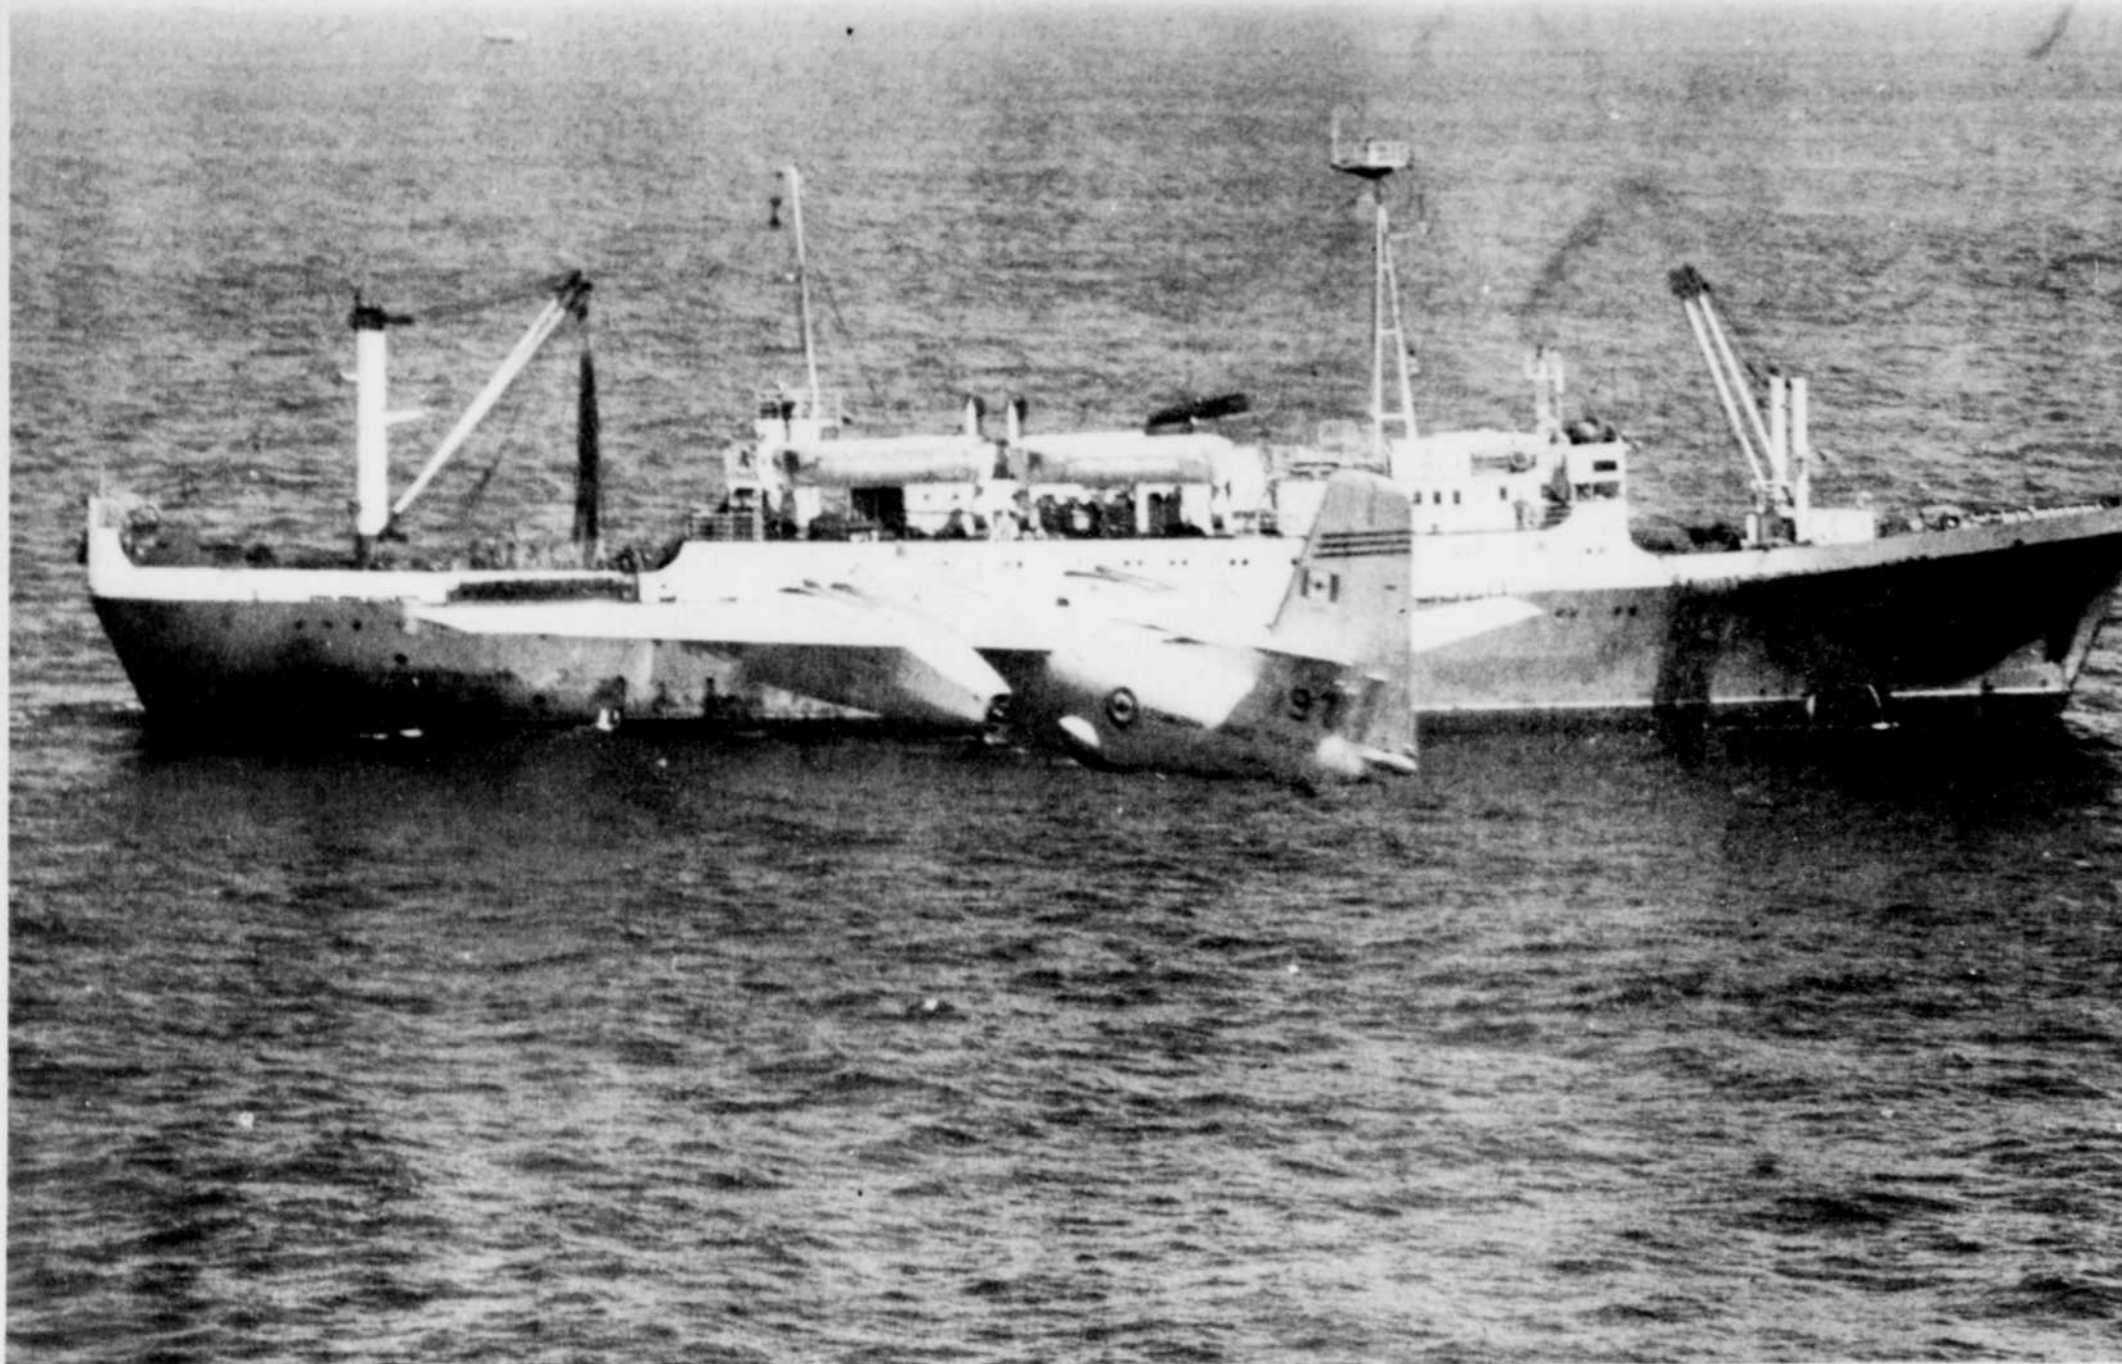

India's costume jewelry is popular with tourists. Enamel rings and bangles inlaid with slivers of mirrors are most attractive and inexpensive.

If you're looking for antiques, there's the Fine Art Palace in Jaipur. Owner Azim Bux has items such as a 300-year-old emperor's sword, priced at $3,000. But there are also inexpensive items such as the charming, locally-made, wood-and-gold-leaf ladies, 15 inches high, playing instruments. These are $21 each.

Most stores and even small shops have wide selections, including ivory, ebony, rosewood and sandalwood elephants at all prices; handsome evening bags of velvet, brocade and raw silk heavily embroidered with semi-precious stones; lightweight Kashmir stoles, ranging from $8 to $35 and shawls up to about $300.

You probably won't be able to resist buying a few items in each centre visited but major purchases should be made in New Delhi, where things are definitely less expensive.

However, I did find that the Kashmir Government Emporium in New Delhi was slightly higher for its own shawls and stoles than other stores. But they do have a good selection of rugs. Finally, it's best to shop at Government of India-approved stores, such as the Cottage Industries Emporium in New Delhi, especially for expensive items.

LARGEST ENGINE — The assembly of the largest ship diesel engine is being completed at the engineering works in Bryansk, the central European part of the USSR. The engine will have a capacity of 21,000 hp—almost double that of engines up till now put out by the engineering works. The new diesel engine has nine cylinders, is 17 m long and almost 13 m high. The new engine is designed for dry cargo and timber carrying ships with a displacement of 16,000 tons.

Consumers' Association of Canada investigates footwear

A CAC Report

Footwear must protect the wearer and complement his appearance while keeping the feet cool in hot weather, warm in cold weather and dry in damp weather — quite a trick. Since the essential purpose of footwear is protection (from temperature extremes and rough surfaces), the most important considerations are quality and fit; style should come later.

Man's first footwear consisted of animal skins wrapped around the foot and tied with vines or strips of skin. Early specimens of footwear, because they could make cold ground warm and wet lands dry, were assumed to have magical properties and led to such tales as the Seven-League Boots and Puss-in-Boots.

However there is nothing magical about modern winter footwear. They are constructed on standard full and half size lasts that correspond to the majority of Canadian foot shapes (an advantage of buying Canadian). Quality in footwear depends on the materials used and the craftsmanship with which they are assembled. Modern materials include:

Leather: molds itself to the shape of the individual foot, is porous, flexible and available in a number of finishes and colors. It may be water-repellent but, even with the application of new finishes, is not totally waterproof.

Plastic (vinyl): is neither as porous or as flexible as leather but is waterproof. A strong backing adds life and comfort to the product. It is available in a number of colors and finishes, some that resemble leather.

Rubber: is the standard waterproof material. Rubber footwear is generally of molded, all-in-one construction with the rubber having a napped synthetic or cotton backing. In the past, rubber boots tended to be serviceable rather than glamorous.

Poromeric: is a synthetic material which "breathes" somewhat like leather. It is lightweight, retains its shape, is available in many durable textures and colors and requires little maintenance. Since it does not stretch or adapt to individual foot shapes, initial fit is vital to wearing comfort.

There are two basic types of winter footwear — overshoes which slip over a pair of ordinary shoes and boots which fit over the foot itself. A past favorite was the rubber overshoe with a felt or shearing lining which was warm and dry but also bulky and unattractive. Leather boots are slim and more fashionable but are not waterproof, scuff easily, become salt-stained and are expensive. Vinyl leather-like synthetics now on the market are stylish and waterproof except around the zipper or side slip-on gore. They are inexpensive and wear well.

BREATHABILITY

Breathability goes a long way in promoting foot comfort and is the property of a material which allows warm air from the interior of the boot to pass to the outside and be replaced by fresh exterior air. It includes the ability to absorb and transfer moisture from the foot to the outside.

Leather is the prime example of a footwear material that "breathes". Breathability, in turn, depends on the porosity of the hide — the number of pores and the spacing of the fibres that comprise it. When leather "breathes", body moisture and heat is exchanged for dry, cooler air and this evaporation cools both the leather and the wearer's foot; however, the body salts in perspiration will remain on the leather. This process works in reverse as well since leather will draw in moisture from the outside just as efficiently.

In the past, grease and wax were smeared on the outside to make leather boots water-repellent but they clogged the pores and inhibited the "breathing" process, prevented evaporation and reduced the natural insulation of leather. People who complain that they always have "hot feet" should wear boots that "breathe" well and do not require polishing. Old wax should be removed with a solvent or saddle soap before a new coat is applied so the existing pores will not become clogged.

Feet, along with the hands and forehead, are the main areas of the body where excess heat is expelled. An estimate places the amount of moisture eliminated by an average pair of feet, which have about 200,000 pores, at a half pint a day (almost a third of the body's total loss). This is most noticeable during the summer but even in cold winter days when you are working hard and your feet are bundled with extra socks they will need to get rid of extra body heat. Overweight people will expel a greater amount of body heat and perspiration when they work and, with them, the evaporation process may be inhibited by tight fitting boots and the extra weight bearing down on the feet.

EVAPORATION

Evaporation is less efficient on humid or cold, damp days and, therefore, the transfer of body heat and moisture for outside air is less efficient. Foot moisture will tend to condense on the inside of the boot before it can be evaporated, so feet will feel cold and clammy. Rubber and plastic which lack the "breathing" quality of leather inhibit all and moisture transfers either into or out of the boot.

Breathability and waterproofing have become more compatible due to the discovery of a process using silicones which collect around the pores in leather, but still permit the transfer of heat and moisture from the inside of the boot while stopping the entry of external moisture. This silicone-treated leather, called "Syflex", is expensive, especially for growing children who need a new pair of boots every year. The synthetic poromeric material is said to breathe like leather and at the same time to be waterproof. It has the added advantage of being less expensive to manufacture and, therefore, to buy.

The most common method of footwear construction is to stitch together a sole and an upper but this creates large holes in the material, permitting the entry of moisture. The thread has a "wicking" action which draws water into the boot. Leather in particular, because it is a fibrous material, eventually becomes soaked. Moisture alters the shape and the texture of leather so that a boot which fits well normally will become tight when wet, will rub against the foot and, if this occurs frequently, will lead to blisters and corns. In addition, leather is stiff and hard after it has been wet.

A process called vulcanizing applies an all-rubber sole to a boot so that the rubber penetrates into the pores of the leather upper, creating a waterproof seal at the joint. Needle holes along seams are coated on the inside with a rubber-base cement, then the lining is pulled into place over a layer of plastic foam which is inserted between the outer boot and the lining. Such boots are seldom slim and stylish.

While there they were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Delisle. We welcome to Danville Mrs. Frances Hall of Asbestos, who has taken up residence on Carmel St., following her retirement from the C.J.M. Hospital where she has been employed for many years. is now gaining from a rather severe bout of flu. Sis. Mona Taylor presided over the regular meeting of Maple Leaf Lodge on Tues. evening, Feb. 1, when donations were made to a charitable organization and an outstanding bill was ordered paid. A motion was made to have one of the Lodge Hall doors repaired, as it made the hall very cold in its present condition. Sis. Margaret Frost was asked to see that this was done. Tentative plans were made for a Spring Bazaar. All enjoyed a social hour at the close of the meeting. Welcomed to this meeting was Sis. Frankie Hall, who has taken up residence in Danville, and will now be able to attend meetings. Sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Barry Horan of South Durham, formerly of this place, at the sudden death of Mrs. Horan's mother, Mrs. Bernice Gunter, which occurred at the Sherbrooke Hospital on Friday morning, Jan. 28, following an illness of a few hours' duration. On Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 26, Mrs. V. C. Lindsay, president of the U.C.W. of Trinity United Church, chaired a meeting called to ascertain whether there would be a Unit One for the coming year. Olney as secretary and Mrs. Ruth Gallup as treasurer. Meetings will be held on the fourth Thursday of each month, except for a summer recess in July and August. The next meeting will be on Feb. 24 in the Church Hall at 2:30 in the afternoon. Refreshments were served at the close of the business meeting. At the meeting of La Cercle des Fermiers held on Monday evening, Jan. 24, many items of business were discussed, among them plans for a card party to be held in the Parish Centre on Feb. 12. This will give the guests the opportunity of choosing their favorite card game, as prizes will be donated at each table. There will also be a number of door prizes as well. Mrs. R. Benoit, the president, and her committee are busy on plans for this and for other projects for Spring.

A number of buildings in this vicinity suffered damage from the high winds on Tuesday, Jan. 26 and found going home from work rather a hazardous affair. Fortunately, no serious accidents resulted from the poor visibility. Followed by the extreme cold, January has certainly furnished weather for all tastes. Friends of Mrs. J. W. Beliveau will be pleased to know that she

Arctic athletes prepping for own Olympics

WHITEHORSE— When the second Arctic Winter Games are staged in this Yukon city March 6-11, 1,000 participants from every corner of the North American arctic will take part in a week-long festival of athletics and cultural exchanges.

This unique international sporting event is staged every two years in communities north of the 60th parallel and brings together athletes from the Yukon and Northwest Territories and the state of Alaska.

Arctic Quebec recently announced it also will send a team to the 1972 Games.

The Canadian federal government has provided a $125,000 grant to the Arctic Winter Games Society to help promote, organize and stage the Whitehorse event.

It was also through the encouragement and the cooperation of the department of national health and welfare's fitness and amateur sport directorate that the Arctic Winter Games were born.

ENTERED CANADA GAMES

Athletes from the Yukon and Northwest Territories took part in their first major sports competition in 1967, meeting athletes from Canada's 10 provinces at Quebec City in the initial Canada Winter Games. The results for the Arctic contingents were disappointing as they finished near the bottom in most events.

When it was over, Arctic sports officials decided the problem was lack of competition. What they wanted was a formula to produce competition at a level that would provide a challenge for northern athletes and at the same time provide the experience they so badly needed.

The solution proposed was the Arctic Winter Games.

An Arctic Winter Games Corporation was formed, comprising two directors each from the Yukon, Northwest Territories and Alaska. The group was incorporated in both Canada and the United States and grants from the territorial and federal governments made it possible for the directors to meet.

The first Arctic Winter Games were awarded to Yellowknife, capital of the Northwest Territories, to coincide with the territory's centennial. Trials were held to select each area's representative teams, and the major cost of hosting the first Games was provided by the department of national health and welfare.

HAD INTERNATIONAL FLAVOR

Those first Arctic Winter Games were held March 9-14, 1970, and 710 athletes assembled under the flag of two nations to watch the lighting of the Games' flame as Prime Minister Trudeau declared the Games officially open.

When the Games came to a close, the Northwest Territories had won the aggregate team championship, followed by Alaska and the Yukon.

At Whitehorse, more than 900 athletes will be present. Twelve sports will be contested, two more than at Yellowknife. Badminton, basketball, curling, figure skating, hockey, shooting, cross country skiing, table tennis and volleyball are being retained from the 1970 program, with judo, alpine skiing and wrestling being added. Synchronized swimming is the only Canada Winter Games event not now on the program.

Awards for first, second and third place finishers in the Arctic Winter Games consist of gold, silver and bronze medals in the shape of miniature ulus. The ulu is a crescent-shaped Eskimo utility knife.

PROMOTE UNDERSTANDING

Making the Arctic Winter Games even more unique is the special events program, a series of cultural and artistic events staged in conjunction with the Games to promote better understanding and goodwill among the participating areas.

The theme this year will highlight the Yukon — its unique past, colorful present and challenging future. Yukon communities, along with those from Alaska and the Northwest Territories, will exhibit such items as carvings, paintings, prints and snowshoe making, native dancing and singing.

Certainly one of the highlights of the special events program will be an exhibition of Eskimo games, featuring such skillful contests as the arm pull, ear weight, rope gymnastics, blanket toss and spear throwing.

HE KNOWS THE ROPES — Eskimo athlete demonstrates rope gymnastics, one of the traditional native exhibition competitions to be seen at the Arctic Winter Games.

Handicap no barrier

MONTREAL (CP) — Diane Pharand was born with a crooked right foot requiring a special corrective boot but now she is a promising young athlete.

The 13-year-old St. Hubert high school student recently won a Canada Fitness Award and her trainer, Marc Duclos, says she has Olympic potential.

To win the award, offered by the federal health and welfare department's fitness and amateur sport directorate, Diane had to complete a series of exercises in a certain time according to a scale for her age.

The events included sit-ups, a standing broad jump, a shuttle run, a flexed-arm hang and 50- and 300-yard runs.

Diane emerged from the tests with between 95 and 100 per cent in each event, ahead of 50 other youngsters of the suburban Greenfield Park Athletic Association.

Duclos said that "with the marks she got, there's no question she's one of the fittest young girls in Canada."

Diane has a gold medal and a certificate signed by Prime Minister Trudeau and Health Minister John Munro to prove it.

"It wasn't that difficult," Diane said, "because I love gymnastics."

"That's what I'd like to do when I grow up—teach gymnastics at school."

Despite her crooked foot she has a large number of swimming, cycling and figure-skating awards to her credit and a bronze medal for a third-place finish in the high jump eliminations for the Quebec Games.

Bishop's Larry Smith drafted first in CFL

LENOXVILLE (WC) — Larry Smith, who has been a star attraction on the Bishop's University Gaiter football field for the past four seasons, will be joining the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League next season.

The 21-year-old 210-pound running back was the first player to be picked up in the annual Canadian College draft held Tuesday in Montreal.

He was one of four Bishop's players chosen Tuesday at the Chateau Champlain Hotel.

Tight end Sandy Baptist, was a second round choice of the Montreal Alouettes. Wide receiver, Ron Perowne was chosen in the fifth round by the Ottawa Roughriders and quarterback Bill Macdonald was drafted by Vancouver.

"I'm happy to have been the first chosen. I had expected to go in the first round but I hadn't expected to go first," Larry Smith, a Hudson native, said Tuesday night following a Bishop's University hockey game.

"I'm glad to be going to Montreal. It is where I wanted to play although I would have given my best to any other team in the CFL," he said.

Smith, an economics major in his last year at Bishop's University, gained over 1,300 yards rushing during last year's season.

"I think I can make it. You have to have self-confidence in football. I will be going to training camp ready to give a 100 per cent effort," said Smith, an all-Canadian this year.

The Montreal team hasn't contacted their first round draft choice as of yet but Smith feels, "they will contact me in the near future. They have a great organization."

Smith hasn't made any demands for money yet but has a figure in mind. "I'm sure that we will be able to reach a good settlement," he said.

Smith has no agent.

HOCKEY ANONYMOUS

In one respect, the junior hockey life span of the Cowansville Voyageurs has resembled that of an alcoholic. It has been a trail of unfulfilled promises.

Two years ago, as the brains behind this futile venture revealed their prize product to the local public, there were vows of establishing a competitive club within a period of two seasons. And though the fledgling franchise absorbed its lumps during the first year of operation, Voyageurs' officials echoed their earlier optimistic sentiments before the start of the present campaign.

Most of the team directors who uttered such fearless forecasts have since departed, as have the customers who finally realized they had been duped by a smooth sales pitch. This leaves only the hockey team itself to uphold the lofty hopes, but there is every indication they too will become an extinct species come next fall.

In actual fact, the boys nearly suffered this fate less than two weeks ago, when current president Jean-Paul Sirois announced he was withdrawing the Cowansville entry from Richelieu Junior B Hockey League ranks for the balance of this year's schedule. Although an emergency meeting of the circuit managed to convince Voyageurs' officials to complete their season's slate, it is not likely they will renew their membership another year.

"When we first took over from the previous organization," explained Sirois, "we thought that for the good of the kids it was worth a try. We considered it part of our duty as a minor hockey organization. Now, in looking back from all angles, we feel it is not in the best interest of minor hockey."

Sirois had been particularly disenchanted with the lack of co-operation and desire extended by the majority of the Voyageurs' hockey squad.

The problem had been a frequent irritation throughout the season but reached intolerable proportions Friday evening, Jan. 28, as the Voyageurs prepared to make a trip to Cap de la Madeleine. A total of seven players reported for duty, and consequently the encounter was cancelled, prompting Sirois to resort to the drastic measures which constituted his short-lived decision.

MINOR PROGRAM FAILED

There are undoubtedly a handful of nagging ailments which have contributed to the dismal downfall of the Cowansville Voyageurs, but none was as glaringly exposed as the failure of this city's minor hockey program. Though it has produced some talented young hockey players, the lack of stress upon discipline has been largely responsible for filling the Voyageurs' lineup with a group of brooding babies.

The attitude of most coaches in the Cowansville minor hockey organization has been one of ignoring the childish outbursts and temper tantrums by a key member of his squad lest it deter from the principal object of winning. If the youngster managed to get away with such a practice at that level, why shouldn't he press his luck in a higher circuit?

"It may be a question of needing stiffer coaching in bantam and midget," admitted Sirois. "This is something which we will sit down and discuss, because if a boy can't take discipline in junior hockey, there must be something wrong with our system," he continued.

As a result of the spoiled mannerism, the helpful advice of pilot Jean-Guy Charbonneau, one of the finer junior hockey tutors in the province, was unheeded by most team members. Some further compounded the problem by taking issue over his coaching techniques.

"The kids definitely let us down," declared Sirois. "Everyone thought he was the star and the other guy was making all the mistakes. We were lacking team spirit, which you simply must have."

In the hope of lifting that sagging spirit, the club's directors organized a trip to the Montreal Forum, purchased new skates for each member and provided other incentives which might have instilled some dedication into the group. The gestures were not acknowledged by as much as an ounce of grateful perspiration under game conditions, however.

A few hours preceding the Voyageurs' contest in Cap de la Madeleine, two players informed Sirois that injuries would prevent them from accompanying the remainder of the depleted squad. Two days later, the same players sought Sirois' authorization to compete in a Junior C game, where their talents likely stood a better chance of being recognized.

HAD NO REINFORCEMENTS

The club president, though, attributed the quick recovery to the disappearance of "a coat of yellow down their backs," which prohibited them from facing some robust opponents in Cap de la Madeleine. An earlier meeting with this squad had been far from a team affair.

In defence of the Cowansville Voyageurs, it must be noted that they received no reinforcements from the Richelieu loop as the club wallowed helplessly in the confines of the league basement. A team which has collected a total of four victories in nearly 40 games is obviously inept, but not until their announced departure from the Richelieu ranks did the Voyageurs arouse a ripple of concern.

Then, in a move primarily performed to avoid the embarrassment of losing a member with the season still in progress, the Voyageurs were generously granted three performers from the Laprairie midget club. Unfortunately, not even this contribution to the Vees' welfare was sufficient to avoid a 17-2 whipping one night later.

As might well be expected in view of the fiasco which has transpired during the current hockey season, Voyageurs' officials are not brimming with optimism over next year's prospects.

"We might be back next year," Sirois mused. "Perhaps as a juvenile setup which will include boys up to the age of 21 years old. We have to decide whether we are going to have hockey on a competitive basis or just so the kids can have a good time."

The former option failed miserably during the course of the past two campaigns, and one might be forced to assume the directors will not gamble on a repeat performance.

As Sirois clearly explained, "there's no use investing people's money, if the players cannot get interested."

In the meantime, Cowansville, once considered a hockey hotbed, lingers on the hockey deathbed.

Leafs edge Blues, Flyers win

Toronto Maple Leafs have been having their problems in the National Hockey League but at least they keep trying and their perseverance has been paying off.

The Leafs were up to their usual standard of marksmanship in St. Louis Tuesday night, bouncing pucks off the Blues goalposts while falling behind 1-0.

But, not unlike their performance in New York Sunday when they came back to tie the Rangers 2-2, the Leafs kept plugging and wound up with a 2-1 win on goals by Rick Kehoe and Paul Henderson late in the third period.

In the only other game Tuesday, Philadelphia Flyers downed Vancouver Canucks 3-1 to move to within one point of the fourth-place Blues in the West Division.

BACK IN FOURTH

The Leafs' victory edged them back into fourth spot in the East, one point ahead of the idle Detroit Red Wings. Toronto could increase the margin tonight when they play host to Pittsburgh Penguins. The Red Wings remain idle until Thursday.

In other games tonight, Chicago Black Hawks visit New York, Philadelphia meets the Golden Seals in Oakland and Los Angeles Kings visit Minnesota North Stars.

Centre Danny O'Shea had just arrived in St. Louis after a Tuesday trade saw the Blues claim him from Chicago in exchange for Chris Bordeleau.

O'Shea set out immediately to please his new employers by scoring for the Blues in the second period and he was one of the outstanding players in a Blues uniform as he toiled on a line between wingers Phil Roberto and Brian Lavender.

St. Louis goalie Jacques Caron played a strong game in the first two periods although the goalposts helped him on shots by Leaf centres Dave Keon, Norm Ullman and Jim Harrison.

Gamble was called on for 30 saves while the Flyers tested Vancouver netminder Dunc Wilson with only 22 shots.

Marie Nadig leads for "unprecedented three"

SAPPORO, Japan (CP) — She didn't say a lot but her smile was a winner. Golden girl Marie Therese Nadig of Switzerland, newly-crowned queen of the Olympic downhill and giant slalom courses, let her coach do the talking.

As the first double gold medalist in women's skiing in 20 years, Marie Therese said she likes the sudden plunge into the world limelight. Would she win an unprecedented three?

"Maybe." Her coach, Rolf Hefti, told a news conference Tuesday after her victory in the giant slalom that she is in top shape.

The slalom completes the women's Alpine program at the Winter Olympic Games on Friday. Miss Nadig is entered but not seeded.

"She is in such outstanding form she may win everything she goes in for," said Hefti, meaning the ski sweep—men skiers Toni Sailer of Austria and Jean-Claude Killy of France are the only two to have done it.

Hours later, reporters had a frustrating time at a news briefing for the new Olympic pairs skating champions, Irina Rodnina and Alexei Ulanov, who led a 1-2 Russian finish with a nearly-flawless free-skating performance.

Together for six years, they wouldn't talk to reporters about a reported rift as the result of a broken romance when Miss Rodnina fell in love with another Russian.

Sandra Bezic, 15, and her brother Val, 19, of Toronto were ninth in the field of 16. Another Toronto couple, Mary Petrie and John Hubbell, was 15th.

Marie Therese completed her double Tuesday in blizzard-like conditions. Others complained the snowstorm hampered their efforts but the Swiss schoolgirl said she didn't mind it.

Miss Nadig zig-zagged flawlessly through the 51 gates on the snake-like 1,240-metre course to win the giant slalom in one minute, 29.10 seconds.

Annermarie Proell of Austria took the silver as she did in the downhill during the weekend.

Annermarie was the big downhill winner in Europe this winter and leads the World Cup standing. Miss Nadig never won an international race until Sapporo.

Bishop's edges U of M 9-8

LENOXVILLE (CC) — Bishop's University hockey Gaiters nearly threw away another game last night at the Scott Arena.

Still, they were able to keep their hopes for a playoff berth alive winning a squeaker over the University of Montreal Carabins 9-8.

Bishop's scored four goals within six minutes and 15 seconds at the beginning of the third period and led 8-5.

Then due to poor defensive play on the part of the Gaiters the University of Montreal team drew to within one goal with over two minutes remaining in the game.

In the last minute of play Bishop's little goaler Alain Hebert stopped Carabin Yves Seguin on a clear break-away as he swept around the Bishop's defence.

After the breakaway stop the local squad were able to hang on and defeat the fourth place Montreal team 9-8. Bishop's is sitting in fifth place trying to grab a playoff spot.

Don Campbell and Ross Barrett each scored two goals for Bishop's. Other Gaiter scorers were Steve Mitchell, Rod McLernon, Larry Smith and Steve Connors.
