closes

Unhappy coincidence this week brought financial collapse to the 43-year-old Monitor Publishing Company Limited and new lease on life for The Westmount Examiner, published by Monitor until last week for all of this paper's 39 years of service to Westmount.

The Examiner last Thursday completed a move to its own new office, its first within the City of Westmount, at 4630 St. Catherine street west, corner of Blenheim place and opposite the Royal Montreal Regiment Armory.

The move of the paper, with its sale to its new proprietors, J. W. Sancton & Sons, had been contemplated for some time. It was the last step of a five-year divesting by Monitor of its onetime dominant suburban newspaper publishing activities, which latterly proved an unprofitable side of the big West End commercial printing firm's operations.

Future in Doubt

Friday, the Bank of Montreal as leader of a group of creditors filed a petition to declare the Monitor company bankrupt and naming Peter A. Lawrence, C. A., trustee to administer the firm's affairs. No decision regarding continuing operations at the ultra-modern Cote St. Luc plant, which specializes in long runs of circulars, flyers, newspapers and house organs by computer-controlled photo-composition and highspeed web offset printing, had been made early this week.

The company was founded to print and publish The Monitor.

THREE YEARS OF FINDING FOSTER HOMES

The Foster Home Recruiting Centre last month ended its third year as an experimental project and becomes a permanent part of Greater Montreal's total social welfare program. The centre, which promotes accommodation and care for homeless children, currently is conducting a "Focus on Fostering" campaign. The FHRC functions on behalf of the Protestant Children's Service Centre, the Catholic Welfare Bureau and the Jewish Child Welfare Bureau. Its headquarters are in Westmount, at 4018 St. Catherine street west. Pictured at the centre's general meeting, held last Thursday in the Bell Canada building in Montreal, are left to right: Mrs. Grace Fuksiene, home-finding supervisor, Catholic Welfare Bureau; Norman C. Phemister, 609 Belmont avenue, chairman of the Centre's board of directors; Miss Eileen Griffin, FHRC executive director; and C. Denys Heward, 559 Lansdowne Avenue, president, Montreal Council of Social Agencies.

The Westmount Fire Brigade is going all out this weekend to emphasize fire prevention. Beside drawing public attention to the ever increasing dangers of fire, the following events will take place.

On Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, there will be a parade by the brigade. Taking part will be a Westmount Civil Protection vehicle, and vehicles from the Town of Mount Royal, the Cities of St. Laurent and Outremont who form with Westmount a mutual aid fire system.

Others taking part will be Miss Fire Prevention, Jane Lewis, the winner of the 1967 fire prevention drawing contest. Jane, age 11, will be riding on one of the Westmount pumpers. Another young lady will be 8 year-old-Joyce Luker, who suffers from muscular dystrophy. Joyce is the mascot of Westmount Fire Brigade. She will be riding in a car supplied by the Westmount Rotary Club. Highlight of the parade will be a horse-drawn steam pumper supplied by the Pierre Thibault Company. The parade will end at the Westmount Park when there will be a demonstration of fire fighting along with other interesting events.

Route of Parade

Route of the parade is: Starting point, Dorchester and Greene, north on Greene, west on Sherbrooke, south on Claremont, east on St. Catherine to Park Place and into Westmount Park.

Bill Green back on job

Two generations of Westmounters, from greying grandparents to youngsters still in school may recognize a familiar figure who has just taken up traffic guardian duties with the Westmount Police at the Melville-St. Catherine intersection.

They will remember Bill Green who served as caretaker from 1929 until his retirement in 1965 at Roslyn, Queen's and Westmount High schools.

It's back to a form of his first service to the citizens of Westmount, for from 1925 to 1929 Bill was a member of the Westmount Police and Fire Department. He now combines that experience with his long, and mixed association with boys and girls.

Memphremagog pollution study is pursued here

Westmount is the venue for another step in the mounting attack on the problem of pollution of Lake Memphremagog, the site of summer homes of many people of this community.

Memphremagog - Conservation, Inc., a Magog-based organization which is taking an increasingly active part in anti-pollution measures, is holding a special meeting of members in Victoria Hall at 7:45 o'clock Monday evening, Oct. 7.

THE WESTMOUNT LETTER

The six-page, September issue of the bilingual Westmount Letter / Bulletin de Westmount, published by the Council of the City of Westmount, reached citizens in the mail late last week.

City to collect R.C. school taxes

Westmount Roman Catholic school taxes will this year for the first time be collected by the city, as in the past for the Protestant, Jewish and neutral panels.

Mailing of all school tax bills for 1968-69 is expected by mid-November. Payment is due on Dec. 7.

The new arrangement follows the taking over of School Commission of St. Leon de Westmount responsibilities by the Montreal Catholic School Commission.

Valuations and rates for school taxes are set by the various school authorities, the city being merely the collecting agent. All inquiries should be made to the respective school boards.

ters features on its front page a picture of Mayor Michael L. Tucker signing the golden book in the city hall of Westmount's Centennial "twin," Rimouski, following a joint meeting of the councils of the two cities. Rimouski Mayor Maurice Tessier

By a provincial government formula, 85 percent of Westmount's neutral panel school taxes go to the Roman Catholic authorities.

Upward revision of Westmount valuations for Montreal Metropolitan Corporation assessment purposes again has been set this year at 25 percent, unchanged from last year.

Westmount's 1968 budget provided for $558,000, or 7.1 percent of total spending, for inter-municipal services. The City of Montreal will get $553,000, or 99.1 percent of this for our share of Metro debt service and operating deficits of the Montreal Transportation Commission.

is seen looking on. Both Mayors were wearing their impressive chains of office.

Not final, Says Mayor

(The picture caption described this ceremony, during the summer, as "the final phase of the formal twinning of the two cities." Last week Mayor Tucker told The Examiner he would very much like to see the link actively maintained and nurtured. He said that, at the practical level, Rimouski officials had gained many practical pointers from their visits to various Westmount municipal departments, particularly the public works yard.

(He also said, wryly, that their Rimouski counterparts were delighted to find that the entire Westmount Council, Mayor Tucker modestly excepting himself, were good French conversationalists!)

Lead story of the Letter is the final decision of Hydro-Québec to build its new Westmount sub-station in Selby Park in the wake of citizen protests over the original Clondeboye-Prospect location. Tribute is paid to the amenability of Hydro officials in the course of the city's representations.

Importance of the sub-station is underscored by power demand figures. Maximum winter demand of Westmount in 1957-58 was 13,500 kilowatts. Last winter, 10 years later, this had risen to 28,170 kw and the probable demand in 1975 will be 70,000 kw, particularly due to anticipated large-scale construction development in Westmount. The new sub-station will help keep transmission costs to a minimum, reducing upward pressure rates.

WMA executive to inspect city

Current undertakings in the community will be inspected next Wednesday, Oct. 9, on a tour arranged by the city administration for members of the executive of the Westmount Municipal Association.

The group is scheduled to set off by bus at 3 p.m. from Victoria Hall.

Study Nearly Ready

Another main article, inside, is a progress report on urban renewal. A supplement to Westmount's study is nearly completed for submission to the Quebec Housing Corporation. Terms of an agreement with the Rubin Corporation Limited for redevelopment in the southeast corner of the city are outlined. Also reported is Council's weighing of a Westmount Municipal Association resolution asking exclusion of the Dorchester-CPR tracks-Hallowell-Atwater area from redevelopment and its designation for conservation and rehabilitation.

Westmount has summoned fire equipment from Outremont, St. Laurent and Town of Mount Royal during recent minor fires to familiarize the partners with their new mutual aid program, the Letter reports. The neighboring men and machine have moved in on standby only and not been engaged in fire-fighting. The program is designed to provide ready help in the event of a major outbreak.

Bulletins from Birdland:

COLORFUL LADYBIRD

By Winifred E. Wilson

For obvious reasons, a large majority of mother birds are more quietly dressed than the fathers. Incubation of the eggs, the brooding and feeding of the nestlings are generally the duties of the female; and once the youngsters leave home it is she who to a great extent looks after the wants of the family. Consequently, she must be as inconspicuous as possible, so as not to attract any enemy to herself — and at the same time to those she would protect.

There are, however, a few exceptions to this rule. Female Phalaropes are distinctly more colourful than males, the reason being that, in this case, the male does all the housework. Another female with more plumage attraction than her husband is Mrs. Kingfisher.

The Kingfisher pair are a pleasing blue-grey, with white collar and white underparts. These two white areas are separated by a wide, irregular, blue-grey band across the chest. But Mrs. Kingfisher wears yet another decoration; a wide chestnut-colored band across the lower part of her breast, the handsome color extending also to her sides.

Picture for yourself her front view. From the underside of her big bill down to her tail she has a series of irregular stripes: white, blue-grey, white, chestnut, white. This pattern, with the white broken up into sections, is certainly beautiful, but has doubtless been given her for a more practical purpose. It makes a splendid camouflage as she goes in and out of her home, the red-brown feathers blending in with the color of the earth where her hole is situated.

Dig Own Homes

This home is actually in a regular little room at the far end of a tunnel in a steep bank, all the work of digging having been done by the pair themselves. Usually this is near water where food can be found, because their chief diet is fish. But sometimes a very good fishing ground has no bank for a home. Then they are obliged to go back and forth, from home to water, while feeding their young ones. The water may be a brook, pond, river, lake, or even the ocean. The fisher sits on an overhanging branch waiting for the pray, and when a small fish is in sight the bird dives, oversized bill first, and comes up with the head hanging out one side and the tail the other.

International Human Rights Year is being commemorated by stamp issues from many countries around the world. Most of these stamp issues will be in the approved U.N. design of the conventional flame and wreath symbol.

Gambia and Gibraltar are two countries which have shown ingenuity in the selection of the designs for their stamps, and thus broke with tradition. The 1d. value of Gambia shows a pair of open shackles while the 2/ value of Gibraltar depicts the signing of the Magna Carta in 1215 by King John. It is only fitting that this latter design should have been used as the basic principals of human rights evolves from the Magna Carta, which was one of the first constitutions guaranteeing the rights and privileges of the individual.

On the other hand, the greatest mockery to International Human Rights Year is expressed on three stamps issued by East Germany depicting: Right to Work, Right to Life and Right to Peace. After issuing stamps expressing such noble sentiments this country does a complete about face and becomes one of the puppets in the rape of Czechoslovakia. Perhaps the East German Government can explain what they mean by Right to Life and Right to Peace and to whom these principals apply.

New and Recent Issues

EIRE: On Sept. 23, two commemoratives, the first, 3d. (black) and 1s. 5d. (blue), to mark the centenary of the birth of Countess Markievicz. She helped to found Fianna Eireann and fought in 1916 as an officer of the Citizen Army. She was sentenced to death but the sentence was commuted and she went on to become the first woman to be elected to the British Parliament in the general election of 1918. The second set, 6d (brown) and 1s.0d. (dark green) marks the centenary of the birth of James Connolly, the founder of the Irish Socialist Republican Party who later was executed for his role in the Rising of 1916. Both stamps are based on photographs and were printed by photogravure on paper watermarked with the letter "E".

FRANCE. The second of the "Art" series was issued on Sept. 23 depicting one of Gauguin's paintings "Arearea". The 1968 series will come to a close with the Oct. 28 issue depicting "La Danse", a sculpture by Bourdelle, and the "Portrait of a Model by Renoir which will be issued Nov. 12. Pringing of these stamps, as in the past, is by multicolor steel engraving process and each will be a 1,00Fr. value.

MALAWI. Four famous paintings of the Nativity, reproduced by multicolor photogravure on watermarked paper, will be the theme of this year's Christmas stamps which will be released on No. 6: 4d. — "The Nativity" by Piero della Francesca; 9d. — "Adoration of the Shepherds" by Murillo; 1s.6d. — "Adoration of the Shepherds" by Reni; 3s.0d. — "The Nativity with God the Father and Holy Ghost" by Pittoni. Souvenir sheets of the four stamps and an attractive First Day Cover will be available.

Partlo heads Queen-E drive for $150,000.

The Queen Elizabeth Hospital of Montreal Tuesday launched its annual fund drive which will extend to Oct. 14, and has set an plan or specific research grants. J. M. Partlo, executive director of the hospital who has been named general chairman of the campaign declares it is in the interest of all members of the community of Montreal and its suburbs to help maintain hospital out-patient clinics, support research projects, as well as the clinical education of medical personnel. Such support is a tangible contribution to the health of the community and to the achievement and advancement of medical skills.

He said he hoped that the large number of friends of the hospital will continue to give their maximum support, and thereby enable the institution to meet the needs of the communities served.

We Say

Examiner mourns parent-firm's end

For those of us at The Westmount Examiner and its associated Weekly Adservice for classified ads, all now at 4630 St. Catherine street west, Westmount, there is real sadness over the difficulties of Monitor Publishing Company Limited, until last week our employers.

Monitor Publishing was a longtime West End institution, particularly because of the group of weekly community newspapers it produced from 1925, onwards, and in more recent years an important local industry as highly specialized commercial printers.

Most of us here had a long association with the company - a company which always recognized it was comprised of people not things, such as machinery.

After 39 years, The Examiner has come home to Westmount. We are happy for that, though suffering pangs of leaving our old home and now mourning the demise of our parent.

Not 'they' but 'we' is government

Our Ottawa correspondent and a reader, on this page this week have respectively weighed the implications of the death of the Hon. Daniel Johnson and paid tribute to the man.

As we mourn both premier and person, we must look beyond, not the grave but to the Quebec and Canada which we must mold. Mr. Johnson knew the explosive forces and, perhaps better, the moderate influences which must be met and balanced.

The months ahead call upon every citizen to be alert and constructive in thought and word; the government and its new leader will need the confidence as well as the advice and consent of the people as rarely before.

It is a time for exercising democracy. It is a time to think of government as "we" and not "they"

Politics no place for Home & School

It is folly for Home & School organizations to delve into political activities.

For that is clearly implied by the report that a Montreal district council, designed as a "power group" for Protestant parents, has been set up as a branch of the Quebec Federation of Home & School Associations and, apparently, organized by the federation's directors.

The St. Leonard school situation has raised temperatures. But that matter is constitutional and clearly political.

By all means, H & S should be concerned and in the normal course should be heard. But deliberate formation of a special "power group" is to over-react.

Home & School is for parent-teacher liaison, whatever the language of instruction. The choice, or lack of choice, of language is for the elected school boards and Legislature, and for the courts if need be.

Country expects better mail service

Tuesday we received in the mail our copies of two weeklies published and posted last Thursday, and our copy of the New Yorker of Sept. 14!

Day-after delivery of first class mail also has become totally unreliable.

No one will object to Postmaster General Kierans raising rates on all mails to realistic and economical levels. Few even will be inconvenienced by dropping Saturday service.

But the country expects, both then and now, quality and promptness.

What does the death of Daniel Johnson mean to Federally-oriented Westmount?

OTTAWA (Special to The Examiner) - Columnist Peter Newman mentioned last week: Jean-Jacques Bertrand is very civilized - maybe too civilized to hold the Quebec premiership very long.

But ardent federalists will be saying many a prayer that the silent "conscience" of the National Union be Johnson's long-term successor.

More than senior civil servants and elected members of the Federal House must recognize the unfortunate situation brought about by the wrecking of the Johnson-Robarts axis.

Unfortunately at this point the Federal-provincial scene is replete with matters of the utmost importance to the future of Canada.

Some of the points include: the possible reconstitution of the Supreme Court; reform of the Senate; redistribution of powers between Ottawa and the provinces; redistribution of Canada's income; a possible change in amending procedures for the constitution and perhaps most important of all, the question of implementing the recommendations of the B and B Commission.

Could Deal With Danny

While Daniel Johnson at times took what was considered a hard line with the Federal authorities at Dominion-provincial conferences, only a few days ago in a coast-to-coast CBC interview Justice Minister John Turner said: "We felt we could deal with Danny Johnson."

This doesn't mean that the Quebec leader who met his death early Thursday at Manicouagan was any pushover for anyone.

Quite the contrary.

Almost immediately after his election in 1966 he set down a hard-line policy for his province's dealings with the Federal Government.

He said: "We will no longer bargain for our rights - we will exercise them," and then he proceeded to do just that.

Wanted U.N. Voice

He demanded, for example, Quebec representation on such United Nations organizations as the International Labor Office and the Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

He made it clear he didn't want to be pushed around on the question of medicare.

In his book, "Equality or Independence," it was clear that he would have preferred the powers of a president to those of a premier, for he said flatly that he would prefer to be able to pick his cabinet without being restricted to members of his own party.

And he stood for the autonomy of Quebec as firmly, if not as fiercely, as did Maurice Duplessis, at whose knee he learned the political savvy that stood him in such good stead.

"There are those," he said, "who would save Confederation at the expense of the autonomy of Quebec. I am ready to save the autonomy of Quebec - even at the price of Confederation."

Held to Hard Line

And at subsequent conferences in 1967 Johnson remained true to his avowed hard line with Ottawa. But he was fully aware of the virtues and values of the country as a whole, and is on record at a Dominion-Provincial Conference as saying: "Thank God we're living in Canada. Some of the proposals put before this conference, particularly by me, would have caused casualties in some countries".

That was the conciliatory Johnson - the man who did the same thing on TV for the nation the night before he died.

The best that can be hoped for by all Canada is that his successor carries out his plans.

And the closer they are carried out to his formula, the better for everyone concerned.

You Say

Discipline needed for young cyclists

Sir, I cannot understand why children, who are so vulnerable, are permitted to ride bicycles absolutely ignoring the rules of the road and jeopardizing their own and other peoples lives.

To name just a few of the offences, they ride through traffic lights, weave in and out of traffic and, worst of all, ride at night without lights.

As parents we spend countless hours teaching our children road-walking safety, and yet most of them look as though they have never been told that there are rules for vehicles, too. A little emphasis on consideration to others may help since they seem to disregard their own safety.

But I believe the best way would be to give the police authority to issue tickets, and 50 cents would not be enough! Or in cases that warranted it, to confiscate the bicycles; this way the parents would know what was going on.

Of course this gives the police extra work but it would be work with a value, since they would be helping to teach children responsibility and respect for others. What a pity this has to be done in the form of a punishment.

Tribute is paid to Daniel Johnson

Sir: He was a very special man. Canada knew him as the cold, calculating defender of Quebec rights, and antagonist of Ottawa.

Yet Quebec, who knew him better, embraced him as one of her true sons, a family man, devout Roman Catholic, reared from the soil in the Habitant tradition.

He was both of these men. For

The National Liberal Federation

The National Liberal Federation has, until very recently, meant something to very few Canadians. For a national organization, this would seem rather incomprehensible. This situation is attributable to several factors: Federal-provincial co-ordination, finance, and the role of the Parliamentary caucus.

When, in 1932, the federation was instituted, the constitution described it as "a central superstructure resting on provincial pillars." Thus, although national in character, the federation is provincial in essence. Quebec's refusal to have anything to do with the federation until 1958 further lessened the latter's importance. In the all-important realm of finance, the federation is mostly dependent upon provincial organizations for its funds. The record over the years shows that rarely has the Federation met half its objective.

The relationship between the federation and the parliamentary caucus has often been tenuous.

The latter feels that in times of election, organization should be done by local M.P.s. Between elections, it is generally felt that little organizing and publicity need be undertaken.

Active Participation

There is developing now a growing trend towards more active participation among both the governing and the governed; a participation which entails both groups becoming involved with one another on a continuing basis. Otherwise the interest of the majority of Canadians will be kindled only at election time, and will die out immediately thereafter.

The National Liberal Federation is the obvious body to stimulate interest among all Canadians in the day-to-day workings of their government. At a meeting of the federation's executive last month the Prime Minister

Exchange students address Westmount Rotary luncheon

The scope of Rotary's international service to students was illustrated vividly at last week's Westmount Rotary Club's weekly meeting in Victoria Hall when two young students, one from Argentina and the other from South Africa, addressed the members.

They were here on Rotary scholarships from their native towns of Vedia, in the Argentina, and Malmsbury, South Africa. Both were guests of the club, brought and sponsored by the Lachute-Brownsburg Rotary Club. They were introduced to the gathering by President John Giles of Lachute.

The students were Carl Seart and Sylvia Lazaro. Both gave accounts of their experiences on their first trip to Canada. Miss Lazaro's lucid impressions of Canada were considered most remarkable since she could not speak a word of English when she arrived here early last spring. She brought greetings to the local club from her homeland which she described in outline. Her town of Veza, Argentina, was so small and insignificant that it was not even shown on maps, she said. She told of conditions under which Argentina is thriving today and presented President McLuskie with a club emblem from Veza.

Carl Swart urged the support for more Rotary exchanges of students.

The death of a second major shareholder, Francis B. Winham, in England in October, dealt the company another serious blow on top of staff-retraining problems and hobbling restrictions imposed by trade union contracts. Production costs soared.

In April, control changed hands. The efforts of new management members, however, were to no avail. New union demands on top of continuing high costs led to last week's collapse of the company. A staff of some 70 persons, mostly members of three craft unions, was directly affected.

Resigns, Buys Examiner

With the decision to dispose of the last paper, its purchase and his resignation after 12 years as president of Monitor Publishing was proposed by John W. Sancton, a longtime newspaperman. This was accepted by the directors in late August, when the fortunes of the company still appeared hopeful.

But as The Examiner moved from Kildare road, Cote St. Luc, to St. Catherine street west, Westmount, after last week's issue had "gone to bed", Monitor Publishing's creditors met.

weekly started in 1925 by Hugh E. McCormick, which served Notre Dame de Grâce and, to the present, the adjoining municipalities of Montreal West, Côte St. Luc and Hampstead. Subsequently added in a group-publishing operation were The Examiner, The Verdun Guardian and St. Laurent News.

Meanwhile, the company also adapted its newspaper-printing facilities to volume production of advertising material, becoming a leader in the field in Canada and even extending its markets to the United Kingdom. Plant expansion on Hampton avenue culminated with a new building and equipment on Cote St Luc's Kildare road in 1959.

Other Papers Leased Out

The Guardian was leased out in 1962; finally closed for lack of local support in 1966. The Monitor and St. Laurent News also were leased out in 1963 and continue to be published from offices on N.D.G.'s Somerled avenue by Miller Publishing Co. Ltd., headed by Westmounter Lou Miller, former advertising manager and managing editor of the papers at Monitor Publishing.

The Examiner smallest of the group of weeklies, has been Monitor Publishing's sole publishing activity for the past five years. It has been managed by Hugh R. Mount and edited for the past year by Leonard Ryan. Mr. Mount, a Monitor Publishing veteran, will continue to be involved in advertising sales with the new publishers while Mr. Ryan this week took up a new appointment as editor of the Sherbrooke Daily Record.

Firm Bought Out in 1956

The shares of Monitor Publishing Company Limited were purchased in 1956 from Mr. McCormick who has continued since as board chairman by an Anglo-Canadian group headed by the late Sir William T. Aitken, MP of London, England. — Canadian-born nephew of Lord Beaverbrook who built and headed the worldwide syndication operations of Beaverbrook Newspapers Ltd. Sir William died in 1964, as the revitalized Company was achieving its best successes.

In 1966, though the leader in introducing full process color to newspaper-type letterpress printing in Montreal, the inevitability of new offset processes faced the company with a major conversion which was completed last autumn.

Serendipity...

That odd word, according to Webster, means the unexpected discovery of pleasant places or things... an unanticipated delight...

Our charming In-Town Houses on Upper Trafalgar Place are a true serendipity. Just turn right off Cote des Neiges, a short block north of The Boulevard, and discover them. Here, with all Montreal below you, the Mountain Park as a backdrop, and rose-bushes at your doorstep, you'll find the gracious home you've dreamed of.

Delightful amenities too numerous to list. (But central air-conditioning is one of them!) And you may RENT... at rates that are a downright serendipity in their own right.

Do come see. 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. daily, by appointment.

Pets to be blessed Sunday on mountain

A blessing of pets ceremony, sponsored by the Inter-Faith Study Group for Animal Welfare - a sub-committee of the Canadian Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals - on Sunday at 2:30 pm at Beaver Lake on Mount Royal. The public is invited to bring their pets.

The ceremony will be conducted by Father George Germain, OFM, father superior of the Franciscan Community on Dorchester boulevard.

The Blessing of Pets coincides with the Feast of St. Francis of Assisi, Oct. 4. Saint Francis was a lover of all God's creation, including the birds and beasts. Father Germain will offer prayers, and then bless the animals present. The Montreal Police mounted force will have some of their horses and dogs there, and the dogs will present a demonstration of their special training.

People are requested to have their pets under control: dogs on leashes, cats in baskets, etc.

The ceremony will be bilingual.

The SPCA's inter-faith committee was formed recently in order to bring about the application of the religious principles of justices and mercy in the relief of animal suffering. It is hoped that the clergy will emphasize positive humane attitudes in their teachings.

200 boys and girls join Unity Club

The Westmount Examiner,
Thursday, October 3, 1968-7

The Unity Boys' and Girls' Club of Westmount continues to be a popular rendez-vous for the youth of St. Henri and Westmount. In the last two weeks of September nearly 200 boys and girls have joined the club, with 83 percent being new members, predominately of the French speaking children living in the St. Henri district.

The trend indicates that there is a definite need for Unity.

The club building on Green avenue officially opened in 1950. Since then the club has served the community, with its prime purpose in the guidance of boys and girls in health, mental and physical, vocational skills and social plus character development.

These goals are still the main purpose and they are achieved by providing members with an opportunity of participation in a variety of free time activity and acquiring the companionship of other club members in a good environment under good leadership.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED:

This is the second appeal for volunteer workers. Last weeks appeal attracted a few in the arts and crafts area. However, there is an urgent need for leaders in general supervision, woodwork and hobbies. Parents, either mothers or fathers, can be most useful in the group club division. Experience is not necessary.

PROGRAM NOTES:

Popular Louis Thomas, with a wealth of experience in art woodwork and Indian lore as well as story telling, has returned and will resume his classes on Mondays and Wednesdays from 4 - 5 p.m. for the Atom members and from 6 to 8 for the Midgets and Juniors. A limited number of members will be allowed to join Louis' classes and this will be based on the first come basis.

Plans are being made to revive the Skookum Tribe for the advanced students of Louis Thomas' woodwork classes. In the past this activity was one of the most popular with the Midget and Junior members. Registrations will be announced soon.

ARTS AND CRAFTS:

Wendy Jolly, arts and crafts supervisor, reports that all the craft programs were well attended by the girls and boys. In some cases classes were filled to capacity.

TAP AND BALLET:

These classes got off to a good start, with professional instruction by Miss Carol Bolster on Monday evening, while those who were not interested in the latter class were busy in the arts and crafts supervised and instructed by Mrs. E. Dube.

MAJORETTES:

Tuesdays 6 - 6, Saturday 2 - 3 Instructor, Miss Claire Riley who performs with the Larkettes at all the Alouette Football teams home games.

DRAMATICS:

French and English Classes. Tuesday 7 - 9 Instructors, Michelle Nicolet and Lucienne Zouvi. Mis Zouvi has just completed a three - month acting schedule in Ottawa.

GIRLS ATHLETICS:

The gymnasium has been reserved for the girl members (6 - 14) of the Club on Wednesday from 6 - 7 for the Atoms, 8 - 9 for the Midgets and Juniors. The girls program includes a formation of a girls' gymnastic display team. A junior girls volleyball team to play in inter-club competition. The girls' volleyball team is coached by Miss Helen Turcaz. All junior girl members interested in trying out for the Unity Boys' and Girls' volleyball team should report to Miss Turcaz on Wednesday night or register with Wendy Jolly during the week.

FOLK DANCING:

This program, held on Thursday from 7 - 9 p.m. is open to all members, boys and girls from 10 to 14 years. François Taillefer is the instructor and he has an unlimited knowledge of folk dances to teach to all who are interested in learning the dances of countries from all over the world. Register with Wendy Jolly at any time during the club hours for this class.

CREATIVE ART:

Supervision for this special class is under Mrs. Lonie Echenberg, who is teaching at Sir George Williams in the arts and science faculty. Members in Mrs. Echenberg's class have an opportunity in creating their own masterpieces on whatever material they are working with, be it felt, leather basketstraws or painting. This past week the members made mobiles out of strands of wool, stove pipe wire, carbon pint boxes, construction paper.

The finished projects were taken home by each member. This class is held every Thursday evening from 6 - 9 p.m. with a limited participated of 15 members (boys and girls) at each hourly class.

Tribute is...

who can forget his classic confrontations with Pierre Trudeau at the federal-provincial conferences; who can help but remember his delight when, only a few days ago, he greeted his wife and daughters at the airport?

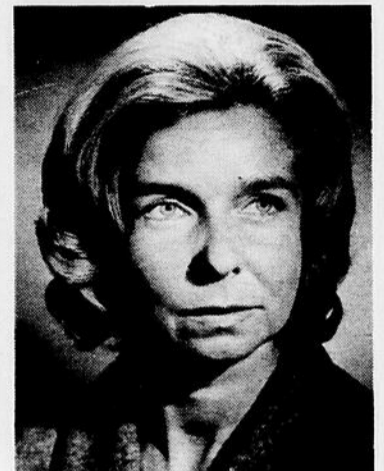

Despite what the masses may think, Daniel Johnson had a deep and abiding faith in Canadian federalism. As far as he was concerned, the monarchy might disappear but Canada, as a federal state, would remain. He knew that seperation invited disaster, yet he also knew that the quiet revolution could no longer be contained unless the deep-seated desires of the Quebecois were voiced in Ottawa. That he was taken the day after pledging full rights for all minorities in Quebec is ironic, but perhaps this last action will endure beyond whatever he might have dreamed.

But these questions of policy and power are at the moment far from the minds of most Quebecers. For in St. Jean de Brebeuf, and Marieville and St. Pie de Bagot, as in the thousands of villages scattered up and down the hinterland of the St. Lawrence, the inhabitants put a candle in their windows for Daniel Johnson. One of their own is gone.

One of our own is gone, too, and we are all the poorer for it.

said that he also wants the Liberal Party to act as a kind of collective ombudsman, to serve the people actively between elections.

To this end, the structure of the federation is in the process of considerable change and revitalization. One of the bugbears, as mentioned earlier, has been finance. Traditionally, people only donate money at election time. However, the federation must operate all the time. In order to overcome this dilemma and to accommodate an enlarged staff, a permanent director of finance has been named. A campaign along the lines of the United Appeal is being mooted. There is a need, as Senator Richard Stanbury, federation president, has pointed out, to convince the public that to donate to politics is good, just as to donate to charity is good.

Basic Attitudes

The federation is attempting to surmount another basic problem, one of attitude toward political parties. In the past, party organizations have been expected to go away quietly and die between elections. Now, instead of curtailing its activities, the Federation is expanding its forces. For instance, a French-speaking director of field organization, Jacques St. Laurent, has been appointed to serve with an English-speaking colleague, Ron Fairclough. The country has been divided into two regions for organization purposes: one from Quebec eastward, the other from Ontario westward. St. Laurent is concerned with the former, Fairclough with the latter.

The example of these two, is not unique. The declared and practised policy of the federation is to have each of the two cultures represented and comprehended at all levels of the organization. Thus, if the national organizer is English-speaking (as he is)

In an effort to achieve greater co-operation between the cabinet, the caucus, and the party organization, provincial "guidance councils" are to be established, comprising ministers, M.P.s and party workers. It will be the task of these councils to provide a new direct line of communication between the grassroot elements and the government.

As in any organization, certain functions no longer serve their original purpose, through force of circumstances. A case in point is the Young Liberal Federation, an organization destined for people thirty years and younger. The original idea was good, but certain events, including the increased interest among the young, have made basic changes necessary. These changes are embodied in a report to the executive from the president of the Young Liberal Federation, recommending that the organization should be abolished. In its place, youth councils would be set up at the constituency level, directed at those of the voting or near-voting age (18 to 23 years). These councils would be completely integrated into the mainstream of party politics and would concentrate on constituency or area projects.

IODE meets at supper

These are just a few of the undertakings of the National Liberal Federation. They all augur well for the future of "politics of participation"

Library shows fire posters by children

Beginning Monday, the Westmount Public Library will display a selection of posters illustrating various aspects of fire prevention. These posters are the project of Westmount school children, executed in conjunction with Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 6 - 12. Contest winners will be chosen by a panel of judges on the basis of theme and artistic quality.

This year's judges are Mrs. Theodore Meighen, of the Library Board; Kenneth B. Case, of the Westmount Municipal Association, and John Barwick, well-known local artist.

In addition to the posters, there will be on display books, pamphlets and other materials relating to fire prevention.

Of special interest will be a book compiled by members of the Westmount Fire Department, illustrating the various facets of fire prevention and fire fighting in Westmount. Its message is effectively conveyed through drawings and photographs as well as text and printed materials. Last year, this book took second place in Quebec, in an international contest sponsored by the National Fire Prevention Association.
