griefs to rest, each sigh of sorrow quell meet thee still at sound of ves-per bell; In the star-ry light of a sum-mernight, In the star-ry light of a sum-mernight, On the Banks of the blue Mo-selle-- , On the banks of the blue Mo-

-selle-----, In the star-ry light of a sum-mernight, On the banks of the blue Mo-selle.

If the cares of life should shade thy brow,
 Yes, Yes, in our native bow'rs,
 My Lute, and heart might best accord,
 To tell of happier hours;
 Yes there I'll sooth thy griefs to rest,
 Each sigh of sorrow quell.

In the stary light of a summer night,
 In the stary light of a summer night,
 On the banks of the blue Moselle,
 On the banks of the blue Moselle;
 In the stary light of a summer night,
 On the banks of the blue Moselle.
