Summer country music festivals keep fans on road

Country music

By DAVE MULHOLLAND

Roll out those lazy, hazy, crazy days of summer ... It's vacation time. Time to pack the kids into the camper and hit the road. No matter where you travel in North America, there's likely a country music festival nearby. Three weeks ago I mentioned some of the activities taking place; here are a few more.

For those heading into the Ottawa Valley, the 3rd annual Boundary Bluegrass and Country Music Festival will take place at Morewood July 16, 17 and 18. Acts include Leon Morris, Border City, Rideau River Grass, Ladies Choice, Grass Works, Lorne Buck and others. Morewood is just outside Ottawa and camping facilities will be available. For more information call (613) 448-2680 or 448-2267.

If you're vacationing in New York state, this year's Berkshire Mountains Bluegrass Festival will be held at Beaver Valley Camp July 22 to 25. The camp is on Route 28, off 1-88, four miles south of Cooperstown. Acts include the cream of bluegrass such as Seldom Scene, Ralph Stanley, J.D. Crowe & The New South, Don Reno, Buddy Spicher, The Osborne Brothers and many others. Camping facilities are available. For further information call (617) 492-0415.

For mainline country fans, the 5th annual Hunter Mountain Country Music Festival will be held in Hunter, New York, July 29 to August 1. Artists on the show include Charley Pride, Bill Anderson, Dave Rowland, Charly McClain, Cedar Creek, Bobby Bare, Porter Wagoner and Janie Fricke. Hunter is located on Route 23A, a half-hour drive off the New York Thruway. Camping facilities and motels are nearby. For more information call (518) 263-3800.

For a taste of country music history, the Carter Family Memorial Festival takes place at A.P. Carter's store in Hiltons, Virginia, 20 miles from Bristol, August 5 to 7. For route directions and a list of acts call (703) 386-9480.

As you probably know, the 1982 World's Fair is on now in Knoxville, Tennessee. For those heading into the southern U.S., Canada's national week celebrations will be held August 23 to 29.

There are, of course, many more country, bluegrass and folk festivals throughout North America; some of which I have mentioned earlier and others that I haven't received any information on. Hope this partial list is some help. Have fun and drive carefully.

A couple of months ago I wrote about The Good Brothers heading off to Muscle Shoals, Alabama, to work with a producer who has recorded the Allman Brothers and Delbert McClinton among others. Well, Bruce Good says the session didn't work out.

"We just couldn't see eye to eye on the material," Bruce says. "He liked a couple of our songs, but then he was convinced he had the songs for us. Well, they weren't for us, so we packed up and came home."

Bruce says he, Larry and Brian have completed the album in Toronto and they're "real real happy with the results." The album, on Solid Gold Records, is due for release any day now. Weekend Rodeo has already been released as a single from the album.

Dick Damron's emotionally-layered baritone is an expressive instrument for conveying his heart-of-the matter lyrics. As usual, Damron leaves himself wide-open to his moods, sharing his life with the listener. Homegrown will make you high, but Jesus, It's Me Again will keep your feet planted firmly on the ground. The music doesn't grab the first time through, but it grows on you. Great country.

'Eyesore' amusement park irks foothills residents

CALGARY (CP) — John McAfee gazed around his $25-million amusement park, showing all the pride of a father towards his newborn baby.

The official opening near Calgary of Calaway Park, Albert's answer to Disneyland, was scheduled for Sat., June 26 and McAfee frowned, adding: "Some people are going to be totally turned off by this facility."

There are a few who don't go in for rollercoasters, log slides, haunted houses and garishly-painted Fred Flintstone villages smack up against the scenic Rocky Mountain foothills.

One of them is Mary Luzi, who first lost a battle to stop the amusement park altogether and then lost in her bid to ban McAfee's 31-metre-high rollercoaster.

"It's certainly an eyesore," Luzi said in a telephone interview. "Our back windows look right at it."

McAfee, a former Red Deer, Alta., lawyer, admitted "if I lived a half mile away from this site . . . and I was sitting there looking at this corkscrew rollercoaster, I'd be unhappy too."

He has painted the $3-million structure, including its two upside-down loops, in brown earth tones to blend in with the foothills.

Luzi is grateful but can't help asking: "What does that do when there are still purple and red roofs, along with oranges, yellows and blues?"

ASKS PATIENCE

McAfee has urged her to be patient; to wait until the thousands of dollars worth of trees, bushes and landscaping have a chance to develop so they hide what she doesn't like.

There were other residents, he said, who believed his development plans called for nothing more than "taking a field, paving a strip and sticking a midway in there."

But McAfee said most have been won over since then by the ponds, waterfalls, suspension bridges and inlaid-brick walkways on the 24-hectare site.

Writing The Great Novel? So are 99 others

EDMONTON (CP) — Whether you're looking for fame and fortune or feel you have something to say, you're not alone if you plan to write the great Canadian novel, says John Patrick Gillese of the Alberta Culture Department.

At least 100 people complete book-length manuscripts in Alberta each year. And for each of those people there are another 10 who start writing but give up before the project is complete, says Gillese, director of the department's film and literary arts branch.

He said the odds of a Canadian author getting a book published have improved greatly in the last decade.

"Ten years ago, out of 100 manuscripts we would have been lucky if three were published," Gillese said in an interview. "Now it is averaging 15 or more a year."

But the average author is still having difficulties getting his work published, says Edmonton publisher Mel Hurtig.

"We get 35 manuscripts a week, yet in the course of a year would publish fewer than 10," Hurtig said. "One New York publishing house got 1,000 manuscripts a day, yet published fewer than 20."

Ken McVey of the Alberta Culture Department said if you do manage to get a book published, the odds are that you won't make a great deal of money.

"None of the statistics will indicate that you can expect to make anything more than a modest living writing books," he said. "But it does happen that people make a fortune."

He said there are few writers who make more than $5,000 from a book. The average first novel will likely sell less than 5,000 hardcover copies.

Hurtig said it is hard to generalize because sales can vary from a few hundred to 75,000 or more. But few books sell more than 10,000 copies.

BASIC QUESTION

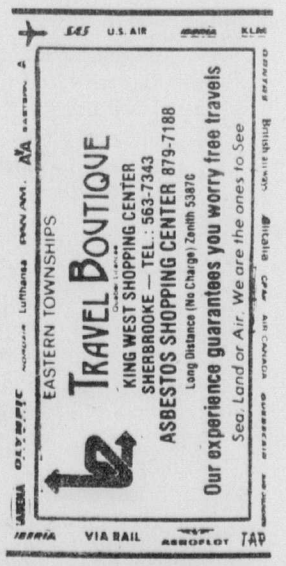

The basic question, Hurtig said, remains "How good is the book?"

McVey said many of the manuscripts seen by the Alberta Culture Department are unpublishable because they show little signs of a professional approach.

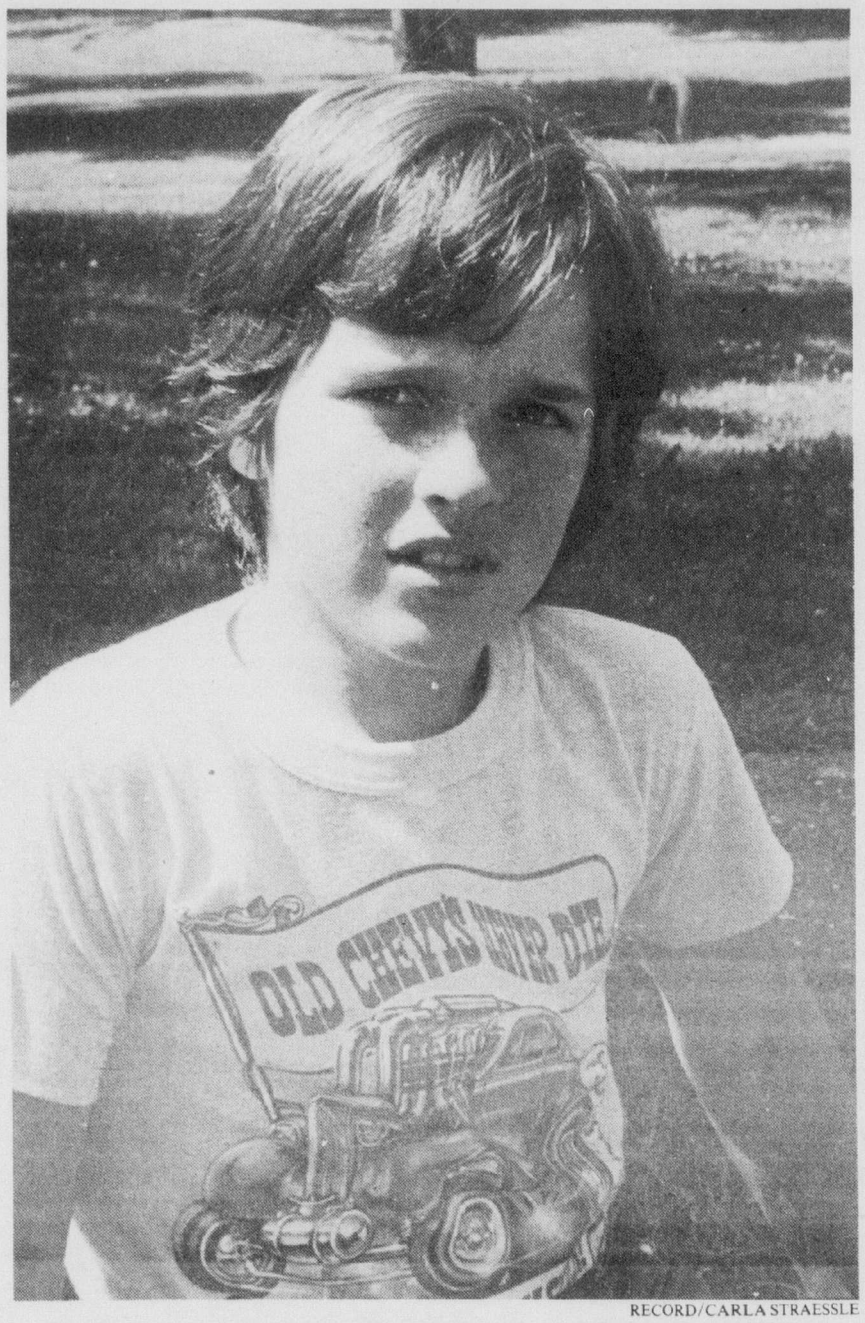

"There are a lot of good ideas for books. But when people don't know how to go about it, they won't succeed. The best idea can be a miserable manuscript."

Hurtig said many beginners make the mistake of not researching the book market.

"A lot of people spend a lot of time on manuscripts without ever researching the market for it," he said.

The local talent at Festival Lennoxville

Leif Savage... Barnston boy plays in W.O. Mitchell's The Kite.

Leif Savage joins theatre company

By Carla Straessle

LENNOXVILLE — Leif Savage, 12, of Barnston has been chosen from among six local boys to play the part of Keith in Festival Lennoxville's production of W.O. Mitchell's play, The Kite. His participation is part of artistic director Scott Swan's effort to directly involve Townshippers in Festival Lennoxville.

Savage described the 10-year-old character he will portray as "a boy trying to find out about life and death." He said his part is, "pretty hard. It's a major part along with one other, the grandfather, Old Daddy Sherry." If anybody wants to find out really what he's about, come and see," he added.

Perfectly bilingual in French and English, Savage attends the Barnston School where he has been involved with four other school plays. "I've played a lawyer, a cowboy, a drunk and done prompting."

His English teacher told him about the Festival's search for a qualified local boy between eight and 14 years old after she saw the announcement in The Record on May 10. "She thought of me and another boy. He couldn't come because he was going on cruises this summer. So, it was left to me for the Barnston School." He went through two interviews then found out he was chosen on May 30. "It was 9:30 at night and I was jumping with joy!" he recalled.

"I got chosen for some reason but I have a suspicion that being small and being of the age helped me a lot." Celine Daigneault of Festival said that aside from his talent, his appearance conformed to that of the other actors. "He fits in with the rest of the cast which has to form a family unit."

Savage has been rehearsing under the direction of Tom Peacock six days per week about five to eight hours per day. He says it has taken him about two and a half weeks to learn his part which also involves some trapeze work. "It's fun working with adults, I don't get bored."

As for Savage's plans for the future, he will be going to high school in September and says, "I really want to keep up acting. If we're talking about professions, if not acting, I'd like to do electronics."

The Kite will be playing in repertoire from July 9 through August 21.

Corporations too stingy with arts: Symphony head

EDMONTON (CP) — Corporations are not in a money-giving mood toward the arts, says Ron Ritch, outgoing president of the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra.

He said industries in Edmonton like to boast of the city's performing arts but is not giving the financial aid they should.

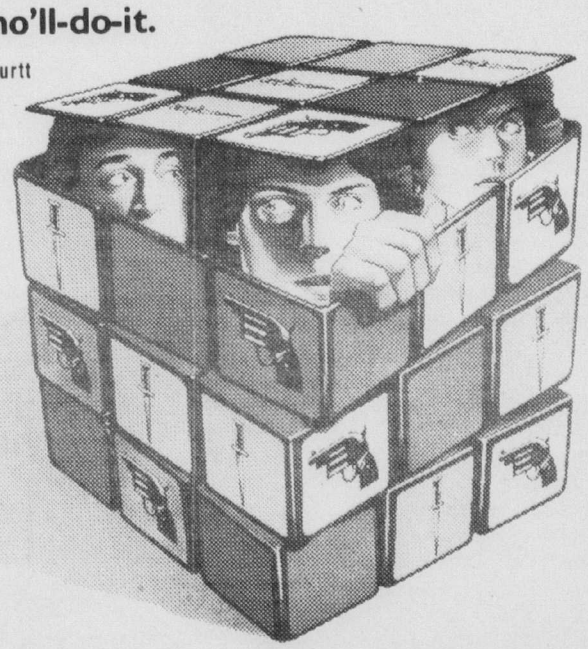

"They pick the fruit off the trees and leave nothing behind," Ritch said in an interview. "It's a shameful thing."

Corporate foundations have not begun to dig into their pockets, he said, in fact "they have short arms and deep pockets."

The failure is not with the entrepreneur, but a poorly trained middle management not trained to fully appreciate the value of the arts in a community he said. It would be better to bring in middle management from Eastern Canada and the United States who are trained to recognize that the symphony is good, the opera is good, the ballet is good for business, providing jobs, teachers and purchasing power.

Ritch singled out particularly the insurance business, which "does very well here," Air Canada, the food industry, architects and engineering companies.

"Look at the business symphony orchestras across Canada generate for Air Canada. They give us nothing."

Rodrik exhibition at Piggery to benefit Hospital

NORTH HATLEY (CS) — A benefit night will be held at the Piggery Theatre on July 9 for the Sherbrooke Hospital's Ladies' Auxiliary featuring an exhibit of the paintings of Paul Rodrik. The play, Romantic Comedy, will be followed by a wine and cheese. Rodrik's work will be on display from July 1 through 17. All the commission on paintings sold that night will go to the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Son of Group of Seven member Franz Johnston, Toronto-born Rodrik was surrounded in his youth by the richness and enthusiasm of his father's and colleagues' work. During his teens, he became an expert in woodcarving and carpentry, designing and building his own furniture, buildings, and a series of treehouses.

He studied at the Ontario College of Art and at Tondakea, his father's summer school of the arts. Paul accompanied his father on numerous painting expeditions until Johnston's death in 1949. Rodrik's reputation as a painter was already well-established by this time and his work had been exhibited frequently throughout the country.

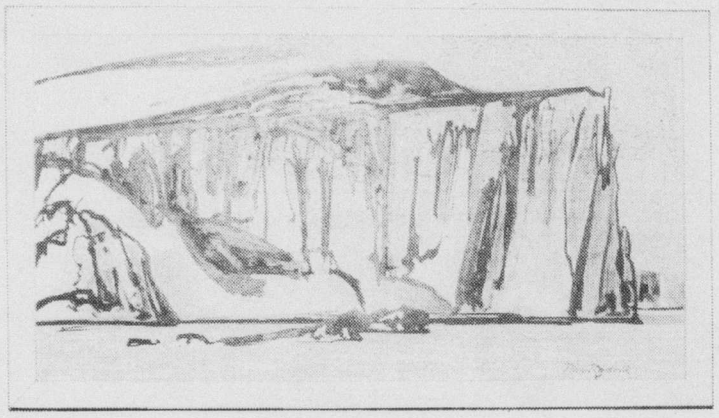

Rodrik has actively explored the Canadian landscape through his paintings, travelling to the Arctic in 1973 on an icebreaker and to Newfoundland and Labrador in 1974. Recently, he has begun to work in acrylics portraying what he describes as his 'pageant of the human puppet' which is inspired by groups of people involved in daily life and by legends and stories of the Eastern mythologies.

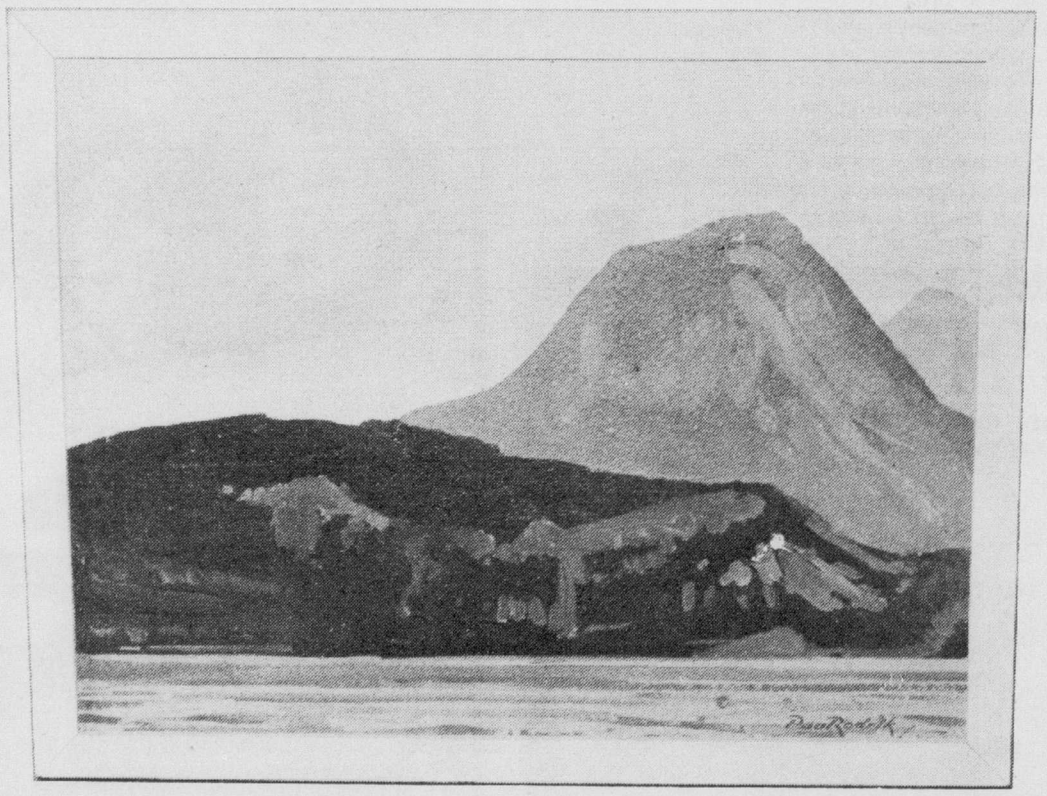

The exhibit has been made possible in part by the assistance of his daughter Mrs. Leigh Clarke and her husband, a doctor at the Sherbrooke Hospital. Tickets for July 9's play and wine and cheese cost $10 and may be reserved by calling Phyllis Price at 563-2894 or Mildred Armstrong at 562-4924.

The Piggery: You've come a long way, piglet

By Timothy Belford

Summer theatre in North Hatley has long been a tradition and reports of amateur productions as far back as the late nineteenth century indicate a community enthusiasm for the arts that has carried over to this day.

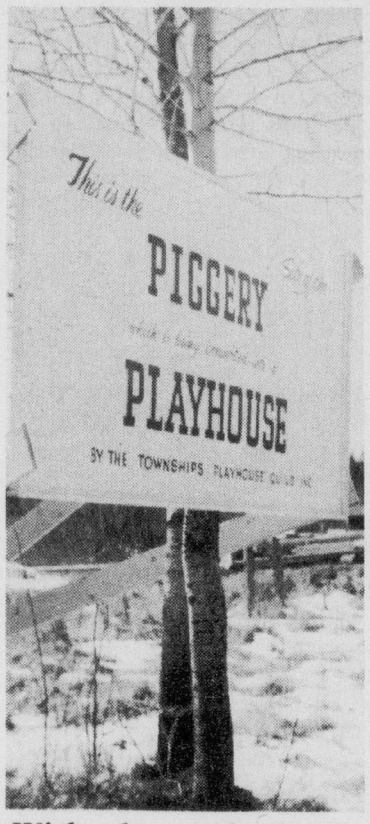

Whether it was the North Hatley Playhouse, The Brae Manor Playhouse or the latest edition, the Piggery, residents of this lake-side village have supported "their theatre" with time, labor and money. It seems only fitting therefore, as the Piggery opens its 17th season, to take a quick look at how things have changed.

In 1964, following the disastrous fire that destroyed the Brae Manor Playhouse, many residents of the Townships, and particularly of North Hatley, decided that a new facility was in order. At this point, Arthur Virgin, a long-time resident of North Hatley and supporter of the arts, came forward with a suggestion and an offer that couldn't be refused. Virgin donated a piggery, five acres of land and the sum of $5,000 with the suggestion that the community could supply the rest.

And supply it they did. First, a fund-raising committee managed to secure $60,000 in donations and then, following Virgin's selfless attitude, Montreal architect Patrick Stoker donated his time and skills to design and produce a 300-seat theatre. Thus the Townships Playhouse Guild was formed and the newly-named Piggery opened in 1965.

For the next seven years things continued much as they had in the past with the Piggery producing a large number of amateur productions in both English and French. In 1972 however, the members of the Playhouse Guild decided to take the giant step of producing a fully professional season.

To do this they contracted with the Montreal International

With the enthusiastic support of local residents and the architectural expertise of Montrealer Patrick Stoker, The Piggery opened in 1965.

Theatre, better known as La Poudriere, to produce four plays. The result was a definite success and a clear indication that North Hatley was ready for professional theatre.

As a result, the Guild went ahead the next year with the organization of its own company. In 1973 the newly-formed company presented a Noel Coward festival of three plays and an original Quebec play by Jean Barbeau called La Coupe Stainless. Attendance leaped by 120 per cent and the Secretary of State, suitably impressed by the community's enthusiasm, responded with a $12,000 grant.

The next big step for the Piggery came in 1975 when the company mounted a tremendously successful season including Gas Light, Mixed Doubles, Oh Coward and a musical featuring such performers as Gilles Valiquette, Jean Carignan and Alexandre Zelkin. Once again the government responded, and for the first time the Canada Council gave its financial support as well as some much needed advice.

Audience figures have grown over the years reaching the 10,000 figure in 1981 and several other interesting editions have been added along the way.

The Piggery now features a summer-long art gallery where local artists and craftsmen can display their work and their wares. Another innovation which has proven to be extremely successful, is the introduction of a restaurant which serves pre-theatre country suppers whose justifiable fame has spread throughout the area. Rumor has it however, that pork is definitely not on the menu. To better serve the suppers an outdoor patio was added where patrons can dine in mosquito-free comfort while enjoying the country air and the gorgeous scenery.

The changes weren't all in the area of audience comfort however, and an educational program was added for students studying English as a second language. In 1981 an apprentice program was started, with government support, to train students who hope to follow a career in the theatre.

Finally, in 1981, the Piggery took the major step of hiring a full-time Administrative Director, a move seen by many as the most important taken in the last 10 years. With the able guidance of Jane Buss, the new director, the Piggery is off to its best start in many years and with the added blessing of a major bequest from the estate of Jeanette Virgin, wife of Arthur Virgin, the donor of the original building, the future looks good.

Another precursor of The Piggery was The North Hatley Playhouse whose 1956 program is above.

By the time this article goes to press, the Piggery will have opened its first production of 1982, Bernard Slade's Romantic Comedy (see review this paper). Two more productions are planned for the summer — Murder Game by Dan Ross and Talley's Folly by Lanford Wilson.

The changes have been slow for the Piggery Theatre since 1964 but nonetheless dramatic. Afterall, from piglet to professional doesn't happen overnight.

Arthur Virgin, above, donated his unused piggery and the five acres of land on which it stands after fire had demolished the Brae Manor Playhouse.

The Virgin family continued its support of The Piggery through a bequest in the will of the late Jeanette Virgin (right) with another long-time supporter, Emily LeBaron.

Who voted for Hitler thought-provoking, redundant

By Timothy Belford

WHO VOTED FOR HITLER?, Richard F. Hamilton, Princeton University Press, 1982.

Considering the volume of scholastic work dedicated to an understanding of the Nazi phenomenon, the question entailed in the title of this recent work could probably be answered by the query "Who cares?". Fortunately for those of us interested in history for its own sake and for those who would like to understand the root causes of the Nazi horror, Richard Hamilton did in fact care — at least enough to question certain long-held conclusions.

Conventional scholarship has always maintained that the Nazi party road to electoral power on the basis of wide-spread lower-middle-class support. It was this collection of independent farmers, petty officials and small businessmen, according to historians, who felt the most threatened by the crumbling, depression-plagued society of Weimar Germany and it was these same individuals who grabbed onto the Nazi promises of stability and pride.

Richard Hamilton attacks this claim however, and musters an impressive array of facts and figures, including electoral breakdowns from a variety of cities, towns and rural areas, to support his contentions.

Hamilton's own conclusion — that the Nazis received much ot their support from the well-off — is based upon three interesting observations. First, all evidence from the German countryside would indicate that support for the National Socialists of Adolph Hitler was far more dependent upon the religious affiliation of the individual farmer. Thus, the Nazis received considerable support from areas predominately Protestant in nature with support dropping dramatically in areas inhabited by Catholics.

A second observation made by Hamilton is extremely damaging to the previously held view of lower-middle-class support. A detailed analysis of available records shows clearly that previous claims had no basis in fact since the literature published immediately following WW II, upon which subsequent theories were based, lacked any supporting data.

Part of the problem here, according to Hamilton, was the inability of researchers to isolate a purely lower-middle-class neighborhood in an urban setting which would allow a scientific analysis of voting patterns. Thus the original claims could not be justified with data available in the 1930s and 1940s.

The third observation made by Hamilton, actually a corollary to number two, deals with voting patterns in districts for which data is available. In all of the cities surveyed, support for the Nazis varied directly with the class level of the area — with the most affluent supplying the greatest support!

Hamilton's work is at times excessively dry and the author has a tendency towards repetition. The conclusions he reaches however, are nothing short of startling and the impressive array of facts, figures and examples he musters in defence of these conclusions is enough to sway the most conservative of historians.

Richard Hamilton has altered the conventional conception of the origin of support for the Nazi party and with that alteration has opened to question much of the existing scholarship concerning pre-war Germany and the failure of the Weimar Republic. Who Voted for Hitler? thus takes on a significance and importance far greater than the innocuous title would suggest.

When you're second to Lennoxville, you try harder

BLYTH, Ont. (CP) — When you're No. 2 in the business of home-grown Canadian summer theatre, you must not only try harder but reach farther.

The eight-year-old Blyth Summer Festival is second to Quebec's Festival Lennoxville, apparently the only other theatre in the country devoted entirely to the production of Canadian plays.

Blyth not only develops and produces new Canadian plays but is reaching out with fresh writing and directing talent into other theatres across the country. Some of its talent has gone to the Stratford Shakespearian Festival this year.

"We may not be widely known, but there's certainly no more famous theatre hereabouts," says Blyth's administrator, Janet Amos.

In this little farm market village, 65 kilometres northwest of Stratford near the Lake Huron city of Goderich, the Blyth Summer Festival has also blossomed physically. It has built — and paid for — an office-workshop-storage addition to the old Canadian Legion Memorial Hall, and has installed air conditioning in the auditorium. It rebuilt its forestage area for this season and next plans to get a new computer-controlled lighting system.

Amos, an actress who began with the original community theatre production of The Farm Show at nearby Clinton, Ont., in 1972, performed at the Niagara-on-the-Lake Shaw Festival and a lot of regional theatres until last year.

TOOK OVER IN '80

She took over the Blyth Festival in 1980 from its first mentor, James Roy, and last winter gave up acting to devote all her time to planning, writing, and administering the festival.

Her first play, Down North, opens the festival's season July 1. Her husband, Ted Johns, also has written a play, Country Hearts, a comedy set in a storm-bound small town hotel.

The festival's budget for this summer's 12-week season of five plays is $270,000. Amos has a happy relationship with the festival board, composed of Blyth and district volunteers who "work like dogs, all year round — they never stop" to raise money, run fund-raising bazaars, and even wash dishes at the country suppers held prior to Friday and Saturday night performances.

Down North by Amos is about a lonely, self-centred 13-year-old boy from a big city sent to his grandfather's farm in Cape Breton while his parents fight through a divorce action.

The season also brings actress Viola Leger to Blyth in La Sagouine, Antonine Maillet's now widely-known story of an old Acadian scrubwoman.

Last year, the Blyth Festival worked up Country Corall, a play later produced successfully by Theatre Network in Edmonton. Two years ago it gave the world premiere of Peter Colley's I'll Be Back For You Before Midnight, a chiller that was immediately picked up by other theatres.

FINDING PLAYS HARD

"It's extremely difficult to find four or five good new plays a year for the festival here," said the attractive blonde Amos.

"Writing for the theatre is a tremendously difficult thing, but there is going to be a growing need for playwrights as more and more theatres want to do Canadian plays."

Through her wide experience in regional theatres across the country, Amos has built up many contacts. She uses them to send out scripts or make appointments for playwrights she thinks may expand their work beyond Blyth.

"A lot of writers have reached a certain stage and now need to write for a bigger theatre or expand their work beyond a certain personal vision of the world. Anne Chislett wrote Quiet In The Land for me last year and I told her to go ahead and write it big, as if she were doing it for the Stratford Festival.

"She did, and we squashed 13 people onto our little stage, but it was so successful we are doing it again this year."

Quiet In The Land is about two Amish Mennonite families whose pacificist beliefs come in conflict with the turmoils of the First World War. Amos will again play one of the leads in the revival running Aug. 27 to at least Sept. 11. It will later transfer to Waterloo, Ont., the third time Blyth has sent a production on tour.

"We did the first tour on our own, without help from the funding councils, and we made $1,000," Amos said proudly in an interview over a hamburger lunch. "It was worth it for the experience and the publicity."

HOPE FOR TOUR

She hopes Quiet In The Land can go on a major national tour in 1984 to mark the theatre's 10th anniversary.

"We'll need financial help for that because it's a big show and we want to start in Vancouver and go right across the country. But we think it's healthy in these times to depend on ourselves a lot. We get about 70 per cent of our income from our box office and our own fund-raising efforts."

Blyth now is well enough known among playwrights that they submit ideas and drafts to Amos. But she finds few ready-made plays suitable for her audience, which comes from within an evening's driving distance of the theatre and wants plays dealing seriously with their major concerns. They are far-ranging concerns, though, running the gamut from farm and small-town life to the big issues of peace and war.

"What I do with plays or ideas that are submitted and show promise is try to develop or use the writers for something else. I'll workshop a play here, not for production but to develop the writer and get him to do something else.

"I'm also anxious to develop directors. One of our directors this summer did a workshop for me here last year. Another is a stage manager who is directing her first play in a workshop here this summer, and then goes to Winnipeg in the fall. She's someone who could direct a play here next year or the year after."

Winter theatres shifting emphasis to more Canadian theatre

CANADIAN PRESS

The 1982-83 winter season in the regional professional theatres is already taking shape. There has been a considerable reshuffling of artistic directors around the country. Several of the theatres are planning productions of new Canadian plays, adding the excitement of some uncertainty, to the standard fare of classical and proven contemporary works.

The most noteworthy shift in artistic direction, because of his background, is the appointment of Walter Learning to be head of the Playhouse Theatre in Vancouver. Learning was artistic director of Theatre New Brunswick before he moved to Ottawa four years ago as theatre arts officer of the Canada Council.

Learning is a playwright of note — co-author with Alden Nowlan of The Incredible Murder of Cardinal Tosca and author-director of the short-lived but enjoyable CBC-TV series, Up At Ours, a situation comedy about life in a boarding house in St. John's, Nfld.

While at Theatre New Brunswick, Learning built a base in Fredericton for a regular touring circuit of the province and produced a string of plays that became the envy of many larger regional theatres. He's moving to Vancouver as the Playhouse prepares to celebrate its 20th anniversary.

Learning plans to open the Playhouse Sept. 25 with something of a coup, getting Robin Phillips, the former artistic director of the Stratford Festival, to return to acting for the first time in Canada.

DO BROADWAY HIT

Phillips will appear with William Hutt, the country's most honored Stratford Festival actor, in a production of Ronald Harwood's The Dresser, a hit both on Broadway and in London.

The 1982-83 Playhouse program announced by Learning also includes Shakespeare's The Tempest; Gordon Pinsent's A Gift to Last adapted by Learning and Nowlan; W. O. Mitchell's The Black Bonspiel of Wullie Maccrimmons, and Tom Cahill's As Loved Our Fathers, a touching account of how Canada joined Newfoundland in 1949.

Keith Digby is the new artistic director of Bastion Theatre in Victoria, B.C., and his program for the coming season also ranges from Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream to a new Canadian work. Ron Chudley, a Victoria playwright who wrote After Abraham for Bastion's 1977 season, has done a thriller called Comeback, to be produced in November.

In Toronto, Urjo Kareda, the former drama critic of the Toronto Star and assistant to Robin Phillips at Stratford, has taken over from Bill Glassco as artistic director of Tarragon Theatre. He has announced six plays for the coming season, four of which will be premieres, and a fifth is a new version of Henrik Ibsen's The Master Builder, prepared by Calgary playwright John Murrel.

The four Tarragon premieres will be plays by George Walker, Mavis Gallant, Rachael Wyatt, and Dennis Hayes and Richard Payne.

TAKING BLYTH PLAY

At Toronto Free Theatre, Guy Sprung has taken over as artistic director. Final decisions on the season haven't been made but one production will be the Toronto premiere of Anne Chislett's Quiet In The Land, from the Blyth, Ont., Summer Festival. Blyth had a hit last summer with the play and is doing it again this summer. Toronto Free Theatre also has commissioned a new play from Allan Stratton, author of Nurse Jane Goes to Hawaii and Rexy.

Each year, the National Arts Centre presents productions by other theatres in the country. In the new season it will showcase Newfoundland's Rising Tide Theatre in Joey, the witty life story of Joey Smallwood, and a Vancouver Playhouse production of Mass Appeal, a Broadway hit.

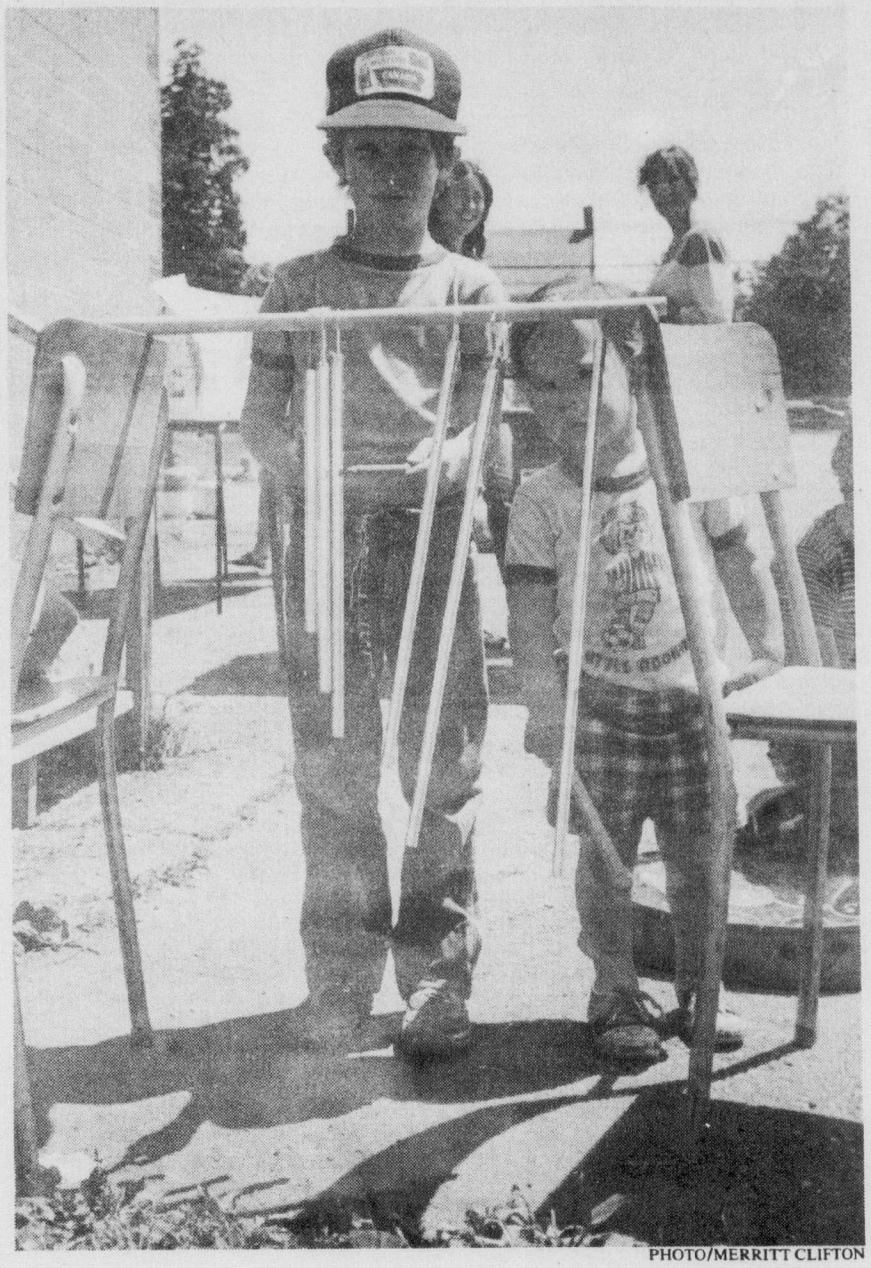

Susan Cox of Charlottetown Festival fame will also take her original musical, Valentine Brown, to Ottawa.

Theatre New Brunswick, now under Malcolm Black, is formulating a program for 1982-83 which will include Viola Leger, best known perhaps for her monologue show, La Sagouine, in the role of the great Sarah Bernhardt in Memoire by John Murrell, the story of Bernhardt's last years.

Summer theatre for young: From scratch to stage

By Merritt Clifton

DUNHAM — The Centre d'Art de Missisquoi begins a unique experiment in children's theatre on Monday, July 5--and children aged five to 14 are invited to participate. The 25 boys and girls already registered, and others joining them, will become a miniature theatre company for the week, writing their own play, designing and constructing the sets and costumes, and finally performing it around noon on Saturday, July 10.

Artistic director of the project will be vivacious Marie Dumochel, who admits she misses Hollywood, but believes this is worth leaving it all behind. Dumochel is a summer theatre veteran with three years' experience directing both children's theatre and prison theatre productions in nearby Cowansville. She attended drama school in St. Hyacinthe, formerly teaching drama at the Granby CEGEP.

Assisting Dumochel will be an array of local artists and musicians with theatrical experience.

Theme of the play to be produced, as selected at an open house and registration meeting last Monday, will be 'La Pinnacle Fantastic', or 'The Fantastic Pinnacle', concerning the Pinnacle Mountain near Abercorn, whose colorful history includes Indian encampments, gold prospecting, copper mining, and bootlegging activity. The Pinnacle is also a favorite subject of some of the Dunham-area artists who will help with technical instruction.

Registration will remain open until Monday at 9 a.m. The fee per child is $15. For registration information, parents should telephone either Jane Reid (295-2639), Bernice Sorge-Geoffroy (248-3969), or Dumochel herself (372-3473.)

Although this is the Centre d'Art de Missisquoi's first venture into children's theatre, it is actually their fifth in a series of summer arts programs begun last summer. The first four were week-long medleys of instruction in dancing, sculpture, and arts and crafts, since emulated by other local arts associations. The Dunham group decided to branch out in order to avoid duplicating activities.

A second theatrical session is already in the planning for August.

WHAT'S ON

Theatre

BY TIMOTHY BELFORD

The summer theatre season is at last heating up and from here on in there should be plenty to do and see for every one.

The Piggery Theatre will have opened its long-awaited season by the time you read this with Bernard Slade's ROMANTIC COMEDY (see review this paper). The Canadian-born Slade, who stormed Broadway with SAME TIME NEXT YEAR seems to have done it again with this light-hearted tale of two star-crossed lovers. Tickets and reservations can be obtained through the Piggery box office. Don't forget the Country Suppers that are available prior to the performance.

Next Friday, Festival Lennoxville gets into the act when it opens THE KITE. Written by W.O. Mitchell, The Kite has an added attraction with the presence of local lad Leif Savage, who plays the part of the grandson of 117-year-old Daddy Sherry who announces his intention to die on his birthday.

The Festival will also be presenting a one-day-only extravaganza this Saturday, July 3 when VIE ET MORT DU ROI BOITEUX runs its 15 hour course. That's right -- the six-play-plus-an-epilogue French-language production starts at 10 a.m. and finishes at 1:30 a.m. Vie et Mort traces the entire life of a man through all his various ages. There are 25 actors playing 150 roles and if you can hack the pace it will be an experience.

The Theatre de l'Atelier will be opening two more plays this week in two different places. First will be LE PREMIER by Israel Horowitz which will take place at the Chalet de ski du Mont Orford starting July 3. Two men, awaiting we're not sure what, are joined by a third, a fourth and finally a fifth. When a female is introduced into the group the competition suddenly comes to the fore; each wanting to be the Premier.

The second production will be opening on July 3 as well but this time in Kingsey Falls at the Chalet la Grande Coulee. The play is entitled UNE FILLE DANS MA SOUPE and is a first class comedy many of you may have seen in English under the same name.

Exhibitions

Another note to remember that this weekend is the annual ANTIQUES SHOW at Bishop's University. This year's tenth anniversary show should be first rate. For times etc., check Events in this column.

Rothman's will be sponsoring a display of CONTEMPORARY SCULPTURE at the Centre d'Arts d'Orford from July 7 until July 28. The exhibit will include the works of 21 of the province's most promising artists and is designed to show the evolution of the modern art of sculpting.

The exhibit may be viewed from 1 to 9 p.m. daily except Monday.

The LENNOXVILLE-ASCOT HISTORICAL SOCIETY'S MUSEUM located in the basement of the old post office, is now open every Wednesday and Sunday afternoon from 2 until 5 p.m.

This summer's display features table china donated by various families throughout the region. The flatware, dating from the early 1800s, includes cups and saucers, serving dishes and a marvellous collection of cheese plates and covers. There is also a variety of other antiques well worth seeing. Admission is free but donations thankfully accepted.

The BEAULNE MUSEUM OF COATICOOK is presenting an exhibition of the works of artist Joyce Schweitzer Cochrane which will run until September 6. Entitled CLOUDS, SHORES AND COUNTRYSIDE, the exhibit features a number of watercolors by the local artist.

The museum, located on 96 Union Street, will be open from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day.

The LAURIER MUSEUM of Arthabaska will be presenting a large show of the works of Canadian artists until July 25. Over 94 works by Canadian painters, of which 35 are Quebecois, will be on display.

Gallery hours are from 9 until noon and 1:30 until 5 Tuesday to Friday. On Saturday it's 1:30 until 5.

There will be an exhibition of the works of artist Mary S. Martin at the BROME COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY MUSEUM in Knowlton running until July 5. The gallery, which will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. will feature 40 new oil paintings of Eastern Townships scenes as well as a number of other sketches.

Martin is considered by many to be the Townships leading scenic artist and her many paintings bordering on the photo-realistic style made famous by Andrew Wyeth, have been actively sought out by collectors here and elsewhere in the country.

The BEAULNE MUSEUM of Coaticook will be presenting a display of Traditional African Art which will include masks and statues designed and fashioned by tribes in the country of Zaire. The articles for the exhibition come from the collection of Taki E'Bwenzie and represent the cultural achievements of the African people prior to the 17th century. The display will be accompanied by an audio-visual show of African music and dance.

The ROTHMAN'S GALLERY on Farwell Street opened a month-long display of the works of photographer Norman Metivier which will run until July 5. The works of the prize-winning photographer have been exhibited throughout Quebec for more than five years.

Gallery hours are Monday to Thursday 8 to noon and 1 to 5.

From Saturday July 10 until August 14, every Saturday, Arts-Sutton is sponsoring a course in Music Appreciation under the direction of Shirley Fischlin. She will be assisted by William Stevens. Some young musicians, offering various instruments will also assist.

William Stevens is well known as a concert pianist and presently teaches at the University of Montreal.

Shirley Fischlin has studied in London and Paris and now teaches piano in Montreal as well as Sutton.

Children from the ages of eight will be accepted. For further information please contact Fischlin at (514) 538-2781.

Music

Music lovers should stand by for a spectacular two months as the FESTIVAL INTERNATIONAL D'ORFORD '82 kicks off on July 9. The Festival, which runs until August 21, will consist of a variety of musical concerts to be held at the Centre d'Arts d'Orford, at the Abbey in St. Benoit du Lac and at a variety of other sites throughout the region.

The opening concert which will be held at the Salle Gilles Lefebvre, on Friday, July 9, will feature ANTON KUERTI and the ORFORD QUARTET.

For a complete program of events watch this column weekly or contact the Centre d'Arts d'Orford at 843-3981.

The ESTRIE JAZZ program of the Vieux Clocher will continue this Monday July 5 at 9:30 p.m. when the VIC VOGEL SEXTET takes the stage. Tickets are $4 each.

Also at the Clocher starting July 6 and running until July 31 will be ROGER GIGUERE who will be performing "Mon premier 'One man show'" every Tuesday through Saturday.

The North Country Concert Association will be presenting the GREEN MOUNTAIN GUILD in HOW TO SUCCEED IN BUSINESS WITHOUT REALLY TRYING at 8 p.m. on Sunday, July 11. This prize-winning Broadway musical by Abe Burrows and Frank Loesser, is first class entertainment and fun for everyone. Tickets for the performance which will be held in the Haskell Opera House in Derby Line, will be $5.

The MOZART-TCHAIKOVSKY FESTIVAL of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra continues this Tuesday, July 6 at 7:30 p.m. with a presentation of Mozart's Concerto for Piano No. 22 and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 5. Guest pianist will be JEAN-PHILIPPE COLLARD. For tickets and information contact the Place des Arts box office.

On the local music scene there's not much to report. The Manoir Waterville will be bringing back the ROBINSON-FOWLER BAND which proved to be a big hit the last time they were there, while down at the Del Monty it will be BIGFOOT.

Movies

The Capitol Theatre will be presenting Gene Wilder and Gilda Radner in HANKY PANKY as the first half of its double feature this week. Wilder, with his fine sense of the absurd and his penchant for maniacal characters, is probably the perfect partner for the dippy Radner who rose to fame on Saturday Night Live. The two are engaged in a movie-long flight having been accused of a murder they didn't commit and of stealing secrets they don't have. Should be fun.

The second half of the twin bill is called FOOLIN AROUND and features Eddie Albert and Cloris Leachman in supporting roles. It's a comedy.

Show times are weekdays Fooling at 7:30 with Hanky Panky at 9:30. On Sundays it's Fooling at 1:30 and 7:30 with Hanky Panky at 3:30 and 9:30.

The Cinema Carrefour is presenting DEATHTRAP an excellent who dunit starring Michael Caine, Christopher Reeve and Dyan Cannon. For those of you who remember the stage version as it was ably mounted by the Piggery Theatre not too long ago, Deathtrap has enough twists, turns and red herrings to make the most avid mystery buff happy. With a good cast and a tremendous storyline it should be great.

Canada's history, how we adapted to the new land, is the story of Sea To Sea, the season debut of CBC Television's* This Land. *Tuesday at 10:25 p.m., Sea To Sea presents a pictorial view of the historical and cultural development of Canada's many different regions.

WHAT'S ON

Eight new episodes of CBC-6's courtroom drama series, Judge begins on Wednesday 10:30 p.m. Based on actual cases heard by judges in Canadian courts, Judge also takes a behind-the-scenes look at the world of a dedicated judge.

Show times during the week are 6:50 and 9 with weekend performances at 12:30, 2:40, 4:50, 7:50 and 9:20.

The Derby-Port Drive-In will feature the excellent COAL MINER'S DAUGHTER tonight and tomorrow. Starring Sissy Spacek as Loretta Lynn, Coal Miner's Daughter is a delight from start to finish. Excellent acting, good music and a happy ending make it fine entertainment.

On Sunday the drive-in will present George C. Scott in THE DAY OF THE DOLPHIN. A good film if you like action and believe other species just might be worth understanding.

Monday and Tuesday it's CHU CHU AND THE PHILLY FLASH, a silly movie starring Alan Arkin and Carol Burnett who should both know better.

Finally on Wednesday and Thursday it's Gary Coleman in ON THE RIGHT TRACK. He's cute but the movie is a mystery to me.

Television

Vermont ETV's Masterpiece Theatre will be presenting a five-part series based upon Jane Austin's classic PRIDE AND PREJUDICE starting July 4 at 9 p.m. Dramatized by Fay Weldon, Pride and Prejudice deals with the pretentious 18th century society which offered women only two choices — marriage or spinsterhood.

CBC's highly acclaimed THE MEDICINE SHOW returns for its fourth season with host Henry Comor Monday, July 5 at 10:25 p.m. Produced in Winnipeg, The Medicine Show is a weekly look at one of the most fascinating of sciences. This year's programming will include such features as open heart surgery on infants; a report on arthritis; and a program on the training of world class athletes.

The season debut of THIS LAND is also scheduled for this week on Tuesday, July 6 at 10:25 p.m. Entitled SEA TO SEA, the opening program examines how we as a nation adapted to a new and often frightening land.

Eight new episodes of JUDGE begin Wednesday, July 7 at 10:30 p.m. on CBC. The program, which met with a certain amount of critical acclaim when it first aired, is based upon actual court cases heard in Canada. It also takes a look behind the scenes at the life of Judge Michael Humphries, played by Tony van Bridge.

Radio Quebec will be presenting a half-hour special on Saturday, July 3 at 7 p.m. dealing with El Salvador and the reaction of Quebecers to the long running civil war.

Tuesday, July 6 at 9 p.m., Radio Quebec's television arm presents the movie BARTLEBY. Based on the story Bartleby the Scrivener by Herman Melville it is the tale of a young scribe who, for one reason or another, decides to cease doing his assigned tasks and as a matter of fact takes up residence in the office itself. It is a delightful book and with care could be a good movie.

Friday, July 9, Radio Quebec presents the NEW YORK CITY BALLET in a performance of Libeslieder Walzer by Brahms, at 7 p.m.

Events

Starting July 9 and running until July 11 is the annual ANTIQUE SHOW at Bishop's University. Over 24 dealers from Quebec and Ontario will be displaying their wares during the three-day event and there will be a special gala opening on Friday.

The opening night which will run from 7 to 11 p.m. also features a wine and cheese party from 8 until 9. Tickets for the Friday opening are $10 each. The show will also be open on Saturday from 11 a.m. until 9 p.m. and on Sunday from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m.

For tickets and reservations contact Anne Beaulieu, North Hatley, at 842-4345.

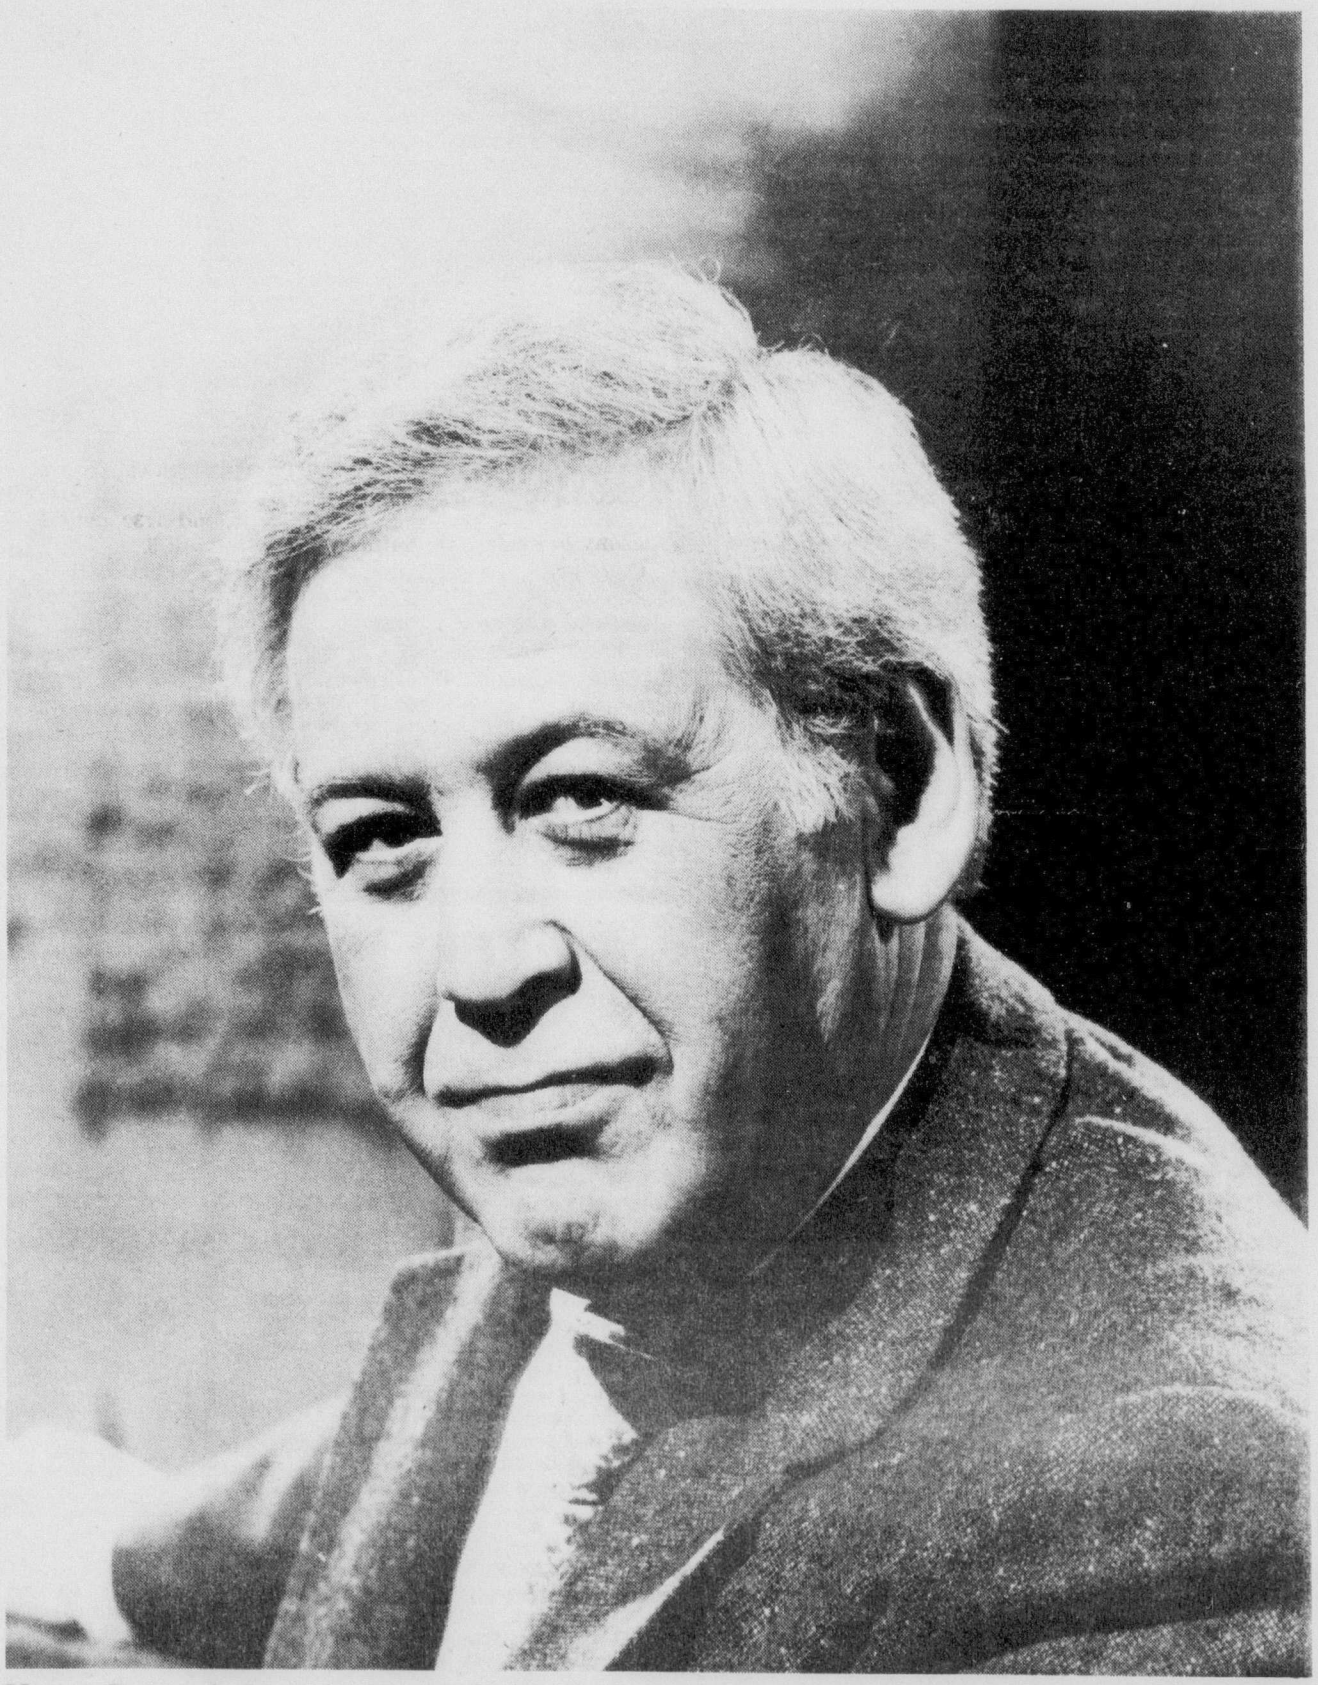

Drummondville will be the site of the first North American FOLKLORE FESTIVAL starting July 9 and running until July 19.

Altogether over 800 participants representing 18 different folklore groups will be present at the ten-day event. Twelve nations including France, Belgium, Italy, the U.S., and Roumania, amongst others, will be sending dance, music and theatrical groups.

The various events will be taking place each evening at the 3000-seat Marcel Dionne Centre and at the 800-seat Centre Culturel. For further information and tickets contact AGENCE MARSY at 871-1757.

From July 4 until August 21 the Orford Arts Centre will be hosting the INTERNATIONAL FESTIVAL OF MUSIC. For information call Maurice Collet at (514) 866-1518 or write box 280, Magog, J1X 3W8.

Sports Editor Bobby Fisher asked me to make a special note of Via Rail's GRAND SLAM. For the low price of $21 local fans can take "The Hit" which includes a ticket to the Expos game and round trip fare from Sherbrooke with Via rail. For information and schedule phone Via Rail.

Henry Comor is host of The Medicine Show which returns for its fourth season Monday at 10:25 p.m. on CBC-6. The world of medicine is a dramatic one, and The Medicine Show will deal with various aspects and issues of that world. Items planned for this season include 'state of the art' care for the critically injured; the training of world class athletes and how they may be jeopardizing their health through rigorous training; a report on arthritis; open heart surgery on infants, and the problems psychiatric patients face when they are released from hospital.

SCOOPS — As expected, ABC has given the green light to producer Leonard Goldberg and United Artists-TV to develop a series based on "Paper Dolls," the recent TV-movie about teen-aged models. The two-hour film received huge Nielsen ratings because of its cast that included Jennifer Warren, Craig T. Nelson, Joan Collins, Darryl Hannah and Alexandra Paul.

The "Paper Dolls" series, which could be added to ABC's schedule by November or December, will probably have to do without both Miss Collins, because of her commitments to "Dynasty," and Miss Paul, who intends to study at Stanford this fall.

GLORIA LOVES LUCY — British actress Lucy Gutteridge winged her way across the Atlantic to star in NBC's opulent mini-series, "Little Gloria... Happy At Last," which will air sometime during the 1982-83 season. Miss Gutteridge, who is best-known for her work in PBS's "Love in a Cold Climate," plays Gloria Vanderbilt's mother, Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt.

PILOT FEVER — NBC, which filled its early summer schedule with failed pilots, will continue to do so, hoping that one or two may find an audience.

ABC has two pilots that may be aired later this summer. "Travis McGee," a two-hour adventure saga about a detective and his travels stars Sam Elliot in the title role. "The Outlaws" features Charles Rocket and Chris Lemmon as two guys who weave their way in and out of trouble.

ADDITIONS — Melanie Vincz will portray an aerobics dance instructor in the forthcoming "Devlin Connection" series for NBC. Rock Hudson, Jack Scalf and Leigh-Taylor Young also star.

Henry Winkler

Change is an inevitable fact of life in most industries. Hollywood is no different. TV series that have been on the network schedules for years also undergo facelifts in order to meet their new competition head-on.

What's in store for some of video's longest running shows? The three major networks have so far announced the following changes:

ABC — "Laverne and Shirley" — Both women will be married by the time the regular season ends in May. This plotline was accelerated by Cindy Williams' real-life marriage and pregnancy.

"Happy Days" — Anson Williams' Potsie character will be gradually phased out, while another Cunningham relative will take root in their Milwaukee household. Fonzie (Henry Winkler) will finally meet the woman of his dreams. But the producers aren't sure if they'll marry him off just yet.

"Dynasty" — The serial will add at least three more roles along with some blockbuster guest stars.

NBC — "Little House: A New Beginning" — Michael Landon and Karen Grassle will bow out in favor of Melissa Gilbert, who plays their daughter. One new cast member is Landon's daughter, Leslie, who will portray Walnut Grove's new teacher.

"Taxi" — In the sitcom, which is switching from ABC, Carol Kane will become a regular as Latka Gravas' (Andy Kaufman) wife Simka.

"Facts of Life" — The girls will be going to Paris on a school trip and will bring back an English exchange student.

"Fame" — The troupe will add a young, maverick drama teacher.

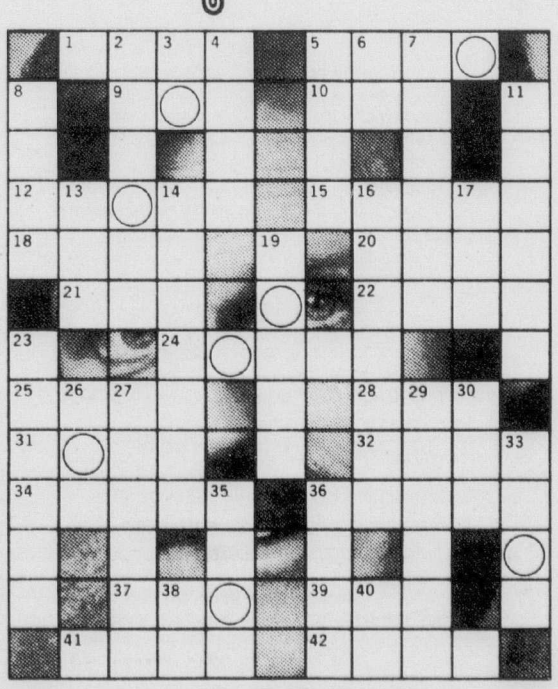

"CHiPs" — Erik Estrada will get a new sidekick.

CBS — "Dallas" — Producers have discussed at least two more cast additions.

"Knots Landing" — The "Dallas" spinoff adds Stephen Macht and Kevin Dobson to the cast.

"Dukes of Hazzard" — If contractual problems with Tom Wopat, John Schneider and James Best aren't rectified, changes will be forthcoming.

Much ado about macho

By Andrew J. Edelstein

Farrah? Forget her. Donahue? Deny him.

Who can relate to those fossils anymore? Those relics of the seventies belong in that decade's trash heap along with pet rocks, gas lines and hot pants.

This is 1982, for pete's sake. Times are tough. Put those Angels and Police Women back in the kitchen and send those neurotic men for some survivalist training. We want to see heroes. Meat-eating men like Tom Selleck and Harrison Ford, who wouldn't take as much as a catnap on a psychiatrist's couch.

Yep. Three years after John Wayne's death, the male hero — the heir to the Duke, Gable and Flynn — is back. The success of Selleck in "Magnum P.I." and Ford in "Raiders of the Lost Ark" has told Hollywood that it's OK again for men to be perfect.

So this fall be prepared for TV's macho blitz. The main thrust features Bruce Boxleitner in CBS' "Bring 'Em Back Alive" and Stephen Collins in ABC's "Tales of the Brass Monkey."

Boxleitner is managed and promoted by Jay Bernstein, the same man who pushed Farrah Fawcett-Majors from obscurity to semi-naked splendor.

However, both Boxleitner and Collins will not be confused with Jesse "The Body" Ventura. In fact, both actors seem to be more preppy than macho. But what the heck, at least they aren't wimps.

That's for sure. In the pilot of "Alive," based on the adventures of 1930s big-game hunter Frank Buck, Boxleitner shows that he can brawl better than Gerry Cooney, seduce women better than Casanova, dance better than Fred Astaire, and outwit his enemies better than Sherlock Holmes. And this is all before dinner.

Hey, can Alan Alda do that?

Speaking of Soap

By MARY ANN COOPER

David Lewis plays Edward Quartermaine in the ABC-TV daytime serial, "General Hospital," airing Monday-Friday (3:00-4:00 p.m., EST).

Sometimes, life has a way of making us wait for what we want most. Last year everyone thought Tony Geary (Luke, GH) and Robin Strasser (Dorian, OLTL) were shoe-ins for Emmys. Yet, Judith Light (Karen, OLTL) and Doug Watson (Mac, AW) walked off with those awards. This year Tony and Robin received their just desserts when they captured the coveted awards as Best Actor and Best Actress. In the Best Supporting Actress Category, Dorothy Lyman was honored for her unique portrayal of Opal on "All My Children." David Lewis (Edward, GH) brought home the Emmy for Best Supporting Actor. As predicted, ABC swept the Actor and Actress honors at this year's event. It is significant to note, however, that "Guiding Light" received Emmys for Best Writing and Best Serial despite the fact that none of its performers were honored with nominations. The reaction by cast members sitting "ringside" at the awards ceremony to the naming of GL as Best Serial was unrestrained joy. It is no secret that GL cast members fell slighted by the media blitz devoted to its arch rival GH. This, surely, was Guiding Light's shining hour.

Later that evening New York's Mayor Koch and Harriet Epstein's "Soaps Alive" hosted a special salute to the Emmys and the soap opera industry at the popular Manhattan nightspot Magique. The place was packed with soap stars making it a soap fan's heaven.

The following morning, while 750,000 people gathered at Central Park at the anti-nuclear weapons protest, a hearty group of soap fans gathered at the Sheraton Centre Hotel for a "Soap Opera Breakfast" sponsored by US magazine to benefit the Leukemia Society. We'll have more on this event in next week's column.

Now a look at what's been happening and what will happen on all afternoon dramas.

ABC hopes Rambo will wow the women

By Connie Passalacqua

ABC is miles ahead of its competition in the daytime Neilsen ratings undoubtedly because it gives extra attention to its shows. Promotion is heavy and every detail, particularly casting, is scrutinized by the network's daytime division.

Most importantly, the network knows that serving up attractive leading men such as "General Hospital's" 'Tony Geary and Rick Springfield to its predominantly female audience is a key factor in boosting the ratings. ABC hopes that its newest sensation will be Dack Rambo, who has just joined "All My Children" as hard-driving attorney Stephen Jacobi.

Rambo first began exhibiting his dark good looks in the late '50s and early '60s when he and his identical twin brother Dirk were teen idols. The two were discovered by Loretta Young while they were attending mass during a visit to their aunt in Los Angeles.

They became nationally known on "The New Loretta Young Show." Dack later appeared for a year on "Never Too Young," a youth-oriented soap opera.

When Dirk died in a car accident when the twins were 23, Dack went through a major crisis — or so he thought.

"I thought I did a pretty good job of getting through my grief the first year, but I never really accepted it until last year when I went into therapy.

Rambo met his current girlfriend, actress Melinda Naud, two years ago when both co-starred in "Sword of Justice," a short-lived NBC series. The couple retired to Rambo's central California cotton farm before the call came from "All My Children."

"ABC Daytime had been after me for a long time, but I told them I wouldn't do a soap unless I could play someone nasty. Stephen Jacobi is the kind of guy that goes after anything he wants and damn anyone that gets in the way."
