45 ARE KILLED IN PLANE CRASH NEAR BOMBAY

World News In Brief

London, July 12.—(P)—The British iron and steel industry, sent its production to the highest level in history for the first six months of this year. A total production of 7,949,000 tons was a new record and was 384,000 tons more than the first half of last year.

Milan, Italy, July 12.—(P)—The Communist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions has appealed to workers to set up committees in the United States, Britain and other countries where it has been blackballed, it was learned last night. W.F.T.U. sources disclosed an appeal they said was sent out by the second congress of the Federation, which closed Sunday.

Munich, July 12.—(Reuters)—A German denazification appeal court yesterday sent Max Amann, former president of the Nazi Press Association, to a labor camp for 10 years, as a "major offender." All his property was confiscated. He was found guilty of "enslaving the German press."

Montreal, July 12.—(P)—The centenary of the birth of Sir William Osler will be formally celebrated today by members of the teaching staff of the faculty of medicine of McGill University.

Formal celebration of the birth of the Ontario-born physician and teacher of medicine will take place Oct. 6th during McGill's founder's day festivities.

Sir William was born at Bond Head, Ont., in 1849 and died in 1919. He received his medical training at McGill University and graduated in 1872.

Tokyo, July 12.—(P)—A light earthquake was felt at 3:16 a.m. today (11:16 p.m. EDT Monday) in the extreme south of Japan, the Tokyo meteorological observatory announced. Reports indicated the epicentre was in the inland sea, about 30 miles south of Hiroshima. There was no damage.

Chicago, July 12.—(P)—Dr. Albert Schweitzer, who has ministered to the natives of an African missionary settlement for 36 years, yesterday received an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University of Chicago.

More than 2,500 persons attended the ceremony in Rockefeller Chapel.

President Ernest C. Colwell conferred the degree on the 74-year-old doctor who is visiting the United States for the first time.

Dr. Schweitzer, a world-renowned philosopher, humanitarian, and organist, is considered the foremost authority on the music of Bach.

More London Dockers Idle Despite State Of Emergency

London, July 12.—(P)—More London dockers ceased work today as 2,300 troops and sailors moved in to unload food ships under the official "state of emergency" which came into effect at midnight last night.

Several hundred men at one group of docks, where there was a partial resumption yesterday, decided after a dock meeting this morning to stop work again.

While troops continued unloading of 15 food ships, started yesterday, another 12 were being worked by Port of London Authority dockers.

No call for labor was made this morning at the Royal group of docks, where thousands of men gathered in the sunshine, discussing the government's steps to maintain vital services under the emergency regulations.

Now in its 16th day, the stoppage involved more than 10,000 men, with 112 ships idle.

Canadian seamen again paraded with placards saying "on strike to defend trade unionism" and "the argument is black."

Dockers claimed they had been "locked out" for refusing to discharge the Canadian ships Beaverbrae and Argonaut.

Men of their crews, belonging to the Canadian Seamen's Union, ceased work in a dispute with Canadian shipowners involving wages and recognition of a rival organization, the Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.).

Jobless In U.S.A. Are Increasing

By RADAR WINGET

New York, July 12.—(P)—Unemployment figures, like everything else, are reflecting the return to a normal buyers' market in the United States.

But unemployment, while on the increase recently, still is only slightly above average when viewed in the perspective of the last 100 years.

However, that small comfort to the 3,778,000 persons in the United States pounding the pavements today looking for work. And it is little help to a community paralyzed when its biggest industry shuts down.

But the figures show that, even if the United States maintains a fairly prosperous economy with "full employment" in coming years, it can expect at least an average minimum unemployment of between 3,000,000 and 3,500,000.

That conclusion is based on a study by the Twentieth Century Fund, which found that five per cent of the labor force under normal conditions are looking for work at any given time. The fund is a non-profit foundation conducting research on current economic problems.

Labor organizations and various federal government economists have predicted a possible rise in unemployment to around 5,000,000 this winter. That's above the five per cent line and gets into the emergency zone.

President Truman, in his economic report to Congress yesterday, said "there is nothing healthy about more unemployment." He added that "unemployment has not risen to the dangerous levels which would call for all-out emergency measures."

"While unemployment is not now at a very high level for the country as a whole," President Truman said, "there are many localities and even some states where it is serious. These pools of heavy unemployment need to be treated before they spread, and the responsibility is in part national."

At all times, throughout the entire history of the United States, there always has been a shifting number of people looking for work at a given instant — migratory workers, students, housewives, seasonal workers, men on strike, workers on unpaid vacations and those not capable of holding jobs.

It would be impossible to have zero unemployment.

Constellation Aircraft Piles Into Rocky Hilltop—Reporters Were Returning Home From Tour of Indonesia.

Bombay July 12.—(CP)—A Royal Dutch Airlines (K.L.M.) plane carrying 45 persons crashed today on a rocky hilltop 20 miles north of Bombay. All aboard the Constellation were reported killed.

(At The Hague, the Royal Dutch Airlines office said that only 44 persons were aboard the Constellation.)

The plane was carrying 14 American newspaper men and women.

The plane crashed in a driving rainstorm while approaching the Santa Cruz airfield, 15 miles north of Bombay. It hit a hill near Chatkopar, on the opposite side of the 30-mile-long island from Santa Cruz.

Search parties reported the wreckage was strewn over a two-mile area some two miles above sea level and that the wreckage was partly charred.

The newspaper reporters aboard the plane were returning from a tour of Indonesia sponsored by the Netherlands government.

The accident was said to be the worst in India's aviation history. The Constellation was said to have circled the vicinity of Santa Cruz airfield for about two hours. But owing to poor visibility it could not locate the airport.

It seemed to have come down to about 400 feet, searching for a landing place when it crashed. The plane left Batavia, Java, July 10. The newspaper reporters had been entertained last night in New Delhi by American ambassadors.

18 KILLED
Agadir, French Morocco, July 12.—(P)—A French military plane crashed here last Saturday, killing 18 persons, Agence France-Presse reported.

The wreckage of a Junkers 52, flying from Agadir to Dakar with 12 passengers and six crew members, was found yesterday on a beach south of here. It had plunged into the sea just offshore.

der Loy Henderson. They left New Delhi for Santa Cruz early today. The plane was scheduled to arrive in the Netherlands tomorrow.

At the New Delhi reception last night, some newspaper men said they had made the request that the plane be allowed to land in India in order to avoid the long overwater hop to the island of Mauritius.

While in New Delhi, the correspondents had the opportunity of interviewing Prime Minister Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.

Dutch planes had not been allowed to land in India since the conflict between the Netherlands government and the Indonesian republic, but a special request from the correspondents that the restriction be relaxed was approved by Nehru.

Eye-witnesses said the plane crashed at 11:30 a.m. local time. Aviation authorities in Bombay said evidence showed that the left wing-tip of the plane brushed against the hillside tilting the machine which then swung violently and crashed, breaking in two.

A reporter on the spot said the plane had been located on the opposite side of the hill which made it appear that the plane crashed almost at the peak and had then broken in two.

About 200 tall forest trees in a rough circle around the wreckage were charred by the blazing plane. A stretcher bearer who returned to Ghatkopar said one woman passenger was alive and groaning when the first rescue party reached the spot. But almost immediately she collapsed and died.

The wreckage blazed for 1½ hours despite the downpour of the heavy monsoon rains.

The last message from the ill-fated Constellation asked Santa Cruz airport control for clearance to land. The plane was given the "clear" signal but no reply was received from the aircraft.

A revised list of the newspaper correspondents aboard the plane was issued in New Delhi. They were: Charles Gracie, Christian Science Monitor.

William Newton, Scripps Howard Newspaper Alliance.

Where One Was Killed, Three Were Injured

These pictures were taken yesterday on the scene of an accident near Magog in which one man was killed and three others were injured when a beer truck crashed into a railway hand car. The man who lost his life was H. J. Gagnon, of Sherbrooke. The top picture shows the crowd gathered around the truck, while the lower picture shows the hand car on which Mr. Gagnon and the three injured men were riding. (Story on page three.)

Likelihood Of Steel Strike Grows

Pittsburgh, July 12.—(P)—President Philip Murray of the C. I.O. stood ready today to flash a strike order to 500,000 C.I.O. affiliated United Steelworkers in the United States.

Murray said last night he will recommend the strike start this week-end.

His recommendations are expected to be approved speedily by the steelworkers' 170-man wage-policy committee. It scheduled a meeting here today.

Murray, after a fruitless 2½ hour conference at Washington with Cyrus S. Ching, federal conciliation director, said contract negotiations with United States Steel Corporation and other basic steel producers are "hopelessly deadlocked."

The tight-lipped Scotsman hinted only Presidential intervention could avert the walkout.

Ching later said he had reported to the White House without making any recommendation as to what action should be taken.

The mediator did not say what reaction he obtained from presidential assistant John R. Steelman, to whom he made his report. There was some belief, however, any White House action might come before the steelworkers' policy committee votes on Murray's strike recommendation.

President Truman has the power to declare the proposed strike a danger to the country's safety and welfare. He could appoint a fact-finding board and a walk-out could be averted for 60 days. Steel Magazine says some trade

Attendance At Stampede Sets Record

Calgary, July 12.—(P)—The world's top cowboys tightened saddle cinches and hitched up their pants today to recover prizes lost at the record-shattering opening day yesterday of the famed Calgary Stampede.

The cowpokes took a double-barreled beating yesterday before an official paid attendance of 70,951 western fans—largest opening day attendance in the history of the colorful western show.

First Mayor Hiram E. (Buck) Callum and his carouse, eye-sizzling "goodwill" contingent from Toronto grabbed the limelight from the western cowhands. Then wildly bucking broncos and steers pitched the would-be saddle stickers into the dust in humiliating fashion.

Mayor Callum—just plain "Buck" to Calgarians young and old—officially opened Canada's wild and woolly show before a jammed exhibition crowd last night.

The crowd attending the opening-day performances numbered almost two-thirds of the total population of some 107,000 in this foothills city.

Quick United States riders took a strange hold on most of the major cowboy events. A busy day was in store for the 250-strong Toronto contingent, including a tour of the city, luncheon, and another visit to the stampede grounds.

N.S. Premier Urges Reconstruction Of Freight Rates Structure In Canada

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Halifax, July 12.—(P)—Transportation policies should make equal opportunity of enterprise across the country, Premier MacDonald of Nova Scotia told the Royal Commission on Transportation today.

The Premier was appearing before the opening Maritime sitting of the Commission, which is investigating Canada's transportation problems. The three-man body under Hon. W. F. A. Tupper is on a three-weeks' swing through the Maritimes after sessions in the west.

Premier MacDonald, in a general statement on Nova Scotia's position on transportation, indicated to the commission that the province was reserving most of its ammunition for later hearings before the commission at Ottawa but did align himself with Alberta in its proposals for freight-rate "equalization."

He also slashed out at the Canadian Pacific Railway for making what he called an "indirect attack" on the Royal Commission in a submission made to the commission some weeks ago.

Mr. MacDonald said he was in "complete dissent" from the views of the C. P. R.

Cutting into the tangled questions of the commission's jurisdiction and of general transportation policy, Premier MacDonald said he agreed with Premier Manning of Alberta when that Premier said be-

U.S. Congress May Reduce Excise Taxes Next Year

By JACK BELL

Washington, July 12.—(P)—The promise of excise tax cuts in 1950—along with new cushions against losses—was held out to United States business today by Congress.

This was one of the first tangible reactions as lawmakers surveyed President Truman's 11-point, beat-the-depression program.

There was evident agreement that only part of it could be put in effect before a pre-labor day adjournment this year. However, a leading Republican, Representative Joe Martin of Massachusetts, said that he agreed with Truman that within a few years the United States can achieve a national output of $300,000,000 a year. This is one-fifth more than the present annual rate.

Chairman Robert Doughton (Dem. N. C.) of the House ways and means committee joined with chairman Walter George (Dem. Ga.) of the Senate finance committee in promising relief from some of the heavy wartime taxes. These have applied to a long range of items from furs to face powder, and including transportation fares and communications.

President Truman asked for repeal of the excises on freight as one of the measures to keep the economy rolling in high gear and head off a threatened business recession.

But George told a reporter any such move now would cost the government $400,000,000 revenue in a period when Truman seems to have resigned himself to in-the-red finances by dropping his demand for any major tax increases.

George said—and Doughton agreed in a separate interview—that if Congress lifts the lid on excises now there might be no stopping power for most of such levies.

The finance committee already has cleared a proposal by Senator Edwin Johnson (Dem. Colo.) to knock-out a long list of these taxes at a revenue loss running up to $725,000,000. Administration leaders are sitting on this move, despite its support by Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, the Democratic national chairman.

Infant Child Is Assaulted

Ottawa, July 12.—(P)—A slight improvement was reported today in the condition of 28-month-old Giselle Lachance, found late yesterday suspended from a rafter in a shed near her home.

The child disappeared from where she was playing at the rear of her home yesterday morning. She was found some three hours later tightly trussed up with a length of heavy fishing line and a man's necktie, and hanging from a low rafter in a nearby shed. Medical examination disclosed the little girl had been criminally assaulted.

She was totally nude when discovered by playmates and portions of her clothing were found later in the yard at the rear of the shed. Her small white, rubber-soled booties and little red socks were picked up in the shed.

Police said they were sure the person responsible for the attack on the child lived somewhere in Giselle's neighborhood in Ottawa's east-central lowtown.

The youngster, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Telesphore Lachance, was found by a seven-year-old neighborhood boy who was led to the shed by his barking dog.

Suffering badly from shock, the infant was taken to hospital by ambulance, and placed at once in an oxygen tent. She later regained consciousness and hospital attendants said she was improving.

Her clothes were found in the shed and scattered behind it.

Canada Will Stage Big Air And Land Scheme In North

By DOUGLAS HOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 12.—(P)—Known by paratroop and airborne assaults, Canada will stage her biggest peacetime land-air defence exercise since 1945, it was announced today. The area includes the first 50 miles of the Alaska highway.

From Aug. 4 to 7, more than 1,000 men will be thrown into assault and defence manoeuvres designed to test plans for guarding the country.

They will include:
1. The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, emerging in its new role as an airborne fighting battalion. The Pats are the first of Canada's three regular force infantry battalions to complete paratroop and glider training to fit them for a place in the airborne brigade.

2. Elements of six auxiliary and regular R.C.A.F. squadrons of fighters, bombers and transport planes.

The men involved would be key figures in defence against any raid upon Canadian territory in the foreseeable future.

The exercise will be launched from an operational base at Grande Prairie, Alta., about 250 air miles northwest of Edmonton. It will embrace a clash for air superiority, a paratroop and airtransported assault on Fort St. John, B. C., a glider attack on the Peace River bridge and final airborne capture of Dawson Creek, B. C. The R.C.A.F. will play both a supporting and opposition role.

Dawson Creek, starting point of the Alaska highway, is some 70 miles northwest of Grande Prairie. Fort St. John is another 50 miles along the highway and the bridge lies between Fort St. John and Dawson Creek.

Known as Exercise Eagle, the manoeuvres will be jointly directed by Maj.-Gen. M. H. S. Penhale, general officer commanding the army's western command, and Air Vice-Marshal Hugh Campbell, air officer commanding northwest air command.

Reporters will be flown to the area to cover the operation but present plans do not call for any foreign military observers. Unpublished will judge results and discuss them when the operation is over.

In addition to the flying infantrymen and air crews, the forces will test vehicles, equipment, operational and administrative staffs and R.C.A.F. ground crews.

Photo reconnaissance planes will probe defences of the battle area Aug. 5 while fighter planes duel for air supremacy. The planes will come from auxiliary squadrons in Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Vancouver and Edmonton. With radar aid,

"Now wasn't that silly?" Miss Cheesecake said.

It certainly was. Twenty-two-year-old Pat Hall won the title of the girl with "the world's most beautiful legs" in a California contest a year ago.

Since then her conversation stopping figure has decorated so many magazine covers, billboards and newspaper pages that she's dizzy just trying to keep track of herself.

But what happened to Pat in the movies is a sad, sad story. She signed a contract at Universal-International, stuffed a couple of those handkerchief size Franch bathing suits into her purse and reported for a career of giving male popcorn munchers a treat.

So what happens? So the studio puts her in a Tex Williams western and Pat comes out on the screen wearing a long gingham dress, a big floppy hat and saying, "They went thataway."

She wouldn't even let me show an ankle," Pat said sadly. "They even made me wear gloves."

Then there was another western in calico and a couple of bit roles. Pat played a manicurist in "Yes Sir, That's My Baby" and that was the closest she came to displaying the "world's most beautiful legs" in front of a movie camera.

Whistle Stop

She crossed 'em and while the camera panned in for a better look the male members of the crew let out wolf whistles that were heard clear up in front office.

But the boys in the front office were deaf, apparently, because the very next day they refused to pick up Pat's option. Pat picked up the French bathing suits, put them back in her purse and went back to modeling, where she's doing very well. But she still can't figure out what happened.

"I guess," she said, "the studio was too busy looking at figures in books—they were having an economy wave—to look at mine."

It would have been much more interesting. After all, a shapely pair of legs started Marlene Dietrich into the big income brackets. I remember when Marlene was in her first Hollywood movie and couldn't play her big dramatic scene because she had skinned her knee.

Of course, Hollywood wasn't worried about figures in books in those days.

But if the UI front office didn't look at Pat, the studio publicity boys did. And they made the most of her figure and her legs.

They gave Pat a campaign that most any movie did would trade her false eyelashes for.

They took great big gorgeous bathing-suit pictures of Pat as Miss Beautiful Feet, Miss Pin Up and Miss Almost Everything. They also had her proclaimed grand marshal of a rodeo at the desert city of 29 Palms.

Wants Screen Career

But most of all Pat wanted to be Miss Movie Star and that title the UI publicity boys couldn't arrange. But maybe she'll win it yet.

"I'm studying between model jobs," she says. "That's why I came to Hollywood. I want a film career."

Pat came to movietown from her home town of Aberdeen, Wash. She was an unknown model until she won that beautiful leg title.

That opened the doors to the studios and more profitable modeling jobs. But the "movie role" she received as part of the lot for winning the contest was a laugh.

As she tells it: "It was only a three-minute bit in a quickie. It was a dance hall scene. I danced around the floor twice with the camera eight miles away. A man handed me a check for $55 and said, 'That will be all, Miss Hall.'"

"Then a still cameraman asked me to put on a bathing suit and I spent the rest of the day posing for pin-up pictures. My dancing scene landed on the cutting room floor. I'm still getting fan mail from the pin-up pictures."

One fellow thought Pat gave a "wonderful" performance in "Mu and Pat Kettle."

"Why," blushed Pat, "I wasn't even in the picture."

There's a deal cooking for Glenn Ford and Ava Gardner to co-star in "The White Tower." It was a hit novel a few years back.

TODAY WE LIVE IN A GREATER CANADA

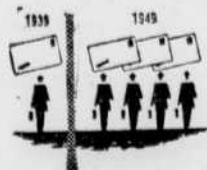

New Signs in the Sky...

A distant hum and a flashing streak in the outer sky announce another exciting Canadian achievement—a new jet plane designed and built by Canadians—one more example of the meteoric advances made by Canadian skills and manufacturing abilities:

In Canada, too, giant airliners, which have won international recognition, are now being built for the world's air routes of today and tomorrow.

Today our production—both in extent and variety—has attained heights undreamt of even ten years ago, creating new opportunities in every field of activity for the talents and enterprise of young Canadians.

One of a series presented by

to promote a fuller realization by Canadians of Canada's present greatness

Increase of air traffic: today Canada's commercial aircraft carry more than four times the number of passengers and three times the amount of mail they did in 1939.

"Countless New Opportunities..."

"I sometimes find it hard to realize the extent and rapidity of our plant's growth. It has all been based, of course, upon the tremendous expansion of the Canadian industry in general, which has created countless new opportunities in every field of activity for the energy and enthusiasm of young Canadians," says HARRY J. SEAL of Kitchener.

The development of Schl Engineering is a typical Canadian success story. Only 14 years ago, Mr. Schl, with one assistant, began operating a small tool and die shop in Kitchener. Its expansion has been spectacular, with new lines of production added, new departments established and new plants built. Today the company, with 90 employees, is fast becoming one of the leading metal producing concerns in the country.

Members of the Sherbrooke Baseball Club have consented to spend some time with the youngsters teaching them the fundamentals of baseball. Already two hardball teams are operating at the park and they have issued a challenge to any team in the district. So far one challenge has been received from Rolfe Badger's team in North Hatley. This game is expected to be played during the next week.

Each week the Optimist Club purchases 100 tickets which are distributed without charge to the boys, permitting them to attend the baseball games.

Excursions to the lake will take place every second week and the boys will be able to spend the day swimming.

This project, sponsored by the Optimist Club, is financed by profits accruing from raffles. On Saturday next the club will sponsor its Peanut Day. Profits from this venture will be devoted to boys' work in Sherbrooke.

Among those attending the opening of Boys' Town were: Alderman S. Rousseau, Redmond Hayes, K.C., representing Hon. J. S. Bourque, Chief Edouard Morneau, Mr. Tardif, superintendent of the parks and playgrounds, M. Belec, president of the Optimist Club, Henry Ward, secretary of the club, Henry Crocheteire, chairman of boys' work, Fred Bean, Phil Barbeau, Vic Jarjour, Gilles Triganne, Paul Nadeau, Henry Blais and Ivan Boisvert, members of the club.

Through the courtesy of J. H. Bryant Ltd., the lads were treated to soft drinks.

Primary Course Is Dramatized At Boundary

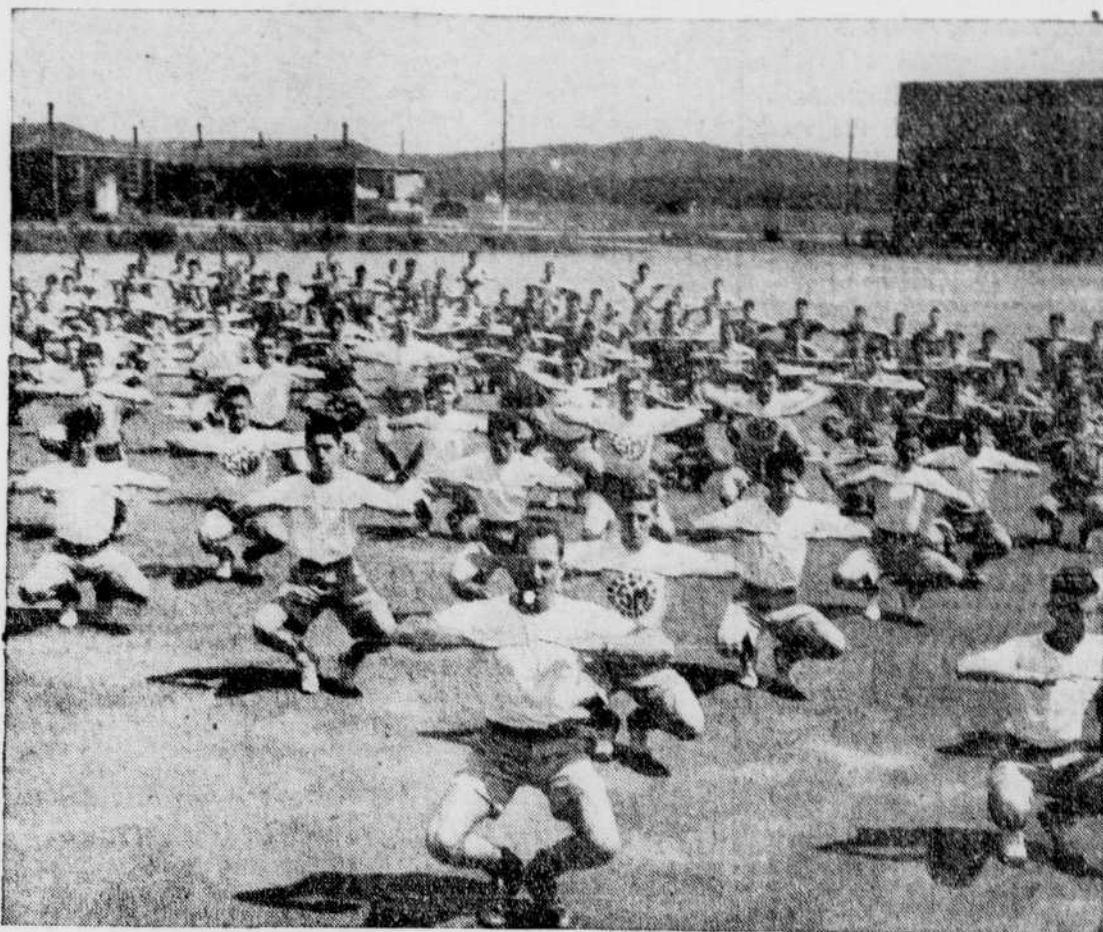

Derby Line, July 12.—The Primary Class of the Community Vacation Church School reached a happy ending to conclude its first week of activities. Mrs. Charles Adam, a teacher, relates that their program included a dramatization of the course, "Child Life In Bible Times."

The dramatization took the form of a rhythmic play. While Mrs. Judd played, the children marched across the sandy desert, as did the Shepherds of old. In similar manner they enacted through motions, "looking ahead for water," "looking for palm trees," "digging the well," "drinking," "dancing and singing," "pitching our tents," "building our fires," "praying at night" and "sleeping."

A campfire story was told as was the story of Abraham, his wife and their son, Isaac. Several of the children made spontaneous responses about how happy they were when a baby brother or sister arrived at their home. Among the songs sung were: "Vermont Anthem," "Brighten the Corner," "Smiles," and "Jesus Loves Me." The class closed with the following prayer: "Dear God, we are thankful for all the fathers and mothers everywhere who love and care for children. Help us to remember how much our own fathers and mothers do for us. Help us to be willing and happy in our homes. Amen."

Those enrolled in the Primary Course are: Mary Lee Lewis, Marilyn Heath, Carolyn Heath, Joyce Watson, Mary Jean Rumery, Cleland Selby, Richard Jones, David Lefoe, Billy Aldrich, Alfred Joseph, Susan French, Georgina Dixon.

One Man Killed, Three Injured In Beer Truck-Hand Car Crash Near Magog

One man was killed and three were critically injured yesterday, when a hand car on which they were riding was struck by a heavily laden beer truck at a railway crossing four miles northwest of Magog on the Montreal highway. The accident occurred about 3.20 p.m.

The dead man is H. J. Gagnon, 50, of Sherbrooke, who was roadmaster of the Canadian Pacific Railway subdivision in Sherbrooke.

Critically injured was Antoine Tremblay, 51, 15 St. John St., Magog, who this morning was fighting for his life. The other two men, less seriously injured, but still in danger, are Edouard Blanchette, of Rock Forest, and Omer Meunier, 24, from Magog.

The driver of the truck, owned by Ernest Audet, was his brother, G. D. Audet, of Megantic. Neither Audet or his helper, Albert Therrien, who was riding with him, was hurt.

All the injured men were employees of the C.P.R. and were admitted to the La Providence Hospital in Magog at 3.45 p.m.

According to Capt. G. Rouleau, of the Magog police, the truck driver saw the light signal warning him of the approach of a railway vehicle, but seeing no train, and thinking he had ample time, he kept going until he collided with the hand car.

After striking the hand car, which was all but demolished, the truck landed out of control, on its side, in the ditch beside the hand car. Both vehicles came to a standstill about thirty feet from the crossing.

At the time of the accident, Mr. Gagnon was on a tour of inspection of the rails in that section. The men with him were attached to the Mount Orford Division of the C.P.R. and were conducting Mr. Gagnon on his tour.

Audet, the truck driver, drives for his brother, Ernest, owner of a beer depot in Megantic, and was en route to Thetford Mines. His truck was only slightly damaged.

The 3.15 train from Montreal to Sherbrooke was delayed until the debris was cleared off the crossing.

Cap. Rouleau praised the actions of an unidentified driver of a Magog Dry Cleaners' truck who unloaded his truck to make room for one of the injured whom he rushed to the hospital. The other two men were taken by ambulance and a

C. Wayne Hall Appointed Associate Professor At Macdonald College

Charles Wayne Hall, supervisor of English in the provincial department of education, and a graduate of Bishop's University and former member of the Sherbrooke High School staff, has been appointed to the School for Teachers at Macdonald College it was announced yesterday, by Dr. F. Cyril James, principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University.

Mr. Hall, in his new capacity of associate professor, will supervise all English courses in the school. He will also give lectures in the faculty of agriculture.

Upon graduation from Bishop's University, Mr. Hall served on the staff of the Sherbrooke High School and then went on to hold Principalships at Coaticook and Richmond. He was appointed supervisor of English for schools in the province 12 years ago.

Aside from the duties which his present position demanded, Mr.

Hall's activities with numerous educational committees extended throughout the Dominion and into the United States. He is a past president of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers and has served on numerous committees within the organization.

One of the most prominent members of the Canadian Teachers Federation, he once served as chairman of its film committee. His activities outside of education in Canada include an active role with the National Council of Teachers of the United States. He has also contributed many valuable and widely read articles in professional journals on methods and programs for English teachers.

Commenting yesterday on Mr. Hall's new appointment, Dr. James said that he "has done much to improve the standards of reading, oral and written language and literature teaching and his influence has been widely felt throughout the teaching profession... he has gained a thorough knowledge of the conditions in our Protestant schools which is probably unequalled."

Announcement of two other appointments to the School for Teachers was also made yesterday. Miss Elizabeth Jaques, staff member of the Redpath Museum at McGill University, has been appointed lecturer in education. John W. Hamilton, of the Welland Vocational and Collegiate School, will also hold a lectureship in education.

Residential building in Canada rose sharply during the first four months of this year with completions and starts both showing substantial gains over the same period last year.

There were 25,100 dwellings completed in the four-month period, an increase of 6,800 units or thirty-seven per cent over the same period of 1948. This gain is due to the high carry-over of houses under construction at the end of 1948. Starts were also made on 16,900 dwelling units in the first four months of the year, an increase of 12.7 per cent over the same period of 1948. The number of units under construction at the end of April was 48,100 compared with 56,500 at January 1.

Ontario led with a total of 18,600 units under construction at the end of April, followed by Quebec with 12,000, British Columbia 6,900, Alberta 4,000, Nova Scotia 2,100, Manitoba 1,900, Saskatchewan 1,600, New Brunswick 800 and Prince Edward Island 100.

The number of dwelling units completed in the first four months of 1949 by regions, figures for the same period of 1948 being in brackets, were: Maritimes 1,573 (773); Quebec, 6,778 (4,865); Ontario, 8,725 (6,806); Prairie Provinces 4,748 (2,817); British Columbia, 3,253 (3,037).

SAVING AND PROSPERITY

The importance of saving to increased production and the national well-being was emphasized in a recent declaration of Fred G. Clark, of the American Economic Foundation, who stated that we get more goods only by getting more tools and that, therefore, the better life in material things comes from more and better tools.

But tools cannot come into being without self-denial for saving and this self-denial will not be practised unless a reward is in prospect. Many of our troubles today flow from the illusion that if the ownership of tools is taken over by the state the results will be beneficial to the majority. If this were true then the tools would produce more and better goods at lower cost under state ownership and management. And if this in turn were true it would be either because under state ownership the workers would devote more energy to the tools or because the supervision of the state would be superior to the planning and supervision of private management.

The chief reason why neither of these propositions is true is that government operation almost invariably turns into monopoly, and that, under monopoly, individual initiative, competition and efficiency disappear. This is true historically as well as logically. The production of coal in Great Britain is the latest demonstration.

To enjoy the highest average well-being we must achieve the greatest production and to achieve the greatest production we must have private ownership of tools and competitive management.

GOVERNMENT IMMUNITY IN THE COURTS

One of the greatest causes for dissatisfaction with the Canadian legal system is the obsolete set of laws which restrict the right of a citizen to bring action against the Government or its agencies, a weakness which becomes more and more serious as the state increases its interference in the ordinary business activities of the nation.

This immunity was carried to its logical extreme in Calgary where a married couple sued the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, a Crown company, together with a construction firm and an insurance company, for breach of contract in connection with the non-completion of a house they had ordered under the National Housing Act. The action was started in the Alberta Supreme Court, but that court has now ruled that it has no jurisdiction, and that since the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is "an agent of the Crown" it can only be sued by the complicated "petition of right" procedure, and in the Exchequer Court.

This decision is likely to cause the plaintiffs much delay and inconvenience, since the Exchequer Court visits Calgary and other western cities only at long intervals. Moreover, it will apparently be impossible to join the private defendants in the action, since this court deals only with claims against the Crown.

The Supreme Court's decision is correct as the statutes now read; more important, it shows how badly this particular phase of our law needs revision in the light of modern conditions. The ancient restrictions on actions against the Crown were never sensible or equitable, but in former times, when governments confined themselves within a narrow range of functions, they affected comparatively few people. But now, with the state operating all manner of commercial enterprises, these obsolete rules may injure anybody at any time.

The Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, for example, has become the largest mortgagee of house property in the Dominion. If a dispute arises between it and any of its thousands of "clients," why should the aggrieved party not be able to take his case to the regular local courts, just as he would with an ordinary mortgage company?

PRESS COMMENTS

AUSTERITY, THY NAME IS NORWAY

From London News-Review
Norway is probably the only European country which has more austerity than Britain. Ruled by a Labor Government, it has a super-Cripps in the person of Trade Minister Eric Brofoss, 31-year-old lawyer and former taxation official. A man with a head for figures and a determination of iron, Brofoss is plugging away relentlessly on Norway's economic reconstruction plan.

Bread has only recently come off ration—a concession which Government opponents ascribe to the approaching general elections. Clothes and sweets are still strictly rationed, and so are sugar, fats, cheese and coffee. The milk and egg situation is very tight in winter. Norwegians mainly have to live on fish and potatoes.

These difficulties all spring from the wartime loss of Norway's merchant fleet—third largest in the world. New vessels are now being built in British yards—and import cuts are beginning to wipe out the dollar deficit. But Brofoss still has a long way to go, for Norway's population has increased by 300,000 since prewar.

There were never many really rich people in Norway, and the Government's strict taxation policy has further reduced the gap between the "wealthy" and the poor.

Brofoss himself, as Minister of Trade, earns £1,200 a year, pays £360 of it in income tax, and walks to his office. There being no Norwegian word for "austerity," the English expression has been imported.

Norway's Labor Government has not done much in the way of nationalization. For one thing, the railways were always state-owned, while electricity and gas were the property of the municipalities. The state has, however, taken over the modern aluminum plant put up by the Germans during the occupation and is building a great new ironworks at Mo, in the far north.

Much of the country's economic effort is used to rebuild the two extreme northern provinces which were totally devastated by the Germans before they left.

The Government is trying to reorganize the fishing industry which suffers from periodical slumps. New industries are introduced into areas which have depended exclusively on fishing in the past.

THE STATE COT

London Economist
The ingenuity of the Ministry of Health passes credulity. There are, apparently, officials who sit like crabs in holes ready to clutch eagerly at the smallest pretext to issue a circular. The latest excuse for this greed has been provided by a baby of 22 months, who was so unwise as to put his head through the bars of a hospital cot, and dislocate his neck.

Notwithstanding that millions of babies have slept in similar cots without mishap; notwithstanding that the hospital authorities are endowed with at least as much common sense as the Ministry of Health, the Minister has advised all hospitals to see that the maximum space between bars is not more than 3½ inches. Where cots do not comply with this standard they are to tie 2-inch twine netting round the bars.

Poor hospitals and poor babies. But what a happy time the Ministry will have when the babies suck the netting and acquire some new disease. What scope there will be for instructions to sterilize the netting daily and to inject the babies with anti-toxin. How passionately the Minister will be able to appeal to research laboratories to invent a new kind of hole which need not be tied up with string, or a new finger guard which will not get mixed up with the holes.

UNFAIR TO JULY

From the Printed Word
July gets a poor shake from the poets and the literary gentry in general. Bartlett's Familiar Quotations mentions it three times, but only one of these references is laudatory. In comparison, April is favorably noted 28 times and May gets 38 pats on the back. This is unfair. What's the matter with July? What's the matter with poets? What's the matter with people?

July is the best month. The all-around best month, in Canada anyway. For one thing, it is a good month for getting no work done. Another advantage is that you don't need clothes or much food, so work is unnecessary. People are away, so you don't have to talk to them or listen to them. There is no question about July's being the best month. Its only rival, August, is apt to have frost towards the end, except in some favored spots in the Dominion. June is out, of course, because of the mosquitoes; but in spite of them Bartlett has 14 kindly references. Even March is praised more often than July.

The fault is not July's, but with the poets and everybody. We live in a civilization and don't appreciate a good thing when we have it. Bartlett lists 58 honorable mentions for Spring and only 16 for Summer. Yet Spring is merely the promise of Summer. When the promise is fulfilled we lose interest and complain about our clothes sticking to the chair, the poison-ivy Willie got into, the odd way of tourists, the auto traffic, the crowds on the trains, the slice, the three-putted green, the stones on the beach, the umpire's patent bias—and how fast the Summer is going.

London's Metropolitan Police Drivers Train With Mirrors

(Editor's Note: L. N. Smith of the St. Catharines, Ont., Standard is this year's holder of the Kemsley scholarship in journalism. The Kemsley Newspapers Ltd., of London have made available to members of the Canadian section of the Empire Press Union five feature articles written from England by Mr. Smith. The first of these follows.)

By LARRY SMITH
Kemsley Scholar in Journalism
Mirrors are a necessity in modern life, where personal appearance counts for so much, but I was rather surprised to see huge mirrors in the main garage of the London Driving School, where drivers for London's famed Metropolitan Police are trained.

But they are there for a definite purpose. They are placed in convenient spots so that the police drivers can see that "other fellow" who causes all the accidents, that "mythical nonentity whom you can see in your mirror while shaving." That bit of psychology is typical of the methods used at this world-famous police driving school whose five-week course turns out first-class police drivers trained on 18 different makes of cars. The underlying principle of the course is that accidents don't just happen, but are caused because someone failed to exercise "reasonable care."

When they do drive with ordinary care, the accident rate tumbles. "The number of miles you have driven or the many years you have been driving don't make you a good driver," explained the chief of this school which is run in conjunction with the London Police College on the outskirts of London. "The power concentration is the secret of good driving, just as it is the secret of becoming a golf star, for example. Five per cent of us, perhaps, are born with the power of concentration to become stars; it has to be forced into the other 95 per cent."

Constables with two years on the beat may apply to be trained as drivers. They enter the novice course, and after one week in classes and four on the road, they are qualified to drive police and radio cars through the vast maze of London streets, steadily but safely. With 5000 calls received each month at "999," the special London police emergency number, the real need for good drivers is understandable.

The secret is to teach the driver to concentrate on what he is doing. If for example, one wishes to make a left-hand turn across traffic, the first step is to select a course well in advance, edging to the centre of the road so that traffic may still pass. Then comes the "mirror-brake" sequence, looking in the mirror to see what is going on behind and braking to reduce speed. Next the driver must select his gear for the turn, deciding whether he should shift down. Then comes the "mirror-signal" sequence, again looking in the mirror and giving the proper signal. Finally comes the turn and acceleration.

Student drivers are taught to give a running commentary on what they are doing as they go through this sequence, and the other similar driving experiences. The instructors feel that if the student is talking about what he is doing, he can't possibly be thinking of something else.

That the school methods are successful can be seen by looking at the Metropolitan Police records. The school opened in January, 1935. In the previous year there had been one accident for every 80,000 miles driven by police. In 1935 this was cut to one in 35,000 miles, while last year it was only one for every 71,000 miles.

In school itself, there has been only one accident in 12 years in 40 accidents in order to reduce the rate. Last year in Britain there were 31 murders, each getting reams of publicity, but the 6,500 traffic deaths were dismissed in a few lines in an annual report.

At the Police College, next door, training in traffic problems is one of the subjects given each year as constables for the Metropolitan Police. It has made the London "bobby" one of the world's best in handling traffic. And he has to be proficient at this, because London at present has some of the world's worst traffic problems, made more acute by the fact that streets rarely interest at right angles. At Hyde Park Corner alone, 80,000 vehicles pass every 12 hours.

However, the big traffic map at Scotland Yard shows that the annual 55,000 prewar accidents involving death or injury have now been reduced to 28,000. When parking was prohibited this year on certain thoroughfares, the accident toll was reduced 22.5 per cent.

Traffic, of course, is but one of many subjects given young recruits in the 13-week course at the Police College. At this college, and a similar one in London, there are facilities for 450 a month, but only about 150 are now being trained. The Metropolitan Force of 22,000 is about 4,000 understrength, and there is a crying need for recruits. It is hoped that the extra pay granted in the new Oakley report will bring more young men into the force.

The college has certain streets built to represent London streets, with bus stops, traffic lights, illegally parked cars and trucks, and so on. Typical cases are staged and the recruit must deal with them, even to gathering evidence and presenting it in a replica courtroom. The Court is arranged to the last detail, including a step into the witness box so the constable won't trip the first time he

The Record Short Story

Two-Timers

By SANFORD JARRELL

When you see a man with a tiny lapel button consisting of a gold numeral "2" superimposed on a blue letter "T" you can put him down as a Two Timer. Or, if a woman wears it as a pin, she's a Two Timer. Now, don't get me wrong. This emblem is a badge of distinction and worn with pride and dignity, although never by a young man or a young woman. It means that the wearer has served honorably in the armed services of the United States in two or more wars.

This is a fairly new organization of the middle-aged, founded in San Diego two years ago, where it maintains national headquarters. Branches are springing up here and there about the country and meetings are largely given over to the telling of tall tales. It is conceded that when a soldier returns fresh from a war, he sort of clams up, but as the years advance he mellow and his adventures in foreign fields take on a less somber hue. The Two Timers, therefore, with a brace of wars behind them can really go to town along reminiscent lines.

When Charlie Savage heard about them, he wrote to the Two Timer Veterans Association headquarters in San Diego, and soon was signed up. Charlie was a doughboy sergeant in the first world war and fought in France; in the second, he wangled a commission and saw a lot of the Pacific fighting, emerging with the silver leaves of a lieutenant colonel on his rather massive shoulders. That made him plenty eligible to become the first Two Timer in San Rafael, a lovely little city north of San Francisco some three miles from San Quentin Prison.

Charlie owned a real estate business in San Rafael, dealing in marine properties, and was rated as fairly successful, with a nice home, a downtown building or two which he rented, money in the bank, and a host of friends. He was, however, a widower and childless, and far lonelier than he would admit, even to himself. That was why he was so active in his service club, a couple of vet organizations, and the Chamber of Commerce. Although well past 50, he was an ardent and passable golfer, had a camp up on the Russian River where he and his friends fished a lot, and each Fall went into the High Sierras of the Colorado Rockies to bag a buck in deer season.

One day Charlie read in a San Francisco newspaper where a group of Two Timers were getting together for a dinner that night at a small restaurant on Bush Street. Having nothing on tap that evening, he decided to attend and have a look at his fellow veterans of two wars. The speaker, he learned with considerable amazement, was in reality a Three Timer—one of those rare men who served not only in World Wars I and II, but in the Spanish War as well.

He recalled that there were a few venerable citizen soldiers in his infantry regiment in France who had fought in Cuba or the Philippines, and most of them had long since gone to their reward. "How the South Pacific some of his officers and men had called him 'Pop' when they didn't think he could overhear, and he had been a mere stripling when he was firing a 30.36 rifle at krauts in the tangled underbrush of the Argonne. It was there, near Exermont, when a German shell had landed nearby, with a jagged piece of casing tipping his shoulder and almost calling curtains for him.

He joined the Two Timers in a small private dining room, presented his membership card, bought a dinner ticket, and was introduced. They were a friendly group, some thirty or forty of them; some were grey or white-haired, some were portly, others lean. There were men in their 70s who had served under Miles in Cuba and Pershing in France, but for the most part they were vets of the two world conflicts.

In the democracy of the Two Timers there were no generals or admirals or colonels or sergeants or buck privates. He was that, and immediately. It was obvious that any member who tried to toss his old rank around would have been jeered to high heaven. The majority, he gleaned, had been enlisted men in the first scrap and officers in the second. The most distinguished looking man there, he learned, had been a corporal in No. 1 and a master sergeant in No. 2, disdaining a commission.

There were two women there, both of them nurses. He sat down, beside one of them after they had their cocktails and were prepared to pile into a hearty dinner, in up, but as the years advance he mellow and his adventures in foreign fields take on a less somber hue. The Two Timers, therefore, with a brace of wars behind them can really go to town along reminiscent lines.

They were regarding the guest of honor, whom everyone affectionately called "Doggy." As a kid who didn't shave he had served in the war against Spain as an army private. Then, immediately afterward, he had enlisted in the navy and had won a commission the hard way by World War I. Retired as a commander in the 1930s, he had been called back again to serve in the Pacific.

The conversation was free and easy, mostly about 1918, when the world was young and they were out to hang the Kaiser. Charlie's dinner companion drew him out. He was proud of old Company A, "just about the roughest, roughest outfit in the AEF and the swell guys."

"Was he wounded? Yes, he got it but not bad on the fifth or sixth day after the Argonne jumped-off. Beating off a German counter-attack at Exermont. Horrible stuff. It changed hands several times in 48 hours. But he'd gone to a nice hospital. He named it, one near Clermont-Ferrand in the Auvergne. The former nurse looked at him thoughtfully.

"It seems to me, sergeant," she reflected, "that after you were allowed to occasionally you sought to remedy a certain situation. It had to do with firewood."

Charlie gazed at her in astonishment. "I had heard how poorly heated the nurses' quarters were," he said, "so I went on. 'We had fireplaces in each room, but almost no wood at all.'"

"That's right," said Charlie, and the light began to dawn. "There was one particularly beautiful nurse, too. I'll get her name in a moment. It was something like a ractack. Anita, that's it. Anita Green."

"You're memory is fine, sergeant," said Anita Green. "You and two or three cronies somehow slipped away one night. From what I heard later half a dozen farmers turned in complaints about firewood being stolen. Some Americans with a cart."

"I borrowed the cart," Charlie said. "Or, at least we returned it."

"And the next morning we found heaps of firewood, neatly piled in the hall of our house," she continued. "Sergeant, you made me feel very badly. You might have been court-martialed for it."

"We weren't caught," he said. "Anyhow, sergeant," Anita Green said, "we kept warm for a month, and then I was shifted to a hospital at Bordeaux where they had steam heat."

In their home on a wooded hill overlooking San Rafael, the Savages have an enormous fireplace. There is always plenty of wood on hand. They sit before the fire on cold nights and look into the embers. Oddly enough, Anita never calls him Charlie, nor even colonel, as some of his acquaintances do in deference to the rank he held in the last war. He's always sergeant to her.

Q—From what did vaudeville receive its name?
A—The name is corrupted from the French Vau de Vire, a Norman locality where humorous popular songs of the 15th century were written.

McKENNY ON BRIDGE

By Wm. E. McKenny, America's Card Authority

NEED LUCKY BREAK TO WIN THIS GAME

During the war I had a lot of fun going to various Army and Navy hospitals throughout the country and doing card tricks for the boys. Bob Hawk made an appeal on the radio at that time for decks of cards, and we got close to a million and a quarter decks. I made a lot of these into trick decks, so I could teach the boys how to do some simple card tricks without much practice.

Quite often I heard from some of the boys, and just recently I received a letter from Curtis P. Cook. He said that the boys who played today's hand are all confined to the veterans hospital in Atlanta, Ga. They all have tuberculosis and are taking the best rest treatment. They cannot play very often, but when they do, they take their bridge very seriously.

Cook thought he had stretched the bidding a little when he bid two no trump. I can't criticize that. However, he could not figure out how he was going to make his contract until he remembered something the coach had told him one time at football—on a rainy day you sometimes just kick the ball to the opposition, and hope for a lucky break. That is what he did in this hand.

He won the opening lead of the jack of spades in dummy, and cashed four diamond tricks. West made the mistake of discarding a spade, heart and a club. Cook then led a heart, which West won with the queen.

He returned a spade. Deelmer won with the ace, led a heart, returned another spade. This was won in dummy, a small club was led and the nine-spot finessed. West won with the queen. (The remaining three cards in each hand are underlined.) West decided to cash his spade trick. That was the lucky break—East was squeezed. He had to let go the ace of hearts or the jack of clubs.

Dollar Crisis Laid To Changed Status Of British Empire

By James D. White

Associated Press News Analyst.
(For Dewitt Mackenzie)

One of the big reasons for Britain's money trouble goes far deeper than dollars.

This is the fact that Britain's place in the scheme of world business can never be what it used to be. Under the right conditions it might be as great, but never the same.

In the old days the sun never set on the British empire. Britain's colonies made deals that gave the mother country the world's highest living standard at the time. This is no longer possible now that the empire is changing into a union of equal partnerships.

One of Britain's profitable operations under the old system was to buy raw materials in the lands her armed forces held. These raw materials were taken to Britain and made into finished consumer goods. These consumer goods were shipped back to the colonies and sold to the "natives."

This worked until the "natives" began making their own goods and getting fresh new ideas about running their own show generally. There came a time when the cost of keeping some colonies in that condition outran the predictable return.

As a people, Britons never got so nearsighted while clipping coupons from colonial investments that they couldn't read the handwriting on the wall. They lead all colonial powers in thinking up a civilized way to avoid the explosion that could have taken place if the colonial world had got a flat "no" to its demands for freedom.

Transforming an empire of subservient colonies into a Commonwealth of equal partners is one of the major political feats of history. It isn't finished yet, but is well on its way and Britain is largely responsible.

Britain had to tackle the delicate part of this just as she emerged exhausted from the second world war and faced a post-war world that had turned to other suppliers. Some of her own dependencies, to whom she now owed money from the war, were buying elsewhere.

Within the framework of the new commonwealth, she has tried to rebuild her trade with these areas, and has partly succeeded. But the basic fact is that they are no longer economic colonies in the old sense.

In other words, the old Britain was as rich as she was partly because of her colonies. The colonial economic system through which they added to her wealth is on its way out. Britain now competes in world markets on a different basis, and her resources and techniques have not yet proved up to the job.

The United States has taken her place as chief supplier of finished goods to the world, and the demand for such American goods has put the Yankee dollar ahead of the pound sterling as the world's most wanted money.

Britain herself must seek dollars, so she can buy things she needs from the United States, or from areas demanding dollars.

But these are secondary things. The basic fact seems to be that Britain isn't what she used to be. That was a factory for a colonial world where she had the inside track to buy and sell pretty much on her own terms.

That the basic British good sense which realized this state of things could not last forever is something the world should never forget.

Windsor Mills Man Killed By Falling Beam

Windsor Mills, July 12.—Brunneau Montminy, of Windsor Mills, was killed almost instantly yesterday when he was struck by a heavy beam which fell from a construction project here.

Mr. Montminy and other workmen were lifting beams, 12 inches square and 30 feet long, to the second floor of a grain elevator under construction at the local co-operative. The beams were being raised by rope and pulley.

Seven beams had been moved successfully when, at 4:30 p.m., the foreman saw that the eighth beam was in danger of slipping. He warned the men working on the floor 11 feet below but Montminy apparently did not hear the warning and he was struck when the beam fell.

Dr. J. P. Fortin, who arrived on the scene shortly after the accident found that the victim had suffered a fractured spine, fractured arm, broken ribs and fractured legs.

The inquest was held last night with Dr. Louis Gagnon, of Sherbrooke, presiding. Witnesses were men who had been working with Montminy and all agreed that his death was an accident.

The verdict of the coroner's jury was accidental death.

Mr. Montminy is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. Lebrun, and two adopted sons.

for the commission: "It is our view that the commission should embark upon its investigation looking to the reconstruction of the freight rate structure from a completely fresh viewpoint as if it were the fact that no regulatory legislation or tribunal existed."

"Transportation policy should not necessarily accept conditions as they are, but should be designed to assure an essential equality of conditions for economic enterprise insofar as man-made conditions are concerned."

That task, the Premier said, was beyond the scope of the board of transport commissioners, the regulatory body of the railways. It could be successfully approached by a commission with broad powers such as the Ferguson body.

On this ground, he took sharp issue with a suggestion from the C.P.R. that political considerations should not be injected into matters—freight rates specifically—which the railway felt should be left to the board of transport commissioners.

Luncheon For Abbott Is Held

London, July 12.—Dana Wilgress, Canadian High Commissioner in London, today entertained Finance Minister Douglas Abbott of Canada at a luncheon.

Others attending were Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer; Lewis Douglas, United States Ambassador to Britain; the Earl of Bessborough, Governor-General of Canada from 1931 to 1935; and Baron Brand, a member of the imperial munitions board in Canada during the first world war.

The British government also was represented by Philip Noel-Baker, secretary of state for Commonwealth relations, and Glenvil Hall, financial secretary of the treasury.

Financial leaders attending included C. F. Cobbold of the Bank of England, and Sir Charles Hambro, a member of the newly-appointed dollar exports board.

One of the engagements Abbott plans to keep before the Commonwealth finance talks open tomorrow is a visit to an 82-year-old Canadian woman in London, Miss Clara Palmer. Miss Palmer wrote the Canadian finance minister saying she remembered him from the first world war when he visited her while he was serving with the Seventh (McGill) Siege Battery.

Fire Hazard In BC Is Dangerous

Vancouver, July 12.—British Columbia logging operators today are awaiting the "stop work" order from provincial forest service officials which will tell them that fire hazards have reached the "extremely dangerous stage."

A number of operators already have voluntarily suspended operations as flames lick through some B.C. timber stands and a scorching sun blazes down fiercely on other timber areas.

Meanwhile, provincial authorities in Manitoba have reported that three or six fires in the northern part of that province have been extinguished.

A blaze believed started by friction 13 miles west of Duncan, on Vancouver Island, is giving B.C. fire fighters the most worry.

One hundred men and four tractors are fighting the fire, which has eaten away an estimated 1,000,000 board feet of bucked and felled timber while racing through 400 acres.

Besides the precaution of halting logging operations, forest service officers said they will, if necessary, ban travel in the danger areas.

Forestry spokesmen said 27 new fires broke out during the week-end in the Vancouver forest district.

In Manitoba, a fire at Dogskin river, 300 miles north of Winnipeg, and two at Bloodwin river, 125 miles north of Winnipeg, still are raging. The latter two have been confined to 30 acres while the Dogskin fire is still burning after breaking away on the northern side.

Three fires reported Saturday are said "under control."

authorities believe the steelworkers would be agreeable to such action "in view of deteriorating economic conditions over recent months."

But Murray hasn't indicated he will do anything but go down the line to support his demands for "adequate" pensions and "a living wage." The steelworkers have received three wage increases since the end of the last war and now average about $1.65 hourly.

Their contract doesn't expire until 1950. However, a clause permitted it to be reopened this year for wage talks. If no agreement is reached by July 16 the union has the right to strike.

Young Cyclist Loses Life In Road Accident

Drummondville, July 12.—Therese Audy, 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Audy, of La Tuque, lost her life in a highway accident, which occurred near St. Cyrille, a short distance from this town, on Friday evening.

The victim and her companion, Georges Rodolphe, were riding their bicycles in the direction of Drummondville, on a car owned and driven by L. P. Benoit, crashed into the two cyclists who were riding without lights. Miss Audy suffered internal injuries to which she succumbed a few minutes later. Her companion who caved into a ditch, was uninjured.

A verdict of accidental death was returned at the coroner's inquest, with a recommendation that provincial authorities enforce a law compelling cyclists and horse-drawn vehicles to carry lights.

The deceased was employed at the St. Croix hospital here as X-ray technician.

Body Of Local Man Found In Brompton Lake

A body identified as that of a Mr. Therrien, of Sherbrooke, was recovered this morning from Brompton Lake.

The drowning apparently occurred late last night. The victim rented a boat at the Brompton Lake Hotel around 10 p.m. to go fishing. Mr. Therrien was not seen again until this morning, when his body was discovered in the lake, 15 feet from shore, by Walter Delloqueacoma, a tourist at the hotel.

Mr. Delloqueacoma said he was going fishing and had just entered his boat when he saw the floating body. The boat in which Mr. Therrien had gone out last night was recovered some distance from the place where he was found.

Rene Coupal of the provincial police branch in Sherbrooke is investigating the accident. A coroner's inquest will be held tomorrow.

Glen Murray Couple Feted On 30th Anniversary

Glen Murray July 12. — A very pleasant social event took place in the Orange Hall, at Campbell's Corner, on Saturday evening, June 21, on the thirtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Aiger Patterson, of this place.

The party was a complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Patterson, who accompanied by their son, Harold, and Mrs. Patterson, of Montreal, left home that evening supposedly to visit with Mrs. Patterson's sister, Mrs. Dan Melrose, and Mr. Melrose, on the Dublin Range. Much to their astonishment the car was diverted into the hall, where a number of friends were waiting to receive them and to offer their congratulations to the bride and groom of the evening.

Shortly after their arrival the number present was sharply augmented, amongst whom was their son, Gerald, of Lennoxville, thus making their immediate family circle complete.

Another pleasant feature of the evening was that amongst the guests present was another couple, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan McCrea, of Nelson, who had been married twenty-six years on the same date of the year.

The evening was spent in dancing until midnight, when delicious

TURNING THE PAGES OF "CANADA UNLIMITED"

Canadian mining industry started with the "Compagnie des Forges" which built the St. Maurice Forges in 1737. For 150 years they processed iron which lay in great deposits along the St. Maurice River.

Mining discoveries grew, making Canada richer. Gold was found in British Columbia in 1858. And when, in 1889, Sudbury Mines revealed a fabulous wealth of copper, nickel and platinum, mining became a major industry and a leading world producer of alloys and precious metals.

The great iron deposits of Northern Quebec and Labrador give far-seeing men faith in the future of Canadian mining. They know there's room to grow in Canada Unlimited.

And mining is only one phase of Canada's development. The full story is told in "Canada Unlimited", an illustrated 144-page book published by the O'Keefe Foundation. You may obtain your copy by sending 25c in cash (no stamps or cheques, please) to "Canada Unlimited" Dept. N5-2, O'Keefe House, Toronto, Ontario. DOROTHY DIX

Recreation For Husbands

Husband And Wife Need Occasional Separate Entertainment

Dear Miss Dix: I am a young married man with two children. I don't smoke, drink or gamble. I never go to a show or a banquet alone. I take my family out to some place of amusement at least once a week. My wife keeps the house and is a good mother. I think she is a worthy wife and that I am a worthy husband, but, somehow we don't agree. There is too much wrangling and pouting and the reason of it is because occasionally I want to attend a ball game alone or to play cards with men alone. My wife pouts for a week when I do it and complains that I don't want to take her anywhere. While I am at work she sees her friends and goes to shows and belongs to card clubs, etc., which is all right with me, but why should I not now and then have the privilege of seeing my friends?

DOROTHY DIX

M. I. W.
Answer: Of course, you should have the privilege of going out alone sometimes, and your wife is silly and selfish to try to deny it to you. If she had any knowledge of life or any breadth of vision she would know that a man has need of some relaxation just as much as a woman has and that a man craves masculine companionship just as much as a woman does feminine.

Any woman would think herself very badly used if her husband objected to her tea parties or if he insisted on going with her shopping or if he didn't want her to go to a bridge game where he couldn't go. She doesn't think for a minute that her husband should monopolize all of her leisure time, but she thinks that every minute of his spare time should be given to her and she raises ructions if he wants to go to a ball game without her or to play poker of an evening.

Funny how wives think they have so much more right to boss their husbands than their husbands have to boss them. I wonder how they get that way?

And I also wonder how any woman expects her husband to keep loving her if she pouts, which is a childish and lowdown method of trying to get her own way.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a woman of 45 and am thinking of running for Representative. Some of my friends think it is foolish. Others think it is a good idea as long as my maid could look after my home and children. What do you think of women being in public office?

M. D.
Answer: No reason in the world why a woman should not hold a public office if the position she seeks is one that she is fitted to fill and she can get elected to it. But the way to any public office is a thorny one to try to get elected to it. But the way to any public office is a thorny one to try to get elected to it. But the way to any public office is a thorny one to try to get elected to it.

As for women pursuing a political or any other kind of career, I think the determining factor is always how much they are needed at home. Certainly no woman who has little children, or adolescent children who need their mother far more than babies do, has any right to pursue a career unless she is absolutely driven to it by financial necessity. Her job is in her own home. That is the one that God is going to hold her responsible for, and woe to her if she is a quitter.

No hired servants, however competent they may be, can take the place of a mother, because the mother gives children something that is necessary to their development which no other human being can give them. It takes mother love, mother patience, mother understanding to solve the problems of little souls and steer young lives in the right direction.

And a woman who has a good husband is foolish to swap him off for a career. Of course, most women don't intend to do this. They think they can have their cake and eat it, too, and that husband will stay put while they are off campaigning or lecturing or what not. But he doesn't. Some other woman always gets him, and only too often the woman finds out that the career has failed and her husband has been lost, too.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a boy of 19 very much in love with a girl of 16. Can a girl of 16 know the meaning of saving? Most girls want to see how much a boy can spend on them, but this one is different. Can she really mean it?

GLENN.
Answer: Most girls of 16 belong to the Gimme family. They think of nothing but having a good time and grabbing everything in sight, so if you have found one who considers your pocketbook you have discovered a marvel. But she is too young to marry or for you to be certain whether you are getting a spender or a saver.

The Record will be pleased to receive any letters to this Dorothy Dix column. These will be forwarded to Miss Dix who will answer them as quickly as possible.

MARRIAGES

WATSON—O'HARA

Montreal, July 12.—The marriage of Margaret Keith, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wallace O'Hara, of Westmount, to Mr. Donald Fenwick Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Watson, of Sherbrooke, and Montreal, took place Friday afternoon, at half-past five o'clock, at Westmount Park Emmanuel Church, the Rev. Harvey B. Campbell officiating. Mr. O. R. She carried a shower bouquet of white and pink roses and her only ornament was a single strand of pearls.

Miss Edwina Dorman, the bride's only attendant, wore a floor-length gown of pale peach organdy, fashioned with a round neckline, cap sleeves and full gathered skirt and short muffs of matching material. She carried a bouquet of blue and white larkspur and wore a band of the same flowers in her hair.

Mr. Fraser McLeod, cousin of the groom, acted as best man, and the ushers were Messrs. Walter and George Murray, brothers of the bride.

The bride's mother was attired in a street-length dress of flowered crepe with white accessories and she wore a corsage of yellow rosebuds.

The groom's mother was gowned in an afternoon frock of figured silk jersey with white accessories. Her corsage was white rosebuds.

A reception was held on the lawn at the home of the bride, where upwards of sixty guests were present. In the centre of the lawn the bride's table held the three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride's mother.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Welch left for their wedding trip, the bride travelling in a fuchsia dress of silk jersey, with beige and brown accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

After journeying through the Eastern States, Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Cleveland, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Welch have arrived in Virden, where they will make their home.

Billy Southworth Sees Dodgers And Cards In Another Photo Finish; Expects Braves To Be Close Also

New York — (NEA) — Billy Southworth was discussing the Cardinals' heat wave.

Southworth

"They have some ballplayers," said the manager of the Braves, not meaning to be funny. "They're getting good pitching, and pitching dresses up any club."

Billy the Kid can't split out the St. Louis Cardinals. "The Dodgers have such an abundance of young fellows who can hit, run and scout," he said.

Southworth expects to see the Cards and Braves in another photo finish, similar to the one which ended the play-off in 1946.

And despite all the things that have happened to them, Southworth hopes to make it a triple dead heat with the Beantowners.

Southworth lost a power hitter when Jeff Heath couldn't turn on the ankle he broke last fall.

The Bostonians were left without a first baseman when Earl Torgeson suffered a shoulder separation after Ray Sanders broke a small bone in his wrist.

Johnny Sain, who won 65 games the past three campaigns, couldn't get anybody out, and when he did in his last start in St. Louis he developed a blister on a pitching finger.

Pete Reiser's hitting was on the disappointing side when he was sent home with a pain in his chest.

The batting averages of Alvin Dark and Bob Elliott are below what they were a year ago.

Southworth became so desperate for a high-hand hitting center fielder who could throw that he gave the Pirates a Grade A catcher, Phil Masi, for Ed Sauer and cash.

The idea was to obtain Sauer, whom the Cardinals refused to deal the Braves, although he was nothing more than a bench warmer and pinch-hitter.

Southworth personally inspected, and then called up from Evansville of the Three-Eye for first line duty Del Crandall, a 19-year-old catcher with little more than a year's experience in organized baseball.

When left-handed Johnny Antonelli pitched, the Braves have a 19-year-old battery.

Southworth turned to the good old Giants when it became necessary to shift Outfielder Marv Rickert to first base. And the good old Giants thought they were putting something over on him when they peddled the 32-year-old Elby Fletcher of their Jersey City branch.

Fletcher had been given up on by everybody in the National League, but under Southworth, the 'O' Closman, the home-bred not only showed he was still a mighty fine glove man, but hit well as well.

Meanwhile, when Johnny Mize went into a slump, the good old Jints used Joe Lafata at first base.

"You would have thought the Giants could have made good use of Fletcher," someone remarked.

"I would have suspected as much," replied Southworth.

Sibby Sisti filled in neatly for Eddie Stanky, and Billy the Kid nursed his pitching along with Vern Bickford and Warren Spahn as his big one-two punch.

Southworth had what for him was a frightful western swing, the Braves winning no more than six of 14.

But Torgeson is working out again, Stanky is bouncing around on two good ankles, Reiser is breathing normally, and Sain's blister is healing. And Dark and Elliott are likely to break out in an epidemic of base hits any day or night.

And the Braves are still within easy striking distance of the leader.

Billy Southworth sticks 'em together. He does it with shears and paste pot.

CARNIVAL

By Dick Turner

"The common cold—the common man—the common cause—the common denominator! Ain't ever gonna be anything out of the ordinary?"

Connie Mack Almost Got Rid Of His Star Catcher, Mike Guerra, Because The Cuban Was Always Late

Boston, July 12. — (AP) — Every time Connie Mack thinks of how close he came to getting rid of catcher Mike Guerra last spring he shudders.

Mack, like most major league managers, frowns on late comers to his spring camp. And Guerra had been a tardy customer ever since he came to Philadelphia Athletics in 1945. The old man threatened to trade, sell or fire Guerra every time he failed to show up on time.

Last spring when his problem child reported to West Palm Beach, Fla., three weeks after training started and muttered something in his typical broken English about an upset stomach, the 86-year-old Mack fumed.

"That is the end. I'm getting rid of that fellow!"

Fortunately Mack changed his mind.

Buddy Rosar, first-string catcher, came up with a sore arm and rookie Joe Astroth from Memphis couldn't fill the bill. Mack looked down the bench and called on the little fellow with the big mitt.

NORTH COPS ALL-STAR TILT 3-2; BRAVES HERE TONIGHT

Stan Breard's Squad Edges Out Haworth's After 13-Inning Duel; Ralph Schwamb Hurls This Evening

By LEN O'DONNELL

Sherbrooke Record Sports Editor

Granby, July 12.—The Northern Section of the Provincial Baseball League All-Star tilt last night edged out the Southern team 3-2 after a 13-inning battle at the Granby Stadium before 3,000 fans.

The game was a nip-and-tuck affair, with a grand total of 37 players taking part in the duel. The big bats of the loop-leaders played a major part in the tilt. Big Chuck Trouppe, of Drummondville, lifted the first ball over the fence to give his side a 1-0 edge, and in the following frame Roy Zimmerman, the Cubs' heavy-lugging first baseman, belted the next one right over the right field wall to put Stan Breard's boys out in front 2-0. Joe Atkins was the next to hit for the circuit and help his team's cause when he got his in the seventh.

Stan Breard used six hurlers for his club while Manager Myron Haworth used five. For the Southern section, Washburn started on the mound, and was relieved by Brown in the fourth. W. Pope, Farnham, worked one inning and made way for Terry McDuffie, who moved out for Bobeck. He hurled the last five innings of the game. For Manager Stan Breard's squad Sal Maglie opened up, and gave up three hits for his three innings. Cordell took over until the fifth, when Bill Brandt moved in and gave nothing for his two innings. Vargas worked the seventh and eighth, and was charged with two hits and both runs for the losers. Duke Duperron did his share and Lefty Chalfoux finished the game and was credited with the victory.

The Northern section collected eight hits, for three runs, while Haworth's crew banged out seven safeties and pushed home two runs. The winning run which came in the lower half of the thirteen frame and was scored on a Bobeck's wild pitch, when the ball got away from Napier behind the plate allowing Wally Jago to come home with the winning run and break up the long duel. The game was tied up in the eighth by the Southern section 2-2 and from then until the finish it was a real battle, until three errors were committed by the club during the tilt.

Bobeck working the final part of the game for the Southern section was charged with the loss. He only gave up two hits, one in the tenth and the other in the thirteenth, but his wildness proved his downfall. In the tenth Perez banged out a double and Bobeck proceeded to walk Kins but he forced the following two to fly out. However in the thirteenth after Wally Jago banged out a triple, he proceeded to intentionally walk Duany and Oliver, trying for the Gardella and Mantz, but this backfired when one of his tosses got away and Jago came walking home with the winning tally after two hours and forty-five minutes of play.

His Worship Mayor Horace Boivin tossed in the first ball with President Albert Boivin behind the plate, but Raymond Chaput, president of the Granby team and his duty but lifted it out of the field when he touched it for a foul ball.

RALPH SCHWAMB HURLS TONIGHT

Ralph Schwamb, the A's rangy hurler and the latest addition to the local tossing staff, has been given the assignment for this evening when Myron Haworth and tangle with Roland Gladu's squad. His Braves move into town to

This will be Schwamb's initial appearance since joining the A's and Manager Gladu figures that his new hurler should come through with a win.

Money And Ambitious Organization Are Making Philadelphia Strong Baseball Empire To Be Feared

New York—Imagine fearing the Phillies!

That's something Burt Shotton hasn't done since he managed them, but this is a brave, strange new world. Conditions in it have reached a point where even the Dodgers must take the Phils seriously. Thus the series in Philadelphia could be termed crucial except that nobody in that town remembers the meaning of the word.

It was almost two months since the Brooks and the Blue Jays last got together. But even then Eddie Sawyer's boys made an impression, winning four of six in the first two series. Manager Shotton lost no time developing respect for them. "This is the club we may have to beat for the pennant," Shotton went so far as to say.

That seemed somewhat hasty at the time but anything the Phils have been gaining in prestige since then, and in the dugouts around the league they are now accepted as a disturbing factor in the race if not a definite pennant threat.

Balance Of Youth, Age

They will go as far as their pitching will take them, and although no one expects Sawyer's semi-antique, semi-juvenile staff to weather the stretch it's been holding up quite nicely so far.

The older hands are Hank Royer, Ken Heintzelman and Russ Meyer, all picked up in deals, and the kids are Robin Roberts and the other bonus baby Curt Simmons.

The balance of youth and age is extended through the hitters, too. Eddie Miller serves as the grand old man of the infield.

Around him are Granville Hamner, who is as deft as any of the young shortstops in the league; Willie (Puddinhead) Jones, improving at third base and a long-ball menace at the plate, and Dick Sisler, who seems to be living up to his wartime notices at last as the emergency replacement for Eddie Waitkus at first base.

The outfield presents an experienced powerman, Del Ennis; a lead-off expert, Richie Ashburn, a pretty fair alternation in right with Bill Nicholson, Stan Holm and Jack Mayo shuttling in and out to meet the various pitching and defensive problems.

Hibbard And Roy Reach Net Finals

Dr. John Hibbard and Roger Roy reached the finals in the men's doubles last evening when they eliminated Bill Jones and Normand Brault 6-1, 6-1, 6-3.

Jean-Marie Cote and Gaston Blais also reached the finals when they downed Ivan Bolsovert and Majella Charest 6-1, 0-2, 2-4, 6-3 in a closely contested fixture.

Only one game is scheduled for this evening at 7 p.m. Miss Marie Tanguay and Jean Levesque meet Miss Raymond Laporte and Normand Brault in a semi-final match.

Wednesday evening's draw follows:

6:30: Miss Simone Chevalier and Majella Charest vs. Miss Isabelle Hibbard and Robert Dupuis (semi-final).

8:00: Dr. John Hibbard and Roger Roy vs. Jean-Marie Cote and Gaston Blais (final).

Buffalo Dumped Twice But Still Lead Loop

When a team clouts 16 home runs in the first 10 days of the month, there's bound to be a letdown.

The first-place Buffalo Bisons of the International League are tapering off, at least for the present, for they suffered two successive shutouts at the hands of Rochester Red Wings.

However, the Bisons picked a good time to go into their slump. They had been burning up the loop, and sending shivers up and down opposing pitchers' spines every time they faced the enemy, in the time they faced the enemy, in the process of building up a comfortable lead.

As of today they're still 4½ games in front of Montreal Royals, despite the 3-0 pasting they took from the Red Wings last night. The Wings also applied the calamine brush in the second game of Sunday's doubleheader, 12-0, which means the leaders have gone 16 innings without a run, much less a home run.

John Yuhas, a skinny right-hander, held the Bisons to six hits, and did not allow a man to reach third base in last night's conquest for his fifth triumph. Louis Aloma, Buffalo pitcher, yielded only seven hits, including a home run by Steve Binko.

Red Hardy of Jersey City Giants had the Baltimore Orioles hand-cuffed for six innings but he tossed up a pair of home run balls and they proved his undoing. Baltimore came out on top 4-2.

Frank Mancuso slapped one in the seventh off Hardy, but no one was on base, and the Lil' Giants already had come up with a pair of markers. However, in the eighth, Ken Wood whacked his 14th circuit clout of the season with two a-horns, and that was the game. Al Widmar went the distance for Baltimore.

This year's "Have Nots," the Newark Bears, went down to another defeat to implant themselves more firmly in the cellar. This one was at the hands of the Syracuse Chiefs, 7-2, and again it was the gofers ball that hurt the losers.

"I know that Southworth feels and Southworth with his tricky delivery can fool Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams and company," the National League man said.

Behind Spahn, Southworth has another pair of tough lefties in Howie Pellet (11-5) of the Cardinals and Prescher Roe (8-2) of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Back of Munger, the Nationals have three other right-handers, all ready for action. Vern Bickford, an 11-game winner for Southworth, could go. So could Ralph Branca (10-3) and Don Newcombe (6-2), both of Brooklyn.

Manager Lou Boudreau of the American League All-Star array has nominated Mel Parnell, who has won 11 and lost five for the Boston Red Sox. The stylish southpaw, naturally is limited to three innings, as are all pitchers except those that become involved in an extra-inning game.

Boudreau got some bad news last night when the doctors reported that Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox had a fractured rib. Williams said he would be on hand but didn't know if he would play. The outfielder was injured when he collided with a wall at Yankee Stadium July 4.

"He's my man until I learn differently," Boudreau said. "If he's out, I'll use Dale Mitchell (of Cleveland)."

Even if Williams doesn't play, Parnell will find a powerful batting out behind him, led by Joe DiMaggio of New York Yankees. The elder DiMag replaced the injured Tommy Henrich, another Yankee, against the Montreal Royals in the starting line-up.

Boudreau indicated he might use his pitchers in two-inning shifts. Virgil Trucks of Detroit would draw the second two innings followed by Bob Lemon of Cleveland and Lou Brieske of Philadelphia.

"Vic Raschi would be my troubleshooter," Lou said, but he admitted the plan wasn't definite. The Americans are favored to gain their 12th victory in 16 decisions. There was no game in 1945. The weatherman predicted "fair and warm." If it should rain, the game will be played Wednesday morning at 12 noon (ADT). The time for the game today is 2:30 p.m. ADT.

The players gained four objectives. They got the club owners to agree:

1. To uniform pitching mounds on the diamonds and in the ball pens.

2. To put cinder paths or something besides grass in front of outfield walls. (A safety measure for onrushing outfielders).

3. Improved lighting and a minimum standard of brilliance.

4. Enlarged visiting dressing rooms.

Un- discussion among the various groups—the leagues, the advisory council and the major league player representatives—was the players' pension plan.

Fred (Dixie) Walker, National League player representative, said the pension fund has gone into the hole $80,000 in two years of operation.

"It's no use to kid ourselves," he said. "The plan hasn't panned out as well as we hoped it would. As I see it, we must take in approximately $200,000 more a year for the next eight years to keep the plan working."

The plan guarantees a player who had spent five years in the majors a pension of $50 a month after he becomes 50 years old. A 10-year player gets $100 a month.

The club owners have an agreement to underwrite the plan for another 2½ years.

National Leaguers To Shoot The Works Today In Annual All-Star Clash With Favored Junior Loop

Brooklyn, July 12.—(AP)—The National League, from President Ford C. Frick down, is throwing in all its chips in an all-out effort to win the 16th annual All-Star game at Ebbets Field today.

Never has the victory-starved Frick been so determined to hang on to the chin of his rival League head, Will Harridge of the proud American Leaguers.

For the first time since the classic originated in 1933, Frick is playing an active role in shaping the line-up of the team. He still hasn't gotten over last year's most humiliating of all 11 defeats, a 5-2 pasting by a bunch of "crippled" American stars.

It was reported that Frick recently sat down with Billy Southworth, who will lead his charges this afternoon, and after studying the probable American League lineup, helped Billy select the eight pitchers to represent the National.

"Frick and Southworth spent hours studying the weaknesses and strong points of the American League batters," a National League man volunteered. "With that information in mind, they chose their pitchers."

"They didn't pay too much heed to records," he said, "but leaned toward the hurlers who they figured had the stuff to stop those sluggers."

The theory that Southworth was paying little attention to records was borne out when he announced that either Lefty Warren Spahn (9-8) of his own Boston Braves or right-hander George (Red) Munger (6-4) of the St. Louis Cardinals would be his starting choice against the Americans. Except for Cincinnati's Ewell Blackwell, who is counted on to pitch only one inning if at all, no other pitching selection has a poorer record.

"I know that Southworth feels and Southworth with his tricky delivery can fool Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams and company," the National League man said.

Behind Spahn, Southworth has another pair of tough lefties in Howie Pellet (11-5) of the Cardinals and Prescher Roe (8-2) of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Dodgers Win Twice In Fund-Raising Ball Tilt

New York, July 12.—(AP)—It looked like something that was thought up in Brooklyn so it was fitting that the Dodgers beat the storied Red Sox last night in a fund-raising baseball game.

The score was Brooklyn 6, Yankees 3, Giants 3.

Each team played six innings in an exhibition that climaxed the "Night of Champions" for charity at Yankee Stadium. The show drew 26,120 fans who contributed about $40,000 to the New York Heart Fund and the Babe Ruth Memorial Fund and the Lou Gehrig Memorial Fund.

Robinson had no more than reached his crowded dressing room than he announced he was perfectly willing to continue fighting in the 147-pound division.

"But I would gladly give up my title for a chance at the middleweight championship
