

SOCREDS ANNOUNCE FUND DRIVE

MONTREAL (CP) — Admitting his party's coffers are almost empty, Social Credit Leader Fabien Roy announced Monday a drive to raise $250,000 in campaign funds for the May 22 federal election.

"It would be a lot better with $500,000," he said, "but $250,000 is the strict minimum, and we have every reason to hope we can raise it through the generosity of our workers and sympathizers."

Roy said an effort to sign up more party members at $2 a head would go hand-in-hand with the fund drive. Membership now stands at about 8,000 and Roy would like to see it increase to 30,000.

The leader announced 11 more Socred candidates, bringing the total to 37 in Quebec. He promised that candidates' names in Quebec's 75 ridings would be made known by Sunday, when the party officially launches its campaign.

As of April 6, Social Credit had confirmed 18 candidates in the rest of the country.

As for rumors that some party faithful did not appreciate the support given last week by Premier Rene Levesque, Roy said he was unconcerned.

Levesque said Quebecers should vote for the federal candidates most likely to defend the province's interests, adding that Social Credit had been created for that purpose.

"I'm not a Levesque man," Roy stated. He noted he had asked the support of all Quebec provincial parties to send to Ottawa representatives who would defend the province against the incursions of a "centralizing" federal government.

THE WEATHER

A disturbance moving across eastern Quebec will give mostly cloudy skies along with a few snowflakes in hilly areas. Conditions will improve on Wednesday as a ridge of high pressure covers most of the province. Temperatures will be seasonable today and tomorrow. Sunny today with cloudy periods. Wednesday sunny as well. Today and tomorrow, winds will be light and variable. High today and Wednesday 9 to 11, low tonight zero to minus 2.

'Illegals' stymie truants

MONTREAL (CP) — Ten truant officers hired by the Montreal Catholic School Commission to track down about 800 "illegal" English-language students seem to be coming up empty-handed.

As soon as the school board decided to comply with provincial language legislation and trace the immigrant students illegally enrolled in its English schools, information campaigns began in the city's ethnic communities.

Parents were told they do not have to answer questions unless they are sworn in before a court, and the stall appears to be working.

George Hadzokos, one of the board's truant officers, said in a recent interview he has tried to track down about 25 students, and knows the whereabouts of only six.

"Two of the children are in English-language Catholic schools, two are going to English Protestant schools and two are in French Catholic schools," Hadzokos said.

"One of the parents just slammed the door in my face when I started asking questions. The guy just said: 'It's none of your business. The hell with you.'"

"I knew that was going to happen."

Dief recovering after campaign tumble

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker, 83, who has said this is his last federal election campaign, continued to rest today from a fall in his Prince Albert, Sask., hotel room Saturday.

Aides indicated that the fall resulted from a dizzy spell but denied that Diefenbaker is seriously ill. Dr. Glen Green, his physician, said the veteran Progressive Conservative is weak but recovering.

Elsewhere, Conservative Leader Joe Clark returned to the election trail Monday after an Easter break while Prime Minister Trudeau and New Democrat Leader Ed Broadbent prepared to resume campaigning today.

Trudeau was to visit central Quebec after a morning news conference in Ottawa. Broadbent headed for Saskatoon and Clark for Vancouver Island.

Clark visited Spruce Grove, a centre in his Alberta riding of Yellowhead, Monday night.

He announced that a Conservative government would drop Loto Canada by March 31, providing provinces paid a percentage of receipts from their lotteries to a federal fund for amateur sports.

He pledged that the $37 million raised for amateur sports this year by Loto Canada would not be diminished and would be increased if necessary.

Clark said the federal lottery duplicates what the provinces are doing and is wasteful. Loto Canada spent $10 million a year on advertising alone, he mentioned.

Grits tried to buy opposition: Globe

...offered grain post

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the Liberal government has systematically offered jobs to opposition MPs to get them out of key ridings.

In a front-page story the newspaper quotes a Social Credit member of the last Parliament as saying all nine members of his caucus were approached at one time or another since the last federal election in 1974 to accept posts outside the House of Commons.

The story notes that two opposition MPs recently accepted government appointments — Robert Muir, a Progressive Conservative MP from Cape Breton, to the Senate, and Quebec Social Creditor Leonel Beaudoin to a post with the Canadian Grain Commission.

Charles Gauthier, the Quebec Socred MP who said every MP in his caucus had been approached, is quoted further as saying senior Liberal organizers in 1974 offered him "an interesting sum of money... nice dollars on the end of the desk — and all they asked was that I didn't speak about Social Credit policies in the campaign."

"I knew if I did that I would be beaten I refused."

The Globe and Mail says Steve Paproski, an Edmonton Conservative in the last House, was offered a job as citizenship judge in northern Alberta six months ago. It quotes him as saying the offer was made by Transport Minister Otto Lang but that he never gave it any serious consideration.

The story quotes Paproski further as saying he knows of other approaches to PC MPs in Alberta either to "defect, or not run again."

However, veteran PC member George Hees of Ontario is quoted as a post with there is little outcry from any side of the House about patronage because it is seen as an acceptable tool of political warfare.

In Edmonton, federal Progressive Conservative candidate Steve Paproski confirmed Monday that he had been offered a job as a citizenship court judge by the Liberal government and said he suspects that every key Conservative in Alberta except Joe Clark has been offered something.

He said the judgeship was offered shortly after the Conservative leadership convention in 1976, where Paproski was one of the few members of the caucus to support Clark from the beginning.

"I didn't feel that this type of patronage should exist and I rejected the offer."

Paproski was commenting on reports published in today's Toronto Globe and Mail that the Liberal government had systematically offered jobs to opposition MPs to get them out of crucial ridings for the next federal election.

Paproski represented the riding of Edmonton north in the last House and is running for re-election.

"I don't know how you would read it, but it's one way of getting rid of those who helped, and who are partly responsible for supporting Mr. Clark. Where were they before the leadership convention?"

LACK ALBERTA TALENT

"I would say that everybody except maybe our leader, Joe Clark, got an offer for one thing or another," Paproski added. "They would love to have a lot of good talent here in this province, that's what they were

Dad identifies dead co-ed

MONTREAL (BP) — The body of a young woman found last Friday in Compton was tentatively identified yesterday as that of 19-year-old Champlain College co-ed Theresa Allore, missing since last Nov. 3.

Robert Allore, at the Medico-Legal Institute yesterday morning to examine the body, could not make a positive identification of the body as that of his daughter, but seemed to feel it was her because of a watch, a ring and two earrings, and body scars. Other physical resemblances have been marked by decompositions.

Positive identification will hopefully be obtained later this week, when x-rays from Theresa's dental records will be compared with those taken of the skull of the deceased. According to investigators, however, the family has "pretty well concluded" that the body is that of their missing daughter, since they have asked that it be released for burial as soon as the autopsy is concluded.

Although a preliminary autopsy took place Saturday, a fuller examination of the body is expected to provide the cause of death — exposure, drug overdose or violence — and when it took place. No marks of violence were found on the body during Saturday's preliminary autopsy, but investigators are being hampered by the state of decomposition.

The body was found Friday morning by a trapper in a backwater about 100 feet from a secondary bridge just outside Compton, floating in about eight feet of water. Because of the partial immersion, investigators are having a hard time determining how long the body was in the water, since the winter's cold would slow down the rate of decay, but the water would speed it up.

Once the autopsy is complete and all police reports have been handed in, the coroner will begin an inquest to determine if death was criminally caused. If so, the QPF will start an investigation into the case, taking it out of the jurisdiction of Lennoxville

Police, who have handled the affair since Miss Allore was last seen in the community.

At the moment, Lennoxville Police director Leo Hamel is awaiting positive identification of the body before he can wrap up his exhaustive five-month investigation of Theresa Allore's disappearance.

At the King's Hall residence in Compton, where Miss Allore was bound at the time of her disappearance, Acting Director of Residences Jean Eddisford said she had heard the news of the discovery of what is almost certainly Theresa Allore's body, but said she had no comments to make at this time.

Asked if any changes were being considered to the 10-a-day shuttle-bus service between the King's Hall residence and the Champlain campus 12 miles away (Miss Allore, like many other Champlain students, was in the habit of hitching rides rather than waiting for the bus), Miss Eddisford said no changes were needed.

150 years in operation

Vandals hit sugarcamp

LENNOXVILLE (JD-BP) — Gordon Herring didn't think he had an enemy in this world — until Saturday morning, when he returned to his sugarcamp on Haskell Hill Road.

Sometime between 6 p.m. Friday night and 9:30 Saturday morning, vandals broke through the gate into his sugarcamp and laid waste to whatever they could find.

"They may as well have set fire to the place," the 61-year-old Lennoxville native said yesterday as he surveyed the damage.

The worst damage — about $1,500 worth — was to the boiling pans. "There were fires going under the pans; they would have been fine the way I left them, but whoever it was started the fires up again, put more wood on them."

Apparently the nocturnal visitors boiled the sap in the pans as long as they could, then took most of it home in an eight-gallon can which Herring says is missing. "The stolen sap was about half-cooked — they'd probably take it home and finish it."

The remaining sap in the pans boiled until it burned right onto the tin, destroying the plating and rendering the pans useless. A few sap buckets were ripped off the trees and broken on the ground, the camp was littered with broken beer bottles and a chair was demolished.

"It seems all they wanted was the syrup," Herring said, because neither a nearby tractor nor the big holding tanks outside the shack were damaged. He estimates his losses at about $2,000 — the loss of his pans forced him to throw out 300 gallons in the holding tank and another 100 gallons still in tree buckets.

The most frustrating part of the whole thing, says Herring, is that he would have been finished his run in another day or two, and he had expected a bumper crop of about 200 gallons of first-class double-A syrup.

Gordon Herring holds pieces of burned maple syrup, the result of vandals' work when they ruined his boiling tanks. The tin coating was ripped off, making it impossible to cook syrup.

New milk quota system guides dairy farmers

By CLAUDIA BOWERS
ROCK FOREST — "A producer who operates his dairy herd without a control program is like a driver who drives with his eyes closed."

The above is James St. Cyr's opinion of the provincial government's new dairy herd analysis and production control program. St. Cyr is a milk producer from the Municipality of Cleveland, near Richmond. The new program, which is operated jointly by the Ministry of Agriculture and Macdonald College, is designed to respond to the needs of the modern day dairy farmer, whether he is an industrial producer or fluid.

By regular weighing and analysis of milk samples taken at certain intervals, the producer has at his fingertips an in-depth record of each cow's production in his herd. At a glance, he is able to determine her daily production, the butterfat content of her milk, the ratio of feed consumed to production as well as her daily requirements taking into consideration where she is in her lactation period.

Many farmers look askance at this program as if, through its use, one can increase milk production. They don't see much point in this type of result in today's market.

Although the aim of the PATLQ is indeed to increase production, its goal is to do so while at the same time, through the producers records, decrease the number of head he must maintain to fill his quota.

If this can be realized through the program, the farmer would realize substantial savings in the present high cost of feed and replacement. One farmer in this region who has been a member for several years has seen his herd average go from 10,600 lbs of milk a year per cow to 14,500. He has consequently been able to reduce his herd size from 35 cows to 32 and still remain within his quota limits.

The PATLQ offers two options to the farmer. One is called PATLQ-R (regular); the other, PATLQ-O (official). Although the two are similar and have the same goals, the "official" is a little more in depth. In both cases, however, the producer is visited once a month. Milk samples of each cow are registered on the plan and are taken and the cow's milk is weighed. The results are later mailed to the producer and are written up in a clear and concise manner.

For those who choose the Official Plan, a certificate is issued for each cow at the end of her lactation, giving an official record of her performance as well as listing her position in regards to her breed's record.

The monthly report supplies the farmer with a mountain of information. First, in regard to the individual cow, he will know, on the day of the test her production, the percentage of fat and protein of her milk, the value of that milk, the value of that milk as compared to the cost of feed, the number of days she has been milking (or the number of days completed in gestation), her daily requirement of grain, and her position in the herd's production.

The producer will also be able to ascertain his total average production, his herd's percentage of fat and protein production, its average consumption of forage, the amount of grain he is presently giving, the value of the milk produced as compared to the cost of production, the number of man-hours used to produce this quantity, the freshening intervals, and the average numbers of days his herd is producing.

In the case of the PATLQ-R, the producer takes his own samples and does the weighing of milk, to be given to the technician when he visits. The official PATLQ requires the technician to perform these tasks as well as check the identification of each cow and observe the milking practices of the producer, offering help and advice where he deems necessary. At any rate, the monthly reports are the same and offer the same advantages to the producer.

The aim of the system is to help the producer to cull his herd, increase his production and lower his cost of production. If it can accomplish all this, then every producer should take a serious look at this plan.

More information regarding this new system may be had by directing enquiries to the Minister of Agriculture, 4360 Bourque Blvd., Rock Forest, Que., or to your local agronomist.

Quadruplets born in Foster

FOSTER (FJM) — These Toggenburg quadruplets, four-hours-old in the picture above, seem totally unimpressed here by the attention given them due to the rarity of such a birth.

The goats were born on April 2 at Barry Groves' "Cedar Groves" Arabian Horse Farm in Foster. Groves said goat quadruplets are even more rare than calf triplets.

Goat meat is very much in demand at the moment due to its traditional place on the dinner table among the Greek community at Easter. With kids selling at $45 apiece, the quadruplets may soon have sufficient reason to mistrust the attention they've received.

Wood stove return as major rural heat source

This is the third in a series of articles by Elliot Sherman. The District of Bedford Adult Education Service (AES) is considering holding courses or workshops on the practical use of alternate energy sources.

In the post-war years, people everywhere were struggling to raise their standard of living. In the process, all kinds of household items were discarded, not the least of which was the wood-burning stove. The same thing is happening now, but the other way around. People these days are attempting to cut costs and raise their standard of living by acquiring wood-burning stoves. Wood-burning stoves are rapidly regaining preeminence as a major heating source, especially in rural areas.

The most common types of wood-burning stoves are the air-tight radiant stove, the box stove, the air-tight circulating stove with fan, the Franklin, and the Combi-Fire - an air-tight stove which converts to an open fireplace. It is very important for a wood-burning stove to be air-tight because excess air in the stove both cools and increases the velocity of flue gases thus reducing efficiency. The Franklin stove is a good illustration of this inefficiency. Franklins burn three to five times as much wood as an air-tight stove.

The heat output of your wood-burning stove should match as closely as possible the heating requirements of your room or home. As a rule of thumb, a peak requirement of 20,000 BTU-hr. per room can be assumed. The British Thermal Unit, or BTU is the amount of energy it takes to increase the temperature of 1 pound (1 pint) of water 1 degree Fahrenheit. It takes 5½ pounds of air-dry wood per hour to produce 20,000 BTU's. All types of wood contain the same amount of energy by weight, thus the hardwoods such as Maple or Beech are the best fuel value because they produce the most heat per volume. When looking at stoves, ask the manufacturer or the dealer to tell you how many BTU-hr. a given stove will produce at normal firing.

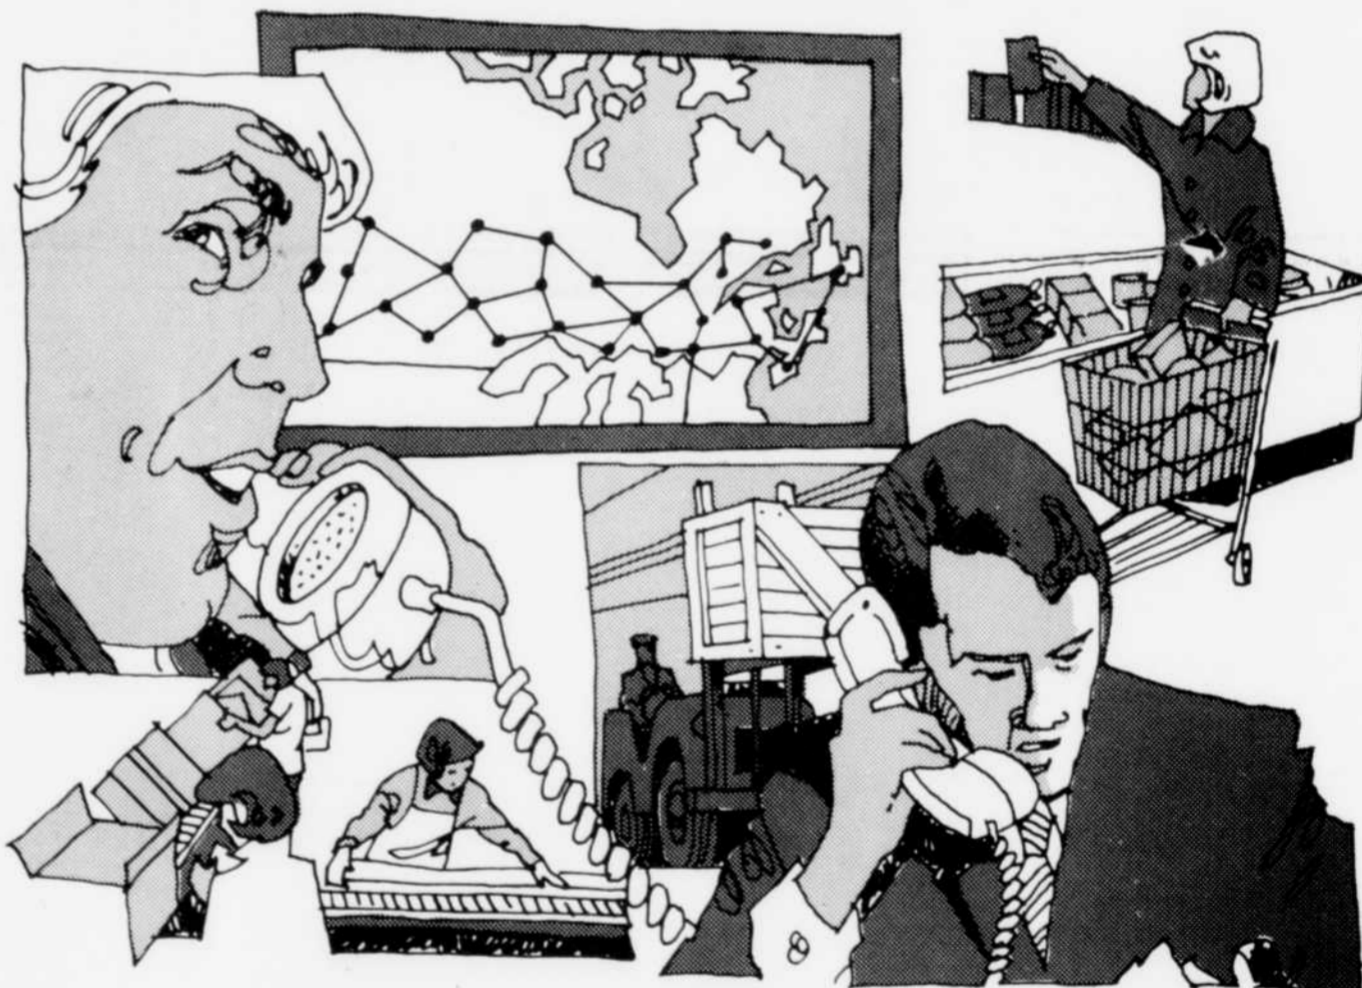

No one wood-burning stove is best for all situations. Before you shop, decide what you want in terms of function, price, and appearance. The stove should be durable and have a written guarantee of at least five years. High quality cast iron is much more expensive than the poorer grades, however, poor quality cast iron has a habit of cracking and it is wise to beware the very inexpensive models.

Recently, there has been a resurgence of poor-quality cast iron stoves on the market. Cast iron doors, however, are a very good idea on wood-burning stoves because they will not warp and provide a good air seal when closed. Steel plate is a good alternative to cast iron. Steel plate stoves are usually less expensive than cast iron and offer a much wider selection of models. Steel plate will not crack if it is of sufficient thickness; ¼ inch minimum with fire brick lines to protect the steel is recommended.

Above all, a wood-burning stove should be simple to operate with draft controls readily accessible. Watch out for models with a lot of gadgets on them; they're often more trouble than they're worth.

Trade Talks

"An examination of the trade flow in manufacturers' shipments indicates that Ontario, the West and the Atlantic region make up a much more important market for Quebec, than Quebec does for the other nine provinces."

"Quebec exports far more manufactured goods to the rest of Canada than the rest of Canada ships to Quebec: In 1974 Quebec experienced a trade surplus of over $1 billion in manufactured goods within the rest of Canada."

"Quebec's dependence on markets in the other nine provinces increased in the 1967-74 period, while the reverse was true for the rest of Canada, and particularly Ontario."

"More than 30 per cent of Quebec's manufacturing output is sold in the other nine provinces; furthermore, these sales account for one-third of Quebec's manufacturing employment."

"In Quebec's key industries, an estimated 140,000 jobs depend on sales to the other provinces. A healthy provincial economy in Quebec is vital to sustain another 226,000 manufacturing jobs."

"Any serious dislocation in the manufacturing industries could have a severe impact on employment in primary, construction and service industries that support manufacturing."

"More than 20 per cent of Quebec's manufacturing output was shipped to Ontario in 1974, while Ontario sold just 11.8 per cent of its manufactured goods to Quebec."

"The present tariff structure is of greater benefit to Quebec than to any other province; Quebec also benefits from the recent imposition of strict quotas on imports of clothing and footwear."

These questions and many others are analysed in a report entitled "Trade realities in Canada" and the issue of "sovereignty-association", published by the Government of Canada in the interest of contributing to public discussion. Sherbrooke industrial commissioners back region

SHERBROOKE (FJM) — The present Industrial Consultation Committee and Industrial Commission of the city of Sherbrooke will be replaced by a corporation completely independent of the municipality after a decision by City Council last night to accept the recommendations to this effect made by Adrien Leroux, president of the Commission, and Daniel Mignault, director of the Commission. The Ministry of Commerce and Industry has decided to try to regionalize industrial, commercial and tourist promotion efforts and the proposal made by Leroux and Mignault is in agreement with its current recommendations. The new corporation will cover a larger area than the two former bodies, taking over responsibility for Rock Forest, Fleurimont, Bromptonville, Lennoxville, East Angus, Scotstown, Cookshire, Sawyerville and perhaps Valcourt. The Ministry will provide a grant of $45,000 to the independent organization of which Mignault will become director-general. Mignault said the other towns named will be able to become part of the corporation on a voluntary basis and will have to pay part of its expenses on the basis of their population. It will take a year before the new corporation takes over completely, in order to establish its membership and some of its main guidelines and aims. Mignault said he favours the establishment of a central industrial park in Sherbrooke, the centering of warehouses and trucking in Rock Forest and the concentration of wood-processing and furniture manufacturing in the Scotstown and Sawyerville areas. Mayor Jacques O'Bready said Sherbrooke must decide whether it wants to play the role of leader in industrial and commercial development through associating itself with its neighbours or whether the relative isolation of the present is a better option.

Jean Haig

...on waking up feeling super-great

Ever wake up in the morning after a good night's sleep filled with an enormous sense of well-being? Positive thoughts flicker happily through your mind... your son-in-law will of course find a job suited to his talents (don't linger on that one) your daughter will pass her chemistry exam and all that money on tutoring will have been well spent... your youngest will Find Himself and never mind if you don't really understand what that means.

Your good mood takes hold and all things are possible. It has nothing to do with whether it is snowing, sleeting, raining or sunny. In fact, in the proper mood it's fun to accentuate the negative. You look out and see great beauty in the trees and bushes glazed by the freezing rain.

An early call from your neighbour interrupts your reverie. She has waited six months for a dental appointment and points out that she has over twenty miles of treacherous roads to drive and emphatically refuses to share your admiration for the wonders of nature.

Chink number one on your rose-coloured glasses.

You cannot send your neighbour off in these conditions without a decent sense of worry for her skidding into the ditch on the first curve. Well, the trees are still beautiful but there is definitely a sense of guilt about thinking so. Because it's an Inside Day you decide it's time to clean out the hall closet. (these jobs must only be undertaken on very Up Days or your little idiosyncrasies may not seem even faintly amusing but rather strong contenders for the slob of the Year award).

In the closet, amongst many things, you find eleven unusable tennis balls left over from last fall and, even more puzzling you come across a much-needed rubber boot but no sign of its mate. This calls for a coffee break while you ponder on the logic of putting away a single boot. However, your optimism holds and you're sure you will stumble on it shortly, preferably not literally. Also, you make firm resolutions on how, from now on, you will run a tight ship, so to speak.

The phone rings in the midst of these lofty thoughts. It is a friend and yet another human who has failed to be moved by the beauty of the aforementioned trees. Not only not moved but they have driven her into a dark and vocal depression. As we have all experienced the Down Days, we are honor-bound to offer shoulders when needed. You murmur the right things when you hear that the plumber can't come for a week and that a bank loan will be needed when he does show. Furthermore, their teen-aged son cannot be persuaded to turn down the acid-rock music after ten p.m. which causes tension from attic to cellar, to say nothing of vicious headaches. At the mention of headaches, you realize you have been rubbing the back of your neck where, sure enough, a throb has started. You end the conversation with something both helpful and brilliant such as 'well, some days are better than others'.

You turn slowly back to the mess in the hall which suddenly seems insurmountable and even worse, unbelievably boring. Squirrelling away eleven old tennis balls is positively gross and undoubtedly the missing galosh was thrown out with the Christmas trash. Grimly the job is finished. On a scale of one to 10, if you started out with a cheerful nine on awakening you are now down to a shaky three. The mail has arrived and you realize that Hydro wasn't kidding about their rate increase. You are down to two and counting.

A sudden urge comes to phone someone and try and make them understand how difficult it is to live on a fixed income. Share your misery. After all, what are friends for! Heaven knows, on a foul day like this everyone will be home.

The moral to this is obvious... when you wake up feeling super-great... reach over and disconnect the phone.

Vandals visit sugar camp

this year.

He doesn't know what his plans are for next year. He's had trouble with vandals on a small scale for the last couple of years, but nothing on this scale since he took over sugaring the Haskell Hill Road bush in 1945.

"You can't get insurance for that kind of thing, not for a reasonable price, anyway." Lennoxville police were called to the scene, but say they have few leads, since they couldn't even pick up tire tracks at the camp.

Whatever the outcome of their investigation, the Herring sugarbush — operating almost without a pause for upwards of 150 years — may have had its last season.

Vandals also broke sap buckets off trees, leaving only the spout and cover hanging on the tree. The beer-toting visitors also left bottles littered around and upended piles of wood.

Creativity workshop features skills

LENNOXVILLE (BVS) — Women's skills will be displayed at a Creativity Workshop Thursday, April 26 in the Gertrude Scott Hall of the Lennoxville United Church.

Visitors can watch as women from the Sherbrooke-Lennoxville area work their particular art or craft. As well as viewing work in progress, visitors will also be encouraged to try their hand at any of the crafts. Completed articles will also be displayed and detailed information will be available on each one. Articles will not be for sale.

To be displayed are chaircaning; tatting; hastinotes; woodcarving; smocking; needlepoint; macrame; dough art; cloth flowers; weaving; spinning and carding; collage;

stencilling; knitting and crocheting; quilting; textile printing; stuffed toys; candles; batik; and Ukrainian egg decoration. Hours are 10 a.m. to noon; 2 to 4 p.m.; and 7 to 9 p.m. Everyone is welcome and there is no charge. The event is sponsored by the Adult Education Services of the Eastern Townships Regional School Board.

Judge bars visitor

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Arthur Meeham, of Buxton, Mass., pleaded guilty to a charge of willful damage to public property in the Sweetsburg jail on April 7. Defence lawyer Pierre Gibeau told the court his client had been picked up on a charge of impaired driving and had been held until he could post a cash bond.

"He was released, then realized he had forgotten some of his personal effects and returned to claim them," Gibeau said. "When the authorities couldn't find them he became frustrated and ripped a communications speaker off the wall. It merely required rewiring."

Crown attorney Claude Noiseux determined Meeham had been held for two days prior to his arraignment and suggested a one-year probation order prohibiting the accused from returning to Canada.

"We don't need the likes of you in Canada," Judge Guy Genest thundered. "Two years probation and stay at home. If you come back in that period you'll be behind bars for a prolonged period."

Henri Lapointe, 49, of Clarenceville, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving when he had consumed 190 mgs. of alcohol. He was fined $190 and costs, in default 30 days.

Owen Hilliker, of Bolton Centre, pleaded guilty to a similar charge when he had consumed 110 mgs. of alcohol. He was fined $100 and costs, in default 30 days.

Townships talk

Iolanthe in full swing

LENNOXVILLE — Since October, cast members of the Lennoxville Players have been driving the wintry roads from several communities of the Eastern Townships to the weekly rehearsals for this year's presentation of Gilbert and Sullivan's "IOLANTHE", a satirical opera portraying a tongue-in-cheek look at the functions of the British parliamentary system and the "House of Peers" in particular, whose members eventually succumb to the wiles of a Fairy Queen and her court of Fairies.

With four weeks remaining before the presentation on the 2, 3, and 5 May, additional rehearsals have been called by stage manager Robin Allen and musical director Harry Dutton. Members of the wardrobe committee and stage crew have been creating costumes and building impressive sets. They report being well on schedule.

Iolanthe will be staged in Centennial Theatre, and tickets will be sold at the Theatre box office, through Optimist Club and Lennoxville Players members. Tickets will be $4.00 with a special rate of $2.50 for students and citizens over age 65 for Thursday and Friday night performances only. All tickets for Saturday's presentation will be $4.00.

The Lennoxville Optimist Club will again sponsor the production and benefit from a contribution from the Lennoxville Players that last year was of great help in enabling them to carry on their valuable community work.

Summer craft fair planned

AYER'S CLIFF (BVS) — Townships craftsmen and craftswomen are invited to attend the initial meeting of the Ayer's Cliff Summer Craft Fair at 1 p.m. Sun., Apr. 22 at the Ayer's Cliff Centre, 1031 Main St.

The fair will be held every Sunday afternoon from June to Labour Day at the centre. Crafts will be displayed and sold in outdoor booths. The event will be operated by the Ayer's Cliff Centre.

Fire razes Sawyerville barn

SAWYERVILLE (AW) — A fire destroyed the barn of Bert Laroche of Low Forest Road killing 15 cows, 13 sheep and lambs and five pigs early Sunday morning. The fire was discovered at 2:15 a.m. and, by the time the Sawyerville Fire Department arrived, nothing could be done to save the structure and the animals inside it. At present, nothing is known of the fire's cause.

Border dumps closing May 31

BEEBE (FJM) — The town dumps in Beebe, Rock Island and Stanstead are to be closed on May 31 and, so far, no solid solution to the problem of further garbage disposal has been found. Tenders were called to have garbage carried by truck to a dump situated near Route 50, between Ayer's Cliff and Magog, but all were rejected due to technicalities.

At a meeting set for April 18, it is expected that a new call for tenders will be issued. Border town councillors have for some years been arguing that a unified garbage disposal service should be drawn up in the area. It is estimated that a dump conforming to government regulations would cost $250,000.

Conservation contest launched

MAGOG (FJM) — For the fifth consecutive year, l'Association Forestiere des Cantons de l'Est, in collaboration with the Commission Scolaire de Magog, has organized a contest concerning the conservation of the environment addressed to fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grade students. The contest ran from March 5 to March 30 in 10 Magog-area schools and involved 600 students.

Prizes will be presented to award winners at Ste. Marguerite Marie de Magog School on April 20 at 2:00 p.m. More than 40 prizes in the form of books about the environment will be given out by teachers and administrators of the school board, representatives of industry and the city council and a few donors.

Georgeville parking discussed

GEORGEVILLE (FJM) — A regulation aimed at trying to solve parking problems in Georgeville will be discussed at a Stanstead Township council meeting on Wednesday. Residents have for some time expressed their displeasure with the fact that cars and trailers clog the town's streets from early in the morning to late at night during the summer due to Georgeville's easy access to Lake Memphremagog.

Nature appreciation at Jouvence

SHERBROOKE (FJM) — Parc Jouvence is planning to hold two nature appreciation sessions later in the spring. The first will be held on May 18, 19 and 20 and will be concerned with the identification of birds and animals in Mont Orford Park. The second will be held June 1, 2 and 3 and will concentrate on the identification of flowers and plants.

Both sessions cost $40.00 per person. The maximum number of participants will be 25 and the minimum will be 15. All inquiries should be addressed to Base de Plein Air, R.R. 1, Bonsecours, Shefford, Quebec J0E 1H0 or (514) 532-4633.

Election-map gerrymandering may alter Quebec outcome

OTTAWA (CP) — If Quebec voters stick with the choices they made in the last federal election, the Social Credit party could lose two ridings to the Liberals while the Progressive Conservatives could recover one lost in a byelection.

The reason is the new national electoral map, which expands to 282 from 264 the number of Commons seats being contested in the May 22 general election. The map, redrawn in 1976, adds just one seat in Quebec, giving the province a total of 75. Several riding boundaries have been altered and the changes could shift the balance in some constituencies, should voters cast ballots the same way they did in 1974.

For example, Eudore Allard, the Socred incumbent in Rimouski who had a 1,300-vote majority in 1974, would lose by 2,000 to the Liberals in the re-distributed riding. Charles-Eugene Dionne, who won in Kamouraska for the Socreds with a 2,000-vote margin, would lose by 4,000 votes to the Liberals in the new riding of Kamouraska-Riviere-du-Loup.

The Conservatives could acquire a seat in St. Hyacinthe riding, which went Tory with Claude Wagner in 1974, but saw voters opt for Liberal Marcel Ostiguy in a byelection last summer following Wagner's Senate appointment. Although the map was redrawn in 1976, former riding boundaries applied in the byelections.

In the May 22 vote, the Tories would sweep St. Hyacinthe with a majority of more than 5,600 votes. They'd also retain the two Quebec seats held at dissolution — Joliette, represented by Roch Lalonde, and Missisquoi, held by Heward Grafftey.

The Liberals could capture two seats by allowing independents.

Champlain, represented by Rene Matte, could go Liberal by 4,000 votes. Matte was elected as a Socred in 1974. He was later expelled from the party because of his support for Quebec independence.

In Shefford, Gilbert Rondeau, a long-time Socred who resigned from the party to sit as an independent amid a series of criminal charges, could retain his seat by a mere 55-vote lead. He won the Eastern Townships riding in 1974 by 839.

The Socreds could obtain partial revenge in Abitibi, where the electoral map gives the party a 1,400-vote lead. Armand Caouette, whose riding of Villeneuve disappeared with redistribution, is the Socred candidate. Liberal incumbent Gerard Laprise is not seeking re-election.

Congratulations

Politics should be put aside for a moment and we hope all members of the national assembly will see fit to congratulate Premier Rene Levesque on his marriage to the former Miss Corinne Cote.

We hope they have many years of happiness.

JOHN McCAGHEY

Gamesmanship

The Globe and Mail story that the Grits have systematically attempted to woo key opposition members with offers of fat jobs and big bucks comes as no surprise.

We've mentioned several times that offers were made to Heward Grafftey, MP for Brome-Missisquoi. Leonel Beaudoin resisted a handsome post with the Canadian Grain Commission, as did other Socred MPs. Furthermore, we expect revelations of a similar nature to surface from now until election time, since it has always been the Liberal way to use the powers of government as fully as possible, and that includes using fat sinecure enticements to clear a voters' logjam or send an opposition bastion tumbling.

As PC veteran George Hees says, there has been little outcry about patronage because it is an acceptable tool of political warfare, and reverse patronage is even more effective in destroying opposition morale. But the fact that MPs resisted these Grit blandishments is testimony to a degree of loyalty to party and voter we challenge the Liberals to emulate.

JAMES DUFF

Dirty business

Just because the whole town of Lennoxville pours its raw sewage into the Massawippi River doesn't make it right for Champlain College's new residences to do the same, even if it's just "for the duration".

We doubt many people know what we're talking about when we speak of raw sewage, but if you'd like to see for yourselves, take a stroll down the banks of the Massawippi from Winder Street to the College St. bridge. We guarantee you'll know what the term means by the end of the trudge.

The Winter St. collector will emerge beside the old Grand Trunk Railway bridge behind Paradis Garage, just opposite the main storm sewer outlet and beside it, one of the municipality's existing sewage outlets.

To be sure, Lennoxville isn't the only culprit. Just about every municipality in the province from Montreal on down dumps its untreated sewage into a lake, river or other body of water, and the Environmental Protection Service has concentrated on cleaning up lakes, with modest but definite success.

But it strikes us as somewhat incongruous the fact that last week we received a call from the St. Francis Cleanup Committee telling us about the effort the government was making to urge people to be environment-conscious.

Even better, we have a picture of Environment Minister Marcel Leger gazing over the rail of the College St. bridge, down at the murky Massawippi below, telling Massawippi Cleanup Week organizers how much he was behind them. No wonder Mayor Cecil Dougherty refused to have anything to do with Cleanup Week; he may be a cynic, but at least nobody can accuse him of being a hypocrite.

The authorities say there will be a sewage treatment plant built for the Sherbrooke-Lennoxville-Fleurimont-Ascot Corner area by 1985. We'll believe it when we see it. In any case, let's not be fooling anyone with these cleanup awareness weeks and all that other jazz. The water in the Massawippi is filthy enough to make a hyena retch. We shudder to think what the St. Francis must be like just below Sherbrooke.

Vandalism: Should parents be forced to pay?

WINNIPEG (CP) — Does making parents pay for their children's mistakes curb vandalism?

Some Winnipeg city councillors think it does and are keen for a bylaw to put the idea into effect. But some officials close to the problem have their doubts.

Inspector Herb Stephen of the police department's juvenile division says he believes most vandalism is committed by children from poor families whose parents couldn't afford to pay for smashed windows or damaged bus shelters.

"You can't squeeze blood from a stone," he says.

However, Winnipeg school board solicitor John Condra says the incidence of vandalism to schools is the same throughout the division, regardless of economic differences.

Condra also says vandals aren't limited to their own neighborhoods because "kids are very mobile these days."

TRIED IN U.S. Parental-responsibility laws are in force in parts of Arizona and Illinois. Chicago solicitor John Siegan says the success of the law varies with those involved.

"With families of professionals, you see that the stigma of having your child arrested means the parents would far prefer to pay the restitution and keep it quiet."

"In gang-related vandalism, which comprises most of Chicago's problem, that stigma just doesn't follow."

Winnipeg city council has deferred the proposal until it hears from Chief Provincial Court Judge Harold Gyles, head of a committee studying the juvenile justice system.

Family Court Judge Ed Kimelman says existing laws already require parents to pay for vandalism if the courts rule they helped create situations leading to crimes or were negligent by allowing vandalism to happen.

MAY BE UNFAIR He worries that making parents automatically liable for damage caused by their children could be unfair.

"What if you have a single mother with four children — three are doing well and one is a real problem through no fault of hers."

"Say the mother has really tried to get help for her child and still the child winds up before the court. How then, can you impose

Computers: Their influence extends even to this story

OTTAWA (CP) — This is a story about how computers are working their way into your daily life, threatening your privacy and undermining the sovereignty of your country.

It has been written on a computer terminal, which talked to another computer that sent it out to more than 100 daily newspapers and scores of radio and television stations.

At some newspapers, it has been read by an editor on another terminal, who graced it with a headline and sent it off to be set in type — by another computer.

Computers got this story out more quickly than reports transmitted, say, in the days of Morse when telegraph operators tapped out words in dots and dashes.

But the ability of one computer to talk to another — technically described as informatics — has an ominous side.

A report released Wednesday by a government-commissioned group probing the effects of telecommunications on the country's sovereignty says informatics pose "possibly the most serious threat" of all new communication technology.

The computers that arrange airline tickets, keep tabs on charge accounts, compile police records, build cars and plug taxpayers into government services can take over jobs.

And the information they hold can transcend borders, putting Canadian information beyond the protection of domestic privacy laws.

USE ALIEN BANKS

The report, prepared by a committee under British Columbia justice John Clyne, says an increasing number of companies are using computers to store files and other data in banks at head offices and central terminals in the United States.

This movement of computer storage to the U.S. could cost Canada about 23,000 computer jobs and about $1.5 billion by 1985, the report says.

It adds that greater use of U.S. and other foreign computing services and increased Canadian dependence on them could:

—Undermine domestic control over service disruptions caused by technical breakdowns and foreign work stoppages.

—Undermine Canadian protection against invasions of personal privacy and computer crime.

—Lead to greater dependence on foreign technicians, which in turn would reduce the pressure to develop domestic computer systems designed for domestic needs.

—Jeopardize Canadian jurisdiction over companies operating in Canada which store and process data abroad.

—Undermine the country's telecommunications system — data could be imported into Canada through foreign satellites and roof-top antennas.

—Increase the risk of having confidential Canadian information published abroad.

—Facilitate U.S. efforts to apply American law outside that country.

NEED NOD

The report says Canadian businesses should be forced to get authorization before processing data abroad. It suggests that insurance and loans companies comply with rules that now prevent banks from exporting information about clients. It calls for more effective education and training programs for Canadian computer workers and it recommends a publicity campaign to explain the social, economic and cultural implications of the "electronic information society."

At the same time, the report cautions against legislative overkill — legal and regulatory rules that could harm the growth of the industry in Canada.

"The development of railways and roads was essential to the industrialization of Canada," the study says.

"It can be said that the development of the electronic highway will be even more essential to the development of an efficiently computerized Canada effectively under Canadian control."

Castor-Mafia JFK hit story gets new lease on life

WASHINGTON — Involvement of the Mafia and Cuban Premier Fidel Castro in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy has been given a new and intriguing twist in the still unreleased report of the House Assassinations Committee.

We broke the first version of the "Cuban connection" in 1967, as it was told to us by the late mobster John Roselli. While the committee doesn't buy his story in its entirety our reports sparked an investigation that led to a variation of the Roselli theory as one of the possible scenarios of the Dallas assassination.

Roselli told us that Mafia hirelings, with the blessing of the Central Intelligence Agency, were sent to Cuba to kill Castro. The dictator had earned the mob's enmity by cutting off their lucrative gambling and other interests in Cuba. The would-be assassins were captured by Castro, Roselli told us, "turned around" under torture and persuaded to direct their murderous efforts toward Kennedy.

The assassinations committee's version gives a more plausible motivation for the mob's involvement — that the Mafia, like Castro, had its own reasons for wanting to kill Kennedy. The alliance, if there was one, was voluntary.

The committee doubts Roselli's story of a forced turnaround by the Mafia hit men after torture. "The committee found it more difficult to dismiss the possibility that the Mafia, although not turned around by Castro, might have voluntarily turned around with him," the report states.

The committee notes that, by 1963, the mob "may have lost their motivation to assassinate Castro" because the growing Soviet presence in Cuba made it unlikely that he would be overthrown and the country reopened to Mafia operations.

On the other hand, the committee report says, the mob "had been given sufficient reason to eliminate President Kennedy." By 1962, both Castro and the Mafia were hurting financially, "chiefly as a result of pressures applied to each by the Kennedy administration," the report notes. It adds: "Thus, they had a common motive that made an alliance more attractive than mutual animosity."

The longstanding animosity between Castro and the mob would have been no obstacle to collaboration against a common enemy, the report notes. "Mafia figures are rational, pragmatic 'businessmen' who often realize their associations and form partnerships with ex-enemies when it is expedient."

The evidence gathered by the committee indicates that the Cuban-Mafia conspirators "could have considered using the resources at their disposal to increase their power and alleviate their problems by assassinating President Kennedy."

Muddying the waters even more is the possibility that anti-Castro Cubans may have been involved. "Many of them," the report says, "had come to conclude that the U.S. president was an obstacle requiring elimination even more urgently than the Cuban dictator."

Why does the committee discount Roselli's version of the Castro-Mafia alliance? "The committee considered it significant that Roselli's public revelations about the plot corresponded with his efforts to avoid deportation in 1966 and 1971 and to escape prosecution for illegal gambling activities in 1967," Roselli, the committee suggests, may have hoped to get CIA intervention in his legal difficulties "as a price for his agreeing to make no further disclosures."

Ironically, while the committee didn't buy Roselli's story, "it was his death that really pushed the committee" to study the Mafia possibility in depth and come up with the alternate theory, a source told our associate Tony Capaccio.

The committee report stresses that the Cuban-Mafia connection is still only a theory without hard evidence. The committee "was frustrated by its inability to determine details of activities that might have led to the assassination — identification of participants, associations and timing of events."

A Break for Banks: Many of the nation's charities are unwittingly donating money to recipients who need it the least — the banks.

Proof of this is easily available to anyone who has sent a check to a favorite charity. Just look at the canceled check and note the date it was written and the date it was cashed. The difference constitutes the number of days your bank had free use of the money you donated.

Time in the mails is beyond the charities' control, of course, and would be relatively insignificant anyway. But some charities inexplicably wait weeks before they deposit contributions, thus losing interest they should be collecting.

Our random sampling showed that the fastest charity depositor was the Prison Fellowship, a Christian mission to aid convicts. A donation was on its way to the bank the same day it was received.

Others, including the Disabled American Veterans, the YMCA, the Heart Fund, Christmas Seals and the American Civil Liberties Union, took from several days to weeks to get their money in the bank. One, Temple University, took more than two months to deposit a check.

Almost as wasteful is some charities' practice of keeping large amounts of money in checking or low-interest bank accounts. The funds would be better invested in higher interest savings accounts or short-term government bonds.

Amin: 'Pure son of Africa' flees for his life

KAMPALA (AP) — Field Marshal Idi Amin Dada, Uganda's "president for life," is on the run, fast losing his grip on the presidency but still clinging to his life.

Amin claims God once told him in a dream of the exact day and hour of his death. He says God will severely punish anyone who tampers with that timetable.

Amin, accused of ordering massacres of both his enemies and the innocent, has been viewed with contempt in the outside world, but at the height of his blustery career in the mid-1970s he was secretly admired by some Africans for the way he assailed former white colonists.

"I am a pure son of Africa," Amin once said.

DESCRIBED AS BRUTE

But Milton Obote, the Ugandan president Amin overthrew in a military coup on Jan. 25, 1971, calls him "the greatest brute an African mother has ever brought to life."

President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia likens him to Hitler. The Anglican Archbishop of Canterbury prayed he would be overthrown. President Carter said his methods "disgusted the entire civilized world."

The 240-pound Amin survived an estimated 14 assassination attempts in the first six years of his presidency and some of the vilest diplomatic barbs ever hurled at a head of state.

He credited his durability to what he said were frequent conversations with God.

He claimed to have conquered the British Empire, awarded himself the Victoria Cross and volunteered to be king of Scotland if asked.

Amin's reign has provided the world with a steady stream of front-page guffaws punctuated by headline disclosures of terror and bloodletting.

BECAME FOLK HERO

He may have been ostracized outside Africa but in some corners of Africa he has become a folk hero.

During an Organization of African Unity summit meeting in Libreville, Gabon, in July 1977, the pistol-packing, 6-foot-4 president won raucous applause when he said his government had awarded him the title of Conqueror of British Imperialism.

He admonished Britain to halt Northern Ireland's religious violence and the United States to abolish racial discrimination before they "meddled" in Ugandan affairs.

Even by previous African standards, Amin's Uganda is viewed by some observers as a hell on earth for most of the 40 tribes living alongside his own small Kakwa clan.

Refugees have said that as attempts on his life became more frequent in 1976-77, executions, which began against supporters of the ousted President Obote, spread to the powerful Baganda tribe and other populous clans — to a point that they became almost indiscriminate genocide.

THOUSANDS MURDERED

On Oct. 19, 1978, the London-based human rights organization Amnesty International said in a 25-page report on Uganda that since Amin took power at least 100,000 people had been murdered. Others put the number slain at 300,000.

"Widespread arbitrary arrest, detention without trial and large-scale killings by security forces were not isolated occurrences but regular and systematic practices, condoned or encouraged by the government," the Amnesty International report said.

Among atrocities Amin was accused of ordering, sanctioning or actually committing:

—The killing of Anglican Archbishop Janani Luwum and two cabinet ministers in February 1977, only days after Luwum complained publicly of government brutality against Ugandan citizens. Amin claimed Luwum was killed in a car accident.

—The murder of Amin's wife Kay after she aborted their child shortly after he divorced her in 1973.

—Ordering the murder of Dora Bloch, a British-Israeli grandmother who disappeared after the Israeli commando raid to free a hijacked jetliner at Entebbe Airport.

—Murdering Minister of Works Shabali Nkutu late in 1976 after ordering him trussed like a chicken and placed on a table.

—Feeding hundreds of bodies of slain victims to crocodiles in the Nile.

—Instigating a massacre in which hundreds of Ugandans from rival tribes were rounded up in a mango grove and killed with sledgehammers as their relatives were forced to watch.

Two of Amin's physicians who left Uganda claim Amin is a victim of hypomania, a state in which a rapid succession of widely varying ideas hit the mind and receive oral expression.

Dr. John Kibukamusoke, who left Kampala in 1973, saying he feared for his life, claimed Amin ordered one of his many foreign ministers, Michael Ondoga, to be killed and then ate his liver in a Kakwa ritual which is supposed to cleanse the killer.

He is said to be superstitious about everything, but even his enemies acknowledge he has enormous cunning.

He was born in 1925 — the exact month and day are not known — the son of a poor farmer. Amin had only three years of primary school education, according to biographies.

He claimed to have fought with the British army

Amin and adviser Bob Astles, whose face bears ritual scars of Amin's own tribe against the Japanese in Burma. Biographers say he did not enlist until 1946. He distinguished himself fighting the anti-white Mau Mau tribe in neighboring Kenya in the 1950s. When Uganda gained independence in October 1962 after 70 years of British rule, Amin was one of two commissioned native officers.

In his 20s, Amin was the Ugandan army's heavyweight boxing champion.

In 1966 he was commander of the army when Obote ordered tribal kingdoms abolished and forced Baganda King Freddie out as titular head of the clans. Obote installed himself as president.

OBOTE THROWN OUT

When Obote went to Singapore for the 1971 Commonwealth leaders' conference, Amin ousted him. Obote, given asylum in neighboring Tanzania, accused Israel of instigating his overthrow because Amin had been trained as a paratrooper by Israelis.

Amin invited Israel to expand its eight-year-old Ugandan aid mission. The following year he abruptly ordered Israel out of Uganda, saying Hitler was "right to burn six million Jews."

Later that year he expelled about 50,000 Asians from Uganda on 90-days' notice. Many came to Canada. Their exodus left the Ugandan business community in a shambles.

Married five times and divorced three, Amin, a Moslem, once said he planned to have 400 children.

"Even Amin does not know how many people he has ordered to be executed. The country is littered with bodies," said Henry Kyemba, Amin's long-time friend and a former health minister, who defected to Britain in June, 1977.

Interpreting the news

Carter facing decision on U.S. oil pricing

BONN (AP) — The nuclear accident at Harrisburg, Pa., has forced Western European governments to re-examine their nuclear development plans amid criticism that the same thing, or worse, might happen again.

Most European officials who have spoken out on the Harrisburg affair have insisted that despite the risk, resource-poor Europe has no alternative but to develop nuclear energy.

But planners at the European Commission in Brussels fear that Harrisburg's legacy to Europe will be a delay of at least one year in the pace of nuclear development as governments tighten safety standards and calm public fears.

Nuclear plants generate only 10.3 per cent of the electricity consumed within the nine European Economic Community (EEC) countries, although there are plans to increase that to 30 per cent by 1985.

Non-communist Europe operates 85 plants, compared with 70 licensed plants in the United States, the world's leading nuclear consumer. Britain leads Western Europe with 33 plants, followed by West Germany with 15. The Soviet Union has 26 nuclear plants.

Voters in the northern West German state of Schleswig-Holstein may provide a clue to the depth of anti-nuclear sentiment when they cast ballots April 29 in a legislative election that the Social Democrats want to turn into a referendum on a local power plant.

One European country pressing ahead with nuclear development is France, which has the continent's most ambitious nuclear plans. The Soviet Union and other-Soviet bloc countries also have tended to downgrade the Harrisburg incident and press ahead with plans for nuclear power.

But elsewhere, nuclear energy is under attack by environmentalists and lawmakers skeptical of industry assurances that European safety standards are too strict to allow another Harrisburg-type accident.

In Sweden, where the nuclear power issue helped topple the Socialist government in 1976, the present government shelved plans to open two new reactors pending a referendum next year on the future use of nuclear power.

Here is a rundown of the nuclear debate in other European countries:

Britain: British officials say the Harrisburg incident is evidence of the superior safety standards of their gas-cooled reactors, which have been in service since the late 1940s with only two minor accidents. But anti-nuclear groups have put forward 50 candidates for the May 3 general election, and 19 of these are expected to make trouble for Liberal candidates in marginal seats.

Finland: The Finnish government announced that it sees no need for special safety measures because the possibility of such an accident at one of its two nuclear plants is non-existent.

Italy: Controversy over nuclear safety has held up government plans for an additional 12 plants. Massimo Moretti, director general of the country's electricity monopoly, warns of drastic power shortages in the 1980s if the plants are not built.

Austria: Voters turned down a proposal last November that would have allowed the country's first nuclear plant to open. And Foreign Minister Willibald Pahr proposed that countries be allowed to say whether their neighbors build nuclear plants near their borders.

Switzerland: Voters go to the polls May 20 to consider a measure guaranteeing that "no more nuclear plants be built than is absolutely necessary."

Belgium: Antwerp city council has expressed concern over a nuclear plant in the city and has asked for safety guarantees. Last week, the mayor of the town of Huy ordered a nearby plant closed, but the national government reversed the decision.

Harrisburg accident prompts second thoughts

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Carter soon must make a potentially explosive decision about whether to end controls on domestic oil prices in June.

Critics say removing controls will cost U.S. consumers an extra $15 billion a year and send inflation skyrocketing, while advocates argue it is the only way to encourage exploration and counter looming energy shortages.

Carter is to outline a new energy plan March 29, when he also will try to convince doubting Americans the current energy situation is serious and his administration has plans to deal with it.

The betting is he will use his national address to announce steps to start lifting controls on domestic oil prices, possibly with a proposal to tax excessive corporate profits of oil companies. The idea is to permit more oil-company profits for exploration, but not for windfall gains.

Currently, the administration imposes a ceiling price of about $5.80 a barrel on so-called "old" oil — discovered before 1973 — while "new" oil discovered after that date is controlled at about $13 a barrel. This compares with imported crude oil prices of more than $14 a barrel.

CONTROLS END

On June 1, mandatory controls on U.S. crude oil prices end. From then on, Carter has sole discretion on whether to continue controls and, if so, in what form. Authority for any controls ends in 1981.

Carter faces tough choices because he is receiving conflicting advice from advisers within the administration and because public-interest groups are adamantly opposed to letting prices rise.

Alfred Kahn, the presidents' chief inflation adviser, has said publicly he opposes any move to free oil prices before fall.

Clowery-Alarie

Miss Carole Colette Alarie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Alarie of Roxton Pond, Que., and Steven Wayne Clowery, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clowery of Stanstead, Que., were united in marriage at Graniteville United Church on April 7, 1979. Rev. Robert Rennie officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Lenn. Golden Age Club meets

LENNOXVILLE — The Golden Age Club met on April 3rd at the Gertrude Scott Hall with a very large attendance.

The first part of the afternoon was spent playing Pirate Bingo. At 4 p.m. the group was entertained in the upper hall by the Alexander Galt group of entertainers, under the direction of Mr. Bruce Patton. Everyone enjoyed them tremendously and hope that sometime they will be able to return.

Before leaving, six of the members of the Club, who had birthdays during the month, were called up to the front and each presented with a little cake and candle, along with best wishes. Happy Birthday was sung to them by the Galt Choir.

The President, Gerald Frost expressed thanks on behalf of the Club for the wonderful programme given.

Shortly after 5 p.m. everyone went down to the lower hall where a most delicious ham supper was awaiting them, which was served by some of the members of the Club, assisted by some of the girls from the Choir.

A vote of thanks was given to all who helped serve bringing a most enjoyable afternoon to a close.

Approaching marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Campbell of Lennoxville, Que., are happy to announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Deborah McWhirter to Mr. Andrew Douglas McTear, son of Mr. and Mrs. John N. McTear, of Rosemere, Que. The wedding is planned to take place on May 19, 1979, at St. Martin's Chapel, BCS, Lennoxville, Que.

St. George's Guild meets

LENNOXVILLE — Members of St. George's Guild held their regular meeting in the upper room of St. George's Church Hall, Queen Street, with twelve members present.

The president, Mrs. Lewis Hewitt, opened the meeting with prayer. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Russell Foley and the treasurer's report was favorable.

Mrs. Hewitt extended thanks to the conveners and to all who helped to make the rummage Sale held on March 24, a success. It was suggested that coffee and doughnuts might be sold at the next rummage sale to be held on October 13.

A cash donation was given in memory of Mrs. Lillian Baker, a faithful member of the Guild. This donation will be given to the Church Endowment Fund.

Dr. Kathleen Atto reported ordering fifteen dozen china plates and mugs, with the motif of St. George's Church on them.

Mrs. Stanley Rainey will convene the up-coming food sale to be held at Martinizing Cleaners.

Following adjournment, the hostesses, Mrs. Sam Bauer and Mrs. McLaughlin served refreshments.

Bedford blood donor clinic held

The annual Bedford Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic was held Tuesday at the Mason Hall in Bedford. About 230 pints of blood were collected.

Ann Landers says

Wasn't allergic to fiance

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't think I'm some kind of a nut. I'm writing because there may be others out there who have the same problem and don't know it.

Subject: Allergic to male perspiration. Yes, I broke an engagement to a fine man because I developed a terrible skin rash from his sweat. He didn't sweat profusely — just a small amount — but it was enough to make me break out all over. (As you have probably guessed, the rash appeared within minutes after we had sex.)

All this happened three years ago. No, I'm not married and I don't want to be. Prayer has filled the void in my life that I used to think had to be filled by a lover or a husband. I am signing myself — Happier With The Lord

Dear Happier: I doubt you were allergic to your fiance's perspiration. More to the point, you felt guilty about having sex with him and this is what produced the rash. It's a good thing your body gave you the message. The marriage could have been a disaster. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband runs his mouth from morning 'til night. He wakes up talking and the sound of his voice is the last thing I hear at night. He is semi-retired and the only relief I get is when he leaves at 1:30 p.m. for four hours. The man has vocal cords like inner tubes. Sometimes I wonder where he gets all the air.

I didn't think my husband was aware of the problem until one day he said, "I must drive you nuts with all my talking. I don't know what I'd do if I didn't have you to listen to me."

When he said that I silently thanked God for giving me the patience to listen when I wanted to say "Shut up" at least 500 times. You have said so often in your column, Ann, "Understanding can make the unbearable bearable."

He still drives me up the wall with his constant verbalizing, but I know he needs an audience and I'm glad I have the patience to listen. Maybe this letter will help some other woman who is married to the same kind of man. Thank you for listening to ME, Ann.

From Dixie

Dear Dixie: Your letter might also help some man who is married to the same kind of woman. Thank you for sharing your wisdom.

Stanstead Chapter IODE

STANSTEAD (DB) — The April meeting of the Stanstead Chapter IODE was held on Monday afternoon, April 2, in the reception room of LeBaron Hall, Stanstead College. Mrs. Agnes Myers, Regent, welcomed members and guests, and with a special poem, wished everyone a happy Easter.

Mrs. Ralph Rogers, Secretary, read the minutes of the March meeting and the correspondence reports. Included in the correspondence was a letter from Sunnyside School confirming the use of the school facilities for the annual bazaar to be held on September 29, 1979.

Mrs. Merton Davis, Treasurer, read the financial report and noted that two books for Convent prizes have been purchased and were on display at the meeting. Mrs. Simone DuBois agreed to deliver them to the Ursuline Convent for prize-giving.

Mrs. Howard Aikman, Membership Secretary, welcomed two guests, Mrs. Winnie Dewey and Mrs. Doris Edgar, both of Stanstead. Later, during the meeting, Mrs. Edgar was presented by Mrs. Aikman and welcomed into membership by Mrs. Myers.

Mrs. Jean Beasse, Citizenship Secretary, commented on the recent problem with the Nuclear Power Station in Harrisburg, Penn., and questioned the proposals for four new plants to be built here in Quebec.

Mrs. Frances Finlayson recommended reading an article in the Winter Echoes entitled "Mariko Bando - Visit to Canada". Mrs. Bando is here from Japan to study and report on the situation of women in Canada in order to draw comparisons with the status of women in Japan.

Education Secretary, Mrs.

Florence Gerber, reported that there are several copies of "Wind in the Willows" available at 50 cents each.

Mrs. Douglas Jackson, Services Secretary, reported on the progress of the three layettes and presented a display of baby articles, noting that one layette is completed. The layettes, when completed, will be sent to Northern Quebec nursing stations and, on request, to Montreal-General Hospital for babies of Eskimo and Indian girls born there.

It was noted that donations to the National Service Fund has made possible the gift of six incubators to the North West Territories, a project that the Stanstead Chapter has participated in.

A report on the CBC TV program "People Talking Back" shown on March 11 was given by Mrs. Simone DuBois. Mrs. Merton Davis will report on the next program scheduled for April 8 at the May meeting.

Mrs. Jean Beasse and Mrs. Ralph Rogers will assist at the April Senior Citizens luncheon. The next coffee hour will be held at the home of Mrs. Ada Curtis on Friday, April 20 at 10:00 a.m. It was decided that coffee parties will be carried on during the summer months.

Mrs. Dorothy Renwick will report on the final date for the bridge marathon party at the next meeting. All proceeds from marathon bridge and coffee parties go towards the Swim Project Fund.

A letter of recognition will be sent to Mrs. Clara Farrow, now over 90 years of age, and a resident of Wales Home, Richmond, Que., informing her of having our charter on display containing her name among the ten Charter members.

Mrs. Myers thanked Mrs. Ruby Greer, who kindly agreed to complete our chapter history from old minute books recovered from storage at the Haskell Library.

Mrs. Agnes Myers will attend the Provincial Annual meeting of the IODE, April 24 to 26, with other members of the chapter, registrations to be sent before April 15, 1979. The National Annual Meeting will take place in Ottawa on May 24 to 27, 1979.

Mrs. Thelma Dustin confirmed plans for the June meeting to be held on June 19, at the Balsams Hotel, Dixville Notch, N.H.

The meeting was adjourned, and refreshments served by the hostesses, Mrs. Olga Audet and Mrs. Simone DuBois. Mrs. Ralph Rogers poured tea from a lovely Easter decorated table.

fense will add four club tricks to that one diamond trick. He will be down one for a rather average score since other declarers will fall into that same trap.

The rubber bridge player decides he wants to win the rubber. He lets East's jack of clubs hold the first trick and his nine of clubs hold the next one. At trick three he plays a club honor. West can do nothing better than to take his ace for the third defense trick. Later on South loses the diamond finesse, but that is the fourth and last trick for the defense.

Golden Age Club meets

KNOWLTON (KT) — There was a large attendance for the monthly Bingo put on for members of Knowlton Golden Age Club by the I.O.O.F. Thursday, April 5. The 75 persons attending were in high spirits and it was a really great afternoon. Buster Crandall was the caller and Grant Windle kept the games running smoothly from the floor.

Regular games were won by Grayson Cousins, Mrs. Ruth Williams, Mrs. Ida McIvor, Mrs. Dorothy Frederick, Mrs. Gertrude Christofferson, Mrs. Vi Peek, Mrs. Ebba Parkes and Pearl Windle.

Winner of the special "T" was Vi Peek and the special "X" Ebba Parkes. Mrs. Parkes also won the jack-pot (full card) game. The Club Game ("H") went to Percy Honey.

There were a number of drawings for maple syrup as door prizes. Winners were: Mrs. Iva McIvor; Harold Spencer; Herbert Foster; Bruce Bailey, Mrs. Ardell Mason; Mrs. Letitia Cousins; Grayson Cousins; Mrs. Elsie Stanbridge, Orval Quilliams; Will Pettes; Mrs. Vi Peek; Mrs. Mabel Shufelt; Mrs. Doris Smith; Mrs. Tillie Derby; Madame B. Leblanc; Mrs. Enid Bailey. Two jars of syrup were also donated by Eric Foster and these were won by Mrs. Marie Bessette.

A delicious tea of sandwiches, fancy breads and cakes was enjoyed, at which time the president, Grayson Cousins thanked the I.O.O.F. and Buster Crandall and Grant Windle for a most pleasant afternoon.

ASTRO-GRAPH
 Bernice Bede Osol

April 18, 1979

You'll have many opportunities this coming year for making quick gains, but consider partnership arrangements because they could double your luck.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are quick to respond today and you'll have no trouble staying one step ahead of the competition. However, tread lightly when dealing with friends. How to get along with others is one of the sections you'll enjoy in your new Astro-Graph Letter that starts with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Make judgments based on your first reactions today, because you have a tendency to over-analyze things and distort the facts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A friend may offer some tempting diversions today, but you'd better care for your responsibilities first or you could find yourself in hot water.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take advantage of the little breaks in your routine today to on April 9, with an attendance of 62.

At the Game Table the prizes went to Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Todd. Winners in 300 were Goldie Hollenbeck, Chas. Harsell, Mrs. B. Leblanc, Mrs. L. Rogers, Byron Mizener, Nellie Daigle, Marjorie Swett, Gordon Wilkins, Bella Hopkins and Carlton Ladd. Three African Violet plants were given by Carlton Ladd and won as door prizes by Hazel Chapman, John Sanborn and Lucy Cote.

Refreshments were served.

A get-well card was signed by all to send to Orval Quilliams who is in Sherbrooke Hospital.

The group will meet again on April 23rd, at 1:30 p.m.

ABERCORN — On March 29, a special 500 card party was held in the hall, in honour of Mrs. Marie Rose Riel and Mrs. Berthe Thurber, as they are moving to Cowansville in April. There were 49 members and friends present.

500 was played at eleven tables.

Bett and Marie Rose were surprised when each was presented with a gift of a china cup and saucer, and a card, wishing them the best in their new apartment. A special cake was made by Mrs. Laurie Poulin. Bett cut the cake and served each one.

The door prize winner was Victor Boucher, card winners, Berthe Thurber, Mrs. Marguerite Brazeau, Walter Multimore and Ben Reid. The prizes were donated by Mrs. Juliette Dandenault.

Pot luck lunch was served by some of the ladies.

have a little fun. Feeling too tied down will make you fretful.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Do what needs to be done as each job pops up, and your day will run smooth. Excuses that cause delays will create a mess you didn't bargain for.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You can have fun and enjoy yourself today without spending a bundle. Check out prices before you get involved.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're apt to be more generous toward others than toward yourself today. You deserve equal treatment, so don't be hard on yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There is nothing wrong with your ideas today, but your negative attitude might cancel any opportunities you might have to put them to use.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Follow your hunches. Don't let some fast-talking salesman convince you that you need something you don't. Buy only what you desire.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try to keep things on the light side today. If you take work or even play too seriously you'll try too hard and could become pushy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Those things that come naturally are the ones that should be pursued today. Leave the clever, new ideas to the other guy.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Throw out a lot of ideas or possible solutions, but don't actually get involved in another's affairs. You don't need added problems.

Thieves kill three armored truck guards

WATERBURY, Conn. — and an undisclosed amount of cash were left behind, police said. Officials did not say how much the securities were worth.

Earlier reports quoted an investigator, who refused to be identified, as saying between $30 million and $50 million in negotiable securities was taken. Police later confirmed $900,000 cash was taken.

Securities include corporate stocks and bonds, bank certificates of deposit and U.S. treasury notes and bonds. Some negotiable securities are payable to the bearer, which means they can be sold by anyone. Others are registered and bear the name of the owner, whose signature is required to make a sale.

At least two thieves armed with high-powered rifles waited behind the Purolator garage and fired through a garage door after the 4 a.m. EST arrival of an armored truck carrying money from Hartford for delivery to several New York City banks, police said.

Eleven bullet holes were visible in a garage door and another bullet pierced the truck's windshield, officials said. Several window panes were knocked out of a rear door to the garage, behind the truck, and silver change was scattered in the driveway near the door.

Two of the slain guards were in the truck, police said, and the third was on duty at the office.

The largest cash robbery in U.S. history occurred last December when $5 million in U.S. currency and about $800,000 in foreign currency and jewelry was stolen from a Lufthansa Airlines cargo terminal at Kennedy International Airport in New York.

News Briefs

Study: People aren't gay at birth

BOSTON (AP) — In their first major sex study in nine years, Masters and Johnson reported Monday there is no difference in the ability of homosexuals and heterosexuals to reach sexual satisfaction and that persons are not initially homosexual or heterosexual.

"We don't think we are born with a sexual preference. We are born male or female," said William Masters, who added he believes that homosexuality and heterosexuality are learned behavior.

"We can state with real security that there is no difference between homosexuals and heterosexuals in their capacity to achieve orgasm," said Masters, the male half of the pioneering sex-study team.

Masters and his wife, Virginia Johnson, commented at a briefing in Boston before the publication of their new book, called Homosexuality in Perspective.

Tornado curfew violator shot dead

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — A policeman shot and killed a young man who ran when officers enforcing a curfew in this tornado-devastated city ordered him to stop early Monday, authorities said.

Officer Jay Wright fired the shot that hit the man in the back after the victim reached into a pocket, police said. Wright and his partner, John Bailey, said they thought the man was armed.

Police Chief Curtis Harrelson said no weapon was found and that he has ordered an investigation.

The curfew was established after a tornado hit this northern Texas, killing 44 persons and causing more than $200 million damage.

Fishing boat fire under control

HALIFAX (CP) — Fire aboard the Cuban fishing vessel Playa Colorada was reported under control and the crew safe on Monday.

A Canadian fisheries vessel and 12 Cuban and Soviet fishing vessels stood by the Cuban vessel about 300 nautical miles east of St. John's, Nfld.

A spokesman for the search and rescue centre here said the fisheries vessel Cape Rogers was alongside the burning factory vessel and reported that the fire was under control. There were no plans to remove the crew.

Liberian rioting part of coup?

MONROVIA (Reuters) — President William Tolbert said Monday that weekend rioting which left 29 dead in the Liberian capital was part of an attempt to overthrow the government.

Summoning reporters to a cabinet meeting to assure them everything is under control, Tolbert said there were 409 casualties, including 29 killed, in the rioting and looting Saturday.

57 other nuclear mishaps reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least 57 incidents similar in some ways to the atomic accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant in Pennsylvania have occurred at seven other plants built in the U.S. by the same company, reports made public Monday by the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission say.

Unlike the accident at the Three Mile Island plant near Harrisburg, Pa., none of the other 57 incidents caused any serious damage to reactor cores, the reports say.

Rhodesian poll starts today

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Five days of voting began today in Rhodesia's first majority-rule election, already marred by guerrilla attacks on polling booths, a fuel storage depot and a Salisbury bus station.

The Rhodesian armed forces have mounted their biggest operation to prevent Patriotic Front nationalist guerrillas from disrupting the voting, considered in Salisbury to be the key to international recognition and the lifting of trade sanctions.

Anti-nukes demonstrate in Britain

ALDERMASTON, England (AP) — Two hundred anti-nuclear protesters, including 12 Japanese Buddhist monks and nuns, demonstrated Monday outside the gates of the British Atomic Weapons Research Institute here.

Thousands once walked in the annual march started in the 1960s by the British Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament (CND).

But in the low-key manner of recent years, the protesters Monday walked only about 20 kilometres to the southwest centre of Reading, and not the 88 kilometres to London of the initial marches.

For the Japanese monks, the protest was the start of a 800-kilometre, six-week march to the Polaris nuclear submarine base at Faslane, near Glasgow.

The monks, based at a monastery in Buckinghamshire County, west of London, hope to be joined at a June 2 demonstration at Faslane by thousands of CND supporters and survivors from the atomic blasts that destroyed the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945.

Canadian military aids victims

OTTAWA (CP) — An armed forces medical team is making regular field visits throughout the volcano-stricken Caribbean island of St. Vincent, an armed forces spokesman said Monday.

The 13-member team, which left Ottawa on Sunday, arrived in St. Vincent on Monday in response to a request from Milton Cato, St. Vincent's president.

The Hercules transport aircraft, which flew the team from Canada, remains in the region to make twice daily supply flights to St. Vincent from nearby St. Lucia.

Off-duty guard killed in Ulster

CLOGHER, Northern Ireland (AP) — Two gunmen shot and killed an off-duty prison officer Monday as he walked from a church hand-in-hand with his three-year-old daughter minutes after his sister's wedding.

Guerrillas of the mainly Roman Catholic Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) later claimed responsibility for the slaying in a message to newspapers containing a special IRA codeword.

Uganda works to restore order

KAMPALA (AP) — A British diplomat blew three years of dust off a guest book at the high commissioner's office and prepared to resume business Monday while Uganda's new administrators worked to restore order to the looted, battered capital.

There was no word on the whereabouts of ousted dictator Idi Amin, last reported Saturday in his native northern Uganda near the Sudanese border.

Soviets plan nuclear tests

TOKYO (Reuters) — The Soviet Union plans to test-fire a variety of weapons in the northern Pacific beginning Wednesday, the Japanese Maritime Safety Agency reported Monday.

The agency said fishing boats and other vessels have been warned to stay clear of five zones, reported to be near the Kamchatka Peninsula.

The report gave no details of the planned exercises, such as the types of weapons to be used.

Mississippi flooding grows worse

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Hundreds more persons fled their homes today as rising floodwaters breached barriers set up to hold back the rain-swollen Pearl River.

President Carter designated the state a disaster area Monday, making 25 Mississippi counties and thousands of flood victims eligible for federal assistance.

Jackson city officials estimate 17,200 persons have been evacuated from their homes since Friday.

However, the National Weather Service said the river's record rise slowed early today, standing at 13 metres — nearly eight metres above flood level.

Officials expect the flood to reach its peak later today. But they say the water, which is roof deep on the city's northeast side, probably will not subside for several days.

FOUR DEATHS REPORTED

At least four deaths have been caused by the flooding, authorities said.

Pulitzer prizes announced

NEW YORK (AP) — The Point Reyes (Calif.) Light, a weekly newspaper with one fulltime reporter and a circulation of 2,700, won the 1979 Pulitzer Prize for public service Monday for its investigation of Synanon, the controversial West Coast drug and alcohol rehabilitation centre.

The Philadelphia Inquirer won a fifth consecutive Pulitzer — for the international reporting of Richard Ben Cramer from the Middle East. It was one of three Pennsylvania newspapers to win a 1979 award.

For the third time in 37 years, the Pulitzer Prize for editorial cartooning went to Herbert Block, better known as Herblock, of the Washington Post.

In the arts, John Cheever's collection of 61 short stories written since 1945 and entitled The Stories of John Cheever, won the prize for fiction. The drama prize went to Sam Shepard for his play Buried Child.

Maverick union local ordered back

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The U.S. Teamsters leadership on Monday ordered a defiant western Pennsylvania local to end its unauthorized strike against trucking firms that ship steel.

The order came the same day Local 800 officials endorsed the strike by their 1,600 members.

Similar wildcat strikes are under way in Gary, Ind., Detroit and Cleveland, said Mel Packer of the Teamsters for a Democratic Union.

Scottish train wreck claims six

PAISLEY, Scotland (Reuters) — At least six persons died when two passenger trains collided head-on Monday night in this community just west of Glasgow.

Rescuers cutting through wreckage said today the number of casualties might still rise and the final death toll will not be known for some time.

One of the trains was carrying about 200 Easter holidaymakers returning home from west coast resorts. The other was packed with homeward bound commuters.

Evert to marry fellow star Lloyd

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Chris Evert, the tennis star, will marry John Lloyd, a British tennis player, on Tuesday at St. Anthony's Catholic Church, not far from the Evert home.

Miss Evert, 24, was engaged to tennis pro Jimmy Connors for almost a year in 1973-74 and they saw each other frequently after that. But the romance fizzled and Connors confirmed last month that he had secretly married a former Playboy model last fall.

Lloyd, also 24, is a professional tennis player ranked far below Connors and Miss Evert. Last weekend, he said he had been attracted to Miss Evert for five or six years before they were introduced by a friend at Wimbledon last summer.

Chinese explain fighter intrusion

PEKING (CP) — China admitted today that a Chinese air force plane crashed inside Vietnam on Sunday but claimed it had strayed off course because of technical trouble.

A statement, read by a foreign ministry spokesman, rejected an earlier Vietnamese protest over the affair as "unjustified slander."

Metis end office occupation

WINNIPEG (CP) — A jubilant group of Metis demonstrators trooped out of a federal employment office Monday night, ending a week-long occupation aimed at securing longterm job programs.

The peaceful protest ended after the demonstrators were told that Federal Employment Minister Bud Cullen had agreed to a number of their proposals to alleviate unemployment among Metis.

Treaty protesters claim responsibility

BEIRUT (AP) — A group protesting the Egyptian-Israeli peace agreement asserted responsibility Monday for an explosion that wrecked the main entrance to U.S.-owned John F. Kennedy Culture Centre in Beirut.

"This is our second blow against American targets and interests. More blows are to come," said an anonymous caller who telephoned newspapers. He claimed the Arab People organization set the explosives that blew up early Monday, causing heavy damage but no casualties.

EPA orders Pontiac recall

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Motors Corp. has been ordered to recall nearly 430,000 Pontiac autos to repair defective exhaust emission systems, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency announced Monday.

The recall order affects model years 1975 through 1978, including Catalina, Bonneville, Firebird, Le Mans and Grand Prix models, the agency said.

The agency said the defect stemmed from a poorly brazed emission system part that can break under normal use. The same part was responsible for the recall of nearly one million Ford and American Motors cars in 1978.

Radar traps questioned

MIAMI (AP) — Police radar units can clock the wrong targets and have even produced readings of up to 128 kmh by mistakenly measuring a car's air conditioning fan, a scientist testified Monday.

"In many cases that reading on the 'gun' doesn't mean a thing," said physicist William Stern, a New York electronics consultant and the first witness in a hearing on the use of radar speed traps.

Public defenders and private lawyer's representing 27 motorists accused of speeding began their assault on one of the most cherished tools of law enforcement in the hearing convened by Dade County Judge Alfred Nesbitt.

New violence imminent in Iran?

TEHRAN (AP) — Iran's fledgling Islamic republic appears headed for new violence with rival political groups on a collision course and the country's unemployed confronting a provisional government unable to supply jobs.

The victory over Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his supporters is little more than two months old. But political differences, partially submerged during the upheaval and euphoric aftermath of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolution, have emerged.

Obituary

DAVID JARVIS GRIEVE
of Beebe

Mr. David Jarvis Grieve passed away in the New Glasgow, N.S. Hospital on March 31, 1979, where he was visiting his daughter.

The funeral service was held at the Cass Funeral Home, Stanstead, on April 3 at 2 p.m. Pastor L. Picard of Grace Chapel in Sherbrooke spoke words of comfort to the sorrowing family and many friends.

Bearers were Robert Elliott, Harold Taylor, Allan Sheldon, George Coburn, Sidney Young and Leo Groleau.

Spring interment will be in Woodside Cemetery, Beebe.

In lieu of flowers, donations were made to the Gideon Bible Society as memorials.

The deceased was born April 6, 1903, in Aberdeen, Scotland, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Grieve, coming to Canada in 1911, as a young lad. The family settled in Beebe and were respected residents during their life time.

He was united in marriage to Jeannie Murchie of Rock Island on September 1st, 1930. Three daughters and a son were the family members.

He was a blacksmith by trade, working for many years in the granite industry here and in Barre, Vt., before entering the Butterfields division of Litton Industries at Rock Island, where he remained until retirement.

The deceased was very fond of music, playing the bagpipes at home and on special occasions he was asked to play, he was also a member of the Wesley United Church choir for several years.

For several years, David was a member of Granite Lodge, IOOF until it disbanded.

Following the death of his wife in January, 1968, he spent much time with his children and grandchildren, returning to his home here for visits.

The deceased was predeceased by a brother, John in Aberdeen, Scotland, and a sister, Mrs. Annie Couture in Longueuil.

Survivors include his children — Mrs. Frances Sutherland, Alma, N.S., David Grieve, Toronto, Ont., Mrs. Shirley Parsons, Oshawa, Ont., Mrs. Ella Margaret Nichol, Lennoxville, a daughter-in-law, Marilyn and a niece, Mrs. Leo Groleau of Stanstead, ten grandchildren and a host of friends.

Those attending the funeral were from Alma, N.S., Oshawa and Toronto, Ont., Lennoxville, Montreal, Sherbrooke, Ottawa, Ont., Ayer's Cliff, Derby Line, Vt., and the local area.

Following the service, afternoon tea was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Young in Stanstead, thus enabling friends to have an opportunity to visit the Grieve children.

Officials dismiss half of alleged election violations

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials enforcing the new election spending-and-advertising laws have dismissed half of 18 alleged violations, although some were considered illegal. So far, no one has been prosecuted for infractions of the laws governing the May 22 federal election campaign.

Joseph Gorman, the commissioner of election expenses responsible for enforcement, refuses to describe his attitude as lenient, preferring to say he does not have a get-tough approach. Ignorance of the law or confusion about the rules "is certainly one of the factors that's taken into account.

We're dealing here with a new piece of legislation." In most cases so far, violators got off the hook after claiming they did not know or understand the law or that they found out about the rules too late. Others had excuses for their apparent violations and promised to follow the regulations in the future.

"Some people realized what they were doing was not legal and they tried to stop it," Gorman said in a recent interview. In most of the cases already dismissed, it was too late to stop the infractions.

In the majority of the 18 cases, including the nine already dismissed, newspapers had published partisan advertisements that are supposed to be banned under the Canada Elections Act until April 22.

NAMES BANNED
Even after that date, local candidates are not supposed to be named in ads, even for such events as all-candidates meetings, says Roger Dube, director of election financing responsible for interpreting the law.

Included in the dismissed cases was a trade union promoting in a pamphlet a political party, presumably the New Democratic Party, whose campaign is formally backed by the Canadian Labor Congress. That was considered legal, Gorman said.

In another case, an enumerator in Calgary quit halfway through his job and refused to turn over the voters' list. Gorman said the RCMP persuaded the person to relinquish the list and no further action was taken.

In one dismissed case, Progressive Conservative MP David Crombie, campaigning for re-election in Toronto, wrote a column for the Toronto Sun. Gorman said he believed it was a breach of the law but was a genuine mistake so no action was taken.

Material on each incident gathered by Gorman and his investigators is examined by two lawyers on his staff before any final decision on how to dispose of a case is made.

Amex hardest hit by Ottawa heist

OTTAWA (CP) — American Express appeared to be the main victim of a multi-million-dollar postal heist early Sunday and there was uncertainty 48 hours later just how much, and what, had been stolen.

The police estimate was that perhaps $4 million in American Express travellers cheques, part of a $15 million shipment, was taken by thieves from an unguarded postal terminal here.

The only person in the three-storey building, which has floors the size of football fields, was a 56-year-old commissionaire stationed at the front door. He said a two-year-old could have robbed the terminal.

The thieves apparently parked a Scout camper truck bearing Quebec licence plates at a rear door, broke a window to open the door, then went to the third-floor registered mail room where they rummaged through bags and cartons.

When the theft was discovered Sunday morning, passports, drugs and jewelry were littered about the floor, along with about 50 empty cartons that had contained the traveller's cheques with face values of $10 to $1,000.

It took hours for police to locate an American Express official from Montreal. Post office spokesman David Carter said the official then "came in and left," leaving police and post office to try to figure out which cheques had been shipped and which had been stolen.

LIKE TO KNOW

"We would like to know exactly what was taken," Carter said of the theft.

"We don't have a solid figure," a detective said. "We do not have a full listing of what was stolen," the American Express New York office said.

Carter said about half the $15 million shipment had been moved to banks across the country before the theft occurred.

"What was left was what should have gone," Deputy Postmaster-General J.C. Corkery said he believed "it was a planned job aimed at those American Express cheques."

The 10-year-old terminal has about 1,200 employees. Officials from the Royal Canadian Mint and the passport office were checking shipments against possible losses. However, Ed Roworth of Toronto, another postal spokesman, said it appeared the thieves had simply ripped open and discarded envelopes containing passports.

Officials indicated it may be days before losses are tallied.

Hungarian retains chess tourney lead

MONTREAL (CP) — Lajos Portisch of Hungary retained his lead Monday in the Man and His World Challenge Cup chess tournament fighting world champion Anatoly Karpov of the U.S.S.R. to a draw in 17 moves in the fifth round.

Portisch now has four points, based on a scoring system of one point for a win and a halfpoint for a draw.

Karpov moved to one-half point behind the leader. Karpov, who agreed Monday to draw a match with Bent Larsen of Denmark which had been adjourned from Saturday's third round, is tied for second place at 3½ points with his Soviet countryman Mikhail Tal, who dynamited Larsen's game for a fifth-round win Monday.

West German grandmaster Robert Huebner moved into fourth place with three points, besting Lubomir Kavalek of the United States on Monday.

Former Bar officer dies

MONTREAL (CP) — Funeral services will be held Wednesday for Claude Boisvert, former disciplinary officer of the Quebec Bar Association, who died last Friday at age 42.

Boisvert, married with four children, had served as the Bar's disciplinary officer — the French term is "syndic" — for eight years. In 1971, he was named a legal observer to safeguard the rights of FLQ member Paul Rose at his trial on charges of murdering and kidnapping former Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte.

Beauty salon victim of weird attack

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal police didn't know quite what to think when they answered a call at a beauty salon that had been broken into and discovered all the wigs had been given crew cuts.

And they were equally baffled when several young girls had their long tresses cut by a man who did not harm them otherwise.

A police spokesman said Monday they may have arrested the culprit during the weekend. An 18-year-old man faces charges on 66 counts of breaking and entering, 19 counts of possession of stolen goods, and one count of assault — for cutting a little girl's hair.

Dollar hits new 1979 mark

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian dollar edged up fractionally against its U.S. counterpart Monday to another 1979 high after a quiet business day on world currency markets.

The Canadian dollar closed at 87.38 cents U.S. Monday after dipping to a noon low of 87.23. Thursday's close was 87.31 cents U.S.

Bank traders said Easter Monday was a relatively slow day for the Canadian currency as trading picked up marginally after the holiday weekend and many businesses were still inactive.

QUAKE

their misery. RAIN HAMPERS RESCUE
The rain, which intensified during the morning, turned muddy country lanes into impassable tracks and hampered rescue workers and relief aid.

Special teams with life-detecting equipment and trained dogs searched for survivors in the ruins of coastal towns.

Blazo Orlandic, the mayor of the port town of Bar, a major cross-point of sea and rail communications, said Monday night that an unknown number of persons are believed still alive under the debris of a five-storey, 100-room, hotel there.

In Athens, officials reported a moderately strong tremor in northern Greece today, but police said they knew of no casualties or damage.

The death toll in Yugoslavia is expected to rise further as rescuers using army helicopters reach devastated remote mountain villages. The government said Monday night it is the country's worst earthquake in terms of the size of the area affected. MIGHT HAVE BEEN WORSE

But because much of the area affected is mountainous and uninhabited, the number of casualties was not as high as it might have been.

However, scores of villages were levelled and Yugoslav Vice-President Fadilj Hodza, who flew over the stricken area in a helicopter, described the scene as "absolutely horrible."

Local authorities issued an urgent appeal for 20,000 tents. Despite a massive relief operation, only several hundred have arrived so far because many roads were destroyed in the quake.

Even persons whose homes survived relatively intact fear to sleep indoors.

More than 200 aftershocks have been detected since the first major quake.

In places it even changed the geography of this coastal resort region, sending slices of coastline tumbling into the sea.

The government, which has ordered the release of emergency funds for the relief operations, said many historical monuments have been destroyed.

It said the region's economy, including a hitherto booming tourist trade, will be paralysed for a long period.

No casualties were reported among the 2,000 foreign visitors in the area.

lacking." He added that no Conservative MP "took the bait" except Jack Horner.

Conservative candidate for Alberta's Crowfoot riding, Arnold Malone, who represented Battle River before his riding was redistributed, said Monday he was not offered a job by the government.

Ray Hnatyshyn, Conservative candidate in Saskatoon West, said he has not been offered a job either. He is running for reelection in a riding the Liberals hope to take with C. M. Williams, a University of Saskatchewan livestock marketing specialist.

"I hear these things from time to time," said Hnatyshyn, first elected to Parliament in 1974. "I think they've got a system where if you're friendly they'll come and talk to you."

Hnatyshyn said he is too unfriendly to the governing Liberals to be considered for a job offer, adding "I'd rather starve."

clash. The Israeli command has reported a total of 17 Palestinian infiltrators killed since the beginning of the year, including three on Jan. 3 and four on March 10. The military command also announced on April 2 that the navy intercepted a Palestinian ship in the Mediterranean and arrested six guerrillas who admitted they were preparing to land for a raid.

There was no immediate report from the military command or from Palestinian headquarters in Beirut identifying which Palestinian organization sent the guerrillas into Israel Monday.

Meanwhile, Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan touched off a political storm in Israel when he told a group of Jewish settlers in the occupied West Bank that if Israel wants peace with Syria, it will have to give up the Golan Heights, which it took from Syria in the 1967 war.

Dayan denied that he was advocating evacuation of the strategic plateau, on which Israel has established about 25 Jewish settlements.
